Recognizing the growing contribution and the growing responsibility of the Secretary-General and of the specialized agencies to ensure that the developing countries obtain and analyse the population data required for the effective implementation of their social and economic development, and to improve the understanding of the interrelationships between population change and social and economic development,

1. Invites the Economic Commission for Africa, the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East and the Economic Commission for Latin America to examine the possibilities of intensifying their work in the demographic field within the general framework of the programme recommended by the Population Commission in the report on its twelfth session<sup>22</sup> and with special reference to the recommendation of the General Assembly in resolution 1838 (XVII) for intensified studies of the interrelationships of population growth and economic and social growth;

2. Requests the Secretary-General, in co-operation with the specialized agencies, where appropriate:

(a) To accelerate work on technical manuals on the analysis of census data, on methods of estimating fundamental demographic measures, on methods of projecting the economically active population, school enrolment, rural and urban population, and the number of households, because of their importance for the United Nations Development Decade, and the urgent necessity to make efficient use of the results of the world census programme;

(a) Research which would enhance the understanding of the relationship between population trends and social and economic development, and hence would improve economic and social planning — such research to include analysis of the historical records of population trends and social and economic change in the more developed countries — and basic research in the methods of demography, such as the measurement of fertility, mortality and migration;

(b) Research which would increase the effectiveness of social and economic programmes of studies related to population, such as research on health and education;
