For the purposes of article 116 of the Act, offenders shall make their pre-trial statements to the specialized technical agencies of the National Police, in which connection a representative of the Department of the Public Prosecutor must be present in an active investigative capacity. The punishment for failure to comply with this requirement may include the dismissal of the official from office, for which purpose the matter shall be brought to the attention of the Office of the State Attorney-General.

In such cases, if there is a need for investigations during holidays and no representative of the Department of the Public Prosecutor for Criminal Affairs is present, the regional customs attorney or the attorney of the judicial authority for transit matters on duty during the week in question shall be called upon.

Article 74. When detaining persons guilty of violating the Act and when seizing controlled substances, equipment, laboratories, chemicals, goods, objects, means of transport, money, documents and other items, the following procedures shall be observed:

- (a) The offenders' statements during the preliminary investigation phase shall be taken down;
- (b) The offenders and the substances seized shall be transferred to the police headquarters of the district in question;
- (c) The National Police shall, within 24 hours, remand the offenders to the appropriate judge, together with the report on the police investigation and the documentation on the seizure of the substances and other goods; and
- (d) In all cases, the investigative report shall be accompanied by an account of the facts and circumstances surrounding the detention.

Article 75. Within three days of the forwarding of the investigative report and relevant documentation to the jurisdictional sorting office, the National Police shall make available to the judge the results of the laboratory analysis, the documentation and any other material that may contribute to the complete elucidation of the offence.

In places where a single judge has jurisdiction for criminal affairs, the National Police shall forward to that judge the report and documentation referred to in the preceding paragraphs.

For the identification of the substances seized, the National Police, working through its specialized technical agencies, shall take the samples required by the laboratory analysts, without altering the identity of the substances and, as far as possible, the integrity of the packaging. Together with the report, the delivery/reception certificate for the substance samples used in the analysis, indicating their type, quantity and weight and signed by the member of the laboratory staff who performed the aforementioned analysis, is to be forwarded.

Without prejudice to these examinations and their results, the judge hearing the case shall have available the services of the experts specified in the Act. He shall record these measures in the certificate of possession, and shall order that the samples in question be turned over to CONSEP.

Article 76. Any portion of the substances that may be left over from the samples, together with a copy of the expert's report, shall be forwarded by the member of the laboratory staff who performed the aforementioned analysis to the CONSEP Office of the Executive Secretary, which shall keep them under its custody.

Article 77. Given the nature of the offences provided for in the Act, in the event an offender is caught red-handed, the detainee along with the controlled substances seized shall be immediately remanded to the competent judge, and there shall be forwarded to the judge or the sorting office, as appropriate, the notification of seizure, which shall describe all the circumstances surrounding the commission of the offence, as provided for in article 175 of the Code of Criminal Proceedings.

A judge who removes a case to a superior court shall order that INTERPOL carry out the appropriate investigations and report.

Article 78. CONSEP shall devise the form for the notification of seizure, which shall contain, in particular, the following information:

- (a) The place, date and time of the seizure;
- (b) The identity of the offender and of the presumed offenders;
- (c) A detailed description of the substances and other material evidence found, indicating the quantity, weight or volume;
- (d) The full names of any witness or witnesses to the commission of the offence in the event the offender was caught red-handed; and
- (e) The full names of the members of the police force or Military Customs Police who were involved in the seizure.

Article 79. Police force members or members of the Military Customs Police who, while carrying out their official duties, find abandoned narcotic or psychotropic substances, chemical precursors or other specific chemical products, equipment, laboratories, means of transport or other goods regarded as connected with illicit activities provided for in the Act shall seize them and physically turn them over to CONSEP, in accordance with the provisions of the preceding articles.

Article 80. The equipment, machinery, instruments and other physical evidence of the offence shall remain in provisional safekeeping with the law-enforcement agency that intervened in the operation. That agency shall maintain control until the judge rules on the transfer of the goods to the custody of CONSEP.

Failure to comply with this provision shall constitute contempt of court.

Such weapons, munitions, explosives and related materials as may be confiscated in these operations shall be turned over to the Armed Forces.

Article 81. The document referred to in article 106 of the Act shall be drawn up on a form distributed by CONSEP and shall contain, in addition to the items specified in that article, an indication of the location of the premises used in the offence; the quantity, weight or volume of the substances; and the full names and signatures of the members of the police forces and other officials who were involved in the destruction of the growing areas or laboratories.

A record shall also be kept of the quantity, weight or volume of the samples taken for the relevant analysis.

Any filmed record or other kinds of recording as may have been acquired shall be attached to this document, which shall be included among the trial materials.

A copy of the document and/or reports of the measures provided for in the preceding provisions shall be sent to CONSEP.

Article 82. When the Military Customs Police, while carrying out its official duties, discovers within the primary and/or secondary customs zones proof of an offence covered by the Act, it shall seize any controlled substances subject to import or export regulations, any other goods connected with the offence, and the transport vehicle used to commit it, where there is one, and shall remand them to the custody of the competent criminal court judge, along with the relevant document, a copy of which shall be forwarded to the customs administrator of the district in question, CONSEP and the National Police.

Article 83. The revocation of the precautionary measure provided for in article 105 of the Act shall be ordered by the judge hearing the case, subject to the consenting opinion of the Department of the Public Prosecutor.

Article 84. The representative of the Department of the Public Prosecutor, when the case warrants it and before the pre-trial testimony and investigative report has been received, shall request the presence of the forensic pathologist referred to in the Act in order that he may examine the detainee's physical condition and submit his report within a period of 48 hours.

General provisions

Article 85. The provisions of these Regulations shall prevail over others dealing with the same subject.

Article 86. When carrying out the destruction of controlled substances, the technical procedures laid down by CONSEP shall be observed. The latter shall also take into account the requirements specified in the Environmental Contamination Prevention and Control Act.

Article 87. Ninety days after these Regulations come into force, the public information media must transmit programmes or spots designed to combat the traffic in, and consumption of, controlled substances over a period and with a frequency to be determined by CONSEP in agreement with SENAC, which shall be responsible for monitoring compliance with this provision.

The programmes and spots to which this article refers shall be broadcast free of charge in the time slots set aside for SENAC.

Judges in general, customs administrators, health officers and all officials participating in legal proceedings or procedures involving the seizure of chemical precursors or other specific chemical products, whether acquired as the result of a special confiscation operation or not, must, regardless of the stage reached in these legal proceedings or procedures, make available the substances in question to the CONSEP Executive Secretary within 30 days following the enactment of these Regulations, with the latter to act as the judicial depository for the purposes provided for in articles 11, 13 (13) and 105 of the Act.

Second. Until such time as CONSEP has the appropriate technical facilities, the "Leopoldo Izquieta Pérez" National Institute of Hygiene shall continue providing its services to CONSEP in order that the latter may carry out its objectives.

Third. The forensic pathologists of the Office of the State Attorney-General shall provide their services to CONSEP for the purpose of performing the forensic medical functions laid down in the Narcotic and Psychotropic Substances Act and its Regulations.

Final provision

The present Regulations shall come into force from the date of their publication in the Official Gazette.
