PREPARATORY COMMITTEE ON THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AN INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT
11-21 February 1997

DECISIONS TAKEN BY THE PREPARATORY COMMITTEE AT ITS SESSION
HELD FROM 11 TO 21 FEBRUARY 1997

1. At its 51st meeting, on 21 February 1997, the Preparatory Committee took note of the reports of the Working Group on the Definition of Crimes (see annex I) and of the Working Group on General Principles of Criminal Law and Penalties (see annex II).
2. At the same meeting, the Preparatory Committee adopted a decision in connection with the invitation by the Government of Italy to host the diplomatic conference (see annex III).

Annex I

REPORT OF THE WORKING GROUP ON THE DEFINITION OF CRIMES*

1. The Working Group recommends to the Preparatory Committee the text of the definition of the following crimes as a first draft for inclusion in the draft consolidated text of a convention for an international criminal court:

Crime of genocide (A/AC.249/1997/WG.1/CRP.1 and Corr.1);

Crimes against humanity (A/AC.249/1997/WG.1/CRP.5 and Corr.1).

2. The Working Group recommends to the Preparatory Committee the text of the definition of the following crimes for further consideration at a future time:

War crimes (A/AC.249/1997/WG.1/CRP.2 and Corr.1);

Crime of aggression (A/AC.249/1997/WG.1/CRP.6 and Corr.1);

[Crimes of terrorism, crimes against United Nations and associated personnel and crimes involving the illicit traffic in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances] (A/AC.249/1997/WG.1/CRP.4 and Corr.1).

* Incorporating the documents listed in paras. 1 and 2 of the report.

Crime of genocide

For the purpose of the present Statute, the crime of genocide means any of the following acts committed with intent<sup>1</sup> to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group,<sup>2</sup> as such:<sup>3</sup>

- (a) Killing members of the group;
- (b) Causing serious bodily or mental harm<sup>4</sup> to members of the group;
- (c) Deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part;
- (d) Imposing measures intended to prevent births within the group;
- (e) Forcibly transferring children of the group to another group;

<sup>1</sup> The reference to "intent to destroy, in whole or in part ... a group, as such" was understood to refer to the specific intention to destroy more than a small number of individuals who are members of a group.

<sup>2</sup> The Working Group took note of the suggestion to examine the possibility of addressing "social and political" groups in the context of crimes against humanity.

<sup>3</sup> The Working Group noted that with respect to the interpretation and application of the provisions concerning the crimes within the jurisdiction of the Court, the Court shall apply relevant international conventions and other sources of international law.

In this regard, the Working Group noted that for purposes of interpreting the present article it may be necessary to consider other relevant provisions contained in the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, as well as other sources of international law. For example, article I would determine the question of whether the crime of genocide set forth in the present article could be committed in time of peace or in time of war.

Furthermore, article IV would determine the question of whether persons committing genocide or other acts enumerated in the present article [article III of the Genocide Convention] shall be punished irrespective of their status as constitutionally responsible rulers, public officials or private individuals.

The interrelationship between the various articles of the present Statute would need to be examined in the next phase of the work. For example, the matters dealt with in the first to third paragraphs of the present note would need to be considered in relation to article 33 (Applicable law) of the Statute and the provisions dealing with principles of criminal law.

<sup>4</sup> The reference to "mental harm" is understood to mean more than the minor or temporary impairment of mental faculties.

[The following acts shall be punishable:

- (a) Genocide;
- (b) Conspiracy to commit genocide;
- (c) Direct and public incitement to commit genocide;
- (d) Attempt to commit genocide;
- (e) Complicity in genocide.]<sup>5</sup>

Crimes against humanity

1. For the purpose of the present Statute, any of the following acts constitutes a crime against humanity when committed

[as part of a widespread [and] [or] systematic commission of such acts against any population]:

[as part of a widespread [and] [or] systematic attack against any [civilian] population] [committed on a massive scale] [in armed conflict] [on political, philosophical, racial, ethnic or religious grounds or any other arbitrarily defined grounds]:

- (a) murder;
- (b) extermination;
- (c) enslavement;
- (d) deportation or forcible transfer of population;
- (e) [detention or] [imprisonment] [deprivation of liberty] [in flagrant violation of international law] [in violation of fundamental legal norms];<sup>6</sup>
- (f) torture;
- (g) rape or other sexual abuse [of comparable gravity,] or enforced prostitution;
- (h) persecution against any identifiable group or collectivity on political, racial, national, ethnic, cultural or religious [or gender] [or other

<sup>5</sup> The Working Group will return to the question of the placement of article III of the Genocide Convention once the Working Group on general principles of criminal law has considered this issue in the context of its work.

