ORGANIZATIONS IN CONSULTATIVE STATUS WITH THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL, CATEGORIES I AND II

Quadrennial reports, 1990-1993

Reports submitted through the Secretary-General pursuant to Economic and Social Council resolution 1296 (XLIV) of 3 May 1968

Addendum

* E/C.2/1995/1.

Note

In accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 1296 (XLIV) on arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations, organizations in consultative status in categories I and II shall submit to the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations, through the Secretary-General, every fourth year a brief report of their activities, specifically as regards the support they have given to the work of the United Nations. Based on findings of the Committee's examination of the report and other relevant information, the Committee may recommend to the Council any reclassification in status of the organization concerned as it deems appropriate.

At its 1981 session, the Committee decided that quadrennial reports submitted by non-governmental organizations should be limited to no more than two single-spaced pages. At its 1989 session, the Committee stressed the need for non-governmental organizations required to submit quadrennial reports to provide the Secretariat with clear and timely information, including, inter alia, a brief introductory statement recalling the aims and purposes of the organization.

At its 1991 session, the Committee emphasized the need for non-governmental organizations requested to submit quadrennial reports to provide a clear picture of their activities as they related to the United Nations. The Committee further noted that the reports should conform to the guidelines elaborated by the Non-Governmental Organizations Unit pursuant to the relevant decisions of the Committee (see E/1991/20, para. 47). The Committee decided that only those reports elaborated in conformity with the guidelines and submitted to the Non-Governmental Organizations Unit no later than 1 June of the year preceding the Committee's session would be transmitted to the Committee for consideration. The Committee recalled that organizations failing to submit adequate reports on time would be subject to reclassification in status that the Committee might deem appropriate, in conformity with paragraph 40 (b) of Council resolution 1296 (XLIV) (see E/1991/20, para. 48). Pursuant to these decisions, the Secretariat, in December 1993, communicated to all relevant organizations guidelines for the completion of quadrennial reports.

The material issued in the present series of documents (E/C.2/1995/2 and addenda) has been reproduced as submitted and therefore reflects the policies and terminology of the organizations concerned. The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations Secretariat concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries.

Supplementary material, such as annual reports and samples of publications, is available in the Non-Governmental Organizations section of the Department for Policy Coordination and Sustainable Development of the United Nations Secretariat.

1. CHRISTIAN CHILDREN'S FUND INC.

(Category II)

The Christian Children's Fund (CCF) is an international non-profit and non-sectarian child development agency founded in 1938 and dedicated to the survival and protection of children and to improving the quality of the lives they will lead. The Fund provides help to needy children regardless of race or religion. Assistance is provided to approximately 2.5 million children in over 40 countries throughout Asia, Africa, Latin America and, since 1991, in Eastern Europe. The headquarters are in Richmond, Virginia, United States of America.

CCF works to make sure every child has the basic necessities for survival - food, clean water, health care and medicine - as well as the vocational and educational support that spawns self-sufficiency. CCF's programmes also support the emotional, psychological and mental needs which are as pressing to a child's healthy development as food and shelter.

As the world's oldest child-development sponsorship agency, CCF promotes the concept of a one-to-one relationship between children in need and those willing to help. This was a founding principle and has been the buttress of its ability to help children. For children in crisis - beyond the reach of the ongoing child-and-sponsor relationship - CCF depends on responses to special appeals and other non-sponsorship donations.

CCF has national offices in 22 countries, including the United States. In addition, partnership organizations provide CCF leadership in Australia, Canada, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hong Kong, Japan, New Zealand, Republic of Korea, and Taiwan Province of China. The New Zealand and French affiliates were added within the past four years.

In 1991 CCF opened an office in Geneva. It supports CCF's Eastern European programme and also relates to United Nations agencies based in Geneva.

In 1989, the President of CCF, was elected Deputy President of the NGO Committee on UNICEF. In 1991 he became President of the NGO Committee and was re-elected in 1993. He has regularly represented CCF at UNICEF-sponsored meetings and events.

