Article 1

Any person who without notifying the proper authority imports into or exports from the country goods for which customs duties or other public charges should be paid to the State or which, pursuant to provisions in a law or a statute, are not allowed to be imported or exported, shall, if the act is wilful, be sentenced for smuggling to a fine */ or to imprisonment for not more than two years. If the offence relates to narcotics as defined in article 1 of the Narcotics Ordinance (1962:704) 2/ the person shall be sentenced to a fine or imprisonment for not more than three years.

The first paragraph is also applicable when a person by means of a misleading statement in a customs declaration or by any other deception in connection with customs clearance of goods wilfully avoids payment of customs duties or other public charges to the State or imports or export goods in contravention of a prohibition.

Article 3

Should the smuggling of goods be judged to be grave, the sentence shall be imprisonment for not less than six months and not more than six years. If the smuggling has involved narcotics as defined in article 1 of the Narcotics Ordinance (1962:704), the sentence shall be imprisonment for not less than two and not more than ten years.

In judging whether the offence is to be regarded as grave, special consideration shall be given to whether it has been committed professionally or involved goods of great quantity or value or whether the action has otherwise been of a particularly dangerous nature or, if the offence relates to narcotics, whether it has constituted a step in activities of a particularly unscrupulous nature.

LAW 1981:468 OF 1 JULY 1981 MODIFYING ARTICLES 6 AND 7 OF THE PENAL LAW ON NARCOTICS 1968:64 3/

Article 6

Any narcotics used in or intended for committing any offence pursuant to this Law, or the value thereof together with any gains accrued from such offences, shall be declared forfeit if this is not manifestly unjust. This shall also apply to the commission received for such offence or its value if the commission has been received and the reception constitutes an offence according to this Law.

*/ In accordance with statutory provisions, fines are based on the offender's daily income, i.e., the court determines, according to the gravity of the offence, a fixed number of fine units, from a minimum of one to a maximum of 120, and at the same time specifies the amount of each fine unit, based upon the capacity of the offender to pay, from a minimum of 10 to a maximum of 1,000 crowns.

Any article used as an aid in an offence pursuant to this Law or its value shall be declared forfeit if this is justifiable for the prevention of crime or for any other special reason.

Hypodermic syringes or syringe needles which can be used for injecting substances into the human body and which are found in the possession of any person who has committed an offence pursuant to this Law or are found on the premises or grounds used by him shall, regardless of to whom the article belongs, be declared forfeit if this is not manifestly unjust.

Article 7

With regard to the seizure of property which can be assumed to be forfeit in accordance with article 6, the provisions relating to seizure laid down in the Code of Procedure are applicable with the following divergences.

The provision that proceedings shall be instituted within a certain period does not apply in cases other than when the court has specified such a period.

The provisions contained in article 2, paragraphs 1 and 3 and in article 3 of the Law of 9 May 1958 (No. 205) on the forfeiture of alcoholic beverages, etc. shall be correspondingly applicable in the case of seizure of narcotics, hypodermic syringes or needles. Article 3

If the offence pursuant to article 1 is judged to be grave, the sentence for grave narcotics offence shall be imprisonment for at least two and at most ten years.

In judging whether an offence is grave, particular consideration shall be given to whether or not it has constituted a step in large-scale or professional activities, has involved especially large quantities of narcotics or has in any other way been of a particularly dangerous or unscrupulous nature. The judgement shall be based on a joint consideration of the circumstances in the particular case.
