Results and resources framework for the Niger (2004-2007)		9

I. Situation analysis

1. The preparation of the country programme outline was a highly participatory process, open to all the main stakeholders, including civil society organizations of the Niger, representatives of the private sector (the Chamber of Commerce), trade unions, women's non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and associations, development partners and the Government (presidency, prime minister's office and key ministries concerned). The country programme outline was based on the conclusions of the common country assessment adopted in March 2002, the review of the UNDP country cooperation framework (CCF) conducted in 2001, the annual CCF review meeting held in December 2002, the national poverty reduction strategy (PRS) and the outline of the United Nations Development Assistance Framework (UNDAF).
2. With the help of the PRS, which was the only national reference framework for defining the development objectives at the time when the preparation of the UNDAF began, a close link was established between the national development objectives and those of the United Nations system, while reflecting, in the national context, the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). Moreover, consultation meetings on the country programme outline held with the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the World Food Programme (WFP) and UNFPA in the context of the formulation of the UNDAF helped ensure coherence between the objectives of the two programming instruments.
3. The economic and social situation of the Niger is characterized by poverty, which is the greatest threat to political stability, social cohesion and the balance of the country's ecosystems, and is manifested in various ways.
4. A total of 63 per cent of the population lives below the poverty threshold, which is 75,000 CFA francs per year for urban areas and 50,000 CFA francs per year for rural areas; 34 per cent of the population lives in extreme poverty, for which the thresholds are 50,000 and 35,000 CFA francs per year respectively.
5. The nutritional situation has deteriorated since 1992 (41 per cent of children under 3 years of age live in a state of chronic malnutrition), the fragility of living conditions has increased, national drinking water coverage is 52 per cent and health and educational services in general regressed during the 1990-2000 decade. Poverty is primarily a rural and feminine phenomenon: 9 out of 10 poor people live in rural areas and three in four are women.
6. In order to deal with this situation of poverty, the Niger has developed a sliding PRS to cover three years, which has gained the backing of its development partners and aims to achieve an average annual growth rate of 4 per cent with improved distribution; the priority areas are: (a) stabilization of the macroeconomic framework; (b) development of productive sectors; (c) access of poor people to basic social services; (d) good governance, strengthening of human and institutional capacities and decentralization.
7. The Niger was declared eligible for the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Debt Initiative in 2002. While awaiting the completion point in 2003, and despite the reforms undertaken since 2000 with the support of partners and the progress achieved at the institutional level, the level of poverty gives rise to the need for significant financial assistance.

II. Past cooperation and lessons learned

8. The 1999-2001 CCF focused on poverty reduction, enhancement of economic management capacities and promotion of good governance, the national environment plan for sustainable development and promotion of the private sector. The CCF was reviewed in 2001 and extended for 2002-2003.

9. The review mission and the workshop for validation of its recommendations by the stakeholders, the in-depth evaluations of UNDP support in 2001 and 2002, the reprofiling missions organized in 2002 and the dialogue established for that purpose with the national authorities revealed a number of significant outcomes achieved through support and advice, partnerships, participatory processes adapted to the context, approach and tools of local development and national execution in the following areas:

(a) Poverty reduction: preservation of capital and productive investments on the basis of local development plans, establishment of a system of stocked grain banks and strengthening of the pre-communal institutional system;

(b) Good governance: peace agreements have been signed and the consolidation of peace maintained, organization of transparent presidential and legislative elections, improvement of economic management instruments;

(c) Environment and sustainable development: sectoral consultations on water, institutional support for the national council of the environment for sustainable development (CNEDD) and the decentralized management of natural resources;

(d) The private sector: consolidation of the Chamber of Commerce, support for women entrepreneurs, organization of a round table with the support of the West African Development Bank and France;

(e) Job creation and promotion of microenterprises through the Entreprendre au Niger structure, adoption of texts to improve the environment of the sector.

10. On the basis of these outcomes, the main lessons learned relate to:

(a) The need to capitalize on good practices of strengthening key national institutions, particularly under the National Assembly (public consultations), CNEDD (access to international financial mechanisms and decentralized water resources management) and the PRS secretariat (qualitative surveys and participatory diagnoses with beneficiaries, definition of poverty thresholds);

(b) Strengthening and refocusing of national capacities in the critical areas of strategic management of development, economic, administrative and local governance, autonomous design of development initiatives and participatory and agreed definition of needs in line with the MDGs;

(c) Systematization of dialogue and consultations with the Government, civil society and the private sector and internal ownership of programming tools and frameworks;

(d) Strengthening of structures of the Niger in the areas of national execution and accountability;

(e) Identification and promotion of key partnerships between the Government, UNDP and other partners with a view to mobilizing the necessary resources for extending pilot activities.

11. Lastly, the lack of systematic gender mainstreaming has reduced the impact of support.

III. Proposed programme

A. Areas of cooperation and their links with the MDGs, the UNDAF and the PRS

12. In 2001, the agencies of the United Nations system in the Niger, in cooperation with the Government and civil society, and with the participation of other development partners, drew up a common country assessment, which was adopted in March 2002. This document contributed to the formulation and adoption in February 2003 of the UNDAF, which also derives from the PRS and covers three areas of cooperation: governance and growth, basic social services and food security.

