"The Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 724 (1991) concerning Yugoslavia,

"Having dealt with the communications received from Slovakia under Article 50 of the Charter of the United Nations,

"Recalling Security Council resolutions 713 (1991) of 25 September 1991, 724 (1991) of 15 December 1991, 757 (1992) of 30 May 1992, 787 (1992) of 16 November 1992 and 820 (1993) of 17 April 1993, in which the Council decided to impose an arms embargo against the territory of the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and a comprehensive set of sanctions against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), and Security Council resolution 843 (1993) of 18 June 1993, in which the Council entrusted the Committee established pursuant to its resolution 724 (1991) with the task of examining requests for assistance under the provisions of Article 50 of the Charter of the United Nations, as well as other relevant resolutions,

"Recalling further the provisions of Articles 25, 49 and 50 of the Charter of the United Nations,

"Noting the information submitted by Slovakia (documents S/25894 of 7 June 1993 and S/26648 of 27 October 1993) regarding the measures taken to give full effect to the sanctions as laid down in Security Council resolutions 757 (1992), 787 (1992) and 820 (1993), and concerning the special economic problems it has been confronted with as a result of the implementation of those measures,

"Recognizing that the continued full implementation of Security Council resolutions 713 (1991), 724 (1991), 757 (1992), 787 (1992) and 820 (1993) by Slovakia, as well as other States, will support the measures to ensure compliance with these and other relevant resolutions,

"1. Commends the Government of Slovakia for the measures it has taken to comply with Security Council resolutions 713 (1991), 724 (1991), 757 (1992), 787 (1992) and 820 (1993);

- "2. Recognizes the urgent need to assist Slovakia in coping with its special economic problems resulting from the severance of its economic relations with the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), as required by Security Council resolutions 757 (1992), 787 (1992) and 820 (1993), especially commercial and financial losses incurred by Slovakia;
- "3. Appeals to all States on an urgent basis to provide immediate technical, financial and material assistance to Slovakia to mitigate the adverse impact on its economy of the application by Slovakia of sanctions against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) pursuant to Security Council resolutions 757 (1992), 787 (1992) and 820 (1993);
- "4. Invites the competent organs and specialized agencies of the United Nations system, including the international financial institutions, and the regional development banks, to consider how their assistance programmes and facilities might be helpful to Slovakia, with a view to alleviating its special economic problems arising from the application of sanctions against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) pursuant to Security Council resolutions 757 (1992), 787 (1992) and 820 (1993);
- "5. Requests the Secretary-General, on a regular basis, to seek information from States and the concerned organs and agencies of the United Nations system on action taken to alleviate the special economic problems of Slovakia and to report thereon to the Security Council."

1. Factual description

The first agreement between Czechoslovakia and the Kingdom of Serbia, Croatia and Slovenia about cooperation and trade was contracted in 1928. After the end of World War II, following a short freeze in mutual relations in the 1950s, an intense expansion of commercial, and then political, cooperation between Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia took place in the next decade.

This cooperation was further developing generally, in cooperation, in production and in the founding of common enterprises, etc.

The rapid decline in the mutual exchange of goods after 1989 is proved by the following survey:

	 1989	1990	1991	1992
Total turnover	1 228.0	1 038.0	401.3	168.4
Import	608.0	533.7	163.1	47.1
Export	620.0	505.0	238.2	121.3

In accordance with the suggestion of the delegation of the United States of America at the meeting of "The committee of delegates" in Vienna (February 1993) furthermore severe sanctions against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) were discussed. This also affected transit and damaged and impaired the economy of Slovakia.

The suggestion of the delegation of the United States of America was accepted and reflected in the most severe resolution of the United Nations Security Council accepted till now: resolution 820 (1993), which came into effect on 26 April 1993.

Since Slovakia, as a Member of the United Nations, fully respects its decisions and consistently abides by resolution 820 (1993) in spite of grave economic losses, it is necessary to mitigate this impact on Slovakia in any form and reimburse the quantified losses.

According to data obtained, 43 subjects in Slovakia have been affected by the embargo, three quarters of them are private and privatized physical and juridical persons and nearly one quarter are joint-stock companies with State participation.

These subjects are controlled by five departments:

Ministry of Transport, Communications and Public Works

Ministry of Health

Ministry of Economy

Ministry of Agriculture

Ministry of Finance

The embargo affects these branches:

	Thous United Stat	ands of es dollars
Machine industries	16	537
Power engineering	5	365
Foodstuff, cereals, fruit and vegetables	23	200
Foreign trade (export, import)	64	300

Oil industry	4	570
Chemical industry	3	458
Other branches	45	058
Total	245	975

These numbers correspond with the data in the response to the questionnaire and attachment I.

2. Argumentation

Many business partners from Slovakia had been cooperating for several decades with the States of the former Yugoslavia. Owing to this cooperation, they created mutual good business and cooperative relations, settled through clearing arrangements.

They created common technology and standards applied in production and business.

