29. Critical economic situation in Africa: report of the Secretary-General

The thirteenth special session of the General Assembly was held from 27 May to 1 June 1986. The Assembly had before it reports of the Secretary-General on the critical economic situation in Africa (A/S-13/2) and on activities of the organizations and agencies of the United Nations system with regard to the critical economic situation in Africa (A/S-13/3), the report of the Preparatory Committee of the Whole for the Special Session (A/S-13/4 and Corr.) and the report of the Ad Hoc Committee of the Whole of the Thirteenth Special Session (A/S-13/15). At that session, the Assembly adopted the United Nations Programme of Action for African Economic Recovery and Development 1986-1990 annexed to the resolution; emphasized the need to intensify economic and technical co-operation with African countries during and beyond the period of the Programme; urged all Governments to take effective action for the rapid and full implementation of the Programme, requested the organs, organizations and bodies of the United Nations system to participate fully in and support the implementation of the Programme; called upon all concerned intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to support and contribute to the implementation of the Programme; decided to conduct a review and appraisal of the implementation of the Programme at its forty-third session; and requested the Secretary-General to monitor the process of implementation of the Programme and to report thereon to the Assembly at its forty-second and forty-third sessions (resolution S-13/2).

The United Nations Programme of Action for African Economic Recovery and Development 1986-1990 contains an analysis of Africa's critical economic situation and a listing and discussion of the elements of the Programme of Action and of measures for follow-up, evaluation and co-ordination at the national, subregional, regional and international levels.

The Programme of Action, based on mutual commitment and co-operation, consists of two central elements: the determination and commitment of the African countries to launch both national and regional programmes of economic development and the response of the international community and its commitment to support and complement the African development efforts. The African countries have fully committed themselves to the implementation of a sharply focused, practical and operational set of activities, priorities and policies, as elaborated in Africa's Priority Programme for Economic Recovery 1986-1990. Priorities at the national, subregional and regional levels are spelled out for (a) agriculture development, including immediate measures to combat food emergencies and medium-term measures designed to give new impetus to agricultural development in order to achieve increasing levels of productivity and production, (b) other sectors in support of agriculture, including rehabilitation and development of agro-related industries, development of transport and communications and measures in the field of trade and finance, (c) measures to combat drought and desertification, (d) actions to promote human resources development, planning and utilization for the full and effective participation of the people in the development process and (e) policy reforms necessary for the recovery of the economies of the African countries and the revitalization of genuine development (resolution S/13-2, annex).

At the forty-first session, the General Assembly will have before it the report of the Secretary-General called for under resolution 40/40.

36. Question of Namibia

- (a) Report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples
- (b) Report of the United Nations Council for Namibia
- (c) Report of the International Conference for the Immediate Independence of Namibia
- (d) Reports of the Secretary-General

The International Conference for the Immediate Independence of Namibia was held at Vienna from 7 to 11 July 1986. The Conference adopted a Final Document (A/41/479-S/18234, annex), which included the Declaration of the Conference (ibid., sect. I), the Programme of Action (ibid., sect. II) and the Appeal for the Immediate Independence of Namibia issued on Wednesday, 9 July 1986, by the Eminent Persons participating in the Conference (ibid., sect. III). The report of the Conference (A/CONF.138/11) has been issued as a United Nations publication, Sales No. E.86.I.16.

At its fortieth session, the General Assembly, recalling Security Council resolutions on the question of Namibia, particularly resolutions 385 (1976) of 30 January 1976 and 435 (1978) of 29 September 1978, as well as subsequent resolutions relating to Namibia, and gravely concerned that, 20 years after the termination by the General Assembly of South Africa's Mandate over Namibia and the assumption by the United Nations of direct responsibility for the Territory, the racist South African régime continued illegally to occupy the Territory in violation of the relevant resolutions and decisions of the United Nations, decided to hold a special session on the question of Namibia before its forty-first regular session (resolution 40/97 F).

