Volume 68

The United Nations Department of Global Communications is dedicated to communicating the ideals and work of the United Nations to the world; to interacting and partnering with diverse audiences; and to building support for peace, development and human rights for all. Based on official documents, although not itself an official record, the Yearbook of the United Nations stands as the definitive reference work on the Organization and an indispensable tool for anyone seeking information on the UN system.

The Yearbook of the United Nations is produced by the Yearbook Unit of the Publications and Editorial Section in the Outreach Division of the Department of Global Communications.

Foreword

The Yearbook of the United Nations is the authoritative reference work on the annual activities and concerns of the world's leading instrument of common progress. Through the documents, resolutions and decisions that represent the work of the Organization, the Yearbook provides policymakers, academics, historians and journalists with a unique narrative of United Nations deliberation, action and achievement. As with other Yearbooks issued since the founding of the Organization in 1945, the present volume, covering the year 2014, offers critical information for people today and important lessons for future generations about vital matters of peace and security, sustainable development, human rights and international law. I hope that this account of our work, in our words, will contribute to our shared pursuit of the world we want.

About the 2014 edition of the Yearbook

This sixty-eighth volume of the Yearbook of the United Nations continues the tradition of providing the most comprehensive coverage available of the annual activities and concerns of the United Nations.

The present volume recounts the work of the United Nations in dealing with recurring conflicts with severe humanitarian consequences in the Middle East, including in the Syrian Arab Republic, where more than 12 million people were in need of basic food, clothing and shelter. The volume also highlights the Organization's rapid response to an escalatory global health emergency: the Ebola virus disease outbreak across West Africa. It documents the Organization's coordination of policy discussions to finalize a global sustainable development agenda, with the security of future generations as the core concern; and its efforts to rebuild societies emerging from conflict while keeping the fragile peace in other places. It further details the entry into force of the landmark Arms Trade Treaty, the missile downing of a passenger airliner in the midst of a geopolitical crisis in eastern Ukraine, and securing international human rights and humanitarian law and prosecuting abusers.

Readers can locate information by using the Table of contents, the Subject index, the Index of resolutions and decisions and the Index of Security Council presidential statements. The volume also features three appendices: Appendix I comprises a roster of Member States; Appendix II presents the structure of the principal organs of the United Nations in 2014; and Appendix III provides the agenda for each session of the principal organs in 2014.

Structure and scope of articles

The Yearbook is subject-oriented and divided into five parts covering political and security matters; human rights issues; economic and social questions; legal issues; and institutional, administrative and budgetary matters. Chapters summarize pertinent UN activities, including those of intergovernmental and expert bodies, as well as major reports and, in selected cases, the views of States in written communications.

Activities of UN bodies. The Yearbook places the major activities of the principal organs of the United Nations and, on a selective basis, those of their subsidiary bodies in a narrative context of consideration, deliberation and action. Substantive action by the Security Council is analysed and brief reviews of the Council's deliberations are given, particularly in cases where an issue was taken up but no resolution was adopted. The texts of all resolutions and decisions of a substantive nature adopted in 2014 by the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council are reproduced or summarized under the relevant topic. Such texts are preceded by procedural details giving the date of adoption, meeting number and vote totals (in favour–against–abstaining), if any, and an indication of their approval by a sessional or subsidiary body prior to final adoption. The texts are followed by details of any recorded or roll-call vote.

Major reports. Most reports of the Secretary-General in 2014, along with those of main United Nations committees, regional and functional commissions, and Special Rapporteurs, as well as selected reports from other UN sources, such as seminars and expert and working groups, are summarized.

Views of States. Written communications sent to the United Nations by Member States and circulated as documents of the principal organs have been summarized, in selected cases, under the relevant topics.

Multilateral treaties. Information on signatories and parties to multilateral treaties and conventions has been taken from the series Multilateral Treaties Deposited with the Secretary-General (ST/LEG/SER/E) (see treaties.un.org).

Terminology

Formal titles of bodies, organizational units, conventions, declarations and officials are normally given in full on first mention in each main section. They are also used in resolution/decision texts, as well as in the Subject index under the key word of the title. Short titles, abbreviations or acronyms are used in subsequent references in the main text.

The Yearbook online

All published volumes of the Yearbook of the United Nations—from the 1946–47 edition onwards—can be accessed and read in full on the Yearbook website (unyearbook.un.org). The site’s multi-option search engine enables readers to quickly find specific information in an individual volume, across a range of volumes or throughout the entire Yearbook collection. Visitors to the website can download PDFs of Yearbook pages and chapters for offline use. Additional resources include the Yearbook Pre-press and the Yearbook Express, as well as links to the Yearbook Twitter account, various United Nations databases and other selected public information products.

Pre-press. The Yearbook Pre-press (unyearbook.un.org/pre-press) offers draft Yearbook chapters or detailed, hyperlinked chapter outlines from volumes currently in production. Pre-press material is made available as a service to readers and researchers and reflects the fact that the Yearbook Unit works simultaneously on researching, writing, editing, copy-editing and finalizing multiple volumes of the Yearbook. The Pre-press is updated on a regular basis. Pre-press chapters do not represent the final edited and proofread versions that will appear in published form, nor do Pre-press chapter outlines represent the final structure and content or document scope of the chapter in question. Nonetheless, they indicate the key topics and relevant UN documentation that will be covered in the corresponding Yearbook chapter.

Express. The Yearbook Express (unyearbook.un.org/express) features the chapter introductions of recently published Yearbooks, along with the report of the Secretary-General on the work of the Organization in those years, in all six United Nations official languages—Arabic, Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. To provide speakers of those languages with such summary Yearbook content, the Yearbook Unit works with teams of volunteer translators. Only the annual report of the Secretary-General represents a United Nations official translation.

Social media. The Yearbook of the United Nations can be also found on Twitter (twitter.com/UN-Yearbook), where @UNYearbook addresses current United Nations activities and concerns in their historical perspective, linking readers to relevant information in the Yearbook collection.

Explanatory note on documents

- A/- refers to documents of the General Assembly, numbered in separate series by session. Thus, A/69/- refers to documents issued for consideration at the sixty-ninth session, beginning with A/69/1. Documents of special and emergency special sessions are identified as A/S and A/ES-, followed by the session number.
- A/C.- refers to documents of the Assembly's Main Committees. For example, A/C.1/- identifies documents of the First Committee, A/C.6/- documents of the Sixth Committee. A/BUR/- refers to documents of the General Committee. A/AC.- documents are those of the Assembly's ad hoc bodies and A/CN.- those of its commissions. For example, A/AC.105/- identifies documents of the Assembly's Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space, A/CN.4/- those of its International Law Commission. Assembly resolutions and decisions since the thirty-first (1976) session have been identified by two Arabic numerals: the first indicates the session of adoption, the second the sequential number in the series. Resolutions are numbered consecutively from 1 at each session. Decisions since the fifty-seventh (2002) session are numbered consecutively from 401 for those concerned with elections and appointments and from 501 for all other decisions. Decisions of special and emergency special sessions are numbered consecutively from 11 for those concerned with elections and appointments and from 21 for all other decisions.
- E/- refers to documents of the Economic and Social Council, numbered in separate series by year. Thus, E/2014/- refers to documents issued for consideration by the Council at its 2014 sessions, beginning with E/2014/1. E/AC.-, E/C.- and E/CN.-, followed by identifying numbers, refer to documents of the Council's subsidiary ad hoc bodies, committees and commissions. For example, E/CN.5/- refers to documents of the Council's Commission for Social Development, E/C.2/- to documents of its Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations. E/ICEF/- documents are those of the United Nations Children's Fund. Symbols for the Council's resolutions and decisions since 1978 consist of two Arabic numerals: the first indicates the year of adoption and the second the sequential number in the series. There are two series: one for resolutions, beginning with 1 (e.g. resolution 2014/1), and one for decisions, beginning with 201 (e.g. decision 2014/201 A).
- S/- refers to documents of the Security Council. Its resolutions are identified by consecutive numbers followed by the year of adoption in parentheses, beginning with resolution 1(1946).

- ST/-, followed by symbols representing the issuing department or office, refers to documents of the United Nations Secretariat.

Documents of certain bodies bear special symbols, including the following:

- CD/- Conference on Disarmament
- CERD/- Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination
- DC/- Disarmament Commission
- DP/- United Nations Development Programme
- HSP/- United Nations Human Settlements Programme
- ITC/- International Trade Centre
- TD/- United Nations Conference on Trade and Development
- UNEP/- United Nations Environment Programme

Many documents of the regional commissions bear special symbols, which are sometimes preceded by the following:

- E/ECA/- Economic Commission for Africa
- E/ECE/- Economic Commission for Europe
- E/ECLAC/- Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean
- E/ESCAP/- Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific
- E/ESCWA/- Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia

Various other document symbols include the following:

- L.- refers to documents of limited distribution, such as draft resolutions.
- CONF.- refers to conference documents.
- INF.- refers to general information documents.
- SR.- refers to summary records and is followed by a meeting number.
- PV.- refers to verbatim records and is followed by a meeting number.

United Nations sales publications each carry a sales number with the following components separated by periods: a capital letter indicating the language(s) of the publication; two Arabic numerals indicating the year; a Roman numeral indicating the subject category; a capital letter indicating a subdivision of the category, if any; and an Arabic numeral indicating the number of the publication within the category. Examples: E.14.II.D.7; E.14.XX.1.

Report of the Secretary-General on the work of the Organization

Report of the Secretary-General on the work of the Organization

Following is the Secretary-General's report on the work of the Organization [A/69/1], dated 21 July 2014, submitted to the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly. The Assembly took note of it on 7 October 2014 (decision 69/506).

Chapter I Introduction

1. The eyes of the world are rightly fixed on 2015, when we hope to conclude several crucial agreements that will have a major impact on the life of every person on this planet. Success in 2015 requires hard work now. The past 12 months have seen specific progress towards those agreements on several fronts, from the special event of the General Assembly to follow up efforts made towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals, convened in September 2013, to the conclusion of the work of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals in July. Member States have made headway on the new global sustainable development agenda, building on the successes and lessons of the Millennium Development Goals while acknowledging the many ways in which the world has changed in the 15 years since the Goals were articulated. They have also made a concerted push towards achieving the Goals, acutely aware that fewer than 500 days remain before the date set for their achievement. While we can take satisfaction that millions of people have been lifted out of extreme poverty, too many more continue to suffer from privation, insecurity and inequality. This is unacceptable in a world in which opportunities and wealth abound and in which technology has empowered us and shrunk the distances between us. Development is not only about economic growth — it is also about justice. I am encouraged that the discussions on a post-2015 development agenda have taken this sense of common future to heart.

2. There has also been increased recognition that time is running out to take meaningful action on climate change. The scientific evidence that global warming has been caused by human influence is unequivocal. Meanwhile, emissions have continued to rise, and with them the risks of exceeding an increase of 2°C in global mean temperature that is regarded as the threshold beyond which dangerous climate change will occur. It is clear that the time to act is now. Our generation is the first to feel the impact of climate change and the last that will be in a position to do anything about it. I saw the effects first-hand when I visited Greenland and I will continue to press world leaders to do everything that they can in this regard. The climate summit that I am convening on 23 September is intended to mobilize political will at the highest levels and specific action on the ground. I encourage all involved to make the most of this opportunity.

3. While seeking to build those long-term foundations for human well-being, we have also faced several grave and immediate challenges to peace and security and the rule of law. The dramatic deterioration of the situation in the Gaza Strip had a horrifying impact on civilians. I travelled to the region, visiting eight countries, with the demand for an immediate humanitarian ceasefire that would, in turn, pave the way for a durable ceasefire and the beginning of comprehensive negotiations. The crisis in the Syrian Arab Republic has entered its fourth year and produced the worst exodus of refugees since the Rwandan genocide, in addition to the horrifying spectacle of chemical weapons attacks. Political efforts to end the crisis have produced no results, even in the face of the devastating humanitarian and economic consequences for the region. In South Sudan, the fragile achievements of a new nation were destroyed when conflict erupted in December 2013, claiming thousands of lives and leaving millions in need of humanitarian assistance. Similar unravelling in the Central African Republic and Mali has affected the lives of millions. Meanwhile, events in Ukraine have triggered debates about State sovereignty and the right to self-determination. The downing of a civilian airliner, killing 298 innocent civilian passengers, underscored how localized conflicts can swiftly generate tragic consequences that are felt far beyond the region. The events in Ukraine have also raised questions about Member State agreements vis-à-vis nuclear weapons and, in general, exacerbated differences of view among Member States about the promotion and maintenance of international peace. The latter dynamic has in turn affected the ability of the United Nations to address global crises. Geopolitical tensions have also played out in maritime and cyber disputes, reminding us that our increasing interdependence comes with increased complexity and that early and peaceful resolution of disputes is more important than ever. I have initiated a review to take stock of evolving expectations of United Nations peace operations and how we can work towards a shared view of the way forward.

4. More encouragingly, we have applied new approaches and tools to the situation in the eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, where combined political and military efforts have succeeded in disbanding the main militia that had long terrorized the local population. The closure of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone marked the successful conclusion of years of sustained effort by the United Nations in support of that country's recovery from decades of strife.

5. The year 2014 marks the twentieth anniversary of the genocide in Rwanda. I was privileged to visit Kigali to highlight the country's progress since that tragedy. I also paid a visit to the Auschwitz-Birkenau German Nazi concentration and extermination camp. To reflect on human beings' potential for unthinkable brutality is to be reminded of how vigilant we must remain. Today, the agony of the people in the Central African Republic, South Sudan and the Syrian Arab Republic, and identity-driven discrimination and violence elsewhere, represent a test of the Organization's ability to use the full breadth of its mandates to protect the people whom it is meant to serve — and of Member States' willingness to fulfil their responsibilities. This lies at the heart of my "Rights up front" initiative, launched in November 2013, which offers a new lens through which the Organization will examine threats of serious violations of international human rights and humanitarian law and respond by taking early civilian action, thereby averting impending catastrophes. We will be vigilant in identifying emerging risks, speak out publicly, inform national authorities or appropriate United Nations organs and regional organizations of violations, and engage in discussions with Member States on ways in which they can pursue improvements.

6. Human-caused and natural disasters combined to make the past year one of the most challenging in recent memory for humanitarian assistance. Natural disasters took a devastating toll, from Typhoon Haiyan to the floods in the Balkans, with the poor and vulnerable paying a disproportionate price. In many conflict settings, the evolving security environment has presented greater challenges to the Organization's ability to deliver. In the Syrian Arab Republic, we have seen an unconscionable politicization of humanitarian aid. Access to hundreds of thousands of desperate people continues to be blocked, starvation is being used as a weapon of war and medicines are being deliberately removed from aid convoys.

7. We have continued to accord priority to women's economic empowerment, leadership and participation in decision-making and to efforts to combat violence against women and girls. The inspirational efforts of Malala Yousafzai and shocking kidnappings of schoolgirls in northern Nigeria by the terrorist group Boko Haram have brought home the importance of education for girls and the distance that we still have to travel in many parts of the world to ensure that women and girls participate as equals in society. Humankind will not enjoy the peace and prosperity that it seeks as long as half the population faces violence and discrimination and mindsets that see women and girls as second-class citizens.

8. Lastly, closer to home, I have continued in my efforts to adapt the Organization to the needs and realities of our times. The General Assembly approved my proposal for a managed mobility framework, which will help to deliver United Nations mandates by building a workforce that is dynamic, adaptable and mobile. The International Public Sector Accounting Standards will be fully implemented in the financial year 2014, while Umoja, the new enterprise resource planning system, one of the other main pillars of internal strengthening, is now being used by all peacekeeping operations and will be fully rolled out in 12 months' time.

Chapter II

The work of the Organization

A. Promotion of sustained economic growth and sustainable development

1. Accelerating progress on the Millennium Development Goals

9. The 2015 deadline for achieving the Millennium Development Goals is swiftly approaching. The final picture is increasingly clear. Overall, substantial progress has been made in meeting many of the targets. Both the number of people living in extreme poverty and the proportion of people without sustainable access to improved water sources have been halved. The proportion of urban slum dwellers has declined. Remarkable progress has been made in combating malaria and tuberculosis. There have been notable improvements in primary education. Several other important targets are also likely to be met by 2015, assuming continued commitment by Governments and other stakeholders. Progress in many areas is, however, far from sufficient. Much remains to be done to secure the well-being, dignity and rights of those still on the margins, in addition to those of future generations. Considerable effort will be needed to fully meet target 1.C and improve nutrition. The world is still failing to renew the promise of survival for its children, while too many women are dying in childbirth when we have the means to save them. More than 2.5 billion people continue to lack improved sanitation facilities. Our natural resource base is in serious decline, with continuing losses of forests, species and fish stocks.

10. Some progress has been made on gender equality and women's empowerment. In 2013, more women were elected to legislatures than ever before, with women now holding 21.8 per cent of parliamentary seats worldwide. For the first time, the Commission on the Status of Women comprehensively assessed progress with regard to each Goal, identified structural factors that have held back achievement of the Goals on the part of women and girls, and called for a transformative and comprehensive approach for gender equality. Gender-based violence remains a scourge that contravenes the rights of women and girls and undermines development. It is an affront to our common humanity.

11. Progress towards the Goals remains uneven among and within countries, especially where violence is reversing gains made. Poverty rates remain high in sub-Saharan Africa. Children from poor or rural households are more likely to be out of school than their rich or urban counterparts. There are wide gaps in knowledge about and access to medicines for HIV and its prevention in sub-Saharan Africa, which has been hardest hit by the epidemic. Many least developed countries lag behind and will meet none of the global targets. At the high-level meeting of the General Assembly on the realization of the Millennium Development Goals and other internationally agreed development goals for persons with disabilities: the way forward, a disability-inclusive development agenda towards 2015 and beyond, in September 2013, participants highlighted the urgent need to address disability as a cross-cutting development issue and called for an inclusive approach in our global agenda-setting.

12. On a more positive note, notwithstanding the fiscal constraints stemming from weak economic performance in many donor countries and after two years of falling volumes, official development assistance rose by 6 per cent to a record high of $134.8 billion in 2013. That amount was, however, equivalent to only 0.3 per cent of the gross national income of donor members of the Development Assistance Committee of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, a small improvement from 2012 towards the United Nations target of 0.7 per cent of gross national income, which was met by only five countries.

13. The risk of disasters continues to increase, threatening economic growth and hampering efforts to reduce poverty. The United Nations has taken steps to strengthen partnerships with the private sector and to ensure that investment decisions reduce risk. Accelerated action is needed, however, for the remaining term of the Hyogo Framework for Action 2005–2015: Building the Resilience of Nations and Communities to Disasters and for post-2015 disaster risk reduction work. The United Nations Plan of Action on Disaster Risk Reduction for Resilience is key. Global, regional and thematic multi-stakeholder consultations have been convened in preparation for the Third World Conference on Disaster Risk Reduction, to be held in Japan in March 2015.

14. Preparations are under way for the third International Conference on Small Island Developing States, which, in conjunction with the International Year of Small Island Developing States, will provide a unique opportunity for global leaders to inject political momentum and commit themselves to taking tangible action to tackle the specific structural challenges of this vulnerable and geographically disadvantaged group of Member States by recognizing and launching genuine and durable multi-stakeholder partnerships. Time is running out to take the action necessary to keep the rise in global temperature below the agreed threshold of 2°C, however. Progress has also been made in preparations for the second United Nations Conference on Landlocked Developing Countries.

2. Post-2015 development agenda

15. In the past 12 months, significant progress has been made in shaping a transformative universal agenda to harmonize peoples' ambitions and the planet's needs, while embarking on a more sustainable development path. This was a key message of my report entitled "A life of dignity for all: accelerating progress towards the Millennium Development Goals and advancing the United Nations development agenda beyond 2015" (A/68/202 & Corr.1), which I presented to Member States in September 2013. The special event of the President of the General Assembly to follow up efforts made towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals showed the determination of Member States to free the world from poverty, inequality and hunger and to address, in an integrated way, the economic, social and environmental dimensions of sustainable development. Member States agreed that the agenda should promote peace and security, democratic governance, the rule of law, gender equality and human rights for all. At the heart of this agenda will be a concise set of ambitious goals with the overarching objective of eradicating poverty and with sustainable development at their core, universal in nature and applicable to all countries, taking into consideration their various contexts and levels of development.

16. The work of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals, supported by the United Nations system, has galvanized enthusiasm, ambition and energy, including through extensive outreach to key stakeholders. The Open Working Group has proposed a set of sustainable development goals that show the strong ownership of Member States and their commitment and ambition to working towards a global vision, not only of ending poverty in all its forms, but also of ensuring equitable distribution of development gains and tackling common challenges affecting all people and our planet.

17. By September 2014, the Intergovernmental Committee of Experts on Sustainable Development Financing will have delivered options to facilitate the mobilization and use of resources in achieving sustainable development objectives. The outcome of the events organized by the President of the General Assembly, including his high-level stocktaking event on the post-2015 development agenda, will also be available as input to the process.

18. Intergovernmental negotiations will lead to the adoption of the post-2015 development agenda at a high-level summit in September 2015. Before the end of 2014, I will bring all input together in a synthesis report. It will include the output of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals, the Intergovernmental Committee of Experts on Sustainable Development Financing and the structured dialogues on technology, in addition to the wider input facilitated by the United Nations, including the second phase of national and global consultations, the “My World” consultations and the regional dialogues on accountability. Expectations for the summit include a set of action-oriented and universal sustainable development goals, and both a renewed global partnership for development and an inclusive accountability framework for the post-2015 development agenda. Those expectations need to be backed by the broadest and highest-level engagement, including by civil society, the private sector, parliamentarians and the scientific and academic community, to ensure strong impact and high visibility. It will therefore be critical to ensure that we have an effective United Nations development system, which is fit for purpose when it comes to supporting the implementation of this agenda, while leading other constituencies to likewise engage with this important issue.

19. The second meeting of the high-level political forum on sustainable development, in July 2014, has charted the way towards an ambitious and universal post-2015 development agenda. It has given more clarity to the implications of a universal agenda in a context of varied regional priorities, all grounded in the scientific findings of the Prototype Global Sustainable Development Report. We must continue to shape the forum so that it delivers its mandate to review sustainable development goals, ensuring coordination and coherence of sustainable development after 2015.

20. Through its high-level Development Cooperation Forum, the Economic and Social Council has generated policy messages and recommendations on the critical role of development cooperation in supporting the implementation of a post-2015 development agenda. The Forum has also called for a robust global monitoring and accountability framework for development cooperation commitments engaging all actors.

21. I am confident that a renewed global partnership and clearer and fairer rules for the global economy will emerge from the process launched at the International Conference on Financing for Development, the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development track on means of implementation and the work of the Development Cooperation Forum. The third International Conference on Financing for Development, to be held in Addis Ababa in July 2015, should make an important contribution to and support the implementation of the post-2015 development agenda.

22. The new development agenda must mitigate the risks of future crises such as those that we have witnessed in the fields of energy, finance, food and climate. That vision can, however, be delivered only if ambition is matched with equally strong commitment to reframing development models and unblocking the wide range of resources needed to achieve sustainable development objectives. Capable implementation by effective institutions anchored in the rule of law and accountability by all will be essential.

3. Need for action on climate change

23. Climate change is one of the greatest threats to a sustainable future. Without urgent action, the consequences will be highly dangerous and perhaps irreversible. Poverty eradication, sustainable development and efforts to combat climate change are mutually reinforcing goals that can provide prosperity and security for current and future generations.

24. The fifth assessment report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change provides a compelling case for tackling climate change through substantial and sustained reductions of greenhouse-gas emissions. It is concluded therein that atmospheric concentrations of carbon dioxide, among other gases, have increased to unprecedented levels in human history. The Panel has assessed, with 95 to 100 per cent certainty, that human activities are the dominant cause of observed warming. Projected losses from climate change range from 0.2 to 2.0 per cent of global annual income, with a rise in temperature of 2°C. We are likely to exceed this range. Climate and social risks will interact and amplify each other to increase overall adverse impacts further. In addition to the tremendous savings and opportunities for economic growth, however, climate action can foster decent jobs, equality and access to sustainable energy, help to build sustainable cities and enhance the health of people and the planet.

25. World leaders and Governments have never been more aware of the destructive effects of climate change. They are also aware of the existence of affordable and scalable climate solutions that can lead to cleaner and more resilient economies. I am hosting a climate summit on 23 September to provide leaders with a platform to champion an ambitious vision and transformative action. In the lead-up, the Abu Dhabi Ascent, held in May 2014, brought together leaders from Governments, the business sector and civil society to explore new approaches to expanding action to combat climate change. The summit will give leaders an opportunity to demonstrate their political will for a global climate agreement in 2015 and to catalyse action on the ground to reduce emissions and strengthen resilience to climate change. I call upon leaders to come to New York on 23 September to make bold announcements of the significant steps that they are willing to take.

B. Maintenance of international peace and security

26. The past 12 months have witnessed several events on the international peace and security stage that are cause for deep concern. The conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic has led to well in excess of 150,000 deaths and left more than 680,000 people injured. A United Nations investigation team concluded that chemical weapons had been used in a suburb of Damascus. Events in Ukraine have raised fears of a dangerous escalation and a return to the polarized world of the past. The best efforts of the international community have failed to prevent loss of life and human rights violations in the Central African Republic and South Sudan. In contrast, the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO) has made progress in neutralizing and disarming armed groups. In the Middle East, the kidnapping and murder of three Israeli teenagers and a Palestinian teenager in the West Bank led to a severe Israeli crackdown on Hamas, on the one hand, and a barrage of rocket fire at Israel by Hamas, on the other. As at the time of preparation of the present report, more than 1,200 Palestinians, most of them civilians, had been killed in the Gaza Strip since 7 July, following the launch of a protracted Israeli military operation. During the same period, the conflict claimed the lives of 56 Israeli soldiers and two Israeli civilians. Both sides repeatedly failed to reach agreement on meaningful ceasefires and the international community's efforts in this regard also continued to fall short. An especially reprehensible feature of the fighting has been the attacks in Gaza by Israeli forces on a number of schools run by the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East that were harbouring Palestinian civilians displaced by the fighting.

27. The global security environment in which the United Nations operates continues to exhibit worrying trends. Security threats have become more complex, with the use of unconventional tactics and often direct attacks against civilians and the United Nations, including improvised explosive devices, suicide bombings and abductions. The line is increasingly blurred between criminals and hostile groups and peace spoilers, including extremists with transnational strategies and sophisticated tactics. The breakdown of the State security apparatus in intra-State and inter-communal conflicts poses tremendous security challenges and tests the Organization's capacity to carry out its mandates and critical programmes. There are risks of potential security and safety incidents from the use of nuclear, biological, chemical or radiological materials or from cyberattacks. The United Nations is often an alternative and relatively soft target, and the past year has witnessed complex attacks targeting United Nations personnel and premises in mission and non-mission settings alike, with tragic loss of life.

1. Conflict prevention and mediation

28. With the mounting complexity and growing costs of addressing crisis situations, the imperative of prevention is higher than ever. Over the past year, we have faced enormous challenges in conflict prevention and mediation, across several continents. I should like to highlight a number of specific cases where our efforts have made an impact.

29. In Guinea, through persistent preventive diplomacy, my Special Representative for West Africa was instrumental in helping the Government and the opposition to agree on the modalities for the legislative elections, held, after much delay, on 28 September 2013 and marking a milestone in the country's transition. In the Great Lakes region, my Special Envoy engaged regional leaders, international stakeholders and civil society groups to advance the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the region, in addition to related political initiatives, although the underlying causes of conflict in the eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo still need to be addressed. I undertook two joint visits with the President of the World Bank, together with the Chairperson of the African Union Commission and the representatives of donor countries, to the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Sahel in May and November 2013, respectively. The visits were aimed at fostering a multidimensional approach to development that would address the nexus between peace, security, human rights and development, an approach that is vital for ensuring durable solutions.

30. In Somalia, the establishment of a new political mission in Mogadishu for the first time since 1995 was an important milestone. Complex challenges remain. My Special Representative continues to support the Government and other actors in the country through his good offices. His role in support of a peaceful indirect election in Puntland in January 2014 has been widely acknowledged.

31. My Special Adviser on Yemen, working closely with the Gulf Cooperation Council and the Security Council, facilitated the successful conclusion of the National Dialogue Conference in January 2014. To mobilize support for the stability of Lebanon against the impact of the Syrian conflict, I established an international support group in September 2013. We also continued to support the efforts of the Lebanese authorities to preserve security and unity, including through the formation of a government of national interest.

32. In Myanmar, the progress made in strengthening democratic and human rights institutions, inclusive socioeconomic development and peace efforts between the Government and various armed ethnic groups is at risk of being undermined by growing communal tensions and religious strife. Our good offices effort will need to be sustained in order to continue to tackle those issues, in addition to constitutional reform, national reconciliation and other challenges emerging at this critical juncture.

33. In our conflict prevention and mediation work, we continue to face challenges regarding how best to engage with sometimes amorphous movements or fractured armed groups and how to ensure inclusivity. There is increasing interest in national dialogues as a tool, Yemen being an example. Consultation with women's groups is also one of my priorities and has been conducted in six of our processes over the past year (Georgia, Mali, Sudan (Darfur), Syrian Arab Republic, Yemen and Western Sahara). High-level gender expertise has been systematically provided to most peace and security processes.

34. We have been able to better respond to increasing demands from Member States to support national actors in their conflict prevention and mediation efforts. In South America, where peace talks between the Government of Colombia and the Fuerzas Armadas Revolucionarias de Colombia were launched in August 2012, the United Nations has supported the contribution of civil society through dialogue mechanisms.

35. Experience over the past year has also highlighted the important role of regional and subregional organizations, with which we have strengthened our relationships. Our regional offices in West Africa, Central Africa and Central Asia have played a significant role in fostering conflict prevention and mediation partnerships, in addition to rapid responses to regional crises.

36. There are also, however, several tragic cases where we have not been successful. While our joint efforts with the League of Arab States to put an end to the violence in the Syrian Arab Republic succeeded in bringing the sides together in two rounds of talks in Geneva, unfortunately the talks have yielded little. More than 150,000 people, including over 10,000 children, have been killed in the Syrian Arab Republic since March 2011. A further 6.5 million are internally displaced and 2.8 million are seeking refuge in other countries, notably Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey. In the unfolding tragedy of the Central African Republic, the United Nations has been assisting the Economic Community of Central African States, its mediator and the African Union in endeavouring to resolve the crisis. Thousands of people have been killed since March 2013 when the Séléka rebel coalition ousted the President, François Bozizé. At the time of preparation of the present report, more than 625,000 people had been displaced throughout the country. While our immediate priority is to stop the violence, we are working to facilitate a political process, with particular attention to the need for reconciliation. During the period under review, conflict-related sexual violence remained underreported but prevalent in settings such as the Central African Republic, Côte d'Ivoire, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Libya, Somalia, South Sudan and the Syrian Arab Republic. The continued political will to prevent this scourge was exemplified by the Declaration of Commitment to End Sexual Violence in Conflict, launched on the sidelines of the sixty-eighth session of the General Assembly, and the subsequent Global Summit to End Sexual Violence in Conflict, held in London in June 2014. To translate political will into specific action, my Special Representative on Sexual Violence in Conflict has continued to engage with national authorities at the highest level.

37. The adoption of Security Council resolution 2122(2013), general recommendation No. 30 of the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women and the declaration of the Peacebuilding Commission on women's economic empowerment for peacebuilding represent significant steps in advancing the women and peace and security agenda more broadly.

38. The Security Council has called for sustained monitoring and reporting on the violations affecting children in armed conflict and for perpetrators to be brought to account. In March 2014, my Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict and the United Nations Children's Fund launched the global campaign "Children, Not Soldiers", which is aimed at ending and preventing the recruitment and use of children by all national security forces in conflict by 2016.

2. Democratic transitions and elections

39. Countries undergoing or seeking to consolidate democratic transition continue to benefit from inclusive, participatory, transparent and nationally owned constitutional reform. The implementation of a new constitution can take years and sometimes decades of commitment for the goals of democracy, good governance and the rule of law to be realized and enjoyed. The past 12 months have seen an increase in constitutional reform processes and requests from Member States for the United Nations to provide constitutional support, with peace operations and/or country teams providing assistance to more than a dozen Member States during the period under review. The United Nations country team continued to support reform efforts in Tunisia, where, setbacks notwithstanding, commitments to inclusive dialogue and consensus-building resulted in a more legitimate and nationally owned constitution and the foundation for stability and democratic governance, which is expected to culminate in elections in 2015.

40. Member States have continued to see the value of United Nations support to electoral processes, with requests for assistance — which include technical assistance, the engagement of good offices and support to regional organizations — remaining high. For example, while technical assistance was provided to Afghanistan in the context of the presidential election held in 2014, my Special Representative also supported broad consultations on the legal framework and on the appointment of electoral commissioners. In Nepal, the Organization continued to provide technical support to the electoral commission and supported efforts to ensure that the political commitments of all relevant actors regarding the Constituent Assembly election held in November 2013 were met. A similar approach was taken in Guinea-Bissau. In Madagascar, the United Nations provided assistance to the electoral commission and worked with the Southern African Development Community and the African Union to enable peaceful elections in 2013 and the end of the transition process in 2014.

41. Electoral assistance has been provided in challenging security environments, many under Security Council mandates. In Mali, the Organization supported the conduct of the 2013 presidential and legislative elections that ended the transition process. The United Nations Assistance Mission in Iraq supported the electoral commission with the legislative elections in 2014, in spite of the difficult operating environment. The United Nations Support Mission in Libya supported the elections for the Constitutional Drafting Assembly and Council of Representatives, held in February and June 2014, respectively, as part of the post-conflict transition process. Further to a Security Council mandate and a request from the Transitional Government, the United Nations is providing support in the Central African Republic for the preparation and conduct of a referendum on the Constitution, in addition to presidential and legislative elections.

42. Civil society organizations around the world have continued to demand to participate in transitions, governance and elections. That was reflected in the work of the United Nations Democracy Fund, which received more than 2,000 project proposals from organizations in over 130 countries during its annual proposal window. They included wide-ranging proposals from countries in transition, including Libya and Tunisia, where civil society had previously been almost non-existent or under severe government control. At the same time, a growing number of Governments have proposed national legislation restricting the freedom of civil society groups to operate, including with regard to international funding.

3. Peacekeeping

43. Member States have demonstrated their continued interest in using peacekeeping and continued to recognize it as an effective and cost-effective tool, without which the human and material costs of conflict and relapse into conflict would be unquestionably higher. Although the environments for United Nations peacekeeping operations have always been challenging, we face today a heightened level and new types of security threat, requiring new approaches and strategies. Peacekeeping operations are being increasingly deployed earlier in the conflict continuum, before any peace or ceasefire agreement. Creating the political and security space necessary for successful negotiations is crucial. The lessons of early deployment contexts need to be better analysed and recognized.

44. Achievements in the period under review included the establishment and deployment of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, promoting reconciliation and political dialogue, including with armed groups, and the stabilization of the security situation, in particular in the north of the country, which remains volatile. In the Democratic Republic of the Congo, MONUSCO addressed the crisis in the east, including by supporting the Peace and Security Framework and the deployment of the Force Intervention Brigade. In addition, the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti facilitated constructive political dialogue, including on long-awaited legislative and local elections. We also supported the planning and deployment of the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic and its transformation into a United Nations peacekeeping operation as the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic.

45. South Sudan has been gripped by violence and ethnic strife since mid-December 2013. While the United Nations Mission in South Sudan is protecting tens of thousands of civilians in its bases throughout the country, a political agreement between the parties is needed to halt the descent into a worsening spiral of violence and is vital to alleviating the plight of civilians. In the Golan, the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force has continued to operate under extremely challenging conditions amid the continuing armed conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic. Together with the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon and the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization, it has contributed to containing the crisis. The United Nations Mission in Liberia has contributed to improving security throughout the country, but there are concerns about the future as it draws down. There are similar concerns in Côte d'Ivoire in view of the elections scheduled for October 2015 and the gradual drawdown of the United Nations mission. The African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur has made important strides towards promoting peace and stability, but shortfalls in troop- and police-contingent capabilities and the need for improved coordination and integration structures within the mission remain challenges to the effective implementation of the mandate.

46. Financial and capability constraints have a significant impact on our ability to deliver. The cost of peacekeeping, per capita, has been reduced by 15 per cent compared with four years ago. The United Nations continues to seek greater efficiency while increasing the effectiveness of its field missions. Human and material resources are limited, yet host populations and the international community expect us to protect civilians and implement varied and complex peacekeeping and early peacebuilding mandates. Fully meeting those expectations is a challenge.

47. The field support requirements for our field missions continue to grow, with demand for more flexible, mobile and nimble operations able to deploy swiftly into increasingly inhospitable settings. In South Sudan, enhanced mobility and standby arrangements would have greatly assisted in the rapid strengthening of the mission when the crisis erupted. In Darfur, the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation continues to operate across vast spaces and difficult terrain to protect civilians and facilitate humanitarian assistance, in spite of the increased number of attacks against peacekeepers. Ensuring that United Nations troops are properly supported and equipped is a high priority. We are striving to achieve the greatest possible impact on the ground with the resources that we are given, advancing our field support efforts through the global field support strategy.

48. Supporting missions in the field will require an exploration of technological and other advances to improve effectiveness, increase efficiency and minimize the environmental footprint of field operations. Incorporating solutions offered by new technologies and other innovations remains a priority. The complexity of contemporary peacekeeping environments requires strengthened partnerships with all stakeholders, including regional and subregional organizations, the wider United Nations family, international and regional financial institutions and donors, and multilateral and bilateral partners. Only through such collaboration can we collectively address the challenges that we face.

49. To be truly effective, United Nations peacekeeping requires the highest political engagement and support from the international community and host Governments. In the Democratic Republic of the Congo, a coordinated political strategy in the form of the Peace and Security Framework has been vital in underpinning the efforts of MONUSCO to neutralize and disarm armed groups. The consent of the host Government, the support of host communities, the active involvement of all key parties, the inclusion of women in peace processes, the strong political engagement of key Member States and the provision of the resources and authority required for the Secretariat to deliver the mandates provided have all been critical, as have the political will and support of the Security Council and police- and troop-contributing countries.

4. Peacebuilding

50. The past year saw an important milestone in the emergence of Sierra Leone from conflict, with the closure of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in that country in March 2014 and the transfer of responsibility for the Organization's continued support to the United Nations country team. Peacebuilding remains an unpredictable enterprise, however, with the constant risk of relapse, as demonstrated by the re-eruption of violent conflict in the Central African Republic and South Sudan, in addition to political tensions in Guinea and a challenging road towards the restoration of constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau.

51. The Peacebuilding Commission brought to bear the collective weight of Member States in support of peacebuilding processes in six countries. In Sierra Leone, the Commission accompanied the country through the transition. With the assistance of the Peacebuilding Support Office, Member States also continued to provide political support to United Nations officials and mandates in Burundi and Liberia. My Special Representatives also benefited from the support, in difficult circumstances, of the Peacebuilding Commission in the Central African Republic, Guinea and Guinea-Bissau, which helped to reinforce their political messages and efforts to mobilize international and regional support.

52. The Peacebuilding Fund also played a critical role, allocating $86.7 million, a significant increase over the amount in 2012, to support peaceful transitions in 14 post-conflict countries in 2013. The Fund supported United Nations responses to the relapse into violence in the Central African Republic and Guinea-Bissau. In Guinea and Yemen, it supported critical mediation efforts and national dialogues. Elsewhere, in Burundi, Kyrgyzstan, Liberia and Sierra Leone, the Fund provided assistance in the areas of decentralization, justice, human rights and the participation of women in politics.

C. Development of Africa

53. Africa continues to make steady development gains. Economic growth reached 4.0 per cent in 2013 and is projected to reach 5.3 per cent in 2014. Improved regulatory frameworks, macroeconomic policy and business environments have helped to increase foreign direct investment flows by 6.8 per cent. Substantial progress was made towards the attainment of the Millennium Development Goals, in particular those on education, gender equality and women's empowerment and combating HIV/AIDS and other diseases. Significant headway was also made towards consolidating peace and security and strengthening democratic institutions, including through multiparty elections. Challenges remain with regard to redressing income and gender inequalities, the lack of infrastructure and underemployment, in particular for Africa's burgeoning youth population. Food insecurity and malnutrition are exacerbated by climate change and, in some instances, conflicts and political instability.

54. The United Nations has helped to advance the African development agenda in several ways, cooperating closely with the African Union, including the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD) and the regional economic communities, to develop the African Agenda 2063, a transformative 50-year development agenda. Important milestones included the tenth anniversary of the Comprehensive Africa Agriculture Development Programme, the fifteenth session of the Regional Coordination Mechanism for Africa and the Dakar Financing Summit for Africa's Infrastructure Development, held in June 2014.

55. Institutional support was provided to the High-level Committee of African Heads of State and Government on the Post-2015 Agenda, especially in the formulation of a common African position, and several important regional meetings were jointly organized with the African Union, including a consultative meeting on sustainable development goals and a ministerial meeting in preparation for the fifty-eighth session of the Commission on the Status of Women.

56. Coordination support was provided through the interdepartmental task force on African affairs and the Regional Coordination Mechanism for Africa to increase collaboration and strengthen coherence in delivering system-wide support to Africa. The Organization also undertook global advocacy for NEPAD by partnering with the African Union, the NEPAD Planning and Coordinating Agency and the African Peer Review Mechanism to organize the Africa-NEPAD Week in 2013. In view of the important nexus between peace, security, human rights and development, the Organization also continued to support efforts to make the African Peace and Security Architecture operational, implement the Human Rights Strategy for Africa and improve electoral management and monitoring.

D. Promotion and protection of human rights

57. The year 2014 marks the twentieth anniversary of the genocide in Rwanda. As we commemorate one of the darkest chapters in human history, we are reminded of our collective responsibilities to promote and protect human rights around the world. In November 2013, I renewed the commitment of the United Nations Secretariat, funds and programmes to upholding the responsibilities assigned to us by the Charter of the United Nations, the Security Council and the General Assembly whenever there is a threat of serious and large-scale violations of human rights. That was a first step in implementing my "Rights up front" action plan, which places better system preparedness and preventive action to ensure respect for human rights at the core of United Nations efforts to avoid future conflict. The action plan reaffirms the centrality of human rights to the work of the Organization and confirms that we will use the full breadth of our mandates to protect people at risk.

58. The United Nations system has made progress on far-reaching policy initiatives aimed at mainstreaming human rights throughout its work. I applaud the call of the General Assembly to ensure that human rights are effectively mainstreamed in the post-2015 development agenda. The Organization has continued to take an active role in ensuring that the essential human rights dimensions of freedom from fear and freedom from want remain central to that discussion.

59. We have continued to implement policies governing the way in which the United Nations conducts its own business, including the human rights due diligence policy and the human rights screening policy. The latter aims to ensure that the United Nations neither selects nor deploys for service in the Secretariat anyone who has been involved in violations of human rights.

60. Events across the globe in the past year testified to the need for human rights to be integral to all that the United Nations does. The Security Council addressed human rights situations in, among other countries, the Central African Republic, Mali, South Sudan and the Syrian Arab Republic. The Human Rights Council acted to address human rights crises worldwide, hearing from commissions of inquiry on the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Syrian Arab Republic, establishing a commission of inquiry on Eritrea and a special procedures mechanism on the Central African Republic, and requesting an investigation into the events that occurred in Sri Lanka during the period covered by the Lessons Learnt and Reconciliation Commission. Those bodies promise a voice for victims, a step towards holding perpetrators accountable and a source of recommendations to help Governments and parties to conflict to comply with human rights obligations. The Human Rights Council continued to make use of special procedures mechanisms to track challenging country situations and thematic human rights issues.

61. The second cycle of the universal periodic review mechanism of the Human Rights Council has continued to register 100 per cent participation by Member States, reaffirming its universal scope. Given the cycle's focus on implementation, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in cooperation with United Nations country teams, has supported follow-up by Member States on recommendations by providing technical advice and financial assistance. Dialogue among Member States within the Council benefits from the engagement of civil society actors, which are an indispensable partner of the United Nations system. I am greatly concerned by reports of reprisals against persons who cooperate with United Nations human rights mechanisms.

62. General Assembly resolution 68/268 has been a significant advance that will improve the system of human rights treaty bodies. While treaty bodies provide States parties with expert guidance on implementing human rights obligations and play a critical early warning role, a massive backlog of State party reports was limiting their effectiveness. I am pleased to report that support for the improvements, including building the capacity of States to report, will mainly derive from savings made by streamlining the current system.

63. The Organization's mainstreaming efforts have continued. The human rights responsibilities of resident coordinators have been strengthened, a new guidance note on United Nations country team conduct and working arrangements has clarified roles and responsibilities concerning human rights and additional human rights advisers have been deployed. Over the past year, human rights officers in the field have provided Member States with technical assistance and capacity-building to promote the implementation of the rule of law on the ground. They have also delivered critical information to alert Member States and United Nations bodies to situations of potential concern. That early warning role is fundamental to the Organization's efforts to take preventive action to avoid conflict.

64. On a sombre note, people continued to be subjected to serious and widespread human rights violations. My Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide provided a briefing to the Security Council on the risk of genocide and other atrocity crimes in the Central African Republic and South Sudan, in addition to continuing to monitor closely the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Myanmar, the Sudan, the Syrian Arab Republic and Ukraine. My Special Adviser on the Responsibility to Protect engaged with Member States on the advancement of the responsibility to protect principle and its integration into the work of the Organization. In September 2013, the fifth informal interactive dialogue in the General Assembly on the responsibility to protect focused on the causes and dynamics of atrocity crimes and the measures that States can take to prevent them. In April 2014, the Security Council adopted resolution 2150(2014) on the prevention of genocide, reaffirming paragraphs 138 and 139 of the 2005 World Summit Outcome on the responsibility to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity.

E. Effective coordination of humanitarian assistance efforts

65. By the end of 2013, more than 50 million people were in need of humanitarian assistance. The United Nations and its partners continued to respond to humanitarian needs and emergencies across the globe. Four emergencies were designated by the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator as system-wide level-3 emergencies (the highest categorization possible). In the Syrian Arab Republic, violence and violations of international humanitarian and human rights law continued. Some 10.8 million people are in urgent need of assistance, including more than 6.4 million who are internally displaced. Another 2.8 million people fled and became refugees in neighbouring countries. In the Central African Republic, 50 per cent of the population is in need of humanitarian assistance. In South Sudan, more than 1 million people were driven from their homes during the first months of violence. Without an end to the violence, 1 in every 2 South Sudanese will be displaced or face extreme hunger by the end of 2014. In the Philippines, Typhoon Haiyan (locally known as Yolanda) affected a further 14 million people and displaced more than 4 million.

66. In 2013, new actors took a larger part in humanitarian action and various partnership models arose, including cash-transfer programmes and remote management of operations by using local organizations and partners to deliver assistance. Furthermore, 95 countries, in addition to numerous multilateral and regional organizations, private sector organizations and individuals, contributed a total of $14.4 billion in funding to inter-agency response plans and complementary humanitarian action. That was an increase of $1.6 billion from 2012, largely owing to the magnitude of the Syrian crisis and Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines. The Central Emergency Response Fund hit a record high of $474 million in 2013.

67. The rising scale of needs, the persistence of protracted crises and the interplay of new risks have led to a continued global deficit in the capacity of Governments and humanitarian organizations to respond, suggesting a need for a shift in the way in which Member States and the United Nations and its partners prepare for and respond to humanitarian crises towards a more anticipatory approach. As the international community prepares for post-2015 development and disaster risk reduction frameworks and the World Humanitarian Summit in 2016, it will be important to recognize that development cannot be sustainable unless the risk of crises is addressed proactively as a joint priority.

68. For preparedness to be effective and sustainable, it must be integrated into relevant national legal frameworks and institutions, coupled with joint planning and coordination by all national and international partners and coordination among humanitarian and development actors. Innovative approaches to leveraging the capabilities and resources of the United Nations and other actors and to enhance interoperability are vital to the future of the international humanitarian system.

69. At the end of 2013, each of the 10 largest consolidated humanitarian appeals concerned situations of armed conflict, most of which had exceeded five years in duration. Conflict can set back the development of a country by decades, leading to prolonged suffering and creating further vulnerability to disaster.

F. Promotion of justice and international law

70. Furthering international justice and promoting the rule of law are of fundamental importance to the work of the Organization across its three main pillars. Another priority is to adopt a coordinated and system-wide approach to evaluating the effectiveness of the support provided by the United Nations system for the promotion of the rule of law in conflict and post-conflict situations.

71. The reform of the security sector and the disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and rehabilitation of former combatants that are undertaken by peacekeeping operations continue to contribute to early peacebuilding and the strengthening of the rule of law in post-conflict environments. However, early successes in those areas need to be consolidated through longer-term stabilization activities by the broader United Nations system and other partners that may enjoy a comparative advantage, once the peacekeeping presence draws down. Well-planned and well-resourced follow-on activities in this transitional phase remain important elements of the exit strategy for peacekeeping and require both political commitment and adequate resources if early gains are to be sustained.

72. The joint global focal point for the police, justice and corrections areas in the rule of law in post-conflict and other crisis situations has made notable progress in providing rule of law assistance in post-conflict settings. The global focal point arrangement is driven both by a common vision and the actual requirements of field missions; it brings together the United Nations system to leverage resources, draw on comparative advantages and avoid duplication of efforts for the common objective of strengthening the rule of law.

73. The ad hoc tribunals and United Nations-assisted tribunals have continued to contribute to combating impunity and promoting accountability for the most serious crimes. In September 2013, the Appeals Chamber of the Special Court for Sierra Leone upheld the conviction of the former President of Liberia, Charles Taylor, for aiding and abetting and planning the commission of international crimes. In 2013, the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda brought to a close its substantive cases at the trial level, marking an important step towards its forecast closure in the near future. The International Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia continued proceedings in major trials of senior political and military figures. The Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia continued trial proceedings against the surviving senior leaders of the Khmer Rouge, while the Special Tribunal for Lebanon worked towards the commencement of the trial phase of its major proceedings to date, which ultimately opened in January 2014.

74. The United Nations has continued to promote accountability for serious crimes of international concern and advocate the universal ratification of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court. The Court issued its third judgement, in which it convicted a former leader of a rebel group in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Germain Katanga, on four counts of war crimes and one count of a crime against humanity.

75. War crimes, crimes against humanity, genocide and other gross violations of human rights that constitute serious crimes under international law undermine the very foundations of the rule of law at both the international and national levels. While the International Criminal Court was established to investigate and prosecute these crimes, it is Member States that retain the primary responsibility to do so. For that reason, we continue to accord high priority to activities in support of strengthening national capacity to combat impunity for those crimes, in line with obligations under international human rights, humanitarian and refugee law, and to provide remedies and reparations to the victims.

76. The Organization has continued to support the efforts of Member States to strengthen the legal regime for oceans, as reflected in the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea. Oceans have featured prominently in the work of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals and during the preparatory work for the third International Conference on Small Island Developing States. The Organization has also been requested to support important regional initiatives such as the 2050 Africa's Integrated Maritime Strategy, which was adopted in February 2014.

G. Disarmament

77. The elimination of nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction remains a high priority. Ahead of the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, however, there has been only limited progress by the nuclear-weapon States, and strong concern voiced over continuing efforts by those States to modernize their nuclear arsenals and related infrastructure.

78. I remain fully committed to convening a conference on the establishment of a Middle East zone free of nuclear weapons and all other weapons of mass destruction, which is of utmost importance for the integrity of the Treaty. Nuclear-weapon-free zones contribute greatly to strengthening nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation regimes and to enhancing regional and international security. I am concerned that the events in Ukraine have cast considerable doubt on the relevance of the security assurances provided by the permanent members of the Security Council in connection with the conclusion and indefinite extension of the Treaty, as well as by the nuclear-weapon States in connection with the various treaties on nuclear-weapon-free zones.

79. In 2013, I established a United Nations mission to investigate allegations of the use of chemical weapons in the Syrian Arab Republic, which concluded that chemical weapons had been used on a relatively large scale on 21 August 2013 in the Ghouta area of Damascus, resulting in numerous casualties. Since then, I have been encouraged to see the international community come together to ensure the rapid and verified elimination of the chemical weapons of the Syrian Arab Republic. I commend the efforts of the Joint Mission of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the United Nations for the Elimination of the Chemical Weapons Programme of the Syrian Arab Republic and the material support provided by Member States, which has resulted in the removal and destruction of 100 per cent of Syrian chemical weapons materials, in addition to progress in the destruction of equipment and buildings relating to the storage and production of such materials. It is of the utmost importance that the Syrian Arab Republic implement all its disarmament obligations faithfully.

80. The persisting deadlock in the Conference on Disarmament remains of great concern. No negotiations towards new legally binding instruments have been conducted for 18 years. In my address to the Conference in January 2014, I encouraged its members to live up to the international community's expectations. A more constructive spirit appears to have prevailed, with structured substantive discussions that will hopefully lay a foundation for negotiations.

81. In the face of the perceived failure of the existing disarmament machinery to deliver results, humanitarian disarmament has been gaining momentum. The United Nations has supported the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects, the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on Their Destruction and the Convention on Cluster Munitions. I am particularly encouraged by the growing interest of the States parties to the Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons in addressing the humanitarian, legal, military and ethical dimensions of emerging weapon systems and technologies. The humanitarian consequences of nuclear weapons and international humanitarian law have also gained prominence in the past 12 months, with two conferences on the humanitarian impact of nuclear weapons held, one in Oslo in 2013 and the other in Nayarit, Mexico, in 2014.

82. The adoption of the Arms Trade Treaty in 2013 marked a turning point in the international community's efforts to regulate the trade in conventional arms. Unregulated, this trade has fuelled conflict, fostered regional instability, abetted violations of Security Council arms embargoes and undermined efforts to promote socioeconomic development. Within less than a year following its opening for signature, more than half of the States Members of the United Nations had signed the Treaty, suggesting that an early entry into force might be feasible. The implementation of the Treaty will contribute to a more conducive environment for monitoring sanctions and arms embargoes, humanitarian assistance, peacekeeping, peacebuilding and the promotion of durable development.

83. In response to increased requests from Member States, the Office for Disarmament Affairs of the Secretariat and its three regional centres have continued to provide training, technical and legal assistance and other capacity-building measures to improve the control of small arms and light weapons, combat the spread of illicit arms and promote the effective implementation of Security Council resolution 1540(2004) on preventing the spread of weapons of mass destruction to non-State actors. The United Nations has played an important role in promoting dialogue among Member States on security in the use of information and communications technology and in further developing international cooperation in this field, especially the current efforts to tackle existing and potential threats from States, their proxies or non-State actors through the use of such technology.

H. Drug control, crime prevention and combating international terrorism in all its forms and manifestations

84. Around the world, drug demand, supply, production and trafficking continue to have profound impacts on health and security, undermining respect for the rule of law and jeopardizing peace, development and stability. Opium poppy cultivation in Afghanistan reached a record high in 2013, while cocaine transiting through West Africa is now estimated to be worth $1.25 billion per year. The number of users of illicit drugs is also reportedly on the rise in the subregion. Accordingly, the United Nations has provided assistance to transnational crime units in Guinea-Bissau, Liberia and Sierra Leone and has made formal commitments to establishing such units in Côte d'Ivoire and Guinea.

85. To support Member States in tackling issues relating to the world drug problem, the United Nations actively promoted a health-centred approach to drug control in more than 100 countries, an increase from 65 in 2012, by supporting sustainable livelihoods, drug prevention, treatment and rehabilitation services; HIV/AIDS prevention, treatment and care among drug users and in prison settings; and accessibility to controlled medications while preventing diversion. In addition, an early warning advisory on new psychoactive substances was set up.

86. The Organization has continued to assist Member States in taking on issues of crime prevention, criminal justice, good governance and terrorism prevention by building institutions that strengthen accountability and transparency and by assisting in the ratification and implementation of international legal instruments. A total of 179 Member States have now ratified the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and adopted national legislation for its effective implementation, while 171 have ratified the United Nations Convention against Corruption. Assistance has also been provided to States parties to the drug control conventions in re-drafting their national legislation.

87. In March 2014, the Commission on Narcotic Drugs evaluated progress in the implementation of the Political Declaration and Plan of Action on International Cooperation towards an Integrated and Balanced Strategy to Counter the World Drug Problem. It agreed on a joint ministerial statement in which it recognized the importance of promoting a comprehensive and balanced approach, including adequate health measures. The meeting was an important step towards the special session of the General Assembly on the world drug problem, scheduled to be held in 2016, and will be a milestone on the way to 2019, the target date for the goals in the Political Declaration and Plan of Action. The Organization, including the United Nations system task force on transnational organized crime and drug trafficking as threats to security and stability, stands ready to support Member States in their deliberations.

88. Terrorism continues to be a factor in many regions, as evidenced in the Sahel, East Africa, West Africa, the Syrian Arab Republic and Afghanistan, where groups claiming allegiance to terrorist organizations have continued to inflict violence. To build the capacity of Member States to counter terrorism, the Organization provided support in areas covering all four pillars of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. The General Assembly reviewed the Strategy in June 2014 and endorsed my approach to renew efforts to address conditions conducive to terrorism while assisting in the comprehensive and balanced implementation of all pillars of the Strategy. It also recognized the important work being carried out by the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre. In June 2014, I launched a support portal for victims of terrorism, intended to serve as a resource hub for victims, their families and communities worldwide. Further progress was achieved on the international conventions and protocols relating to the prevention and suppression of terrorism, with additional new ratifications.

Chapter III

Strengthening the Organization

89. Over the past year, the General Assembly has taken steps to further strengthen the work of the Organization, for example by strengthening the Economic and Social Council and the United Nations Environment Programme. The question of the equitable representation on and increase in the membership of the Security Council remains of central importance to the wider membership. The intergovernmental negotiations thereon resumed during the main part of the sixty-eighth session.

90. My management reform efforts aim to strengthen the Organization and enable it to deliver its mandates more effectively while ensuring the proper stewardship of resources, by improving administrative support, resource management, accountability and transparency. The Organization's enterprise resource planning solution has become a reality with the implementation of Umoja Foundation in peacekeeping operations and political missions and is improving administrative services and related decision-making. Full implementation throughout the Organization is expected by the middle of 2015. Delivering the mandates entrusted to the United Nations around the world requires a workforce that is dynamic, adaptable and mobile. The approval by the General Assembly of a managed mobility and career development framework will help to ensure that the right people are in the right position at the right time, while also enabling a fairer sharing of the burden of service in hardship duty stations. To enhance transparency and improve the management of financial resources, we are fully implementing the International Public Sector Accounting Standards in the financial year 2014, which will allow stakeholders to have a more comprehensive view of the Organization's financial position, performance and cash flows, and a better assessment of how well the United Nations has used its resources.

91. Improving our delivery of mandates also requires proactive risk management. To this end, we have conducted a comprehensive, Secretariat-wide risk assessment and identified the top strategic risks to the Organization. In addition, the Administration is working in close cooperation with the oversight bodies, maintaining quarterly meetings to discuss issues of mutual concern, implementing their findings and recommendations and ensuring that they are effectively fed into the management process.

92. The Secretariat has continued to modernize delivery of the conference services provided to Member States, implementing efficiencies to significantly reduce resources while minimizing the impact on the serving staff. Changes have included the integration of conference services in New York, Geneva, Vienna and Nairobi into a single global operation, the use of new technology to improve the timeliness and quality of the services and the reduction of their environmental impact. In late 2014, I will present a revised information and communications technology strategy for the United Nations, which will focus on continued reform and modernization through innovation and automation. In the face of growing cybersecurity threats and need for resiliency, priority has been assigned to, and significant progress made in, strengthening information security and operational resilience.

93. The Organization remains determined to deliver its mandates in challenging global security environments. In 2013, the United Nations continued to strengthen its security management system, including in areas with heightened security risks. This entailed efforts to enhance situational awareness, collaboration with host Governments and non-governmental organizations, security incident reporting, security risk management and the security of premises. The aim is to balance critical programmes with the duty of care towards United Nations personnel.

Partnerships

94. Strengthening the capacity of the Organization to partner at scale, while ensuring accountability, integrity and transparency, remains a priority. More than 1,000 partners are engaging on key issues through United Nations platforms such as the Every Woman, Every Child initiative, the Women's Empowerment Principles: Equality Means Business, the Children's Rights and Business Principles, the Caring for Climate initiative, the Sustainable Energy for All initiative, the Zero Hunger Challenge initiative, the CEO Water Mandate and the Global Pulse initiative. The United Nations Global Compact remains our main avenue for engaging businesses, with over 8,000 participants in more than 140 countries. In September 2013, I launched a post-2015 business engagement architecture that provides a framework for scaling up business engagement and action, in addition to promising initiatives such as the Business for Peace platform, the Food and Agriculture Business Principles and Business for the Rule of Law. As partnerships continue to expand throughout the Organization, we must use the partnership tool more, in a more effective and accountable manner, with the full range of actors, including philanthropists, civil society and academic institutions. The General Assembly has taken a positive step in welcoming my intention to strengthen the collaboration of the Organization with all relevant partners, while noting the importance of continued consultations with Member States in this area. In this regard, my proposed partnership facility, which is being considered by the Assembly, aims to provide a more supportive enabling environment for United Nations partnership activity, together with greater accountability, coherence, efficiency and scale, to ensure that we deliver our goals.

Chapter IV Conclusion

95. The present report is an account of progress over the past year in delivering the eight long-term organizational priorities identified by Member States, as we approach the deadline for achieving the Millennium Development Goals and take steps to define the post-2015 agenda. The challenges ahead across all areas of the Organization's work require a strong spirit of cooperation among Member States. I pledge to do my part and call upon all to join forces in this common endeavour.

^a The poverty gap ratio at $1.25 a day (2005 PPP) measures the magnitude of poverty. Expressed as a percentage of the poverty line, it is the result of multiplying the proportion of people who live below the poverty line by the difference between the poverty line and the average income of the population living under the poverty line.

^c Estimates by the World Bank, April 2013.

^a The prevalence of underweight children is estimated according to World Health Organization (WHO) child growth standards. The United Nations Children's Fund and WHO have initiated a process to harmonize anthropometric data used for the computation and estimation of regional and global averages and trend analysis.

^b Owing to differences in source data and estimation methodology, these prevalence estimates are not comparable to the averages published in previous editions of the present report.

^c Data were calculated on the basis of the most recent surveys carried out during the period specified.

^a Since there are no regional averages for the official indicator, the table displays the gross intake ratio to the last grade of primary, which corresponds to the “total number of new entrants in the last grade of primary education, regardless of age, expressed as a percentage of the population of the theoretical entrance age to the last grade” (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), Institute for Statistics, Global Education Digest 2009: Comparing Education Statistics Across the World, annex B.

^b The primary completion rates correspond to school years ending in the years displayed.

^a "Hiv prevalence among population aged 15 to 24 years" was chosen as a proxy indicator for the incidence rate when the indicators for the United Nations Millennium Declaration were developed. However, the estimated incidence rate among people aged 15 to 49 years is now available for all regions and from 60 countries. The HIV incidence rate is therefore presented here together with HIV prevalence data among people aged 15 to 49 years.

^b Lower and upper bounds in parentheses.

^c Based on the subregional classification adopted by the Economic Commission for Africa.

^d Trend data for the indicator 6.1 are available from only 35 countries, almost all in sub-Saharan Africa, and are therefore not presented here.

^a Percentage of women and men aged 15 to 24 years who correctly identify the two major ways of preventing the sexual transmission of HIV (using condoms and limiting sex to one faithful, uninfected partner), reject two common local misconceptions and know that a healthy-looking person can transmit HIV.

Indicator 6.4

^a Ratio of the current school attendance rate of children aged 10 to 14 years whose two biological parents have died to that of children aged 10 to 14 years whose two parents are still alive and who currently live with at least one biological parent.

^b Data were calculated on the basis of the most recent surveys carried out during the period specified.

^c Including all annex I countries that report under the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change. Countries that are not listed in annex I do not have annual reporting obligations.

^d National reporting to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change that follows the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change guidelines is based on national emission inventories and covers all sources of anthropogenic carbon dioxide emissions. It can be calculated as the sum of emissions for the sectors of energy, industrial processes, agriculture and waste.

^e Excluding emissions and removals from land use, land-use change and forestry.

Develop a global partnership for development

Target 8.A

Develop further an open, rule-based, predictable, non-discriminatory trading and financial system

Includes a commitment to good governance, development and poverty reduction — both nationally and internationally.

Target 8.B

Address the special needs of the least developed countries

Includes: tariff- and quota-free access for least developed countries' exports; enhanced programme of debt relief for heavily indebted poor countries and cancellation of official bilateral debt; and more generous official development assistance (ODA) for countries committed to poverty reduction.

Target 8.C

Address the special needs of landlocked developing countries and small island developing States (through the Programme of Action for the Sustainable Development of Small Island Developing States and the outcome of the twenty-second special session of the General Assembly)

Target 8.D

Deal comprehensively with the debt problems of developing countries through national and international measures in order to make debt sustainable in the long term

Official development assistance

Indicator 8.1

PART ONE

Political and security questions

International peace and security

In 2014, the resolve of the international community to promote and maintain international peace and security continued to be tested by the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic, events in Ukraine, re-eruption of violent conflict in the Central African Republic and South Sudan, a worsening global security environment in which the United Nations operated, and new acts of terrorism and violent extremism.

The General Assembly in June conducted its fourth review of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and adopted a consensus resolution calling upon Member States, the United Nations and other appropriate international, regional and subregional organizations to step up their efforts to implement the Strategy in an integrated and balanced manner and in all its aspects. In August, the Security Council called on all UN Member States to act to suppress the flow of foreign terrorist fighters, financing and other support to Islamist extremist groups in Iraq and Syria, and laid out steps that it intended to take to ensure the protection of humanitarian workers in conflict situations worldwide.

In April, the Council adopted its first thematic resolution on security sector reform, reaffirming the importance of such reform in stabilizing countries recovering from conflict and resolving to prioritize reform aspects in both peacekeeping and special political mission mandates. The Council also recognized the contribution of the updated aide-memoire for the consideration of issues pertaining to the protection of civilians in armed conflict, and as a practical tool that provided a basis for improved analysis and diagnosis of key protection issues, and stressed the need to continue its use on a more systematic and consistent basis.

In October, the Secretary-General convened a high-level independent panel to conduct a review of UN peacekeeping operations and special political missions—the first major external review of peace operations since 2000—to provide recommendations to ensure that such operations remained fit for purpose.

In November, the Council adopted its first resolution dedicated to policing issues, which included measures for increasing the effectiveness of UN work on policing. The Security Council also created the “Captain Mbaye Diagne Medal for Exceptional Courage”, to be awarded to those military, police and civilian UN personnel and associated personnel who demonstrated exceptional courage in the face of extreme danger.

At the end of 2014, there were 16 peacekeeping operations served by 122,729 uniformed and civilian personnel, including United Nations Volunteers. In April, the Council subsumed the presence of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic into a peacekeeping operation: the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, to assist the transitional authorities in restoring peace and stability to the country.

As at 31 December, the United Nations was carrying out 11 political or peacebuilding missions. The United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone completed its mandate in March, signalling important progress in the country’s peace consolidation and transition process.

The Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations, which met in February and March, considered proposals, recommendations and conclusions on guiding principles, definitions and implementation of mandates, restructuring of peacekeeping, and safety and security of peacekeepers. Regarding the financial position of UN peacekeeping operations, expenditures increased by 4.7 per cent, from $7,273.1 million in the previous fiscal year, to $7,615.7 million. Unpaid assessments decreased by 74.1 per cent, from $835.6 to $687.6 million.

Security sector reform

Security Council consideration. On 28 April [S/PV.7161], the Council held an open debate on security sector reform: challenges and opportunities, and adopted its first thematic resolution on security sector reform, reaffirming the importance of such reform in stabilizing countries recovering from conflict and resolving to prioritize reform aspects in both peacekeeping and special political mission mandates. It had before it a concept note [S/2014/238] submitted by Nigeria, and the Secretary-General’s 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 35] on strengthening the United Nations comprehensive support to security sector reform (ssr). Briefing the Council, the Secretary-General stated that SSR was a core element of peacekeeping, peacebuilding and development. The United Nations had strengthened assistance to national authorities to undertake SSR processes, including assisting in the development and implementation of national security strategies in Côte d'Ivoire and Mali; contributing to public financial management of the security sectors in Liberia and Somalia; and supporting defence sector reform in the Central African Republic and the Democratic Republic of the Congo. The United Nations had also enhanced its delivery capacity through the Security Sector Reform Unit in the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and the Inter-agency Security Sector Reform Task Force.

The Secretary-General, however, noted that more remained to be done, and underlined the need for national security services to have the capacity to perform their duties. Looking ahead, the Secretary-General outlined four priorities: recognizing the links between SSR and the broader reform processes, including legal and institutional reform, national reconciliation and political dialogue; host nations doing more to meet immediate security needs; concerned actors placing more emphasis on sector-wide approaches that addressed the strategic and governance framework underpinning all security institutions; and reflecting on the institutional capacities within the Organization, on links to other key areas of work, such as the rule of law and human rights, and on how to ensure the flexible resources needed to meet the needs on the ground.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 April [meeting 7161], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2151(2014). The draft [S/2014/302] was submitted by 41 Member States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming its primary responsibility under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Stressing that reforming the security sector in post-conflict environments is critical to the consolidation of peace and stability, promoting poverty reduction, the rule of law and good governance, extending legitimate State authority and preventing countries from relapsing into conflict, and further stressing that in this regard a professional, effective and accountable security sector and accessible and impartial law enforcement and justice sectors are equally necessary to laying the foundations for peace and sustainable development,

Recalling the sovereign right and the primary responsibility of the country concerned to determine the national approach and priorities of security sector reform and recognizing that it should be a nationally owned process that is rooted in the particular needs and conditions of the country in question, and encouraging the development of expertise in the field of security sector reform at the national level,

Recognizing that the political leadership and political will of national authorities are critical for the progress of security sector reform, and reaffirming the lead role of national authorities in developing an inclusive national vision for security sector reform, coordinating the implementation of the vision, dedicating national resources towards national security institutions and monitoring the impact of the security sector reform process,

Recalling the statements by its President of 20 February 2007, 12 May 2008 and 12 October 2011, and noting with appreciation the report of the Secretary-General of 13 August 2013 entitled "Securing States and societies: strengthening the United Nations comprehensive support to security sector reform",

Recalling also reports of the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations of the General Assembly, which have provided guidance to the Secretariat on the subject of security sector reform and the development of a United Nations approach to security sector reform,

Expressing concern at the range of challenges that weak and dysfunctional security institutions pose, including impairing the ability of the State to extend public security and the rule of law within its boundaries, noting that good governance and oversight of the security sector is important in ensuring that security institutions are capable of protecting the population, further noting that failure to address operational and accountability deficits can undermine the positive gains of peacekeeping and necessitates the return of peacekeeping and special political missions in previous areas of operation, and recognizing that effective security sector reform processes have been an important element of the stabilization and reconstruction of some post-conflict countries,

Reaffirming that an effective, professional and accountable security sector without discrimination and with full respect for human rights and the rule of law is the cornerstone of peace and sustainable development and is important for conflict prevention,

Recalling that the bulk of Security Council-mandated United Nations assistance in the area of security sector reform takes place in, and is directed to, countries in Africa and that a number of African countries are becoming important providers of such assistance,

Noting the support provided by bilateral actors, as well as regional actors, including the European Union, to security sector reform efforts and other initiatives in the area of security sector reform, in particular in Africa, and stressing the importance of coordination as appropriate between the different actors involved in supporting security sector reforms through bilateral contributions and emphasizing the role that United Nations peacekeeping operations or special political missions can play in enhancing this coordination,

Recognizing the centrality of security sector reform as a key element of peacekeeping and special political mission mandates, noting the increasing number and complexity of mission mandates on security sector reform, and emphasizing the importance of the United Nations, including through its peacekeeping operations and special political missions, supporting national Governments, upon their request where appropriate, to develop security institutions that are accessible and responsive to the needs of their population, and the important role of the Peacebuilding Commission and the Peacebuilding Fund in supporting security sector reform,

Recalling the important role that the United Nations has played in supporting national efforts to build sustainable security institutions, and commending the efforts of the United Nations, in particular the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat, including the Security Sector Reform Unit and the United Nations Inter-Agency Security Sector Reform Task Force, in further strengthening a comprehensive United Nations approach to security sector reform, through the development of guidance and civilian capacities, coordination mechanisms and collaboration with regional and subregional organizations, in particular the African Union,

Underlining the importance of the close coordination of the range of United Nations security sector reform activities, both at Headquarters and in the field, in particular between Council-mandated missions and the United Nations country team, as appropriate, and encouraging relevant United Nations entities mandated for security sector reform activities to work through the existing coordination mechanisms, as appropriate,

Acknowledging the necessity for the United Nations to balance its support for the reform of individual components of the security sector, which in some contexts include defence, police, corrections and border and immigration services, with sector-wide initiatives that address strategic governance, management and oversight aspects in order to ensure their long-term sustainability based on the particular needs and conditions of the country in question,

Reiterating the importance of the rule of law as one of the key elements of conflict prevention, peacekeeping, conflict resolution and peacebuilding and reiterating the statement by its President of 21 February 2014, recalling that security sector reform must take place within a broad framework of the rule of law, and noting in this regard the contribution that effective, professional and accountable police services, that provide security to the population, can make in building trust between State authorities and communities and restoring the rule of law in post-conflict countries,

Reaffirming its commitment to address the impact of armed conflict on women and children, and recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, as well as its resolutions 1261(1999) of 25 August 1999, 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict,

Recognizing that security sector reform constitutes a key element of the political processes of States recovering from conflict and of the strengthening of the rule of law institutions,

Recognizing also the interlinkages between security sector reform and other important factors of stabilization and reconstruction, such as, but not limited to, transitional justice, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration as well as long-term rehabilitation of former combatants, including in particular women and children, national small arms and light weapons management, arms embargo implementation, reduction of armed violence, organized crime and anti-corruption measures, protection of civilians, including in particular women and children, as well as gender equality and human rights issues,

1. Reaffirms the importance of security sector reform in the stabilization and reconstruction of States in the aftermath of conflict, and resolves to continue to include and prioritize, as appropriate, security sector reform aspects as an integral part of the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions;

2. Reiterates the centrality of national ownership for security sector reform processes, and further reiterates the responsibility of the country concerned in the determination of security sector reform assistance, where appropriate, and recognizes the importance of considering the perspectives of the host countries in the formulation of relevant mandates of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions;

3. Encourages Member States undertaking reform to take the lead in defining an inclusive national vision on security sector reform, informed by the needs and aspirations of the population, and acknowledges the important role of the United Nations, including its Peacebuilding Commission, and Member States and regional and subregional organizations in assisting States in this regard;

4. Recognizes that security sector reform needs to be in support of, and informed by, broader national political processes, inclusive of all segments of the society, including the participation of civil society, that lay the foundations for stability and peace through national dialogue and reconciliation efforts, and resolves to link security sector reform to such efforts;

5. Stresses that security sector reform is critical to addressing impunity for violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, where applicable, and contributes to the rule of law;

6. Encourages Member States, when undertaking security sector reforms, to mainstream child protection, such as the inclusion of child protection in military training and standard operating procedures, as well as in military guidance as appropriate, and the establishment of child protection units in national security forces, of effective age assessment mechanisms to prevent underage recruitment, of vetting mechanisms to ensure that those responsible for violations and abuses against children are not included in the ranks of national security forces and of measures to protect schools and hospitals from attack and to prevent the military use of schools in contravention of applicable international law;

7. Stresses the importance of security sector reform, which better integrates policing, defence, border management and security, maritime security, civil protection and other relevant functions, including through the development of professional, accessible and accountable policing capabilities that strengthen community resilience, as well as the institutions responsible for their oversight and management, and urges the effective integration as regards sector-wide and component levels of United Nations support both at Headquarters and in the field, as appropriate;

8. Also stresses the importance of the relevant bodies of the United Nations undertaking mission planning processes for security sector reform, where mandated, that gives full consideration to supporting national security sector reform efforts, taking into account the specific needs of the host country, and collaborating with other relevant international and regional actors providing security sector reform assistance to the national Government;

9. Underlines the importance of strengthening support for sector-wide initiatives that aim to enhance the governance and overall performance of the security sector and address the foundations upon which security institutions in each component area are built, such as through support to national security dialogues; national security sector reviews and mappings; national security policy and strategy; national security legislation; national security sector plans; security sector public expenditure reviews; and national security oversight, management and coordination;

10. Also underlines that the management of a transition from a peacekeeping operation or special political mission in relation to its security sector reform activities should be based upon a timely analysis, in consultation with the host country, of any assistance beyond the duration of the mandate to enable peacebuilding and development actors to undertake the necessary strategic planning and fundraising, working in close partnership with the national authorities, and to transfer skills and expertise to host country officials and experts as quickly as possible in order to ensure a successful and durable transition;

11. Notes that the United Nations is particularly well positioned to support and coordinate sector-wide reforms as necessary in specific situations and has broad experience as well as comparative advantages in this area working in close collaboration with relevant international and regional actors, and encourages Member States to continue to be engaged and to facilitate strategic discussions on strengthening the United Nations approach in this critical area, including through the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations of the General Assembly and the Peacebuilding Commission;

12. Also notes the important role that United Nations police can play in supporting, and coordinating international support for, reform of national police institutions and building police capacity in a comprehensive way that emphasizes a community-oriented approach and, inter alia, builds strong governance, oversight and accountability mechanisms within the framework of a functional judicial and corrections system;

13. Recognizes the need for the United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions with relevant mandates and the United Nations Inter-Agency Security Sector Reform Task Force to further strengthen the monitoring and evaluation of United Nations security sector reform initiatives with the aim of ensuring the effectiveness, coordination and coherence of the support provided by the United Nations to national Governments;

14. Encourages Member States to provide voluntary support to security sector reform efforts, including at a sector-wide level, in accordance with the priorities set forth by national authorities;

15. Resolves to continue to promote the role of the Secretariat in supporting security sector reform, and requests the Secretary-General to consider undertaking the following in the context of relevant country-specific mandates:

(a) Strengthen the comprehensive approach of the United Nations in security sector reform;

(b) Develop additional guidance for relevant United Nations officials, including for Special Representatives and Envoys of the Secretary-General, and assist relevant senior United Nations management to understand how to deliver mandated security sector reform tasks;

(c) Encourage the Special Representatives and Envoys of the Secretary-General to fully take into account the strategic value of security sector reform in their work, including through their good offices, where mandated;

(d) Highlight in his regular reports to the Security Council on specific United Nations operations mandated by the Council updates on progress of security sector reform, where mandated, in order to improve Council oversight of security sector reform activities;

(e) Continue to develop integrated technical guidance notes and related training modules, as well as other tools as appropriate, to promote coherent and coordinated United Nations support to security sector reform, and develop modalities for joint delivery of assistance to national reform efforts;

(f) Ensure that assistance related to security sector reform takes into account the operation of Council-mandated arms embargoes, where applicable, including the availability of exemptions to such embargoes specifically intended to support security sector reform;

16. Underlines the importance of partnerships and cooperation with regional and subregional arrangements and organizations, in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations, and in supporting security sector reform, as well as fostering greater regional engagement;

17. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to promote cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union, consistent with the framework agreement for the 10-year capacity-building programme for the African Union, towards its efforts to strengthen its continent-wide policy framework for security sector reform, informed by and in support of the African Peace and Security Architecture, and further encourages all partners to continue to assist the African Union in building its capacities in this regard;

18. Reiterates the importance of sharing experiences and expertise on security sector reform among Member States and regional and subregional organizations, and in this regard encourages a deepening of South-South exchange and cooperation;

19. Underscores the importance of the equal and effective participation and full involvement of women in all stages of the security sector reform process, given their vital role in the prevention and resolution of conflict and peacebuilding, and in strengthening civilian protection measures in security services, including the provision of adequate training for security personnel, the inclusion of more women in the security sector and effective vetting processes in order to exclude perpetrators of sexual violence from the security sector;

20. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

United Nations and regional organizations

Security Council consideration. On 28 July [S/PV.7228], the Council held an open debate on the theme “United Nations peacekeeping operations: The United Nations and regional partnership and its evolution”. It had before it a concept note [S/2014/478] submitted by Rwanda.

The Secretary-General noted that the United Nations partnership with the African Union (AU) had benefitted from the growing involvement of the European Union (EU) in crisis management and post-conflict stabilization. The United Nations and the EU had increased their strategic partnership. By engaging early during the planning phase, an effective division of labour had been achieved in areas such as police and security sector reform. The Secretary-General remarked that partnerships with regional organizations should continue to be based on the comparative strengths of each group. He also noted the importance of drawing detailed lessons from experiences in Africa, as the United Nations continued to work to enhance the predictability and sustainability of African-led peace support operations.

The Secretary-General stated that the United Nations, the AU and the EU, together with other key partners, had to use existing mechanisms and capacity more effectively and predictably, and in a way that would further strengthen others. He added that the United Nations stood ready to further support the efforts of the AU and the regional economic communities to fully operationalize the African Standby Force. The Secretary-General concluded by highlighting the importance of deepening and strengthening UN partnerships to meet the challenges of the future.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 July [meeting 7228], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2167(2014). The draft [S/2014/532] was submitted by Argentina, Australia, Chad, Chile, Jordan, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea and Rwanda.

The Security Council,

Recalling Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling also all its previous relevant resolutions, including resolution 2033(2012) of 12 January 2012 on cooperation with regional and subregional organizations in matters relating to the maintenance of peace and security, and the statements by its President underscoring the importance of developing effective partnerships between the United Nations and regional organizations, in particular the African Union, in accordance with the Charter and the relevant statutes of regional and subregional organizations,

Recalling further its primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and recognizing that cooperation with regional and subregional organizations in matters relating to the maintenance of peace and security, and consistent with Chapter VIII of the Charter, can improve collective security,

Reaffirming its commitment to uphold the purposes and principles of the Charter, including its commitment to and respect for the principles of political independence, sovereign equality and territorial integrity of all States in conducting all peacekeeping activities, and the need for States to comply with their obligations under international law,

Resolving to strengthen the central role of the United Nations in peacekeeping and to ensure the effective functioning of the collective security system established by the Charter, and welcoming the announcement by the Secretary-General on 11 June 2014 of a comprehensive review of United Nations peacekeeping activities,

Reaffirming that respect for the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, is essential to the success of peacekeeping operations,

Recognizing that regional organizations are well positioned to understand the root causes of armed conflicts owing to their knowledge of the region, which can be a benefit for their efforts to influence the prevention or resolution of these conflicts, and acknowledging the efforts made by the African Union to review the scope of the African Standby Force, consistent with the recommendations of the 2013 independent Panel of Experts,

Recognizing also the role that regional and subregional organizations can play in the protection of civilians, and in particular women and children affected by armed conflict, as well as in the prevention of and response to sexual and gender-based violence in armed conflicts and post-conflict situations, and supporting the critical role that women play in all peace and security efforts, including those to prevent and resolve conflict and mitigate its impact,

Recognizing further the valuable contribution of relevant regional and subregional organizations and arrangements for the protection of children affected by armed conflict, and commending the declaration signed on 17 September 2013 by the Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Peace and Security Department of the African Union Commission, in order to mainstream protection mechanisms in all peace and security activities of the African Union, in close partnership with the United Nations Children's Fund, as well as the European Union Guidelines on Children and Armed Conflict, including its Checklist for the Integration of the Protection of Children affected by Armed Conflict into European Union Common Security and Defence Policy Operations,

Recognizing the role that regional and subregional organizations can play in post-conflict peacebuilding, including security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, rule of law, recovery, reconstruction and development processes, and reaffirming the importance of interaction and cooperation between the Peacebuilding Commission and regional and subregional organizations and arrangements,

Stressing the utility of developing effective partnerships between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, in order to enable early responses to disputes and emerging crises and to strengthen the role of the United Nations in the prevention of conflict, and stressing that the coordination of efforts at the regional level may be necessary for the development of a comprehensive strategy to ensure effective peacekeeping activities to address threats to international peace and security,

Underlining the usefulness of sharing the experience of countries which have gone through conflict and post-conflict situations and comparable transitions, and emphasizing the importance of effective regional, South-South and triangular cooperation,

Welcoming the continuing efforts and enhanced peacekeeping role of regional and subregional organizations, consistent with the Charter and Security Council resolutions and decisions, including in preparing the ground for United Nations peacekeeping operations, and calling upon regional and subregional organizations to promote coherence and coordination of their peacekeeping efforts with those of the peacekeeping operations and special political missions, as well as with the wider United Nations presence on the ground,

Welcoming also the initiatives already taken by regional or subregional organizations in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the African Union, the European Union, the Economic Community of Central African States, the Economic Community of West African States, the Southern African Development Community, the Eastern African Community, the Organization of American States, the Union of South American Nations, the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States, the Caribbean Community and Common Market, the Collective Security Treaty Organization, the League of Arab States, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations and the Arab Maghreb Union,

Welcoming further the United Nations partnership with the African Union in the field of peacekeeping, including by supporting the efforts of the African Union to develop policy, guidance and training, in particular in the areas of security sector reform, post-conflict reconstruction, women and peace and security and the protection of civilians, including child protection and the prevention of and response to sexual and gender-based violence in armed conflicts and post-conflict situations, thereby welcoming the framework of cooperation between the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict and the African Union signed on 31 January 2014, and calling for its implementation,

Recalling in this regard its commitment to regularly assess, in consultation with relevant stakeholders, the strength, mandate and composition of peacekeeping operations with a view to making the necessary adjustments where appropriate, according to progress achieved or changing circumstances on the ground, including in security, thereby allowing, on a case-by-case basis, reconfiguration, transition or withdrawal,

Emphasizing that United Nations peacekeeping activities should be conducted in a manner so as to facilitate post-conflict peacebuilding, prevention of relapse into armed conflict and progress towards sustainable peace and development, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the needs and situation of the country concerned,

Recognizing that one major constraint facing some regional organizations, in particular the African Union, in effectively carrying out the mandate of maintaining regional peace and security is securing predictable, sustainable and flexible resources,

Recalling its resolution 1809(2008) of 16 April 2008, in which it welcomed the proposal of the Secretary-General to establish a joint African Union-United Nations panel to consider options for supporting regional organizations when they undertake peacekeeping operations pursuant to a Security Council mandate, and welcoming the steps taken by the Chairperson of the African Union Commission to generate resources from within States members of the African Union in support of peace support operations,

Political

1. Underlines the importance of partnership and cooperation with relevant regional and subregional organizations and arrangements, in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations, in supporting peacekeeping operations, including on issues relating to the protection of civilians, taking into account the respective mandates of peacekeeping operations, and peacebuilding activities as well as forging greater regional and national ownership, and furthermore reiterates that the growing contribution made by regional and subregional organizations can usefully complement the work of the United Nations in maintaining international peace and security, and stresses in this regard that such contribution must be made in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter, including the need for regional and subregional organizations at all times to keep the Security Council fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation for the maintenance of international peace and security;

2. Expresses its determination to take effective steps to further enhance the relationship between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, in particular the African Union, in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter;

3. Encourages the continuing involvement of regional and subregional organizations in the peaceful settlement of disputes, including through conflict prevention, confidence-building and mediation efforts;

4. Welcomes and further encourages the ongoing efforts of the African Union and the subregional organizations to strengthen their peacekeeping capacity and to undertake peacekeeping operations on the continent, in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter, and to coordinate with the United Nations, through the Peace and Security Council of the African Union, as well as ongoing efforts to develop a continental early warning system, response capacity such as the African Standby Force and enhanced mediation capacity, including through the Panel of the Wise;

5. Welcomes, in that regard, the recent steps taken by the Eastern African Community to activate its standby arrangements and generate the required contribution in the context of the African Standby Force;

6. Underscores the need to strengthen the role of both United Nations and regional organizations' headquarters in providing strategic guidance and support to the missions' command and control structures to ensure that operations are managed effectively;

7. Welcomes recent developments regarding cooperation between the United Nations, the African Union and the European Union, including the contribution of the European Union to the enhancement of African Union capacities; and further encourages regional and subregional organizations to strengthen and increase cooperation among them, including efforts to enhance their respective capacities, in the maintenance of international peace and security;

8. Recognizes the need to further strengthen cooperation and consultations with troop- and police-contributing countries, including through triangular cooperation between the Security Council, the troop- and police-contributing countries and the Secretariat, and encourages active participation of all stakeholders in open and more frequent consultation processes with a view to enhancing the efficiency of the implementation of the mandates;

9. Encourages the Peacebuilding Commission to continue to work in close consultation with regional and subregional organizations and arrangements, with a view to ensuring more consistent and integrated strategies for post-conflict peacebuilding and recovery;

10. Encourages pertinent regional and subregional organizations and arrangements to help to address the widespread impact of armed conflict on children, invites them to continue the mainstreaming of child protection into their advocacy, policies, programmes and mission planning, the development and expansion of guidelines to protect children affected by armed conflict as well as the training of personnel and the inclusion of child protection staff in their peacekeeping and field operations, and reiterates its call for the establishment of child protection mechanisms within their secretariats, including through the appointment of child protection focal points;

Operational

11. Reaffirms its intention to consider further steps to promote closer and more operational cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in the fields of early warning, conflict prevention, peacekeeping and peacebuilding, and of ensuring coherence, synergy and collective effectiveness of their efforts; and in this regard, welcomes the already existing strong cooperation initiatives between the United Nations, the African Union and the European Union;

12. Stresses the importance for the United Nations of developing the ability of regional and subregional organizations to deploy peacekeeping forces rapidly in support of United Nations peacekeeping operations or other Security Council-mandated operations, and welcomes relevant initiatives taken in this regard;

13. Requests, in that context, the Secretary-General to initiate in full and close cooperation with the African Union a lessons-learned exercise on the transitions from the African Union peace operations to United Nations peacekeeping operations in Mali and the Central African Republic and to produce specific recommendations that could be used for possible future transitional arrangements, not later than 31 December 2014;

14. Encourages the United Nations and regional organizations, especially the African Union, to take concrete steps to strengthen their relationships and develop a more effective partnership when addressing issues of mutual interest, and underscores the need to enhance the United Nations and regional organizations' predeployment joint planning and joint mission assessment processes to increase effectiveness of peacekeeping missions;

15. Stresses the need for the United Nations and the African Union to work to ensure that women and gender perspectives are fully integrated into all peace and security efforts undertaken by the two organizations, including by building the necessary capacity, and encourages regional and subregional organizations to include gender expertise in peacekeeping and field operations, as appropriate, and to increase female leadership in regional and subregional peacekeeping efforts;

16. Encourages the Secretary-General and regional and subregional organizations and arrangements to enhance information-sharing on their respective capabilities and lessons learned in maintaining international peace and security and to continue to compile best practices, in particular in the field of mediation, good offices and peacekeeping, and also encourages strengthening of cooperation and dialogue among regional and subregional organizations in this regard;

17. Recognizes the inclusive consultative processes undertaken by the Police Division of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat in the development of the Strategic Guidance Framework for International Police Peacekeeping, and encourages closer coordination and cooperation on policing issues between the United Nations Secretariat and international, regional and subregional organizations, including through training, the sharing and exchange of knowledge and thematic expertise and operational support as appropriate;

18. Encourages the increased engagement of the African Union Peacekeeping Support Team within the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and the United Nations Office to the African Union, as coordinating structures, aimed at providing necessary expertise and transfer of technical knowledge to enhance the capacity of the Peace Support Operations Division of the African Union, including in mission planning and management, as well as the deployment of staff of the Department of Political Affairs of the Secretariat to work with the African Union on the effective operationalization of the Panel of the Wise and other mediation programmes;

19. Calls upon the Secretary-General to coordinate with and support the African Union Commission in its development of a list of needed capacities and recommendations on ways the African Union can further develop its military, police, technical, logistic and administrative capabilities, welcomes the practice of staff exchanges, especially between the United Nations and the African Union, and encourages its continuity, particularly for staff in the financial and logistical areas, and further encourages the African Union to identify its priorities in personnel training, particularly in those areas dealing with financial, logistic and administrative matters;

20. Invites regional and subregional organizations to accelerate the establishment of the Standby Arrangements System for conflict prevention and peacekeeping, welcomes in that regard the commitment made by African leaders at the Malabo summit, held on 26 and 27 June 2014, and steps taken by the African Union Commission to operationalize the African Capacity for Immediate Response to Crises, and encourages the States members of the African Union to generate substantive pledges to this initiative, and further encourages the African Union Commission to harmonize this concept with the African Standby Force;

Financial

21. Reaffirms its previous resolutions and the statements by its President regarding the Prodi report, including the statements of 26 October 2009, 22 October 2010 and 6 August 2013 as well as resolutions 1809(2008), 2033(2012) and 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013;

22. Reiterates that regional organizations have the responsibility to secure human, financial, logistical and other resources for their organizations, including through contributions by their members and support from partners, and welcomes the valuable financial support provided from partners in this regard;

23. Stresses the need to enhance the predictability, sustainability and flexibility of financing regional organizations when they undertake peacekeeping under a Security Council mandate, and recognizes the benefit of joint planning missions and assessment visits in determining the needs of regional peace support operations;

24. Reiterates its resolve to give peacekeeping operations clear, credible and achievable mandates matched by appropriate resources;

25. Urges Member States and relevant international organizations to contribute to strengthening the capacity of regional and subregional organizations, in particular of African regional and subregional organizations, in conflict prevention and crisis management, and in post-conflict stabilization, including through the provision of human, technical and financial assistance;

26. Welcomes, in this regard, the support provided by the European Union through the African Peace Facility, in particular the support provided to the African Union Mission in Somalia and the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic;

27. Further welcomes the extensive support by bilateral partners of the African Union for the deployment of African-led operations, and encourages them to pursue these efforts;

28. Requests the Secretary-General, in close consultation with the African Union Commission and the European Union, to produce, not later than 31 March 2015, an assessment report and recommendations on the progress of the partnerships between the United Nations and relevant regional organizations in peacekeeping operations;

29. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General. In August, the Secretary-General submitted a report [A/69/228-S/2014/560] on cooperation between the United Nations and regional and other organizations. The report described cooperation across the full range of mandate areas, from the maintenance of international peace and security and humanitarian assistance to development and the protection of human rights.

Security Council consideration. On 16 December [S/PV.7343], the Council held an open debate on cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in maintaining international peace and security.

The theme of the debate was “Peace operations: the partnership between the United Nations and the African Union and its evolution”. The Council had before it a concept note [S/2014/879] submitted by Chad.

Briefing the Council, the Secretary-General stated that over the years, cooperation between the United Nations and its regional and subregional partners had intensified. The Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council were working closely, and there was increased support for African-led peace operations and their transition into UN peacekeeping operations, as demonstrated in Mali and the Central African Republic. The Secretary-General noted the need to build stronger political partnerships that were anchored in a clear strategic vision; and the need for a clear, agreed role for the AU and subregional organizations, as increasing the predictability of cooperation and conducting joint assessment missions and planning exercises were critical to enhancing joint peace operations. He further stated that the United Nations, regional organizations and other partners had to cooperate to enhance joint logistical capabilities. Creative approaches were needed to provide the necessary mobility, capacity and robustness. Financing continued to pose a major challenge to African capability.

(For more information on cooperation between the United Nations and regional and other organizations, see p. 1604.)

On 16 December [meeting 7343], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/27 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council recalls its previous relevant resolutions and statements by its President which underscore the importance of developing effective partnerships between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and the relevant statutes of the regional and subregional organizations.

The Council recalls the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and reaffirms its primary responsibility under the Charter for the maintenance of international peace and security.

The Council welcomes the briefing of the United Nations Secretary-General, Mr. Ban Ki-moon, and that of the African Union High Representative for Mali and the Sahel, former President Pierre Buyoya.

The Council acknowledges the progress made in the ongoing cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union, and stresses the importance of further strengthening cooperation and developing effective partnership with the Peace and Security Council of the African Union consistent with Chapter VIII of the Charter, to address common collective security challenges in Africa.

The Security Council reiterates that cooperation with regional and subregional organizations in matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security and consistent with Chapter VIII of the Charter can improve collective security.

The Council recognizes that regional organizations are well positioned to understand the root causes of armed conflicts owing to their knowledge of the region, which can be a benefit for their efforts to influence the prevention or resolution of these conflicts.

The Council acknowledges the role of the African Union in efforts to prevent or settle conflicts on the African continent and expresses its support for the continued efforts of the African Union to promote peace initiatives conducted by the African Union, and similar initiatives of subregional organizations.

The Council commends the increased contribution of the African Union to the maintenance of peace and security, including peacekeeping, in particular in the Sudan (Darfur), Mali, the Central African Republic and Somalia, as well as the African Union Regional Task Force, and efforts to further strengthen its capacity, including through the operationalization of both its African Standby Force and its Rapid Deployment Capability, and welcomes the United Nations-African Union continued cooperation on different components of the African Peace and Security Architecture, including on early warning, preventive diplomacy, mediation, electoral assistance, peacekeeping, conflict prevention and resolution, promotion of human rights and the rule of law, and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction.

The Council welcomes the decision by the African Union to declare 2014–2024 as the Madiba Nelson Mandela Decade of Reconciliation in Africa and to take appropriate measures to promote reconciliation as a means of securing peace, stability and development in Africa, as well as to also take appropriate steps in collaboration with its member States to promote the lessons learned from his indelible legacy in the areas of truth, reconciliation and peacebuilding.

The Council welcomes the efforts undertaken by the African Union to end impunity and ensure accountability, including by strengthening national justice institutions.

The Council stresses the importance of further strengthening cooperation with the African Union in order to assist in building its capacity to deal with common collective security challenges in Africa, including through the African Union's commitment of rapid and appropriate responses to emerging crisis situations, and the development of effective strategies for conflict prevention and resolution, peacekeeping and peacebuilding.

The Council reiterates that regional organizations have the responsibility to secure human, financial, logistical and other resources for their organizations, including through contributions by their members and support from partners and welcomes the valuable financial support provided by partners in this regard.

The Council recognizes that one major constraint facing the African Union in effectively carrying out the mandates of maintaining regional peace and security is securing predictable, sustainable and flexible resources.

The Council encourages closer coordination and cooperation on policing issues between the United Nations Secretariat and international, regional and sub-regional organizations, including through training, the sharing and exchange of knowledge, thematic expertise and operational support as appropriate.

The Council recognizes the role that the African Union can play in the protection of civilians, and in particular women and children affected by armed conflict, as well as in the prevention of and response to sexual and gender-based violence in armed conflicts and post-conflict situations and supports the critical role that women play in all peace and security efforts, including those to prevent and resolve conflict and mitigate its impact.

The Council welcomes the United Nations partnership in the field of peacekeeping, including support to the efforts of the African Union to develop policy, guidance and training, in particular in the areas of security sector reform, post-conflict reconstruction, women and peace and security and the protection of civilians, including child protection and the prevention of and response to sexual and gender-based violence in armed conflicts and post-conflict situations.

The Council recognizes the valuable contribution of relevant regional and subregional organizations and arrangements for the protection of children affected by armed conflict and commends in this regard the declaration signed on 17 September 2013 by the Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Peace and Security Department of the African Union Commission, in order to mainstream protection mechanisms in all peace and security activities of the African Union, in close partnership with the United Nations Children's Fund.

The Council encourages in this regard the African Union Commission to help to address the widespread impact of armed conflict on children, invites it to continue the mainstreaming of child protection into its advocacy, policies, programmes and mission planning, the development and expansion of guidelines to protect children affected by armed conflict as well as the training of personnel and the inclusion of child protection staff in its peacekeeping and field operations, and reiterates its call for the establishment of child protection mechanisms within its secretariat, including through the appointment of child protection focal points.

The Council urges Member States and relevant international organizations to contribute to strengthening the capacity of the African Union and its sub-regional organizations in conflict prevention and crisis management and in post-conflict stabilization, including through the provision of human, technical and financial assistance.

The Council reiterates the importance of establishing a more effective relationship between the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council, including through achieving more effective annual consultative meetings, the holding of timely consultations, and collaborative field missions of the two Councils, as appropriate, to formulate cohesive positions and strategies on a case-by-case basis in dealing with conflict situations in Africa.

The Security Council calls for the strengthening of cooperation between the United Nations Secretariat and the African Union Commission, including in the area of mediation efforts, and underscores the importance of developing the follow-up programme to the 2006 United Nations-African Union Ten-year Capacity-Building Programme, as an important contribution towards conflict prevention, management and resolution on the African continent. In this regard, the Council welcomes the United Nations-African Union joint decision during the fifteenth session of the Regional Coordination Mechanism for Africa, held in Abuja in March 2014 to establish a working group to start formulating a successor programme that will also reflect the support of the United Nations to Agenda 2063.

The Council welcomes the appointment of the high-level panel to review peace operations, and invites this panel to consult closely with the African Union.

The Council welcomes regular interaction between the United Nations Secretariat and the African Union Commission, through the United Nations-African Union Joint Task Force on Peace and Security, and encourages the Task Force to continue to focus on strategic and country-specific issues of the African continent that are of interest to both organizations and requests that the Task Force consider ways to enhance United Nations and African Union cooperation on conflict prevention in Africa and that it provide updates to the Council subsequent to its meetings.

The Council commends the transfer of authority from the African-led International Support Mission to the Central African Republic to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic on 15 September 2014 and welcomes the ongoing lessons-learned exercise on the transitions from African Union to United Nations peacekeeping operations in Mali and the Central African Republic, pursuant to paragraph 13 of resolution 2167(2014) and looks forward to concrete recommendations from this lessons-learned exercise, which would seek to strengthen the management of transitions from African Union to United Nations peacekeeping missions.

The Council stresses the importance of supporting the political role of the African Union, both during the transition from African Union to United Nations peacekeeping missions, as well as in the formulation and implementation of governance and other reforms to be carried out in addressing the root causes of conflict in Africa.

The Council encourages the United Nations and the African Union to take concrete steps to strengthen their relationships and develop a more effective partnership when addressing issues of mutual interest and underscores the need to enhance the United Nations and African Union predeployment joint planning and joint mission assessment processes to promote common understanding and increase effectiveness of peacekeeping missions.

The Council calls upon the Secretary-General to coordinate with and support the African Union Commission in its development of a list of needed capacities and recommendations on ways the African Union can further develop its military, civilian, police, technical, logistic and administrative capabilities, welcomes the practice of staff exchanges, especially between the United Nations and the African Union, and encourages its continuity, particularly for staff in the financial and logistic areas, and further encourages the African Union to identify its priorities in personnel training, particularly in those areas dealing with financial, logistic and administrative matters.

The Council notes the progress in the level and process of preparation for the eighth joint consultative meeting of the Security Council and the Peace and Security Council, held on 6 June 2014 in New York, including the finalization in advance of the agenda for the annual consultative meeting and the joint press briefing by the President of the Security Council and the Chairperson of the Peace and Security Council, and recommends that the ninth consultative meeting, scheduled to take place in Addis Ababa in 2015, address the issue of follow-up to and implementation of previous communiqués.

The Security Council welcomes the adoption of the Fiftieth Anniversary Solemn Declaration by African leaders on 26 May 2013, pledging to “end all wars in Africa by 2020” and “achieve the goal of a conflict-free Africa”, expresses its readiness to contribute and calls upon all, in particular relevant United Nations entities to help to achieve this goal, including by considering defining a concrete five-year actionable plan in support of the goal of achieving a conflict-free Africa by 2020. The Council notes in that regard that instability and violence in the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Libya, the Sahel, Mali, Somalia, South Sudan and Sudan need to be addressed and resolved as a matter of urgency.

The Council recognizes the important role of the good offices of the Secretary-General in Africa, and encourages the Secretary-General to continue to use mediation as often as possible to help to resolve conflicts peacefully, working in coordination and closely with the African Union and its subregional organizations in that regard, as appropriate.

The Council takes note of the election of the new five members of the African Union Panel of the Wise and acknowledges the key preventive role that the Panel can play, and calls for increased political support to the Panel in the implementation of its mandate, and encourages the Panel's early engagement in deteriorating situations at risk of conflict.

The Council stresses the importance of strengthened African Union and United Nations capacities for early warning, conflict analysis, dialogue and mediation and increased African Union-United Nations collaboration in the area of good offices and between United Nations-African Union Envoys. The Council underscores the need to allocate resources to support and strengthen the Continental Early Warning System, the good offices role of Special Envoys and Representatives, as well as post-conflict reconstruction and development efforts, including through the African Solidarity Initiative.

The Council stresses the importance of a coordinated international response to causes of conflict and recognizes the need for the development of effective long-term strategies and emphasizes the need for all United Nations organs and agencies to pursue preventive strategies and to take action within their respective areas of competence to assist Member States and regional and subregional organizations to eradicate poverty, strengthen development cooperation and assistance and promote respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms.

The Council welcomes recent developments regarding cooperation between the United Nations, the African Union and the European Union, including the contribution of the European Union to the enhancement of African Union capacities, and further encourages regional and subregional organizations to strengthen and increase cooperation among them, including efforts to enhance their respective capacities, in the maintenance of international peace and security.

The Council reaffirms its previous resolutions and the statements by its President regarding the Prodi report, including the statements of 26 October 2009, 22 October 2010 and 6 August 2013, as well as resolutions 1809(2008), 1863(2009), 2033(2012), 2086(2013) and 2167(2014).

The Council stresses the need to secure more financial resources from within the African continent, without prejudice to the support from the United Nations and other partners.

The Council reiterates its resolve to give peacekeeping operations clear, credible and achievable mandates matched by appropriate resources.

The Council stresses the need to enhance the predictability, sustainability and flexibility of financing regional organizations when they undertake peacekeeping under a Council mandate, and recognizes the benefit of joint planning missions and assessment visits in determining the needs of regional peace support operations.

The Council welcomes the renewed efforts of the African Union for the full operationalization of the African Peace and Security Architecture, and looks forward to the finalization of the ongoing Architecture assessment report, as well as to the successful conduct in 2015 of the Amani Africa II Exercise, which will validate the full operational capability of the African Standby Force.

The Council welcomes the steps taken for the operationalization of the African Capacity for Immediate Response to Crises, including through enhanced decision-making to facilitate rapid deployment.

The Council stresses the importance for the United Nations of developing the ability of the African Union and its subregional organizations to deploy peacekeeping forces rapidly in support of United Nations peacekeeping operations or other Council-mandated operations, and welcomes recent initiatives taken in this regard by the African Union.

The Council takes note of the commitments made by the European Union and Africa at the European Union-Africa Summit held in Brussels on 2 and 3 April 2014 to strengthen the operationalization of the African Peace and Security Architecture, in particular by supporting the African Standby Force and its Rapid Deployment Capacity, supported and managed in a sustainable way, as reaffirmed by the European Union Political and Security Committee and the African Union Peace and Security Council in Brussels on 15 May 2014. The Security Council further encourages initiatives aimed at creating more synergies between the African Union, the European Union and the United Nations in this endeavour, and further takes note of close cooperation between the European Union and the African Union, with the relevant regional and subregional organizations, the United Nations and its agencies, and with other international co-ordination mechanisms. The Council commends all the efforts already achieved by the European Union to this end and further welcomes the expressed intention of the European Union to allocate increased funding, including through the African Peace Facility.

The Council also takes note of the first African Union-China Strategic Dialogue for Peace and Security in Africa, launched in October 2014, which considers further cooperation measures in the peace and security area, including supporting the African Capacity for Immediate Response to Crises.

The Council further takes note of the first United States of America-Africa Leaders Summit and welcomes the announcement of the African Peacekeeping Rapid Response Partnership, which seeks to strengthen the capabilities of African countries to rapidly deploy peacekeepers in response to emerging conflict.

The Council requests the Secretary-General to present an annual report to the Council on ways to strengthen the partnership between the United Nations and the African Union on issues of peace and security in Africa, including the work of the United Nations Office to the African Union.

European Union

Security Council consideration. On 14 February [S/PV.7112], the High Representative of the European Union (EU) for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy briefed the Council on cooperation between the United Nations and the EU in maintaining international peace and security. She described the contribution of the EU as threefold: direct involvement in international negotiations on behalf of the international community; capacity to implement a comprehensive approach and use a wide range of tools to solve crises; and close work with international and regional partners. The High Representative reiterated the commitment of the EU to support and work for effective multilateralism, with the United Nations at its core, in search of lasting solutions to critical international peace and security challenges.

The Secretary-General underlined the importance of establishing stronger partnerships with regional organizations and their critical role in maintaining international peace and security, including in conflict prevention, mediation, crisis management, peacekeeping, conflict resolution and peacebuilding. He stated that UN cooperation with the EU stretched across agenda and around the world and that the EU had been a valuable partner to the Peacebuilding Commission, a champion of human rights and a steadfast partner in promoting the Millennium Development Goals, advancing gender equality and tackling climate change.

On 14 February [meeting 7112], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/4 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council recalls the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and reaffirms its primary responsibility under the Charter for the maintenance of international peace and security.

The Council reiterates that cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations and arrangements in matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security, and consistent with Chapter VIII of the Charter, can improve collective security.

The Council welcomes the briefing by the High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy of the European Union, Baroness Ashton, and commends the significant contribution that the European Union makes in support of the maintenance of international peace and security.

The Council commends the involvement of the European Union in international negotiations and mediation, in particular:

(a) The Council welcomes the joint plan of action of 24 November 2013 agreed by the European Union three plus three and the Islamic Republic of Iran that entered into force on 20 January 2014 and notes the coordinating role of the European Union in reaching an agreement on the joint plan of action. The Council emphasizes the importance of further diplomatic efforts to find a comprehensive negotiated solution that would ensure that the Islamic Republic of Iran's nuclear programme will be exclusively peaceful, in accordance with the resolutions of the Council;

(b) The Council welcomes the significant contribution of the European Union to the economic development and stabilization of the Western Balkans region in order to further promote democracy, economic prosperity, stability and regional cooperation, in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the Council, and calls upon all the parties for further constructive engagement.

The Council welcomes the comprehensive approach of the European Union to the maintenance of international peace and security, and commends the European Union and its member States for their ongoing commitment to international peacekeeping, peacebuilding, humanitarian assistance and financial as well as logistical support, in particular:

(a) The Council commends the role of the European Union in combating piracy off the coast of Somalia, notably through Operation Atalanta and through EUCAP Nestor development of seagoing maritime security capacities in the region, and in this regard the Council commends the European Union's current chairmanship of the Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia. The Council welcomes the effort of the European Union to contribute to the stabilization of Somalia, in particular by training Somali security forces through the European Union Training Mission in Somalia, and its significant contribution to the African Union Mission in Somalia;

(b) The Council welcomes the strong engagement of the European Union in the Central African Republic, notably its humanitarian assistance, its financial contribution to the deployment of the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic, as well as the decision to establish a temporary operation to support the Mission. The Council notes the importance of coordination mechanisms between the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic and the Mission and the European Union operation in the Central African Republic;

(c) The Council welcomes the support of the European Union for the objectives and missions of the United Nations in Mali and the broader Sahel region, as set out in the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel, notably through the work of the European Union Training Mission in Mali in cooperation with the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, as well as its broader efforts in the region, through the European Union Strategy for Security and Development in the Sahel and the EUCAP Sahel Niger mission.

The Council notes the extensive cooperation between the European Union and the United Nations, in particular:

(a) The Council welcomes the significant humanitarian assistance by the European Union to the affected people in the Syrian Arab Republic and in neighbouring countries, and welcomes its timely in-kind support to the rapid establishment of the Joint Mission of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the United Nations for the Elimination of the Chemical Weapons Programme of the Syrian Arab Republic. The Council and the European Union reiterate their shared objectives in promoting and facilitating the political solution to the Syrian conflict based on the full implementation of the Geneva communiqué of 30 June 2012.

(b) The Council notes the role of the European Union in the meeting of the Middle East Quartet Principals held in Munich, Germany, on 1 February 2014 and reiterates its commitment to a just, lasting and comprehensive peace in the Middle East;

(c) The Council welcomes the contribution of the European Union in promoting security, governance and development in Afghanistan, in particular the assistance for the development of the Afghan National Police and rule of law institutions accomplished through the European Union Police Mission in Afghanistan and the European Gendarmerie Force.

The Council commends the role of the European Union in supporting the United Nations operations in the areas of mutual concern, in particular:

(a) The Council welcomes the ongoing cooperation in strengthening the United Nations response in promoting development cooperation and the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms;

(b) The Council recognizes the valuable support of the European Union on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, in particular its work on protecting women and children affected by armed conflict, as well as its engagement in the prevention of and protection from sexual violence and its support for the critical role that women play in all peace and security efforts, including those to prevent and resolve conflict and mitigate its impact;

(c) The Council recalls that justice and the rule of law are of key importance for promoting and maintaining peace, stability and development. In this regard, the Council highlights that the European Union can contribute to accountability through support for enhancing the capacity of the national justice systems, as appropriate, and through cooperation with international mechanisms, courts and tribunals, including the International Criminal Court.

The Council welcomes the close cooperation between the United Nations and the European Union and encourages both organizations to further strengthen their institutional relations and strategic partnership, including through regular briefings by the High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy of the European Union to the Council.

Captain Mbaye Diagne Medal for Exceptional Courage

On 8 May, the Council adopted resolution 2154(2014) (see below), by which it created a medal to honour those military, police and civilian United Nations or associated personnel who demonstrated exceptional courage in the face of extreme danger. The medal was named after a Senegalese military officer, Mbaye Diagne, who saved the lives of many Rwandans during the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi, during which Hutu and others were also killed. Captain Diagne lost his life while serving with the United Nations Assistance Mission for Rwanda (UNAMIR).

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 8 May [meeting 7170], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2154(2014). The draft [S/2014/318] was submitted by Argentina, Australia, Chad, Chile, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, the Russian Federation, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling Article 24 of the Charter of the United Nations, which confers upon the Security Council the primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Recognizing the medals presented by the United Nations to those men and women in uniform who serve in United Nations field operations, and recalling its resolution 1121(1997) of 22 July 1997 establishing the Dag Hammarskjöld Medal as a tribute to the sacrifice of those who have lost their own lives as a result of service in peacekeeping operations under the operational control and authority of the United Nations,

Recalling the fundamental principles of United Nations peacekeeping, as well as other relevant principles of the United Nations activities on the ground,

Noting with deep appreciation how Captain Mbaye Diagne, of Senegal, of the United Nations Assistance Mission for Rwanda, saved, unarmed and in the face of extreme danger, hundreds of, perhaps even a thousand, Rwandans from death, during the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which Hutu and others who opposed the genocide were also killed,

Recognizing with the deepest regret how the family of Captain Diagne never received, after his death, any expressions of appreciation from the Headquarters of the United Nations for the sacrifices made by their distinguished family member,

Remembering the many other acts of bravery that military, police and civilian United Nations personnel and associated personnel have undertaken, while fulfilling the mandate of their missions or their functions, at great risk to their lives,

1. Decides to create the “Captain Mbaye Diagne Medal for Exceptional Courage”, to be awarded to those military, police and civilian United Nations personnel and associated personnel who demonstrate exceptional courage in the face of extreme danger, while fulfilling the mandate of their missions or their functions, in the service of humanity and the United Nations;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to establish within six months after the adoption of the present resolution the design of the medal, and to submit in due course to the Security Council the modalities for determining how the recipients of the medal shall be nominated and chosen, based on the criteria set forth in the previous paragraph;

3. Requests that the medal be presented by the Secretary-General to the recipient, or next of kin, in a ceremony to which all States Members of the United Nations shall be invited;

4. Decides that the medal will be ready for investiture within six months of the establishment of its modalities and the administrative management of the award will be provided by the Secretariat.

Conflict prevention

Security Council consideration. On 21 August [S/PV.7247], the Security Council convened an open debate on conflict prevention. It had before it a concept note [S/2014/572] prepared by the United Kingdom.

The Secretary-General highlighted the importance of early action in conflict prevention, as well as the need to improve skills, learn from collective mistakes, and foster partnerships and coalitions. There was no more important challenge than improving the ability to reach stronger and earlier consensus.

The UN High Commissioner for Human Rights noted that conflict prevention was complex but achievable, and that human rights were central to conflict prevention, as patterns of violations provided early warning of escalation.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 21 August [meeting 7247], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2171(2014). The draft [S/2014/605] was submitted by Australia, Chad, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling all its previous resolutions and the statements by its President on the prevention of armed conflict, preventive diplomacy, mediation and the peaceful settlement of disputes, in particular resolutions 1366(2001) of 30 August 2001 and 1625(2005) of 14 September 2005 and the statements by its President of 22 February 1995, 30 November 1999, 20 July 2000, 13 May 2003, 20 September 2005, 21 April 2009, 22 September 2011 and 15 April 2013,

Recalling also the determination of the peoples of the United Nations to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights,

Recalling further all purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security, and acting in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter,

Reaffirming the continuing commitment of the Council to addressing the prevention of armed conflicts in all regions of the world,

Expressing its determination to enhance the effectiveness of the United Nations in preventing and ending armed conflicts, their escalation, spread when they occur, and their resurgence once they end,

Recalling that the prevention of conflict remains a primary responsibility of States, and further recalling their primary responsibility to protect civilians and to respect and ensure the human rights of all individuals within their territory and subject to their jurisdiction, as provided for by relevant international law, and further reaffirming the responsibility of each individual State to protect its populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity,

Acknowledging the role that civil society can play in contributing to conflict prevention,

Reiterating the need for a comprehensive approach to conflict prevention and sustainable peace, which comprises operational and structural measures for the prevention of armed conflict and addresses its root causes, including through strengthening the rule of law at the international and national levels and promoting sustained economic growth, poverty eradication, social development, sustainable development, national reconciliation, good governance, democracy, gender equality and respect for and protection of human rights,

Calling attention to the importance of early awareness and consideration of situations which may deteriorate into armed conflicts, and emphasizing that the United Nations, including the Council, should heed early warning indications of potential conflict and ensure prompt and effective action to prevent, contain or end conflicts, in accordance with the Charter,

Underlining the overriding moral, political and humanitarian imperatives as well as the economic advantages of preventing the outbreak, continuation, escalation or relapse into conflict,

Deeply concerned by the high human cost and suffering caused by armed conflicts, as well as the material and economic costs to the countries directly affected, the wider region and the international community, including through the inclusive rebuilding of States and societies in the aftermath of armed conflict, and recognizing that peace, security and development are mutually reinforcing, including in the prevention of armed conflict,

Affirming that a comprehensive conflict prevention strategy should include early warning, preventive diplomacy, mediation, preventive deployment, peacekeeping, practical disarmament and other measures to contribute to combating the proliferation of and illicit trade in arms, accountability measures as well as inclusive post-conflict peacebuilding, and recognizing that these components are interdependent, complementary and non-sequential,

Emphasizing the critical role of peacebuilding and the Peacebuilding Commission in support of countries emerging from conflict, in particular through the mobilization of sustained international support to critical national capacity needs,

Stressing the essential role of the Secretary-General in the prevention of armed conflict, including through early warning,

Stressing also the importance of the efforts of the Secretary-General to enhance his role, in accordance with Article 99 of the Charter,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General entitled "Preventive diplomacy: delivering results" and the recommendations contained therein on steps to maximize the prospects of success in United Nations preventive diplomacy efforts,

Noting that terrorism is an important element in an increasing number of conflict situations and that countering incitement to terrorism motivated by extremism and intolerance, and addressing the conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, can complement conflict prevention efforts,

Stressing the importance of accountability in preventing future conflicts, avoiding the recurrence of serious violations of international law, including international humanitarian law and human rights law, and enabling sustainable peace, justice, truth and reconciliation, and emphasizing in this context the responsibility of States to comply with their relevant obligations to end impunity and, to that end, to thoroughly investigate and prosecute persons responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes or other serious violations of international humanitarian law and international human rights law,

Stressing also that the fight against impunity and to ensure accountability for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and other egregious crimes has been strengthened through the work on and prosecution of these crimes in the international criminal justice system, ad hoc and mixed tribunals as well as specialized chambers in national tribunals; and recognizing in this regard the contribution of the International Criminal Court, in accordance with the principle of complementarity to national criminal jurisdictions as set out in the Rome Statute of the Court, towards holding accountable those responsible for such crimes; and reiterating its call upon the importance of State cooperation with these courts and tribunals in accordance with the States' respective obligations,

Reaffirming the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding, and reiterating its call to increase the equal, full and meaningful participation, representation and involvement of women in conflict prevention and mediation efforts in a mutually reinforcing manner in line with resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013,

1. Expresses its determination to pursue the objective of prevention of armed conflict as an integral part of its primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security;

2. Calls upon all States to intensify efforts to secure a world free of the scourge of war and conflict;

3. Stresses that the prevention of conflicts remains a primary responsibility of States and actions undertaken within the framework of conflict prevention by the United Nations should support and complement, as appropriate, the conflict prevention roles of national Governments;

4. Reaffirms the duty of all States to settle their international disputes by peaceful means, inter alia through negotiation, enquiry, good offices, mediation, conciliation, arbitration and judicial settlement, or other peaceful means of their own choice;

5. Recalls Chapter VI, in particular Articles 33 and 34, of the Charter of the United Nations, and reaffirms its commitment to the settlement of disputes by peaceful means and the promotion of necessary preventive action in response to disputes or situations, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security;

6. Recognizes that some of the tools in Chapter VI of the Charter, which can be used for conflict prevention, have not been fully utilized, including negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement and resort to regional and subregional organizations and arrangements, as well as the good offices of the Secretary-General, and stresses its determination to make and call for the greater and more effective use of such tools;

7. Acknowledges the important role the following can play in contributing to the prevention of the outbreak, escalation, continuation and recurrence of conflict:

- United Nations regional offices;
- Special political missions;
- Peacekeeping operations;
- The Peacebuilding Commission;

as well as regional and subregional organizations and arrangements;

8. Also acknowledges that sanctions imposed under relevant provisions of the Charter are an important tool in the maintenance and restoration of international peace and security and can contribute to create conditions conducive to the peaceful resolution of situations that threaten or breach international peace and security, and support conflict prevention;

9. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue enhancing the use of his good offices, dispatching Representatives, Special Envoys and mediators, to help to facilitate durable, inclusive and comprehensive settlements, and further encourages the Secretary-General to continue his early engagement in the prevention of potential conflicts;

10. Encourages field-based special political missions and peacekeeping operations to enhance their assessment and analysis capabilities to prevent relapse into conflict within their existing mandates;

11. Recognizes that mediation is an important means for the pacific settlement of disputes, including, wherever possible, preventively and before disputes evolve into violence, and appreciates the efforts of the Secretary-General to continue to strengthen United Nations mediation support capacities, including the Mediation Support Unit as a provider of mediation support to the United Nations system, in accordance with agreed mandates;

12. Expresses its willingness to give prompt consideration to early warning cases brought to its attention by the Secretary-General, including to the dispatch, in appropriate circumstances, of preventive political missions, and encourages the Secretary-General to bring to its attention any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security, in accordance with Article 99 of the Charter;

13. Acknowledges that serious abuses and violations of international human rights or humanitarian law, including sexual and gender-based violence, can be an early indication of a descent into conflict or escalation of conflict, as well as a consequence thereof; and calls upon States which have not already done so to consider ratifying the instruments of international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law and to take appropriate steps to implement these instruments domestically, which could contribute to timely prevention of conflicts;

14. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to refer to the Security Council information and analyses which he believes could contribute to the prevention of armed conflict, including on cases of serious violations of international law, including international humanitarian law and human rights law, and on potential conflict situations arising, inter alia, from ethnic, religious and territorial disputes, poverty and lack of development;

15. Expresses its commitment to take early and effective action to prevent armed conflict and to that end to employ all appropriate means at its disposal, in accordance with the provisions of the Charter;

16. Recalls the important role of the Special Advisers to the Secretary-General on the Prevention of Genocide and on the Responsibility to Protect, whose functions include acting as an early warning mechanism to prevent potential situations that could result in genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and ethnic cleansing, as well as the important role the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict can play in contributing to conflict prevention; calls upon States to recommit to prevent and fight against genocide and other serious crimes under international law, and reaffirms paragraphs 138 and 139 of the 2005 World Summit Outcome on the responsibility to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity;

17. Recognizes the important role the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Office of the Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide can play in conflict prevention, and also recognizes the role their briefings on human rights violations and hate speech play in contributing to early awareness of potential conflict;

18. Emphasizes the important role that women and civil society, including women's organizations and formal and informal community leaders, can play in exerting influence over parties to armed conflict; and reiterates the continuing need to increase success in preventing conflict by increasing the participation of women at all stages of mediation and post-conflict resolution and by increasing the consideration of gender-related issues in all discussions pertinent to conflict prevention;

19. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General and his Special Envoys and Special Representatives to United Nations missions, as part of their regular briefings, to update the Council on progress in inviting women to participate, including through consultations with civil society, including women's organizations, in discussions pertinent to the prevention and resolution of conflict, the maintenance of peace and security and post-conflict peacebuilding;

20. Expresses its commitment to consider and use the tools of the United Nations system to ensure that early warning of potential conflicts translates into early, concrete preventive action, including towards the goal of protecting civilians, by or in coordination with the most appropriate United Nations or regional actor, in accordance with the Charter;

21. Encourages the peaceful settlement of local disputes through regional arrangements in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter, acknowledges the efforts undertaken to strengthen operational and institutional cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations aimed at conflict prevention, and in this regard reiterates the need to continue strengthening strategic dialogue, partnerships and more regular exchanges of views and information at the working level, with the aim of building national and regional capacities in relation to preventive diplomacy;

22. Calls for enhanced cooperation and capacity-building with regional and subregional organizations and arrangements to help to prevent armed conflicts, their spread and impact, including through cooperation in early warning mechanisms, as well as to help to facilitate preventive action, consistent with Chapter VIII of the Charter;

23. Reiterates its support for the work of the Peacebuilding Commission, and expresses its continued willingness to make use of the advisory, advocacy and resource mobilization roles of the Commission in peacebuilding activities;

24. Reaffirms its willingness to strengthen its relationship with civil society, including, as appropriate, through, inter alia, meetings in an informal and flexible manner with civil society, to exchange analyses and perspectives on the issue of the prevention of armed conflict;

25. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the Council on actions taken by him to promote and strengthen conflict prevention tools within the United Nations system, including through cooperation with regional and subregional organizations, by 31 August 2015;

26. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the Assembly decided that the item on the prevention of armed conflict would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Mediation and settlement of disputes

In July, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 66/291 [YUN 2012, p. 35], the General Assembly considered the agenda item “Strengthening the role of mediation in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution”.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 31 July [meeting 105], the General Assembly adopted resolution 68/303 [draft: A/68/L.55 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 33 (b)].

Strengthening the role of mediation in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 65/283 of 22 June 2011 and 66/291 of 13 September 2012 on strengthening the role of mediation in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, and all other relevant General Assembly resolutions and Security Council resolutions and presidential statements related to mediation and to regional and subregional organizations,

Guided by the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming its commitment to respect the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of all States,

Recalling Chapter VI, including Article 33, of the Charter, and other Articles relevant to mediation, as well as Chapter VIII of the Charter and other Articles relevant to, inter alia, the role of regional and subregional organizations in mediation,

Bearing in mind its responsibilities, functions and powers under the Charter, and thus recalling all its relevant resolutions in matters related to the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, including through mediation,

Reaffirming the respective role and authority of the General Assembly and the Security Council in the maintenance of international peace and security in accordance with the Charter,

Acknowledging the efforts of the Security Council to promote cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, including through mediation, and encouraging the continued cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, as appropriate, in accordance with the Charter,

Reaffirming its commitment to uphold the sovereign equality of all States, respect for their territorial integrity and political independence and the duty of Member States to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes and principles of the United Nations, and to uphold the resolution of disputes by peaceful means and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, the right to self-determination of peoples which remain under colonial domination or foreign occupation, non-interference in the internal affairs of States, respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, respect for the equal rights of all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion, international cooperation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character and the fulfilment in good faith of the obligations assumed in accordance with the Charter,

Bearing in mind that armed and other types of conflicts and terrorism, in all its forms and manifestations, and hostage-taking still persist in many parts of the world,

Recalling that the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, in accordance with the Charter and international law, including through mediation, remain a primary responsibility of Member States without prejudice to Article 36 of the Charter,

Recognizing that responsible and credible mediation requires, inter alia, national ownership, the consent of parties to a particular dispute or conflict, the impartiality of the mediators, their compliance with agreed mandates, respect for national sovereignty, compliance with obligations of States and other relevant actors under international law, including applicable treaties, the operational preparedness, including process and substantive expertise, of the mediators, and coherence, coordination and complementarity of mediation efforts,

Emphasizing that justice and truth is a fundamental building block of sustainable peace,

Appreciating the efforts of the Secretary-General, the Member States, regional and subregional organizations and other relevant actors to promote the use of mediation, and in this regard taking note of the United Nations Guidance for Effective Mediation,

Stressing the need for Member States as well as the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations to continue to improve, as appropriate, their capacities in the pacific settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and conflict resolution, including mediation, for sustainable peace,

Recalling the good offices of the Secretary-General, and appreciating his efforts to continue to strengthen United Nations mediation support capacities, in accordance with agreed mandates,

Appreciating the partnerships and cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in the field of mediation and the efforts of the Secretary-General to work together with regional and subregional organizations to strengthen their mediation support capacities, upon request and in accordance with agreed mandates,

Encouraging the Secretary-General to support regional efforts and initiatives by Member States, as well as regional and subregional organizations, to promote mediation and to prevent and resolve conflicts, upon request and in accordance with agreed mandates,

Reaffirming the role of regional and subregional organizations in the maintenance of international peace and security, in line with provisions of Chapter VIII of the Charter, and taking note of their important role as mediators, within agreed mandates, in many regions, acting with the consent of parties to a particular dispute or conflict,

Acknowledging that regional and subregional organizations can benefit mediation efforts with their specific approaches stemming from their geographic, cultural and historical proximity to, as well as information about, specific local conflict situations within their mandates, and contribute to the prevention and resolution of such conflicts,

Recognizing the importance of the equal and effective participation and the full involvement of women at all levels, at all stages and in all aspects of the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, as well as the provision of adequate gender expertise for all mediators and their teams, noting that further efforts are necessary to appoint more women as chief or lead peace mediators, and in this context reaffirming the full and effective implementation of all relevant United Nations resolutions, including those on women, peace and security, and the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action, and furthermore welcoming the role of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women) in this respect,

Recognizing also national and civil society actors active in mediation, and encouraging their contributions and continued coordination to improve complementarity in mediation activities, when appropriate, in this regard,

Welcoming the increasing contribution by the African Union in efforts to settle conflicts of its members, and expressing its support for the peace initiatives conducted by the African regional and subregional organizations,

1. Reiterates that all Member States should strictly adhere to their obligations as laid down in the Charter of the United Nations, including in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution;

2. Welcomes the contributions of Member States, as well as of the United Nations and of regional and subregional organizations, to mediation efforts, as appropriate;

3. Invites Member States, as well as the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, as appropriate, to continue to optimize the use of mediation and other tools mentioned in Chapter VI of the Charter for the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution;

4. Encourages Member States, as well as the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, to continue to develop, where appropriate, their mediation capacities in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and conflict resolution;

5. Also encourages Member States, as well as the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations, to increase the awareness on the importance of mediation, as appropriate, through, inter alia, the organization of conferences, seminars and workshops, and in this regard welcomes regional initiatives to strengthen mediation in their regions, such as the “Mediation in the Mediterranean Initiative”;

6. Encourages the use, as appropriate, of the United Nations Guidance for Effective Mediation in mediation efforts, in accordance with the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter;

7. Encourages Member States and regional and subregional organizations to promote equal, full and effective participation of women in all forums and at all levels of the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, particularly the decision-making level;

8. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to appoint women as chief or lead mediators and as members of mediation teams in United Nations-sponsored peace processes, as well as to ensure adequate gender expertise for all United Nations processes, and invites similar efforts by Member States as well as by regional and subregional organizations;

9. Encourages Member States, as appropriate, to use the mediation capacities of the United Nations as well as those of regional and subregional organizations, where applicable, and to promote mediation in their bilateral and multilateral relations;

10. Invites all Member States to consider providing sustained political support, expertise and timely and adequate resources, including through the United Nations, for mediation and, as appropriate, for the implementation of agreed outcomes of mediation processes, in order to assure their success, as well as for mediation capacity-building activities of the United Nations and of regional and subregional organizations;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to offer his good offices, in accordance with the Charter and relevant United Nations resolutions, and to provide mediation support, where appropriate, to special representatives and envoys of the United Nations as well as to Member States and regional and subregional organizations, upon request;

12. Also requests the Secretary-General to continue to work with Member States and relevant regional and subregional organizations, upon request and in accordance with agreed mandates, in mediation capacity-building for the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution, including through training events and staff exchanges;

13. Encourages the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations to regularly hold dialogues on mediation upon mutually agreed agendas, exchange views, information and lessons learned and improve cooperation, coordination, coherence and complementarity in specific mediation contexts, in accordance with agreed mandates and as appropriate;

14. Stresses the importance of partnerships and cooperation of international, regional and subregional organizations with the United Nations, with each other and with civil society, and of developing mechanisms to improve information-sharing, cooperation and coordination, in order to ensure the coherence and complementarity of efforts of actors involved in a specific mediation context;

15. Emphasizes the importance of facilitating interaction by mediators between concerned parties and other stakeholders, as appropriate, as well as inclusive national processes in the implementation of the agreed outcomes of mediation processes;

16. Welcomes the efforts of regional and subregional organizations that have developed their mediation and conflict prevention and resolution capacities, structures and policy frameworks, and encourages other interested organizations, as mandated by their member States, to make similar efforts, as appropriate;

17. Encourages regional and subregional organizations to appoint, as appropriate, mediation focal points and to regularly communicate their contact information to the Secretary-General, and requests the Secretary-General to maintain and share this information with Member States and regional and subregional organizations, as appropriate;

18. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on cooperation between the United Nations and the regional and subregional organizations on mediation, as well as possible ways to enhance such cooperation, and to hold regular briefings in order to promote closer consultation with Member States as well as regional and subregional organizations and to increase transparency;

19. Invites the Secretary-General to continue to brief Member States on mediation activities of the United Nations;

20. Encourages regional and subregional organizations to further enhance their informal thematic exchange with the Member States on mediation-related issues, as appropriate and in accordance with the Charter;

21. Decides to continue its consideration of the question "Strengthening the role of mediation in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution" at its seventieth session.

