5. Report on the activities of specialized agencies and other bodies of the United Nations system and other intergovernmental organizations

At their twenty-sixth meeting, the Presiding Officers and the representatives of specialized agencies, other bodies within the United Nations system and other intergovernmental organizations in attendance recognized the value of having the latter organizations increase their participation in future meetings to enable them to keep abreast of activities in follow-up to the summits and world conferences of the United Nations and the development of indicators for measuring fulfilment of the relevant agreements.