13. The present programme proposal is consistent with each of the objectives of the UNDAF and the MDGs. It complements all the national and international commitments of the Niger which constitute responses to development assistance needs. Thus, the MDGs, the PRS, the UNDAF and the support from UNDP converge and intersect at the level of indicators, programmes of activity and follow-up/evaluation.

14. The statistical data relating to the country programme will help build a database of indicators of outcomes and the impact of the MDGs and the PRS (see annex). The follow-up/evaluation of the activities of the PRS and the MDGs will be an interdependent activity.

15. The various situations described and the comparative advantage of UNDP have guided the definition of activities to support Government priorities.

Contribute to ensuring food security

Programme objective

16. The national strategy is focused on the development of agriculture and livestock-rearing, control of desertification, management of natural resources and development of production related to the rural economy. The main objectives in respect of food security are: diversification of agricultural, pastoral, forestry and fisheries production and conservation of biological diversity; and improvement and substantial increase in rural income through the processing and marketing of agro-sylvo-pastoral products.

17. UNDP support will concentrate on: (a) advocacy for the mobilization of the necessary resources for the implementation of strategic frameworks (food security, rural development, livestock-rearing and control of desertification); (b) development of run-off water collection and small-scale agricultural irrigation; (c) advocacy for the adoption of the crisis prevention and alleviation arrangement; (d) promotion of microcredit and guarantees and of rural microenterprises.

18. UNDP activities will capitalize on the experience gained in the Mayahi and N'Guigmi local development projects (LDPs), which the Government would like to reproduce in other areas. This support will be extended to six new communes in the Zinder region and four in the department of Téra.

19. The LDPs have successfully tested the establishment of decentralized structures as precursors of communalization (village committee, local development committee, pre-communal council, inter-communal council) with the help of innovative tools of participatory planning and local programming (local development plan, communal development plan, support fund) and the implementation of procedures and mechanisms for access to financing in a context of synergy of various poverty-related issues, including food security, natural resources management and preservation of the rural environment. These gains have been built upon in the formulation of reference and guidance frameworks. The LDP approach has also had a positive influence on the texts for the application of the national integral communalization policy and has been endorsed by new partners, including Denmark, Belgium, France and the World Bank, on the basis of the framework for consultations on decentralization.

Cooperation strategy

20. UNDP will work to strengthen the framework for consultations, follow-up and implementation of the comprehensive national programme for food security and to harmonize the approaches and coordinate the activities of partners. In particular, UNDP will develop a strategic partnership with the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), the Global Environment Facility (GEF), the United Nations Capital Development Fund (UNCDF), the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD), the United Nations Industrial Development Organization, the World Food Programme, the United Nations Environment Programme, UNICEF, the Government of the Niger, non-governmental organizations, development associations and bilateral partners (Belgium, France, Germany and Italy).

21. In order to generate multiplying and extended effects, UNDP support will target specifically feminine activities in vulnerable households, availability of inputs for pipeline initiatives and promotion of rural income-generating activities and microenterprises. Women will progressively assume the role of agents of economic and social change and leaders and decision makers in community meetings, management committees and at the level of technical training.

Expected results

22. The outcomes expected as a result of UNDP assistance are as follows: (a) additional resources mobilized for the implementation of the national food security policy; (b) production by peasants in the UNDP areas of activity accords with the food security policy; (c) pipeline initiatives at the agricultural level developed in the areas of activity; (d) denuded lands are restored and brought into use; (e) the system of management of natural resources is improved at the community level.

Support for universal access to basic social services*Programme objectives*

23. The national strategy focuses on the provision of educational services, water and sanitation, health and the population, control of HIV/AIDS, access to drinking water, and urban development. The main objectives are:

- (a) Basic education; training and social and vocational integration;
- (b) Reduction by one half by 2015 of the proportion of persons without access to drinking water; equitable access to essential services and care; promotion of health information; integration of services for sexually transmitted infections (STIs)/AIDS; promotion of the health of couples; improvement of the status of women; improvement of the production and utilization of population statistics;
- (c) Optimal utilization of local human resources and creation of new urban jobs;
- (d) UNDP support for universal access to basic social services will cover the following areas through UNCDF (infrastructure and equipment, particularly hydraulic) and in cooperation with the agencies of the United Nations Development Group (social services);
- (e) Review and evaluation of public expenditure in the educational and health sectors; organization of sectoral consultations; literacy and establishment of school and health infrastructures; promotion of new information and communication technologies; support for educational programmes of local radio stations and pilot activities for the establishment of pre-school structures;
- (f) Strengthening of national capacities to combat AIDS; AIDS and human rights;
- (g) Development of a system of information on water and sanitation.