<sup>6</sup> It was suggested that this subparagraph does not include freedom of speech and that it includes the unilateral blockade of populations.

similar] grounds<sup>7</sup> [and in connection with other crimes within the jurisdiction of the Court];

(i) enforced disappearance of persons;<sup>8</sup>

(j) other inhumane acts [of a similar character] [intentionally] causing [great suffering,] or serious injury to body or to mental or physical health.<sup>9</sup>

[2. For the purpose of paragraph 1:

(a) extermination includes the [wilful, intentional] infliction of conditions of life calculated to bring about the destruction of part of a population;

(b) "deportation or forcible transfer of population" means the movement of [persons] [populations] from the area in which the [persons] [populations] are [lawfully present] [present] [resident] [under national or international law] [for a purpose contrary to international law] [without legitimate and compelling reasons] [without lawful justification];

(c) ["torture" means the intentional infliction of severe pain or suffering, whether physical or mental, upon a person [in the custody or physical control of the accused] [deprived of liberty]; except that torture shall not include pain or suffering arising only from, inherent in or incidental to, lawful sanctions [in conformity with international law]]

["torture" as defined in the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment of 10 December 1984];

(d) persecution means the wilful and severe deprivation of fundamental rights contrary to international law [carried out with the intent to persecute on specified grounds];

(e) ["enforced disappearance of persons" means when persons are arrested, detained or abducted against their will by or with the authorization, support or acquiescence of the State or a political organization, followed by a refusal to acknowledge that deprivation of freedom or to give information on the fate or whereabouts of those persons, thereby placing them outside the protection of the law]

["enforced disappearance of persons" as defined in the Inter-American Convention on the Forced Disappearance of Persons of 9 June 1994, as referred to

<sup>7</sup> This also includes, for example, social, economic and mental or physical disability grounds.

<sup>8</sup> It was suggested that some more time was needed to reflect upon the inclusion of this subparagraph.

<sup>9</sup> It was suggested that the inclusion of this paragraph should be subject to further clarification. It was also suggested that the list of acts should include institutionalized discrimination.

in the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance (General Assembly resolution 47/133 of 18 December 1992)].

War crimes

[For the purpose of the present Statute, "war crimes" means:]

[For the purpose of the present Statute, any of the following war crimes constitutes a crime within the jurisdiction of the court when committed as part of a systematic plan or policy or as part of a large-scale commission of such crimes:]

B. [Other war crimes in violation of the laws and customs applicable in international armed conflict within the established framework of international law, namely:]

[Other war crimes in international armed conflict]<sup>10</sup>

[other grave breaches]

<sup>10</sup> Other delegations feel that grave breaches of Protocol Additional I to the 1949 Geneva Conventions should be reflected in the Statute under the heading of grave breaches which would reflect more appropriately the status of those crimes in international humanitarian law.

[<sup>11</sup> 1. [Any of the following acts, when committed wilfully, in violation of international humanitarian law, and causing death or serious injury to body or health:<sup>12</sup>]

[Grave breaches of article 85(3) of Protocol I of 10 June 1977 Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, namely the following acts, when committed wilfully, in violation of the relevant provisions of the Protocol and causing death or serious injury to body or health:]

(a) making the civilian population or individual civilians the object of attack;

(b) launching an indiscriminate attack affecting the civilian population or civilian objects in the knowledge that such attack will cause excessive loss of life, injury to civilians or damage to civilian objects[;<sup>13</sup>] [, which is excessive in relation to the concrete and direct military advantage anticipated;]

<sup>12</sup> The provisions of paragraph 1 are drawn from article 85(3) of Protocol Additional I to the 1949 Geneva Conventions.

It was suggested that crimes listed under section B (1)-(3) could be covered as treaty crimes.

<sup>13</sup> This provision should be read together with article 57(2)(a)(iii) of Protocol Additional I to the 1949 Geneva Conventions. This footnote is an alternative to the words in square brackets following it.

Non-retroactivity

1. Provided that this Statute is applicable in accordance with article A, a person shall not be criminally responsible under this Statute for conduct committed prior to its entry into force.

[2. If the law as it appeared at the commission of the crime is amended prior to the final judgement in the case, the most lenient law shall be applied.]<sup>6</sup>

Court has jurisdiction in respect of the acts that it specifies in the declaration.

The Court has no jurisdiction in respect of crimes for which, even if they have been committed after the entry into force of this Statute, the Security Council, acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations, has decided before the entry into force of this Statute to establish an ad hoc international criminal tribunal. The Security Council may, however, decide otherwise.]

Article B a.