With the change of the political situation in Yugoslavia and the implementation of the embargo imposed on the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) by the United Nations Security Council, these relations have been disturbed and the said region is not utilizable for mutual business and cooperation between Slovakia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro). Many producers in Slovakia are experiencing a great decline in production. Completed products and components are staying on stock as dead capital which constantly burdens producers financially with warehouse expenses. It is very difficult to find compensatory customers in Europe and overseas and this brings an excessive increase in expenses.

In many cases, specific equipment like engines, gearings, air-conditioning and others was imported custom-made for a given technical complex. Because of the situation that has arisen, they are not utilizable, or even marketable. This loss is directly affecting the contractor and it burdens the producer.

The realization of these supplies to the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) was fully suspended because of the embargo. The same applies to cooperation and joint ventures between Slovakia and the States of the former Yugoslavia.

Detailed quantified losses of Slovakia connected with the embargo against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) (Security Council resolution 820 (1993)) are summarized in the answer to the questionnaire for settlement of losses directly connected with the embargo (see attachments I and II).

Statement by the representative of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to the Working Group (on Article 50 of the Charter of the United Nations) on 30 November 1993

The fact that the Republic of Macedonia is the only member of the former Yugoslav Federation that achieved its independence through a policy of peaceful self-determination has spared our peoples the grave consequences of devastation caused by war. This policy has also helped stabilize the region. This region, as has been demonstrated in two Balkan Wars at the beginning of this century, is potentially an arena of conflict involving many nations. That is why we have stood for a foreign policy of peace and tolerance and for dialogue as a political method for resolving problems among Balkan States.

Speaking of our domestic policy, we are determined to push forward with economic and political reforms which will lead us to a market economy and a democratic society. Also, it is of utmost importance to us to preserve the inter-ethnic dialogue, the lack of which has caused so much suffering in parts of the territory of the former Yugoslavia.

Supporting the action of the United Nations formulated in Security Council resolution 757 (1992), my Government, together with other nations in the world, hoped that it would lead to a peaceful end to the war by putting economic pressure on the warring sides. But in our letter of support dated June 1992, addressed to the Secretary-General, we underlined that, because of the specific position of our economy, sanctions would hurt us badly, and asked for assistance calling on Article 50 of the Charter of the United Nations.

We also presented an estimate of direct and indirect damages in the fields of industry, transport and communications, civil engineering, trade and tourism. In the same letter we pointed to the fact that, and I quote "owing to the unique technological development on the territory of the former Yugoslavia, there are several interrelated systems, such as the electro-economic system, the postal and telecommunications system, the railway and transportation system ... which, when cut off, would produce an economically impossible situation for our State.

Prior to the sanctions, the "organic" whole of the economy of the former State was being broken, not through dialogue and sober judgement as to what should remain of the previous economic relations, a policy that we stood for, but through economic war, which was soon followed by real war.

Moving away from the conflict, we in Macedonia began a speedy process of economic and financial emancipation from the former State of Yugoslavia, laying at the same time the foundations for economic and political reform of our society. Parallel to this colossal task we had to adjust our economy to Security Council resolution 757 (1992) (and later resolutions 787 (1992) and 820 (1993)), which meant cutting all economic, scientific, cultural and sports ties with the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro).

I am trying to make one point very clear, a point which distinguishes us from other neighbouring countries, making our position incomparably more difficult. The point is this: on the one side you have the economies of neighbouring countries which are badly hurt by the sanctions imposed on the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), on the other side, in the case of Macedonia, you have all of this plus an economy in the making, emancipating itself from the economy it was part of by working on the necessary economic legislation, by printing its own money, by building border crossings and customs offices in the north, to mention only a few things. We also had to cope with the economic and political pressure imposed on us by one of our neighbours, who, at that time, incorrectly perceived the creation of our State as a threat to their security.

Having all of these severe problems in mind it is a miracle that we have managed to preserve our economy, our internal peace, an open dialogue with ethnic minorities and their participation in Government, and even move forward towards a market economy, privatization and democratic institution-building. I say this because the economic conditions that we are experiencing today tend to radicalize all issues, not just the economic ones. Poverty produces radicalism.

Speaking of poverty allows us to inform you that using the methodology of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), an inquiry was made in some 170 enterprises which carry 80 per cent of the trade and 80 per cent of the workforce in Macedonia. The result of this inquiry clearly shows that as a result of the sanctions our economy has been ravaged. The price that we have had to pay is the following: industry, agriculture, trade, tourism, communications and construction: 2.3 billion United States dollars (direct damages being 1.83 billion United States dollars while indirect damages total 470 million United States dollars). Industry, with 1.9 billion dollars in damages and agriculture with 182 million dollars, have been hit the worst.

The Republic of Macedonia, a land-locked country, with its only viable road and railroad system going north through the territory of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro) closed, and a lost market, which accounted for 56 per cent of our exchange, is facing a severe economic crisis, potential economic chaos and a very bleak economic future. Political consequences follow.

I urge the Security Council to call for immediate assistance for the Republic of Macedonia. It is not, as I hope I have made clear, only a question of economy. It is also a very important political question; the survival of a democratic process is at stake. Its failure could tilt the balance of the whole region, which could fall into the pit of aggressive nationalism. That could actually happen if the economy of my country collapses under the strain of sanctions imposed on a neighbouring country.