Since 1990 CCF has had a liaison office in New York City. This has allowed CCF to strengthen its relationships with UNICEF and other offices and agencies of the United Nations. The New York staff regularly attends UNICEF Executive Board meetings, briefings of the Department of Humanitarian Affairs and other Secretariat briefings, seminars and fora, it keeps CCF informed of United Nations events and activities by way of a bimonthly newsletter and regular communications by phone and memo.

CCF staff have frequent contact with UNICEF staff, both in the United States and in the national offices. A CCF staff member visited Romania as part of a UNICEF delegation. Other CCF staff have worked with UNICEF's education department on early-childhood development curricula.

Ratification and follow-up to the Convention on the Rights of the Child is a high priority for CCF. The national offices are encouraged to work with other non-governmental organizations on promoting the Convention.

After the World Summit for Children, CCF wrote its own plan of action, based on that of the World Summit, called Ten Steps to 2000. It calls for CCF programmes to provide 10 basic services for all children, using the Plan of Action of the World Summit as a guide.

Some national offices of CCF also work in direct cooperation with UNDP.

2. COVENANT HOUSE

(Category II)

The aims of Covenant House are: to identify and attempt to assist in solving the problems of the urban poor, especially abandoned or neglected children; to explore and participate in the identification of the social, psychological and physical problems of these children, and to stimulate public awareness of the need for effective youth care facilities. Covenant House achieves these aims by providing crisis care and supportive services to more than 40,000 runaway and homeless youth each year. Covenant House is located in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Guatemala and Honduras. It provides food and shelter, street outreach, medical and nutritional assistance, substance-abuse counselling and advocacy.

During the period 1990-1993, Covenant House's senior vice-president participated monthly in UNICEF's non-governmental organizations (NGO) Working Group on Children in Especially Difficult Circumstances. In 1993, the senior vice-president chaired the sub-working group on exploited children for that committee. The group worked on several projects regarding the sexual exploitation of children and, most recently, on projects regarding exploitive child labour. It focused on identifying and disseminating information with respect to programmes that have successfully helped working children in the developing and least developed countries. The working group called for the replication of those programmes and an expansion of funding for them and others like them by United Nations agencies, donor Governments and large international agencies. The senior vice-president also established a link to the New York office of the ILO.

Additionally, the senior vice-president participated in the monthly meetings of the Youth Employment Committee from 1990 to 1991 and served as the chair of the executive board of the NGO/DPI committee during 1990. In the latter role, he played a major role in chairing the annual NGO/DPI conference in September of that year.

During 1992 and 1993, the senior vice-president served on the planning committee for the NGO Conference on the Rights of Children, held in Guatemala in November 1993. As part of the international committee of seven members, the senior vice-president was instrumental in assisting in the planning, coordination and operation of the conference and in providing technical support at the conference through Casa Alianza (Covenant House) of Guatemala. Follow-up work with the more than 130 NGOs that attended began immediately after the conference.

Covenant House has worked closely with UNICEF and also with the United Nations rapporteur for human rights regarding the situation of street children in Guatemala and Honduras and, through its legal aid office in Guatemala, has filed over 50 cases against police accused of killing street children. Covenant House has also apprised UNICEF of the abuse of shoe glue by street youth, especially in Central American countries, and has led the fight to have this glue, which is manufactured by an American and a German company, altered so that sniffing if would be odious to these children. This work was done by Covenant House's Central American director, in liaison with the senior vice-president.

Covenant House's senior vice-president disseminated the United Nations General Assembly's Declaration on the Plight of Street Children, and followed the actions of the Commission on Human Rights with respect to this issue. The Declaration has proved invaluable in assisting Covenant House in its continued advocacy for street children, especially in Central America.

Covenant House has been quite active in advocating the ratification of the Convention on the Rights of the Child through letter-writing campaigns to members of the United States Senate.

5. INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF LIONS CLUBS
(LIONS CLUBS INTERNATIONAL)

(Category II)

Lions Clubs International has approximately 1,400,000 members in 42,200 clubs in 178 countries or geographical locations. It is a non-political organization devoted to the betterment of social and humanitarian conditions. The motto of the association is "we serve", and its activities parallel closely those of the United Nations in the fields of economic, social and humanitarian development.