The fourteenth special session of the General Assembly was held from 17 to 20 September 1986. The Assembly had before it the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples dealing with Namibia (A/41/23 (Part V)) and a draft resolution submitted to the Assembly by the United Nations Council for Namibia (A/S-14/6, annex). At that session, the Assembly, inter alia, reaffirmed the inalienable right of the people of Namibia to self-determination, freedom and national independence in an untruncated territory including Walvis Bay, the Penguin Islands and all adjacent offshore islands in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960, as well as the subsequent relevant resolutions and decisions of the Assembly and the Security Council; strongly condemned the racist régime of South Africa for its continued illegal occupation of Namibia and its persistent refusal to comply with the resolutions and decisions of the Assembly and the Security Council, thus violating the principles of the Charter and defying the authority of the United Nations; demanded once again that the apartheid régime immediately and unconditionally withdraw its illegal administration, occupation army and police force from Namibia; strongly condemned once again the racist régime of South Africa for the installation of the so-called interim government in Namibia on 17 June 1985 and rejected as illegal, null and void all such fraudulent constitutional and political schemes by which the Pretoria régime attempted to perpetuate its illegal occupation of Namibia; reaffirmed its full support for the South West Africa People's Organization, the sole and authentic representative of the Namibian people; upheld the legitimacy of the struggle of the Namibian people by every means at their disposal, including armed struggle, to repel South Africa's aggression and to achieve self-determination, freedom and independence in a united Namibia; reaffirmed that the United Nations Plan for the Independence of Namibia, contained in Security Council resolutions 385 (1976) and 435 (1978), was the only internationally accepted basis for a peaceful settlement of the Namibian question and demanded its immediate implementation without pre-condition or modification; reiterated that comprehensive mandatory sanctions under Chapter VII of the Charter were the most effective peaceful measures to ensure the compliance of racist South Africa with the resolutions and decisions of the United Nations on the question of Namibia; strongly urged once again those States that had not done so to cease forthwith, individually and collectively, all dealings with South Africa in order to totally isolate it politically, economically, militarily and culturally; called upon the Security Council to convene urgently to take action for the immediate and unconditional implementation of the United Nations Plan for the Independence of Namibia; and requested the Secretary-General to report to the Assembly as appropriate, but not later than 31 December 1986, on the implementation of the resolution (resolution S-14/1).

At the forty-first session, the General Assembly will have before it the following documents:

(a) Report of the Special Committee; A/41/23 (Part V), to be issued subsequently as Supplement No. 23 (A/41/23);

(b) Report of the United Nations Council for Namibia; Supplement No. 24 (A/41/24);

(c) Report of the International Conference for the Immediate Independence of Namibia, held at Vienna from 7 to 11 July 1986 (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.86.I.16; see also A/41/479-S/18234);

(d) Reports of the Secretary-General:

(i) Report called for under resolution 40/97 A: A/41/614;

(ii) Report called for under resolution 40/97 B.

37. The situation in the Middle East: reports of the Secretary-General

At the forty-first session, the General Assembly will have before it the report of the Secretary-General called for under resolutions 40/168 A to C (A/41/453 and Add.1) and the report of the Secretary-General called for under resolution 40/168 A.

38. Review of the efficiency of the administrative and financial functioning of the United Nations: report of the Group of High-level Intergovernmental Experts to Review the Efficiency of the Administrative and Financial Functioning of the United Nations

At the forty-first session, the General Assembly will have before it the report of the Group of Experts requested in resolution 40/237, which will be issued as Supplement No. 49 (A/41/49).

39. Question of peace, stability and co-operation in South-East Asia

At the forty-first session, no advance documentation is expected under this item.

40. Launching of global negotiations on international economic co-operation for development

41. Question of equitable representation on and increase in the membership of the Security Council

At the forty-first session, no advance documentation is expected under this item.

42. The situation in Central America: threats to international peace and security and peace initiatives

At the forty-first session, no advance documentation is expected under the item.

43. Question of Cyprus: report of the Secretary-General

Various aspects of the question of Cyprus have been dealt with by the United Nations, particularly by the Security Council and the General Assembly, since 1963.

In March 1964, the Security Council established the United Nations Peace-keeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) and instituted a mediation effort to promote an agreed settlement of the problem (resolution 186 (1964)). The mandate of the Force, which was initially set up for a period of three months, has subsequently been extended by the Council, the last time for a period of six months until 15 June 1985 (resolution 559 (1984)). In connection with the events of 1974, the Council requested UNFICYP to perform certain additional or modified functions, relating, in particular, to the maintenance of the cease-fire (see S/15149, para. 7). In addition, UNFICYP supports humanitarian activities co-ordinated by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees. The last report of the Secretary-General to the Council on the United Nations operation in Cyprus was issued on 30 November and 9 December 1985 (S/17657 and Add.1).

