40. At the 12th meeting, on 11 December, the following statements were made.

41. With respect to decision 3/COP.2, the United States of America made a statement explaining why it could not support paragraph 3 of that decision. It stated that: (a) as a matter of principle, conference servicing costs should not be borne by the United Nations regular budget, but rather by the Parties to the Convention; (b) the United States Congress was considering withholding its proportionate share of conference servicing costs for all conventions funded from the United Nations regular budget; (c) the decision on the 1999 budget contained a provision (6/COP.2, para. 12) acceptable to the United States of America relating to future conferences, whose wording was similar to a provision adopted by the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change at its fourth session.

42. With respect to decision 4/COP.2, Germany made the following statement:

"On behalf of the German delegation I would like to say that we are particularly happy that the headquarters agreement could be signed in due course before the second session of the Conference of the Parties.

We are pleased to report that the fulfilment of the formal requirements on our side, which are needed to enable the Agreement to enter into force, will, most likely, be achieved by early 1999.

We are also delighted to state before the Second Conference of the Parties that, following the offer of the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany, the Agreement provides for the equal treatment of the Permanent Secretariat of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change and the Permanent Secretariat of the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification."

43. With respect to decision 7/COP.2, Haiti, on behalf of the Group of Latin American and Caribbean States (GRULAC), made the following statement:

"The GRULAC considers it very necessary for the medium-term strategy of the secretariat to be approved in order to allow the secretariat to fulfil its mandate in a straightforward and efficient manner."

44. Also with respect to decision 7/COP.2, Benin, speaking on behalf of the Group of 77 and China, stated that the Group understood that the compendium referred to in paragraph 2 of the decision would include document ICCD/COP(2)/6.

45. With respect to decision 9/COP.2, Austria, on behalf of the European Union and its member States, made the following statement:

"We appreciate the efforts undertaken by parties of the regional annexes in intensifying their cooperation in the implementation of the Convention. As we have heard, some regions have undertaken to facilitate their cooperation through the establishment of regional coordination units co-located with the UNEP regional office in Mexico and the African Development Bank in Abidjan. The COP has taken useful further steps to strengthen regional cooperation, in particular through this decision. However, it is our firm position that the facilitating role of the Executive Secretary must not lead to the creation of new formal Convention structures."

46. Also with respect to decision 9/COP.2, Haiti, on behalf of the Group of Latin American and Caribbean States (GRULAC), made the following statement:

"The GRULAC requests the secretariat to pursue and reinforce its actions in support of national, subregional and regional activities in Latin America and the Caribbean in the struggle against desertification and the effects of drought."

47. With respect to decision 19/COP.2, the following statement was made by Canada on behalf of the States members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development:

"... (W)e are naturally disappointed that it was not possible to adopt the MOU itself at this session. We were, as you know, fully content with the substance of the instrument developed for our consideration by the Secretariat and IFAD, both of which we would like to commend most sincerely for their efforts. Some of the language in the MOU in our opinion needs to be modified for purely technical reasons. The changes fall into three categories: First, all the references to 'agreement' and 'agree' should become 'MOU' and 'understand'; second, 'shall' should become 'will'; and third 'entry into force' should become 'entry into operation'. With these technical changes the MOU would be perfectly correct, both in its form and its substance. We would like the secretariat and IFAD, when continuing their consultations on the text of the MOU, as just decided by the Conference of the Parties, to take these points on board. We rest assured that even without the formal adoption of this MOU, the GM can continue to operate efficiently."

D. Decisions taken on the recommendation of the Committee on Science and Technology

48. At its 5th meeting, on 7 December, the Conference took the following decisions on the recommendation of the Committee on Science and Technology:

13/COP.2 Roster of independent experts
15/COP.2 Other bodies performing work similar to that envisaged for the Committee on Science and Technology
16/COP.2 Benchmarks and indicators
17/COP.2 Survey and evaluation of existing networks, institutions, agencies and bodies

49. At its 10th meeting, on 10 December, the Conference took the following decision on the recommendation of the Committee on Science and Technology:

14/COP.2 Traditional knowledge

50. At its 12th meeting, on 11 December, the Conference took the following decision on the recommendation of the Committee on Science and Technology:

12/COP.2 Work programme of the Committee on Science and Technology

51. In accordance with decision 12/COP.2, on the recommendation of the Bureau of the Committee on Science and Technology, the Conference decided at its 12th meeting, on 11 December, to appoint the following 10 experts to comprise an ad hoc group on traditional knowledge:

At its 12th plenary meeting, on 11 December, the Conference, having considered the report on credentials of the Bureau of the second session of the Conference (ICCD/COP(2)/13) and the recommendation contained therein, approved the report on credentials, as orally amended. It was subsequently ascertained by the secretariat that the report contained in ICCD/COP(2)/13 did not fully reflect the report of the Bureau in that 10 names had been inadvertently omitted during the processing of the document. Accordingly a revised document was issued (ICCD/COP(2)/13/Rev.1), adding the names of Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lesotho, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Mali, Mauritania, Mongolia and Spain to paragraph 6 of the report, in addition to those of Tunisia and the United Republic of Tanzania.

B. Date and venue of the third session of the Conference of the Parties

Annex I

SUMMARIES OF STATEMENTS MADE AT THE WELCOMING CEREMONY

1. At the first plenary meeting of the COP 2 on 30 November 1998, Mr. Hama Arba Diallo, Executive Secretary of the CCD secretariat, thanked Senegal for hosting the COP 2 and for playing a leading role in the combat against desertification at the regional, international as well as the national levels.

2. He recalled that the Convention does not provide solutions, but a new tool to improve life conditions in arid, semi-arid, and sub-humid areas while preserving natural resources. It offers an innovative instrument to break the circle of poverty and desertification, and to create new hope in affected populations in the framework of sustainable development. While land degradation, water scarcity and food insecurity still represent major constraints for affected countries, the numerous initiatives taken in the framework of the UNCCD allow for some optimism. International cooperation, as well as the prompt elaboration of national, subregional and regional action programmes needs to be further enhanced and the secretariat remains at the disposal of all Parties to facilitate this urgent process.

3. After recalling the 145 ratifications received to date, he illustrated the main activities undertaken in the affected regions. He then stressed that the COP 2 would start the discussion on the process of elaboration and implementation of action programmes at the national, subregional and regional levels, including on the role of national focal points, coordination mechanisms, stakeholders and affected populations at all levels. After two years from the entry into force of the CCD, many observers are now expecting to see it become reality in the field.

4. A message from the Secretary-General of the United Nations was conveyed to the Conference by Mr. Nitin Desai, Under-Secretary-General for Economic and Social Affairs. He stressed that this was the largest United Nations meeting ever held in Senegal, and that it was particularly appropriate to have it in Africa, which has played a leading role towards the creation of the Convention. He highlighted that the Convention has pre-eminently a development focus, and addresses the issue of poverty that affects over one billion people around the world, the importance of a participatory approach and of international partnership among affected countries, and countries that are in a position to provide assistance and support. The Convention contains in particular three elements which are fully in accordance with the principles of the Rio Summit: the link between environment and development, the call for strong partnership between developing and developed countries, and the importance of interrelations among different sectors and processes (poverty, climate change, etc.) in a unitarian framework. For these reasons, he was particularly satisfied to state the success of the CCD process, but recalled the importance of strengthening coordination and international cooperation.

5. H.E. Mr. Abdou Diouf, President of Senegal, welcomed all participants and thanked the Conference for choosing Senegal as the host country for its second session. He recalled how severely Senegal and the Sahel have been hit by desertification, and how closely this process is linked to poverty, migrations and underdevelopment at the global level. In Africa, the phenomenon is assuming particularly alarming dimensions.

6. He stressed the need to seek for adequate responses to the demand for better living conditions from affected populations. Traditional knowledge has provided good answers in the past, but is no longer sufficient given the growing complexity of the problem. He highlighted the importance of international awareness and support for affected countries. He recalled the United Nations role and engagement, as well as initiatives at the regional and national levels, such as the creation of the Permanent Inter-State Committee for Drought Control in the Sahel (CILSS) out of the tragedy of the years 1969-1974, and the Senegalese engagement in establishing structures and programmes to focus policy priorities towards addressing desertification. It is now necessary to move to an effective operational phase. In particular, three elements should be taken into account: the need to coordinate activities under the three global Conventions; the need for adequate financial resources, with particular regard to the formula for debt conversion against nature conservation; and the need to define the role and operational procedures of the Global Mechanism.

Annex II

SUMMARIES OF OPENING AND GENERAL STATEMENTS

1. Ambassador Franchetti Pardo, on behalf of the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Italy, Mr. Lamberto Dini, reported to the Conference on the results of the last meeting of the Bureau, and congratulated Senegal for the organization of the second session of the COP.