In the past four years, membership overseas has increased, while membership in North America has decreased. The overall number of members, however, has remained stable, while the number of countries has grown. Growth has occurred in the former Soviet Union, the Baltic States, and in Eastern European countries.

Liaisons are appointed by each international president to represent the association at the United Nations in New York and at United Nations branches in Geneva and Vienna. In addition, the association is affiliated with UNESCO and the World Health Organization, to which annual appointments are also made.

Within the past four years, the association has cooperated with the United Nations in the following areas:

(a) Participation with World Health Organization on the implementation of a major service commitment in sight. Entitled SightFirst, major grants are given for sight-related projects proposed by a committee on which sits a permanent representative of WHO. In addition, during the duration of the SightFirst programme, the association has maintained a paid adviser with WHO;

(b) Participation with the United Nations Environment Programme in the compilation of an environment handbook for distribution to non-governmental organizations;

(c) Active participation on the NGO Committees on Narcotics and Substance Abuse in New York and Vienna;

(d) Implementation with UNESCO of the International Literacy and Culture Program by Leo Clubs;

(e) Sponsorship of an annual Lions Day, at which the Secretary-General and representatives of various United Nations humanitarian agencies have been keynote speakers. Representatives from United Nations agencies have also been featured in similar programmes around the world;

(f) Promulgation of the United Nations-designated International Day Against Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking through distribution of a calendar created by youngsters to combat drug abuse;

(g) Promotion of a diabetes awareness programme in all countries of Lionism, the focus of which was formulated as a result of contributions by officials of WHO.

Other relevant activities

During 1991-1993 the UNESCO liaison of the Association headed the UNESCO working group on environment and durable development, which produced a paper on viable development projects that could enhance environmental quality. During the past four years, the association obtained an upgrade in classification with UNESCO, from category C to category B.

Issues of The Lion Magazine in which the United Nations is prominently featured have been provided to the Secretariat.

6. UNION CATHOLIQUE INTERNATIONALE DE LA PRESSE (UCIP)

The World Forum of Professionals in the Secular and Religious Media

(Category II)

UCIP is an international, Catholic, professional and autonomous organization which brings together journalists, publishers and professors of journalism and communication. It promotes, coordinates and represents the activities of professionals in the secular and religious media world wide.

The membership in UCIP has considerably increased during the past four years. A special wing of the union, the International Network of Young Journalists, has been attracting many young professionals. This is a unique and successful forum in the field of the media.

Today UCIP is present in 109 countries in different parts of the world. UCIP programmes destined for media professionals have attracted not only journalists but also Governments as partners.

Activities

During the past four years UCIP has given special attention to initiating relevant and timely activities in line with United Nations resolutions, decisions and principles. They include UCIP University; refresher programmes; the Union's major and world-wide activity, the World Congress; UCIP documents; the International Award for Solidarity with Refugees; and ongoing reflections on relevant subjects.

UCIP University

UCIP University is a discovery programme for professional journalists between 25 and 40 years of age designed to help them understand and learn about the life of a continent other than their own. UCIP selects 20-25 journalists twice every three years from all over the world except from the continent of venue.

UCIP University 1990 was organized in the United States and Canada in June/July. Twenty-five journalists from Europe, Asia, Africa, Latin America and Oceania participated in the one-month exposure to the cultural, political, social and religious realities of the North American continent.

UCIP University 1991 was organized in India and Pakistan. The 26 participating journalists said that the exposure was a much better way to understand the life and realities of the Indian subcontinent than depending on international news agencies.

UCIP University was not organized in 1992 since that was the year of the UCIP World Congress.

UCIP University 1993 was organized in the former German Democratic Republic, Poland, Czech Republic, Hungary and Ukraine. For the 24 participating journalists and for the host Governments and governmental and non-governmental organizations, UCIP University was an extraordinary opportunity to observe Eastern Europe.