Conflict diamonds

The Kimberley Process at its twelfth annual session (Guangzhou, China, 11–14 November), continued its work related to the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme (KPCS), which was established in 2003 [YUN 2003, p. 55] to stop the trade in diamonds from fuelling armed conflict, protect the legitimate diamond industry and ensure implementation of UN resolutions on trade in conflict diamonds. As at 1 December, KPCS had 54 members, representing 81 countries, including the 28 members of the EU.

In accordance with General Assembly resolution 68/128 [YUN 2013, p. 40], China, in its capacity as chair of the Kimberley Process, transmitted to the Secretary-General, on 28 November, the 2014 Kimberley Process report [A/69/622]. The report stated that since the implementation of KPCS in 2003, there had been a significant improvement in the security situation in several diamond-producing countries. In April, by resolution 2153(2014) (see p. 247), the Security Council decided to terminate the measures preventing the importation by any State of all rough diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire imposed by paragraph 6 of resolution 1643(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 251], and to encourage Côte d'Ivoire to develop its diamond sector in line with the Certification Scheme standards.

With regard to monitoring the trade in rough diamonds and cooperation in implementing and enforcing the Certification Scheme in West Africa, the Process continued to provide support to the Mano River Union countries.

Following resolution 2134(2014) (see p. 213), by which the Security Council expressed its concern that diamond smuggling and other illicit activities were destabilizing forces in the Central African Republic (CAR), the Kimberley Process adopted an administrative decision to ensure that diamonds from the CAR did not enter the legitimate trade. The Process also agreed to expand the mandate of the subgroup of the group of experts to include research on the origin of diamonds from that country.

In May, the Chair signed a memorandum of understanding with the World Diamond Council (WDC), ensuring that WDC would continue to function as the administrative support mechanism for the Process. In November, the Plenary of the Kimberley Process adopted an administrative decision on the participation of observers in the work of the Process (revised). The Working Group of Diamond Experts, the Working Group on Monitoring, and the Working Group on Statistics also amended their respective terms of reference.

The Plenary welcomed the submission of annual reports on Certification Scheme implementation in 2013 by 52 participants representing 79 countries. Australia, China, Guinea and Guyana each received a review mission in 2014; review missions were also planned for Armenia, Côte d'Ivoire, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Republic of the Congo, Togo and the EU. Angola would succeed China as Chair of the Process, effective 1 January 2015.

(For information on the import of rough diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire, and its Expert Group, see p. 252.)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 12 December [meeting 71], the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/136 [draft: A/69/L.39 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 31].

The role of diamonds in fuelling conflict: breaking the link between the illicit transaction of rough diamonds and armed conflict as a contribution to prevention and settlement of conflicts

The General Assembly,

Recognizing that the trade in conflict diamonds continues to be a matter of serious international concern, which can be directly linked to the fuelling of armed conflict, the activities of rebel movements aimed at undermining or overthrowing legitimate Governments and the illicit traffic in and proliferation of armaments, especially small arms and light weapons,

Recognizing also the devastating impact of conflicts fuelled by the trade in conflict diamonds on the peace, safety and security of people in affected countries, and the systematic and gross human rights violations that have been perpetrated in such conflicts,

Noting the negative impact of such conflicts on regional stability and the obligations placed upon States by the Charter of the United Nations regarding the maintenance of international peace and security,

Recognizing that continued action to curb the trade in conflict diamonds is imperative,

Noting with appreciation that the Kimberley Process, as an international initiative led by the Governments of participant States, has pursued its deliberations on an inclusive basis involving concerned stakeholders, including producing, exporting and importing States, the diamond industry and civil society, as well as applicant States and international organizations,

Recalling that the elimination of conflict diamonds from legitimate trade is the primary objective of the Kimberley Process, and stressing the need to continue its activities in order to achieve this objective,

Welcoming the important contribution of the Kimberley Process, which was initiated by African diamond-producing countries, and calling for the consistent implementation of commitments made by Kimberley Process participant States and the diamond industry and civil society organizations, as observers,

Acknowledging the successful role that the Kimberley Process has played in stemming the flow of conflict diamonds and the significant developmental impact it has had in improving the lives of people dependent on the trade in diamonds, and noting that the plenary meeting of the Process, in looking towards the future, committed to continue to ensure that the Process remains relevant as a credible tool in curbing the illegal flow of rough diamonds,

Acknowledging also that the diamond sector is an important catalyst for promoting economic and social development, which are necessary for poverty reduction and meeting the requirements of the Millennium Development Goals in many producing countries, particularly in developing countries,

Bearing in mind the positive benefits of the legitimate diamond trade to producing countries, and underlining the need for continued international action to prevent the problem of conflict diamonds from negatively affecting the trade in legitimate diamonds, which makes a critical contribution to the economies of the producing, exporting and importing States,

Noting that the vast majority of rough diamonds produced in the world are from legitimate sources,

Recalling the Charter and all the relevant resolutions of the Security Council related to conflict diamonds, and determined to contribute to and support the implementation of the measures provided for in those resolutions,

Recalling also Security Council resolution 1459(2003) of 28 January 2003, in which the Council strongly supported the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme as a valuable contribution against trafficking in conflict diamonds,

Noting with satisfaction that the implementation of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme continues to have a positive impact in reducing the opportunity for conflict diamonds to play a role in fuelling armed conflict and helps to protect legitimate trade and ensure the effective implementation of the relevant resolutions on trade in conflict diamonds,

Acknowledging that lessons learned from the Kimberley Process may be useful for the work of the Peacebuilding Commission in its consideration of the countries included in its agenda, as appropriate,

Recalling its resolutions 55/56 of 1 December 2000, 56/263 of 13 March 2002, 57/302 of 15 April 2003, 58/290 of 14 April 2004, 59/144 of 15 December 2004, 60/182 of 20 December 2005, 61/28 of 4 December 2006, 62/11 of 26 November 2007, 63/134 of 11 December 2008, 64/109 of 11 December 2009, 65/137 of 16 December 2010, 66/252 of 25 January 2012, 67/135 of 18 December 2012 and 68/128 of 18 December 2013, in which it called for the development and implementation as well as a periodic review of proposals for a simple, effective and pragmatic international certification scheme for rough diamonds,

Welcoming, in this regard, the implementation of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme in such a way as not to impede the legitimate trade in diamonds or impose an undue burden on Governments or industry, particularly smaller producers, nor hinder the development of the diamond industry,

Welcoming also the decision of the 54 Kimberley Process Participants, representing 81 countries, including the 28 States members of the European Union represented by the European Commission, to address the problem of conflict diamonds by participating in the Process and implementing the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme,

Noting the outcomes of the twelfth plenary meeting of the Kimberley Process, hosted in Guangzhou by China from 11 to 14 November 2014,

Welcoming the important contribution to fulfilling the purposes of the Kimberley Process that has been made and continues to be made by civil society organizations from across participant countries, and the diamond industry, in particular the World Diamond Council, which represents all aspects of the diamond industry in the Process, to assist international efforts to stop the trade in conflict diamonds,

Welcoming also the voluntary self-regulation initiatives for the diamond industry announced by the World Diamond Council, and recognizing that a system of such voluntary self-regulation contributes, as described in the Interlaken Declaration of 5 November 2002 on the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme for Rough Diamonds, to ensuring the effectiveness of national systems of internal control for rough diamonds,

Recognizing that State sovereignty should be fully respected and that the principles of equality, mutual benefits and consensus should be adhered to,

Recognizing also that the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, which came into effect on 1 January 2003, will be credible only if all Participants have the requisite national legislation coupled with effective and credible internal systems of control designed to eliminate the presence of conflict diamonds in the chain of producing, exporting and importing rough diamonds within their own territories and across their borders, while taking into account that differences in production methods and trading practices, as well as differences in the institutional controls thereof, may require different approaches to meeting minimum standards,

Welcoming the efforts to improve the normative framework of the Kimberley Process through the elaboration of new rules and procedural norms to regulate the activities of its working bodies, Participants and observers and the streamlining of the procedures for preparation and adoption of the decisions and documents of the Process, thereby enhancing the effectiveness of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme,

1. Reaffirms its strong and continuing support for the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme and the Kimberley Process as a whole;

2. Recognizes that the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme helps to ensure the effective implementation of relevant resolutions of the Security Council containing sanctions on the trade in conflict diamonds and contributes to the prevention of future conflicts fuelled by diamonds, and calls for the full implementation of existing Council measures targeting the illicit trade in rough diamonds, particularly conflict diamonds which play a role in fuelling conflict;

3. Also recognizes the important contributions that the international efforts to address the problem of conflict diamonds, including the Kimberley Process, have made to the settlement of conflicts and the consolidation of peace in Angola, Côte d'Ivoire, Liberia and Sierra Leone;

4. Notes the decision of the General Council of the World Trade Organization of 15 May 2003 granting a waiver with respect to the measures taken to implement the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, effective from 1 January 2003 to 31 December 2006, the decision of the General Council of 17 November 2006 granting an extension of the waiver until 31 December 2012, and the decision of the General Council of 11 December 2012 granting an extension of the waiver until 31 December 2018;

5. Takes note of the report of the Chair of the Kimberley Process submitted pursuant to General Assembly resolution 68/128, and congratulates the participating States and the European Union, the diamond industry and civil society organizations involved in the Process for contributing to the development, implementation and monitoring of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme;

6. Acknowledges the progress made by Kimberley Process working groups, Participants and observers during 2014 in fulfilling the objectives set by the Chair to strengthen implementation of the peer review system, increase the transparency and accuracy of statistics, promote research into the traceability of diamonds, promote inclusiveness by broadening the level of involvement by Governments, industry and civil society in the Process, foster a sense of ownership by Participants and observers, improve information and communication flows and enhance the capacity of the Process to respond to emerging challenges;

7. Notes that the annual reporting process on Kimberley Process Certification Scheme implementation is the main comprehensive and regular source of information on the implementation of the Process provided by Participants, and calls upon Participants to submit consistent and substantive annual reports in order to conform to this requirement;

8. Expresses appreciation to Australia, China, Guinea and Guyana for receiving review visits in 2014, welcomes the commitment of those countries to continuously open their certification systems to reviews and improvements, and calls upon other Participants to invite and receive review visits in accordance with the peer review system of the Kimberley Process;

9. Welcomes the efforts of the Kimberley Process to strengthen implementation, including the organization of a study tour hosted by Australia for representatives of Participants and observers in order to increase knowledge of best practices relating to the Process and develop a cadre of experts able to participate in review visits;

10. Acknowledges the efforts of the Kimberley Process to strengthen implementation and enforcement, and in particular to ensure the coordination of its actions in relation to the occurrence of fraudulent certificates, to apply vigilance and ensure the detection and reporting of shipments of suspicious origin and to facilitate the exchange of information in cases of infringement, encourages further collaboration among Participants and with relevant international organizations, including the World Customs Organization, in securing better import and export control and more transparency in the rough diamond supply chain, and welcomes the suggestion made by working bodies of the Process to consider relevant recommendations from the report of the Financial Action Task Force related to risks associated with the supply chain of rough diamonds, emphasizing that the Process already provides measures to mitigate against such vulnerabilities and risks;

11. Stresses that the widest possible participation in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme is essential, encourages Member States to contribute to the work of the Kimberley Process by seeking membership, participating actively in the Certification Scheme and complying with its undertakings, and acknowledges the importance of the increased involvement of civil society organizations in the Process;

12. Calls upon the Participants of the Kimberley Process to continue to articulate and improve rules and procedures to further enhance the effectiveness of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, and notes with satisfaction the systematization of the work of the Process with respect to developing transparent and uniform rules and procedures and improving the mechanism for consultations and coordination within the Process;

13. Notes with appreciation the willingness of Kimberley Process Participants and observers to support and provide technical assistance to those Participants experiencing temporary difficulties in complying with the requirements of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme;

14. Recognizes the impact of the Ebola epidemic on several Kimberley Process Participants, and welcomes the commitment of the Process to provide support and technical assistance to affected countries and diamond mining communities;

15. Also recognizes the importance of the Kimberley Process in promoting economic development, particularly in the artisanal and small-scale diamond mining sector, and encourages an increased focus on issues related to the implementation of the Washington Declaration on Integrating Development of Artisanal and Small Scale Diamond Mining with Kimberley Process Implementation of 2012, including through the work of the Diamond Development Initiative, within the framework of the Process;

16. Welcomes Security Council resolution 2153(2014) of 29 April 2014, in which the Council terminated measures outlined in its resolution 1643(2005) of 15 December 2005 to prevent the importation by any State of rough diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire and encouraged Côte d'Ivoire to host a Kimberley Process review visit within nine months of the date of the adoption of resolution 2153(2014), notes that, in its 2014 final communiqué, the plenary meeting of the Process accepted the invitation of Côte d'Ivoire to host a review visit in early 2015, in line with the timing and obligations set out in resolution 2153(2014), also notes that the review visit is planned for the beginning of March 2015, and encourages Côte d'Ivoire to continue to implement its transition strategy and post-embargo plan of action and to implement the recommendations in the review mission report;

17. Encourages the Friends of Côte d'Ivoire to continue to provide support to Côte d'Ivoire for the implementation of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, as well as for its continued participation in regional cooperation and law enforcement activities, such as the Mano River Basin initiative, as requested by the Security Council in its resolution 2153(2014);

18. Encourages the Kimberley Process to continue active collaboration with the United Nations Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire, established pursuant to Security Council resolution 1584(2005) of 1 February 2005, and with Côte d'Ivoire, aiming at the resumption of trade in rough diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire;

19. Welcomes the initiative of Kimberley Process Participants in West Africa to enhance their cooperation in Process implementation and policy harmonization by adopting a regional approach for the Mano River region, and encourages countries in the Mano River region, the technical team, the Property Rights and Artisanal Diamond Development project and other implementing partners to continue this work;

20. Notes that the plenary meeting of the Kimberley Process reaffirmed its administrative decision on ensuring that diamonds from the Central African Republic are not introduced into the legitimate trade, as approved by written procedure on 11 July 2014, acknowledges progress made by the Central African Republic on the implementation of its workplan and road map for addressing issues of non-compliance with Kimberley Process Certification Scheme minimum requirements and strengthening its internal control system, and encourages the Central African Republic to continue working closely with the African Union, relevant United Nations bodies, in particular the Panel of Experts established pursuant to Security Council resolution 2127(2013) of 5 December 2013, the international community and neighbouring countries on Certification Scheme compliance issues;

21. Welcomes the efforts of the Kimberley Process to strengthen implementation and technical cooperation, including in the export of a shipment of rough diamonds from the Central African Republic to South Africa to update the Central African Republic footprinting analysis and work on a fingerprinting analysis;

22. Notes the decision of the plenary meeting regarding the participation of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela in the Kimberley Process, welcomes the special efforts made by China, as Chair of the Kimberley Process, in relation to this matter, and invites the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela to continue its efforts towards full reintegration into the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme through the steps outlined in the Kimberley Process communiqué of 30 November 2012;

23. Notes with appreciation the role played by the Kimberley Process Administrative Support Mechanism, with the World Diamond Council acting as host for 2014;

24. Notes the commitment of the Kimberley Process to continue dialogue on decision-making and on the definition of "conflict diamonds", in accordance with the final communiqué of the plenary meeting held in Johannesburg in November 2013;

25. Acknowledges that the plenary meeting of the Kimberley Process adopted amendments to the administrative decision on the participation of observers in the work of the Process, clarifying the nature of the participation of observers in the Process and the procedure for the participation of their representatives in the events and/or activities of the Process;

26. Notes with appreciation the continued support provided by the Antwerp World Diamond Centre for the further development of the Kimberley Process website, which has been enhanced significantly to make it a more efficient and effective tool;

27. Reaffirms the importance of the tripartite nature of the Kimberley Process, and welcomes the commitment of the plenary meeting to continue its constructive engagement with civil society in recognition of the important role that civil society plays in the Process;

28. Encourages further improvement in enforcement of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, and notes the new efforts made to increase information-sharing and collaboration in enforcement;

29. Acknowledges with great appreciation the important contribution that China, as Chair of the Kimberley Process in 2014, has made to curbing the trade in conflict diamonds, welcomes the selection of Angola as Chair of the Kimberley Process for 2015, and takes note with appreciation of the commitments made by Angola to further consolidate the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme;

30. Requests the Chair of the Kimberley Process to submit to the General Assembly at its seventieth session a report on the implementation of the Process;

31. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "The role of diamonds in fuelling conflict".

Peacemaking and peacebuilding

Post-conflict peacebuilding

Security Council consideration. On 19 March [S/PV.7143], the Council held a briefing on post-conflict peacebuilding. The Deputy Secretary-General briefed the Council on progress made in the implementation of the Secretary-General's 2012 report [YUN 2012, p. 43] on peacebuilding in the aftermath of conflict. He appealed to the Council to take advantage of the review of the United Nations peacebuilding architecture in 2015 to shape a Peacebuilding Commission that would be relevant, catalytic and effective, and in the interests of the States affected.

Report of Secretary-General. Pursuant to Security Council presidential statement S/PRST/2012/29 [YUN 2012, p. 44], the Secretary-General, in September, submitted a progress report [A/69/399-S/2014/694] on peacebuilding in the aftermath of conflict, which addressed three priorities: inclusivity, institution-building, and sustained international support and mutual accountability.

Since the Secretary-General's 2012 report, the United Nations had made significant gains in assisting countries to consolidate peace after conflict despite challenges. A number of countries, including Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea and Tunisia, which were recovering from periods of violent conflict or political crisis, were developing more stable institutions and inclusive political systems. The closure of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone (UNIPSIL) and the Organization's transition to a country team-only presence at the end of March 2014 underscored the progress achieved. The eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo and Somalia, among others, were starting to emerge from decades of violence and instability, yet faced immense challenges developing institutions and achieving social cohesion. The international community continued to grapple with relapses into violent conflict in the Central African Republic and South Sudan.

The Secretary-General stressed the importance of mechanisms for inclusive politics in post-conflict transitions. The promotion of inclusive politics was integral to genuine national ownership of peacebuilding efforts and strategies. Mechanisms for effective public participation were also critical in the reform of core State institutions. Further advancing women's participation in post-conflict political and development processes remained a top priority.

Building strong and effective institutions remained a core element of post-conflict peace consolidation and a critical task for the UN system. Effective, legitimate and accountable State institutions that delivered public services reduced incentives for violent conflict and strengthened the State's resilience in the face of possible renewed violence.

Post-conflict peacebuilding relied heavily on predictable financial, technical and political support and required coherence among a wide spectrum of actors. The transnational dimensions of conflicts, including the cross-border movement of weapons, combatants and illicit financial and natural resource flows, made regional involvement in support of post-conflict stability essential.

The Secretary-General concluded by highlighting priorities that the United Nations, Member States and the wider international community should collectively focus on, including sustaining financial, technical and political support to post-conflict countries; expanding collaboration with the World Bank and regional development banks to support the effective extension of State authority and the strengthening of public financial management; emphasizing the critical role of regional actors and neighbouring countries in creating environments conducive to sustainable peace for countries emerging from violent conflict; designing compacts to strengthen political accompaniment of national commitments; and facilitating political support for inclusive institution-building. The Secretary-General urged Member States to take advantage of the 2015 review of the peacebuilding architecture to ensure that it better served the needs of countries emerging from conflict and that collective efforts to prevent their relapse into conflict were more successful.

Civilian capacity in the aftermath of conflict

In January, the Secretary-General submitted a report [A/68/696-S/2014/5 & Corr.1] highlighting the key results achieved since his last report [YUN 2012, p. 46] in building national institutions and capacities in the aftermath of conflict, and lessons learned and plans to: improve support to institution-building, grounded on national ownership; broaden and deepen the pool of civilian expertise available for peacebuilding; and enhance regional, South-South and triangular cooperation. The Secretary-General stated that the report was the final one of the civilian capacities initiative and marked the beginning of a concerted effort across the UN system to apply key lessons on institution-building and deepen partnerships with Member States and other key actors.

In March [A/68/784], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Question (ACABQ) reiterated that the different elements described in the context of the civilian capacity initiative and the related reports did not outline precise programmatic, administrative or budgetary implications. The Committee noted the intention of the Secretary-General to phase out the stand-alone team. The Committee's comments and recommendations also covered issues such as national ownership in the development of civilian capacities, partnerships and expertise, and financial and managerial agility.

On 30 June, the General Assembly, by decision 68/549 C, deferred consideration of reports of the Secretary-General and ACABQ on the review of the efficiency of the administrative and financial functioning of the United Nations: civilian capacity [YUN 2012, p. 46], until its sixty-ninth (2014) session.

Rule of law

Report of Secretary-General. Pursuant to Assembly resolution 68/116 [YUN 2013, p. 1349], the Secretary-General submitted a July report [A/69/181] on strengthening and coordinating United Nations rule of law activities. The report highlighted UN rule of law activities and developments at the national and international levels over the past year, and included illustrative examples of the range of work covered by the UN entities that were members of the Rule of Law Coordination and Resource Group. It contained information on the implementation of measures to enhance the coordination and coherence of the work of the United Nations relating to the rule of law. It also included a section devoted to UN activities to enhance access to justice, in view of the General Assembly's focus during its sixty-ninth session on the subtopic "Sharing States' national practices in strengthening the rule of law through access to justice".

On 15 September (decision 68/662), the Assembly decided to consider the addendum [A/68/213/Add.1] to the report of the Secretary-General on strengthening and coordinating United Nations rule of law activities [YUN 2013, p. 1348] at its sixty-ninth (2014) session under the item entitled "The rule of law at the national and international levels".

Security Council consideration. On 19 February [S/PV.7113], the Council held an open debate on the promotion and strengthening of the rule of law in the maintenance of international peace and security. It had before it a concept note [S/2014/75] submitted by Lithuania and the Secretary-General's 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 43] on measuring the effectiveness of the support provided by the UN system for the promotion of the rule of law in conflict and post-conflict situations. The Secretary-General briefed the Council on issues covered in his report and stressed that rule of law was intrinsically linked to peace and security. The strengthening of the rule of law was an integral part of the mandates of peacekeeping operations and special political missions, which were providing national authorities with wide-ranging support, from constitution-making to strengthening police, justice and corrections institutions, and from anti-corruption efforts to those ensuring justice and accountability for gender-based crimes.

On 21 February [meeting 7115], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/5 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms the statement by its President of 19 January 2012 and its continued recognition of the need for universal adherence to and implementation of the rule of law, as well as emphasis on the vital importance it attaches to promoting justice and the rule of law as an indispensable element for peaceful coexistence and the prevention of armed conflict.

The Council further reaffirms its commitment to international law and the Charter of the United Nations and to an international order based on the rule of law and international law, which are essential for cooperation among States in addressing common challenges, thus contributing to the maintenance of international peace and security.

The Council recalls the declaration of the high-level meeting of the General Assembly on the rule of law at the national and international levels, held on 24 September 2012.

The Council underscores that sustainable peace requires an integrated approach based on coherence between political, security, development, human rights, including gender equality, and rule of law and justice activities. In this regard the Council emphasizes the importance of the rule of law as one of the key elements of conflict prevention, peacekeeping, conflict resolution and peacebuilding.

The Council reaffirms the primary responsibility of national authorities in identifying their priorities and strategies for post-conflict peacebuilding, and in this regard reiterates that national ownership, responsibility and political will as well as concerted efforts of national Governments and the international community are critical in building sustainable peace.

The Council underlines the importance of the support to the strengthening of rule of law institutions of the host country that is provided, where mandated, by a number of peacekeeping operations and special political missions within the scope of their mandates, working in coordination with relevant United Nations entities. In this regard, the Council recalls its resolution 2086(2013), in which it noted that multidimensional peacekeeping missions may be mandated to provide such support in helping national authorities to develop critical rule of law priorities and strategies to address the needs of the police, judicial institutions and the corrections system and critical interlinkages thereof, with a view to supporting the ability of States to provide critical functions in these fields, and as a vital contribution to building peace and ending impunity.

The Council, with respect to activities in the rule of law field that may be a part of mandates of peacekeeping operations and special political missions:

- Reiterates its resolve to give clear, credible and achievable mandates;

- Underscores that the support to the strengthening of rule of law institutions of the host country should be considered in a country-specific context;

- Emphasizes the importance of a sector-wide approach for security sector reform, which enhances the rule of law, including through the establishment of independent justice and correction systems, and reaffirms that effective security sector reform requires developing a professional, effective and accountable security sector that is under the civilian oversight of a democratic Government;

- Notes the important role that the police components of peacekeeping operations can play in strengthening the rule of law in conflict and post-conflict situations, by, inter alia, providing operational support to national police and other law enforcement agencies and supporting the reform, restructuring and rebuilding of such agencies, including through technical assistance, collocation, training and mentoring programmes;

- Stresses the importance of avoiding duplication and overlaps in the United Nations rule of law structures and activities and improving the manner in which coordination is conducted;

- Highlights the responsibility of United Nations mission leadership in guiding and overseeing United Nations rule of law activities and coordinating United Nations country support in the field;

- Emphasizes that mission planning processes for mandated rule of law activities undertaken by peacekeeping operations and special political missions should give full consideration to supporting national efforts to build rule of law institutions, taking into account the specific needs of the host country;

—Underlines the importance of partnerships and cooperation with Member States and subregional, regional and international partners in delivering rule of law activities, and calls upon them to promote coherence and coordination of their peacebuilding plans and programmes with those of the peacekeeping operations and special political missions, as well as the wider United Nations presence on the ground;

—Further underlines that managing a transition from a peacekeeping operation or special political mission in relation to its rule of law activities should be based upon a timely analysis, in consultation with the host country, of any assistance beyond the duration of the mandate to enable peacebuilding and development actors to undertake the necessary strategic planning and fundraising, working in close partnership with the national authorities, and to transfer skills and expertise to host country officials and experts as quickly as possible in order to ensure a successful and durable transition.

The Council notes the Secretary-General's zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse, as well as the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces in the context of the relevant United Nations rule of law activities.

The Council reiterates its concern about the situation of vulnerable groups affected by armed conflict, in particular women, children and displaced persons. The Council expresses particular concern about sexual and gender-based violence and violations and abuses against children in situations of armed conflict. The Council recognizes the importance of ending impunity for such acts through strengthened police, justice and corrections capacity and the incorporation of gender and child protection perspectives in all rule of law programmes, including through justice sector reform and training on sexual violence, child protection and gender-based violence. The Council recalls in this regard its resolutions 1325(2000), 1612(2005), 1820(2008), 1882(2009), 1888(2009), 1889(2009), 1960(2010), 1998(2011), 2068(2012), 2106(2013) and 2122(2013). The Council reiterates its intention, when establishing and renewing the mandates of United Nations missions, to include provisions for the protection of children and on the promotion of gender equality and the empowerment of women in conflict and post-conflict situations, including through the appointment of child protection and gender advisers and provisions to protect children's rights and to facilitate women's full participation and access to justice through legal, judicial and security sector reforms and wider post-conflict reconstruction processes.

The Council notes with concern the particular challenges that transnational organized crime, including trafficking in illicit weapons, drugs and persons, as well as piracy, armed robbery at sea and terrorism, may pose to the security of countries on its agenda, including post-conflict States. The Council encourages the coordination of United Nations actions, including through peacekeeping operations and special political missions, where mandated, as well as actions by Member States in fighting these threats through implementation of applicable national and international norms, relevant international long-term capacity-building efforts and regional initiatives.

The Council reaffirms its strong opposition to impunity for serious violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law. The Council emphasizes the responsibility of States to comply with their relevant obligations to end impunity and to thoroughly investigate and prosecute persons responsible for war crimes, genocide and crimes against humanity in order to prevent these crimes, avoid their recurrence and seek sustainable peace, justice, truth and reconciliation. The Council welcomes concerted efforts at the national and international levels to this end.

The Council recognizes the contribution of national justice systems to the fight against impunity for serious violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law and underlines the importance of strengthening national accountability mechanisms with full respect for due process and the rights of the defence, including building investigative, prosecutorial and witness protection capacities, in post-conflict countries. The Council also highlights that regional and subregional organizations and arrangements can contribute to accountability through support for enhancing the capacity of national justice systems.

The Council stresses that the fight against impunity and to ensure accountability for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and other egregious crimes has been strengthened through the work on and prosecution of these crimes in the international criminal justice system, ad hoc and mixed tribunals as well as specialized chambers in national tribunals. The Council recognizes in this regard the contribution of the International Criminal Court, in accordance with the principle of complementarity to national criminal jurisdictions as set out in the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, towards holding accountable those responsible for such crimes. In this regard, the Council reiterates its call on the importance of State cooperation with these courts and tribunals in accordance with the States' respective obligations. The Council further reiterates its intention to continue forcefully to fight impunity and uphold accountability with appropriate means. The Council notes the issuance by the Secretary-General of the latest guidance on contacts with persons who are the subject of arrest warrants or summonses issued by the International Criminal Court.

The Council notes the designation of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat and the United Nations Development Programme as the joint global focal point for the police, justice and corrections areas.

The Council notes the report of the Secretary-General on measuring the effectiveness of the support provided by the United Nations system for the promotion of the rule of law in conflict and post-conflict situations and the recommendations contained therein.

Peacebuilding Commission

In response to Security Council resolutions 1645(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 94] and General Assembly resolution 60/180 [ibid.], the Peacebuilding Commission submitted a report on its eighth session [A/69/818-S/2015/174], reviewing its activities in 2014. As mandated by Assembly resolution 65/7 [YUN 2010, p. 56] and Council resolution 1947(2010) [ibid.], both organs were to launch a further comprehensive review of the peacebuilding architecture in 2015. The report reflected the findings of the Commission's advance preparation for this review, which drew upon lessons learned from the implementation of recommendations from the 2010 review.

Through its country-specific configurations and its broader policy advisory role, the Commission continued to carry out its three core functions of advocacy, accompaniment and sustaining attention; resource mobilization and partnerships; and forging coherence. The Commission further strengthened linkages at the country level with the programmatic activity of the Peacebuilding Fund. New avenues included the convening of the annual session, which addressed international support and strategies to promote domestic resource mobilization in countries emerging from conflict.

First annual session. In the report on its seventh session [YUN 2013, p. 44], the Commission decided to convene an annual session to commemorate "Peacebuilding Day", and to enable closer interaction and engagement among the stakeholders in New York and from the capitals of Member States on key challenges to international peacebuilding. The first annual session of the Peacebuilding Commission (New York, 23 June)—a critical step in the continuing evolution of the work of the Commission and its orientation—was convened on the theme "Sustainable support for peacebuilding: domestic and international aspects". The selection of the theme marked the Commission's shift towards more practical means of performing its core function of resource mobilization beyond traditional fundraising. Two interactive substantive working sessions addressed the mobilization of international and domestic resources and revenue generation; and lessons learned on the development of national capacities and sustainability of resources in the context of transitions of UN missions. The working sessions brought together Member States, UN entities, international financial institutions, the African Development Bank and representatives of specialized civil society organizations. The interactive discussion in the first working session enabled the Commission to identify four areas for further policy development in support of post-conflict countries: capacity development to generate domestic revenues, including the capacity to negotiate natural resource contracts; transparency and accountability of extractive industries and applicable tax regimes; the fight against illicit financial flows by developing international frameworks that would help increase mutual accountability and international cooperation on tax regimes, and address tax avoidance and trade mis-pricing; and addressing inappropriate banking privacy laws, which were critical components of some illicit financial flows. As a follow-up to the annual session, the Commission planned to pursue the four identified policy areas and to explore practical ways to advocate on behalf of post-conflict countries in deliberations taking place in relevant intergovernmental forums.

2015 review. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 65/7 and Council resolution 1947(2010), which called for a further review of the United Nations peacebuilding architecture (made up of the Peacebuilding Commission, the Peacebuilding Fund and the Peacebuilding Support Office), to be conducted five years after the conclusion of the 2010 review [YUN 2010, p. 55], the Organizational Committee, between May and October, embarked on advance preparation for the 2015 review of the peacebuilding architecture. In parallel, the Secretary-General initiated a process, endorsed by his Policy Committee in February, to develop a collective contribution to the review from the United Nations system (see below). That process generated recommendations on the strategic orientation and utility of the Commission. Both preparatory processes were designed to address a key shortcoming of the 2010 review, namely the lack of both ownership of its outcome and of recommendations from both Member States and the UN system. On 3 November, the Chair submitted the outcome of the Commission's advance preparation to the Presidents of the General Assembly and the Security Council for consideration.

Advisory function. The Commission continued to explore ways to strengthen the advisory function to, and improve interaction with, the Security Council. The Commission had pursued two tracks in its relations with the Council: a thematic focus on the transitions of UN missions coordinated by the Working Group on Lessons Learned under the chairmanship of Japan; and periodic stock-taking, at the expert level, coordinated by Rwanda. The stock-taking exercise examined the scope of the Commission's advisory function with regard to the Council and the modality of their interaction when countries were on the agenda of both bodies. In addition, the third informal interactive dialogue among members of the Council and the Commission's group of chairs addressed "the recurring relapse into conflict" witnessed in recent years.

Other topics covered included Commission working methods, emerging cross-cutting issues such as response to the outbreak of Ebola and participation of women in peacebuilding.

The report concluded with Commission actions relating to the follow-up to the first and preparation for the second annual session; integrating the perspectives of regional actors; focused and sustained attention on the long-term impacts of the Ebola outbreak; improving the advisory function with regard to and the modality of interaction with the General Assembly and the Security Council; developing a strategy to strengthen the gender perspective in country-specific engagement; as well as improving certain aspects of the Commission's working methods.

Security Council consideration. On 15 July [S/PV.7217], the Council had a briefing on post-conflict peacebuilding to consider the report of the Peacebuilding Commission on its seventh session [YUN 2013, p. 44]. A subsequent informal interactive dialogue was held on the same day between the Members of the Council, the members of the PBC Chairs Group and the countries on the Commission's agenda to reflect on developments and the Commission's advisory role to the Council.

Communications. The Secretary-General, by identical letters to the Assembly and the Council dated 24 October [A/69/553-S/2014/763], presented the UN system inputs to the 2015 review of the peacebuilding architecture. The Secretary-General stated that the 2015 peacebuilding review offered an opportunity to clarify the areas of strength and potential utility of the Commission; identify more flexible and dynamic modes of its engagement; and identify the situations and settings that were most appropriate for such engagement.

By a 15 December letter [A/69/674-S/2014/911], the Assembly and the Council presented to the Secretary-General a proposal on the scope, terms of reference and modalities for the upcoming 2015 review of the UN peacebuilding architecture. The terms of reference reflected the outcome of an extensive consultative intergovernmental process within the framework of the Peacebuilding Commission, consolidated through further consultations undertaken by respective Offices. Also attached was a letter from Brazil containing the list of five countries that had agreed to be the subject of the case studies that the terms of reference called for to underpin the 2015 review.

By an 8 December letter [A/69/654-S/2014/882], Egypt transmitted to the Secretary-General the outcome report of the Cairo workshop on regional aspects of peacebuilding: identifying gaps, challenges and opportunities.

By a 30 December letter [S/2014/954], the Chair of the Burundi configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission transmitted to the Security Council a report which summarized the conversations and meetings held during the Chair's December visit to Burundi, as well as his observations on the future of the Peacebuilding Commission's engagement with Burundi in 2015.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the Assembly decided that the item on the report of the Peacebuilding Commission would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Peacebuilding Fund

In response to Assembly resolution 63/282 [YUN 2009, p. 49], the Secretary-General submitted the annual report [A/69/745] on the Peacebuilding Fund, which was established in 2006 [YUN 2006, p. 57] as a mechanism for extending critical support at the early stages of a peace process. The report covered the Fund's operations and activities during 2014.

The Peacebuilding Fund achieved its target through the allocation of $99.4 million to 16 countries. A new business plan for 2014–2016, which introduced innovations in funding mechanisms, was endorsed by the Peacebuilding Fund Advisory Group. Programmes focused on reducing the risk of relapse into violence were restarted in the Central African Republic, and a new cross-border programming was piloted in the Sahel region, with expanded use of the Immediate Response Facility. The second Gender Promotion Initiative was launched. Mali was declared eligible for the Fund, and an exploratory mission was undertaken in Madagascar in support of subregional peacebuilding efforts. Overall, the Fund was active in more than 20 countries. Total contributions in the amount of $78.2 million were made by 21 Member States.

Protection issues

Responsibility to protect

Report of Secretary-General. In response to the 2005 World Summit Outcome [YUN 2005, p. 48], which dealt with, among other things, the responsibility to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, and Assembly resolution 63/308 [YUN 2009, p. 50], the Secretary-General submitted a July report [A/68/947-S/2014/449] on international assistance and the responsibility to protect. The report outlined the ways in which national, regional and international actors could assist States in fulfilling their responsibility to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity. It also drew on the first report of the Secretary-General, in 2009 [YUN 2009, p. 50], on implementing the responsibility to protect, which established the three pillar framework for the responsibilities enshrined in the principle.

Focusing on pillar II, the Secretary-General recalled the nature and dynamics of the atrocity crimes outlined in the World Summit Outcome, identified the approach and principles that should guide efforts to assist States in the fulfilment of their protection responsibilities and the various actors that could contribute to the responsibility to assist. The core section elaborated on three main forms of pillar II support, namely, encouragement, capacity-building and protection assistance, and provided examples of good national, regional and international practice.

The Secretary-General highlighted two forms of encouragement. First, international actors could encourage States to fulfil their pillar I responsibilities through awareness-raising and norm dissemination. Second, international actors could use confidential or public dialogue to remind States under stress of the importance of meeting their responsibility to protect and addressing signs of impending crisis. Regarding capacity-building, the Secretary-General stated that international assistance could build two sets of capacities. The first set was aimed at creating effective, legitimate and inclusive governance, while the second set was directed at creating “inhibitors”—capacities, institutions and actors that helped to prevent escalation from risk to imminent crisis—to the commission of atrocity crimes. In addition to capacity-building assistance, States under stress or facing an impending crisis could request temporary international help, either to deny those with the motivation to commit atrocity crimes the means of doing so or to boost their existing protection capacities.

The three main forms of international action under pillar II could support States to succeed in meeting their pillar I responsibility to protect their populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity and avoid more controversial measures under pillar III. Successful implementation of the pillar II agenda would necessitate coordinated action. A key precondition for coordination was a shared understanding of the core priorities: intensifying efforts to encourage States to meet their responsibility to protect; investing in capacity-building programmes that addressed horizontal inequalities and buttressed specific inhibitors of atrocity crimes; and deploying additional capacity to States under stress to boost their ability to protect populations.

The report concluded by identifying challenges to the implementation of pillar II of the responsibility to protect and provided recommendations on advancing this agenda. The Secretary-General also set out possible next steps for Member States to continue considering the responsibility to protect, given the approaching 10-year anniversary of the 2005 World Summit.

Protection of civilians in armed conflict

Security Council consideration. On 12 February, the Security Council held an open debate [S/PV.7109] on the protection of civilians in armed conflict. The Council had before it a concept note [S/2014/74] submitted by Lithuania, as well as the Secretary-General’s 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 48]. Briefings were given by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator, the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, and the Director-General of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

On 12 February [meeting 7109], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/3 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms its commitment regarding the protection of civilians in armed conflict and to the continuing and full implementation of all its previous relevant resolutions, including resolutions 1265(1999), 1296(2000), 1674(2006), 1738(2006) and 1894(2009), as well as all of its resolutions on women and peace and security, children and armed conflict and peacekeeping, and all relevant statements by its President.

The Council notes that the year 2014 marks the fifteenth anniversary of the progressive consideration by the Council of the protection of civilians in armed conflict as a thematic issue and acknowledges the enduring need for the Council and Member States to strengthen further the protection of civilians in armed conflict. The Council remains committed to addressing the impact of armed conflict on civilians.

The Council reaffirms its primary responsibility under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security and its commitment and readiness to strive for sustainable peace in all situations under its consideration.

The Council recalls that States bear the primary responsibility to respect and ensure the human rights of their citizens, as well as all individuals within their territory, as provided for by relevant international law, and reaffirms the responsibility of each individual State to protect its populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity.

The Council reaffirms that parties to armed conflict bear the primary responsibility to take all feasible steps to ensure the protection of affected civilians and urges parties to armed conflict to meet their basic needs and give attention to the specific needs of women and children, refugees and internally displaced persons, as well as other civilians who may have specific vulnerabilities, including persons with disabilities and older persons.

The Council reiterates its strong condemnation of all violations of applicable international law and demands that parties to armed conflict comply strictly with the obligations applicable to them under international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law, as well as implement all relevant decisions of the Council.

The Council stresses the need to end impunity for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights, and reaffirms that those who have committed or are otherwise responsible for such violations and abuses must be brought to justice.

The Council recalls its determination to upgrade the strategic oversight of peacekeeping operations, mindful of the important role peacekeeping operations play for the protection of civilians, and reaffirms its support to the efforts made by the Secretary-General to review peacekeeping operations and to provide enhanced planning and support and renews its encouragement to deepen these efforts, in partnership with troop- and police-contributing countries and other relevant stakeholders.

The Council reaffirms the need for peacekeeping missions with protection of civilians mandates to ensure their implementation, and stresses the importance of continued and further engagement by senior mission leadership, with a view to ensuring that all mission components and all levels of the chain of command are properly informed of and are involved in the mission's protection mandate and their relevant responsibilities. The Council reiterates the need for strong leadership in peacekeeping missions, and also encourages further coordination between the United Nations and regional and subregional institutions, as appropriate, on issues relating to the protection of civilians in peacekeeping operations.

The Council takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the protection of civilians in armed conflict of 22 November 2013 and the recommendations made therein.

The Council recognizes the contribution of the updated aide-memoire for the consideration of issues pertaining to the protection of civilians in armed conflict, contained in the annex to the present statement, to the protection of civilians, and as a practical tool that provides a basis for improved analysis and diagnosis of key protection issues, and stresses the need to continue its use on a more systematic and consistent basis.

ANNEX

Aide-memoire

For the consideration of issues pertaining to the protection of civilians in armed conflict

Enhancing the protection of civilians in armed conflict is at the core of the work of the Security Council for the maintenance of peace and security. In order to facilitate the Council's consideration of protection of civilians concerns in a given context, including at the time of the establishment or renewal of peacekeeping mandates, in June 2001, members of the Council suggested that an aide-memoire, listing the relevant issues, be drafted in cooperation with the Council. On 15 March 2002, the Council adopted the aide-memoire as a practical guide for its consideration of protection of civilians issues and agreed to review and update its contents periodically. It was subsequently updated twice and adopted as an annex to the presidential statements of 15 December 2003 and 22 November 2010.

This is the fifth edition of the aide-memoire and is based on the previous deliberations of the Council on the protection of civilians, including resolutions 1265(1999), 1296(2000), 1674(2006), 1738(2006) and 1894(2009). It is the result of consultation between the Council and the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the Secretariat, as well as between the Office and concerned United Nations departments and agencies, and other relevant humanitarian organizations.

The aide-memoire is intended to facilitate the Council's consideration of issues relevant to the protection of civilians in armed conflict. To this end, it highlights primary objectives for Council action; offers, on the basis of the Council's past practice, specific issues for consideration in meeting those objectives; and provides, in the addendum, a selection of agreed language from Council resolutions and presidential statements that refer to such concerns.

Bearing in mind that each peacekeeping mandate has to be elaborated on a case-by-case basis, the aide-memoire is not intended as a blueprint for action. The relevance and practicality of the various measures described has to be considered and adapted to the specific conditions in each situation.

Most frequently, civilians are caught in circumstances of dire need where a peacekeeping operation has not been established. Such situations may require the urgent attention of the Council. The present aide-memoire may, therefore, also provide guidance in circumstances where the Council may wish to consider action outside the scope of a peacekeeping operation.

I. General protection concerns pertaining to the conflict-affected population

A. Protection of, and assistance to, the conflict-affected population

Parties to armed conflict to take the necessary measures to protect and meet the basic needs of the conflict-affected population

Issues for consideration:

— Stress the responsibility of parties to armed conflict to respect, protect and meet the basic needs of civilian populations within their effective control.

— Express concern at acts, threats or situations of violence against civilians, condemn violations of applicable international humanitarian law as well as human rights law violations and abuses, and call upon all parties to immediately cease such violations and abuses.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law, including with regard to:

- The prohibition against violence to life and person, in particular murder, mutilation, cruel treatment and torture; enforced disappearances; outrages upon personal dignity; and rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, enforced sterilization and any other form of sexual violence.
- The prohibition against arbitrary deprivation of liberty; corporal punishment; collective punishment; and the passing of sentences and the carrying out of executions without previous judgement pronounced by a regularly constituted court, affording all judicial guarantees which are generally recognized as indispensable.
- The prohibition against the taking of hostages.
- The prohibition against ordering the displacement of the civilian population for reasons related to the conflict, unless the security of the civilians involved or imperative military reasons so demand.
- The prohibition against the recruitment and use of children by parties to armed conflict in violation of applicable international law.
- The prohibition against slavery and the slave trade in all their forms and uncompensated or abusive forced labour.

- The prohibition against wilfully impeding relief supplies as provided for under international humanitarian law.
 - The prohibition of persecution on political, religious, racial or gender grounds.
 - The prohibition of any adverse distinction in the application of international humanitarian law and human rights law based on race, colour, sex, language, religion or belief, political or other opinion, national or social origin, wealth, birth or other status.
 - The obligation to respect and protect, to whichever party they belong, the wounded and sick, to take all possible measures, particularly after an engagement, to search for and collect the wounded and sick and to provide, to the fullest extent practicable and with the least possible delay, the medical care and attention required by their condition without distinction on any grounds other than medical ones.
- Call upon all parties to ensure access for relevant organizations, as applicable, to all prisons and places of detention.
- Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, where appropriate and on a case-by-case basis, to impartially contribute to the protection of the civilian population, including those under imminent threat of physical violence, within their zones of operation. In doing so, request:
- That the protection of civilians is prioritized in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources, including information and intelligence resources, in the implementation of mandates.
 - The development of clear guidelines/directives as to what missions can do to protect civilians, including practical protection measures such as intensified and systematic patrolling in potential volatile areas, joint protection teams or early warning cells.
 - Systematic coordination, between the civil and military components of the mission and between the mission and humanitarian actors, in order to consolidate expertise on the protection of civilians.
 - That missions communicate with the civilian population to raise awareness and understanding about their mandate and activities and to collect reliable information on violations of international humanitarian law and human rights violations and abuses perpetrated against civilians.
- Request that United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions develop comprehensive protection strategies in consultation with United Nations country teams and other relevant actors, and maximize the use of their capacities for the implementation of these comprehensive protection strategies.
- Expressly authorize missions to use all necessary means to carry out their protection mandates.
- Condemn wilful impediments to the implementation of the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions, in particular attacks against their staff and bureaucratic hurdles, and call upon parties to conflict to immediately cease interfering with the activities of these missions in the implementation of their mandates. Request that reports of the Secretary-General on country-specific situations include information on the protection of civilians, including internally displaced persons and refugees, and the implementation of the Secretary-General's human rights due diligence policy.

— Request missions to monitor, help to investigate, and report publicly and to the Security Council, on a regular basis, on the situation with regard to human rights and international humanitarian law in host countries.

— Request that United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions develop benchmarks and indicators of progress regarding the protection of civilians to measure specific developments in the implementation of their protection mandates.

— Request troop- and police-contributing countries to ensure the provision of appropriate training to heighten the awareness and responsiveness to protection concerns of their personnel participating in United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to protect civilians.

— Urge relevant regional and/or subregional bodies to develop and implement policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of civilians affected by armed conflict.

B. Displacement

Parties to armed conflict and other relevant actors to refrain from, and take the necessary measures to prevent and respond to, the displacement of the civilian population

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, displacement in violation of applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, including with regard to:

- The prohibition against deportation, forcible transfer or displacement of the civilian population, in whole or in part, unless the security of the civilians concerned or imperative military reasons so demand.
- The obligation, in case of displacement, to ensure to the greatest practicable extent that the civilians concerned are received under satisfactory conditions of shelter, hygiene, health, safety and nutrition and that members of the same family are not separated and that basic needs are met during displacement.
- The right to freedom of movement and to leave one's country and seek asylum.
- The right to non-refoulement under the Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, the protection of which does not extend to any person with respect to whom there are serious reasons for considering that she or he has been guilty of acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

— Underline the primary responsibility of States to respect and maintain the security and civilian character of camps for refugees and internally displaced persons, including disarming armed elements, separating combatants, curbing the flow of small arms in camps and preventing recruitment by armed groups in and around camps.

— Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to take all feasible measures to ensure security in and around such camps and for their inhabitants.

— Request that reports of the Secretary-General on country-specific situations include the protection of displaced persons as a specific aspect of the report.

— Urge relevant regional and/or subregional bodies to develop and implement policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of internally displaced persons and refugees.

— Consider applying targeted and graduated measures against parties to armed conflict who commit violations of applicable international law related to forced displacement.

Durable solutions for refugees and internally displaced persons, including safe, voluntary and dignified return and reintegration

Issues for consideration:

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law, refugee law and human rights law, including with regard to:

- Respect for the right of refugees and displaced persons to voluntary return in safety and dignity to their homes.
- Respect for the property rights of refugees and displaced persons, without adverse distinction on the basis of gender, age or other status.

— Stress the importance of achieving durable solutions for refugees and displaced persons, including voluntary, safe and dignified return, and of ensuring their full participation in the planning and management of these solutions.

— Call upon all parties concerned to create the conditions conducive to allowing the voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return, local integration or resettlement of refugees and displaced persons.

— Request United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions to contribute to the re-establishment of security conditions conducive to voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable returns, including through police patrols in areas of return.

— Call upon all parties concerned to ensure non-discriminatory treatment of returning refugees and internally displaced persons.

— Call upon all parties concerned to ensure the participation of refugees and internally displaced persons and inclusion of their needs, including their right to voluntary, safe and dignified return and reintegration, in all peace processes, peace agreements and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction planning and programmes.

— Encourage United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, as appropriate and on a case-by-case basis, to support domestic mechanisms for addressing housing, land and property issues or their establishment by national authorities.

— Encourage United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, as appropriate and on a case-by-case basis, to prevent the illegal appropriation and confiscation of land and property belonging to refugees and internally displaced persons and to ensure the protection of returning refugees and internally displaced persons.

C. Humanitarian access and safety and security of humanitarian workers

Parties to armed conflict to agree to and facilitate relief operations that are humanitarian and impartial in character and to allow and facilitate rapid and unimpeded passage of relief consignments, equipment and personnel

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate removal of, impediments to humanitarian access in violation of applicable international humanitarian law.

— Condemn all cases of arbitrary denial of humanitarian access, and recall that arbitrarily depriving civilians of objects indispensable to their survival, including wilfully impeding relief supply and access, can constitute a violation of international humanitarian law.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law, including:

- The prohibition against using starvation of civilians as a method of warfare by depriving them of objects indispensable to their survival, including wilfully impeding relief supplies as provided for under applicable international humanitarian law.
- Agreeing to relief actions which are humanitarian and impartial in character and conducted without any adverse distinction.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict and third States with their obligations under applicable international humanitarian law to allow and facilitate the rapid and unimpeded passage of relief consignments, equipment and personnel subject to their right to prescribe technical arrangements, including search, under which such passage is permitted.

— Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, where appropriate and as requested, to facilitate the provision of humanitarian assistance.

— Consider applying targeted and graduated measures against parties to armed conflict who are responsible for obstructing the delivery of humanitarian assistance in violation of international humanitarian law, including by participating in attacks against humanitarian actors and assets.

Parties to armed conflict to respect and protect humanitarian workers and facilities

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, attacks deliberately targeting humanitarian workers.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law, including the duty to respect and protect relief personnel and installations, material, units and vehicles involved in humanitarian assistance.

— Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to contribute, as requested and within capabilities, to the creation of the security conditions necessary for the provision of humanitarian assistance.

— Encourage the Secretary-General to bring to the attention of the Security Council situations in which humanitarian assistance is denied as a consequence of violence directed against humanitarian personnel and facilities.

— Request that States include key provisions of the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel and the Optional Protocol thereto, such as those regarding the prevention of attacks against members of United Nations operations, the criminalization of such attacks and the prosecution or extradition of offenders in future as well as, if necessary, in existing status-of-forces, status-of-mission and host country agreements negotiated with the United Nations.

Relevant international actors, including donors and United Nations humanitarian agencies, to increase humanitarian assistance and improve the reach, quantity and quality of humanitarian aid

Issues for consideration:

— Call upon Member States to contribute to consolidated appeals processes.

— Consider adopting general exemptions to targeted economic and financial sanctions adopted by the Security Council in order to facilitate the provision of humanitarian assistance.

— Stress the need for all relevant actors to uphold and respect the humanitarian principles of humanity, neutrality, impartiality and independence in order to increase the reach and quality of humanitarian aid.

D. Conduct of hostilities

Parties to armed conflict to take all feasible precautions to spare civilians from the effects of hostilities

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, all acts of violence or abuses committed against civilians in violation of applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law, including the prohibitions against:

- Directing attacks against the civilian population or against individual civilians not taking a direct part in hostilities.
- Directing attacks against civilian objects.
- Launching an attack that is indiscriminate, i.e., of a nature to strike military objectives and civilians or civilian objects without distinction.
- Launching an attack which may be expected to cause incidental loss of life or injury to civilians or damage to civilian objects or a combination thereof which would be excessive in relation to the concrete and direct military advantage anticipated.
- Directing attacks against personnel, installations, material, units or vehicles involved in a humanitarian assistance or peacekeeping mission in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, as long as they are entitled to the protection given to civilians or civilian objects under international humanitarian law.

- Utilizing the presence of a civilian or other protected person to render certain points, areas or military forces immune from military operations.
- Rape and other forms of sexual violence.
- Directing attacks against buildings dedicated to religion, education, art, science or charitable purposes, historic monuments, hospitals and places where the sick and wounded are collected, provided they are not military objectives.
- Directing attacks against buildings, material, medical units and transport, and personnel using the distinctive emblems of the Geneva Conventions in conformity with international law.
- Destroying or seizing the property of the adversary unless required by military necessity.
- Using starvation of civilians as a method of warfare by depriving them of objects indispensable to their survival, including wilfully impeding relief supplies as provided for under applicable international humanitarian law.

— Request regular reporting by United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council on concrete steps taken to ensure the protection of the civilian population in the conduct of hostilities and on measures to ensure accountability for violations of applicable international humanitarian law.

— Request parties to conflict, including United Nations-authorized missions with a mandate to conduct or support offensive operations, to adopt and implement specific measures to mitigate the risk of harm being caused to civilians or civilian objects as a consequence of hostilities in violation of international humanitarian law.

E. Small arms and light weapons, mines and explosive remnants of war

Protection of the civilian population through the control and reduction in the availability of illicit small arms and light weapons

Issues for consideration:

— Express concern at the detrimental impact of the proliferation of arms, in particular small arms, on the security of civilians by fuelling armed conflict, and request the mission to monitor the presence of arms among the civilian population.

— Request States and regional and subregional organizations to adopt measures to curb and reduce illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, such as voluntary collection and destruction; effective stockpile management; arms embargoes; sanctions; and legal measures against corporate actors, individuals and entities involved in such activities.

— Urge States to consider signing and ratifying the Arms Trade Treaty as soon as possible.

— Encourage strengthened practical cooperation between United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council aimed at monitoring and preventing the cross-border movement of small arms and light weapons.

— Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to collect and dispose of or secure illicit and/or surplus small arms and light weapons as well as surplus ammunition stockpiles.

— Consider imposing arms embargoes and other measures aimed at preventing the sale or supply of arms and related materiel of all types to parties to armed conflict that commit violations of applicable international law.

— Encourage strengthened practical cooperation among relevant sanctions monitoring groups of the Security Council, peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Council and States.

— Request the establishment of a baseline arms inventory as well as arms marking and registration systems in situations where a United Nations arms embargo coincides with disarmament, demobilization and reintegration efforts.

Protection of the civilian population through the marking, clearance, removal or destruction of mines and explosive remnants of war, including cluster munition remnants

Issues for consideration:

— Call upon parties to armed conflict, after the cessation of active hostilities and as soon as feasible, to mark, clear, remove or destroy mines and explosive remnants of war in affected territories under their control, prioritizing areas affected by mines and explosive remnants of war which are assessed to pose serious humanitarian risk.

— Call upon parties to armed conflict to record and retain information on the use of mines and explosive ordnance or the abandonment of explosive ordnance, to facilitate rapid marking and clearance, removal or destruction of mines and explosive remnants of war and risk education, and to provide the relevant information to the party in control of, and civilian populations in, the territory.

— Call upon parties to armed conflict to take all feasible precautions in the territory under their control affected by mines and explosive remnants of war to protect the civilian population, in particular children, including issuing warnings, undertaking risk education, and marking, fencing and monitoring territory affected by mines and explosive remnants of war.

— Call upon parties to armed conflict to protect United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, as well as humanitarian organizations, from the effects of mines and explosive remnants of war and to make available information on the location of mines and explosive remnants of war that they are aware of in the territory where the missions/organizations are or will be operating.

— Call upon parties to armed conflict, States and other relevant actors to provide technical, financial, material or human resources assistance to facilitate the marking, clearance, removal or destruction of mines and explosive remnants of war.

— Call upon parties to armed conflict, States and other relevant actors to provide assistance for the care, rehabilitation and economic and social reintegration of victims of explosive remnants of war and their families and communities.

F. Compliance, accountability and the rule of law

Compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law

Issues for consideration:

— Call upon parties to armed conflict to take appropriate measures to respect and ensure respect for international humanitarian law and human rights law, including by:

- Enforcing appropriate military disciplinary measures and upholding the principle of command responsibility.
- Training troops on applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law.
- Vetting armed and security forces to ensure that personnel have a reliably attested record of not having been involved in violations of international humanitarian law or human rights law.

— Consider applying targeted and graduated measures against parties to armed conflict that threaten peace, attack or obstruct the action of United Nations peacekeeping or other relevant missions, or commit violations of applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law.

— Stress that the support of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions to military operations led by national armed forces is strictly conditioned on the compliance of those armed forces with international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law and on joint planning of such operations.

— Call upon United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions to intercede with national armed forces if elements of the latter receiving support from the mission are suspected of committing violations of international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law and, if the situation persists, to withdraw the mission's support.

— Request the mission to provide military training, including in the area of human rights, international humanitarian law, child protection and the prevention of gender-based and sexual violence, to the armed forces.

Accountability for persons suspected of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes or serious violations of human rights law

Issues for consideration:

— Stress the importance of ending impunity for violations of applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law as part of a comprehensive approach to seeking sustainable peace, justice, truth and national reconciliation.

— Call upon States to comply with their obligations to investigate, search for, prosecute or extradite persons suspected of committing genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity or other serious violations of international law, including international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, irrespective of their status or political affiliation.

— Stress the need for the exclusion of, and reject any form of or endorsement of, amnesty for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes or other serious violations of human rights in conflict resolution processes and ensure that no such amnesty previously granted is a bar to prosecution before any court created or assisted by the United Nations.

— Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to promote, in cooperation with relevant States, the establishment of effective arrangements for investigating and prosecuting violations of international humanitarian law or other serious violations of human rights law.

- Request the cooperation of States and United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council in the apprehension and surrender of alleged perpetrators of genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes or other serious violations of human rights law.

- Stress the need for comprehensive, independent and impartial investigation, consistent with international standards, into alleged human rights abuses and violations and violations of international humanitarian law.

- Consider the establishment of ad hoc judicial mechanisms and reparation programmes at the national or international level to investigate and prosecute war crimes and serious violations of international humanitarian and human rights law, and ensure the implementation of applicable provisions on the right to reparations for violations of individual rights. Consider the referral of situations involving genocide, crimes against humanity or war crimes to the International Criminal Court.

Protection of civilians through the restoration and enforcement of the rule of law, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes and security sector reform

Issues for consideration:

- Call upon States to ensure equal protection under the law and equal access to justice for victims, including women and children, of violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law and to take the necessary measures to ensure the protection of victims and witnesses.

- Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to support restoration of the rule of law, including the provision of assistance in monitoring, restructuring and reforming the justice sector.

- Request the rapid deployment of qualified and well-trained international civilian police, and justice and corrections experts as a component of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council.

- Call upon States and regional and subregional organizations to provide technical assistance for local police, judiciary and penitentiaries (e.g., mentoring, legislative drafting).

- Stress the importance of permanently disarming, demobilizing and reintegrating former combatants of national armed groups and disarming, demobilizing, repatriating, resettling and reintegrating foreign armed groups, and assisting the victims in conflict-affected communities.

- Stress the importance of security sector reform and urge all international partners to support the efforts to professionalize, and ensure the civilian oversight of, the national security forces and the police, including through vetting for human rights violations and training on human rights, child protection and sexual and gender-based violence.

- Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions to provide good offices, advice and support to host Governments for the design of comprehensive disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes as well as disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration programmes for combatants not suspected of war crimes or other serious violations of human rights, and to provide support for the implementation of these plans, in full compliance with the United Nations human rights due diligence policy.

Build confidence and enhance stability by promoting truth and reconciliation mechanisms

Issues for consideration:

- Mandate the establishment of appropriate, locally adapted mechanisms for truth and reconciliation (e.g., technical assistance, funding and reintegration of civilians within communities).

- Request, where appropriate, the establishment by the Secretary-General of commissions of inquiry and similar measures with regard to situations involving genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity or serious violations of human rights law.

G. Media and information

Protection of journalists, other media professionals and associated personnel

Issues for consideration:

- Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, attacks against journalists, media professionals and associated personnel operating in situations of armed conflict.

- Call for compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law and respect for the civilian status of journalists, media professionals and associated personnel as well as their equipment and installations.

- Demand that States take all necessary steps to prosecute those responsible for attacks against journalists, media professionals and associated personnel in violation of applicable international humanitarian law.

Counter occurrences of speech used to incite violence

Issues for consideration:

- Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, incitements to discrimination, hostility, hatred and violence against civilians in situations of armed conflict.

- Demand that States bring to justice individuals who incite or otherwise cause such violence.

- Impose targeted and graduated measures in response to media broadcasts inciting genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes or other serious violations of human rights law.

- Mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to promote the establishment of media monitoring mechanisms to ensure effective monitoring, reporting and documenting of any incidents, origins and contents that incite “hate media”.

Promote and support accurate management of information on the conflict

Issues for consideration:

- Urge parties to armed conflict to respect the professional independence of journalists, media professionals and associated personnel.

— Encourage United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council to include a mass-media component that can disseminate information about international humanitarian law and human rights law while also giving objective information about the activities of the United Nations.

— Request relevant actors to provide technical assistance to States in drafting and enforcing anti-hate speech legislation.

II. Specific protection concerns arising from Security Council discussions on children affected by armed conflict

Parties to armed conflict to take the necessary measures to meet the specific protection, health, education and assistance needs of children

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, violations and abuses committed against children in situations of armed conflict, including the recruitment and use of children by parties to armed conflict in violation of applicable international law; the killing or maiming of children; rape and other forms of sexual violence against children; abduction of children; attacks against schools or hospitals; and denial of humanitarian access for children.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law relating to children affected by armed conflict.

— Call upon relevant parties to develop and implement concrete time-bound action plans to halt recruitment and use of children and other grave violations committed against children in situations of armed conflict, in close collaboration with United Nations peacekeeping missions, United Nations country teams and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict.

— Call upon all parties concerned to implement the recommendations of the Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict.

— Call upon all parties to armed conflict to protect and consider as victims those children who have been released or otherwise separated from armed forces and armed groups, and emphasize the need to pay particular attention to the protection, release and reintegration of all children associated with armed forces and armed groups.

— Include specific provisions for the protection of children in the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, in particular:

- Request the mission, in collaboration with relevant entities of the United Nations country team, to establish and implement a country-level monitoring and reporting mechanism on grave violations perpetrated against children, pursuant to resolution 1612(2005).
- Request the mission to support the host Government in promoting child protection and developing and implementing action plans to halt the recruitment and use of children and other grave violations committed against children in situations of armed conflict.

- Request the mission to support the host Government in taking into account the specific needs of children in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes.
- Request the appointment of child protection advisers within the mission.

— Request that reports of the Secretary-General on country-specific situations include the protection of children as a specific aspect of the report.

— Call upon all parties concerned to ensure that the protection, rights and well-being of children affected by armed conflict are specifically integrated into peace processes, peace agreements and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction planning and programmes, including measures for family tracing and reunification, the rehabilitation and reintegration of separated children and the release and reintegration of children associated with armed forces and groups.

— Urge States, United Nations entities, regional and subregional organizations and other concerned parties to take appropriate measures to control illicit subregional and cross-border activities harmful to children, as well as other violations and abuses committed against children in situations of armed conflict in violation of applicable international law.

— Urge relevant regional and/or subregional bodies to develop and implement policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of children affected by armed conflict.

— Consider applying targeted and graduated measures against parties to armed conflict that commit grave violations against children in situations of armed conflict.

III. Specific protection concerns arising from Security Council discussions on women affected by armed conflict

Parties to armed conflict and other relevant actors to refrain from, and take the necessary measures to prevent and respond to, sexual violence

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, acts of sexual violence committed in the context of, and associated with, armed conflict.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with the rules of international humanitarian law and human rights law prohibiting rape, sexual slavery, enforced prostitution, forced pregnancy, enforced sterilization or any other form of sexual violence.

— Call upon parties to armed conflict to take appropriate measures to refrain from, prevent and protect all persons from all forms of sexual violence, including by:

- Issuing clear orders through chains of command prohibiting sexual violence, enforcing appropriate military disciplinary measures in a timely manner and upholding the principle of command responsibility.
- Training troops on the categorical prohibition of all forms of sexual violence.
- Debunking myths that fuel sexual violence.
- Vetting armed and security forces to ensure that personnel have a reliably attested record of not having been involved in the perpetration of rape and other forms of sexual violence.

- Evacuating to safety civilians under imminent threat of sexual violence.
- Making and implementing specific and time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence, in accordance with resolution 2106(2013).

— Request that reports of the Secretary-General on country-specific situations include sexual violence as a specific aspect of the report, including, to the extent possible, disaggregated data as to gender and age of victims; and request the development of mission-specific strategies and plans of action for preventing and responding to sexual violence, as part of a broader protection of civilians strategy.

— Include specific provisions addressing sexual violence in situations of armed conflict in the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, in particular:

- Request the mission, in collaboration with relevant entities of the United Nations country team, to establish and implement country-level monitoring, analysis and reporting arrangements on grave violations perpetrated against children, pursuant to resolution 1960(2010).
- Request the mission to support the host Government in addressing sexual violence explicitly, in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes, security sector reform processes and justice sector reform initiatives, and in developing and implementing concrete and time-bound action plans to combat conflict-related sexual violence.

— Request the appointment of women's protection advisers within the mission.

— Urge relevant regional and/or subregional bodies to develop and implement policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of civilians affected by sexual violence.

— Request troop- and police-contributing countries to deploy higher numbers of women peacekeepers or police, and to ensure the provision of appropriate training to their personnel participating in United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions on the protection of civilians, including women and children, and the prevention of sexual violence in conflict and post-conflict situations.

Parties to armed conflict to take the necessary measures to meet the specific protection, health and assistance needs of women and girls

Issues for consideration:

— Condemn, and call for the immediate cessation of, violations and abuses committed against women and girls in situations of armed conflict.

— Call for strict compliance by parties to armed conflict with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law relating to the protection of women and girls affected by armed conflict.

— Call upon all parties concerned to ensure that the protection, rights and well-being of women and girls affected by armed conflict are specifically integrated into all peace processes, peace agreements and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction planning and programmes.

— Call upon the host Government to develop and implement nationally owned multisectoral strategies for preventing and responding to sexual and gender-based violence.

— Include specific provisions for the protection of women and girls in the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions authorized by the Security Council, requesting in particular the mission to support the efforts of host Governments in developing and implementing nationally owned multisectoral strategies for preventing and responding to sexual and gender-based violence.

— Request that reports of the Secretary-General on country-specific situations include the protection of women and girls as a specific aspect of the report.

— Urge relevant regional and/or subregional bodies to develop and implement policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of women and girls affected by armed conflict.

Equal participation and full involvement of women in the prevention and resolution of armed conflict

Issues for consideration:

— Urge States, United Nations entities, regional and subregional organizations and other concerned parties to ensure increased representation of women at all decision-making levels in national, regional and international institutions and mechanisms for the prevention, management and resolution of conflict.

— Call upon all actors involved in negotiating and implementing peace agreements to adopt a gender perspective, including by considering:

- The needs of women and girls during repatriation and resettlement and for rehabilitation, reintegration and post-conflict reconstruction.

- Measures that support local women's peace initiatives and indigenous processes for conflict resolution, and that involve women in the implementation mechanisms of peace agreements.

- Measures that ensure the protection of, and respect for, the human rights of women and girls, particularly as they relate to the constitution, the electoral system, the police and the judiciary.

— Urge the Secretary-General and his Special Envoys to ensure the participation of women in discussions pertinent to the prevention and resolution of conflict, the maintenance of peace and security, and post-conflict peacebuilding, and encourage all parties to such talks to facilitate the equal and full participation of women at all decision-making levels.

— Ensure that Security Council missions take into account gender considerations and the rights of women and girls, including through consultation with local and international women's groups.

— Urge troop- and police-contributing countries to expand the role, numbers and contribution of women in United Nations operations, and especially among military observers and civilian police.

Sexual exploitation and abuse

Issues for consideration:

— Urge humanitarian and development organizations to take appropriate action to prevent sexual exploitation and abuse by their personnel, including predeployment and in-theatre awareness training and, in the case of United Nations actors, to promote and ensure compliance, including by civilian staff of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions, with the Secretary-General's bulletin on special measures for protection from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse.

—Urge troop- and police-contributing countries to take appropriate action to prevent sexual exploitation and abuse by their personnel, including predeployment and in-theatre awareness training to promote and ensure compliance with the Secretary-General's bulletin on special measures for protection from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse.

—Urge troop- and police-contributing countries to ensure full accountability in cases of sexual exploitation and abuse involving their personnel and to report to the Secretary-General on action taken.

	Authorizes [the mission], through its civilian component, to contribute, in coordination with the United Nations country team ... to the following tasks: (a) Monitor, report and follow-up on human rights violations and abuses, and support the United Nations system in-country to ensure that any support provided by the United Nations in [affected areas] shall be consistent with international humanitarian law and human rights law and refugee law as applicable;	Resolution 2098(2013), para. 15 (a)
	... urges [the mission] to enhance its efforts to prevent civilian casualties;	Resolution 2093(2013), para. 9
	... reaffirms that the protection of civilians must be given priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources, and encourages further the use of innovative measures implemented by [the mission] in the protection of civilians;	Resolution 2053(2012), para. 1
	Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate: Protection and security ... Support for efforts to promote and protect human rights To contribute to the promotion and protection of human rights in [the affected country], with special attention to grave violations and abuses committed against children and women, notably sexual and gender-based violence, in close coordination with the Independent Expert [on the situation of human rights in the affected country]; To bring to the attention of the Security Council all individuals identified as perpetrators of serious human rights violations and to keep the Security Council Committee established pursuant to [relevant resolution] regularly informed of developments in this regard;	Resolution 2000(2011), para. 7 (g)
	Recalls its authorization and stresses its full support given to the [the mission], while impartially implementing its mandate, to use all means necessary to carry out its mandate to protect civilians under imminent threat of physical violence, within its capabilities and its areas of deployment, including to prevent the use of heavy weapons against the civilian population, and requests the Secretary-General to keep it urgently informed of measures taken and efforts made in this regard;	Resolution 1975(2011), para. 6

	Emphasizes that the protection of civilians must be given priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources, and authorizes [the mission] to use all necessary means, within the limits of its capacity and in the areas where its units are deployed, to carry out its protection mandate;	Resolution 1925(2010), para. 11
	Reaffirms its practice of ensuring that mandates of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions include, where appropriate and on a case-by-case basis, provisions regarding the protection of civilians, stresses that mandated protection activities must be given priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources, including information and intelligence resources, in the implementation of mandates; and recognizes that the protection of civilians when and as mandated requires a coordinated response from all relevant mission components;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 19
	Decides ... that [the peacekeeping mission] shall have the mandate, within the limits of its capabilities and in its areas of deployment, to assist [the affected State] in establishing a stable security environment ... and, to that end: Protection of civilians, humanitarian personnel and United Nations personnel and facilities (a) To ensure the protection of civilians, including humanitarian personnel, under imminent threat of physical violence; (b) To contribute to the improvement of the security conditions in which humanitarian assistance is provided, and assist in the voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons; (c) To ensure the protection of United Nations personnel, facilities, installations and equipment; (d) To ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel; (e) To carry out joint patrols with the riot control units of the national police to improve security in the event of civil disturbance;	Resolution 1756(2007), para. 2
	Recognizes the increasingly valuable role that regional organizations and other intergovernmental institutions play in the protection of civilians, and encourages the Secretary-General and the heads of regional and other intergovernmental organizations to continue their efforts to strengthen their partnership in this regard;	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 24
Condemn impediments to, and call for the facilitation of, the implementation of the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping operations	Expressing concern at the continuing threats posed by the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons to the safety and security of United Nations peacekeepers and their effectiveness in implementing peacekeeping mandates ...	Resolution 2117(2013), ninth preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2113(2013), twelfth preambular para. and para. 11; 2109(2013), fourteenth preambular para. and paras. 19 and 35; 2104(2013), para. 14; 2076(2012), para. 14; and 2035(2012), para. 10.
	Expressing deep concern at the hindrances to [the mission] in the implementation of its mandate, including movement and access restrictions,	Resolution 2113(2013), sixteenth preambular para.
	... expresses deep concern at increased restrictions and bureaucratic impediments placed by the Government ... upon the movement and operations of [the mission], particularly to areas of recent conflict; calls upon all parties in [the affected area] to remove all obstacles to the full and proper discharge by [the mission] of its mandate, including by ensuring its security and freedom of movement; and in this regard demands that the Government comply with the status-of-forces agreement fully and without delay, particularly regarding the movement of patrols, flight and equipment clearances, the removal of all obstacles to the use of the aerial assets of [the mission], and the timely provision of visas for [mission] personnel and processing of its equipment at the port of entry to [the affected country]; ... welcomes some progress made in the provision of such visas but deplores continued delays, which threaten seriously to undermine the ability of [the mission] to implement its mandate; and demands that the Government respect the rights of [mission] personnel under the status-of-forces agreement;	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 12
	Demands that the Government ... and all relevant parties cooperate fully in the deployment, operations, and monitoring, verification and reporting functions of [the mission], in particular by guaranteeing the safety, security and unrestricted freedom of movement of United Nations personnel, as well as of associated personnel throughout the territory of [the affected country], further demands that the Government refrain from placing restrictions on the movements of [the mission], and in this regard strongly condemns all attacks on [the mission's] troops and staff, including [specific attack], ... and demands that there be no recurrence of such attacks or impunity for the perpetrators;	Resolution 2109(2013), para. 10

	Reiterating its call upon all parties to cooperate fully with [the mission] and its condemnation of any and all attacks against peacekeepers, ... and recalling its decision to extend sanctions measures outlined in [relevant provisions of resolution prescribing sanctions] to individuals and entities who plan, sponsor or participate in attacks against peacekeepers of [the mission],	Resolution 2098(2013), twenty-sixth preambular para.
	... condemns the attacks, threats, and acts of obstruction and violence perpetrated by [armed forces], militias and mercenaries against United Nations personnel, obstructing them from protecting civilians and monitoring and helping to investigate human rights violations and abuses, stresses that those responsible for such crimes under international law must be held accountable, and calls upon all parties ... to fully cooperate with the [relevant United Nations mission] and to cease interfering with its activities in implementation of its mandate;	Resolution 1975(2011), para. 4
Protection strategies and practical protection measures	Underlines the need for [the mission] to continue to make full use of its mandate and capabilities, giving priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources to (a) the protection of civilians across [the affected area], including through the full implementation of its mission-wide early warning strategy with associated early warning indicators; proactive military deployment and increased patrols in areas at high risk of conflict; enhanced efforts to respond promptly and effectively to threats of violence against civilians; securing, through increased police patrols, internally displaced persons camps, adjacent areas and areas of return; and supporting the development and training of community policing for internally displaced persons camps and areas of return; ... and requests [the mission] to maximize the use of its capabilities, in cooperation with the United Nations country team and other international and non-governmental actors, in the implementation of its mission-wide comprehensive strategy for the achievement of these objectives;	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 4	See also, for example, resolutions 2112(2013), para. 6; 2109(2013), paras. 3 and 5; 2003(2011), para. 3; 1996(2011), para. 3; 1935(2010), para. 4; 1933(2010), para. 16; 1919(2010), paras. 6 and 10; 1906(2009), para. 9; and 1794(2007), para. 18.

	... requests the Secretary-General to provide a full report on the situation in [the affected country] and on the activities of [the mission] ..., in order to prepare the strategic review ..., and requests that this full report include: (a) Specific information on the challenges of the role of [the mission] in the protection of civilians, an assessment of existing protection mechanisms ..., and assessment of special measures for protection from sexual violence;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 41 (a)
	Recognizes the important role of the Secretary-General in providing timely information to the Council on protection of civilians in armed conflict, in particular through thematic and country-specific reports and through briefings;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 31

	Requests the Secretary-General to include in his reports to the Council on country-specific situations more comprehensive and detailed information relating to the protection of civilians in armed conflict, including on protection-related incidents and actions taken by parties to armed conflict to implement their obligations to respect and protect the civilian population, including information specific to the protection needs of refugees, internally displaced persons, women, children and other vulnerable groups;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 32
Protection benchmarks	Emphasizes that future reconfigurations of [the mission] should be determined on the basis of the evolution of the situation on the ground and on the achievement of an improved capacity of the Government ... to effectively protect the population through the establishment of sustainable and effective security forces and by reform of the justice sector, including courts and prisons, with a view to progressively taking over the security role of [the mission];	Resolution 2116(2013), para. 6	See also, for example, resolutions 2119(2013), para. 3; 2098(2013), para. 11; 1925(2010), para. 6; and 1923(2010), para. 2.
	... The Council reaffirms its practice of requiring mission-specific benchmarks, as and where appropriate, to measure and review progress made in the implementation of peacekeeping mandates and, in this regard, underlines the importance of clear mission-specific benchmarks in the context of mission transition.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, twenty-fourth para.
	Stresses the importance of achievable and realistic targets against which the progress of United Nations peacekeeping operations can be measured, requests the Secretary-General to continue reporting to the Security Council every 90 days on progress made towards implementing across [the affected region] the mandate of [the mission], including on progress towards and obstacles to the implementation of the [protection] strategy ..., also including an assessment of progress against the benchmarks set out in ... the report of the Secretary-General ...	Resolution 1935(2010), para. 8
	... stresses the importance of including indicators of progress regarding the protection of civilians in benchmarks for relevant missions;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 27
	Notes that, in this context, the Government of [the affected country] commits itself to working towards the achievement of the following benchmarks related to the protection of civilians and humanitarian workers, in accordance with international humanitarian law ... (i) Voluntary return and resettlement in secure and sustainable conditions of internally displaced persons; (ii) Demilitarization of refugee and internally displaced persons camps as evidenced by a decrease in arms, violence and human rights abuses; (iii) Improvement in the capacity of [national] authorities in [the area affected by violence], including national law enforcement agencies, the judiciary and the prison system, to provide the necessary security for refugees, internally displaced persons, civilians and humanitarian workers with respect for international human rights standards;	Resolution 1923(2010), para. 3
	Requests the Government of [the affected country] and the Secretary-General to establish a joint Government .../United Nations High-level Working Group to assess on a monthly basis the situation on the ground with respect to the protection of civilians, the measures adopted by the Government of [the affected country] ... to progress towards meeting the [protection] benchmarks ...	Resolution 1923(2010), para. 4
Relations and complementarity between the mission, the United Nations country team and other stakeholders	Stressing the importance of continued efforts to enhance effective working between the military, civilian and police components of [the mission], and between [the mission] and humanitarian organizations in [the affected region], in the implementation of the mandate of [the mission],	Resolution 2113(2013), twenty-third preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2116(2013), para. 13; 2109(2013), para. 30; 2098(2013), paras. 17 and 18; 2063(2012), para. 16; 2062(2012), para. 19; 1925(2010), para. 16; 1880(2009), para. 28; and presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, twenty-second and twenty-third paras.
	Requests the Secretary-General to conduct a review of the mandate of [the mission] by undertaking an analysis of the respective comparative advantages of [the mission] and the United Nations country team, and further requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council in his midterm report on its findings, including a detailed report and accompanying matrix reflecting the current division of labour between [the mission] and the United Nations country team, and recommendations, ... pursuant to the review with a view to transferring those tasks where the United Nations country team has a comparative advantage to the United Nations country team or, where appropriate, to the Government ..., and expresses its intention to keep the mandate of [the mission] under review on the basis of this report;	Resolution 2112(2013), para. 10

	Reaffirms the inter-mission cooperation arrangements provided for in its [relevant resolution], and calls upon the United Nations in [relevant countries], including all components of [relevant missions], within their respective mandates, capabilities and areas of deployment, to enhance their inter-mission cooperation for the stabilization of the border area, including through the development of a shared, strategic vision and plan, in support of the [relevant national] authorities;	Resolution 2066(2012), para. 13
	Underscores the need for coherent United Nations activities in [the affected country], which requires clarity about roles, responsibilities and collaboration between [the mission] and the United Nations country team based on their comparative advantages, and noting the need for cooperation with other relevant actors in the region, including the [relevant actors],	Resolution 2057(2012), sixth preambular para.
	Recalls that the protection of civilians requires a coordinated response from all relevant mission components, and encourages [the mission] to enhance interaction, under the authority of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, between its civil and military components at all levels and humanitarian actors, in order to consolidate expertise on the protection of civilians;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 8
	Encourages [the mission] to enhance its interaction with the civilian population to raise awareness and understanding about its mandate and activities and to collect reliable information on violations of international humanitarian law and human rights abuses perpetrated against civilians;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 14
Training for peacekeeping personnel	... requests the Secretary-General to ensure that technical support is provided, in predeployment and in theatre, to the troop- and police-contributing countries of [the mission] to include guidance and training for military and police personnel on the protection of civilians from imminent threat and appropriate responses, including on human rights, sexual violence and gender issues;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 13	See also, for example, resolutions 1325(2000), para. 6; and 1296(2000), para. 19.
	Requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with relevant actors, to ensure that peacekeeping missions with protection of civilians mandates, in keeping with the strategic plans that guide their deployment, conduct mission-wide planning, predeployment training and senior leadership training on the protection of civilians, and requests troop- and police-contributing countries to ensure the provision of appropriate training of their personnel participating in United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions to heighten the awareness and responsiveness to protection concerns, including training on HIV/AIDS and zero tolerance of sexual exploitation and abuse in United Nations peacekeeping missions;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 23
	Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that United Nations personnel involved in peacemaking, peacekeeping and peace-building activities have appropriate training in international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law, including child and gender-related provisions, negotiation and communication skills, cultural awareness and civilian-military coordination, and urges States and relevant international and regional organizations to ensure that appropriate training is included in their programmes for personnel involved in similar activities;	Resolution 1265(1999), para. 14
B. Displacement
Protection of refugees and internally displaced persons, including prevention of forced displacement	Expressing deep concern ... at the significant increase in population displacements in [year] and the consequent increase in humanitarian assistance and protection needs, and at the fact that approximately [figure] internally displaced persons and refugees remain displaced, further expressing deep concern at the deteriorating conditions for internally displaced persons in [the affected area] as well as for new refugees in neighbouring countries and [nationals of neighbouring country] who have fled [the affected area], and at the situation of refugees and internally displaced persons unable to reach camps, and therefore vulnerable to ongoing violence or lacking humanitarian assistance, stressing the importance of continued international support to address these needs, recognizing that some displaced will settle permanently in urban areas, but underlining the need to ensure security in areas of return,	Resolution 2113(2013), seventeenth preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2111(2013), sixth and thirteenth preambular paras.; 2099(2013), twelfth preambular para.; 2098(2013), twelfth preambular para.; 2076(2012), eighth preambular para.; 2063(2012), fourteenth preambular para.; 1975(2011), para. 10; 1944(2010), twelfth preambular para.; and 1674(2006), para. 12.
	... strongly condemning all intimidation, threats and attacks committed against refugees, returnees and internally displaced persons in [the affected country] ...	Resolution 2112(2013), sixth preambular para.

	... expressing its concern at the reports of violations of human rights, including extrajudicial killings, violence against women, children and journalists, arbitrary detention and pervasive sexual and gender-based violence, particularly in camps for internally displaced persons ...	Resolution 2102(2013), ninth preambular para.
	Expresses concern at the security situation in camps for internally displaced persons and settlements, condemns all human rights violations and abuses, including sexual violence, committed against internally displaced persons by all parties, including armed groups and militias, and calls for the strengthening of protection of internally displaced person camps;	Resolution 2093(2013), para. 28
	Recalls the relevant prohibition of the forced displacement of civilians in armed conflict, and stresses the importance of fully complying with international humanitarian law and other applicable international law in this context;	Resolution 2093(2013), para. 29
	... strongly condemning all intimidation, threats and attacks committed against refugees and internally displaced persons in [the affected country] ...	Resolution 2062(2012), seventh preambular para.
	Urges the international community to provide support and assistance to enable States to fulfil their responsibilities regarding the protection of refugees and other persons protected under international humanitarian law;	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 13
	Notes that the overwhelming majority of internally displaced persons and other vulnerable groups in situations of armed conflict are civilians and, as such, are entitled to the protection afforded to civilians under existing international humanitarian law;	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 3
Asylum and non-refoulement	The Council reaffirms the importance of the principle of non-refoulement and the right of refugees to return voluntarily to [the affected country] and encourages countries neighbouring [the affected country] to protect all people fleeing the violence in [the affected country], including [people from a specific area in the region]. It urges all Member States, based on burden-sharing principles, to support these countries in assisting refugees and affected communities ...	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, sixteenth para.
	Acknowledges the cooperative policy of neighbouring States, including [list of relevant States] in keeping their borders open for refugees ... and encourages these States to continue this policy and contribute to a stabilization of the situation wherever possible;	Resolution 2056(2012), para. 15
	Recalling also the right to seek and enjoy asylum reflected in article 14 of the Universal Declaration [of Human Rights] and the non-refoulement obligation of States under the Convention relating to the Status of Refugees adopted on 28 July 1951, together with its Protocol adopted on 31 January 1967 ("the Refugees Convention and its Protocol"), and also recalling that the protections afforded by the Refugees Convention and its Protocol shall not extend to any person with respect to whom there are serious reasons for considering that he has been guilty of acts contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations,	Resolution 1624(2005), seventh preambular para.
	The Council reaffirms the principle of non-refoulement of refugees, as provided for in relevant instruments of international law, welcomes recent efforts of countries neighbouring [the affected State] to support the voluntary repatriation of ... refugees in safety and dignity, and urges those host States to continue to provide international protection to [those] refugees in need of it. It encourages the international community to provide the necessary assistance in this regard.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2000/12, seventh para.
	The Council is particularly concerned at the withdrawal of refugee status from and the consequent ending of assistance to many refugees from [the neighbouring State] ... The decisions of [the affected State] in this regard may lead to the involuntary return of tens of thousands of people to an area that is neither safe nor prepared to receive them. The Council stresses the importance of the principle of non-refoulement set out in the 1951 Geneva Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, to which [the affected State] is a party. The Council urges [the affected State] to continue to provide asylum to all refugees regardless of their origin.	Presidential statement S/PRST/1995/49, second para.

Civilian character of camps and settlements of refugees and internally displaced persons	... the Council calls upon all actors to take adequate and necessary measures to ensure respect for the principles of refugee protection and obligations under refugee law, including the civilian and humanitarian character of refugee camps.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, twentieth para.	See also, for example, resolutions 1834(2008), twelfth preambular para.; 1778(2007), twelfth preambular para. and para. 5; 1325(2000), para. 12; 1286(2000), para. 12; 1272(1999), para. 12; and presidential statement S/PRST/1999/32, fifth para.
	Calls upon all parties to respect the civilian and humanitarian character of refugee camps and internally displaced persons sites ...	Resolution 2076(2012), para. 12
	Encourages [the mission] and the United Nations country team to continue to assist the Government ... to prevent the recruitment of refugees and children by armed groups and to maintain the civilian nature of refugee camps and internally displaced persons sites, in coordination with [national security forces] and the humanitarian community;	Resolution 1923(2010), para. 23
	Calls upon all parties to armed conflicts to respect the civilian and humanitarian character of refugee camps and settlements and ensure the protection of all civilians inhabiting such camps, in particular women and girls, from all forms of violence, including rape and other sexual violence, and to ensure full, unimpeded and secure humanitarian access to them;	Resolution 1889(2009), para. 12
	Emphasizing the need to respect international refugee law, preserve the civilian and humanitarian nature of refugee camps and internally displaced persons sites and prevent any recruitment of individuals, including children, which might be carried out in or around the camps and sites by armed groups,	Resolution 1861(2009), thirteenth preambular para.
	Reaffirms the need to maintain the security and civilian character of refugee and internally displaced person camps, stresses the primary responsibility of States in this regard, and encourages the Secretary-General, where necessary and in the context of existing peacekeeping operations and their respective mandates, to take all feasible measures to ensure security in and around such camps and of their inhabitants;	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 14
	Invites the Secretary-General to bring to its attention situations where refugees and internally displaced persons are vulnerable to the threat of harassment or where their camps are vulnerable to infiltration by armed elements and where such situations may constitute a threat to international peace and security, expresses, in this regard, its willingness to consider such situations and, where necessary, adopt appropriate steps to help to create a secure environment for civilians endangered by conflicts, including by providing support to States concerned in this regard ...	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 14
Durable solutions, including safe, voluntary and dignified return and reintegration	Notes that a range of measures by the international community is needed to share the burden borne by African States hosting refugees and to support their efforts to ensure the security and civilian and humanitarian character of refugee camps and settlements, including in the areas of law enforcement, disarmament of armed elements, curtailment of the flow of arms in refugee camps and settlements, separation of refugees from other persons who do not qualify for international protection afforded refugees or otherwise do not require international protection, and demobilization and reintegration of former combatants;	Resolution 1208(1998), para. 6	See also, for example, resolutions 2063(2012), para. 18; 2001(2011), eleventh preambular para.; 1959(2010), para. 14; 1923(2010), seventh preambular para.; 1917(2010), paras. 38 and 39; 1895(2009), eighth preambular para.; 1883(2009), eleventh preambular para.; 1826(2008), para. 8; 1812(2008), para. 18; 1716(2006), para. 9; 1591(2005), seventh preambular para.; 1564(2004), para. 6; 1556(2004), nineteenth preambular para.;
	Stresses the importance of achieving dignified and durable solutions for refugees and internally displaced persons and of ensuring their full participation in the planning and management of these solutions, demands that all parties to the conflict in [the affected area] create the conditions conducive to allowing the voluntary, informed, safe, dignified and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons or their local integration, ... stresses the importance of the [relevant mechanism] in verifying the extent to which these returns are voluntary and informed in nature, and expresses deep concern over some bureaucratic obstacles that undermine its effectiveness and independence;	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 21
	Concerned about the residual threat of landmines and explosive remnants of war in [the affected area], which hinders the safe return of displaced persons to their homes and safe migration,	Resolution 2104(2013), twenty-sixth preambular para.
	... reaffirming that all parties ... should create conditions conducive to the voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons or local integration of internally displaced persons, welcoming commitments and encouraging continued efforts of the Government [of the affected country] for the relief of internally displaced persons, refugees and returnees, and noting the important role of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, based on its mandate, in providing continued advice and support to the Government, in coordination with [the mission] on these issues,	Resolution 2061(2012), eleventh preambular para.

	Welcomes ... the progress towards achieving dignified durable solutions for refugees living in [neighbouring country], and encourages a sustained effort to find solutions with regard to the residual ... refugee caseload [from the affected country], in compliance with relevant international law;	Resolution 1959(2010), para. 14	1545(2004), thirteenth preambular para.; 1494(2003), para. 15; 1272(1999), para. 12; 1096(1997), para. 8; and presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, nineteenth para.
	Calls upon all parties concerned to ensure that all peace processes, peace agreements and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction planning have regard for the special needs of women and children and include specific measures for the protection of civilians, including ... (iii) the creation of conditions conducive to the voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons ...	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 11
	Reaffirms the unacceptability of the demographic changes resulting from the conflict, reaffirms also the inalienable rights of all refugees and internally displaced persons affected by the conflict, and stresses that they have the right to return to their homes in secure and dignified conditions ...	Resolution 1615(2005), para. 18
	Welcomes the commitment of the parties to the right of all refugees and displaced persons freely to return to their homes of origin or to other places of their choice ... in safety ... and stresses the importance of facilitating the return or resettlement of refugees and displaced persons, which should be gradual and orderly and carried out through progressive, coordinated programmes that address the need for local security, housing and jobs ...	Resolution 1088(1996), para. 11
Housing, land and property	Urges the Government of [the affected country], with support from [the mission], to ... address the underlying causes of instability, in particular the impact of the return of displaced persons and refugees and possible land-related social tensions;	Resolution 2053(2012), para. 20
	Urges the signatories to the [peace agreement] to work towards a sustainable solution for the voluntary return, reinstallation, reintegration and security of displaced persons, including by addressing land tenure issues, with the support of the United Nations system, and to fulfil in this regard their commitments in accordance with the ... Agreement and their obligations under international law;	Resolution 1933(2010), para. 14
	The Council is deeply concerned that in spite of its previous requests there has been little progress on the issue of the return of [refugees from ethnic minority group] and urges [the Government] to adopt a comprehensive approach in order to facilitate the return of refugees ... to their homes of origin throughout [the affected State]. It deplores the continued failure by [the affected State] to safeguard effectively their property rights, especially the situation where many of those [ethnic minority refugees] who have returned to the former sectors have been unable to regain possession of their properties. The Council calls upon [the affected State] to apply immediately proper procedures to the question of property rights and to stop all forms of discrimination against the [minority population] in the provision of social benefits and reconstruction assistance.	Presidential statement S/PRST/1996/48, fourth para.
	Reaffirms its support for the established principles that all declarations and actions made under duress, particularly those regarding land and ownership, are null and void, and that all displaced persons should be enabled to return in peace to their former homes;	Resolution 941(1994), para. 3
Role of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions and actors	Requests the [Government] to ensure the protection and well-being of all internally displaced persons, including from sexual violence and exploitation, paying particular attention to ensuring that the human rights of internally displaced persons in [the country] are respected in relation to relocations, and to ensure a fully consultative process, providing prior notice and ensuring safe, sanitary new sites that have basic services, as well as full, safe and unhindered access for humanitarian organizations;	Resolution 2124(2013), para. 21	See also, for example, resolutions 2100(2013), para. 16; 1812(2008), para. 18; 1778(2007), para. 1; 1756(2007), para. 2; 1674(2006), para. 16; 1565(2004), para. 5; 1545(2004), paras. 5 and 13; 1509(2003), para. 6; 1419(2002), para. 11; 1244(1999), para. 11; and 1145(1997), para. 13.
	Underlines the need for [the mission] to continue to make full use of its mandate and capabilities, giving priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources to (a) the protection of civilians across [the affected area], including through ... securing, through increased police patrols, internally displaced persons camps, adjacent areas and areas of return; and supporting the development and training of community policing for internally displaced persons camps and areas of return ...	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 4
	... demands that all parties to the conflict in [the affected area] create the conditions conducive to allowing the voluntary, informed, safe, dignified and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons or their local integration ...	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 21
	Calls upon the Governments of [relevant countries] to continue to enhance their cooperation, particularly with respect to the border area, including ... in developing and implementing a shared border strategy to, inter alia, support ... the voluntary return of refugees;	Resolution 2066(2012), para. 12

	Encourages [the mission] to continue assisting the Government ... in providing adequate protection to the civilian population, with particular attention to the needs of internally displaced persons and other vulnerable groups, especially women and children, including through joint community policing in the camps, along with strengthened mechanisms to address sexual and gender-based violence ...	Resolution 2012(2011), para. 15
	Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate in this order of priority: Protection of civilians ... (g) Support the efforts of the Government ..., along with international partners and neighbouring countries, to create an environment conducive to the voluntary, safe and dignified return of internally displaced persons and refugees, or voluntary local integration or resettlement;	Resolution 1925(2010), para. 12 (g)
	Decides to extend ... the multidimensional presence in [the affected countries] intended to help to create the security conditions conducive to a voluntary, secure and sustainable return of refugees and displaced persons, inter alia, by contributing to the protection of refugees, displaced persons and civilians in danger, by facilitating the provision of humanitarian assistance in [the affected region] and by creating favourable conditions for the reconstruction and economic and social development of those areas;	Resolution 1861(2009), para. 1
	Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate in [the affected country], in liaison with the United Nations country team ... Security and protection of civilians ... (c) To liaise with the ... Government of [the affected country] and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees in support of their efforts to relocate refugee camps which are in close proximity to the border, and to provide to the Office of the High Commissioner, on availability and on a cost-reimbursable basis, logistical assistance for that purpose; ... (e) To support the initiatives of national and local authorities in [the affected country] to resolve local tensions and promote local reconciliation efforts, in order to enhance the environment for the return of internally displaced persons;	Resolution 1861(2009), paras. 6 (c) and (e)
	Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations ... decides that [the peacekeeping mission] shall have the following mandate: ... (b) To monitor and report on the human rights situation, in cooperation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, including on the situation of returned refugees and displaced persons;	Resolution 1542(2004), para. 7, sect. III (b)
	Recalls that the [opposition group] bears a particular responsibility to protect the returnees and to facilitate the return of the remaining displaced population, and requests further measures to be undertaken [by United Nations agencies] to create conditions conducive to the return of refugees and internally displaced persons, ... to develop their skills and to increase their self-reliance, with full respect for their inalienable right to return to their homes in secure and dignified conditions;	Resolution 1494(2003), para. 15
Targeted and graduated measures in response to violations of applicable international law related to forced displacement	Decides that the measures referred to in paragraph 3 above shall apply to the following individuals and, as appropriate, entities, as designated by the ... Committee ... (e) Individuals or entities operating in [the affected country] and committing serious violations involving the targeting of children or women in situations of armed conflict, including ... forced displacement;	Resolution 2078(2012), para. 4 (e)
	Encourages all States to submit to the Committee for inclusion on its list of designees, individuals ... [operating in the affected country and committing serious violations of international law involving ... forced displacement], as well as any entities owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by the submitted individuals or entities or individuals or entities acting on behalf of or at the direction of the submitted entities;	Resolution 1952(2010), para. 21
C. Humanitarian access and safety and security of humanitarian workers
Condemn, and call for the cessation of, attacks against humanitarian workers and the obstruction of the delivery of humanitarian aid	The Council ... condemns all cases of denial of humanitarian access, and recalls that arbitrarily depriving civilians of objects indispensable to their survival, including wilfully impeding relief supply and access, can constitute a violation of international humanitarian law.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, eleventh para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2109(2013), thirteenth preambular para.; 2063(2012), para. 14; 2041(2011), fourteenth preambular para.;
	Expressing concern at the continuing threats posed by the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons ... to the safety and security of humanitarian workers and their effective provision of humanitarian assistance,	Resolution 2117(2013), ninth preambular para.

	... expresses serious concern that access to populations in conflict-affected areas remains constrained, deplores the increased restrictions on humanitarian access in [the affected area] resulting from increased insecurity, attacks against humanitarian workers, denial of access by the parties to the conflict and bureaucratic impediments imposed by the Government ... stressing the need for the timely issuance of visas and travel permits for humanitarian organizations ...	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 16	2003(2011), para. 15; 2002(2011), eleventh preambular para.; 1964(2010), sixteenth preambular para.; 1935(2010), para. 10; 1917(2010), fifteenth preambular para.; 1894(2009), para. 16; 1840(2008), para. 16; 1828(2008), twelfth preambular para. and para. 8; 1780(2007), para. 13; 1769(2007), thirteenth preambular para. and para. 14; and 1265(1999), paras. 8 and 9.
	Notes with concern the continued high incidence of attacks against humanitarian workers, condemns these attacks in the strongest terms, emphasizing that the attacks impede efforts to aid the people of [the affected country], and underlines the need for all parties to ensure full, safe and unhindered access of all humanitarian actors, including United Nations staff and associated personnel, and to comply fully with applicable international humanitarian law;	Resolution 2096(2013), para. 29
	Condemning all attacks against ... humanitarian personnel, regardless of the perpetrators, and emphasizing that those responsible for such attacks must be brought to justice,	Resolution 2053(2012), thirteenth preambular para.
	Strongly condemning the targeting, obstruction or prevention of the delivery of humanitarian aid in [the affected country] by any parties, especially armed groups, and deploring any attacks on humanitarian personnel,	Resolution 2010(2011), fourteenth preambular para.
	Concerned at armed activities and banditry in [the affected countries] which threaten the security of the civilian population, the conduct of humanitarian operations in those areas and the stability of those countries, and which result in serious violations of human rights and international humanitarian law,	Resolution 1923(2010), fourth preambular para.
	Reiterating its serious concern at the worsening humanitarian situation in [the affected country], strongly condemning the targeting and obstruction of the delivery of humanitarian aid by armed groups in [the affected country], which has prevented the delivery of such aid in some areas, deploring the repeated attacks on humanitarian personnel, expressing its condemnation in the strongest terms of all acts of violence or abuses committed against civilians and humanitarian personnel, in violation of international humanitarian law and human rights law, and reaffirming the importance of the fight against impunity,	Resolution 1910(2010), fourteenth preambular para.
	Condemns any attack against personnel or facilities of [the mission], and demands that no acts of intimidation or violence be directed against United Nations and associated personnel or facilities or other actors engaged in humanitarian, development or peacekeeping work;	Resolution 1892(2009), para. 14
Call for compliance with applicable international humanitarian law and the observance of humanitarian principles	The Council calls upon all parties to respect the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian emergency assistance and stresses the importance of such assistance being delivered on the basis of need, devoid of any political prejudices and aims.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, third para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2109(2013), para. 13; 2076(2012), para. 11; 2075(2012), para. 13; 2063(2012), twelfth preambular para.; 2053(2012), para. 26; 2047(2012), para. 11; 2032(2011), para. 9; 2014(2011), para. 10; 2010(2011), thirteenth preambular para.; 2003(2011), para. 15; 1828(2008), para. 7; 1814(2008), para. 12; 1794(2007), para. 17; 1778(2007), para. 17; 1769(2007), para. 14; 1674(2006), paras. 8 and 22; 1574(2004), para. 11; 1565(2004), paras. 20 and 21;
	The Council also recalls that, under international humanitarian law, the wounded and sick must receive, to the fullest extent practicable, and with the least possible delay, medical care and attention required by their condition and that medical and humanitarian personnel, facilities and transport must be respected and protected. To this end, the Council urges free passage to all areas for medical personnel and supplies, including surgical items and medicine.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, tenth para.

Calls upon parties to armed conflict ... to comply with obligations under international humanitarian law to respect and protect humanitarian personnel, facilities and relief consignments, and to take measures to eradicate the negative impact of the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons on humanitarian actors, and take all required steps to facilitate the safe, rapid and unimpeded passage of relief consignments, equipment and personnel;	Resolution 2117(2013), para. 14	1545(2004), para. 12; 1533(2004), para. 5; 1509(2003), sixth preambular para. and para. 8; 1502(2003), para. 4; 1497(2003), paras. 11 and 12; and presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, thirteenth and fourteenth paras.
... calling upon all parties to ... urgently facilitate unhindered humanitarian access in accordance with international law, including applicable international humanitarian law, and guiding principles of humanitarian assistance ...	Resolution 2113(2013), fourteenth preambular para.
Requests the Secretary-General, through his Special Representative ..., to continue to direct the operations of an integrated [mission], coordinate all activities of the United Nations system in [the affected country], and support a coherent international approach to a stable peace in [the affected country], while respecting United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, including humanity, impartiality, neutrality, and independence;	Resolution 2109(2013), para. 2
Emphasizing the need for all parties to uphold and respect the humanitarian principles of humanity, neutrality, impartiality and independence in order to ensure the continued provision of humanitarian assistance, the safety of civilians receiving assistance and the security of humanitarian personnel operating in [the affected country], and stressing the importance of humanitarian assistance being delivered on the basis of need,	Resolution 2100(2013), eighth preambular para.
Urging all those concerned, as set forth in international humanitarian law, including the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the Regulations annexed to the Hague Convention IV of 1907, to allow full unimpeded access by humanitarian personnel to all people in need of assistance and to make available, as far as possible, all necessary facilities for their operations, and to promote the safety, security and freedom of movement of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel and their assets,	Resolution 2061(2012), twelfth preambular para.
Strongly urges [the affected country] and [armed groups] ... to permit humanitarian access to the affected population in [the affected areas], ensuring in accordance with applicable international law, including applicable international humanitarian law, and guiding principles of emergency humanitarian assistance the safe, unhindered and immediate access of United Nations and other humanitarian personnel, as well as the delivery of supplies and equipment, in order to allow such personnel to efficiently perform their task of assisting the conflict-affected civilian population;	Resolution 2046(2012), para. 4
Reaffirms the obligation of all parties to implement fully the rules and principles of international humanitarian law, particularly those regarding the protection of humanitarian personnel, and furthermore requests all the parties involved to provide humanitarian personnel with immediate, free and unimpeded access to all persons in need of assistance, in accordance with applicable international law;	Resolution 1923(2010), para. 22
Calls for the unimpeded provision and distribution throughout [the affected territory] of humanitarian assistance, including food, fuel and medical treatment;	Resolution 1860(2009), para. 2
Welcomes the initiatives aimed at creating and opening humanitarian corridors and other mechanisms for the sustained delivery of humanitarian aid;	Resolution 1860(2009), para. 3
Calls upon all parties concerned to ensure that all peace processes, peace agreements and post-conflict recovery and reconstruction planning ... include specific measures for the protection of civilians, including ... the facilitation of the provision of humanitarian assistance ...	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 11
Calls upon all Member States to ensure the free, unhindered and expeditious movement to [the affected State] of all personnel, as well as equipment, provisions, supplies and other goods, including vehicles and spare parts, which are for the exclusive and official use of [the peacekeeping operation];	Resolution 1590(2005), para. 8
Calls upon [the affected State to facilitate] international relief for the humanitarian disaster by means of a moratorium on all restrictions that might hinder the provision of humanitarian assistance and access to the affected populations ...	Resolution 1556(2004), para. 1

	Underlines the importance of safe and unimpeded access of humanitarian personnel to civilians in armed conflicts, calls upon all parties concerned, including neighbouring States, to cooperate fully with the United Nations Humanitarian Coordinator and United Nations agencies in providing such access, invites States and the Secretary-General to bring to its attention information regarding the deliberate denial of such access in violation of international law, where such denial may constitute a threat to international peace and security, and in this regard expresses its willingness to consider such information and, when necessary, to adopt appropriate steps;	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 8
	Expresses its intention, where appropriate, to call upon the parties to a conflict to make special arrangements to meet the protection and assistance requirements of women, children and other vulnerable groups, including through the promotion of "days of immunization" and other opportunities for the safe and unhindered delivery of basic necessary services;	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 10
Humanitarian assistance and preparedness	The Council also urges all Member States to respond swiftly to the United Nations humanitarian appeals to meet the spiralling needs of people inside [the affected country], in particular internally displaced persons, and ... refugees [from the affected country] in neighbouring countries, and to ensure that all pledges are honoured in full. It further urges all Member States, in coordination with international financial institutions and United Nations agencies, to increase their support to address the increasing political, socioeconomic and financial impact of the refugee crisis on hosting countries.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, seventeenth para.
	Underscores the importance of humanitarian aid operations, condemns any politicization of humanitarian assistance, or misuse or misappropriation, and calls upon Member States and the United Nations to take all feasible steps to mitigate the aforementioned practices in [the affected country];	Resolution 2060(2012), para. 5
	Expressing serious concern that the United Nations consolidated appeal for [the affected country] is not fully funded, stressing the need for urgent mobilization of resources to those in need, and calling upon all Member States to contribute to current and future consolidated humanitarian appeals,	Resolution 2010(2011), fifteenth preambular para.
	Expressing the importance of addressing humanitarian issues confronting the ... people [of the affected country], and stressing the need to continue to form a coordinated response and to provide adequate resources to address these issues,	Resolution 2001(2011), tenth preambular para.
	Stressing the need to further improve the reach, quality and quantity of humanitarian aid, ensuring efficient, effective and timely coordination and delivery of humanitarian assistance, including through enhanced coordination among the United Nations agencies, funds and programmes under the authority of the Special Representative [of the Secretary-General] and between the United Nations and other donors, especially where it is most needed, emphasizing in this regard the need for all, within the framework of humanitarian assistance, of upholding and respecting the humanitarian principles of humanity, neutrality, impartiality and independence,	Resolution 1974(2011), nineteenth preambular para.
	Expressing its concern at the significant decline in humanitarian funding for [the affected country], and calling upon all Member States to contribute to current and future consolidated humanitarian appeals,	Resolution 1964(2010), eighteenth preambular para.
	... noting the importance of contingency planning,	Resolution 1933(2010), sixth preambular para.
	Stressing the ongoing importance of providing humanitarian and development assistance to the civilian populations throughout [the affected country], encouraging comprehensive preparedness efforts by the United Nations ... including the need for increased humanitarian and development assistance ... and the need for continued cooperation among the [parties to the peace agreement], the United Nations and humanitarian organizations, and urging donors to support implementation of the [peace agreement] and to honour all pledges of financial and material support,	Resolution 1919(2010), thirteenth preambular para.
	Expressing its concern at the significant decline in humanitarian funding for [the affected country], and calling upon all Member States to contribute to current and future consolidated humanitarian appeals,	Resolution 1910(2010), fifteenth preambular para.

Role of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions and actors	The Council further urges the ... authorities to take immediate steps to facilitate the expansion of humanitarian relief operations and lift bureaucratic impediments and other obstacles, including through:	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, thirteenth para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2104(2013), para. 14; 2093(2013), para. 1; 2086(2013), para. 8; 2073(2012), para. 1; 2000(2011), para. 7; 1996(2011), para. 3; 1933(2010), para. 16; 1894(2009), paras. 12 and 14; 1778(2007), para. 6; 1772(2007), para. 9 (d); 1769(2007), para. 15; 1756(2007), para. 2; 1701(2006), para. 12; 1674(2006), para. 16; 1590(2005), para. 16; 1565(2004), paras. 4 and 5; 1542(2004), para. 9; 1528(2004), para. 6; 1509(2003), para. 3 (k); 1502(2003), para. 5 (a); and 1270(1999), para. 14.
	(a) Expediting the approval of further domestic and international non-governmental organizations to engage in humanitarian relief activities;
	(b) Easing and expediting the procedures for the operationalization of further humanitarian hubs, the entry and movement of humanitarian personnel and convoys by granting the necessary visas and permits in a predictable manner, the importation of goods and equipment, such as communication tools, protective armoured vehicles and medical and surgical equipment, needed for humanitarian operations;
	(c) Promptly facilitating safe and unhindered humanitarian access to people in need, through the most effective ways, including across conflict lines and, where appropriate, across borders from neighbouring countries in accordance with the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian emergency assistance; and
	(d) Accelerating approval for the implementation of humanitarian projects, including those in the revised ... Humanitarian Assistance Response Plan.
	The Council also urges all parties:	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/15, fourteenth para.
	(b) To immediately demilitarize medical facilities, schools and water stations, refrain from targeting civilian objects and agree on the modalities to implement humanitarian pauses, as well as key routes to enable promptly—upon notification from relief agencies—the safe and unhindered passage of humanitarian convoys along these routes to access people in need; and
	(c) To designate empowered interlocutors with the necessary authority to discuss with humanitarian actors operational and policy issues.
	Decides ... that the mandate of [the mission] shall be the following:	Resolution 2112(2013), para. 6 (g)
	...
	(g) Support humanitarian assistance
	To facilitate, as necessary, unhindered humanitarian access and to help to strengthen the delivery of humanitarian assistance to conflict-affected and vulnerable populations, notably by contributing to enhancing security for its delivery;
	... The Council recognizes the need for consistent engagement by humanitarian agencies with all parties to armed conflict for humanitarian purposes, including activities aimed at ensuring respect for international humanitarian law. The Council stresses the need to ensure simplified and expedited procedures for humanitarian personnel and goods in order to better deliver quick support to civilians on the ground. The Council also underlines the importance of systematic monitoring and analysis of constraints on humanitarian access.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, seventeenth para.
	Decides to authorize the deployment of an African-led International Support Mission in [the affected country] for an initial period of one year, which shall take all measures necessary, in compliance with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law and in full respect of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and unity of [the affected country], to carry out the following tasks:	Resolution 2085(2012), para. 9 (e)
	(e) To support the [national] authorities to create a secure environment for the civilian-led delivery of humanitarian assistance ..., as requested, within its capabilities and in close coordination with humanitarian actors;
	Expresses its intention:	Resolution 1894(2009), paras. 15 (a) and (b)
	(a) To call upon parties to armed conflict to comply with the obligations applicable to them under international humanitarian law to take all steps required to protect civilians and to facilitate the rapid and unimpeded passage of relief consignments, equipment and personnel;
	(b) To mandate United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions, where appropriate, to assist in creating conditions conducive to safe, timely and unimpeded humanitarian assistance;
	Invites the Secretary-General to continue the systematic monitoring and analysis of constraints on humanitarian access, to include, as appropriate, observations and recommendations in his briefings and country-specific reports to the Council;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 17
	... underlines, in particular, that [the mission] is authorized to take all necessary measures to provide security for key infrastructure and to contribute, as may be requested and within its capabilities and existing mandate, to the creation of the necessary security conditions for the provision of humanitarian assistance;	Resolution 1863(2009), para. 2

	Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations, (a) Decides that [the mission] shall be authorized to take all necessary measures, within its capabilities and its area of operations ..., to fulfil the following functions, in liaison with the Government of [the affected country]: ... (ii) To facilitate the delivery of humanitarian aid and the free movement of humanitarian personnel by helping to improve security in the area of operations;	Resolution 1861(2009), para. 7 (a) (ii)
	Reiterates its support for the contribution made by some States to protect the World Food Programme maritime convoys, calls upon States and regional organizations, in close coordination with each other and as notified in advance to the Secretary-General, and at the request of [the Government], to take action to protect shipping involved with the transportation and delivery of humanitarian aid ... and United Nations-authorized activities, calls upon troop-contributing countries to [the regional peacekeeping mission], as appropriate, to provide support to this end, and requests the Secretary-General to provide his support to this effect;	Resolution 1814(2008), para. 11
Accountability for attacks against humanitarian workers	Condemning all attacks against United Nations peacekeepers and humanitarian personnel, regardless of the perpetrators, and emphasizing that those responsible for such attacks must be brought to justice,	Resolution 2053(2012), thirteenth preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 1991(2011), eleventh preambular para.; 1925(2010), fourteenth preambular para.; 1674(2006), para. 23; and 1265(1999), para. 10.
	Emphasizing that there are existing prohibitions under international law against attacks knowingly and intentionally directed against personnel involved in a humanitarian assistance or peacekeeping mission undertaken in accordance with the Charter [of the United Nations] which in situations of armed conflict constitute war crimes, and recalling the need for States to end impunity for such criminal acts,	Resolution 1502(2003), fifth preambular para.
	Expresses its strong condemnation of all forms of violence, including, inter alia, murder, rape and sexual assault, intimidation, armed robbery, abduction, hostage-taking, kidnapping, harassment and illegal arrest and detention to which those participating in humanitarian operations are increasingly exposed, as well as attacks on humanitarian convoys and acts of destruction and looting of their property; Urges States to ensure that crimes against such personnel do not remain unpunished;	Resolution 1502(2003), paras. 1 and 2
	Expresses its determination to take appropriate steps in order to ensure the safety and security of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel, including, inter alia, by: (a) Requesting the Secretary-General to seek the inclusion of, and requesting that host countries include, key provisions of the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel, among others, those regarding the prevention of attacks against members of United Nations operations, the establishment of such attacks as crimes punishable by law and the prosecution or extradition of offenders, in future as well as, if necessary, in existing status-of-forces, status-of-mission and host country agreements negotiated between the United Nations and those countries, mindful of the importance of the timely conclusion of such agreements;	Resolution 1502(2003), para. 5 (a)
Targeted and graduated measures as a response to the obstruction of the delivery of humanitarian aid and to attacks against humanitarian workers	Urges the Government ... to respond to the ... requests [from the Committee appointed to oversee the implementation of the relevant sanctions regime] on ... investigations conducted and accountability measures undertaken for attacks against ... humanitarian personnel; and the situation of civilian populations in [specific areas], where the Panel of Experts, [the mission] and humanitarian agencies and personnel have been denied access, and measures taken to allow unimpeded and regular access for humanitarian relief to these areas;	Resolution 2091(2013), para. 11	See also, for example, resolutions 1894(2009), paras. 4 and 17; 1727(2006), para. 12; 1296(2000), para. 5; and 1265(1999), para. 10.
	Decides that the [provisions relating to travel bans and freezing of assets and economic resources] shall apply to individuals [and] entities, designated by the [sanctions committee]: ... (c) As obstructing the delivery of humanitarian assistance to [the affected State], or access to or distribution of humanitarian assistance in [the affected State];	Resolution 2002(2011), para. 1 (c)
	Expresses its determination to take appropriate steps in order to ensure the safety and security of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel, including, inter alia, by: ... (b) Encouraging the Secretary-General, in accordance with his prerogatives under the Charter of the United Nations, to bring to the attention of the Security Council situations in which humanitarian assistance is denied as a consequence of violence directed against humanitarian personnel and United Nations and its associated personnel;	Resolution 1502(2003), para. 5 (b)

Exceptions to United Nations restrictive measures on humanitarian grounds	Decides that until [date] and without prejudice to humanitarian assistance programmes conducted elsewhere, the measures imposed by [paragraph of Security Council resolution prohibiting making available financial or economic resources to individuals listed by the relevant sanctions committee] shall not apply to the payment of funds, other financial assets or economic resources necessary to ensure the timely delivery of urgently needed humanitarian assistance in [the affected country] by the United Nations, its specialized agencies or programmes, humanitarian organizations having observer status in the General Assembly that provide humanitarian assistance and their implementing partners, including bilaterally or multilaterally funded non-governmental organizations participating in the United Nations Consolidated Appeal for [the affected country];	Resolution 2111(2013), para. 22
	Decides also that the ban [on all flights in the airspace of the affected State] imposed by [relevant paragraph] shall not apply to flights whose sole purpose is humanitarian, such as delivering or facilitating the delivery of assistance, including medical supplies, food, humanitarian workers and related assistance, or evacuating foreign nationals from [the affected State] ...	Resolution 1973(2011), para. 7
Condemn, and call for the cessation of, violations of applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law	Recalling ... the statement by its President of 12 February 2013, in which it ... condemned all violations of international law against civilians, in particular the deliberate targeting of civilians, indiscriminate or disproportionate attacks, and sexual and gender-based violence,	Resolution 2109(2013), eleventh preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2091(2013), seventh and eighth preambular paras.; 2069(2012), twenty-first preambular para.; 2041(2012), thirty-third preambular para.; 2010(2011), para. 22; 1868(2009), para. 12; 1806(2008), para. 12; 1674(2006), para. 26; 1574(2004), para. 11; 1493(2003), para. 8; 1468(2003), para. 2; and 1296(2000), paras. 2 and 5.
	Remaining greatly concerned by ... the persistent high levels of violence and abuses and violations of international law, condemning in particular those involving the targeted attacks against civilians, widespread sexual and gender-based violence, the systematic recruitment and use of children by certain parties to the conflict, the displacement of significant numbers of civilians, extrajudicial executions and arbitrary arrests ...	Resolution 2098(2013), sixteenth preambular para.
	Condemns in the strongest terms all attacks, including improvised explosive device attacks, suicide attacks, assassinations and abductions, targeting civilians and [national] and international forces ..., and condemns further the use by the [armed groups] of civilians as human shields;	Resolution 2096(2013), para. 28
	Strongly condemns the continued violations of international humanitarian and human rights law, including the recruitment and use of children, the killing and maiming of civilians, including of children, rape and sexual slavery and other forms of sexual and gender-based violence and abductions, and the targeting of ethnic minorities perpetrated by armed groups ...	Resolution 2088(2013), para. 13
	Expressing its deep concern at the deteriorating security situation in some parts of [the affected area], including ceasefire violations, attacks by rebel groups, aerial bombardment by the Government of [the affected country], inter-tribal fighting, attacks on humanitarian personnel and peacekeepers, which have restricted humanitarian access to conflict areas where vulnerable civilian populations reside, as contained in the report of the Secretary-General ..., and the displacement of tens of thousands of civilians, and calling upon all parties to cease hostilities, including all acts of violence committed against civilians, ...	Resolution 2003(2011), thirteenth preambular para.
	Condemns all violence and hostilities directed against civilians and all acts of terrorism;	Resolution 1860(2009), para. 5
	Demanding an end to attacks on civilians, from any quarter, including by aerial bombing, and the use of civilians as human shields,	Resolution 1828(2008), thirteenth preambular para.
	Recalls that deliberately targeting civilians and other protected persons in situations of armed conflict is a flagrant violation of international humanitarian law, reiterates its condemnation in the strongest terms of such practices, and demands that all parties immediately put an end to such practices;	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 3
Call for compliance with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law	Underlines the importance of [the mission] abiding by all requirements applicable to it under international human rights and humanitarian law, further underlines in particular the need for [the mission] to ensure that any detainees in its custody, including disengaged combatants, are treated in strict compliance with applicable obligations under international humanitarian law and human rights law, including ensuring their humane treatment and further requests [the mission] to allow appropriate access to detainees by a neutral body and to establish standard operating procedures for the handover of any detainees, including children, who come into its custody during a military operation;	Resolution 2124(2013), para. 12	See also, for example, resolutions 2085(2012), para. 9; 1974(2011), twenty-third preambular para.; 1964(2010), para. 15; 1806(2008), para. 13; 1794(2007), para. 7;

	The Council recalls that all obligations under international humanitarian law must be respected in all circumstances. It recalls, in particular, the obligation to distinguish between civilian populations and combatants and the prohibition against indiscriminate attacks and attacks against civilians and civilian objects, as well as the prohibition on the use of chemical weapons and the employment of weapons, projectiles and material and methods of warfare which are of a nature to cause superfluous injury or unnecessary suffering. The Council urges all parties to immediately cease and desist from all violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights, and calls upon all parties to fully respect their obligations under international humanitarian law and to take all appropriate steps to protect civilians, including by desisting from attacks directed against civilian objects, such as medical centres, schools and water stations, and also calls upon all parties to avoid establishing military positions in populated areas ... 	... reaffirming that all parties to armed conflict must take all feasible steps to ensure the protection of civilians, calling for all parties to comply with their obligations under international law, including international humanitarian and human rights law, and for all appropriate measures to be taken to ensure the protection of civilians ...	Resolution 2096(2013), thirtieth preambular para.
	... stresses the responsibility of all parties in [the affected country] to comply with their obligations to protect the civilian population from the effects of hostilities, in particular by avoiding any indiscriminate attacks or excessive use of force, and underscores the need to end impunity, uphold human rights and hold those who commit crimes accountable;	Resolution 2093(2013), para. 26
	... stresses the responsibility of all parties and armed groups in [the affected State] to take appropriate steps to protect the civilian population ..., consistent with international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law, in particular by avoiding any indiscriminate attacks on populated areas;	Resolution 1814(2008), para. 17
	Affirming the importance for all parties, including foreign forces, promoting the maintenance of security and stability in [the affected State] to act in accordance with international law, including relevant obligations under international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, and to cooperate with the relevant international organizations ... and underscoring that all parties, including foreign forces, should take all feasible steps to ensure the protection of affected civilians,	Resolution 1790(2007), eighteenth preambular para.
	Demands that all parties concerned comply strictly with the obligations applicable to them under international [humanitarian, human rights and refugee] law, in particular those contained in the Hague Conventions of 1899 and 1907 and in the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto, of 1977, as well as with the decisions of the Security Council;	Resolution 1674(2006), para. 6
Call for the adoption of specific measures to prevent civilian harm	... noting the importance of conducting continuous reviews of tactics and procedures and after-action reviews and investigations in cooperation with the Government of ... in cases where civilian casualties have occurred and when the Government finds these joint investigations appropriate, as well as continuing cooperation with the [national security forces] towards the further institutionalization of the protection of civilians, especially women and girls,	Resolution 2120(2013), twenty-sixth preambular para.
	Requests that [the mission] take fully into account the need to protect civilians and mitigate risk to civilians, including, in particular, women, children and displaced persons, and civilian objects in the performance of its mandate as defined in [provisions mandating the mission to provide active support to national authorities in their actions against armed groups], where undertaken jointly with the [national] defence and security forces, in strict compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces;	Resolution 2100(2013), para. 26
	Authorizes [the mission], through its military component, in pursuit of the objectives described in [relevant provision], to take all necessary measures to perform the following tasks ... (a) Protection of civilians (i) mitigate the risk to civilians before, during and after any military operation; ... (b) Neutralizing armed groups ...	Resolution 2098(2013), paras. 12 (a) and (b)
	In support of the authorities of [the affected country], on the basis of information collation and analysis, and taking full account of the need to protect civilians and mitigate risk before, during and after any military operation, carry out targeted offensive operations ... in strict compliance with international law, including international humanitarian law and with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations [security] forces ...

... urging [the international military force] and other international forces to continue to undertake enhanced efforts to prevent civilian casualties, including the increased focus on protecting the [national] population as a central element of the mission, and noting the importance of conducting continuous reviews of tactics and procedures and after-action reviews and investigations in cooperation with the [national] Government in cases where civilian casualties have occurred and when the [national] Government finds these joint investigations appropriate, as well as continuing cooperation with the [national security forces] towards the further institutionalization of the protection of civilians,

Resolution 2069(2012), twenty-fifth preambular para.