Cooperation strategy

24. UNDP will contribute to the strengthening of the framework for consultations and effective partnership in the basic education sector in the context of the health development programme for 2002-2011 and of efforts to control HIV/AIDS. It will support the creation of a partnership between civil society, the Government and donors for the implementation of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW). UNDP will work with strategic partners such as the International Labour Organization (ILO), the World Bank, FAO, UNFPA, the World Health Organization (WHO), the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, UNICEF and the United Nations Development Fund for Women (UNIFEM), and with bilateral partners involved in the areas mentioned (Canada, France, Switzerland).

25. A framework for consultations among donors in the areas of social services going beyond the thematic consultation framework of the United Nations Development Group will be promoted.

Expected results

26. The outcomes expected as a result of the UNDP assistance are that: (a) the social sectors are systematically taken into account during the formulation of the national budget; (b) the share of basic social services in budget implementation is increased; (c) the investments which are made take into account the policy of decent jobs.

Promotion of good governance and more evenly distributed growth*Programme objectives*

27. The national strategy is based on the promotion of good administrative, political, economic and local governance, in accordance with the PRS, and includes: (a) the strengthening of organizations for the protection of human rights, judicial reforms, arms collection, consolidation of peace and prevention of conflicts; (b) the establishment of a fiduciary system for the management of expenditure; (c) redefinition of the role of the State in economic and financial management and the privatization process; (d) support to the process of decentralization and the promotion of development.

28. Specific support from UNDP will focus on: (a) advocacy, improvement of the system of budgetary and environmental information; (b) strengthening of capacities for analysis, programming/follow-up and budgetary control; (c) promotion of the private sector (mechanisms for the promotion and creation of decent jobs for the poor); (d) strengthening of national and local capacities for prevention, conflict management and social dialogue; (e) electoral process and strengthening of the capacities of national and local elected officials and of the administration; (f) strengthening of the rule of law, civic participation and the participation of women (CEDAW), promotion of community radio stations and environmental management; (g) specific sectoral or thematic consultations.

Cooperation strategy

29. UNDP will develop joint or parallel programmes around the areas of activity already mentioned, including the strengthening of mechanisms for budget preparation, execution and monitoring, while according priority to vulnerable groups. It will also promote a strategic partnership with the United Nations Development Group, other specialized agencies, the United Nations Volunteers programme and the United Nations Secretariat. Cooperation with the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the European Union, as well as certain bilateral partners, will be developed around budgetary mechanisms and the management of public programmes, and improvement of capacities for analysis and follow-up/evaluation of poverty.

Expected results

30. The outcomes expected as a result of the UNDP activities are that: (a) the investments which are made take into account a policy of decent jobs; (b) the risks of conflicts and social tensions are reduced; (c) communal structures are fully viable at the economic, financial and social levels and contribute to civic participation and the emancipation of rural communities; (d) the CNEDD effectively guides the management of natural resources and the environment; (e) the application of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women promotes emancipation and reduces the exclusion of women of the Niger; (f) national elected officials become proficient in accounts analysis and budgetary forecasts and adopt a gender-sensitive approach in the exercise of their functions.

B. Partnership strategy and resource mobilization

31. The strategy for mobilization of non-regular resources is based on effective and productive advocacy with traditional donors and the search for new partnerships (with IFAD, the European Union, bilateral cooperation partners based in the Niger) to support the financing of the three areas of activity of UNDP. The preferred framework of these partnerships will be the mechanisms of forums (Forum on the PRS) and sectoral and thematic consultations (environment, health, education, private sector, rural development, etc.), joint and integrated field missions, existing cooperation frameworks (decentralization, HIV/AIDS, environment and water, etc.) and strategic alliances mobilized around major institutional and political reforms. At the same time, existing strategic partnerships will be continued and intensified.

32. Lastly, the strategy includes sustained efforts for increased accessibility to the thematic trust funds of UNDP, funds administered by UNDP (UNCDF and UNIFEM) and development funds, including GEF.

IV. Programme management, monitoring and evaluation

33. Management, monitoring and evaluation of the country programme will be results-based and will be carried out jointly with the Government and stakeholders.

34. The modality for execution of programmes and projects will be essentially national, with the technical support of cooperating agencies of the United Nations. Annual audits will continue to be systematic and mandatory. The mechanisms of consultations between the Government and UNDP will be maintained and strengthened in managing programmes and projects and integrated follow-up missions in the field. As far as possible, missions for programming and formulation of UNDP support will be harmonized with those of the agencies of the United Nations Development Group.

35. The 2004-2007 country programme will be reviewed at mid-term in 2006. The annual follow-up/evaluation of activities will be undertaken with the participation of members of the United Nations Development Group and the development partners.

36. UNDP will support the Ministry of the Economy and Finance and the technical support units of programmes in establishing databases and sectoral and thematic information systems. The common country assessment and the report on the MDGs will be important tools in the process of data collection and analysis.

37. Financial follow-up of the country programme will be based on the sliding three-year plan of basic resources, and the integrated framework for the allocation of resources covering all the resources mobilized.