UCIP University 1994 will be organized in November in Kenya, the United Republic of Tanzania, Zimbabwe and South Africa. The event will naturally provide insights into four African countries which have been undergoing enormous change.

UCIP University brings together journalists from all parts of the world, from developed and developing nations despite inequalities and injustices in their earning power, working conditions and hopes for the future. The exposure programme has succeeded in uniting journalists from various nations in the spirit of the principles of the United Nations.

Refresher programmes

Refresher programmes take into consideration the needs of professionals on national, regional and/or continental levels. They help journalists and Governments to study the most pressing issues of a country, region or continent.

The pilot refresher programme was organized in Kaduna, Nigeria, in September 1991. The second was organized in Nairobi, Kenya, in November 1992, and the third, in Dar Es Salaam, United Republic of Tanzania, for journalists of Malawi, Zambia and Uganda. Again in 1993, Zagreb, Croatia, welcomed more than 60 journalists, mainly from the former Yugoslavia and Eastern Europe.

The main themes studied, debated and resolved in the refresher programmes are freedom of the press, political systems, ethics in the profession, and the responsibilities of journalists in wartime.

In 1994 UCIP organized two major refresher programmes for the African continent, on democratization in Africa and on the challenges of journalists. The programmes were held in Dakar, Senegal, in July. The programmes gave the African journalists an occasion to hold their own study days. More than 150 journalists from 32 African countries participated in the events. They were the biggest ever assembly of journalists on the continent.

World Congress

UCIP World Congress is a world forum for UCIP members and well-wishers. They come together to study and analyse their profession. UCIP always chooses a relevant theme for the triennial congress. The 1992 World Congress explored the theme "Press and solidarity" at Campos do Jordao, Sao Paulo, Brazil.

UCIP's International Network of Young Journalists organized its world convention in conjunction with the UCIP World Congress on the theme "Journalism for world peace and development".

The 1992 UCIP World Congress brought together 600 journalists from more than 80 countries. One of the major resolutions called upon the journalists to work for the betterment of street children in Latin America.

UCIP documents

During the past four years UCIP has brought out two major documents: "Professional ethics in journalism" and "Press responsibilities in violent conflict situations".

These documents guide media men and women towards the right decisions and extol them to respect the dignity of all people. They have had a tremendous influence on journalists world wide in the recent past.

International Award for Solidarity with Refugees

In cooperation with several institutions working in the field of refugees UCIP organized an international award for journalists on all continents. The award aimed at making nations and peoples conscious of the plight of refugees and displaced people; honouring and recognizing five journalists who have, through their media productions, been advocates for the dignity and the rights of refugees as human beings; finding new methods, attitudes and dispositions for dealing with refugees and displaced people; and considering refugees integral and equal human beings who deserve humanity's respect, solidarity and fraternity.

The award inspired journalists world wide to give better attention to the plight of refugees and to use the media for the betterment of refugees, in line with United Nations resolutions.

The five award winners visited various organizations working for refugees, especially UNHCR.

Ongoing reflections on relevant subjects

UCIP and its Network have succeeded in stimulating ongoing reflection among journalists world wide on relevant topics. The topics discussed and debated in the past four years include "My profession and the development of people"; "Role of the journalist in promoting values"; "United Nations and world peace"; "Journalism for world peace and development"; and "Journalists of the new era: our challenges, duties and hardships". This year's themes are "Media and family" and "Ethics of peace in a world of violence".

Participation in United Nations events

In the past four years UCIP was present at some of the key United Nations manifestations. The current Secretary-General sent a group of journalists to the UNESCO-sponsored meeting of journalists in Windhoek, Namibia, in 1991. The Secretary-General was also present at the gathering which discussed independent and pluralistic press for Africa. A similar UNESCO conference, held at Santiago, Chile, this year, was attended by the 1992 UCIP award winner.

UCIP was also present at the United Nations conferences on the environment (Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, 1992); human rights (Vienna, Austria, 1993), and population (Cairo, Egypt, 1994). Its representatives in New York, Paris, Geneva, Vienna are often present at United Nations or United Nations-related programmes.