Condemn the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons	Recalling with grave concern that the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons fuel armed conflicts and have a wide range of negative human rights, humanitarian, development and socioeconomic consequences, in particular on the security of civilians in armed conflict, including the disproportionate impact on violence perpetrated against women and girls, and exacerbating sexual and gender-based violence and the recruitment and use of children by parties to armed conflict in violation of applicable international law,	Resolution 2117(2013), tenth preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2111(2013), fifth preambular para.; 2104(2013), twenty-fifth preambular para.; 2063(2012), para. 20; 2040(2012), ninth preambular para.; 2021(2011), sixth preambular para.; 2017(2011), seventh preambular para.; 1944(2010), twelfth preambular para.; 1919(2010), para. 15; 1296(2000), para. 21; and 1265(1999), para. 17.
	Condemns the reported continuing violations of the measures contained in [resolutions prescribing arms embargo], as modified in its subsequent resolutions, and recalls the mandate of the Committee, as defined in [relevant provision of resolution prescribing sanctions], to examine and take appropriate action on information regarding alleged violations or non-compliance with those measures;	Resolution 2095(2013), para. 12
	Remaining seriously concerned over ... the continued proliferation of weapons from within and outside the region that threaten peace, security and stability of States in the region,	Resolution 2085(2012), fifth preambular para.
	Condemning the continuing illicit flow of weapons within and into [the affected State] in violation of resolutions [prescribing sanctions], declaring its determination to continue to monitor closely the implementation of the arms embargo and other measures set out in its resolutions concerning [the affected State],	Resolution 2078(2012), seventh preambular para.
	Notes that the excessive accumulation and destabilizing effect of small arms and light weapons pose a considerable impediment to the provision of humanitarian assistance and have the potential to exacerbate and prolong conflicts, endanger civilians and undermine security and the confidence required for a return to peace and stability ...	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 29
	Recognizes the deleterious impact of the proliferation of arms, in particular small arms, on the security of civilians, including refugees and other vulnerable populations, particularly children, and in this regard recalls resolution 1209(1998) of 19 November 1998 ...	Resolution 1261(1999), para. 14
Call for compliance with international measures on small arms and light weapons	Reminds Member States of their obligation to fully and effectively comply with Security Council-mandated arms embargoes and to take appropriate measures, including all legal and administrative means, against any activity that violates such arms embargoes, and including, in accordance with relevant Council resolutions, through cooperating with all relevant United Nations entities; by making available to relevant sanctions committees all pertinent information on any alleged violations of arms embargoes; by acting on credible information to prevent the supply, sale, transfer or export of small arms and light weapons in contravention of Council-mandated arms embargoes; by facilitating unhindered access by relevant Council-mandated personnel in accordance with Council mandates; and by applying relevant international standards such as the International Instrument to Enable States to Identify and Trace, in a Timely and Reliable Manner, Illicit Small Arms and Light Weapons;	Resolution 2117(2013), para. 2	See also, for example, resolutions 2079(2012), para. 8; 1952(2010), seventh preambular para.; 1937(2010), sixth preambular para.; and 1209(1998), para. 3.
	Urges States to consider signing and ratifying the Arms Trade Treaty as soon as possible, and encourages States and intergovernmental, regional and subregional organizations that are in a position to do so to render assistance in capacity-building to enable States parties to fulfil and implement the Treaty's obligations;	Resolution 2117(2013), para. 19
	Encourages the Government of [the affected country] to enhance stockpile security, accountability and management of arms and ammunition, with the assistance of international partners as necessary and requested, and to urgently implement a national weapons marking programme, in particular for State-owned firearms, in line with the standards established by the Nairobi Protocol for the Prevention, Control and Reduction of Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region and the Horn of Africa and the Regional Centre on Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region, the Horn of Africa and Bordering States;	Resolution 2078(2012), para. 12

	Emphasizing the importance of full compliance with the prohibition on sales and supply of arms and related materiel established by [relevant sanctions resolution],	Resolution 2004(2011), eighth preambular para.
	Urges Member States, in accordance with the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, to take effective action through, inter alia, conflict resolution and the development and implementation of national legislation, in a manner which is consistent with existing responsibilities of States under relevant international law, to control the illicit trade of small arms to parties in armed conflict that do not respect fully the relevant provisions of applicable international law relating to the rights and protection of children in armed conflict;	Resolution 1460(2003), para. 7
	Calls for effective international action to prevent the illegal flow of small arms into areas of conflict;	Resolution 1318(2000), annex, sect. VI
	Stresses the importance of all Member States, in particular States involved in the manufacturing or marketing of weapons, restricting arms transfers which could provoke or prolong armed conflicts or aggravate existing tensions or armed conflicts ...	Resolution 1209(1998), para. 3
	... stresses the need to implement the Programme of Action [to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects] and the International Instrument to Enable States to Identify and Trace, in a Timely and Reliable Manner, Illicit Small Arms and Light Weapons, in order to make real progress in preventing, combating and eradicating the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons. In particular, States are encouraged to strengthen physical security and stockpile management, destroy surplus and obsolete small arms and light weapons, ensure all small arms and light weapons are marked at the time of manufacture and import, and strengthen export and border controls and control brokering activities.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2007/24, sixth para.
Role of United Nations peacekeeping missions and other relevant actors in preventing the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons	Requests [the mission] to continue to support the ... authorities in their efforts to control the flow of small arms, the development of a weapons registry, the revision of current laws on importation and possession of arms, reform of the weapons permit system and the development and implementation of a national community policing doctrine;	Resolution 2119(2013), para. 24	See also, for example, resolutions 2112(2013), para. 6; 2098(2013), para. 12; 2095(2013), paras. 7 and 11; 2070(2013), para. 23; 2063(2012), para. 20; 2021(2012), paras. 11 and 16; 1959(2010), para. 9; and 1946(2010), para. 12.
	... requests [the mission] to ... monitor whether any arms or related materiel are present in [the affected area] in accordance with its mandate as set out in [relevant provision of Security Council resolution], and in this context, to continue to cooperate with the Panel of Experts established pursuant to [relevant resolution] ...	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 23
	Calls upon the ... authorities of [the affected country], with the assistance of [the mission], consistent with [relevant provision], and international partners, to address the issue of the proliferation of and illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons in accordance with the Economic Community of West African States Convention on Small Arms and Light Weapons, Their Ammunition and Other Related Materials and the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, in order to ensure the safe and effective management, storage and security of their stockpiles of small arms and light weapons and the collection and/or destruction of surplus, seized, unmarked or illicitly held weapons, and further stresses the importance of the full implementation of its [relevant resolution];	Resolution 2100(2013), para. 28
	Encourages the Government of [the affected country] to enhance stockpile security, accountability and management of arms and ammunition, with the assistance of international partners, as necessary and requested, and to urgently implement a national weapons marking programme, in particular for State-owned firearms, in line with the standards established by the Nairobi Protocol for the Prevention, Control and Reduction of Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region and the Horn of Africa and the Regional Centre on Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region, the Horn of Africa and Bordering States;	Resolution 2078(2012), para. 12
	... requests [the mission] to observe and report on any flow of personnel, arms and related materiel across the border with [relevant country];	Resolution 2057(2012), para. 6

	Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate: Protection and security ... (c) Monitoring of the arms embargo To monitor the implementation of the [arms embargo] imposed by [relevant provision], in cooperation with the Group of Experts established pursuant to [relevant resolution], including by inspecting, as they deem it necessary and when appropriate without notice, all weapons, ammunition and related materiel regardless of location, ... To collect, as appropriate, arms and any related materiel brought into [the affected country] in violation of the [arms embargo] imposed by [relevant provision], and to dispose of such arms and related materiel as appropriate; (d) Collection of weapons To continue to assist the national authorities, ... in collecting, registering, securing and disposing of weapons and in clearing explosive remnants of war, as appropriate, ... To support the Government ... in coordination with other partners to develop and implement community weapons collection programmes, which should be linked to community violence reduction and reconciliation; To coordinate with the Government ... in ensuring that the collected weapons are not disseminated or reutilized outside a comprehensive national security strategy ...	Resolution 2000(2011), paras. 7 (c) and (d)
	Recognizes the detrimental impact of the proliferation of arms, in particular small arms, on the security of civilians by fuelling armed conflict, encourages [the mission] to continue its efforts in providing assistance to the Government of [the affected area] with regard to the civilian disarmament process, in particular by strengthening the capacity of local authorities to deter inter-communal conflicts and by monitoring forced civilian disarmament initiatives in an effort to avert disarmament operations that could exacerbate insecurity in [the affected area];	Resolution 1919(2010), para. 15
Targeted and graduated measures as a response to the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons	Acknowledging the important contribution of Council-mandated arms embargoes in countering the illicit transfer of small arms and light weapons, mitigating the intensity of conflict and creating conditions conducive to the peaceful resolution of situations that threaten or breach international peace and security, and acknowledging also the contribution that Council-mandated arms embargoes make in supporting conflict prevention, post-conflict peacebuilding, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform,	Resolution 2117(2013), twelfth preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 1907(2009), para. 12; and 1521(2003), para. 2 (a).
	Decides ... that the arms embargo shall not apply to the supplies of non-lethal equipment intended solely to enable the [national] security forces to use only appropriate and proportionate force while maintaining public order, as approved in advance by [the sanctions committee];	Resolution 1946(2010), para. 5
	Underlines that it is fully prepared to impose targeted measures against persons to be designated by the [sanctions] Committee ... who are determined to be, among other things: ... (f) Acting in violation of the measures imposed by [paragraph providing for arms embargo];	Resolution 1946(2010), para. 6 (f)
	Decides that all Member States shall immediately take the measures necessary to prevent the sale or supply to [the affected State], by their nationals or from their territories or using their flag vessels or aircraft, of arms and related materiel of all types, including weapons and ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, paramilitary equipment and spare parts for the aforementioned, and technical assistance, training, and financial and other assistance related to military activities or to the provision, manufacture, maintenance or use of these items, whether or not originating in their territories;	Resolution 1907(2009), para. 5
	Decides that all States shall take the following measures, as previously imposed by [the Security Council sanctions resolutions on certain illegal armed groups] and other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with them ... (c) Prevent the direct or indirect supply, sale or transfer to those individuals, groups, undertakings and entities, from their territories or by their nationals outside their territories, or using their flag vessels or aircraft, of arms and related materiel of all types, including weapons and ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, paramilitary equipment, and spare parts for the aforementioned, and technical advice, assistance or training related to military activities;	Resolution 1904(2009), para. 1 (c)

	... reaffirms its intention to consider imposing, through country-specific resolutions, targeted and graduated measures, such as, inter alia, a ban on the export and supply of small arms and light weapons and of other military equipment and on military assistance, against parties to situations of armed conflict which are on the agenda of the Security Council and are in violation of applicable international law relating to the rights and protection of children in armed conflict;	Resolution 1612(2005), para. 9
	Expresses its intention to consider taking appropriate steps, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, to address the linkages between armed conflict and terrorism, the illicit trade in precious minerals, the illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, and other criminal activities, which can prolong armed conflict or intensify its impact on civilian populations, including children;	Resolution 1379(2001), para. 6
International and regional cooperation in preventing the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons	Calls upon all Member States, in particular States of the region, acting nationally or through regional organizations or arrangements, in order to ensure strict implementation of the arms embargo established by [provision of the relevant resolution], to inspect in their territory, including seaports and airports, and on the high seas, vessels and aircraft bound to or from [the affected State], if the State concerned has information that provides reasonable grounds to believe that the cargo contains items, the supply, sale, transfer or export of which is prohibited by [paragraph of the relevant resolution] ... , including the provision of armed mercenary personnel, calls upon all flag States of such vessels and aircraft to cooperate with such inspections, and authorizes Member States to use all measures commensurate to the specific circumstances to carry out such inspections;	Resolution 1973(2011), para. 13
	Encourages enhanced cooperation between all States, particularly those in the region, [the mission] and the Group of Experts [informing the sanctions committee], and encourages further all parties and all States to ensure cooperation with the Group of Experts [informing the sanctions committee] by individuals and entities within their jurisdiction or under their control;	Resolution 1952(2010), para. 17
	Urges, in this context, that all parties [in the affected country] and all States, particularly those in the region, ensure: The safety of the members of the Group of Experts [informing the sanctions committee]; Unhindered access by the Group of Experts [informing the sanctions committee], in particular to persons, documents and sites, in order for the Group of Experts to execute its mandate;	Resolution 1946(2010), para. 16
	Urges all States, relevant United Nations bodies, the [regional organization] and other interested parties, to cooperate fully with the Committee and the Panel of Experts [informing the sanctions committee], in particular by supplying any information at their disposal on implementation of the measures imposed by [resolutions imposing sanctions];	Resolution 1945(2010), para. 5
	Requests the Governments of [the affected State] and of all States, particularly those in the region, the United Nations Organization Mission in [the affected State] and the Group of Experts to cooperate intensively, including by exchanging information regarding arms shipments, trading routes and strategic mines known to be controlled or used by armed groups, flights from the ... region to [the affected State] and from [the affected State] to the ... region, the illegal exploitation of and trafficking in natural resources, and activities of individuals and entities designated by the [sanctions] Committee pursuant to paragraph 4 of resolution 1857(2008);	Resolution 1896(2009), para. 10
	Further demands that all parties and all States ensure cooperation with the Group of Experts by individuals and entities within their jurisdiction or under their control, and in this regard requests all States to identify a focal point to the Committee in order to enhance cooperation and information-sharing with the Group of Experts;	Resolution 1896(2009), para. 12
	... calls upon the countries of the region to reinforce their cooperation with the Security Council Committee and the Group of Experts ... in enforcing the arms embargo in [the affected State] and to combat cross-border trafficking in illicit small arms, light weapons and illicit natural resources as well as the movement of combatants, and reiterates its demand that [States in the region] take measures to prevent the use of their respective territories in support of the activities of armed groups present in the region;	Resolution 1653(2006), para. 16
	Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that his [Special Representatives for neighbouring countries] coordinate the activities of [their respective missions], share military information at their disposal, in particular concerning cross-border movements of armed elements and arms trafficking, and pool their logistic and administrative resources, to an extent that does not affect the ability to carry out their respective mandates, in order to maximize efficiency and cost-effectiveness;	Resolution 1545(2004), para. 20

Mine action and explosive remnants of war	Expressing concern about the serious threat that anti-personnel mines, remnants of war and improvised explosive devices pose to the civilian population, and stressing the need to refrain from the use of weapons and devices prohibited by international law,	Resolution 2096(2013), thirty-first preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2104(2013), twenty-sixth preambular para.; and 1986(2011), fifteenth preambular para.
	Notes, in this regard, that multidimensional peacekeeping missions may be mandated by the Security Council, inter alia: ... (d) To provide for rapid response in mine action as well as advisory services and training tailored to needs of national authorities, upon request, with a view to enabling risk reduction, victim assistance, demining and stockpile management and disposal;	Resolution 2086(2013), para. 8 (d)
	Demands that the [relevant Governments] facilitate the deployment of the United Nations Mine Action Service to ensure freedom of movement for [the relevant personnel] as well as the identification and clearance of mines in [the affected area];	Resolution 2075(2012), para. 12
	Demands that [the relevant countries] facilitate the deployment of the United Nations Mine Action Service as well as the identification and clearance of mines in [the affected areas];	Resolution 2047(2012), para. 10
	Noting the ratification by [the affected country] of the Convention on Cluster Munitions,	Resolution 2011(2011), twenty-second preambular para.
	Welcomes the achievements to date in the implementation of the Mine Action Programme for [the affected country], and encourages the Government of [the affected country], with the support of the United Nations and all the relevant actors, to continue its efforts towards the removal of anti-personnel landmines, anti-tank landmines and explosive remnants of war in order to reduce the threats posed to human life and peace and security in the country; and expresses the need to provide assistance for the care, rehabilitation, and economic and social reintegration of victims, including persons with disabilities;	Resolution 1917(2010), para. 19
	... calls upon parties to armed conflict to take all feasible precautions to protect the civilian population, including children, from the effects of landmines and other explosive remnants of war, and in this regard encourages the international community to support country efforts in clearing landmines and other explosive remnants of war and to provide assistance for the care, rehabilitation and economic and social reintegration of victims, including persons with disabilities;	Resolution 1894(2009), para. 29
	Welcomes the continued contribution of [the peacekeeping mission] to operational demining ..., encourages further assistance in mine action by the United Nations to [the affected State] in support of both the continued development of its national mine action capacity and emergency demining activities ..., commends donor countries for supporting these efforts through financial and in-kind contributions and encourages further international contributions, takes note of the communication to [the affected State] and [the peacekeeping mission] of maps and information on the location of mines, and stresses the necessity to provide [the affected State] and [the peacekeeping mission] with any additional maps and records on the location of mines;	Resolution 1525(2004), para. 9
	The Council expresses deepest worry at the presence in very high numbers of unexploded ordnance in [the region of the affected country], including cluster munitions. It deplores the death and injury of dozens of civilians, as well as of several deminers, caused by those munitions since the cessation of hostilities. It supports in this context the request by the Secretary-General to [the party to the conflict] to provide to the United Nations detailed data on its use of cluster munitions in [the territory of the affected State].	Presidential statement S/PRST/2007/12, thirteenth para.

F. Compliance, accountability and the rule of law

Dissemination of, and training on, international humanitarian law and human rights law standards	Welcomes the continued cooperation between and the conduct of coordinated activities by [the mission] and the [armed forces], and calls for strict adherence by [the armed forces] to international humanitarian, human rights and refugee laws, and in this context recalls the importance of training in human rights, child protection and sexual and gender-based violence for security and law enforcement agencies;	Resolution 2112(2013), para. 24	See also, for example, resolutions 2053(2012), twelfth preambular para.; and 1265(1999), eighth preambular para. and para. 5.

	Strongly urges the Government ... to ensure in the shortest possible time frame that, irrespective of their status or political affiliation, all those responsible for serious abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including those committed during and after ... crisis in [the affected country], are brought to justice in accordance with its international obligations and that all detainees receive clarity about their status in a transparent manner, and urges the Government to continue its cooperation with the International Criminal Court;	Resolution 2112(2013), para. 15
	... urges the [national] authorities to take all necessary measures to protect human rights, put an end to impunity, initiate investigations to identify the perpetrators of such acts and bring them to justice and take action to protect witnesses in order to ensure due process, and urges them to take steps to mitigate the climate of fear resulting from restrictions on freedom of expression and freedom of assembly;	Resolution 2103(2013), para. 6
	Authorizes [the mission], through its military component, in pursuit of the objectives described in [relevant provision], to take all necessary measures to perform the following tasks, through its regular forces and its Intervention Brigade as appropriate: ... Provision of support to national and international judicial processes Support and work with the Government ... to arrest and bring to justice those responsible for war crimes and crimes against humanity in the country, including through cooperation with States of the region and the International Criminal Court;	Resolution 2098(2013), para. 12 (d)

Calls upon [the mission], where consistent with its authorities and responsibilities, to continue to support national and international efforts to bring to justice perpetrators of grave abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law in [the affected country], irrespective of their status or political affiliation;	Resolution 2062(2012), para. 13
Encourages the Government of [the affected country] to ratify and implement key international human rights treaties and conventions, including those related to women and children, refugees and statelessness, and requests [the mission], with other United Nations actors, to advise and assist the Government [of the affected country] in this regard;	Resolution 2057(2012), para. 13
Requests [the mission] to continue to provide interim law enforcement and to ensure the maintenance of public security in those districts and units in which the [national police] has yet to resume primary policing responsibilities and, following the resumption of primary policing responsibilities by the [national police], to provide operational support to the [national police] ...	Resolution 1969(2011), para. 8
Requests that [the mission] focus on and support the Government of [the affected country] in the following areas: (a) Strengthening the independence, capacities and legal frameworks of key national institutions, in particular judicial and parliamentary institutions, in line with international standards and principles; ... (c) Supporting efforts to fight impunity, particularly through the establishment of transitional justice mechanisms ..., and providing operational support to the functioning of these bodies;	Resolution 1959(2010), paras. 3 (a) and (c)
Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate in this order of priority: Protection of civilians ... (c) To support the efforts of the Government of [the affected country] to ensure the protection of civilians from violations of international humanitarian law and human rights abuses, including all forms of sexual and gender-based violence, to promote and protect human rights and to fight impunity, including through the implementation of the Government's "zero-tolerance policy" with respect to discipline and human rights and humanitarian law violations committed by elements of the security forces, in particular the newly integrated elements; (d) To support national and international efforts to bring perpetrators to justice, including by establishing prosecution support cells to assist the military justice authorities ... in prosecuting persons arrested by the [military forces]; ... Stabilization and peace consolidation (l) Taking fully into account the leading role of the Government of [the affected country], to support, in close cooperation with other international partners, the efforts of the [national] authorities to strengthen and reform security and judicial institutions; ... (o) To develop and implement, in close consultation with the [national] authorities ..., a multi-year joint United Nations justice support programme in order to develop the criminal justice chain, the police, the judiciary and prisons in conflict-affected areas and a strategic programmatic support at the central level ... (p) To support, in close cooperation with other international partners, the efforts of the Government of [the affected country] to consolidate State authority in the territory freed from armed groups through the deployment of trained [national police forces] and to develop rule of law institutions and territorial administration ...	Resolution 1925(2010), paras. 12 (c), (d), (l), (o) and (p)
Requests [the mission] to continue to contribute ... to the promotion and protection of human rights in [the affected country], with special attention to violence committed against children and women, to monitor and help to investigate human rights violations with a view to ending impunity ..., and further requests the Secretary-General to continue to include in his reports to the Council relevant information on progress in this area;	Resolution 1880(2009), para. 26

	Decides that [the peacekeeping mission], consistent with its existing mandate ... to assist with the restructuring and maintenance of the rule of law, public safety and public order, shall provide assistance and advice to the [national authorities], in consultation with relevant actors, in monitoring, restructuring, reforming and strengthening of the justice sector, including through technical assistance to review all relevant legislation, the provision of experts to serve as professional resources, the rapid identification and implementation of mechanisms to address prison overcrowding and prolonged pretrial detention and the coordination and planning of these activities, and invites [the affected State] to take full advantage of that assistance;	Resolution 1702(2006), para. 14
	Underlines the importance of civilian police as a component of peacekeeping operations, recognizes the role of police in assuring the safety and well-being of civilians, and in this regard acknowledges the need to enhance the capacity of the United Nations for the rapid deployment of qualified and well-trained civilian police;	Resolution 1265(1999), para. 15
Role of United Nations peacekeeping missions and other relevant actors in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes and in security sector reforms	Decides that the mandate of [the mission] shall be the following: ... Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme and collection of weapons To assist the Government ... in close coordination with other bilateral and international partners, in implementing without further delay the new national programme for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants and dismantling of militias and self-defence groups, taking into account the rights and needs of the distinct categories of persons to be disarmed, demobilized and reintegrated, including children and women; To support the registration and screening of former combatants and assist in assessing and verifying the reliability of the listings of former combatants; To support the disarmament and repatriation of foreign armed elements, where relevant in cooperation with [mission in neighbouring country] and United Nations country teams in the region; To assist the national authorities, including [relevant institution], in collecting, registering, securing and disposing of weapons and in clearing explosive remnants of war, as appropriate, in accordance with [relevant] resolution ... To coordinate with the Government ... in ensuring that the collected weapons are not disseminated or reutilized outside a comprehensive national security strategy ... Reconstitution and reform of security institutions To assist the Government ... in implementing, without delay and in close coordination with other international partners, its comprehensive national security strategy; To support the Government ... in providing effective, transparent and harmonized coordination of assistance, including the promotion of a clear division of tasks and responsibilities, by international partners to the security sector reform process; To advise the Government ... as appropriate, on security sector reform and the organization of the future national army, to facilitate the provision, within its current resources and as requested by the Government and in close coordination with other international partners, of training in human rights, child protection and protection from sexual and gender-based violence to the security and law enforcement institutions, as well as capacity-building support by providing technical assistance, co-location and mentoring programmes for the police, gendarmerie, justice and corrections officers and to contribute to restoring their presence throughout [the affected country] and to offer support to the development of a sustainable vetting mechanism for personnel that will be absorbed into security sector institutions;	Resolution 2112(2013), paras. 6 (c) and (d)	See also, for example, resolutions 2121(2013), para. 10; 2112(2013), paras. 8, 11 and 12; 2109(2013), para. 24; 2100(2013), paras. 22 and 23; 2085(2012), paras. 8 and 9; 2053(2012), paras. 8 to 11 and 22; 2040(2012), para. 6; 2030(2011), para. 6; 2027(2011), para. 6; 2012(2011), para. 9; 2000(2011), paras. 7 (e) and (f); 1996(2011), para. 3; 1991(2011), paras. 11 and 12; 1964(2010), paras. 6, 8, 11 and 12; and 1880(2009), para. 27.
	Authorizes [the mission], through its civilian component, to contribute, in coordination with the United Nations country team ..., to the following tasks: ... (d) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government ... for the design of a single overarching plan for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and for disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration for foreign and [national] combatants not suspected of genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity or gross violations of human rights, including members of the [national armed forces], and support, when appropriate, the implementation of this plan; ... (f) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government ... for the reform of the police, including by contributing, in compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations [security] forces, to the provision of training to battalions of the ... National Police;	Resolution 2098(2013), paras. 15 (d) and (f)

... urges all international partners, together with [the mission], to continue supporting [the affected country]'s efforts to professionalize and enhance the capacity of the national security services and the police, in particular through vetting for human rights violations, training on human rights and sexual and gender-based violence and promoting strong civilian oversight and monitoring, with the view to consolidating security sector governance;	Resolution 2090(2013), para. 11
Urges the [national] Government to develop and implement expeditiously a national disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme, with clear and strict eligibility criteria, a new secure and transparent database and the creation of a central authority to oversee all disarmament, demobilization and reintegration aspects, and to find solutions for the sustained social and economic integration of former combatants, and further encourages the United Nations country team to facilitate the planning and the implementation of programmes which support this process, in consultation with the [national] Government and in close collaboration with all international partners;	Resolution 2062(2012), para. 7
Reaffirms the importance that the Government of [the affected country] continues the review and reform of the security sector in [the affected country], in particular the need to delineate roles and responsibilities between [the national security forces of the affected country], to strengthen legal frameworks and to enhance civilian oversight and accountability mechanisms of both security institutions, supports the efforts of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to promote security sector professionalization, and requests [the mission] to continue to support the Government [of the affected country], as requested, in its efforts in the country;	Resolution 2037(2012), para. 4
Reiterates that future reconfigurations of [the mission] should be determined on the basis of the evolution of the situation on the ground and on the achievement of the following objectives to be pursued by the Government of [the affected country] and the United Nations Mission: ... (b) An improved capacity of the Government ... to effectively protect the population through the establishment of professional, accountable and sustainable security forces with a view to progressively taking over the security role of [the mission];	Resolution 1991(2011), para. 4 (b)
Encourages [the mission], consistent with its mandate, and within authorized levels of civilian police, to continue efforts to assist the parties to the [peace agreement] in promoting the rule of law, restructuring the police and corrections services throughout [the affected country], particularly in the [region of the affected country], owing to the lack of development of the police services, and assisting in the training of civilian police and corrections officers;	Resolution 1919(2010), para. 17
... encourages [the mission] to work closely with the [national] Armed Forces ... to reinvigorate the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process and to assist in voluntary disarmament and weapons collection and destruction efforts in implementation of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process..., to ensure the timely provision of sustainable reintegration programmes, which will help to promote continued and enhanced funding support from donors for the reintegration phase, and to coordinate with local authorities and with the United Nations agencies, funds and programmes initiatives that strengthen disarmament, demobilization and reintegration with the creation of economic opportunities for reintegrated individuals, further urges donors to respond to calls for assistance to the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, in particular the reintegration phase, calls upon donors to honour all obligations and pledges of assistance, and takes note in this context of the need to also assist the victims in conflict-affected communities;	Resolution 1919(2010), para. 18
Requests the Secretary-General to continue to assist the Government [of the affected country] in developing the transitional security institutions, including the [national police force and the national security force], and to continue to support the Government [of the affected country] in developing a national security strategy which reflects respect for the rule of law and the protection of human rights, including plans for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, justice and corrections capacities, as well as the legal and policy framework for the operation of its security forces, including governance, vetting and oversight mechanisms;	Resolution 1910(2010), para. 12
Further requests [the mission] to provide military training, including in the area of human rights, international humanitarian law, child protection and the prevention of gender-based and sexual violence, to the [armed forces] ..., as part of broader international efforts to support security sector reform;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 31

	... requests [the mission] ... to also continue to contribute ... to assisting the Government of [the affected country] in restoring a civilian policing presence throughout [the affected country], and to advise the Government [of the affected country] on the restructuring of the internal security services, and in re-establishing the authority of the judiciary and the rule of law throughout [the affected country];	Resolution 1880(2009), para. 27
Protection of journalists	Calls for full respect for and protection for all human rights and fundamental freedoms, including those of human rights defenders, and of international humanitarian law throughout [the affected country], welcomes the growth in ... free media, but notes with concern the continued restrictions on freedom of the media and attacks against journalists ...	Resolution 2096(2013), para. 42	See also, for example, resolution 1738(2006), eleventh preambular para.
	The Council ... expresses deep concern about acts of violence against journalists, media professionals and associated personnel in armed conflict, in particular deliberate attacks in violation of international humanitarian law, and calls upon all parties to armed conflict to put an end to such practice. The Council recalls, in this regard, that journalists, media professionals and associated personnel engaged in dangerous professional missions in areas of armed conflict shall be considered as civilians and shall be respected and protected as such, provided that they take no action adversely affecting their status as civilians. The Council recalls its demand that all parties to an armed conflict comply fully with the obligations applicable to them under international law related to the protection of civilians in armed conflict, including journalists, media professionals and associated personnel.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, sixteenth para.
	... recalls the obligation of the ... Government ... with respect to the protection of journalists, the prevention of violence against them, and the fight against impunity for perpetrators of such acts;	Resolution 2093(2013), para. 30
	Condemns the use of [national television channel] and other media to incite discrimination, hostility, hatred and violence, including against [relevant United Nations mission], as well as acts of intimidation and violence against journalists, and calls for the lifting of all restrictions placed on the exercise of the right of freedom of expression in [the affected country];	Resolution 1975(2011), para. 9
	Condemning also acts of violence and intimidation committed by the authorities [of the affected country] against journalists, media professionals and associated personnel and urging these authorities to comply with their obligations under international humanitarian law as outlined in [relevant resolution],	Resolution 1973(2011), sixth preambular para.
	Condemns intentional attacks against journalists, media professionals and associated personnel, as such, in situations of armed conflict, and calls upon all parties to put an end to such practices;	Resolution 1738(2006), para. 1
	Recalls ... that journalists, media professionals and associated personnel engaged in dangerous professional missions in areas of armed conflict shall be considered as civilians and shall be respected and protected as such, provided that they take no action adversely affecting their status as civilians. This is without prejudice to the right of war correspondents accredited to the armed forces to the status of prisoners of war provided for in article 4.A, paragraph 4, of the Third Geneva Convention of 12 August 1949;	Resolution 1738(2006), para. 2
	Recalls ... that media equipment and installations constitute civilian objects, and in this respect shall not be the object of attack or of reprisals, unless they are military objectives;	Resolution 1738(2006), para. 3
	Urges States and all other parties to an armed conflict to do their utmost to prevent violations of international humanitarian law against civilians, including journalists, media professionals and associated personnel;	Resolution 1738(2006), para. 6
	Decides that [the affected States] shall take the following actions with immediate effect unless otherwise specified below: ... (vi) Immediately cease hostile propaganda and inflammatory statements in the media ...	Resolution 2046(2012), para. 1 (vi)	See also, for example, resolutions 1962(2010), para. 12; and 1727(2006), para. 12.
Countering incitement to violence	Condemning unequivocally all provocative action and statements that constitute incitement to discrimination, hostility, hatred and violence made by any party,	Resolution 1975(2011), eighth preambular para.

	Underlines that it is fully prepared to impose targeted measures against persons to be designated by the [sanctions] Committee ... who are determined to be, among other things:	Resolution 1946(2010), para. 6 (e)
	(e) Publicly inciting hatred and violence ...
	Urges every [citizen of the affected State] to refrain from any call for hatred, intolerance and violence, notes with interest that in his report ... the Secretary-General encouraged the Security Council to impose targeted sanctions against media actors who fan political tension and incite violence, and reiterates that it is fully prepared to impose targeted measures ..., including against persons who are determined to be a threat to the peace and national reconciliation process in [the affected country] or to be publicly inciting hatred and violence;	Resolution 1933(2010), para. 10
	Reaffirms its condemnation of all incitements to violence against civilians in situations of armed conflict, further reaffirms the need to bring to justice, in accordance with applicable international law, individuals who incite such violence, and indicates its willingness, when authorizing missions, to consider, where appropriate, steps in response to media broadcast inciting genocide, crimes against humanity and serious violations of international humanitarian law;	Resolution 1738(2006), para. 4
	Decides ... that all States shall take the necessary measures, for a period of twelve months, to prevent the entry into or transit through their territories of all persons ... who constitute a threat to the peace and national reconciliation process in [the affected State], [including] any other person who publicly incites hatred and violence ... provided that nothing in the present paragraph shall oblige a State to refuse entry into its territory to its own nationals;	Resolution 1572(2004), para. 9
	Reaffirms its condemnation of all incitements to violence against civilians in situations of armed conflict, also reaffirms the need to bring to justice individuals who incite or otherwise cause such violence, and indicates its willingness, when authorizing missions, to consider, where appropriate, steps in response to media broadcasts inciting genocide, crimes against humanity and serious violations of international humanitarian law;	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 17
Accurate management of information on the conflict	Urges all parties involved in situations of armed conflict to respect the professional independence and rights of journalists, media professionals and associated personnel as civilians;	Resolution 1738(2006), para. 8
	Affirms that, where appropriate, United Nations peacekeeping missions should include a mass-media component that can disseminate information about international humanitarian law and human rights law, including peace education and protection of children, while also giving objective information about the activities of the United Nations, and further affirms that, where appropriate, regional peacekeeping operations should be encouraged to include such mass-media components;	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 18
II. Specific protection concerns arising from Security Council discussions on children affected by armed conflict
Condemn, and call for the cessation of, violations against children	Expressing its serious concern about the high number of civilian casualties in [the affected country], in particular women and children, the increasingly large majority of which are caused by ... armed groups, condemning in the strongest terms the high number of attacks targeting schools, including their burning and forced closure, their use by armed groups and the intimidation, abduction and killing of education personnel, particularly those attacks targeting girls' education by armed groups ... and welcoming in this context the listing of [specific armed group] in annex I to the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict submitted pursuant to Security Council resolution 2068(2012), condemning also the increased targeted killing of women and girls ...	Resolution 2120(2013), twenty-fourth preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2095(2013), seventh preambular para.; 2068(2012), seventh preambular para.; 2060(2012), seventh preambular para.; 2057(2012), para. 10; 2051(2012), para. 8; 2041(2012), para. 32; 2012(2011), para. 16; 1998(2011), para. 1; 1964(2010), para. 16; 1944(2010), para. 14; 1892(2009), para. 19; 1882(2009), para. 1; 1840(2008), para. 21; 1806(2008), para. 14; 1780(2007), para. 17; 1539(2004), para. 1; and 1493(2003), para. 13.

	Demands that all parties immediately cease ... violations and abuses against children in violation of applicable international law, such as their recruitment and use, killing and maiming, abduction and attacks against schools and hospitals ...	Resolution 2109(2013), para. 14
	Expresses its strong concern about the recruitment and use of children by [anti-government] forces in [the affected country], as well as the killing and maiming of children as a result of the conflict, reiterates its strong condemnation of the recruitment and use of child soldiers in violation of applicable international law and all other violations and abuses committed against children in situations of armed conflict, in particular attacks against schools, education and health-care facilities, and the use of children in suicide attacks, and calls for those responsible to be brought to justice;	Resolution 2096(2013), para. 32
	Noting with great concern the persistence of serious human rights abuses and humanitarian law violations against civilians in [the affected area of the affected country], including ... large-scale recruitment and use of child soldiers committed by [relevant armed groups],	Resolution 2078(2012), ninth preambular para.
	Expressing its serious concern about the high number of civilian casualties in [the affected country], in particular, casualties among ... children, the increasingly large majority of which are caused by [relevant armed groups], condemning in the strongest terms the high number of attacks targeting schools, including their burning and forced closure, their use by armed groups and the intimidation, abduction and killing of education personnel, particularly those attacks targeting girls' education by armed groups including [relevant armed groups], and welcoming in this context the listing of [relevant armed groups] in the annex to the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict [in the affected country] pursuant to Council resolution 1998(2011) ...	Resolution 2069(2012), twenty-fourth preambular para.
	Strongly condemns all violations of applicable international law involving the recruitment and use of children by parties to armed conflict, as well as their re-recruitment, killing and maiming, rape and other sexual violence, abductions, attacks on schools and/or hospitals as well as denial of humanitarian access by parties to armed conflict, and demands that all relevant parties immediately put an end to such practices and take special measures to protect children;	Resolution 2068(2012), para. 2
	Expressing deep concern about attacks as well as threats of attacks in contravention of applicable international law against schools and/or hospitals and protected persons in relation to them as well as the closure of schools and hospitals in situations of armed conflict as a result of attacks and threats of attacks, and calling upon all parties to armed conflict to immediately cease such attacks and threats,	Resolution 1998(2011), eleventh preambular para.
	... strongly condemns continuing forms of discrimination and violence against women and girls, in particular violence aimed at preventing girls from attending school ...	Resolution 1868(2009), para. 29
	Strongly condemns the recruitment and use of child soldiers by parties to armed conflict in violation of international obligations applicable to them and all other violations and abuses committed against children in armed conflict;	Resolution 1612(2005), para. 1
Call for compliance with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law	Demands that all armed groups, including [list of relevant armed groups], prevent the recruitment and use of children, calls upon relevant armed groups, in particular [relevant armed groups], to implement the provisions of the action plans signed with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict in [date] immediately and furthermore demands that all parties protect and treat as victims those children who have been released or otherwise separated from armed forces and armed groups; and emphasizes the need to pay particular attention to the protection, release and reintegration of all children associated with armed groups;	Resolution 2088(2013), para. 14	See also, for example, resolutions 2088(2013), eleventh preambular para.; 1998(2011), para. 4; 1923(2010), para. 24; 1906(2009), para. 15; 1479(2003), para. 15; and 1296(2000), para. 10.
	... The Council calls upon all parties to armed conflict to put an end to [attacks against schools, threats and attacks against teachers and other protected persons in relation to schools and the use of schools for military purposes] and to refrain from attacks against teachers and other protected persons in relation to schools, provided that they take no action adversely affecting their status of civilians.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/2, fifteenth para.
	Calling upon all parties to armed conflicts to comply strictly with the obligations applicable to them under international law for the protection of children in armed conflict, including those contained in the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Optional Protocol thereto on the involvement of children in armed conflict, as well as the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto, of 1977,	Resolution 1998(2011), third preambular para.

	Recalling that international humanitarian law affords general protection to women and children as part of the civilian population during armed conflicts and special protection due to the fact that they can be placed particularly at risk,	Resolution 1960(2010), tenth preambular para.
	... demands that all armed groups ... immediately stop recruiting and using children and release all children associated with them;	Resolution 1794(2007), para. 3
	... calls upon all parties concerned to abide by the international obligations applicable to them relating to the protection of children affected by armed conflict, as well as the concrete commitments they have made to the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, the United Nations Children's Fund and other agencies of the United Nations system, and to cooperate fully with the United Nations peacekeeping missions and United Nations country teams ... in the follow-up and implementation of those commitments;	Resolution 1612(2005), para. 15
	... reiterates its call upon parties to armed conflict [listed in the relevant report of the Secretary-General] that have not already done so to prepare and implement, without further delay, concrete time-bound action plans to halt the recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law and to address all violations and abuses against children in close cooperation with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General [for Children and Armed Conflict], as well as with the United Nations Children's Fund and the United Nations country task forces on monitoring and reporting.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2008/6, eighteenth para.
Accountability for perpetrators of grave violations against children	The Council stresses further that the fight against impunity and to ensure accountability for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and other egregious crimes perpetrated against children has been strengthened through the work on and prosecution of these crimes in the international criminal justice system, ad hoc and mixed tribunals as well as specialized chambers in national tribunals. The Council highlights in this regard the contribution of the International Criminal Court, in accordance with the principle of complementarity to national criminal jurisdictions as set out in the Rome Statute, towards holding accountable those responsible for such crimes. In this regard, the Council reiterates its call on the importance of State cooperation with these courts and tribunals in accordance with the respective obligations of the States.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/8, fifteenth para.	See also, for example, resolutions 2098(2013), nineteenth preambular para.; 2067(2012), para. 18; 2062(2012), eighth preambular para.; 1998(2011), eighth preambular para. and para. 11; and presidential statement S/PRST/2010/10.
	Calling for all perpetrators, including individuals responsible for violence against children and acts of sexual violence, to be apprehended, brought to justice and held accountable for violations of applicable international law,	Resolution 2078(2012), tenth preambular para.
	Stressing the need for alleged perpetrators of crimes against children in situations of armed conflict to be brought to justice through national justice systems and, where applicable, international justice mechanisms and mixed criminal courts and tribunals in order to end impunity,	Resolution 2068(2012), tenth preambular para.
	Expresses deep concern that certain perpetrators persist in committing violations and abuses against children in situations of armed conflict in open disregard of its resolutions on the matter and, in this regard: (a) Calls upon Member States concerned to bring to justice those responsible for such violations through national justice systems and, where applicable, international justice mechanisms; (b) Reiterates its readiness to adopt targeted and graduated measures against persistent perpetrators, taking into account relevant provisions of resolutions 1539(2004), 1612(2005), 1882(2009) and 1998(2011);	Resolution 2068(2012), para. 3
	Calls upon Member States concerned to take decisive and immediate action against persistent perpetrators of violations and abuses against children in situations of armed conflict, and further calls upon them to bring to justice those responsible for such violations that are prohibited under applicable international law, including with regard to recruitment and use of children, killing and maiming, rape and other sexual violence, attacks on schools and/or hospitals, and attacks or threats of attacks against protected persons in relation to schools and/or hospitals through national justice systems and, where applicable, international justice mechanisms and mixed criminal courts and tribunals, with a view to ending impunity for those committing crimes against children;	Resolution 1998(2011), para. 11

Role of United Nations peacekeeping and other relevant missions and actors	... demands that all armed groups, in particular [specific armed group] elements, prevent the recruitment and use of children, further demands that all parties protect and consider as victims those children who have been released or otherwise separated from armed forces and armed groups, and emphasizes the need to pay particular attention to the protection, release and reintegration of all children associated with armed groups;	Resolution 2121(2013), para. 15	See also, for example, resolutions 2068(2012), fourth and eighth preambular paras.; 2063(2012), para. 22; 2057(2012), para. 12; 2003(2011), para. 23; 2000(2011), para. 7; 1998(2011), para. 14; 1923(2010), para. 23; 1917(2010), para. 22; 1882(2009), paras. 11 and 12; 1828(2008), para. 14; 1806(2008), para. 14; 1780(2007), para. 17; 1612(2005), paras. 12 and 18; 1565(2004), para. 5 (g); 1509(2003), para. 3; 1460(2003), para. 15; 1296(2000), para. 9; and 1265(1999), para. 13.
	Demands, furthermore, that the parties to the conflict immediately cease all violations and abuses against children, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure (a) continued monitoring and reporting, including as part of the reports referred to in [relevant paragraph] above, of the situation of children, including through enhanced cooperation with child protection actors, and (b) continued dialogue with the parties to the conflict towards the development and implementation of time-bound action plans to end the recruitment and use of children and other violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law committed against children;	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 26
	... further requests the Secretary-General to strengthen child protection in United Nations system activities in [the affected country], including through the continued deployment of child protection advisers within [the mission], and ensure continued monitoring and reporting of the situation of children, and welcomes the work of the United Nations country task force on the monitoring and reporting mechanism established in [month/year];	Resolution 2109(2013), para. 17
	The Council reaffirms the important role being played by child protection advisers in peacekeeping, peacebuilding and political missions deployed in line with the relevant country-specific resolutions of the Council and in accordance with the Policy Directive on Mainstreaming the Protection, Rights and Well-being of Children Affected by Armed Conflict of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat, and in this regard expresses its intention to further strengthen provisions for the protection of children in all mandates of relevant United Nations peacekeeping, peacebuilding and political missions, including through ensuring the consistent deployment of child protection advisers.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/8, eighteenth para.
	Decides that the mandate of [the mission] shall be as follows: ... (d) To help to build the capacity of the ... Government of [the affected country]; ... (ii) To promote child protection and to implement the relevant action plans on children and armed conflict signed by the ... Government ..., including through the provision of child protection advisers; ... (e) To monitor, help to investigate and report to the Security Council on, and help to prevent: ... (ii) Any violations or abuses committed against children in [the affected country];	Resolution 2102(2013), paras. 2 (d) and (e)
	... requests [the mission] to ensure that child protection concerns are integrated into all operations and strategic aspects of the work of [the mission] ...	Resolution 2098(2013), para. 12 (a) (iii)
	Recalls paragraph 16 of resolution 1379(2001), and requests the Secretary-General to also include in the annexes to his reports on children and armed conflict those parties to armed conflict that engage, in contravention of applicable international law: (a) In recurrent attacks on schools and/or hospitals; (b) In recurrent attacks or threats of attacks against protected persons in relation to schools and/or hospitals in situations of armed conflict, bearing in mind all other violations and abuses committed against children, and notes that the present paragraph will apply to situations in accordance with the conditions set out in paragraph 16 of resolution 1379(2001);	Resolution 1998(2011), para. 3
	... authorizes [the mission] to perform the following tasks: ... (v) Facilitating a protective environment for children affected by armed conflict, through implementation of a monitoring and reporting mechanism;	Resolution 1996(2011), para. 3 (c) (v)
	Encourages the [mission] to continue to share all relevant information with the Group of Experts [informing the sanctions committee], especially information on the recruitment and use of children, and on the targeting of women and children in situations of armed conflict;	Resolution 1952(2010), para. 13

Stresses the responsibility of the United Nations country-level task forces on monitoring and reporting and United Nations country teams, consistent with their respective mandates, to ensure effective follow-up to Council resolutions on children and armed conflict, to monitor and report progress to the Secretary-General in close cooperation with his Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict and ensure a coordinated response to issues related to children and armed conflict;

Requests the Secretary-General to include more systematically in his reports on children and armed conflict specific information regarding the implementation of the recommendations of the [Security Council] Working Group [on Children and Armed Conflict];

Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to ensure that, in all his reports on country-specific situations, the matter of children and armed conflict is included as a specific aspect of the report, and expresses its intention to give its full attention to the information provided therein, including the implementation of relevant Council resolutions and of the recommendations of the Working Group [on Children and Armed Conflict], when dealing with those situations on its agenda;

Requests the Secretary-General to continue to take the necessary measures including, where applicable, to bring the monitoring and reporting mechanism to its full capacity, to allow for prompt advocacy and effective response to all violations and abuses committed against children and to ensure that information collected and communicated by the mechanism is accurate, objective, reliable and verifiable;

Welcomes recent initiatives by regional and subregional organizations and arrangements for the protection of children affected by armed conflict, and encourages continued mainstreaming of child protection into their advocacy, policies and programmes; development of peer review and monitoring and reporting mechanisms; establishment, within their secretariats, of child-protection mechanisms; inclusion of child-protection staff and training in their peace and field operations; subregional and interregional initiatives to end activities harmful to children in times of conflict, in particular cross-border recruitment and abduction of children, illicit movement of small arms, and illicit trade in natural resources through the development and implementation of guidelines on children and armed conflict;

Urges all parties concerned, including Member States, United Nations entities and financial institutions, to support the development and strengthening of the capacities of national institutions and local civil society networks for advocacy, protection and rehabilitation of children affected by armed conflict to ensure the sustainability of local child-protection initiatives;

The Council reiterates the need for stronger focus by all parties concerned, including Governments and the donor community, on the long-term effects of armed conflict on children and the impediments to their full rehabilitation and reintegration into their families and communities, by, inter alia, addressing the need for providing appropriate health care, enhancing their exchange of information about programmes and best practices, and ensuring the availability of adequate resources, funding and technical assistance to support national strategies or action plans in the area of child protection and welfare, and community-based programmes, bearing in mind the Paris principles to protect children from unlawful recruitment by armed forces or groups, with a view to ensuring the long-term sustainability and success of their programmatic response to the release, rehabilitation and reintegration of all children associated with armed forces and armed groups.

Action plans and specific, time-bound commitments

Welcomes the signing on [date] by the [national] authorities and the United Nations of an action plan to eliminate the killing and maiming of children, noting that this is the first such action plan to be signed, and calls upon the [national] authorities to vigorously implement both this action plan and the action plan on the recruitment and use of child soldiers of [date] ...

Requests the Secretary-General to ensure (a) continued monitoring and reporting, as part of the reports referred to in [relevant paragraph] above, of the situation of children, including close cooperation with child protection actors, and (b) continued dialogue with the parties to the conflict towards the development and implementation of time-bound action plans to end the recruitment and use of child soldiers and other violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law against children;

See also, for example, resolutions 2113(2013), para. 26; 2098(2013), para. 22; 2093(2013), para. 32; 2088(2013), para. 14; 2053(2012), eleventh preambular para.; 1991(2011), para. 16; 1974(2011), para. 23; 1935(2010), para. 19; 1882(2009), paras. 5 and 13; and 1612(2005), para. 7.

Welcomes the signing by the Government of [the affected country] on [date] of a new action plan to end child recruitment reaffirming the commitment to release all children from the [national security force], acknowledges the measures taken by the Government [of the affected country] to implement the new action plan, calls for the further implementation of the action plan, requests [the mission] to advise and assist the Government [of the affected country] in this regard ...	Resolution 2057(2012), para. 12
Recalls the conclusions on children and armed conflict in [the affected country] endorsed by the Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict, calls upon all parties to end grave violations and abuses committed against children in [the affected country], urges the ... Government to develop and implement a concrete time-bound action plan to halt the recruitment and use of children, requests the Secretary-General to continue his dialogue with the ... Government in this regard, and reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to strengthen the child protection component of [the Mission] and to ensure continued monitoring and reporting of the situation of children in [the affected country];	Resolution 2010(2011), para. 24
While noting that some parties to armed conflict have responded to its call upon them to prepare and implement concrete time-bound action plans to halt recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law: (a) Reiterates its call upon those parties to armed conflict listed in the annexes to the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict that have not already done so to prepare and implement, without further delay, action plans to halt recruitment and use of children and the killing and maiming of children, in violation of applicable international law, as well as rape and other sexual violence against children; (b) Calls upon those parties that have existing action plans and have since been listed for multiple violations to prepare and implement separate action plans, as appropriate, to halt the killing and maiming of children, recurrent attacks on schools and/or hospitals, and recurrent attacks or threats of attacks against protected persons in relation to schools and/or hospitals, in violation of applicable international law, as well as rape and other sexual violence against children; (c) Calls upon those parties listed in the annexes to the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict that commit, in contravention of applicable international law, recurrent attacks on schools and/or hospitals, and recurrent attacks or threats of attacks against protected persons in relation to schools and/or hospitals, in situations of armed conflict, to prepare without delay concrete time-bound action plans to halt those violations and abuses; (d) Further calls upon all parties listed in the annexes to the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict to address all other violations and abuses committed against children and undertake specific commitments and measures in this regard;	Resolution 1998(2011), paras. 6 (a) to (d)
Calls upon the Government of [the affected country] and the [armed forces] to renew the action plan (signed by the United Nations and the armed forces ...) to end the recruitment and use of child soldiers that expired in [date], and requests [the mission] to advise and assist the Government [of the affected country] in this regard; and further requests the Secretary-General to strengthen child protection in United Nations system activities in [the affected country] and ensure continued monitoring and reporting of the situation of children;	Resolution 1996(2011), para. 10
Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate ... (e) To work closely with the Government ... to ensure the implementation of its commitments to address serious violations against children, in particular the finalization of the action plan to release children present in the [armed forces] and to prevent further recruitment, with the support of the monitoring and reporting mechanism;	Resolution 1925(2010), para. 12 (e)
Welcomes the adoption by the [armed group] of an action plan to release all children still associated with its forces by the end of [the year], and in order to achieve this goal, calls for timely implementation of this action plan ...	Resolution 1919(2010), para. 19
In this context, encourages Member States to devise ways, in close consultation with the United Nations country-level task forces on monitoring and reporting and United Nations country teams, to facilitate the development and implementation of time-bound action plans, and the review and monitoring by the United Nations country-level task forces of obligations and commitments relating to the protection of children in armed conflict;	Resolution 1882(2009), para. 6

Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of children	Decides that the mandate of [the mission] shall be the following: ... (v) To assist the ... authorities of [the affected country] in developing and implementing programmes for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants and the dismantling of militias and self-defence groups, consistent with the objectives of reconciliation and taking into account the specific needs of demobilized children;	Resolution 2100(2013), para. 16 (a) (v)
	Stresses that effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes for children, building on best practices identified by the United Nations Children's Fund and other relevant child protection actors, including the International Labour Organization, are crucial for the well-being of all children who, in contravention of applicable international law, have been recruited or used by armed forces and groups, and are a critical factor for durable peace and security, and urges national Governments and donors to ensure that these community-based programmes receive timely, sustained and adequate resources and funding;	Resolution 1998(2011), para. 18
	... requests [the mission], consistent with its mandate and in coordination with the relevant parties and with particular emphasis on the protection, release and reintegration with their families of children recruited to and participating with armed forces and armed groups, to increase its support for the National Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration Coordination Council and the ... Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration Commissions and to monitor the reintegration process;	Resolution 1919(2010), para. 19
Training for peacekeeping personnel	Further requests [the mission] to provide military training, including in the area of human rights, international humanitarian law, child protection and the prevention of gender-based and sexual violence, to the [armed forces] ... as part of broader international efforts to support security sector reform;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 31	See also, for example, resolution 1265(1999), para. 14.
	Reiterates the importance of compliance with relevant provisions of international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law and of providing appropriate training in such law, including child and gender-related provisions, as well as in negotiation and communications skills, cultural awareness, civil-military coordination and sensitivity in the prevention of HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases, to personnel involved in peacemaking, peacekeeping and peacebuilding activities, requests the Secretary-General to disseminate appropriate guidance and to ensure that such United Nations personnel have the appropriate training, and urges relevant Member States, as necessary and feasible, to disseminate appropriate instructions and to ensure that appropriate training is included in their programmes for personnel involved in similar activities;	Resolution 1296(2000), para. 19
Children and peace processes	The Council underlines the importance of engaging armed forces and armed groups on child protection concerns during peace talks and calls upon Member States, United Nations entities and other parties concerned to ensure that child protection provisions, including those relating to the release and reintegration of children formerly associated with armed forces or armed groups, are integrated into all peace negotiations and peace agreements.	Presidential statement S/PRST/2013/8, sixteenth para.	See also, for example, resolutions 1882(2009), para. 15; 1826(2008), para. 6; 1674(2006), para. 11; and 1612(2005), para. 14.
	Calls upon Member States, United Nations entities, including the Peacebuilding Commission, and other parties concerned to ensure that the protection, rights, well-being and empowerment of children affected by armed conflict are integrated into all peace processes and that post-conflict recovery and reconstruction planning, programmes and strategies prioritize issues concerning children affected by armed conflict;	Resolution 1998(2011), para. 19
	Calls upon all concerned parties to ensure that the protection of children is addressed in the implementation of the [peace agreement], and requests the Secretary-General to ensure continued monitoring and reporting of the situation of children and continued dialogue with parties to the conflict toward the preparation of time-bound action plans to end the recruitment and use of child soldiers and other violations against children;	Resolution 1769(2007), para. 17

Targeted and graduated measures in response to violations of applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law related to children	Expresses deep concern that certain perpetrators persist in committing violations and abuses against children in situations of armed conflict in open disregard of its resolutions on the matter, and in this regard: ...	Resolution 2068(2012), para. 3 (b)	See also, for example, resolutions 2078(2012), para. 4; 1998(2011), para. 9; and 1807(2008), paras. 9, 11 and 13 (d) and (e).
	(b) Reiterates its readiness to adopt targeted and graduated measures against persistent perpetrators, taking into account relevant provisions of resolutions 1539(2004), 1612(2005), 1882(2009) and 1998(2011);
	Decides that the measures [travel ban and assets freeze] in [provisions of the relevant resolution] shall apply to individuals, and that the [relevant provisions] of that resolution shall apply to entities, designated by the Committee: ...	Resolution 2002(2011), paras. 1 (d) and (e)
	(d) As being political or military leaders recruiting or using children in armed conflicts in [the affected country] in violation of applicable international law; (e) As being responsible for violations of applicable international law in [the affected country] involving the targeting of civilians, including children and women, in situations of armed conflict, including killing and maiming, sexual and gender-based violence, attacks on schools and hospitals and abduction and forced displacement;
	Reiterates its determination to ensure respect for its resolutions on children and armed conflict, and in this regard: (a) Welcomes the sustained activity and recommendations of the Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict, as called for in paragraph 8 of resolution 1612(2005), and invites the Working Group to continue reporting regularly to the Council; (b) Requests enhanced communication between the Working Group and relevant Security Council sanctions committees, including through the exchange of pertinent information on violations and abuses committed against children in armed conflict; (c) Reaffirms its intention to take action against persistent perpetrators in line with paragraph 9 of resolution 1612(2005);	Resolution 1882(2009), para. 7
	... requests the Secretary-General also to include in the annexes to his reports on children and armed conflict those parties to armed conflict that engage, in contravention of applicable international law, in patterns of killing and maiming of children and/or rape and other sexual violence against children, in situations of armed conflict, bearing in mind all other violations and abuses against children, and notes that the present paragraph will apply to situations in accordance with the conditions set out in paragraph 16 of resolution 1379(2001);	Resolution 1882(2009), para. 3

III. Specific protection concerns arising from Security Council discussions on women affected by armed conflict

Condemn, and call for the cessation of, violations against women and girls	Expressing deep concern at the full range of threats and human rights violations and abuses experienced by women in armed conflict and post-conflict situations, recognizing that those women and girls who are particularly vulnerable or disadvantaged may be specifically targeted or at increased risk of violence, and recognizing in this regard that more must be done to ensure that transitional justice measures address the full range of violations and abuses of the human rights of women and the differentiated impacts on women and girls of these violations and abuses as well as forced displacement, enforced disappearances and destruction of civilian infrastructure,	Resolution 2122(2013), seventh preambular para.	See also, for example, resolutions 1974(2011), para. 36; 1960(2010), para. 3; 1917(2010), para. 35; 1820(2008), eighth preambular para.; and 1806(2008), para. 28.
	Expressing its concern about the continued reports, including those reported by the Secretary-General in [relevant report], of human rights abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, including against women and children, and the reports of increased incidents of sexual violence, in particular those attributed to armed men, stressing the importance of investigating such alleged violations and abuses ... committed by all parties, irrespective of their status or political affiliation, reaffirming that those responsible for such violations must be held accountable and brought to justice irrespective of their political affiliation, while respecting the rights of those in detention ..., urging the Government ... to increase and expedite its efforts to combat impunity,	Resolution 2112(2013), eleventh preambular para.
	Recognizes that, despite progress achieved on gender equality, enhanced efforts, including towards measurable and action-oriented objectives, are necessary to secure the rights of women and girls and to ensure all women and girls in [the affected country] are protected from violence and abuse, enjoy equal protection under the law and equal access to justice, strongly condemns discrimination and violence against women and girls, in particular violence aimed at preventing girls from attending school, and stresses the importance of implementing resolutions 1325(2000), 1820(2008), 1888(2009), 1889(2009) and 1960(2010), noting the mainstreaming commitments introduced therein, and of ensuring that women fleeing domestic violence are able to find safe and secure refuge;	Resolution 2096(2013), para. 43

	Strongly condemns the continued violations of international humanitarian and human rights law, including ... rape and sexual slavery and other forms of sexual and gender-based violence ... perpetrated by armed groups, and specifically [list of relevant armed groups] that threaten the population as well as peace and stability of [the affected country] and the subregion ...	Resolution 2088(2013), para. 13
	Recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) ..., 1820(2008) ..., 1888(2009) ..., 1889(2009) ... and 1960(2010) ... on women and peace and security, concerned about the high incidence of sexual and gender-based violence, welcoming the continuing efforts of [the mission] and the Government ... to promote and protect the rights of civilians, in particular women and children, and reaffirming the importance of appropriate gender expertise and training in missions mandated by the Security Council,	Resolution 2008(2011), fifteenth preambular para.
	Demands that all parties ... immediately cease all forms of violence and human rights abuses against the civilian population in [the affected country], in particular gender-based violence, including rape and other forms of sexual abuse ..., with a view to specific and time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence in accordance with resolution 1960(2010) ...	Resolution 1996(2011), para. 9
	Strongly condemns all violations of applicable international law committed against women and girls in situations of armed conflict and post-conflict situations, demands all parties to conflicts to cease such acts with immediate effect, and emphasizes the responsibility of all States to put an end to impunity and to prosecute those responsible for all forms of violence committed against women and girls in armed conflicts, including rape and other sexual violence;	Resolution 1889(2009), para. 3
	Reiterating its deep concern that, despite its repeated condemnation of violence against women and children, including all forms of sexual violence in situations of armed conflict, and despite its calls addressed to all parties to armed conflict for the cessation of such acts with immediate effect, such acts continue to occur, and in some situations have become systematic or widespread,	Resolution 1888(2009), third preambular para.
Call for compliance with applicable international humanitarian law and human rights law	Calls upon all parties to ... issue clear orders regarding sexual violence, in line with its resolution 1960(2010), calls upon parties to the conflict to facilitate immediate access for victims of sexual violence to available services, and encourages donors to support the increase of services to address the needs of victims, and welcomes the commitments made to prevent and address sexual violence; including [relevant document and date] between the United Nations and the Government of [the affected country] and other parties to the conflict;	Resolution 2088(2013), para. 15	See also, for example, resolutions 2121(2013), para. 16; 2046(2012), para. 7; 2040(2012), para. 3; 1889(2009), para. 2; and 1888(2009), sixth and tenth preambular paras.
	Reiterating the necessity for all States and non-State parties to conflicts to comply fully with their obligations under applicable international law, including the prohibition on all forms of sexual violence,	Resolution 1960(2010), fourth preambular para.
	Recalling that international humanitarian law affords general protection to women and children as part of the civilian population during armed conflicts and special protection due to the fact that they can be placed particularly at risk,	Resolution 1960(2010), tenth preambular para.
	Calls upon all parties to armed conflict to respect fully international law applicable to the rights and protection of women and girls, especially as civilians, in particular the obligations applicable to them under the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto of 1977, the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol thereto, relating to the Status of Refugees, the 1979 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and the Optional Protocol thereto of ... 1999 and the Convention on the Rights of the Child of 1989 and the two Optional Protocols thereto of ... 2000, and to bear in mind the relevant provisions of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court;	Resolution 1325(2000), para. 9
Women and the prevention and resolution of conflict	Urges Member States, United Nations entities and intergovernmental, regional and subregional organizations to take further measures to facilitate full and meaningful participation of women in all policymaking, planning and implementation processes to combat and eradicate the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons in all its aspects, and calls in this regard upon all those involved in the planning for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and justice and security sector reform efforts to take into account the particular needs of women and children associated with armed forces and armed groups, with the participation of women, and to provide for their full access to these programmes, inter alia, through consultation with civil society, including women's organizations, as appropriate;	Resolution 2117(2013), para. 12	See also, for example, resolutions 2122(2013), thirteenth preambular para.; 2112(2013), twelfth preambular para.; 2086(2013), twelfth preambular para.; 2067(2012), para. 8; 2062(2012),

Emphasizing the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding, as recognized in resolutions 1325(2000) ..., 1820(2008) ..., 1888(2009) ... and 1889(2009) ..., welcoming the mission's work in this regard, and underlining that a gender perspective must continue to inform the implementation of relevant aspects of the mandate of [the mission],	Resolution 2103(2013), sixteenth preambular para.	thirteenth preambular para.; 2061(2012), ninth preambular para.; 2041(2012), para. 14; 2009(2011), para. 3; 1935(2010), para. 3; 1889(2009), para. 8; 1888(2009), thirteenth and fourteenth preambular paras. and para. 16;
... recalls that women play a vital role in the peace process, as recognized in Council resolution 1325(2000) and related resolutions, therefore reiterates the need for the full, equal and effective participation of women at all stages of peace processes, and urges their involvement in the development and implementation of post-conflict strategies in order to take account of their perspectives and needs ...	Resolution 2096(2013), para. 14	1880(2009), twelfth preambular para.; 1826(2008), para. 6; 1674(2006), para. 11; and 1325(2000), paras. 1 and 15.
Welcoming the increased representation of women in Parliament, commending the [national] authorities, and underlining the need to increase their role in decision-making with regard to conflict prevention and resolution,	Resolution 2067(2012), fourteenth preambular para.
Reaffirms the vital role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts, peace negotiations, peacebuilding, peacekeeping, humanitarian response and post-conflict reconstruction, and stresses the need for the United Nations and the African Union to work to ensure that women and gender perspectives are fully integrated into all peace and security efforts undertaken by the two organizations, including by building the necessary capacity;	Resolution 2033(2012), para. 12
Urges Member States and international and regional organizations to take further measures to improve the participation of women during all stages of peace processes, particularly in conflict resolution, post-conflict planning and peacebuilding, including by enhancing their engagement in political and economic decision-making at early stages of recovery processes, by, inter alia, promoting women's leadership and capacity to engage in aid management and planning, supporting women's organizations and countering negative societal attitudes about women's capacity to participate equally;	Resolution 1889(2009), para. 1
Encourages Member States in post-conflict situations, in consultation with civil society, including women's organizations, to specify in detail the needs and priorities of women and girls and to design concrete strategies, in accordance with their legal systems, to address those needs and priorities, which cover, inter alia, support for greater physical security and better socioeconomic conditions, through education, income-generating activities, access to basic services, in particular health services, including sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights and mental health, gender-responsive law enforcement and access to justice, as well as enhancing capacity to engage in public decision-making at all levels;	Resolution 1889(2009), para. 10
Emphasizing the importance of addressing sexual violence issues from the outset of peace processes and mediation efforts, in order to protect populations at risk and promote full stability, in particular in the areas of pre-ceasefire humanitarian access and human rights agreements, ceasefires and ceasefire monitoring, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform arrangements, justice and reparations, post-conflict recovery and development,	Resolution 1888(2009), twelfth preambular para.
Calls upon all parties concerned to ensure that the protection of women and children is addressed in the implementation of the [peace agreement] as well as in the post-conflict reconstruction and recovery phases, including continued monitoring and reporting of the situation of women and children, and that all reported abuses are investigated and those responsible brought to justice;	Resolution 1880(2009), para. 14
Urges the Secretary-General and his Special Envoys to invite women to participate in discussions pertinent to the prevention and resolution of conflict, the maintenance of peace and security, and post-conflict peacebuilding, and encourages all parties to such talks to facilitate the equal and full participation of women at decision-making levels;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 12
Calls upon all actors involved, when negotiating and implementing peace agreements, to adopt a gender perspective, including: (a) The special needs of women and girls during repatriation and resettlement, and for rehabilitation, reintegration and post-conflict reconstruction; (b) Measures that support local women's peace initiatives and indigenous processes for conflict resolution, and that involve women in all of the implementation mechanisms of the peace agreements; (c) Measures that ensure the protection of and respect for the human rights of women and girls, particularly as they relate to the constitution, the electoral system, the police and the judiciary;	Resolution 1325(2000), para. 8

Condemn and call for the cessation of sexual violence	Recognizing the significant challenges that remain across all sectors, including continuing problems with violent crime, in particular the high rates of sexual and gender-based violence, especially involving children, recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) ..., 1820(2008) ..., 1888(2009) ..., 1889(2009) ..., 1960(2010) ... and 2106(2013) ... on women and peace and security ... 	... encourages all actors in the [national] Government, the international community and civil society to renew their efforts to ... improve response to rape complaints and access to justice for the victims of rape and other sexual crimes;	Resolution 2070(2012), para. 18
	Encourages the Secretary-General to include in his annual reports submitted pursuant to resolutions 1820(2008) and 1888(2009) detailed information on parties to armed conflict that are credibly suspected of committing or being responsible for acts of rape or other forms of sexual violence, and to list in an annex to these annual reports the parties that are credibly suspected of committing or being responsible for patterns of rape and other forms of sexual violence in situations of armed conflict on the Council agenda; and expresses its intention to use this list as a basis for more focused United Nations engagement with those parties, including, as appropriate, measures in accordance with the procedures of the relevant sanctions committees;	Resolution 1960(2010), para. 3
	Requests the Secretary-General to establish monitoring, analysis and reporting arrangements on conflict-related sexual violence, including rape in situations of armed conflict and in post-conflict and other situations relevant to the implementation of resolution [on women and peace and security], as appropriate, and taking into account the specificity of each country, that ensure a coherent and coordinated approach at the field level, and encourages the Secretary-General to engage with United Nations actors, national institutions, civil society organizations, health-care service providers and women's groups to enhance data collection and analysis of incidents, trends and patterns of rape and other forms of sexual violence to assist the consideration by the Council of appropriate actions, including targeted and graduated measures, while respecting fully the integrity and specificity of the monitoring and reporting mechanism implemented under [Council resolutions on children and armed conflict];	Resolution 1960(2010), para. 8
	Requests the Secretary-General to develop effective guidelines and strategies to enhance the ability of relevant United Nations peacekeeping operations, consistent with their mandates, to protect civilians, including women and girls, from all forms of sexual violence and to systematically include in his written reports to the Council on conflict situations his observations concerning the protection of women and girls and recommendations in this regard;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 9
	Requests the Secretary-General and relevant United Nations agencies, inter alia, through consultation with women and women-led organizations, as appropriate, to develop effective mechanisms for providing protection from violence, including in particular sexual violence, to women and girls in and around United Nations-managed refugee and internally displaced persons camps, as well as in all disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes, and in justice and security sector reform efforts assisted by the United Nations;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 10
	Urges all parties concerned, including Member States, United Nations entities and financial institutions, to support the development and strengthening of the capacities of national institutions, in particular of judicial and health systems, and of local civil society networks in order to provide sustainable assistance to victims of sexual violence in armed conflict and post-conflict situations;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 13
	Urges appropriate regional and subregional bodies, in particular, to consider developing and implementing policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of women and girls affected by sexual violence in armed conflict;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 14
	Also urges the Secretary-General to seek to expand the role and contribution of women in United Nations field-based operations, and especially among military observers, civilian police, human rights and humanitarian personnel;	Resolution 1325(2000), para. 4
Comprehensive strategies and time-bound commitments	Demands that the parties to the conflict immediately cease all acts of sexual violence and make and implement specific and time-bound commitments to combat such violence, in accordance with resolution 2106(2013); ... notes the inclusion of protection for women and children from sexual violence and gender based violence, as part of the mission-wide protection of civilians strategy identified in [relevant paragraph] above ...	Resolution 2113(2013), para. 25	See also, for example, resolutions 2112(2013), para. 6; 2109(2013), para. 14; 2088(2013), para. 15; 2065(2012), ninth preambular para.; 1996(2011), para. 9; 1889(2009), para. 4; 1885(2009), fourteenth preambular para.; 1881(2009), para. 14; and 1880(2009), para. 16.
	Reiterates its demand for the complete cessation with immediate effect by all parties to armed conflict of all acts of sexual violence and its call for these parties to make and implement specific time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence, which should include, inter alia, issuance of clear orders through chains of command prohibiting sexual violence and accountability for breaching these orders, the prohibition of sexual violence in codes of conduct, military and police field manuals or equivalent, and to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged abuses and further calls upon all relevant parties to armed conflict to cooperate in the framework of such commitments, with appropriate United Nations mission personnel who monitor their implementation, and calls upon the parties to designate, as appropriate, a high-level representative responsible for ensuring implementation of such commitments;	Resolution 2106(2013), para. 10

Training for peacekeeping personnel	... emphasizes the importance of [the mission] supporting the Government of [the affected country] in developing and implementing a national strategy for preventing and responding to sexual and gender-based violence;	Resolution 2102(2013), para. 8	See also, for example, resolutions 2066(2012), tenth preambular para.; 1960(2010), para. 15; 1898(2009), para. 10; 1325(2000), para. 6; 1296(2000), para. 19; and 1265(1999), para. 14
	Decides that [the mission] shall have the following mandate: Protection and security (g) Support for efforts to promote and protect human rights ...	Resolution 2000(2011), para. 7 (g)
	To support the efforts of the Government [of the affected country] in combating sexual and gender-based violence, including by contributing to the development of a nationally owned multisectoral strategy in cooperation with United Nations Action against Sexual Violence in Conflict entities, to appoint women's protection advisers and to ensure gender expertise and training, as appropriate and from within existing resources, in accordance with resolutions 1888(2009), 1889(2009) and 1960(2010);
	Calls upon parties to armed conflict to make and implement specific and time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence, which should include, inter alia, issuance of clear orders through chains of command prohibiting sexual violence and the prohibition of sexual violence in codes of conduct, military field manuals, or equivalent; and further calls upon those parties to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged abuses in order to hold perpetrators accountable;	Resolution 1960(2010), para. 5
	Requests the Secretary-General to track and monitor implementation of these commitments by parties to armed conflict on the Council agenda that engage in patterns of rape and other sexual violence, and to regularly update the Council in relevant reports and briefings;	Resolution 1960(2010), para. 6
	... encourages troop- and police-contributing countries to provide all military and police personnel with adequate training to carry out their responsibilities, and relevant United Nations entities to make available appropriate guidance or training modules, including in particular the United Nations predeployment scenario-based training on prevention of sexual and gender-based violence;	Resolution 2122(2013), para. 9
	Reaffirms the importance of appropriate gender expertise and training in missions mandated by the Council in accordance with resolutions 1325(2000), 1820(2008) and 2106(2013) ...	Resolution 2109(2013), para. 40
	Recognizes the role of United Nations peacekeeping contingents in preventing sexual violence, and, in this respect, calls for all predeployment and in-mission training of troop- and police-contributing country contingents to include training on sexual and gender-based violence, which also takes into account the distinct needs of children, and further encourages troop- and police-contributing countries to increase the number of women recruited and deployed in peace operations;	Resolution 2106(2013), para. 14
	... further requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide and deploy guidance on addressing sexual violence for predeployment and induction training of military and police personnel, and to assist missions in developing situation-specific procedures to address sexual violence at the field level and to ensure that technical support is provided to troop- and police-contributing countries in order to include guidance for military and police personnel on addressing sexual violence in predeployment and induction training;	Resolution 1960(2010), para. 16
	... requests the Secretary-General to ensure that technical support is provided, in predeployment and in theatre, to troop- and police-contributing countries of [the mission] to include guidance and training for military and police personnel on the protection of civilians from imminent threat and appropriate responses, including on human rights, sexual violence and gender issues;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 13
	Requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Council, the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations and its Working Group and relevant States, as appropriate, to develop and implement appropriate training programmes for all peacekeeping and humanitarian personnel deployed by the United Nations in the context of missions as mandated by the Council to help them to better prevent, recognize and respond to sexual violence and other forms of violence against civilians;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 6
	Encourages troop- and police-contributing countries, in consultation with the Secretary-General, to consider steps they could take to heighten awareness and the responsiveness of their personnel participating in United Nations peacekeeping operations to protect civilians, including women and children, and prevent sexual violence against women and girls in conflict and post-conflict situations, including, wherever possible, the deployment of a higher percentage of women peacekeepers or police;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 8

Targeted and graduated measures in response to violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law related to women	Urges existing sanctions committees, where within the scope of the relevant criteria for designation, and consistent with resolution 1960(2010), to apply targeted sanctions against those who perpetrate and direct sexual violence in conflict, and reiterates its intention, when adopting or renewing targeted sanctions in situations of armed conflict, to consider including, where appropriate, designation criteria pertaining to acts of rape and other forms of serious sexual violence;	Resolution 2106(2013), para. 13	See also, for example, resolutions 1820(2008), para. 5; and 1807(2008), para. 13 (e).
	Decides that the measures referred to in [relevant] paragraph ... above [travel ban and assets freeze] shall apply to the following individuals, and, as appropriate, entities, as designated by the ... Committee ... (e) Individuals or entities operating in [the affected country] and committing serious violations involving the targeting of ... women in situations of armed conflict, including killing and maiming, sexual violence, abduction and forced displacement;	Resolution 2078(2012), para. 4 (e)
	... all States shall take the necessary measures to prevent the entry into or transit through their territories of all persons designated by [the sanctions committee] ...	Resolution 1807(2008), para. 9
	Decides ... that all States shall, during the period of enforcement of the measures ..., immediately freeze the funds, other financial assets and economic resources which are on their territories from the date of adoption of the present resolution, which are owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by persons or entities designated by [the sanctions committee], or that are held by entities owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by them or by any persons or entities acting on their behalf or at their direction ..., and decides that all States shall ensure that no funds, financial assets or economic resources are made available by their nationals or by any persons within their territories to or for the benefit of such persons or entities;	Resolution 1807(2008), para. 11
Accountability for the perpetrators of sexual violence	Calls upon all parties to armed conflict in [the affected country], including [specific armed group] elements, to issue clear orders against sexual violence, and further calls upon those parties to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged abuses in order to hold perpetrators accountable, in line with its resolution 1960(2010), and to facilitate immediate access for victims of sexual violence to available services;	Resolution 2121(2013), para. 16	See also, for example, resolutions 2122(2013), para. 12; 2106(2013), para. 18; 2078(2012), tenth preambular para.; 1902(2009), para. 19; 1591(2005), tenth preambular para.; 1493(2003), para. 8; and 1468(2003), para. 2.
	Recalling the inclusion of a range of sexual violence offences in the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court and the statutes of the ad hoc international criminal tribunals,	Resolution 2106(2013), ninth preambular para.
	Notes that sexual violence can constitute a crime against humanity or a constitutive act with respect to genocide; further recalls that rape and other forms of serious sexual violence in armed conflict are war crimes; calls upon Member States to comply with their relevant obligations to continue to fight impunity by investigating and prosecuting those subject to their jurisdiction who are responsible for such crimes, encourages Member States to include the full range of crimes of sexual violence in national penal legislation to enable prosecutions for such acts, and recognizes that effective investigation and documentation of sexual violence in armed conflict is instrumental both in bringing perpetrators to justice and ensuring access to justice for survivors;	Resolution 2106(2013), para. 2
	Reiterates its calls upon the Government of [the affected country] to continue to combat sexual and gender-based violence and, in coordination with [the mission], to continue to combat impunity for perpetrators of such crimes and to provide redress, support and protection to victims, including through the strengthening of national police capacity in this area and by raising awareness of existing national legislation on sexual violence;	Resolution 2066(2012), para. 9
	Expressing its concern about the continued reports of human rights abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, including against women and children, including reports of increased incidents of sexual violence in particular those attributed to armed men, stressing the importance to investigate such alleged violations and abuses committed by all parties, irrespective of their status or political affiliation, including those that occurred throughout the [relevant] crisis, including ..., reaffirming that those responsible for such violations must be held accountable, and noting [relevant entity] commitments in this regard,	Resolution 2062(2012), eighth preambular para.
	Reiterating ... the need for civilian and military leaders, consistent with the principle of command responsibility ... to combat impunity and enforce accountability, and that inaction can send a message that the incidence of sexual violence in conflicts is tolerated,	Resolution 1960(2010), fifth preambular para.

	Recognizing the need for civilian and military leaders, consistent with the principle of command responsibility, to demonstrate commitment and political will to prevent sexual violence and to combat impunity and enforce accountability, and that inaction can send a message that the incidence of sexual violence in conflicts is tolerated,	Resolution 1888(2009), eleventh preambular para.
	Notes that rape and other forms of sexual violence can constitute a war crime, a crime against humanity, or a constitutive act with respect to genocide, stresses the need for the exclusion of sexual violence crimes from amnesty provisions in the context of conflict resolution processes, and calls upon Member States to comply with their obligations for prosecuting persons responsible for such acts and to ensure that all victims of sexual violence, particularly women and girls, have equal protection under the law and equal access to justice, and stresses the importance of ending impunity for such acts as part of a comprehensive approach to seeking sustainable peace, justice, truth and national reconciliation;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 4
	Condemning, in particular, sexual violence perpetrated by [militias and armed groups as well as elements of the national armed and police forces] and other security and intelligence services, stressing the urgent need for [the affected State], in cooperation with [peacekeeping mission] and other relevant actors, to end such violence and bring the perpetrators, as well as the senior commanders under whom they serve, to justice, and calling upon Member States to assist in this regard and to continue to provide medical, humanitarian and other assistance to victims,	Resolution 1794(2007), fourteenth preambular para.
Sexual exploitation and abuse	Welcomes the efforts being undertaken by [the mission] to implement the Secretary-General's zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and to ensure full compliance of its personnel with the United Nations code of conduct, requests the Secretary-General to continue to take all necessary action in this regard and to keep the Security Council informed, and urges troop-contributing countries to take preventive and disciplinary action to ensure that such acts are properly investigated and punished in cases involving their personnel;	Resolution 2084(2012), para. 4	See also, for example, resolutions 2075(2012), para. 15; 2070(2012), para. 19; 2064(2011), para. 9; 1996(2011), para. 28; 1840(2008), para. 22; 1674(2006), para. 20; 1565(2004), para. 25; 1460(2003), para. 10; and 1436(2002), para. 15
	Recalling its resolutions ... on women and peace and security, ... recognizing the challenges that remain in addressing the serious issues of gender-based violence and sexual exploitation and abuse, and calling upon Member States to increase support to the Government in its efforts,	Resolution 1938(2010), sixteenth preambular para.
	Requests the Secretary-General to continue to fully investigate the allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse by civilian and military personnel of [the mission], and to take the appropriate measures set out in the Secretary-General's bulletin on special measures for protection from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse;	Resolution 1906(2009), para. 12
	... requests the Secretary-General to continue and strengthen efforts to implement the policy of zero tolerance of sexual exploitation and abuse in United Nations peacekeeping operations, and urges troop- and police-contributing countries to take appropriate preventative action, including predeployment and in-theatre awareness training, and other action to ensure full accountability in cases of such conduct involving their personnel;	Resolution 1820(2008), para. 7
	Requests the Secretary-General to take the necessary measures to achieve actual compliance in [the peacekeeping mission] with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse, including the development of strategies and appropriate mechanisms to prevent, identify and respond to all forms of misconduct, including sexual exploitation and abuse, and the enhancement of training for personnel to prevent misconduct and ensure full compliance with the United Nations code of conduct, and to further take all necessary action in accordance with the Secretary-General's bulletin on special measures for protection from sexual exploitation and sexual abuse and to keep the Council informed, and urges troop-contributing countries to take appropriate preventative action, including conducting predeployment awareness training and ... post-deployment awareness training, and to take disciplinary action and other action to ensure full accountability in cases of such conduct involving their personnel;	Resolution 1769(2007), para. 16

On 7 March, the Security Council adopted resolution 2143(2014) (see p. 879), aimed at addressing the widespread impact of armed conflict on children.

Protection of humanitarian personnel

Security Council consideration. On 19 August [S/PV.7244], the Council held a briefing to mark World Humanitarian Day. The briefing focused on the protection of humanitarian workers, under the agenda item on the protection of civilians in armed conflict. The Council had before it a concept note [S/2014/571] submitted by the United Kingdom. Addressing the Council, the Deputy Secretary-General stated that it was essential not to politicize humanitarian action and to make a clear distinction between humanitarian actors and political or military actors, even when the military objective was the protection of civilians. He suggested four important actions for the Council: routinely call on parties to conflict to uphold their legal obligations and condemn parties when they did not; ensure that measures to safeguard peace and security, such as the negotiation of peace agreements or the deployment of UN peacekeeping operations, did not blur the lines between political, military and humanitarian objectives; impose targeted measures against parties to conflict who violated their obligations to respect and protect humanitarian workers and the civilian population; and use all the tools at its disposal to seek accountability for those who perpetrated attacks against humanitarian workers and assets. The ICRC President and Director and co-founder of The Liaison Office also briefed the Council.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 August [meeting 7256], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2175(2014). The draft [S/2014/640] was submitted by Argentina, Australia, Chad, Chile, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reiterating its primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security and, in this context, the need to promote and ensure respect for the principles and rules of international humanitarian law,

Recalling its resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003 on the protection of humanitarian personnel, its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, as well as other relevant resolutions and statements by its President on the protection of civilians in armed conflict and on the protection of United Nations personnel, associated personnel and humanitarian personnel in conflict zones,

Recalling also the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto of 1977, and the obligation of parties to armed conflict to respect and ensure respect for international humanitarian law in all circumstances,

Recalling further the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel and the Optional Protocol thereto,

Recalling all relevant General Assembly resolutions, including resolutions 68/101, entitled “Safety and security of humanitarian personnel and protection of United Nations personnel”, and 68/102, entitled “Strengthening of the coordination of emergency humanitarian assistance of the United Nations”, of 13 December 2013,

Reaffirming the need for all parties to armed conflict to respect the humanitarian principles of humanity, neutrality, impartiality and independence in order to ensure the provision of humanitarian assistance, the safety of civilians receiving assistance and the security of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel,

Recalling the inclusion of attacks intentionally directed against personnel involved in a humanitarian assistance or peacekeeping mission in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, as long as they are entitled to the protection given to civilians or civilian objects under the international law of armed conflict, as a war crime in the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court,

Emphasizing the responsibility of States to comply with their relevant obligations to end impunity and to thoroughly investigate and prosecute persons responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes, in order to prevent these crimes, avoid their recurrence and seek sustainable peace, justice, truth and reconciliation, and in this regard reaffirming the need to end impunity for serious violations of international humanitarian law, including those involving attacks against humanitarian personnel,

Stressing that the fight against impunity and to ensure accountability for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and other egregious crimes has been strengthened through the work on and prosecution of these crimes in the international criminal justice system, ad hoc and mixed tribunals as well as specialized chambers in national tribunals; and recognizing in this regard the contribution of the International Criminal Court, in accordance with the principle of complementarity to national criminal jurisdictions as set out in the Rome Statute, towards holding accountable those responsible for such crimes, and reiterating its call on the importance of State cooperation with these courts and tribunals in accordance with the States’ respective obligations,

Recalling that the primary responsibility under international law for the security and protection of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel lies with the Government hosting a United Nations operation conducted under the Charter or its agreements with relevant organizations,

Gravely concerned at the growing number of acts of violence in many parts of the world against national and international personnel of humanitarian organizations, United Nations personnel and associated personnel, and humanitarian assets, including humanitarian supplies, facilities and transports, in particular deliberate attacks which are in violation of international humanitarian law, as well as other applicable international law, and the adverse impact of such violence, including on humanitarian access, exacerbated by the presence of armed actors, including non-State armed groups and terrorist and criminal networks, and their activities,

1. Reaffirms the obligation of all parties involved in an armed conflict to comply with international humanitarian law, in particular their obligations under the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the obligations applicable to them under the Additional Protocols thereto of 1977, to ensure the respect and protection of all humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel, as well as with the rules and principles of international human rights law and refugee law;

2. Strongly condemns all forms of violence and intimidation, including murder, rape and sexual assault, armed robbery, abduction, hostage-taking, kidnapping, harassment and illegal arrest and detention to which those participating in humanitarian operations are increasingly exposed, as well as attacks on humanitarian convoys and acts of destruction and looting of their assets;

3. Urges all parties involved in an armed conflict to allow full unimpeded access by humanitarian personnel to all people in need of assistance and to make available, as far as possible, all necessary facilities for their operations, and to promote the safety, security and freedom of movement of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel and their assets;

4. Urges States to ensure that crimes against humanitarian personnel do not remain unpunished, affirming the need for States to ensure that perpetrators of attacks committed on their territory against such personnel do not operate with impunity, and that perpetrators of such acts are brought to justice, as provided for by national laws and obligations under international law;

5. Reaffirms the obligation of all humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel to observe and respect the laws of the country in which they are operating, in accordance with international law and the Charter of the United Nations, and underlines the importance for humanitarian organizations to uphold the principles of humanity, neutrality, impartiality and independence in their humanitarian activities;

6. Expresses its determination to take appropriate steps in order to ensure the safety and security of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel, including by:

(a) Ensuring that the mandates of relevant United Nations peacekeeping operations can, where appropriate and on a case-by-case basis, help to contribute to a secure environment to enable the delivery of humanitarian assistance by humanitarian organizations, in accordance with humanitarian principles;

(b) Requesting the Secretary-General to seek the inclusion of, and that host countries include, key provisions of the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel, including those regarding the prevention of attacks against members of United Nations operations, the establishment of such attacks as crimes punishable by law and the prosecution or extradition of offenders, in future as well as, if necessary, in existing status-of-forces, status-of-mission and host country agreements negotiated between the United Nations and those countries, mindful of the importance of the timely conclusion of such agreements;

(c) Encouraging the Secretary-General, in accordance with his prerogatives under the Charter, to bring to the attention of the Security Council situations in which humanitarian assistance is unable to reach people in need as a consequence of violence directed against humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel;

(d) Issuing the declaration of exceptional risk for the purposes of article 1 (c) (ii) of the Convention, in situations where in its assessment circumstances would support such a declaration, and inviting the Secretary-General to advise the Council, where in his assessment circumstances would support such a declaration;

(e) Calling upon all States to consider becoming parties to the Convention and the Optional Protocol thereto, and urging States parties to take steps to enable its effective implementation;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to include in all his country-specific situation reports, and other relevant reports which address the protection of civilians, the issue of the safety and security of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel, including recording specific acts of violence against such personnel, remedial actions taken to prevent similar incidents and actions taken to identify and hold accountable those who commit such acts, and to provide the Council with recommendations on measures to prevent similar incidents, ensure accountability and enhance the safety and security of such personnel.

Protection of journalists

The General Assembly, by resolution 69/185 of 18 December (see p. 826), welcomed the report of the Secretary-General (see p. 826) on the safety of journalists and the issue of impunity, and unequivocally condemned all attacks and violence against journalists and media workers. The resolution called on States to create and maintain, in law and in practice, a safe and enabling environment for journalists to perform their work independently and without undue interference.

Special political missions

Comprehensive review of special political missions

Report of Secretary-General. In accordance with Assembly resolution 68/85 [YUN 2013, p. 50], the Secretary-General in August submitted a report [A/69/325] on the overall policy matters pertaining to special political missions, including efforts towards ensuring transparency, accountability, geographical representation, gender participation, expertise and effectiveness in respect of all special political missions.

The Secretary-General observed that special political missions continued to play a critical role in UN efforts to prevent and resolve conflicts, and to build a sustainable peace. National ownership remained a core component of the work carried out by special political missions, and only national actors could address the needs and goals of their societies in a sustainable manner. In that regard, special political missions had a supporting role, aimed at assisting national counterparts and regional partners in resolving conflict and consolidating peace. The Secretary-General also observed that continued support from Member States to special political missions was key to their ability to implement their mandate successfully. That support included political unity behind the efforts of the Secretary-General's Special Representatives and Special Envoys, for whom the backing of the international community was the most important currency and source of legitimacy, as well as funding of special political missions.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth (Special Political and Decolonization) Committee [A/69/456], adopted resolution 69/95 without vote [agenda item 53].

Comprehensive review of special political missions

The General Assembly,

Guided by the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling its resolutions 67/123 of 18 December 2012 and 68/85 of 11 December 2013 on the comprehensive review of special political missions,

Reaffirming its commitment to respecting the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of all States,

Recalling the primary role of the United Nations and the respective roles and authority of the General Assembly and the Security Council in the maintenance of international peace and security in accordance with the Charter, and recalling also in this context the contribution of regional and subregional arrangements, as appropriate,

Encouraging enhanced exchanges of information, in an appropriate manner, among the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Secretariat, on overall policy matters pertaining to special political missions,

Reaffirming the principles of impartiality, consent of the parties, national ownership and national responsibility, and stressing the significance of the views of and dialogue with countries hosting special political missions,

Recalling the relevant reports on the review of arrangements for funding and backstopping special political missions, which addressed the financial and administrative arrangements pertaining to such missions, recognizing that the Fifth Committee is the appropriate Main Committee of the General Assembly entrusted with responsibilities for administrative and budgetary matters,

Stressing the need for the United Nations to continue to improve its capabilities in the pacific settlement of disputes, including mediation, conflict prevention and conflict resolution, for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Acknowledging the significant increase in the number and complexity of special political missions and the challenges faced by them,

Recognizing the role of the special political mission as a flexible tool for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Recognizing also the need for system-wide coherence between special political missions and the United Nations system, and emphasizing the importance of close cooperation between special political missions, peacekeeping operations and United Nations country teams for maintaining sustainable peace, conflict prevention and conflict resolution,

Recognizing further the need for special political missions to operate under clear, credible and achievable mandates, including through the articulation of their goals and purposes, and the need to review their progress as stipulated in their respective mandates,

Recognizing the importance of efforts towards improving broad geographical representation, gender balance and expertise in the composition of all special political missions,

Reaffirming the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding, and recognizing the importance of the equal and effective participation and the full involvement of women at all levels, at all stages and in all aspects of the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and conflict resolution,

Noting the announcement by the Secretary-General of the establishment of a high-level independent panel to conduct a review of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General submitted pursuant to resolution 68/85;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to hold regular, inclusive and interactive dialogue on the overall policy matters pertaining to special political missions, and encourages the Secretariat to reach out to Member States prior to the holding of such dialogue to ensure wide and meaningful participation;

3. Respects the purview of the mandate of special political missions, as stipulated in the respective relevant resolutions, recognizes the specificity of each mandate of such missions, and emphasizes the role of the General Assembly in discussing the overall policy matters pertaining to special political missions;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its seventieth session a report on the overall policy matters pertaining to special political missions, including efforts towards improving transparency, accountability, geographical representation, gender participation, expertise and effectiveness in respect of all special political missions, and in this regard encourages the Secretary-General to ensure the inclusion of relevant detailed information on these matters in the report;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "Comprehensive review of special political missions" and to consider the above-mentioned report of the Secretary-General under that item.

Political and peacebuilding missions in 2014

During 2014, 13 UN political and peacebuilding missions were in operation: 8 in Africa, 3 in the Asia and the Pacific region, and 2 in the Middle East.

The Security Council, extended, by resolution 2145(2014) of 17 March (see p. 408), the mandate of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) until 17 March 2015; and by resolution 2169(2014) of 30 July (see p. 457), the mandate of the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq (UNAMI) until 31 July 2015.

The United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone (UNIPSIL) completed its Security Council mandate on 31 March 2014.

The Council extended, by resolution 2134(2014) of 28 January (see p. 213), the mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic (BINUCA) until 31 January 2015. On 10 April, by resolution 2149(2014) (see p. 220), the Council subsumed the presence of BINUCA into a peacekeeping operation, the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA).

The mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau (UNIOGBIS), by resolution 2157(2014) of 29 May (see p. 276) and resolution 2186(2014) of 25 November (see p. 279), was extended twice—to 30 November 2014 and 28 February 2015, respectively.

By resolution 2137(2014) of 13 February (see p. 209), the Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Office in Burundi (BNUB) until the end of the year, and requested the Secretary-General to establish a United Nations electoral observer mission at the end of the BNUB mandate. BNUB completed its mandate on 31 December 2014 and transferred its responsibilities to the United Nations country team.

On 10 [S/2014/103] and 13 [S/2014/104] February, respectively, the Secretary-General and the Council exchanged letters through which the mandate of the United Nations Office for Central Africa (UNOCA) was extended until 31 August 2015.

The Council extended by resolution 2144(2014) of 14 March (see p. 378), the mandate of the United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL) until 13 March 2015; and by resolution 2158(2014) of 29 May (see p. 354), the mandate of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSOM) for a period of 12 months.

(For Financing of UN political and peacebuilding missions, see PART FIVE, Chapter II.)

Threats to international peace and security

International terrorism

Security Council consideration. On 19 December [S/PV.7351], the Council held an open debate on threats to international peace and security: terrorism and cross-border crime. It had before it the report of the Secretary-General on the work of the United Nations to help States and subregional and regional entities in Africa in fighting terrorism [S/2014/9] and a concept note submitted by Chad [S/2014/869] on the item under consideration. Briefing the Council, the Chairman of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force (CTITF) highlighted the Secretary-General's report that recounted that terrorists increasingly relied on cross-border criminality to further their agenda and that those linkages posed a major threat to peace and stability. The CTITF Chairmen outlined ways in which the Task Force articulated the UN response to terrorism and cross-border crime, namely, by monitoring and analysing the threat, and assessing the needs of Member States; implementing tailored capacity-building projects; and delivering that assistance in a coordinated and coherent manner to multiply impact. The Permanent Observer of the African Union to the United Nations noted that cross-border criminal activities in Africa had both contributed to the onset of conflicts and complicated subsequent management and resolution efforts, and made several recommendations for combating that threat.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 7351], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2195(2014). The draft [S/2014/917] was submitted by Australia, Chad, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, the Russian Federation, Rwanda and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming its primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Reaffirming also that terrorism in all its forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable regardless of their motivations, whenever and by whomsoever committed,

Reaffirming further that terrorism cannot and should not be associated with any religion, nationality or civilization,

Stressing that terrorism can only be defeated by a sustained and comprehensive approach involving the active participation and collaboration of all States and international and regional organizations to impede, impair, isolate and incapacitate the terrorist threat,

Gravely concerned by the financing of and financial and other resources obtained by terrorists, and underscoring that these resources will support their future terrorist activities,

Reaffirming the need to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts,

Expressing concern that terrorists benefit from transnational organized crime in some regions, including from the trafficking in arms, persons, drugs and artefacts and from the illicit trade in natural resources, including gold and other precious metals and stones, minerals, wildlife, charcoal and oil, as well as from kidnapping for ransom and other crimes, including extortion and bank robbery,

Stressing that the development and maintenance of fair and effective criminal justice systems should be a fundamental basis of any strategy to counter terrorism and transnational organized crime,

Noting the communiqué of the African Union Peace and Security Council summit on countering violent extremism and terrorism, held in Nairobi on 2 September 2014, and calling upon United Nations counter-terrorism entities, within existing mandates, and Member States to provide assistance and capacity-building towards Africa's efforts to counter violent extremism and terrorism,

Gravely concerned that in some cases individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida continue to profit from involvement in transnational organized crime, and stressing in this regard the need for robust implementation of the measures in paragraph 1 of resolution 2161(2014) of 17 June 2014 as a significant tool in combating terrorist activity,

Urging, in this respect, all Member States to participate actively in maintaining and updating the list created pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) of 15 October 1999, 1333(2000) of 19 December 2000 and 1989(2011) of 17 June 2011 (the AlQaida Sanctions List) by contributing additional information pertinent to current listings, submitting delisting requests when appropriate, and by identifying and nominating for listing additional individuals, groups, undertakings and entities which should be subject to the measures referred to in paragraph 1 of resolution 2161(2014),

Recalling its recent condemnation in resolution 2170(2014) of 15 August 2014 of any engagement in direct or indirect trade involving Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and its reiteration that such engagement could constitute financial support for entities designated by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) (the Committee) and may lead to further listings by the Committee,

Deeply concerned that terrorist groups benefiting from transnational organized crime may contribute to undermining affected States, specifically their security, stability, governance and social and economic development,

Reaffirming the need to increase attention to women and peace and security issues in all relevant thematic areas of work on its agenda, including in threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts, and noting the importance of incorporating the participation of women and youth in developing strategies to counter terrorism and violent extremism,

Emphasizing the need to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism,

Emphasizing also that the combined presence of terrorism, violent extremism and transnational organized crime may exacerbate conflicts in affected regions, including in Africa, and noting that terrorist groups benefiting from transnational organized crime can, in some cases and in some regions, complicate conflict prevention and resolution efforts,

Seriously concerned, in this regard, by recent examples of terrorist groups, including those benefiting from transnational organized crime, attacking United Nations personnel,

Recalling its resolution 2133(2014) of 27 January 2014 and strongly condemning incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups for any purpose, including raising funds or gaining political concessions, and expressing its determination to prevent kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups and to secure the safe release of hostages without ransom payments or political concessions, in accordance with applicable international law,

Noting recent developments and initiatives at the international, regional and subregional levels to prevent and suppress international terrorism, noting the work of the Global Counterterrorism Forum, in particular its recent adoption of a comprehensive set of good practices to address the foreign terrorist fighter phenomenon, and its publication of several other framework documents and good practices, including in the areas of countering violent extremism, criminal justice, prisons, kidnapping for ransom, providing support to victims of terrorism, and community-oriented policing, to assist interested States with the practical implementation of the United Nations counter-terrorism legal and policy framework and to complement the work of the relevant United Nations counter-terrorism entities in these areas,

Reaffirming the need to combat by all means, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and international law, including applicable international human rights, refugee and humanitarian law, threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts, stressing in this regard the important role the United Nations plays in leading and coordinating this effort,

Recognizing that a comprehensive approach to defeat terrorism is required, involving national, subregional, regional and multilateral action,

Noting the important contribution that public-private partnerships can make in efforts to prevent and combat criminal activities, such as transnational organized crime, corruption and terrorism,

Reaffirming its respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of all States in accordance with the Charter,

Reiterating the obligation of Member States to prevent the movement of terrorists or terrorist groups, in accordance with applicable international law, by, inter alia, effective border controls,

1. Stresses the need to work collectively to prevent and combat terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, including terrorism benefiting from transnational organized crime;

2. Calls upon Member States to strengthen border management to effectively prevent the movement of terrorists and terrorist groups, including those benefiting from transnational organized crime;

3. Urges, as a matter of priority, that Member States ratify, accede to and implement the relevant international conventions, such as the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1961 as amended by the 1972 Protocol, the Convention on Psychotropic Substances of 1971, the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988, the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime of 2000 and the Protocols thereto and the United Nations Convention against Corruption of 2003, and the international counter-terrorism conventions and protocols;

4. Requests the relevant United Nations entities to assist Member States, upon their request, and within existing mandates and resources, to implement the relevant international legal instruments relating to terrorism and to develop their capacity to effectively respond to, prevent, investigate and prosecute terrorist acts;

5. Stresses the importance of good governance and the need to fight against corruption, money-laundering and illicit financial flows, in particular through the implementation of the United Nations Convention against Corruption and the comprehensive international standards set forth in the Financial Action Task Force revised Forty Recommendations on Combating Money Laundering and the Financing of Terrorism and Proliferation, including by adopting and effectively implementing legislative and regulatory measures, to enable the competent domestic authorities to freeze or seize, confiscate and manage criminal assets, in order to combat illicit financial activity, including terrorist financing and money-laundering, and encourages the States of the African region to further their engagement within the Financial Action Task Force-style regional bodies, such as the Inter-Governmental Action Group against Money Laundering in West Africa, the Eastern and Southern Africa Anti-Money Laundering Group and the Middle East and North Africa Financial Action Task Force, in promoting capacity and cooperation;

6. Recalls the obligations referred to in paragraph 2 (e) of resolution 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, and recalls them in particular with regard to terrorist attacks against United Nations staff, peacekeepers and installations;

International and regional cooperation

7. Further stresses the importance of strengthening transregional and international cooperation on a basis of a common and shared responsibility to counter the world drug problem and related criminal activities, and underlines that it must be addressed in a comprehensive, balanced and multidisciplinary manner;

8. Encourages Member States and relevant organizations, as appropriate, to enhance cooperation and strategies to prevent terrorists from benefiting from transnational organized crime, and to build the capacity to secure their borders against and investigate and prosecute such terrorists and transnational organized criminals working with them, including through the strengthening of national, regional and global systems to collect, analyse and exchange information, including law enforcement and intelligence information;

9. Commends, in this regard, the regional cooperative mechanisms in Africa, notably, the Sahel Fusion and Liaison Unit, the Nouakchott Process on the Enhancement of Security Cooperation and the Operationalization of the African Peace and Security Architecture in the Sahel-Saharan Region, the African Union-led Regional Cooperation Initiative for the Elimination of the Lord's Resistance Army and the Lake Chad Basin Commission Multinational Joint Task Force and its Regional Intelligence Fusion Unit, as well as the Economic Community of West African States;

10. Also commends the initiatives to strengthen security and border control in the region of North Africa and the Sahel-Saharan region, with the adoption of the action plan on border security during the first Regional Ministerial Conference on Border Security, held in Tripoli on 11 and 12 March 2012, and the creation of a regional training centre to enhance border security, during the second Regional Ministerial Conference, held in Rabat on 14 November 2013, as well as other subregional initiatives supported by the United Nations;

11. Urges all Member States, notably Sahel and Maghreb States, to coordinate their efforts to prevent the serious threat posed to international and regional security by terrorist groups crossing borders and seeking safe havens in the Sahel region, to enhance cooperation and coordination in order to develop inclusive and effective strategies to combat in a comprehensive and integrated manner the activities of terrorist groups, and to prevent the expansion of those groups as well as to limit the proliferation of all arms and transnational organized crime;

12. Welcomes and supports the establishment of the African Police Cooperation Organization (AFRIPOL), and takes note of the elaboration of an African arrest warrant for persons charged with or convicted of terrorist acts;

13. Calls upon Member States in Africa to support the implementation of the African Union Plan of Action on Drug Control (2013–2017);

Capacity-building and the United Nations coordination

14. Calls upon Member States to help build the capacity of other Member States where necessary and appropriate and upon request, to address the threat posed by terrorism benefiting from transnational organized crime, and welcomes and encourages bilateral assistance by Member States to help build such national, subregional or regional capacity;

15. Recognizes the significant capacity and coordination challenges many Member States face in countering terrorism and violent extremism, and preventing terrorist financing, recruitment and all other forms of support to terrorist organizations, including terrorists benefiting from transnational organized crime, commends work under way by the Counter-Terrorism Committee and its Executive Directorate to identify capacity gaps and to facilitate technical assistance to strengthen the implementation of resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005, encourages Member States to continue to cooperate with the Committee and its Executive Directorate on the development of comprehensive and integrated national, subregional and regional counter-terrorism strategies, highlights the important role that Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities, in particular the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, as well as the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre, and other providers of capacity-building assistance should play in technical assistance delivery, and requests the relevant entities of the United Nations, whenever appropriate and within existing resources, to take into account in their technical assistance to counter terrorism the elements necessary for addressing terrorism benefiting from transnational organized crime;

16. Calls upon relevant entities of the United Nations and other relevant international and regional organizations to support the development and strengthening of the capacities of national and regional institutions to address terrorism benefiting from transnational organized crime, in particular law enforcement and counter-terrorism agencies, and in this regard notes the advisory role of the Peacebuilding Commission, in accordance with its mandate;

17. Encourages the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to consider expanding its Integrated Assistance for Countering Terrorism Initiative to the countries of the Group of Five for the Sahel and Central Africa, upon their request;

18. Reiterates that United Nations peacekeeping and special political missions, may, if mandated by the Security Council, assist in capacity-building for host Governments, as requested, to implement commitments under existing global and regional instruments and to address the illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, including through weapons collection, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes, enhancing physical security and stockpile management practices, record-keeping and tracing capacities, development of national export and import control systems, enhancement of border security, and strengthening judicial institutions, policing and other law enforcement capacities;

19. Encourages information-sharing, where relevant and appropriate, between Special Representatives of the Secretary-General, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and the Department of Political Affairs of the Secretariat, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and the United Nations Development Programme, within existing mandates and resources, when considering means to address, in a comprehensive and integrated manner, transnational organized crime, terrorism and violent extremism which can be conducive to terrorism;

Reporting

20. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the Council a report on the efforts of the United Nations entities to address the threat of terrorists benefiting from transnational organized crime in affected regions, including Africa, with respect to matters of which the Council is seized, with input from the relevant entities of the United Nations system, including the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team and other relevant Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities;

21. Also requests that the report include recommendations of concrete options for strengthening Member States' capabilities, including financing such proposed United Nations projects and activities to build capacity with existing resources and contributions in the United Nations system, as well as United Nations activities to reduce the negative impacts of terrorists benefiting from transnational organized crime, including those relevant to its conflict resolution efforts with a focus on border security, counter-terrorist financing and anti-money-laundering, and that the report be submitted to the Council no later than six months from the adoption of the present resolution;

22. Recalls the request, in resolution 2178(2014) of 24 September 2014, to the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team, in close cooperation with all relevant United Nations counter-terrorism bodies, to report to the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) within 180 days on the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters recruited by or joining Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and reiterates that this report should also focus on trends related to foreign terrorist fighters joining and working with all terrorist groups listed on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List, and should include an oral briefing to the Committee and a Committee brief to the Council at the next regular briefing on counter-terrorism on those operating in Africa.

Threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts

In January (see p. 130), the Security Council called upon all Member States to prevent terrorists from benefiting directly or indirectly from ransom payments or political concessions, and to secure the safe release of hostages.

In July (see p. 131), the Council expressed its grave concern over reports of access to and seizure of oil-fields and pipelines in Syria and Iraq and stressed the obligation of all States to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorism.

In August (see p. 133), the Security Council called on all United Nations Member States to act to suppress the flow of foreign terrorist fighters, financing and other support to Islamist extremist groups in Iraq and Syria, including Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 27 January [meeting 7101], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2133(2014). The draft [S/2014/38] was submitted by Australia, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming that terrorism in all its forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable regardless of their motivations, whenever and by whomsoever committed, and further reaffirming the need to combat by all means, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts,

Recalling all its relevant resolutions and the statements by its President concerning threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts,

Reiterating the obligation of Member States to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts,

Recalling relevant international counter-terrorism instruments, including the International Convention for the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism and the International Convention against the Taking of Hostages,

Strongly condemning incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups for any purpose, including raising funds or gaining political concessions,

Expressing concern at the increase in incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups with the aim of raising funds or gaining political concessions, in particular the increase in kidnappings by Al-Qaida and its affiliated groups, and underscoring that the payment of ransoms to terrorists funds future kidnappings and hostage-takings, which creates more victims and perpetuates the problem,

Expressing its determination to prevent kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups and to secure the safe release of hostages without ransom payments or political concessions, in accordance with applicable international law, and in this regard noting the work of the Global Counterterrorism Forum, in particular its publication of several framework documents and good practices, including in the area of kidnapping for ransom, to complement the work of the relevant United Nations counter-terrorism entities,

Recognizing the need to further strengthen efforts to support victims and those affected by incidents of kidnapping for ransom and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups and to give careful consideration to protecting the lives of hostages and those kidnapped, and reaffirming that States must ensure that any measures taken to counter terrorism comply with their obligations under international law, in particular international human rights law, refugee law and international humanitarian law, as appropriate,

Noting the decision of the Summit of the Group of Eight held at Lough Erne on 17 and 18 June 2013 to address the threat posed by kidnapping for ransom by terrorists and the preventive steps the international community can take in this regard and to encourage further expert discussion, including at the Roma-Lyon Group, to deepen understanding of this problem, and further noting that in paragraph 225.6 of its Final Document the Sixteenth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries condemned criminal incidences of hostage-taking with resultant demands for ransoms and/or other political concessions by terrorist groups,

Expressing its commitment to support efforts to reduce access by terrorist groups to funding and financial services through the ongoing work of United Nations counter-terrorism bodies and the Financial Action Task Force to improve anti-money laundering and terrorist financing frameworks worldwide,

Expressing concern at the increased use, in a globalized society, by terrorists and their supporters of new information and communications technologies, in particular the Internet, for the purposes of recruitment and incitement to commit terrorist acts, as well as for the financing, planning and preparation of their activities,

Recalling its resolutions 1904(2009) of 17 December 2009, 1989(2011) of 17 June 2011 and 2083(2012) of 17 December 2012, which, inter alia, confirm that the requirements of paragraph 1 (a) of these resolutions also apply to the payment of ransoms to individuals, groups, undertakings or entities on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List,

Reaffirming that acts, methods and practices of terrorism are contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations and that knowingly financing, planning and inciting terrorist acts are also contrary to the purposes and principles of the United Nations,

1. Reaffirms its resolution 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001 and in particular its decisions that all States shall prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts and refrain from providing any form of support, active or passive, to entities or persons involved in terrorist acts, including by suppressing recruitment of members of terrorist groups and eliminating the supply of weapons to terrorists;

2. Also reaffirms its decision taken in resolution 1373(2001) that all States shall prohibit their nationals or any persons and entities within their territories from making any funds, financial assets or economic resources or financial or other related services available, directly or indirectly, for the benefit of persons who commit or attempt to commit or facilitate or participate in the commission of terrorist acts, of entities owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by such persons and of persons and entities acting on behalf of or at the direction of such persons;

3. Calls upon all Member States to prevent terrorists from benefiting directly or indirectly from ransom payments or from political concessions and to secure the safe release of hostages;

4. Also calls upon all Member States to cooperate closely during incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups;

5. Reaffirms its decision taken in resolution 1373(2001) that all States shall afford one another the greatest measure of assistance in connection with criminal investigations or criminal proceedings relating to the financing or support of terrorist acts;

6. Recognizes the need to continue expert discussions on kidnapping for ransom by terrorists, and calls upon Member States to continue such expert discussions within the United Nations and other relevant international and regional organizations, including the Global Counterterrorism Forum, on additional steps the international community could take to prevent kidnappings and to prevent terrorists from benefiting directly or indirectly from using kidnapping to raise funds or gain political concessions;

7. Notes that ransom payments to terrorist groups are one of the sources of income which support their recruitment efforts, strengthen their operational capability to organize and carry out terrorist attacks and incentivize future incidents of kidnapping for ransom;

8. Encourages the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1373(2001) (the Counter-Terrorism Committee) to hold, with the assistance of appropriate expertise, a special meeting with the participation of Member States and relevant international and regional organizations to discuss measures to prevent incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups to raise funds or gain political concessions, and requests the Counter-Terrorism Committee to report to the Council on the outcomes of this meeting;

9. Recalls the adoption by the Global Counterterrorism Forum of the Algiers Memorandum on Good Practices on Preventing and Denying the Benefits of Kidnapping for Ransom by Terrorists, and encourages the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate to take it into account, as appropriate, consistent with its mandate, including in its facilitation of capacity-building to Member States;

10. Calls upon all Member States to encourage private sector partners to adopt or to follow relevant guidelines and good practices for preventing and responding to terrorist kidnappings without paying ransoms;

11. Also calls upon all Member States to cooperate and engage in dialogue with all relevant United Nations counter-terrorism bodies, as appropriate, to improve their capacities to counter the financing of terrorism, including from ransoms;

12. Encourages the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team of the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) and the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011) and other relevant United Nations counter-terrorism bodies to cooperate closely when providing information on the measures taken by Member States on this issue and on relevant trends and developments in this area;

13. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

On 17 June, the Council, by resolutions 2160(2014) (see p. 435) and 2161(2014) (see p. 441), adopted measures to combat, through sanctions, the threat to peace in Afghanistan and elsewhere posed by the violent and terrorist activities conducted by the Taliban, Al-Qaida and other illegal armed groups.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 July [meeting 7226], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/14 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council recalls its resolutions 1267(1999), 1373(2001), 1989(2011), 2129(2013), 2133(2014) and 2161(2014), stresses the obligation of Member States to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts, and expresses grave concern over the reports of access to and seizure of oilfields and pipelines in the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq by terrorist groups listed by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011), namely “Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant” and “Jabhat al-Nusra”, and underscores in this regard that any trade in oil with these entities would be inconsistent with the resolutions of the Council and that all States are required to ensure that their nationals and any persons within their territory do not trade in oil with these entities.

The Council reaffirms its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq, and in this regard strongly condemns any engagement in direct or indirect trade in oil from the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq involving terrorist groups. The Council also emphasizes that such engagement constitutes financial support for terrorists and may lead to further sanctions listings if those groups are listed by the Committee as associated with Al-Qaida.

The Council notes with concern that any oilfields and related infrastructure controlled by terrorist organizations could generate material income for terrorists, which would support their recruitment efforts, including of foreign terrorist fighters, and strengthen their operational capability to organize and carry out terrorist attacks.

The Council reminds all States that they are required to ensure that their nationals and any persons within their territory do not engage in any commercial or financial transactions with or for the benefit, directly or indirectly, of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Jabhat al-Nusra, notably with respect to oil in the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq.

The Council also emphasizes the importance of all Member States upholding their obligation to ensure that their nationals and persons within their territory do not make donations to individuals and entities designated by the Committee.

The Council calls upon all Member States, should any information on such activities be available to them, to bring it to the notice of the Committee and cooperate closely with the Council in this regard.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 15 August [meeting 7242], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2170(2014). The draft [S/2014/589] was submitted by Australia, Chad, Chile, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming its resolutions 1267(1999) of 15 October 1999, 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, 1618(2005) of 4 August 2005, 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005, 2083(2012) of 17 December 2012, 2129(2013) of 17 December 2013, 2133(2014) of 27 January 2014 and 2161(2014) of 17 June 2014 and the relevant statements by its President,

Reaffirming also the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Iraq and the Syrian Arab Republic, and reaffirming further the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming further that terrorism in all forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable regardless of their motivations, whenever and by whomsoever committed,

Expressing its gravest concern that territory in parts of Iraq and the Syrian Arab Republic is under the control of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front and about the negative impact of their presence, violent extremist ideology and actions on stability in Iraq, the Syrian Arab Republic and the region, including the devastating humanitarian impact on the civilian populations which has led to the displacement of millions of people, and about their acts of violence that foment sectarian tensions,

Reiterating its condemnation of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida for ongoing and multiple criminal terrorist acts aimed at causing the deaths of civilians and other victims, destruction of property and of cultural and religious sites and greatly undermining stability, and recalling that the asset freeze, travel ban and arms embargo requirements in paragraph 1 of resolution 2161(2014) apply to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings, and entities associated with Al-Qaida,

Reaffirming that terrorism, including the actions of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, cannot and should not be associated with any religion, nationality or civilization,

Stressing that terrorism can only be defeated by a sustained and comprehensive approach involving the active participation and collaboration of all States and international and regional organizations to impede, impair, isolate and incapacitate the terrorist threat,

Reaffirming that Member States must ensure that any measures taken to combat terrorism, including while implementing the present resolution, comply with all their obligations under international law, in particular international human rights, refugee and humanitarian law, and underscoring that effective counter-terrorism measures and respect for human rights, fundamental freedoms and the rule of law are complementary and mutually reinforcing, and are an essential part of a successful counter-terrorism effort, and noting the importance of respect for the rule of law so as to effectively prevent and combat terrorism,

Reaffirming also that those who have committed or are otherwise responsible for violations of international humanitarian law or violations or abuses of human rights in Iraq and the Syrian Arab Republic, including persecution of individuals on the basis of their religion or belief, or on political grounds, must be held accountable,

Gravely concerned by the financing of, and financial and other resources obtained by, Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and underscoring that these resources will support their future terrorist activities,

Strongly condemning incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida for any purpose, including with the aim of raising funds or gaining political concessions, expressing its determination to prevent kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups and to secure the safe release of hostages without ransom payments or political concessions, in accordance with applicable international law, calling upon all Member States to prevent terrorists from benefiting directly or indirectly from ransom payments or from political concessions and to secure the safe release of hostages, and reaffirming the need for all Member States to cooperate closely during incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups,

Expressing concern at the flow of foreign terrorist fighters to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and the scale of this phenomenon,

Expressing concern also at the increased use, in a globalized society, by terrorists and their supporters of new information and communications technologies, in particular the Internet, for the purposes of recruitment and incitement to commit terrorist acts, as well as for the financing, planning and preparation of their activities, and underlining the need for Member States to act cooperatively to prevent terrorists from exploiting technology, communications and resources to incite support for terrorist acts, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in compliance with other obligations under international law,

Condemning in the strongest terms the incitement of terrorist acts, and repudiating attempts at the justification or glorification (apologie) of terrorist acts that may incite further terrorist acts,

Underlining the primary responsibility of Member States to protect civilian populations on their territories, in accordance with their obligations under international law,

Urging all parties to protect the civilian population, in particular women and children, affected by the violent activities of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, especially against any form of sexual violence,

Reaffirming the need to combat by all means, in accordance with the Charter and international law, including applicable international human rights, refugee and humanitarian law, threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts, stressing in this regard the important role the United Nations plays in leading and coordinating this effort,

Noting with concern the continued threat posed to international peace and security by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and reaffirming its resolve to address all aspects of that threat,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter,

1. Deplores and condemns in the strongest terms the terrorist acts of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and its violent extremist ideology, and its continued gross, systematic and widespread abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law;

2. Strongly condemns the indiscriminate killing and deliberate targeting of civilians, numerous atrocities, mass executions and extrajudicial killings, including of soldiers, persecution of individuals and entire communities on the basis of their religion or belief, kidnapping of civilians, forced displacement of members of minority groups, killing and maiming of children, recruitment and use of children, rape and other forms of sexual violence, arbitrary detention, attacks on schools and hospitals, destruction of cultural and religious sites and obstructing the exercise of economic, social and cultural rights, including the right to education, especially in the Syrian governorates of Raqqah, Dayr al-Zawr, Aleppo and Idlib, and in northern Iraq, especially in Tamim, Salaheddine and Nineveh provinces;

3. Recalls that widespread or systematic attacks directed against any civilian populations because of their ethnic or political background, religion or belief may constitute a crime against humanity, emphasizes the need to ensure that Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida are held accountable for abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, and urges all parties to prevent such violations and abuses;

4. Demands that Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida cease all violence and terrorist acts and disarm and disband with immediate effect;

5. Urges all States, in accordance with their obligations under resolution 1373(2001), to cooperate in efforts to find and bring to justice individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, including Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front, who perpetrate, organize and sponsor terrorist acts, and in this regard underlines the importance of regional cooperation;

6. Reiterates its call upon all States to take all measures as may be necessary and appropriate and in accordance with their obligations under international law to counter incitement of terrorist acts motivated by extremism and intolerance perpetrated by individuals or entities associated with Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and Al-Qaida and to prevent the subversion of educational, cultural and religious institutions by terrorists and their supporters;

Foreign terrorist fighters

7. Condemns the recruitment by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida of foreign terrorist fighters, whose presence is exacerbating conflict and contributing to violent radicalization, demands that all foreign terrorist fighters associated with Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and other terrorist groups withdraw immediately, and expresses its readiness to consider listing those recruiting for or participating in the activities of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida under the Al-Qaida sanctions regime, including through financing or facilitating, for Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant or Al-Nusrah Front, of travel of foreign terrorist fighters;

8. Calls upon all Member States to take national measures to suppress the flow of foreign terrorist fighters to, and bring to justice, in accordance with applicable international law, foreign terrorist fighters of, Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and reiterates further the obligation of Member States to prevent the movement of terrorists or terrorist groups, in accordance with applicable international law, by, inter alia, effective border controls, and in this context to exchange information expeditiously and improve cooperation among competent authorities to prevent the movement of terrorists and terrorist groups to and from their territories, the supply of weapons for terrorists and financing that would support terrorists;

9. Encourages all Member States to engage with those within their territories at risk of recruitment and violent radicalization to discourage travel to the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq for the purposes of supporting or fighting for Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida;

10. Reaffirms its decision that States shall prevent the direct or indirect supply, sale or transfer to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida from their territories or by their nationals outside their territories, or using their flag vessels or aircraft, of arms and related materiel of all types, including weapons and ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, paramilitary equipment, and spare parts for the aforementioned, and technical advice, assistance or training related to military activities, as well as its calls for States to find ways of intensifying and accelerating the exchange of operational information regarding traffic in arms, and to enhance coordination of efforts at the national, subregional, regional and international levels;

Terrorist financing

11. Reaffirms its resolution 1373(2001) and in particular its decisions that all States shall prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts and refrain from providing any form of support, active or passive, to entities or persons involved in terrorist acts, including by suppressing recruitment of members of terrorist groups and eliminating the supply of weapons to terrorists;

12. Recalls its decision in resolution 2161(2014) that all States shall ensure that no funds, financial assets or economic resources are made available, directly or indirectly for the benefit of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front or any other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, by their nationals or by persons within their territory, and reaffirms its decision in resolution 1373(2001) that all States shall prohibit their nationals or any persons and entities within their territories from making any funds, financial assets or economic resources or financial or other related services available, directly or indirectly, for the benefit of persons who commit or attempt to commit or facilitate or participate in the commission of terrorist acts, or for the benefit of entities owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by such persons and of persons and entities acting on behalf of or at the direction of such persons;

13. Notes with concern that oilfields and related infrastructure controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida are generating income which supports their recruitment efforts and strengthens their operational capability to organize and carry out terrorist attacks;

14. Condemns any engagement in direct or indirect trade involving Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and reiterates that such engagement could constitute financial support for entities designated by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) (the Committee) and may lead to further listings by the Committee;

15. Emphasizes the importance of all Member States complying with their obligation to ensure that their nationals and persons within their territory do not make donations to individuals and entities designated by the Committee or those acting on behalf of or at the direction of designated entities;

16. Expresses its concern that aircraft or other transport departing from territory controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant could be used to transfer gold or other valuable items and economic resources for sale on international markets or to make other arrangements that could result in violations of the asset freeze;

17. Confirms that the requirements in paragraph 1 (a) of resolution 2161(2014) shall also apply to the payment of ransoms to individuals, groups, undertakings or entities on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List, regardless of how or by whom the ransom is paid;

Sanctions

18. Observes that Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant is a splinter group of Al-Qaida, recalls that Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front are included on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List, and in this regard expresses its readiness to consider listing individuals, groups, undertakings and entities providing support to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant or to Al-Nusrah Front, including those who are financing, arming, planning or recruiting for Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant or Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida through information and communications technologies, including the internet and social media or through any other means;

19. Decides that the individuals specified in the annex to the present resolution shall be subject to the measures imposed in paragraph 1 of resolution 2161(2014) and added to the Al-Qaida Sanctions List;

20. Directs the Committee to make accessible on the Committee website the narrative summaries of reasons for listing the individuals specified in the annex to the present resolution as agreed by the Council, and confirms that the provisions of resolution 2161(2014) and subsequent relevant resolutions shall apply to the names specified in the annex for so long as they remain on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List;

21. Encourages the submission of listing requests to the Committee by Member States of individuals and entities supporting Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and further encourages the Committee to urgently consider additional designations of individuals and entities supporting Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front;

Reporting

22. Directs the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team to submit a report to the Committee within 90 days on the threat, including to the region, posed by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front, their sources of arms, funding, recruitment and demographics, and recommendations for additional action to address the threat, and requests that, after a Committee discussion of this report, the Chair of the Committee brief the Council on its principal findings;

23. Requests the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq, within its mandate, capabilities and its areas of operation, to assist the Committee and the Monitoring Team established pursuant to resolution 1526(2004) of 30 January 2004, including by passing information relevant to the implementation of the measures in paragraph 1 of resolution 2161(2014);

24. Decides to remain seized of this matter.

Foreign terrorist fighters

Security Council consideration. On 24 September [S/PV.7272], the Council held a high-level open debate on the threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts: threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters. It had before it a concept note submitted by the United States [S/2014/648]. The Secretary-General briefed the Council on the evolving nature of the terrorist threat, noting that thousands of foreign terrorist fighters from over 80 Member States had joined ISIL and the Al-Nusrah Front, and underscored the value of a multilateral, multifaceted strategy to defeat terrorism and avoid further radicalization.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 24 September [meeting 7272], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2178(2014). The draft [S/2014/688] was submitted by 104 Member States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming that terrorism in all forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable regardless of their motivations, whenever and by whomsoever committed, and remaining determined to contribute further to enhancing the effectiveness of the overall effort to fight this scourge on a global level,

Noting with concern that the terrorism threat has become more diffuse, with an increase, in various regions of the world, of terrorist acts, including those motivated by intolerance or extremism, and expressing its determination to combat this threat,

Bearing in mind the need to address the conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, and affirming Member States’ determination to continue to do all they can to resolve conflict and to deny terrorist groups the ability to put down roots and establish safe havens to address better the growing threat posed by terrorism,

Emphasizing that terrorism cannot and should not be associated with any religion, nationality or civilization,

Recognizing that international cooperation and any measures taken by Member States to prevent and combat terrorism must comply fully with the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming its respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of all States in accordance with the Charter,

Reaffirming that Member States must ensure that any measures taken to counter terrorism comply with all their obligations under international law, in particular international human rights law, international refugee law and international humanitarian law, underscoring that respect for human rights, fundamental freedoms and the rule of law are complementary and mutually reinforcing with effective counter-terrorism measures, and are an essential part of a successful counter-terrorism effort, noting the importance of respect for the rule of law so as to effectively prevent and combat terrorism, and noting that failure to comply with these and other international obligations, including under the Charter, is one of the factors contributing to increased radicalization and fosters a sense of impunity,

Expressing grave concern over the acute and growing threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters, namely, individuals who travel to a State other than their States of residence or nationality for the purpose of the perpetration, planning or preparation of, or participation in, terrorist acts or providing or receiving terrorist training, including in connection with armed conflict, and resolving to address this threat,

Expressing grave concern also about those who attempt to travel to become foreign terrorist fighters,

Concerned that foreign terrorist fighters increase the intensity, duration and intractability of conflicts, and also may pose a serious threat to their States of origin, the States they transit and the States to which they travel, as well as States neighbouring zones of armed conflict in which foreign terrorist fighters are active and that are affected by serious security burdens, and noting that the threat of foreign terrorist fighters may affect all regions and Member States, even those far from conflict zones, and expressing grave concern that foreign terrorist fighters are using their extremist ideology to promote terrorism,

Expressing concern that international networks have been established by terrorists and terrorist entities among States of origin, transit and destination through which foreign terrorist fighters and the resources to support them have been channelled back and forth,

Expressing particular concern that foreign terrorist fighters are being recruited by and are joining entities such as Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and other cells, affiliates, splinter groups or derivatives of Al-Qaida, as designated by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011), recognizing that the foreign terrorist fighter threat includes, among others, individuals supporting acts or activities of Al-Qaida and its cells, affiliates, splinter groups and derivative entities, including by recruiting for or otherwise supporting acts or activities of such entities, and stressing the urgent need to address this particular threat,

Recognizing that addressing the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters requires comprehensively addressing underlying factors, including by preventing radicalization to terrorism, stemming recruitment, inhibiting foreign terrorist fighter travel, disrupting financial support to foreign terrorist fighters, countering violent extremism, which can be conducive to terrorism, countering incitement to terrorist acts motivated by extremism or intolerance, promoting political and religious tolerance, economic development and social cohesion and inclusiveness, ending and resolving armed conflicts, and facilitating reintegration and rehabilitation,

Recognizing also that terrorism will not be defeated by military force, law enforcement measures and intelligence operations alone, and underlining the need to address the conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, as outlined in pillar I of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy,

Expressing concern over the increased use by terrorists and their supporters of communications technology for the purpose of radicalizing to terrorism, recruiting and inciting others to commit terrorist acts, including through the Internet, and financing and facilitating the travel and subsequent activities of foreign terrorist fighters, and underlining the need for Member States to act cooperatively to prevent terrorists from exploiting technology, communications and resources to incite support for terrorist acts, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in compliance with other obligations under international law,

Noting with appreciation the activities undertaken in the area of capacity-building by United Nations entities, in particular entities of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, including the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime and the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre, and also the efforts of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate to facilitate technical assistance, specifically by promoting engagement between providers of capacity-building assistance and recipients, in coordination with other relevant international, regional and subregional organizations, to assist Member States, upon their request, in implementation of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy,

Noting recent developments and initiatives at the international, regional and subregional levels to prevent and suppress international terrorism, and noting the work of the Global Counterterrorism Forum, in particular its recent adoption of a comprehensive set of good practices to address the foreign terrorist fighter phenomenon, and its publication of several other framework documents and good practices, including in the areas of countering violent extremism, criminal justice, prisons, kidnapping for ransom, providing support to victims of terrorism, and community-oriented policing, to assist interested States with the practical implementation of the United Nations counter-terrorism legal and policy framework and to complement the work of the relevant United Nations counter-terrorism entities in these areas,

Noting with appreciation the efforts of the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) to address the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters, including through global law enforcement information-sharing enabled by the use of its secure communications network, databases and system of advisory notices, procedures to track stolen, forged identity papers and travel documents, and INTERPOL's counter-terrorism forums and foreign terrorist fighter programme,

Having regard to and highlighting the situation of individuals of more than one nationality who travel to their States of nationality for the purpose of the perpetration, planning, preparation of, or participation in, terrorist acts or the providing or receiving of terrorist training, and urging States to take action, as appropriate, in compliance with their obligations under their domestic law and international law, including international human rights law,

Calling upon States to ensure, in conformity with international law, in particular international human rights law and international refugee law, that refugee status is not abused by the perpetrators, organizers or facilitators of terrorist acts, including by foreign terrorist fighters,

Reaffirming its call upon all States to become party to the international counter-terrorism conventions and protocols as soon as possible, whether or not they are a party to regional conventions on the matter, and to fully implement their obligations under those to which they are a party,

Noting the continued threat to international peace and security posed by terrorism, and affirming the need to combat by all means, in accordance with the Charter, threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts, including those perpetrated by foreign terrorist fighters,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter,

1. Condemns the violent extremism, which can be conducive to terrorism, sectarian violence and the commission of terrorist acts by foreign terrorist fighters, and demands that all foreign terrorist fighters disarm and cease all terrorist acts and participation in armed conflict;

2. Reaffirms that all States shall prevent the movement of terrorists or terrorist groups by effective border controls and controls on issuance of identity papers and travel documents, and through measures for preventing counterfeiting, forgery or fraudulent use of identity papers and travel documents, underscores in this regard the importance of addressing, in accordance with their relevant international obligations, the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters, and encourages Member States to employ evidence-based traveller risk assessment and screening procedures, including collection and analysis of travel data, without resorting to profiling based on stereotypes founded on grounds of discrimination prohibited by international law;

3. Urges Member States, in accordance with domestic and international law, to intensify and accelerate the exchange of operational information regarding actions or movements of terrorists or terrorist networks, including foreign terrorist fighters, especially with their States of residence or nationality, through bilateral or multilateral mechanisms, in particular the United Nations;

4. Calls upon all Member States, in accordance with their obligations under international law, to cooperate in efforts to address the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters, including by preventing the radicalization to terrorism and recruitment of foreign terrorist fighters, including children, preventing foreign terrorist fighters from crossing their borders, disrupting and preventing financial support to foreign terrorist fighters, and developing and implementing prosecution, rehabilitation and reintegration strategies for returning foreign terrorist fighters;

5. Decides that Member States shall, consistent with international human rights law, international refugee law and international humanitarian law, prevent and suppress the recruiting, organizing, transporting or equipping of individuals who travel to a State other than their States of residence or nationality for the purpose of the perpetration, planning or preparation of, or participation in, terrorist acts or the providing or receiving of terrorist training, and the financing of their travel and of their activities;

6. Recalls its decision, in resolution 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, that all Member States shall ensure that any person who participates in the financing, planning, preparation or perpetration of terrorist acts or in supporting terrorist acts is brought to justice, and decides that all States shall ensure that their domestic laws and regulations establish serious criminal offences sufficient to provide the ability to prosecute and to penalize in a manner duly reflecting the seriousness of the offence:

(a) Their nationals who travel or attempt to travel to a State other than their States of residence or nationality, and other individuals who travel or attempt to travel from their territories to a State other than their States of residence or nationality, for the purpose of the perpetration, planning or preparation of, or participation in, terrorist acts or the providing or receiving of terrorist training;

(b) The wilful provision or collection, by any means, directly or indirectly, of funds by their nationals or in their territories with the intention that the funds should be used, or in the knowledge that they are to be used, in order to finance the travel of individuals who travel to a State other than their States of residence or nationality for the purpose of the perpetration, planning or preparation of, or participation in, terrorist acts or the providing or receiving of terrorist training; and

(c) The wilful organization, or other facilitation, including acts of recruitment, by their nationals or in their territories, of the travel of individuals who travel to a State other than their States of residence or nationality for the purpose of the perpetration, planning or preparation of, or participation in, terrorist acts or the providing or receiving of terrorist training;

7. Expresses its strong determination to consider listing pursuant to resolution 2161(2014) of 17 June 2014 individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida who are financing, arming, planning or recruiting for them, or otherwise supporting their acts or activities, including through information and communications technologies, such as the Internet, social media or any other means;

8. Decides that, without prejudice to entry or transit necessary in the furtherance of a judicial process, including in furtherance of such a process related to arrest or detention of a foreign terrorist fighter, Member States shall prevent the entry into or transit through their territories of any individual about whom that State has credible information that provides reasonable grounds to believe that he or she is seeking entry into or transit through their territory for the purpose of participating in the acts described in paragraph 6 above, including any acts or activities indicating that an individual, group, undertaking or entity is associated with Al-Qaida, as set out in paragraph 2 of resolution 2161(2014), provided that nothing in the present paragraph shall oblige any State to deny entry into or require the departure from its territories of its own nationals or permanent residents;

9. Calls upon Member States to require that airlines operating in their territories provide advance passenger information to the appropriate national authorities in order to detect the departure from their territories, or attempted entry into or transit through their territories, by means of civil aircraft, of individuals designated by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) (the Committee), and further calls upon

Member States to report any such departure from their territories, or such attempted entry into or transit through their territories, of such individuals to the Committee, as well as sharing this information with the State of residence or nationality, as appropriate and in accordance with domestic law and international obligations;

10. Stresses the urgent need to implement fully and immediately the present resolution with respect to foreign terrorist fighters, underscores the particular and urgent need to implement the present resolution with respect to those foreign terrorist fighters who are associated with Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and other cells, affiliates, splinter groups or derivatives of Al-Qaida, as designated by the Committee, and expresses its readiness to consider designating, under resolution 2161(2014), individuals associated with Al-Qaida who commit the acts specified in paragraph 6 above;

11. Calls upon Member States to improve international, regional and subregional cooperation, if appropriate through bilateral agreements, to prevent the travel of foreign terrorist fighters from or through their territories, including through increased sharing of information for the purpose of identifying foreign terrorist fighters, the sharing and adoption of best practices, and improved understanding of the patterns of travel by foreign terrorist fighters, and for Member States to act cooperatively when taking national measures to prevent terrorists from exploiting technology, communications and resources to incite support for terrorist acts, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in compliance with other obligations under international law;

12. Recalls its decision in resolution 1373(2001) that Member States shall afford one another the greatest measure of assistance in connection with criminal investigations or proceedings relating to the financing or support of terrorist acts, including assistance in obtaining evidence in their possession necessary for the proceedings, and underlines the importance of fulfilling this obligation with respect to such investigations or proceedings involving foreign terrorist fighters;

13. Encourages INTERPOL to intensify its efforts with respect to the foreign terrorist fighter threat and to recommend or put in place additional resources to support and encourage national, regional and international measures to monitor and prevent the transit of foreign terrorist fighters, such as expanding the use of INTERPOL Special Notices to include foreign terrorist fighters;

14. Calls upon States to help to build the capacity of States to address the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters, including to prevent and interdict foreign terrorist fighter travel across land and maritime borders, in particular the States neighbouring zones of armed conflict where there are foreign terrorist fighters, and welcomes and encourages bilateral assistance by Member States to help to build such national capacity;

Countering violent extremism in order to prevent terrorism

15. Underscores that countering violent extremism, which can be conducive to terrorism, including preventing radicalization, recruitment and mobilization of individuals into terrorist groups and becoming foreign terrorist fighters, is an essential element of addressing the threat to international peace and security posed by foreign terrorist fighters, and calls upon Member States to enhance efforts to counter this kind of violent extremism;

16. Encourages Member States to engage relevant local communities and non-governmental actors in developing strategies to counter the violent extremist narrative that can incite terrorist acts, address the conditions conducive to the spread of violent extremism, which can be conducive to terrorism, including by empowering youth, families, women, religious, cultural and education leaders, and all other concerned groups of civil society and adopt tailored approaches to countering recruitment to this kind of violent extremism and promoting social inclusion and cohesion;

17. Recalls its decision in paragraph 14 of resolution 2161(2014) with respect to improvised explosive devices and individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and urges Member States, in this context, to act cooperatively when taking national measures to prevent terrorists from exploiting technology, communications and resources, including audio and video, to incite support for terrorist acts, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in compliance with other obligations under international law;

18. Calls upon Member States to cooperate and consistently support each other's efforts to counter violent extremism, which can be conducive to terrorism, including through capacity-building, coordination of plans and efforts, and sharing lessons learned;

19. Emphasizes, in this regard, the importance of Member States' efforts to develop non-violent alternative avenues for conflict prevention and resolution by affected individuals and local communities to decrease the risk of radicalization to terrorism, and of efforts to promote peaceful alternatives to violent narratives espoused by foreign terrorist fighters, and underscores the role education can play in countering terrorist narratives;

United Nations engagement on the foreign terrorist fighter threat

20. Notes that foreign terrorist fighters and those who finance or otherwise facilitate their travel and subsequent activities may be eligible for inclusion on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List maintained by the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) where they participate in the financing, planning, facilitating, preparing or perpetrating of acts or activities by, in conjunction with, under the name of, on behalf of or in support of Al-Qaida, supplying, selling or transferring arms and related materiel to, or recruiting for, or otherwise supporting acts or activities of Al-Qaida or any cell, affiliate, splinter group or derivative thereof, and calls upon States to propose such foreign terrorist fighters and those who facilitate or finance their travel and subsequent activities for possible designation;

21. Directs the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) and the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team, in close cooperation with all relevant United Nations counter-terrorism bodies, in particular the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, to devote special focus to the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters recruited by or joining Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida;

22. Encourages the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team to coordinate its efforts to monitor and respond to the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters with other United Nations counter-terrorism bodies, in particular the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force;

23. Requests the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team, in close cooperation with other United Nations counter-terrorism bodies, to report to the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) within 180 days, and provide a preliminary oral update to the Committee within 60 days, on the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters recruited by or joining Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, including:

(a) A comprehensive assessment of the threat posed by these foreign terrorist fighters, including their facilitators, the most affected regions and trends in radicalization to terrorism, facilitation, recruitment, demographics and financing; and

(b) Recommendations for actions that can be taken to enhance the response to the threat posed by these foreign terrorist fighters;

24. Requests the Counter-Terrorism Committee, within its existing mandate and with the support of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, to identify principal gaps in Member States' capacities to implement Council resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005 that may hinder States' abilities to stem the flow of foreign terrorist fighters, as well as to identify good practices to stem the flow of foreign terrorist fighters in the implementation of resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005), and to facilitate technical assistance, specifically by promoting engagement between providers of capacity-building assistance and recipients, especially those in the most affected regions, including through the development, upon their request, of comprehensive counter-terrorism strategies that encompass countering violent radicalization and the flow of foreign terrorist fighters, recalling the roles of other relevant actors, for example the Global Counterterrorism Forum;

25. Underlines that the increasing threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters is part of the emerging issues, trends and developments related to resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005) that, in paragraph 5 of resolution 2129(2013) of 17 December 2013, the Council directed the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate to identify, and therefore merits close attention by the Counter-Terrorism Committee, consistent with its mandate;

26. Requests the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) and the Counter-Terrorism Committee to update the Council on their respective efforts pursuant to the present resolution;

27. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

International cooperation on combating terrorism and violent extremism

Security Council consideration. On 19 November [S/PV.7316], the Council held a high-level open debate on threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts: international cooperation on combating terrorism and violent extremism. It had before it a concept note [S/2014/787] submitted by Australia. The Secretary-General, and the Chairs of the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 265] and 1989(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 341] concerning Al-Qaida and associated individuals and entities, and the Committee established pursuant to resolution 1373(2001) [YUN 2001, p. 61] concerning counter-terrorism, briefed the Council on UN efforts to support States in addressing the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 19 November [meeting 7316], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/23 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms that terrorism in all forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable regardless of their motivations, whenever and by whomsoever committed.