2. The Minister for the Environment and Protection of Nature of Senegal, Mr. Souty Touré, thanked the Conference for electing him President of the session and stressed the importance of the Convention in the Senegalese approach to development issues. Senegal has tackled desertification since the 1960s, but at the beginning of the twenty-first century the process of land degradation in all regions of the world raises increasing concern. The magnitude of the degradation of natural resources poses serious constraints on development perspectives and calls for a new approach, as contained in the Convention. The full partnership of all involved stakeholders at the local and international levels; the need for integrated planning that harmonizes sectoral policies; the enhancement of international cooperation - these are the constructive elements contained in the Convention, that make it possible to hope for a better future.

3. On behalf of the Group of 77 and China, the representative of Indonesia expressed hope for a fruitful discussion on concrete initiatives in affected countries, and encouraged all Parties to fully support the operationalization and implementation of the CCD. Regional coordination units and stronger international partnership should be enhanced. He expressed concern that developed countries lack enthusiasm in supporting affected countries in implementing the CCD, and wished for the Global Mechanism to start operating as soon as possible. The Global Environment Facility (GEF) should also develop new programmes focusing on mitigation of desertification effects.

4. On behalf of the European Union, the representative of Austria expressed the hope that the COP 2 offers the occasion for a fruitful dialogue on the implementation of the CCD. Europe believes in the importance of the Convention and of international cooperation, and will continue to support it in the post Lomé framework. He stressed the need to avoid duplications and to establish coordination tools such as the chef-de-file, as well as to enhance the bottom-up, participatory approach and synergies among the global conventions. He encouraged the COP 2 to shape the mandate of the CCD, especially taking into account the distinct role of the Global Mechanism. Also, he wished for the Committee on Science and Technology to develop a more focused agenda.

5. On behalf of the JUSSCANZ group, the representative of Canada welcomed the opening of the COP 2 and gave an assurance of the group's full collaboration in a constructive process.

6. On behalf of GRULAC, the representative of Ecuador highlighted the interest expressed by the GRULAC region in the CCD by recalling that more than 90 per cent of its members have already ratified the Convention. A regional action programme has been elaborated, while a regional coordination unit and a regional information network are already established. Furthermore, great interest is taken in the issues related to indicators and traditional knowledge, while concern was expressed at the unequal distribution of financial resources among regions. He also expressed the hope that GRULAC would host COP 3.

7. On behalf of the community of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) accredited to the COP 2, the representative of ENDA informed of the preparatory session held by the NGOs before the opening of the COP 2. The NGOs expressed appreciation of the initiative to have two half-days of NGO-government dialogue during the Conference, as a concrete sign of the countries' intention to turn into reality the partnership with civil society in the implementation of the CCD. They indicated that the sessions would be devoted to the role of civil society and of traditional knowledge as concrete tools in combating desertification, rather than a theoretical exercise. The NGOs expressed concern with the delay in launching the Global Mechanism, and highlighted the need to extend the GEF focal areas also to land degradation. They proposed the establishment of an NGO consultative committee at the GEF, as well as regular NGO meetings between COP sessions to be coordinated by the CCD secretariat.

8. As at the first session of the COP, the Ramsar Secretariat confirmed its intention to collaborate with the CCD secretariat to maintain and restore habitats that are essential to secure a sound resource base for people's development and well-being. Some of the most important wetlands are in the arid zone, where there may be thousands and possibly hundreds of thousands of wetlands of different sizes. Furthermore, Parties to the Ramsar Convention are also Parties to the CCD. A memorandum of understanding is being discussed among the two secretariats.

9. The representative of the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD) stated that cooperation between the CCD and the CBD has been formalized through a memorandum of understanding. Arid zones are of great importance for conservation of biodiversity as they host 35 per cent of the human population, which puts great pressure on natural resources. The memorandum of understanding provides not only the general framework for cooperation but also concrete initiatives to support the implementation of the two conventions, as well as joint scientific activities and information management. The Convention on Biological Diversity approaches ecosystems through four work programmes addressing biodiversity in forests, agriculture, international waters and oceans and coastal areas. In particular, the Conference of the Parties to the Convention, at its fourth session, established that ecosystems of arid and semi-arid zones, Mediterranean habitats, and savannahs will be at the core of the COP 5, to be held in Nairobi in the year 2000. A crucial aspect of cooperation among the two secretariats will be the possibility of new procedures to allow for more efficiency in the Parties' fulfilment of reporting obligations deriving from the conventions.