Individual criminal responsibility

a. Personal jurisdiction

1. The Court shall have jurisdiction over natural persons pursuant to the present Statute.

2. A person who commits a crime under this Statute is individually responsible and liable for punishment.

[3. Criminal responsibility is individual and cannot go beyond the person and the person's possessions.]<sup>7</sup>

4. The fact that the present Statute provides criminal responsibility for individuals does not affect the responsibility of States under international law.

[5. The Court shall also have jurisdiction over juridical persons, with the exception of States, when the crimes committed were committed on behalf of such juridical persons or by their agencies or representatives.

<sup>7</sup> This proposal deals mainly with the limits of civil liability and should be further discussed in connection with penalties, forfeiture and compensation to victims of crimes.

6. The criminal responsibility of juridical persons shall not exclude the criminal responsibility of natural persons who are perpetrators or accomplices in the same crimes.]<sup>8</sup>

Article B b., c. and d.

Individual criminal responsibility

[Subject to the provisions of articles C, G and H,] a person is criminally responsible and liable for punishment for a crime defined [in article 20] [in this Statute] if that person:

(a) commits such a crime, whether as an individual, jointly with another, or through another person regardless of whether that person is criminally responsible;

(b) orders, solicits or induces the commission of such a crime which in fact occurs or is attempted;

[(c) fails to prevent or repress the commission of such a crime in the circumstances set out in article __ [referring to command/superior responsibility];]

(d) [with [intent] [knowledge] to facilitate the commission of such a crime,] aids, abets or otherwise assists in the commission [or attempted commission] of that crime, including providing the means for its commission;<sup>9</sup>

(e) either:

(i) [intentionally] [participates in planning] [plans] to commit such a crime which in fact occurs or is attempted; or

<sup>8</sup> There is a deep divergence of views as to the advisability of including criminal responsibility of juridical persons in the Statute. Many delegations are strongly opposed, whereas some strongly favour its inclusion. Others have an open mind. Some delegations hold the view that providing for only the civil or administrative responsibility/liability of juridical persons could provide a middle ground. This avenue, however, has not been thoroughly discussed. Some delegations, who favour the inclusion of juridical persons, hold the view that this expression should be extended to organizations lacking legal status. Some prefer the term "legal entities".

<sup>9</sup> It was pointed out that the commentary to the ILC draft Code of Crimes (Official Records of the General Assembly, Fifty-first Session, Supplement No. 10, A/51/10, p. 24, para. (12)) implicitly also includes aiding, abetting or assisting ex post facto. This presumption was questioned in the context of the ICC. If aiding, etc., ex post facto were deemed necessary to be criminalized, an explicit provision would be needed.

[(ii) agrees with another person or persons that such a crime be committed and an overt act in furtherance of the agreement is committed by any of these persons that manifests their intent [and such a crime in fact occurs or is attempted];<sup>10</sup><sup>11</sup>

(f) [directly and publicly] incites the commission of [such a crime] [genocide] [which in fact occurs], [with the intent that such crime be committed];

(g)<sup>12</sup> [with the intent to commit such a crime,] attempts to commit that crime by taking action that commences its execution by means of a substantial step, but that crime does not occur because of circumstances independent of the person's intentions.<sup>13</sup>

Irrelevance of official position

1. This Statute shall be applied to all persons without any discrimination whatsoever: official capacity, either as Head of State or Government, or as a member of a Government or parliament, or as an elected representative, or as a government official, shall in no case exempt a person from his criminal responsibility under this Statute, nor shall it [per se] constitute a ground for reduction of the sentence.

2. Any immunities or special procedural rules attached to the official capacity of a person, whether under national or international law, may not be relied upon to prevent the Court from exercising its jurisdiction in relation to that person.<sup>14</sup>

<sup>10</sup> In addition to the two types of conduct described in para. (e), there is a third type of criminal association that may be considered. One formulation of this third category would be to refer to the conduct of a person who "participates in an organization which aims at the realization of such a crime by engaging in an activity that furthers or promotes that realization".

<sup>12</sup> Questions pertaining to voluntary abandonment or repentance should be further discussed in connection with defences or penalties.

<sup>13</sup> A view was expressed that it would be preferable that issues connected with attempt be taken up in a separate article rather than in the framework of individual responsibility. In that view, the article on individual responsibility should only refer to the way in which the person takes part in the commission of a crime, regardless of whether it deals with a completed crime or an attempted crime.

<sup>14</sup> Further discussion of paragraph 2 would be required in connection with procedure as well as international judicial cooperation.