The Council emphasizes that the threat of terrorism is expanding and intensifying, affecting a greater number of Member States across most regions, owing to, inter alia, global recruitment networks, the spread of violent extremist ideologies that can be conducive to terrorism, ease of movement of terrorists, including foreign terrorist fighters, and access to significant funding streams.

The Council reiterates its grave concern about Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and other terrorist entities associated with Al-Qaida and the negative impact of their presence, violent extremist ideology, and actions on the stability of Iraq, the Syrian Arab Republic and the region, including the devastating humanitarian impact on the civilian populations which has led to the displacement of millions of people, and about their acts of violence that foment sectarian tensions.

The Council further expresses its concern that, according to reports, more than 15,000 foreign terrorist fighters from over 80 countries have travelled to join or fight for terrorist entities associated with Al-Qaida, including in the Syrian Arab Republic, Iraq, Somalia and Yemen, as well as several countries in the Maghreb and Sahel regions.

The Council recalls its resolutions 1267(1999), 1373(2001), 1624(2005), 2161(2014) 2170(2014) and 2178(2014), and underlines the importance of Member States taking urgent action to implement their obligations therein.

The Council reaffirms its respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence of all States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations.

The Council reaffirms that Member States must ensure that any measures taken to counter terrorism comply with the Charter and all their other obligations under international law, in particular international human rights law, international refugee law and international humanitarian law.

The Council recognizes that terrorism will not be defeated by military force, law enforcement measures and intelligence operations alone, and underlines the need to address the conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, as outlined in pillar I of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, and reiterates the need to address the factors driving recruitment and radicalization to terrorism, and furthermore recognizes that a comprehensive approach to defeat terrorism is required, involving national, subregional, regional and multilateral action.

The Council recognizes the significant capacity and coordination challenges many Member States face in countering terrorism and violent extremism and preventing terrorist financing, recruitment and all other forms of support to terrorist organizations; commends work under way by the Counter-Terrorism Committee and its Executive Directorate to identify capacity gaps and to facilitate technical assistance to strengthen the implementation of resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005) which supports compliance with 2178(2014); encourages Member States to continue to cooperate with the Committee and the Executive Directorate on the development of comprehensive and integrated national, subregional and regional counter-terrorism strategies; highlights the important role that Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities, including the United Nations Counter Terrorism Centre and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, and other providers of capacity-building assistance should play in technical assistance delivery; and in this respect notes the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters to countries of origin, transit and destination, as well as States neighbouring zones of armed conflict in which foreign terrorist fighters are active.

The Council calls upon Member States to help to build the capacity of other Member States, where necessary and upon request, to address the threat posed by terrorism, and welcomes and encourages bilateral assistance by Member States to help to build such national, subregional or regional capacity.

The Council welcomes recent listings by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) of foreign terrorist fighters and recruiters, and urges Member States to identify and propose additional foreign terrorist fighters and those individuals who facilitate or finance their travel and subsequent activities for possible designation by the Committee.

The Council expresses its determination to consider listing pursuant to resolution 2161(2014) individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida who are financing, arming, planning or recruiting for them, or otherwise supporting their acts or activities, including through information and communications technologies, such as the Internet, social media or any other means.

The Council welcomes recent developments and initiatives at the international, regional and subregional levels to prevent and suppress the foreign terrorist fighter phenomenon, notes the work of the Global Counter-terrorism Forum, in particular its recent adoption of a comprehensive set of good practices to address the foreign terrorist fighter phenomenon and the establishment of its Working Group on Foreign Terrorist Fighters, and the work of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the European Union, the African Centre for the Study and Research on Terrorism and the Meeting of Heads of Special Services, Security Agencies and Law Enforcement Organizations.

The Council takes note of the communiqué of the African Union Peace and Security Council summit on countering violent extremism and terrorism, held in Nairobi on 2 September 2014, and calls upon United Nations counter-terrorism entities, within existing mandates, and Member States to provide assistance and capacity-building towards Africa's efforts to counter violent extremism and terrorism.

Travel and transit

The Security Council urges Member States to improve bilateral, international, regional and sub-regional cooperation, to prevent the travel of foreign terrorist fighters from or through their territories, including through increased sharing of information for the purpose of identifying foreign terrorist fighters, understanding patterns of travel by foreign terrorist fighters and sharing practices in evidence-based traveller risk assessment and border screening, noting the need to address the challenges posed by evasive travel routes of foreign terrorist fighters.

The Council reiterates, as called for in resolutions 2161(2014) and 2178(2014), its call upon Member States to make use of the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) databases and to require that airlines under their jurisdiction provide advance passenger information to detect the departure from, entry into or transit through their territories of individuals on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List, and additionally encourages that they provide passenger name records, where appropriate, to the appropriate national authorities, and requests the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate to report, within 180 days, to the Counter-Terrorism Committee on gaps in the use of advance passenger information and make recommendations to expand the use of advance passenger information, including plans to facilitate the required capacity-building in this regard, working with the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team and relevant Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities, including the International Civil Aviation Organization, as well as industry representatives such as the International Air Transport Association.

The Council reiterates that the increasing threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters is part of the emerging issues, trends and developments related to resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005), and encourages the Counter-Terrorism Committee to hold Special Meetings in 2015 with the participation of Member States and relevant international and regional organizations to discuss ways to stem the flow of foreign terrorist fighters and to prevent terrorists from exploiting the Internet and social media to recruit and incite terrorist acts, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in compliance with other obligations under international law; and in this regard notes the importance of the Committee holding meetings in affected regions on issues related to the mandate of the Committee.

The Council calls upon Member States to ensure, in conformity with international law, in particular international human rights law and international refugee law, that refugee status is not abused by the perpetrators, organizers or facilitators of terrorist acts, including by foreign terrorist fighters.

Countering terrorist narratives and violent extremism

The Council expresses grave concern at the spread of violent extremist ideologies that underpin the terrorist narrative, and that foreign terrorist fighters are using their extremist ideologies to promote terrorism, and reiterates the need to counter violent extremism through effective national responses including by building community resilience, as well as through cooperation at the subregional, regional and international levels, with a strong role for the United Nations in supporting these efforts, and underscores the role education can play in countering terrorist narratives.

The Council highlights the continued need to improve the visibility and effectiveness of the role of the United Nations in countering the spread of violent extremist ideologies that are conducive to terrorism, including through strategic communications, and underscores the need to enhance the efforts of the United Nations and its Member States to tackle this issue more effectively and for further steps in this regard.

The Council encourages the sharing of national and regional experiences in countering violent extremism, and welcomes the efforts of the Counter-Terrorism Committee, with the support of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, to conduct dialogue with Member States and to hold open briefings on these issues to support efforts to counter incitement and violent extremism, and notes the need for the sharing of experiences to address the threat posed by terrorists and foreign terrorist fighters, including on rehabilitation and reintegration.

The Council notes that terrorism and violent extremism is impacting a growing number of conflict situations, including in States that host United Nations field missions, and in this regard encourages information-sharing, where relevant and appropriate, between Special Representatives of the Secretary-General, the Department of Political Affairs and the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team and other relevant Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities, within existing mandates and resources.

The Council recommends that United Nations regional offices located in regions that face terrorist threats undertake regional information analysis and inter-mission information-sharing on terrorism and violent extremism, within existing mandates and resources.

The Council expresses concern over the increased use by terrorists and their supporters of communications technology for the purpose of radicalizing to terrorism, recruiting and inciting others to commit terrorist acts, including through the Internet, and financing and facilitating the travel and subsequent activities of foreign terrorist fighters.

The Council urges Member States to act cooperatively to prevent terrorists from recruiting, to counter their violent extremist propaganda and incitement on the Internet and social media, including by developing effective counter-narratives, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in compliance with obligations under international law, stresses the importance of cooperation with civil society and the private sector in this endeavour, and encourages relevant Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities to support regional initiatives in this regard.

Financing

The Council expresses its deep concern that oilfields and related infrastructure controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and potentially other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida are generating a significant portion of the groups' income, which supports their recruitment efforts and strengthens their operational capability to organize and carry out terrorist attacks.

The Council reaffirms that States are required by resolution 2161(2014) to ensure that their nationals and those in their territory do not make assets or economic resources, directly or indirectly, available to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and notes that this obligation applies to the direct and indirect trade in oil and oil products.

The Council encourages Member States to report to the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) seizures or transfers of oil that they have reason to believe originated from territory controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front and seizures of oil refining and related material believed to be for transfer into territory controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front; encourages the Committee to immediately consider designations of individuals and entities engaged in these activities; and expresses its intention to consider additional measures to disrupt this source of terrorism financing, including prohibitions on the transfer of oil, oil products and oil refining and related material to and from territory controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida.

The Council stresses that donations from individuals and entities have played a role in developing and sustaining Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front, and that Member States have an obligation to ensure that such support is not made available to those terrorist groups and other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida by their nationals and persons within their territory, and urges Member States to address this directly through enhanced vigilance of the international financial system and by working with their non-profit and charitable organizations to ensure that financial flows through charitable giving are not diverted to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front or any other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida.

The Council expresses its concern that aircraft or other transport departing from territory controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front could be used to transfer gold or other valuable items and economic resources for sale on international markets, or to transfer arms and materiel for use by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front, and notes that individuals or entities engaged in such activities may be eligible for listing by the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011); expresses its concern regarding reports that items of archaeological, historical, cultural and religious importance are being illegally removed from territory controlled by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front which may be generating income for those groups, and calls upon Member States to take appropriate measures to prevent such illegal trade; and in this regard reminds all States that they are required to ensure that no funds, financial assets or economic resources are made available, directly or indirectly, for the benefit of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida; and looks forward to thorough consideration by the Committee of the relevant recommendations regarding new measures to disrupt such activities contained in the report of the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team submitted pursuant to resolution 2170(2014), with a view to further disrupting the activities of those groups.

The Council strongly condemns incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida for any purpose, including with the aim of raising funds or gaining political concessions, notes with concern that ransoms paid to terrorists are used as one of the sources of funding for their activities, including further kidnappings, expresses its determination to prevent kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups and to secure the safe release of hostages without ransom payments or political concessions, in accordance with applicable international law, calls upon all Member States to prevent terrorists from benefiting directly or indirectly from ransom payments or from political concessions and to secure the safe release of hostages, and reaffirms the need for all Member States to cooperate closely during incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups.

The Council highlights the relevance of Financial Action Task Force recommendations in support of implementing resolutions 2170(2014) and 2178(2014), including its recommendation to States to implement cash declaration/disclosure systems for both incoming and outgoing transportation of currency, and other measures to address the threat that some foreign terrorist fighters and facilitators are acting as cash couriers for terrorist organizations.

The Council expresses its concern regarding the connection, in some cases, between terrorism and transnational organized crime and illicit activities such as drugs, arms and human trafficking, and money-laundering.

The Council reiterates that States are required to prevent the direct or indirect supply, sale or transfer to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida from their territories or by their nationals outside their territories, or using their flag vessels or aircraft, of arms and related materiel of all types, including weapons and ammunition, military vehicles and equipment, paramilitary equipment, and spare parts for the aforementioned, and technical advice, assistance or training related to military activities, as well as its calls for States to find ways of intensifying and accelerating the exchange of operational information regarding traffic in arms, and to enhance coordination of efforts at the national, subregional, regional and international levels.

The Council further reminds all States of their obligation to ensure that any person who participates in the financing, planning, preparation or perpetration of terrorist acts is brought to justice and ensure that such terrorist acts are established as serious criminal offenses in domestic laws and regulations and that the punishment duly reflects the seriousness of such terrorist acts, and encourages the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate to provide guidance upon request.

The Council stresses that the intolerance, violence and hatred that Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and other groups associated with Al-Qaida espouse must be countered, and expresses its determination to defeat the threat to international peace and security posed by terrorism.

Measures to eliminate international terrorism

In 2014, the United Nations continued to strengthen its efforts to combat and eliminate international terrorism. The General Assembly examined the Secretary-General's July report [A/69/209] on measures to eliminate international terrorism, submitted in response to Assembly resolutions 50/53 [YUN 1995, p. 1330] and 68/119 [YUN 2013, p. 1332]. The report contained information on measures taken at the national and international levels, based on submissions from Governments and international organizations; a list of international legal instruments relating to the prevention and suppression of international terrorism; and information on workshops and training courses on combating crimes connected with international terrorism.

In resolution 69/39 of 2 December (see p. 644) on measures to prevent terrorists from acquiring weapons of mass destruction, the Assembly urged Member States to strengthen measures to prevent terrorists from acquiring such weapons, their means of delivery, and materials and technologies related to their manufacture. By resolution 69/127 of 10 December (see p. 1517), the Assembly reaffirmed its strong condemnation of acts of terrorism and called upon Member States to implement the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy in all its aspects and without delay.

Communications. On 26 March [A/68/816-S/2014/226], Iran transmitted to the Secretary-General the letter of the Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Islamic Republic of Iran, on news about the possible murder of one of the five Iranian border guards abducted on 7 February by an extremist terrorist group.

On 8 May [A/68/873-S/2014/324], the Syrian Arab Republic reported to the Secretary-General and the Security Council on the bombing of the Carlton Hotel in the city of Aleppo on 8 May. On 23 June [A/68/912-S/2014/433], Syria reported alleged attacks by armed terrorist groups in the Hama countryside and in Homs on 19 and 20 June. On 10 July [A/68/949-S/2014/484], Syria reported alleged attacks by armed terrorist groups in the Hama countryside on 9 July.

On 3 October [A/69/426-S/2014/719] and 16 October [A/69/531-S/2014/742], Syria transmitted to the Secretary-General and the Security Council information concerning alleged interference by Turkey in the internal affairs of the Syria and Turkish support of armed terrorist groups.

On 9 October [A/69/523-S/2014/736], the Russian Federation transmitted the Communiqué of the 13th Meeting of Heads of Special Services, Security Agencies and Law-Enforcement Organizations, adopted in Sochi on 10 April. The Meeting continued to perform its mission of strengthening the global counter-terrorism system under the overall coordination of the United Nations.

By a 17 November note verbale [A/69/602], Bahrain transmitted to the Secretary-General the Manama Declaration on Combating the Financing of Terrorism.

By a 24 November note verbale [A/69/625], addressed to the Secretary-General, Cuba requested that their contribution to the Victims of Terrorism Support Portal (annex) be distributed to the Members of the United Nations in its original language (Spanish).

Counter-Terrorism Committee

In 2014, the Committee established pursuant to Security Council resolution 1373(2001) [YUN 2001, p. 61], known as the Counter-Terrorism Committee (CTC), held 13 formal meetings. The CTC Chairman submitted on 28 March its work programme for 2014 [S/2014/233]. The Chairman briefed the Council on 28 May [S/PV.7184] and 9 December [S/PV.7331]. CTC was assisted in its work by the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate (CTED).

On 2 January [S/2014/2], the Security Council announced that it had elected Raimonda Murmokaite (Lithuania) as Chairman of CTC for the period ending 31 December 2014.

By a 7 November letter [S/2014/807], the CTC Chairman submitted to the Council a preliminary analysis of the principal gaps in Member States' capacities to implement Council resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 102] that could hinder their abilities to stem the flow of foreign terrorist fighters pursuant to Council resolution 2178(2014) (see p. 135). In resolution 2178(2014), the Council addressed the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters and requested CTED to support CTC in three key areas: identification of gaps in Member States' implementation of Council resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005); identification of good practices in States' implementation efforts; and facilitation of the necessary technical assistance. In an effort to address the first requirement, the Executive Directorate prepared a preliminary, non-State-specific analysis of the principal gaps that might affect the abilities of Member States to stem the flow of foreign terrorist fighters. That included gaps in legal and judicial frameworks; law enforcement and border control measures; counter-financing of terrorism measures; countering violent extremism; and compliance with human rights obligations and the rule of law.

Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy

Review of implementation

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 66/282 [YUN 2012, p. 58], the Secretary-General submitted an April report [A/68/841] on the activities of the UN system in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, which was adopted by Assembly resolution 60/288 [YUN 2006, p. 66]. The report outlined trends, challenges and opportunities in the counter-terrorism landscape. It also recorded some of the activities of the UN system in support of the Strategy since the issuance of the previous report of the Secretary-General [YUN 2012, p. 57], with inputs from all members of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, and concluded with a number of observations and recommendations. The report also contained a summary matrix of counter-terrorism projects implemented by UN entities around the world and submissions by Member States and regional and subregional organizations and other relevant organizations on their efforts to implement the Strategy.

The Secretary-General affirmed that the primary responsibility for the implementation of the Strategy rested with Member States. The United Nations, through the framework of the Task Force and together with its partners, was committed to providing the assistance necessary to address terrorism in a more dynamic, creative and systematic manner. Despite the best efforts of Member States and the adoption of the Strategy in 2006, terrorism had continued in new and more challenging forms spreading to new areas, in particular in Africa. The comprehensive nature of the terrorist threat demanded a comprehensive response from both Member States and the UN system. The Secretary-General stated that the most effective tool to combat terrorism was by working to achieve the UN core goals of strengthening peace and security, the promotion of human development and the observance of human rights and the rule of law.

The Strategy's success depended on a balanced implementation of all its four pillars. Nevertheless, the Secretary-General recommended that, in the run-up to the tenth anniversary of the adoption of the Strategy, the international community make a concerted and focused effort on the preventive aspects of counter-terrorism. That required addressing conditions conducive to terrorism as set out in pillar I. Community-led partnerships and prevention programmes to build resilience against violent extremism should be fostered. Women in particular could play a significant role in Governments, communities, schools and their homes in preventing extremist violence and building resilience against it.

Moreover, strengthening Member States' criminal justice systems was priority under pillar II of the Strategy, as was the delivery of security services by accountable and rule of law-based security sector institutions. Task Force entities should increase capacity-building support to Member States, at their request, in developing rule of law-based criminal justice systems. Contributing to security sector reform should become a priority for Task Force entities, as well as Member States. The Secretary-General also outlined the need to extend law enforcement cooperation in newly emerging areas of vulnerability. The Internet, in particular, was of concern as terrorists had abused it to radicalize, recruit, plan and promote their agendas. Fostering public-private partnerships could have significant beneficial impact in curbing the abuse of the Internet, particularly of social media, by terrorists. The Secretary-General expressed concern for human rights violations in countries that had seen an upsurge in terrorism and urged national authorities, particularly security and judicial bodies that were directly responsible for combating terrorism, to make more concerted efforts to mainstream human rights and the rule of law in their counter-terrorism policies and practices.

General Assembly consideration. Pursuant to resolution 66/282, the Assembly conducted the fourth review of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy during meetings held on 12 June [A/68/PV.94 & 95] and 13 June [A/68/PV.96 & 97]. The Assembly examined the report of the Secretary-General (see above), as well as the progress made by Member States in the implementation of the Strategy. A statement on behalf of the Assembly President was delivered. Representatives of Member States and observers also addressed the meetings. The first review of the Strategy was conducted in 2008 [YUN 2008, p. 63], the second in 2010 [YUN 2010, p. 77], and the third in 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 57].

On 13 June (decision 68/554), the Assembly, on the proposal of its President, decided, without setting a precedent, to invite Taleb Rifai, Secretary-General of the World Tourism Organization, to make a statement at its 97th plenary meeting.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 13 June [meeting 97], the General Assembly adopted resolution 68/276 [draft: A/68/L.50] without vote [agenda item 119].

The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy Review

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, contained in General Assembly resolution 60/288 of 8 September 2006, and recalling Assembly resolution 66/282 of 29 June 2012, which called for, inter alia, an examination in two years of progress made in the implementation of the Strategy and for consideration to be given to updating it to respond to changes, as provided for in those resolutions,

Recalling the pivotal role of the General Assembly in following up the implementation and the updating of the Strategy,

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 66/10 of 18 November 2011, and noting with appreciation that the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre has initiated its activities and will contribute to strengthening the United Nations counter-terrorism efforts,

Recognizing the important work carried out by the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre established within the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force Office in accordance with General Assembly resolution 66/10 and the role of the Centre in building the capacity of Member States to counter and respond to terrorism, and encouraging Member States to provide resources and voluntary contributions to the Centre in this regard,

Renewing its unwavering commitment to strengthening international cooperation to prevent and combat terrorism in all its forms and manifestations,

Reaffirming that terrorism cannot and should not be associated with any religion, nationality, civilization or ethnic group,

Noting with appreciation the continued contribution of United Nations entities and the subsidiary bodies of the Security Council to the work of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force,

Recognizing that international cooperation and any measures taken by Member States to prevent and combat terrorism must fully comply with their obligations under international law, including the Charter of the United Nations, in particular the purposes and principles thereof, and relevant international conventions and protocols, in particular human rights law, refugee law and international humanitarian law,

Recognizing also the need for Member States to prevent the abuse of non-governmental, non-profit and charitable organizations by and for terrorists, and calling upon non-governmental, non-profit and charitable organizations to prevent and oppose, as appropriate, attempts by terrorists to abuse the status of those organizations, while reaffirming the need to fully respect the rights to freedom of expression and association of individuals in civil society and to freedom of religion or belief of all persons,

Convinced that the General Assembly is the competent organ, with universal membership, to address the issue of international terrorism,

Mindful of the need to enhance the role of the United Nations and the specialized agencies, within their mandates, in the implementation of the Strategy,

Underlining the fact that the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force should continue to carry out its activities within the framework of its mandate, with policy guidance offered by Member States through interaction with the General Assembly on a regular basis,

Reaffirming that the acts, methods and practices of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations are activities aimed at the destruction of human rights, fundamental freedoms and democracy, at threatening territorial integrity and the security of States and at destabilizing legitimately constituted Governments, and that the international community should take the necessary steps to enhance cooperation to prevent and combat terrorism in a unified manner,

Reiterating the obligation of Member States to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts and to criminalize the wilful provision or collection, by any means, directly or indirectly, of funds by their nationals or in their territories, with the intention that the funds be used, or with the knowledge that they are to be used, in order to carry out terrorist acts,

Recognizing the role of the partnerships of regional and subregional organizations with the United Nations in combating terrorism, and encouraging the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, in accordance with its mandate, to closely cooperate and coordinate with regional and subregional organizations in their efforts to combat terrorism,

Alarmed by the acts of intolerance, violent extremism, violence, including sectarian violence, and terrorism in various parts of the world, which claim innocent lives, cause destruction and displace people, and rejecting the use of violence, regardless of motivation,

Expressing deep concern about the connections, in some cases, between some forms of transnational organized crime and terrorism, and emphasizing the need to enhance cooperation at the national, subregional, regional and international levels in order to strengthen responses to this evolving challenge,

Recognizing the commitment of all religions to peace, and determined to condemn acts of violent extremism and incitement to commit terrorist acts that spread hate and threaten lives,

Recognizing also the role that victims of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations can play, including in countering the appeal of terrorism, and emphasizing the need to promote international solidarity in support of victims of terrorism and to ensure that victims of terrorism are treated with dignity and respect,

Noting the important contribution of women to the implementation of the Strategy, and encouraging Member States, United Nations entities and international, regional and subregional organizations to consider the participation of women in efforts to prevent and counter terrorism,

Reaffirming the commitment of Member States to take measures aimed at addressing the conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, including but not limited to prolonged unresolved conflicts, dehumanization of victims of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, lack of the rule of law and violations of human rights, ethnic, national and religious discrimination, political exclusion, socioeconomic marginalization and lack of good governance, while recognizing that none of these conditions can excuse or justify acts of terrorism,

1. Reiterates its strong and unequivocal condemnation of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, committed by whomever, wherever and for whatever purposes;

2. Reaffirms the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy and its four pillars, which constitute an ongoing effort, and calls upon Member States, the United Nations and other appropriate international, regional and subregional organizations to step up their efforts to implement the Strategy in an integrated and balanced manner and in all its aspects;

3. Stresses the importance of keeping the Strategy relevant and contemporary in the light of emerging new threats and evolving trends of international terrorism;

4. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General entitled "Activities of the United Nations system in implementing the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy", welcomes the new summary matrix of counter-terrorism projects implemented by United Nations entities around the world and the efforts deployed by the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force Office in this regard, and underlines the importance of providing the necessary resources for the implementation of these projects;

5. Also takes note of the measures that Member States and relevant international, regional and subregional organizations have adopted within the framework of the Strategy, as set out in the report of the Secretary-General, which are to be considered at the fourth biennial review of the Strategy, on 12 and 13 June 2014, all of which strengthen cooperation to fight terrorism, including through the exchange of best practices;

6. Reaffirms the principal responsibility of Member States to implement the Strategy, while further recognizing the need to enhance the important role that the United Nations, including the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, plays, in coordination with other international, regional and subregional organizations, as appropriate, in facilitating and promoting coordination and coherence in the implementation of the Strategy at the national, regional and global levels and in providing assistance, upon request by Member States, especially in the area of capacity-building;

7. Affirms the importance of the integrated and balanced implementation of all pillars of the Strategy, recognizing the importance of redoubling efforts for even attention paid to and even implementation of all the pillars of the Strategy;

8. Stresses the significance of a sustained and comprehensive approach, including through stronger efforts, where necessary, to address conditions conducive to the spread of terrorism, bearing in mind that terrorism will not be defeated by military force, law enforcement measures and intelligence operations alone;

9. Recognizes the principal responsibility of Member States to implement the Strategy, while encouraging the further elaboration and development of national, subregional and regional plans, as appropriate, to support the implementation of the Strategy;

10. Encourages civil society, including non-governmental organizations, to engage, as appropriate, in efforts to enhance the implementation of the Strategy, including through interaction with Member States and the United Nations system, and encourages Member States and the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and its entities to enhance engagement with civil society in accordance with their mandates, as appropriate, and to support its role in the implementation of the Strategy;

11. Calls upon Member States and the United Nations entities involved in supporting counter-terrorism efforts to continue to facilitate the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms, as well as due process and the rule of law, while countering terrorism;

12. Urges all States to respect and protect the right to privacy, as set out in article 12 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and article 17 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, including in the context of digital communication, also while countering terrorism, in accordance with international law, in particular international human rights law, and to take measures to ensure that interferences with or restrictions on that right are not arbitrary, are adequately regulated by law, and are subject to effective oversight and to appropriate redress, including through judicial review or other legal means;

13. Urges Member States to ensure that any measures taken or means employed to counter terrorism, including the use of remotely piloted aircraft, comply with their obligations under international law, including the Charter of the United Nations, human rights law and international humanitarian law, in particular the principles of distinction and proportionality;

14. Recognizes the work done and efforts made by the relevant United Nations bodies and entities and other international, regional and subregional organizations aimed at supporting, recognizing and protecting the rights of victims of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, and urges them to step up their efforts to provide, upon request, technical assistance for building the capacity of Member States in the development and implementation of programmes of assistance and support for victims of terrorism;

15. Deeply deplores the suffering caused by terrorism to the victims of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations and to their families, expresses its profound solidarity with them, encourages Member States to provide them with proper support and assistance while taking into account, inter alia, when appropriate, considerations regarding remembrance, dignity, respect, justice and truth, in accordance with international law;

16. Welcomes the efforts of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to increase its transparency, accountability and effectiveness, and calls upon the Task Force and the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre to improve the strategic nature and impact of their programmes and policies;

17. Calls upon States that have not done so to consider becoming parties in a timely manner to the existing international conventions and protocols against terrorism, and upon all States to make every effort to conclude a comprehensive convention on international terrorism, and recalls the commitments of Member States with regard to the implementation of General Assembly and Security Council resolutions relating to international terrorism;

18. Underlines, in that regard, the importance of greater coordination among United Nations entities and of the work of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to ensure overall coordination and coherence in the counter-terrorism efforts of the United Nations system, as well as the need to continue promoting transparency and to avoid duplication in their work;

19. Recognizes the continued need to enhance the visibility and effectiveness of United Nations counter-terrorism activities and ensure greater cooperation, coordination and coherence among United Nations entities, with a view to maximizing synergies, promoting transparency and greater efficiencies and avoiding duplication of their work;

20. Reaffirms the need for enhanced dialogue among the counter-terrorism officials of Member States to promote international, regional and subregional cooperation and wider dissemination of knowledge of the Strategy in order to counter terrorism, and in that regard recalls the role of the United Nations system, in particular the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, in promoting international cooperation and capacity-building as elements of the Strategy;

21. Recognizes the role of the regional organizations, structures and strategies in combating terrorism, and encourages them to consider using best practices developed by other regions in their fight against terrorism, as appropriate, taking into account their specific regional and national circumstances;

22. Recalls that all States must cooperate fully in the fight against terrorism, in accordance with their obligations under international law, in order to find, deny safe haven and bring to justice, on the basis of the principle of extradite or prosecute, any person who supports, facilitates, participates or attempts to participate in the financing, planning, preparation or commission of terrorist acts or provides safe havens;

23. Emphasizes that tolerance and dialogue among civilizations and the enhancement of interfaith and intercultural understanding and respect among peoples, including at the national, regional and global levels, while avoiding the escalation of hatred, are among the most important elements in promoting cooperation, in combating terrorism and in countering violent extremism, and welcomes the various initiatives to this end;

24. Urges all Member States to unite against violent extremism in all its forms and manifestations as well as sectarian violence, encourages the efforts of leaders to discuss within their communities the causes of violent extremism and discrimination and to evolve strategies to address these causes, and underlines that States, regional organizations, non-governmental organizations, religious bodies and the media have an important role to play in promoting tolerance and respect for religious and cultural diversity;

25. Expresses concern over terrorist acts committed by lone terrorists in various parts of the world, and recognizes the need to address this issue;

26. Underlines the importance of multilateral efforts in combating terrorism and refraining from any practices and measures inconsistent with international law and the principles of the Charter;

27. Expresses its concern at the increasing use, in a globalized society, by terrorists and their supporters, of information and communications technologies, in particular the Internet and other media, and the use of such technologies to commit, incite, recruit for, fund or plan terrorist acts, notes the importance of cooperation among stakeholders in the implementation of the Strategy, including among Member States, international, regional and subregional organizations, the private sector and civil society, to address this issue, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and complying with international law and the purposes and principles of the Charter, and reiterates that such technologies can be powerful tools in countering the spread of terrorism, including by promoting tolerance and dialogue among peoples and peace;

28. Expresses concern at the increase, in some regions, in incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups, for any purpose, including with the aim of raising funds or gaining political concessions, notes that ransoms paid to terrorists are used as one of the sources of funding for their activities, including further kidnappings, calls upon all Member States to prevent terrorists from benefiting from ransom payments and political concessions and to secure the safe release of hostages, in accordance with applicable legal obligations, and encourages Member States to cooperate, as appropriate, during incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking committed by terrorist groups;

29. Encourages all Member States to collaborate with the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre and to contribute to the implementation of its activities within the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force;

30. Notes with appreciation the activities undertaken in the area of capacity-building by United Nations entities, including the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force entities, inter alia, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, in coordination with other relevant international, regional and subregional organizations to assist Member States, upon their request, in implementing the Strategy, and encourages the Task Force to ensure focused delivery of capacity-building assistance, including in the framework of the Integrated Assistance for Countering Terrorism Initiative;

31. Expresses its concern at the increasing flow of international recruits to terrorist organizations, including foreign terrorist fighters, and at the threat it poses for all Member States, including countries of origin, transit and destination, encourages all Member States to address this threat by enhancing their cooperation and developing relevant measures to prevent and tackle this phenomenon, including information-sharing, border management to detect travel, and appropriate criminal justice response, and to consider the use of United Nations instruments, such as sanctions regimes, as well as cooperation;

32. Recognizes the need to continue to take measures to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorism, and in this regard encourages United Nations entities to cooperate with Member States and to continue to provide assistance, upon their request, in particular, to help them to fully implement their respective international obligations to combat the financing of terrorism;

33. Calls upon all States to adopt such measures as may be necessary and appropriate, and in accordance with their obligations under international law, to prohibit by law incitement to commit a terrorist act or acts, prevent such conduct and deny safe haven to any persons with respect to whom there is credible and relevant information giving serious reasons for considering that they have been guilty of such conduct;

34. Calls for the enhanced engagement of Member States with the work of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force;

35. Requests the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to continue its positive efforts in interacting with Member States, and further requests the Task Force to continue to provide quarterly briefings and to provide a periodic workplan for the Task Force, including the activities of the United Nations Counter-Terrorism Centre;

36. Encourages the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to work closely with Member States and relevant international, regional and subregional organizations to identify and share best practices to prevent terrorist attacks on potentially vulnerable targets, and recognizes the importance of developing public-private partnerships in this area;

37. Recalls all resolutions of the General Assembly on measures to eliminate international terrorism and relevant resolutions of the Assembly on the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms while countering terrorism and all resolutions of the Security Council relating to international terrorism, and calls upon Member States to cooperate fully with the relevant bodies of the United Nations in the fulfilment of their tasks, recognizing that many States continue to require assistance in implementing these resolutions;

38. Encourages all relevant international, regional and subregional organizations and forums involved in the fight against terrorism to cooperate with the United Nations system and Member States in supporting the Strategy, noting recent initiatives in this regard;

39. Underscores the role, within the United Nations, of the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, including in assessing issues and trends relating to the implementation of Security Council resolutions 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001 and 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005, in accordance with its mandate and Council resolution 2129(2013) of 17 December 2013, and in sharing information, as appropriate, with relevant United Nations counter-terrorism bodies and relevant international, regional and subregional organizations;

40. Recognizes that Al-Qaida and its affiliates continue to pose a widespread challenge in the fight against terrorism, encourages Member States to integrate the Al-Qaida sanctions regime, pursuant to Security Council resolutions 1267(1999) of 15 October 1999 and 1889(2011) of 17 June 2011, into their national and regional counter-terrorism strategies, including by proposing for inclusion on the Al-Qaida sanctions list the names of individuals and entities, takes note of the significant contribution of the Office of the Ombudsperson, since its establishment, in providing fairness and transparency to the Al-Qaida sanctions regime, and stresses the need to continue efforts to ensure that procedures are fair and clear;

41. Underlines the importance of enhancing counter-terrorism efforts undertaken by all relevant United Nations agencies and bodies in accordance with their existing mandates, and encourages the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to continue its collaboration with those agencies and bodies;

42. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its seventieth session, no later than April 2016, a report on progress made in the implementation of the Strategy since its adoption in September 2006, which could contain suggestions for its future implementation by the United Nations system, as well as on progress made in the implementation of the present resolution;

43. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "The United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy" in order to undertake, by June 2016, an examination of the report of the Secretary-General requested in paragraph 42 above, as well as of the implementation of the Strategy by Member States, and to consider updating the Strategy to respond to changes.

Those killed in the attacks included at least 15 children travelling on a school bus. In that regard, the Council reiterated condemnation of violations and abuses committed against children by terrorists.

Peacekeeping operations

In 2014, the General Assembly and the Security Council continued to oversee the management and operation of UN peacekeeping missions. The Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO) continued to implement the recommendations of the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations, whose mandate was to review the whole question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects.

Security Council consideration (June). On 11 June [S/PV.7196], the Council held an open debate on UN peacekeeping operations: new trends. It had before it a concept note [S/2014/384] submitted by the Russian Federation. In his address to the Council, the Secretary-General highlighted four aspects of peacekeeping. First, UN peacekeeping operations were increasingly mandated to operate where there was no peace to keep. Significant levels of violence could be seen in Darfur, South Sudan, Mali, the Central African Republic and the eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), where more than two-thirds of UN military, police and civilian personnel were operating. Secondly, some UN peacekeeping operations were being authorized in the absence of clearly identifiable parties to the conflict or a viable political process. Thirdly, UN peacekeeping operations were increasingly operating in more complex environments that featured asymmetric and unconventional threats. Fourthly, there was a need to build on the renewed commitment of the Security Council to responding to a changing world. Resolution 2098(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 107], on the DRC, signalled the resolve of the Council to address the changing nature of conflict and the operating environment of UN peacekeeping.

The Secretary-General stated that broader discussion was needed on how UN peacekeeping should adapt to new demands and what capabilities and resources it would need to adapt. Having asked the Secretariat to initiate work on a review of UN peacekeeping, the Secretary-General noted that mandates, political leverage, logistical support, training, accountability, rules of engagement, technological innovation, and clarity on the caveats of troop- and police-contributing countries were just a few areas that may warrant review.

General aspects of UN peacekeeping

Policing in peacekeeping and post-conflict peacebuilding

Security Council consideration (November). The Council, on 20 November [S/PV.7317], was briefed, for the first time, on the role of policing in peacekeeping and post-conflict peacebuilding. It had before a concept note [S/2014/788] submitted by Australia. The Council was briefed by the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations; Police Commissioner of the United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL); Police Commissioner of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan (UNMISS); and Police Commissioner of MINUSCA.

The Under-Secretary-General said that there had been unprecedented growth in UN policing in recent years. He remarked that changes in the nature of the security situation—including changes in the type of needs, along with an increased number of threats that included traditional problems related to basic security as well as the fight against terrorism, transnational organized crime and corruption—were part of the reality experienced by police. He stated that their tasks were to assist host countries in the areas of the rule of law via police services; to, in some cases, temporarily carry out police duties, including law enforcement; and to support efforts at reform, restructuring and, sometimes, creating a national or other police service to be responsible for enforcing the law.

The Under-Secretary-General highlighted the need for increasingly sophisticated capacities as reflected in the growing need for specialized police, including in scientific and technological terms. He also appealed for additional language capabilities, notably Arabic and French, and expressed the need for more women police. Although the target goal of reaching 20 per cent women police for the year was far from being met, it reflected the situation in national police services. The Under-Secretary-General stated that, despite that, all-women police units were being increasingly deployed as law-and-order problems often included a level of danger and impact that was more pronounced on women.

On the same day (see below), the Council adopted resolution 2185(2014), its first resolution dedicated to policing issues, which resolved to include policing as an integrating part of UN peacekeeping mandates, and requested the Secretary-General to further promote professionalism, effectiveness and system-wide coherence in the policing-related work of the United Nations.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 20 November [meeting 7317], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2185(2014). The draft [S/2014/828] was submitted by Australia, Chad, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its primary responsibility under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Recalling also its resolutions 2151(2014) of 28 April 2014 on security sector reform, 2167(2014) of 28 July 2014 and 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013 on United Nations peacekeeping operations, 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 and all subsequent resolutions on women and peace and security, 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 and previous resolutions on children and armed conflict and 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013 on small arms and light weapons, and the statements by its President of 21 February 2014 on the rule of law and 20 December 2012 on post-conflict peacebuilding, as well as other relevant resolutions and statements by its President,

Reiterating the need for a comprehensive approach to conflict prevention and sustainable peace, which comprises operational and structural measures for the prevention of armed conflict and addresses its root causes, including through strengthening the rule of law at international and national levels and promoting sustained economic growth, poverty eradication, social development, sustainable development, national reconciliation, good governance, democracy, gender equality and respect for and protection of human rights,

Stressing that the success of the mandates of peacekeeping operations and special political missions requires close cooperation between the different elements of these missions under the overall leadership of the Head of Mission,

Reaffirming its commitment to uphold the purposes and principles of the Charter, including its commitment to and respect for the principles of political independence, sovereign equality and territorial integrity of all States, in conducting all peacekeeping activities and the need for States to comply with their obligations under international law,

Reaffirming also that respect for the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, is essential to the success of peacekeeping operations,

Recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping operation and special political mission is specific to the needs and situation of the country concerned,

Reaffirming the principles of impartiality, consent of the parties, national ownership and national responsibility, and stressing the significance of the views of and dialogue with countries hosting special political missions,

Noting that host State policing institutions are often the primary link between the Government and the communities on security issues, and reiterating that professional, effective, accountable and accessible law enforcement, corrections and judicial institutions are necessary to lay the foundation for sustainable peace and national development,

Acknowledging the significant growth in the role of police components as an integral part of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, and the increasingly diverse and complex policing-related tasks in the mandates of such operations and missions, noting that police components can include both uniformed United Nations police officers and civilian policing experts, noting also the distinct roles performed by individual police officers and formed police units and the increasing demand for these different capacities, stressing that use of these capacities should be based on the situation and the needs of the host State, and noting the necessity of aligning tasks of United Nations police components with the mandated tasks of missions,

Stressing that United Nations policing-related work makes an invaluable contribution to peacekeeping, post-conflict peacebuilding, security, the rule of law and the creation of a basis for development,

Recalling that policing-related aspects of mandates of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions may include support for the reform, restructuring and development of host State policing and other law enforcement institutions, providing operational support to host State policing and other law enforcement institutions, and conducting interim policing and other law enforcement,

Underlining the importance of close coordination of the range of United Nations policing activities, both at Headquarters and in the field, in particular between Security Council-mandated missions and the United Nations country team, as appropriate, and encouraging relevant United Nations entities mandated to undertake policing activities to work through existing coordination mechanisms, as appropriate,

Noting that United Nations police components face a range of challenges, including a need for specialized skills and equipment and to ensure a unified policing approach, given the various policing models across police-contributing countries,

Recalling reports of the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations of the General Assembly which have provided guidance to the Secretariat on the subject of United Nations policing, including the development of a United Nations standardized approach to policing, and recognizing the inclusive consultative process undertaken by the Police Division of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat in the development of the Strategic Guidance Framework for International Police Peacekeeping,

Emphasizing the importance of Member States contributing police with professional skills, experience and expertise to carry out the mandated tasks who are appropriately trained and vetted and, where appropriate, operationally ready and deployed with the full complement of contingent-owned equipment, welcoming cooperation between the United Nations, police-contributing countries, other Member States and relevant regional and international organizations to help to ensure that formed police units are properly trained and equipped, and underscoring the importance of such cooperation,

Noting the increasing use of modern technologies by United Nations police components, including information and communications technologies such as closed circuit television, specialized crime data software and geographic information mapping systems, and other technologies such as advanced metal detectors, laboratory equipment and drug, explosive and ballistic detection and analysis systems, to increase their abilities to carry out their mandates efficiently and effectively and to enhance their safety and security, and encouraging the Secretariat to ensure that these technologies, when deployed, are integrated effectively into United Nations policing work consistent with the purposes and principles of the Charter and the basic principles of peacekeeping and that the confidentiality of all data gathered by such assets is preserved as detailed in relevant specific procedures,

Welcoming the announcement by the Secretary-General of a comprehensive review of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, and taking note of the announcement by the Secretary-General of the establishment of a high-level independent panel to conduct the review,

Noting the designation of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations and the United Nations Development Programme as the joint global focal point for the police, justice and corrections areas,

Recalling the sovereign right and the primary responsibility of the State concerned to determine the national approach and priorities of security sector reform, including reform of policing and other law enforcement institutions, and recognizing that such reform should be a nationally owned process that is rooted in the particular needs and conditions of the country in question, and encouraging the development of expertise in the field of security sector reform at the national level,

Noting the important role that United Nations police components can play in supporting, and coordinating international support for, reform of host State policing institutions and building policing capacity in a comprehensive way that emphasizes a community-oriented approach and is integrated with other areas of security sector reform and the rule of law,

Emphasizing that good governance and oversight of policing and law enforcement services, within the framework of a functional justice and corrections system, are important in ensuring that those services are accountable, responsive and capable of serving the population,

Highlighting the important role that United Nations police components can play, where mandated, in consultation with the host State and in collaboration with other components, in supporting host States in upholding their primary responsibility to protect civilians as well as to respect and ensure the human rights of all individuals within their territory and subject to their jurisdiction, including through monitoring and deterrence, early warning and prevention, support for basic safety and security, physical protection, creating protective environments, assisting national security sector reform programmes, capacity-building and political engagement with host State counterparts,

Reaffirming the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding, and stressing the importance of their equal participation and full involvement in all efforts for the maintenance and promotion of peace and security, and the need to increase their role in decision-making with regard to conflict prevention and resolution, including in relation to policing and the rule of law,

Taking note of and encouraging the increased participation of female police officers in United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, thereby contributing to the effectiveness of relevant mandate implementation, including by providing diverse perspectives that can assist in building trust with local communities, improving the protection of women and children from violence and abuse and facilitating gender-sensitive police approaches and mentoring,

Recalling the launch of the United Nations Global Effort in 2009 to promote an increase in the percentage of female police officers in United Nations peacekeeping missions to 20 per cent by 2014, welcoming the increase in female police officers in peacekeeping operations since the launch of the United Nations Global Effort, and encouraging States and the Secretary-General to strengthen efforts to support the realization of the 20 per cent goal,

Recognizing innovative practices to improve the success of United Nations policing in recognizing specific needs of women in conflict and post-conflict environments, including the need for protection from sexual and gender-based violence and for community strategies that reflect women's needs, such as the deployment of women within formed police units and the establishment of special protection units,

Reiterating that the protection of children in armed conflict should be an important aspect of any comprehensive strategy to resolve conflict and build peace, reiterating also in this regard the importance of providing United Nations police components with specialized predeployment and in-mission training on mission-specific child protection and on appropriate comprehensive child-sensitive prevention and protection responses, as well as on the monitoring and reporting of violations and abuses committed against children, and stressing the importance of enhancing coordination between police components and child protection advisers as well as gender and women's protection advisers,

Highlighting the important role that United Nations police components can play in building the capacity of host State policing and other law enforcement institutions, as mandated, to address organized crime, particularly through support in the areas of border, immigration and maritime security and crime prevention, response and investigation,

Highlighting also that impartial, responsive, accountable, community-oriented police institutions with well-trained personnel can help to counter violent extremism, including through building trust and dialogue between State authorities and communities,

Noting the role that police components can play in assisting host Governments in the implementation and compliance monitoring of Council-mandated sanctions measures, including, where mandated, through the provision of advice and assistance,

Recognizing the role that regional and subregional organizations can play in post-conflict peacebuilding, including security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, rule of law, recovery, reconstruction and development processes, including through support for host State policing and other law enforcement institutions, and affirming the importance of interaction and cooperation between peacekeeping operations and special political missions and regional and subregional organizations and arrangements,

Paying tribute to the memory of United Nations peacekeepers who have lost their lives in the cause of peace, and in this regard underscoring the importance of the safety and security of United Nations peacekeepers, expressing grave concern about the security threats and targeted attacks against United Nations peacekeepers in many peacekeeping missions, which constitute a major challenge to United Nations peacekeeping operations, condemning in the strongest terms the killing of and all acts of violence against United Nations peacekeeping personnel, and emphasizing that perpetrators of such attacks must be brought to justice,

Reaffirming that the primary responsibility for the security and protection of personnel employed by the United Nations system organizations rests with the host Government, and noting that complementary to the host Government responsibility, the safety and security of individually deployed police personnel in United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, including but not limited to United Nations police officers, or members of formed police units when not deployed with their unit, falls under the security arrangements of the United Nations security management system,

1. Resolves to include, as appropriate, policing as an integral part of the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, and to give clear, credible and achievable mandates for policing-related activities, matched by appropriate resources;

2. Stresses the importance of strong cooperation and coordination between United Nations police components and other elements of peacekeeping operations and special political missions, in support of the mandate and under the overall leadership of the Head of Mission;

3. Urges police-contributing countries to continue to contribute professional police personnel with the necessary skills, equipment and experience to implement mission mandates, including, where relevant, multidimensional peacekeeping mandates, underlining the importance of appropriate language skills at relevant levels to fulfil the mandate and of gender expertise, and urges prospective police-contributors to also contribute such personnel to help to ensure that the demand for professional police personnel in United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions is fully met;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to further promote professionalism, effectiveness and system-wide coherence in the policing-related work of the United Nations, including, in close consultation, as appropriate, with Member States and the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations in full respect of its vital role, through:

(a) The development and implementation of standards and guidance for United Nations policing-related work, through the Strategic Guidance Framework for International Police Peacekeeping;

(b) The development of comprehensive, standardized training for United Nations police components, including predeployment, induction and in-service training;

(c) The provision of senior police leadership training, including through the Senior Mission Leaders' Course;

(d) The development of strong processes for evaluating the effectiveness of United Nations policing-related work;

(e) The streamlining and improvement of recruitment and deployment procedures for United Nations police and civilian policing experts, recognizing that the Fifth Committee is the appropriate Main Committee of the General Assembly entrusted with administrative and budgetary matters;

(f) The coordination of work within the United Nations system on reform of policing and law enforcement institutions;

5. Recognizes that political leadership and the will of national authorities are critical to reforming host State policing and other law enforcement services, emphasizes the lead role of the host State authorities in developing, as part of an inclusive national vision for its security sector, a strategy for policing and other law enforcement that promotes the rule of law and respects human rights, coordinating the implementation of the vision, dedicating national resources towards policing, law enforcement and other security institutions, and monitoring the impact of security sector reform processes, including policing reform;

6. Urges Member States and international partners to support, upon request, host State efforts to professionalize policing and other law enforcement agencies, within the context of broader security sector reform, and to ensure that international policing support is well coordinated in support of a nationally agreed plan, and underscores that such support should be tailored to the needs of the host State;

7. Recognizes that reform of police and other law enforcement institutions needs to be in support of, and informed by, inclusive political processes and agreements, to enhance the legitimacy of the institutions concerned and ensure wide ownership of such reform;

8. Notes the important role that United Nations police components can play, where mandated, in strengthening the rule of law in conflict and post-conflict situations by, inter-alia, providing operational support to host State policing and other law enforcement institutions and supporting the reform, restructuring and rebuilding of such institutions, including through technical assistance, co-location, training and mentoring programmes, in the context of broader efforts to strengthen the rule of law and reform the security sector, where mandated;

9. Requests the Secretary-General, in this regard, to consider, as appropriate, security sector reform, including reform of policing and other law enforcement institutions, in the overall strategic planning of peacekeeping operations and special political missions in each country-specific context, and to work with Member States to enhance the capabilities and expertise of United Nations police components in relation to capacity development and institution building, including in the areas of:

- (a) Operational policing, including community-oriented policing and information-based policing;
- (b) Administration, management and leadership;
- (c) Governance, oversight and evaluation;
- (d) Policy formulation and strategic planning;
- (e) Coordination with partners;

10. Emphasizes the role of peacekeeping operations and special political missions in supporting host State policing institutions in their preparation to transition to function self-sufficiently, and underlines that this preparation for transition should be based on a timely analysis of need, in consultation with the host State, of any assistance beyond the duration of the presence of the peacekeeping operation or special political mission, to enable United Nations peacebuilding and development actors, including the United Nations country team, to undertake the necessary strategic planning and resource mobilization, working in close partnership with host State authorities, and to transfer skills and expertise to host State officials and experts as quickly as possible in order to ensure a successful and durable transition;

11. Encourages the Special Representatives and Envoys of the Secretary-General to fully take into account the strategic value of security sector reform, including reform of host State policing and other law enforcement institutions, in their work, as appropriate, in the context of broader security sector reform efforts, including through their good offices where mandated;

12. Welcomes the work of the United Nations Standing Police Capacity in providing expertise across the broad range of policing activities and providing a rapid, coherent, effective and responsive start-up capability for the police components of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, and assisting existing missions through the provision of advice, expertise, baseline assessments and evaluation;

13. Requests the Secretariat to continue refining the composition of the United Nations Standing Police Capacity to ensure that it includes skill sets to meet contemporary demands, including through enabling partnerships with Member States and regional organizations;

14. Notes with appreciation the efforts made by the Police Division of the Department of Peacekeeping Operation of the Secretariat to continue to explore the use of "specialized police teams" for police capacity-building, and requests the Secretary-General to report on this use, as appropriate;

15. Notes the efforts of the Secretariat to enhance inter-mission cooperation, including through the rapid re-deployment of formed police units, recognizes that such cooperation can provide timely responses for critically needed capacity as an interim, short-term measure, notes the logistical challenges that can undermine the effectiveness of inter-mission cooperation, and encourages the Secretariat, in consultation with police-contributing countries, to continue to assess the practice of inter-mission cooperation with a view to streamlining standing operating procedures and improving the effectiveness of such cooperation;

16. Also notes the importance of the deployment of civilian policing experts, with adequate and appropriate skills and expertise, to United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions;

17. Affirms the central role of the protection of civilians, where mandated, in the work undertaken by United Nations police components;

18. Also affirms the importance of the role that United Nations police components can play, where mandated, in supporting the efforts of host authorities in the protection of civilians, particularly those under imminent threat of physical violence, including all forms of sexual and gender-based violence, and in this regard, while recognizing that the protection of civilians is the primary responsibility of the host State, helping to build and reform policing and law enforcement institutions of the host State so that they are able to sustainably and consistently protect civilians;

19. Highlights the critical role that United Nations police components can play in facilitating the participation and inclusion of women in dialogue on conflict resolution and peacebuilding, including on rule of law and security issues;

20. Encourages police-contributing countries to increase the percentage of women police in deployments to United Nations peacekeeping operations, in particular senior officers, including in leadership roles, and requests the Secretary-General to continue to support innovative efforts to encourage such deployment of women police and to enhance coordination between police components and child protection advisers as well as gender and women's protection advisers;

21. Also encourages police-contributing countries to provide all police personnel with adequate training to carry out their responsibilities in relation to sexual and gender-based violence and child protection, and further encourages relevant United Nations entities to make available appropriate guidance and training modules, including in particular the United Nations predeployment scenario-based training on prevention of sexual and gender-based violence and on children and armed conflict;

22. Requests the Secretary-General to continue and strengthen efforts to implement the policy of zero tolerance of sexual exploitation and abuse by United Nations personnel, as well as the policy on prohibition of child labour in United Nations peacekeeping operations, and urges police-contributing countries to take appropriate preventative action, including predeployment and in-mission awareness training and other action to ensure full accountability, including prosecutions, in cases of such conduct involving their nationals;

23. Notes the importance of United Nations policing-related support to non-United Nations security forces adhering to the United Nations human rights due diligence policy;

24. Reiterates that United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, including police components, located in a host State with a Security Council-mandated sanctions regime, may, if deemed necessary by the Council, provide appropriate expertise to the host Government, the relevant sanctions committee and relevant expert groups in the implementation and the compliance monitoring of that sanctions regime, and further notes the importance of appropriate training for United Nations police components in this regard;

25. Also reiterates that United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, including police components, may, if mandated by the Council, assist in capacity-building for host Governments, as requested, to implement commitments under existing global and regional instruments and to address the illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, including through weapons collection, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes, enhancing physical security and stockpile management practices, record-keeping and tracing capacities, development of national export and import control systems, enhancement of border security, and strengthening of judicial institutions, policing and other law enforcement capacities;

26. Encourages information-sharing, where relevant and appropriate, between Special Representatives of the Secretary-General, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, including its Police Division, the Department of Political Affairs of the Secretariat, the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and the United Nations Development Programme, within existing mandates and resources, when considering means to address, in a comprehensive and integrated manner, transnational organized crime, terrorism and violent extremism that can be conducive to terrorism;

27. Encourages the Counter-Terrorism Committee Executive Directorate to enhance its dialogue and information-sharing with Special Envoys, the Department of Political Affairs and the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, with respect to policing activities, including during the planning stages of missions, as appropriate, in relation to the implementation of Council resolutions 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001 and 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005, and requests the Executive Directorate to identify the principal gaps in the capacities of Member States, including the capacities of their policing and other law enforcement institutions, to implement resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005);

28. Affirms that United Nations police components, deployed as part of a United Nations peacekeeping operation, may, if mandated by the Council, provide support, in consultation with the host State, as feasible and where appropriate, to the efforts of national authorities, without prejudice to the responsibilities of those authorities, to bring to justice those responsible for serious international crimes;

29. Encourages closer coordination and cooperation on policing issues between the Secretariat and international, regional and subregional organizations, the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) and regional police organizations, including through training, the sharing and exchange of information, thematic expertise and operational support, as appropriate;

30. Reiterates the need to further strengthen cooperation and consultation with police-contributing countries, including through triangular cooperation between the Council, troop- and police-contributing countries and the Secretariat, to foster a spirit of partnership, cooperation, confidence and mutual trust;

31. Expresses its intention to consider holding an annual meeting on policing issues with the heads of United Nations police components;

32. Encourages the Secretary-General to consider the increasing role of policing, along with the many other critical issues related to peacekeeping operations and special political missions, in his upcoming strategic review of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, as appropriate;

33. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report by the end of 2016 on the role of policing as an integral part of peacekeeping and post-conflict peacebuilding, with particular focus on the challenges faced by police components of United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions, and making recommendations on how best to strengthen their contribution to the achievement of mission mandates.

Security Council Working Group on Peacekeeping Operations

On 31 December, the Chairman of the Security Council Working Group on Peacekeeping Operations submitted to the Council a report [S/2014/960] covering its work in 2014. In meetings held on 15 and 30 May, 27 June, 25 July, 17 October, 3 November, 8 and 17 December, the Working Group discussed mission start-up and re-hatting challenges; inter-mission cooperation and challenges to implementation; increasing women's participation in peacekeeping; troop and police preparedness; strategic priorities of the Police Division; the operationalization of African Union standby arrangements; transitions from African Union to UN peacekeeping operations; and the protection of civilians.

Conduct and discipline

Sexual exploitation and abuse in UN peacekeeping operations

In response to General Assembly resolution 57/306 [YUN 2003, p. 1237], the Secretary-General submitted a February report [A/68/756] providing data on allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse in the United Nations system for 2013, and information on actions taken to prevent and address sexual exploitation and abuse by UN personnel. Information on allegations was received from 42 entities, including the departments and offices of the Secretariat and agencies, funds and programmes of the UN system. The number of allegations reported by all entities totalled 96, compared with 88 in 2012. Six entities, including peacekeeping operations, reported having received one or more allegations, while 36 received none.

For peacekeeping and special political missions, the total number of allegations received (66) increased slightly in 2013 compared with the number reported for 2012 (60 allegations), but remained lower than the number reported for 2011 (74 allegations) and 2010 (85 allegations). With respect to the categories of personnel involved, allegations involving military personnel (37 allegations) were higher in 2013, compared with 2012. The number of allegations involving civilian (21), police (7) and other categories of personnel (1) were lower in 2013, compared with 2012.

The majority (53 allegations or 80 per cent) of allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse were received from the same four peacekeeping missions as in 2012: the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO), with 23 allegations; the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH), with 17 allegations; UNMIL, with seven allegations; and UNMISS, with six allegations. The remaining 13 allegations (20 per cent) were from the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA), with five allegations; the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI), with four allegations; the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK), with two allegations; the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID) and the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP), with one allegation each.

As at 31 January 2014, investigations had been completed for 17 allegations received in 2013. They included those conducted by troop-contributing countries into seven allegations (six substantiated and one unsubstantiated) and those conducted by the United Nations into 10 allegations (three substantiated and seven unsubstantiated). During the reporting period, investigations into 19 allegations received in 2012 continued. Of the 19 investigations, 10 were concluded; six were found to be unsubstantiated; and four were further reviewed, found to be substantiated and subsequently closed.

The Secretary-General also provided an update on activities undertaken in the implementation of the programme of action for a strengthened accountability and governance framework, as well inter-agency activities and joint initiatives relevant to protection from sexual exploitation and abuse.

Women in peacekeeping

Security Council consideration. On 28 October [S/PV.7289], the Council considered the report of the Secretary-General on women and peace and security [S/2014/693] (see p. 1285). It had before it a concept note [S/2014/731], submitted by Argentina, on the debate topic “displaced women and girls: leaders and survivors”. During the debate the Council adopted presidential statement S/PRST/2014/21 (see p. 1286) urging parties to armed conflict to allow full and unhindered access by refugee and internally displaced women to humanitarian assistance; calling for the systematic collection, analysis and utilization of sex- and age-disaggregated data; and encouraging the review of existing implementation plans and formulation of new targets in time for the high-level review of the United Nations peacekeeping operations and special political missions in 2015.

Sexual violence in conflict

Security Council consideration. On 25 April [S/PV.7160], the Council considered the report of the Secretary-General on conflict-related sexual violence [S/2014/181] (see p. 1287). The Secretary-General said that more countries were building the technical capacity to prevent and redress sexual violence. The multidisciplinary and multisectoral approach of the Office of the Special Representative on Sexual Violence in Conflict was driving this progress. The Special Representative engaged in high-level advocacy to generate national ownership, leadership and responsibility. Another key element in political and peacekeeping missions had been the deployment of women protection advisers. Their expertise on human rights, gender analysis and peace and security was helping to mainstream the prevention of conflict-related sexual violence into peacekeeping and special political missions. The Secretary-General stated that it was imperative that UN actors and political leaders worked together to stop rights abuses before they happened. The renewed commitment of the United Nations to better meet the human rights responsibilities set by Member States through the “Rights up front” initiative was central in that regard.

Communication. By a 7 November letter [S/2014/796], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council the joint communiqué of South Sudan and the United Nations on the prevention of conflict-related sexual violence. The communiqué was agreed between the United Nations and the Government of South Sudan during the visit of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict, Zainab Hawa Bangura, to the country from 6 to 11 October.

Oversight activities

The Office of Internal Oversight Services reported in February [A/68/337 (Part II)] on its peacekeeping oversight activities in 2013. The Office issued 209 oversight reports related to peace operations and made 498 audit recommendations classified by five integrated components of internal control: control environment, risk assessment, control activities, information and communication, and monitoring activities. It completed 139 investigations which were classified into eight categories: procurement; management; inventory/assets; personnel; financial; programmatic, sexual harassment; and sexual exploitation and abuse.

Comprehensive review of peacekeeping

High-level Independent Panel on Peace Operations

On 31 October, the Secretary-General convened a High-level Independent Panel on Peace Operations to undertake a thorough review of United Nations peace operations today and the emerging needs of the future. The review would be another major external review of peace operations after the one undertaken in 2000 and led by Lahkdar Brahimi [YUN 2000, p. 83]. The panel, the first of such to examine both peacekeeping operations and special political missions, would work closely with the main UN Departments concerned, as well as with Member States and the UN system as a whole. Its recommendations to the Secretary-General would be available for consideration by the General Assembly at its 2015 General Debate. Jose Ramos-Horta (Timor-Leste) was appointed the chair of the panel.

Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations

As requested by the General Assembly in resolution 67/301 [YUN 2013, p. 65], the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations and its Working Group continued their comprehensive review of the question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects.

The Special Committee held its 2014 substantive session from 24 February to 21 March [A/68/19]. It considered proposals, recommendations and conclusions on guiding principles, definitions and implementation of mandates; restructuring of peacekeeping; safety and security of peacekeepers; conduct and discipline; strengthening operational capacity; strategies for complex peacekeeping operations; cooperation with troop-contributing countries; triangular cooperation between the Security Council, the Secretariat and troop- and police-contributing countries; cooperation with regional arrangements; enhancement of African peacekeeping capabilities; developing stronger UN field support arrangements; best practices and training; personnel; financial issues; and other matters.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 16 June [meeting 98], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/68/426/Add.1], adopted resolution 68/277 without vote [agenda item 53].

Comprehensive review of the whole question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 2006(XIX) of 18 February 1965 and all other relevant resolutions,

Recalling in particular its resolution 67/301 of 16 September 2013,

Affirming that the efforts of the United Nations in the peaceful settlement of disputes, including through its peacekeeping operations, are indispensable,

Convinced of the need for the United Nations to continue to improve its capabilities in the field of peacekeeping and to enhance the effective and efficient deployment of its peacekeeping operations,

Considering the contribution that all States Members of the United Nations make to peacekeeping,

Noting the widespread interest in contributing to the work of the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations expressed by Member States, in particular troop- and police-contributing countries,

Bearing in mind the continuous necessity of preserving the efficiency and strengthening the effectiveness of the work of the Special Committee,

1. Welcomes the report of the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations;

2. Endorses the proposals, recommendations and conclusions of the Special Committee contained in paragraphs 17 to 315 of its report;

3. Urges Member States, the Secretariat and relevant organs of the United Nations to take all steps necessary to implement the proposals, recommendations and conclusions of the Special Committee;

4. Reiterates that those Member States that become personnel contributors to United Nations peacekeeping operations in years to come or that participate in the future in the Special Committee for three consecutive years as observers shall, upon request in writing to the Chair of the Special Committee, become members at the following session of the Special Committee;

5. Decides that the Special Committee, in accordance with its mandate, shall continue its efforts for a comprehensive review of the whole question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects and shall review the implementation of its previous proposals and consider any new proposals so as to enhance the capacity of the United Nations to fulfil its responsibilities in this field;

6. Requests the Special Committee to submit a report on its work to the General Assembly at its sixty-ninth session;

7. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Comprehensive review of the whole question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects".

Report of Secretary-General. Pursuant to resolution 68/277 (see above) the Secretary-General submitted a December report [A/69/642] on key developments in UN peacekeeping since the previous report [YUN 2013, p. 65], and issues for consideration by the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations. The report included a detailed analysis of safety and security in peacekeeping missions. Annexed to the report were technical details on the use of unarmed, unmanned aircraft systems in MONUSCO. An addendum [A/69/642/Add.1] contained a supplemental matrix that reviewed the status of the recommendations contained in the report of the Special Committee on its 2014 substantive session.

The Secretary-General observed that if peacekeeping operations were to remain an effective tool for international peace and security, they had to keep pace with a changing world. To fulfil mandates, the safety and security of peacekeepers had to be ensured, above all in the area of protecting civilians, particularly women and children. DPKO and DFS would continue to advance the uniformed capability development agenda, including rapid deployment, and work with Member States to uphold standards of performance of all personnel serving in peacekeeping operations, and to ensure that missions had access to the same technologies available to many Member States. Governments should ensure that, once authorized, peacekeeping operations were provided with the military and police capabilities and financing needed to implement their mandates effectively. Host countries should cooperate fully with the missions deployed on their soil to ensure freedom of movement and to advance the critical reforms necessary for durable peace to take hold. The Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations should provide its views on peacekeeping policy so that peacekeeping operations could benefit from common direction and the strong support of Member States.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the Assembly decided that the item on the comprehensive review of the whole question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Communication. By a letter dated 14 November [S/2014/818], Iran transmitted to the Security Council a 28 October statement by the Permanent Representative of the Kingdom of Morocco on behalf of the Non-Aligned Movement regarding the item on the comprehensive review of the whole question of peacekeeping operations in all their aspects.

Operations in 2014

As at 31 December, there were 16 peacekeeping missions in operation—9 in Africa, 1 in the Americas, 1 in Asia, 2 in Europe and the Mediterranean and 3 in the Middle East.

Africa

The Security Council extended, by resolution 2152(2014) of 29 April (see p. 390), the mandate of the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) until 30 April 2015;

by resolution 2176(2014) of 15 September (see p. 262) and resolution 2190(2014) of 15 December (see p. 267), the mandate of the United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL) twice—to 31 December 2014 and 30 September 2015, respectively; by resolution 2162(2014) of 25 June (see p. 252), the mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI) until 30 June 2015; by resolution 2173(2014) of 27 August (see p. 306), the mandate of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID) until 30 June 2015; by resolution 2147(2014) of 28 March (see p. 193), the mandate of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO), including its Intervention Brigade, until 31 March 2015; by resolution 2155(2014) of 27 May (see p. 336) and resolution 2187(2014) of 25 November (see p. 343), the mandate of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan (UNMISS) twice—to 30 November 2014 and 30 May 2015, respectively; by resolution 2156(2014) of 29 May (see p. 323) and resolution 2179(2014) of 14 October (see p. 327), the mandate of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei (UNISFA) twice—to 15 October 2014 and 28 February 2015, respectively; by resolution 2164(2014) of 25 June (see p. 285), the mandate of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA) until 30 June 2015.

By resolution 2149(2014) of 10 April (see p. 220), the Council established the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA) and decided to transfer authority from the African-led International Support Mission to MINUSCA on 15 September 2014. MINUSCA was mandated to assist the transitional authorities in restoring peace and stability to the country.

Americas

The Security Council, by resolution 2180(2014) of 14 October (see p. 398), extended the mandate of the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH) until 15 October 2015.

Asia

The United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan (UNMOGIP), established in 1949, continued to monitor the ceasefire in Jammu and Kashmir. The International Security Assistance Force concluded its mandate at the end of 2014 (see p. 482).

Europe and the Mediterranean

The Security Council, by resolution 2135(2014) of 30 January (see p. 498) and resolution 2168(2014)

of 30 July (see p. 500), extended the mandate of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) twice—to 31 July 2014 and 31 January 2015, respectively. The United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK) remained in place. The Council, by resolution 2183(2014) of 11 November (see p. 487) renewed the authorization of the European Union Force-Althea in Bosnia and Herzegovina for a further 12 months.

Middle East

Three long-standing operations continued in the Middle East. The United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO) monitored ceasefires, supervised armistice agreements and assisted other peacekeeping operations in the region. The Security Council, by resolution 2163(2014) of 25 June (see p. 601) and resolution 2192(2014) of 18 December (see p. 604), renewed the mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) twice—to 31 December 2014 and 30 June 2015, respectively. It extended to 31 August 2015 the mandate of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) by resolution 2172(2014) of 26 August (see p. 572).

Financial and administrative aspects of peacekeeping operations

The General Assembly considered a number of issues related to financial and administrative aspects of UN peacekeeping operations, including the financial performance of UN peacekeeping operations; the support account for peacekeeping operations; funds for closed missions; financial reports and audited financial statements; management and financing of the United Nations Logistics Base (UNLB) at Brindisi, Italy; restructuring issues; the global field support strategy; personnel matters; and criminal accountability of UN staff and experts on mission.

Financing

The financial report on the United Nations peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014 was prepared, for the first time, in accordance with the International Public Sector Accounting Standards. Total expenses for UN peacekeeping operations from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014 [A/69/5 (Vol. II)] were $7,862.7 million. Total assessed contributions increased by 7.5 per cent ($542.0 million), from $7,257.9 million in the prior year to $7,799.9 million. The net increase was attributable to the ramp-up of MINUSMA; the expansion of MONUSCO, UNMISS and UNISFA; the decrease in the size of UNAMID and MINUSTAH; and the closure of UNMIT. Total unpaid assessments decreased by 17.7 per cent, from $835.6 as at 1 July 2013 to $687.6 million as at 30 June 2014. Available cash for active peacekeeping missions as at 30 June 2014 totalled $1,781.0 million, while liabilities amounted to $2,165.1 million.

Note of Secretary-General. On 21 August [A/C.5/68/26], in accordance with Assembly resolution 49/233 A [YUN 1994, p. 1338], the Secretary-General submitted to the Fifth (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee information on the approved resources for peacekeeping operations, UNLB at Brindisi, Italy, and the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, which amounted to $7,061,035,580.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the Assembly decided that the item on administrative and budgetary aspects of the financing of UN peacekeeping operations would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Peacekeeping support account

In February [A/68/742], the Secretary-General submitted the budget for the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, amounting to $306,494,700, excluding requirements for enterprise resource planning and information and systems security, in the amount of $20,054,700 and $821,500. It also provided for a total of 1,341 posts (taking into account the proposed conversion of 41 general temporary assistance positions to posts and the creation of 8 new posts) and 101 general temporary assistance positions.

In February, the Independent Audit Advisory Committee submitted its comments [A/68/773] on the proposed budget for OIOS under the support account for peacekeeping operations for 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015.

In May [A/68/861], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) provided its observations and recommendations on the Secretary-General's reports on the budget performance for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 69], financing for the period from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014 and proposed budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 [A/68/742] of the support account for peacekeeping operations.

On 30 June, the General Assembly, by decision 68/549 C, deferred consideration of further reports of the Secretary-General, ACABQ and Office of Internal Oversight Services on the administrative and budgetary aspects of the financing of the UN peacekeeping operations until the second part of its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/918] adopted resolution 68/283 without vote [agenda item 147].

Support account for peacekeeping operations

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 45/258 of 3 May 1991, 47/218 A of 23 December 1992, 48/226 A of 23 December 1993, 50/221 B of 7 June 1996, section I of its resolution 55/238 of 23 December 2000, its resolutions 55/271 of 14 June 2001, 56/241 of 24 December 2001, 56/293 of 27 June 2002, 57/318 of 18 June 2003, 58/298 of 18 June 2004, 59/301 of 22 June 2005, 60/268 of 30 June 2006, 61/279 of 29 June 2007, 62/250 of 20 June 2008, 63/287 of 30 June 2009, 64/271 of 24 June 2010, 65/290 of 30 June 2011, 66/265 of 21 June 2012 and 67/287 of 28 June 2013 and its other relevant resolutions, as well as its decisions 49/469 of 23 December 1994 and 50/473 of 23 December 1995,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 and on the budget for the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, the report of the Independent Audit Advisory Committee on the proposed budget of the Office of Internal Oversight Services under the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recognizing the importance of the United Nations being able to respond and deploy rapidly to a peacekeeping operation upon the adoption of a relevant resolution of the Security Council, within 30 days for traditional peacekeeping operations and 90 days for complex peacekeeping operations,

Recognizing also the need for adequate support during all phases of peacekeeping operations, including the liquidation and termination phases,

Mindful that the level of the support account should broadly correspond to the mandate, number, size and complexity of peacekeeping missions,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget for the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 and the report of the Independent Audit Advisory Committee on the proposed budget of the Office of Internal Oversight Services under the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015;

2. Reaffirms its role in carrying out a thorough analysis and approval of human and financial resources and policies with a view to ensuring the full, effective and efficient implementation of all mandated programmes and activities and the implementation of policies in this regard;

3. Also reaffirms that the Fifth Committee is the appropriate Main Committee of the General Assembly entrusted with responsibility for administrative and budgetary matters;

4. Further reaffirms rule 153 of its rules of procedure;

5. Reaffirms that the support account funds shall be used for the sole purpose of financing human resources and non-human resource requirements for backstopping and supporting peacekeeping operations at Headquarters, and that any changes in this limitation require the prior approval of the General Assembly;

6. Also reaffirms the need for adequate funding for the backstopping of peacekeeping operations, as well as the need for full justification for that funding in support account budget submissions;

7. Further reaffirms the need for effective and efficient administration and financial management of peacekeeping operations, and urges the Secretary-General to continue to identify measures to increase the productivity and efficiency of the support account;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012 and its other relevant resolutions;

9. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on

Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

10. Decides to maintain, for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, the funding mechanism for the support account used in the current period, from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014, as approved in paragraph 3 of its resolution 50/221 B;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

11. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Budget estimates for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

12. Approves the requirements for the support account in the amount of 326,047,300 United States dollars for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of 20,054,700 dollars for the Umoja enterprise resource planning project and 821,500 dollars for information and systems security, including 1,292 continuing posts and 38 new temporary posts, as well as the redeployment, reassignment and reclassification of posts, as set out in annex I to the present resolution, 105 continuing and 23 new general temporary assistance positions and 77 person-months, as set out in annex II, as well as related post and non-post requirements;

Financing of the support account for peacekeeping operations for the financial periods from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 and from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

13. Decides that the requirements for the support account for peacekeeping operations for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 shall be financed as follows:

(a) An amount of 11,692,300 dollars to be assessed in respect of the financial period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

(b) The amount of 1,323,200 dollars, comprising interest income of 451,700 dollars, other miscellaneous income of 141,300 dollars and cancellation of prior-period obligations of 732,700 dollars, taking into account prior-period adjustments of 2,500 dollars (decrease), to be applied to the resources required for the financial period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

(c) The amount of 838,800 dollars, representing the excess of the authorized level of the Peacekeeping Reserve Fund in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, to be applied to the resources required for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015;

(d) The balance of 335,577,600 dollars to be prorated among the budgets of the active peacekeeping operations for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015;

(e) The net estimated staff assessment income of 21,299,100 dollars, comprising the amount of 25,254,500 dollars for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 and the decrease of 3,955,400 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, to be offset against the balance referred to in subparagraph (d) above, to be prorated among the budgets of the individual active peacekeeping operations.

Funds for closed missions

In April [A/68/837], ACABQ recommended, subject to comments and observations provided in its report, that the Assembly take note of the report of the Secretary-General on the updated financial position of closed peacekeeping missions [YUN 2013, p. 78].

In December [A/69/659], the Secretary-General updated financial position of 25 closed peacekeeping missions as at 30 June 2014. The net cash surplus in the account of 20 closed missions available for credit to Member States as at that date amounted to $58,978,000. That amount did not include loans totalling $10,816,000 owed by two closed missions—the United Nations Support Mission in Haiti/United Nations Transition Mission in Haiti ($7,366,000) and the United Nations Mission in the Central African Republic ($3,450,000)—and another $36,000,000 owed by two active peacekeeping missions ($9,000,000 by MINURSO and $28,000,000 by UNMIK). Five of the 25 closed missions had cash deficits totalling $86,700,000, owing to outstanding payments of assessed contributions. The Secretary-General recommended that the General Assembly consider proposals to address the cash requirements of active peacekeeping operations, and approve the retention of the net cash balance of $59 million available in 20 closed peacekeeping operations if no new mechanism to address the cash requirements of active peacekeeping operations would be approved.

Accounts and auditing

At its resumed sixty-eight (2014) session, the Assembly considered the financial report and audited financial statements [A/68/5 (Vol. II)] for UN peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013; the Secretary-General's report [A/68/751] on the implementation of the recommendations of the Board of Auditors concerning UN peacekeeping operations for the financial period ended 30 June 2013; and ACABQ report [A/68/843] on the report of the Board of Auditors on the accounts of the UN peacekeeping operations and the Secretary-General's report on the implementation of the Board's recommendations for the financial period ended 30 June 2013.

On 30 June, the General Assembly, by decision 68/549 C, deferred consideration of further reports of the Secretary-General and ACABQ on closed peacekeeping missions until the second part of its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Reimbursement issues

Rates of reimbursement

The Fifth Committee, during its consideration of the agenda item on administrative and budgetary aspects of the financing of the UN peacekeeping operations [A/68/918], had before it, among other documents, the report of the Secretary-General on the results of the revised survey to establish the standard rate of reimbursement to troop-contributing countries, as approved by the Assembly resolution 67/261 [YUN 2013, p. 78] on the report of the Senior Advisory Group on rates of reimbursement to troop-contributing countries [A/68/813], and the related report of ACABQ [A/68/859].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/918] adopted resolution 68/281 without vote [agenda item 147].

Rates of reimbursement to troop-contributing countries

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 67/261 of 10 May 2013,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the results of the revised survey to establish the standard rate of reimbursement to troop-contributing countries, as approved by the General Assembly in its resolution 67/261 on the report of the Senior Advisory Group on rates of reimbursement to troop-contributing countries, and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions;
3. Expresses its appreciation to the sample countries for their active participation in the revised survey and to the Secretary-General for facilitating the collection of data;
4. Reaffirms its resolution 67/261, welcomes the results of the revised survey, and decides to establish a single rate of reimbursement to countries contributing contingent personnel to United Nations field operations in the amount of 1,332 United States dollars per person per month as from 1 July 2014, increasing to 1,365 dollars per person per month as from 1 July 2016 and increasing to 1,410 dollars per person per month as from 1 July 2017;
5. Requests the Secretary-General to make such payments as he authorizes for the premium payments from the accounts of the qualifying missions, and also requests the Secretary-General to report on such payments and on any implications for approved funding levels in the report on the budget performance of each peacekeeping operation.

Reimbursement for contingent-owned equipment

The Fifth Committee, during its consideration of the agenda item on administrative and budgetary

aspects of the financing of the UN peacekeeping operations [A/68/918], had before it the report [A/68/830] of the Secretary-General on the triennial review of the rates and standards for reimbursement to Member States for contingent-owned equipment, the related ACABQ report [A/68/867], and a 28 February letter [A/C.5/68/22] from the Chair of the 2014 Working Group on Contingent-Owned Equipment to the Chair of the Fifth Committee transmitting the report of the Working Group.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/918] adopted resolution 68/282 without vote [agenda item 147].

Triennial review of the rates and standards for reimbursement to Member States for contingent-owned equipment

The General Assembly,

Having considered the letter dated 28 February 2014 from the Chair of the 2014 Working Group on Contingent-Owned Equipment to the Chair of the Fifth Committee transmitting the report of the Working Group, the report of the Secretary-General on the triennial review of the rates and standards for reimbursement to Member States for contingent-owned equipment and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General and the report of the 2014 Working Group on Contingent-Owned Equipment;
2. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;
3. Requests the Secretary-General to include in the performance report of each peacekeeping operation any implications of costs for the rotation of aged contingent-owned equipment for approved funding levels.

Cooperation with troop- and police-contributing countries

The Special Committee [A/68/19] renewed its call on the Secretariat to consult with the troop-contributing countries in a timely manner when planning any change in military tasks, mission-specific rules of engagement, operational concepts or command and control structure or early peacebuilding tasks that would impact personnel, equipment, training and logistics requirements, so as to enable troop-contributing countries to contribute their advice during the planning process and to ensure that their personnel had the capacity to meet the new demands. It reiterated the necessity for troop- and police-contributing countries to be provided with comprehensive briefings by the Secretariat on a regular basis on the situation of each peacekeeping operation, and for the Secretariat to respond rapidly to requests for information on latest developments in operations, technical assessment missions and on urgent situations that affect their operations. The Special Committee recommended consulting with troop- and police-contributing countries in order to involve them early on and fully in all stages of operations, and recommended that guidelines for pre-deployment visits for military contributions and formed police units be improved. It called on the Secretariat to continue to improve its information-sharing and consultation processes with all Member States and requested the Secretariat to make available to potential contributing countries pre-deployment threat assessments, concepts of operations and rules of engagement for existing and new missions, in order to assist them before they present their pledges to those missions.

Management of peacekeeping assets

UN Logistics Base

The General Assembly, at its resumed sixty-eighth (2014) session, considered the budget performance report [A/68/575] of the United Nations Logistics Base (UNLB) at Brindisi, Italy, for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013. Expenditure totalled $68,622,400 gross ($62,828,000 net) against an appropriation of $68,627,000 gross ($62,771,100 net), resulting in an unencumbered balance of $4,600. The Secretary-General recommended that the Assembly decide on the treatment of the unencumbered balance of $4,600; and of other income/adjustments for the period ended 30 June 2013 amounting to $1,160,600 from interest income ($556,300), other/miscellaneous income ($352,300) and cancellation of prior-period obligations ($252,000).

The Assembly also considered the proposed UNLB budget, set out in a report of the Secretary-General [A/68/727], for 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, which amounted to $71,485,900 and provided for the deployment of 133 international staff and 292 national staff, including 6 temporary positions.

In May [A/68/782/Add.8], ACABQ recommended that the estimated budget requirement be reduced by $1,147,300, from $71,485,900 to $70,338,600. Accordingly, the Committee recommended that the General Assembly approve the amount of $70,338,600 for the maintenance of UNLB for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/918] adopted resolution 68/284 without vote [agenda item 147].

Financing of the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy

The General Assembly,

Recalling section XIV of its resolution 49/233 A of 23 December 1994 and its resolution 62/231 of 22 December 2007,

Recalling also its decision 50/500 of 17 September 1996 on the financing of the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/288 of 28 June 2013,

Recalling further its resolution 56/292 of 27 June 2002 concerning the establishment of the strategic deployment stocks and its subsequent resolutions on the status of the implementation of the strategic deployment stocks, the latest of which was resolution 67/288,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Logistics Base and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Reiterating the importance of establishing an accurate inventory of assets,

1. Notes with appreciation the facilities provided by the Government of Italy to the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, and by the Government of Spain to the secondary active telecommunications facility in Valencia, Spain;

2. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

4. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the United Nations Logistics Base for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

5. Approves the cost estimates for the United Nations Logistics Base amounting to 70,338,600 United States dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015;

Financing of the budget estimates

6. Decides that the requirements for the United Nations Logistics Base for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 shall be financed as follows:

(a) The unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 1,165,200 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, to be applied against the resources required for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015;

(b) The balance of 69,173,400 dollars, to be prorated among the budgets of the active peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015;

(c) The estimated staff assessment income of 6,179,900 dollars, comprising the amount of 6,241,400 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 and the decrease of 61,500 dollars in respect of the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, to be offset against the balance referred to in subparagraph (b) above, to be prorated among the budgets of the individual active peacekeeping operations;

7. Also decides to consider at its sixty-ninth session the question of the financing of the United Nations Logistics Base.

Restructuring issues

Global field support strategy

In accordance with Assembly resolution 64/269 [YUN 2010, p. 97], the Secretary-General, in December, submitted the fifth annual progress report [A/69/651] on the implementation of the global field support strategy. It proposed that a second shared services centre be established, to operate along with the Regional Service Centre at Entebbe, Uganda, and outlined a proposed approach and criteria for determining its location. The report also proposed a shift in the financing model for the Service Centre to support increased transparency, scalability, resource management and performance oversight. The supply chain management strategy and implementation plan were also outlined, including four priority projects to be implemented in the coming two to three years.

The Secretary-General requested that the Assembly approve the establishment of a special account in support of the Regional Service Centre at Entebbe and agree that a separate budget be presented for the Centre.

In May [A/68/782], ACABQ reported on its observations and recommendations on the 2013 report of the Secretary-General on progress in the implementation of the global field support strategy [YUN 2013, p. 79] and on other cross-cutting issues related to peacekeeping operations.

Personnel matters

Criminal accountability of UN staff and experts on mission

In response to Assembly resolution 68/105 [YUN 2013, p. 81], the Secretary-General submitted a July report [A/69/210] on the criminal accountability of UN officials and experts on mission, providing information received from Governments on the extent to which their laws established jurisdiction, in particular over serious crimes committed by their nationals while serving as UN officials or experts on mission; as well as information on cooperation among States and with the United Nations in the exchange of information and the facilitation of investigations and prosecution. The report also detailed Secretariat activities conducted in the implementation of the resolution, focusing on bringing credible allegations to the attention of the State against whose nationals such allegations were made, and measures to strengthen training on UN standards of conduct.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Sixth (Legal) Committee [A/69/495], adopted resolution 69/114 without vote [agenda item 75].

Criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 59/281 of 29 March 2005, in which it endorsed the recommendation of the Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations that the Secretary-General make available to the United Nations membership a comprehensive report on the issue of sexual exploitation and abuse in United Nations peacekeeping operations,

Recalling also that the Secretary-General, on 24 March 2005, transmitted to the President of the General Assembly a report of his Adviser concerning sexual exploitation and abuse by United Nations peacekeeping personnel,

Recalling further its resolution 59/300 of 22 June 2005, in which it endorsed the recommendation of the Special Committee that a group of legal experts be established to provide advice on the best way to proceed so as to ensure that the original intent of the Charter of the United Nations can be achieved, namely, that United Nations staff and experts on mission would never be effectively exempt from the consequences of criminal acts committed at their duty station, nor unjustly penalized, without due process,

Recognizing the valuable contribution of United Nations officials and experts on mission towards the fulfilment of the purposes and principles of the Charter,

Reaffirming the need to promote and ensure respect for the principles and rules of international law,

Reaffirming also that the present resolution is without prejudice to the privileges and immunities of United Nations officials and experts on mission and the United Nations under international law,

Reaffirming further the obligation of United Nations officials and experts on mission to respect the national laws of the host State, as well as the right of the host State to exercise, where applicable, its criminal jurisdiction, in accordance with the relevant rules of international law and agreements governing operations of United Nations missions,

Deeply concerned by reports of criminal conduct, and conscious that such conduct, if not investigated and, as appropriate, prosecuted, would create the negative impression that United Nations officials and experts on mission operate with impunity,

Reaffirming the need to ensure that all United Nations officials and experts on mission function in a manner that preserves the image, credibility, impartiality and integrity of the United Nations,

Emphasizing that crimes committed by such persons are unacceptable and have a detrimental effect on the fulfilment of the mandate of the United Nations, in particular with respect to the relations between the United Nations and the local population in the host country,

Conscious of the importance of protecting the rights of victims of criminal conduct, as well as of ensuring adequate protection for witnesses, and recalling the adoption of its resolution 62/214 of 21 December 2007 on the United Nations Comprehensive Strategy on Assistance and Support to Victims of Sexual Exploitation and Abuse by United Nations Staff and Related Personnel,

Emphasizing the need to enhance international cooperation to ensure the criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission,

Recalling its resolution 61/29 of 4 December 2006, by which it established the Ad Hoc Committee on criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission,

Having considered at its previous sessions the report of the Group of Legal Experts established by the Secretary-General pursuant to its resolution 59/300 and the reports of the Ad Hoc Committee, as well as the note by the Secretariat and the reports of the Secretary-General on criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission,

Recalling its resolutions 62/63 of 6 December 2007, 63/119 of 11 December 2008, 64/110 of 16 December 2009, 65/20 of 6 December 2010, 66/93 of 9 December 2011, 67/88 of 14 December 2012 and 68/105 of 16 December 2013,

Recalling also its decision that, bearing in mind its resolutions 62/63 and 63/119, the consideration of the report of the Group of Legal Experts, in particular its legal aspects, taking into account the views of Member States and the information contained in the note by the Secretariat, shall be continued during its seventieth session in the framework of a working group of the Sixth Committee,

Convinced of the continuing need for the United Nations and its Member States to urgently take strong and effective steps to ensure the criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission in the interest of justice,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Strongly urges States to take all appropriate measures to ensure that crimes by United Nations officials and experts on mission do not go unpunished and that the perpetrators of such crimes are brought to justice, without prejudice to the privileges and immunities of such persons and the United Nations under international law, and in accordance with international human rights standards, including due process;
3. Strongly urges all States to consider establishing, to the extent that they have not yet done so, jurisdiction over crimes, particularly those of a serious nature, as known in their existing national criminal laws, committed by their nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission, at least where the conduct as defined in the law of the State establishing jurisdiction also constitutes a crime under the laws of the host State, and, further, urges States and appropriate international organizations to provide technical and other appropriate assistance in developing such legal measures to States requesting such support;
4. Encourages all States to cooperate with each other and with the United Nations in the exchange of information and in facilitating the conduct of investigations and, as appropriate, the prosecution of United Nations officials and experts on mission who are alleged to have committed crimes of a serious nature, in accordance with their national law and applicable United Nations rules and regulations, fully respecting due process rights, as well as to consider strengthening the capacities of their national authorities to investigate and prosecute such crimes;
5. Also encourages all States:

(a) To afford each other assistance in connection with criminal investigations or criminal or extradition proceedings in respect of crimes of a serious nature committed by United Nations officials and experts on mission, including assistance in obtaining evidence at their disposal, in accordance with their national law or any treaties or other arrangements on extradition and mutual legal assistance that may exist between them;

(b) In accordance with their national law, to explore ways and means of facilitating the possible use of information and material obtained from the United Nations for purposes of criminal proceedings initiated in their territory for the prosecution of crimes of a serious nature committed by United Nations officials and experts on mission, bearing in mind due process considerations;

(c) In accordance with their national law, to provide effective protection for victims of, witnesses to and others who provide information in relation to crimes of a serious nature alleged to have been committed by United Nations officials and experts on mission and to facilitate access of victims to victim assistance programmes, without prejudice to the rights of the alleged offender, including those relating to due process;

(d) In accordance with their national law, to explore ways and means of responding adequately to requests by host States for support and assistance in order to enhance their capacity to conduct effective investigations in respect of crimes of a serious nature alleged to have been committed by United Nations officials and experts on mission;

6. Requests the Secretariat to continue to ensure that requests to Member States seeking personnel to serve as experts on mission make States aware of the expectation that persons who serve in that capacity should meet high standards in their conduct and behaviour and be aware that certain conduct may amount to a crime for which they may be held accountable;

7. Urges the Secretary-General to continue to take such other practical measures as are within his authority to strengthen existing training on United Nations standards of conduct, including through predeployment and in-mission induction training for United Nations officials and experts on mission;

8. Reiterates its decision that, bearing in mind its resolutions 62/63 and 63/119, the consideration of the report of the Group of Legal Experts, in particular its legal aspects, taking into account the views of Member States and also noting the inputs by the Secretariat, shall be continued during its seventieth session in the framework of a working group of the Sixth Committee, and, for that purpose, invites further comments from Member States on that report, including on the question of future action;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to bring credible allegations that reveal that a crime may have been committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission to the attention of the States against whose nationals such allegations are made and to request from those States an indication of the status of their efforts to investigate and, as appropriate, prosecute crimes of a serious nature, as well as the types of appropriate assistance that States may wish to receive from the Secretariat for the purposes of such investigations and prosecutions;

10. Urges States to provide to the Secretary-General at the appropriate time information on their handling of the credible allegations brought to their attention by the Secretary-General in accordance with paragraph 9 above;

11. Requests the United Nations, when its investigations into allegations suggest that crimes of a serious nature may have been committed by United Nations officials or experts on mission, to consider any appropriate measures that may facilitate the possible use of information and material for purposes of criminal proceedings initiated by States, bearing in mind due process considerations;

12. Encourages the United Nations, when allegations against United Nations officials or experts on mission are determined by a United Nations administrative investigation to be unfounded, to take appropriate measures, in the interests of the Organization, to restore the credibility and the reputation of such officials and experts on mission;

13. Urges the United Nations to continue cooperating with States exercising jurisdiction in order to provide them, within the framework of the relevant rules of international law and agreements governing activities of the United Nations, with information and material for purposes of criminal proceedings initiated by States;

14. Emphasizes that the United Nations, in accordance with the applicable rules of the Organization, should take no action that would retaliate against or intimidate United Nations officials and experts on mission who report allegations concerning crimes of a serious nature committed by United Nations officials and experts on mission;

15. Takes note with appreciation of the information provided by Governments in response to its resolutions

62/63, 63/119, 64/110, 65/20, 66/93, 67/88 and 68/105, and urges Governments to continue taking the measures necessary for the implementation of those resolutions, including their provisions addressing the establishment of jurisdiction over crimes, particularly those of a serious nature, as known in their existing national criminal laws, committed by their nationals while serving as United Nations officials or experts on mission, as well as cooperation among States, and to provide specific details thereon, in particular with respect to paragraph 3 of the present resolution, in the information provided to the Secretary-General;

16. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on the implementation of the present resolution, in particular with respect to paragraphs 3, 5, 8 and 9 above, as well as any practical problems in its implementation, on the basis of information received from Governments and the Secretariat;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to include in his report information on the number and types of credible allegations and any actions taken by the United Nations, including referrals to appropriate authorities for prosecution and the procedures therefor, and its Member States regarding crimes of a serious nature committed by United Nations officials and experts on mission, including information on efforts made to ensure the completeness of incident reporting;

18. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "Criminal accountability of United Nations officials and experts on mission".

Africa

In 2014, the United Nations continued to support countries in Africa in their efforts to achieve peace, security and stability through nine peacekeeping operations and five political and peacebuilding missions as well as by leading the coordination of international engagement.

The Security Council conducted a mission to Mali and urged the parties to the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement—the Mouvement national pour la libération de l’Azawad and the Haut conseil pour l’unité de l’Azawad and the Government of Mali—to engage as soon as possible in an inclusive dialogue, without preconditions but within a predefined timetable. In June, the eighth consultative meeting between the Security Council and the African Union (AU) Peace and Security Council was held in New York. Members reaffirmed that the maintenance of international peace and security was the primary responsibility of the Security Council, and that the mandate of the AU Peace and Security Council was to promote peace and security in Africa.

The Office of the Special Adviser on Africa continued its advocacy and coordination of activities for the New Partnership for Africa’s Development (NEPAD) jointly with the AU, and took stock of NEPAD achievements as well as the requirements to further advance the implementation of NEPAD programmes.

The United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa continued its efforts to counter the threat and impact of the Lord’s Resistance Army. The Office worked together with the Economic Community of Central African States to restore peace and State authority in the region.

In the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), the extension of State authority to areas liberated from the Mouvement du 23 mars (M23) control were important achievements that had improved the security situation in many areas. The lack of progress, however, in implementing the Nairobi declarations risked undermining those achievements. Of particular concern was the stalled implementation of the amnesty law and repatriation back to the DRC of former M23 fighters from their cantonment sites in Rwanda and Uganda. In the eastern DRC, the Allied Democratic Forces, Forces démocratiques pour la libération du Rwanda and the many Mayi-Mayi groups continued to pose a threat to the civilian population and the overall stability and development in that region.

The Group of Experts on the DRC noted that while progress had been made on traceability concerning minerals produced in the country, smuggling continued, as elements of the Congolese army and some armed groups remained involved in the minerals trade.

The mandate of the United Nations Office in Burundi (BNUB) came to an end in 2014, with the United Nations Electoral Observer Mission in Burundi continuing certain BNUB activities along with the UN country team and regional and international partners.

The Central African Republic (CAR) remained volatile and its people subject to high levels of violence from armed groups, heightened criminality, and intercommunity conflicts that were ethnically and religiously charged. The International Commission of Inquiry to investigate international human rights and humanitarian laws violations and abuses in the CAR by all the parties involved in the armed conflict since 1 January 2013 established that the members of the Armed Forces of the CAR under former President François Bozizé Yangouvonda, and the Séléka and the anti-balaka, were involved in gross human rights abuses, including rape and other crimes under both domestic law and the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court.

Security in the Sahel region continued to be precarious. The deterioration of the political and security situation in Libya, the political impasse and persisting security challenges in Mali, the increasing number of terrorist attacks throughout the region—notably those carried out by Boko Haram in Nigeria—and incidents of kidnappings for ransom had negative consequences for civilians and local economies.

In Libya, the General National Congress adopted a road map on future transitional arrangements. In June, elections were held for the House of Representatives, a new legislative body. The most serious armed conflict in Libya since 2011 broke out in Tripoli, Benghazi and elsewhere in the country in July, and the country appeared to be descending into a period of instability. The Libyan House of Representatives called for an unconditional ceasefire, to be supervised by the United Nations. In Mali, hostilities resumed between the Government and the Mouvement national de libération de l’Azawad, the Haut Conseil pour l’unité de l’Azawad and the Mouvement arabe de l’Azawad. Four rounds of negotiations ended with an understanding to resume negotiations in January 2015. In June, the Security Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali for an additional year, authorizing it to take all necessary means to carry out its mandate and expand its presence in the North of Mali beyond key population centres.

In Nigeria, there was growing evidence that Boko Haram was better equipped and armed and had the potential to destabilize areas around Lake Chad, reportedly benefiting from the porous borders of Nigeria and Cameroon as well as Chad and the Niger to smuggle in arms and mount attacks against public institutions and the civilian population.

Guinea-Bissau was moving from fragility to stability. The appointment by the National Assembly of an Inspector-General for the Fight against Corruption and the reactivation of the ad hoc Commission for Constitutional Review indicated a return to constitutional order.

In three of the four States members of the Mano River Union—Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone—the outbreak of the Ebola virus disease resulted in an economic slowdown and humanitarian challenges within the countries and had implications for the rest of West Africa.

In Côte d'Ivoire, political dialogue, which had stalled since January, resumed in May, after which the Government committed to a series of confidence-building measures, including the release of additional associates of former President Laurent Gbagbo, welcoming the return of those in self-imposed exile, unfreezing their bank accounts and returning illegally occupied properties. In June, the Security Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire until 30 June 2015. The Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire noted that militias in the country remained highly operational, and, in particular, activities and connected armed attacks in the country continued to be linked to elements of the pro-Gbagbo radical wing, which persevered in its efforts to recruit and finance combatants.

The Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission made further progress in the demarcation of the land boundary between the two countries. The parties agreed on 1,947 km of the estimated 2,100 km land boundary between them. In Liberia, Senate elections got postponed on account of the Ebola virus disease outbreak, and were eventually held in December in a free, fair, transparent and safe manner, but with a low voter turnout. National reconciliation efforts, however, were not given the necessary priority, while concerns about corruption, impunity, nepotism and cronyism went largely unheeded. In December, the Security Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Mission in Liberia until 30 September 2015.

Some progress was made towards resolving the remaining issues between the Sudan and South Sudan. A comprehensive political settlement of the crisis in the Darfur region of the Sudan had yet to be reached, however, and fighting continued between the Government and armed groups. In January, the President of the Sudan announced that the Government planned to initiate an all-inclusive national dialogue. In May, South Sudan resumed participation in the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, and in November, the Presidents of the Sudan and South Sudan agreed to resume meetings of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee. The Secretary-General called on the AU Commission to report on its investigation into the 2013 assassination of the Ngok Dinka Paramount Chief, which remained a source a tension between the two countries.

The armed conflict in South Sudan continued in 2014, despite efforts to reach a political settlement to the crisis. On 23 January, the Government and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement/Army (SPLM/A) in Opposition signed agreements on the cessation of hostilities and on the status of detainees. On 30 January, the Government signed a cessation of hostilities agreement with the South Sudan Democratic Movement/Army Cobra Faction. In May, the President outlined a road map for the peace process. In November, the Government and SPLM/A in Opposition signed the implementation matrix for the 23 January agreement.

Despite progress towards key political milestones in Somalia, the security situation remained volatile. The Interim Juba Administration was formally inaugurated in January, and a revised version of Vision 2016, the Federal Government's policy for the political transformation of Somalia, was issued in June. The African Union Mission in Somalia and the Somali National Army launched joint operations that resulted in significant gains within territory controlled by Al-Shabaab. Security at Mogadishu International Airport was bolstered with the deployment of the United Nations Guard Unit. On 1 September, the leader of Al-Shabaab was killed in a missile strike.

The ceasefire in Western Sahara between Morocco and the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguía el-Hamra y de Río de Oro (Frente Polisario) continued to hold, but there was no progress towards a resolution of the status of the disputed territory. The Secretary-General's Personal Envoy for Western Sahara engaged in consultations with the parties and neighbouring States to gauge their flexibility in developing a compromise solution.

Promotion of peace in Africa

In 2014, the United Nations continued to identify and address the causes of conflict in Africa and promote sustainable peace and development on the continent. Nigeria chaired the Ad Hoc Working Group on Conflict Prevention and Resolution in Africa, which focused on enhancing its role, improving cooperation between the United Nations Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council, and the promotion of and respect for the rule of law and justice in the prevention and resolution of conflicts in Africa. The Security Council conducted a mission to Mali from 31 January to 3 February.

The United Nations continued its cooperation with the AU, including through the eighth consultative meeting between the Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council in June.

The Office of the Special Adviser on Africa, headed by Maged Abdelfatah Abdelaziz (Egypt), promoted international support for Africa's development and security, including through the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD), and continued to undertake advocacy and promote public information for NEPAD jointly with the AU.

Conflict prevention and resolution

Working Group. The Ad Hoc Working Group on Conflict Prevention and Resolution in Africa, a subsidiary organ of the Security Council and established in 2002 [YUN 2002, p. 93], continued to monitor the implementation of Security Council recommendations related to conflict prevention and resolution on the continent. Nigeria, in its capacity as Chair, submitted a December report [S/2014/937] on the Group's 2014 activities. In its May meeting, the Group discussed, among other issues, preparations for the eighth annual joint consultative meeting between the United Nations Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council.

Communication. In a 4 December letter [S/2014/869] to the Secretary-General, Chad transmitted a concept note for the high-level open debate of the Security Council on threats to international peace and security, terrorism and cross-border crime (see below).

Security Council consideration (December). The Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs briefed the Security Council at its meeting on 19 December [S/PV.7351] on the prevention of conflict in Africa, in particular the fight against terrorism. In the area of capacity-building, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) was implementing a vast array of projects in Africa to strengthen legal regimes, criminal justice cooperation and border controls, such as the Regional Judicial Platform for cooperation in the Sahel, the West Africa Coast Initiative to create transnational organized crime units, and the Global Firearms Programme. The United Nations Centre for Counter-Terrorism was supporting Southern and Central African countries to develop regional counter-terrorism strategies to strengthen their ability to jointly combat terrorism and transnational organized crime.

Cooperation with the African Union

Annual consultative meeting. The Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council held their eighth consultative meeting (New York, 6 June). In a joint communiqué adopted at the meeting and transmitted to the President of the Security Council on 6 June [S/2014/400], members reaffirmed the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security, and that the mandate of the AU Peace and Security Council was to promote peace and security in Africa, as provided in the AU Protocol establishing the Peace and Security Council. The meeting discussed the situation in the Central African Republic (CAR); South Sudan; the Great Lakes Region and the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC); Mali; Somalia; the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID); cooperation in combating terrorism in Africa; and strengthening the AU-UN partnership.

Communication. In an 8 December letter [S/2014/879] to the Secretary-General, Chad transmitted a concept note for the high-level open debate of the Security Council on Peace operations: the partnership between the United Nations and the AU and its evolution (see below).

Security Council consideration (December). On 16 December [S/PV.7343], the Security Council met to discuss the peace partnership and evolution of peace operations between the United Nations and the African Union. The Secretary-General, addressing the meeting, said that the Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council were working together more closely, and there was increased support for African-led peace operations and their transition into UN peacekeeping operations, as seen in Mali and the CAR. He further said that through the Regional Coordination Mechanism for Africa, the UN secretariat and the AU Commission had undertaken joint planning and implementation of programmes. The UN also worked closely with the AU and with sub-regional organizations in the Sudan and South Sudan. In the Great Lakes region, strong cooperation among the UN, the AU, the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region (ICGLR) and the Southern African Development Community (SADC) had been vital to the progress that had been made under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the DRC and the Region. In Burkina Faso, there was close cooperation between the UN, the AU and the Economic Community of West African States in the immediate aftermath of the uprising that led to the departure of former President Blaise Compaoré (see p. 241).

The Secretary-General noted that increasingly peacekeeping involved diverse actors and even parallel missions. In the CAR, for example, the joint efforts of the African-led International Support Mission in the CAR (MISCA), the French Operation Sangaris, the European Union operation and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the CAR (MINUSCA) had contributed to a significant improvement in the security situation, especially in the capital, Bangui. He said there were significant challenges to ensure the effective functioning of the collective security system established by the UN Charter, such as building stronger political partnerships anchored in a strategic vision; a clear, agreed role for the AU and subregional organizations; cooperation between the United Nations, regional organizations and other partners to enhance joint logistical capabilities; and finding creative ways to mobilize the international community to finance African capability.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 16 June [meeting 98], the General Assembly adopted resolution 68/278 [draft: A/68/L.43/Rev.1 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 63 (b)].

Implementation of the recommendations contained in the report of the Secretary-General on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa

The General Assembly,

Recalling the report of the Open-ended Ad Hoc Working Group on the Causes of Conflict and the Promotion of Durable Peace and Sustainable Development in Africa, its resolution 53/92 of 7 December 1998 and subsequent annual resolutions, including resolutions 60/223 of 23 December 2005, 61/230 of 22 December 2006, 62/275 of 11 September 2008, 63/304 of 23 July 2009, 64/252 of 8 February 2010, 65/278 of 13 June 2011, 66/287 of 23 July 2012 and 67/293 of 24 July 2013, as well as its resolutions 62/179 of 19 December 2007, 63/267 of 31 March 2009, 64/258 of 16 March 2010, 65/284 of 22 June 2011, 66/286 of 23 July 2012 and 67/294 of 15 August 2013 on the New Partnership for Africa's Development, and 59/213 of 20 December 2004, 63/310 of 14 September 2009, 65/274 of 18 April 2011 and 67/302 of 16 September 2013 on cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union,

Recalling also, in this context, Security Council resolutions 1809(2008) of 16 April 2008 on peace and security in Africa, 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, 1366(2001) of 30 August 2001 on the role of the Council in the prevention of armed conflicts, 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011 and 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 on children and armed conflict, 1625(2005) of 14 September 2005 on strengthening the effectiveness of the role of the Council in conflict prevention, particularly in Africa, and 1631(2005) of 17 October 2005 and 2033(2012) of 12 January 2012 on cooperation between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations in maintaining international peace and security,

Recalling further the 2005 World Summit Outcome, through which world leaders reaffirmed their commitment to addressing the special needs of Africa, and its resolution 60/265 of 30 June 2006,

Reaffirming the political declaration on Africa's development needs adopted at the high-level meeting on 22 September 2008,

Recalling the high-level plenary meeting of the General Assembly on the Millennium Development Goals and its outcome document, and recognizing that development, peace, security and human rights are closely interlinked and mutually reinforcing,

Recalling also the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development, held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 20 to 22 June 2012, and its outcome document entitled "The future we want",

Recalling further its resolution 66/293 of 17 September 2012 establishing a monitoring mechanism to review commitments made towards Africa's development, and looking forward to the first biennial report to be submitted by the Secretary-General at the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly,

Reaffirming the political declaration on the peaceful resolution of conflicts in Africa, adopted at the high-level meeting of the General Assembly held on 25 April 2013,

Recalling the special event to follow up efforts made towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals, convened by the President of the General Assembly on 25 September 2013, and its outcome document,

Stressing that the responsibility for peace and security in Africa, including the capacity to address the root causes of conflict and to resolve conflicts in a peaceful manner, lies primarily with African countries, while recognizing the need for the provision of support by the international community and the United Nations, taking into account the responsibilities of the Organization in this regard according to the Charter of the United Nations,

Recognizing, in particular, the importance of strengthening the capacity of the African Union and subregional organizations to address the causes of conflict in Africa,

Noting that, despite the positive trends and advances in obtaining durable peace in Africa, the conditions required for sustainable development have yet to be consolidated throughout the continent and that there is therefore an urgent need to continue developing African human and institutional capacities, particularly in countries emerging from conflict,

Expressing concern, in this context, about the resurgence of coups d'état in a few African countries and their negative impact on the consolidation of peace and development,

Welcoming the continuing efforts of the African Union and subregional organizations to settle conflicts and promote human rights, democracy, the rule of law and constitutional order in Africa,

Reaffirming the commitment to ensure that there shall be no tolerance for impunity for genocide, war crimes and crimes against humanity or for violations of international humanitarian law and gross violations of human rights law, and that such violations shall be properly investigated and appropriately sanctioned, including by bringing the perpetrators of any crimes to justice, through national mechanisms or, where appropriate, regional or international mechanisms, in accordance with international law, and for that purpose encouraging States to strengthen national judicial systems and institutions,

Reaffirming also the need to strengthen the synergy between Africa's economic and social development programmes and its peace and security agenda,

Underlining the importance of enhancing national and regional initiatives, with international support, to address the negative implications of the illegal exploitation of natural resources in all its aspects for peace, security and development in Africa, and condemning the illicit trade in and proliferation of arms, especially small arms and light weapons,

Acknowledging that the achievement of durable peace and sustainable development in countries in conflict and post-conflict situations requires that national Governments and international partners continue to develop coordinated approaches tailored to the peacebuilding needs and challenges faced by those countries,

Reaffirming, in this regard, the importance of the Peacebuilding Commission as a dedicated mechanism to address, within its existing mandate and in an integrated manner, the special needs of countries emerging from conflict towards recovery, reintegration and reconstruction and to assist them in laying the foundation for peace and sustainable development, taking into consideration national priorities and the principle of national ownership,

Encouraging the United Nations system, the African Union and subregional organizations to enhance their interaction with civil society, academia and research institutions on issues relevant to the promotion of peace, security and sustainable development in Africa, and welcoming the ongoing efforts in this regard, including by the Office of the Special Adviser on Africa,

Welcoming the efforts of the United Nations Office to the African Union to enhance the partnership between the United Nations and the African Union, particularly in the areas of peace, security and political and humanitarian affairs, and reaffirming the need to ensure coordination and increase cost-effectiveness among relevant entities of the United Nations system involved in the implementation of the 10-year capacity-building programme, in particular the Economic Commission for Africa and the United Nations Office to the African Union,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the recommendations contained in his report on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa;

2. Welcomes the progress made by African countries, the African Union and subregional organizations in conflict prevention, peacemaking, peacekeeping, peacebuilding and development, calls for intensified efforts and a coordinated approach among national Governments, the African Union, subregional organizations, the United Nations system and relevant partners in addressing those challenges, with a view to achieving further progress towards the goal of a conflict-free Africa, and in this regard recognizes the important role played by civil society organizations, including women's organizations;

3. Also welcomes the commitment of the African leaders to Africa's political, social and economic integration agenda and to the ideal of pan-Africanism and African renaissance, as reaffirmed in the solemn declaration adopted on 26 May 2013 on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the Organization of African Unity/African Union;

4. Further welcomes the ongoing efforts of the African Union and subregional organizations to strengthen their peacekeeping capacity and to take the lead in peacekeeping operations on the continent, in accordance with Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations and in close coordination with the United Nations, through the Peace and Security Council of the African Union, as well as the ongoing efforts to develop a continental early warning system, operationalize the African Standby Force, establish the African capacity for immediate response to crises and enhance mediation capacity and preventive diplomacy, including through the Panel of the Wise;

5. Calls upon the United Nations system and Member States to support the peace consolidation mechanisms and processes, including the Panel of the Wise, the African Union Post-Conflict Reconstruction and Development Framework and the continental early warning system, including its sub-regional components, as well as the operationalization of the African Standby Force;

6. Calls upon Member States to assist post-conflict countries, at their request, in achieving a smooth transition from relief to development and to support relevant United Nations bodies, including the Peacebuilding Commission;

7. Calls upon the United Nations system, the international community and all partners to support the efforts of African countries to promote political, social and economic inclusion;

8. Stresses the importance of creating an environment conducive to national reconciliation and social and economic recovery in countries emerging from conflict;

9. Invites the United Nations and the donor community to increase efforts to support ongoing regional efforts to build African mediation and negotiation capacity;

10. Calls upon the United Nations system and Member States to support the African Union in its effort to effectively integrate training in international humanitarian law and international human rights law, with particular emphasis on the rights of women and children, into the training of civilian and military personnel of national standby contingents at both the operational and tactical levels, as set out in article 13 of the Protocol Relating to the Establishment of the Peace and Security Council of the African Union;

11. Recognizes that international and regional efforts to prevent conflict and consolidate peace in Africa should be channelled towards the sustainable development of Africa and the human and institutional capacity-building of African countries and organizations, particularly in priority areas identified at the continental level;

12. Welcomes, in this regard, the joint visit of the Secretary-General and the President of the World Bank to the countries of the Great Lakes region of Africa from 22 to 24 May 2013 and the financial pledge announced by the World Bank during the visit in support of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the region, as well as the joint visit of the Secretary-General, the Chairperson of the African Union Commission, the President of the World Bank, the President of the African Development Bank and the European Union Commissioner for Development to the Sahel region from 4 to 7 November 2013, during which financial pledges were made to support the implementation of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel, and calls for the fulfilment of all the pledges made;

13. Recalls the signing of the declaration on enhancing cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union in Addis Ababa on 16 November 2006 and the ongoing efforts in this regard, notes with appreciation the report of the Secretary-General on the review of the 10-year capacity-building programme for the African Union, underlines the importance of accelerating the implementation of the programme, urges all stakeholders to support the full implementation of the 10-year capacity-building programme in all its aspects, in particular the operationalization of the African Standby Force, and requests the Secretary-General to report on the progress made in this regard;

14. Stresses the critical importance of a regional approach to conflict prevention, in particular with respect to cross-border issues such as transnational organized crime, disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration programmes, the prevention of illegal exploitation of natural resources and trafficking in high-value commodities and the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects, and emphasizes in this regard the central role of the African Union and subregional organizations in addressing such issues;

15. Notes with concern that violence against women and children, including sexual violence, continues and may increase even as armed conflicts draw to an end, urges further progress in the implementation of policies and guidelines relating to the protection of and assistance to women and children in conflict and post-conflict situations in Africa, including more systematic monitoring and reporting, notes the adoption by the General Assembly and the Security Council of relevant resolutions, and encourages the entities that compose United Nations Action against Sexual Violence in Conflict, as well as other relevant parts of the United Nations system, to assist the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict in the implementation of her mandate, including in Africa;

16. Also notes with concern the tragic plight of children in conflict situations in Africa, in particular the phenomenon of child soldiers, as well as other violations against children, stresses the need for the protection of children in armed conflicts and for ensuring that the protection and rights of children in armed conflicts are integrated into all peace processes, also stresses the need for post-conflict counselling, rehabilitation and education, with due regard for the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and the Security Council, and encourages the relevant parts of the United Nations system to assist in the implementation of the mandate of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, including in Africa;

17. Stresses the importance of addressing the socioeconomic dimension of youth unemployment as well as facilitating the enhanced participation of youth in decision-making processes, with a view to addressing social, political and economic challenges;

18. Calls for the enhancement of the role of women in conflict prevention, conflict resolution, peacekeeping and post-conflict peacebuilding, consistent with relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 1325(2000) and 1820(2008) on women and peace and security, and calls upon Member States in this context to support the work of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), established by the General Assembly in its resolution 64/289 of 2 July 2010;

19. Welcomes the ongoing efforts of the African Union to ensure the protection of the rights of women in conflict and post-conflict situations, recalls in this regard the adoption and entry into force of the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights on the Rights of Women in Africa and the Solemn Declaration on Gender Equality in Africa, the African Union Gender Policy and the Southern African Development Community Protocol on Gender and Development, as well as the Framework for Cooperation on Preventing and Responding to Sexual Violence in Conflict and Post-Conflict Situations in Africa signed by the African Union Commission and the United Nations, stresses the significance of those instruments for all countries in Africa for strengthening the role of women in peace and conflict prevention on the continent, and strongly urges the United Nations and all relevant parties to redouble their efforts and support in this regard;

20. Takes note of the African Union Convention for the Protection and Assistance of Internally Displaced Persons in Africa, which entered into force on 6 December 2012, and the Kampala Declaration on Refugees, Returnees and Internally Displaced Persons in Africa, adopted on 23 October 2009;

21. Calls for the safeguarding of the principle of refugee protection in Africa and the resolution of the plight of refugees, including through support for efforts aimed at addressing the causes of refugee movement and bringing about the voluntary, dignified, safe and sustainable return and reintegration of those populations, and calls upon the international community, including Member States, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and other relevant United Nations organizations, within their respective mandates, to take concrete action to meet the protection and assistance needs of refugees, returnees and displaced persons and to contribute generously to projects and programmes aimed at alleviating their plight, facilitating durable solutions for refugees and displaced persons and supporting vulnerable local host communities;

22. Recognizes the important contribution of the African Peer Review Mechanism since its inception in improving governance and supporting socioeconomic development in African countries, and recalls in this regard the high-level panel discussion held on 21 October 2013 on Africa's innovation in governance through 10 years of the African Peer Review Mechanism, organized during the sixty-eighth session of the General Assembly to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the Mechanism;

23. Welcomes African-led initiatives to strengthen political, economic and corporate governance, such as the African Charter on Democracy, Elections and Governance and the African Peer Review Mechanism, encourages more African countries to participate in this process, and calls upon the United Nations system and Member States to assist African countries and regional and subregional organizations, upon their request, in their ongoing efforts to promote democracy, constitutional order and the rule of law, to enhance good governance and to continue to fight against impunity, as well as in the holding of free, fair, inclusive and transparent elections;

24. Recognizes the role of the Peacebuilding Commission in ensuring that national ownership of the peacebuilding process in countries emerging from conflict is observed and that nationally identified priorities are at the core of international and regional efforts in post-conflict peacebuilding in the countries under consideration, notes the important steps taken by the Commission in engaging with Burundi, the Central African Republic, Guinea-Bissau and Sierra Leone, through integrated peacebuilding strategies, and with Guinea and Liberia, through statements of mutual commitments for peacebuilding, and calls for sustained regional and international commitment to the implementation of those strategies and mutual commitments;

25. Stresses the importance of effectively addressing the challenges that continue to hamper the achievement of peace, stability and sustainable development on the continent, and encourages the United Nations system and Member States to assist African countries in effectively addressing these challenges;

26. Calls upon the United Nations system, and invites Member States, to assist African countries emerging from conflict, upon their request as appropriate, in their efforts to build national capacities, including through national security sector reform strategies, the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of ex-combatants, the provision for the safe return of internally displaced persons and refugees, the launch of income-generation activities, particularly for youth and women, and the delivery of basic public services;

27. Takes note of the African Union policy framework on security sector reform adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the African Union at its summit in January 2013, welcomes the support rendered by the United Nations and development partners in the formulation of the policy framework, and calls upon the international community, including the United Nations system, to continue to support the efforts towards its implementation;

28. Urges continued support for measures to address the challenges of poverty eradication and hunger, job creation and sustainable development in Africa, including, as appropriate, debt relief, improved market access, support for the private sector and entrepreneurship, fulfilment of commitments on official development assistance and increased flows of foreign direct investment and transfer of technology on mutually agreed terms;

29. Recognizes the need for African countries to make continued efforts to create enabling environments for inclusive growth in support of sustainable development and for the international community to make continued efforts to increase the flow of new and additional resources for financing for development from all sources, public and private, domestic and foreign, to support those development efforts by African countries, and welcomes the various important initiatives established between African countries and their development partners in this regard;

30. Calls upon the United Nations system and Member States, bilateral and multilateral partners and new partners, to deliver expeditiously on commitments and to ensure the full and speedy implementation of the provisions of the political declaration on Africa's development needs, as well as the implementation of the New Partnership for Africa's Development;

31. Stresses the need to promote socioeconomic development on the continent, and in this context takes note of the Declaration on Employment and Poverty Alleviation in Africa, adopted by the African Union in 2004, as well as the recommendations of the Millennium Development Goals Africa Steering Group, which were endorsed by the African Union in July 2008 and which cover such critical areas as agriculture and food security, education, health, infrastructure and trade facilitation and the national statistical system;

32. Encourages African Governments to strengthen structures and policies in order to create an environment conducive to the promotion of inclusive economic growth and to attracting foreign direct investment by, inter alia, achieving a transparent, stable and predictable investment climate, with proper contract enforcement and respect for property rights, and to promote socioeconomic development and social justice, calls upon African Member States and regional and subregional organizations to assist the African countries concerned, at their request, by enhancing their capacity to devise and improve their national natural resources and public revenue management structures, and in this regard invites the international community to assist in that process by providing adequate financial and technical assistance and by renewing its commitment to efforts aimed at combating the illegal exploitation of the natural resources of those countries, in conformity with international law;

33. Recalls relevant resolutions on the strengthening of cooperation and communication between the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations or arrangements, and encourages coordination and cooperation between the United Nations system and regional and subregional organizations and regional economic communities in advocacy and in the mobilization of the support of the international community for African countries and towards the priorities of their continental and regional institutions;

34. Notes the completion of the review of the implementation of the recommendations contained in the 1998 report of the Secretary-General, and requests the Secretary-General to develop, in consultation with relevant partners, policy proposals on issues identified in his report, including enhancing cooperation among the United Nations, the African Union and subregional organizations, particularly in conflict prevention and resolution, peacekeeping, post-conflict peacebuilding and recovery, and promoting socioeconomic development, good governance, the rule of law and human rights;

35. Takes note of the recommendations presented by the Secretary-General to the General Assembly at its sixty-seventh session on possible ways to strengthen the interdepartmental task force on African affairs, including through enhancing joint advocacy for international support to Africa, assisting in the mobilization of support for the implementation of relevant programmes and initiatives in Africa and championing approaches and solutions that take into account the enabling environment that peace and security provide for development, and reaffirms the need to ensure further coherence and an integrated approach for United Nations support to Africa, including in following up on the implementation of all global summit and conference outcomes related to Africa;

36. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to monitor and report to the General Assembly on an annual basis on persistent and emerging challenges to the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa, as well as on the approach and support of the United Nations system.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the General Assembly decided that the item on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Causes of conflict and promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa

In response to General Assembly resolution 68/278 (see p. 177), the Secretary-General, in July [A/69/162-S/2014/542], submitted a report on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa. The report highlighted major developments in peace, security and development in Africa during the previous year and examined the implementation by the UN system of priority areas identified in the 2013 review report [YUN 2013, p. 95], including an in-depth analysis of the transformative agenda of the AU to achieve a conflict-free Africa, as outlined in the Organization of African Unity/AU Fiftieth Anniversary Solemn Declaration and Agenda 2063. African countries had made progress in reforming their economies, boosting economic growth, improving governance and respect for the rule of law, and managing and resolving conflicts. In Madagascar, Guinea-Bissau and Egypt, transition processes concluded with the successful conduct of elections, the restoration of constitutional order and the reinstatement of those countries into AU activities. Progress was also made in ending the rebellion by the Mouvement du 23 mars (M23) in the DRC and in implementing the regional cooperation initiative for the elimination of the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA).

In the CAR, Libya, Mali, Nigeria, Somalia and South Sudan, however, renewed hostilities and threats from growing acts of terrorism, violent extremism and transnational organized crime challenged peace and development.

The Secretary-General recommended that the United Nations put in place a five-year plan to support the efforts of the AU and the regional economic communities towards achieving a conflict-free Africa; strengthen capacity development for the AU and regional economic communities in peace, security, development, human rights and governance through the Ten-Year Capacity-Building Programme for the AU and the Regional Coordination Mechanism for Africa; continue to support African countries, the AU and the regional economic communities in strengthening capacities for early warning, conflict analysis, dialogue and mediation; and work closely with the AU and the regional economic communities in supporting the development and implementation of regional counter-terrorism action plans that were people-centred. Given the impact of illicit financial flows on Africa's governance and structural transformation agendas, African countries, the AU and the regional economic communities, in cooperation with the international community, should also strengthen efforts to confront illicit financial flows, including through combating corruption in public and corporate sectors and preventing tax evasion.

Office of the Special Adviser on Africa

In 2014, the Office of the Special Adviser on Africa (OSAA), established by General Assembly resolution 57/7 [YUN 2002, p. 910], continued to enhance international support for Africa's development and security through its advocacy and analytical work. The Office strengthened its support for Africa's development and, in particular, the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD) in mobilizing international support and raising awareness through the mobilization of resources and global advocacy. The Office also supported the efforts of African countries in their consultations on the post-2015 development agenda (see p. 960).

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on NEPAD: progress in implementation and international support, to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Central Africa and Great Lakes region

UN Office for Central Africa

The United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa (UNOCA) was established in 2011 [YUN 2011, p. 97] with a mandate to coordinate the work of the UN system in the Central Africa subregion on issues of peace and security, including peacebuilding and conflict prevention. In 2014 (see below), the Security Council extended the mandate of UNOCA until 31 August 2015.

Communications. On 10 February [S/2014/103], the Secretary-General recommended to the Security Council an extension of the mandate of UNOCA for a period of 18 months. The Council noted the Secretary-General's proposal on 13 February [S/2014/104].

In a 14 July letter [S/2014/502] to the Security Council President, the Secretary-General informed of his intention to appoint Said Djinnit (Algeria) as his Special Envoy to the Great Lakes Region. The Council took note of his intention on 16 July [S/2014/503].

In a 26 March letter [S/2014/225] to the Secretary-General, Angola, in its capacity as Chair of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, forwarded the final communiqué adopted at the summit meeting held in Luanda on 25 March, with the request that it be circulated as a document of the Security Council.

Report of Secretary-General (May). The Secretary-General, pursuant to Security Council presidential statement S/PRST/2013/18 [YUN 2013, p. 103], submitted a May report [S/2014/319] on the activities of UNOCA and progress in the implementation of the UN regional strategy to address the threat and impact of the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA).

The Central African subregion continued to be dominated by the deterioration of the overall situation in the CAR and its growing regional impact, the expansion of the activities of Boko Haram beyond the territory of Nigeria, the threat of terrorism and maritime insecurity in the Gulf of Guinea, the illegal wildlife trade and transnational organized crime. The Central African economies grew by 4.3 per cent in 2013, reflecting a 1.3 per cent decrease from the 2012 growth rate, attributable to a decrease in oil production and agricultural stagnation.

At the sixth extraordinary summit of the Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS) in January, which was devoted to the situation in the CAR, the Head of State of the Transition in the CAR, Michel Djotodia, and the Prime Minister, Nicolas Tiangaye, resigned. Shortly thereafter, the CAR National Transitional Council elected Catherine Samba-Panza as the new Head of State of the Transition; a new Prime Minister, Andre Nzapayeké, was subsequently appointed.

In Gabon, on 24 January, President Ali Bongo Ondimba appointed Daniel Ona Ondo as the new Prime Minister and Head of Government. Following the peaceful municipal and departmental elections of December 2013 in Chad, the cabinet of Prime Minister Kalzeubé Payimi Deubet was reshuffled for the fourth time since his appointment in November 2013. The Government was reduced from 42 members to 27 and some departments merged with others.

In Sao Tome and Principe, tensions arose in February following the refusal of the presidential guard to report to duty upon the return of President Manuel Pinto Da Costa from official travel. The resignation of the Chief of Defence Staff the same month triggered rumours of a possible destabilization plot. Tensions were subsequently diffused, following discussions initiated by the Government and the Prime Minister.

The security situation in the Central African subregion continued to be affected by the crisis in the CAR. Furthermore, developments in the Sahel-Sahara region, particularly in north-eastern Nigeria and in Libya, as well as in the Gulf of Guinea, continued to be of concern, given their potential impact on the stability of Central African states. Numerous initiatives were launched at the subregional and bilateral levels to strengthen cooperation and coordination on border control and to address terrorism and trafficking.

On 17 and 18 March, defence and military chiefs from the six-member Lake Chad Basin Commission (Cameroon, CAR, Chad, Libya, Niger, Nigeria) met in Cameroon and agreed to establish the Multinational Joint Task Force, empowered to act against militant threats. The Secretary-General welcomed efforts to strengthen border cooperation and encouraged the countries concerned in Central Africa to work in concert with Nigeria to bring to an end the violent activities of armed and extremist groups, including Boko Haram, which continued to threaten regional peace and stability.

Porous borders and weak State structures throughout the Sahel region, compounded by specific challenges in Libya and Mali, provided an enabling environment for increased illicit activities and potential instability in the Central African subregion. On 16 February, the Heads of State of Burkina Faso, Chad, Mali, Mauritania and the Niger established, in Nouakchott, Mauritania, the Sahel G-5, which aimed to strengthen coordination among Sahel States on issues related to infrastructure, development and security.