10. The Executive Secretary of the CCD highlighted the importance of collaboration among conventions and of further enhancing synergies.

11. The representative of the Arab Centre for the Study of Arid Zones and Dry Lands (ACSAD) stated that ACSAD is one of the specialized organizations working in the framework of the League of Arab States and is in charge of coordinating the implementation of the CCD. The most important measures taken include strengthening the scientific linkage between those concerned, enhancing research and elaboration and implementation of pilot projects. Priority is given to desertification control and to the possibility of applying techniques also to African countries. While solutions to the problems are possible, in many cases their implementation meets obstacles in the lack of sufficient financial resources and in some legislative, social and organizational factors.

12. The representative of the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) stated that phenomena like the increase of the mean surface temperature of the earth and El Niño are just examples that indicate the role WMO can play in supporting the implementation of the CCD through its programmes and in particular the following activities: promotion at the regional and global levels of the collection, analysis and free exchange of information and data on meteorological, climatological and hydrological situations and processes; capacity-building and training; and promotion of the implementation of the "climate agenda" with other organizations. Special attention should be paid to the establishment of a mechanism for cooperation between the CCD, the CBD and the FCCC as well with the WMO/UNEP Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change and to improving systematic meteorological and climatological data collection and exchange. Availability of adequate financial resources is fundamental.

13. The representative of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) recalled the interest and engagement of FAO in the combat against desertification which is closely related to the main mandate of FAO, namely, food security. In particular, FAO is engaged in two directions. Firstly, strengthening desertification-related activities within the organization's regular programme. Over 100 projects are currently being implemented in the drylands. Secondly, it has established cooperation agreements with the Italian Government, IFAD and UNEP. An agreement is also being finalized between the FAO and the CCD secretariat. Furthermore, the FAO is happy to contribute its long experience and collection of data to the CCD Parties.

14. The representative of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) stated that UNESCO is finalizing a memorandum of understanding with the CCD secretariat to enhance collaboration, particularly in the sectors of education, science and culture. Many of the current fields of activities of UNESCO have close links to desertification issues, for example its programme of training for African scientists, its network on biosphere reserves that includes some dryland areas, and its hydrological programme. Combating desertification is a multisectoral task that implies scientific as well as humanistic aspects.

15. The representative of the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) stated that UNEP has a long history of engagement in desertification issues. In particular, UNEP is leading a consortium to undertake a preliminary survey of networks and institutions relevant to the implementation of the CCD. As one of the implementing agencies of the GEF, UNEP is providing support for action programmes to combat dryland degradation at the subregional and regional levels, in particular in the GRULAC region and in the Russian Federation. It is engaged in identifying and promoting "best practices" and awareness-raising initiatives on the theme of land degradation. UNEP can further play a role in assessment and environmental reporting, gathering and exchange of scientific and technological information, facilitation of consultation processes, and the development of projects for GEF consideration.

16. The representative of the World Bank expressed his organization's concern with the problems of land degradation and land management because they are key issues in development perspectives. Desertification can only be tackled in the context of broader economic and social change. The World Bank believes that poverty can be tackled by taking into account local, regional and global environmental concerns. The World Bank invests over US$ 18 billion, of which US$ 1.8 billion goes to land degradation projects, and is collaborating with UNDP and UNEP as implementing agencies of the GEF to mobilize and channel financial resources within the GEF focal areas. Forty per cent of the World Bank projects are in Sub-Saharan Africa. It plans to enhance projects aiming at dryland management and at synergies and collaboration among agencies and institutions.

PRESIDENT'S SUMMARY OF STATEMENTS MADE DURING THE SPECIAL SEGMENT

1. Over a period of two days, the participants in the high-level segment outlined the contributions made by their countries and organizations towards the effective implementation of the Convention to Combat Desertification. The discussions were enhanced by the presence of a large number of ministers, senior governmental officials, representatives of specialized agencies and institutions in the United Nations system, interregional and regional organizations and other bodies.

2. The participants welcomed the efforts made by the secretariat to make the Convention a universal instrument and the actions undertaken to implement it.

3. Many delegations from the worst-affected regions described the progress made in their programmes of action at the national, subregional and regional levels. They cited the principal difficulties hampering the implementation of the Convention in those regions and appealed for the strengthening of cooperation with their principal development partners.

