CZECHOSLOVAKIA

[Original: English]

[15 September 1987]

1. With regard to paragraph 12 of the resolution, the Mission reaffirmed the position of the Czechoslovak Socialist Republic that in order to enhance the security and safety of diplomatic missions it was necessary for all States to cease to tolerate within their territories the illegal activities of extremist organizations and groups that spread racial and religious hatred, fascism and neofascism, revanchism and violence, and that often resort to terrorist methods to attain their goals, endangering also the security and safety of diplomatic and consular missions or representatives.

2. The security and safety of diplomatic missions would be enhanced by a further strengthening of confidence among States, by further steps towards a better mutual knowledge between nations, by the development of political, economic, scientific, cultural and educational contacts as this contributes to the creation of a correct and undistorted perception of other countries by the population and to a deeper mutual understanding. There is an objective need for individual States to adopt measures against any misuse of their national mass media of communication for instigative and hostile campaigns against other States and nations, under any pretext whatsoever. On the contrary, the mass media should help foster the awareness of an indispensability of peaceful coexistence, the development of friendly relations and co-operation, respect for the right of every nation to its own paths of development and to the formulation of an independent domestic and foreign policy in harmony with the Charter of the United Nations and with universally recognized principles and norms of international law. [See also subsection II.A.]