The cost of piracy in the Gulf of Guinea, owing to stolen goods, security and insurance, was estimated at approximately $2 billion. The Global Integrated Shipping Information System of the International Maritime Organization recorded 17 cases of piracy and armed robbery at sea in the Gulf of Guinea, of which 30 per cent occurred off the coast of the Republic of the Congo. In this regard, the Secretary-General commended the important strides made to strengthen sustainable maritime governance in West and Central Africa and welcomed the formal adoption of the 2050 Africa's Integrated Maritime Strategy.

UNOCA remained engaged with key stakeholders to help to prevent violent conflict and promote regional peace and security. The Special Representative for Central Africa and Head of UNOCA, Abou Moussa (Chad) continued to hold regular consultations with the ECCAS Secretary-General on issues of common interest. The UN Secretary-General's Special Representative undertook missions to Chad, Cameroon, the Republic of the Congo and the DRC to assess first-hand the humanitarian and security consequences of the crisis in the CAR for those neighbouring countries, as well as the social, economic and political implications.

LRA was believed to have split into several highly mobile groups operating with a significant degree of autonomy in the CAR and the DRC—involved primarily in survival mode activities, attacking civilians, killing, looting and kidnapping. There had been no reports of premeditated mass killings or other grave human rights abuses. According to the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, 65 presumed LRA attacks were reported during the first quarter of 2014 in the CAR and the DRC, resulting in 93 abductions and two deaths. Senior LRA leaders were believed to be based in the north-eastern part of the CAR, exploiting the country's internal instability to regroup.

The Secretary-General's Special Representative and the AU Special Envoy for the LRA Issue co-chaired the biannual meeting of LRA focal points on 13 and 14 February in Entebbe, Uganda. Institutions from the four LRA-affected countries were represented, including relevant UN missions and agencies, non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and donors. Despite the continuing decline in LRA activity overall, it remained a serious threat, with its senior leadership intact and the potential to destabilize the subregion.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 12 May [meeting 7171], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/8 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council expresses its concern at the deterioration in the security situation in parts of Central Africa within the remit of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, in particular the crisis in the Central African Republic and its growing regional impact, and the threat of terrorism, including the expansion of Boko Haram terrorist activities into countries in the subregion. The Council also expresses its continuing concern regarding maritime insecurity in the Gulf of Guinea, the illegal wildlife trade and transnational organized crime.

The Council pays tribute to the outgoing Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Central Africa and Head of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, Mr. Abou Moussa, of Chad, for his leadership in support of consolidating peace and preventing conflict in the Central African region and important accomplishments of the Regional Office during his tenure, and welcomes the appointment of Mr. Abdoulaye Bathily, of Senegal, as the new Special Representative and Head of the Regional Office.

The Council reiterates its strong condemnation of the appalling attacks, war crimes and crimes against humanity carried out by the Lord's Resistance Army and its violations of international humanitarian law and abuses of human rights, including the Lord's Resistance Army's recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, killing and maiming, rape, sexual slavery and other sexual violence, and abductions. The Council demands an immediate end to all attacks by the Lord's Resistance Army and urges the Lord's Resistance Army to release all those abducted and to disarm and demobilize. The Council welcomes the progress made with regard to ending Lord's Resistance Army war crimes and crimes against humanity in Central Africa and reiterates its resolve to maintain the current momentum until a permanent end to the threat posed by the Lord's Resistance Army has been achieved.

The Council welcomes the diplomatic efforts of the outgoing Special Representative, Mr. Abou Moussa, and the African Union Special Envoy on the Lord's Resistance Army Issue, Mr. Francisco Madeira, to strengthen regional cooperation and facilitate continued operations of the African Union Regional Task Force in the region. The Council urges the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, in its coordination role, as well as the United Nations political and peacekeeping missions in the region and other relevant United Nations presences to enhance their efforts in support of the implementation of the United Nations regional strategy to address the threat and impact of the activities of the Lord's Resistance Army (the United Nations strategy), as appropriate and within the limits of their mandates and capacities. The Council encourages the Secretary-General to optimize the efforts of the Regional Office in this regard, including through the use of staff and provision of support to anti-Lord's Resistance Army efforts.

The Council reiterates its strong support for the African Union Regional Cooperation Initiative for the Elimination of the Lord's Resistance Army, and commends the significant progress made by the African Union Regional Task Force. The Council notes in particular the reported death in late 2013 of the Lord's Resistance Army's second-in-command, Mr. Okot Odhiambo, who was indicted by the International Criminal Court, and the capture of a Lord's Resistance Army mid-level commander, Mr. Charles Okello, in April 2014. The Council welcomes the enhanced operations of the Task Force against the Lord's Resistance Army in recent months, which have increased pressure on the Lord's Resistance Army command structure and resulted in several significant defections of Lord's Resistance Army fighters and the rescue of women and children from the ranks of the Lord's Resistance Army. The Council expresses its concern at the creation of potential security vulnerabilities resulting from the increased instability in South Sudan that could be exploited by the Lord's Resistance Army. The Council urges all regional Governments to fulfil all their commitments under the Initiative and to provide the necessary basic provisions for their security forces. In this regard, the Council welcomes the decisions taken at the recent meeting of the Initiative to hold quarterly meetings as well as a summit of Initiative member States. The Council notes the importance of continued international support for the operations, logistics and headquarters of the Task Force. In this regard, the Council welcomes the continued advisory and logistical support provided by the United States of America as well as funding provided by the European Union. The Council underlines the need for all military action against the Lord's Resistance Army to be conducted in compliance with international law, including international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, as applicable, and to minimize the risk of harm to civilians in all areas of operation and to take into account the association of children with the Lord's Resistance Army. The Council also reiterates its encouragement to deploy child protection advisers within the Task Force.

The Council strongly encourages neighbouring States to cooperate with the African Union Regional Task Force, in order to end the Lord's Resistance Army threat. The Council further encourages all States in the region to take measures to ensure that the Lord's Resistance Army is not able to operate with impunity in their territory. The Council takes note of the statements made in the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa and the Lord's Resistance Army that senior Lord's Resistance Army leaders are believed to be based in the north-eastern part of the Central African Republic and that credible sources suggest that the Lord's Resistance Army leader, Mr. Joseph Kony, and senior Lord's Resistance Army commanders have recently returned to seek safe haven in Sudanese-controlled areas of the Kafia Kingi enclave. The Council expresses its continued concern that the instability and security vacuum in the Central African Republic continue to negatively affect counter-Lord's Resistance Army operations. The Council further notes with concern reports of Lord's Resistance Army attacks, as well as interactions between the Lord's Resistance Army and other armed groups, in areas of the Central African Republic outside the principal area of operations of the Task Force. In this regard, the Council emphasizes the need for strong coordination and information-sharing between the Task Force and the African-led International Support Mission for the Central African Republic, as well as with the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, in the context of their protection of civilians, activities, human rights monitoring and counter-Lord's Resistance Army operations, as appropriate.

The Council welcomes the steps taken to deliver an enhanced, comprehensive and more regional approach to the humanitarian situation, including assistance to victims of sexual violence and other attacks, and urges further progress in this regard.

The Council underlines the primary responsibility of States in the Lord's Resistance Army-affected region to protect civilians. The Council welcomes the efforts undertaken by the Democratic Republic of the Congo, South Sudan, Uganda and the Central African Republic, in coordination with the African Union, to end the threat posed by the Lord's Resistance Army, and urges further efforts from these countries, as well as from other countries in the region.

The Council welcomes the efforts of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo in tackling the Lord's Resistance Army. The Council notes continued reports of Lord's Resistance Army attacks in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, despite an overall decline in Lord's Resistance Army violence there. In this context, the Council encourages further and reinforced efforts by the Mission, working closely with the African Union Regional Task Force, to address the Lord's Resistance Army, including through improved responsiveness to imminent threats to civilians, increased and coordinated patrols, training and capacity-building of the Congolese army, support to the Joint Information Operations Centre, and implementation of the disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, reintegration and resettlement programme to encourage and facilitate further Lord's Resistance Army defections.

The Council urges relevant United Nations and African Union missions in the region, notably the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the United Nations Mission in South Sudan and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, to continue their efforts to combat the Lord's Resistance Army. The Council also notes the mandate of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to cooperate and share swiftly information related to the regional threat of the Lord's Resistance Army and the mandate of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic to coordinate its operations with those of the African Union Regional Task Force on the Lord's Resistance Army, and share relevant information with the Task Force and with non-governmental organizations involved in tackling the threat of the Lord's Resistance Army. In this regard, the Council urges these missions to collect and share information on Lord's Resistance Army movements with relevant partners, to enhance cross-border cooperation and to adopt standard operating procedures, in order to better anticipate Lord's Resistance Army movements and imminent threats of attack.

The Council strongly reiterates its calls for the United Nations, the African Union and the Economic Community of Central African States to continue to work together, including through joint field assessments, to further develop and maintain a common operating picture of the Lord's Resistance Army's current capabilities and areas of operation, as well as to investigate the Lord's Resistance Army's logistical networks and possible sources of military support and illicit financing, including alleged involvement in elephant poaching and related illicit smuggling. The Council expresses its concern at the link between illicit trafficking in wildlife and armed groups in the subregion, including the Lord's Resistance Army, and in this regard welcomes the efforts of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa to support the subregion in identifying collaborative approaches to address this issue.

The Council urges the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, the United Nations Mission in South Sudan and other United Nations actors in the Lord's Resistance Army-affected region to continue to work with regional forces, national Governments, international actors and non-governmental organizations, as appropriate, to develop a common approach to the promotion of defections and support for disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, reintegration and resettlement efforts across the Lord's Resistance Army-affected area. The Council highlights the importance of programmes in support of the release, return and successful reintegration of children abducted by the Lord's Resistance Army, in particular those that target community acceptance of such children. The Council welcomes the defection in December 2013 of 19 Lord's Resistance Army members, including 9 Lord's Resistance Army fighters, which is the largest single defection in over five years.

The Council encourages the African Union Regional Task Force to maintain its operations against all Lord's Resistance Army groups, while working with the United Nations and non-governmental organizations to expand the coverage of safe reporting sites and delivery of information to assist Lord's Resistance Army members who demonstrate a genuine commitment to demobilization and disarmament by radio, leaflets and other means.

The Council commends efforts by international donors to provide humanitarian assistance to Lord's Resistance Army-affected populations in the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and South Sudan. The Council reaffirms its call for all parties to allow safe and unhindered humanitarian access, consistent with the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law and the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance.

The Council notes the overall marked decline in the number, intensity and violence of the Lord's Resistance Army attacks, killings and abductions and the significant decrease in the estimate by the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the Secretariat of the number of people displaced by the Lord's Resistance Army threat, from 420,000 in March 2013 to 160,000 in March 2014. The Council encourages donors to increase funding for early recovery projects to help affected communities to restore stability and rebuild their livelihoods as the Lord's Resistance Army threat begins to recede. The Council requests that the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa work with the African Union, the World Bank, the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Children's Fund and other international experts to develop a development framework for international efforts to promote the long-term stabilization of areas in South Sudan, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Central African Republic formerly affected by the Lord's Resistance Army, including through early recovery projects and programmes to strengthen community cohesion.

The Council reiterates its call for the swift and full implementation of the conclusions of its Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict concerning the situation of children and armed conflict affected by the Lord's Resistance Army. In this regard, the Council encourages those countries affected by the Lord's Resistance Army which have not yet done so to establish standard operating procedures for the reception and handover of Lord's Resistance Army children to civilian child protection actors.

The Council recalls that the arrest warrants issued by the International Criminal Court for Lord's Resistance Army leaders, including Mr. Kony, on charges of war crimes and crimes against humanity, including murder, rape, cruel treatment, intentionally directing attacks against a civilian population and forced enlistment of children, have yet to be executed, and calls upon all States to cooperate with relevant national Governments and the Court, in accordance with their respective obligations, in order to execute those warrants, and to bring to justice those responsible.

The Council requests that the Secretary-General keep the Council informed on the activities of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, progress made in conducting assessments of the Lord's Resistance Army's evolving area of operations and logistical and support networks, and the efforts being undertaken respectively by missions in the region and other relevant United Nations agencies to implement the United Nations strategy, including through a single report on the Regional Office and the Lord's Resistance Army, to be submitted before 15 November 2014.

Communication. On 14 May [S/2014/345], the Sudan informed the President of the Security Council of the unfounded allegation that LRA senior commanders as well as its leader had sought safe haven in Sudanese-controlled areas of the Kafia Kingi enclave.

Report of Secretary-General (November). Pursuant to Security Council presidential statement S/PRST/2014/8 (see above), the Secretary-General issued a November report [S/2014/812] on UNOCA activities and on efforts to counter the threat and impact of LRA.

Abdoulaye Bathily (Senegal) was appointed as the Secretary-General's Representative for Central Africa and Head of UNOCA replacing Abou Moussa (Chad). The crisis in the CAR continued to dominate the attention of the subregion's leaders. The increased challenges posed by Boko Haram in the Lake Chad basin, maritime insecurity in the Gulf of Guinea, the continued activities of armed groups, including LRA, illicit cross-border movement and the illegal trade in wildlife threatened the stability of the subregion's countries. The efforts of the Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS) and the Central African Economic and Monetary Community (CEMAC) to promote regional integration and facilitate free movement had been severely hampered as a result of security-related concerns and the outbreak of the Ebola virus disease.

In the CAR, Central African States and sub-regional organizations, particularly ECCAS, remained actively engaged in diplomatic efforts to restore peace and State authority in the country; as a result, an international mediation initiative led by the President of the Congo, Denis Sassou Nguesso, was established and a cessation-of-hostilities agreement signed in July in Brazzaville. In September, the transfer of authority between the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic (MISCA) and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA) took place. The appointment by the Head of State of the Transition, Catherine Samba-Panza, of a new prime minister was criticized by many national stakeholders, who claimed that Ms. Samba-Panza had not undertaken sufficient consultations and needed to demonstrate her commitment to an inclusive political process. Many individuals called for the Head of State of the Transition to resign. The persistent instability in the CAR, the absence of State authority and regular incursions of armed groups into neighbouring countries, including Cameroon and Chad, prompted those countries to temporarily close all or parts of their borders with the CAR.

In Niamey on 7 October, Benin, Chad, the Niger, Nigeria and Cameroon announced plans to address the Boko Haram threat through the deployment, on 1 November, of a multinational joint task force. Furthermore, in September and October, Chad facilitated talks in N'Djamena between the Government of Nigeria and representatives of Boko Haram, with the aim of reaching a ceasefire.

On piracy and armed robbery at sea, progress was achieved with the inauguration of the Interregional

Coordination Centre on Maritime Security in the Gulf of Guinea, in Yaoundé, Cameroon on 11 September. Poaching remained a major concern for several Governments in Central Africa because of its links to the financing of armed groups. In September, a high-level meeting on poaching and wildlife trafficking co-organized by Gabon and Germany was held on the margins of the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly.

Local and parliamentary elections took place in two countries, the Congo and Sao Tome and Principe. In addition, steps were taken to establish or strengthen national dialogue in four countries—Chad, Burundi, Gabon and Equatorial Guinea. Efforts towards regional integration and the free movement of persons were hampered owing to mounting security concerns and following the Ebola virus disease outbreak in West Africa, which led to border closures and the suspension of flights to and from West African capitals to prevent the spread of the virus. In September, CEMAC experts met in Brazzaville to adopt an emergency plan to address the epidemic.

The bulk of LRA moved from CAR to the north-east of the DRC, where it continued to poach elephants in Garamba National Park for ivory, abduct civilians and ambush vehicles to transport looted items. In both the CAR and the DRC, the areas where LRA operated lacked infrastructure and a strong State presence and were sparsely inhabited. Those factors posed serious challenges to civilian and military efforts to track the group and to protect the civilian population. LRA also appeared to have reached non-aggression agreements or established alliances of convenience with other armed groups that operated in the same areas, including with the ex-Séléka in the CAR. The presence of some senior LRA leaders in the disputed Kafia Kingi enclave, on the border between the CAR, South Sudan and the Sudan, continued to be reported, though Sudan denied it. The military operations of the AU Regional Task Force had continued to result in steady progress in the fight against LRA, although with some challenges: as opposed to 5,030 troops originally pledged, the Regional Task Force comprised only 2,284 soldiers and not all of them were operational or possessed sufficient strength and capability to conduct effective military operations against LRA. The United Nations Office to the African Union, based in Addis Ababa, assisted the AU in its efforts to develop the Regional Task Force. The United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO) had expanded its disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration operations in LRA-affected areas.

The Secretary-General commended the efforts of the Governments of the subregion, UN entities, national and international NGOs and other partners in addressing the consequences of the CAR crisis for neighbouring countries. He expressed concern about reports that the bulk of LRA had moved into the DRC. He also welcomed the invitation extended to the AU by the Government of the Sudan to verify reports of LRA presence in Kafia Kingi, and encouraged the AU Commission and the AU Peace and Security Council to verify those allegations.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 7334], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/25 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council expresses its concern at the grave security situation in parts of Central Africa within the remit of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, in particular the ongoing crisis in the Central African Republic and its regional impact, the continuing threat of the Lord's Resistance Army, and the expansion of Boko Haram terrorist activities into countries in the subregion. The Council also expresses its continuing concern regarding maritime insecurity in the Gulf of Guinea, the illegal wildlife trade and transnational organized crime. The Council welcomes the local and parliamentary elections held in the subregion and stresses the need for upcoming elections in the region to be held in a timely, transparent and inclusive manner according to their constitutions, and encourages the Regional Office to continue to support States in this regard, including through the promotion of women's political participation.

The Council reiterates its strong condemnation of the appalling attacks, war crimes and crimes against humanity carried out by the Lord's Resistance Army and its violations of international humanitarian law and abuses of human rights, including the Lord's Resistance Army's recruitment and use of children in armed conflict, killing and maiming, rape, sexual slavery and other sexual violence, and abductions. The Council demands an immediate end to all attacks by the Lord's Resistance Army and urges the Lord's Resistance Army to release all those abducted and to disarm and demobilize. The Council welcomes the progress made with regard to ending Lord's Resistance Army war crimes and crimes against humanity in Central Africa and reiterates its resolve to maintain the current momentum until a permanent end to the threat posed by the Lord's Resistance Army has been achieved.

The Council pays tribute to the efforts of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Central Africa and Head of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, Mr. Abdoulaye Bathily, and the outgoing African Union Special Envoy on the Lord's Resistance Army Issue, Mr. Francisco Madeira, to strengthen regional cooperation and facilitate continued operations of the African Union Regional Task Force in the region. The Council commends Mr. Madeira for his leadership and welcomes the recent appointment of Lieutenant General (retired) Jackson Kiprono Tuwei as the new African Union Special Envoy on the Lord's Resistance Army Issue. The Council urges the Regional Office, in its coordination role, as well as the United Nations political and peacekeeping missions in the region and other relevant United Nations presences to enhance their efforts in support of the implementation of the United Nations regional strategy to address the threat and impact of the activities of the Lord's Resistance Army (the United Nations strategy), as appropriate and within the limits of their mandates and capacities. The Council encourages the Secretary-General to optimize the efforts of the Regional Office in this regard, including through the use of staff and the provision of support to counter-Lord's Resistance Army efforts.

The Council reiterates its strong support for the African Union Regional Cooperation Initiative for the Elimination of the Lord's Resistance Army, and strongly encourages Lord's Resistance Army-affected and neighbouring States to cooperate with the African Union Regional Task Force, in order to end the Lord's Resistance Army threat. The Council commends the significant progress made by the Task Force and its troop-contributing countries, and pays tribute to the important role played by the Uganda People's Defence Forces in tackling the Lord's Resistance Army threat. The Council urges all regional Governments to fulfil their commitments under the Initiative. The Council notes the importance of continued international support for the operations, logistics and headquarters of the Task Force. In this regard, the Council welcomes the continued advisory and logistical support provided by the United States of America as well as funding provided by the European Union. The Council underlines the need for all military action against the Lord's Resistance Army to be conducted in compliance with international law, including international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, as applicable, and to minimize the risk of harm to civilians in all areas of operation and to take into account the association of children with the Lord's Resistance Army. The Council also reiterates its encouragement to deploy child protection advisers within the Task Force.

The Council expresses concern about the statements in the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa and the Lord's Resistance Army that the bulk of the Lord's Resistance Army has moved from the Central African Republic to the northeast of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, but continues to carry out attacks against communities in the east of the Central African Republic. The Council calls upon the affected States to ensure that the Lord's Resistance Army does not find safe haven in their territory, in accordance with international law. The Council takes note that the presence of some senior Lord's Resistance Army leaders in the disputed Kafia Kingi enclave, on the border between the Central African Republic, South Sudan and the Sudan continues to be reported. The Council takes note that the Government of the Sudan has denied this. The Council welcomes the invitation extended to the African Union to verify reports of the presence of the Lord's Resistance Army in Kafia Kingi, and encourages the African Union Commission and the African Union Peace and Security Council to verify the allegations. The Security Council expresses its continued concern at the gravity of the national crisis in the Central African Republic and strongly condemns the Lord's Resistance Army's opportunistic cooperation in the Central African Republic with other armed groups including some ex-Séléka combatants.

The Council notes the overall decline in the number, intensity and violence of the Lord's Resistance Army attacks, killings and abductions and the decrease in the estimate by the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the Secretariat of the number of people displaced by the Lord's Resistance Army threat, from 159,927 in March 2014 to 131,090 in September 2014. The Council commends efforts by international donors to provide humanitarian assistance to Lord's Resistance Army-affected populations in the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and South Sudan but notes with concern that renewed efforts are urgently needed to provide humanitarian assistance to Lord's Resistance Army-affected populations. The Council reaffirms its call for all parties to allow safe and unhindered humanitarian access, consistent with the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law and the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance.

The Council welcomes the steps taken to deliver an enhanced, comprehensive and more regional approach to the humanitarian situation, including assistance to victims of sexual violence and other attacks, and urges further progress in this regard.

The Council underlines the primary responsibility of States in the Lord's Resistance Army-affected region to protect civilians.

The Council urges the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, as relevant and in accordance with their mandates, to cooperate and share information related to the regional threat of the Lord's Resistance Army in a timely manner, and to share relevant information with regional Governments, with non-governmental organizations and with relevant partners, to enhance cross-border cooperation in order to better anticipate and respond to Lord's Resistance Army movements. The Council emphasizes the need for operational coordination and information-sharing between the African Union Regional Task Force and all relevant United Nations and African Union missions, in the context of their protection of civilians, activities, human rights monitoring, implementation of disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, reintegration and resettlement programmes and counter-Lord's Resistance Army operations, as appropriate and in accordance with their mandates.

The Council strongly reiterates its calls for the United Nations, the African Union and the Economic Community of Central African States to continue to work together, including through joint field assessments, to further develop and maintain a common operating picture of the Lord's Resistance Army's current capabilities and areas of operation, as well as to investigate the Lord's Resistance Army's logistical networks and possible sources of military support and illicit financing, including alleged involvement in wildlife poaching and related illicit smuggling. The Council expresses its concern at the link between illicit trafficking in wildlife and financing of armed groups in the subregion, including the Lord's Resistance Army, and in this regard encourages the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa to continue to support the development of a coherent and concerted subregional approach to address this disturbing phenomenon.

The Council urges the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic and other United Nations actors in the Lord's Resistance Army-affected region to continue to work with regional forces, national Governments, international actors and non-governmental organizations, as appropriate, to develop a common approach to the promotion of defections and support for disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, reintegration and resettlement efforts across the Lord's Resistance Army-affected area. The Council highlights the importance of programmes in encouraging defections and in support of the release, return and successful reintegration of men, women and children abducted by the Lord's Resistance Army, in particular those that target community acceptance of such individuals, in particular children.

The Council encourages donors to increase funding for early recovery projects to help affected communities to restore stability and rebuild their livelihoods as the Lord's Resistance Army threat begins to recede. The Council requests that the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa work with the African Union, the World Bank, the United Nations Development Programme, the United Nations Children's Fund and other international experts to develop a development framework for international efforts to promote the long-term stabilization of areas in South Sudan, the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Central African Republic formerly affected by the Lord's Resistance Army, including through early recovery projects and programmes to strengthen community cohesion.

The Council reiterates its call for the swift and full implementation of the conclusions of its Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict concerning the situation of children and armed conflict affected by the Lord's Resistance Army. In this regard, the Council encourages those countries affected by the Lord's Resistance Army which have not yet done so to establish standard operating procedures for the reception and handover of Lord's Resistance Army children to civilian child protection actors.

The Council recalls that the International Criminal Court's arrest warrants for Lord's Resistance Army leaders, including Mr. Joseph Kony, on charges of war crimes and crimes against humanity, including murder, rape, cruel treatment, intentionally directing attacks against a civilian population and the forced enlistment of children, have yet to be executed, and calls upon all States to cooperate with relevant national Governments and the Court, in accordance with their respective obligations, in order to execute those warrants and to bring to justice those responsible.

The Council commends the role of the Heads of States of the Economic Community of Central African States in the Economic Community-led international mediation process in the Central African Republic and welcomes the designation by the Secretary-General of his Special Representative for Central Africa, Mr. Bathily, to support the process. The Council commends Mr. Bathily for his diplomatic efforts, in collaboration with the Economic Community mediator, the President of the Congo, Mr. Denis Sassou Nguesso, the African Union Special Envoy for the Central African Republic, Mr. Soumeylou Boubèye Maïga, as well as the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Central African Republic, Lieutenant General (retired) Babacar Gaye. In particular, the Council welcomes the signing of the Brazzaville Agreement on 23 July 2014. The Council encourages Mr. Bathily and his Office to continue supporting these efforts and to support the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, and the transition process in the Central African Republic through the international mediation process.

The Council expresses deep concern at the terrorist attacks conducted by Boko Haram since 2009, which have caused large-scale and devastating loss of life and represent a threat to the stability and peace of West and Central Africa. In particular, the Council strongly condemns the continued increase in attacks perpetrated by the terrorist group in Nigeria, along the Nigeria-Cameroon border, in the northern provinces of Cameroon and near the Nigeria-Chad border. The Council expresses concern that the activities of Boko Haram continue to have an adverse humanitarian impact on West and Central Africa, including the displacement of an estimated 80,000 Nigerians into neighbouring Cameroon, Chad and Niger. The Council commends the initiative of the Heads of States of the Lake Chad Basin region and Benin to enhance cooperation, in line with the outcomes of the Paris summit, the follow-up London and Abuja summits and the meeting held in Niamey, in order to tackle the threat posed by Boko Haram to the region. The Council calls upon the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa to continue its collaboration with the United Nations Office for West Africa in order to continue to support, as appropriate, the States of the Lake Chad Basin region to address the impact of the threat on peace and security, including the political, socioeconomic and humanitarian situation in the subregion. The Council underlines the need for all actions to counter Boko Haram to be conducted in compliance with international law, including international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law.

The Council commends UNOCA's support for regional anti-piracy efforts, in cooperation with the United Nations Office for West Africa, to address maritime insecurity in the Gulf of Guinea that continues to affect States of Central and West Africa. The Council encourages the Regional Office to continue to assist the region in implementing the decisions of the Yaoundé summit and in the establishment of a regional information-sharing architecture.

The Council requests that the Secretary-General keep it informed on the activities of the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa, progress made in conducting assessments of the Lord's Resistance Army's evolving area of operations and logistical and support networks, and the efforts being undertaken respectively by missions in the region and relevant United Nations agencies to implement the United Nations strategy, including through a single report on the situation in Central Africa and the activities of the Regional Office, to be submitted before 15 May 2015.

Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions

The United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa met twice in 2014, at its thirty-eighth ministerial meeting (Malabo, Equatorial Guinea, 29 July–2 August) [A/69/768-S/2015/44]; and at its thirty-ninth ministerial meeting (Bujumbura, Burundi, 1–5 December) [A/69/783-S/2015/54].

In August, the Secretary-General presented to the General Assembly the outcomes of the Committee's thirty-seventh meeting [YUN 2013, p. 106] and thirty-eighth meeting [A/69/361]. In a later report [A/70/165], the Secretary-General provided information on the Committee's thirty-ninth meeting.

In resolution 69/73 of 2 December (see p. 690), the General Assembly reaffirmed its support for efforts aimed at promoting confidence-building measures at the regional and subregional levels, in order to ease tensions and conflicts in Central Africa and to further sustainable peace, stability and development in the subregion.

(For information on the Committee's activities related to disarmament and arms limitation, see p. 612.)

Communication. In a 30 April letter to the Secretary-General [A/68/908-S/2014/358], Chad transmitted the report of the thirty-seventh ministerial meeting of the Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa (N'Djamena, Chad, 19–23 December 2013).

Democratic Republic of the Congo

Significant challenges remained towards completion of the implementation of the 2013 Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) and the region [YUN 2013, p. 106], which outlined the actions required by the DRC and regional and international actors to end the recurring cycles of violence in eastern DRC.

Limited progress had been made in neutralizing the armed groups in eastern DRC. Still at large were prominent members of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda (FDLR), the ex-Mouvement du 23 mars (M23) and the DRC armed forces—the Forces armées de la République démocratique du Congo (FARDC)—who were associated with violence in the DRC and the region and who were in some cases under UN or international sanctions, or under international arrest warrants.

The eastern DRC provinces of North Kivu, South Kivu, Maniema and Orientale continued to grapple with a complex emergency in which people, especially children, remained vulnerable. Regional conflict added to population displacement. In the DRC alone, some 2.7 million people were internally displaced, and the country continued to host some 122,000 refugees from neighbouring countries.

In March, by resolution 2147(2014) (see p. 193), the Security Council decided to extend the mandate of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO) for one year and include the Mission's "intervention brigade" within the authorized troop ceiling of 19,815.

Communications. In a 15 January letter [S/2014/27] to the President of the Security Council, Uganda noted that a January report [YUN 2013, p. 122] of the Group of Experts on the DRC had contained baseless allegations that sanctioned M23 leaders were moving freely in Uganda. In a follow-up letter on 28 January [S/2014/61], Uganda said that the published final report of the Group of Experts on the DRC did not reflect Uganda's response.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 30 January [meeting 7107], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2136(2014). The draft [S/2014/55] was submitted by France.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President concerning the Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Democratic Republic of the Congo as well as all States in the region, and emphasizing the need to respect fully the principles of non-interference, good-neighbourliness and regional cooperation,

Stressing the primary responsibility of the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo for ensuring security in its territory and protecting its civilians, with respect for the rule of law, human rights and international humanitarian law,

Taking note of the interim report and the final report of the Group of Experts on the Democratic Republic of the Congo (the Group of Experts) established pursuant to resolution 1771(2007) of 10 August 2007, whose mandate was extended pursuant to resolutions 1807(2008) of 31 March 2008, 1857(2008) of 22 December 2008, 1896(2009) of 30 November 2009, 1952(2010) of 29 November 2010, 2021(2011) of 29 November 2011 and 2078(2012) of 28 November 2012, and of the recommendations contained therein,

Welcoming the declaration of the end of the 23 March Movement, the corresponding declaration by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the signing in Nairobi on 12 December 2013 of the documents concluding the Kampala talks facilitated by Uganda as President of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, while stressing the importance of ensuring that the 23 March Movement does not regroup and resume military activities, in line with the Nairobi declarations and relevant Security Council resolutions,

Reiterating its deep concern regarding the security and humanitarian crisis in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo due to ongoing military activities of foreign and domestic armed groups, stressing the importance of neutralizing all armed groups, including the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, the Allied Democratic Forces, the Lord's Resistance Army and various Mai Mai groups, in line with resolution 2098(2013) of 28 March 2013,

Reiterating its strong condemnation of any and all internal or external support to armed groups active in the region, including through financial, logistical and military support,

Condemning the illicit flow of weapons within and into the Democratic Republic of the Congo in violation of resolutions 1533(2004) of 12 March 2004, 1807(2008), 1857(2008), 1896(2009), 1952(2010), 2021(2011) and 2078(2012), and declaring its determination to continue to monitor closely the implementation of the arms embargo and other measures set out in its resolutions concerning the Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Acknowledging, in this respect, the important contribution that the Council-mandated arms embargo makes to countering the illicit transfer of small arms and light weapons in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and in supporting post-conflict peacebuilding, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform,

Recalling the linkage between the illegal exploitation of natural resources, including poaching of and illegal trafficking in wildlife, illicit trade in such resources and the proliferation of and trafficking in arms as one of the major factors fuelling and exacerbating conflicts in the Great Lakes region of Africa, encouraging the continuation of the regional efforts of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region and the Governments involved against the illegal exploitation of natural resources, and stressing in this regard the importance of regional cooperation and deepening economic integration with special consideration of the exploitation of natural resources,

Noting with great concern the persistence of serious human rights abuses and humanitarian law violations against civilians in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including summary executions, sexual and gender-based violence and large-scale recruitment and use of children committed by armed groups,

Noting with deep concern reports and allegations indicating the persistence of serious human rights and international humanitarian law violations committed by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including those committed with impunity,

Noting with deep concern also reports indicating collaboration by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo with the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda at a local level, recalling that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda is a group under United Nations sanctions whose leaders and members include perpetrators of the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which Hutu and others who opposed the genocide were also killed, and have continued to promote and commit ethnically based and other killings in Rwanda and in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and stressing the importance of permanently addressing this threat,

Calling for all those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law and violations or abuses of human rights, as applicable, including those involving violence or abuses against children and acts of sexual and gender-based violence, to be swiftly apprehended, brought to justice and held accountable,

Welcoming the efforts of the Secretary-General of the United Nations as well as of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, the Southern African Development Community and the African Union, to restore peace and security in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Welcoming also the signing in Addis Ababa on 24 February 2013 of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Region (the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework) and the nomination of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region, Mrs. Mary Robinson, and reiterating the need for all signatories to fulfil promptly, fully and in good faith their respective commitments,

Taking note of the Declaration of the Summit of the Heads of State and Government of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region on the Promotion of Peace, Security, Stability and Development in the Great Lakes Region, adopted in Luanda on 15 January 2014,

Recalling all its relevant resolutions on women and peace and security, on children and armed conflict and on the protection of civilians in armed conflict,

Calling upon all parties to cooperate fully with the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, reiterating its condemnation of any attacks against peacekeepers, and emphasizing that those responsible for such attacks must be brought to justice,

Determining that the situation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Decides to renew until 1 February 2015 the measures on arms imposed by paragraph 1 of resolution 1807(2008), and reaffirms the provisions of paragraphs 2, 3 and 5 of that resolution, and further decides that the measures on arms imposed by paragraph 1 of resolution 1807(2008) shall not apply to the supply of arms and related materiel, as well as assistance, advice or training, intended solely for the support of or use by the African Union Regional Task Force;

2. Also decides to renew, for the period specified in paragraph 1 above, the measures on transport imposed by paragraphs 6 and 8 of resolution 1807(2008), and reaffirms the provisions of paragraph 7 of that resolution;

3. Further decides to renew, for the period specified in paragraph 1 above, the financial and travel measures imposed by paragraphs 9 and 11 of resolution 1807(2008), and reaffirms the provisions of paragraphs 10 and 12 of that resolution regarding the individuals and entities referred to in paragraph 4 of resolution 1857(2008), and reaffirms the provisions of paragraphs 10 and 12 of resolution 1807(2008) in relation to those measures;

4. Decides that the measures referred to in paragraph 3 above shall apply to the following individuals and, as appropriate, entities, as designated by the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004):

(a) Individuals or entities acting in violation of the measures taken by Member States in accordance with paragraph 1 above;

(b) Political and military leaders of foreign armed groups operating in the Democratic Republic of the Congo who impede the disarmament and the voluntary repatriation or resettlement of combatants belonging to those groups;

(c) Political and military leaders of Congolese militias, including those receiving support from outside the Democratic Republic of the Congo, who impede the participation of their combatants in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes;

(d) Individuals or entities operating in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and recruiting or using children in armed conflict in violation of applicable international law;

(e) Individuals or entities operating in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and involved in planning, directing or participating in the targeting of children or women in situations of armed conflict, including killing and maiming, rape and other sexual violence, abduction, forced displacement and attacks on schools and hospitals;

(f) Individuals or entities obstructing access to or the distribution of humanitarian assistance in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(g) Individuals or entities supporting armed groups in the Democratic Republic of the Congo through illicit trade in natural resources, including gold or wildlife as well as wildlife products;

(h) Individuals or entities acting on behalf of or at the direction of a designated individual or entity, or acting on behalf of or at the direction of an entity owned or controlled by a designated individual or entity;

(i) Individuals or entities that plan, direct, sponsor or participate in attacks against peacekeepers of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(j) Individuals or entities providing financial, material or technological support for, or goods or services to, or in support of a designated individual or entity;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to extend, for a period expiring on 1 February 2015, the mandate of the Group of Experts on the Democratic Republic of the Congo established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) and renewed by subsequent resolutions, and requests the Group of Experts to fulfil its mandate as set out in paragraph 18 of resolution 1807(2008) and expanded by paragraphs 9 and 10 of resolution 1857(2008), and to present to the Council, through the Committee, a written midterm report by 28 June 2014 and a written final report before 16 January 2015, welcomes the practice of receiving additional updates from the Group of Experts as appropriate, and further requests that, after a discussion with the Committee, the Group of Experts submit to the Council its final report upon termination of the mandate of the Group of Experts;

6. Strongly condemns all armed groups operating in the region and their violations of international humanitarian law as well as other applicable international law, and abuses of human rights, including attacks on the civilian population, Mission peacekeepers and humanitarian actors, summary executions, sexual and gender-based violence and large-scale recruitment and use of children, and reiterates that those responsible will be held accountable;

7. Demands that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, the Allied Democratic Forces, the Lord's Resistance Army and various Mai Mai groups cease immediately all forms of violence and other destabilizing activities and that their members immediately and permanently disband, lay down their arms and demobilize children from their ranks;

8. Calls upon all States, especially those in the region, to take effective steps to ensure that there is no support, in and from their territories, for the armed groups in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, welcoming the positive international developments in regard to addressing the risks posed by armed group leaders in the diasporas, and calls upon all States to take steps, where appropriate, against leaders of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda and other armed groups residing in their countries;

9. Demands that the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in accordance with its commitments in the Nairobi declarations of 12 December 2013, accelerate the implementation of its disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme, in coordination with the United Nations, international organizations and neighbouring countries where former 23 March Movement combatants have found refuge, requests, in this respect and in accordance with the Nairobi declarations and in line with commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework agreement, the United Nations and international organizations to work together with neighbouring States to urgently address the situation of former 23 March Movement combatants located in their territories, and stresses the importance of ensuring that the 23 March Movement does not regroup and resume military activities, in line with the Nairobi declarations and relevant Council resolutions;

10. Welcomes the progress made to date by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo on ending the use of children in armed conflict, and urges the Government to follow through on its commitments made in the action plan signed with the United Nations detailing concrete, time-bound measures to release and reintegrate children associated with the Congolese armed forces and to prevent further recruitment, and for the protection of girls and boys from sexual violence;

11. Stresses the importance of the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo actively seeking to hold accountable those responsible for war crimes and crimes against humanity in the country and of regional cooperation to this end, including through its ongoing cooperation with the International Criminal Court, encourages the Mission to use its existing authority to assist the Government in this regard, and calls upon all signatories to the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework agreement to continue to implement their commitments and cooperate fully with one another and the Government, as well as the Mission, to this end;

12. Recalls that there should be no impunity for any of those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the region, and in this regard urges the Democratic Republic of the Congo, all countries in the region and other concerned States Members of the United Nations to bring perpetrators to justice and hold them accountable;

13. Decides that the measures imposed by paragraph 9 of resolution 1807(2008) shall not apply, in accordance with the criteria set out in paragraph 10 of resolution 2078(2012);

14. Reiterates its support to the Expanded Joint Verification Mechanism, and welcomes the decision of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region to grant permanent representation of the Mission in the Mechanism;

15. Calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to enhance stockpile security, accountability and management of arms and ammunition, with the assistance of international partners, to address urgently reports of diversion to armed groups, as necessary and requested, and to urgently implement a national weapons marking programme, in particular for State-owned firearms, in line with the standards established by the Nairobi Protocol for the Prevention, Control and Reduction of Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region and the Horn of Africa and the Regional Centre on Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region, the Horn of Africa and Bordering States;

16. Recalls the mandate of the Mission to monitor the implementation of the arms embargo, in cooperation with the Group of Experts, and in particular to observe and report on flows of military personnel, arms or related materiel across the eastern border of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including by using surveillance capabilities provided by unmanned aerial systems, and seize, collect and dispose of arms or related materials whose presence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo violates the measures imposed by paragraph 1 of resolution 2078(2012), in accordance with paragraph 12 (c) of resolution 2098(2013);

17. Requests the Mission to assist the Committee established pursuant to paragraph 8 of resolution 1533(2004) and the Group of Experts established pursuant to the same resolution, within its capabilities, including by passing information relevant to the implementation of the sanctions measures;

18. Emphasizes the primary responsibility of the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to reinforce State authority and governance in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, including through effective security sector reform to allow army, police and justice sector reform, and to end impunity for violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, urges the Government to increase efforts in this regard, in accordance with its national commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, and further encourages the continuation of efforts by the Government to address issues of illegal exploitation and smuggling of natural resources;

19. Welcomes, in this regard, the measures taken by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to implement the due diligence guidelines on the supply chain of minerals, as defined by the Group of Experts and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, and calls upon all States to assist the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region and the countries in the Great Lakes region in the implementation of the guidelines;

20. Also welcomes measures taken by the Governments in the region, in particular Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of the Congo, to implement the due diligence guidelines, including adopting the regional certification mechanism of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region into their national legislation, in accordance with the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development guidance and international practice, and requests the extension of the certification process to other Member States in the region, as recommended in the Luanda Declaration of 15 January 2014;

21. Encourages a swift response by the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region to put in place the necessary technical capacity required to support Member States in their fight against the illegal exploitation of natural resources, and further encourages the International Conference to take immediate actions to fully implement the mineral certification process;

22. Encourages all States, particularly those in the region, to continue to raise awareness of the Group of Experts due diligence guidelines and to continue efforts to end mineral smuggling, in particular in the gold sector, as part of broader efforts to mitigate the risk of further financing armed groups and criminal networks within the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

23. Reaffirms the provisions of paragraphs 6 to 13 of resolution 1952(2010), and requests the Group of Experts to continue to study the impact of due diligence;

24. Also reaffirms the provisions of paragraphs 7 to 9 of resolution 2021(2011), and reiterates its call to the Democratic Republic of the Congo and States in the Great Lakes region to require their customs authorities to strengthen their control on exports and imports of minerals from the Democratic Republic of the Congo and to cooperate at the regional level to investigate and combat regional criminal networks and armed groups involved in the illegal exploitation of natural resources, including wildlife poaching and trafficking;

25. Recalls the mandate of the Mission to support the Congolese authorities in the implementation of their national commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework agreement, in line with resolution 2098(2013), and notes that the Mission should play a role in preventing the provision of support to armed groups from illicit activities, including production of and trade in natural resources, notably by carrying out spot checks and regular visits to mining sites, trade routes and markets, in the vicinity of the five pilot trading counters;

26. Expresses its full support to the Group of Experts of the Committee, and calls for enhanced cooperation between all States, particularly those in the region, the Mission and the Group of Experts, further encourages all parties and all States to ensure cooperation with the Group of Experts by individuals and entities within their jurisdiction or under their control, and reiterates its demand that all parties and all States ensure the safety of its members and its support staff and that all parties and all States, including the Democratic Republic of the Congo and countries of the region, provide unhindered and immediate access, in particular to persons, documents and sites that the Group of Experts deems relevant to the execution of its mandate;

27. Calls upon the Group of Experts to cooperate actively with other relevant panels of experts, in particular the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire re-established pursuant to paragraph 18 of resolution 2101(2013) of 25 April 2013 with respect to natural resources, and the Monitoring Group on Somalia and Eritrea re-established pursuant to paragraph 27 of resolution 2111(2013) of 24 July 2013 with respect to the activities of the Allied Democratic Forces and Al-Shabaab;

28. Calls upon all States, particularly those in the region and those in which individuals and entities designated pursuant to paragraph 3 of the present resolution are based, to regularly report to the Committee on the actions they have taken to implement the measures imposed by paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of the present resolution and recommended in paragraph 8 of resolution 1952(2010);

29. Decides that, when appropriate and no later than 1 February 2015, it shall review the measures set forth in the present resolution, with a view to adjusting them, as appropriate, in the light of the security situation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in particular progress in security sector reform, including the integration of the armed forces and the reform of the national police, and in disarming, demobilizing, repatriating, resettling and reintegrating, as appropriate, Congolese and foreign armed groups, with a particular focus on children among them;

30. Also decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (March). Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2098(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 107], the Secretary-General issued a March report [S/2014/153] on the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the DRC and the region. The report described regional peace and security initiatives in relation to eastern DRC, as well as progress on the implementation of the Framework.

The security situation in eastern DRC remained volatile and marked by sporadic attacks by various armed groups. On the political front, there was limited progress in the implementation of the Kampala Declarations [YUN 2013, p. 119], which formally ended the conflict between the Forces armées de la République démocratique du Congo (FARDC) and the Mouvement du 23 mars (M23). A positive development was President Joseph Kabila's promulgation, on 11 February, of the amnesty law provided for in the Kampala Declarations, which granted amnesty for acts of insurgency, war and political offences committed in the DRC between 18 February 2006 and 20 December 2013. The two dates referred, respectively, to the promulgation of the Constitution of the DRC and the expiry of the Government's ultimatum to armed groups to lay down their arms.

On 14 and 15 January, the fifth ordinary Summit of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region (ICGLR) was held in Luanda, Angola under the chairmanship of the President of Angola, José Eduardo dos Santos, who took over from the President of Uganda, Yoweri Museveni. The Summit adopted recommendations, which included 42 decisions pertaining to eastern DRC, the CAR, South Sudan, the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, and the Pact on Security, Stability and Development. Key decisions related to the Framework included a request to MONUSCO to intensify its operations against the Allied Democratic Forces (ADF), the FDLR and other armed groups operating in eastern DRC.

The DRC made some progress in implementing its national commitments, as detailed in a 5 March report of the Secretary-General on MONUSCO (see p. 201). Nine months after the establishment of the National Oversight Mechanism, however, the Mission operated with limited material and human resources and had yet to adopt its workplan and rules of procedure.

The Regional Oversight Mechanism reviewed progress in the implementation of the Framework, almost a year after its signing. It approved the Plan of Action for the implementation of the regional commitments and welcomed Kenya and the Sudan as new signatories.

The Secretary-General observed that the situation on the ground, though delicate, had improved considerably owing to a number of concerted national, regional and international efforts. On the military front, following the end of the M23 rebellion and the formal conclusion of the Kampala Dialogue, the Government of the DRC had been able to regain control of territories previously held by M23 and had commenced new operations against foreign armed groups operating in eastern DRC, such as ADF, FDLR and the Forces nationales de libération. The defeat of M23 had also led to the spontaneous surrender of elements from other armed groups, which needed to be sustained by effective demobilization, disarmament and reintegration programmes at the national and regional levels.

On the political front, President Joseph Kabila established a National Oversight Mechanism to oversee the implementation of the national commitments. In addition, he launched the national dialogue, which involved the majority of political parties and established a follow-up committee to monitor the implementation of its outcome. At the regional level, signatory countries displayed a greater sense of ownership in finding solutions to the conflict in eastern DRC and improving relations in the region. In that regard, President Yoweri Museveni of Uganda, in his capacity as ICGLR Chair, played a key role in facilitating the resolution of the conflict between the Government of the DRC and M23, through the Kampala Dialogue.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 March [meeting 7150], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2147(2014). The draft [S/2014/222] was submitted by France, Luxembourg and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President concerning the Democratic Republic of the Congo, especially its resolutions 2053(2012) of 27 June 2012, 2076(2012) of 20 November 2012, 2078(2012) of 28 November 2012, 2098(2013) of 28 March 2013 and 2136(2014) of 30 January 2014,

Recalling also its resolution 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013 and reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the need and situation of the country concerned,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Democratic Republic of the Congo as well as all States in the region, and emphasizing the need to respect fully the principles of non-interference, good-neighbourliness and regional cooperation,

Stressing the primary responsibility of the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo for ensuring security in its territory and protecting its civilians with respect for the rule of law, human rights and international humanitarian law,

Noting that eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo has continued to suffer from recurring cycles of conflict and persistent violence by armed groups, both Congolese and foreign, and emphasizing the need to address the root causes of conflict to put an end to these recurring cycles of violence,

Welcoming the efforts of the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, the Southern African Development Community and the African Union to restore peace and security in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, and encouraging the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to continue to ensure close cooperation with these and other international parties,

Recalling the signing in Addis Ababa on 24 February 2013 of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Region (the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework), under the auspices of its guarantors, namely the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the Chairperson of the African Union Commission, the Chairperson of the Southern African Development Community and the Chairperson of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, and calling upon all parties to continue to implement promptly, fully and in good faith their respective commitments,

Welcoming the Regional Oversight Mechanism's calling for a broader political dialogue in its communiqué of 31 January 2014, and the initial dialogue between key signatory States initiated by Angola in its role as Chair of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, encouraging the continuation of such dialogue under the auspices of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework to resolve the root causes of conflict in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Great Lakes region, and welcoming the continued engagement of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region,

Reaffirming its strongest support to the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo in the implementation of their mandate, and strongly encouraging the continuation of their efforts,

Reiterating its deep concern regarding the security and humanitarian crisis in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo due to ongoing destabilizing activities of foreign and domestic armed groups, and stressing the importance of neutralizing all armed groups, including the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, the Allied Democratic Forces, the Lord's Resistance Army, the Bakata-Katanga and various Mai Mai groups,

Welcoming the end of the rebellion by the 23 March Movement and the signing in Nairobi on 12 December 2013 by the 23 March Movement, the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the Southern African Development Community and the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region of the documents concluding the Kampala Dialogue facilitated by Uganda as Chair of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region, and stressing the importance of ensuring that all provisions of the signed documents are implemented swiftly and in good faith and, in this regard, that the 23 March Movement does not regroup and resume military activities, in line with the Nairobi declarations and relevant Security Council resolutions,

Expressing deep concern regarding the sustained regional threat posed by the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, a group under United Nations sanctions whose leaders and members include perpetrators of the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which Hutu and others who opposed the genocide were also killed, and have continued to promote and commit ethnically based and other killings in Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and stressing the importance of permanently addressing this threat,

Expressing concern that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, as well as other armed groups, continue to have freedom of movement in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, noting with deep concern reports indicating collaboration by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo with the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda at a local level, and welcoming in this regard the plans by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, supported by the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, to neutralize the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, and stressing the need to put such plans into sustained action,

Recalling the statements by the President of the Security Council on the Central African region and the Lord's Resistance Army, including the statements of 29 May and 25 November 2013, commending the important ongoing efforts being undertaken by the Mission in the fight against the Lord's Resistance Army, encouraging further efforts of the African Union-Regional Task Force, and urging greater cooperation and information-sharing between relevant United Nations bodies, the Regional Task Force regional forces and non-governmental organizations in tackling the threat of the Lord's Resistance Army, Expressing deep concern regarding the increasing number of internally displaced persons in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, now reaching more than 2.9 million, and the over 450,000 refugees from eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo caused by the various Congolese and foreign armed groups active in the region, calling upon the Democratic Republic of the Congo and all States in the region to work towards the peaceful environment conducive to the eventual voluntary return and reintegration of refugees to the Democratic Republic of the Congo, with the support, as appropriate, of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, commending in this regard the support provided by neighbouring countries to refugees from the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and encouraging the Governments of Rwanda and Uganda, and United Nations and international organizations to work together to urgently address the situation of former 23 March Movement combatants in Uganda and Rwanda,

Noting that it has been more than a year since hundreds of 23 March Movement combatants, including individuals designated by the Security Council, fled from the Democratic Republic of the Congo into Rwanda on 18 March 2013, encouraging the Government of Rwanda, with the assistance of relevant United Nations and international organizations, to continue to ensure that these combatants are permanently demobilized and are dealt with according to relevant international law, including special attention to children and women among them, and recalling the obligations of Member States, as renewed in resolution 2136(2014) of 30 January 2014,

Calling upon all parties to the conflict to respect the impartiality, independence and neutrality of humanitarian actors,

Remaining greatly concerned by the humanitarian situation that continues to severely affect the civilian population, in particular in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, and the persistent high levels of violence and violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international law, condemning in particular those involving targeted attacks against civilians, widespread sexual and gender-based violence, systematic recruitment and use of children by certain parties to the conflict, the displacement of significant numbers of civilians, extrajudicial executions and arbitrary arrests, and recognizing their deleterious effect on the stabilization, reconstruction and development efforts in the Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict and its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict,

Welcoming the efforts of the Mission and international partners in delivering training in human rights, child protection and protection from sexual and gender-based violence for Congolese security institutions, and underlining its importance, and welcoming the establishment of the Women's Platform for the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework in an effort to ensure the full participation of women in the Framework peace process,

Noting the ongoing efforts made by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to combat sexual violence in conflict, including through the implementation of its national strategy and the commitments outlined in the joint communiqué between the Government and the United Nations on the fight against sexual violence in conflict adopted in Kinshasa on 30 March 2013, and strongly encouraging the Government to increase its efforts in this regard,

Acknowledging the adoption of the Framework of Cooperation between the United Nations Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict and the African Union Commission concerning the Prevention and Response to Conflict-related Sexual Violence in Africa, in Addis Ababa on 31 January 2014,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 13 March 2014, which includes a list of parties responsible for patterns of rape and other forms of sexual violence in situations of armed conflict,

Condemning the mass rapes in Minova and the surrounding villages in November 2012 reportedly committed by soldiers of the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, taking note of the investigations and arrests undertaken thereafter by the Congolese authorities and the initial trials that are under way, expressing concern at the delays in the trials of those indicted, and urging the Congolese authorities to hold the perpetrators accountable while ensuring that all investigations and trials respect due process,

Calling for all those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law or violations and abuses of human rights, as applicable, including those involving violence or abuses against children and acts of sexual and gender-based violence, to be swiftly apprehended, brought to justice and held accountable,

Stressing the need for cooperation with the International Criminal Court by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, welcoming the commitment made by the Government to hold accountable those responsible for serious crimes, in particular war crimes and crimes against humanity, in the country, and stressing the importance of actively seeking to hold accountable those responsible for war crimes and crimes against humanity in the country and of regional and international cooperation to this end,

Recalling the Secretary-General's call to the Council to reject any endorsement of amnesty for genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity or gross violations of human rights and international humanitarian law, and welcoming in this regard the promulgation of the amnesty law in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, excluding those who have committed genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity or gross violations of human rights and international humanitarian law, and urging the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to follow through by undertaking the necessary judicial reform to ensure that the Democratic Republic of the Congo effectively addresses impunity,

Urging the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to remain fully committed to the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, including through the adoption of a priority action plan, and to protecting the civilian population through the swift establishment of professional, accountable and sustainable security forces, the deployment of an accountable Congolese civil administration, in particular the police, judiciary, prison and territorial administration and the consolidation of the rule of law and the promotion and protection of human rights,

Also urging the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to take immediate steps to uphold its commitment to security sector reform, including the creation and support of a rapid reaction force, the development of a road map for the security and justice sectors, the development of a comprehensive plan for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and for disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration, noting in this regard that the Government has proposed a new disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plan, all of which will require the allocation of necessary resources and a continued commitment from the Government to prioritize reform, and regretting that progress has been slow to date,

Reiterating its call upon all parties to cooperate fully with the Mission, and its condemnation of any and all attacks against peacekeepers, emphasizing that those responsible for such attacks must be held accountable, and recalling its decision to extend sanctions measures outlined in paragraph 3 of resolution 2136(2014) to individuals and entities that plan, direct, sponsor or participate in attacks against Mission peacekeepers,

Reiterating its call upon the Secretary-General to take all measures deemed necessary to strengthen United Nations field security arrangements and improve the safety and security of all military contingents, police officers, military observers and, especially, unarmed observers,

Recognizing the significant sacrifices made by the Mission, commending the active steps taken by the Mission, including its Intervention Brigade acting with the support of and in cooperation with the wider force structure of the Mission, to implement fully its mandate, in particular the protection of civilians, and encouraging the continuation of these efforts by the Mission,

Affirming that the successful protection of civilians is critical to the fulfilment of the mandate of the Mission and the delivery of an improved security environment, in this regard recognizing that the Mission has successfully deterred attacks on civilians through its approach to the protection of civilians, and welcoming the efforts made by the Mission to adapt the force in order to enhance the delivery of the Mission's comprehensive protection of civilians strategy, including by becoming more flexible, versatile and widely deployable across the whole of eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Underlining the importance of the Mission deterring any threats to the implementation of its mandate,

Recognizing the contribution of the Mission to a comprehensive strategy for durable peace and security, noting with appreciation the contribution that the Mission makes to early peacebuilding, and emphasizing that the activities of the Mission should be conducted in a manner so as to facilitate post-conflict peacebuilding, prevention of relapse into armed conflict and progress towards sustainable peace and development,

Stressing the importance of the full and urgent implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework to permanently reducing threats against civilians, noting the need for the Mission to strengthen support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to enable it to address security challenges and extend State authority of the Government as expressed in paragraph 5 of the Framework, and recognizing the need for a comprehensive peace process to put an end to the sources of conflict in the region,

Determining that the situation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

Mandate of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including, on an exceptional basis and without creating a precedent or any prejudice to the agreed principles of peacekeeping, its Intervention Brigade, within the authorized troop ceiling of 19,815 military personnel, 760 military observers and staff officers, 391 police personnel and 1,050 personnel of formed police units, until 31 March 2015;

2. Commends the Mission, including its Intervention Brigade, for the positive impact on peace and stability in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo and on the protection of civilians, fully supports the actions undertaken by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Democratic Republic of the Congo in the implementation of the mandate of the Mission, and encourages the Mission to maximize force interoperability, flexibility and effectiveness in the implementation of the entirety of the mandate of the Mission, in line with the report of the Secretary-General of 5 March 2014, bearing in mind the safety and security of all military contingents, police officers, military observers and, especially, unarmed observers;

3. Notes the need for a clear exit strategy, including for the Intervention Brigade, and decides that future reconfigurations of the Mission and its mandate should be determined on the basis of the evolution of the situation on the ground and, in the context of implementation by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and all other signatories to the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, progress towards the following objectives, in line with the three priorities of protection of civilians, stabilization and support to the implementation of the Framework, as set out in the mission concept:

(a) Reduction of the threat posed by Congolese and foreign armed groups, and violence against civilians, including sexual and gender-based violence and violence against children, to a level that can be effectively managed by the Congolese justice and security institutions;

(b) Stabilization through the establishment of functional, professional and accountable State institutions, including security institutions, in conflict-affected areas, and through strengthened democratic practices that reduce the risk of instability, including adequate political space, promotion and protection of human rights and a credible electoral process;

4. Authorizes the Mission, in pursuit of the objectives described in paragraph 3 above, to take all measures necessary to perform the following tasks:

(a) Protection of civilians

(i) Ensure, within its area of operations, effective protection of civilians under threat of physical violence, including through active patrolling, paying particular attention to civilians gathered in displaced and refugee camps, humanitarian personnel and human rights defenders, in the context of violence emerging from any of the parties engaged in the conflict, and mitigate the risk to civilians before, during and after any military operation;

(ii) Ensure the protection of United Nations personnel, facilities, installations and equipment and the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel;

(iii) Work with the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to identify threats to civilians and implement existing prevention and response plans and strengthen civil-military cooperation, including joint planning, to ensure the protection of civilians from abuses and violations of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including all forms of sexual and gender-based violence and violations and abuses committed against children, and requests the Mission to ensure that child protection and gender concerns are integrated into all operations and strategic aspects of the work of the Mission and accelerate the implementation of monitoring, analysis and reporting arrangements on conflict-related sexual violence and the swift deployment of women's protection advisers as called for in resolutions 1960(2010) and 2106(2013), in order to seek commitments on the prevention of and response to conflict-related sexual violence;

(b) Neutralizing armed groups through the Intervention Brigade

In support of the authorities of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, on the basis of information collation and analysis, and taking full account of the need to protect civilians and mitigate risk before, during and after any military operation, carry out targeted offensive operations through the Intervention Brigade, either unilaterally or jointly with the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in a robust, highly mobile and versatile manner and in strict compliance with international law, including international humanitarian law, and with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces, in cooperation with the whole of the Mission, prevent the expansion of all armed groups, neutralize these groups and disarm them in order to contribute to the objective of reducing the threat posed by armed groups to State authority and civilian security in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo and to make space for stabilization activities;

(c) Monitoring the implementation of the arms embargo

Monitor the implementation of the arms embargo as described in paragraph 1 of resolution 2136(2014) in cooperation with the Group of Experts on the Democratic Republic of the Congo established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) of 12 March 2004, and in particular observe and report on flows of military personnel, arms or related materiel across the eastern border of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including by using, as specified in the letter dated 22 January 2013 from the President of the Security Council to the Secretary-General, surveillance capabilities provided by unmanned aerial systems, seize, collect and dispose of arms or related materials brought into the Democratic Republic of the Congo in violation of the measures imposed by paragraph 1 of resolution 2136(2014), and share relevant information with the Group of Experts;

(d) Provision of support to national and international judicial processes

Support and work with the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to arrest and bring to justice those responsible for war crimes and crimes against humanity in the country, including through cooperation with States of the region and the International Criminal Court;

5. Also authorizes the Mission, in support of the Congolese authorities and their efforts to deliver the reforms called for in the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and stabilization in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, to contribute to the following tasks, in coordination with the United Nations country team and other actors, including through the good offices of the Special Representative:

(a) Encourage and accelerate national ownership of security sector reform by the authorities of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including through the urgent finalization and implementation of a national strategy for the establishment of effective, inclusive and accountable security and justice institutions by the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and play a leading role in coordinating the support for security sector reform provided by international and bilateral partners and the United Nations system;

(b) Promote peace consolidation and inclusive and transparent political dialogue among all Congolese stakeholders with a view to furthering reconciliation and democratization and encourage the organization of credible and transparent elections in line with the electoral cycle and the Constitution;

(c) Encourage the consolidation of an effective national civilian structure to control key mining activities and to manage in an equitable manner the extraction of and trade in natural resources in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(d) Monitor, report and follow up on human rights violations and abuses, including in the context of elections, and support the United Nations system in-country to ensure that any support provided by the United Nations shall be consistent with international humanitarian law and human rights law and refugee law as applicable;

(e) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to enable the development and finalization of a clear and comprehensive security sector reform implementation road map, including benchmarks and timelines to establish effective and accountable security institutions, including vetting mechanisms;

(f) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in compliance with the human rights due diligence policy, for a reform of the army, including, as a first step, the establishment of a vetted, well-trained and adequately equipped rapid reaction force within the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo which should form the nucleus for a professional, accountable, well-sustained and effective national defence force, and support, when appropriate and in coordination with international partners, the training of the rapid reaction force which should, in the frame of the benchmarks and timelines set by the security sector reform road map, develop the capacity to assume as soon as possible security responsibilities from the Intervention Brigade of the Mission;

(g) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the design and implementation of disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration plans for foreign and Congolese combatants not suspected of genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity or gross violations of human rights, aimed at integration into a peaceful civilian life contributing to stable communities in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, while paying specific attention to the needs of children formerly associated with armed forces and groups;

(h) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in close cooperation with other international partners, to build on the Government's Stabilization and Reconstruction Plan and the revised International Security and Stabilization Support Strategy to support the establishment of a minimum level of sustainable State authority and control in conflict-affected areas in eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo, including through area-based efforts to improve security and State authority and enable the commencement of sustainable socioeconomic recovery;

(i) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the reform of the police, including by contributing, in compliance with the human rights due diligence policy, to the provision of training to battalions of the Congolese National Police;

(j) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo for the development and the implementation, in accordance with the Congolese strategy for justice reform, of a multi-year joint United Nations justice support programme in order to develop independent criminal justice institutions and processes, the police, the judiciary and prisons in conflict-affected areas;

(k) Provide good offices, advice and support to the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to promote human rights and to fight impunity, including through the implementation of the Government's "zero-tolerance policy" with respect to discipline and human rights and international humanitarian law violations committed by elements of the security sector;

(l) Continue to collaborate with the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in the swift and vigorous implementation of the action plan to prevent and end the recruitment and use of children and sexual violence against children by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and continue dialogue with all listed parties to obtain further commitments and work towards the development and implementation of time-bound action plans to prevent and end the recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law and other violations of international humanitarian law;

6. Reiterates that multidimensional peacekeeping requires a comprehensive approach, and requests the military and civilian components of the Mission to focus on a coherent division of labour in accordance with their respective comparative advantages and available capacities;

7. Stresses that integrated action on the ground by security and development actors requires coordination with national authorities in order to stabilize and improve the security situation and assist in the restoration of State authority, and underlines the importance of integrated efforts among all United Nations entities in the field to promote coherence in the work of the United Nations in conflict and post-conflict situations;

Transfer of responsibilities

8. Requests that the Secretary-General continue to report on the current division of labour between the Mission and the United Nations country team on tasks shared by the Mission, the country team and the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and on the road map on the transfer of responsibilities to other actors, primarily the Government, but also the country team and donors, in order to streamline the tasks assigned to the Mission, and expresses its intention to keep the mandate of the Mission under review on the basis of this reporting;

9. Calls upon the Mission to continue to work with the United Nations country team and the Congolese authorities towards the adoption and implementation of the Peace Consolidation Programme covering provinces not affected by the conflict, and requests the Mission, where appropriate, to continue to transfer tasks to the country team and the Congolese authorities in those provinces;

10. Urges the international community and donors to support the Mission and the United Nations country team, and calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and neighbouring States to remain engaged in the process of transfer of responsibilities;

Elections

11. Calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and its national partners to ensure a transparent and credible electoral process, in fulfilment of their primary responsibility to create propitious conditions for the forthcoming elections, and urges the Government as well as all relevant parties to ensure an environment conducive to a free, fair, credible, inclusive, transparent, peaceful and timely electoral process, which includes free and constructive political debate, freedom of expression, freedom of assembly, equitable access to media, including State media, safety and freedom of movement for all candidates, as well as for election observers and witnesses, journalists, human rights defenders and actors from civil society, including women;

12. Calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to adopt without delay the electoral cycle road map and budget, and, upon notification to the Security Council by the Secretary-General of their adoption, authorizes the Mission to provide logistical support, as appropriate and in coordination with Congolese authorities and the United Nations country team, to facilitate the electoral cycle, and decides that this support will be continually assessed and reviewed according to the progress made by the Congolese authorities in the steering of the electoral process, in accordance with the criteria set out in paragraph 16 of resolution 2053(2012);

Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework

13. Reiterates the importance of implementing the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework to the achievement of long-term stability of eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo and the region;

14. Urges all signatory States of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework to continue to fully and promptly implement their commitments in good faith;

15. Calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, which has the primary responsibility for safeguarding its sovereignty and territorial integrity, to make further meaningful progress in implementing its commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, as well as the other signatories to the Framework;

16. Calls upon the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region, in coordination with and with the appropriate support from the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Democratic Republic of the Congo, to continue to lead, coordinate and assess the implementation of the national and regional commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and, building on the Framework, to encourage a high-level regional political dialogue between key signatories to address the underlying root causes of the conflict, noting the initial dialogue between key signatories already under way under the leadership of Angola as Chair of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region and encouraging the Special Envoy to continue to engage with this process;

Armed groups

17. Strongly condemns all armed groups operating in the region and their violations of international humanitarian law as well as other applicable international law, and abuses of human rights, including attacks on the civilian population, Mission peacekeepers and humanitarian actors, summary executions, sexual and gender-based violence and large-scale recruitment and use of children, and reiterates that those responsible will be held accountable;

18. Demands that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, the Allied Democratic Forces, the Lord's Resistance Army, the Bakata-Katanga and various Mai Mai groups cease immediately all forms of violence and other destabilizing activities and that their members immediately and permanently disband, lay down their arms and demobilize children from their ranks;

19. Expresses concern that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, as well as other armed groups, continue to have freedom of movement in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, notes with deep concern reports indicating collaboration by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo with the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda at a local level, and welcomes in this regard the plans by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, supported by the Mission, to neutralize the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, and stresses the need to put such plans into sustained action;

20. Demands that the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in accordance with its commitments in the Nairobi declarations of 12 December 2013, take immediate steps to implement its disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme, in coordination with the United Nations, international organizations and neighbouring countries where former 23 March Movement combatants have found refuge, requests, in this respect and in accordance with the Nairobi declarations and in line with commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework agreement, the United Nations and international organizations to work together with neighbouring States to urgently address the situation of former 23 March Movement combatants located in their territories, and stresses the importance of ensuring that all provisions of the signed documents are implemented swiftly and in good faith and, in this regard, that the 23 March Movement does not regroup and resume military activities, in line with the Nairobi declarations and relevant Council resolutions;

21. Calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to urgently put in place and implement comprehensive plans for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and for disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration to be able to effectively deal with former combatants;

22. Notes that former 23 March Movement combatants, including individuals designated by the Council, fled from the Democratic Republic of the Congo into Rwanda and Uganda, especially following the defeat of the 23 March Movement in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, encourages the Governments of Rwanda and Uganda, with the assistance of the United Nations and relevant international organizations, to continue to ensure that these combatants are permanently demobilized, that Congolese combatants are returned to the Democratic Republic of the Congo to complete a disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, as appropriate, and are dealt with according to relevant international law, with special attention to children and women among them, and recalls the obligations of Member States under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and the sanctions regime as renewed by resolution 2136(2014);

23. Reiterates its support to the Expanded Joint Verification Mechanism as a regional confidence-building mechanism, and welcomes the decision of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region to grant permanent representation of the Mission in this mechanism;

Human rights/humanitarian

24. Urges the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to arrest and hold accountable those responsible for war crimes and crimes against humanity in the country, and stresses the importance to this end of both regional cooperation and cooperation with the International Criminal Court;

25. Calls upon the Congolese authorities to ensure the prosecution of those responsible for the grave human rights violations and abuses committed in the context of the 28 November 2011 elections;

26. Encourages the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to continue to build on its cooperation with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict and to vigorously implement, with the support of the Mission as appropriate, the action plan to prevent and end the recruitment and use of children and sexual violence by the Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and encourages the President of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Mr. Joseph Kabila, to swiftly appoint the proposed Presidential Adviser on Sexual Violence and the Recruitment of Children;

27. Requests the Mission to take fully into account gender considerations as a cross-cutting issue throughout its mandate and to assist the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in ensuring the participation, involvement and representation of women at all levels, including in stabilization activities, security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes, as well as in the national political dialogue and electoral processes, through, inter alia, the provision of gender advisers, and further requests enhanced reporting by the Mission to the Council on this issue;

28. Also requests the Mission to take fully into account child protection as a cross-cutting issue throughout its mandate and to assist the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in ensuring that the protection of children's rights is taken into account, inter alia, in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes and in security sector reform in order to end and prevent violations and abuses against children;

29. Calls upon all actors to strengthen their efforts to combat impunity for conflict-related sexual violence, to provide all necessary services to survivors and to ensure the equal and full inclusion of women in the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and at all stages of conflict resolution, reconstruction and the promotion of peace, including through taking account of the call in the Bujumbura Declaration of 11 July 2013 for ensuring that benchmarks, indicators and follow-up measures of the plan of implementation for the Framework are gender-sensitive;

United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo

30. Calls upon the Mission to coordinate strategies with other United Nations missions in the region for enhanced information-sharing in the light of the attacks by the Lord's Resistance Army, and reiterates support to the respective initiatives taken by the United Nations and the African Union to facilitate regional action against the Lord's Resistance Army, consistent with paragraph 4 (a) above;

31. Encourages the Mission to enhance its interaction with the civilian population to raise awareness and understanding about its mandate and activities through a comprehensive public outreach programme, to identify potential threats against the civilian population and to collect reliable information on violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights perpetrated against civilians;

32. Requests the Secretary-General to take the measures necessary to ensure full compliance of the Mission with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuses and to keep the Council informed if cases of such conduct occur;

33. Requests the Mission to ensure that any support provided to national security forces is in strict compliance with the United Nations human rights due diligence policy, and urges the United Nations system in the Democratic Republic of the Congo to adopt a joint and uniform approach regarding implementation of the human rights due diligence policy;

34. Demands that all parties cooperate fully with the operations of the Mission and allow and facilitate full, safe, immediate and unhindered access for United Nations and associated personnel in carrying out their mandate and the timely delivery of humanitarian assistance to populations in need, in particular to internally displaced persons, throughout the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, respecting the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance and relevant provisions of international law;

35. Calls upon all Member States to generously contribute to the United Nations humanitarian appeal for the Democratic Republic of the Congo to help to ensure that United Nations humanitarian agencies and other international organizations are fully funded and able to address the protection and assistance needs of internally displaced persons, survivors of sexual violence and other vulnerable communities;

36. Calls upon Member States to pledge and provide the remaining force enablers, in particular military air assets, required for the Mission, and recalls the importance of close consultations with troop- and police-contributing countries;

37. Notes that it is important that all Mission contingents, including the contingents of the Intervention Brigade, are properly prepared and effectively equipped to be able to carry out their respective tasks;

38. Expresses its full support to the Group of Experts established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) and calls for enhanced cooperation between all States, particularly those in the region, the Mission and the Group of Experts, encourages all parties and all States to ensure cooperation with the Group of Experts by individuals and entities within their jurisdiction or under their control, and reiterates its demand that all parties and all States ensure the safety of its members and its support staff and unhindered and immediate access, in particular to persons, documents and sites that the Group of Experts deems relevant to the execution of its mandate;

Strategic review

39. Requests that the Secretary-General conduct a thorough strategic review of the Mission and the wider United Nations presence in the Democratic Republic of the Congo in order to provide recommendations on the future objectives, activities, exit strategy and effective deployment of resources of the Mission, to the Council by 30 December 2014, bearing in mind the need to continue to increase the effectiveness of the Mission;

Reports of the Secretary-General

40. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council every three months on:

- (i) The situation on the ground, including sexual violence and the impact of conflict on women and children;
- (ii) Progress made by the Democratic Republic of the Congo in the implementation of its commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, including through the establishment and implementation of a national security sector reform road map and the creation of a Congolese rapid reaction force, and on the implementation of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, resettlement and reintegration plans;
- (iii) The implementation by the Mission of its mandate, including the activities of the Intervention Brigade, its reconfiguration to conduct the tasks set out above and the ongoing transfer of responsibilities to other actors;
- (iv) The risks and their implications for the safety and the security of United Nations personnel and facilities as a result of the possible military operations as well as measures taken to strengthen their security and mitigate risks;

41. Also requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council every six months, in coordination with his Special Envoy for the Great Lakes Region and his Special Representative for the Democratic Republic of the Congo, on the implementation of the commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework;

42. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (March). In a 5 March report [S/2014/157] issued pursuant to resolution 2147(2014) (see p. 193), the Secretary-General highlighted progress made by MONUSCO in the implementation of its mandate since his previous report [YUN 2013, p. 120], and provided an update on the reconfiguration of the Mission and the development of the road map for the transfer of activities to the UN country team.

The DRC had made gradual progress on implementing the six national commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, though the progress achieved did not guarantee that the reform processes and initiatives required to stabilize eastern DRC would take hold.

Following the liberation of areas previously occupied by the M23 in North Kivu, MONUSCO supported the Government's efforts to restore state authority in the East, including through the deployment of key state actors to prevent a return to conflict. As part of this process, approximately 950 Congolese National Police and representatives from provincial Ministries were redeployed to Rutshuru and Kiwanja.

Although the threat posed by the M23 to civilians was removed from North Kivu, threats from other armed groups continued in the East. MONUSCO joint protection teams continued to monitor potential threats to the civilian population to assess the situation in vulnerable areas. The Mission adopted a more robust posture, presence and profile, in particular against ADF and FDLR. Though purely offensive operations had yet to be undertaken by MONUSCO, the Mission provided support to the offensive operations launched on 16 January by the armed forces of the DRC against ADF around Kamango.

MONUSCO positioned its Force Intervention Brigade battalions in strategic areas in Rwindi, Walikale and Kibumba.

Following the identification of a road map of tasks to be transferred from MONUSCO to the UN country team, detailed plans of the handover in areas not affected by armed conflict were developed and bridging arrangements, transfer locations and timelines were confirmed. As a transitional arrangement, MONUSCO would make staff available to agencies for certain tasks. Next steps included developing a resource mobilization strategy for the UN country team to attract the necessary resources. MONUSCO continued the planning and implementation of the Mission's reconfiguration to the East, and drafted its Mission Concept, outlining a vision for an operational and field-based Mission, focusing on areas affected by armed conflict. As at 1 July, MONUSCO would cease its aviation, movement control and transport services in all antenna locations except Mbandaka. Other services would either cease or be reduced to serve the antennas only. The Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of MONUSCO.

Communication. In a 26 June letter [S/2014/447] to the President of the Security Council, Rwanda described its objection to the request for a travel ban exemption in favour of a UN-sanctioned individual called Gaston Rumuli Iyamuremye, referred to as President ad interim of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda (FDLR). Rwanda had nevertheless been subsequently informed that MONUSCO did not even wait for the decision of the Chair of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) concerning the DRC before starting the process of airlifting Mr. Iyamuremye and other FDLR leaders, including individuals wanted by the Government of Rwanda for their responsibility in the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi.

Reports of Secretary-General (June and September). Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2147(2014), the Secretary-General issued a 30 June report [S/2014/450] highlighting progress made by MONUSCO in the implementation of its mandate and providing an update on the reconfiguration of MONUSCO and the development of the road map for the transfer of activities to the UN country team.

The political environment was increasingly dominated by the debate among key actors over the conduct of the electoral process, in particular in the wake of the publication by the Independent National Electoral Commission of a partial electoral calendar, which set the time frame for the organization of the municipal, urban and local elections from June to October 2015. Implementation of other commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and the National Dialogue had also continued, albeit haltingly.

Security threats to UN staff, premises and operations remained high in the northern part of North Kivu Province owing to ADF directly targeting UN staff and installations. The implementation of the road map on the transfer of responsibilities to the UN country team was moving forward. The transfer of electoral assistance and the consolidation of peace and democracy tasks, however, posed significant challenges in the absence of adequate funding by the Government and donors. The implementation of the transfer road map highlighted the urgent capacity needs of the UN country team before it could fully take over MONUSCO responsibilities.

Some progress had been made in the overall implementation of the UN strategy to address the recurring cycles of violence in eastern DRC. Following the defeat of M23, military operations against ADF had continued and the first steps towards the disarmament of FDLR had been taken. The Government's presence in areas cleared of armed groups, including in the areas of stability supported by MONUSCO, was gradually increasing. That progress, however, remained extremely fragile. According to the Secretary-General, the disarmament of FDLR, initiated on 30 May, needed to be completed without delay.

Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2147(2014), the Secretary-General issued a 24 September report [S/2014/697] on the implementation of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the DRC and the region. The report described regional peace and security initiatives in relation to eastern DRC, and reviewed progress in advancing the objectives of the Framework, including measures taken by stakeholders to implement the regional plan of action adopted by Heads of State in Addis Ababa on 31 January (see p. 194).

Although some progress had been achieved, several obstacles continued to obstruct the Framework's full implementation. While the security situation in eastern DRC had generally improved, a lack of trust between neighbouring countries, the activities of armed groups and slow progress in the implementation of the Nairobi declarations (the Kampala Dialogue [YUN 2013, p. 119] outcome documents signed at Nairobi on 12 December 2013 by the DRC and M23), continued to threaten long-term stability in eastern DRC and undermine bilateral relations between some countries in the region. In July, the Secretary-General appointed Said Djinnit (Algeria) as his new Special Envoy for the Great Lakes Region replacing Mary Robinson (Ireland).

The (FDLR announced their readiness to surrender and demanded an inter-Rwandan dialogue as a condition for disarming. As at 31 August, only 103 FDLR combatants and 202 dependants had surrendered in North Kivu, while 83 combatants with 236 dependants had disarmed in South Kivu. Those individuals were currently in two transit camps run by MONUSCO.

The President of Angola, José Eduardo dos Santos, in his role as Chair of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region (ICGLR), had been leading regional efforts to build consensus on the eradication of armed groups in eastern DRC. Against the background of the new dynamic generated by the FDLR voluntary disarmament process, States members of ICGLR and the Southern African Development Community (SADC) held a joint ministerial meeting in Luanda on 2 July and discussed, in addition to the FDLR issue, the implementation of the Nairobi declarations. They issued a joint communiqué in which they urged FDLR to disarm within six months and scheduled a midterm review of the process in October. Those positions were reiterated during an ICGLR mini-summit held in Luanda on 14 August and endorsed at the thirty-fourth Summit of SADC Heads of State and Government, held in Pretoria, South Africa on 17 and 18 August.

As for the foreign and local armed groups operating in eastern DRC, the country's armed forces, supported by MONUSCO, had continued to carry out military operations against the Allied Democratic Forces (ADF) and the Alliance des patriotes pour un Congo libre et souverain. Limited progress was achieved in the implementation of the DRC national commitments, while the countries in the region, by and large, had continued to adhere to their commitments, in particular those related to non-interference in the internal affairs of neighbouring countries and assistance or support to armed groups, despite unverified reports to the contrary. The Secretary-General maintained that one of the most pressing issues was the lack of expeditious implementation of the Nairobi declarations, which perpetuated mistrust among Member States. He encouraged the DRC to work closely with Rwanda and Uganda to establish clear timelines and appropriate follow-up actions to conclude the repatriation of former M23 combatants. The neutralization of all armed groups in eastern DRC, including FDLR, through non-military and military actions, also remained a high priority; and, in that respect, the Secretary-General endorsed the six-month time frame by the SADC Heads of State for the FDLR to disarm unconditionally in a timely manner.

In a 25 September report [S/2014/698], also issued pursuant to resolution 2147(2014), the Secretary-General highlighted progress made since his previous report (see above) by MONUSCO in the implementation of its mandate, and provided an update on the reconfiguration of MONUSCO and the development of the road map for the transfer of activities to the UN country team.

The formation of a new Government of national cohesion did not take place during the reporting period. The extraordinary session of Parliament, which was expected to focus on the adoption of three laws on the organization of local, provincial and general elections, and one law modifying article 70 of the Constitution in order to change the voting system for provincial elections, also was not held. That fuelled speculation about further revisions of the Constitution aimed at circumventing presidential term limits. On 12 July, a matrix of 56 benchmarks and 347 indicators for the six national commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework was endorsed at a high-level validation seminar organized by the National Oversight Mechanism and the Ministry of Planning, with the support of MONUSCO, the UN country team and international partners. Emphasizing national ownership of the benchmarking process, the seminar paved the way for the inclusion of the national commitments in the budget planning for 2015. On 17 September, the Steering Committee of the National Oversight Mechanism, chaired by President Kabila, adopted the matrix.

The handover of substantive responsibilities to the UN country team was completed on 1 July. Consequently, MONUSCO no longer had responsibility in non-conflict areas for human rights training, helping children affected by armed conflict, combating sexual violence, mine action, justice and corrections, the extraction and trade of natural resources (including in conflict-affected areas) and the consolidation of peace and democracy. For most of those responsibilities, the full continuation of activities depended on generating additional resources and on the reversal of the declining field presence of the UN country team. Electoral assistance, however, continued to pose a significant challenge, since donors had placed the funding of the proposed United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) electoral assistance project on hold.

The Secretary-General observed that despite improvements in security in some areas, some returns of displaced persons and the redeployment of the police, gains remained tenuous and progress in preparing and mobilizing support for the safe and voluntary return of refugees had been slow. Some disarmed combatants had returned to the bush. While previous threats to the authority of the State in eastern DRC had been mitigated, residual armed groups continued to fight over territory and mining sites and to attack and harass civilians. He encouraged the Governments of the DRC, Rwanda and Uganda to set out a time-bound road map for the repatriation of former M23 combatants from Rwanda and Uganda. In particular, the DRC needed to accelerate the processing of amnesty requests signed by former M23 combatants, whose individual repatriation depended on the completion of that process.

Communication. In identical letters of 20 October [S/2014/753] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council, the DRC explained the circumstances that prompted Congolese authorities to end cooperation and expel from the country the Director of the United Nations Joint Human Rights Office of MONUSCO.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 5 November [meeting 7296], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/22 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council expresses its deep concern over the lack of progress of the voluntary disarmament process of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda, as assessed in the joint International Conference on the Great Lakes Region and Southern African Development Community communiqué of 20 October 2014. The Council recalls its statement to the press of 3 October 2014 and stresses again that there should be no further delay beyond the end date of 2 January 2015 set by the region for the voluntary disarmament process. The Council calls upon the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to immediately update operational plans for military action that should begin no later than January 2015 against the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda. The Council reiterates once again its call upon the Government, in coordination with the Mission, to immediately undertake military action against those leaders and members of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda who do not engage in the demobilization process or who continue to carry out human rights abuses.

The Council further recalls that the swift neutralization of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda is a top priority in bringing stability to and protecting the civilians of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Great Lakes region, in line with the wider commitments made in the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the Region. The Council recalls that leaders and members of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda were among the perpetrators of the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which Hutu and others who opposed the genocide were also killed, and recalls that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda is a group under United Nations sanctions, operating in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, which has continued to promote and commit ethnically based and other killings in Rwanda and in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. The Council reiterates its call upon the region to comply with the commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework and to neither tolerate nor provide assistance or support of any kind to armed groups and to neither harbour nor provide protection of any kind to persons accused of violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights, in particular war crimes, crimes against humanity and acts of genocide, or persons falling under the United Nations sanctions regime. The Council further reiterates its readiness to consider targeted sanctions against any individual or entity found to be supporting the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda or any other armed group in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

The Council strongly condemns the recent attacks by the Allied Democratic Forces in the Beni territory, in which over 100 civilians, mostly women and children, were brutally killed. The Council takes note of the statement by President Kabila to immediately engage further military action to neutralize this group permanently, with the support of the Mission. In accordance with its resolution 2147(2014), the Council underlines the importance of ensuring the effective protection of civilians. The Council emphasizes that any effort to undermine the ability of the Mission to implement its mandate will not be tolerated and that those responsible for threats or attacks against peacekeepers must be held accountable.

The Council recalls the importance of completing the permanent demobilization of the former 23 March Movement combatants and calls for the acceleration of the implementation of the disarmament, demobilization, repatriation, reintegration and resettlement programme, in coordination with the regional States concerned. The Council stresses the need for all parties to overcome barriers to repatriation at the meeting to be held in Kinshasa on 7 November 2014 and reminds former 23 March Movement combatants of their commitments under the Nairobi declarations.

The Council stresses that the durable return of stability in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the region also requires the swift fulfilment of implementation of the reforms committed to by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo in the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework. The Council stresses the strategic importance of this agreement and calls upon all signatories to work together in a reinvigorated way in order to ensure delivery of the commitments made under the Framework. The Council expresses concern over the continued slow progress on security sector reform in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including the establishment of an Armed Forces of the Democratic Republic of the Congo rapid reaction force, and calls upon the Government to consolidate progress on the restoration of State authority and on the wider governance, economic and security sector reforms needed in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

The Council expresses its full support to the mandate of good offices of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Democratic Republic of the Congo as outlined in its resolution 2147(2014). The Council also welcomes the engagement of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Great Lakes Region and calls upon him, in coordination with the Special Representative, to continue to lead, coordinate and assess the implementation of the national and regional commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework.

The Council recalls that the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and its national partners bear responsibility for ensuring a transparent and credible electoral process. The Council calls for the publication of a comprehensive electoral calendar and budget and underlines the importance of full and timely planning and preparation for upcoming parliamentary and presidential elections. The Council reiterates the importance of a free, fair, inclusive and peaceful election process that respects the will of the Congolese people, in line with the national commitments of the Democratic Republic of the Congo made under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework agreement aimed at furthering the agenda of reconciliation, tolerance and democratization. The Council underlines that successful and credible elections in line with the Constitution of the Democratic Republic of the Congo would be a key element in the continuing work to promote democracy, human rights and the rule of law in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and form a key part of efforts to build long-term peace and stability in the region.

The Council also recalls that logistical support could be provided by the Mission only once the electoral cycle road map and budget have been adopted. The Council also recalls that this support will be continually assessed and reviewed according to the progress made by the Congolese authorities in the steering of the electoral process, in accordance with the criteria set out in paragraph 16 of its resolution 2053(2012).

The Council recalls the importance of promoting and protecting human rights and fighting impunity. The Council notes with deep concern the persistence of serious human rights abuses and international humanitarian law violations against civilians in the Democratic Republic of the Congo committed by armed groups, including the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda. The Council also expresses deep concern at reports and allegations indicating the persistence of serious human rights and international humanitarian law violations committed by Congolese security and defence forces and reiterates the need to fight against impunity in this regard.

In this context, the Council expresses its grave concern at the decision of the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to expel the head of the United Nations Joint Human Rights Office in the Democratic Republic of the Congo. The Council further expresses concern over recent threats made against other staff members of the Office. The Council recalls that monitoring, reporting and follow-up on human rights violations and abuses and violations of international humanitarian law are fully part of the mandate of the Mission and expresses its full support to the Office, the Mission and the United Nations personnel. The Council recalls the importance of the obligations and commitments of the Government in terms of the promotion and protection of human rights and the fight against impunity, and calls upon the Government to investigate the allegations included in the report. The Council calls for continued cooperation and dialogue between the Mission and the Government. In this regard, the Council takes note of the letter dated 20 October 2014 from the Permanent Representative of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to the President of the Security Council and of the willingness expressed by the Government to continue to work with the Mission, including the Office.

The Council reiterates its full support for the Mission and calls upon all parties to cooperate fully with the Mission and to remain committed to the full and objective implementation of the mandate of the Mission. The Council commends the work of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General in the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In a 30 December report [S/2014/956] issued pursuant to resolution 2147(2014) (see p. 193), the Secretary-General highlighted progress made since his 24 September report (see p. 202) by MONUSCO in the implementation of its mandate, and provided an update on the reconfiguration of the Mission and on the development of the road map for the transfer of activities to the UN country team.

The debate on a potential third term for President Joseph Kabila dominated the political scene and triggered various, and sometimes violent, reactions. On 20 October, a coalition of opposition parties addressed a letter to the Secretary-General's Special Representative, calling for the support of MONUSCO to ensure the full implementation by the Government of the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework, notably with regard to commitments on national reconciliation, tolerance and democratization. On 7 December, President Kabila appointed a Government of "national cohesion" comprising 47 members from the ruling coalition and the political opposition.

In the absence of progress towards the development by the Government of a comprehensive national security-sector reform strategy, the reorganization of the FARDC leadership structure in October and of the Presidential Guard in November was welcomed as a positive step that could facilitate the improvement of the defence sector. The reform of the police progressed at a slow pace, owing mainly to the lack of allocation of adequate financial resources by the Government.

MONUSCO established three additional areas of stability in eastern DRC, bringing the total to nine across Katanga, North Kivu, Orientale Province and South Kivu. MONUSCO and the UN country team conducted an in-depth analysis of the status of the transfer of responsibilities. The assessment confirmed that in most cases the assumption of additional responsibilities by the UN country team was hampered by the lack of adequate funding. Recommendations included further defining respective roles in relation to justice and corrections reform and support to rule of law institutional capacity-building; children affected by armed conflict; coordinating the national strategy on sexual and gender-based violence; the extraction and trade of natural resources; and electoral assistance. MONUSCO and the UN country team agreed to develop a joint strategic plan based on a revised United Nations Development Assistance Framework for 2013–2017.

The Secretary-General expressed concern by the resurgence of horrific attacks by ADF and affiliated elements, which resulted in the deaths of hundreds of civilians. He supported the increasing cooperation between FARDC and the MONUSCO Force. The Secretary-General was also concerned about the repeated refusal of the M23 Coordinator to engage with the DRC on the implementation of the Nairobi declarations.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/173], the Secretary-General noted that the Framework continued to face significant challenges that hindered its full implementation, largely due to limited progress in neutralizing armed groups in eastern DRC and persistent mistrust between the leaders of the region. In particular, the lack of meaningful progress in the disarmament of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda (FDLR) continued to dominate discussions. During the six months granted to them to disarm and surrender, FDLR reportedly continued to commit human rights violations, recruit combatants and send mixed signals about its willingness to disarm fully. Victor Byiringiro, the acting leader of FDLR, released several communiqués in which he portrayed FDLR members as Rwandan refugees and demanded a political dialogue with the Government of Rwanda. He also raised alleged challenges relating to the disarmament process, including the limited capacity of the transit camps established to receive FDLR combatants.

With regard to the implementation of the Nairobi declarations by the DRC and M23, the Government continued to process applications submitted by ex-M23 combatants. Meanwhile, Uganda urged the DRC to repatriate all the ex-M23 elements present in Uganda by the end of December.

The appointment of the long-awaited Government of national cohesion on 7 December represented a positive step towards implementation of the sixth national commitment relating to national reconciliation. The Government, however, had yet to accelerate the implementation of the reforms identified in the Framework and by the National Oversight Mechanism.

The Secretary-General called upon the leaders of the region to work together to define mutually acceptable solutions to neutralize the armed groups operating in eastern DRC. He also encouraged the countries concerned to revive joint mechanisms and to convene a summit of the Economic Community of the Great Lakes Countries as soon as possible. Individuals associated with violence in the DRC and the region, some of whom were under United Nations or international sanctions, or under international arrest warrants, remained at large.

Children and armed conflict

President of Security Council letter. In a letter of 11 November [S/2014/809], the President of the Security Council forwarded to the Secretary-General a letter dated 7 November from the Chair of the Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict. The Working Group had examined the fifth report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict in the DRC [YUN 2013, p. 121]. Based on its conclusions adopted on 19 September, the Group requested the Secretary-General to ensure that MONUSCO and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), as well as other relevant UN agencies, continue to strengthen their efforts to support the Congolese authorities in fighting impunity, including through the strengthening of the criminal justice system in accordance with the Congolese strategy for justice reform; establish effective recruitment procedures and age verification mechanisms in the national armed and security forces to prevent the recruitment and use of children in the DRC; mainstream the specific needs of children affected by armed conflict and the protection of their rights in all disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes and in security sector reform; provide long-term rehabilitation and reintegration programmes and opportunities to children formerly associated with national armed forces and non-State armed groups and training of the national armed and security forces on the protection of children; bolster the education and health-care system; and establish standard operating procedures for the handover of children formerly associated with national armed forces and groups and for the protection of children in the course of military operations. The Working Group further requested the Secretary-General to ensure that the UN country task force on monitoring and reporting reach out to non-State armed groups with a view to developing action plans to end and prevent the recruitment and use of children, attacks on schools and hospitals, and the killing, maiming, rape and other forms of sexual violence against children in the DRC.

Arms embargo

The Security Council Committee on the DRC—established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 137] to monitor the arms embargo on armed groups that was imposed by resolution 1493(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 130]—reported on its 2014 activities in December [S/2014/919].

The Committee met four times in informal consultations, on 17 January, 4 April, 19 June and 17 September, in addition to conducting its work through written procedures. During the informal consultations on 17 January and 19 June, the Group of Experts on the DRC briefed the Committee on the main findings contained in its final report [YUN 2013, p. 122] and a mid-term report, respectively (see below). At the informal consultations on 17 September, the Committee was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict. Both provided information on violations or alleged violations of the sanctions measures and stressed the importance of imposing targeted sanctions against individuals operating in violation of those measures.

The Committee received implementation reports from Portugal [S/AC.43/2014/1] and Latvia [S/AC.43/2014/2] on action taken to implement the measures imposed by resolution 2136(2014) (see p. 189). The Committee added an entity to the list of individuals and entities subject to the travel ban and assets freeze imposed by paragraphs 13 and 15 of resolution 1596(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 192], as renewed by paragraph 3 of resolution 2078(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 111].

Group of Experts

The Group of Experts on the DRC was established pursuant to Security Council resolution 1533(2004) to gather and analyse information on flows of arms and related materiel as well as networks operating in violation of the measures imposed by paragraph 20 of resolution 1493(2003). On 13 March [S/2014/183], as requested by Council resolution 2136(2014), the Secretary-General extended the tenure of the Group of Experts for a period expiring on 1 February 2015 and appointed six experts to the Group.

Reports of Group of Experts. On 19 June, pursuant to Security Council resolution 1533(2004), and also in accordance with Council resolution

For the countries of the Great Lakes region, the Group recommended that they submit on a monthly basis a comprehensive list of imports, production and exports of cassiterite, wolframite, coltan and gold to the ICGLR for inclusion in its regional database. In its recommendation to the DRC, the Group said that the Government should investigate the illegal export of the ivory that was seized in Kampala in October 2013 and prosecute those who killed elephants to acquire the ivory, authorized its export and shipped it to Uganda.

The Group recommended that the Government of Uganda conduct a survey of all M23 ex-combatants and political cadres, including demographic information, and provide the results to the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) concerning the DRC; clarify the rules governing the freedom of movement of M23 ex-combatants and political cadres in Bihanga, Bombo and Kampala and report thereon to the Committee; and report to the Committee on the measures taken to address gold smuggling by the owners of the sanctioned entities, the Uganda Commercial Impex and Machanga Limited. In a later report [S/2015/19], the Group noted that the momentum created by the defeat of the M23 in November 2013 failed to translate into significant gains in security and stability in 2014 in eastern DRC. A military operation against ADF significantly weakened but did not defeat the sanctioned armed group. An expected military operation against FDLR did not materialize, and, as of the end of November 2014, efforts to negotiate the disarmament of FDLR had failed to produce meaningful results. In addition, numerous Congolese and foreign armed groups contributed to instability in Orientale, North Kivu, South Kivu and Katanga provinces.

While there had been progress on traceability and due diligence efforts concerning minerals produced in the DRC, smuggling continued. Elements of the DRC army (the Forces armées de la République démocratique du Congo or FARDC) and some armed groups remained involved in the minerals trade, potentially introducing conflict minerals into supply chains in the DRC and neighbouring States. There was no progress in addressing gold smuggling during the year in the DRC and Uganda, and scant evidence of interest in traceability and due diligence by those Governments or by the Government of the United Arab Emirates. The illegal exploitation of and trade in wildlife products, including ivory, remained a serious problem involving armed groups, elements of the DRC army, local poachers, and armed bands from South Sudan. FDLR and elements of the army remained involved in the production of and trade in charcoal and wood in North Kivu.

The Group noted that the Government of Burundi failed to notify the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1533(2004) concerning the DRC about the deployment of the Burundian army (the Force de défense nationale or FDN) in South Kivu. Although the deployment ended in October 2014, there were instances of sexual violence committed by the Burundian army and/or the Imbonerakure youth group during the deployment. The Group recommended that all Member States require that all deliveries of arms and ammunition to the DRC be subject to written confirmation from the Government of the DRC, that arms and ammunition stockpiles were managed in full compliance with international guidance and that Member States provide the Committee with copies of such confirmations.

MONUSCO

The United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO), first established as the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUC) by Security Council resolution 1279(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 92], continued to discharge its mandate as established in Council resolution 1925(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 123], which included to protect civilians, humanitarian personnel and human rights defenders under imminent threat of physical violence and to support the Government in its stabilization and peace consolidation efforts. By resolution 2147(2014) of 28 March (see p. 193), the Council extended the mandate of MONUSCO until 31 March 2015 including, on an exceptional basis and without creating a precedent or any prejudice to the agreed principles of peacekeeping, its intervention brigade, within the authorized troop ceiling of 19,815 military personnel, 760 military observers and staff officers, 391 police personnel, and 1,050 personnel of formed police units.

Strategic review of MONUSCO

In a December report [S/2014/957] issued pursuant to Council resolution 2147(2014), the Secretary-General conducted a strategic review of MONUSCO and the wider UN presence in the DRC, and provided recommendations on the Mission's future objectives, activities and exit strategy, and the effective deployment of its resources. Limited headway had been made in translating the political commitments under the Peace, Security and Cooperation Framework for DRC and the region into concrete action, including with regard to the implementation of the Nairobi declarations and the voluntary surrender of FDLR. The Secretary-General was concerned about the continued attacks on civilians in eastern DRC and political tensions related to the electoral process, which highlighted the fragility of the situation countrywide and the continued need for the presence of MONUSCO. Initial results notwithstanding, more needed to be done to neutralize foreign and Congolese armed groups and reduce the threat that they posed to a level that could be managed by national justice and security institutions. That required a more robust and proactive MONUSCO and a commitment from the Government to work in partnership with the Mission to combat those groups, restore State authority and find durable solutions for former fighters. The swift neutralization of FDLR and ADF was essential for longer-term peace and stability. The establishment of the Force Intervention Brigade within MONUSCO had proven to be a valuable tool in support of the broader objectives of the Framework, and its deployment should be extended, but urgent measures were needed to re-energize the Brigade and that called for a change in the behaviour of certain troop-contributing countries. All military contingents had to be ready and willing to use armed force against those who posed a threat to the civilian population, and to do so proactively. A reduction of the threat posed by Congolese and foreign armed groups to civilians, the establishment of stronger and accountable State institutions and the strengthening of democratic practices to reduce the risk of instability remained the key criteria guiding the gradual drawdown of MONUSCO.

Financing

The General Assembly considered the performance report [A/68/86 & Corr.1] on the MONUSCO budget for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, showing a total expenditure of $1,342,787,600 gross ($1,315,991,900 net) against an appropriation of $1,343,593,000 gross ($1,316,798,300 net), and the proposed budget of MONUSCO for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 [A/68/788], amounting to $1,380,028,900 gross ($1,354,484,100 net).

The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ), in May [A/68/782/Add.14], recommended an appropriation of $1,376,095,400 for the maintenance of the Mission for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, and to assess that amount at a monthly rate of $114,674,617 should the Security Council decide to extend the mandate of the Mission. ACABQ also recommended that the unencumbered balance of $805,400 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income/adjustments amounting to $22,598,500 for the period ended 30 June 2013, be credited to Member States.

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on the financing of MONUSCO to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session. Also, by decision 69/554, the General Assembly decided to defer the consideration of the item of armed aggression against the DRC to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee [A/68/924], adopted resolution 68/287 without vote [agenda item 152].

Financing of the United Nations
Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1925(2010) of 28 May 2010, by which the Council decided that, as from 1 July 2010, the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo would bear the title "United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo" and authorized a maximum of 19,815 military personnel, 760 military observers, 391 police personnel and 1,050 personnel of formed police units for the Mission, and recalling also the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission, the latest of which was resolution 2147(2014) of 28 March 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission until 31 March 2015,

Recalling also its resolution 54/260 A of 7 April 2000 on the financing of the Mission and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/273 of 28 June 2013,

Recalling further its resolution 58/315 of 1 July 2004,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Mission,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Mission with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 367.7 million United States dollars, representing some 3 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 28 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Mission in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

10. Also requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Mission is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

11. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the Mission for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

12. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo the amount of 1,506,067,900 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of 1,397,036,000 dollars for the maintenance of the Mission, 90,398,000 dollars for the support account for peacekeeping operations and 18,633,900 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy;

Financing of the appropriation

13. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 1,129,550,925 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 31 March 2015, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014 and 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

14. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 13 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 24,050,100 dollars, comprising the estimated staff assessment income of 18,498,375 dollars approved for the Mission, the prorated share of 4,303,200 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 1,248,525 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

15. Further decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 376,516,975 dollars for the period from 1 April to 30 June 2015, at a monthly rate of 125,505,658 dollars, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238, subject to a decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Mission;

16. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 15 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 8,016,700 dollars, comprising the estimated staff assessment income of 6,166,125 dollars approved for the Mission, the prorated share of 1,434,400 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 416,175 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

17. Also decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Mission, there shall be set off against their apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 13 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 23,403,900 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2013, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

18. Further decides that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Mission, there shall be set off against their outstanding obligations their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 23,403,900 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 17 above;

19. Decides that the increase of 1,000 dollars in the estimated staff assessment income in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013 shall be added to the credits in the amount of 23,403,900 dollars referred to in paragraphs 17 and 18 above;

20. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

21. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Mission under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

22. Invites voluntary contributions to the Mission in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

23. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo".

Burundi

The political situation in Burundi in 2014 remained tense due to deep mistrust between the ruling party and other stakeholders, notwithstanding efforts to foster political dialogue and the reduction in political violence perpetrated by Imbonerakure, the youth wing of the ruling party. Opposition supporters faced intimidation, harassment and political violence. The right of the opposition and civil society to free assembly and expression continued to be violated. Overall, the security situation in Burundi remained relatively stable despite a temporary spike in crime and increased concern about possible terrorist attacks.

In February, the Security Council, by resolution 2137(2014) (see below), extended the mandate of the United Nations Office in Burundi (BNUB) until 31 December, when the mandate and drawdown of BNUB came to an end. The task to ensure continuity in facilitating political dialogue and high-level advocacy critical to consolidating peace was undertaken by a combination of actors, including the United Nations Electoral Observation Mission in Burundi (MENUB).

Political and security developments

On 24 January [S/PV.7104], the Security Council held its first meeting in 2014 to discuss the situation in Burundi. It had before it the report of the Secretary-General [S/2014/36] on BNUB [YUN 2013, p. 127]. The Council also met on 14 May [S/PV.7174], 6 August [S/PV.7236] and 5 November [S/PV.7295] to discuss the situation in the country.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 13 February [meeting 7110], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2137(2014). The draft [S/2014/96] was submitted by France and Nigeria.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions and the statements by its President on Burundi,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and unity of Burundi,

Welcoming the continued progress that Burundi has made towards peace, stability and development, and emphasizing the need for the United Nations system and the international community, including the international financial institutions and Burundi's development partners, to maintain their support for peace consolidation and long-term development in Burundi,

Commending the continued contribution of the United Nations Office in Burundi and the United Nations system to the peace, security and development of the country,

Welcoming the organization in 2013 by the United Nations Office in Burundi and the United Nations system, in close coordination with the Government of Burundi, of several workshops on electoral lessons learned and the adoption of an electoral road map in March 2013, and calling upon the Government and all political parties to fully implement the road map and its recommendations,

Encouraging further efforts by the Government of Burundi to ensure a space for all political parties, including from the extra-parliamentary opposition, and to continue to improve dialogue between all relevant actors, including civil society, with a view to ensuring a conducive, free and open environment for the run-up to the 2015 elections,

Reiterating the need for inclusive and broad-based consultations in the spirit of the Arusha Agreement of 28 August 2000, and welcoming in this regard the inclusive and constructive consultations held on 19 and 20 December 2013 in Kigobe on issues related to the constitutional review process,

Expressing concern about limitations on the freedom of the press, of expression, association and assembly for opposition political parties and for the media and civil society organizations, especially in the run-up to the 2015 elections,

Noting the efforts made by the Government of Burundi to improve the human rights situation in Burundi, and remaining concerned by continued human rights violations and abuses, in particular reported extrajudicial killings, mistreatment of detainees and torture and restrictions on civil liberties, notably acts of intimidation, harassment and violence committed by youth groups, and recalling that there should be no impunity for those responsible for these violations and abuses,

Underscoring the importance of transitional justice mechanisms in promoting lasting reconciliation among all the people of Burundi, noting that no significant progress has been made towards the establishment of a Truth and Reconciliation Commission since the draft law was submitted to Parliament in December 2012, as stated in the report of the Secretary-General, and recalling in this context the commitment of the Government of Burundi to establishing transitional justice mechanisms consistent with the results of the 2009 national consultations, Security Council resolution 1606(2005) of 20 June 2005 and the Arusha Agreement,

Recalling that Burundi has been a State party to the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court since 2004 and has undertaken obligations to fight impunity for crimes falling within the jurisdiction of the Court, and emphasizing that the Court is complementary to the national criminal jurisdictions,

Stressing the importance of land issues for a lasting peace and security in Burundi, noting the commitment of the Government of Burundi to addressing this complex issue, and encouraging the Government and the Commission nationale des terres et autres biens to handle land grievances and disputes in a non-partisan manner and to also address land tenure in the broader context of socioeconomic development, bearing in mind the need to foster reconciliation and national cohesion, especially in the run-up to the 2015 elections,

Supporting the renewed commitment of Burundi to “zero tolerance” for corruption,

Welcoming the continued engagement of the Burundi configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission, encouraging the continued constructive cooperation between the Government of Burundi and the Peacebuilding Commission, and acknowledging the contribution that the Peacebuilding Fund has made to peacebuilding efforts in Burundi,

Supporting the continued commitment of Burundi to regional integration and cooperation with neighbours, notably through the Economic Community of the Great Lakes Countries, the East African Community and the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region,

Recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, its resolutions 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict and its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011 and 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 on children and armed conflict,

Having considered the latest report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Office in Burundi, in particular the conclusions of the strategic assessment mission and the analysis it contains of progress and remaining challenges in relation to the benchmarks transmitted to the Council by the Secretary-General pursuant to resolutions 1959(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2027(2011) of 20 December 2011 and 2090(2013) of 13 February 2013,

Having also considered the request of the Government of Burundi, in particular the statement by its Minister for Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation to the Council on 28 January 2014 regarding the transition of the United Nations Office in Burundi to a regular United Nations country team by 31 December 2014, and further noting its request for a United Nations electoral observer mission before, during and after the 2015 elections in Burundi,

1. Extends until 31 December 2014 the mandate of the United Nations Office in Burundi, requesting it, consistent with paragraphs 3 (a) to (d) of resolution 1959(2010) and paragraphs 2 (a) and (b) of resolution 2027(2011), to focus on and support the Government of Burundi in the areas in paragraphs 1 (a) to (e) of resolution 2090(2013);

2. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare the transition and the transfer of appropriate responsibilities of the United Nations Office in Burundi to the United Nations country team by 31 December 2014 and to provide an update on this process in his written interim report to the Security Council;

3. Encourages the United Nations Office in Burundi, the Government of Burundi, the Peacebuilding Commission and bilateral and multilateral partners to form a transition steering group to map the international community's support to Burundi, in particular the transfer of functions currently provided by the Office which may be needed after the planned drawdown of the mission, and requests the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Burundi to finalize a transition plan by 15 May 2014;

4. Encourages the Government of Burundi to engage in discussions on the nature, activities and scope of the United Nations role post-United Nations Office in Burundi, in coordination with the Office, the United Nations country team, multilateral and bilateral partners, the Peacebuilding Commission and other relevant stakeholders;

5. Encourages the United Nations country team and its component United Nations agencies to scale up their activities and programming during the transition of the United Nations Office in Burundi and after the termination of its mandate and factor such activities into the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, and urges the Secretary-General to ensure that there is a seamless transition to the Resident Coordinator and United Nations country team management model as the Office departs;

6. Takes note of the request of the Government of Burundi for a United Nations electoral observer mission before, during and after the 2015 elections in Burundi, and requests the Secretary-General to establish such a mission to follow and report on the electoral process in Burundi immediately at the end of the mandate of the United Nations Office in Burundi, and further requests this mission to report to the Secretary-General and the Secretary-General to report to the Council before, during and after the 2015 elections;

7. Encourages the Government of Burundi to cooperate fully with the United Nations country team and with the United Nations electoral mission that is to be established;

8. Recognizes the primary responsibility of the Government of Burundi for peacebuilding, security, protection of its population and long-term development in the country, and encourages the Government to continue its efforts regarding peace consolidation challenges, in particular democratic governance, the fight against corruption, security sector reform, civilian protection, justice and the promotion and protection of human rights, with a special focus on the rights of women and children as well as people belonging to ethnic minorities;

9. Encourages the Government of Burundi, with the support of the United Nations Office in Burundi and other international partners, to redouble its efforts to pursue structural reforms aimed at improving political, economic and administrative governance and tackling corruption, with a view to setting up strong drivers for sustained and equitable social and economic growth;

10. Also encourages the Government of Burundi, with the support of the United Nations Office in Burundi and other international partners, and while recognizing Burundi's prerogatives to adapt its organic law, to ensure that any constitutional review is undertaken in a constructive atmosphere and in a broad-based and inclusive manner, with the participation of political parties and relevant stakeholders, according to the letter and the spirit of the Arusha Agreement of 28 August 2000;

11. Calls upon the Government of Burundi to foster inclusive elections in 2015 by continuing to improve dialogue between all national actors, including civil society, and to guarantee a space for all political parties, including from the extra-parliamentary opposition, to exercise their freedom to organize and prepare themselves for the 2015 elections, and further calls upon the Government to ensure full and effective participation of women at all stages of the electoral process;

12. Also calls upon the Government of Burundi to pursue its efforts to ensure the promotion and protection of human rights and, together with its international partners, to support and strengthen the capacities of the National Independent Human Rights Commission and the Office of the Ombudsman in accordance with General Assembly resolution 48/134 of 20 December 1993 on national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, and further calls upon the Government to continue its fight against impunity and to take the measures necessary to ensure the full enjoyment of civil, political, social, economic and cultural rights as enshrined in the Constitution of Burundi and in accordance with its obligations under international law;

13. Further calls upon the Government of Burundi to take further steps necessary to prevent human rights violations, in particular reported extrajudicial killings, mistreatment of detainees and torture, and restrictions on civil liberties, as well as acts of harassment, intimidation and violence committed by youth groups, and limitations on the freedom of the press, of expression, association and assembly for opposition political parties, the media and civil society organizations, and to ensure that such human rights violations and restrictions of civil liberties are put to an end;

14. Calls upon the Government of Burundi to take measures to fight impunity and to support thorough, credible, impartial and transparent investigations, including by reinforcing the protection of victims, their relatives and witnesses, and to intensify efforts to ensure that those responsible for human rights violations and abuses as well as restrictions on civil liberties are held accountable;

15. Also calls upon the Government of Burundi to work with international partners and the United Nations Office in Burundi for the establishment of transitional justice mechanisms, including a credible and consensual Truth and Reconciliation Commission to help to foster an effective reconciliation of all Burundians and durable peace in Burundi, in accordance with the results of the work of the Technical Committee, the 2009 national consultations, Council resolution 1606(2005) and the Arusha Agreement;

16. Encourages the Government of Burundi to pursue its efforts of peace consolidation and reconstruction in a regional perspective, especially through projects fostering peace, reconciliation and exchanges within the East African Community, the Economic Community of the Great Lakes Countries and the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region;

17. Also encourages the Government of Burundi, with the support of international partners as appropriate, to ensure the voluntary, safe and orderly return and sustainable reintegration of refugees to Burundi;

18. Underscores the importance of security sector reform, welcomes Burundi's contribution and active participation in United Nations and African Union peacekeeping operations, and urges all international partners, together with the United Nations Office in Burundi, to continue to support Burundi's efforts to professionalize and enhance the capacity of the national security services and the police, in particular through vetting for human rights violations, training on human rights and sexual and gender-based violence and promoting strong civilian oversight and monitoring, with a view to consolidating security sector governance;

19. Calls upon the Government of Burundi, with the support of the Peacebuilding Commission and international partners, to honour its commitments on peacebuilding priorities as defined in the second poverty reduction strategy paper, and underscores the importance of international partners, in collaboration with the Government of Burundi, and with the support of the United Nations Office in Burundi, the United Nations system in Burundi and the Commission, continuing to support Burundi's development efforts and ensure effective follow-up of mutual commitments made at the Geneva Conference of Development Partners and at subsequent follow-up conferences to allow implementation of the poverty reduction strategy paper and support the implementation of the new United Nations Development Assistance Framework;

20. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the Council informed on the benchmarks, the implementation of the mandate of the United Nations Office in Burundi and the present resolution and the conditions that affect such implementation, as well as on the transition of the Office to the United Nations country team, every 90 days, with a written interim report by the end of July 2014 and a final report by 16 January 2015, and further requests the Secretary-General to report every six months to the Council until after the 2015 elections;

21. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Security Council resolution 2137(2014) (above), the Secretary-General submitted a July report on the situation in Burundi [S/2014/550] providing an update since his previous report [YUN 2013, p. 127] on progress made in the implementation of the mandate of BNUB and on the transition of BNUB to the UN country team.

The political situation in Burundi had remained tense amid sharp divergences over key sociopolitical issues affecting the country. Yet, dialogue between the Government and opposition political parties led to some progress in establishing a legal and political framework for the conduct of the general elections scheduled to take place in 2015.

In early 2014, the political situation in Burundi sharply deteriorated following a growing rift within the governing coalition between the Conseil national pour la défense de la démocratie-Forces pour la défense de la démocratie (CNDD-FDD) and the Union pour le Progrès national (UPRONA). Tensions between UPRONA and CNDD-FDD intensified amid the resistance of UPRONA to support constitutional amendments proposed by the latter that would have altered the country's ethnic power-sharing balance and allowed President Pierre Nkurunziza to run for another term. On 21 March, the National Assembly failed by one vote to adopt the draft law amending the Constitution. While CNDD-FDD presented the constitutional revision as an attempt to delete provisions that it considered obsolete, opposition parties noted that the draft would have removed provisions that could have constituted an obstacle to a candidacy of President Nkurunziza in the 2015 presidential elections. It would have also removed all references to the 2000 Arusha Peace and Reconciliation Agreement for Burundi [YUN 2000, p. 146]. The Speaker of the National Assembly indicated that the draft law would be sent back to the Government, which could resubmit a new text in one year.

As requested by the Security Council in resolution 2137(2014), a Joint Transition Plan was developed under the strategic leadership of the Transition Steering Group, which was co-chaired by BNUB and the Government of Burundi, and was submitted to the Security Council on 14 May. According to the Plan, the smooth transition of BNUB depended on a number of key assumptions. Among those were a stable security situation and an enabling environment that would allow BNUB to continue to implement its mandate until 31 December. The largest capacity gap resulting from the departure of BNUB was likely to emerge in terms of democratic process, governance and institution-building, especially regarding the facilitation of political dialogue and high-level advocacy. In the areas of human rights and transitional justice, relevant activities were expected to continue after the departure of BNUB, subject to continued financial support for the work of UN agencies, funds and programmes. The Secretary-General welcomed the steps taken to further professionalize the justice system; however, he remained concerned by the limited progress in increasing its independence and its accountability. He also appealed to the Government to protect the special court on land issues from political interference and continue to ensure that land tenure was addressed in the broader context of socioeconomic development, bearing in mind the need to foster reconciliation and national cohesion, especially in the run-up to the 2015 elections.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 23 September letter [S/2014/700], the Secretary-General informed the President of the Security Council of his intention to deploy an advance team to commence preparations for the establishment of the United Nations electoral observer mission, immediately after the end of the mandate of BNUB. The Council took note of the letter on 25 September [S/2014/701].

Appointment. On 6 November [S/2014/799], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Cassam Utem (Mauritius) as his Special Envoy and Head of the United Nations Electoral Observation Mission in Burundi (MENUB). The Council took note of the letter the same day [S/2014/800].

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/36] on Burundi, the Secretary-General noted that the political situation remained tense. Opposition leaders had increasingly objected to the stance of the Commission électorale nationale indépendante on electoral issues, its perceived lack of transparency in the implementation of the electoral calendar and its interpretation of the electoral law, which led to the exclusion from the Commission's consultations of those considered to be "political actors", most of whom were former leaders of key opposition parties who represented wings that were not recognized by the Government.

The security situation in the country remained relatively stable despite a temporary spike in crime and increased concern about possible terrorist attacks. At a meeting in Bujumbura on 3 November, the Minister of the Interior indicated that the Government had sufficient evidence that terrorist groups were preparing attacks in the country, in particular against churches and markets. The period between August and October also witnessed an increase in crime, especially grenade attacks, assaults and armed robberies. At the same time, there was a sharp reduction in clashes between Government forces and armed groups. BNUB continued to advocate for increased respect for human rights in the defence and security forces.

On 31 December, the mandate and drawdown of BNUB came to an end, as requested by the Security Council in its resolution 2137(2014). Ensuring continuity in facilitating political dialogue and high-level advocacy was critical to further consolidating peace after the drawdown of BNUB. Activities in that area would be undertaken by MENUB and relevant UN regional political offices, in close coordination with regional and international partners, including the AU, the East African Community, ICGLR and the European Union.

Peacebuilding Commission

Reports of Peacebuilding Commission. The Chair of the Burundi configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission, Paul R. Seger, shared with the Security Council his reports on his visit to Burundi from 13 to 17 January [S/2014/57]; his visit to Brussels, Paris, Bujumbura and Arusha from 21 to 31 May [S/2014/404]; and his visit to Burundi from 8 to 12 December [S/2014/954]. The reports were made available to the members of the Security Council only.

BNUB

The United Nations Office in Burundi (BNUB), established by Security Council resolution 1959(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 144], succeeded the United Nations Integrated Office in Burundi (BINUB) in 2011 [YUN 2011, p. 120]. By resolution 2137(2014) of 13 February (see p. 209), the Council extended the mandate of BNUB until 31 December, and requested the Secretary-General to prepare for the transition and the transfer of appropriate responsibilities from BNUB to the UN country team by that date.

Financing

In October [A/69/363 & Corr.1–3], the Secretary-General submitted a report containing the proposed resource requirements for BNUB for 2015, which amounted to $14,261,700.

Central African Republic

In 2014, the Central African Republic (CAR) was beset by widespread insecurity, threats of violence and gross human rights violations committed by the principal militia groups, the anti-balaka and ex-Séléka. In January, Catherine Samba-Panza was appointed as the new Transitional Head of State, taking over from Michel Djotodia, who resigned.

In April, the Security Council established the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA), subsuming the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic (BINUCA) into MINUSCA and taking over from the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic (MISCA) in September. Enclaves of vulnerable populations, particularly Muslim communities, remained under direct threat despite increased protection and assistance by humanitarian actors and international forces, including MINUSCA, the French Operation Sangaris, and the European Union operation, whose deployment was welcomed by the Security Council.

The International Commission of Inquiry to investigate international human rights and humanitarian laws violations and abuses in the country by all the parties involved in the armed conflict since 1 January 2013 submitted two reports and acknowledged that the estimates of 3,000 to 6,000 people killed had failed to capture the full magnitude of the killings that occurred in the country.