4. The participants also raised a number of issues which should be highlighted:

- The delay in the establishment of the Global Mechanism and the need to make it operational as rapidly as possible.
- Efforts to take greater account of the requirements for funding of desertification control activities by the Global Environment Facility.
- The lack of a body to monitor the implementation of the Convention. However, the participants welcomed the informal exchange held on national programmes of action, a forum which helped to clarify the state of progress in the implementation of the Convention.
- It was also suggested that provision should be made for a protocol for the implementation of the Convention containing quantifiable commitments to be submitted to the next session of the Conference of the Parties. This proposal was endorsed by a number of delegations.
- To take steps to make the year 2000 the starting point for the decade to combat desertification.

5. The States parties were also addressed by the President of the National Assembly of Senegal, who introduced to them the declaration adopted by the round table of parliamentarians concerning the implementation of the Convention to Combat Desertification. The Conference took note of the declaration with satisfaction.

Annex V

DECLARATION BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENTS

Regarding the process of implementation of the United Nations
Convention to Combat Desertification

I. We, the Parliamentarians invited to meet in Dakar, Senegal, on 7 December 1998 by the Convention secretariat, the National Assembly of Senegal and the Inter-Parliamentary Union in the context of the second session of the Conference of the Parties to the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification in those Countries Experiencing Serious Drought and/or Desertification, particularly in Africa, declare that:

1. We are deeply alarmed by the impact of desertification which affects 3,600 million hectares, representing 70 per cent of the potential productive land in arid zones. The rapidity of this progression means that there is a loss of 6 million hectares annually. We are conscious of the gravity of the situation in different regions of the world as in Africa, a continent where deserts or arid zones constitute two thirds of the total land area and 73 per cent of the arid land is already seriously or moderately degraded; in Asia where around 1,400 million hectares are affected by desertification, which corresponds to 71 per cent of the arid land of the continent which is moderately or severely degraded; in Latin America, where nearly three quarters of the arid land is moderately or severely degraded and the Mediterranean, where almost two thirds of the arid land is severely degraded; the countries of Central and Eastern Europe, where 40 per cent to 80 per cent of the arid land is severely degraded;

2. It is intolerable that at the beginning of the twenty-first century nearly 1 billion men, women and children, are permanently threatened by desertification; that hundreds of millions of people suffer from a chronic shortage of basic necessities such as water; and that millions of "environmental refugees" are forced to abandon their native land to seek relief elsewhere;

3. We share fully the founding premise of the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification, according to which sustainable development cannot be attained unless:

- (i) It is oriented towards people in protecting the interests of the affected populations and eradicates poverty;
- (ii) It involves these populations fully in the decision-making process, in measures for the protection of the environment and in the struggle against desertification;
- (iii) It includes the dimension of the fight against poverty.

4. We believe that desertification, poverty, famine, social and political disturbances, wars, migration and the displacement of populations, which have led many times to new and most serious degradation of the natural environment, are all interconnected;

5. We take note of the serious budgetary constraints of the poorest affected countries, which still have to devote a considerable proportion of their scant financial resources to debt repayment and servicing.

II. Affirming our total commitment, as Parliamentarians, to contribute fully to the implementation of the Convention, in countries that are Parties to the Convention:

6. We support where necessary the adoption or the strengthening of legislation concerning the fight against desertification and the preservation of the ecosystems in all the affected countries;

7. We subscribe to the promotion of policies and the strengthening of appropriate institutional frameworks for the favourable development of cooperation among the countries affected by desertification and their partners in development;

8. We support the strengthening of social, education and health policies through public awareness campaigns about the negative effects of desertification as well as the participation of youth and women in the development programmes;

9. We subscribe to the integration of the main provisions of the Convention in national policies for sustainable development;

10. We subscribe to the initiative that the year 2000 be the starting point of the decade to combat desertification;

11. We support fully the initiatives of agencies, donor countries and civil society to mobilize financial assistance for the promotion of sustainable development in poorest countries with fragile ecosystems, through the Convention's Global Mechanism.

