Enclosure*Letter dated 8 May 2002 from the Minister of Justice of the Republic of Palau addressed to the Minister of State of the Republic of Palau

I am in receipt of a memorandum dated 16 April 2002 from the Director of the Bureau of Foreign Affairs regarding the annual report on the implementation of the declaration on measures to eliminate international terrorism. I hereby respond to the inquiries in the letter from the United Nations (Reference: LA/COD/11/1) as follows:

In 2001, the Republic of Palau enacted the following acts: Money Laundering Act, Mutual Assistance Act, Transnational Extradition Act, Foreign Evidence Act and Financial Institutions Act. In part, these laws regulate and supervise banks and financial institutions and criminalize money-laundering. The Money Laundering Act of 2001 provides for freezing and forfeiture of the proceeds of a crime, in addition to which a Financial Intelligence Unit has been established to detect money-laundering and other financial crimes. The Republic has notified local banks and other financial institutions of the names of suspected terrorist individuals and organizations and has asked that any assets or accounts found belonging to such be immediately reported to Government authorities and seized. No such assets have been reported as found as of this date within Palau or its banks and financial institutions.

The President of the Republic of Palau has signed a number of international treaties and United Nations conventions concerning anti-terrorism. It is anticipated that the President will shortly introduce comprehensive anti-terrorism legislation into the Palau National Congress. This legislation, which was drafted with the assistance of the Pacific Islands Forum, would implement the United Nations treaties to which Palau is a member. Additionally, the President of the Republic has created a Task Force on Anti-Terrorism and Homeland Security, which is reviewing efforts to detect and prevent terrorism in Palau. The Divisions of Customs and Immigration are on heightened alert to detect suspect incidents. Palau has been cooperative with other jurisdictions, most notably the United States of America, in responding to international efforts to combat terrorism. There have been no terrorist acts in Palau and no prosecutions related to terrorist activity.

(Signed) Michael J. Rosenthal
Minister of Justice