The UCIP vice-president has been active in representing UCIP at conferences on women.

Future plans

UCIP is studying the possibility of organizing more refresher Programmes, for which it has received several requests from journalists in Eastern Europe, Latin America, Asia, Africa and the Pacific Islands. It is also studying the possibility of cooperation with United Nations bodies like UNESCO in the realization of its Programmes and the work of UCIP University.

7. INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION OF EMPLOYERS

(Category I)

Profile

Founded in 1920, the International Organization of Employers is the only world organization authoritatively representing the interests of employers throughout the world in all social labour matters at the international level. It is dedicated to promoting private enterprise and to furthering the interests of employers and of their organizations in all countries, especially in the developing countries and countries in transition. It acts as a permanent liaison body for the exchange of views and experience among employers throughout the world and is the recognized channel for the expression and promotion of the employers point of view in social matters in all international bodies. It has consultative status with the United Nations and with the International Labour Organization and close working relations with other international governmental and non-governmental bodies concerned with matters falling within its own sphere of activities. Its members are the central employer organizations of 111 countries.

Participation in activities of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies

The International Organization of Employers (IOE) was represented at the regular sessions of the Economic and Social Council both in New York and Geneva, during the period under review.

It pursued its close cooperation with the United Nations Commission on Transnational Corporations and its successor, the UNCTAD Commission on International Investment and Transnational Corporations, participating in their meetings and taking an active part in the United Nations work on transnational corporations. Joint statements from IOE and the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) were submitted, presenting the views of business circles.

Cooperation with United Nations agencies

International Labour Organization (ILO)

By virtue of its consultative status with the ILO, IOE has been involved in all of the activities of the agency, attending all tripartite meetings in its capacity as a coordinating body and the secretariat of the Employers' Group.

Particular attention was paid to the defence of human rights within the ILO Committee on Freedom of Association and the ILO Committee on Discrimination; to the application of ILO Conventions on social and labour standards and on human rights questions; and to technical assistance to employers' organizations in third world countries and countries in transition as partners in development.

Through its participation in the ILO Governing Body, IOE is permanently following all United Nations activities related to ILO competencies.

United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO)

IOE's permanent representative in Vienna attended all meetings of the UNIDO Industrial Development Board. Particular attention is being devoted to UNIDO's training activities for industrial manpower and to its sectoral activities.

Implementation of United Nations resolutions

The Organization has participated in the ILO actions aimed at implementing United Nations resolutions concerning action to combat racism and racial discrimination. To this effect it participated in the special meetings held prior to and during the International Labour Conference during the period under review, to give effect to the updated 1964 ILO Declaration concerning the policy of apartheid in South Africa, to which IOE subscribes.

Dissemination of information

IOE publishes The Free Employer, which periodically covers United Nations activities of particular importance to its members.

Participation in United Nations conferences

In addition to the meetings mentioned above, representatives of IOE attended the following conferences or meetings held under the auspices of, or in connection with, the United Nations:

(a) Second United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries (Paris, September 1990);

(b) United Nations Conference on Environment and Development (Rio de Janeiro, June 1992);

(c) United Nations Environment Programme: Consultative Meetings with Industry and Trade Associations (Paris, September 1992 and June 1993);

(d) United Nations Conference on Trade and Development: Ad Hoc Working Group on Comparative Experience with Privatization (First session) (Geneva, November-December 1992);

(e) United Nations World Conference on Human Rights (Vienna, June 1993)

Moreover, IOE is currently working very closely with the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) with a view to presenting jointly the position of the

8. INTERNATIONAL PLANNED PARENTHOOD FEDERATION

(Category I)

The International Planned Parenthood Federation (IPPF) links national autonomous family planning associations in 136 countries world wide. It is the largest voluntary organization in the world to be concerned with family planning and sexual and reproductive health. It is committed to promoting the rights of women and men to decide freely the number and spacing of their children and the right to the highest possible level of sexual and reproductive health. The Federation operates on a budget of between US$ 75 million and $105 million per year, and family planning associations also raise funds locally.