Command responsibility<sup>15</sup>

[forces under their command] [subordinates]

[In addition to other forms of responsibility for crimes under this Statute, a [commander] [superior] is criminally responsible] [A [commander] [superior] is not relieved of responsibility]<sup>17</sup> for crimes under this Statute committed by [forces] [subordinates] under his or her command [or authority] and effective control as a result of the [commander's] [superior's] failure to exercise properly this control where:

(a) the [commander] [superior] either knew, or [owing to the widespread commission of the offences] [owing to the circumstances at the time] should have known, that the [forces] [subordinates] were committing or intending to commit such crimes; and

(b) the [commander] [superior] failed to take all necessary and reasonable measures within his or her power to prevent or repress their commission [or punish the perpetrators thereof].

Age of responsibility

Proposal 1

1. A person under the age of [twelve, thirteen, fourteen, sixteen, eighteen] at the time of the commission of a crime [shall be deemed not to know the wrongfulness of his or her conduct and] shall not be criminally responsible under this Statute, [unless the Prosecutor proves that the person knew the wrongfulness of his or her conduct at that time.]

2. [A person who is between the age of [sixteen] and [twenty-one] at the time of the (alleged) commission of a crime shall be evaluated (by the Court) as to his or her maturity to determine whether the person is responsible under this Statute.]

<sup>15</sup> One delegation held the view that this principle should be dealt with in connection with the definitions of the crimes.

<sup>16</sup> Most delegations were in favour of extending the principle of command responsibility to any superior.

<sup>17</sup> The alternatives highlight the question whether command responsibility is a form of criminal responsibility in addition to others or whether it is a principle that commanders are not immune for the acts of their subordinates.

Proposal 2

Age of persons liable to punishment

[Persons aged 13 to 18 years at the time of the facts shall be criminally responsible but their prosecution, trial and sentence and the regime under which they serve their sentence may give rise to the application of special modalities specified in the Statute.]

[Note. Different views exist among States as to a specific age of responsibility.

It was observed that many international conventions (such as the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the European Convention on Human Rights, the Inter-American Convention on Human Rights) prohibit the punishment of minors.

The question arising from the draft proposals was whether an absolute age of responsibility should be mandated or whether a presumptive age should be included with a means to rebut the presumption.

It was observed that a consistent approach (in terms of either an evaluation by the Court or proof by the Prosecutor) should be taken in paragraphs 1 and 2 of proposal 1 in respect of both of the age groups mentioned.

A question was raised as to what would be the criteria of the evaluation process, and should this be left for the Court to develop in supplementary rules or by jurisprudence?

It was questioned whether the Statute should specify that mitigation of sentence should or could be appropriate for those minors who were found to be mature enough to be criminally responsible.

It was observed that, in its article 1, the Convention on the Rights of the Child defines as a child every human being younger than eighteen years of age and that, in its article 37, it lays down a series of limitations as regards the applicable penalties, ruling out the death penalty and life imprisonment without parole.]

Statute of limitations

Proposal 1

[1. The period of limitations shall be completed upon the lapse of xx years for the offence of ..., and yy years for the offence of ...

2. The period of limitations shall commence to run at the time when criminal conduct has ceased.

3. The period of limitations shall cease to run on the institution of the prosecution against the case concerned to this Court or to a national court of any State that has jurisdiction on such case. The period of limitations begins to run when the decision of the national court becomes final, where this Court has jurisdiction over the case concerned.]

Proposal 2

[There is no statute of limitations for those crimes within the [inherent] jurisdiction of the [Tribunal].]

Proposal 3

[There is no statute of limitations for those crimes within the [inherent] jurisdiction of the Court; but [for those crimes not within the Court's inherent jurisdiction] the Court may decline to exercise jurisdiction if, owing to the lapse of time, a person would be denied a fair trial.]

Proposal 4

[Crimes not subject to limitation]

The crimes referred to in article 27 (a), (b) and (c)<sup>18</sup> shall not be subject to limitation.

Crimes subject to limitation

1. Proceedings before the Court in respect of the crimes referred to in article 27 (d) and (e)<sup>19</sup> shall be subject to a period of limitation of 10 full years from the date on which the crime was committed, provided that during this period no prosecution has been brought.

2. If a prosecution has been initiated during this period, either before the Court or in a State competent to bring a prosecution under its internal law, the proceedings before the Court shall not be subject to limitation until 10 full years have elapsed from the date of the most recent prosecution.

Proposal 5

[1. The statute of limitations as established hereunder shall extinguish the criminal prosecution and the punishment.

---

<sup>18</sup> Paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of article 27 deal, respectively, with the crime of genocide, crimes against humanity and the crime of aggression.