At its twenty-ninth session, in 1974, the General Assembly called upon all States to respect the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and non-alignment of the Republic of Cyprus and to refrain from all acts and interventions directed against it; urged the speedy withdrawal of all foreign armed forces from Cyprus; commended the contacts and negotiations which were taking place on an equal footing, with the good offices of the Secretary-General, between the representatives of the two communities and called for their continuation with a view to reaching freely a mutually acceptable political settlement; considered that all the refugees should return to their homes in safety; requested the Secretary-General to continue to provide United Nations humanitarian assistance to all parts of the population of Cyprus; called upon all parties to continue to co-operate fully with UNFICYP; and requested the Secretary-General to bring the resolution to the attention of the Security Council (resolution 3212 (XXIX)).

At its thirtieth to thirty-fourth sessions, the General Assembly reaffirmed the need to implement resolution 3212 (XXIX) (resolutions 3395 (XXX), 31/12, 32/15, 33/15 and 34/30).

In December 1974, the Security Council endorsed resolution 3212 (XXIX) (resolution 365 (1974)). In 1975, the Council, inter alia, requested the Secretary-General to undertake a new mission of good offices to facilitate comprehensive negotiations (resolution 367 (1975)). The Council has periodically requested the Secretary-General to continue his mission of good offices and to keep it informed of the progress made. In pursuance of this mission, several rounds of intercommunal talks were held under the auspices of the Secretary-General in 1975 and 1976, and on 12 February 1977, again under his auspices, an agreement was reached at Nicosia on guidelines providing a framework for the intercommunal talks (see S/12323). There followed a new series of talks, but these were recessed without conclusion. On 18 and 19 May 1979, a high-level meeting was held at Nicosia under the auspices of the Secretary-General during which a 10-point agreement was reached (S/13369). As called for by the agreement, the intercommunal talks were resumed at Nicosia on 15 June 1979 but were recessed on 22 June.

After extended consultations by the Secretary-General and his representatives with the parties, the intercommunal talks were resumed on 9 August 1980 under the auspices of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General (see A/35/385-S/14100). Following the submission of comprehensive proposals by both sides and intensive consultations with them, the Special Representative, on behalf of the Secretary-General, submitted on 18 November 1981 a text containing elements of an "evaluation" of the status of the negotiations which was subsequently used as a method for the discussions at the talks (see A/36/702). The last meeting of the intercommunal talks was held on 14 April 1983 (see A/37/805 and Corr.1 and S/15812 and Corr.1).

At its thirty-fifth and thirty-sixth sessions, the General Assembly deferred consideration of the question of Cyprus and decided to include it in the provisional agenda of its subsequent session (decisions 35/428 and 36/463).

