2. In paragraph 6 of the annex to that resolution, the Assembly requested the Secretary-General to provide relevant information, including information on the status of subsidiary bodies of the Council and the Assembly.

3. The present report contains basic background information on the subsidiary machinery of the Council and the Assembly in the economic, social and related fields. The information covers, for each subsidiary body, the terms of reference, membership and composition, term of office of members, reporting procedure and frequency of meetings.

4. Section II contains information on the subsidiary bodies of the Economic and Social Council, which have been grouped, on the basis of their institutional status, into five categories: (a) functional commissions, (b) regional commissions, (c) standing committees, (d) expert bodies composed of governmental experts and (e) expert bodies composed of members serving in their personal capacity.

5. Section III contains information on the subsidiary bodies of the General Assembly in the economic, social and related fields, which have been grouped into two categories: (a) standing bodies and (b) ad hoc bodies.

Membership and composition

9. In accordance with paragraph 3 of Council resolution 1147 (XLI) of 4 August 1966, the Statistical Commission consists of one representative from each of 24 Member States elected by the Council on the basis of an equitable geographical distribution, according to the following pattern:

I. Expert bodies composed of governmental experts

1. Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods

Terms of reference

151. The Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 468 G (XV) of 15 April 1953, requested the Secretary-General to appoint a committee 'subsequently the United Nations Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods) of not more than nine experts that was to make a study and present a report to the Transport and Communications Commission:

(a) Recommending and defining groupings or classification of dangerous goods on the basis of the character of risk involved;

(b) Listing the principal dangerous goods moving in commerce and assigning each to its proper grouping or classification;

(c) Recommending marks or labels for each grouping or classification, which shall identify the risk graphically and without regard to printed text;

(d) Recommending the simplest possible requirements for shipping papers covering dangerous goods.

152. That mandate was enlarged by the Council in its resolution 645 G (XXIII) of 26 April 1957, when the Committee was given the name Committee of Experts for Further Work on the Transport of Dangerous Goods and the problem of packing was added to its mandate.

153. In Council resolution 724 C (XXVIII) of 17 July 1959, the Committee was invited to continue the tasks previously assigned to it and to explore further "mutually acceptable performance tests for outer packages". The Council also requested the Secretary-General to set up and convene a group of three experts on explosives to list and harmonize the packing of explosives, and to inform the International Atomic Energy Agency of the desire of the Council that the Agency be entrusted with "the drafting of recommendations on the transport of radio-active substances". In resolution 994 (XXXVI) of 16 December 1963, the Council decided to change the name of the Committee to "Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods". At this period, the Secretary-General decided to transfer the responsibility for the secretariat of the Committee to the Economic Commission for Europe at Geneva.

154. The Council, in resolution 1488 (XLVIII) of 22 May 1970, decided "that the Group of Experts on Explosives shall continue to function as a subsidiary body of the Committee of Experts and that the Committee may alter, as required, the composition of its subsidiary bodies", and that the Committee of Experts "shall study the questions concerning the construction, testing and use of tanks other than those permanently fixed to, or forming part of, the structure of sea-going vessels or inland waterway craft". In paragraph 5 of the same resolution, the Council also suggested that the Committee of Experts consider:

"(a) In view of the appearance of new dangerous goods, enlarging the list of dangerous goods by including there new dangerous goods;

"(b) Grouping dangerous goods within classes by the type and degree of the danger of their transportation, with due regard to the specific conditions of their transportation such as their compatibility;

"(c) Giving each of the dangerous goods a numerical designation, which, in addition to the 'dangerous goods' label would indicate the group of compatibility, which could be instrumental in the solution of the problems of the joint transportation of dangerous goods;

"(d) Supplementing the enlarged list of dangerous goods with indications of the properties and the category of danger of such goods, the fire-fighting means, other safety measures regarding such goods and their packing."

