Twenty-seventh meeting of chairpersons of the human rights treaty bodies

San José, 22–26 June 2015

Item 4 (d) of the provisional agenda

Follow-up to General Assembly resolution 68/268 on strengthening and enhancing the effective functioning of the human rights treaty body system and to the conclusions and recommendations of the twenty-sixth meeting of chairpersons: reporting compliance by States

Timely, late and non-reporting by States parties to the human rights treaty bodies

Note by the Secretariat

Summary

At their twenty-sixth meeting, in 2014, the treaty body chairpersons reaffirmed the decision taken at their twenty-fifth meeting to include the issue of late and non-reporting by States parties as a standing item on the agenda of their annual meeting. The present note contains an overview of reporting compliance by States parties as at 28 February 2015. Reporting is a dynamic process and the data included in this note is regularly updated on the website of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (www.ohchr.org).

I. Background

1. States parties have an obligation to report periodically under the nine core international human rights treaties and two optional protocols: the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (1966); the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (1966); the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (1965); the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (1979); the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (1984); the Convention on the Rights of the Child (1989) and its two optional protocols (2000), on the involvement of children in armed conflict and on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography; the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (1990); the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (2006); and the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (2006).

2. The chairpersons of the human rights treaty bodies, at their twenty-fifth annual meeting, in May 2013, expressed deep concern over late reporting and non-reporting by a number of States parties to international human rights treaties. On the basis of the annual reports of the respective treaty bodies, the chairpersons recommended that the secretariat provide regular updates on late reporting and non-reporting and place them on the website of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (www.ohchr.org). The chairpersons also decided to include the issue of late and non-reporting by States parties as a standing item on the agenda of the meeting (see A/68/334, para. 47).

3. At their twenty-sixth meeting, in 2014, the treaty body chairpersons welcomed the recommendation made at their twenty-fifth meeting that OHCHR place information on timely, late and non-reporting by States parties on its website. They recommended that the web page be updated on an ongoing basis. Furthermore, they reaffirmed the decision taken at their twenty-fifth meeting to include the issue of late and non-reporting by States parties as a standing item on the agenda of their annual meeting (see A/69/285, para. 112).

4. In paragraph 32 of its resolution 68/268 on strengthening and enhancing the effective functioning of the human rights treaty body system, the General Assembly recognized that States had a legal obligation under the international human rights treaties to which they were party to periodically submit to the relevant human rights treaty bodies reports on the measures they had taken to give effect to the provisions of the relevant treaties, and noted the need to increase the level of compliance in that regard. In that same resolution, the Assembly invited States parties, as applicable and as an exceptional measure, with a view to achieving greater compliance with reporting obligations by States parties and eliminating the backlog of reports and in agreement with the relevant treaty body, to submit one combined report to satisfy their reporting obligations to the treaty body for the entire period for which reports to that treaty body were outstanding at the time of the adoption of the resolution.

5. The present note contains an overview of reporting compliance by States parties as at 28 February 2015. Reporting is a dynamic process and the data included in the note is regularly updated on the OHCHR website.

II. Reporting obligations of States parties under international human rights treaties

6. Nine core international human rights treaties and two optional protocols establish a reporting obligation for States parties. Once a State has acceded or ratified a human rights treaty, it is required to submit its initial report within one or two years after the treaty enters into force and, thereafter, periodic reports at intervals specified by the relevant treaty or committee. In most cases, the treaty explicitly sets out a timetable for the submission of initial and periodic reports, commonly referred to as the “reporting periodicity”, on the basis of the date of entry into force of the treaty in the specific State party. The reporting periodicity, by treaty, is presented in table 1.<sup>1</sup>

Reporting periodicity, by treaty

Treaty	Initial report due (following ratification) within	Periodic reports due thereafter every
ICERD	1 year	2 years
ICESCR	2 years	5 years
ICCPR	1 year	3, 4, 5 and 6 years
CEDAW	1 year	4 years
CAT	1 year	4 years
CRC	2 years	5 years
ICRMW	1 year	5 years
CRC-OPSC	2 years	5 years or with next report to the Committee on the Rights of the Child
CRC-OPAC	2 years	5 years or with next report to the Committee on the Rights of the Child
CRPD	2 years	4 years
ICPPED	2 years	As requested by the Committee on Enforced Disappearances (art. 29 (4))

<sup>1</sup> In tables, the following abbreviations are used: ICERD, International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination; ICESCR, International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights; ICCPR, International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights; CEDAW, Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women; CAT, Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment; CRC, Convention on the Rights of the Child; ICRMW, International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families; CRC-OPSC, Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography; CRC-OPAC, Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict; CRPD, Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; ICPPED, International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance.