Participation in United Nations meetings

IPPF has regularly attended the meetings of the Population Commission, the Commission on the Status of Women and the Commission for Social Development. It has made written and oral statements at those meetings.

IPPF attended and supported the participation of country-level population/environment representatives at the 1992 United Nations Conference on Environment and Development and gave its full support to Agenda 21.

IPPF attended preparatory meetings for the World Conference on Human Rights and the World Conference itself, in 1993. IPPF made a statement to the Conference and was able to influence the drafting of the Declaration on Human Rights to ensure that language on reproductive rights was included in the final text.

IPPF attended the preparatory meetings for the International Year of the Family and took a leading role in the NGO Committee on the Family. IPPF was particularly active at the launching of the IYF in Malta in 1993.

IPPF participated in all the preparatory meetings which took place in 1992-1993 for the 1994 International Conference on Population and Development. These included the regional population conferences, the expert group meetings and round table meetings. IPPF took a prominent role in the pre-ICPD European meetings, giving special emphasis to Eastern Europe. The IPPF President, as head of the Ghana delegation, chaired the second session of the Preparatory Committee for the Conference in May 1993.

IPPF has been represented at preparatory meetings for the Fourth World Conference on Women. It was represented at the annual and issue-related meetings of the regional commissions - in particular, those of ESCAP.

Cooperation with United Nations programmes and bodies

IPPF's President from 1971-1978, Dr. Julia Henderson, received the 1991 United Nations Population Award, and IPPF's current President, Dr. Fred Sai, received the 1993 Award.

IPPF is a member of the UNFPA Consultative Group on Contraceptive Requirements and Logistic Management Needs in Developing Countries in the 1990s.

UNFPA, along with IPPF and other organizations, continues to sponsor the quarterly publication People and the Planet.

IPPF has continued to work with several divisions of the World Health Organization, on such undertakings as the Special Programme of Research, Development and Research Training in Human Reproduction; the Global Programme on AIDS; and the Maternal and Child Health and Adolescent Reproductive Health programmes. IPPF is a permanent member of WHO's Human Reproduction Programme's Policy Coordinating Committee. IPPF has co-sponsored with WHO global and regional meetings in the field of safe motherhood and is a member of the Inter-agency Steering Committee for follow-up to safe motherhood initiatives.

Other relevant activities

Through its programmes in over 140 countries and its wide dissemination of information and publications to its membership, IPPF fully promotes the United Nations resolutions concerned with the human right to family planning, reproductive rights and the provision of universal access to family planning information and services. IPPF prepared and disseminated to its members materials on United Nations special events such as the International Year of the Family, the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development and ICPD. The main issues were promoted in Open File, a wide-reaching information bulletin, People and the Planet, and in other channels. IPPF's Vision 2000: Strategic Plan, endorsed by all IPPF member family planning associations, lays out the Federation's goals, objectives and activities at the international, regional and national levels for the next few years. These support United Nations aims and concerns regarding youth, quality of care and women's empowerment.

In support of the 1994 International Conference on Population and Development, IPPF mobilized its entire membership to initiate consultations with their Governments in order to influence the drafting of the final ICPD document. Many representatives of IPPF's family planning associations became members of their governmental delegations to preparatory committee sessions. The President of IPPF's Western Hemisphere Region was elected chair of the NGO Steering Committee for the ICPD.

UNFPA funded, and WHO provided technical assistance to, the Youth for Youth project coordinated by IPPF. The project, which involved six international non-governmental organizations, was designed to promote adolescent reproductive health in six countries. A final publication reporting on the project was produced in 1993.

IPPF has kept in close touch and collaborates with the NGO Offices in New York and Geneva. FPAs have continued to work closely with United Nations field offices in their respective countries, especially on promotion for World Population Day.