At its resumed thirty-seventh session, in May 1983, the General Assembly, having reaffirmed the need to settle the question of Cyprus without further delay by peaceful means in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations and the relevant United Nations resolutions, reiterated its full support for the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity, unity and non-alignment of the Republic of Cyprus and called once again for the cessation of all foreign interference in its affairs; affirmed the right of the Republic of Cyprus and its people to full and effective sovereignty and control over the entire territory of Cyprus and its natural and other resources and called upon all States to support and help the Government of the Republic of Cyprus to exercise these rights; condemned any act which tended to undermine the full and effective exercise of the above-mentioned rights, including the unlawful issue of titles of ownership of property; welcomed the proposal for total demilitarization made by the President of the Republic of Cyprus; expressed its support for the high-level agreements of 10 February 1977 and 19 May 1979 and all the provisions thereof; demanded the immediate and effective implementation of resolution 3212 (XXIX), unanimously adopted by the Assembly and endorsed by the Security Council in its resolution 365 (1974), and of the subsequent resolutions of the Assembly and the Council on Cyprus which provided the valid and essential basis for the solution of the problem of Cyprus; considered the withdrawal of all occupation forces from the Republic of Cyprus as an essential basis for a speedy and mutually acceptable solution of the problem of Cyprus; demanded the immediate withdrawal of all occupation forces from the Republic of Cyprus; commended the intensification of the efforts made by the Secretary-General, while noting with concern the lack of progress in the intercommunal talks; called for meaningful, result-oriented, constructive and substantive negotiations between the representatives of the two communities, under the auspices of the Secretary-General, to be conducted freely and on an equal footing, on the basis of relevant United Nations resolutions and the high-level agreements, with a view to reaching as early as possible a mutually acceptable agreement based on the fundamental and legitimate rights of the two communities; called for respect of the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all Cypriots, including the freedom of movement, the freedom of settlement and the right to property, and the instituting of urgent measures for the voluntary return of the refugees to their homes in safety; considered that the de facto situation created by the force of arms should not be allowed to influence or in any way affect the solution of the problem of Cyprus; called upon the parties concerned to refrain from any unilateral action which might adversely affect the prospects of a just and lasting solution of the problem of Cyprus by peaceful means and to co-operate fully with the Secretary-General in the performance of his task under the relevant resolutions of the Assembly and the Council as well as with the United Nations Peace-keeping Force in Cyprus; called upon the parties concerned to refrain from any action which violated or was designed to violate the independence, unity, sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Republic of Cyprus; reiterated its recommendation that the Council should examine the question of implementation, within a specified time-frame, of its relevant resolutions and consider and adopt thereafter, if necessary, all appropriate and practical measures under the Charter for ensuring the speedy and effective implementation of the resolutions of the United Nations on Cyprus; and welcomed the intention of the Secretary-General to pursue a renewed personal involvement in the quest for a solution of the problem of Cyprus and, in view of this, requested him to undertake such actions or initiatives as he might consider appropriate within the framework of the mission of good offices entrusted to him by the Council for promoting a just and lasting solution of the problem and to report to the Assembly at its thirty-eighth session (resolution 37/253). The Assembly also took note of the report of the Special Political Committee (A/37/808) (decision 37/455).

On 15 November 1983, the Turkish Cypriot authorities proclaimed a "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus" (see A/38/586-S/16148). On 18 November, the Security Council adopted resolution 541 (1983), in which it, inter alia, considered the declaration of the Turkish Cypriot authorities of the purported secession of part of the Republic of Cyprus as legally invalid and called for its withdrawal; and requested the Secretary-General to pursue his mission of good offices, in order to achieve the earliest possible progress towards a just and lasting settlement in Cyprus (resolution 541 (1983)).

On 1 May 1984, the Secretary-General reported to the Security Council on the efforts which he had undertaken in pursuance of his mission of good offices, including the submission of a scenario aimed at opening the door to a high-level meeting and to the resumption of the intercommunal dialogue; the Turkish Cypriot reply was annexed to the report (S/16519).

At the request of Cyprus, the Council convened on 3 May and on 11 May adopted resolution 550 (1984). In that resolution, the Council, inter alia, reaffirmed its resolution 541 (1983); considered attempts to settle any part of Varosha by people other than its inhabitants as inadmissible and called for the transfer of that area to the administration of the United Nations; considered any attempts to interfere with the status or the deployment of the United Nations Peace-keeping Force in Cyprus as contrary to the resolutions of the United Nations; requested the Secretary-General to promote the urgent implementation of resolution 541 (1983); reaffirmed its mandate of good offices given to the Secretary-General and requested him to undertake new efforts to attain an overall solution to the Cyprus problem in conformity with the principles of the Charter and the provisions for such a settlement laid down in the pertinent United Nations resolutions; called upon all parties to co-operate with the Secretary-General in his mission of good offices; decided to remain seized of the situation with a view to taking, in the event of non-implementation of its resolution 541 (1983) and the present resolution, urgent and appropriate measures; and requested the Secretary-General to promote the implementation of the resolution and to report thereon to the Security Council as developments required (resolution 550 (1984)).

In September 1984, following consultations with the two sides, the Secretary-General conducted three rounds of high-level proximity talks. On 17 January 1985, the Secretary-General convened a joint high-level meeting at United Nations Headquarters with a view to reaching an agreement which would lead to the establishment of a federal republic of Cyprus. The meeting was not conclusive, and the Secretary-General has continued his contacts with both sides (see S/16858/Add.2).

At its thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth sessions, the General Assembly decided to retain the item on the agenda of that session (decisions 38/456 and 39/456).