Political and security developments

Security Council consideration. On 6 January [S/PV.7092], the Security Council held its first meeting of 2014 to discuss the situation in the CAR. It had before it the report of the Secretary-General [S/2013/787] [YUN 2013, p. 143]. The Council also met on 22 January [S/PV.7098], 20 February [S/PV.7114], 6 March [S/PV.7128], 10 April [S/PV.7153], 11 July [S/PV.7215], 6 August [S/PV.7236], 19 August [S/PV.7246], 24 June [S/PV.7206] and 9 December [S/PV.7329] to discuss the situation in the CAR.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 January [meeting 7103], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2134(2014). The draft [S/2014/54] was submitted by Australia, Chad, Chile, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and statements on the Central African Republic, in particular resolutions 2121(2013) of 10 October 2013 and 2127(2013) of 5 December 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Central African Republic, and recalling the importance of the principles of non-interference, good-neighbourliness and regional cooperation,

Expressing deep concern at the continuing deterioration of the security situation in the Central African Republic, characterized by a total breakdown in law and order, the absence of the rule of law, religiously motivated targeted killings and arson, and further expressing its grave concern about the consequences of instability in the Central African Republic on the Central African region and beyond, and stressing in this regard the need for the international community to respond swiftly,

Condemning the attacks occurring in the Central African Republic, and in particular those that have taken place since 5 December 2013 in Bangui, which left more than 1,000 people dead and hundreds of thousands of persons internally displaced, and which have triggered widespread violence between Christian and Muslim communities across the country,

Remaining seriously concerned by multiple and increasing violations of international humanitarian law and the widespread human rights violations and abuses, including those involving extrajudicial killings, forced disappearances, arbitrary arrests and detention, torture, sexual violence against women and children, rape, recruitment and use of children, attacks against civilians and attacks against places of worship, committed by both former Séléka elements and militia groups, in particular those known as the “anti-balaka”,

Alarmed by the increasing cycle of violence and retaliation and degeneration into a countrywide religious and ethnic divide, with the potential to spiral into an uncontrollable situation, including serious crimes under international law, in particular war crimes and crimes against humanity, with serious regional implications,

Noting the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme’s temporary suspension of rough diamond trading by the Central African Republic, and expressing concern that diamond smuggling and other forms of illicit natural resource exploitation, including wildlife poaching, are destabilizing forces in the Central African Republic, and encouraging the transitional authorities and the State authorities to address these issues through all possible avenues,

Welcoming the election of Morocco as Chair of the Central African Republic configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission, and reiterating the role of the Commission in mobilizing and sustaining the attention and commitment of partners and actors in support of related United Nations and regional efforts,

Recalling that the transitional authorities have the primary responsibility to protect the civilian population in the Central African Republic,

Welcoming the active leadership of the Economic Community of Central African States in convening government leaders, members of the National Transitional Council and representatives of civil society from the Central African Republic for discussions hosted by the Government of Chad in N’Djamena on 9 and 10 January 2014 on the political transition in the Central African Republic, and encouraging continued efforts in this regard,

Taking note of the Declaration of the Summit of the Heads of State and Government of the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region on the Promotion of Peace, Security, Stability and Development in the Great Lakes Region, adopted in Luanda on 15 January 2014,

Expressing its deep appreciation for the actions taken by the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic, its troop-contributing countries and the French forces to protect civilians and help to stabilize the security situation immediately after the adoption of resolution 2127(2013), and further expressing appreciation for those partners that have provided airlift to expedite the deployment of troops,

Welcoming the role of the domestic religious authorities at the national level in trying to pacify relations and prevent violence between religious communities, and noting the need to amplify their voices at the local level,

Stressing the urgent need for greater resources and expertise to be allocated to the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic in order for the mission to fully implement its mandated tasks,

Recalling the need for an inclusive and effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process as well as repatriation in the case of foreign fighters, while respecting the need to fight against impunity,

Stressing the need to end impunity in the Central African Republic and to bring to justice perpetrators of violations of international humanitarian law and of abuses and violations of human rights, and in this regard underlining the need to bolster national accountability mechanisms,

Recalling its resolution 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013, and expressing grave concern at the threat to peace and security in the Central African Republic arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Recalling also the letter dated 29 October 2013 from the President of the Security Council regarding the intention of the Secretary-General to deploy a guard unit to the Central African Republic as part of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office,

Welcoming the strong engagement of the European Union for the Central African Republic, in particular the Foreign Affairs Council conclusions of 21 October and 16 December 2013 and the decision of the European Union to contribute financially to the deployment of the International Support Mission within the framework of the African Peace Facility,

Welcoming also the holding of a special session of the Human Rights Council, and taking note with appreciation of the appointment of the Independent Expert on the situation of human rights in the Central African Republic,

Welcoming further the pledges made at the High-Level Meeting on Humanitarian Action in the Central African Republic, held in Brussels on 20 January 2014, and encouraging the international community to swiftly follow through on pledges to continue providing support in response to the humanitarian situation in the Central African Republic,

Welcoming the readiness of the European Union, expressed at the meeting of the Council of the European Union held on 20 January 2014, to consider the establishment of a temporary operation to support the International Support Mission in the Central African Republic, and taking note of the letter dated 21 January 2014 from the High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy of the European Union,

Taking note of the letter dated 22 January 2014 from the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic approving the deployment of an operation by the European Union,

Determining that the situation in the Central African Republic constitutes a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic until 31 January 2015;

2. Also decides that the mandate of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office shall be reinforced and updated as follows:

(a) Support for the implementation of the transition process:

- To expedite the re-establishment of constitutional order and implementation of the Libreville Agreements by identifying, facilitating and coordinating regular communication between all relevant Central African, regional and international stakeholders and providing strategic advice, technical assistance and support to the ongoing political process, transitional institutions and authorities and their implementation mechanisms;
- To take a leading role in working with the transitional authorities, relevant stakeholders, regional actors and the international community to devise and facilitate the political transition process and to provide technical assistance in support of the process;
- To assist in reconciliation efforts, at both the national and local levels, including through interreligious dialogue and truth and reconciliation mechanisms working with relevant transitional authorities and relevant regional bodies;
- To make all necessary preparations, in support of the transitional authorities and working on an urgent basis with the National Electoral Authority, for the holding of free and fair elections, including the effective participation of women, as soon as possible, but no later than February 2015 and, if possible, in the second half of 2014, including by providing an urgent assessment of the financial, technical and logistical needs for the electoral process;

(b) Support for conflict prevention and humanitarian assistance:

- To exercise good offices, confidence-building and facilitation in order to anticipate, prevent, mitigate and resolve conflict and facilitate the safe, civilian-led delivery of humanitarian assistance, in accordance with United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance;
- To help to coordinate humanitarian assistance;

(c) Extension of State authority:

- To promote and support the rapid restoration of State authority over the whole territory of the country;
- To assist the Central African Republic governmental institutions, including through technical assistance, to increase their capacity to perform basic government functions and deliver basic services to the Central African people;

(d) Support for the stabilization of the security situation:

- To support the stabilization of the security situation by advising on and providing technical assistance in support of security sector governance and reform, the rule of law (including police, justice and corrections), disarmament, demobilization and reintegration—as well as repatriation in the case of foreign fighters—of combatants, including of all children associated with armed forces and groups, and mine action, including clearance of explosive remnants of war;

- To finalize, working with the transitional authorities and in consultation with the International Support Mission and the French forces, a comprehensive strategy for disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation, and to support its implementation, including through technical assistance and by coordinating support from regional and international stakeholders;

(e) Promotion and protection of human rights:

- To monitor, help to investigate and report to the Security Council on violations of international humanitarian law and on abuses and violations of human rights committed throughout the Central African Republic, including any committed by the Lord's Resistance Army, and to contribute to efforts to identify perpetrators, and to prevent such violations and abuses;
- To monitor, help to investigate and report to the Council specifically on violations and abuses committed against children as well as violations committed against women, including all forms of sexual violence in armed conflict, including through the deployment of child protection advisers and women's protection advisers;
- To help to strengthen the capacities, including through technical assistance, of the national judicial system, including transitional justice mechanisms, and of the national human rights institutions and assist with national reconciliation efforts, coordinating with the International Commission of Inquiry on the Central African Republic as well as the Independent Expert of the Human Rights Council on the situation of human rights in the Central African Republic, as appropriate;

(f) Cooperation with the Security Council Committee and the Panel of Experts established pursuant to paragraphs 57 and 59 of resolution 2127(2013):

- To assist the Security Council Committee established pursuant to paragraph 57 of resolution 2127(2013) and the Panel of Experts established pursuant to the same resolution, within its capabilities, including by passing information relevant to the implementation of the mandate of the Committee and the Panel of Experts;

(g) Coordination of international actors:

- To coordinate international actors involved in the implementation of the tasks described above;
- 3. Requests the Secretary-General to urgently reinforce the Integrated Peacebuilding Office and provide it with significantly increased resources and expertise in order to fully and swiftly implement all aspects of the mandate defined in paragraph 2 of the present resolution and increase its capacity of coordinating international actors in the field of its mandate, and in this regard further requests the Secretary-General to submit proposals and resource requirements to appropriate bodies as soon as possible;
- 4. Recalls the need for the transitional authorities to restore State authority over the whole territory of the country, and underlines in this context the importance of further expansion of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the provinces;

5. Stresses the importance of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office working closely with the United Nations country team and the Peacebuilding Commission;

6. Welcomes the deployment of an initial contingent of the Guard Unit from Morocco on 1 January 2014, and urges the Secretary-General to expedite preparations for the swift deployment of the full Guard Unit at the earliest possible date;

7. Stresses the importance for the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to urgently make all necessary preparations for elections, on an urgent basis, with the transitional authorities and the National Electoral Authority;

8. Underscores the importance for the transitional authorities to finalize, with the support of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, a comprehensive strategy for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of combatants as well as repatriation in the case of foreign combatants, including of all children associated with armed forces and groups, in consultation with the International Support Mission and the French forces, and in this regard reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to present detailed proposals for United Nations support in his forthcoming report, due no later than 5 March 2014;

9. Calls upon the transitional authorities, with the assistance of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office and international partners, to address the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons in the Central African Republic and to ensure the safe and effective management, storage and security of their stockpiles of small arms and light weapons and the collection and/or destruction of surplus, seized, unmarked or illicitly held weapons and ammunition, and further stresses the importance of incorporating such elements into security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation programmes;

10. Stresses the urgent need to deploy throughout the country an increased number of Integrated Peacebuilding Office human rights monitors in order to implement fully the mandate of the Office to monitor, help to investigate and report to the Council on violations of international humanitarian law and abuses and violations of human rights committed throughout the Central African Republic and to deploy an adequate number of child protection advisers and women's protection advisers, as stated in paragraph 10 of resolution 2121(2013);

11. Recalls the need for the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to facilitate the safe, civilian-led delivery of humanitarian assistance, in accordance with United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance and in coordination with all humanitarian actors;

12. Stresses the need to immediately establish appropriate coordination mechanisms between the Integrated Peacebuilding Office and the International Support Mission and the European Union operation in the Central African Republic;

13. Expresses its intention to closely monitor the implementation of the above, and requests the Secretary-General to update the Council in this regard;

Political process

14. Underlines its support for the Libreville Agreements of 11 January 2013, the N'Djamena Declaration of 18 April

2013, the Brazzaville Appeal of 3 May 2013, the Transitional Charter and the declaration adopted by the International Contact Group on the Central African Republic at its third meeting, held in Bangui on 8 November 2013;

15. Welcomes the designation by the National Transitional Council, on 20 January 2014, of Ms. Catherine Samba-Panza as the new Transitional Head of State, the appointment of Mr. André Nzapayeké as Transitional Prime Minister and the formation of a Transitional Government;

16. Urges the transitional authorities to continue to work for stabilization, national reconciliation and unity;

17. Welcomes the establishment of the National Electoral Authority on 16 December 2013, and underscores the importance that the transitional authorities, with the support of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, should hold free and fair elections, including by ensuring the participation of women, as soon as possible, but no later than February 2015 and, if possible, in the second half of 2014;

18. Recalls the commitment of the transitional authorities to initiate swift and concrete measures, including the convening of a conciliation framework by 24 February 2014, to hold an inclusive and peaceful national dialogue to promote reconciliation, and calls upon them to take swift action in this direction, in close coordination with the Integrated Peacebuilding Office;

Human rights and humanitarian access

19. Welcomes the appointment of the International Commission of Inquiry on 22 January 2014, in order to immediately investigate reports of violations of international humanitarian law and international human rights law and abuses of human rights in the Central African Republic by all parties since 1 January 2013, calls upon all parties to cooperate fully with the Commission, and encourages the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to cooperate, as appropriate, with the Independent Expert of the Human Rights Council and the International Commission of Inquiry;

20. Requests the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to provide assistance to the transitional authorities in securing, in coordination with the International Support Mission, evidence and crime scenes to support future investigations;

21. Reiterates that all perpetrators of such violations and abuses must be held accountable and that some of those acts may amount to crimes under the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, to which the Central African Republic is a State party, and recalls the statements made by the Prosecutor of the Court on 7 August and 9 December 2013;

22. Calls upon all parties to armed conflict in the Central African Republic, including former Séléka elements and anti-balaka elements, to issue clear orders prohibiting all violations and abuses committed against children, in violation of applicable international law, including those involving their recruitment and use, rape and sexual violence, killing and maiming, abductions and attacks on schools and hospitals, and further calls upon the transitional authorities to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged violations and abuses in order to hold perpetrators accountable and to ensure that those responsible for such violations and abuses are excluded from the security sector;

23. Reiterates its demands that all parties protect and consider as victims those children who have been released or otherwise separated from armed forces and armed groups, and emphasizes the need to pay particular attention to the protection, release and reintegration of all children associated with armed forces and armed groups;

24. Calls upon all parties to armed conflict in the Central African Republic, including former Séléka and anti-balaka elements to issue clear orders against sexual and gender-based violence, and further calls upon the transitional authorities to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged abuses in order to hold perpetrators accountable, in line with its resolutions 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010 and 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013, and to facilitate immediate access for victims of sexual violence to available services;

25. Reiterates its call upon all parties to armed conflict in the Central African Republic to engage with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict;

26. Demands that the transitional authorities as well as all militia groups and parties to the conflict, in particular the former Séléka, and the anti-balaka, ensure the rapid, safe and unhindered access of humanitarian organizations and relief personnel and the timely delivery of humanitarian assistance to populations in need, while respecting the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, including neutrality, impartiality, humanity and independence in the provision of humanitarian assistance;

27. Expresses deep concern at the increasing numbers of internally displaced persons as a result of the ongoing violence, stresses the need to ensure that the basic needs of those persons are met, in particular access to water, food and shelter, and commends United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners for their efforts to provide urgent and coordinated support to the population in need in the Central African Republic while also recognizing the need to augment assistance to address increasing needs;

28. Calls upon Member States to respond swiftly to the United Nations humanitarian appeals to meet the urgent and increasing needs of people inside the Central African Republic and refugees who have fled to neighbouring countries, and encourages to this effect the swift implementation of humanitarian projects by United Nations humanitarian organizations and partners;

29. Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations, decides as follows:

Sanctions

30. Decides that, for an initial period of one year from the date of the adoption of the present resolution, all Member States shall take the measures necessary to prevent the entry into or transit through their territories of individuals designated by the Committee established pursuant to paragraph 57 of resolution 2127(2013), provided that nothing in the present paragraph shall oblige a State to refuse its own nationals entry into its territory;

31. Also decides that the measures imposed by paragraph 30 above shall not apply:

(a) Where the Committee determines on a case-by-case basis that such travel is justified on the grounds of humanitarian need, including religious obligation;

(b) Where entry or transit is necessary for the fulfilment of a judicial process;

(c) Where the Committee determines on a case-by-case basis that an exemption would further the objectives of peace and national reconciliation in the Central African Republic and stability in the region;

32. Further decides that all Member States shall, for an initial period of one year from the date of the adoption of the present resolution, freeze without delay all funds, other financial assets and economic resources which are on their territories, which are owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by the individuals or entities designated by the Committee, or by individuals or entities acting on their behalf or at their direction, or by entities owned or controlled by them, and decides further that all Member States shall ensure that any funds, financial assets or economic resources are prevented from being made available by their nationals or by any individuals or entities within their territories, to or for the benefit of the individuals or entities designated by the Committee;

33. Decides that the measures imposed by paragraph 32 above do not apply to funds, other financial assets or economic resources that have been determined by relevant Member States:

(a) To be necessary for basic expenses, including payment for foodstuffs, rent or mortgage, medicines and medical treatment, taxes, insurance premiums and public utility charges or exclusively for payment of reasonable professional fees and reimbursement of incurred expenses associated with the provision of legal services in accordance with national laws, or fees or service charges, in accordance with national laws, for routine holding or maintenance of frozen funds, other financial assets and economic resources, after notification by the relevant State to the Committee of the intention to authorize, where appropriate, access to such funds, other financial assets or economic resources and in the absence of a negative decision by the Committee within five working days of such notification;

(b) To be necessary for extraordinary expenses, provided that such determination has been notified by the relevant State or Member States to the Committee and has been approved by the Committee; or

(c) To be the subject of a judicial, administrative or arbitral lien or judgment, in which case the funds, other financial assets and economic resources may be used to satisfy that lien or judgment, provided that the lien or judgment was entered into prior to the date of the present resolution, is not for the benefit of a person or entity designated by the Committee and has been notified by the relevant State or Member States to the Committee;

34. Also decides that Member States may permit the addition to the accounts frozen pursuant to the provisions of paragraph 32 above of interest or other earnings due on those accounts or payments due under contracts, agreements or obligations that arose prior to the date on which those accounts became subject to the provisions of the present resolution, provided that any such interest, other earnings and payments continue to be subject to these provisions and are frozen;

35. Further decides that the measures in paragraph 32 above shall not prevent a designated person or entity from making payment due under a contract entered into prior to the listing of such a person or entity, provided that the relevant States have determined that the payment is not directly or indirectly received by a person or entity designated pursuant to paragraph 32 above, and after notification by the relevant States to the Committee of the intention to make or receive such payments or to authorize, where appropriate, the unfreezing of funds, other financial assets or economic resources for this purpose, 10 working days prior to such authorization;

36. Decides that the measures contained in paragraphs 30 and 32 above shall apply to the individuals and entities designated by the Committee as engaging in or providing support for acts that undermine the peace, stability or security of the Central African Republic, including acts that threaten or violate transitional agreements, or that threaten or impede the political transition process, including a transition towards free and fair democratic elections, or that fuel violence;

37. Also decides, in this regard, that the measures contained in paragraphs 30 and 32 above shall also apply to the individuals and entities designated by the Committee as:

(a) Acting in violation of the arms embargo established in paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013), or as having directly or indirectly supplied, sold or transferred to armed groups or criminal networks in the Central African Republic or as having been the recipient of arms or any related materiel, or any technical advice, training or assistance, including financing and financial assistance, related to violent activities of armed groups or criminal networks in the Central African Republic;

(b) Involved in planning, directing or committing acts that violate international human rights law or international humanitarian law, as applicable, or that constitute human rights abuses or violations, in the Central African Republic, including acts involving sexual violence, targeting of civilians, ethnic- or religious-based attacks, attacks on schools and hospitals and abduction and forced displacement;

(c) Recruiting or using children in armed conflict in the Central African Republic, in violation of applicable international law;

(d) Providing support for armed groups or criminal networks through the illicit exploitation of natural resources, including diamonds and wildlife and wildlife products, in the Central African Republic;

(e) Obstructing the delivery of humanitarian assistance to the Central African Republic, or access to, or distribution of, humanitarian assistance in the Central African Republic;

(f) Involved in planning, directing, sponsoring or conducting attacks against United Nations missions or international security presences, including the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, the International Support Mission, the European Union operation and the other forces that support them;

(g) Are leaders of, have provided support to, or have acted for or on behalf of or at the direction of an entity that the Committee has designated pursuant to the present paragraph or paragraph 36 of the present resolution;

38. Expresses grave concern over reports that some Central African Republic political figures have provided support and direction to anti-balaka and Séléka groups planning violence and serious human rights violations and abuses against the civilian population of the Central African Republic, demands that these figures and all others cease any such activities immediately, and directs the Committee to consider, as a matter of urgency, designating such figures for targeted sanctions if they engage in any of the activities set forth in paragraphs 36 and 37 of the present resolution;

39. Urges the Central African Republic's political figures—including senior officials in the previous Bozizé and Djotodia administrations, such as Mr. François Bozizé and Mr. Nouredine Adam—to call upon their supporters to cease any and all attacks on civilians;

40. Decides that the arms embargo established by paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013) and the measures established by paragraph 55 of that resolution shall be extended for a period of one year from the date of the adoption of the present resolution, and further decides that the measures established in paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013) shall not apply to supplies intended solely for the support of or use by the European Union operation;

41. Also decides that the mandate of the Committee shall apply with respect to the measures imposed in the present resolution and that the mandate of the Panel of Experts on the Central African Republic, established by paragraph 59 of resolution 2127(2013), shall be extended for a period of one year from the date of the adoption of the present resolution and shall also include: to assist the Committee by providing information regarding designated individuals and entities, and individuals and entities that may meet the designation criteria in paragraphs 36 and 37 above, including by reporting such information to the Committee, as it becomes available, and to include in its formal written reports the names of potential designees, appropriate identifying information and relevant information regarding why the individual or entity may meet the designation criteria in paragraphs 36 and 37 above;

42. Calls upon all Member States to report to the Committee within 90 days of the adoption of the present resolution on the steps they have taken with a view to implementing effectively paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013) and paragraphs 30 and 32 of the present resolution;

Mandate of the European Union operation in the Central African Republic

43. Authorizes the European Union to deploy an operation in the Central African Republic as referenced in the letter dated 21 January 2014 from the High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy of the European Union,

44. Authorizes the European Union operation to take all necessary measures within the limits of its capacities and areas of deployment from its initial deployment and for a period of six months from the declaration of its full operational capacity;

45. Requests the European Union to report to the Security Council on the implementation of this mandate in the Central African Republic and to coordinate its reporting with the reporting by the African Union referred to in paragraph 32 of resolution 2127(2013);

46. Calls upon Member States, including neighbouring countries of the Central African Republic, to take appropriate measures to support the action of the European Union, in particular by facilitating the transfer to the Central African Republic, without obstacles or delay, of all personnel, equipment, provisions, supplies or other goods, including vehicles and spare parts, intended for the European Union operation;

47. Invites the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic to conclude a status-of-forces agreement as soon as possible for the establishment of the European Union operation;

48. Emphasizes the need for all military forces in the Central African Republic, while carrying out their mandate, to act in full respect of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and unity of the Central African Republic and in full compliance with applicable international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, and recalls the importance of training in this regard;

49. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council on the implementation of the mandate of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office every 90 days after the adoption of the present resolution;

50. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Letters of Secretary-General (January and February). In letters dated 27 January [S/2014/34] and 7 February [S/2014/83] to the President of the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted communications from Léonie Banga-Bothy, Minister for Foreign Affairs, African Integration, la Francophonie and Central Africans Abroad of the CAR, confirming the support of the CAR for a Security Council mandate for the future deployment of a European Union operation in the country; and the deployment of a UN operation in the CAR with a view to stabilizing all of the national territory and responding to urgent civilian needs.

In a 13 February letter [S/2014/99] to the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted a letter from Smail Chergui, the AU Commissioner for Peace and Security, on the situation in the CAR along with the communiqué of the meeting held by the AU Peace and Security Council on 29 January.

In a 20 February letter [S/2014/117] to the Council, the Secretary-General transmitted a letter from Nkosazana Dlamini-Zuma, Chairperson of the AU Commission.

In a 25 February letter [S/2014/45] to the Council, the Secretary-General transmitted a letter from Catherine Ashton, the High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy of the EU and Vice-President of the European Commission, concerning the agreement by the Council of the EU to contribute military personnel for the protection of civilians in the CAR, in coordination with the French forces and the AU.

Report of Secretary-General (March). In response to Security Council resolution 2127(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 137], the Secretary-General submitted a March report [S/2014/142] on the possible transformation of the African-led International Support Mission in the CAR (MISCA) to a UN peacekeeping operation, including an assessment of progress made towards meeting the appropriate conditions on the ground referred to in his previous report of November 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 136].

There had been dramatic changes in the situation on the ground. The attacks by anti-balaka elements, which comprised local defence groups, rogue elements of the armed forces of the CAR and criminal elements, against ex-Séléka forces on 5 December in Bangui and Bossangoa, led to a significant deterioration in the security situation by sparking a cycle of reprisals among civilians and clashes between anti-balaka and ex-Séléka forces throughout the country. The developments led to a grave deterioration in the human rights situation, resulting in a serious protection crisis, with civilians targeted by all armed groups on the basis of their religious affiliation. The anti-balaka groups were reportedly becoming increasingly organized in Bangui and other parts of the country and had access to firearms and heavy weapons. The resignation on 10 January of the former Head of State of the Transition, Michel Djotodia, one of Séléka's leaders, prompted most of the 7,000 ex-Séléka elements to leave the sites where they had regrouped in Bangui since December 2013. The retreat of ex-Séléka elements from the capital and the western parts of the country had sparked renewed attacks on the remaining members, associates, perceived supporters and members of Muslim civilian communities, who were now deliberately and systematically targeted by anti-balaka elements. More than 15,000 Muslims seeking to flee to safety took shelter in 18 locations throughout the country, risking grievous violence if they left. On 20 January, the National Transitional Council elected Catherine Samba-Panza, Mayor of Bangui, as the new Head of State of the Transition of the CAR.

The Secretary-General observed that addressing the crisis in the CAR required a unified and integrated approach through the deployment of a multidimensional peacekeeping operation, with the protection of civilians as its utmost priority. In the early stages of its deployment, a UN peacekeeping operation would need to focus its efforts on the most urgent priorities and to provide some immediate dividends to the population in the areas of security, protection of civilians, human rights and justice, building on the progress made by MISCA and Operation Sangaris. It would take the United Nations approximately six months to prepare the deployment of its operation based on the lessons learned from previous transformations of regional operations into UN peacekeeping missions and taking into account specific challenges on the ground. The aim for the bulk of MISCA, along with other contributors, would be to transition to a UN peacekeeping operation in accordance with the human rights screening policy and capabilities, in order to reach an authorized strength of 10,000 military personnel. The Secretary-General recommended that the proposed peacekeeping operation operate under a Chapter VII authorization.

Letters of Secretary-General. In letters to the Security Council President on 19 February [S/2014/111], 15 April [S/2014/275], 11 September [S/2014/663] and 5 December [S/2014/870], the Secretary-General transmitted the communications of France reporting on the operational activities of the French force Sangaris deployed in the CAR in support of MISCA.

In an 11 March letter [S/2014/172] to the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted the first progress report of the Commission of the AU on the situation in the CAR and the activities of MISCA.

Communications. In identical letters dated 4 March [A/68/785-S/2014/151] to the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council, Guinea transmitted the final communiqué of the expanded emergency meeting at the ministerial level of the Executive Committee of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation on the situation in the CAR, which was held at Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, on 20 February.

In a 7 April letter [S/2014/250] to the President of the Security Council, Chad noted that the allegations made against the Chadian contingent of MISCA by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights following the incident that took place on Saturday 29 March in Bangui (see p. 227), were baseless.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 10 April [meeting 7153], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2149(2014). The draft [S/2014/252] was submitted by Australia, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and statements on the Central African Republic, in particular resolutions 2121(2013) of 10 October 2013, 2127(2013) of 5 December 2013 and 2134(2014) of 28 January 2014,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Central African Republic, and recalling the importance of the principles of non-interference, good-neighbourliness and regional cooperation,

Reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the need and situation of the country concerned,

Expressing deep concern at the security situation in the Central African Republic,

Recalling that the transitional authorities have the primary responsibility to protect the population in the Central African Republic,

Emphasizing that any sustainable solution to the crisis in the Central African Republic should be Central African Republic-owned, including the political process, and should include the restructuring of the Central African Republic security forces,

Emphasizing also that the continued role of the region, including the Chair of the Economic Community of Central African States and its Mediator, as well as the African Union, will be critical for the promotion of lasting peace and stability in the Central African Republic,

Welcoming the positive and decisive impact of the actions of the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic on the ground in protecting civilians and preventing serious violations of international law, and the progress made in the implementation of other aspects of its mandate, as reflected in the first progress report of the African Union Commission on the deployment and operations of the International Support Mission submitted pursuant to paragraph 32 of resolution 2127(2013),

Remaining seriously concerned by multiple violations of international humanitarian law and the widespread human rights violations and abuses, including those involving extrajudicial killings, enforced disappearances, arbitrary arrests and detention, torture, sexual violence against women and children, rape, recruitment and use of children, attacks against civilians, in particular but not limited to Muslims, attacks against places of worship and denial of humanitarian access, committed by both former Séléka elements and militia groups, in particular the “anti-balaka”,

Condemning in the strongest terms all the attacks and provocations against International Support Mission contingents by armed groups, and urging the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic to take all possible measures to ensure the arrest and prosecution of perpetrators,

Stressing the urgent and imperative need to end impunity in the Central African Republic and to bring to justice perpetrators of violations of international humanitarian law and of abuses and violations of human rights, underlining in this regard the need to bolster national accountability mechanisms, and underlining its support for the work of the Independent Expert of the Human Rights Council on human rights in the Central African Republic and of the International Commission of Inquiry on the Central African Republic,

Reiterating that all perpetrators of such acts must be held accountable and that some of those acts may amount to crimes under the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, to which the Central African Republic is a State party, further recalling the statements made by the Prosecutor of the Court on 7 August and 9 December 2013, and noting the decision made by the Prosecutor on 7 February 2014 to open a preliminary examination on the situation in the Central African Republic since September 2012,

Emphasizing the risk of the situation in the Central African Republic providing a conducive environment for transnational criminal activity, such as that involving arms trafficking and the use of mercenaries as well as a potential breeding ground for radical networks,

Acknowledging, in this respect, the important contribution that the Security Council-mandated arms embargo can make to countering the illicit transfer of arms and related materiel in the Central African Republic and the region and in supporting post-conflict peacebuilding, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform, recalling its resolution 2127(2013), and expressing grave concern at the threat to peace and security in the Central African Republic arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Recalling its decision to establish a sanctions regime pursuant to resolutions 2127(2013) and 2134(2014), and emphasizing that the targeted sanctions aim at, inter alia, individuals and entities designated by the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2127(2013) as engaging in or providing support for acts that undermine the peace, stability or security of the Central African Republic, that impede the political transition process or that fuel violence, and at individuals and entities designated by the Committee as involved in planning, directing or committing acts that violate international human rights law or international humanitarian law or that constitute human rights abuses or violations,

Reiterating its serious concern at the dire humanitarian situation in the Central African Republic, and emphasizing in particular the humanitarian needs of the more than 760,000 internally displaced persons and of the more than 300,000 refugees in neighbouring countries, a large number of which are Muslim, and further expressing concern at the consequences of the flow of refugees on the situation in Chad, Cameroon and the Democratic Republic of the Congo, as well as other countries of the region,

Expressing concern at the collapse of the already fragile administration, which limits the ability of the new transitional authorities to govern,

Urging all parties to take the steps necessary to ensure the safety and security of humanitarian personnel, of United Nations and associated personnel and of United Nations installations, equipment and goods,

Reiterating its appreciation for the ongoing efforts of the Economic Community of Central African States and its Mediator regarding the Central African Republic crisis, as well as the efforts of the African Union to resolve the crisis and the efforts of the International Contact Group on the Central African Republic, co-chaired by the African Union and the Congo, welcoming the communiqué issued at the fourth meeting of the Contact Group, held in Brazzaville on 21 March 2014, including the envisaged steps to enhance its effectiveness and support to the transition in the Central African Republic, and encouraging all stakeholders to pursue their efforts,

Reaffirming its deep appreciation for the critical role of the International Support Mission, its troop- and police-contributing countries and the French forces to protect civilians and help to improve the security situation immediately after the adoption of resolution 2127(2013), and further expressing appreciation for those partners that have provided airlift and other support to expedite the deployment of troops and improve their effectiveness,

Welcoming the decision of the European Union, expressed at the meeting of the Council of the European Union held on 1 April 2014, to launch a temporary operation, the European Union military operation in the Central African Republic, to support the International Support Mission in the Central African Republic,

Expressing the need to accelerate the implementation of the political process, including on the reconciliation aspects and on the holding of free, fair, transparent and inclusive elections as soon as technically possible and no later than February 2015,

Welcoming the joint action of some domestic religious leaders at the national level in trying to pacify relations and prevent violence between religious communities, and noting the need to amplify their voices at the local level,

Recalling the need for an inclusive and effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process as well as repatriation in the case of foreign fighters, while respecting the need to fight against impunity,

Recalling also its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict and its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, and calling upon all parties in the Central African Republic to engage with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict,

Acknowledging the adoption of the partnership arrangement between the African Union Commission and the United Nations Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict to mainstream child protection in the policies and operations of the African Union, signed in Addis Ababa on 17 September 2013, and of the Framework of Cooperation between the United Nations Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict and the African Union Commission concerning the Prevention and Response to Conflict-related Sexual Violence in Africa, adopted in Addis Ababa on 31 January 2014,

Welcoming the strong engagement of the European Union for the Central African Republic, in particular the decision to contribute financially to the deployment of the International Support Mission within the framework of the African Peace Facility, and further welcoming the contribution of the United States of America and contributions of Member States to the United Nations trust fund for support to the International Support Mission,

Welcoming also the pledges made at the High-level Meeting on Humanitarian Action in the Central African Republic, held in Brussels on 20 January 2014, and encouraging the international community to swiftly follow through on pledges to continue providing support in response to the humanitarian situation in the Central African Republic, and to prepare for reconstruction with an approach linking relief, rehabilitation and development,

Welcoming further the pledges made at the donors' conference held in Addis Ababa on 1 February 2014 to support the International Support Mission and the financial contribution made by the Economic Community of Central African States, and encouraging the international community to swiftly follow through on these pledges and to continue providing support to the International Support Mission,

Calling upon international partners to assist the transitional authorities in building the institutional capacity of national police and customs authorities to effectively monitor the borders and points of entry, including to support the implementation of the measures established in paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013) and the disarmament and repatriation of foreign armed elements,

Welcoming the World Bank's plan for 2014 presented at the meeting of the Central African Republic configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission held on 19 February 2014, and strongly encouraging international financial institutions to continue to engage with the transitional authorities,

Taking note of the report on the visit undertaken by the Chair of the Central African Republic configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission to Bangui from 4 to 7 March 2014, welcoming the continued engagement of the Commission in mobilizing and sustaining the attention and commitment of partners' efforts as well as the Peacebuilding Fund, and further underlining the role of the Commission in supporting the efforts of the transitional authorities towards national dialogue and a reconciliation process, as well as in addressing challenges facing the country, including political accompaniment, mobilization of international attention and support,

Calling upon international partners to provide financial contributions to support disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation and electoral processes,

Taking note of the letter dated 27 January 2014 from the Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Central African Republic to the President of the Security Council requesting the deployment of a United Nations peacekeeping operation to stabilize the country and address the civilian aspects of the crisis,

Taking note also of the letter dated 17 February 2014 from the Chairperson of the African Union Commission to the President of the Security Council proposing a number of steps for enhanced international action in favour of the Central African Republic, including the strengthening of the International Support Mission through the mobilization of a more predictable and sustainable support, in order to enable it to effectively implement its mandate and complete the initial stabilization phase of the situation, with a view to facilitating broader and more sustained international engagement, in particular through the deployment of a United Nations peacekeeping operation, and taking note further of the communiqué of 7 March 2014 issued by the Peace and Security Council of the African Union on the achievements of the International Support Mission and long-term stabilization of the Central African Republic,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General of 3 March 2014, and noting that the situation in the Central African Republic warrants a unified and integrated approach, including through a multidimensional United Nations peacekeeping operation and, further, welcoming its recommendations for the establishment of such an operation,

Taking note of the letter dated 8 April 2014 from the President of the Central African Republic to the Security Council,

Determining that the situation in the Central African Republic constitutes a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

Political process

1. Welcomes the designation by the National Transitional Council, on 20 January 2014, of Ms. Catherine Samba-Panza as the new Transitional Head of State, the appointment of Mr. André Nzapayeké as Transitional Prime Minister and the formation of a Transitional Government;

2. Also welcomes the important role of the region through the active leadership of the Economic Community of Central African States, in particular the mediation by the Congo, in convening government leaders, members of the National Transitional Council and representatives of civil society from the Central African Republic for discussions hosted by the Government of Chad, in its capacity as Chair of the Economic Community, in N'Djamena on 9 and 10 January 2014, on the political transition in the Central African Republic, and during which the then leaders of the transitional government resigned, and encourages the Economic Community, through its Chairperson and its Mediator, to continue to play the role expected of it in the international support to the political process in the Central African Republic;

3. Reiterates its support for the Libreville Agreements of 11 January 2013, the N'Djamena Declaration of 18 April 2013 and the Constitutional Charter for the Transition of 18 July 2013;

4. Commends the initial measures taken by the African Union and the Economic Community of Central African States to restore peace and stability in the Central African Republic;

5. Underlines the importance of preserving the unity and territorial integrity of the Central African Republic;

6. Demands that all militias and armed groups put aside their arms, cease all forms of violence and destabilizing activities immediately and release children from their ranks;

7. Welcomes the call by the Secretary-General for the revitalization and acceleration of the political and reconciliation processes in order to lay the ground for an end to the conflict, in this regard calls upon the transitional authorities to demonstrate their commitment to these processes and to take concrete steps in this regard, and further underlines the importance of civil society in the revitalization of these processes;

8. Urges, in this regard, the transitional authorities to accelerate the preparations in order to hold free, fair, transparent and inclusive presidential and legislative elections no later than February 2015 and to swiftly initiate the significant preparations and concrete measures necessary in this regard, including the urgent convening of a conciliation framework in line with the communiqué of the Economic Community of Central African States summit of January 2014, the launching of an inclusive political dialogue on the electoral framework and the completion of the technical and legal framework, and emphasizes that elections should include internally displaced persons and Central African Republic refugees, the return of whom should be an important objective;

9. Further calls upon Member States and international and regional organizations to provide rapid and tangible support to the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic, including contributions for the payment of salaries and other needs of the transitional authorities;

10. Encourages the transitional authorities, with the support of key members of the International Contact Group on the Central African Republic, to take immediate measures to revitalize the political process by agreeing on certain key parameters, which could include the possible creation of an international mechanism which would include key stakeholders, including the African Union, the Economic Community of Central African States, the United Nations and the European Union, as well as the international financial institutions as appropriate, to accompany the transition while respecting the sovereignty of the Central African Republic, and requests the Secretary-General to report to the Security Council on progress made in this regard;

11. Also encourages the transitional authorities, with the support of the international community, in particular with the international financial institutions leading international efforts, to establish, based on critical peacebuilding and State-building goals, mechanisms to strengthen public financial management and accountability, including revenue collection, expenditure controls, public procurement and concession practices, building on relevant international experiences and in a manner that fosters national ownership and respects the sovereignty of the Central African Republic;

12. Reiterates that all perpetrators of violations of international humanitarian law and human rights violations and abuses must be held accountable and that some of those acts may amount to crimes under the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, to which the Central African Republic is a State party, recalls the statements made by the Prosecutor of the Court on 7 August and 9 December 2013, notes further the opening of a preliminary examination by the Prosecutor on alleged crimes committed in the Central African Republic since September 2012, and welcomes the cooperation by the transitional authorities in this regard;

13. Calls upon all parties to armed conflict in the Central African Republic, including former Séléka elements and anti-balaka elements, to issue clear orders prohibiting all violations and abuses committed against children, in violation of applicable international law, including those involving their recruitment and use, rape and sexual violence, killing and maiming, abductions and attacks on schools and hospitals, and further calls upon the transitional authorities to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged violations and abuses in order to hold perpetrators accountable and to ensure that those responsible for such violations and abuses are excluded from the security sector;

14. Reiterates its demands that all parties protect and consider as victims those children who have been released or otherwise separated from armed forces and armed groups, and emphasizes the need to pay particular attention to the protection, release and reintegration of all children associated with armed forces and armed groups;

15. Calls upon all parties to armed conflict in the Central African Republic, including former Séléka and anti-balaka elements, to issue clear orders against sexual and gender-based violence, and further calls upon the transitional authorities to make and implement specific commitments on timely investigation of alleged abuses in order to hold perpetrators accountable, in line with resolutions 1960(2010) and 2106(2013), and to facilitate immediate access for victims of sexual violence to available services;

Transition to a peacekeeping operation

16. Notes the call made by the Secretary-General in favour of increased support to the International Support Mission, in particular increased capacity for air and ground mobility, information and communication systems, intelligence capacity, medical facilities and logistics supply and sustainment, including the urgent provision of vital enablers, and in favour of continued improvement of command and control mechanisms of international forces operating in the Central African Republic;

17. Welcomes the call by the Secretary-General for an increase in the number of troops on the ground, and in this regard welcomes the announcement by the Government of France on 14 February 2014 of an increase in the number of French troops and their subsequent deployment, the decision taken by the Peace and Security Council of the African Union on 21 March 2014 to authorize the deployment of additional police personnel and specialized capabilities and the steps being taken for the early implementation of this decision as well as the contributions made by States members of the European Union, which have resulted in the decision of the Council of the European Union at its meeting held on 1 April 2014 to launch the European Union military operation in the Central African Republic;

Peacekeeping operation

18. Decides to establish the United Nations Multi-dimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic as of the date of the adoption of the present resolution and for an initial period until 30 April 2015;

19. Requests the Secretary-General to subsume the presence of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic into the Stabilization Mission as of the date of the adoption of the present resolution and to ensure a seamless transition from the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to the Mission;

20. Decides that, as from 15 September 2014, the Stabilization Mission shall initially comprise up to 10,000 military personnel, including 240 military observers and 200 staff officers and 1,800 police personnel, including 1,400 formed police unit personnel and 400 individual police officers, and 20 corrections officers, calls upon Member States to provide troops and police with adequate capabilities and equipment in order to enhance the capacity of the Mission to operate and discharge its responsibilities effectively, and requests the Secretary-General to recruit qualified staff, who have the competencies, education, work experience and language skills appropriate to the tasks defined under applicable competency areas in paragraphs 30 and 31 below, bearing in mind the need to convey information and provide technical assistance in the most accessible manner to the desired audience;

21. Also decides that the transfer of authority from the International Support Mission to the Stabilization Mission will take place on 15 September 2014 and that, in the period from the adoption of the present resolution to this transfer of authority, the Stabilization Mission will implement the tasks mandated in paragraphs 30 and 31 below through its civilian component, while the International Support Mission will continue to implement its tasks as mandated by resolution 2127(2013) and that, on 15 September 2014, the Stabilization Mission shall commence the immediate implementation, through its military and police components, of the tasks mandated in paragraphs 30 and 31 below;

22. Requests the Secretary-General to include in the Stabilization Mission as many military and police personnel of the International Support Mission as possible and in line with United Nations standards, in close coordination with the African Union and the Economic Community of Central African States and, as of 15 September 2014, in accordance with the Secretary-General's policy on human rights screening of United Nations personnel;

23. Authorizes the Secretary-General, without prejudice to paragraph 21 above, to deploy to the Stabilization Mission before 15 September 2014 military enablers, including military enablers transferred from other, downsizing peacekeeping operations and through inter-mission cooperation, as may be necessary, in order to stand up the military and police components of the Mission and enable them to immediately commence the discharge of their mandated tasks on 15 September 2014, and further requests the Secretary-General to contract enablers to the same effect;

24. Requests the Secretary-General to take all possible steps, including through the full use of existing authorities and at his discretion, to accelerate the deployments of the civilian and military capabilities of the Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic, in order to best respond to the expectations of the Security Council and the needs of the population of the Central African Republic, and requests the Secretary-General to take the steps necessary to have the Mission ready to commence its activities;

25. Also requests the Secretary-General to transfer the Guard Unit, in line with its original mandate approved in the letter dated 29 October 2013 from the President of the Security Council to the Secretary-General, from the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to the Stabilization Mission from the date of adoption of the present resolution until 15 September 2014, and decides that, as of the date of the adoption of the present resolution until 15 September 2014, the mandate of the Guard Unit as approved in that letter shall remain unchanged;

26. Further requests the Secretary-General, in close coordination with the African Union, to deploy a transition team to set up the Stabilization Mission and prepare the seamless transition of authority from the International Support Mission to the Stabilization Mission by 15 September 2014, and to take the steps necessary to prepare and position the International Support Mission, as soon as possible, for its rehatting to a United Nations peacekeeping operation;

27. Requests the Secretary-General, after a joint mission with the African Union, to update the Security Council no later than 15 August 2014 on the state of preparation for a seamless transition of authority from the International Support Mission to the Stabilization Mission by 15 September 2014;

28. Also requests the Secretary-General to appoint a Special Representative for the Central African Republic and Head of the Stabilization Mission, who shall, from the date of appointment, assume overall authority on the ground for the coordination of all activities of the United Nations system in the Central African Republic;

29. Authorizes the Stabilization Mission to take all means necessary to carry out its mandate, within its capabilities and its areas of deployment;

30. Decides that the mandate of the Stabilization Mission shall initially focus on the following priority tasks:

(a) Protection of civilians

- (i) To protect, without prejudice to the primary responsibility of the Central African Republic authorities, the civilian population from the threat of physical violence, within its capabilities and areas of deployment, including through active patrolling;
- (ii) To provide specific protection for women and children affected by armed conflict, including through the deployment of child protection advisers and women's protection advisers;
- (iii) To identify and record threats and attacks against the civilian population, including through regular interaction with the civilian population and working closely with humanitarian and human rights organizations;

- (iv) To design, implement and deliver, in close consultation with humanitarian and human rights organizations and other relevant partners, a mission-wide protection strategy;

(b) Support for the implementation of the transition process, including efforts in favour of the extension of State authority and preservation of territorial integrity

- (i) To take a leading role in international efforts to assist the transitional authorities working with the Economic Community of Central African States, the African Union, relevant stakeholders and the international community to devise, facilitate, coordinate and provide technical assistance to the political transition and electoral processes;
- (ii) To provide good offices and political support for the efforts to address root causes of the conflict and establish lasting peace and security in the Central African Republic;
- (iii) To provide appropriate support, in coordination with the transitional authorities, and based on the risks on the ground, for the provision of security for key national stakeholders, including members of the Transitional Government;
- (iv) To assist the transitional authorities in mediation and reconciliation processes at both the national and local levels, working with relevant regional and local bodies and religious leaders, including through inclusive national dialogue, transitional justice and conflict resolution mechanisms, while ensuring the full and effective participation of women;
- (v) To devise, facilitate and provide technical assistance to the electoral process and make all necessary preparations, in support of the transitional authorities and working on an urgent basis with the National Electoral Authority, for the holding of free, fair, transparent and inclusive elections, including the full and effective participation of women at all levels and at an early stage, and the participation of internally displaced persons and refugees from the Central African Republic no later than February 2015;
- (vi) To promote and support the rapid extension of State authority;

(c) Facilitating the immediate, full, safe and unhindered delivery of humanitarian assistance

To contribute, including through effective civil-military coordination and in close coordination with humanitarian actors, to the creation of a secure environment for the immediate, full, safe and unhindered, civilian-led delivery of humanitarian assistance, in accordance with United Nations guiding humanitarian principles and relevant provisions of international law, and for the voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return of internally displaced persons and refugees, in close coordination with humanitarian actors;

(d) Protection of the United Nations

To protect United Nations personnel, installations, equipment and goods and ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel;

(e) Promotion and protection of human rights

- (i) To monitor, help to investigate and report publicly and to the Council on violations of international humanitarian law and on abuses and violations of human rights committed throughout the Central African Republic, in particular by different armed groups, including the former Séléka and the anti-balaka, and to contribute to efforts to identify and prosecute perpetrators, and to prevent such violations and abuses, including through the deployment of human rights observers;
- (ii) To monitor, help to investigate and report specifically on violations and abuses committed against children as well as violations committed against women, including all forms of sexual violence in armed conflict, and to contribute to efforts to identify and prosecute perpetrators, and to prevent such violations and abuses;
- (iii) To support the International Commission of Inquiry on the Central African Republic and the implementation of its recommendations;
- (iv) To assist the Central African Republic authorities in the effort to protect and promote human rights;

(f) Support for national and international justice and the rule of law

- (i) To support and work with the transitional authorities to arrest and bring to justice those responsible for war crimes and crimes against humanity in the country, including through cooperation with States of the region and the International Criminal Court;
- (ii) To help to build the capacities, including through technical assistance, of the national judicial system and of the national human rights institutions and assist with national reconciliation efforts, coordinating with the Independent Expert of the Human Rights Council on human rights in the Central African Republic as appropriate;
- (iii) To provide support and to coordinate international assistance to the police, justice and correctional institutions to reinstate the criminal justice system, within the framework of the United Nations global focal point on the rule of law, including through assistance in the maintenance of public safety and basic law and order, in a manner that emphasizes civilian oversight, impartiality and the protection of human rights, and to support the restoration and maintenance of public safety and the rule of law, including through the presence and assistance of United Nations police authorized in paragraph 20 above;

(g) Disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation

- To support the transitional authorities in developing and implementing a revised strategy for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and repatriation of former combatants and armed elements to reflect new realities on the ground, while paying specific attention to the needs of children associated with armed forces and groups, and support for the repatriation of foreign elements;

- To support the transitional authorities in developing and implementing community violence reduction programmes;
- To regroup and canton combatants and confiscate and destroy, as appropriate, the weapons and ammunition of elements of personnel who refuse or fail to lay down their arms;

31. Also decides that the mandate of the Stabilization Mission shall include the following additional tasks as conditions permit, and requests the Secretariat to begin planning for these tasks:

(a) Support security sector reform and vetting processes, including through the provision of strategic policy advice and coordination of technical assistance and training;

(b) Coordinate international assistance, as appropriate;

(c) Assist the Security Council Committee established pursuant to paragraph 57 of resolution 2127(2013) and the Panel of Experts on the Central African Republic established pursuant to the same resolution, within its capabilities, including by passing information relevant to the implementation of the mandate of the Committee and the Panel of Experts;

(d) Monitor the implementation of the measures imposed by paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013), in cooperation with the Panel of Experts, including by inspecting, as it deems necessary and when appropriate, without notice, all arms and related materiel regardless of location, and advise the transitional authorities on efforts to keep armed groups from exploiting natural resources;

(e) Seize and collect arms and any related materiel the transfer of which into the Central African Republic violates the measures imposed by paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013), and record and dispose of such arms and related materiel as appropriate;

32. Requests the Stabilization Mission to coordinate its operations with those of the African Union Regional Task Force on the Lord's Resistance Army, and requests the Mission to share relevant information with the Regional Task Force and with non-governmental organizations involved in tackling the threat of the Lord's Resistance Army;

33. Calls upon the transitional authorities and international partners and relevant United Nations entities, in coordination with the Stabilization Mission, to address the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons in the Central African Republic, and to ensure the safe and effective management, storage and security of stockpiles of small arms and light weapons and the collection and/or destruction of surplus, seized, unmarked or illicitly held weapons and ammunition, and further stresses the importance of incorporating such elements into security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation programmes;

34. Requests the Stabilization Mission to take fully into account child protection as a cross-cutting issue throughout its mandate and to assist the transitional authorities in ensuring that the protection of children's rights is taken into account, inter alia, in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation processes and in security sector reform in order to end and prevent violations and abuses against children;

35. Also requests the Stabilization Mission to take fully into account gender considerations as a cross-cutting issue throughout its mandate and to assist the Government of the Central African Republic in ensuring the full and effective participation, involvement and representation of women in all spheres and at all levels, including in stabilization activities, security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation processes, as well as in the national political dialogue and electoral processes, through, inter alia, the provision of gender advisers, and further requests enhanced reporting by the Mission to the Council on this issue;

36. Further requests the Stabilization Mission, within its existing resources and mandate, to assist the political efforts of the African Union and the Economic Community of Central African States to support the transition process, following the transfer of authority from the International Support Mission to the Stabilization Mission;

37. Decides that the International Support Mission, the Stabilization Mission, the European Union military operation in the Central African Republic, the African Union Regional Task Force and the French forces operating in the Central African Republic are exempt from the measures imposed in paragraph 54 of resolution 2127(2013) for the implementation of their mandates, and requests these forces to report on measures taken in this regard as part of their regular reports to the Council;

38. Requests the Secretary-General to take the measures necessary to ensure full compliance of the Stabilization Mission with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and to keep the Council informed if cases of misconduct occur, and notes the relevance of the guidance on contacts with persons who are the subject of arrest warrants or summonses issued by the International Criminal Court;

39. Requests the Stabilization Mission to ensure that any support provided to non-United Nations security forces is provided in strict compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces, and requests the Secretary-General to include information on any such support in his reports to the Council;

40. Decides that the Stabilization Mission may, within the limits of its capacities and areas of deployment, at the formal request of the transitional authorities and in areas where national security forces are not present or operational, adopt urgent temporary measures on an exceptional basis and without creating a precedent and without prejudice to the agreed principles of peacekeeping operations, which are limited in scope, time-bound and consistent with the objectives set forth in paragraphs 30 (a) and (f) above, to maintain basic law and order and fight impunity, and requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council any measures that may be adopted on this basis;

41. Requests the Secretary-General and the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic to conclude, within 30 days of the adoption of the present resolution, a status-of-forces agreement with regard to the Stabilization Mission, taking into consideration General Assembly resolution 58/82 of 9 December 2003 on the scope of legal protection under the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel, and decides that, pending the conclusion of such an agreement, the model status-of-forces agreement of 9 October 1990 shall apply provisionally;

42. Emphasizes the need for the International Support Mission, the European Union military operation in the Central African Republic and the French forces operating in the Central African Republic, while carrying out their mandate, to act in full respect of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and unity of the Central African Republic and in full compliance with applicable international humanitarian law, human rights law and refugee law, and recalls the importance of training in this regard;

Freedom of movement of the Stabilization Mission

43. Urges all parties in the Central African Republic to cooperate fully with the deployment and activities of the Stabilization Mission, in particular by ensuring its safety, security and freedom of movement with unhindered and immediate access throughout the territory of the Central African Republic to enable the Mission to carry out fully its mandate;

44. Calls upon Member States, especially those in the region, to ensure the free, unhindered and expeditious movement to and from the Central African Republic of all personnel, as well as equipment, provisions, supplies and other goods, including vehicles and spare parts, which are for the exclusive and official use of the Stabilization Mission;

Humanitarian access

45. Demands that all parties allow and facilitate the full, safe, immediate and unhindered access for the timely delivery of humanitarian assistance to populations in need, in particular to internally displaced persons, throughout the territory of the Central African Republic, in accordance with the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance and relevant provisions of international law;

Humanitarian appeal

46. Welcomes the humanitarian appeal, regrets its insufficient current funding, and calls upon Member States and international and regional organizations to respond swiftly to this appeal through increased contributions and to ensure that all pledges are honoured in full;

French forces

47. Authorizes the French forces, within the limits of their capacities and areas of deployment, from the commencement of the activities of the Stabilization Mission until the end of the mandate of the Mission as authorized in the present resolution, to use all necessary means to provide operational support to elements of the Mission from the date of adoption of the present resolution, at the request of the Secretary-General, and requests France to report to the Council on the implementation of this mandate as of 15 September 2014 and to coordinate its reporting with that of the Secretary-General referred to in paragraph 50 of the present resolution;

Reporting

48. Recalls the statement by its President of 5 August 2009, by which the Council requested that, where a new peacekeeping mission is proposed, or where significant change to a mandate is envisaged, an estimate of the resource implications for the mission be provided to the Council;

49. Welcomes the recommendation of the Secretary-General that the objectives and priorities of a United Nations operation, and hence its configuration, activities and related resources, should be adjusted over time to the situation on the ground, and requests in this regard the Secretary-General, in his first report to the Council, to update the Council on the mission concept, including a concept of operations and benchmarks for the sequencing of the mandate, and on an exit strategy, which will be developed following the adoption of the present resolution, including by providing the necessary financial information, and the implementation of which will be monitored by the Council;

50. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the Council regularly informed of the situation in the Central African Republic and the implementation of the mandate of the Stabilization Mission, to report to the Council on 1 August 2014 and then every four months from that date and to include in his reports to the Council updates on and recommendations related to the dynamic implementation of the Mission's mandated tasks, including by providing appropriate financial information, information on the security situation, the priority political elements as defined above on political progress, progress on mechanisms and capacity to advance governance and fiscal management, relevant information on the progress, promotion and protection of human rights and international humanitarian law, as well as a review of the troop and police levels, force and police generation and deployment of all constituent elements of the Mission;

51. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (August). In an August report [S/2014/562] submitted pursuant to Security Council resolution 2149(2014) (see above), the Secretary-General provided an update on developments in the CAR since his March report (see p. 219) and on the preparations for the transfer of authority from the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic (MISCA) to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA). The report also included the mission concept on the operations and benchmarks for the sequencing of the mandate and an exit strategy.

While the situation in some areas of Bangui had improved, the overall security situation in the CAR remained highly volatile. The large majority of the country's Muslim population had been displaced or had left the country, while some 20,000 of them were trapped in nine locations in the western and central parts of the country, aware that if they left their sites they may be attacked before they reached safety. Increasing violence and brutality against Muslim communities in Bangui contributed to the formation of Muslim radical action targeting the anti-balaka and their positions as well as non-Muslim communities. They reportedly had the support of some elements of the ex-Séléka hiding among the local Muslim population.

A number of violent clashes involved the international forces in Bangui and elsewhere in the country. On 29 March, a senior Chadian army officer appointed to MISCA was proceeding in a column to Bangui. When the column reached the outskirts of Bangui, an exchange of fire ensued, during which at least 28 people were killed and many more wounded. Following allegations that Chadian elements of MISCA opened fire on the population without provocation, the Government of Chad announced, on 3 April, that it would withdraw its infantry battalion of 850 troops from MISCA.

The European Union operation reached full operational capability on 15 June and provided security at the Bangui airport as well as in the third and fifth arrondissements of Bangui, which allowed MISCA and Sangaris to enhance their deployments outside of the capital. The challenging security environment led to increasing criticism of the transitional authorities, which further accentuated the fragility of the transition. On 9 April, the Head of State of the Transition, Catherine Samba-Panza, signed a decree establishing the Special Unit of Inquiry and Investigation to conduct preliminary inquiries and investigations into cases of genocide, crimes against humanity, and war crimes committed since 1 January 2004, which was inaugurated on 8 July. The Conseil supérieur de la magistrature reassigned judges throughout all judicial instances and appointed magistrates for the Special Unit of Inquiry and Investigation.

Overall, preparations for presidential and legislative elections and a referendum on the constitution moved slowly, despite the signing on 24 June of a decree on the organization and functioning of the National Electoral Authority. Key policy decisions, including on the methodology for voter registration and the sequencing of the polls, remained outstanding, while the legal framework had yet to be completed.

By Council resolution 2149(2014), the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the CAR (BINUCA) was subsumed into MINUSCA on 10 April. Specifically, the mission concept provided that MINUSCA would organize its activities around three key interconnected and mutually reinforcing objectives, namely, (a) security, the protection of civilians and human rights, (b) support to the political process, reconciliation and elections, and (c) the restoration and extension of State authority. The mission concept outlined five phases and included detailed planning for the first two. The first phase involved the establishment of MINUSCA and the transfer of authority from MISCA to MINUSCA, from 10 April 2014 to 15 September 2014. During this phase, MINUSCA would establish a multidimensional presence in Bangui at the Mission headquarters, and three integrated sector headquarters offices in Bria, Kaga Bandoro and Bouar. During the second phase, from 15 September 2014 to 30 April 2015, which would bring MINUSCA to the end of its mandate period, the Mission would further increase its field presence and aim to contribute to minimum security and create room for a political dialogue leading to a basic national consensus on the way forward. The MINUSCA exit strategy would be based on progress made in each phase towards the achievement of an end state in which the CAR would have completed a transition to a democratically elected legitimate government that was broadly representative and capable of responding to the basic needs of the population.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 21 October [meeting 7280], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2181(2014). The draft [S/2014/745] was submitted by France.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and statements on the Central African Republic, in particular resolutions 2121(2013) of 10 October 2013, 2127(2013) of 5 December 2013, 2134(2014) of 28 January 2014 and 2149(2014) of 10 April 2014,

Taking note of the letter dated 3 October 2014 from Ms. Catherine Samba-Panza, Central African Republic President of the Transition, to the President of the Security Council,

Taking note also of the letter dated 7 October 2014 from Baroness Ashton, High Representative of the European Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy, to the President of the Security Council,

Determining that the situation in the Central African Republic continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Decides to extend the authorization of the European Union operation contained in paragraph 44 of resolution 2134(2014) until 15 March 2015;

2. Also decides to remain seized of the matter.

Year-end developments. In a November report [S/2014/857] submitted pursuant to Council resolution 2149(2014) (see p. 220), the Secretary-General submitted a report on the political and security developments in the CAR since his August report (see p. 227), which included an update on preparations for the transfer of authority from MISCA to MINUSCA on 15 September and on the implementation of MINUSCA's mandate.

The transfer of authority from MISCA to MINUSCA took place on 15 September and marked the completion of the MISCA mandate and the establishment of an AU mission for the CAR and Central Africa. As at mid-November, some 7,451 military personnel or approximately 74 per cent of the total authorized military strength of 10,000 troops, and 1,083 police personnel or approximately 60 per cent of the total authorized police strength of 1,800, had been deployed to MINUSCA.

The security situation in the CAR remained volatile. Frequent clashes among armed groups and attacks against civilians continued. Fragmentation, internal leadership struggles and the lack of command-and-control authority within the anti-balaka and among ex-Séléka factions were accompanied by clashes between and among them in Bangui and other parts of the country.

The border area between the CAR and Cameroon saw a resurgence of attacks on villages by the Front démocratique du peuple centrafricain (FDPC). The presence of foreign and transborder armed groups in the region continued to pose a threat to civilians and cause insecurity, while incidents of abductions and killings were also reported.

Following a request by the Central African authorities and on the basis of Security Council resolution 2181(2014) (see above), the European Council of Ministers, on 7 November, extended the mandate of the European Union operation until 15 March 2015.

After Prime Minister André Nzapayéké resigned on 5 August, the Head of State of the Transition appointed as his replacement Mahamat Kamoun. The ex-Séléka, as well as several main political parties and civil society leaders, criticized the appointment, citing a lack of consultation and inclusiveness in the selection process. On 22 August, the Office of the Head of State of the Transition announced the formation of Prime Minister Kamoun's Government, in which the ministers increased from 20 to 31, including representatives of armed groups, civil society and the country's 16 provinces. Ex-Séléka members were appointed to three ministerial posts while two ministers were appointed from the anti-balaka. Ex-Séléka leaders dissociated themselves from the appointments, however, while some anti-balaka elements continued to consider that they were not fairly represented. Political uncertainty contributed to shifting political dynamics within the ex-Séléka. New factions, largely drawn along ethnic lines, emerged. While reinforcing their military structures, leaders of those factions committed their groups to participating in the political process, including in the Bangui forum and the elections, and expressed willingness to comply with article 4 of the cessation-of-hostilities agreement signed in Brazzaville on 23 July, which called for the voluntary regroupment of armed elements.

In order to support the agreement's implementation, a follow-up commission was established in August, composed of two representatives of the presidency, two of the transitional Government, two of the National Transitional Council, one representative of each of the seven armed groups that had signed the agreement and representatives of the international community. Though the commission began meeting in September, it had been slow to make decisions and act on implementing its mandate.

On 31 October, the National Electoral Authority announced a revised electoral timeline involving a constitutional referendum in May 2015, the first round of presidential and legislative elections in July 2015 and the second round of polls in August 2015.

The Secretary-General observed that the violence that took place in October in Bangui, just one month after the successful transfer of authority from MISCA to MINUSCA, was a stark reminder that the situation in the CAR remained highly volatile. Almost 1 million Central Africans remained displaced. More than 2 million people were still in desperate need of humanitarian assistance and women and children were exposed to extreme violence and abuse, while thousands of children were still associated with armed groups. The timely holding of elections to complete the transition by August 2015 would be an important milestone for the country.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 28 November letter [S/2014/858] to the Security Council President, the Secretary-General transmitted a report by the EU on the activities of the EU-led peacekeeping force in the CAR.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 18 December [meeting 7349], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/28 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council takes note of the final communiqué of the high-level meeting on the Central African Republic held under the auspices of the Secretary-General in New York on 26 September 2014. The Council also takes note of the conclusions of the 6th meeting of the International Contact Group on the Central African Republic, held in Bangui on 11 November 2014, in which the International Mediator in the Central African Republic crisis, the President of the Congo, Mr. Denis Sassou Nguesso, in line with his authority under the Transitional National Charter, was requested to extend the transition by six months, up to August 2015, given that the election date of February 2015 was no longer technically feasible.

The Council recalls that the stabilization of the security situation is first and foremost the responsibility of the Central African Republic stakeholders and reiterates its appeal to all parties and stakeholders, particularly the leaders of the ex-Séléka and anti-balaka groups, as well as all other armed groups, to immediately and permanently lay down their arms, to release all children from their ranks, and to embark upon the path of dialogue as the only viable means towards achieving lasting reconciliation and peace, and an essential condition for the successful implementation of the mandate of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic.

The Council reiterates its call upon the transitional authorities to take concrete action, with the full, effective and equal participation of women, towards an inclusive and comprehensive political dialogue and reconciliation process at the local and national levels; preparation for the elections; the fight against impunity; formulation and implementation of a disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and repatriation strategy, including children formerly associated with armed forces and groups; and the rebuilding of effective State institutions, including through security sector reform.

In this regard, the Council urges the transitional authorities to accelerate inclusive preparations for the Bangui Forum on National Reconciliation scheduled for January 2015, with the aim of forging a national-level consensus. The Council welcomes and commends recent efforts by the transitional authorities to gather views of local citizens in advance of the Bangui Forum by dispatching government ministers and officials throughout the Central African Republic.

The Council also urges all actors of the electoral process, including the transitional authorities and the National Electoral Authority, to accelerate preparations in order to hold free, fair, transparent and inclusive presidential and legislative elections that allow for the full, effective and equal participation of women, internally displaced persons and Central African Republic refugees, no later than August 2015, which will mark the end of the transition, and to swiftly implement concrete measures necessary to achieve this objective. To that end, the Council calls upon all international partners of the Central African Republic to provide support to the electoral process, particularly through financing the United Nations Development Programme multi-donor basket fund for elections.

The Council further urges the signatories to the Brazzaville agreement on cessation of hostilities of 23 July 2014 to immediately and fully implement its provisions, in particular articles 4 and 8 thereof, and calls upon the international mediation led by President Denis Sassou Nguesso, the Economic Community of Central African States, the African Union and the United Nations to facilitate the early conclusion of an agreement on the disarmament of the armed groups.

The Council expresses its intent to consider designating additional individuals and entities that engage in or provide support for acts that undermine the peace, stability and security of the Central African Republic, including those that provide support to armed groups through the illicit exploitation of natural resources, for targeted sanctions in accordance with the provisions of Council resolutions 2127(2014) and 2134(2014).

The Council further recalls that all Member States must take the measures necessary to prevent the entry into or transit through their territories of individuals designated by the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2127(2013).

The Council welcomes the steps towards improving stability in the Central African Republic and commends the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic, Sangaris and the European Union military operation in the Central African Republic for the work done in laying the foundation for increased security ahead of and in support of the deployment of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic. The Council notes with concern, however, that, while improving, security in the Central African Republic remains fragile.

The Council strongly condemns the resurgence of violence, which was politically or criminally motivated, that occurred in October 2014 in Bangui, the continuous cycle of provocations and reprisals by armed groups, both inside and outside of Bangui, the threats of violence, human rights violations and abuses and international humanitarian law violations committed by armed elements, which continue to adversely affect the dire humanitarian situation facing the civilian population and to impede humanitarian access to vulnerable populations and encourages the Stabilization Mission, Sangaris and the European Union military operation to use, within their respective mandates, all means necessary to effectively protect civilians and to restore a lasting security.

The Council equally condemns the targeted attacks against the transitional authorities as well as those against troops of the Stabilization Mission, Sangaris and the European Union military operation during the October events in Bangui. The Council underlines that attacks targeting peacekeepers may constitute a war crime and reminds all parties of their obligations under international humanitarian law.

The Council reiterates its grave concern at the threat to peace and security in the Central African Republic arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons.

The Council stresses the important role of the internal security forces (police and gendarmerie) in the restoration of security in the Central African Republic. The Council encourages the Central African Republic authorities to initiate the reform process of the Armed Forces of the Central African Republic, to include appropriate vetting procedures in order to put in place a professional, representative and balanced army, including through the adoption of measures to absorb elements of the armed groups meeting rigorous selection criteria, as well as through the retraining of part of the Armed Forces. The Council reiterates the important role of the Stabilization Mission in providing support for security sector reform and vetting processes, including through the provision of strategic policy advice and coordination of technical assistance and training. The Council encourages the international community, including the European Union, to consider a coordinated and concerted support for reform and capacity-building of the Armed Forces, including through advice, assistance and non-operational training, as appropriate.

The Council commends the work of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for the Central African Republic, Mr. Babacar Gaye, and takes note of the increased deployment of the military, police and civilian components of the Stabilization Mission, the initial work of the Mission in implementing its mandate, the establishment on 15 September 2014 of the Bangui Task Force and the reconfiguration of the Mission following the violent incidents in Bangui in October.

The Council urges the Secretariat and the Stabilization Mission to accelerate the deployments of its civilian, police and military capabilities in the Central African Republic, including the necessary logistical support and command and control structure, and to speed up recruitment procedures, in order to reach its full operational capacity as soon as possible and enable the Stabilization Mission to effectively discharge its mandate over the entire national territory. To this end, the Council further urges the former troop- and police-contributing countries of the International Support Mission that have been rehatted to the Stabilization Mission to expedite the procurement and deployment of remaining additional contingent-owned equipment. The Council also urges the Stabilization Mission to intensify the implementation of its mandate, in particular in support of the reconciliation, electoral and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes, in accordance with priority tasks set out in paragraph 30 of Council resolution 2149(2014).

The Council recalls the mandate of the Stabilization Mission to protect, without prejudice to the primary responsibility of the Central African Republic authorities, the civilian population from threat of physical violence, within its capabilities and areas of deployment, including through active patrolling.

The Council calls upon partners to pledge or confirm pledges for the lacking capabilities in the Stabilization Mission, in particular the attack helicopter unit, the special forces company and the signals company.

The Council affirms that those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law, human rights violations and abuses and other criminal acts, including those involving killing, maiming, rape and other forms of sexual violence, recruitment and use of children, violations of physical integrity, looting, destruction of properties and restrictions on freedom of movement, as well as attacks against humanitarian personnel, shall be held accountable.

In this regard, the Council notes the opening by the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court on 24 September 2014 of an investigation on alleged crimes committed since 2012 and welcomes the ongoing cooperation by the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic in this regard.

The Council reiterates the need to strengthen justice institutions and to fight impunity in order to contribute to stabilization and reconciliation, and calls upon the Central African Republic authorities to take concrete steps, without delay, to achieve this objective as a matter of priority. The Council calls upon the transitional authorities to continue their efforts to redeploy State administration in the provinces, including through the effective restoration of the administration of the judiciary and the criminal justice system throughout the country, with the support of the international community.

The Council welcomes the signing on 7 August 2014 of the Memorandum of Understanding on Urgent Temporary Measures, which describes, in particular, the establishment of a national Special Criminal Court in charge of investigating and prosecuting the serious crimes committed in the Central African Republic, and calls for the implementation of the Memorandum of Understanding without delay, in accordance with resolution 2149(2014) and including through the adoption of the necessary legislation by the transitional authorities.

The Council looks forward to the final report of the International Commission of Inquiry on the Central African Republic established by resolution 2127(2013).

The Council calls for cooperation between all relevant institutions and mechanisms contributing to investigations and prosecutions of crimes involving violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights.

The Council calls upon all armed groups in the Central African Republic to immediately cease all acts of violence against humanitarian personnel and civilians, and demands that all parties allow the full, safe, immediate, unhindered and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance to populations in need, in particular to internally displaced persons, throughout the territory of the Central African Republic, respecting the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance and relevant provisions of international law.

The Council notes with appreciation the efforts made by humanitarian personnel, and reiterates its appreciation to the neighbouring countries, which are still hosting approximately 420,000 Central African Republic refugees. The Council calls upon the transitional authorities, humanitarian personnel and all relevant actors to establish favourable conditions for the voluntary and dignified return of internally displaced persons and refugees, and for the finding of a lasting solution for the concerned populations.

The Council urgently appeals to the international community to mobilize additional resources, noting in this regard that a total amount of $321 million is still required to cover the needs identified within the framework of the 2014 Central African Republic Strategic Response Plan and Regional Refugee Response Plan, to alleviate the humanitarian crisis, with an approach linking relief, rehabilitation and development.

The Council stresses that the restoration of lasting peace and stability in the Central African Republic is also contingent upon economic recovery, with concrete prospects for youth employment. In this context, the Council welcomes the pursuit, particularly in Bangui, of employment-generating projects and their extension to other locations, in the country, and calls for the multiplication of projects in the countryside, notably in the east and north-east regions, which have an acute need of development.

The Council calls upon the transitional authorities to continue their efforts to restore sound and transparent public financial management, in line with the recommendations of the recent International Monetary Fund mission to Bangui in November 2014, in particular to mobilize domestic resources, particularly customs revenues, in full respect of financial best practice, in order to meet the expenses related to the functioning of the State; implement early recovery plans; and revitalize the economy. This would create a conducive environment for the restoration of confidence by the economic actors, the mobilization of new private investment and the mobilization of international financial assistance, which is needed to cover 2015 financial needs.

The Council expresses its appreciation for the international mediation led by President Denis Sassou Nguesso of the Congo and comprising Mr. Soumeylou Boubèye Maïga, on behalf of the African Union, and Mr. Abdoulaye Bathily, on behalf of the United Nations, as well as the Secretary-General of the Economic Community of Central African States as rapporteur, and the constructive engagement of the region.

The Council emphasizes that the continued role of the region, including the Secretary-General of the Economic Community of Central African States and its Mediator, as well as of the African Union, together with the United Nations, will be critical for the promotion of lasting peace and stability in the Central African Republic.

The Council calls upon the international community to continue to support the people and the transitional authorities of the Central African Republic and to provide urgent financial contributions to support national dialogue and reconciliation, electoral, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform processes, as well as the restoration of the judicial and penal chains in order to fight against impunity. The Council notes in this respect the role of the Peacebuilding Commission in encouraging and facilitating dialogue, complementarity and coherence among all actors involved, in close collaboration with the United Nations leadership in the field; and in sustaining the attention and commitment of the international community in support of these processes and of the long-term peacebuilding objectives of the country.

Arms embargo

In a 17 December letter [S/2014/921], the Chair of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2127(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 137] concerning the CAR transmitted to the President of the Security Council the report on its activities during 2014. The Committee met six times in 2014 in informal consultations, on 5 March, 1 and 5 May, 25 June, 1 August and 24 October, in addition to three formal meetings on 16 January, 6 February and 3 December. During the Committee's informal consultations on 5 March, the Panel of Experts presented its programme of work. On 1 May, the Committee received a briefing by the General Counsel and Acting Special Representative of the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) to the United Nations concerning the pending agreement with INTERPOL for the issuance of INTERPOL-United Nations Security Council Special Notices. The agreement entered into force on 18 June. On 5 May, the Committee was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict. On 25 June, the Panel of Experts presented its interim report to the Committee; on 1 August, the Coordinator of the Panel provided further information to the Committee regarding statements of case for a number of individuals and entities that the Panel believed met the listing criteria set out in paragraphs 36 and 37 of resolution 2134(2014) (see p. 213); and on 24 October the Panel presented its final report to the Committee (see p. 232). As regards its formal meetings, on 16 January, the Committee adopted guidelines for the conduct of its work. On 6 February, the Committee invited the CAR and its six neighbouring States to make statements to the Committee; and on 3 December, the Chair organized a second meeting with the CAR and its six neighbouring States to make statements to the Committee concerning the final report of the Panel.

The Committee received 32 implementation reports from Member States in pursuance of resolutions 2127(2013) and 2134(2014). It also sent 96 communications, of which 71 were transmitted to Member States and 25 to United Nations, international and regional bodies, with reference to the implementation of the sanctions measures. The Committee listed three individuals subject to the measures imposed by paragraph 30 (travel ban) and paragraph 32 (assets freeze) of resolution 2134(2014); one of those three individuals, Lévy Yakété, was delisted following his death.

Panel of experts

The Panel of Experts on the CAR was established by the Security Council in resolution 2127(2013), by which the Council requested the Secretary-General to create, for an initial period of 13 months, a group of up to five experts, under the direction of the Committee established in the same resolution, to monitor the arms embargo. The mandate of the Panel was extended to 28 January 2015 in resolution 2134(2014), by which the Council adopted additional targeted measures. As a result of both resolutions, the sanctions regime that the Panel was mandated to monitor consisted of an arms embargo, which would prevent the direct or indirect supply, sale or transfer to the CAR of arms and related materiel, an assets freeze and a travel ban. On 13 February [S/2014/98], the Secretary-General appointed five experts to the Group.

Reports of Panel of Experts. On 26 June, pursuant to Security Council resolution 2127(2013), the Panel of Experts on the CAR submitted to the Council an interim report [S/2014/452].

The Panel of Experts took note of the decision taken by the Committee to implement targeted sanctions against François Bozizé, Lévy Yakété and Nourredine Adam as a measure that contributed to ending impunity in the country, and it intended to monitor the implementation of the assets freeze and travel ban on the listed individuals. The Panel had been able to identify several other Central African political entrepreneurs, such as some components of the “new Séléka” or of self-declared anti-balaka militias, who were taking advantage of the security vacuum in the country to fund, organize or manipulate armed groups in order to either position themselves in the national transitional process or promote the country’s partition.

The Panel noted that personnel of the Central African armed forces and the gendarmerie remained in command positions within some of the main anti-balaka groups. The Panel had documented in its database that, from 5 December 2013 to 30 April 2014, 444 incidents resulted in the deaths of 2,424 civilians. The Panel acknowledged, however, that there was significant underreporting of incidents. In the west of the CAR, anti-balaka members were digging for and trading in diamonds in remote villages, while in the east, Séléka forces retained a tight grip on artisanal gold mines. State mining authorities were gradually re-establishing control in diamond-producing areas around Bria and Sam-Ouandja (Haute-Kotto Province) and resuming official trade to Bangui. Individual Séléka commanders, however, had captured part of the trade, taking diamonds to the Sudan instead. The temporary suspension of the CAR from the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme in May 2013 resulted in a ban on official diamond exports. Business houses in Bangui had nevertheless continued to officially purchase and stock diamonds from all production areas, while fraudulent trade, routed either through Bangui or through neighbouring States, was on the rise. Apart from illicit imports of hunting ammunition, the Panel had not documented any major transfer of weapons, ammunition or military equipment since the imposition of the arms embargo on 5 December 2013.

The Panel recommended that the Committee request countries neighbouring the CAR to publish, on a yearly basis, complete statistics on the import and export of natural resources, including diamonds and gold; urge all parties, including countries of the Central African region, INTERPOL and regional and sub-regional organizations, to enhance information-sharing and joint action to investigate and combat regional criminal networks involved in the illegal exploitation of and trade in natural resources, including wildlife and wildlife products; urge the transitional authorities of the CAR to take all steps necessary to certify to the Committee that defence and security personnel who had been identified as members of armed groups active in the CAR had been removed from their positions in the defence and security forces; and request the transitional authorities to report to the Committee on measures taken to ensure the safe management of arms and ammunition, including their registration, distribution, use and maintenance, and identify any training and infrastructure needs.

In its final report in October [S/2014/762], the Panel estimated that some 2,000 former Séléka fighters, excluding the elements cantoned in Bangui, and some 1,500 militiamen associated with the anti-balaka movement continued to pose a permanent threat to the peace, security and stability of the country, which remained de facto partitioned. The Panel documented several incidents in the northern part of the country bordering Chad, including the killing of civilians, the burning of villages and forced displacement. Those recurrent attacks by unknown armed groups and former Séléka units under the command of Brigadier General Mahamat Alkhatim had resulted in the establishment of a buffer zone between Chad and the provinces of Ouham and Ouham-Pendé in the CAR. In addition, the increasing fragmentation of the main armed groups active in the country and the implosion of the Front populaire pour la renaissance de centrafricaine, the new political structure representing the former Séléka, constituted significant challenges to the stabilization of the political landscape in order to hold free, fair, transparent and inclusive presidential and legislative elections scheduled for February 2015. There had been few direct confrontations between former Séléka and anti-balaka forces since 5 December 2013, but both armed groups, in particular the anti-balaka, had constantly targeted civilians.

The appointment to the post of Minister of Youth and Sports in the new transitional cabinet of the leader of an armed group called Révolution et justice reinforced the prospect that being the commander of a politico-military movement could lead to top governmental positions and therefore validated the strategy of political spoilers. Since the suspension of the CAR from the Kimberley Process in May 2013, an additional 140,000 carats of diamonds, valued at $24 million, were estimated to have been smuggled out of the country, in addition to an estimated two tons of gold trafficked each year from the CAR, mainly through Cameroon.

The Panel had not yet observed any significant violation of the arms embargo in support of armed groups, considering that logistics and security constraints prevented the Panel from travelling to the north-eastern region of the CAR. From 5 December 2013 to mid-August 2014, the Panel documented a total of 1,034 conflict-related incidents, including 247 reports of obstruction of humanitarian aid. During the same period, the Panel also recorded the killing of 3,003 civilians throughout the country, including 22 aid workers.

Financing

In March [A/68/327/Add.9 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General reported on estimates in respect of special political missions, good offices and other political initiatives authorized by the Assembly and/or the Security Council, which included resource requirements for the Panel of Experts on the CAR totalling $1,476,100 for 2014. The related report of ACABQ [A/68/7/Add.25] recommended the proposed budget for that period. In section II of resolution 68/247 B of 9 April (see p. 1639), the General Assembly endorsed the recommendation of ACABQ and approved the budget for the Panel of Experts on the CAR.

International Commission of Inquiry

Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2127(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 137], the Secretary-General established an international commission of inquiry to investigate reports of violations of international humanitarian law, international human rights law and abuses of human rights in the CAR by all parties since 1 January 2013; and to compile information to help identify the perpetrators of such violations and abuses, point to their possible criminal responsibility and help ensure that those responsible were held accountable.

Appointments. As requested, by resolution 2127(2013), the Secretary-General, on 20 January 2014 [S/2014/43], appointed Bernard Acho Muna (Cameroon) as the Chair and Fatimata M'Baye (Mauritania) and Jorge Castañeda (Mexico) as members of the International Commission of Inquiry. On 22 January [S/2014/44], the Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention.

On 14 August [S/2014/591], the Secretary-General informed the Council that, following the resignation of Mr. Castañeda, he had appointed Philip G. Alston (Australia) as a member of the Commission.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 16 June letter [S/2014/410], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council President a letter from the Chair of the International Commission of Inquiry on the CAR that requested the suspension of the publication of the Commission's preliminary report, in order to allow it to be revised to give a more precise picture of the situation in the CAR following the Commission's two-week tour of the country.

Reports of the Commission of Inquiry. In a 26 June letter [S/2014/373], the Secretary-General transmitted to the President of the Security Council the preliminary report of the Commission. The Commission started work only in April, under very difficult conditions, including a hostile and violent environment that made it difficult for investigators to carry out their work, especially in the interior of the CAR.

In Bangui, the Commission received first-hand testimony from 309 interviews with victims, witnesses and individuals with relevant information. The Commission furthermore received and reviewed 181 case files, including medical records, from the national judicial and prosecuting authorities and from national and international non-governmental organizations and conducted site visits to locations in Bangui where incidents had occurred in order to corroborate information provided by witnesses. The Commission concluded that there were reasonable grounds to believe that all parties to the conflict had, since 1 January 2013, perpetrated serious violations of international human rights and international humanitarian law and abuses of human rights.

In its final report in December [S/2014/928], the Commission noted that it carried out 910 interviews with victims, witnesses, family members and other individuals in the CAR as well as those who fled to Cameroon. The Commission was satisfied that the parties to the conflict were the members of the Armed Forces of the CAR (FACA) under President Bozizé, and the principal militia groups, the Séléka and the anti-balaka. The Commission was satisfied that the investigations it had conducted had established that all the parties were involved in serious violations of international humanitarian law and gross abuses of human rights, including rape and other gender-based sexual offences and violations. Many of the abuses amounted to crimes under both domestic law and the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court.

The Commission noted that impunity had been a major factor in fuelling the armed conflict, in large part because similar conflicts in the past had never been followed by measures designed to hold to account the major players responsible for crimes and violations. On the contrary, the major players in the CAR had usually stage-managed a “national reconciliation” and seen to it that self-serving amnesty laws were enacted to cover themselves from any prosecutions. The holding of perpetrators of violations and abuses of human rights and humanitarian law accountable for their acts would make an important contribution to putting an end to impunity in the CAR. The Commission was satisfied that its investigations had established that a non-international armed conflict took place in the CAR from 1 January 2013 to 24 March 2013, when President Bozizé left power, and also after 4 December 2013 for the extent of the reporting period. It was the view of the Commission that from 24 March 2013 when Michel Djotodia took over as President of a Transitional government until he resigned on 5 December 2013, there were internal disturbances or violence, but the Commission did not consider that they reached the level of non-international armed conflict.

After examining all the available evidence, the Commission concluded that the threshold requirement to prove the existence of the necessary element of genocidal intent had not been established in relation to any of the actors in the conflict. The Commission, however, did not give any reason to assume that in the future the risk of grave crimes, including genocide, would be averted.

The Commission considered that it was not in a position to establish with any degree of accuracy the number of people who were killed in the conflict during the two years covered by its mandate. The difficulties of collecting accurate data were due to various reasons, including the practice of Muslim communities to bury their dead almost immediately and the difficulty of getting access to mass graves, especially in the countryside and forests, in the midst of continuing conflicts. The estimates that were available ranged from 3,000 to 6,000 people killed, but the Commission considered that those failed to capture the full magnitude of the killings that occurred.

The Commission made recommendations to the Transitional Government of the CAR, MINUSCA, the Security Council, the Secretary-General, the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, the United Nations Human Rights Council, and relevant regional organizations. The Commission’s recommendations to the Security Council included the requirement of dedicated financial support from the international community for a witness protection programme that would ensure the protection of witnesses and, as needed, the extended family of witnesses, in order to secure accountability for human rights and humanitarian law violations. The Commission recommended to the Secretary-General that his periodic reports on peacekeeping operations in the CAR include an analysis of any violations that were alleged to have been committed by both UN peacekeepers and non-UN peacekeepers authorized by the Security Council.

Peacebuilding Commission

The Peacebuilding Commission issued its annual report covering its eighth (2014) session from 1 January to 31 December [A/69/818-S/2015/174]. The Commission stated that the tragic recurrence of conflict in the CAR created challenges that were significantly different from those that were prevailing when the country was placed on the Commission’s agenda. A special political mission was replaced by a multidimensional peacekeeping mission, with a corresponding increase in the presence of international actors on the ground. The Commission sought to sustain attention to the unfolding situation in the country among a diverse group of Member States by convening a series of discussions with religious leaders, experts on the region and representatives of civil society organizations. It also offered an informal platform for the exchange of information and updates by the UN lead departments, the World Bank, regional countries and key development partners. Following an appeal to the Commission by the President of the Transitional Government of the CAR during a visit by the configuration chair in February, the Peacebuilding Fund and the World Bank joined efforts to pay the salaries of civil servants from May through August, which contributed to the re-establishment of core public services in the country. At the same time, the continuing security, fiscal and institutional challenges faced by the transitional authorities posed new challenges to the ability of the Commission to accompany the transition process in the country. The ceasefire agreement signed in Brazzaville on 23 July, however, was expected to lead to agreement on a political framework for which the Commission could catalyse the support of the United Nations and regional and international actors. The Commission could complement the efforts of the UN leadership in the field to ensure that the region and neighbouring States were working in close coordination in support of security and stability in the CAR. The approach would take into consideration the specific regional dynamics and the need to ensure that the security and political concerns and the interests of relevant regional actors were addressed.

Communication. In a 28 March letter [S/2014/228], the Chair of the Peacebuilding Commission informed the Security Council President that he visited Bangui from 4 to 7 March and held discussions with different stakeholders to seek their views on the priority aspects for the engagement of the Peacebuilding Commission in the CAR. The Chair presented a report that was made available to the members of the Security Council only.

(For further information on the Peacebuilding Commission, see p. 58.)

Children and armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Security Council resolution 2068(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 724], the Secretary-General submitted a May report on children and armed conflict [A/68/878-S/2014/339], which included developments concerning the situation in the CAR from January to December 2013.

Throughout 2013, the human rights situation worsened dramatically, with a multiplication and shifting of alliances of armed groups: On the one hand was the Convention des patriotes pour la justice et la paix (CPJP), the CPJP Fondamentale, the Front démocratique du peuple centrafricain (FDPC) and the Union des forces démocratiques pour le rassemblement (UFDR), which came to form, or were associated in varying degrees with, the Séléka coalition; and on the other was the anti-balaka, a local defence militia that emerged in the second half of the year in response to the systematic attacks against the civilian population by the ex-Séléka coalition. Both the anti-balaka and the Séléka coalition, prior and after its dismantlement, systematically recruited and used children. The United Nations documented the recruitment and use of 171 boys and 17 girls, and estimated that several thousand children had been and remained associated with the ex-Séléka and the anti-balaka.

The United Nations verified the killing of 27 children and the maiming of 115 others. The United Nations had documented sexual violence against 20 girls, mainly by the Séléka. At least 36 schools and five hospitals were attacked by ex-Séléka. On 26 November, the Ministry of Defence granted the United Nations unconditional screening access to military barracks and cantonment sites in view of the separation and reintegration of children associated with armed groups. A total of 149 children were separated from the ex-Séléka. The fluid command structure of the anti-balaka, among other challenges, remained an obstacle to opening a structured dialogue. The Secretary-General noted that in view of the re-establishment of national security forces, the disarmament of the ex-Séléka and the anti-balaka had to be accompanied by a thorough investigation of operational and political chains of command responsible for grave violations against children.

MINUSCA

Following the adoption of Security Council resolution 2149(2014) (see p. 220), the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic (BINUCA) was subsumed into the newly established peacekeeping operation—the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic (MINUSCA).

Appointments. On 11 July [S/2014/497], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Babacar Gaye (Senegal) as his Special Representative for the CAR and Head of MINUSCA. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 15 July [S/2014/498].

On 24 July [S/2014/544], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Major General Martin Chomu Tumenta (Cameroon) as Force Commander of MINUSCA effective 15 September. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 28 July [S/2014/545].

Financing

In May [A/68/874], the Secretary-General submitted a report on financing arrangements for MINUSCA for the period from 10 April to 31 December 2014 and for the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015. The report included resource requirements in the amount of $312,976,400 gross ($308,704,700 net) for the start-up and establishment of MINUSCA for the period from 10 April to 31 December, inclusive of the amount of $59,552,000 gross ($58,930,100 net) previously authorized by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) to meet the most immediate requirements for the establishment of MINUSCA for the period from 10 April to 30 June, including the Mission's subsuming of BINUCA as at 10 April. The proposal also included requirements in the amount of $6,114,400 gross ($5,722,100 net) for related backstopping resources under the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015.

In May [A/68/782/Add.18], ACABQ recommended that the General Assembly approve the following: authorization for the Secretary-General to enter into commitments for the period from 10 April to 31 December in the amount of $312,976,400, inclusive of the amount of $59,552,000 previously authorized by the Committee for the period from 10 April to 30 June; assessment of the amount of $59,552,000 for the Mission for the period from 10 April to 30 June; and assessment of the amount of $253,424,400 for the Mission for the period from 1 July to 31 December.

ACABQ also recommended that the General Assembly approve the support account requirements in the amount of $4,993,700 for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015; and appropriation of the amount of $4,993,700 among the budgets of the active peacekeeping operations for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/932], adopted resolution 68/299 without vote [agenda item 176].

Financing of the United Nations
Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic

The General Assembly,

Having considered the note by the Secretary-General on the financing arrangements for the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2149(2014) of 10 April 2014, by which the Council established the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic as from 10 April 2014 for an initial period until 30 April 2015, requested the Secretary-General to subsume the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic into the Mission as from the same date, decided that, as from 15 September 2014, the Mission will initially comprise up to 10,000 military personnel, including 240 military observers and 200 staff officers, and 1,800 police personnel, comprising 1,400 formed police unit personnel and 400 individual police officers, and 20 corrections officers, and also decided that the transfer of authority from the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic to the Mission will take place on 15 September 2014,

1. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

2. Recalls paragraph 16 of the report of the Advisory Committee, and decides to consider the administrative arrangements associated with inter-mission cooperation during the second part of the resumed sixty-ninth session, while maintaining existing arrangements;

Estimates for the period from 10 April to 31 December 2014

3. Authorizes the Secretary-General to establish a special account for the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic for the purpose of accounting for the income received and the expenditure incurred in respect of the Mission;

4. Also authorizes the Secretary-General to enter into commitments for the Mission in an amount not exceeding 312,976,400 United States dollars for the period from 10 April to 31 December 2014, inclusive of the amount of 59,552,000 dollars previously authorized by the Advisory Committee for the period from 10 April to 30 June 2014 under the terms of section VI of its resolution 64/269 of 24 June 2010;

Financing of the commitment authority

5. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 59,552,000 dollars for the period from 10 April to 30 June 2014, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

6. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 5 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 621,900 dollars, for the period from 10 April to 30 June 2014 representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission;

7. Further decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 253,424,400 dollars for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

8. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 7 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 3,649,800 dollars, for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission;

9. Invites voluntary contributions to the Mission in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

10. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic".

In October [A/69/557], the Secretary-General submitted the MINUSCA budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, which amounted to $628,724,400 gross (622, 722,500 net).

In December [A/69/641], ACABQ recommended that the General Assembly appropriate the amount of $628,724,400 for the maintenance of the Mission for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of $253,424,400 previously authorized for the period from 1 July to 31 December under the terms of resolution 68/299 (see above); and assess the amount of $375,300,000 for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, in addition to the amount of $253,424,400 already assessed for the period from 1 July to 31 December under the terms of resolution 68/299, should the Security Council decide to continue the mandate of MINUSCA.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 December [meeting 77], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/69/684], adopted resolution 69/257 without vote [agenda item 151].

Financing of the United Nations
Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Multidimensional

Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2149(2014) of 10 April 2014, by which the Council established the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic as from 10 April 2014 for an initial period until 30 April 2015, requested the Secretary-General to subsume the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic into the Mission as from the same date and decided that the transfer of authority from the African-led International Support Mission in the Central African Republic to the Mission would take place on 15 September 2014,

Recalling also its resolution 68/299 of 30 June 2014 on the financing of the Mission,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Mission with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic as at 30 November 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 47.9 million United States dollars, representing some 15 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 73 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Mission in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on

Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to continue his efforts to ensure more effective cooperation among the Mission, the United Nations country team and other United Nations entities with a field presence, in line with their respective roles and mandates;

10. Decides that the proposed temporary positions of an Electoral Officer (P-4) and the related Administrative Assistant (General Service (Other level)) shall be added to the integrated operational team responsible for supporting the Mission in the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat, and funded from the support account for peacekeeping operations;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

12. Also requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Mission is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

13. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic the amount of 628,724,400 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 for the maintenance of the Mission, inclusive of the amount of 253,424,400 dollars previously authorized for the Mission for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 under the terms of its resolution 68/299;

Financing of the appropriation

14. Decides, taking into account the amount of 253,424,400 dollars previously apportioned under the terms of its resolution 68/299 for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014, to apportion among Member States the additional amount of 375,300,000 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 for the maintenance of the Mission, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012, subject to a decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Mission;

15. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 2,352,100 dollars, representing the balance of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission;

16. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

17. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Mission under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

18. Invites voluntary contributions to the Mission in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

19. Decides to keep under review during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly the item entitled “Financing of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic”.

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on the financing of MINUSCA to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Central African Republic and Chad

Children and armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General. The Secretary-General, in a May report on children and armed conflict [A/68/878-S/2014/339] covering developments in 2013, included information on the situation in Chad. The deployment of Chadian troops to the African-led International Support Mission in Mali (AFISMA) prompted renewed momentum to end and prevent underage recruitment in the Armée nationale tchadienne. The Chadian authorities renewed their commitment to engage with the United Nations to expedite the implementation of the action plan, appointed a high-level focal point in that regard and adopted a road map detailing 10 specific and time-bound measures to be implemented in the short and long terms to achieve compliance with the action plan. A central child protection unit in the Ministry of Defence and one in each of the eight “defence and security zones” were established to coordinate the monitoring and protection of children’s rights and to implement awareness-raising activities. Between August and October 2013, the Government and the United Nations jointly conducted the screening and age verification of approximately 3,800 troops of the armée nationale tchadienne in all eight zones. In February, the recruitment and use of children was explicitly criminalized through the adoption of a presidential decree. The security situation in neighbouring countries continued to affect children in Chad. The crisis in the CAR, border porosity and weak State authority in the country had resulted in the inflow of approximately 80,000 refugees, including unaccompanied children, into Chad. In addition, a significant influx of refugees from Darfur, the Sudan, into areas contaminated with explosive remnants of war in Chad was recorded.

MINURCAT

The United Nations Mission in the Central African Republic and Chad (MINURCAT) completed its mandate on 31 December 2010, in accordance with Security Council resolution 1923(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 159] and at the request of the Chadian Government, which had pledged full responsibility for protecting civilians on its territory. Following its withdrawal, the UN country team and the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic (BINUCA) remained in the country to continue to work for the benefit of the Chadian people. Security Council resolution 2149(2014) subsumed BINUCA into MINUSCA.

On 15 September, the General Assembly, by decision 68/665, decided to defer the consideration of the item on the financing of MINURCAT and to include it in the draft agenda of its sixty-ninth (2015) session.

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on the financing of MINURCAT to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Rwanda

Prevention and fight against genocide

Communication. In an 11 April letter [S/2014/265] to the Secretary-General, the Security Council President transmitted a concept note prepared by Rwanda to steer the Council’s briefing on the threat to international peace and security: prevention of and fight against genocide, to be held on 16 April. The briefing would be organized on the occasion of the twentieth commemoration of the genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which more than 1 million people were killed in a hundred days, including Hutu and others who opposed it. The briefing would serve as an opportunity for the Security Council to discuss lessons learned from the failure of the international community to prevent the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda as the world continued to face new challenges in conflict management, peacekeeping and the prevention of genocide and crimes against humanity. As an organ of the United Nations with the primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, the Council, with insights from briefers, would re-evaluate the resolve and mechanisms in place to prevent such crimes from happening.

Commemoration

On 16 April, the United Nations held its twentieth commemoration of the 1994 genocide in Rwanda [YUN 1994, p. 281] in New York and at United Nations Information Centres globally. In his message in observance of the event, the Secretary-General said that international criminal justice was expanding its reach and that leaders and warlords alike faced the growing likelihood of prosecution for their crimes. He further said that the work of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda had shown once again how justice was indispensable for sustainable peace. The Secretary-General stressed that since genocide took planning, vigilance for human rights violations as early warning signals of conflict and mass atrocities was needed.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 16 April [meeting 7155], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2150(2014). The draft [S/2014/270] was submitted by Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Chad, Chile, China, Croatia, Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Jordan, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Montenegro, Morocco, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Panama, Poland, Portugal, the Republic of Korea, Romania, the Russian Federation, Rwanda, Slovakia, Slovenia, Somalia, Sweden, Switzerland, Togo, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide,

Reaffirming also the significance of the Convention as an effective international instrument for the prevention and punishment of the crime of genocide, emphasizing that the crime of genocide, as recognized in the Convention, is an odious scourge that has inflicted great losses on humanity and that further international cooperation is required to facilitate the timely prevention and punishment of the crime of genocide,

Recognizing that States bear the primary responsibility to respect and ensure the human rights of their citizens, as well as other individuals within their territory as provided for by relevant international law,

Acknowledging the important role played by regional and subregional arrangements in the prevention of and response to situations that may lead to genocide, war crimes and crimes against humanity, especially noting article 4 (b) of the Constitutive Act of the African Union,

Recalling the important role of the Special Advisers to the Secretary-General on the Prevention of Genocide and on the Responsibility to Protect, whose functions include acting as an early warning mechanism to prevent potential situations that could result in genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and ethnic cleansing,

Recalling also the jurisdiction of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, established pursuant to Security Council resolution 955(1994) of 8 November 1994 for the sole purpose of prosecuting persons responsible for genocide and other serious violations of international humanitarian law committed in the territory of Rwanda and Rwandan citizens responsible for genocide and other such violations committed in the territory of neighbouring States between 1 January 1994 and 31 December 1994, and further recalling that genocide involves intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group, as such,

Recalling further the conclusions of the final report of the Commission of Experts established pursuant to Council resolution 935(1994) of 1 July 1994, among which was included that “there exists overwhelming evidence to prove that acts of genocide against the Tutsi group were perpetrated,” and noting that during the genocide, Hutu and others who opposed it were also killed,

Recalling that the Appeals Chamber of the Tribunal issued, on 16 June 2006, a judicial notice (ICTR-98-44-AR73(C)) concluding that it was a “fact of common knowledge” that “between 6 April 1994 and 17 July 1994, there was a genocide in Rwanda against the Tutsi ethnic group”, further recalling that more than a million people were killed during the genocide, including Hutu and others who opposed it, and noting with concern any form of denial of that genocide,

Noting with concern that many genocide suspects continue to elude justice, including the remaining nine fugitives indicted by the Tribunal,

Reaffirming its strong opposition to impunity for serious violations of international humanitarian law and human rights law, and emphasizing in this context the responsibility of States to comply with their relevant obligations to end impunity and, to that end, to thoroughly investigate and prosecute persons responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes or other serious violations of international humanitarian law and international human rights law, in order to avoid their recurrence and to seek sustainable peace, justice, truth and reconciliation,

Stressing that the fight against impunity and to ensure accountability for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes and other egregious crimes has been strengthened through the work on and prosecution of these crimes in the international criminal justice system, ad hoc and mixed tribunals as well as specialized chambers in national tribunals; and recognizing in this regard the contribution of the International Criminal Court, in accordance with the principle of complementarity to national criminal jurisdictions as set out in the Rome Statute of the Court, towards holding accountable those responsible for such crimes, and reiterating its call on the importance of State cooperation with these courts and tribunals in accordance with the States’ respective obligations,

Recognizing the contribution made by the Tribunal to the fight against impunity and the development of international criminal justice, especially in relation to the crime of genocide,

Noting that the prosecution of persons responsible for genocide and other serious international crimes, through the national justice system, including the gacaca courts of Rwanda, and the Tribunal, contributed to the process of national reconciliation and to the restoration and maintenance of peace in Rwanda,

Recalling that leaders and members of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda were among the perpetrators of the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which Hutu and others who opposed the genocide were also killed, further recalling that the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda is a group under United Nations sanctions operating in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and which has continued to promote and commit ethnically based and other killings in Rwanda and in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, and stressing the importance of neutralizing this group, in line with Council resolution 2098(2013) of 28 March 2013,

Recalling also that the General Assembly, on 23 December 2003, designated the date of 7 April as the International Day of Reflection on the 1994 Genocide in Rwanda,

Emphasizing the particular importance of all forms of education in order to prevent the commission of future genocides,

1. Calls upon States to recommit to preventing and fighting against genocide and other serious crimes under international law, reaffirms paragraphs 138 and 139 of the 2005 World Summit Outcome on the responsibility to protect populations from genocide, war crimes, ethnic cleansing and crimes against humanity, and underscores the importance of taking into account lessons learned from the 1994 genocide against the Tutsi in Rwanda, during which Hutu and others who opposed the genocide were also killed;

2. Condemns without reservation any denial of this genocide, and urges Member States to develop educational programmes that will inculcate on future generations the lessons of the genocide in order to help to prevent future genocides;

3. Welcomes efforts by Member States to investigate and prosecute those accused of this genocide, calls upon all States to cooperate with the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals and the Government of Rwanda in the arrest and prosecution of the remaining nine fugitives indicted by the Tribunal, and further calls upon States to investigate, arrest, prosecute or extradite, in accordance with applicable international obligations, all other fugitives accused of genocide residing on their territories, including those who are leaders of the Forces démocratiques de libération du Rwanda;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure greater collaboration between existing early warning mechanisms for genocide prevention and other serious international crimes, in order to help to detect, assess and respond to sources of tension and points of risk or identify vulnerable populations;

5. Calls upon States that have not yet ratified or acceded to the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide to consider doing so as a matter of high priority and, where necessary, to enact national legislation in order to meet their obligations under the Convention.

West Africa

Regional issues

Political and security developments

The Secretary-General, as requested by the Security Council in 2007 [YUN 2007, p. 168], reported every six months on the fulfilment of the mandate of the United Nations Office for West Africa (UNOWA). The reports focused on political developments in the subregion; economic, social, humanitarian and security trends; human rights and gender issues; and UNOWA activities (see p. 245). The reports also described developments in the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission (see p. 296).

Reports of Secretary-General (June and December). In response to a Security Council letter of December 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 157], which extended the mandate of UNOWA until December 2016, the Secretary-General submitted a June report [S/2014/442] on developments in the subregion and the activities of UNOWA in the first half of 2014.

During the reporting period, progress had been made in the region in addressing political and security challenges in West Africa. Countries of the Mano River Union, with the support of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) and UNOWA, commenced efforts to implement the cross-border security strategy for the Mano River Union, which was adopted on 25 October 2013. Successful presidential and legislative elections paved the way for the return to constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau (see p. 275). The mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone (UNIPSIL) (see p. 274), which once hosted the largest UN multidimensional peacekeeping operation, was successfully completed on 31 March, bringing an end to a decade and a half of successive UN peace operations in the country. In Mauritania (see p. 298), negotiations between the opposition coalition and the Government broke down in April as a result of the failure of both sides to reach agreement on an agenda for the political dialogue. Burkina Faso (see p. 227), Côte d'Ivoire (see p. 246), Guinea (see p. 297), Nigeria and Togo (see below) started preparations for presidential and legislative elections, scheduled to be held in 2015.

In Nigeria, President Goodluck Jonathan convened a national conference on 17 March, calling on the delegates to examine and make recommendations on the political and socioeconomic challenges facing the country. The security situation in the north-eastern part of Nigeria deteriorated in the first half of the year. On 20 May, the National Assembly approved the request of President Jonathan for a renewal of the state of emergency in Yobe, Borno and Adamawa States for another six-month period.

The Niger continued to face political tensions following the departure, in August 2013, of the Mouvement démocratique nigérien/Fédération africaine (MODEN-FA LUMANA) party from the ruling coalition. Since then, relations between the political parties, and between the opposition and the Government, had been strained.

Burkina Faso experienced political tensions in January when 75 of the 400 members of the National Political Bureau of the ruling Congress for Democracy and Progress resigned from the party and joined forces with the opposition and others to create a new political party, the People's Movement for Progress. On 18 January, the opposition commenced peaceful demonstrations against the potential candidacy of President Blaise Compaoré in the next presidential elections.

In Togo, the Government and the opposition remained divided over modalities for the residual political and institutional reforms envisaged in the global political agreement signed in Lomé on 21 August 2006. They agreed to hold a dialogue on a 12-point agenda, facilitated by Archbishop Nicodème Barrigah-Bénissan, former Chair of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Talks opened on 26 May but the opposition withdrew on 3 June, owing to what it described as silence by the presidential camp on key issues, such as the presidential term and the ballot system.

In Senegal, progress was made towards finding a lasting solution to the 32-year-old conflict launched by the armed separatist group, the Movement of Democratic Forces of Casamance (MFDC). President Macky Sall, who had made peace and development a priority under his presidency, announced a special development project as part of his efforts for the socio-economic development of the country. On 28 April, the leader of MFDC announced a unilateral ceasefire as part of his commitment to finding a lasting solution to the conflict.

The Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission continued to build on the progress made in the implementation of the judgment of the International Court of Justice of 10 October 2002 [YUN 2002, p. 1265] on the land and maritime dispute between Cameroon and Nigeria. Approximately 1,947 km of the estimated 2,100 km land boundary had so far been assessed and agreed upon by the parties.

Countries in the Gulf of Guinea continued to pursue efforts towards tackling piracy, armed robbery, trafficking and other illicit activities occurring at sea in the region, with the support of the Economic Community of Central African States (ECCAS), ECOWAS and the Gulf of Guinea Commission. On 29 March, the ECOWAS integrated maritime strategy was adopted in Yamoussoukro, Côte d'Ivoire.

UNOWA played a pivotal role in launching the implementation of the UN integrated strategy for the Sahel and in coordinating the work of the regional working group, which focused on strengthening the capacity of national and regional security mechanisms to address cross-border threats. The Secretary-General commended the efforts being made by Governments and subregional organizations to collectively address the increasing incidence of transnational organized crime, terrorism, violent extremism, piracy and armed robbery at sea.

In December [S/2014/945], the Secretary-General reported on developments in West Africa and UNOWA activities during the second half of the year. On 12 September, the Secretary-General announced the appointment of Mohammed Ibn Chambas (Ghana) as his new Special Representative for West Africa and Head of UNOWA to succeed Said Djinnit (Algeria), whose mandate ended on 30 September.

The spread and scale of the Ebola virus disease outbreak in West Africa intensified drastically and plunged the region into an unparalleled public health crisis, with implications for peace and security. The outbreak led to the near isolation of the three most-affected countries—Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone—with severe economic, social and political consequences for the entire region. Ebola had exposed weaknesses in national health infrastructures and services, as well as gaps in regional mechanisms. In September, the Security Council, concerned with the outbreak of the Ebola virus disease, adopted resolution 2177(2014) (see p. 1357), and in November, through presidential statement S/PRST/2014/24 (see p. 1363), it reiterated its grave concern about the unprecedented extent of the Ebola outbreak. The General Assembly adopted resolution 69/1 on measures to contain and combat the Ebola outbreak. (For more information on the Ebola crisis, see p. 1355.)

In Burkina Faso, tensions had been brewing over former President Blaise Compaoré's intention to amend the Constitution to allow him to run in the 2015 presidential elections. On 23 September, the former President initiated a political dialogue with the opposition in an attempt to defuse the political crisis, though on 6 October, he announced that the dialogue had been inconclusive after four preliminary meetings. On 21 October, the Council of Ministers adopted a draft bill on proposed amendments to the Constitution, which was scheduled to be voted on by the National Assembly on 30 October. The draft bill proposed amending article 37 by changing the two-term limit on the presidency to three, thus allowing President Compaoré to stand for re-election. In reaction, on 28 October, Burkinabés came out in massive numbers to attend a rally planned by opposition parties and civil society organizations. Apart from sporadic confrontations between demonstrators and the police, no violence was reported. The rally ended with the opposition launching a civil disobedience campaign to prevent the adoption of the draft bill. On 30 October, demonstrators broke through police lines and ransacked the National Assembly building. They also set ablaze City Hall, which was the headquarters of the ruling party, and other private and public buildings. Despite a radio announcement from the President later in the day withdrawing the bill and establishing a state of emergency, violent protests intensified in Ouagadougou and spread beyond the capital. According to the report of an ad hoc commission set up to assess the losses incurred and damage caused during the uprising, some 29 people were killed and 625 injured in the protests. On 31 October, former President Compaoré left the country. On 1 November, shortly after a similar announcement by the Chief of Defence Staff General Nabéré Honoré Traoré, Lieutenant Colonel Isaac Yacouba Zida, the Deputy Chief Commander of the presidential guard, announced the suspension of the Constitution, and each declared himself Head of State. While the Chief of Defence Staff held discussions with Burkinabé stakeholders, some opposition parties and civil society leaders accused the military of trying to hijack the "people's revolution" and repeatedly demanded that they hand over power to a civilian-led transition.

On 13 November, following an intensive national dialogue process that was supported by regional and international stakeholders, including the Secretary-General's Special Representative, Burkinabé stakeholders agreed on a Charter of the Transition, which was signed on 16 November. Two days later, Michel Kafando was sworn in as the Transitional President and was officially inaugurated on 21 November. A Transitional Government and a Transitional National Council were established soon afterwards. The transitional period would end with the conduct of general elections in November 2015.

In the Niger, political tensions increased owing to the rift between President Mahamadou Issoufou and the Speaker of the National Assembly, Hama Amadou. On 26 August, the National Assembly lifted the immunity of Mr. Amadou to enable a criminal investigation against him for his alleged role in a child trafficking network. While a national warrant for his arrest was issued on the same day, it could not be served since he had fled the country. During the reporting period, several members of opposition parties in the Niger were arrested and subsequently released on bail. Those events took place against a background of increased cross-border security threats from Boko Haram in the south of the Niger.

In Togo, eight opposition parties formed a coalition and nominated a joint presidential candidate ahead of the elections scheduled for March 2015. Meanwhile, calls for free and inclusive dialogue and reforms intensified, culminating in mass demonstrations on 21 November. Protestors demanded that constitutional reforms be instituted to prevent President Faure Essozimna Gnassingbé from running for a third term. In Benin, the political climate was also tense owing to technical difficulties related to the electronic voter registration list, as well as the perceived intention of incumbent President Boni Yayi to initiate a constitutional amendment to enable him to run for a third term of office.

In Côte d'Ivoire, the members of the Independent Electoral Commission were sworn in on 11 August following negotiations between the Government and opposition parties on its composition.

In Mali, formal peace negotiations were launched between the Government and armed groups in Algiers on 14 July. Ten days later, on 24 July, the parties signed a preliminary accord laying out a road map for further negotiations. In mid-November, the parties resumed negotiations on a draft peace agreement. The negotiations ended on 27 November and would resume in January 2015.

In Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone, the Ebola outbreak exacerbated political and social tensions. In an effort to contain the outbreak, some West African countries closed their borders and suspended commercial flights to Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone, the most-affected countries.

The Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission continued to make progress. Approximately 1,947 km of the estimated 2,100 km land boundary had been assessed and agreed on by the parties, and 667 boundary pillars constructed. Another 767 pillars remained to be constructed to complete the demarcation plan. In October, the parties officially expressed willingness to further contribute to the pillar emplacement project, and also agreed to call upon international donors for renewed assistance.

UNOWA provided support to the Lake Chad Basin Commission in the design of its counter-terrorism strategy, and, together with the United Nations Regional Office for Central Africa (UNOCA), participated in high-level meetings on the Gulf of Guinea from 9 to 12 September in Yaoundé, Cameroon. The Inter-regional Coordination Centre for Maritime Safety and Security in the Gulf of Guinea, responsible for the coordination and implementation of the Gulf of Guinea Joint Maritime Strategy, was inaugurated on 11 September.

Sahel region

Letters of Secretary-General. In a 27 January letter [S/2014/51] to the Security Council President, the Secretary-General noted that as at 1 February, the responsibility for the implementation of the UN integrated strategy for the Sahel [YUN 2013, p. 150] would be entrusted to the UN system in the region by placing the Office of the Special Envoy for the Sahel under the overall authority of the Secretary-General's Special Representative for West Africa.

In a 4 June letter [S/2014/390] to the Security Council President, the Secretary-General forwarded a 27 May letter from Mali transmitting the conclusions of the second ministerial meeting of the coordination platform for the Sahel, which was held on 16 May in Bamako.

Appointment. In a 28 April letter [S/2014/310], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council President of his intention to appoint Hiroute Guebre Sellassie (Ethiopia) as his new Special Envoy for the Sahel and Head of the Office succeeding Romano Prodi (Italy). The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 30 April [S/2014/311].

Integrated Strategy for the Sahel

In response to Security Council resolutions 2056(2012), 2071(2012) and presidential statement S/PRST/2013/10, the Secretary-General submitted a June report [S/2014/397] on the situation in the Sahel between 1 July 2013 and 30 May 2014, and provided an update on the status of implementation of the three pillars of the UN integrated strategy for the Sahel, namely, governance, security and resilience.

Efforts continued towards the implementation of existing regional legal instruments, including the Protocol on Democracy and Good Governance of the Economic Community of West African States, in order to ensure the promotion of credible, transparent and violence free elections. Not all countries, however, had demonstrated the same level of political will. The region continued to witness low numbers of women and young people in parliament and senior political positions. In addition, only 55 per cent of children, on average, were registered at birth in Sahelian countries, owing to weak systems for civil registration and the collection of vital statistics. Many children who were not registered at birth were hindered in their efforts to vote later in life because they lacked a valid form of legal identification. Efforts in many Sahelian countries to improve access to justice had been constrained by high levels of poverty and illiteracy.

Security in the region remained precarious. In Libya, the growing political and security crisis threatened to derail the democratic transition of the country. While some processes had moved forward, including the election of the Constitutional Drafting Assembly in April and a number of legislative achievements concerning transitional justice, progress had been limited. Tensions between Islamist and non-Islamist forces came to a head in mid-May, with clashes in Benghazi and Tripoli.

The security situation in the northern part of Mali had gradually deteriorated, with an increase in the number of improvised explosive devices and indirect fire incidents against Malian forces, the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA) and the French Operation Serval. Furthermore, fighting between the Malian security forces and armed groups resumed on 21 May, though a ceasefire was announced on 24 May with the interventions of the Chairman of the AU, the President of Mauritania, Mohamed Ould Abdel Aziz, and the Secretary-General's Special Representative and Head of MINUSMA.

There was growing evidence that Boko Haram was better equipped and armed and had the potential to destabilize areas around Lake Chad, reportedly benefiting from the porous borders of Nigeria with Cameroon, Chad and the Niger to smuggle in arms and mount attacks against public institutions and civilian populations. The crises in Libya, Mali and Nigeria were destabilizing the broader Sahel region. The United Nations system and its partners in the region initiated activities to support the efforts of the Sahelian countries to address governance challenges. With the support of the Government of Japan, the United Nations Development Programme was implementing a $20 million programme in Burkina Faso, Chad, Mali, Mauritania and the Niger, focused on good governance and human security.

The United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime mobilized almost $13 million to support capacity-building and enhance the accessibility, efficiency and accountability of criminal justice systems to combat organized crime, illicit trafficking, terrorism and corruption. Similarly, the Executive Directorate of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1373(2001) concerning counter-terrorism, in collaboration with partner institutions, held from 13 to 15 May, in Nouakchott, Mauritania, the first meeting of a network of border control police, customs and intelligence officials from 11 countries of the Sahel and the Maghreb. With the support of the Peacebuilding Fund, two pilot projects had been launched in Mali and the Niger to address threats to peace in both countries. The Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations, the World Food Programme and the United Nations Children's Fund had been supporting the Permanent Inter-State Committee on Drought Control in the Sahel (CILSS) to strengthen the West Africa and Sahel food security and nutrition situation analysis, including through the development of tools and assessments.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 27 August [meeting 7249], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/17 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reiterates its continued concern about the alarming situation in the Sahel region and reaffirms its continued commitment to address the complex security and political challenges to the stability and development of the region despite the collective efforts undertaken by the region and the international community and reaffirms its continued commitment to address these challenges, which are interrelated with humanitarian and development issues as well as the adverse effects of climate and ecological changes. The Council reiterates the importance of a coherent, comprehensive and coordinated approach encompassing governance, security, humanitarian, human rights, development and environmental aspects to respond to the threats across the Sahel region as well as to address the root causes of these challenges.

The Council reaffirms its strong commitment to the sovereignty, territorial integrity, political independence and unity of countries of the Sahel region and reiterates the importance of national and regional ownership of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel. The Council encourages further close consultation between Member States of the Sahel, West Africa and the Maghreb as well as with regional, multilateral and other bilateral donors and partners to enhance the efforts to implement the strategy. The Council commends the growing leadership role assumed by the countries of the region, and welcomes in this regard the establishment of the Group of Five for the Sahel, which aims to enhance ownership of the initiatives focused on addressing the threats to peace and security and development in the Sahel. The Council encourages the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sahel to work closely with the countries of the Group of Five as well as other countries of the region and regional and international actors to tackle these threats.

The Council welcomes the high-level visit to the region undertaken from 4 to 7 November 2013 by the United Nations Secretary-General, the Chairperson of the African Union Commission, the President of the World Bank Group, the President of the African Development Bank and the Commissioner for International Cooperation and Development of the European Union, which was an important mission to promote closer coordination and cooperation among the countries of the Sahel and their partners. The Council encourages the reinvigoration of the vision set out during the visit, in order to translate the will and commitment of the international community into tangible results. The Council, in this regard, welcomes the initiatives taken by the countries of the Group of Five for the Sahel to appoint national focal points to improve coordination with the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sahel, as well as the initiative to establish a follow-up group composed of the Permanent Representatives of the Group of Five and other Sahel countries in New York, to regularly meet, share information and follow up with the Secretariat on the implementation of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel.

The Council welcomes the establishment of the Ministerial Coordination Platform for the Sahel, to discuss common priorities for initiatives in the Sahel under a rotating chairmanship, held by Mali from 2014 to 2015. The Council takes note of the conclusions of the two meetings of the Platform, held in Bamako on 5 November 2013 and 16 May 2014 and calls upon the international community, including the United Nations and the African Union, as co-Chairs of the technical secretariat, to support the functioning of the Platform. The Council welcomes the efforts made by Mali, as current Chair of the Platform, to consolidate these initiatives for the Sahel and looks forward to further progress in the months ahead.

The Council welcomes the establishment of the coordination mechanism within the United Nations system, including three United Nations inter-agency working groups on governance, security and resilience, to ensure a coordinated and coherent response to the challenges in the region. The Council welcomes the relocation of the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sahel to the premises of the United Nations Office for West Africa in Dakar, as part of its efforts to more fully and directly anchor the implementation of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel in the region and maximize synergies with the relevant entities of the United Nations system.

The Council continues to be gravely concerned about the activities in the Sahel region of terrorist organizations, including the Organization of Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb, Jama'atu Ahlis Sunna Lidda'Awati Wal-Jihad (Boko Haram), Ansar Eddine, the Mouvement pour l'Unification et le Jihad en Afrique de l'Ouest and Al Mourabitoun, and reiterates its strong condemnation of the recent terrorist attacks perpetrated in the region. The Council also reiterates its concern over the serious threats to peace and security posed by armed conflict, the proliferation of arms and transnational organized crime and other illicit activities such as drug trafficking in the Sahel region, and the increasing links, in some cases, with terrorism.

The Council recalls that sanctions are an important tool in countering terrorism and recalls that the groups mentioned in the paragraph above are included on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List and subject to the sanction's measures. The Council commends the initiative of the Al-Qaida sanctions committee and its Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team to engage with Member States of the Sahel, the Maghreb and adjoining regions to consider ways in which the sanctions regime can support and enhance the inputs of affected States, in order to be integrated into national and regional responses to the Al-Qaida threat in the region.

The Council welcomes the efforts of the Counter-Terrorism Committee and its Executive Directorate to ensure the full implementation of resolutions 1373(2001) and 1624(2005) and to facilitate technical assistance to Member States, and in this regard commends the focused approach of the Executive Directorate aimed at addressing the counter-terrorism needs of Member States in the Sahel and Maghreb regions, primarily in the area of border control and developing comprehensive counter-terrorism strategies. The Council encourages the Executive Directorate to continue to work with Member States, at their request, and to assess and facilitate technical assistance, in particular, in close cooperation within the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force, as well as with all bilateral and multilateral technical assistance providers.

The Council welcomes the Nouakchott Process on the Enhancement of Security Cooperation and the Operationalization of the African Peace and Security Architecture in the Sahelo-Saharan Region, launched on 17 March 2013, and takes note of the conclusions of the ministerial meetings held in N'Djamena on 11 September 2013 and in Niamey on 19 February 2014, as well as of the five meetings of the Heads of Intelligence and Security Services organized by the African Union Commission. The Council also takes note of the conclusions of the Paris Summit for Security in Nigeria, held on 17 May 2014, as well as the London Ministerial on Security in Nigeria, held on 12 June 2014, which reaffirmed the commitment of the countries of the region and international partners to increase security cooperation to more effectively address the threat of terrorism in the region, including by efforts to contribute to the revitalization of the Multinational Joint Task Force to patrol the Lake Chad region and to create a Regional Intelligence Fusion Unit.

The Council reaffirms the sovereign prerogative of Member States to secure their borders and calls upon those of the Sahel region to strengthen border security and consider establishing special units to undertake regional patrols, to effectively constrain the spread of transnational threats in the region. The Council welcomes the commitment made by African leaders at the Malabo summit, held on 26 and 27 June 2014, and steps taken by the African Union to operationalize the African Capacity for Immediate Response to Crisis and encourages the States members of the African Union to generate substantive pledges to this initiative.

The Council, underscoring that terrorism, together with transnational organized crime and other illicit activities such as drug trafficking, are recurrent threats in the Sahel, encourages the Member States of the Sahel region to improve the coordination of their efforts to combat these threats more effectively. The Council welcomes the cooperation between the countries of the Sahel and their bilateral and multilateral partners in combating terrorism in the region and encourages international partners to provide support for the enhancement of their national and regional capabilities, including their capacity to conduct regional patrols, and to establish and maintain joint coordination centres and joint information-sharing centres. The Council recalls the importance of upholding human rights and the rule of law in the fight against terrorism. The Council calls upon the countries of the Sahel to intensify cross-border and interregional cooperation and coordination in order to counter more effectively the threats to peace and security in the region.

The Council takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on progress towards the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel and stresses the importance of ensuring the implementation of all three pillars of the strategy, namely, security, governance and resilience, which are interdependent. The Council underscores the importance of including civil society in the implementation of the strategy and stresses the need for the Governments of the Sahel region to continue to demonstrate the sustained political will necessary to enable the effective and durable implementation of the strategy.

The Council remains concerned about the extremely fragile humanitarian situation in the Sahel region where at least 20 million people remain at risk of food insecurity and nearly 5 million children are at risk of acute malnutrition. The Council commends the efforts of the Regional Humanitarian Coordinator for the Sahel, with the support of the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the Secretariat and other humanitarian actors and agencies, to build and strengthen resilience at the local, national and regional levels with the aim of mitigating the impact of such disasters. The Council, in this regard, commends the support provided by the countries of the region and other donors and calls upon the international community to strengthen its support in areas which require immediate attention.

The Council expresses its appreciation to the former Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sahel, Mr. Romano Prodi, for having facilitated the development of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel and also expresses its appreciation for the efforts of the former Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa, Mr. Said Djinnit, in supporting the implementation of the strategy.

The Council welcomes the appointment of the new Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sahel, Ms. Hiroute Guebre Sellassie, and expresses its full support for the fulfilment of her mandate. The Council encourages the Special Envoy to pursue her efforts and good offices in order to enhance regional and interregional cooperation and strengthen coordinated international assistance to the countries of the Sahel region in close coordination with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa.

The Council requests the Secretary-General to inform it of the progress toward the implementation of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel through an oral briefing by 15 December 2014, and through a report and a briefing no later than 30 November 2015.

Communications. In an 11 December letter [S/2014/886] to the Security Council President, Mali transmitted the conclusions of the third ministerial meeting of the coordination platform on strategies for the Sahel, which was held in Bamako on 18 November.

On 22 December [S/2014/933], Mali transmitted to the Security Council the declaration of the first summit of Heads of State and Government on the Nouakchott Process, held on 18 December, which reiterated the commitment of the participant countries to the sovereignty, territorial integrity and the unified, republican and secular character of the Malian State.

Also on 22 December [S/2014/934], Mali transmitted to the Security Council the final communiqué of the Summit of the Heads of State and Government of the Group of Five for the Sahel (Sahel G-5), held in Nouakchott on 19 December.

UNOWA

During the year, the activities of the United Nations Office for West Africa (UNOWA), covered in the Secretary-General's reports on West Africa [S/2014/442, S/2014/945], focused on good offices and special assignments by the Secretary-General's Special Representative. Those included assisting the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission (see p. 296) and enhancing subregional capacities to address cross-border and cross-cutting threats to peace and security, including through the United Nations Integrated Strategy for the Sahel (see p. 242) and a strategy for cross-border security in the Mano River Union. UNOWA engaged in combating maritime piracy in the Gulf of Guinea; security sector reform; mobilizing against drug trafficking and cross-border organized crime; counter-terrorism efforts; the promotion of good governance, respect for the rule of law, human rights and gender mainstreaming; and inter-institutional cooperation, including that between UN and regional and subregional partners.

Appointments. In a 9 September letter [S/2014/661], the Secretary-General informed the President of the Security Council of his intention to appoint Mohammed Ibn Chambas (Ghana) as his Special Representative for West Africa and Head of UNOWA and also to serve as the Chairman of the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission succeeding Said Djinnit (Algeria). The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 11 September [S/2014/662].

Financing

In an October report [A/69/363 & Corr.1–3] on estimates in respect of special political missions, good offices and other political initiatives authorized by the General Assembly and/or the Security Council, the Secretary-General proposed resource requirements for 2014 for UNOWA in the amount of $9,540,100.

Côte d'Ivoire

In 2014, political posturing and pre-campaign activities dominated political developments in Côte d'Ivoire, in advance of the presidential election scheduled to be held in October 2015. In August, President Alassane Ouattara signed a decree formally appointing the 17 members of the Independent Election Commission. The Government also released 275 out of 659 persons detained in connection with the post-elections crisis and reiterated that persons returning from exile would not be subject to judicial proceedings. The security situation in the country continued to improve but remained fragile, with sporadic incidents of armed attacks, banditry and other violent crimes persisting, particularly near the border with Liberia. In June, the Security Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI) until 30 June 2015.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (May). In response to Security Council resolution 2112(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 159], the Secretary-General submitted a May report [S/2014/342] on the situation in Côte d'Ivoire covering major developments since his previous report [YUN 2013, p. 163]. He outlined the main findings of the strategic review of Côte d'Ivoire and provided recommendations for UNOCI, including the extension of its mandate.

The President of Côte d'Ivoire, Alassane Ouattara, and his Government continued to take steps to further ease political tensions, alleviate insecurity and accelerate economic recovery. The year began with constructive momentum with respect to political dialogue, including within the context of the permanent framework for dialogue between the Government and the former ruling party, the Front populaire ivoirien (FPI), and among opposition political parties. The focus was on establishing new mechanisms to advance dialogue and negotiations with the Government. During its direct talks with the Government on 15 January, FPI was requested to encourage its supporters living in exile to return home. It was also requested to submit a list of FPI members still in detention or whose assets were frozen. Earlier, the Government had announced its intention to unfreeze the bank accounts of persons associated with the former regime who had provisionally been released from detention and to re-integrate them into public service.

President Ouattara made repeated calls for Ivorians living in exile to return to Côte d'Ivoire. On 3 February, he extended until September the mandate of the Dialogue, Truth and Reconciliation Commission, whose initial two-year mandate had expired in September 2013. The Commission focused on three tasks: (a) truth-seeking, (b) public hearings for victims, perpetrators and witnesses, and (c) recommendations to the Government regarding reparations or other options for healing. On 6 February, the Commission met with the FPI president, who stressed the importance of national reconciliation and publicly expressed support for the work of the Commission. Between 27 February and 12 March, the Commission piloted the truth-seeking process in eight cities, recording testimonies from 2,106 victims about incidents of killing, abduction, disappearance, serious injury, kidnapping, torture, rape and the looting and destruction of property. The Commission subsequently decided to extend the process throughout the country.

Notwithstanding the positive start to the year, the political environment became increasingly fraught in the following months. On 20 March, the Government decided to transfer Charles Blé Goudé, former leader of the Young Patriots, to the International Criminal Court (ICC). That was considered by FPI to be a serious obstacle to national reconciliation. Two days later, Mr. Blé Goudé was surrendered to the ICC. Subsequently, FPI announced that it would no longer participate in a dialogue with the Government. On 26 March, 12 opposition parties under FPI coordination announced the creation of a new coalition, the Alliance des forces démocratiques de Côte d'Ivoire. Then, on 29 March, FPI issued a communiqué in which it expressed its grievances in respect of governance, demanded the dissolution of the Dialogue, Truth and Reconciliation Commission and called for a boycott of the national census that had begun on 17 March over concerns that the results would not accurately reflect the country's demographics. In April, the Government held discussions on restructuring the Independent Electoral Commission within the context of the permanent framework of dialogue; FPI declined to attend the discussions.

The security situation in Côte d'Ivoire remained generally stable but fragile owing to the high prevalence of violent crime and insecurity near the border with Liberia. Insecurity was characterized by armed robbery, banditry and burglary, in many instances committed by elements of the Forces républicaines de Côte d'Ivoire (FRCI), dozos (traditional hunters) and former combatants. Intercommunal violence, particularly in the north and south-east, continued to be reported, while the activities of uncontrolled armed groups and former combatants threatened stability. In February and March, demonstrations of former combatants in Man and Bouaké became violent.

In his strategic review, the Secretary-General provided recommendations on the configuration of the UNOCI military component from June 2014 to the elections of October 2015. The review found that there were hurdles to be overcome to enable the Government to meet its ambitious timeline of disarming former combatants by mid-2015, not least owing to remaining questions about the inclusiveness of the process, the future of former zone commanders and dozos, and the challenges in creating sustainable employment opportunities. Given the sensitivity of the electoral period and the challenges, the Secretary-General strongly recommended a prudent approach to adjusting the UNOCI force by withdrawing 1,100 troops between July 2014 and June 2015, leaving 6,037 military personnel. After the peaceful conclusion of the 2015 electoral period, the Secretary-General recommended the withdrawal of an additional 2,000 troops by mid-2016, bringing UNOCI to a residual strength of approximately 4,000 troops. No reductions in the number of formed police units were recommended until after the electoral period, as those units would support the national security forces and help mitigate security vacuums in areas vacated by UNOCI military personnel.

The Secretary-General noted that plans had been developed to establish, as part of the UNOCI authorized military strength, a quick reaction force configured and equipped to address incidents in Côte d'Ivoire and, at the same time, rapidly respond in Liberia in the event of a serious deterioration in security. The force would operate in the context of the inter-mission cooperation framework set out in Security Council resolution 1609(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 236]. On the basis of an assessment of the threats, required tasks and available resources, it was proposed that a 650-strong quick-reaction battalion be established within UNOCI. The battalion would comprise two motorized infantry companies and one mechanized infantry company, with support elements, which would make it possible to conduct multiple deployments simultaneously, if required. While the battalion would remain primarily a UNOCI asset, it was envisaged that it could also operate in Liberia, as required and authorized. The strategic decision to deploy the battalion to Liberia would be taken by the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, on the basis of the situation on the ground and the respective threat environment in the two countries, and by taking into account the advice of his special representatives for Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia. Command and control at the mission level would remain unchanged, while established modalities for conducting operations under inter-mission cooperation arrangements would be employed. With respect to the composition of the battalion, a troop-contributing country that was a State member of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) and had peacekeeping experience in both countries had been identified and, pending Security Council approval, an agreement would be formalized. Specifically, it was envisaged that the UNOCI force reserve, which at the time comprised 450 troops based in Yamoussoukro, would be reconfigured and expanded. For the battalion to be effective and able to respond rapidly, expeditionary kits, as well as transport, logistical and other support requirements, would have to be available. Mobility would be an essential aspect of making the regional quick-reaction concept effective. UNOCI had three armed helicopters based in western Côte d'Ivoire, the use of which had already been authorized in both Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia, pursuant to Security Council resolution 2062(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 132] and subsequent resolutions. The helicopters provided critical deterrence and should remain in the region until after the 2015 Ivorian electoral cycle. Moreover, it was recommended that all UNOCI and UNMIL military utility helicopters be retained and that a similar approach be extended, to allow all the military aviation assets of the two missions to be utilized in both theatres, thereby facilitating rapid response and mobility while not affecting the area of responsibility of either mission. The agreements with the troop-contributing countries concerned would be finalized following Security Council approval.

The Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of UNOCI for a period of one year, until 30 June 2015, with a particular focus on its core political and security responsibilities.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 April [meeting 7163], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2153(2014). The draft [S/2014/303] was submitted by France, Nigeria, Rwanda and the United Kingdom.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President relating to the situation in Côte d'Ivoire, in particular resolutions 1880(2009) of 30 July 2009, 1893(2009) of 29 October 2009, 1911(2010) of 28 January 2010, 1933(2010) of 30 June 2010, 1946(2010) of 15 October 2010, 1962(2010) of 20 December 2010, 1975(2011) of 30 March 2011, 1980(2011) of 28 April 2011, 2000(2011) of 27 July 2011, 2045(2012) of 26 April 2012, 2062(2012) of 26 July 2012, 2101(2013) of 25 April 2013 and 2112(2013) of 30 July 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and unity of Côte d'Ivoire, and recalling the importance of the principles of good-neighbourliness, non-interference and regional cooperation,

Welcoming the special report of the Secretary-General of 24 December 2013, and noting the midterm report of 11 October 2013, and the final report of 14 April 2014 of the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire,

Welcoming also the overall progress towards restoring security, peace and stability in Côte d'Ivoire, commending the continued efforts of the President and Government of Côte d'Ivoire to stabilize the security situation and accelerate economic recovery in Côte d'Ivoire and strengthen international and regional cooperation, and notably enhanced cooperation with the Governments of Ghana and Liberia, and calling upon all the national stakeholders to work together to consolidate the progress made so far and to address the underlying causes of tension and conflict,

Recognizing the continued contribution to the stability of Côte d'Ivoire of the measures imposed by resolutions 1572(2004) of 15 November 2004, 1643(2005) of 15 December 2005, 1975(2011) and 1980(2011), as modified by later resolutions, including by countering the illicit transfer of small arms and light weapons in Côte d'Ivoire, as well as in supporting post-conflict peacebuilding, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform, and stressing that these measures aim at supporting the peace process in Côte d'Ivoire with a view to possibly further modifying or lifting all or part of the remaining measures, in accordance with progress achieved in relation to disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform, national reconciliation and the fight against impunity,

Welcoming the completion of the electoral cycle that originated in the Ouagadougou Accords, and the announcement of the presidential election in October 2015, and encouraging the Government of Côte d'Ivoire and the opposition to move positively and collaboratively towards political reconciliation and electoral reform to ensure that the political space remains open and transparent,

Welcoming also the efforts made towards the security reform agenda and especially the increasing cooperation between the National Security Council and the local authorities, while expressing concern about the delays in the implementation of the national strategy for security sector reform, in particular beyond Abidjan, and urging an acceleration of efforts to reform the security sector, including by putting in place an effective chain of command, a system of military justice and appropriate budgetary allocations,

Welcoming further the progress made in the overall security situation and efforts to address security challenges, while expressing concern at delays in implementation of security sector reform and the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants, welcoming efforts towards better monitoring and management of weapons through the National Commission to Fight against the Proliferation and Illicit Traffic of Small Arms and Light Weapons, with the support of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, and emphasizing the importance of continued efforts in this area, re-emphasizing the necessity for the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to provide sufficient financial resources and to develop viable reintegration opportunities for former combatants in order to ensure the achievement of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process by June 2015 at the latest,

Reiterating the urgent need for the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to train and equip its security forces, especially the police and gendarmerie, with standard policing weapons and ammunition,

Re-emphasizing the importance of the Government of Côte d'Ivoire being able to respond proportionately to threats to the security of all citizens in Côte d'Ivoire, and calling upon the Government to ensure that its security forces remain committed to upholding human rights and applicable international law,

Encouraging closer cooperation between the Government of Côte d'Ivoire and the Group of Experts, originally established pursuant to paragraph 7 of resolution 1584(2005) of 1 February 2005,

Welcoming the ongoing efforts made by the Secretariat to expand and improve the roster of experts for the Security Council Subsidiary Organs Branch, bearing in mind the guidance provided in the note by the President of the Security Council of 22 December 2006,

Welcoming also the progress made by the Ivorian authorities in combating illegal taxation systems, and acknowledging the decrease in the number of illegal checkpoints and incidents of racketeering, but noting the insufficient capacity and resources to control borders, in particular in the western part of the country,

Noting that the Kimberley Process, in its final communiqué of 22 November 2013, recognized that Côte d'Ivoire had fulfilled the minimum requirements of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, encouraging full implementation by Côte d'Ivoire of its action plan to develop its diamond sector in line with Kimberley Process standards, including participation in the Mano River Basin initiative, and welcoming Côte d'Ivoire's invitation to host a Kimberley Process review visit six months after legal exports of rough diamonds have resumed,

Recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict and its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict,

Reiterating its firm condemnation of all violations of human rights and international humanitarian law in Côte d'Ivoire, condemning all violence committed against civilians, including women, children, internally displaced persons and foreign nationals, and other violations and abuses of human rights, stressing that the perpetrators on all sides must be brought to justice, whether in domestic or international courts, and encouraging the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to further continue its close cooperation with the International Criminal Court,

Welcoming, in this regard, the transfer of Mr. Charles Blé Goudé, former leader of the Young Patriots, to the International Criminal Court, and further welcoming national and international efforts to bring to justice alleged perpetrators of violations and abuses of human rights and of violations of international humanitarian law,

Stressing the importance for the Group of Experts to be provided with sufficient resources for the implementation of its mandate,

Determining that the situation in Côte d'Ivoire continues to pose a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Decides that, for a period ending on 30 April 2015, all States shall take the measures necessary to prevent the direct or indirect supply, sale or transfer to Côte d'Ivoire, from their territories or by their nationals, or using their flag vessels or aircraft, of arms and any related lethal materiel, whether or not originating in their territories;

2. Also decides that supplies of non-lethal equipment and the provision of any technical assistance, training or financial assistance, intended to enable the Ivorian security forces to use only appropriate and proportionate force while maintaining public order, shall no longer require notification to the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1572(2004);

3. Notes that the measures on arms and related lethal materiel in paragraph 1 above do not apply to the provision of training, advice, technical or financial assistance and expertise related to security and military activities or to non-lethal materiel, including supplies of civilian vehicles to the Ivorian security forces;

4. Decides that the measures imposed by paragraph 1 above shall not apply to:

(a) Supplies intended solely for the support of or use by the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the French forces supporting it and supplies transiting through Côte d'Ivoire intended for the support of or to be used by United Nations peacekeeping operations;

(b) Supplies temporarily exported to Côte d'Ivoire to the forces of a State which is taking action, in accordance with international law, solely and directly to facilitate the evacuation of its nationals and those for whom it has consular responsibility in Côte d'Ivoire, as notified in advance to the Committee established pursuant to paragraph 14 of resolution 1572(2004);

(c) Supplies of arms and related lethal materiel to the Ivorian security forces intended solely for the support of or use in the Ivorian process of security sector reform, as notified in advance to the Committee, except for those arms and related lethal materiel which are set out in the annex to the present resolution, which require the advance approval of the Committee;

5. Also decides that the Committee shall add, remove or clarify items on the list of arms and related lethal materiel specified in the annex to the present resolution, as appropriate;

6. Further decides, for the period referred to in paragraph 1 above, that the Ivorian authorities shall notify or request approval in advance, as appropriate, from the Committee for any shipment of items referred to in paragraph 3(c) above, and further decides that the Member State delivering assistance may, in the alternative, make this notification or approval request pursuant to paragraph 3(c) after informing the Government of Côte d'Ivoire that it intends to do so;

7. Requests the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to ensure that notifications and approval requests sent to the Committee contain all relevant information, including the purpose of the use and the end user, including the intended destination unit in the Ivorian security forces or the intended place of storage, the technical specifications, quantity of the equipment to be shipped, details of the manufacturer and supplier of the equipment, proposed date of delivery, mode of transportation and itinerary of shipments, further stresses the importance of a specific focus on detailed explanations for how the requested equipment will support security sector reform, and emphasizes that such notifications and approval requests should include information about any intended modification of non-lethal equipment into lethal equipment;

8. Decides that the Ivorian authorities shall submit biannual reports to the Committee by 30 September 2014 and by 30 March 2015 on progress achieved in relation to disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform;

9. Encourages the Ivorian authorities to consult with the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, within its existing mandate and resources, to ensure that notifications and authorization requests contain the required information;

10. Urges the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to allow the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire access to the exempted arms and lethal materiel at the time of import and before the transfer to the end user takes place, stresses that the Government shall mark the arms and related lethal materiel when received in the territory of Côte d'Ivoire, and urges the Government to maintain a registry of all arms and materiel owned by national security forces, with specific attention to small arms and light weapons, with a view to improving tracking and monitoring of their circulation;

11. Decides to review the measures decided in the paragraphs above in the light of the progress achieved in stabilization throughout the country, by the end of the period mentioned in paragraph 1 above, in accordance with progress achieved in relation to disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and security sector reform, national reconciliation and the fight against impunity;

12. Also decides to renew until 30 April 2015 the financial and travel measures imposed by paragraphs 9 to 12 of resolution 1572(2004) and paragraph 12 of resolution 1975(2011), and stresses its intention to review the continued listing of individuals subject to such measures provided that they engage in actions that further the objective of national reconciliation;

13. Further decides to terminate as of the date of adoption of the present resolution the measures preventing the importation by any State of all rough diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire imposed by paragraph 6 of resolution 1643(2005), in the light of progress made towards implementation of the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme and better governance of the sector;

14. Requests Côte d'Ivoire to update the Security Council, through the Committee, on its progress in implementing its action plan for diamonds, including on any enforcement activities involving illegal smuggling, development of its customs regime and reporting of financial flows from diamonds, encourages Côte d'Ivoire to host a Kimberly Process review visit within nine months following the date of adoption of the present resolution that includes a representative from the Group of Experts, and further encourages the continued participation of Côte d'Ivoire in regional cooperation and law enforcement activities, such as the Kimberley Process Mano River Basin initiative;

15. Invites the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme, in particular, its Working Groups on Monitoring and Statistics, to communicate information, as appropriate, regarding compliance by Côte d'Ivoire with the Certification Scheme to the Council, through the Committee, and when possible, for review by the Group of Experts, and encourages donors to support the efforts of Côte d'Ivoire by sharing related information and providing technical assistance;

16. Calls upon the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to take the steps necessary to enforce the measures imposed by paragraph 1 above, including by incorporating relevant provisions in its national legal framework;

17. Calls upon all Member States, in particular those in the subregion, to fully implement the measures mentioned in paragraphs 1 and 6 above;

18. Expresses its continued concern about the instability in western Côte d'Ivoire, and welcomes and further encourages the coordinated action by authorities from neighbouring countries to address this issue, particularly with respect to the border area, including through continuing monitoring, information-sharing and conducting coordinated actions, and in developing and implementing a shared border strategy to, inter alia, support the disarmament and repatriation of foreign armed elements on both sides of the border;

19. Encourages the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the United Nations Mission in Liberia, within their respective mandates, capabilities and areas of deployment, to continue to coordinate closely in assisting respectively the Governments of Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia in monitoring their border, and welcomes continued cooperation between the Group of Experts and the Panel of Experts on Liberia appointed pursuant to paragraph 5 of resolution 2128(2013) of 10 December 2013;

20. Urges all illegal Ivorian armed combatants, including in neighbouring countries, to lay down their arms immediately, encourages the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, within its mandate and the limits of its capabilities and its areas of deployment, to continue to assist the Government of Côte d'Ivoire in collecting and storing the arms and registering all relevant information related to those arms, and further calls upon the Government, including the National Commission to Fight against the Proliferation and Illicit Traffic of Small Arms and Light Weapons, to ensure that those arms are neutralized or are not illegally disseminated, in accordance with the Economic Community of West African States Convention on Small Arms and Light Weapons, Their Ammunition and Other Related Materials;

21. Recalls that the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire is mandated, within the monitoring of the arms embargo, to collect, as appropriate, arms and any related materiel brought into Côte d'Ivoire in violation of the measures imposed by paragraph 1 of the present resolution, and to dispose of such arms and related materiel as appropriate;

22. Reiterates the necessity for the Ivorian authorities to provide unhindered access to the Group of Experts, as well as the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the French forces supporting it, to equipment, sites and installations referred to in paragraph 2 (a) of resolution 1584(2005), and to all weapons, ammunition and related materiel of all armed security forces, regardless of location, including the arms issued from the collection referred to in paragraph 10 or 11 above, when appropriate and without notice, as set out in its resolutions 1739(2007) of 10 January 2007, 1880(2009), 1933(2010), 1962(2010), 1980(2011), 2062(2012) and 2112(2013);

23. Requests all States concerned, in particular those in the subregion, to cooperate fully with the Committee, and authorizes the Committee to request whatever further information it may consider necessary;

24. Decides to extend the mandate of the Group of Experts as set out in paragraph 7 of resolution 1727(2006) of 15 December 2006 for a period of 13 months, until 30 May 2015, and requests the Secretary-General to take the measures necessary to support its action;

25. Reiterates that paragraph 7 (b) of resolution 1727(2006) includes a mandate for the Group of Experts to gather and analyse all relevant information on sources of financing, including from the exploitation of natural resources in Côte d'Ivoire, for the purchase of arms and related materiel and activities, and notes that, pursuant to paragraph 12 (a) of resolution 1727(2006), those who are determined to be a threat to the peace and national reconciliation process in Côte d'Ivoire through illicit trafficking in natural resources, including diamonds and gold, may be designated by the Committee;

26. Decides that the Group of Experts shall also report on the activities of and any continued threat to peace and security in Côte d'Ivoire posed by sanctioned individuals, and additionally requests the Group of Experts to assess and report on the effects of the modifications decided in the present resolution;

27. Requests the Group of Experts to submit a midterm report to the Committee by 15 October 2014 and to submit a final report by 15 April 2015, after discussion with the Committee, on the implementation of the measures imposed by paragraph 1 above, paragraphs 9 and 11 of resolution 1572(2004), paragraph 12 of resolution 1975(2011) and paragraph 10 of resolution 1980(2011);

28. Decides that the report of the Group of Experts, as referred to in paragraph 7 (e) of resolution 1727(2006), may include, as appropriate, any information and recommendations relevant to the possible additional designation by the Committee of the individuals and entities described in paragraphs 9 and 11 of resolution 1572(2004) and paragraph 10 of resolution 1980(2011) and recalls the report of the Informal Working Group of the Security Council on General Issues of Sanctions on best practices and methods, including paragraphs 21, 22 and 23 thereof, which discuss possible steps for clarifying methodological standards for monitoring mechanisms;

29. Requests the Secretary-General to communicate, as appropriate, to the Council, through the Committee, information gathered by the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and, where possible, reviewed by the Group of Experts, concerning the supply of arms and related materiel to Côte d'Ivoire;

30. Requests the Government of France to communicate, as appropriate, to the Council, through the Committee, information gathered by the French forces and, where possible, reviewed by the Group of Experts, concerning the supply of arms and related materiel to Côte d'Ivoire;

31. Encourages the Ivorian authorities to participate in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development-hosted implementation programme with regard to Due Diligence Guidance for Responsible Supply Chains of Minerals from Conflict-Affected and High-Risk Areas, with special attention to gold, and to reach out to international organizations with a view to taking advantage of lessons learned from other initiatives and countries that have and are confronting similar issues on artisanal mining;

32. Calls upon the Ivorian authorities to continue to take the measures necessary to dismantle the illegal taxation networks, including by undertaking relevant and thorough investigations, reduce the number of checkpoints and prevent incidents of racketeering throughout the country, and further calls upon the authorities to continue to take the steps necessary to continue to re-establish and reinforce relevant institutions and to accelerate the deployment of customs and border control officials in the north, west and east of the country;

33. Asks the Group of Experts to assess the effectiveness of these border measures and control in the region, encourages all neighbouring States to be aware of Ivorian efforts in that regard, and encourages the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, within its mandate, to continue its assistance to Ivorian authorities in the re-establishment of normal customs and border control operation;

34. Urges all States, relevant United Nations bodies and other organizations and interested parties to cooperate fully with the Committee, the Group of Experts, the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the French forces, in particular by supplying any information at their disposal on possible violations of the measures imposed by paragraphs 1 to 3 above, paragraphs 9 and 11 of resolution 1572(2004), paragraph 6 of resolution 1643(2005) and paragraph 12 of resolution 1975(2011), and further requests the Group of Experts to coordinate its activities, as appropriate, with all political actors and to implement its mandate in accordance with the report of the Informal Working Group of the Security Council on General Issues of Sanctions;

35. Requests the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Sexual Violence in Conflict to continue to share relevant information with the Committee, in accordance with paragraph 7 of resolution 1960(2010) and paragraph 9 of resolution 1998(2011);

36. Urges, in this context, that all Ivorian parties and all States, particularly those in the region, ensure:

- The safety of the members of the Group of Experts;
- Unhindered access by the Group of Experts, in particular to persons, documents and sites, in order for the Group of Experts to execute its mandate;

37. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In a December report [S/2014/892], the Secretary-General provided an update on major developments since May (see p. 246) in the implementation of the UNOCI mandate, which was extended until 30 June 2015 by Security Council resolution 2162(2014) (see p. 252). The report also contained the findings and recommendations of an electoral needs assessment mission conducted by the United Nations.