9. INTERNATIONAL STATISTICAL INSTITUTE

(Category II)

Established in 1885, the International Statistical Institute (ISI) is one of the oldest international scientific associations functioning in the modern world. The Institute is an autonomous society which seeks to develop and improve statistical methods and their application throughout the world, encourage international cooperation and association between statisticians and the exchange of their professional knowledge and findings; further the international integration of statistics by developing world-wide relations between statistical societies and other official and unofficial organizations having statistical interests; contribute to the improvement of statistical education and promote training in statistics. It also seeks to advance the study of statistical theory, appraise statistical methods and practices, encourage statistical research and further the application of statistical methods in all relevant fields; promote the use of the most appropriate statistical methods in all countries; and improve international comparability of statistical data.

Conferences, seminars and sessions

In the 1990-1993 period, the ISI held two biennial sessions. The forty-eighth biennial session, held in Cairo, Egypt (9-17 September 1991) involved over 600 international participants. Open meetings were held examining a diversity of issues, such as the statistics industry, statistical disclosure control, the role of statistical societies with regard to the AIDS epidemic, ISI Declaration on Ethics - six years later; and statistical problems of transition countries. A highlight of the nine-day conference, was the birth of a new ISI section, the International Association of Statistical Education (IASE). This new section is evidence of the importance that ISI places on the development of statistical education around the world. The forty-ninth ISI session, held in Florence, Italy (25 August-2 September 1993), drew over 1,300 participants from all over the world. In the course of the session, several open meetings were held examining a diversity of issues, such as areas of statistics not covered by ISI and the sections, the Moriguti report on the role of statisticians, artistic and cultural heritage and statistics.

As a result of the fifth and sixth competitions for young statisticians from developing countries, three gifted young statisticians were awarded their airfares and expenses to attend the Cairo and Florence sessions, their participation being financed by Internationaal Statistisch Studiefonds, a special fund created during the forty-fifth session in Amsterdam to help promote statistical development in developing countries.

The Third International Conference on Teaching Statistics (ICOTS), held in August 1990 in Dunedin, New Zealand, was a great success, with nearly 600 participants representing over 30 countries. The conference dealt with key issues in the teaching of statistics at all levels and the importance of statistical ideas among the general public.

In October 1990, the International Association for Official Statistics (IAOS), which is one of five ISI associations, held its second Independent Conference in Beijing, China, followed by a satellite meeting in Macau which focused on the structure of statistical systems in small countries. The third IAOS Independent Conference took place in Ankara, Turkey (22-25 September 1992).

In August 1990, the Bernoulli Society, a section of ISI, held its second World Conference in Uppsala, Sweden, with over 800 scientists from all over the world.

The proceedings of the Dublin Seminar on Statistical Confidentiality are now complete and are being distributed by Eurostat. A collaborative effort between the ISI and Eurostat, the seminar was held in Dublin, Ireland (8-10 September 1992), with 125 participants from 23 different countries. It considered papers highlighting the many diverse aspects of confidentiality, including philosophical, legislative and technological overviews, in addition to more specific papers relating to mathematical and computing aspects of data protection and examinations of confidentiality concerning individual, household, industrial and business data.

ISI has initiated a programme in which briefing seminars on international statistics are offered to chief statisticians who wish to expand their understanding of the existing international arrangements, with an inside look at the workings of an increasingly complex network. The project has been organized in cooperation with Statistics Netherlands. The first seminar was held from 11-14 January 1993 at the ISI Permanent Office for the President of Goskomstat of the Russian Federation. A second seminar was held from 6-8 December 1993 with the Director of the State Statistical Office of Estonia, the Deputy Director of the State Statistical Office of Estonia and the Director of the Statistical Office of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

On 27 April 1993, the eightieth anniversary of the ISI Permanent Office in the Netherlands was celebrated at Statistics Netherlands, the host organization of the Permanent Office in Voorburg. On that occasion, Professor M. J. Petry from Erasmus University (Rotterdam) reported on his research into the history of probability, with particular regard to the work of Christiaan Huygens and Benedictus Spinoza.