155. A call for harmonization and uniformity was first expressed in resolution 1743 (I.IV) of 4 May 1973, in which the Council, mindful of the increase of unitization and containerization of cargoes as part of total world transportation, invited "international organizations concerned to foster the adoption of a single system of identification, classification and labelling of dangerous goods" and requested the Committee to continue to investigate divergencies currently existing in the modal practices in that respect. This was reflected in resolution 1973 (LIX) of 30 July 1975, in which the Council, noting that dangerous goods accounted for an increasingly large proportion of international trade and that their transport in complete safety should not hamper the development of trade or of the participation of developing countries, "requested the Committee to study, in consultation with other bodies concerned, particularly the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization, the International Civil Aviation Organization, the International Air Transport Association and the regional commissions, the possibility of an international convention on the transport of dangerous goods by all modes of transport". This request was repeated in Council resolution 2050 (LXII) of 5 May 1977 with the addition that the special problems of developing countries should be taken into account.

Composition and membership

156. Under Council resolution 645 G (XXIII), the Committee was to consist of "not more than nine qualified experts from countries interested in the international transport of dangerous goods". Governments were invited to make available, at the request of the Secretary-General and at their own expense, the members of the Committee of Experts. The Council, in resolution 1973 (LIX) of 30 July 1975, decided to enlarge the composition of the Committee of Experts by adding five members from developing countries, so as to ensure the adequate participation of such countries. Fourteen experts are currently participating.

Subsidiary body of the Committee of Experts

Subcommittee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods

157. The Group of Rapporteurs, which prior to 1975 was called the Group of Rapporteurs on the packing of dangerous goods, had been instituted by the Committee at its third session in 1963 and the creation of this subsidiary body was tacitly approved by the Council by its resolution 994 (XXXVI). The Group of Experts on Explosives was set up in answer to a request formulated in Council resolution 724 C (XXVIII).

158. In its resolution 1989/104 of 27 July 1989, the Council endorsed the decision of the Committee to combine its two subsidiary bodies, the Group of Rapporteurs and the Group of Experts on Explosives, into a single Subcommittee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods. In particular resolutions on the work of the Committee of Experts the Council has made specific recommendations on its tasks.

162. In addition, the Council decided that "the Group should meet for a period of two weeks not more than once a year and should report to the Commission on Transnational Corporations on further steps to be taken in pursuit of the long-term objective of the international harmonization of accounting and reporting within the scope of the work of the Commission, particularly with regard to the comprehensive information system and the code of conduct on transnational corporations currently being formulated, on the understanding that duplication of work should be avoided". In its resolution 1991/56 of 26 July 1991, the Council decided that the Commission, at its annual session, should keep under review the work of the Group; in particular, it should review the mandate, terms of reference and achievements of the Group after five years, with a view to deciding on the advisability of its continuation.

- "(iii) Technical cooperation should be seen in terms of output or the results to be achieved, rather than in terms of input;
- "(iv) ... The United Nations should provide, where appropriate, equipment and material resources, adopt a more liberal policy towards local cost financing and be flexible in requirements for counterpart personnel;

- "(vii) ... Governments and institutions in recipient countries should be increasingly entrusted with the responsibility for executing projects assisted by the United Nations Development Programme;
- "(viii) Technical cooperation should be provided at any of the levels and stages of the development process ...;

13. World Food Programme

Terms of reference

295. The World Food Programme was established initially on an experimental basis, as a joint programme of the United Nations and the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) by the General Assembly in its resolution 1714 (XVI) of 19 December 1961.

296. The Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes was established by the Assembly in the same resolution under the name "United Nations/FAO Inter-governmental Committee" "to provide guidance on the policy, administration and operations" of the World Food Programme.

297. Under the provisions of paragraph 9 of the annex to resolution 1714 (XVI), "subject to the guidance of the Inter-governmental Committee, the Programme will be carried on by a joint FAO/United Nations administrative unit. ... In the administration of the Programme attention should be paid to:

"(a) Establishing adequate and orderly procedures on a world basis for meeting emergency food needs and emergencies inherent in chronic malnutrition (this could include the establishment of food reserves);

"(b) Assisting in pre-school and school feeding; and

"(c) Implementing pilot projects, with the multilateral use of food as an aid to economic and social development, particularly when related to labour-intensive projects and rural welfare."

