on products of export interest to the developing countries

Report by the UNCTAD secretariat

Corrigendum

During the fourth session of the Committee on Manufactures a number of delegations drew attention to certain sections of the secretariat report (TD/B/C.2/83) which, they stated, needed to be up-dated and/or corrected. These delegations offered to provide information to up-date and/or correct the relevant sections of the UNCTAD report.

On the basis of submissions and/or notifications, the following corrections should be made in the relevant portions of the document

Paragraph 69, page 19: the text of this paragraph should be replaced by the following:

"The United Kingdom maintains restrictions on lethal weapons and their ammunition, certain radio-active substances and on certain gold products. Apart from these, and a large number of cotton textile items restricted under the LTA, restrictions are maintained on only 13 items, of which 8 are processed agricultural products and 5 are jute products".

"Broadly speaking, quotas are normally allocated among importers in proportion to their past trade in the particular products in a representative or base period. Applications for licences from importers who have not previously held them are, where circumstances permit, considered on their merits. In some cases, quotas are administered by the exporting countries concerned, e.g. cotton textiles 'country' quotas".