Committees

Special efforts have been made to formulate several new committees in order to provide a forum for those statistical disciplines which, in the past, have been poorly represented within the ISI organization. Several of the committees (Gregor Johann Mendel Committee on Agricultural Statistics, Committee on Sports Statistics, Christiaan Huygens Committee on the History of Statistics) have progressed to the point where they were able to meet at the Florence session to discuss future plans and activities and to have a discussion of papers in their fields. The ISI Executive Committee also approved the creation of several additional new ISI committees to foster the work in respect of specific fields: Ernst Engel Committee on Service Statisticians; P. C. Mehalanobis Committee for Statistics on Statistical Activities; Gregory King Committee on Statistical

Infrastructure; Gerardus Mercator Committee on Geographic Information Systems; El-Khowarizmi Committee on Statistics.

The Florence session also saw the creation of the new Working Group for the Identification of Special Areas of Statistical Interest. The Working Group will report to the Executive Committee and Council, identifying areas of statistical work which appear currently to be neglected or underrepresented in ISI activities and areas that are likely to emerge in the future. The Working Group will try to channel these emerging statistical areas to existing ISI sections or other bodies to ensure that they are provided a forum for further development.

The ISI Committee on the Certification of Statisticians met for the first time during the Florence session. It will review national developments in respect of the certification of statisticians. It will promote the introduction of international topics and comparability in certification and will provide advice about the international registration of statisticians at the ISI.

Publications

Generally considered the flagship journal of the ISI, IS Review has begun a step-by-step transformation into a publication of general interest to all members. Beginning with the appointment of two new editors, IS Review aims to include a broader range of both theoretical and applied review papers. In order to reduce the backlog of papers that were accepted for publication before the present editorial policy was adopted, a special volume of IS Review was published for limited circulation in 1993.

Statistical Theory and Method Abstracts continues to provide world-wide coverage of published articles on mathematical statistics and probability. The ISI Permanent Office is considering the introduction of an index contained on floppy disk which would act as a support to the publication.

The ISI Newsletter has continued its role of providing an up-to-date account of the ongoing activities of the ISI throughout the world. A new "mini" bulletin, entitled ISI Update, has been introduced to provide general information about ISI activities to ISI Council members, Committee chairpersons and ISI patrons. It is circulated between Newsletter issues.

Short Book Reviews provides a rapid book review service for statisticians, covering books on statistics and related subjects published throughout the world. At present, the ISI Permanent Office is exploring the possibility of making Short Book Reviews available in an electronic format.

The Proceedings of the forty-eighth and forty-ninth sessions were published as volumes 55 and 56 of ISI Bulletin.

In 1993 ISI again produced and distributed an updated version of its membership directory. Unlike previous versions, the present directory also includes (where available) telephone, fax and telex numbers and incorporates the Directory of Statistical Societies and the Directory of Statistical Agencies into its contents. The new directory was produced with the generous assistance from the German Federal Statistical Office.

The Duisburg City Statistical Office, in cooperation with ISI, has been engaged in a new programme on the statistics of large towns, which would result in a revival of the previous ISI publication on such statistics. Members of the ISI "volunteer programme" at Voorburg have helped represent the ISI in the planning of this new publication.

Research activities

The previous Executive Committee of ISI was compelled to discontinue the ISI Research Centre in 1991, due to significant and continuing annual financial losses. At the same time, the European Community decided on the continuation of the ISI research function, while limiting research activities to projects for which specific funding could be obtained.

Since unanimous concern was expressed about the future of the invaluable data that the Research Centre housed, a proposal was made to the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) that would result in the orderly distribution, maintenance, archiving and transfer of the precious research and historic materials of the Dynamic Data Base (DDB, which contained the World Fertility Survey Data) from ISI to organizations that were interested in obtaining the materials and would ensure access to the data for future researchers. UNFPA agreed to this proposal in late 1992. In order to take advantage of the technological progress that has been made in the field of data storage, it was decided to make use of the CD ROM format. In addition to its technological advantages, the CD ROM format also helps to facilitate the copying and distribution of the data. The DDB materials have been distributed to several international organizations, to participating countries whose data are contained on the disk, and to three international backup organizations. The disks have been made available to users in developing and transition countries free of charge and to those in developed countries for a modest charge.