Political dialogue, which had stalled since January, resumed on 22 May, when the Government of President Ouattara undertook a series of confidence-building measures, including the release of additional associates of Laurent Gbagbo, the former President, welcoming the return of those in self-imposed exile, unfreezing their bank accounts and returning illegally occupied properties.

On 18 June, President Ouattara signed into law a bill on the composition, organization and functions of the Independent Electoral Commission. The new legislation established a Commission whose governing body would be composed of 17 commissioners, with 1 representing the Head of State, 4 representing the Government, 4 representing the ruling Rassemblement des houphouëtistes pour la démocratie et la paix (RHPD) coalition, 4 representing opposition parties and 4 representing civil society.

The FPI-led Alliance des forces démocratiques de Côte d'Ivoire (Alliance), however, requested that the Government renegotiate the Commission's composition with political parties. Following further consultations between the Government and the Alliance, the latter nominated two representatives, including one from FPI, to the Commission and President Ouattara formally signed the decree on 8 August appointing the 17 members of the Commission.

The three-year mandate of the Dialogue, Truth and Reconciliation Commission ended on 28 September. Between April and August, despite logistic and budgetary constraints, more than 64,000 victims of the Ivorian crisis, 30 per cent of whom were women, testified during victims' hearings before local commissions. As at 1 December, the Commission's final report, including its recommendations for reparations and other political, judicial and non-judicial measures, had not yet been submitted to the Government.

The security situation in Côte d'Ivoire continued to improve but remained fragile, with sporadic incidents of armed attacks, banditry and other violent crimes persisting, particularly near the border with Liberia.

There was a 10 per cent reduction, however, in reported incidents involving undisciplined elements of the Forces républicaines de Côte d'Ivoire (FRCI), former combatants and dozos (traditional hunters).

Upon request by Côte d'Ivoire, a UN electoral needs assessment mission assessed the political and electoral environment and evaluated the legal and institutional framework for the elections, in order to define the parameters and modalities for possible UN electoral assistance. The Mission noted that the timeline for conducting the election of October 2015 was tight but feasible, given that all political stakeholders were committed to their conduct, notwithstanding the challenges; and recommended that the United Nations respond positively to the Ivorian authorities' request for assistance in preparing for and holding the presidential election of 2015. Specifically, the mission recommended that UNOCI, among other tasks, assist national authorities in developing an operational plan for securing the elections and provide limited logistical support within existing resources. In addition, UNDP and the UN country team should develop an electoral assistance project that would, depending on the resources mobilized, focus on preventing election-related conflict and violence; strengthen the capacity of electoral stakeholders, primarily the Independent Electoral Commission and security forces; promote the participation of women and young people; support civic education; and acquire electoral material and equipment.

Sanctions

Security Council Committee. The Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1572(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 187] concerning Côte d'Ivoire continued to monitor implementation of the arms embargo, travel restrictions and an asset freeze on designated individuals and entities, and the ban on the import of all rough diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire. Those sanctions were renewed by various resolutions, Council resolution 2153(2014) (see p. 247) being the most recent.

In a 17 December letter [S/2014/912], the Committee transmitted to the Security Council the report on its activities in 2014. During the year, the Committee held five informal consultations, approved seven of nine exemption requests from Côte d'Ivoire for the shipment of materiel to the country, and received nine notifications of shipment from Ivorian authorities.

Communication. In a 22 April letter [S/2014/293] to the Security Council President, Côte d'Ivoire forwarded the observations and views of the Government about the negotiation process pertaining to the renewal of the sanctions on Côte d'Ivoire, in the framework of the implementation of Security Council resolutions.

Group of Experts

The Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire, established pursuant to Security Council resolution 1584(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 248], submitted one final and one midterm report during the year. Pursuant to Council resolution 2153(2014), the Group's mandate was extended to 30 May 2015.

The Secretary-General, on 21 May, appointed five experts to constitute the Group for a period ending 30 May 2015 [S/2014/364].

Report of Group of Experts (April). On 14 April, pursuant to Security Council resolution 2101(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 165], the Chair of the Security Council Committee transmitted to the Council the final report of the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire [S/2014/266], which contained information on the arms embargo, the financing of arms purchases, customs systems and import control, the diamond embargo and sanctions against individuals.

The Group visited Belgium, Burkina Faso, France, Guinea, Liberia, Mali, Rwanda, South Africa, the United Arab Emirates and the United States, in addition to conducting field visits throughout Côte d'Ivoire. The Group noted tangible progress and recovery in the Ivorian economy, and progress of the Ivorian administration with regard to its obligations towards implementation of the sanctions regime. The Group welcomed the administrative and political efforts undertaken by Côte d'Ivoire with regard to its participation in the Kimberley Process Certification Scheme. The Group, however, collected evidence that conflict diamonds from Côte d'Ivoire continued to finance the military capacity of former zone commanders in Séguéla. The Group furthermore noted that, in spite of having identified violations of the diamond embargo in its public reports since 2006, the Ivorian authorities had made no progress in combating the smuggling of diamonds nor taken any concrete initiatives. It also noted limited progress in disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, security sector reform, national reconciliation and the fight against impunity. In light of its findings, the Group remained of the view that the sanctions regime continued to be useful and effective for the preservation of stability in Côte d'Ivoire and the subregion.

The Group recommended to the Security Council that it consider, among other measures, the insertion of an exemption procedure for transit through Côte d'Ivoire of embargoed goods destined for other peacekeeping operations. UNOCI should also monitor closely the transit; electronic tracking devices should be used for the monitoring. In addition, UNOCI should maintain its Integrated Embargo Monitoring Unit at an appropriate level of regular staff in order to perform its duties. The Group also recommended that Côte d'Ivoire maintain a registry of weapons and related materiel imported since the imposition of sanctions in 2004; and that the Government of Côte d'Ivoire continue to implement all measures necessary to combat illicit checkpoints and illegal taxation systems throughout the country, and more specifically in the west, and to inform the Group of Experts accordingly.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 June [meeting 7207], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2162(2014). The draft [S/2014/430] was submitted by France, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions, in particular resolutions 2112(2013) of 30 July 2013 and 2153(2014) of 29 April 2014, and the statements by its President relating to the situation in Côte d'Ivoire, resolutions 2116(2013) of 18 September 2013 and 2128(2013) of 10 December 2013 on the situation in Liberia and resolution 2100(2013) of 25 April 2013 on the situation in Mali,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and unity of Côte d'Ivoire, and recalling the principles of good-neighbourliness, non-interference and regional cooperation,

Recalling that the Government of Côte d'Ivoire bears primary responsibility for ensuring peace, stability and the protection of civilians in Côte d'Ivoire,

Welcoming the ratification by Côte d'Ivoire of the 1954 Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons and the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness and the steps being taken to revise its nationality laws, and recalling the decision of the Secretary-General on durable solutions, and expressing support for the implementation of the national durable solution strategy for internally displaced persons,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 15 May 2014,

Welcoming the progress being made in Côte d'Ivoire on the path of reconciliation, stability and economic recovery, and commending the leadership of the President of Côte d'Ivoire in this regard,

Welcoming also the significant improvement in the security situation in Côte d'Ivoire, including in the western part of the country and along the border with Liberia, while condemning the attacks of 23 February and 15 May 2014, acknowledging the need to address remaining challenges, and noting the continued and increased cooperation between the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the United Nations Mission in Liberia, as well as the Governments of Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia and countries in the subregion, in coordinating activities, including on security, in the border areas in the subregion,

Calling upon all national stakeholders, including political parties, civil society and the media, to work together to consolidate the progress made so far and to address the underlying causes of tension and conflict, including with respect to land and nationality, encouraging the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to strengthen the rule of law, as well as reforms on the legal framework for elections, with a view to the presidential election scheduled for October 2015, taking note in this regard of the adoption of the law reforming the Independent Electoral Commission, and welcoming the initial steps taken by the Government to facilitate an environment conducive to fair, credible and transparent elections, while underlining the necessity for further efforts in this field,

Taking note of the letter dated 18 June 2014 from the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to the Secretary-General requesting the possible provision of electoral assistance,

Welcoming the continued improvement of the humanitarian situation, in particular the continued voluntary, safe and durable return of refugees and the majority of persons displaced by the post-election crisis to their places of origin in Côte d'Ivoire,

Taking note of the final framework on disarmament, demobilization and reintegration adopted by the Authority on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration and the successful disarmament and demobilization of more than 30,000 former combatants, while expressing concern at the low ratio of former combatants associated with the previous Government processed through the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme and the 43,000 former combatants that remain armed and unemployed,

Welcoming the progress made in implementing the security sector reform strategy, and underlining the importance of national ownership of this priority issue, as well as measures to rebuild confidence within and between security forces and with the population ahead of the presidential election,

Emphasizing the importance of pursuing a national reconciliation and social cohesion strategy, welcoming in this regard the extension of the mandate of the Dialogue, Truth and Reconciliation Commission, and underlining the importance of including all Ivorians in the reconciliation process at the national and local levels,

Reiterating the vital role of women in conflict resolution and peacebuilding, the importance of their equal participation and full involvement in all efforts for the maintenance and promotion of peace and security and their key role in re-establishing the fabric of societies recovering from conflict, and further reaffirming the importance of implementing the Côte d'Ivoire national action plan, adopted in 2008, for the implementation of resolution 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000,

Expressing its concern about the continued reports, including those reported by the Secretary-General in his report, of human rights violations and abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, including against women and children, in particular sexual violence, and stressing the importance of investigating and prosecuting such alleged violations and abuses, including those that occurred throughout the post-election crisis, committed by all parties, irrespective of their status or political affiliation,

Welcoming the transfer of Mr. Charles Blé Goudé, former leader of the Young Patriots, to the International Criminal Court, further welcoming national and international efforts to bring to justice alleged perpetrators of violations and abuses of human rights and of violations of international humanitarian law, urging the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to increase and expedite its efforts to combat impunity and ensure equitable and independent justice without discrimination, and encouraging in this regard the Government to continue its close cooperation with the Court,

Welcoming also the initiative taken by the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to enhance political dialogue with the opposition, including extra-parliamentary parties, commending the good offices efforts of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Côte d'Ivoire, especially in support of the dialogue between the Government and opposition political parties, and expressing its appreciation for the work of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and its overall contribution to the maintenance of peace and security in Côte d'Ivoire,

Expressing concern at reports of human rights violations and abuses in detention, calling upon the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to ensure that the conditions of detention of detainees are in line with international obligations and to take all steps necessary to prevent and investigate violations and abuse of human rights in the context of detention, and welcoming the support provided by the European Union and France in this regard,

Commending the contribution of troop- and police-contributing countries and donors to the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, and underlining the importance of providing military troops and police officers qualified with appropriate specialized and linguistic skills,

Recalling its intention, as expressed in its resolution 2112(2013), to consider a further reduction of two battalions, based on the evolution of security conditions on the ground and an improved capacity of the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to gradually take over the security role of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire,

Recognizing the continued contribution of the arms embargo, as defined by resolution 2153(2014), to the stability of Côte d'Ivoire, including by countering the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Commending the African Union and the Economic Community of West African States for their efforts to consolidate peace and stability in Côte d'Ivoire, and encouraging them to continue to support the Ivorian authorities in addressing key challenges, especially the underlying causes of conflict and insecurity in the border area, including the movement of armed elements and weapons, and promoting justice and national reconciliation,

Determining that the situation in Côte d'Ivoire continues to pose a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

National reconciliation and social cohesion

1. Welcomes the resumption of the dialogue between the Government of Côte d'Ivoire and the political opposition on 22 May 2014, and calls upon all political parties to play a constructive role and contribute towards reconciliation;

2. Commends the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Côte d'Ivoire for her good offices efforts and political support, and requests that such important efforts and support continue, in particular with a view to the presidential election to be held in October 2015, in line with paragraph 19 (b) of the present resolution;

3. Emphasizes the importance of pursuing a national reconciliation and social cohesion strategy, particularly ahead of the October 2015 presidential election, through concrete measures to promote justice and reconciliation at all levels and involving all stakeholders, and calls for a direct, open and constructive dialogue between the Government of Côte d'Ivoire and all political parties, including the opposition, to expedite further progress on crucial reforms on nationality and land, as well as on the framework for elections;

4. Urges the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to take swiftly all steps necessary to establish, in accordance with the existing time frame, the legal framework for the October 2015 presidential election, including the setting up of the Independent Electoral Commission, the updating of the voters list, the electoral framework and the allocation of adequate budgetary resources, and calls upon all national stakeholders to facilitate the creation of an environment conducive to the holding of free, fair, transparent and inclusive presidential elections and to refrain from acts that could incite violence, including hate speech;

5. Affirms its intention to review the listing of individuals subject to the financial and travel measures imposed by paragraphs 9 to 12 of resolution 1572(2004) of 15 November 2004 and paragraph 12 of resolution 1975(2011) of 30 March 2011, provided that they engage in actions that further the objective of national reconciliation;

Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration

6. Calls upon the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to complete the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process before the presidential election of 2015 in accordance with the objective announced by the President of Côte d'Ivoire of processing 74,000 former combatants, requests the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to facilitate the implementation of this process, including by enhancing its technical support to the Authority on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration and swiftly disbursing support to the Ivorian disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme, and further calls upon Member States and regional and international organizations to provide financial contributions to meet the needs of the programme;

7. Encourages the United Nations country team to facilitate the planning and implementation of programmes which support this process, in consultation with the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and international partners;

8. Urges the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to provide for a transparent and inclusive disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process that includes former combatants associated with the previous Government, encourages further efforts by the Authority on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration to enhance the collection and disposal of weapons and ammunitions as part of the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, and reiterates the need for the Government to develop solutions for the sustained social and economic integration of former combatants, including female former combatants;

Security sector reform

9. Calls upon the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to accelerate the implementation of the national security sector reform strategy adopted in September 2012 and updated in 2014 with a view to setting up inclusive and accountable security forces that include an effective chain of command, a system of military justice and adequate and sustainable budgetary allocations;

10. Underscores, in this regard, the importance of accelerating the deployment of the police and gendarmerie to take over public order tasks currently performed by the Republican Forces of Côte d'Ivoire and other groups, including by equipping the police and gendarmerie with standard policing weapons and ammunition following the partial lifting of the arms embargo pursuant to its resolution 2153(2014);

11. Reiterates its call to the Government of Côte d'Ivoire and all international partners, including private companies, involved in assisting the Government in the security sector reform process to comply with the provisions of resolution 2153(2014) and to coordinate their efforts with a view to promoting transparency and a clear division of labour between all international partners;

Human rights

12. Strongly urges the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to ensure in the shortest possible time frame that, irrespective of their status or political affiliation, all those responsible for serious abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including those committed during and after the post-election crisis in Côte d'Ivoire, are brought to justice in accordance with its international obligations and that all detainees receive clarity about their status in a transparent manner, and urges the Government to continue its cooperation with the International Criminal Court;

13. Emphasizes, in this regard, the importance of the work of the National Commission of Inquiry and the Dialogue, Truth and Reconciliation Commission to lasting reconciliation in Côte d'Ivoire, calls for the implementation and conclusion of related investigations, further calls upon the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to create the enabling environment to ensure that the work of the Ivorian judicial system is impartial, credible, transparent and consistent with internationally agreed standards, and in this regard welcomes the renewal of the Special Investigation and Examination Cell and encourages the Government to enhance its support for the effective operation of the Cell;

14. Urges the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to take concrete and discernible steps to prevent and mitigate inter-communal violence by seeking a broad national consensus on addressing effectively identity and land tenure issues;

15. Welcomes the establishment of a national human rights commission, underscores the importance of its independence and its compliance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles), and calls upon the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to continue to support the Ivorian authorities and institutions in ensuring the human rights of all persons;

16. Calls upon those responsible to cease committing acts of sexual and gender-based violence immediately, and further calls upon the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, where consistent with its authorities and responsibilities, to continue to support national and international efforts to bring to justice perpetrators of grave abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law in Côte d'Ivoire, irrespective of their status or political affiliation;

17. Welcomes the continued cooperation between, and the conduct of coordinated activities by, the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the Republican Forces of Côte d'Ivoire and calls for strict adherence by the Republican Forces to international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law, and in this context recalls the importance of training in human rights, child protection and sexual and gender-based violence for security and law enforcement agencies;

Mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire

18. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire until 30 June 2015;

19. Also decides that the mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire shall be the following:

(a) Protection of civilians

- To protect, without prejudice to the primary responsibility of the Ivorian authorities, the civilian population from threat of physical violence, within its capabilities and areas of deployment, and encourages the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to move to a more preventive and preemptive posture in pursuit of its priorities and in active defence of its mandate, building on positive steps taken so far, without prejudice to the agreed basic principles of peacekeeping;

- To implement the comprehensive strategy for the protection of civilians in coordination with the United Nations country team;
- To work closely with humanitarian agencies, particularly in relation to areas of tension and with respect to the return of displaced persons, to collect information on and identify potential threats against the civilian population and bring them to the attention of the Ivorian authorities, as appropriate;

(b) Political support

- To provide good offices and political support for the efforts of the Ivorian authorities to address the root causes of the conflict and establish lasting peace and security in Côte d'Ivoire, including in the priority areas of the security sector reform, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and reconciliation processes at both the national and local levels;
- To provide good offices support to the Ivorian authorities in the preparation for the presidential election to be held in 2015, including by facilitating dialogue between all political stakeholders, inclusive of representatives of civil society and political parties;

(c) Addressing remaining security threats and border-related challenges

- To support, within its existing authorities, capabilities and areas of deployment, the national authorities in stabilizing the security situation in the country, with special attention to providing support for the provision of security through the October 2015 presidential election;
- To monitor and deter the activities of militias, mercenaries and other illegal armed groups and to support the Government of Côte d'Ivoire in addressing border security challenges consistent with its existing mandate to protect civilians, including cross-border security and other challenges in the border areas, notably with Liberia, and, to this end, to coordinate closely with the United Nations Mission in Liberia in order to further inter-mission cooperation, such as through undertaking coordinated patrols and contingency planning, where appropriate and within their existing mandates and capabilities;
- To liaise with the Republican Forces of Côte d'Ivoire in order to promote mutual trust among all elements composing the Republican Forces;

(d) Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme and collection of weapons

- To assist the Government of Côte d'Ivoire, in close coordination with other bilateral and international partners, in implementing without further delay the national programme for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants and the dismantling of militias and self-defence groups, taking into account the rights and needs of the distinct categories of persons to be disarmed, demobilized and reintegrated, including children and women;

- To support the registration and screening of former combatants and assist in assessing and verifying the reliability of the listings of former combatants;
- To support the disarmament and repatriation of foreign armed elements, where relevant in cooperation with the United Nations Mission in Liberia and United Nations country teams in the region;
- To assist the national authorities, including the National Commission to Fight against the Proliferation and Illicit Traffic of Small Arms and Light Weapons, in collecting, registering, securing and disposing of weapons and in clearing explosive remnants of war, as appropriate, in accordance with resolution 2153(2014);
- To coordinate with the Government of Côte d'Ivoire in ensuring that the collected weapons are not disseminated or reutilized outside a comprehensive national security strategy, as referred to in point (e) below;

(e) Reconstitution and reform of security institutions

- To assist the Government of Côte d'Ivoire in implementing, without delay and in close coordination with other international partners, its comprehensive national security strategy;
- To support the Government of Côte d'Ivoire in providing effective, transparent and harmonized coordination of assistance, including the promotion of a clear division of tasks and responsibilities, by international partners to the security sector reform process;
- To advise the Government of Côte d'Ivoire, as appropriate, on security sector reform and the organization of the future national army, to facilitate the provision, within its current resources and as requested by the Government and in close coordination with other international partners, of training in human rights, child protection and protection from sexual and gender-based violence to the security and law enforcement institutions, as well as capacity-building support by providing technical assistance, co-location and mentoring programmes for the police and gendarmerie and to contribute to restoring their presence throughout Côte d'Ivoire and to promote trust and confidence within and between the security and law enforcement agencies and to offer support to the development of a sustainable vetting mechanism for personnel that will be absorbed into security sector institutions;

(f) Monitoring of the arms embargo

- To monitor the implementation of the measures imposed by paragraph 7 of resolution 1572(2004), in cooperation with the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire established pursuant to resolution 1584(2005) of 1 February 2005, including by inspecting, as they deem it necessary and, when appropriate, without notice, all weapons, ammunition and related materiel regardless of location, consistent with resolution 2153(2014);

- To collect, as appropriate, arms and any related materiel brought into Côte d'Ivoire in violation of the measures imposed by paragraph 7 of resolution 1572(2004) and to dispose of such arms and related materiel as appropriate;
- To assist the Government of Côte d'Ivoire, upon its request and within its existing resources, to ensure that the Government's notification and approval requests contain the required information identified in paragraph 7 of resolution 2153(2014), consistent with paragraph 9 of resolution 2153(2014);

(g) Support for compliance with international humanitarian and human rights law

- To contribute to the promotion and protection of human rights in Côte d'Ivoire, with special attention to grave violations and abuses committed against children and women, notably sexual- and gender-based violence, in close coordination with the Independent Expert established pursuant to Human Rights Council resolution 17/21 of 17 June 2011;
- To monitor, help to investigate and report to the Security Council on abuses and violations of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including those against children, in line with resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014, in order to prevent such abuses and violations and to end impunity;
- To bring to the attention of the Security Council all individuals identified as perpetrators of serious human rights violations and to keep the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1572(2004) informed of any significant developments in this regard when appropriate;
- To support the efforts of the Government of Côte d'Ivoire in combating sexual and gender-based violence, including through contributing to the development of a nationally owned multisectoral strategy in cooperation with United Nations Action against Sexual Violence in Conflict entities;
- To provide specific protection for women affected by armed conflict and to ensure gender expertise and training, as appropriate and within existing resources, in accordance with resolutions 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010 and 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013;

(h) Support for humanitarian assistance

- To facilitate, as necessary, unhindered humanitarian access and to help to strengthen the delivery of humanitarian assistance to conflict-affected and vulnerable populations, notably by contributing to enhancing security for its delivery;
- To support the Ivorian authorities in preparing for the voluntary, safe and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons, in cooperation with relevant humanitarian organizations, and in creating security conditions conducive to it;

(i) Public information

- To continue to use the broadcasting capacity of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, through ONUCI FM, to contribute to the overall effort to create a peaceful environment, until the October 2015 presidential election;
- To monitor any public incidents of incitement to hatred, intolerance and violence and bring to the attention of the Security Council all individuals identified as instigators of political violence, and to keep the Committee established pursuant to resolution 1572(2004) informed of any significant developments in this regard, when appropriate;

(j) Protection of United Nations personnel

- To protect United Nations personnel, installations and equipment and ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations personnel;

20. Authorizes the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to use all necessary means to carry out its mandate, within its capabilities and its areas of deployment;

21. Decides that the protection of civilians shall remain the priority of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, in accordance with paragraph 19 (a) above, and further decides that the Operation shall put a renewed focus on supporting the Government of Côte d'Ivoire on disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, the collection of weapons and security sector reform, in accordance with paragraphs 19 (d) and (e) of the present resolution, with the objective of transitioning security responsibilities from the Operation to the Government;

22. Requests the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to ensure that any support provided to non-United Nations security forces is provided in strict compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces;

Force structure

23. Recalls its intention, as affirmed in its resolution 2112(2013), to consider a further reduction of two battalions, and decides that the uniformed personnel of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire shall consist of up to 5,437 military personnel, comprising 5,245 troops and staff officers and 192 military observers, by 30 June 2015;

24. Decides that the authorized strength of the police component of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire shall consist of up to 1,500 personnel, and further decides to maintain the 8 customs officers previously authorized;

25. Affirms its intention to consider further downsizing the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, reviewing its mandate and its possible termination after the October 2015 presidential election based on security conditions on the ground and the capacity of the Government of Côte d'Ivoire to take over the security role of the Operation;

26. Acknowledges the reconfiguration of the military presence of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to concentrate resources in high-risk areas, as decided in its resolution 2112(2013), expresses support for the new mobile concept of operations of the military component of the Operation, and requests the Operation to further update its configuration in this regard after the additional downsizing of its military personnel, with a view to consolidating its locations and bases, focusing on the west and other high-risk areas as appropriate, while shifting to a mobile posture and enhancing its situational awareness and early warning capabilities;

27. Requests the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire to focus and continue to streamline its activities across its military, police and civilian components in order to achieve progress on the tasks outlined in paragraph 19 above and to fully reflect the downsizing of the military component and narrowing of the mandate decided in resolution 2112(2013) and the present resolution on the structure of the mission, and expresses its intention to keep the requirements and composition of components of the Operation under active review;

French forces

28. Decides to extend until 30 June 2015 the authorization that the Council provided to the French forces in order to support the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, within the limits of their deployment and their capabilities;

29. Urges all parties to cooperate fully with the operations of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and of the French forces supporting it, in particular by ensuring their safety, security and freedom of movement with unhindered and immediate access throughout the territory of Côte d'Ivoire to enable them to fully carry out their mandates;

Regional and inter-mission cooperation

30. Calls upon the Governments of Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia to continue reinforcing their cooperation, particularly with respect to the border area, including through increased monitoring, information-sharing and coordinated actions, and to implement the shared border strategy to, inter alia, support the disarmament and repatriation of foreign armed elements on both sides of the border and the voluntary and safe repatriation of refugees as well as to address the root causes of conflict and tension;

31. Affirms the importance of inter-mission cooperation arrangements as the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire downsize, reaffirms the inter-mission cooperation framework set out in its resolution 1609(2005) of 24 June 2005, and further recalls its endorsement in its resolution 2062(2012) of 26 July 2012 of the recommendation of the Secretary-General to transfer three armed helicopters from the Mission to the Operation to be used in both Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia along and across their border, and decides that all military utility helicopters of the Operation and the Mission shall be utilized in both Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia in order to facilitate rapid response and mobility, while not affecting the area of responsibility of either mission;

32. Welcomes the proposal by the Secretary-General, as set out in his report of 15 May 2014, to establish, in the context of inter-mission cooperation arrangements between the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, for an initial period of one year and within the authorized military strength of the Operation, a quick reaction force to implement the mandate of the Operation as defined in paragraph 19 of the present resolution and to support the Mission as defined in paragraph 33 of the present resolution, while recognizing that this unit will remain primarily an asset of the Operation;

33. Authorizes the Secretary-General to deploy this unit to Liberia, subject to the consent of the troop-contributing countries concerned and the Government of Liberia, in the event of a serious deterioration of the security situation on the ground, in order to temporarily reinforce the United Nations Mission in Liberia with the sole purpose of implementing its mandate, and stresses that this unit should prioritize implementation of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire mandate in Côte d'Ivoire;

34. Requests the Secretary-General to take steps to ensure that this unit reaches full operational capability as soon as possible, and no later than May 2015;

35. Also requests the Secretary-General to inform the Council immediately of any deployment of this unit to Liberia and to obtain Council authorization for any such deployment for a period that exceeds 90 days;

36. Calls upon all United Nations entities in Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia, including all relevant components of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the United Nations Mission in Liberia, within their respective mandates, capabilities and areas of deployment, to enhance their support for the stabilization of the border area, including through increased inter-mission cooperation and the development of a shared, strategic vision and plan in support of the Ivorian and Liberian authorities and support for implementing regional security strategies, including those of the Mano River Union and the Economic Community of West African States;

37. Commends inter-mission cooperation between the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, and encourages both United Nations missions to continue in this direction, as authorized by paragraph 14 of its resolution 2100(2013);

Reporting

38. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the Council regularly informed of the situation in Côte d'Ivoire and the implementation of the mandate of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, and to provide to the Council a midterm report no later than 15 December 2014 and a final report no later than 15 May 2015 on the situation on the ground and the implementation of the present resolution;

39. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Report of Group of Experts (October). On 10 October, pursuant to Council resolution 2153(2014) (see above), the Chair of the Security Council Committee transmitted to the Security Council the midterm report [S/2014/729] of the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire. Progress had been made in the areas of demobilization, demilitarization and reintegration of former combatants, security sector reform, national reconciliation and the fight against impunity. The Group remained concerned, however, about security and stability in the lead-up to the 2015 presidential elections because of the presence of large quantities of weapons and ammunition that remained unaccounted for in the country. While the improved security situation in Côte d'Ivoire had a positive impact on the region, mercenaries in Liberia and militias in Côte d'Ivoire remained highly operational. In particular, activities and connected armed attacks in Côte d'Ivoire continued to be linked to elements of the pro-Gbagbo radical wing, which persevered in its efforts to recruit and finance combatants. Concerning the arms embargo, the transformation of civilian vehicles into armed military vehicles was still a major issue. Furthermore, the Group identified violations that occurred during the period of the post-electoral crisis in 2011 regarding multiple rocket launchers, heavy machine guns, and related ammunition and vehicles, some of which were similar to those manufactured in the Sudan. Cocoa and gold smuggling continued. Investigations to identify any direct links between the illegal exploitation of natural resources and the financing of the purchase of arms and related materiel and activities were ongoing. In that context, the Group was also focusing on the illegal parallel taxation system based on racketeering, money-laundering and extortion and possible links to any Group or activity threatening peace and stability in the country and in the region. The Group maintained that the recommendations contained in its April report (see above) remained valid.

Children and armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General. The Secretary-General, in his May report on children and armed conflict [A/68/878-S/2014/339] covering the period from January to December 2013, stated that despite peace and reconciliation efforts regarding the reintegration of ex-combatants, the overall child protection situation in Côte d'Ivoire remained of concern. The impunity and weak capacity of the national judicial system to address sexual violence had hindered access to justice for victims across Côte d'Ivoire. As a result of such gaps in institutional capacity, but also owing to the fear of retaliation and stigmatization, out-of-court settlements of rape cases remained frequent and to the detriment of the victims' rights to justice and compensation. The draft national child protection policy to address violence against children, assistance to child victims and the issue of impunity was pending adoption by the Government.

UNOCI

The United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire (UNOCI) was established in 2004 by Security Council resolution 1528(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 173] to replace the United Nations Mission in Côte d'Ivoire and ECOWAS forces, with the mandate to monitor the ceasefire and movement of armed groups; assist in disarmament, demobilization, reintegration, repatriation and resettlement; protect UN personnel and civilians; support implementation of the peace process; and provide assistance in the monitoring of human rights, public information and law and order. Council resolution 2162(2014) (see p. 252) extended the mandate of UNOCI until 30 June 2015. Aïchatou Mindaoudou Souleymane (Niger) was the Special Representative for Côte d'Ivoire and Head of UNOCI.

Appointment. On 14 May [S/2014/354], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Major General Hafiz Masroor Ahmed (Pakistan) as the Force Commander of UNOCI to replace Major General Muhammad Iqbal Asi (Pakistan). The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 16 May [S/2014/355].

Financing

In May, the General Assembly considered the Secretary-General's performance report on the budget of UNOCI for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/632], the proposed budget for the mission for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 [A/68/758] and the related ACABQ report [A/68/782/Add.11].

The performance report for the 2012–2013 financial period showed an expenditure of $573,382,000 gross (563,396,600 net) against an appropriation of $575,017,000 gross ($565,864,000 net). The proposed budget for UNOCI for the 2014–2015 period amounted to $512,590,300 gross ($503,694,300 net), which provided for the deployment of 192 military observers, 6,945 military contingent personnel, 555 UN police officers, 1,000 formed police personnel, 411 international staff, 796 national staff, 178 United Nations Volunteers and 44 Government-provided personnel. In May [A/68/782/Add.11], ACABQ recommended a reduction of $10,292,900 in the proposed budget.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/922], adopted resolution 68/285 without vote [agenda item 150].

Financing of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1528(2004) of 27 February 2004, by which the Council established the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire for an initial period of 12 months as from 4 April 2004, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation, the latest of which was resolution 2162(2014) of 25 June 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation until 30 June 2015,

Recalling also its resolution 58/310 of 18 June 2004 on the financing of the Operation and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/271 of 28 June 2013,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Operation with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 35.6 million United States dollars, representing some 1 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 85 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Operation in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Stresses that the exceptional arrangement set out in paragraph 14 below does not set a precedent for the budgetary process and that it shall not have a negative impact on mandate delivery;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

11. Also requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Operation is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

12. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the Operation for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

13. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire the amount of 532,091,100 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of 493,570,300 dollars for the maintenance of the Operation, 31,937,500 dollars for the support account for peacekeeping operations and 6,583,300 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy;

Financing of the appropriation

14. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 246,785,150 dollars for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 for the maintenance of the Operation, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

15. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 4,448,000 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Operation for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014;

16. Further decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 31,937,500 dollars for the support account and the amount of 6,583,300 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014 and 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

17. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 16 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 2,615,200 dollars, for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, comprising the prorated share of 2,027,100 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 588,100 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

18. Also decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Operation, there shall be set off against their apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 7,067,600 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2013, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

19. Further decides that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Operation, there shall be set off against their outstanding obligations their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 7,067,600 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 18 above;

20. Decides that the increase of 832,400 dollars in the estimated staff assessment income in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013 shall be added to the credits in the amount of 7,067,600 dollars referred to in paragraphs 18 and 19 above;

21. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

22. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Operation under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

23. Invites voluntary contributions to the Operation in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedures and practices established by the General Assembly;

24. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire".

Note by Secretary-General. In a 17 October note [A/69/534 & Corr.1] on financing arrangements for UNOCI for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, the Secretary-General said that the General Assembly acted to assess the additional amount of $243,907,100 gross ($239,637,100 net) for the maintenance of UNOCI from 1 January to 30 June 2015, taking into account the amount of $493,570,300 appropriated under the terms of Assembly resolution 68/285 (see above) for the maintenance of UNOCI for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, and the amount of $246,785,150 already assessed for the maintenance of UNOCI for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014.

In December [A/69/626], ACABQ concluded that the Secretary-General's proposal did not constitute a revised budget and taking into account the provisions of General Assembly resolution 68/285, it was up to the Assembly to make a determination as to the required level of assessment for UNOCI for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 December [meeting 77], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/69/685], adopted resolution 69/258 without vote [agenda item 152].

Financing of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire

The General Assembly,

Having considered the note by the Secretary-General on the financing arrangements for the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2162(2014) of 25 June 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation until 30 June 2015,

Recalling also its resolution 58/310 of 18 June 2004 on the financing of the Operation and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 68/285 of 30 June 2014,

1. Decides, taking into account the amount of 246,785,150 United States dollars already apportioned under the terms of its resolution 68/285 for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 for the maintenance of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, to apportion among Member States the amount of 246,785,150 dollars for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015 for the maintenance of the Operation, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

2. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 1 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 4,448,000 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Operation for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015;

3. Further decides to keep under review during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire".

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on financing of UNOCI to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Liberia

In 2014, the senate elections that were originally scheduled to be held in October were postponed to December on account of the Ebola virus disease outbreak, which claimed the lives of thousands. The December elections, though marked by a low voter turnout, were assessed as generally free, fair and credible, and were conducted peacefully. Delays continued in the national reconciliation process, with little progress on the National Reconciliation Roadmap and in the implementation of related projects supported by the United Nations Peacebuilding Fund.

The national technical forum on reconciliation convened irregularly. The Constitution Review Committee, supported by the United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL) and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), continued the efforts to advance constitutional reform stressing the importance of inclusivity and civic education.

The mandate of UNMIL was extended twice, in September by Council resolution 2176(2014) (see p. 262) until 31 December and in December by resolution 2190(2014) (see p. 267) until 30 September 2015.

Political and security developments

Reports of Secretary-General (February and August). In February [S/2014/123], the Secretary-General submitted his twenty-seventh progress report [YUN 2013, p. 174] on UNMIL and major developments in Liberia. Important issues were at stake in the process of constitutional review, including the extent of executive power, the management of natural resources and community participation in policymaking. Limited progress was made towards national reconciliation and major political reform processes.

In August, the Secretary-General submitted his twenty-eighth progress report [S/2014/598] on UNMIL, which provided an update on major developments in Liberia since his February report and shared the findings and recommendations of a strategic review and electoral needs assessment missions conducted by the United Nations.

The overall security situation remained stable, though fragile. Insecurity was characterized by tensions between concessionaires and affected communities; high rates of sexual and gender-based violence, with 18 per cent of reported cases involving children under 10 years of age; armed robbery, with one third of cases involving firearms; and inter-communal violence.

The situation in the area bordering Côte d'Ivoire remained stable, notwithstanding attacks in Côte d'Ivoire on 23 February and 15 May, resulting in the arrival of 600 Ivorian refugees. Since the start of the year, 12,022 refugees had returned voluntarily to Côte d'Ivoire with assistance from the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), leaving approximately 37,700 Ivorian refugees in Liberia.

A United Nations-led strategic review recommended that given expectations that the 2017 presidential election and subsequent transfer of power to a new administration in January 2018 would be a sensitive period for the country, the security transition process, specifically the full handover of the UNMIL security tasks to national authorities, should conclude no later than 2016. That would provide the Government with nearly two years to consolidate its efforts to fully assume all of its security responsibilities. The review also assessed that a lack of progress on sensitive processes, such as national reconciliation and inclusive political reforms, had contributed to a continuing disarticulation between the operational achievement of security sector reform and security sector governance. The strategic review therefore assessed that there was a need to reconceive UN support for the country. The review recommended to further adjust the UNMIL military and police components, while also strengthening the mandate of UNMIL in critical areas related to national reconciliation and political processes, including through an explicit good offices role for the Special Representative.

A separate UN-led electoral assessment mission recommended that the mandate of UNMIL be revised to include the provision of logistical support to facilitate access to remote areas during the 2014 elections. The electoral assessment mission said that UNMIL should also work closely with national stakeholders to support the development of a national security coordination mechanism involving all institutions with a role in providing, financing or overseeing election security. For the duration of its presence in Liberia, UNMIL should coordinate electoral assistance to ensure harmonization and prevent duplication. UNMIL should also have a mandate to support Liberian stakeholders in creating an environment conducive to the conduct of peaceful elections, including through an explicit good offices role for the Special Representative.

The Secretary-General observed that the role of the United Nations in Liberia had to be reconceived, with UNMIL enhancing its focus on core political and security tasks. He therefore recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of UNMIL for one year, until 30 September 2015, while supplementing the political role played by his Special Representative with an explicit good offices mandate, which would focus on facilitating national reconciliation and political reform, and an environment conducive to peaceful and transparent elections, with due attention to the rule of law. The Secretary-General also recommended that UNMIL be mandated to provide logistical support for the October 2014 senatorial elections, limited to facilitating access to remote areas.

Though Liberia no longer faced any apparent military threat, national security institutions were still working to develop their capacity to maintain stability and protect the population without support from a peacekeeping operation. The Secretary-General therefore recommended the drawdown of UNMIL uniformed personnel, resulting in an authorized strength of 3,631 military and 1,515 police personnel by mid-2015. The primary focus of UNMIL would be protecting civilians within its capabilities and areas of deployment.

Letters of Secretary-General. In a 28 August letter [S/2014/644] to the President of the Security Council, the Secretary-General said the Ebola outbreak in West Africa had escalated so drastically in just a matter of weeks that, as the Government and other partners were focusing on Ebola, some processes at the core of the mandate of UNMIL, as set out in resolution 2116(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 171] were on hold or had significantly slowed; those included constitutional review, national reconciliation, land reform, the capacity-building of national security agencies, legal reform and natural resource management. Additionally, it was unlikely that the senatorial elections would take place as scheduled in October 2014. Consequently, the Secretary-General had decided to temporarily reduce the presence in Liberia of a small number of personnel performing functions related to those areas. Additional medical and other specific reinforcements, however, would be required. The Government of Liberia had been consulted and supported those proposals.

The presence and continued operations of UNMIL in Liberia remained critical, including the deterrent effect of its uniformed personnel, deployed in 11 of the country's 15 counties. The Mission had an important role to play in protecting civilians. Though it had not, and would not, enforce the Government-imposed isolation of Ebola-affected areas, UNMIL would continue to facilitate the provision of humanitarian assistance, including by helping to provide the necessary security conditions. UNMIL had to closely monitor the political and human rights situation in order to mitigate any exactions or abuses that could trigger a reversal of more than a decade of peace in Liberia. All UN personnel in Liberia had been educated about the appropriate preventive measures that would minimize the risk of contracting Ebola, which was not airborne and required direct contact with the bodily fluids of a symptomatic infected person or the deceased.

Given the exceptional circumstances, the Secretary-General recommended a technical rollover of the mandate of UNMIL for a period of three months, and that the Security Council defer consideration of his proposals for the extension of the mandate of UNMIL until 30 December 2014. On 2 September [S/2014/645], the Security Council took note of the Secretary-General's proposal.

On 15 September [S/2014/669], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Council President a joint letter from Alpha Condé, the President of Guinea; Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, the President of Liberia; and Ernest Bai Koroma, the President of Sierra Leone, for a UN resolution for a coordinated international response to end the Ebola outbreak.

(For more information on the United Nations response to the Ebola virus disease outbreak in West Africa, see PART THREE, Chapter XIII.)

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 15 September [meeting 7263], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2176(2014). The draft [S/2014/664] was submitted by Chad, France, Nigeria, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions concerning the situation in Liberia, in particular resolutions 1509(2003) of 19 September 2003, 2066(2012) of 17 September 2012 and 2116(2013) of 18 September 2013, and its statement to the press of 9 July 2014,

Expressing grave concern about the extent of the outbreak of the Ebola virus in West Africa, in particular in Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone,

Affirming that the Government of Liberia bears primary responsibility for ensuring peace, stability and the protection of the civilian population in Liberia, and stressing that lasting stability in Liberia will require the Government to sustain well-functioning and accountable government institutions, particularly in the rule of law and security sectors,

Welcoming the launch of the Liberia Operational Plan for Accelerated Response to Recurrence of Ebola Epidemic, taking note of the efforts of the national security forces, notably the Liberia National Police and the Armed Forces of Liberia, to respond promptly to the outbreak through undertaking public awareness and prevention activities in conformity with established safety protocols and procedures, and urging the national security forces, when responding to security incidents, to use proportionate force,

Welcoming also the convening of the Mano River Union Extraordinary Summit, held in Guinea on 1 August 2014, and the commitments expressed by the Heads of State of Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone and the Head of the World Health Organization to combat the Ebola outbreak in the region, including by strengthening treatment services and measures to prevent the outbreak spreading across borders, and also welcoming the commitment of the African Union and the Economic Community of West African States, as well as bilateral partners and multilateral organizations, to support efforts to combat the further spread of the Ebola virus,

Expressing appreciation for the appointments by the Secretary-General of Dr. David Nabarro as the United Nations System Senior Coordinator for Ebola Virus Disease and of Mr. Anthony Banbury as the Deputy Ebola Coordinator and Operation Crisis Manager operating from the United Nations Operations and Crisis Centre, in order to assist Governments in the region to address the Ebola outbreak, Urging the international community to respond swiftly to the shortage of qualified medical professionals and appropriate equipment and preventive measures necessary to address the Ebola outbreak in West Africa,

Expressing deep appreciation for and commending the continued contribution and commitment of United Nations personnel, especially the troop- and police-contributing countries of the United Nations Mission in Liberia, to assist in consolidating peace and stability in Liberia, and the efforts of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Liberia,

Noting the possible delays in the conduct of the special senatorial election scheduled for October 2014,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 15 August 2014, and taking note also of the letter dated 28 August 2014 from the Secretary-General and his recommendation to defer consideration of the proposals for the extension of the mandate of the Mission, outlined in his report,

Determining that the situation in Liberia continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Mission in Liberia until 31 December 2014;

2. Endorses the recommendation of the Secretary-General, in his letter dated 28 August 2014, to defer consideration of the proposals on adjustments to the mandate of the Mission, outlined in his report of 15 August 2014;

3. Expresses its intention to further extend the mandate of the Mission to 30 September 2015 after consideration of the proposals of the Secretary-General;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the Security Council updated on the situation in Liberia no later than 15 November 2014;

5. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/275], the Secretary-General provided an update on the situation in Liberia since his August report (see p. 261). The reporting period was dominated by the Ebola outbreak. The epidemic revealed the depth of public distrust and weaknesses in national institutions, while also accentuating societal divisions. As a result, political and other reform processes slowed, although new opportunities for cooperation arose, including with respect to empowering local authorities.

The Ebola outbreak affected the timing of the elections of 15 of the 30 senators, originally scheduled for 14 October. Following further consultations with stakeholders, the National Elections Commission set 20 December as the date for the elections. Notwithstanding some controversy about holding elections in the midst of the Ebola health emergency, political stakeholders reached consensus on the need to conduct the elections by the end of the year, in order to avoid a possible constitutional crisis that could arise if the new senators were not seated on 12 January 2015. The elections were held on 20 December with a low voter turnout of 25.2 per cent. They were assessed as generally free, fair and credible, and were conducted peacefully, despite the political tensions and incidents of pre-election violence. The National Elections Commission announced final election results on 27 December. Mr. George Weah won the Montserrado County seat with 78 per cent of the vote compared to 10.8 per cent for Mr. Robert Sirleaf, the runner-up. Media allegations of widespread corruption, including alleged misuse of funds allocated to the fight against Ebola, contributed to the erosion of public trust in the Government.

Sanctions

Security Council Committee. The Security Council Committee, established pursuant to resolution 1521(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 208] concerning Liberia, monitored implementation of the sanctions imposed on Liberia by that resolution and subsequent resolutions. The sanctions banned arms and related materiel, as well as the export of certain natural resources and international travel by designated individuals, and froze the assets of designated individuals who constituted a threat to peace in Liberia and the subregion. By resolution 1903(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 201], the Council redefined the arms embargo by directing States to prevent the supply, sale or transfer—from their territories or by their nationals, or by using their vessels or aircraft—of arms and related materiel to non-governmental entities and individuals in Liberia. By resolution 2128(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 175], the Council renewed the arms embargo on all non-government entities and individuals operating in the territory of Liberia and renewed the travel ban for a period of 12 months.

The Committee reported on its 2014 activities [S/2014/931], during which it held four informal consultations (24 January, 14 March, 16 May, 12 November); sent out 25 communications to 14 Member States and one communication to INTERPOL, with reference to the implementation of the sanctions measures; received one notification regarding shipment of arms and related materiel to the Government of Liberia, or provision of assistance, advice or training related to military activities for the Government; and received 17 requests for delisting, of which two were received from the focal point for delisting. One individual was delisted by the Committee. As at 31 December, there were 22 individuals and 30 entities designated under the sanctions regime.

In June, the Committee agreed to recommend to the Security Council that it request the Secretary-General to conduct an assessment mission to Liberia, as an outcome of the review of the measures of the sanctions regime in Liberia in accordance with paragraph 4 of resolution 2128(2013).

Panel of Experts

The Panel of Experts on Liberia, established pursuant to resolution 1521(2003), submitted midterm and final reports during the year (see below). By resolution 2188(2014) (see below), the Council renewed the mandate of the Panel of Experts until 9 October 2015.

Reports of Panel of Experts. On 16 May [S/2014/363], the Chairman of the Security Council Committee transmitted to the Council the midterm report of the Panel of Experts on Liberia. The Panel recommended that Liberia expedite the passage of the firearms control legislation in line with ECOWAS standards, particularly in view of the fact that there was little time left to submit, debate and enact the legislation before the Legislature went into recess and before key legislators began their 2014 re-election campaigns. The Panel also urged Liberia and its bilateral partners to strengthen the Liberia National Commission on Small Arms by appointing the two other commissioners provided for in the legislation establishing the Commission and to provide them with adequate logistical support to be able to perform their mandated functions effectively; urged the Government, with the assistance of UNMIL, to mark all weapons and ammunition stocks maintained in government armouries in accordance with Council resolution 1903(2009) and the ECOWAS Convention on Small Arms and Light Weapons; urged Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire to intensify the exchange of information regarding cross-border threats to peace and security, in addition to illicit arms trafficking, especially at the operational level, as part of the development of their shared border security strategy; and called on Liberia, the Liberia Refugee Repatriation and Resettlement Commission and UNHCR to consider reviewing the policy of prima facie refugee determinations whereby every Ivorian who crossed into Liberia was presumed to be a refugee.

The Panel also urged the UN police component to increase its mentoring of the Liberian national police with regard to forensics, criminal investigations and transnational crime, including through joint training between the national police and prosecutors and by building the capacity of the national police to strengthen links between law enforcement investigations and evidence collection, so that such evidence could be used more effectively in a court of law.

With regard to Liberian authorities, the Panel urged the Legislature to enact the legislation on controlled drugs and substances that was drafted in 2013 as a matter of urgency since Liberia was one of the few countries in the region with no drug legislation, and that the Government grant the Drug Enforcement Agency free and unrestricted access to the Freeport of Monrovia and to other seaports and border posts throughout the country. The Panel urged both Liberia and Sierra Leone to allocate the necessary resources in order to regularly hold the monthly meetings of the Joint Border Security Committee and Confidence-Building Units.

On 19 November, the Panel submitted its final report [S/2014/831] to the Council. The Panel reiterated many of its recommendations made in its midterm report (see above). In terms of security sector reform, the draft national police act, which was submitted by the Ministry of Justice to the President in May, was still awaiting submission to the Legislature for ratification, and the code of military discipline of the armed forces had still not been ratified by the Legislature. The Panel recommended that UNMIL develop the capacity and expertise to advise the Government on issues related to the sanctions regime. In particular, there should be a focal point within UNMIL to which the relevant government entities could turn for information and advice.

Assessment Mission

By a 16 July letter [S/2014/504], the President of the Security Council informed the Secretary-General that the Council had completed its review of the measures pertaining to the sanctions regime in Liberia, in accordance with Council resolution 2128(2013). As an outcome of the review, the Council requested the Secretary-General to conduct an assessment mission and report to the Council by 1 October 2014 on the progress that Liberia had made towards meeting the conditions set out in Council resolution 1521(2003) for the termination of the sanctions. The Council also requested the Secretary-General to provide recommendations on UN assistance to the Government of Liberia in improving its capacities to undertake the proper management of arms and ammunition, including enacting the necessary legislative frameworks and facilitating the effective monitoring and management of the border regions between Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire.

On 29 September [S/2014/707], the Secretary-General submitted to the President of the Security Council the report of the assessment mission concerning the Liberia sanctions regime. In the wake of the Ebola virus disease crisis in Liberia, the assessment was carried out from UN Headquarters in New York, principally through video- and teleconferences with relevant interlocutors.

The Ebola crisis had revealed institutional weaknesses, including in the security sector, while the constitutional reform and decentralization processes had slowed down.

Against this backdrop of crisis management and political instability, it would be many months before the Government of Liberia and many of its international partners could focus on the assessment mission's recommendations. In that regard, it was stated that the Security Council should consider deferring any adjustments to the existing sanctions measures (arms embargo on non-State sectors, asset freezes and travel bans) for six months or until the political situation in the country had stabilized. Until legislation, regulations and sufficient capacity were put in place, the Government should introduce a complete moratorium on the importation or possession of small arms by non-State actors.

UNMIL should assist the Government to harmonize laws relating to the security sector to ensure that the relevant agencies were assigned appropriate powers, that there were no conflicting functions among the various security agencies, and that the most appropriate accountability mechanisms were put in place.

In relation to the monitoring and management of the border region between Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire, the Secretary-General recommended that, should the Security Council decide to further adjust the current arrangements for monitoring sanctions on Liberia, it should consider enlarging the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire and expanding its mandate to include cross-border issues. Further, the Government of Liberia, with the assistance of international partners, should expand the capacity of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization and continue to prioritize the deployment of the national police to the border region in line with the transition arrangements.

Both Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire should also continue to strengthen coordination and information-sharing for border security and stabilization.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 9 December [meeting 7328], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2188(2014). The draft [S/2014/868] was submitted by the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President on the situation in Liberia,

Welcoming the sustained progress made by the Government of Liberia in rebuilding Liberia for the benefit of all Liberians, with the support of the international community,

Taking note of the report of the Panel of Experts on Liberia,

Taking note also of the letter dated 29 September 2014 from the Secretary-General to the President of the Security Council, and welcoming the recommendations to the Council in the annex thereto, regarding the assessment mission concerning the Liberia sanctions regime,

Expressing grave concern about the outbreak of the Ebola virus in, and its impact on, West Africa, including Liberia,

Recognizing that the peacebuilding and development gains in Liberia could be reversed in the light of the Ebola outbreak, and, in the light of these factors, expressing its intent to scale back and terminate the remaining sanctions in a prudent manner,

Affirming that the Government of Liberia bears primary responsibility for ensuring peace, stability and the protection of the civilian population in Liberia, and stressing that lasting stability in Liberia will require the Government to sustain well-functioning and accountable government institutions, particularly in the rule of law and security sectors,

Stressing the need for continued progress on security sector reform in Liberia to ensure that Liberia's military, police and border security forces are self-sufficient, capable and adequately prepared to protect the Liberian people,

Underlining that the transparent and effective management of natural resources is critical for Liberia's sustainable peace and security,

Underlining its determination to support the Government of Liberia in its efforts to meet the conditions of resolution 1521(2003) of 22 December 2003, welcoming the engagement of the Peacebuilding Commission, and encouraging all stakeholders, including donors, to support the Government in its efforts,

Determining that the situation in Liberia remains fragile and constitutes a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Reaffirms that the measures imposed by paragraph 1 of resolution 1532(2004) of 12 March 2004 remain in force;

2. Decides, for a period of nine months from the date of adoption of the present resolution:

(a) To renew the measures on travel imposed by paragraph 4 of resolution 1521(2003);

(b) To renew the measures on arms, previously imposed by paragraph 2 of resolution 1521(2003) and modified by paragraphs 1 and 2 of resolution 1683(2006) of 13 June 2006, by paragraph 1 (b) of resolution 1731(2006) of 20 December 2006, by paragraphs 3 to 6 of resolution 1903(2009) of 17 December 2009, by paragraph 3 of resolution 1961(2010) of 17 December 2010 and by paragraph 2 (b) of resolution 2128(2013) of 10 December 2013;

3. Also decides to maintain all of the above measures under continuous review with a view to modifying or lifting all or part of the measures of the sanctions regime dependent upon Liberia's progress towards meeting the conditions set out in resolution 1521(2003) for terminating those measures and in the light of the threat to peace and security in Liberia posed by the Ebola virus;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to provide an update to the Security Council by 1 August 2015 on progress made by the Government of Liberia in implementing the recommendations on the proper management of arms and ammunition, including enacting the necessary legislative frameworks, and on facilitating the effective monitoring and management of the border regions between Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire;

5. Decides to extend the mandate of the Panel of Experts on Liberia appointed pursuant to paragraph 9 of resolution 1903(2009) for a period of 10 months from the date of adoption of the present resolution to undertake the following tasks in close collaboration with the Government of Liberia and the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire:

(a) To conduct a follow-up assessment mission to Liberia and neighbouring States, as feasible, given conditions on the ground, to investigate and compile a final report on the implementation, and any violations, of the measures on arms as amended by resolutions 1903(2009), 1961(2010) and 2128(2013), including the various sources of financing for the illicit trade in arms, on progress in the security and legal sectors with respect to the ability of the Government of Liberia to effectively monitor and control arms and border issues, and on the progress of the Government in meeting notification requirements;

(b) To provide to the Security Council, after discussion with the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1521(2003), no later than 1 August 2015, a final report on all the issues listed in the present paragraph, and to provide to the Committee no later than 23 April 2015, an update on the status of legislation in Liberia related to the ability of the Government of Liberia to effectively monitor and control arms and border issues, and any other informal updates to the Committee as appropriate;

(c) To cooperate actively with other relevant panels of experts, in particular the Group of Experts on Côte d'Ivoire re-established by paragraph 24 of resolution 2153(2014) of 29 April 2014;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to take the necessary administrative measures, as expeditiously as possible, to re-establish the Panel of Experts, in consultation with the Committee, for a period of 10 months from the date of the present resolution, drawing, as appropriate, on the expertise of the members of the Panel of Experts established pursuant to previous resolutions;

7. Calls upon all States and the Government of Liberia to cooperate fully with the Panel of Experts in all aspects of its mandate;

8. Recalls that responsibility for controlling the circulation of small arms within the territory of Liberia and between Liberia and neighbouring States rests with the relevant governmental authorities in accordance with the Economic Community of West African States Convention on Small Arms and Light Weapons, Their Ammunition and Other Related Materials of 2006;

9. Urges the Government of Liberia to expedite the adoption and implementation of appropriate legislation and take other necessary and appropriate steps to establish the legal framework necessary to combat illicit trafficking in arms and ammunition;

10. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Peacebuilding Commission

The Peacebuilding Commission issued its annual report covering its eighth (2014) session from 1 January to 31 December [A/69/818-S/2015/174]. The Commission noted that the advocacy, accompaniment and sustaining attention function in Liberia was distinct from activities in Burundi and Sierra Leone. Financial constraints and an insufficient national revenue base had continued to stall progress in Liberia in the areas of security sector reform and the rule of law. Limited progress had been made towards the implementation of the Government's Reconciliation road map. In that context, the Commission advocated for greater commitment by the Government to justice and security reform, particularly in view of the planned drawdown of UNMIL. The Commission also encouraged the Government to ensure greater involvement of civil society, including women's groups, in the national reconciliation process. Liberia was one of the countries where the allocation of the Fund for gender-related issues was higher than the target of 15 per cent set by the Secretary-General in his report on women's participation in peacebuilding (see p. 1285).

Recognizing the severe resource constraints facing the Government of Liberia and the centrality of natural resources for State finances, the Commission sought greater international support for the management of both natural resources and land disputes. The focus on those issues was prioritized, as they were seen as key sources of conflict in the country in the past. The Commission had repeatedly reiterated to relevant stakeholders the importance of managing natural resources and land issues in a way that would benefit all citizens. At the request of the Government and the Commission, a study was conducted by UNDP, the World Bank, the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Liberia and the Liberian Land Commission on citizens' engagement in natural resources management, with support from the Peacebuilding Support Office. This was an area where the partnership among the Commission, the Peacebuilding Support Office and the World Bank held promise for helping generate new strategies and international support, which would be particularly important following the country's recovery from the Ebola outbreak and in advance of the drawdown of UNMIL.

Implementation of mutual commitments. The Peacebuilding Commission, in an April report [PBC/8/LBR/1], reviewed progress in the implementation of the statement of mutual commitments on peacebuilding in Liberia [YUN 2011, p. 171] during the period from October 2012 to December 2013. The Commission concluded that the commitments agreed upon in the statement remained valid, and, consequently, that the statement would be extended for another year, allowing additional time for the fulfilment of their implementation.

A March report [PBC/8/LBR/2] concluded that the commitments agreed upon in the statement of mutual commitments remained valid, and, consequently, they would be extended for another year, allowing additional time for the fulfilment of their implementation. The Commission also recognized that the primary responsibility for peace consolidation and development rested with the Government and people of Liberia. Close cooperation would ensure that peacebuilding matters, and particularly urgent political issues, were placed on the agenda for consultation between the Government of Liberia and its partners, including the Peacebuilding Commission.

(For more information on the Peacebuilding Commission, see p. 58.)

UNMIL

The United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL), established by Security Council resolution 1509(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 194], was mandated to support the implementation of the 2003 Agreement on Ceasefire and Cessation of Hostilities [ibid., p. 189] and the peace process; protect UN staff, facilities and civilians; support humanitarian and human rights activities; and assist in national security reform, including national police training and the formation of a new, restructured military. By resolution 1638(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 267], the Council enhanced the mandate to include the apprehension and detention of the former President Charles Taylor in the event of his return to Liberia, as well as his transfer to the Special Court for Sierra Leone. By resolution 1750(2007) [YUN 2007, p. 194], the Council included in the Mission's mandate the provision of administrative and related support and security for activities conducted in Liberia by the Special Court for Sierra Leone with the consent of the Government. By resolution 1971(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 180], the Council requested that UNMIL withdraw, by 7 March 2011, the military personnel providing security for the Special Court for Sierra Leone.

UNMIL extension. By resolution 2176(2014) (see p. 262), the Security Council extended the mandate of UNMIL until 31 December 2014 and endorsed the recommendations made by the Secretary-General in his 28 August letter (see p. 1355) to defer consideration of the proposals on adjustments to the mandate of UNMIL. By resolution 2190(2014) (see below), the Council, acting under Chapter VII of the United Nations Charter, extended the mandate of UNMIL until 30 September 2015 with 4,811 military and 1,795 police personnel.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 15 December [meeting 7340], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2190(2014). The draft [S/2014/891] was submitted by Chad, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions, in particular resolutions 1509(2003) of 19 September 2003, 2066(2012) of 17 September 2012, 2116(2013) of 18 September 2013, 2176(2014) of 15 September 2014, 2177(2014) of 18 September 2014 and 2188(2014) of 9 December 2014, the statements by its President concerning the situation in Liberia and the subregion, and resolution 2162(2014) of 25 June 2014 on the situation in Côte d'Ivoire,

Affirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and unity of Liberia, and recalling the principles of good-neighbourliness, non-interference and regional cooperation,

Affirming that the Government of Liberia bears primary responsibility for ensuring peace, stability and the protection of the civilian population in Liberia and for reforming the security sector, particularly the Liberia National Police, stressing that lasting stability in Liberia will require the Government to sustain well-functioning and accountable government institutions, especially in the security and justice sectors, to build the confidence of all Liberians, and urging the Government to demonstrate substantive progress in the reform, restructuring and effective functioning of the security and justice sectors to provide for the protection of all Liberians,

Welcoming the overall progress toward restoring peace, security and stability in Liberia, commending the enduring commitment of the people and Government of Liberia to peace and to developing democratic processes and institutions and initiating important reform efforts, and calling upon all Liberian stakeholders to intensify momentum toward achieving greater social cohesion,

Reiterating grave concern about the unprecedented extent of the Ebola outbreak in Africa, and the impact of the Ebola virus on West Africa, including Liberia,

Recognizing the role of the Government of Liberia in continuing to lead the ground-level response against the Ebola outbreak in Liberia, as well as to address the wider impact of the Ebola outbreak on communities and to plan for the longer-term recovery, including with the support of the Peacebuilding Commission, taking note of the Liberia Economic Stabilization and Recovery Plan, and commending those Member States which, in concert with other actors on the ground, continue to provide crucial support to assist the efforts of the Government of Liberia to prevent, respond to, isolate and mitigate suspected cases of Ebola,

Recognizing also that the Ebola outbreak in Liberia has slowed the efforts of the Government of Liberia to advance certain governance and national reform priorities,

Extolling the continued contribution, commitment and resolve of United Nations personnel, especially from the troop- and police-contributing countries of the United Nations Mission in Liberia, to assist in consolidating peace and stability in Liberia, and the efforts of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Liberia, particularly during the Ebola outbreak, and expressing appreciation to the international community, including the Economic Community of West African States, the African Union and the Mano River Union, for their continuing support to consolidate peace, security and stability in Liberia,

Welcoming the efforts undertaken by the United Nations Mission for Ebola Emergency Response to provide overall leadership and direction to the operational work of the United Nations system, and underscoring the need for relevant United Nations system entities, including the United Nations peacekeeping operations in West Africa, in close collaboration with the Mission and within their existing mandates and capacities, to provide immediate assistance to the Governments of the most affected countries, including Liberia,

Noting with concern the potential for conflict over Liberia's natural resources and disputes related to land ownership, and noting also that issues related to corruption continue to threaten to undermine stability and the effectiveness of government institutions,

Recognizing the extension provided by the Government of Liberia to the Constitution Review Committee, looking forward to a comprehensive, inclusive constitutional review process as well as the development of the national human rights action plan and the implementation of the National Reconciliation Road Map, and urging efforts to strengthen the Independent National Commission on Human Rights, which could play a key role as a publicly accessible human rights institution and as a mechanism to monitor and follow up on the implementation of the recommendations of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission,

Welcoming the contributions of the Peacebuilding Commission to security sector reform, the rule of law and national reconciliation in Liberia, and emphasizing the need for coherence between, and integration of, peacekeeping, peacebuilding and development to achieve an effective response to post-conflict situations,

Commending the cooperation between, and the significant efforts of, the Government of Liberia and the United Nations Mission in Liberia to plan, manage and implement the phased military drawdown of the Mission, and expressing concern that the Government has not provided predictable and sustainable funding to shoulder the continuing costs of deploying security personnel and resources, including to operate and maintain the sites vacated by the Mission,

Noting the postponement from October 2014 of the senatorial elections,

Expressing appreciation for the continued assistance provided by both the Government and the people of Liberia to Ivorian refugees in eastern Liberia and toward their voluntary repatriation to Côte d'Ivoire,

Commending the continued efforts of the Government of Liberia to strengthen security cooperation in the sub-region, notably with the Governments of Guinea, Sierra Leone and Côte d'Ivoire, and recognizing that the instability in western Côte d'Ivoire continues to pose cross-border security challenges for Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire,

Recognizing the significant challenges that remain across all sectors, including continuing problems with violent crime, in particular the high rates of sexual and gender-based violence, especially involving children, recalling its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009,

1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, and 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 on women and peace and security, welcoming the renewed efforts of the Government of Liberia to promote and protect human rights, in particular of women and children, and emphasizing that persistent barriers to full implementation of resolution 1325(2000) will only be dismantled through dedicated commitment to women's empowerment, participation and human rights, and through concerted leadership, consistent information and action, and support, to build women's engagement in all levels of decision-making,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 15 August 2014 and the recommendations contained therein on the adjustments to the mandate and reconfiguration of the Mission, his letter dated 28 August 2014 and his update to the Security Council on 12 November 2014,

Determining that the situation in Liberia continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

Governance, rule of law, security sector reform and national reconciliation

1. Emphasizes that the Government of Liberia bears primary and ultimate responsibility for security and the protection of its population, and urges the Government to prioritize the effective and rapid development of the security agencies, especially the Liberia National Police, which is the priority law enforcement agency tasked with civilian policing responsibilities, including through the timely provision of sufficient financial resources and other support;

2. Encourages the Government of Liberia to prioritize its efforts to further national reconciliation and economic recovery, to combat corruption and to promote efficiency and good governance, in particular by continuing to strengthen Government transparency and accountability, including by managing effectively Liberia's natural resources, emphasizes the importance of pursuing a national reconciliation and social cohesion strategy, through concrete measures to promote national healing, justice and reconciliation at all levels and involving all Liberian stakeholders, and calls upon the Government to continue to support the participation of women in conflict prevention, conflict resolution and peacebuilding, including in decision-making roles in post-conflict governance institutions and the broad range of reform efforts;

3. Emphasizes the need for continued progress by the Liberian authorities on constitutional and institutional reforms, especially of the rule of law and security sectors, and the national reconciliation processes, particularly in the light of the wider political, security, socioeconomic and humanitarian impact of the Ebola outbreak on communities and the need to plan for the longer-term recovery of Liberia, in this regard requests the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Liberia to assist such efforts through the use of good offices and political support, including in view of the senatorial elections, and stresses that the responsibility for the preparation, security and conduct of free, fair, transparent and safe elections, including measures to mitigate the potential negative impact of the holding of elections on the spread of Ebola, rests with the Liberian authorities;

4. Urges the Government of Liberia to intensify its efforts toward achieving progress on the transition of security responsibilities from the United Nations Mission in Liberia to the national authorities, particularly with regard to prioritizing and resourcing the critical gaps to facilitate a successful transition, improving the capacity and capability of the Liberia National Police and the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization as well as the justice sector, including courts and prisons, enabling the promotion of human rights and reconciliation, effective oversight, professionalism, transparency and accountability across all security institutions and strengthening democratic institutions and extension of State authority and services throughout the country for the benefit of all Liberians;

5. Affirms its expectation that the Government of Liberia will assume fully its complete security responsibilities from the Mission no later than 30 June 2016, and also affirms its intention to consider accordingly, consistent with paragraphs 16 and 17 below, the continued and future reconfiguration of the Mission;

6. Stresses the importance of the Government of Liberia formulating a concrete plan, with timelines and benchmarks, for building the security sector in coordination with the reconfiguration of the Mission, detailing leadership, coordination, monitoring and resources, oversight mechanisms, early passage of the draft Police Act and further reform of the promotion and manpower policies, with a view to decentralizing the national security institutions, particularly the Liberia National Police;

7. Underscores the importance of the Government of Liberia, in coordination with the Mission, the United Nations country team and international partners, continuing to develop national security and rule of law institutions that are fully and independently operational, and to this end encourages accelerated coordinated progress on the development and implementation of the security and justice development plans and the national human rights action plan, urges the effective, transparent and efficient management by the Government of assistance, including from bilateral and multilateral partners, to support the reform of the justice and security sectors, and further urges the Government to redouble its efforts to register and track arms and related materiel used and imported by its security forces;

Sexual and gender-based violence

8. Expresses its continued concern that women and girls in Liberia continue to face a high incidence of sexual and gender-based violence, reiterates its call upon the Government of Liberia to continue to combat sexual violence, particularly against children, and gender-based violence, to aggressively combat impunity for perpetrators of such crimes, to provide redress, support and protection to victims, including through public information campaigns and by continuing to strengthen national police capacity in this area, and to raise awareness of existing national legislation on sexual violence, and encourages the Government to reinforce its commitment in this regard, including by funding the implementation of its national action plan on sexual and gender-based violence and improving women and girls' access to justice;

Mandate of the United Nations Mission in Liberia

9. Decides to extend the mandate of the Mission until 30 September 2015;

10. Also decides that the mandate of the Mission shall be the following, in priority order:

(a) Protection of civilians

To protect, without prejudice to the primary responsibility of the Liberian authorities, the civilian population from threat of physical violence, within its capabilities and areas of deployment;

(b) Humanitarian assistance support

- (i) To facilitate the provision of humanitarian assistance, including in collaboration with the Government of Liberia, and those supporting it, and by helping to establish the necessary security conditions;
- (ii) To coordinate with the United Nations Mission for Ebola Emergency Response, as appropriate;

(c) Reform of justice and security institutions

- (i) To assist the Government of Liberia in developing and implementing, as soon as possible and in close coordination with bilateral and multilateral partners, its national strategy on security sector reform;
- (ii) To advise the Government of Liberia on security sector reform and on the organization of the Liberia National Police and the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization to provide technical assistance, co-location and mentoring programmes for the National Police and the Bureau, with a particular focus on developing the leadership and internal management systems of the National Police and the Bureau, as well as for justice and corrections;
- (iii) To assist the Government of Liberia in extending national justice and security sector services throughout the country through capacity-building and training;
- (iv) To assist the Government of Liberia to coordinate these efforts with all partners, including bilateral and multilateral donors;

(d) Electoral support

To assist the Government of Liberia with the senatorial elections by providing logistical support, particularly to facilitate access to remote areas, coordinating international electoral assistance and supporting Liberian institutions and all Liberian stakeholders, including political parties, in creating an atmosphere conducive to the conduct of peaceful elections, including through UNMIL Radio;

(e) Human rights promotion and protection

- (i) To carry out human rights promotion, protection and monitoring activities in Liberia, with special attention to violations and abuses committed against children and women, notably sexual and gender-based violence;
- (ii) To support the strengthening of efforts by the Government of Liberia to combat sexual and gender-based violence, including its efforts to combat impunity for perpetrators of such crimes;

(f) Protection of United Nations personnel

To protect United Nations personnel, installations and equipment and ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel;

11. Further decides that the Mission, in accordance with paragraphs 4 to 6 and 10 (c) above, shall put renewed focus on supporting the Government of Liberia to achieve a successful transition of complete security responsibility to the Liberia National Police by strengthening its capacity to manage existing personnel and to improve training programmes to expedite their readiness to assume security responsibilities throughout Liberia;

12. Requests the Mission to ensure that any support provided to non-United Nations security forces is provided in strict compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Mission has the requisite qualified specialist advisers with the professional skills and experience appropriate to this transition phase in order to enhance mentoring with the aim of increasing the capacity of the Government of Liberia, particularly the Liberia National Police and the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization, to accelerate the implementation of sustainable rule of law, justice, governance and security sector reform programmes, including mechanisms to hold perpetrators of sexual and gender-based violence accountable;

14. States the importance of the Mission, within its capabilities and areas of deployment, and without prejudice to its mandate, continuing to assist the Government of Liberia, the Security Council Committee established pursuant to paragraph 21 of resolution 1521(2003) and the Panel of Experts on Liberia and to carry out its tasks in this regard, as set forth in previous resolutions, including resolution 1683(2006) of 13 June 2006;

Force structure

15. Decides that the authorized strength of the Mission shall remain at up to 4,811 military and 1,795 police personnel;

16. Recalls its endorsement, in its resolution 2066(2012), of the recommendation of the Secretary-General to decrease the military strength of the Mission in three phases between August 2012 and July 2015, and affirms its intention to resume the phased drawdown once it has been determined that Liberia has made significant progress in combating the Ebola outbreak, which represents a threat to the peace and stability of Liberia;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to provide an update no later than 15 March 2015 on the situation in Liberia, especially an assessment of the impact of the Ebola outbreak on the stability of Liberia and options for resuming the drawdown in line with the objective of completing the security transition as referred to in paragraph 5 above, and recognizes that the modalities for the resumption of the phased drawdown, referred to in paragraph 16 above, may require adjustments in the light of this update;

Regional and inter-mission cooperation

18. Recognizes that the Ebola outbreak has put on hold the joint activities between the Governments of Liberia and Côte d'Ivoire, as well as between the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, calls upon these Governments to continue reinforcing their cooperation, particularly with respect to the border area, including through increased monitoring, information-sharing, and coordinated actions, and in implementing the shared border strategy, inter alia, to support the disarmament and repatriation of armed elements on both sides of the border and the voluntary return of refugees in safety and dignity, as well as to address the root causes of conflict and tension, and in this regard calls upon all United Nations entities in Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia, including all relevant components of the Operation and the Mission, within their respective mandates, capabilities and areas of deployment, as well as the two United Nations country teams, where relevant and appropriate, to support the Ivorian and Liberian authorities;

19. Affirms the importance of inter-mission cooperation arrangements as the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire downsize, reaffirms the inter-mission cooperation framework set out in its resolution 1609(2005) of 24 June 2005, recalls its endorsement in its resolution 2062(2012) of 26 July 2012 of the recommendation of the Secretary-General to transfer three armed helicopters from the Mission to the Operation to be used in both Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia along and across their border, and also recalls its decision in its resolution 2162(2014) of 25 June 2014 that all military utility helicopters of the Operation and the Mission shall be utilized in both Côte d'Ivoire and Liberia in order to facilitate rapid response and mobility, while not affecting the area of responsibility of either mission;

20. Recalls the proposal by the Secretary-General as set out in his report of 15 May 2014, to establish, in the context of inter-mission cooperation arrangements between the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, for an initial period of one year and within the authorized military strength of the Operation, a quick reaction force to implement the mandate of the Operation and to support the Mission, while reiterating that this unit will remain primarily an asset of the Operation;

21. Also recalls its authorization, pursuant to its resolution 2162(2014), to the Secretary-General to deploy this unit to Liberia, subject to the consent of the troop-contributing countries concerned and the Government of Liberia, in the event of a serious deterioration of the security situation on the ground in order to temporarily reinforce the Mission with the sole purpose of implementing its mandate, and further recalls its requests to the Secretary-General to take steps to ensure that this unit reaches full operational capability as soon as possible, and no later than May 2015, and to inform the Council immediately of any deployment of this unit to Liberia and to obtain Council authorization for any such deployment for a period that exceeds 90 days;

Reports of the Secretary-General

22. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the Council regularly informed of the situation in Liberia and the implementation of the mandate of the Mission and to provide to it a midterm report no later than 30 April 2015 and a final report no later than 15 August 2015 on the situation on the ground and implementation of the present resolution;

23. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Financing

In June, the General Assembly considered the performance report on the UNMIL budget for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/621], showing a total expenditure of $496,400,200 gross ($485,958,500 net) against an appropriation of $496,405,000 gross ($486,673,000 net). The Assembly also had before it the proposed UNMIL budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 [A/68/761], which amounted to $433,483,200 gross ($424,485,600 net), together with the related ACABQ report [A/68/782/Add.16], which recommended a reduction of $282,000 in the proposed UNMIL budget for that period.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/927], adopted resolution 68/291 without vote [agenda item 157].

Financing of the United Nations Mission in Liberia

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1497(2003) of 1 August 2003, by which the Council declared its readiness to establish a United Nations stabilization force to support the transitional government and to assist in the implementation of a comprehensive peace agreement in Liberia,

Recalling also Security Council resolution 1509(2003) of 19 September 2003, by which the Council established the United Nations Mission in Liberia for a period of 12 months, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission, the latest of which was resolution 2116(2013) of 18 September 2013, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission until 30 September 2014,

Recalling further its resolution 58/315 of 1 July 2004,

Recalling its resolution 58/261 A of 23 December 2003 on the financing of the Mission and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/277 of 28 June 2013,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Mission,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Mission with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Mission in Liberia as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 40.2 million United States dollars, representing some 1 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 73 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Mission in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Stresses that the exceptional arrangement set out in paragraph 18 below does not set a precedent for the budgetary process and that it shall not have a negative impact on mandate delivery;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

11. Also requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Mission is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

12. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the Mission for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

13. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Mission in Liberia the amount of 460,613,200 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of 427,267,000 dollars for the maintenance of the Mission, 27,647,200 dollars for the support account for peacekeeping operations and 5,699,000 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy;

Financing of the appropriation

14. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 106,816,750 dollars for the period from 1 July to 30 September 2014 for the maintenance of the Mission, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

15. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 2,242,500 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission for the period from 1 July to 30 September 2014;

16. Further decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 27,647,200 dollars for the support account and the amount of 5,699,000 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014 and 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

17. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 16 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 2,264,000 dollars, for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, comprising the prorated share of 1,754,800 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 509,200 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

18. Also decides to apportion among Member States, without setting a precedent, the amount of 106,816,750 dollars for the period from 1 October to 31 December 2014 for the maintenance of the Mission, at a monthly rate of 35,605,583 dollars, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238, subject to a decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Mission;

19. Further decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 18 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 2,242,500 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission for the period from 1 October to 31 December 2014;

20. Decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Mission, there shall be set off against their apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 6,749,300 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2013, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

21. Also decides that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Mission, there shall be set off against their outstanding obligations their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 6,749,300 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 20 above;

22. Further decides that the increase of 709,700 dollars in the estimated staff assessment income in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013 shall be added to the credits in the amount of 6,749,300 dollars referred to in paragraphs 20 and 21 above;

23. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

24. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Mission under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

25. Invites voluntary contributions to the Mission in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

26. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Mission in Liberia".

Note by Secretary-General. In a 21 October note [A/69/545 & Corr.1] on financing arrangements for UNMIL for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, the Secretary-General said that the General Assembly had to assess the additional amount of $213,633,500 gross ($209,148,500 net) for the maintenance of UNMIL during the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015, taking into account the amount of $427,267,000 appropriated for the maintenance of UNMIL for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, and the amount of $213,633,550 already assessed for the maintenance of UNMIL for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014.

In December [A/69/627], ACABQ concluded that the Secretary-General's proposal did not constitute a revised budget and, taking into account the provisions of General Assembly resolution 68/291, it was up to the Assembly to make a determination as to the required level of assessment for UNMIL for the financial period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 December [meeting 77], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/69/682], adopted resolution 69/259 without vote [agenda item 159].

Financing of the United Nations Mission in Liberia

The General Assembly,

Having considered the note by the Secretary-General on the financing arrangements for the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2190(2014) of 15 December 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission until 30 September 2015,

Recalling also its resolution 58/261 A of 23 December 2003 on the financing of the Mission and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 68/291 of 30 June 2014,

1. Decides, taking into account the amount of 213,633,500 United States dollars already apportioned among Member States under the terms of its resolution 68/291 for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014, to apportion among Member States the amount of 213,633,500 dollars for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015 for the maintenance of the United Nations Mission in Liberia, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

2. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 1 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 4,485,000 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015;

3. Further decides to keep under review during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Mission in Liberia".

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on the financing of UNMIL to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Sierra Leone

The closure in March of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone (UNIPSIL) marked the successful conclusion of over 15 years of successive UN peace operations in Sierra Leone. The residual responsibilities of UNIPSIL were transferred to the UN country team at a time when national institutions were assuming greater responsibility and ownership for the country's peacebuilding and development agenda.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (March). Pursuant to Security Council resolutions 2065(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 156] and 2097(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 180], the Secretary-General submitted in March the final report [S/2014/192] on the activities of UNIPSIL and major developments in Sierra Leone. The report took stock of the overall implementation of the UNIPSIL mandate since the establishment of the mission in 2008 and provided an assessment of the remaining challenges facing Sierra Leone after drawdown.

The President of Sierra Leone, Ernest Bai Koroma, continued his outreach efforts to promote political dialogue. On 8 January, he met with leaders of the 10 registered political parties in the country and reiterated his pledge that he would not seek re-election at the end of his second five-year term. All parties recognized the need for multiparty talks to reduce political tensions and build consensus on critical issues of national interest. It was agreed that regular consultations among political parties would be held both in Freetown and in the regions. In spite of global economic uncertainties, the economy of Sierra Leone had remained resilient and relatively stable. The economy grew by 15.2 per cent in 2012, mainly owing to the revival of the iron ore industry, and achieved the projected growth rate for 2013 of 13.3 per cent.

In accordance with its transition and exit strategy, UNIPSIL had continued to carry out its liquidation plan and to hand over residual tasks to the UN country team. All four regional offices were closed by December 2013. Two of the regional offices were taken over by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the United Nations Children's Fund, thereby enabling a continued UN presence in the field.

The Secretary-General noted that Sierra Leoneans lived at peace with one another and generally felt free and that it was safe to travel to any part of the country without fear. The recognition of and respect for freedom of association and opinion had resulted in the establishment of a number of active political parties, civil society organizations, media outlets and professional associations. Notwithstanding those achievements, challenges linked to the root causes of the conflict continued to require attention, including the high poverty rate, corruption, youth unemployment, mutual distrust between the All People's Congress and the Sierra Leone People's Party (the two main political parties that had alternated in power since independence in 1961), election-related tensions, and perceived ethnic and regional imbalances and political exclusion. The enormous economic opportunities created as a result of the discovery and exploitation of vast mineral resources had to be managed if the country's development aspirations were to be realized and if all Sierra Leoneans were to experience tangible improvements in their standard of living.

Communication. In a 24 March letter to the Security Council President [S/2014/211], the Chair of the Sierra Leone configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission shared his report on his visit to Sierra Leone from 25 to 28 February. The trip provided an opportunity to take stock of the progress on peacebuilding, particularly in the light of the impending withdrawal of UNIPSIL. The report was made available to Security Council members only.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 26 March [meeting 7148], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/6 on behalf of the Council:

As the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone completes its mandate on 31 March 2014, the Security Council commends the remarkable achievements made by Sierra Leone over the past decade as well as its contribution to important regional and global initiatives. The Council further commends the effectiveness of the approach of the United Nations, international financial institutions, regional and subregional bodies and the broader international community to peacebuilding in Sierra Leone.

The Council welcomes the considerable progress that has been made by Sierra Leone in strengthening institutional and human resources capacities of State institutions, including in the security, justice and governance sectors, which play crucial roles in safeguarding stability and promoting democracy.

The Council also welcomes the successful presidential and parliamentary elections conducted in 2012, which have helped to consolidate Sierra Leone's democratic institutions.

The Council recognizes the important contribution of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office in promoting peace, stability and development in Sierra Leone, particularly during the 2012 electoral process. The Council expresses its appreciation for the efforts of the mission and the United Nations country team, under the leadership of the Executive Representatives of the Secretary-General for Sierra Leone.

The Council underscores the importance of continued support to Sierra Leone as it embarks on the next stage of its development, beyond the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, including the constitutional review process, and notes the willingness of the United Nations and bilateral and multilateral partners to continue, as requested by the Sierra Leonean authorities, to play a significant role in this regard. In addition, the Council urges the international community and development partners to continue to provide coordinated and coherent support to Sierra Leone to meet its peacebuilding and development priorities.

The Council stresses that there is important work ahead to further embed peace and secure equitable prosperity for the benefit of all Sierra Leoneans. The Council welcomes the adoption by the Government of Sierra Leone of the Agenda for Prosperity covering the period from 2013 to 2018 and notes the importance of the implementation of this programme in accordance with the mutual accountability framework agreed between the Government of Sierra Leone and Sierra Leone's Development Partners Committee in March 2013.

The Council reaffirms the important potential role of extractive industries in the economic development of Sierra Leone, and encourages the Government of Sierra Leone and international partners to strengthen protection of workers' rights and national capacities for transparent regulation, oversight and revenue collection from such industries, as well as to address issues of land ownership with a view to establishing mutually beneficial arrangements for local communities and the private sector, and calls upon the Government to tackle corruption.

The Council stresses the importance for Sierra Leone's long-term stability of ensuring a peaceful, credible and transparent electoral process in 2017.

The Council reiterates its request in its resolution 2097(2013) that the United Nations Office for West Africa make available its good offices to support the Government of Sierra Leone and the new United Nations Resident Coordinator as necessary.

The Council welcomes the work of the Sierra Leone configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission. The Council recalls its request in resolution 2097(2013) for the Commission to review its engagement with a view to scaling down its role and welcomes the Commission's shift to a lighter form of engagement for a transitional period over the next 12 months, as outlined in its report to the Council. The Council requests that Sierra Leone contribute to the work of the Commission to gather lessons learned and best practices.

The Council congratulates the Special Court for Sierra Leone on the completion of its mandate, recalls the strong support it expressed for the Residual Special Court for Sierra Leone as it commences its functioning, and reiterates its call in resolution 2097(2013) for Member States to contribute generously.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 15 September letter [S/2014/669] to the President of the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted a joint letter from Alpha Condé, the President of Guinea; Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, the President of Liberia; and Ernest Bai Koroma, the President of Sierra Leone, requesting a UN resolution for a coordinated international response to end the Ebola outbreak.

(For more information on the United Nations response to the Ebola virus disease outbreak in West Africa, see PART THREE, Chapter XIII.)

UNIPSIL

The United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone (UNIPSIL) was established by Security Council resolution 1829(2008) [YUN 2008, p. 215] as the successor mission to the United Nations Integrated Office in Sierra Leone, with a mandate focused on strengthening governmental capacities, including assisting the Government in providing support to national and local efforts for identifying and resolving threats of conflict; monitoring and promoting human rights, democratic institutions and the rule of law; consolidating good governance reforms, with a focus on anti-corruption efforts; strengthening the Parliament and key governance institutions; and coordinating strategy among UN agencies in Sierra Leone. In resolution 1886(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 210], the Council emphasized the importance of UNIPSIL in supporting the Government in constitutional reform; building police capacity; tackling corruption, illicit drug trafficking and organized crime; addressing youth unemployment; supporting preparations for the 2012 elections; and assisting the work of the Peacebuilding Commission. Jens Anders Toyberg-Frandzen (Denmark) served as the Executive Representative to Sierra Leone and Head of UNIPSIL. By resolution 2097(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 180], the Security Council extended the mandate of UNIPSIL for a final period ending on 31 March 2014, in order to complete its mandate and transfer its responsibilities to the UN country team.

Guinea-Bissau

There was a return to constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau in 2014 with the holding of peaceful and transparent legislative and presidential elections in April and May. José Mário Vaz of the African Party for the Independence of Guinea and Cabo Verde (PAIGC) was sworn in as President of Guinea-Bissau in June. Some 102 newly elected parliamentarians were also sworn in. The African Union (AU) lifted the suspension of Guinea-Bissau, paving the way for the country to participate in that organization again. The socio-economic and humanitarian situation in the country remained fragile, with the second quarter of 2014 marked by trade union protests and strikes. In November, the National Assembly took two important decisions aimed at implementing its reform programme. First, it elected an Inspector-General for the Fight against Corruption, sending a positive signal that the Government was determined to tackle corruption; and secondly, it adopted a resolution reactivating the ad hoc Commission for Constitutional Review established in 2010.

During the year, the mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau (UNIOGBIS) was extended twice by the Security Council, by resolution 2157(2014) (see p. 276) until 30 November and by resolution 2186(2014) (see p. 279) until 28 February 2015.

Political and security developments

Restoration of constitutional order

Reports of Secretary-General (February and May). Pursuant to Security Council resolutions 2048(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 160] and 2103(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 186], the Secretary-General submitted reports in February [S/2014/105] and May [S/2014/332] on the restoration of constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau, and on the humanitarian situation in the country.

The political landscape during the first months of the year was dominated by preparations for the general elections, the continuing political crisis within the African Party for the Independence of Guinea and Cabo Verde (PAIGC) and the investigation into the circumstances surrounding the arrival in and departure from Bissau of 74 individuals allegedly of Syrian nationality.

No significant progress was made in the areas of human rights protection and the fight against impunity. There were new cases of political harassment of former and current members of the Transitional Government and a widespread sense of insecurity and impunity. Restrictions on the right to the freedom of expression and assembly, imposed since the coup d'état of 2012, remained in force.

During meetings convened on 4 and 5 January by the Transitional President with various national and international stakeholders to discuss the voter registration process, the Transitional Government announced that the voter registration period would be extended until 30 January. By then the process had gained enough momentum for the Technical Office for Support to the Electoral Process to announce on 30 January the registration of 677,114 voters, 12,349 of whom were part of the diaspora. The voter registration process concluded on 10 February.

On 21 February, the Transitional President, Manuel Serifo Nhamadjo, issued a presidential decree announcing that the general elections would take place on 13 April. On 3 March, the Transitional President announced publicly that he would not contest the presidential election. The announcement put an end to controversy over his possible candidacy, which had been prohibited under the transitional political pact of May 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 164]. On 6 March, the National Assembly held an extraordinary session to ratify the new electoral timelines proposed by the Transitional President.

On 13 April, the elections were held as scheduled. The candidate of the African Party for the Independence of Guinea and Cabo Verde, José Mário Vaz, obtained 40.98 per cent of the votes, while the independent candidate, Nuno Gomes Nabiam, obtained 25.14 per cent of the votes. In accordance with the electoral laws, since no candidate had obtained at least 50 per cent plus one vote, a run-off election was scheduled for 18 May.

UNIOGBIS

In a May report [S/2014/333] submitted pursuant to Security Council resolution 2103(2013), the Secretary-General provided information on the status of implementation of the mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau (UNIOGBIS). The Office assisted national stakeholders in preparing for the conduct of presidential and legislative elections, which had taken place on 13 April. The Mission also supported the Ministries of Interior and Defence of the Transitional Government in developing the national electoral security plan for 2014, which allowed for the two Ministries to jointly command and oversee police and military personnel. In February, UNIOGBIS implemented the first phase of a training programme on electoral security for 62 police officers from the Public Order Police and the National Guard. In March and April, UNIOGBIS completed the second and third phases of the training, which targeted 1,283 police officers in all regions of the country, with the support of the Peacebuilding Fund under the Immediate Response Facility. Joint efforts by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) and UNIOGBIS contributed to ensuring the functioning of the Transnational Crime Unit and enhanced capacity-building across the regions of the country.

The Secretary-General recommended that the mandate of UNIOGBIS be renewed for another year, until 31 May 2015, to enable the Office to support the efforts of the new Government as it settled into office and commenced the complex task of rebuilding State institutions. The Secretary-General also recommended that a comprehensive review of the mandate of UNIOGBIS be conducted in early 2015, prior to its expiration, to ensure that it was aligned with the priorities identified by the new Government and effectively streamlined with the programmes being implemented by other international partners.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 May [meeting 7187], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2157(2014). The draft [S/2014/374] was submitted by Chad, Nigeria and Rwanda:

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions, the statements by its President and its statements to the press on the situation in Guinea-Bissau, in particular resolutions 1876(2009) of 26 June 2009, 2030(2011) of 21 December 2011, 2048(2012) of 18 May 2012, 2092(2013) of 22 February 2013 and 2103(2013) of 22 May 2013,

Taking note of the reports of the Secretary-General of 12 May 2014 on Guinea-Bissau and the recommendations contained therein, and commending the engagement of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Guinea-Bissau and Head of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau,

Welcoming the successful holding of presidential and legislative elections in Guinea-Bissau, and congratulating the people of Guinea-Bissau who participated in the election in record numbers, which showed their strong commitment to democracy,

Emphasizing the need for respect of democratic principles, and stressing the importance of inclusive governance, essential for the attainment of lasting peace in Guinea-Bissau,

Stressing that the consolidation of peace and stability in Guinea-Bissau can result only from a consensual, inclusive and nationally owned transition process, the restoration of and respect for constitutional order, the reforms in the defence, security and justice sectors, the promotion of the rule of law, the protection of human rights, the promotion of socioeconomic development and the fight against impunity and drug trafficking,

Stressing also that all stakeholders in Guinea-Bissau should work to ensure short-, medium- and long-term stability through clear commitment and genuine inclusive political dialogue aimed at creating conditions conducive to finding viable and sustainable solutions to the country's social, economic, political and military problems, which would facilitate the implementation of key reforms and the strengthening of State institutions,

Expressing concern at the lack of effective civilian control and oversight over the defence and security forces, which hampers the political process and effective functioning of State institutions, as a result of collusion between some political actors and the military leadership,

Commending the efforts of the Economic Community of West African States to create the conditions for free and fair elections and democratic process and to support the security sector reform process in Guinea-Bissau, namely through the activities of its Mission in Guinea-Bissau,

Reiterating its serious concern about reports of continuing serious violations and abuses of human rights, as well as the atmosphere of residual political tension in Guinea-Bissau, and condemning restrictions on freedom of expression and freedom of assembly and of the press,

Reiterating its deep concern at the threat that drug trafficking poses to stability, and re-emphasizing the need to tackle the problem of drug trafficking in the countries of origin, transit and final destination through an approach of common and shared responsibility,

Underlining that any lasting solution to instability in Guinea-Bissau should include concrete actions to fight impunity and ensure that those responsible for politically motivated assassinations and other serious crimes such as drug trafficking-related activities and breaches of constitutional order are brought to justice, including through transitional justice mechanisms,

Reiterating the importance of the continued support of the United Nations and international, regional, sub-regional and bilateral partners for the long-term security and development of Guinea-Bissau, particularly towards the implementation of security and justice sector reforms, the fight against drug trafficking, organized crime and human trafficking, as well as the creation of an enabling environment for good governance and inclusive and sustainable social and economic development,

Commending the important work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in collaboration with relevant United Nations entities in the fight against drug trafficking and transnational organized crime in Guinea-Bissau and the subregion, and encouraging enhanced cooperation between the Office and the Integrated Peacebuilding Office,

Stressing the urgent need to maintain in Guinea-Bissau continuous evaluation capacity and to continue to support national, subregional, regional and international institutions in charge of the fight against drug trafficking,

Stressing also the need for increased coherence, coordination and efficiency among relevant partners to enhance their collective efforts towards combating drug trafficking in Guinea-Bissau, in particular through the sharing of information,

Emphasizing the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding, as recognized in resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009 and 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, welcoming the mission's work to increase women's participation in Guinea-Bissau, and underlining that a gender perspective must continue to inform the implementation of all relevant aspects of the mandate of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office,

Condemning cases of illegal and unauthorized fishing in Guinea-Bissau's territorial waters and exclusive economic zone, as well as illegal exploitation of natural resources, which undermines prospects for the economic development of the country,

Reaffirming that Guinea-Bissau's partners should continue to actively and closely coordinate their actions to help to bring solutions to the country's political, security and development challenges, and in this regard welcoming the efforts made by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to convene an international donor conference in close consultation with international, regional and sub-regional development partners in order to mobilize resources for the country's development priorities, including the implementation of the governance efficacy amelioration programme,

Taking note of the statement made by the Chair of the Guinea-Bissau configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission on 19 May 2014 with regard to the determination of the Commission to re-engage with Guinea-Bissau,

Recognizing the need for the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to support national efforts to fully restore and maintain constitutional order and to promote a multi-layered national dialogue in the post-election period,

Reaffirming its full commitment to the consolidation of peace and stability in Guinea-Bissau,

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau, as follows, for a period of six months beginning on 1 June 2014 until 30 November 2014:

(a) Supporting an inclusive political dialogue and national reconciliation process to facilitate democratic governance;

(b) Assisting in strengthening democratic institutions and enhancing the capacity of State organs to function effectively and constitutionally;

(c) Providing strategic and technical advice and support for the establishment of effective and efficient law enforcement and criminal justice and penitentiary systems, capable of maintaining public security and combating impunity, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms;

(d) Providing strategic and technical advice and support to national authorities and relevant stakeholders, including in coordination with the Economic Community of West African States and its Mission in Guinea-Bissau, in implementing the national security sector reform and rule of law strategies, as well as developing civilian and military justice systems that are compliant with international standards;

(e) Assisting national authorities to combat drug trafficking and transnational organized crime, in close cooperation with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime;

(f) Assisting national authorities in the promotion and protection of human rights as well as undertaking human rights monitoring and reporting activities;

(g) Mainstreaming a gender perspective into peacebuilding, in line with Security Council resolutions 1325(2000) and 1820(2008);

(h) Working with the Peacebuilding Commission in support of Guinea-Bissau's peacebuilding priorities;

(i) Contributing to the mobilization, harmonization and coordination of international assistance, including for the implementation of the national security sector reform and rule of law strategies, and enhancing cooperation with the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States, the Community of Portuguese-speaking Countries, the European Union and other partners in support of the restoration and maintenance of constitutional order and the stabilization of Guinea-Bissau;

2. Reiterates its demand to the security and defence services to submit themselves fully to civilian control;

3. Condemns the violations and abuses of human rights, including political and civil rights, urges the authorities of Guinea-Bissau to take all measures necessary to protect human rights, put an end to impunity, initiate investigations to identify the perpetrators of such acts and bring them to justice and take action to protect witnesses in order to ensure due process, and also urges them to take steps to mitigate the climate of fear resulting from restrictions on freedom of expression and freedom of assembly;

4. Welcomes the joint efforts by international partners, in particular the United Nations, the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States, the European Union and the Community of Portuguese-speaking Countries, to enhance cooperation in support of the legitimate democratic Government in Guinea-Bissau, and encourages them to continue to work together towards the stabilization of the country;

5. Encourages the efforts in support of security sector reform as a crucial element for long-term stability in Guinea-Bissau, and encourages coordinated action by all relevant subregional, regional and international partners of Guinea-Bissau in this field in order to obtain expeditious and positive results;

6. Calls upon the authorities of Guinea-Bissau to review, adopt and implement national legislation and mechanisms to more effectively combat transnational organized crime, in particular drug trafficking and money-laundering and, in this context, to provide additional support to the Transnational Crime Unit established under the West Africa Coast Initiative, and urges both the authorities of Guinea-Bissau and its security and defence services to demonstrate full commitment to combating drug trafficking, and calls upon international partners to support their efforts;

7. Encourages members of the international community to enhance cooperation with Guinea-Bissau in order to enable it to ensure control of air traffic and surveillance of maritime security within its jurisdiction, in particular to fight drug trafficking and organized crime, as well as illegal fishing in Guinea-Bissau's territorial waters and exclusive economic zone and other cases of illegal exploitation of natural resources;

8. Requests the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Guinea-Bissau to increase efforts to achieve greater coherence, coordination and efficiency among relevant United Nations agencies, funds and programmes in Guinea-Bissau to maximize their collective effectiveness towards combating drug trafficking, in particular through provision by these agencies, funds and programmes of relevant information to the Special Representative on individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with drug trafficking that contribute to creating a threat to the peace, stability and security of Guinea-Bissau and the subregion;

9. Invites the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to share all relevant information with the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2048(2012), particularly names of individuals who meet the criteria set forth in paragraph 6 and elaborated upon in paragraph 7 of resolution 2048(2012);

10. Stresses the challenges posed by the fight against drug trafficking in the search for solutions to the overall political and economic crisis in Guinea-Bissau, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure the relevant capacity within the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, by continuing to provide an anti-drug component, including appropriate expertise;

11. Encourages international bilateral and multilateral partners to continue their technical support to Guinea-

Bissau in strengthening efforts to tackle transnational organized crime, including illicit activities such as money-laundering and drug trafficking, calls upon them to increase their support to the West Africa Coast Initiative and the Transnational Crime Unit to fight transnational organized crime and drug trafficking, which threaten security and stability in Guinea-Bissau and in the subregion, and further encourages them to contribute to support the presence of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in Guinea-Bissau and to the Integrated Peacebuilding Office trust fund for immediate, medium- and longer-term priorities, including for post-election reforms;

12. Strongly emphasizes the importance of the convening of an international pledging conference on the recovery of Guinea-Bissau;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to conduct a comprehensive review of the mandate of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, to ensure that it is aligned with the priorities identified by the legitimate democratic Government and to report the findings of such review by 30 October 2014;

14. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 21 July letter [S/2014/528] to the Security Council President, the Secretary-General requested a three-month extension, beyond 30 October, for the submission of a comprehensive review of the mandate of UNIOGBIS to ensure that it was aligned with the priorities identified by the Government, as requested by the Council in resolution 2157(2014) (see p. 276). The Council took note of the Secretary-General's letter on 23 July [S/2014/529], in turn requesting a written update by 12 November, which the Council could consider prior to the expiration of the mandate of UNIOGBIS on 30 November.

Further developments

Report of Secretary-General (August). Pursuant to Security Council resolutions 2048(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 160] and 2103(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 186], the Secretary-General submitted an August report [S/2014/603] on the restoration of constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau, and on the humanitarian situation in the country.

On 18 May, the second round of the presidential election was conducted in a peaceful manner with no reports of major technical or logistical shortcomings.

Mr. Vaz of PAIGC obtained 61.9 per cent of the vote in the run-off election, while Mr. Nabiam, the independent candidate, received 38.1 per cent. On 23 June, Mr. Vaz was sworn in as the new President of Guinea-Bissau. Following talks with all political parties represented in Parliament, President Vaz appointed Domingos Simões Pereira, the President of PAIGC, as the new Prime Minister on 25 June.

There was no significant progress made towards human rights protection and greater accountability for previous human rights violations in the country.

On 17 June, the AU lifted the suspension of Guinea-Bissau from the activities of the organization, paving the way for the country to participate in the 23rd ordinary session of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the AU, which was held in Malabo, Equatorial Guinea, from 20 to 27 June. And on 14 July, the Council of the European Union issued a statement announcing the suspension of measures limiting the European Union's cooperation with Guinea-Bissau following the holding of "free and credible" elections.

The socioeconomic and humanitarian situation in the country remained fragile. The weak capacities of the Government for fiscal revenue collection, in conjunction with the extended suspension of budgetary support by Guinea-Bissau's development partners, significantly affected the State's ability to meet its basic obligations, including the delivery of social services. Concerning the Ebola virus disease outbreak in neighbouring Guinea, no cases of the Ebola virus were reported in Guinea-Bissau.

The Secretary-General observed that the high voter turnout in the second round of the presidential election, as well as the peaceful and orderly conduct of the poll, demonstrated the determination of the people of Guinea-Bissau to restore constitutional order to their country. The August report was the final update by the Secretary-General on the restoration of constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau (see below).

Letters of Secretary-General. In a 13 August letter [S/2014/600] to the Security Council, the Secretary-General noted that, in the light of the successful return to constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau, which was the main target set by the Security Council in its resolution 2048(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 160], he recommended for the consideration of the Council that his report in August (see above) be the last one. Any future updates on the remaining elements of resolution 2048(2012), as well as on broader issues relevant to the consolidation of constitutional order, would be provided every six months in his regular reports on UNIOGBIS, while oral briefings to the Security Council would continue to be provided, as and when required. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's letter on 15 August [S/2014/601].

By an 11 November letter [S/2014/805] to the Security Council, the Secretary-General provided a written update on the situation in Guinea-Bissau for the consideration of the Council before the expiration of the mandate of UNIOGBIS on 30 November. The situation in the country was characterized by intense activities on the part of the newly elected Government to identify its priorities, plan for an international donor round table and put in place measures to ensure stability.

The security situation remained stable. On 15 September, President Vaz issued a decree to dismiss the Chief of General Staff of the Armed Forces, General António Indjai. On 17 September, the President promoted Brigadier Biaguê Na N'tan to the rank of General and appointed him as the successor to General Indjai. On 30 September, the President issued a decree to grant pardons to six individuals who had been convicted by the Supreme Military Court of Guinea-Bissau in connection with an incident involving the airborne regiment located at the Bissalanca air force base in Bissau on 21 October 2012. He said that the pardons had been granted in the context of promoting national unity and reconciliation.

UNIOGBIS and the UN country team had been supporting efforts by the Government and civil society organizations to prepare for the second universal periodic review of Guinea-Bissau by the Human Rights Council, scheduled for January 2015. The authorities, assisted by the World Health Organization and the United Nations Children's Fund and other international partners, worked to prevent the spread of Ebola to the country.

The Secretary-General noted that he had deployed a multidisciplinary strategic assessment mission to Guinea-Bissau from 3 to 14 November (see p. 281). He therefore recommended that the Council consider technically rolling over the mandate of UNIOGBIS for a period of three months, until 28 February 2015.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 November [meeting 7321], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2186(2014). The draft [S/2014/842] was submitted by Chad, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions, the statements by its President and its statements to the press on the situation in Guinea-Bissau, in particular resolutions 1876(2009) of 26 June 2009, 2030(2011) of 21 December 2011, 2048(2012) of 18 May 2012, 2092(2013) of 22 February 2013, 2103(2013) of 22 May 2013 and 2157(2014) of 29 May 2014,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 18 August 2014 on Guinea-Bissau and his letter dated 11 November 2014 to the President of the Security Council and the recommendations contained therein, and commending the engagement of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Guinea-Bissau and Head of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau,

Welcoming the progress made by the Government of Guinea-Bissau in determining its national priorities following the return to constitutional order,

Emphasizing the need for respect of democratic principles, and stressing the importance of inclusive governance, essential for the attainment of lasting peace in Guinea-Bissau,

Stressing that the consolidation of peace and stability in Guinea-Bissau can result only from a consensual, inclusive and nationally owned process, respect for constitutional order, the reforms in the defence, security and justice sectors, the promotion of the rule of law, the protection of human rights, the promotion of socioeconomic development and the fight against impunity and drug trafficking,

Stressing also that all stakeholders should work to ensure short-, medium- and long-term stability through clear commitment and genuine inclusive political dialogue aimed at creating conditions conducive to finding viable and sustainable solutions to the country's social, economic, political and military problems, which would facilitate the implementation of key reforms and the strengthening of State institutions,

Emphasizing the importance of pursuing a national reconciliation and social cohesion strategy, and underlining the importance of including all Bissau-Guineans in the reconciliation process at the national and local levels, while upholding justice and the rule of law and combating impunity,

Noting efforts of the Government of Guinea-Bissau to gain effective civilian control and oversight over the defence and security forces, as failure to do so could adversely affect the effective functioning of State institutions, as a result of collusion between some political actors and the military leadership,

Commending the efforts of the Economic Community of West African States in helping to sustain peace, security and development and to support the security sector reform process in Guinea-Bissau, namely through the activities of its Mission in Guinea-Bissau,

Taking note of the desire of the new authorities of Guinea-Bissau to maintain the presence of the Mission on the ground to support the implementation of reforms and to build up confidence among international partners,

Reiterating its concern about reports of continuing violations and abuses of human rights, and calling upon the Government of Guinea-Bissau to conduct transparent and credible investigations into all alleged human rights violations and abuses, in accordance with international standards, and to hold those responsible accountable for their actions,

Reiterating its deep concern at the threat that drug trafficking poses to stability, and re-emphasizing the need to tackle the problem of drug trafficking in the countries of origin, transit and final destination through an approach of common and shared responsibility,

Underlining that any lasting solution to instability in Guinea-Bissau should include concrete actions to fight impunity and ensure that those responsible for politically motivated assassinations and other serious crimes such as breaches of constitutional order and drug trafficking-related activities are brought to justice, including through national judicial mechanisms,

Welcoming, in this regard, the efforts of the Government of Guinea-Bissau to update the three-year national plan for combating drug trafficking and organized crime, prepared in June 2011, and to define new priority areas accordingly,

Reiterating the importance of the continued support of the United Nations and international, regional, subregional, and bilateral partners for the long-term security and development of Guinea-Bissau, particularly towards the implementation of security and justice sector reforms, the fight against drug trafficking, organized crime and human trafficking, as well as the creation of an enabling environment for good governance and inclusive and sustainable social and economic development,

Commending the important work of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in collaboration with relevant United Nations entities in the fight against drug trafficking and transnational organized crime in Guinea-Bissau and the subregion, and encouraging enhanced cooperation between the Office and the Integrated Peacebuilding Office,

Stressing the urgent need to maintain in Guinea-Bissau continuous evaluation capacity and to continue to support national, subregional, regional and international institutions in charge of the fight against drug trafficking,

Stressing also the need for increased coherence, coordination and efficiency among relevant partners to enhance their collective efforts toward combating drug trafficking in Guinea-Bissau, in particular through the sharing of information,

Emphasizing the important role of women in the prevention and resolution of conflicts and in peacebuilding, as recognized in resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013, welcoming the mission's work to increase women's participation in Guinea-Bissau, and underlining that a gender perspective must continue to inform the implementation of all relevant aspects of the mandate of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office,

Condemning cases of illegal and unauthorized fishing in Guinea-Bissau's territorial waters and exclusive economic zone, as well as illegal exploitation of natural resources, which undermines prospects for the economic development of the country,

Reaffirming that Guinea-Bissau's partners should continue to actively and closely coordinate their actions to help to bring solutions to the country's political, security and development challenges, and in this regard welcoming the efforts made by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to convene an international donor conference in close consultation with international, regional and subregional development partners in order to mobilize resources for the country's development priorities, including the Government of Guinea-Bissau's 2014–2018 programme containing immediate and long-term priorities for the country,

Taking note of the statement made by the Chair of the Guinea-Bissau configuration of the Peacebuilding Commission on 18 November 2014, and welcoming the engagement of the Commission with Guinea-Bissau,

Welcoming the reactivation of the International Contact Group on Guinea-Bissau and its 10th meeting, held on 18 November 2014,

Recognizing the need for the Integrated Peacebuilding Office to support national efforts to maintain constitutional order and to promote a multi-layered national dialogue towards peace and reconciliation,

Reaffirming the importance of preparedness by all Member States to detect, prevent, respond to, isolate and mitigate suspected cases of Ebola within and across borders, and recalling the International Health Regulations (2005), which aim to improve the capacity of all countries to detect, assess, notify and respond to public health threats,

Reaffirming its full commitment to the consolidation of peace and stability in Guinea-Bissau,

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau for a period of three months beginning on 1 December 2014 until 28 February 2015, to perform the following tasks:

(a) Supporting an inclusive political dialogue and national reconciliation process to facilitate democratic governance;

(b) Assisting in strengthening democratic institutions and enhancing the capacity of State organs to function effectively and constitutionally;

(c) Providing strategic and technical advice and support for the establishment of effective and efficient law enforcement and criminal justice and penitentiary systems, capable of maintaining public security and combating impunity, while respecting human rights and fundamental freedoms;

(d) Providing strategic and technical advice and support to national authorities and relevant stakeholders, including in coordination with the Economic Community of West African States and its Mission in Guinea-Bissau, in implementing the national security sector reform and rule of law strategies, as well as developing civilian and military justice systems that are compliant with international standards;

(e) Assisting national authorities to combat drug trafficking and transnational organized crime, in close cooperation with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime;

(f) Assisting national authorities in the promotion and protection of human rights as well as undertaking human rights monitoring and reporting activities;

(g) Mainstreaming a gender perspective into peacebuilding, in line with Security Council resolutions 1325(2000) and 1820(2008);

(h) Working with the Peacebuilding Commission in support of Guinea-Bissau's peacebuilding priorities;

(i) Contributing to the mobilization, harmonization and coordination of international assistance, including for the implementation of the national security sector reform and rule of law strategies, and enhancing cooperation with the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States, the Community of Portuguese-speaking Countries, the European Union and other partners in support of the maintenance of constitutional order and the stabilization of Guinea-Bissau;

2. Reiterates its demand to the security and defence services to submit themselves fully to civilian control;

3. Urges the authorities of Guinea-Bissau to take all measures necessary to protect human rights, put an end to impunity, initiate investigations to identify the perpetrators of human rights violations and abuses and bring them to justice and take action to protect witnesses in order to ensure due process;

4. Welcomes the joint efforts by international partners, in particular the United Nations, the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States, the European Union and the Community of Portuguese-speaking Countries, to enhance cooperation in support of the legitimate democratic Government in Guinea-Bissau, and encourages them to continue to work together towards the stabilization of the country;

5. Encourages the efforts in support of security sector reform as a crucial element for long-term stability in Guinea-Bissau, and encourages coordinated action by all relevant subregional, regional and international partners of Guinea-Bissau in this field in order to obtain expeditious and positive results;

6. Calls upon the authorities of Guinea-Bissau to review, adopt and implement national legislation and mechanisms to more effectively combat transnational organized crime, in particular drug trafficking and money-laundering, and in this context to provide additional support to the Transnational Crime Unit established under the West Africa Coast Initiative, and urges both the authorities of Guinea-Bissau and its security and defence services to demonstrate full commitment to combating drug trafficking, and calls upon international partners to support their efforts;

7. Encourages members of the international community to enhance cooperation with Guinea-Bissau in order to enable it to ensure control of air traffic and surveillance of maritime security within its jurisdiction, in particular to fight drug trafficking and organized crime, as well as illegal fishing in Guinea-Bissau's territorial waters and exclusive economic zone and other cases of illegal exploitation of natural resources;

8. Requests the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Guinea-Bissau to increase efforts to achieve greater coherence, coordination and efficiency among relevant United Nations agencies, funds and programmes in Guinea-Bissau to maximize their collective effectiveness towards combating drug trafficking, in particular through the provision by these agencies, funds and programmes of relevant information to the Special Representative on individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with drug trafficking that contribute to creating a threat to the peace, stability and security of Guinea-Bissau and the subregion;

9. Invites the Special Representative to share all relevant information with the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2048(2012), particularly names of individuals who meet the criteria set forth in paragraph 6 and elaborated upon in paragraph 7 of resolution 2048(2012);

10. Stresses the challenges posed by the fight against drug trafficking in the search for solutions to the overall political and economic crisis in Guinea-Bissau, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure the relevant capacity within the Integrated Peacebuilding Office, by continuing to provide an anti-drug component, including appropriate expertise;

11. Encourages international bilateral and multilateral partners to continue their technical support to Guinea-Bissau in strengthening efforts to tackle transnational organized crime, including illicit activities such as money-laundering and drug trafficking, calls upon them to increase their support to the West Africa Coast Initiative and the Transnational Crime Unit to fight transnational organized crime and drug trafficking, which threaten security and stability in Guinea-Bissau and in the subregion, and further encourages them to contribute to support the presence of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in Guinea-Bissau and to the Integrated Peacebuilding Office trust fund for immediate, medium- and longer-term priorities, including for post-election reforms;

12. Welcomes the intention of the authorities of Guinea-Bissau to convene an international donor conference in Brussels in February 2015, and encourages participation by Member States;

13. Urges Guinea-Bissau to implement relevant temporary recommendations issued under the International Health Regulations (2005) regarding the 2014 Ebola outbreak in West Africa, and to lead the organization, coordination and implementation of national preparedness and response activities, including, as appropriate, in collaboration with international development and humanitarian partners, including the Integrated Peacebuilding Office within its existing mandate;

14. Looks forward to the findings and recommendations of the strategic assessment mission to be included in the report of the Secretary-General in January 2015, with a view toward the consideration of such recommendations for appropriate adjustment to the mandate of the Integrated Peacebuilding Office;

15. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/37], the Secretary-General submitted the findings of a strategic assessment mission he deployed to Guinea-Bissau from 3 to 14 November to conduct a comprehensive review of the mandate of UNIOGBIS and ensure it was aligned with the priorities identified by the legitimate democratic Government of the country.

The mission, led by the United Nations Department of Political Affairs, consulted with a broad array of interlocutors and enjoyed the full cooperation of the authorities of Guinea-Bissau. The restoration of constitutional order in Guinea-Bissau had introduced a period of hope. The elections in April and May were widely deemed to have been free, fair and transparent. The country had a legitimate, competent and inclusive Government. The Prime Minister was working to create a collaborative political environment and had included several individuals from opposition parties and civil society in his Government in an attempt to build trust and bolster stability. The Government had acted quickly to demonstrate the dividends of the restoration of constitutional order, notably by paying most salary arrears in the public service and by working to increase the delivery of public utilities to the population. Initial steps had been taken to reform the armed forces, most notably by the dismissal of its Chief of General Staff, General Antonio Indjai, on 15 September.

Even as the Government had shown strong political will to implement necessary reforms, it had encountered signs of resistance in doing so. The State-building exercise in Guinea-Bissau was in its very initial stages. The country faced extreme levels of poverty and the social contract was weak. Meanwhile, the potential for relapse into instability and unconstitutionality remained high as long as the root causes remained unaddressed. The political instability in the country had been accompanied by repeated gross violations of human rights, including politically motivated assassinations, abductions, cases of torture, arbitrary arrests, detentions of political opponents and civil society representatives, and restrictions on the freedoms of expression and assembly. According to the mission, peace and security issues in Guinea-Bissau were strongly connected with development challenges. The root causes of instability in the country remained within a complex interrelation of four main factors: political-military dynamics; ineffective State institutions and an absence of rule of law; poverty; and lack of access to basic services.

The integrated structure of UNIOGBIS, in which one of the Secretary-General's deputy special representatives was also the Resident Coordinator, was conducive to a smooth exit transition, as the UN country team would gradually take over tasks that UNIOGBIS was mandated with carrying out. In that context, the UNIOGBIS leadership, utilizing its existing strategic policy group, would regularly assess progress in mandate implementation. That would assist the United Nations in Guinea-Bissau in planning and prioritizing its resource mobilization activities, taking into account progress and ultimate success in the implementation of the UNIOGBIS mandate. In that respect, the Secretary-General recommended an extension of UNIOGBIS for a period of 12 months, until 29 February 2016, which would allow the mission to provide sustained support to the Government in moving its priorities forward.

Sanctions

Security Council Committee. The Security Council Committee established pursuant to Security Council resolution 2048(2012) concerning Guinea-Bissau was mandated, among other things, to monitor the implementation of the measures imposed by paragraph 4 of that resolution (travel ban); designate those individuals subject to the travel ban and consider requests for exemptions; encourage a dialogue between the Committee and interested Member States and international, regional and subregional organizations; and examine and take appropriate action on information regarding alleged violations or non-compliance with the measures imposed by resolution 2048(2012).

In December [S/2014/918], the Committee reported on its 2014 activities. During the year, it held one informal consultation on 9 April in addition to conducting its work through written procedures. In March, the Committee signed an agreement with the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) on the issuance and circulation of INTERPOL-United Nations Security Council Special Notices. The Committee received no requests for exemption to the travel ban, while 11 individuals had been designated as subject to the travel ban.

Peacebuilding Commission

The Peacebuilding Commission reviewed its activities in Guinea-Bissau in the report of its eighth session [A/69/818-S/2015/174], covering 2014. The Commission focused its attention on supporting the efforts of the United Nations, led by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, to create a supportive political environment for the conduct of presidential and legislative elections, which were held in April and May. In addition to visits undertaken by the Chair in January and October, the Commission offered a platform for the Special Representative, the Transitional Government and key regional and international actors to exchange views and information on the progress of the electoral preparations. The subsequent installation of a democratically elected government had paved the way for the restoration of constitutional order, the resumption of international recognition and the re-engagement of development partners. The Commission was expected to accompany the national Government's medium- to long-term plan to develop a national peacebuilding strategy and a framework of mutual commitments with its regional and international partners.

The Commission also provided a forum for the new Government to present its plans and priorities, which would be taken forward to a donor conference scheduled to take place in February 2015. The Commission had supported the plans put forward by the newly elected Government to clarify existing commitments for the exploitation of mineral resources, ensuring that resources were used to maximize public utility. A national strategic plan, aimed at developing a vision of comprehensive State-building, was being developed by the new Government and would be presented at the donor conference. The conference would provide an opportunity for the Government to engage its partners in support of its medium- to long-term peace consolidation and development strategy.

UNIOGBIS

The United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau (UNIOGBIS) was established on 1 January 2010 as the successor to the United Nations Peacebuilding Support Office in Guinea-Bissau (UNIOGBIS), pursuant to Security Council resolution 1876(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 219]. The original Office was established in 1999 by a decision of the Secretary-General and with the support of Council resolution 1233(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 140]; its mandate was revised in 2004 [YUN 2004, p. 229] and 2007 [YUN 2007, p. 230]. By resolution 2092(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 184], the Council extended the UNIOGBIS mandate until 31 May 2013, and by resolution 2103(2013)

[YUN 2013, p. 186], the Council extended the mandate until 31 May.

By resolutions 2157(2014) (see p. 276) and 2186(2014) (see p. 279), the Council extended the mandate of UNIOGBIS until 30 November and 28 February 2015, respectively.

Appointment. In a 10 July letter [S/2014/492], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Miguel Trovoadá (São Tomé and Príncipe) as his Special Representative in Guinea-Bissau and Head of UNIOGBIS to succeed José Ramos-Horta (Timor Leste), who concluded his assignment on 30 June. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 14 July [S/2014/493].

Mali

Fighting erupted in May 2014 in northern Mali between the Government and armed groups and disrupted the political process. Earlier in April, Prime Minister Oumar Tatam Ly had resigned, citing deficiencies in the work of the Government. The President of Mali, Ibrahim Boubacar Keïta, immediately appointed Moussa Mara as the new prime minister and appointed him as his High Representative for Inter-Malian Inclusive Dialogue, with responsibility for overseeing the peace talks between the Government and the armed movements. Following a ceasefire agreement brokered by the African Union (AU) and the United Nations, the first round of peace talks, hosted by Algeria, took place in July. Three additional rounds were held until late November when the positions of all the parties on key issues remained unchanged, but with the understanding that the negotiating parties would reconvene in Algiers in January 2015.

The Malian Parliament adopted a bill establishing the Truth, Justice and Reconciliation Commission. During the year, eight Ebola virus disease cases were identified in Mali; six of the patients died and two recovered.

In the final three months of the year alone, asymmetric attacks against UN peacekeepers led to 16 deaths and 14 injuries. The attacks on the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA) highlighted the urgency of strengthening the Mission through enhanced measures to prevent attacks with improvised explosive devices and other indirect weapons. In June, the Security Council, by resolution 2164(2014), extended the mandate of MINUSMA until 30 June 2015.

Political and security developments

Security Council mission. On 30 January [S/2014/72], the Security Council President informed the Secretary-General that the Council would send a mission to Mali, from 31 January to 3 February, led by Ambassador Gérard Araud (France) and Minister Counsellor Banté Mangaral (Chad).

The Council reported on its mission in March [S/2014/173], noting that the armed groups signatory to the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement [YUN 2013, p. 200]—the Mouvement national pour la libération de l'Azawad (MNLA) and the Haut conseil pour l'unité de l'Azawad (HCUA)—had called for the full implementation of the agreement. They reiterated their willingness to canton their combatants and disarm them upon the signature of a comprehensive peace accord, as provided for by article 6 of the agreement. The groups said that they welcomed the participation of all regional countries in the inclusive dialogue, and with regard to Algeria's current mediation initiative, proposed that Algeria join the existing dialogue mechanisms. MNLA and HCUA called for the negotiations to be held in a neutral location.

President Keïta expressed gratitude for all the international support extended to Mali. He informed the Security Council mission that the Government was developing a national reconciliation road map, whose implementation he hoped the United Nations would support, and stressed that the full disarmament of the armed groups should precede the comprehensive negotiation process.

Several Malian stakeholders called for MINUSMA to expand its stabilization efforts beyond the key population centres in the north of Mali, noting the threat posed by terrorist and criminal elements against the civilian population. The Council mission expressed concern about the delays in the deployment of the MINUSMA force, particularly as the stalled political process heightened tensions and the peacekeeping Mission would be called to play an increasingly central role amid the French Operation Serval's drawdown. A number of civil society representatives expressed the view that the crisis in northern Mali did not stem from ethnic tensions but from development and governance issues. They called the Security Council's attention to the underdevelopment of northern Mali and the absence of work opportunities for youth. The northern armed groups also advocated for enhanced UN development activities.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 23 January [meeting 7099], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/2 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms its strong commitment to the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Mali.

The Council welcomes the successful holding of peaceful and transparent legislative elections on 24 November and 15 December 2013 in Mali and commends the people and authorities of Mali for the manner in which they were conducted. The Council commends the efforts of domestic and international observers and bilateral and international partners to support the electoral process. The Council expresses its appreciation to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali for the security and logistical support it provided during the electoral process. The Council underlines that, in addition to the successful holding of the presidential elections in July and August 2013, the holding of the legislative elections marks a further step in the restoration of democratic governance and the full return of constitutional order in Mali.

The Council commends the initial efforts of the Government of Mali to launch a series of national consultative events on the situation in the north of Mali to promote good governance, institutional reform and economic and social development and to reinforce national unity and security. The Council encourages further steps towards consolidating stability, advancing inclusive national dialogue and reconciliation and fostering social cohesion. The Council underscores the need to address the underlying causes of recurrent crises which have affected Mali, including governance, security, development and humanitarian challenges, and drawing lessons from past peace agreements.