III. We undertake to promote in our respective Parliaments:

12. The follow-up to implementation of the Convention, making full use of the mechanisms available in our Parliaments to monitor government action and thus ensure that the Convention is fully implemented;

13. The formulation of national legislation and its harmonization with the provisions of the Convention;

14. The inclusion of the combat against desertification in the overall agendas of our national Governments so as to make the combat a priority matter for our countries and also our regional and subregional organizations;

15. The formulation of national action programmes covering water management and applied agricultural research in the poorest countries affected by desertification and others as necessary, and their financing in accordance with the provisions of the Convention;

16. The adoption of practical measures to include environmental education, in particular the fight against desertification, in school curricula.

IV. We are deeply convinced of the need to undertake far-reaching action with the main priorities:

17. To promote forms of regional and subregional cooperation, favourable to improving relations between our relevant intergovernmental organizations;

18. To set up, at the local level, action programmes based on the reforestation and rehabilitation of land which involves all stakeholders in the field, in particular the education system and representatives of civil society, especially youth and women's associations;

19. To define action programmes involving international organizations, including United Nations agencies, donors, national institutions, elected representatives, NGOs, and the local population, in particular resource users, both men and women, to promote the objectives of the Convention;

20. As appropriate in the case of poorest affected countries to expand debt-for-nature swaps for land rehabilitation and reforestation.

V. We Parliamentarians address an urgent appeal:

21. To all relevant participants in civil society, such as financial institutions, personalities in the fields of finance, commerce, sport, the media and the arts, to support the mobilization of financial resources to support the fight against desertification which is under way in the developing countries most seriously affected by desertification and drought;

22. To academic institutions, the scientific community and research centres for their support in the various tasks of implementing the Convention in affected countries with particular regard to the needs of developing countries;

23. To the Inter-Parliamentary Union to give the widest publicity possible to this Declaration and, notably that it be transmitted to all national parliaments for their attention;

24. To the secretariat of the United Nations Convention to Combat Desertification to continue the actions taken up to this time to support the countries affected by desertification, and to take all necessary measures to make the present declaration universally known;

25. To the secretariats of the CCD and the Inter-Parliamentary Union to take follow-up action on the present meeting and organize similar meetings in conjunction with future conferences of the Parties.

Annex VI

SUMMARIES OF STATEMENTS MADE AT THE CLOSING CEREMONY

CCD secretariat

1. The Executive Secretary of the CCD secretariat thanked the host country for the organization of the Conference and confirmed the full commitment of the secretariat to accomplish its mandate and assist countries in the implementation of the Convention. He called for an increased mobilization of the international community to assist affected countries in the implementation of programmes that allow reaching priority goals such as food security, rural development, efficient water management, etc. He recalled the full involvement of non-governmental organizations, of the media and of Parliamentarians in supporting the Convention.

Indonesia

2. Partnership is the core element of the Convention negotiations. There is high expectation that the Global Mechanism will be able to fully operate in its main functions by COP 3, and it will be the countries' responsibility to enhance the necessary mobilization of funds and transfer of technology.

Austria

3. Dialogue has been a central element of these negotiations, both among delegations, in particular on the national action programme process, and between delegations and non-governmental organizations, and it represents the basis for real progress towards concrete results in affected countries at the national and local levels. The European Union confirms its commitment to support affected countries, and welcomes the initiative to launch the discussion on Annex V. Europe stresses the need to stick to the rules set by the text of the Convention as the basis for a cooperative atmosphere among countries, and encourages all countries to elaborate policies and priorities on the basis of the spirit of the CCD. As many initiatives are being implemented at the international level to combat desertification by a number of different actors, the European Union stresses the need to harmonize them and enhance synergies.

Armenia

4. Eastern Europe welcomes the launching of the process of elaboration of Annex V.

Canada

6. The JUSSCANZ countries express their concern that more work remains to be done, in particular concerning the medium-term strategy of the CCD secretariat, and welcomes the growing interest in the Convention. In particular, it welcomes a new member country and expects others to join soon.

Haiti

7. The Convention represents a fundamental tool of hope for GRULAC countries, which place hope in the full support of the international community for the prompt implementation of the CCD.

Islamic Republic of Iran

8. The speaker thanked the Senegalese Government and the Conference on behalf of the Asian Group.

Prime Minister of Senegal

9. The Prime Minister of Senegal, speaking on behalf of the President of Senegal, greeted the participants and highlighted the significance of holding the COP 2 in Africa, and in particular in Senegal, as a sign of the solidarity of the international community towards the continent which is most severely affected by drought and desertification. Desertification entails social and economic as well as environmental imbalances, and represents one of the major challenges ahead of the international community for which an adequate response needs to be mobilized.