<sup>19</sup> Paragraphs (d) and (e) of article 27 deal, respectively, with serious violations of the laws and customs applicable in armed conflicts and with grave breaches of the four 1949 Geneva Conventions and of article 3 common to the four 1949 Geneva Conventions.

2. The statute of limitations will be [ ] years and shall commence to run as follows:

(a) in case of instantaneous crime, from the moment of its perpetration;

(b) in case of attempt, from the moment the last act of execution was performed or the due conduct was omitted;

(c) in case of permanent crime, from the moment of the cessation of the criminal conduct.

3. The statute of limitations may be interrupted by the actions taken in the investigation of the crime and its perpetrators. If those actions were stopped, the statute of limitations will run again as of the day the last act of investigation was carried out.

4. The statute of limitations for definitive sanctions will run as of the moment the condemned person escaped and will be interrupted with its detention.]

Actus reus (act and/or omission)

1. Conduct for which a person may be criminally responsible and liable for punishment as a crime can constitute either an act or an omission, or a combination thereof.

2. (a) the omission is specified in the definition of the crime under this Statute; or

(b) in the circumstances, [the result of the omission corresponds to the result of a crime committed by means of an act] [the degree of unlawfulness realized by such omission corresponds to the degree of unlawfulness to be realized by the commission of such act], and the person is [either] under a pre-existing [legal] obligation under this Statute<sup>20</sup> to avoid the result of such

Mens rea

Mental elements of crime

1. Unless otherwise provided, a person is only criminally responsible and liable for punishment for a crime under this Statute if the physical elements are committed with intent and knowledge.

2. For the purposes of this Statute and unless otherwise provided, a person has intent where:

(a) in relation to conduct, that person means to engage in the act or omission;

(b) in relation to a consequence, that person means to cause that consequence or is aware that it will occur in the ordinary course of events.

3. For the purposes of this Statute and unless otherwise provided, "know", "knowingly" or "knowledge" means to be aware that a circumstance exists or a consequence will occur.

[4.<sup>23 24 25</sup> For the purposes of this Statute and unless otherwise provided, where this Statute provides that a crime may be committed recklessly, a person is reckless with respect to a circumstance or a consequence if:

<sup>21</sup> Some delegations had concerns about including this clause which referred to the creation of a risk. Other delegations thought that, in the context of the offences of the statute, breach of an obligation under the Statute to avoid the result of a crime was sufficient.

<sup>24</sup> The need for this paragraph will be re-examined once a decision has been taken on the definition of crimes.

<sup>25</sup> A view was expressed to the effect that there was no reason for rejecting the concept of commission of an offence also through negligence, in which case the offender shall be liable only when so prescribed by the statute.

(a) the person is aware of a risk that the circumstance exists or that the consequence will occur;

(b) the person is aware that the risk is highly unreasonable to take;

[and]

[(c) the person is indifferent to the possibility that the circumstance exists or that the consequence will occur.]]

Mistake of fact or of law<sup>26 27</sup>

Alternative text A

Unavoidable mistake of fact or of law shall be a defence provided that the mistake is not inconsistent with the nature of the alleged crime. Avoidable mistake of fact or of law may be considered in mitigation of punishment.

Alternative text B

1. A mistake of fact shall be a defence only if it negates the mental element required by the crime [charged provided that said mistake is not inconsistent with the nature of the crime or its elements] [, and provided that the circumstances he reasonably believed to be true would have been lawful].

2. Mistake of law may not be cited as a ground for exemption from criminal responsibility [, except where specifically provided for in this Statute].<sup>28</sup>

<sup>27</sup> Some delegations were of the view that mistake of fact was not necessary because it was covered by mens rea.

"Mistake of law as to whether a particular type of conduct is a crime under this Statute, or whether a crime is within the jurisdiction of the Court, is not a defence. However, a [reasonable] mistake of law may be a defence if it negates the mental element required by such crime."

DECISION ADOPTED BY THE PREPARATORY COMMITTEE IN CONNECTION WITH THE INVITATION BY THE GOVERNMENT OF ITALY TO HOST THE DIPLOMATIC CONFERENCE

At its 51st meeting, on 21 February 1997, the Preparatory Committee adopted the following decision:

"The Preparatory Committee on the Establishment of an International Criminal Court,

"Welcomes the proposal by the Government of Italy to hold the diplomatic conference in Rome; and

"Recommends to the General Assembly that, pursuant to General Assembly resolution 51/207 of 17 December 1996, after consideration by the Committee on Conferences, a decision in accordance with such proposal be made when dealing with the necessary arrangements for the conference, on the understanding that the organization of the conference in Rome will proceed on the basis of the usual practice concerning the funding of events of this kind taking place outside United Nations Headquarters or other United Nations seats."