298. The Programme was extended by the Assembly in its resolution 2095 (XX) of 20 December 1965, "on a continuing basis for as long as multilateral food aid is found feasible and desirable, on the understanding that the Programme will be regularly reviewed before each pledging conference and that, if circumstances so require, it may be enlarged, curtailed or terminated at the end of any period for which resources have been pledged".

Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes

299. The Assembly, in its resolution 3404 (XXX) of 28 November 1975, decided that "the United Nations/FAO Intergovernmental Committee of the World Food Programme shall be reconstituted as the Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes" and that, "in addition to discharging the functions hitherto exercised by the Intergovernmental Committee, the Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes shall help to evolve and coordinate short-term and longer-term food aid policies recommended by the World Food Conference and shall in particular:

"(a) Provide general guidance on the policy, administration and operation of the World Food Programme;

"(b) Provide a forum for intergovernmental consultations on national and international food aid programmes and policies;

"(c) Review periodically general trends in food aid requirements and availabilities;

"(d) Recommend to Governments, through the World Food Council, improvements in food aid policies and programmes on such matters as programme priorities, commodity composition of food aid and other related subjects;

"(e) Formulate proposals for the more effective co-ordination of multilateral, bilateral and non-governmental food aid programmes, including emergency food aid;

"(f) Review periodically the implementation of the recommendations made by the World Food Conference on food aid policies".

The Assembly, in its resolution 3404 (XXX), decided that the Committee would comprise 30 States Members of the United Nations or members of FAO, 15 of those members to be elected by the Economic and Social Council and 15 by the Council of FAO, it being understood that outgoing members would be eligible for re-election.

301. In the same resolution, the Assembly requested the Economic and Social Council and the Council of FAO, when they elected members of the Committee, to take into account the need for the balanced representation of economically developed and developing countries and other relevant factors, such as the representation of potential participating countries, both contributing and recipient, equitable geographical distribution and the representation of both developed and developing countries having commercial interests in international trade in foodstuffs, especially those highly dependent on such trade.

Term of office

302. The term of office of members is three years (Assembly resolution 3404 (XXX), para. 37).

304. The Committee reports to the General Assembly through the Economic and Social Council. Its reports are issued as documents of the Council.

Frequency of meetings

305. In its resolution 3404 (XXX), the Assembly resolved that "the Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes should normally hold regular sessions twice a year and such special sessions as it considers necessary or as called for by the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the Director-General of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, in consultation with the Executive Director of the World Food Programme, or on request submitted in writing by at least one third of the members of the Committee".

Review of the governance of the World Food Programme

306. General Assembly resolution 45/218 of 21 December 1990 concerns the governance of the World Food Programme. In this resolution, the Assembly:

"2. Welcomes the decision taken by the Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes at its twenty-ninth session to establish a sub-committee on the governance of the World Food Programme and the relationships between the United Nations, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations and the World Food Programme, and urges the Committee to complete expeditiously its review of governance arrangements for the Programme;

"3. Urges the Committee, in conducting its review, to take into account the need for enhanced governance arrangements and improved efficiency and effectiveness of the World Food Programme and enhanced accountability to member States".

Matters for decision by the Assembly at its forty-sixth session

307. In its decision 1991/298 of 26 July 1991, the Economic and Social Council, having considered the report of the Committee on Food Aid Policies and Programmes on the work of its first special session (E/1991/69), decided to endorse the revised General Regulations of the World Food Programme contained in appendix B to the report and to transmit them to the General Assembly at its forty-sixth session for final approval.

308. In accordance with those revised General Regulations, the Committee would be composed of 42 States Members of the United Nations or member nations of FAO, 27 of whom should be developing countries and 15 from more economically developed Member States or members of FAO. The Committee would exercise the responsibility for the intergovernmental supervision and direction of the Programme, including food aid policy, administration, operations, funds and finances, and would carry out such other responsibilities as would be conferred upon it in the General Regulations. The Committee would normally hold regular sessions twice a year and such special sessions as it considered necessary.