7. In the case of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, no specific periodicity is envisaged in the treaties. Article 40 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, however, gives the Human Rights Committee discretion to decide when periodic reports shall be submitted. The Committee requests that periodic reports be submitted every three to six years following State party review, depending on the situation. Article 17 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights gives the Economic and Social Council discretion to establish the reporting frequency for the Covenant. Pursuant to the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, States parties to that Convention must report every two years but are allowed to merge two reports in one, which creates a de facto periodicity of four years. Although the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance does not provide for periodic reports, pursuant to article 29, paragraph 4, of the Convention, the Committee on Enforced Disappearances may request States parties to provide additional information on the implementation of the Convention, depending on their level of compliance with its provisions.

III. Reporting compliance by States parties as at 28 February 2015

A. States parties without overdue reports

8. Twenty-nine of the 196 States parties have submitted all the reports due under the relevant international human rights treaties and protocols (see table 2). Although some of the States parties have ratified fewer than five human rights instruments, the majority of compliant States are party to a large number of treaties (8-10).

B. Status of overdue reports, by State party

9. The number of overdue initial and periodic reports by State party ranges from 1 to 10. One State party has 10 overdue reports; 5 States parties have 9 overdue reports; 3 States parties have 8 overdue reports; 7 States parties have 7 overdue reports; 19 States parties have 6 overdue reports; 21 States parties have 5 overdue reports; 23 States parties have 4 overdue reports; 24 States parties have 3 overdue reports; 31 States parties have 2 overdue reports and 32 States parties have 1 overdue report (see table 3).

IV. Reporting status, by treaty, as at 28 February 2015

12. As at 28 February 2015, 614 reports (309 initial reports and 305 periodic reports), or 38 per cent of all reports to be submitted to the treaty bodies, were overdue. The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (54 per cent), the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (49 per cent), the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (49 per cent) and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (48 per cent) had the highest proportion of States parties that were not complying with their reporting obligations under the respective treaty or that were not complying in a timely manner (see table 6).

Note: The data in the table are based on original due dates. Several committees, however, have made it possible for States parties with overdue reports to use the simplified reporting procedure. States parties that have availed themselves of that procedure have been given new due dates.

<sup>a</sup> Pursuant to article 12, paragraph 2, of the Optional Protocol on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography and article 8, paragraph 2 of the Optional Protocol on the involvement of children in armed conflict, following the submission of the comprehensive report, each State party shall include in the reports they submit to the Committee on the Rights of the Child, in accordance with article 44 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, any further information regarding the implementation of the respective protocol.

<sup>b</sup> Pursuant to article 29, paragraph 1, of the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, States parties are required to submit a report. Pursuant to article 29, paragraph 4, of the Convention, they may also be required to provide additional information on the implementation of the Convention.

13. With regard to initial reports that States parties are required to submit within one or two years after the treaty enters into force in that State, the treaties for which the highest number of initial reports were overdue are the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography (70), the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (51), the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict (46), the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (29), the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (27), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (22), the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (19), the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (15), the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (7) and the Convention on the Rights of the Child (2). The International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (49 per cent), the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography (44 per cent) and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (34 per cent) have the highest proportion of non-reporting States parties (see table 6).

14. Of the 309 overdue initial reports, 144 (47 per cent) were less than 5 years overdue, 77 reports (25 per cent) were between 5 and 10 years overdue and 88 reports (28 per cent) were more than 10 years overdue. In the case of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and the Convention on the Rights of the Child, more than half of the overdue initial reports were more than 10 years overdue (see table 7).

15. The treaties with the highest number of overdue periodic reports were the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (81), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (59), the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (46), the Convention on the Rights of the Child (39), the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (37) and the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment (29). The International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (46 per cent), the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (35 per cent), the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (24 per cent) and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (23 per cent) had the highest proportion of late-reporting States parties (see table 6).

16. Of the 305 overdue periodic reports, 184 (60 per cent) were less than 5 years overdue, 66 (22 per cent) were between 5 and 10 years overdue and 55 (18 per cent) were more than 10 years overdue. The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights had the highest number of periodic reports that had been overdue for more than 10 years (19), followed by the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (16) (see table 8).