The Council reiterates its call for an inclusive and credible negotiation process open to all communities of the north of Mali, with the goal of securing a durable political resolution to the crisis and long-term peace and stability throughout the country, respecting the sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of the Malian State. The Council lends its full support to the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Mali to use good offices, in close coordination with the international community, towards the restoration of peace and security throughout the national territory of Mali, in the context of a comprehensive agreement ending the crisis.

The Council recalls its resolution 2100(2013) and in this regard calls upon all the signatories to the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement of 18 June 2013, and those armed groups in the north of Mali that have cut off all ties with terrorist organizations and committed unconditionally to the agreement, to swiftly and fully implement its provisions, including the cantonment of armed groups, the re-establishment of State administration throughout the country and the urgent launching of inclusive and credible peace talks.

The Council reiterates its demand that armed groups in Mali put aside their arms and reject the recourse to violence. The Council calls upon all relevant Malian parties to agree on active measures to further the cantonment of armed groups, as an essential step leading to an effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, in the context of a comprehensive peace settlement. The Council reiterates its support for the active role of the Mission in supporting the strengthening of the above processes.

The Council stresses the need to ensure the full, equal and effective participation and representation of women at all levels and at an early stage of the stabilization phase, including the security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes, as well as in the national political dialogue and electoral processes.

The Council expresses concern about the fragile security situation in the north of Mali, including the recent incidents that revealed that terrorists and other armed groups have reorganized themselves and regained some ability to operate. The Council stresses the primary responsibility of the Government of Mali for the provision of stability and security throughout its territory. The Council stresses the importance of achieving without further delay the complete operational deployment of the Mission to stabilize key population centres and protect civilians, including women and children, especially in the north of Mali, and to continue to support the re-establishment of State authority throughout the country and the promotion of the rule of law and protection of human rights. The Council calls upon all Member States to support the swift completion of the deployment of the Mission. The Council urges all parties in Mali to cooperate fully with the deployment and activities of the Mission, in particular by ensuring its safety and security.

The Council takes note of the investigation led by Malian judicial authorities of military personnel, including General Amadou Haya Sanogo, in connection with violence committed in 2012. The Council stresses the importance of maintaining Malian civilian control and oversight of the Malian Defence and Security Forces as a key element of the overall reform of the security sector and commends in this regard the contribution of international donors, including the European Union through its Common Security and Defence Policy mission, the European Union Training Mission in Mali.

The Council recalls that those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights must be held accountable and in this regard encourages the Government of Mali to conduct investigations on such acts and swiftly bring the perpetrators to justice and to continue to cooperate with the International Criminal Court. The Council strongly condemns incidents of sexual violence in armed conflict, including against children, in Mali, acknowledges efforts of the Government to prioritize judicial investigations of incidents of sexual violence in armed conflict, and encourages efforts to speed up the return of judicial authorities to the north.

The Council, while noting that thousands of refugees and internally displaced persons have returned to their areas of origin, commends the Government of Mali for its efforts to address the humanitarian challenges and calls upon the Government to achieve lasting solutions for refugees and internally displaced persons, including by creating the conditions conducive to their voluntary, safe, dignified and sustainable return. The Council remains gravely concerned by the extent of the food crisis and calls upon the international community to continue to increase its assistance to affected populations, particularly women and children, and address the gap in the funding of the consolidated appeal for Mali.

The Council welcomes the efforts of the international community as well as of the Government of Mali within the framework of the mutual commitments of the conference on the theme "Together for a new Mali", held in Brussels on 15 May 2013. The Council calls upon all relevant United Nations agencies and the international community to strengthen their support for the efforts of the Government to implement its socio-economic development plans, including supporting the provision of basic services to the population, in particular in the north of Mali.

The Council calls upon the international community to continue to support the people and Government of Mali towards achieving lasting peace, stability and reconciliation in Mali and the development of the country.

The Council reiterates its continued concern about the alarming situation in the Sahel region and reaffirms its continued commitment to address the complex security and political challenges in this region, which are interrelated with humanitarian and development issues. The Council reaffirms its request in this regard to the Secretary-General to ensure early progress towards the effective implementation of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel.

Report of Secretary-General (March). In a March report on the situation in Mali [S/2014/229], issued pursuant to resolution 2100(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 194], the Secretary-General stated that Mali had progressed further in the restoration of constitutional order, as evidenced by the inauguration of the National Assembly in January. In addition, the Government and armed groups participated in informal seminars held in February under the auspices of the Monitoring and Evaluation Committee, raising hope of progress towards cantonment and inclusive peace talks.

On 22 January, the National Assembly convened its first session. Exploratory discussions by the Government with armed groups, notably the Mouvement arabe de l'Azawad (MAA), the Coordination des mouvements et forces patriotiques de résistance and the Haut conseil pour l'unité de l'Azawad (HCUA), led to the signing, on 16 January, of a cooperation platform for lasting peace in northern Mali. That initiative was followed by a visit by President Keita to Algiers on 18 and 19 January, during which the two Heads of State agreed to reinforce cooperation between the two countries in such areas as security, development and humanitarian assistance, and to put in place a bilateral committee that would meet monthly to monitor the implementation of the decision pertaining to the peaceful settlement of north Mali. In February, the King of Morocco, Mohammed VI, made a State visit to Mali to discuss bilateral efforts to sustain peace and reconciliation and to strengthen economic ties. The President of Mali also visited Mauritania from 10 to 12 January.

The overall security situation deteriorated in northern Mali as a result of the increasing activity of terrorist groups, mainly Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb and the Mouvement pour l'unicité et le jihad en Afrique de l'ouest, as demonstrated by a series of rocket and improvised explosive device attacks targeting the Malian armed forces, MINUSMA and Operation Serval. The security situation remained particularly worrisome in Kidal, but rocket attacks also increased around Gao. Timbuktu suffered its first rocket attack after a period of relative calm. On 8 February, Bamako experienced its first alert for a possible vehicle-borne improvised explosive device. Abductions and banditry contributed to perpetrating a climate of fear in northern Mali. The incidence of improvised explosive device attacks increased during the reporting period. On 20 January, a MINUSMA patrol hit a device on the road to Aguelhok in Kidal region that injured five Chadian peacekeepers. On 16 March, a MINUSMA convoy hit a device close to Aguelhok that injured two Chadian peacekeepers. Intercommunal violence between the Tuareg and the Fulani in Gao region also worsened.

On the re-establishment of State authority in Mali, while the governors of Kidal, Timbuktu, Mopti and Gao and all 135 prefects and subprefects had returned to the four northern regions, few prefects and subprefects, gendarmes or police officers had taken up posts outside the principal towns owing to the security conditions and the lack of infrastructure and resources, leaving significant gaps in State authority in rural areas.

The Secretary-General observed that the first priority was a truly inclusive political dialogue, as indicated in Security Council resolution 2100(2013) and the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement. There would be no durable solution to the security challenges in the north without an inclusive political process that paved the way for the full restoration of law and order, equal access by all Malians to public services and reconciliation between communities.

Communication. In a 17 June letter [S/2014/419] to the Security Council, Algeria transmitted the Algiers Declaration; the Algiers Preliminary Platform for the inclusive inter-Malian dialogue; the joint communiqué of the third high-level consultation session on the inter-Malian dialogue; and the communiqué of the fourth session of the bilateral strategic committee between Algeria and Mali on northern Mali.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 June [meeting 7210], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2164(2014). The draft [S/2014/436] was submitted by Australia, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions, in particular resolutions 2085(2012) of 20 December 2012 and 2100(2013) of 25 April 2013, the statements by its President of 12 December 2013 and 23 January 2014, and its statements to the press of 23 April, 20 May and 11 June 2014,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Mali,

Reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the need and situation of the country concerned,

Underscoring the need to address the underlying causes of recurrent crises which have affected Mali, including governance, security, development and humanitarian challenges, drawing lessons from past peace agreements, and that any sustainable solution to the crisis in Mali should be Malian-owned, including all aspects of the political process, in particular national dialogue and reconciliation,

Welcoming the successful holding of peaceful and transparent presidential elections on 28 July and 11 August 2013 as well as legislative elections on 24 November and 15 December 2013 in Mali, which constitute a major step in the restoration of democratic governance and the full return of constitutional order in Mali, and commending the people and authorities of Mali for the manner in which they were conducted,

Welcoming also the signing on 18 June 2013 of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, which, inter alia, reaffirms the sovereignty, territorial integrity, national unity and secular nature of the Malian State, provides for an immediate ceasefire and the launching of the cantonment process, and establishes a framework for inclusive peace talks with all communities of the north of Mali, but expressing its concern at the failure of the parties to the agreement to meet the agreed timeline for the launching of these talks,

Commending the efforts of all regional and international actors, including those who facilitated discussions with the signatory and adherent armed groups of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, to solve the crisis in Mali, and in this regard welcoming the efforts of Algeria to contribute to the launching of a credible and inclusive negotiation process, as well as Burkina Faso as the Economic Community of West African States mediator, and urging all these actors to maintain coordination to consolidate political and security progress in Mali, in close coordination with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Mali and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali,

Welcoming the appointment by the President of Mali on 23 April 2014 of a High Representative for the Inter-Malian Inclusive Dialogue and his initial efforts to consult with national and international actors on the peace process,

Strongly condemning the violent clashes in Kidal on 17 and 18 May 2014 in the context of the visit by the Prime Minister of Mali, which resulted in the death of Malian Defence and Security Forces personnel, as well as eight civilians, including six government officials, the unacceptable seizure by the armed groups, notably the Mouvement national pour la libération de l'Azawad, of administrative buildings, including the Governorate of Kidal, the subsequent seizure of towns in the north of Mali and the reported illegal establishment of parallel administrative structures therein, and of arms and materiel belonging to the Malian Defence and Security Forces, which constitute a breach of the ceasefire arrangements provided for in the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, as well as attacks on personnel of the Mission by the armed groups, expressing serious concern about the events that occurred in Kidal and elsewhere in the north of Mali on 21 May 2014 which resulted in additional casualties and in an altered security landscape in the north of Mali, and reiterating its call upon all parties to act with restraint and refrain from any further violence that could threaten civilians,

Welcoming the signing of the ceasefire agreement of 23 May 2014, brokered under the auspices of the Chairperson of the African Union, Mr. Mohamed Ould Abdel Aziz, President of Mauritania, and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Mali, and welcoming the convening of the Economic Community of West African States summit in Accra on 30 May 2014, taking note of its support for the ceasefire agreement and its call for a political solution, through the launching of inclusive peace talks, as well as its call for the immediate withdrawal of the armed groups from the public buildings and occupied areas, and return to the pre-17 May positions, and further welcoming the signing on 13 June 2014 of the agreement on the modalities for the ceasefire implementation, Remaining concerned over the fragile security situation in the north of Mali and the continuing activities in the Sahel region of terrorist organizations, including Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb, Ansar Eddine, the Mouvement pour l'unicité et le jihad en Afrique de l'Ouest and Al-Mourabitoune, which constitute a threat to peace and security in the region and beyond, and reiterating its strong condemnation of the abuses of human rights and violence against civilians, notably women and children, committed in the north of Mali and in the region by terrorist groups,

Stressing that terrorism can be defeated only by a sustained and comprehensive approach involving the active participation and collaboration of all States and regional and international organizations to impede, impair and isolate the terrorist threat, and reaffirming that terrorism could not and should not be associated with any religion, nationality or civilization,

Recalling the listing of the Mouvement pour l'unicité et le jihad en Afrique de l'Ouest, the Organization of Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb, Ansar Eddine and its leader, Iyad ag Ghali, and Al-Mourabitoune on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List established by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011), and reiterating its readiness, under the above-mentioned regime, to sanction further individuals, groups, undertakings and entities that do not cut off all ties to Al-Qaida and associated groups, including Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb, the Mouvement pour l'unicité et le jihad en Afrique de l'Ouest, Ansar Eddine and Al-Mourabitoune, in accordance with the established listing criteria,

Welcoming the continued action by the French forces, at the request of the Malian authorities, to deter the terrorist threat in the north of Mali,

Noting with growing concern the transnational dimension of the terrorist threat in the Sahel region, and underlining the need for a coherent regional response to combat this threat,

Expressing its continued concern over the serious threats posed by transnational organized crime in the Sahel region and its increasing links, in some cases, with terrorism, strongly condemning the incidents of kidnapping and hostage-taking with the aim of raising funds or gaining political concessions, reiterating its determination to prevent kidnapping and hostage-taking in the Sahel region, in accordance with applicable international law, recalling its resolution 2133(2014) of 27 January 2014, including the call upon all Member States to prevent terrorists from benefitting directly or indirectly from the payment of ransoms or from political concessions and to secure the safe release of hostages, and in this regard noting the publication by the Global Counterterrorism Forum of the Algiers Memorandum on Good Practices on Preventing and Denying the Benefits of Kidnapping for Ransom by Terrorists,

Remaining seriously concerned over the significant ongoing food and humanitarian crisis in the Sahel region and over the insecurity which hinders humanitarian access, exacerbated by the presence of armed groups and terrorist and criminal networks, and their activities, the presence of landmines as well as the continued proliferation of weapons from within and outside the region that threatens the peace, security and stability of States in the region,

Emphasizing the need for all parties to uphold and respect the humanitarian principles of humanity, neutrality, impartiality and independence in order to ensure the continued provision of humanitarian assistance, the safety of civilians receiving assistance and the security of humanitarian personnel operating in Mali, and stressing the importance of humanitarian assistance being delivered on the basis of need,

Strongly condemning all abuses and violations of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including those involving extrajudicial executions, arbitrary arrests and detentions, and sexual and gender-based violence, as well as killing, maiming, recruitment and use of children, and attacks against schools and hospitals, and calling upon all parties to bring an end to such violations and abuses and to comply with their obligations under applicable international law,

Reiterating, in this regard, that all perpetrators of such acts must be held accountable and that some of such acts referred to in the paragraph above may amount to crimes under the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court and noting that, acting upon the referral of the transitional authorities of Mali dated 13 July 2012, the Prosecutor of the Court opened, on 16 January 2013, an investigation into alleged crimes committed on the territory of Mali since January 2012, and recalling the importance of assistance and cooperation, by all parties concerned, with the Court,

Emphasizing that the Malian authorities have primary responsibility for the provision of stability and security throughout the territory of Mali, underscoring the importance of Malian civilian control and oversight of the Malian Defence and Security Forces, reiterating that the training, consolidation and redeployment of the Malian Defence and Security Forces are vital to ensure the long-term security and stability of Mali and to protect the people of Mali, and stressing the importance of the Malian Defence and Security Forces assuming full responsibility for providing security throughout the Malian territory,

Recognizing that the threat to the civilian population in the north of Mali extends beyond the key population centres to include rural areas,

Reiterating its strong support for the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and for the Mission, and expressing its concern at the slow pace of deployment of the Mission,

Commending the role and contribution of the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States and of neighbouring countries to the stabilization of Mali, including to contribute to the efforts of the Mission towards a political settlement,

Commending also the role of the European Union Training Mission in Mali to provide training and advice for the Malian Defence and Security Forces towards contributing to strengthening civilian authority and respect for human rights, and welcoming the decision of the European Union to establish the European Union Capacity-Building Mission in Sahel Mali to provide strategic advice and training for the police, gendarmerie and national guard in Mali,

Encouraging the international community to provide broad support to resolve the crisis in Mali through coordinated actions for immediate and long-term needs, encompassing security, governance reform, development and humanitarian issues, commending the contributions already made towards the 2014 consolidated appeal for Mali, and urging all Member States and other donors to contribute generously for humanitarian operations,

Determining that the situation in Mali constitutes a threat to international peace and security,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

Framework for long-term peace and stability in Mali

1. Urges the Malian authorities and the signatory and adherent armed groups to fulfil their commitments under the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, and in this regard further urges the parties in Mali to engage in good faith and without delay in a credible and inclusive negotiation process, respecting the sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Mali, and underscores that this agreement constitutes a solid basis for long-term peace and stability in Mali;

2. Urges the signatories to the ceasefire agreement of 23 May 2014 to respect it fully, to immediately implement its provisions, including the liberation of prisoners and the establishment of an international commission of inquiry, and to take steps that support national reconciliation, and requests the Secretary-General to facilitate the swift establishment of the commission, in consultation with the parties;

3. Urges, in particular, the Malian authorities to launch without delay an inclusive and credible negotiation process with the signatory and adherent armed groups of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, and those armed groups in the north of Mali that have cut off all ties with terrorist organizations and committed unconditionally to the agreement;

4. Reiterates its demand that all armed groups in Mali put aside their arms, cease hostilities immediately, as well as reject the recourse to violence, and urges all such groups that have cut off all ties with terrorist organizations and that recognize, without conditions, the unity and territorial integrity of the Malian State, to engage in an inclusive dialogue open to all communities of the north of Mali;

5. Urges all armed groups in Mali to resume the cantonment process, supported and monitored by the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, as a crucial and practical step leading to an effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, in the context of a comprehensive peace settlement;

6. Expresses its strong support for the key role of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Mali in the peace talks, and requests the Special Representative to continue his good offices and active engagement, including in coordinating with and supporting the Malian authorities, towards the launching of an inclusive process open to all communities of the north of Mali, consistent with paragraphs 13 (b) (i) and (ii) below;

7. Urges the parties in this negotiation process to coordinate with the Special Representative, with the goal of securing a durable political resolution to the crisis and long-term peace and stability throughout the country, respecting the sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of the Malian State;

8. Urges the Malian authorities to further combat impunity and, in this regard, to ensure that all perpetrators of violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law are held accountable, and to continue to cooperate with the International Criminal Court, in accordance with the obligations of Mali under the Rome Statute of the Court;

9. Welcomes the establishment of the Truth, Justice and Reconciliation Commission on 20 March 2014, and calls upon the Malian authorities to take the steps necessary to ensure the neutrality, impartiality, transparency and independence of the Commission and to enable it to commence its work to benefit all Malians as soon as possible;

10. Stresses the importance of continued coordination among the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States, the European Union, the neighbouring countries of Mali and other key actors in the promotion of lasting peace, security, stability and reconciliation in Mali, and calls upon these actors to coordinate their efforts in this regard with the Special Representative and the Mission;

Mandate of the Mission

11. Decides to extend the mandate of the Mission within the authorized troop ceiling of 11,200 military personnel, including reserve battalions capable of deploying rapidly within the country, and 1,440 police personnel, until 30 June 2015;

12. Authorizes the Mission to take all means necessary to carry out its mandate, within its capabilities and its areas of deployment;

13. Decides that the mandate of the Mission shall focus on the following priority tasks:

(a) Security, stabilization and protection of civilians

- (i) In support of the Malian authorities, to stabilize the key population centres, notably in the north of Mali, and in this context to deter threats and take active steps to prevent the return of armed elements to those areas;
- (ii) To protect, without prejudice to the responsibility of the Malian authorities, civilians under imminent threat of physical violence;
- (iii) To provide specific protection for women and children affected by armed conflict, including through the deployment of child protection advisers and women's protection advisers, and to address the needs of victims of sexual and gender-based violence in armed conflict;
- (iv) To expand its presence, including through long-range patrols and within its capacities, in the north of Mali beyond key population centres, notably in areas where civilians are at risk;

- (v) To support the implementation of the ceasefire and confidence-building measures on the ground, consistent with the provisions of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement;
- (vi) To enhance its operational coordination with the Malian Defence and Security Forces, within its resources and areas of deployment and within the framework of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, subject to an assessment of risk and in strict compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces;

(b) Support to national political dialogue and reconciliation

- (i) To coordinate with and support the Malian authorities to launch an inclusive and credible negotiation process open to all communities of the north of Mali, consistent with paragraphs 6 and 7 above;
- (ii) To exercise good offices, confidence-building and facilitation at the national and local levels, in order to anticipate, prevent, mitigate and resolve conflict, including by enhancing negotiation capacity and promoting the participation of civil society, including women's organizations;
- (iii) To support the cantonment of armed groups, as an essential step leading to an effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, in the context of a comprehensive peace settlement;
- (iv) To assist the Malian authorities, and to coordinate international efforts, towards developing and implementing disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes for former combatants and the dismantling of militias and self-defence groups, consistent with the provisions of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement and taking into account the specific needs of demobilized children;
- (v) To support, within its resources and areas of deployment, the conduct of inclusive, free, fair and transparent local elections, including through the provision of appropriate logistical and technical assistance and effective security arrangements, in the context of an inclusive decentralization process led and owned by the Malian authorities;
- (vi) To support, as feasible and appropriate, the efforts of the Malian authorities, without prejudice to their responsibilities, to bring to justice those responsible for serious abuses or violations of human rights or violations of international humanitarian law, in particular war crimes and crimes against humanity in Mali, taking into account the referral by the transitional authorities of Mali of the situation in their country since January 2012 to the International Criminal Court;
- (vii) To provide support to the activities of the international commission of inquiry as envisaged by the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement and the ceasefire agreement of 23 May 2014;

(c) Support to the re-establishment of State authority throughout the country, the rebuilding of the Malian security sector, the promotion and protection of human rights and support for humanitarian assistance

- (i) To support the Malian authorities to extend and re-establish State administration throughout the country, especially in the north of Mali, in line with the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement and the ceasefire agreement of 23 May 2014;

- (ii) To support national, and to coordinate international, efforts towards rebuilding the Malian security sector, especially the police and gendarmerie, through technical assistance, capacity-building, co-location and mentoring programmes, as well as the rule of law and justice sectors, within its capacities and in close collaboration with other bilateral partners, donors and international organizations, including the European Union, engaged in these fields, including through enhancing information-sharing and joint strategic planning among all actors;
 - (iii) To assist the Malian authorities, through training and other support, for the removal and destruction of mines and other explosive devices and weapons and ammunition management;
 - (iv) To assist the Malian authorities in their efforts to promote and protect human rights;
 - (v) To monitor, help to investigate and report to the Security Council and publicly, as appropriate, on any abuses or violations of human rights or violations of international humanitarian law committed throughout Mali and to contribute to efforts to prevent such violations and abuses;
 - (vi) To monitor, help to investigate and report to the Council specifically on violations and abuses committed against children as well as violations committed against women, including all forms of sexual violence in armed conflict;
 - (vii) In support of the Malian authorities, to contribute to the creation of a secure environment for the safe, civilian-led delivery of humanitarian assistance, in accordance with humanitarian principles, and the voluntary, safe and dignified return or local integration or resettlement of internally displaced persons and refugees in close coordination with humanitarian actors;
 - (viii) In support of the Malian authorities, to contribute to the creation of a secure environment for projects aimed at stabilizing the north of Mali, including quick-impact projects;
14. Also decides that the mandate of the Mission shall include the following additional tasks:

(a) Protection of United Nations personnel

To protect United Nations personnel, installations and equipment and ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel;

(b) Support for cultural preservation

To assist the Malian authorities, as necessary and feasible, in protecting from attack the cultural and historical sites in Mali, in collaboration with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization;

15. Requests the Mission to take fully into account gender considerations as a cross-cutting issue throughout its mandate and to assist the Malian authorities in ensuring the full and effective participation, involvement and representation of women at all levels and at an early stage of the stabilization phase, including the security sector reform and disarmament, demobilization and reintegration processes, as well as in the national political dialogue, reconciliation and electoral processes;

16. Also requests the Mission to take fully into account the need to protect civilians and mitigate risk to civilians, including, in particular, women, children and displaced persons, and civilian objects in the performance of its mandate as defined in paragraphs 13 and 14 above, where undertaken jointly with the Malian Defence and Security Forces, in strict compliance with the human rights due diligence policy on United Nations support to non-United Nations security forces;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure full compliance of the Mission with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuses and to keep the Council fully informed if such cases of misconduct occur;

18. Requests the Mission, within its capabilities, its areas of deployment and without prejudice to its mandate, to assist the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) and the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team established pursuant to resolution 1526(2004) of 30 January 2004, including by passing information relevant to the implementation of the measures in paragraph 1 of resolution 2161(2014) of 17 June 2014;

19. Requests the Secretary-General to consider the environmental impacts of the operations of the Mission when fulfilling its mandated tasks, and in this context encourages the Mission to manage them, as appropriate and in accordance with applicable and relevant General Assembly resolutions and United Nations rules and regulations, and to operate mindfully in the vicinity of cultural and historical sites;

20. Encourages the Mission to further enhance its interaction with the civilian population to raise awareness and understanding about its mandate and activities;

Deployment of the Mission

21. Requests the Secretary-General to take the steps necessary to enable the Mission to reach its full operational capacity as soon as possible in the context of a new force laydown, and in this regard calls upon Member States to provide troops and police with adequate capabilities and equipment, including enablers, in order for the Mission to fulfil its mandate, and commends troop- and police-contributing countries for their engagement in this respect;

22. Urges all parties in Mali to cooperate fully with the deployment and activities of the Mission, in particular by ensuring its safety, security and freedom of movement with unhindered and immediate access throughout the territory of Mali to enable the Mission to carry out fully its mandate, and stresses in this regard the importance of facilitating the Mission's new force laydown to extend its operations in the north of Mali, as mandated in paragraph 13 (a) (iv) above, in a complex security environment that includes asymmetric threats;

23. Calls upon Member States, especially those in the region, to ensure the free, unhindered and expeditious movement to and from Mali of all personnel, as well as equipment, provisions, supplies and other goods, including vehicles and spare parts, which are for the exclusive and official use of the Mission;

24. Requests the Secretary-General to accelerate the disbursement of the United Nations trust fund established pursuant to its resolution 2085(2012) in support of the African-led International Support Mission in Mali, including to enable the new force laydown of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, in consultation with the donors;

Inter-mission cooperation in West Africa

25. Authorizes the Secretary-General to take the necessary steps in order to ensure inter-mission cooperation, notably between the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, the United Nations Mission in Liberia and the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire, and appropriate transfers of troops and their assets from other United Nations missions to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, subject to the following conditions: (i) the Council's information and approval, including on the scope and duration of the transfer, (ii) the agreement of the troop-contributing countries, and (iii) the security situation where these United Nations missions are deployed and without prejudice to the performance of their mandates, and in this regard encourages further steps to enhance inter-mission cooperation in the West African region, as necessary and feasible, and to report thereon for consideration as appropriate;

French forces mandate

26. Authorizes French forces, within the limits of their capacities and areas of deployment, to use all necessary means until the end of the mandate of the Mission, as authorized in the present resolution, to intervene in support of elements of the Mission when under imminent and serious threat upon request of the Secretary-General, and requests France to report to the Council on the implementation of this mandate in Mali and to coordinate its reporting with the reporting by the Secretary-General referred to in paragraph 33 below;

European Union contribution

27. Calls upon the European Union, notably its Special Representative for the Sahel and its Training Mission in Mali and Capacity-Building Mission in Sahel Mali, to coordinate closely with the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali and other bilateral partners of Mali engaged to assist the Malian authorities in the security sector reform;

Obligations under international humanitarian and human rights law

28. Urges all parties to comply with obligations under international humanitarian law to respect and protect humanitarian personnel, facilities and relief consignments, and take all required steps to allow and facilitate the full, safe, immediate and unimpeded access of humanitarian actors for the delivery of humanitarian assistance to all people in need, while respecting the United Nations humanitarian guiding principles and applicable international law;

29. Reiterates that the Malian authorities have primary responsibility to protect civilians in Mali, further recalls its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict and its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, and calls upon the Mission and all military forces in Mali to take them into account and to abide by international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law, and recalls the importance of training in this regard;

International cooperation on the Sahel

30. Urges all Member States, notably Sahel and Maghreb States, to coordinate their efforts to prevent the serious threat posed to international and regional security by terrorist groups crossing borders and seeking safe havens in the Sahel region, to enhance cooperation and coordination in order to develop inclusive and effective strategies to combat in a comprehensive and integrated manner the activities of terrorist groups, notably Al-Qaida in the Islamic Maghreb, the Mouvement pour l'unicité et le jihad en Afrique de l'Ouest, Ansar Eddine and Al-Mourabitoune, and to prevent the expansion of those groups as well as to limit the proliferation of all arms and transnational organized crime;

31. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to ensure early progress towards the effective implementation of the United Nations integrated strategy for the Sahel, encompassing political, security, development and humanitarian aspects, and welcomes in this regard the establishment of a ministerial coordination platform that would meet biannually and under the chairmanship of Mali for the period 2013–2015, and takes note of the conclusions of its first and second meetings, held in Bamako on 5 November 2013 and 16 May 2014;

Small arms and light weapons

32. Calls upon the Malian authorities, with the assistance of the Mission, consistent with paragraph 13 above, and international partners to address the issue of the proliferation of and illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons in accordance with the Economic Community of West African States Convention on Small Arms and Light Weapons, Their Ammunition and Other Related Materials and the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, in order to ensure the safe and effective management, storage and security of their stockpiles of small arms and light weapons and the collection and/or destruction of surplus, seized, unmarked or illicitly held weapons, and further stresses the importance of the full implementation of its resolutions 2017(2011) of 31 October 2011 and 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013;

Reports by the Secretary-General

33. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council within three months of the adoption of the present resolution, focusing on the implementation of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, the expansion of the presence of the Mission in the north of Mali and benchmarks to assess progress on the implementation of the priority tasks of the mandate of the Mission, as defined in paragraph 13 above, and then, every three months, to report on the implementation of the present resolution, in particular on the progress achieved on the benchmarks;

34. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (June). In a June update on the situation in Mali [S/2014/403], issued pursuant to resolution 2100(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 194], the Secretary-General noted that efforts to advance the political process during the reporting period were seriously disrupted when armed clashes between the Malian Defence and Security Forces (MDSF) and the MNLA together with associated armed groups took place in Kidal between 16 and 21 May. A ceasefire agreement was reached on 23 May through the mediation of Mohamed Ould Abdel Aziz, President of Mauritania and Chair of the AU, and the Secretary-General's Special Representative.

On 22 April, President Keïta appointed former Prime Minister Modibo Keïta as his High Representative for Inter-Malian Inclusive Dialogue, with responsibility for overseeing the peace talks between the Government and the armed movements based on a road map that would need to be developed and agreed by all parties. The security situation, however, deteriorated further. The Kidal, Gao and Timbuktu regions experienced improvised explosive device attacks and indirect rocket fire targeting Operation Serval, and Malian and MINUSMA personnel and contingents.

On the re-establishment of State authority, prior to hostilities in the north a total of 161 prefects and sub-prefects had returned to the Gao, Kidal, Mopti and Timbuktu regions, but few officials, gendarmes or police officers had taken up posts outside the principal towns owing to a lack of security, infrastructure and resources and the slow pace of socioeconomic activities.

As at 26 May, the military strength of MINUSMA stood at 8,280 personnel, representing 74 per cent of the authorized total of 11,200; and the Mission was revising its force layout to reflect a greater concentration of personnel in northern Mali.

A strategic review of MINUSMA concluded that some progress had been made in Mali, such as in the restoration of constitutional order and the sidelining of the junta behind the March 2012 coup. Despite those achievements, many important aspects of the stabilization of Mali, including most of the tasks included in the MINUSMA mandate, were yet to be accomplished. The strategic review recommended adjustments to the mandate of MINUSMA, including the coordination of regional and international initiatives and providing support for the organization and conduct of local elections and electoral reform.

The Secretary-General observed that the Government of Mali, under the leadership of President Keïta, had primary responsibility for resolving the challenges facing Mali and protecting civilians throughout the country. The Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of MINUSMA for a period of one year, until 1 July 2015, at its authorized uniformed strength of up to 11,200 military personnel and 1,440 police personnel.

Communication. In a 3 July letter [S/2014/469] to the Security Council President, Mali transmitted the ceasefire agreement signed on 23 May in Bamako by the Government of Mali, the MNLA, the HCUA and the MAA following the clashes of 17 May.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 July [meeting 7227], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/15 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the commencement of the inter-Malian negotiation process in Algiers on 16 July 2014, in line with its resolutions 2100(2013) and 2164(2014), the statement by its President of 23 January 2014 its previous statements to the press, as well as the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement of 18 June 2013, and which aims to achieve a comprehensive peace agreement ending the crisis.

The Council commends the facilitation role played by Algeria, at the request of the Malian authorities, in the launching of these formal peace talks and in convening the Government of Mali and the signatory and adherent armed groups of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement. The Council also commends the close coordination between Algeria, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Mali and Head of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali, the African Union, the Economic Community of West African States mediation team, the European Union and other regional and international partners and encourages them to continue these important efforts.

The Council commends the parties for the constructive dialogue and discussions held in Algiers between 16 and 24 July 2014, leading to the consensual adoption of the road map ("Feuille de route des négociations dans le cadre du processus d'Alger") by the parties. The Council calls upon the parties to fully comply with the commitments outlined in the road map, including by engaging in the comprehensive peace talks in Algiers scheduled to begin on 17 August 2014. The Council underscores the importance of an inclusive and credible negotiation process open to all communities of the north of Mali, with the goal of securing a durable political resolution to the crisis and long-term peace and stability throughout the country, respecting the sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of the Malian State.

The Council reiterates its concern about the fragile security situation in the north of Mali and calls upon all parties to immediately and fully respect the ceasefire agreement signed on 23 May 2014, as well as the declaration of the cessation of hostilities signed in Algiers on 24 July 2014. The Council reiterates its demand on all armed groups in Mali to cease hostilities immediately, as well as reject the recourse to violence.

The Council calls upon all the parties to implement all agreed confidence-building measures and reiterates its call to accelerate the cantonment of the armed groups, as a practical step leading to an effective disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process, in the context of a comprehensive peace settlement. The Council welcomes the establishment of the joint commission under the auspices of the Mission to facilitate the implementation of the ceasefire agreement and the declaration of the cessation of hostilities. The Council encourages the Secretary-General to further enable the Mission to reach its full operational capacity as soon as possible, especially in the context of the new force laydown in the north of Mali.

The Council reiterates its full support for the key role and active engagement of the Special Representative, including his good offices and close coordination with the international community, towards the restoration of peace and security throughout the national territory of Mali.

Letter of Secretary-General. On 11 September [S/2014/660], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council President a letter from Abdoulaye Diop, Minister for Foreign Affairs, African Integration and International Cooperation of Mali, addressed to Albert Gerard Koenders, Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Mali and Head of MINUSMA. Mr. Diop noted that since the events of May 2014, armed movements and groups, including MNLA, had occupied certain towns in the regions of Timbuktu and Gao, taking the civilian populations hostage, depriving them of basic services and in some cases imposing levies on them. That situation was unacceptable for the Government of Mali and constituted a violation of Security Council resolutions and statements.

Report of Secretary-General (September). In a September report [S/2014/692] submitted in response to Security Council resolution 2164(2014) (see p. 285), the Secretary-General provided information on major developments in Mali since June (see p. 291), including the implementation of the Ouagadougou preliminary agreement, the expansion of MINUSMA in the north of Mali and the benchmarks to assess progress in the implementation of the priority tasks of the mandate of MINUSMA.

The Secretary-General said that efforts to establish peace in Mali had seen notable progress. The first round of talks took place from 14 to 24 July in Algiers, which resulted in the adoption of a road map and a declaration of cessation of hostilities signed separately by the Government of Mali with two respective coalitions of armed groups: the Coordination, comprised of the MNLA, the HCUA and the MAA; and the Platform, comprised of the Coordination des mouvements et fronts patriotiques de résistance (CMFPR), the Coalition du peuple pour l'Azawad (CPA) and another MAA faction. A second round of negotiations began in early September between the Government and the Coordination, and between the Government and the Platform, which sought to address political, security, development, and justice and reconciliation issues. On 9 June, the Coordination signed the Algiers Declaration pledging to coordinate their actions in the search for a negotiated settlement with the Government of Mali; and on 14 June, the Platform signed the Plateforme préliminaire d'Alger en vue du dialogue inclusif inter-malien, which reaffirmed their commitment to the territorial integrity of Mali.

The first phase of the Algiers peace negotiations began on 14 July. As discussions on which armed groups should be represented at the table took place in Algiers, hostilities broke out in the Gao region between elements of the Coordination on one side, and elements of the Platform and other armed groups on the other side. As a result of the clashes, the scope of the talks was enlarged to include the negotiation of a cessation of hostilities agreement led by the Secretary-General's Special Representative. On 24 July, after two weeks of discussions, the Government of Mali signed two important documents—the road map for negotiations in the context of the Algiers process and the declaration of cessation of hostilities—separately with both the Coordination and the Platform. The road map reaffirmed the key principles enacted by the preliminary agreement—respect for Mali's unity, territorial integrity and secularism—and provided the framework for the negotiations by organizing the talks around four thematic areas: political and institutional issues; defence and security issues; economic development, and social and cultural issues; and reconciliation, justice and humanitarian issues.

No case of the Ebola virus disease had been reported in Mali as of the date of the report. Yet, Ebola cases had been confirmed in north-eastern Guinea, in an area bordering the southern part of Mali, relatively close to the capital, Bamako.

The Secretary-General reported that benchmarks to assess progress on the implementation of the priority tasks of the mandate of MINUSMA would be issued in December. He expressed his profound sadness about the death of 12 peacekeepers and the injuries inflicted to 51 others. He commended MINUSMA for its efforts to expand its presence outside the main population centres in the north, as requested by the Security Council, and welcomed the proactive steps taken by MINUSMA to mitigate the risks of Ebola contamination.

Communications. On 10 October [S/2014/733], Mali transmitted to the Secretary-General a communiqué issued by its Government after a Senegalese peacekeeper of MINUSMA was killed in a rocket attack on the UN camp at Kidal.

By a 28 October letter [S/2014/768] to the President of the Security Council, Mali reported that the leaders of the three armed groups that made up the Coordination des Mouvements de l'Azawad (MNLA, HCUA, MAA), at a meeting held in Kidal on 23 October, had encouraged their people to commit acts of violence against other Malians.

Letter of Secretary-General. On 4 November [S/2014/786], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council a communiqué issued by the Government of Mali in response to the killing of nine MINUSMA peacekeepers on 3 October.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In a December report [S/2014/943], the Secretary-General provided an update on the situation in Mali between 16 September and 16 December. Three additional rounds of the inter-Malian dialogue, launched in Algiers in July, were held. Following the first round in July, the mediation had produced a document for negotiation containing elements for a peace agreement. In the subsequent rounds, the parties negotiated on the basis of that document. At the end of the fourth round of negotiations in late November, the parties' positions on key issues remained unchanged. The parties returned to Mali for consultation with their respective constituencies with the understanding that their senior leaders would reconvene in Algiers in January 2015.

The absence of a political agreement, coupled with persistent insecurity and the control of large parts of northern Mali by armed groups, continued to impede the redeployment of national administrators and service providers. During the reporting period, MINUSMA documented reprisals against persons cooperating with the United Nations or the international community at large.

Extremist groups were suspected of killing 16 peacekeepers and injuring 14 others during the reporting period. Improvised explosive devices and anti-vehicle mines placed along routes used by MINUSMA severely hindered its operations. On 18 September, five peacekeepers died and five were injured when a patrol vehicle struck a mine south of Tessalit (Kidal region). One of the wounded peacekeepers later succumbed to his injuries. On 3 October, a MINUSMA logistics convoy was ambushed near Indelimane (Gao region), and nine peacekeepers were killed. On 7 October, seven mortar rounds hit the MINUSMA camp in Kidal, killing one peacekeeper and injuring two. From 3 to 5 November, the Niger hosted a ministerial meeting of African troop contributors to MINUSMA to discuss the deteriorating security situation. Participants pledged to support the signature of a peace agreement, called for the reinforcement of MINUSMA capacities and committed to enhancing regional security cooperation to combat terrorism. The importance of regional security mechanisms for stability in Mali, including the Nouakchott Process, led by the AU, was echoed by the Security Council during its informal interactive dialogue of 10 November.

As at 1 December, MINUSMA had reached 74 per cent of its authorized personnel. The benchmarks jointly identified by the Malian authorities, MINUSMA and the UN country team focused on three priority tasks identified in Security Council resolution 2164(2014) (see p. 285), namely, security, stabilization and protection of civilians; support to the national political dialogue and national reconciliation; and support to the restoration of State authority throughout the country, the reconstruction of the Malian security sector, the promotion and protection of human rights, and humanitarian aid. The benchmarking exercise had advanced in coordination with other planning processes, including the United Nations five-year Development Assistance Framework and the results-based budgeting of MINUSMA for 2015–2016. Following consultations within the Government, agreed benchmarks to measure progress towards peace consolidation in Mali were formalized in a letter signed by the Minister for Foreign Affairs and MINUSMA on 28 November. The benchmarks and indicators would be annexed to the next report of the Secretary-General in 2015.

Children and armed conflict

In response to Security Council resolution 2068(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 724], the Secretary-General, in April [S/2014/267], issued the first country-specific report on children and armed conflict in Mali, covering the period between January 2012 and December 2013, highlighting grave violations against children committed by parties to the conflict. The Secretary-General noted that the end of the conflict and the process of the progressive stabilization of northern Mali had contributed to a decrease in the recording of the number of grave violations. He also indicated that the protection needs of children affected by grave violations were no longer as high as at the onset of the crisis, throughout 2012 and in the first months of 2013. Despite the overall improvement in the political and security situation, however, children remained vulnerable and at risk of violations, particularly in the North. Important challenges for the monitoring and reporting of grave violations persisted, and information available before and after the establishment of the Monitoring and Reporting Mechanism remained limited.

The parties to the conflict responsible for grave violations against children included AQIM, MUJAO, MNLA, Ansar Dine and, to a lesser extent, the Malian armed forces and pro-government militias. The most affected regions were Gao, Kidal and Timbuktu. According to information verified by the United Nations, the most recurrent violations against children were sexual violence, killing and maiming, recruitment and use, and attacks on schools. Children were also detained for their alleged association with armed groups. In the first months of 2012, MNLA was one of the main perpetrators of the recruitment and use of children, as well as of sexual violence and killing and maiming. Children were pushed to join armed groups to overcome poverty or because of ethnic affiliations.

Families, imams and community leaders reportedly played a role in the recruitment and use of children. Many children who had been sent by their parents to marabouts or to Islamic schools were recruited by armed groups. Schools were reported to be used as places for indoctrination and recruitment. With the progressive defeat of armed groups in northern Mali, most children were believed to have returned spontaneously to their families. Unknown numbers of children could, however, still be associated with the armed groups.

Throughout 2012, sexual violence against women and girls by the armed groups was reported to be widespread and systematic in northern Mali. Numerous allegations of the rape of girls—often by multiple men—were received by the United Nations. Sexual violence had been perpetrated either in the context of abductions for the purpose of sexual slavery and/or forced marriage. A total of 200 schools were reported looted, damaged, bombed, used for military purposes or contaminated with unexploded ordnances. Until the first half of 2013, children's access to humanitarian assistance in the North was severely restricted by the conduct of hostilities and military operations and the absence of service providers. Approximately 873,000 children out of a total population of 1.5 million people in the North were affected by the lack of access by humanitarian assistance actors. The Secretary-General encouraged the Malian authorities and international partners to ensure that all disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes and security sector reform strategies took into account the specific needs of children affected by the armed conflict and the protection of their rights.

Working Group. In a 12 August letter [S/2014/588], the President of the Security Council forwarded to the Secretary-General a letter dated 7 August from the Chair of the Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict. The Group requested the Secretary-General to ensure the effectiveness of the monitoring and reporting mechanism on children and armed conflict in Mali and of the child protection component of MINUSMA, including through the swift deployment of child protection advisers throughout MINUSMA areas of operation. The Group noted that the key tasks of the advisers would include, among others, monitoring and reporting on violations and abuses committed against children, mainstreaming child protection within the Mission and training Mission personnel on action plans. It also requested the Secretary-General to ensure that MINUSMA and the United Nations Children's Fund strengthen their efforts to further support the Malian authorities in mainstreaming the specific needs of children affected by the armed conflict and the protection of their rights in all disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes and security sector reform; in establishing a joint mechanism for the review of cases of children detained on charges related to the armed conflict and their association with armed groups; in conducting a screening and age verification of the Malian defence and security forces; and in establishing recruitment procedures and age verification measures to prevent underage recruitment. The Group further requested the Secretary-General to ensure that the UN country task force on monitoring and reporting continue its advocacy for the release and reintegration of children associated with armed groups and forces and children detained on charges related to association with armed groups and to prioritize its efforts to reach out to non-State armed groups, with a view to developing action plans to end the recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law, as well as rape and sexual violence, and to address other violations and abuses committed against children in Mali.

MINUSMA

By resolution 2100(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 194], the Security Council established the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA) and requested the Secretary-General to subsume the United Nations Office in Mali (UNOM) into MINUSMA. Authority would also be transferred from the African-led International Support Mission to Mali (AFISMA) to MINUSMA on 1 July, at which point MINUSMA would begin the implementation of its mandate, as defined in resolution 2100(2013), for an initial period of 12 months. By resolution 2164(2014) (see p. 285), the Council extended the mandate of MINUSMA until 30 June 2015.

Appointments. On 10 December [S/2014/889], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council President of his intention to appoint Mongi Hamdi (Tunisia) as his Special Representative in Mali and Head of MINUSMA, succeeding Albert Gerard Koenders (Netherlands). The Council took note of the letter on 12 December [S/2014/890].

Logistical support to MINUSMA

In communications on 9 January [S/2014/12], 2 April [S/2014/241], 6 June [S/2014/399], 30 September [S/2014/711] and 23 December [S/2014/944] to the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted the reports by France of actions taken by its forces in support of MINUSMA.

In a 17 November letter [S/2014/822] to the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted a letter from the Niger containing the summary of conclusions and recommendations on enhancing the effectiveness of MINUSMA from a meeting held in Niamey, the Niger, from 3 to 5 November by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs and the Ministers of Defence of the African States that contributed troops to the Mission.

Financing

In a March report [A/68/823] on financing arrangements for MINUSMA for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, the Secretary-General proposed resource requirements in the amount of $812,724,000 gross ($802,778,800 net). He recommended that the General Assembly take action to appropriate $812,724,000 for the maintenance of the Mission for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015; and assess $812,724,000 gross at a monthly rate of $67,727,000, should the Security Council decide to continue the mandate of MINUSMA.

ACABQ, in May [A/68/782/Add.13], recommended a reduction of $267,400 gross ($259,900 net) to the proposed budget. It recommended an appropriation of $812,456,600 gross ($802,517,900 net) for the maintenance of MINUSMA for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015; and an assessment of $812,456,600 gross at a monthly rate of $67,704,716, should the Security Council decide to continue the mandate of MINUSMA.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/680/Add.1], adopted resolution 68/259 B without vote [agenda item 158].

Financing of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2100(2013) of 25 April 2013, by which the Council established the Mission, requested the Secretary-General to subsume the United Nations Office in Mali into the Mission, with the Mission assuming responsibility for the discharge of the mandated tasks of the Office, as from 25 April 2013, and decided that authority be transferred from the African-led International Support Mission in Mali to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali on 1 July 2013, at which point the latter would commence implementation of its mandate as defined in paragraphs 16 and 17 of resolution 2100(2013), for an initial period of 12 months, and subsequent resolution 2164(2014) of 25 June 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission until 30 June 2015,

Recalling also its resolutions 67/286 of 28 June 2013 and 68/259 A of 27 December 2013 on the financing of the Mission,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Mission with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 156.8 million United States dollars, representing some 23.1 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 58 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Mission in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Mission is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

10. Also requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

11. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali the amount of 895,534,000 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of 830,701,700 dollars for the maintenance of the Mission, 53,752,200 dollars for the support account for peacekeeping operations and 11,080,100 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy;

Financing of the appropriation

12. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 895,534,000 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014 and 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

13. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 12 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 14,340,200 dollars, comprising the estimated staff assessment income of 9,938,700 dollars approved for the Mission, the prorated share of 3,411,600 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 989,900 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

14. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

15. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Mission under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

16. Invites voluntary contributions to the Mission in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

17. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali".

On 29 December, the General Assembly, by decision 69/554, decided to defer the consideration of the item on financing of MINUSMA to its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Cameroon–Nigeria

Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission

The Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission—the mechanism established by the Secretary-General in 2002 at the request of the Presidents of Cameroon and Nigeria to facilitate the implementation of the International Court of Justice (ICJ) ruling of 10 October 2002 on the border dispute between them [YUN 2003, p. 1265]—was chaired by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for West Africa, Said Djinnit (Algeria). The Commission was responsible for the demarcation of the land and maritime boundaries between the two countries; the withdrawal of civil administration, military and police forces and a transfer of authority in relevant areas along the boundary; the demilitarization of the Bakassi peninsula; the protection of the rights of the affected populations; the development of projects to promote joint economic ventures and cross-border cooperation; and the reactivation of the five-member Lake Chad Basin Commission (Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Niger, Nigeria), created in 1964 for the regulation and planning of the uses of the lake and other natural resources of the conventional basin. In 2007, all four sections of the ICJ ruling had been resolved to the satisfaction of the two parties: the withdrawal and transfer of authority in the Lake Chad area in 2003; the withdrawal and transfer of authority along the land border in 2004; the agreement on the modalities of withdrawal and transfer of authority in the Bakassi peninsula in 2006; and the agreement on the delineation of the maritime boundary in 2007 [YUN 2007, p. 232]. In 2008, the transfer of authority from Nigeria to Cameroon of the remaining "zone" of the Bakassi peninsula was finalized [YUN 2008, p. 231], and in 2009, the emplacement of the boundary demarcation pillars began [YUN 2009, p. 226], a process that continued in 2010 [YUN 2010, p. 231] and 2011 [YUN 2011, p. 187], but was halted in 2012 due to activity by the Boko Haram terrorist group.

By 2014, Cameroon fully exercised its rights of sovereignty over the totality of the Bakassi zone and 1,947 kilometres of an estimated total of 2,100 kilometres of the land boundary between the two countries was demarcated.

Activities

On 3 January [S/2014/6], the Secretary-General informed the President of the Security Council of the progress made by the Cameroon-Nigeria Mixed Commission in the course of 2013.

On 8 January [S/2014/7], the President of the Security Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention to continue the activities of the United Nations support team to the Mixed Commission.

On 9 December [S/2014/893], the Secretary-General provided an update to the Security Council on the activities undertaken by the Mixed Commission in the course of 2014. The deteriorating security situation in north-eastern Nigeria impeded the conduct of the envisaged field visits, especially since the declaration of a state of emergency in the three border states of Adamawa, Borno and Yobe, owing to the terrorist activities of Boko Haram. The parties had agreed on the delineation of 1,947 kilometres of an estimated total of 2,100 kilometres of land boundary. At a meeting held on 11 October 2014 in Yaoundé, the heads of the delegations of Cameroon and Nigeria expressed confidence that the remaining tasks of demarcation could be completed without the dispatching of new field missions to the boundary, because the technical teams had acquired consistent and reliable knowledge of geographical and demographic data deemed sufficient to finalize their work. Consequently, the Mixed Commission had adopted new measures aimed at completing the implementation of the judgment of the Court, including in-office cartographic methodologies to assess the remaining disputed areas of the land boundary. Meanwhile, the emplacement of pillars along the boundary had continued, with 289 pillars built between January and June 2014, bringing the total number of pillars to 667; another 767 pillars remained to be emplaced.

Throughout 2014, the Mixed Commission also undertook confidence-building initiatives for the affected populations. Additional resources, however, were required to implement joint cross-border programmes between the UN country teams in Cameroon and Nigeria, particularly those in support of the populations affected by the demarcation process. The committee that was established in February 2014 to prepare the land and maritime boundary statement held two meetings, with the active support of the Office of Legal Affairs of the Secretariat. The United Nations Cartographic Section was also working to produce maps of the boundary statement, which would pave the way for the production of large-scale maps. Overall, it was expected that the field assessment of the areas of the boundary not yet assessed would be completed by the end of 2015 or early 2016, depending on the availability of the parties. Completion of the bulk of the demarcation work would depend on the ability of the two parties to reach an agreement on all the remaining areas of disagreement in a timely manner.

After 31 December 2014, the following activities were required, in view of the conclusion of the work of the Mixed Commission: finalization, using remote-sensing methodology, of demarcation activities, final maps and the boundary statement; facilitation of boundary pillar emplacement financed by the trust fund for the demarcation activities; promotion of cross-border cooperation, including maritime cooperation, and coordinated security monitoring along the land boundary; finalization of confidence-building initiatives for local communities affected by the demarcation; and implementation of the exit strategy by handing over the activities of the Mixed Commission to the Joint Bilateral Commission and other sub-regional structures.

On 12 December [S/2014/894], the Security Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention to continue the activities of the Mixed Commission.

Financing

In an October report [A/69/363 & Corr.1–3] on estimates in respect of special political missions, good offices and other political initiatives authorized by the General Assembly and/or the Security Council, the Secretary-General proposed resource requirements for 2014 for the Mixed Commission in the amount of $2,331,000.

Guinea

In 2014, the Ebola virus outbreak that started in Guinea and spread through the region led to near isolation of the country. In September, following a state of emergency declaration, the United Nations Mission for Ebola Emergency Response (UNMEER) was set up in the country to deploy financial, logistical and human resources and to support the push to zero cases.

The most significant constitutional development in Guinea was the establishment of the National Assembly in January. Efforts to reform the security sector advanced with the adoption in July of the 2014–2017 National Strategy for Priority Actions.

Political and security developments

Reports of Secretary-General. In his June [S/2014/442] and December [S/2014/945] reports on the activities of the United Nations Office for West Africa (UNOWA), the Secretary-General reported that the spread and scale of the Ebola virus disease outbreak in West Africa had led to the near isolation of Guinea, exacerbating the country's political and social tensions, while local elections had been postponed indefinitely. Guinea-Bissau closed its land border with Guinea on 13 August, and Senegal followed suit on 22 August.

Earlier in January, the Secretary-General's Special Representative attended the inauguration and opening session of the newly elected Parliament in Guinea. At the request of the Government, UNOWA facilitated a UN technical mission to the country led by the Peacebuilding Support Office from 21 to 25 April, to identify ways in which the United Nations could support the new Parliament. With the support of the United Nations, Guinea finalized its action plans on defence, police and civilian protection, justice, customs, water and forestry. On 7 May, at the invitation of President Alpha Condé, the Secretary-General's Special Representative attended the meeting of the Strategic Orientation Commission of the Guinean National Steering Committee for Security Sector Reform. The Government presented a national strategy for priority actions for 2014–2017, which focused on the strengthening of security sector governance, the enhancement of operational capacities and the improvement of the civil-military relationship. The Secretary-General observed that the United Nations would continue its peacebuilding engagement in Guinea to promote the further strengthening of State institutions and the reform of the security and criminal justice sectors in accordance with the request of the Government.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 15 September letter [S/2014/669] to the President of the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted a joint letter from Alpha Condé, the President of Guinea; Ellen Johnson Sirleaf, the President of Liberia; and Ernest Bai Koroma, the President of Sierra Leone, requesting a UN resolution for a coordinated international response to end the Ebola outbreak.

(For more information on the United Nations response to the Ebola virus disease outbreak in West Africa, see PART THREE, Chapter XIII.)

Peacebuilding Commission

The Peacebuilding Commission issued its annual report for its eighth (2014) session, covering from 1 January to 31 December [A/69/818-S/2015/174]. The Commission stated that the tragic outbreak of Ebola in three countries on its agenda—Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone—forced the Commission to shift the focus of its engagement towards supporting efforts made by those countries and by the United Nations, the international community and other relevant actors to fight the disease.

In Guinea, the Commission focused on supporting the capacity of the new parliament, as a critical component of the country's efforts to consolidate peace and democracy. The Minister for Human Rights and Civil Liberties of Guinea addressed the Commission as the keynote speaker at its annual session in June. He also addressed the country configuration at an informal meeting, at which he presented Guinea's priorities for peacebuilding and human rights and exchanged views with its members. The Commission's discussions highlighted the ways in which the Ebola outbreak had exposed State fragility and the weaknesses of governance structures despite the important investments made in institution-building in Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

Second review of Statement of Mutual Commitments. The Peacebuilding Commission issued an August report [PBC/8/GUI/1, PBC/8/GUI/2] on the second review of the statement of mutual commitments on peacebuilding in Guinea [YUN 2012, p. 180]. The report covered the period between April 2012 and April 2014 and focused on the three priority areas of the promotion of national reconciliation and unity; the reform of the defence and security sector; and policy on the employment of youth and women.

The Commission stated that the country had made significant progress during the reporting period. The reforms undertaken by the Government demonstrated its strong will to work towards greater democracy and political and economic stability.

As to the first priority of national reconciliation and unity, the Commission recommended that, during the year, the Guinea configuration should give new impetus to its support for the national reconciliation and unity process; for example by organizing a meeting to revitalize the approach and boost the operational capacity of the Provisional National Reconciliation Commission, with a view to developing a consensus-orientated methodology for the national reconciliation process and its associated mechanisms. It should also promote community-based reconciliation initiatives and ensure women's participation in those initiatives. On the second priority of reform of the defence and security sector, the Commission recommended that efforts to increase the representation and participation of women in the defence and security forces and to protect women and girls had to be backed by a suitable institutional and regulatory framework. Work to restore people's trust in the defence and security forces had to continue, as did capacity-building to promote good governance, respect for human rights and democratic civilian oversight of the defence and security forces. On its final priority on the employment of youth and women, the Commission recommended that the Guinea configuration shore up its support for the mobilization and effective delivery of resources, including by working with international partners such as the World Bank or the African Development Bank.

Mauritania

In his June [S/2014/442] and December [S/2014/945] reports on the 2014 activities of UNOWA, the Secretary-General reported on Mauritania. Negotiations between the opposition coalition and the Government broke down in April as a result of the failure of both sides to reach agreement on an agenda for political dialogue. The majority of the opposition groups in the country decided to boycott the presidential elections, which were held on 21 June. The next day, provisional results were announced with the incumbent, President Mohamed Ould Abdel Aziz, receiving 81.9 per cent of the vote. Worrisome trends in respect of food insecurity, malnutrition and population displacement persisted in the country. The Government distributed food items to assist in addressing the needs of some 300,000 people (about 10 per cent of the population) suffering from food insecurity. Negative coping mechanisms, such as the selling off of livestock, reducing meals and removing children from school, continued to be reported.

On a positive note, in February, Mauritania adopted a road map for the implementation of the recommendations of the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of slavery, including its causes and its consequences, in the context of the eradication of slavery practices in Mauritania. This followed a consultative process between the Government, civil society and other national actors, in close cooperation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights.

Horn of Africa

Sudan–South Sudan

Some progress was made towards resolving the remaining issues between the Sudan and South Sudan, but political uncertainty and armed conflict within the two countries continued. A comprehensive political settlement to the crisis in the Darfur region of the Sudan had yet to be reached. Fighting continued between the Government and armed movements, as did attacks against civilians. On 27 January, the President of the Sudan announced that the Government planned to initiate an all-inclusive national dialogue. In December, he announced the resumption of “Operation Decisive Summer”, aimed at eliminating armed movements in Darfur and the Two Areas that did not heed the Government’s call for dialogue. The political and armed opposition in the Sudan adopted a joint declaration entitled the “Sudan Call” pledging to end the wars and to create a comprehensive solution. The mandate of the African Union–United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID) was extended until 30 June 2015.

The security situation in the Abyei Area remained relatively calm despite underlying tensions. Unauthorized armed elements remained in the Area, and the Sudan Oil Police continued to maintain personnel inside the Diffra oil complex in northern Abyei in violation of the 20 June 2011 Agreement. In May, South Sudan resumed participation in the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. At a summit meeting in November, the Presidents of the Sudan and South Sudan agreed to the resumption of meetings of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee. The Secretary-General decided to reconfigure the leadership of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei (UNISFA) and appoint a civilian as Head of Mission, separating the functions of that position from those of the Force Commander. He called on the African Union Commission to report on its investigation into the 2013 assassination of the Ngok Dinka Paramount Chief, which remained a source a tension between the Sudan and South Sudan. The UNISFA mandate was extended until 28 February 2015.

Political and security developments

Communications. On 8 January [S/2014/21], the Sudan transmitted to the Security Council a 7 January press release concerning a press conference held the previous day at the Khartoum Airport in the Sudan. The Foreign Minister of the Sudan indicated that, at the request of the Ministry of Petroleum of South Sudan, some 900 Sudanese technicians would, if necessary, be dispatched to work in the oil fields of South Sudan under the supervision of the Ministry of Petroleum.

On 3 February [S/2014/81], the Sudan transmitted to the Council a press statement and an explanatory note issued by the Sudanese International Aid Commission regarding the suspension of the activities of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) in the Sudan. The Sudan said that the documents attached to the note proved that ICRC did not comply with the humanitarian principles and guidelines that governed relations with the host country.

On 10 April [S/2014/259], the Sudan transmitted to the Council a press statement issued by the Sudanese Armed Forces (SAF) in response to accusations made by the spokesperson for the Sudan People’s Liberation Army (SPLA) that SAF were conducting unusual movements, deployments and incursions along the borders. The Sudan stated that, on the contrary, it was monitoring the ongoing fighting in South Sudan and, within the Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD) mediation team, was seeking an end to the crisis in that country. SAF confirmed that they had not carried out any hostile movements or deployments along the borders. They reaffirmed the commitment of the Sudan to the implementation of the cooperation agreements between the two countries, including security agreements on the definition of the zero line for the Safe Demilitarization Border Zone and the operationalization of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism.

In a 16 July letter [S/2014/500] to the Council, the Sudan, referring to a press statement made the same day by the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator, stated that the military activities conducted by SAF in Blue Nile and Kordofan States were in response to the escalation of attacks by rebel armed groups. The Sudan welcomed the tripartite initiative to deliver humanitarian assistance in the two states, but the Sudan People’s Liberation Movement–North (SPLM-N) repeatedly rejected the initiative and deliberately impeded access to affected people under its control.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 8 August [meeting 7240], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/16 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council expresses grave alarm and concern regarding the substantial deterioration of the political and security situation and developing humanitarian catastrophe in South Sudan resulting from the internal Sudan People’s Liberation Movement political dispute and unrelenting violence, including against civilians, caused by the country’s political and military leaders since 15 December 2013.

The Council strongly condemns the repeated violations of the cessation of hostilities agreement accepted and signed by South Sudan and the Sudan People’s Liberation Movement/Army (in Opposition) on 23 January 2014, and emphasizes that the actions of President Salva Kiir and former Vice President Riek Machar in continuing to pursue a military solution to this conflict are unacceptable.

The Council urgently calls upon President Salva Kiir, former Vice-President Riek Machar and all parties to implement the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan signed on 9 May 2014 by South Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement/Army (in Opposition), to engage fully and inclusively in ongoing peace talks in Addis Ababa, and to uphold their commitment to establish a Transitional Government of National Unity, for which the deadline was set as 10 August 2014, and in this regard strongly appeals to the parties to finalize appropriate arrangements without further delay, and expresses its readiness to consider, in consultation with relevant partners, including the Intergovernmental Authority on Development and the African Union, all appropriate measures, including targeted sanctions, against those who take action that undermines the peace, stability and security of South Sudan, including those who prevent the implementation of these agreements.

The Council strongly condemns reported and ongoing human rights violations and abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, including those involving extrajudicial killings, ethnically targeted violence, sexual and gender-based violence, rape, recruitment and use of children, enforced disappearances, arbitrary arrests and detention, violence aimed at spreading terror among the civilian population, and attacks on schools and hospitals as well as United Nations peacekeeping personnel, by all parties, including armed groups and national security forces. The Council recalls that some of these acts may amount to war crimes or crimes against humanity under international law.

The Council emphasizes the need to ensure accountability for serious violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law. In that regard, the Council underscores the importance of the ongoing work of the African Union Commission of Inquiry on South Sudan and looks forward to its findings and recommendations, and welcomes the efforts of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan to continue to monitor, investigate and publicly report on human rights violations and abuses in pursuit of justice and an end to impunity, as set out in resolution 2155(2014).

The Council underscores its grave concern about the catastrophic food insecurity situation in South Sudan that may soon reach the threshold of famine as a result of continued conflict, civilian targeting, and displacement, stresses the responsibility borne by all parties to the conflict for the suffering of the people of South Sudan and the necessity of ensuring that the basic needs of the population are met, underscores the urgent need to increase funding for humanitarian operations in South Sudan, and encourages States Members of the United Nations to contribute funds critically needed now to provide life-saving assistance.

The Council condemns all attacks against humanitarian personnel and facilities, commends United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners for their efforts to provide urgent and coordinated support to the population, and calls upon all parties to the conflict to allow and facilitate, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, the full, safe and unhindered access of relief personnel, equipment and supplies to all those in need and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance, in particular to internally displaced persons and refugees.

The Council renews its deep appreciation for the actions taken by Mission personnel and troop- and police-contributing countries to protect tens of thousands of civilians under threat of physical violence and to stabilize the security situation.

The Council commends the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, as supported by the United Nations and African Union, for its relentless work in establishing a forum for political and security dialogue, establishing and operationalizing the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism for the cessation of hostilities agreement, and leading multi-stakeholder political negotiations to establish a Transitional Government of National Unity.

Note by Security Council President. In a 21 August note [S/2014/613], the Security Council President stated that, following consultations with Council members, it had been agreed to amend the reporting period established in resolution 2046(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 184] and amended by the Council in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 209] for the status of compliance by the Sudan, South Sudan and SPLM-N with the decisions set forth in that resolution.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 15 December [meeting 7341], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/26 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council recalls the great hope and optimism felt by the South Sudanese people at the establishment of the Republic of South Sudan in July 2011 and the prospect of the end of decades of civil war. On the one-year mark of the outbreak of the current conflict it expresses its profound disappointment that their aspirations have not been met, and that instead the actions of their leaders have led to yet more fighting and division.

The Council recalls with deep alarm the escalation of the internal Sudan People's Liberation Movement political dispute that erupted into conflict on 15 December 2013 and the subsequent violence caused by the country's political and military leaders that has plunged this young nation into a man-made political, security and humanitarian catastrophe over this past year.

The Council underscores its strong condemnation of the serious human rights violations and abuses that have caused the death of tens of thousands of civilians, the displacement of nearly 2 million people in just 12 months, and the attacks upon, and deaths of, United Nations peacekeepers and humanitarian personnel. In this regard, it places full responsibility for these tragic events with South Sudan's leaders, those in government as well as with the opposition, and looks to President

Salva Kiir Mayardit and former Vice-President Riek Machar Teny to make the necessary compromises for peace.

The Council commends the work of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development in leading the mediation since the onset of the crisis, the initiatives by the African Union, including to establish a mechanism for seeking accountability and reconciliation through its Commission of Inquiry on South Sudan, the overwhelming humanitarian assistance offered by the international community to help to mitigate the consequences of the conflict, including staving off famine in 2014, and the hosting by South Sudan's neighbours of nearly 500,000 refugees from South Sudan.

The Council renews its deep appreciation for the courageous actions taken and ongoing by United Nations Mission in South Sudan personnel and troop- and police-contributing countries to protect tens of thousands of civilians under threat of physical violence and to stabilize the security situation, and pays tribute to those peacekeepers who have tragically been killed in this endeavour, and expresses condolences to their families.

The Council expresses its grave concern that, given the continued disregard of the cessation of hostilities agreement of 23 January 2014 and the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan of 9 May 2014, and the absence of the establishment and implementation of a credible peace agreement, the risks of famine, State failure and regionalization of the conflict persist.

In this regard, the Council urgently demands that President Salva Kiir Mayardit, former Vice-President Riek Machar Teny and all parties refrain from further violence, implement the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan signed on 9 May 2014 by South Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement/Army (in Opposition), engage fully and inclusively in ongoing peace talks in Addis Ababa, uphold their commitment to establish a Transitional Government of National Unity, and allow and facilitate, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, the full, safe and unhindered access of relief personnel, equipment and supplies to all those in need and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance.

The Council reiterates its intention to commence consideration, in consultation with relevant partners, including the Intergovernmental Authority on Development and the African Union, on all appropriate measures, including targeted sanctions, against those impeding the peace process. The Council underscores the significant importance of fighting impunity and ensuring accountability for serious violations and abuses of human rights and serious violations of international humanitarian law in South Sudan, and of continued delivery of life-saving and other humanitarian assistance to the South Sudanese people.

Darfur

Report of Secretary-General (February). In February [S/2014/138], the Secretary-General issued a special report on the review of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID), which was requested by the Security Council in resolution 2113(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 211].

The Secretary-General stated that, six years following the transition from the African Union Mission in the Sudan to UNAMID, a comprehensive political settlement to the Darfur crisis had yet to be reached. Fighting continued, and protection and humanitarian assistance needs among the civilian population remained considerable. Humanitarian space continued to be challenged and UNAMID was subject to increasingly hostile action. The conflict in Darfur continued to take place within the context of pre-existing root causes that included the loss or severe disruption of traditional livelihoods, weakened traditional dispute resolution mechanisms, impunity and weak rule of law, weak or absent State administrations in rural areas, the prevalence of arms and armed militias, a lack of trust between and within communities, the manipulation of social divisions, and cycles of retaliatory violence. A deterioration in the economy of the Sudan following the secession of South Sudan in July 2011 [YUN 2011, p. 196] seriously undermined security in Darfur. The Sudan lost three quarters of its oil production as a result, which, according to the International Monetary Fund (IMF), accounted for half its previous fiscal revenue and a third of its export proceeds. Resource-based clashes between communities had intensified significantly since the economic downturn in mid-2012 and eclipsed military clashes as the primary cause of violence against civilians and of population displacement.

The review identified three major challenges faced by UNAMID in the effective discharge of its mandate: the cooperation and partnership of the Government, major shortfalls in several troop- and police-contingent capabilities, and the need for improved coordination and integration structures within the Mission, and between the Mission and the UN country team. It also identified three strategic priorities for UNAMID: mediation between the Government and non-signatory armed movements based on the 2011 Doha Document for Peace in Darfur [YUN 2011, p. 220]; the protection of civilians, the facilitation of the delivery of humanitarian assistance and the safety and security of humanitarian personnel; and the provision of support, in conjunction with the UN country team, to the mediation of community conflict. The review recommended a range of measures to improve the effectiveness of UNAMID, and that a period of one year following the consideration of its findings by the Security Council be taken for the effects of the measures to be seen. During that time, efforts to address troop- and police-contingent shortcomings would be redoubled so that the contingents fully met the requirements set out in the memorandum of understanding. Coordination between military, police and civilian components and between UNAMID and the UN country team would be enhanced. Gaps in the Mission's integrated strategic and operational architecture would be addressed. To improve coordination between UNAMID and the UN country team, the full requirements of the United Nations Policy on Integrated Assessment and Planning would be put in place, including the articulation of a common UN and AU vision; the establishment of integrated mechanisms for joint analysis, planning, coordination, monitoring and decision-making; and the development and implementation of an updated integrated strategic framework. The Secretary-General proposed that the benchmarks set out in his October 2012 report [YUN 2012, p. 195] be adjusted to reflect the revised strategic priorities. The updated proposed benchmarks, with progress indicators, were annexed to the report. He urged the Security Council to support the recommendations set out in the report as part of the collective effort to enable UNAMID to reach its full potential.

Communication. On 11 March [S/2014/178], the Sudan transmitted to the Security Council a statement regarding a series of attacks conducted by the Darfurian armed movements, which consisted of non-signatories of the Doha Document [YUN 2011, p. 217]. The attacks resulted in the destruction of some villages, as well as atrocities committed against innocent civilians. The attacks were carried out upon the suspension of the talks in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia between the Sudan and SPLM-N.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 3 April [meeting 7152], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2148(2014). The draft [S/2014/236] was submitted by Australia, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming all its previous resolutions and the statements by its President concerning the situation in the Sudan, and underlining the importance of full compliance with these,

Reaffirming also its strong commitment to the sovereignty, unity, independence and territorial integrity of the Sudan and its determination to work with the Government of the Sudan, in full respect of its sovereignty, to assist in tackling the various challenges in the Sudan,

Recalling the importance of the principles of the peaceful settlement of international disputes, good-neighbourliness, non-interference and cooperation in the relations among States in the region,

Recalling also its resolution 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013 and reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the need and situation of the country concerned,

Commending the efforts of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur towards promoting peace and stability in Darfur, and reiterating its full support for the Operation,

Expressing deep concern at the considerable deterioration of the security situation in Darfur during 2013, with continued clashes between the Government of the Sudan and rebel armed groups and an intensification of intercommunal violence, including with the involvement of elements of paramilitary units and tribal militias, which has become the main source of violence against civilians and of population displacement,

Expressing concern at the prevalence of arms in Darfur and the continued threats to civilians posed by unexploded ordnance,

Expressing deep concern at the impact of deteriorating security on the civilian population, including the significant increase in population displacements in 2013, and the consequent increase in humanitarian and protection needs, including related to sexual and gender-based violence and violence against children; noting that humanitarian actors were able to reach the majority of people in need of humanitarian assistance in Darfur in 2013, with the notable exception of those vulnerable populations in areas of active fighting, including the East Jebel Marra region; in this regard expressing particular concern at reports of an escalation of violence in Darfur since February 2014, resulting in the displacement of a large number of civilians, and at the denial of access for the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and humanitarian actors to the affected areas by the Sudanese authorities; and further expressing concern over the insufficient availability of funding for humanitarian actors,

Reiterating its strong condemnation of attacks against the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, and its call upon the Government of the Sudan swiftly to investigate these attacks and to bring the perpetrators to justice, and upon all parties in Darfur to cooperate fully with the Operation,

Reiterating also that there can be no military solution to the conflict in Darfur and that an inclusive political settlement is essential to re-establishing peace, and underscoring the importance of fully addressing the root causes of the conflict in the search for a sustainable peace, which should rapidly deliver real benefits for the Darfuri people, and in this regard reiterating its support for the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur as a solid basis for the Darfur peace process, and for its accelerated implementation,

Noting, in this regard, that the ability of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to facilitate progress in implementation of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur is hampered by delays by the signatory parties and the absence of an inclusive political settlement between the Government of the Sudan and non-signatory movements, expressing concern that the humanitarian and security situation, as well as the lack of capacity of the Darfur Regional Authority, hinders the transition from relief to stabilization and development activities, urging donors to honour their pledges and fulfil their obligations in a timely manner, including those commitments made at the conference held in Doha in April 2013, and affirming that development can support a lasting peace in Darfur,

Commending the efforts of the African Union-United Nations Joint Special Representative for Darfur, Mr. Mohamed ibn Chambas, to revitalize the peace process, including through renewed engagement of the non-signatory movements, and urging all parties to the conflict to cease all acts of violence immediately and to engage in the peace process without preconditions on the basis of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur, in order to bring a durable and stable peace to the region,

Encouraging the Joint Special Representative to continue his efforts to increase the inclusiveness of the political process, guided by the framework for African Union and United Nations facilitation of the Darfur peace process, and to coordinate with the African Union-High level Implementation Panel and the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan and South Sudan to synchronize their mediation efforts while taking into account ongoing transformation at the national level, welcoming in this regard the announcement by President Bashir on 27 January 2014 of a national dialogue, noting that the modalities of such a dialogue should provide an opportunity to address the legitimate grievances of the people of Darfur, looking forward to further developments towards the implementation of an inclusive dialogue process, and stressing the importance of the effective participation of women in this process and in efforts towards peace in Darfur,

Noting that local dispute resolution mechanisms play an important role in preventing and resolving intercommunal conflict, including conflict over natural resources, and urging an intensification of effective efforts to prevent local disputes leading to violence, with its corresponding impact on the local civilian populations, acknowledging the efforts of Sudanese authorities and local mediators to mediate in inter-tribal fighting, with support from the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the United Nations country team, and urging their continued work,

Welcoming that, over the last year, cooperation between the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the Government of the Sudan has resulted in improvements in mandate implementation, including through the more timely issuance of visas, but expressing deep concern that continued access restrictions and delays in the issuance of customs clearances for contingent-owned equipment significantly undermine the effectiveness of the Operation, and further expressing deep concern that the delivery of humanitarian assistance is constrained and delayed by particular restrictions facing humanitarian actors, and that insufficient cooperation by the Government, particularly in terms of access, seriously constrains the Operation's ability to operate,

Expressing deep concern that shortfalls in the operational capabilities of some military and police components seriously constrain the force's mobility, effectiveness and ability to deter and respond robustly to attacks,

Noting the need for effective coordination and integration structures within the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, and between the Operation and the United Nations country team, and encouraging swift development and implementation of a clearer strategic vision, priorities and a strategic and operational planning system within the Operation, as well as an improved early warning and response mechanism and coordination of protection of civilians activities with the country team,

Recalling the communiqué issued by the Peace and Security Council of the African Union on 24 March 2014,

1. Welcomes and endorses the special report of the Secretary-General of 25 February 2014 on the review of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and its recommendations, submitted pursuant to Security Council resolution 2113(2013) of 30 July 2013;

2. Takes note of the proposed adjustment of the benchmarks and indicators for the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur outlined in the report of the Secretary-General, and requests the Secretary-General to further refine these benchmarks and indicators to reflect the revised strategic priorities of the Operation, and submit them in his next 90-day report;

3. Stresses the important role of the African Union in supporting implementation of the review of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, and welcomes the continued efforts of the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism, including in performing important coordination, support and liaison functions;

4. Endorses the revised strategic priorities of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, namely, the protection of civilians, the facilitation of the delivery of humanitarian assistance and the safety and security of humanitarian personnel; mediation between the Government of the Sudan and non-signatory armed movements on the basis of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur, while taking into account ongoing democratic transformation at the national level; and support to the mediation of community conflict, including through measures to address its root causes, in conjunction with the United Nations country team;

5. Requests the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to focus and streamline its activities across its military, police and civilian components in order to achieve progress on these three strategic priorities, recognizes that their effective implementation will require certain Operation tasks to be deprioritized, and requests the Secretary-General to include these tasks in his next regular report on the Operation;

6. Takes note of the intention of the Secretary-General to reduce the police component of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur swiftly, in order to increase the effectiveness of that component, requests the Secretary-General to provide detailed and updated information on the implementation of this reduction in his next report, and stresses in this regard the importance of effective deployment, training and operational capability of the police component of the Operation;

7. Notes that the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur faces three major challenges in the effective discharge of its mandate, in the light of the evolving political and security environment, namely, the cooperation and partnership of the Government of the Sudan in mandate implementation; major shortfalls in several troop- and police-contingent operational capabilities; and the need for improved coordination and integration structures within the Operation and between the Operation and the United Nations country team;

8. Requests that the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur identify, in the context of these challenges, steps by which it will achieve its revised strategic priorities more effectively, and further requests the Secretary-General to report on these steps in his regular reports to the Council on the Operation;

9. Welcomes the planned efforts on the part of the United Nations and the relevant troop- and police-contributing countries to address shortfalls in the operational capabilities of some contingents, including enhanced engagement by the African Union and the United Nations Secretariat with these countries, and encourages the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to move to a more preventive and pre-emptive posture in pursuit of its priorities and in active defence of its mandate, building on positive steps taken so far, without prejudice to the agreed basic principles of peacekeeping;

10. Stresses the need to address gaps in the integrated strategic and operational architecture of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, calls upon the Operation and the United Nations country team to put in place the full requirements of the United Nations Policy on Integrated Assessment and Planning, including the establishment of integrated mechanisms for joint analysis, planning, coordination, monitoring and decision-making, especially for joint operational planning for the military and police on protection of civilians, further calls upon the Secretariat to assist the Operation in these tasks, and requests that the Secretary-General include steps taken in this regard in his next regular report to the Council on the Operation;

11. Notes with concern the strategic gap in mobility for the mission and the continuing critical need for aviation capacity and other mobility assets, including military utility helicopters for the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, calls upon Member States to redouble their efforts to provide aviation units to the mission, and upon the Government of the Sudan to facilitate the deployment of those assets already pledged, and requests the Secretary-General to include information on related force generation efforts in his regular reports, and on what other strategies can offset this critical military gap;

12. Urges all relevant actors to implement the review of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur swiftly and fully, requests the Secretary-General to include in his next regular report to the Council on the Operation specific information and operational recommendations as required on the cost efficiency and reduction of the military, police and civilian components of the Operation to maximize its effectiveness in the implementation of its revised strategic priorities, and expresses its intention to make necessary adjustments accordingly;

13. Calls upon all parties in Darfur to remove all obstacles to the full and proper discharge of the mandate of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, and calls upon the Government of the Sudan to comply with the status-of-forces agreement fully and without delay, and to enhance its cooperation with the Operation on the implementation of its mandate;

14. Stresses the importance of effective monitoring and evaluation of the impact of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur in order to improve its effectiveness, and looks forward to considering progress in implementation of the review on the basis of the regular reports of the Secretary-General to the Council;

15. Looks forward to assessing the initial impact of implementation of the review before renewing the mandate of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur in August 2014, and expresses its intention to ensure that the mandate of the Operation reflects the revised strategic priorities set out in the special report of the Secretary-General;

16. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Reports of Secretary-General (April and July).

In response to Security Council resolution 2113(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 211], the Secretary-General submitted an April report on UNAMID [S/2014/279], which provided an update and analysis of the conflict in Darfur and the political and operational environment. It also contained information on the implementation of the strategic priorities outlined in his February special report (see p. 301) and, as requested in Council resolution 2148(2014) (see p. 302), progress on strengthening and streamlining UNAMID operations.

An upsurge in violence was destabilizing Darfur at three interconnected levels. First, the deteriorating economic situation led to increasing conflict among tribes over land and resources. Second, the deployment to the region of Government-aligned militia, known as Rapid Support Forces, undermined the security of civilians, their property and livelihoods. Third, the security situation was aggravated by attacks by rebel groups against Government forces and indiscriminate bombardments by the Sudanese Armed Forces in areas of rebel control. The escalation of the conflict caused a further deterioration of the humanitarian situation. Approximately 250,000 people were estimated to have fled violence since February. Access to areas of active hostilities was extremely limited, affecting both the delivery of humanitarian assistance and the ability to provide services. UNAMID provided protection to almost 60,000 displaced persons who sought refuge within or near UNAMID team sites in Saraf Umra, Khor Abeche and Korma.

The Joint Chief Mediator, Mohamed Ibn Chambas, continued efforts to bring the parties closer to agreement on direct negotiations. Despite the Government's repeated expressions of readiness for direct negotiations, two key obstacles remained. The armed groups continued to press for a comprehensive, national process to address the Sudan's challenges, rejecting the Doha Document as a basis for talks, and continued to insist on entering negotiations with the Government as the Sudanese Revolutionary Front, which was formed in September 2011 with SPLM-N. The Joint Chief Mediator engaged the Government and the armed movements separately, urging the non-signatory movements to join the peace process on the basis of the Doha Document without preconditions. The armed movements committed themselves to a negotiated settlement of the conflict and the preservation of the territorial integrity and unity of the Sudan. The Government maintained its objection to any parallel peace process.

On 27 January, President al-Bashir announced that his Government planned to initiate an all-inclusive national dialogue that would focus on peace and security; political reforms and democratization; economic reforms; and national identity. The Government announced security guarantees for the participation of the armed movements, including freedoms of association, assembly and press. On 10 and 11 February in Kampala, the Joint Chief Mediator met the leaders of the three-armed movements, including Minni Minawi, Gibril Ibrahim and, for the first time, Abdul Wahid. The movements' leaders welcomed the idea of a national dialogue as a positive step, but fell short of committing to participation and announced their intention to unveil their own proposals for a dialogue. Subsequently, the Joint Chief Mediator held a meeting on 8 March in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, between the leaders of Minni Minawi and Gibril Ibrahim. They encouraged the armed movements to enter into direct negotiations with the Government of the Sudan and to participate fully in the national dialogue. On the same day, the Chairperson of the AU High-level Implementation Panel, Thabo Mbeki, and the Joint Chief Mediator met with the armed groups to explore ways to synchronize the two mediation efforts in support of the national dialogue. The President of Chad, Idriss Déby Itno, initiated a second mediation forum in Um Jaras from 26 to 29 March. The forum was attended by Zaghawa leaders, the Vice-President of the Sudan, Hassabo Mohamed Abdul Rahman, the Joint Chief Mediator, and traditional and tribal leaders. President al-Bashir joined the forum on 29 March.

Progress in the implementation of the Doha Document remained limited. Following the agreement on final security arrangements, signed on 20 November 2013, the Government and the Liberation and Justice Movement (LJM) agreed, at a meeting of the Joint Commission held on 25 February, to integrate three LJM battalions into the Sudan Armed Forces and Police. The remaining 12,570 of the 15,000 combatants declared by LJM were to undergo a disarmament, demobilization and reintegration process. The other signatory, the Justice and Equality Movement-Sudan (JEM-Sudan), began preparations for the verification of its combatants with the support of the Darfur Ceasefire Commission, with a view to entering a similar agreement with the Government.

In accordance with the reprioritized strategy recommended by the strategic review of UNAMID, outlined in the Secretary-General's February report (see p. 301), the Mission's police component would refocus its activities on supporting physical protection of civilians, facilitating humanitarian assistance, and creating a protective environment by coordinating police capacity-building and community-oriented policing initiatives. UNAMID and the UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO) conducted a thorough task analysis of the police component, which led to the restructuring of its command and control and the reduction of 723 individual police officers, 4 formed police units, and 4 professional police posts. The military component would create two additional sectors to align its operations with State structures and reduce 200 military observers, staff officers and liaison officers following a review of their deployment and tasking. One heavy transport company would be repatriated. The first phase of streamlining focused on the components of HIV/AIDS; gender; disarmament, demobilization and reintegration; child protection; and rule of law. In addition to the civilian staffing review that was concluded in November 2013, which led to a reduction of 19 posts in those sections, an additional 65 posts would be reduced, resulting in an overall reduction of 46 per cent of the posts in those areas.

The Secretary-General demanded that the Government stop using militia elements in its counter-insurgency efforts and put an end to their abuses against civilians. He also demanded that the non-signatory movements lay down their arms and commit fully to the peace process. The Secretary-General called on the signatory parties and international partners to redouble their efforts to implement the Doha Document and address issues of political inclusion. He called on the Government to ensure full access to areas in conflict for UNAMID and humanitarian and recovery actors in Darfur.

In his July report on UNAMID [S/2014/515], the Secretary-General stated that, following successive weeks of continued degradation of the security situation and attacks against civilians in Darfur, violence decreased considerably in May before rising again in mid-June. The operations of the Rapid Support Forces were considerably reduced. Local sources in North Darfur reported that on 7 April, air strikes by the Sudanese Armed Forces hit the village of Lill near Um Baru, killing one civilian and injuring eight others. On 26 April, an air strike on the village of Orschi resulted in the deaths of three civilians and the destruction of a water point, market and school. On 8 and 28 April, the Sudanese Armed Forces reportedly targeted elements of the Sudanese Revolutionary Front with air strikes on the villages of Kunjara, Tarne and Thabit. In Central Darfur, reports were received of air strikes by the Sudanese Armed Forces on 26 April on the villages of Noume, Tagora and Tajina, following air strikes on the villages of Ro Fata, Logu and Osaji-ang in March. On 28 April, the Sudan Liberation Army-Abdul Wahid (SLA/AW) reportedly attacked a Sudanese Armed Forces camp in the town of Rockero, resulting in the deaths of 7 government soldiers and 3 SLA/AW elements. On 29 April, Government forces attacked the villages of Kirro, Bardane and Nawni in Central Darfur, displacing some 5,000 civilians to neighbouring areas.

Despite multiple challenges, humanitarian access improved in April and May. Humanitarian agencies were able to reach most of the areas affected by fighting and tribal clashes after sustained advocacy with state authorities. Restrictions of movement of UNAMID also decreased considerably. The Mission's police component was reduced by 723 officers in May.

The AU and the UN Joint Special Representative/ Joint Chief Mediator for Darfur engaged regularly with senior officials of the Government of the Sudan on the need for direct negotiations. He stressed that it was important for the Government to ensure that four key freedoms enabling a conducive environment for the national dialogue were respected—namely, freedom for political parties to carry out their activities, freedom of the press, the release of political detainees, and assurances that the rebel groups could participate in the national dialogue preparations freely and with security guarantees.

On 13 April, the Sudanese Revolutionary Front issued a road map to comprehensive political settlement in the Sudan, in which it reiterated its call for a holistic approach to settling the conflicts in the Sudan and bringing democratic change to the country. It urged the Government to create a conducive environment for national dialogue and to introduce confidence-building measures that included protection of civilians in regions of conflict; a negotiated cessation of hostilities, including an agreement on unhindered humanitarian access to all conflict areas; and the holding of a preparatory conference outside the Sudan for all stakeholders to discuss the modalities for the national dialogue.

Some progress was made towards the implementation of the Doha Document. In a meeting between the Government and JEM-Sudan convened by the Ceasefire Commission on 18 May, JEM-Sudan committed to beginning a troop verification exercise and to submitting the location of its troops to the Commission. JEM-Sudan was fully represented in the Implementation Follow-up Commission, the Ceasefire Commission and the Joint Commission. On 26 May, the Implementation Committee of the Darfur internal dialogue and consultation was launched in El Fasher. On 15 June, the Darfur Regional Authority inaugurated the Justice, Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

The Secretary-General observed that, despite recent gains, the humanitarian situation in Darfur remained fragile. He called on the Government to ensure that humanitarian actors could operate in Darfur and on donors to provide the financial resources necessary to reach those in need. He also called on the parties to the Doha Document to create mechanisms to address intercommunal conflict, implement the security provisions of the peace framework, and address issues of justice, protection and economic and social recovery. The Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council consider extending the UNAMID mandate until 31 August 2015.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 27 August [meeting 7250], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2173(2014).

The draft [S/2014/628] was sponsored by France, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming all its previous resolutions and the statements by its President concerning the situation in the Sudan, and underlining the importance of full compliance with these,

Reaffirming also its strong commitment to the sovereignty, unity, independence and territorial integrity of the Sudan and its determination to work with the Government of the Sudan, in full respect of its sovereignty, to assist in tackling the various challenges in the Sudan,

Recalling the importance of the principles of the peaceful settlement of international disputes, good-neighbourliness, non-interference and cooperation in the relations among States in the region,

Reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the country concerned,

Reaffirming also its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict and resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003 on the protection of humanitarian and United Nations personnel; resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict; resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security, and resolution 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013 on United Nations peacekeeping operations,

Expressing deep concern at the serious deterioration in the security situation overall so far in 2014, and the profound negative impact of this on civilians, in particular women and children, including through continued clashes between government forces and rebel armed groups, an escalation of inter-tribal fighting and other local clashes, including with the involvement of paramilitary units and tribal militias, and an increase in criminality and banditry, further expressing deep concern that such clashes, including attacks by rebel groups and government forces and aerial bombardment by the Government of the Sudan, inter-tribal fighting, banditry and criminality continue to threaten civilians, while welcoming a slight improvement in the security situation since May, and reiterating its demand that all parties to the conflict in Darfur immediately end violence, including attacks on civilians, peacekeepers and humanitarian personnel,

Recalling its resolution 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013, and expressing concern at the threat to peace and security in Darfur arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons, and the continued threats to civilians posed by unexploded ordnance,

Expressing deep concern at the significant increase in population displacements in 2014 and the consequent increase in humanitarian assistance and protection needs, with an estimated 359,000 persons newly displaced since January 2014, about 260,000 of whom have been unable to return to their homes, alongside more than 2 million long-term internally displaced persons,

Recalling the commitments made by the Government of the Sudan and other signatories to the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur to ensure the unimpeded access of humanitarian assistance to the population in need and the protection of humanitarian workers and their operations in areas under their control, as well as to guarantee the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur unimpeded freedom of movement in all areas and at all times in Darfur in the exercise of its mandate,

Expressing concern that the suspension of operations or the withdrawal of some international humanitarian actors has left significant gaps in the delivery of humanitarian assistance, calling upon the Government of the Sudan to ensure that humanitarian actors can operate in support of addressing basic needs, and calling upon donors, the Darfur Regional Authority and the Government of the Sudan to provide the financial resources necessary to reach those in need,

Reiterating that there can be no military solution to the conflict in Darfur and that an inclusive political settlement is essential to re-establishing peace, and underscoring the importance of fully addressing the root causes of the conflict in the search for a sustainable peace, which should rapidly deliver real benefits for the Darfuri people, in this regard reiterating its support for the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur as a viable framework for the Darfur peace process, and for its accelerated implementation, and noting that this process and the national initiative for dialogue in the Sudan could be complementary and mutually reinforcing processes,

Welcoming, in this regard, the announcement by President Bashir on 27 January 2014 of a national dialogue, noting that the modalities of such a dialogue should provide an opportunity to address the legitimate grievances of the people of Darfur, that the national dialogue has the potential to offer an opportunity to pave the way for lasting peace throughout the Sudan, building on existing peace processes, including the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur, noting the stated commitment of the Government of the Sudan to an inclusive national dialogue, and calling for an enabling environment conducive to the national dialogue, which would constitute a key step towards achieving a credible, transparent, inclusive, nationally owned and Sudanese-led process; further calling upon all parties to engage constructively with this process, urging all parties to refrain from any attempt to obstruct it, and looking forward to further developments towards the implementation of an inclusive dialogue process,

Deploing the fact that some armed groups have refused to join the peace process and are impeding the implementation of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur, reiterating its demand for the release of members of the former movement of Mohamed Bashir, taken captive in May 2013 by Justice and Equality Movement-Gibril Ibrahim forces, and condemning any actions by any armed group aimed at forced overthrow of the Government of the Sudan,

Noting, in this regard, that the ability of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to facilitate progress in the implementation of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur is hampered by delays by the signatory parties and the absence of an inclusive political settlement between the Government of the Sudan and non-signatory movements, urging the signatory parties to take the remaining steps necessary to implement the Doha Document fully, expressing concern that the humanitarian and security situation, as well as the lack of capacity of the Darfur Regional Authority, hinder the transition from relief to stabilization and development activities, urging donors and the Government of the Sudan to honour their pledges and fulfil their obligations in a timely manner, including those commitments made at the conference held in Doha in April 2013, welcoming the confirmation by the Government of Qatar of its pledge of 88.5 million United States dollars and the transfer of 10 million dollars of this amount to the United Nations Darfur Fund in April 2014, and affirming that development can support a lasting peace in Darfur,

Noting also that local dispute resolution mechanisms play an important role in preventing and resolving intercommunal conflict, including conflict over natural resources, and urging an intensification of effective efforts to prevent local disputes leading to violence, with its corresponding impact on the local civilian populations, acknowledging the efforts of Sudanese authorities and local mediators to mediate in inter-tribal fighting, with support from the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the United Nations country team, and urging their continued work,

Welcoming regional and other initiatives, undertaken in close interaction with the Government of the Sudan, to address the root causes of the conflict in Darfur and to promote a sustainable peace, including the convening by the President of Chad, Mr. Idriss Déby Itno, of a second mediation forum in Um Jaras from 26 to 29 March 2014, and encouraging the full coordination of such initiatives with the efforts of the African Union-United Nations Joint Special Representative for Darfur,

Underlining, without prejudice to the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security, the importance of the partnership between the United Nations and the African Union, consistent with Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations, with regard to the maintenance of peace and security in Africa, particularly in the Sudan,

Calling upon all parties to comply with their obligations under international human rights law and international humanitarian law, stressing the importance that the Council attaches to ending impunity, including through ensuring accountability and bringing to justice the perpetrators of crimes committed by all parties in Darfur, urging the Government of the Sudan to comply with its obligations in this respect, welcoming the ongoing investigations by the Special Prosecutor for Darfur appointed by the Government and stressing the need for further progress in this regard, calling for swift progress on the draft memorandum of understanding providing for observation by the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the African Union of the proceedings of the Special Court for Darfur, and calling upon the Government swiftly to investigate attacks against the Operation and to bring the perpetrators to justice,

Reaffirming its concern over the negative effect of ongoing violence in Darfur on the stability of the Sudan as a whole as well as the region, welcoming the ongoing good relations between the Sudan and Chad, including on border control, and encouraging the Sudan, Chad and the Central African Republic to continue to cooperate in order to achieve peace and stability in Darfur and the wider region,

Commending the efforts of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur towards promoting peace and stability in Darfur, and reiterating its full support for the Operation,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General of 22 July 2014 on the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur,

Welcoming also the announcement by the Secretary-General on 2 July 2014 of a review, following recent serious allegations against the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, looking forward to the swift and thorough implementation of this review, and stressing the importance of prompt and effective action on the results of that review, if necessary,

Determining that the situation in the Sudan constitutes a threat to international peace and security,

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, as set out in resolution 1769(2007) of 31 July 2007, for a further 10 months, until 30 June 2015, in order to align the renewal cycle with the decision of the African Union Peace and Security Council of 9 July 2014, reiterates its endorsement of the revised strategic priorities of the Operation as set out in paragraph 4 of resolution 2148(2014) of 3 April 2014, and requests that the Operation continue to align all its activity and direct the use of its resources to the achievement of these priorities;

2. Notes that certain elements of the mandate and tasks of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, as authorized in resolution 1769(2007), in which it was decided that the mandate of the Operation shall be as set out in paragraphs 54 and 55 of the report of the Secretary-General and the Chairperson of the African Union Commission of 5 June 2007, are no longer relevant, namely those enumerated in paragraphs 54 (b), 55 (a) (v), and 55 (b) (ii), (iii) and (v) of that report;

3. Commends the efforts of the African Union-United Nations Joint Special Representative for Darfur to revitalize the peace process and to increase its inclusiveness, guided by the framework for African Union and United Nations facilitation of the Darfur peace process, including through renewed engagement of the non-signatory movements, and emphasizes the importance of the Joint Special Representative's strengthened coordination with the African Union High-level Implementation Panel and the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan and South Sudan in synchronizing their mediation efforts while taking into account ongoing transformation at the national level;

4. Decides that the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur shall consist of up to 15,845 military personnel, 1,583 police personnel and 13 formed police units of up to 140 personnel each;

5. Welcomes the steps taken so far by the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to implement the review of the Operation conducted pursuant to resolution 2113(2014) of 30 July 2013; requests continued swift and full implementation of the review, including the streamlining of all components of the Operation and aligning of activities to support achievement of its strategic priorities, and the discontinuing of all other tasks not aligned to the mission's strategic priorities; stresses the importance of the appropriate distribution of tasks and coordination between the Operation and the United Nations country team in order to implement the review of the Operation; and requests a detailed update on the streamlining of the civilian component by 15 September 2014;

6. Urges the Secretary-General and the African Union to expedite the appointment of personnel for leadership vacancies in the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur;

7. Requests the Secretary-General, in close consultation with the African Union, and seeking perspectives from all relevant parties, to conduct an analysis of the implementation of the review of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, including specific achievements reached under the revised strategic priorities, progress in addressing the challenges facing the mission, as identified by the review, any significant developments in the situation in Darfur and their impact on the mandate and tasks of the Operation, and an analysis of those tasks that remain relevant and on the fulfilment of which the United Nations country team has comparative advantage, with a road map to transfer those tasks to the fullest extent possible to the country team, taking into account the contributions of donors and other relevant actors; requests that he present this analysis, together with recommendations for the future mandate, composition, configuration and exit strategy of the Operation, as well as for its relationship with other United Nations actors in Darfur and the Sudan, by 28 February 2015; and expresses its intention to take decisions accordingly on the future of the Operation and to make necessary changes fully and promptly following presentation of the analysis and recommendations of the Secretary-General;

8. Underlines that the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur should continue to give priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources to (a) the protection of civilians across Darfur, including women and children, through, and without prejudice to the agreed basic principles of peacekeeping, inter alia, continuing to move to a more preventive and pre-emptive posture in pursuit of its priorities and in active defence of its mandate; enhanced early warning; proactive military deployment and active and effective patrolling in areas of high risk of conflict and high concentration of internally displaced persons; more prompt and effective responses to threats of violence against civilians, including through regular reviews of the geographic deployment of the Operation force; and securing camps for internally displaced persons, adjacent areas and areas of return, including development and training of community policing; and (b) ensuring safe, timely and unhindered humanitarian access and the safety and security of humanitarian personnel and activities, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance; and requests the Operation to maximize the use of its capabilities, in cooperation with the United Nations country team and other international and non-governmental actors, in the implementation of its mission-wide comprehensive strategy for the achievement of these objectives;

9. Emphasizes the Chapter VII mandate of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, as defined in resolution 1769(2007), to deliver its core tasks to protect civilians without prejudice to the primary responsibility of the Government of the Sudan and to ensure the freedom of movement and security of the Operation's own personnel and humanitarian workers; recalls that the Operation is authorized to take all the necessary action in fulfilment of this mandate; and urges the Operation to deter any threats against itself and its mandate;

10. Welcomes that some progress has been made in the implementation of some elements of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur, including steps towards the verification and integration of Liberation and Justice Movement and Justice and Equality Movement-Sudan combatants under the Doha Document security arrangements, but deplores continuing serious delays in overall implementation of the Doha Document; urges the signatory parties to implement the Doha Document in full, including by ensuring that the institutions established under it are resourced and empowered to carry out their mandates; welcomes in this regard the inauguration on 15 June 2014 of the Justice, Truth and Reconciliation Commission, and stresses the importance of its effective work; demands that the non-signatory armed groups refrain from impeding the implementation of the Doha Document; and encourages the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, in accordance with its revised strategic priorities, and the United Nations country team to continue to engage fully in support of the implementation of the Doha Document;

11. Demands that all parties to the conflict in Darfur, including in particular all the non-signatory armed groups, and other groups immediately cease all acts of violence and commit themselves to a sustained and permanent ceasefire, in order to bring a stable and durable peace to the region;

12. Reaffirms its support for a Darfur-based internal dialogue that takes place in an environment of full respect for the civil and political rights of participants, including the full and effective participation of women; welcomes the launch of the Implementation Committee of the Darfur Internal Dialogue and Consultation on 26 May 2014; expresses concern that prevailing insecurity, lack of adequate funding, and intimidation of participants could undermine effective implementation of the Dialogue and Consultation; calls upon the Government of the Sudan and the armed groups to ensure the necessary enabling environment; and requests the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to continue to support, monitor and report on the development of the Dialogue and Consultation and the overall environment for it;

13. Calls for an urgent end to inter-tribal clashes, criminality and banditry that affect civilians, and further calls for reconciliation and dialogue; expresses deep concern over the proliferation of arms, in particular small arms and light weapons; requests the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to continue to support local conflict resolution mechanisms, including with civil society mechanisms, and to continue to cooperate in this context with the Panel of Experts on the Sudan established pursuant to resolution 1591(2005) of 29 March 2005 in order to facilitate its work;

14. Commends the troop- and police-contributing countries of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur; welcomes that some progress has been made in addressing contingent-owned equipment and self-sustainment shortfalls, but expresses concern that significant shortfalls remain; and calls for continued efforts by the Operation, the Secretariat and troop- and police-contributing countries to address such shortfalls, including by providing appropriate training and resources to fulfil priority protection functions, especially in areas necessary for contingents' temporary deployment capability and ability to conduct long-range patrols;

15. Strongly condemns all attacks on the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, while noting the significant decline in fatal attacks on the Operation since August 2013; underlines that any attack or threat of attack on the Operation is unacceptable; demands that there be no recurrence of such attacks and that those responsible be held to account following prompt and thorough investigation; urges the Operation to take all measures necessary within its rules of engagement to protect United Nations personnel and equipment; condemns the ongoing impunity for those who attack peacekeepers, and in this regard urges the Government of the Sudan to do its utmost to bring all perpetrators of any such crimes to justice and to cooperate with the Operation to this end;

16. Welcomes the improved cooperation between the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the Government of the Sudan and a sustained and more effective approach by the Operation, which have resulted in improvements in mandate implementation, including through the more timely issuance of visas and a considerable recent reduction of movement restrictions on the Operation; reiterates its deep concern that hindrances nevertheless remain to the Operation in the implementation of its mandate, including movement and access restrictions, caused by insecurity, acts of criminality and movement restrictions by government forces, armed movements and militia groups; calls upon all parties in Darfur to remove all obstacles to the full and proper discharge by the Operation of its mandate, including by ensuring its security and freedom of movement; and in this regard demands that the Government comply with the status-of-forces agreement fully and without delay, particularly provisions relevant to the movement of patrols in conflict-affected areas and flight clearances, building on the recent improvement in these areas, as well as those provisions relevant to the removal of obstacles to the use of aerial assets of the Operation and the timely processing of Operation equipment at the port of entry to the Sudan;

17. Demands that all parties in Darfur immediately end attacks targeting civilians, peacekeepers and humanitarian personnel and comply with their obligations under international human rights and humanitarian law; and affirms the Security Council's condemnation of all violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights;

18. Expresses serious concern at the deteriorating humanitarian situation in Darfur and at the threats to and attacks on humanitarian personnel and facilities; welcomes that, despite multiple challenges, humanitarian access improved in the months of April and May compared to the first quarter of 2014, including progress in accessing part of the Jebel Marra area through the recent inter-agency mission to Guldo; expresses concern that access to some conflict areas where vulnerable populations reside remains restricted and that some conflict areas are inaccessible, including in North and Central Darfur and eastern Jebel Marra, owing to insecurity, acts of criminality and movement restrictions by government forces, armed movements and militia groups; welcomes that humanitarian organizations are able to deliver some aid to most people in need of assistance in Darfur; deplores the continued restrictions on humanitarian access in Darfur resulting from increased insecurity, attacks against humanitarian workers, denial of access by the parties to the conflict and bureaucratic impediments imposed by the Government of the Sudan; further expresses concern over the insufficient availability of funding for humanitarian actors; stresses the need for the timely issuance of visas and travel permits for humanitarian organizations; and demands that the Government, all militias, armed groups and all other stakeholders ensure the safe, timely and unhindered access of humanitarian organizations and relief personnel and the delivery of humanitarian assistance to populations in need, in accordance with the relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, including humanity, impartiality, neutrality and independence;

19. Condemns increased human rights violations and abuses in, and relating to, Darfur, including those involving extrajudicial killings, the excessive use of force, abduction of civilians, acts of sexual and gender-based violence, violations and abuses against children and arbitrary arrests and detentions; expresses deep concern about the situation of all those so detained, including civil society members and internally displaced persons; emphasizes the importance of ensuring, within its current mandate, the ability of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and other relevant organizations to monitor such cases; and in this regard urges the Government of the Sudan to extend even greater cooperation with the Operation towards the fulfilment of this goal and to provide accountability and access to justice for victims; and calls upon the Government fully to respect its obligations, including by fulfilling its commitment to lift the state of emergency in Darfur, releasing all political prisoners and allowing free expression;

20. Requests the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to continue to implement the United Nations human rights due diligence policy, and to monitor, verify and draw to the attention of the authorities abuses and violations of human rights, including those committed against women and children, and violations of international humanitarian law, and further requests enhanced, detailed, full and public reporting by the Secretary-General to the Council on this issue, as part of his regular 90-day reports;

21. Urges close coordination among United Nations missions in the region, including the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei and the United Nations Mission in South Sudan, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure effective inter-mission cooperation;

22. Emphasizes the importance of cooperation and information-sharing between the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, the United Nations Mission in South Sudan, the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in the Central African Republic and relevant regional and international partners in addressing the regional threat, including of the Lord's Resistance Army, and recalls its encouragement to the Operation, within existing capacities and consistent with its mandate, to cooperate and share information in this regard;

23. Stresses the importance of achieving dignified and durable solutions for refugees and internally displaced persons and of ensuring their full participation in the planning and management of these solutions; demands that all parties to the conflict in Darfur create the conditions conducive to allowing the voluntary, informed, safe, dignified and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons or, where appropriate, their local integration; calls in this regard for the reactivation of the Joint Verification Mechanism in order to verify the extent to which these returns are voluntary and informed in nature, and underlines the importance of addressing land issues for the realization of durable solutions in Darfur;

24. Demands that the parties to the conflict immediately cease all acts of sexual and gender-based violence; further demands that the parties to the conflict make and implement specific and time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence, in accordance with resolution 2106(2013); requests the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur to report on sexual and gender-based violence and actions taken to combat it, including through the timely appointment of women's protection advisers; and requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the relevant provisions of resolution 1325(2000) and subsequent resolutions on women and peace and security are implemented, including supporting the full and effective participation of women during all stages of peace processes, particularly in conflict resolution, post-conflict planning and peacebuilding, including women's civil society organizations, and to include information on this in his reporting to the Council;

25. Also demands that the parties to the conflict immediately cease all violations and abuses against children and develop and implement concrete and time-bound action plans to end and prevent the recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure (a) continued monitoring and reporting of the situation of children in Darfur; and (b) continued dialogue with the parties to the conflict towards the development and implementation of the aforementioned action plans, in accordance with resolution 1612(2005) and subsequent resolutions on children and armed conflict;

26. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council every 90 days following the adoption of the present resolution on the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, including information on the political, humanitarian and security situation in Darfur, including detailed reporting on incidents of violence and attacks against civilians, by whomsoever perpetrated; information on violations of the status-of-forces agreement, as well as violations of international humanitarian law perpetrated by any party to the conflict; developments and progress towards achievement of the Operation's strategic priorities and benchmarks; and developments and progress in addressing the challenges facing the Operation as identified in the review of the Operation; and on the implementation of the present resolution;

27. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 16 September letter to the Security Council [S/2014/670], the Secretary-General stated that the first phase of the streamlining of UNAMID operations led to the reduction of 46 per cent of posts in the civilian component (see p. 305). The second and third phases of the exercise concentrated on the remaining substantive sections, as well as the mission support and security sections, resulting in the reduction of a further 1,055 posts. In accordance with Council resolution 2173(2014) (see p. 306), the Secretary-General intended to submit, for the consideration of the General Assembly, a phased reduction of an overall 1,139 posts, or 24 per cent of the approved civilian component of UNAMID, to be implemented by the end of 2015.

Communication. In a 16 September letter [S/2014/671], the Sudan conveyed to the Security Council that the national dialogue was progressing. The Government had granted the necessary measures for confidence-building and a conducive environment, including the release of all political detainees, full political freedom, and freedom of expression and press. Annexed to the letter was the agreed road map for the Sudanese national inclusive dialogue as a concept to guide the deliberations. The Sudan reiterated its request to the Council that it call upon all Sudanese parties and armed groups to engage constructively in the process and refrain from any action that might impede the smooth proceeding of the dialogue.

Report of Secretary-General (November). In response to Security Council resolution 2173(2014), the Secretary-General submitted a November report on UNAMID [S/2014/852], which provided an update and analysis of the situation in Darfur and progress towards the achievement of the Operation's strategic priorities and benchmarks.

Military operations decreased overall but clashes between Government forces and armed movements occurred intermittently, and aerial bombardments by the Government were reported. The resurgence of activities by the armed movements in several of their strongholds pointed to their possible regrouping after the Rapid Support Forces campaign in the year had left them substantially weakened. Competition over resources continued to exacerbate the security situation, resulting in deadly clashes between tribes and increased criminality and banditry, all of which had a significant impact on the civilian population.

According to the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA), in addition to more than 2 million long-term internally displaced persons, the number of people displaced by conflict since the beginning of the year increased to 431,300. While 132,000 of those persons had returned home, 298,700 people remained displaced. UNAMID personnel were attacked three times during the reporting period, resulting in the death of three peacekeepers and one national staff member.

On 2 November, media sources reported that over 200 women and girls in Thabit (North Darfur) were raped by members of the Sudanese Armed Forces on 30 and 31 October. An initial UNAMID military verification mission dispatched on 4 November to investigate the allegations was denied access to the village. On 9 November, UNAMID sent an integrated mission to interact with the local community. The team's findings, however, were inconclusive, requiring further investigation, owing in part to the heavy presence of military and police in Thabit. UNAMID continued to request the Sudanese authorities to grant access to a small team to investigate the allegations of rape.

From 2 to 6 August, a UNAMID delegation held technical-level consultations in Kampala with senior officials from JEM/Gibril, SLA-Minni Minawi (SLA/MM) and SLA/AW to gauge interest in participating in the national dialogue. The movements expressed reticence about participating in the national dialogue as conceived, but reiterated interest in direct talks under the umbrella of the Sudan Revolutionary Front (SRF) at a venue outside the Sudan. On 8 August, SRF and the National Umma Party (NUP) signed an agreement in Paris, in which SRF declared readiness to cease hostilities as a basis for a credible national dialogue. Following a meeting on 18 August in Khartoum between the AU High-level Implementation Panel, the IGAD Special Envoy to the Sudan, the Special Envoy for the Sudan and South Sudan, and the Joint Chief Mediator, it was agreed that the High-level Implementation Panel was best placed to facilitate the Sudanese armed movements to join the national dialogue. Confidence-building activities were an essential first step to bridging the gap between the parties, and the Doha Document addressed important local and Darfur-specific root causes, which should continue to be supported. It was also agreed to consult and seek the support of the Government of Qatar and that a time frame for direct talks between the Government of the Sudan and Darfur armed movements would begin in September. From 30 August to 3 September, the High-level Implementation Panel, the Joint Chief Mediator and the UN and IGAD Special Envoys held a series of meetings with the leadership of JEM/Gibril, SLA/AW, SLA/MM, the Eastern Front and SPLM-N as well as representatives of NUP and the Democratic Unionist Party, to discuss modalities for their participation in the national dialogue. The movements expressed readiness to end the war in the Sudan and insisted on combining the Darfur and SPLM-N mediation processes under one mechanism. They argued that any commitment to pre-talks should be preceded by an agreement on the cessation of hostilities. Talks facilitated by the High-level Implementation Panel on 4 September between representatives of the Preparatory Committee and the Paris Declaration Group resulted in an agreement on initial talks on cessation of hostilities, outside the Sudan, between the Government and the Darfur armed movements, as well as between the Government and SPLM-N with the High-level Implementation Panel but on separate mediation tracks. As SPLM-N and the Darfur armed movements insisted on signing the agreement as the Sudan Revolutionary Front, the Preparatory Committee declined to sign a joint agreement; instead, two identical agreements were signed on 5 September. The talks on the Two Areas, led by the High-level Implementation Panel, were held in Addis Ababa from 12 to 16 November. Talks on Darfur were scheduled for 23 to 27 November.

The UNAMID streamlining exercise was completed, and 1,260 posts were identified for abolition. A total of 770 posts were to be abolished in the 2014–2015 budget year, with the remaining 490 posts to follow in the 2015–2016 budget year. The Operation also re-configured its aviation fleet, reducing it by four fixed-wing aircraft and two helicopters.

Communications. On 10 November [S/2014/802], the Sudan forwarded to the Security Council a press release issued that day by the UNAMID team that visited Thabit village on 9 November to investigate allegations of mass rape (see p. 311). In the press release, the team stated that none of the people interviewed about the allegations confirmed that any incident of rape took place in Thabit on the day of the media report on the allegations. UNAMID intended to conduct follow-up actions, including possible further investigations and patrols, in coordination with the host authorities.

In a 17 November letter [S/2014/819] to the Security Council, the Sudan rejected media allegations regarding the rape of 200 women by Sudanese Armed Forces in Thabit. On 13 November, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Sudan had summoned the Joint Special Representative and stated that the Sudan deplored the campaign of certain international circles to criminalize the country. The Joint Special Representative said that UNAMID wished to visit Thabit a second time, and that it would do so after 17 November. On 15 November, UNAMID requested permission to visit Thabit from the state-level authorities in Darfur. UNAMID reneged on the earlier agreement and began to visit while the matter was still being discussed by the Government and UNAMID.

In a 20 November letter [S/2014/838] to the Security Council, the Sudan stated that the allegations concerning mass rape in Thabit were initially disseminated by Radio Dabanga, which belonged to the Darfur rebel groups. The Sudan gave UNAMID full access to investigate the allegations. The investigations revealed that the allegations were unfounded. The Prosecutor General of Darfur Crimes was conducting a national investigation, the outcome of which would be shared with the appropriate international bodies.

A 3 December letter [S/2014/866] from the Sudan addressed to the Security Council contained the executive summary of the report of the investigation conducted by the Office of the Prosecutor General for Crimes in Darfur on the alleged rape of 200 women in the Thabit region, which concluded that no rape of any woman had taken place there.

In a 1 December letter addressed to the Security Council [S/2014/863], the Sudan stated that, regarding misquoted media reports concerning the closure of the UNAMID human rights office, the decision of the Government was for the closure of the sub-liaison office opened by UNAMID in Khartoum without prior notification or coordination with the competent authorities, despite the fact that the UNAMID area of deployment was exclusively in Darfur. The main UNAMID human rights office in Darfur remained as it was. In a 16 December letter [S/2014/910] addressed to the Council, the Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Sudan, Ali Ahmed Karti, elaborated the basis of and prospects for the exit strategy and the steps expected to be taken by the United Nations.

A 26 December letter [S/2014/951] from the Sudan to the Secretary-General contained the communiqué from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs regarding the expulsion from Khartoum of the Resident and Humanitarian Coordinator for the Sudan, Ali Al-Za'tari, and the UNDP country director in the Sudan, Yvonne Helle. The Sudan said that the decision to expel the officials was in conformity with the 1961 Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations [YUN 1961, p. 512].

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/141] on UNAMID, the Secretary-General said that the conflict in Darfur between the Government and the armed movements escalated with the redeployment of the Rapid Deployment Forces in December. Direct talks between the Government of the Sudan and SLA/MM and JEM/Gibril, which were not signatories to the Doha Document, commenced under the auspices of the AU High-level Implementation Panel in Addis Ababa on 23 November. On 26 November, the Implementation Panel proposed that security arrangements, political issues, humanitarian issues, relations between the negotiations and the national dialogue, and method of work would be included as agenda items for the talks. The Government rejected the proposal to include humanitarian issues as a separate agenda item in the talks. The armed movements, however, insisted on retaining humanitarian issues on the agenda and proposed the addition of items on reconstruction and development; refugees and internally displaced persons; land, borders and nomad issues; justice, accountability and reconciliation; and comprehensive compensation. The Implementation Panel adjourned the talks on 30 November to provide the parties with an opportunity to consult with their constituencies on options to break the impasse.

On 3 December, in Addis Ababa, the political and armed opposition in the Sudan, including the Darfur armed movements, adopted a joint declaration entitled the “Sudan Call” pledging to end the wars and create a comprehensive solution, beginning with a cessation of hostilities, to the conflicts in Darfur and in Southern Kordofan and Blue Nile States, and to establish mechanisms aimed at achieving a popular uprising or a comprehensive political solution leading to the dismantling of the one-party-regime in Khartoum. The declaration outlined the basic prerequisites for the holding of the national dialogue, a comprehensive political solution, including a cessation of hostilities, the release of all political detainees, the revocation of laws restricting freedoms and human rights, the formation of a transitional government and the establishment of an agreed administration to manage a dialogue process for a comprehensive peace and democratic transformation. The signatories pledged to boycott the presidential and legislative election scheduled to take place in April 2015, calling it a facade to legitimize the current regime.

On 6 December, the Government arrested the head of the opposition National Consensus Forces, Farouk Abu Issa, and the civil society activist, Amin Maki Mali Madani. On 23 December, while addressing a graduation ceremony of Sudan Armed Forces Command and Staff College, President al-Bashir announced the resumption of “Operation Decisive Summer”, with the aim of eliminating those armed movements in Darfur and the Two Areas that did not heed the Government’s call for dialogue. The announcement was followed by intensified fighting between Government forces and SLA/AW and SLA/MM. The sixth session of the Darfur Council of the Darfur Regional Authority was held in El Fasher from 8 to 23 December.

The increase in hostilities resulted in the further deterioration of the humanitarian situation and the further displacement of tens of thousands of civilians. More than 450,000 people were newly displaced in 2014—the highest level of displacement in a single year since 2004. On 26 November, UNAMID, in cooperation with UNICEF and the Sudan Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration Commission, launched a Darfur-wide campaign entitled “No Child Soldiers—Protect Darfur”.

On 16 December, UNAMID received the non-official English translation of a summary of the report of the Attorney General appointed for a special court on the allegations of mass rape in Thabit village, North Darfur (see p. 311). It concluded that no victims, witnesses, documents or other evidence were found in Thabit village to support a case for rape. UNAMID continued to face restrictions in its effort to access Thabit for further investigation.

Allegations concerning manipulation of UNAMID reporting

The Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court, in her 17 June briefing [S/PV.7199] to the Security Council (see p. 314), expressed concern about allegations that reporting from UNAMID was subject to manipulation, with the intentional effort of covering up crimes against civilians and peacekeepers, in particular those committed by Government forces. She called on the Secretary-General to establish the facts of the allegations. On 2 July, the Secretary-General announced his intention to conduct a review of the allegations. In resolution 2173(2014) (see p. 306), the Security Council stressed the importance of prompt and effective action on the results of its review.

In a 29 October letter [S/2014/771], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council the executive summary of the report of the review team on the allegations. The team examined the manner in which 16 incidents were reported officially, as well as how six of the incidents were reported to the public. The team did not find any evidence to support the allegation that UNAMID intentionally sought to cover up crimes against civilians and peacekeepers. The review did reveal, however, that in 5 of the 16 incidents, UNAMID did not provide UN Headquarters with full reports on the circumstances surrounding those incidents. The team also found that the Mission took an unduly conservative approach to the media, maintaining silence when it could have developed a press line, reflecting the Operation’s tendency not to report anything if it was not certain of the facts.

The review team recommended that DPKO examine ways to ensure the confidentiality of sensitive information; review the procedures for the protection of information sent by code cable; ensure that the results of verification and incident investigation reports were included in the reports of the Secretary-General; and that the role of the spokesperson and Media Relations Unit be reviewed to ensure cooperation. The team recommended that UNAMID, when reporting to Headquarters, not censor its own information because of its sensitivity; augment daily situation reports on incidents concerning the protection of civilians, human rights violations or attacks on UNAMID by providing a short analysis on the context in which the incident occurred, as well as special reports sent by code cable; automatically transmit to Headquarters, by code cable, verification reports of attacks on civilians and investigation reports on attacks on the Mission; formally report on the progress of government investigations into incidents in which peacekeepers died or were wounded; and review the Mission’s media strategy with a view to adopting a more responsive, transparent and proactive relationship with international media outlets.

Activities of ICC Prosecutor

The Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court (ICC), Fatou Bensouda, reported to the Security Council in June and December on the activities undertaken by her Office regarding Darfur. Briefing the Security Council on 17 June [S/PV.7199], the ICC Prosecutor said that the Court remained convinced that enforcing arrest warrants in Darfur was a key element of peace and stability, and of ending victims' suffering. The application of the non-essential contacts policy required a rigorous assessment as to whether such contacts were strictly required for conducting essential UN-mandated duties. The Organization might wish to make public its contacts with those subject to ICC warrants to dispel misperceptions about UN engagements with indictees. The Court took note of President al-Bashir's travels during the reporting period, including his visits to States that were party to the 1998 Rome Statute of ICC [YUN 1998, p. 1209], which were obliged to cooperate with the Court in arresting and surrendering those subject to ICC warrants. The Prosecutor called on all States and the Council to find ways to support those among them that might be most vulnerable to planned visits by Mr. al-Bashir or other individuals wanted under ICC arrest warrants. She expressed concern about the increasing violence in Darfur and the immense number of displaced people, and deplored the increasing constraints placed on those trying to aid the displaced. Equally worrying were the ongoing patterns of aerial bombardments and armed attacks on civilian populations by militia and Janjaweed, and particularly the involvement of the Rapid Support Forces, led by Mohamed Hamdan. The pattern of gang rapes of women and girls increased during the reporting period.

In her 12 December briefing to the Council [S/PV.7337], the Prosecutor stated that her office's resources for investigations were overstretched; she was forced to put investigative activities in Darfur on hold and shift resources to other urgent cases. She thanked the Secretary-General for taking immediate steps to investigate the allegations of manipulation and underreporting by UNAMID, and for availing her Office of the executive summary of the review report (see p. 313). The Prosecutor shared the Council's concern at the serious deterioration of the security situation in Darfur and its profoundly negative impact on civilians, particularly children and women. She noted that as the Secretary-General pointed out, sexual and gender-based violence remained a pervasive feature of the conflict, as did attacks on human rights defenders, civil society members and community leaders. Such attacks were aimed at the foundations of communities and had to stop. The Prosecutor remained open to engaging constructively with the Security Council on Darfur. A shift in the Council's approach to arresting Darfur suspects was needed.

Sanctions

In response to human rights abuses and a deteriorating humanitarian situation in the region, the Security Council, by resolution 1556(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 240], imposed an arms embargo on all non-governmental entities and individuals operating in Darfur, including the Janjaweed militias. By resolution 1591(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 319], the Council imposed a travel ban and assets freeze, and established a Committee to oversee implementation of the sanctions against individuals to be designated by that Committee. As requested in that resolution, the Secretary-General, in 2005, established a Panel of Experts [ibid., p. 322], which was mandated to assist the Committee in monitoring implementation of the arms embargo and sanctions; make recommendations to the Committee on possible Council action; and provide information on individuals who impeded the peace process, committed violations of international law, or were responsible for offensive military overflight. By resolution 1945(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 270], the Council strengthened the arms embargo and clarified the exceptions to that measure. By resolution 2138(2014) (see below), the Council extended the mandate of the Panel of Experts until 13 March 2015.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 13 February [meeting 7111], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2138(2014). The draft [S/2014/93] was submitted by the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President concerning the Sudan,

Reaffirming its commitment to the cause of peace throughout the Sudan, to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Sudan and to the full and timely implementation of resolution 1591(2005) of 29 March 2005, and recalling the importance of the principles of good neighbourliness, non-interference and cooperation in the relations among States in the region,

Reiterating the need for an end to the violence and continued abuses in Darfur and recognizing that the Darfur conflict cannot be resolved militarily and that a durable solution can only be obtained through an inclusive political process, and in this regard noting the importance of implementing the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur,

Acknowledging efforts made by the Government of the Sudan and all parties to the conflict to reach a comprehensive and inclusive solution to the conflict, and in this context condemning the killing of Mr. Mohammed Bashir and other members of his movement by Justice and Equality Movement-Gibril Ibrahim forces, as well as any act of violence with the aim to act as a disincentive to peace efforts in Darfur,

Urging the Government of the Sudan, the Liberation and Justice Movement and the Justice and Equality Movement-Mohamed Bashir to deliver on the commitments made in the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur, and urging all parties, in particular other armed movements that have not signed the Doha Document, to engage immediately and without preconditions and to make every effort to reach a comprehensive peace settlement on the basis of the Doha Document, and to agree upon a permanent ceasefire without further delay,

Emphasizing the imperative for all armed actors to refrain from all acts of violence against civilians, in particular vulnerable groups such as women and children, and from violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, and the need to address the urgent humanitarian crisis faced by the people of Darfur, including the guarantee of safe, timely and unhindered humanitarian access to all areas by humanitarian agencies and personnel, while respecting the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance and the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law,

Expressing concern about the external links, in particular military, between non-signatory armed groups in Darfur and groups outside Darfur, and demanding that direct or indirect military support for such armed groups in Darfur cease, and condemning actions by any armed group aimed at the forced overthrow of the Government of the Sudan, noting there is no military solution to the conflict in the Sudan,

Expressing deep concern at the increased violence and insecurity in some parts of Darfur in recent months, including, notably, the escalation in inter-tribal fighting, expressing deep concern that such clashes continue to restrict humanitarian access to conflict areas where vulnerable civilian populations reside, and acknowledging the efforts of Sudanese authorities to mediate in inter-tribal fighting,

Demanding that the parties to the conflict exercise restraint and cease military action of all kinds, including aerial bombardments,

Demanding also an immediate and complete cessation by all parties to the armed conflict of all acts of sexual violence against civilians, in line with resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013; recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law and other grave violations and abuses against children, in line with resolutions 1261(1999) of 25 August 1999, 1379(2001) of 20 November 2001, 1539(2004) of 22 April 2004, 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011 and 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012; and indiscriminate attacks on civilians, in line with resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009,

Commending the efforts of, and reiterating its full support for, the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, the joint African Union-United Nations mediation, the United Nations Secretary-General, the African Union High-level Implementation Panel, and the leaders of the region to promote peace and stability in Darfur, and expressing strong support for the political process under the African Union-United Nations-led mediation,

Reiterating its strong condemnation of attacks against the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and its call upon the Government of the Sudan to swiftly investigate these attacks and bring the perpetrators to justice, and further reiterating its call upon all parties in Darfur to cooperate fully with the mission, and reaffirming its deep condolences to the Governments and families of those killed,

Reaffirming its concern over the negative effect of ongoing violence in Darfur on the stability of the Sudan as a whole, as well as the region, welcoming the ongoing good relations between the Sudan and Chad, and encouraging the Sudan, Chad and the Central African Republic to continue to cooperate in order to achieve peace and stability in Darfur and the wider region,

Expressing concern at the risks to peace and security arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Deploing the continued obstacles that have been imposed by the Government of the Sudan on the work of the Panel of Experts on the Sudan during the course of its mandate, including restrictions to the freedom of movement of the Panel and the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, and limitations on access by the Panel to areas of armed conflict and areas of reported violations of human rights and international humanitarian law, while noting improved interaction between the Government of the Sudan and the Panel,

Further deploing incidents of interference by the Government of the Sudan with the work of the Panel of Experts, including the denial of entry of the Panel's finance expert, as set out in paragraphs 2, 18 and 21 of the final report of the Panel of Experts of 22 January 2014,

Welcoming the enhanced cooperation and information-sharing between the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the Panel of Experts, called for in the guidelines of the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat and with the assistance of the Operation focal point,

Welcoming also the efforts made by the Secretariat to expand and improve the roster of experts for the Security Council Subsidiary Organs Branch, bearing in mind the guidance provided by the note by the President of the Security Council of 22 December 2006,

Recalling the report of 22 January 2014 of the Panel of Experts appointed by the Secretary-General pursuant to paragraph 3 (b) of resolution 1591(2005) whose mandate was extended by subsequent resolutions, and expressing its intention to further study, through the Security Council Committee established pursuant to paragraph 3 (a) of resolution 1591(2005) (hereinafter "the Committee"), the recommendations of the Panel and to consider appropriate next steps,

Emphasizing the need to respect the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations concerning privileges and immunities, and the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations, as applicable to United Nations operations and persons engaged in such operations,

Reminding all States, particularly States in the region, of the obligations contained in resolutions 1556(2004) of 30 July 2004, 1591(2005), and 1945(2010) of 14 October 2010, in particular those obligations relating to arms and related materiel,

Calling upon the Government of the Sudan to fulfil all its commitments, including lifting the state of emergency in Darfur, allowing free expression and undertaking effective efforts to ensure accountability for violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, by whomsoever perpetrated,

Noting that acts of hostility, violence or intimidation against the civilian population, including internally displaced persons, in Darfur and other activities that could endanger or undermine the commitment by the parties to a complete and durable cessation of hostilities would be inconsistent with the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur,

Determining that the situation in the Sudan continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter,

1. Decides to extend the mandate of the Panel of Experts on the Sudan originally appointed pursuant to resolution 1591(2005), previously extended by resolutions 1651(2005) of 21 December 2005, 1665(2006) of 29 March 2006, 1713(2006) of 29 September 2006, 1779(2007) of 28 September 2007, 1841(2008) of 15 October 2008, 1891(2009) of 13 October 2009, 1945(2010), 1982(2011) of 17 May 2011, 2035(2012) of 17 February 2012 and 2091(2013) of 14 February 2013, for a period of 13 months, expresses its intention to review the mandate and take appropriate action regarding further extension no later than 12 months from the adoption of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to take the necessary administrative measures, including basing arrangements, as expeditiously as possible;

2. Requests the Panel of Experts to provide, no later than 31 July 2014, a midterm briefing on its work to the Committee, and a final report to the Security Council no later than 17 January 2015, with its findings and recommendations;

3. Also requests the Panel of Experts to provide updates every three months to the Committee regarding its activities, including travel by the Panel, any obstacles encountered to the fulfilment of its mandate, as well as violations of the sanctions;

4. Further requests the Panel of Experts to report, in the time frame identified in paragraph 3 above, on the implementation and effectiveness of paragraph 10 of resolution 1945(2010);

Arms embargo

5. Expresses its concern that the direct or indirect supply, sale or transfer to the Sudan of technical assistance and support, including training, financial or other assistance and the provision of spare parts, weapons systems and related materiel, could be used by the Government of the Sudan to support military aircraft being used in violation of resolutions 1556(2004) and 1591(2005), including those aircraft identified by the Panel of Experts, and urges all States to be mindful of this risk in the light of the measures contained in resolution 1591(2005);

6. Calls upon the Government of the Sudan to address the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons in Darfur, and to ensure the safe and effective management, storage and security of their stockpiles of small arms and light weapons and the collection and/or destruction of surplus, seized, unmarked or illicitly held weapons and ammunition;

7. Expresses its concern that certain items continue to be converted for military purposes and transferred to Darfur, and urges all States to be mindful of this risk in the light of the measures contained in resolution 1591(2005);

Implementation

8. Condemns the reported continuing violations of the measures contained in paragraphs 7 and 8 of resolution 1556(2004) and paragraph 7 of resolution 1591(2005), as updated in paragraph 9 of resolution 1945(2010) and paragraph 4 of resolution 2035(2012), and directs the Committee, in line with its mandate, to respond effectively to such violations;

9. Expresses its concern that the travel ban and asset freeze on designated individuals is not being implemented by all Member States, and requests the Committee to respond effectively to any reports of non-compliance by Member States with paragraph 3 of resolution 1591(2005) and resolution 1672(2006) of 25 April 2006, including by engaging with all relevant parties;

10. Reiterates that all States shall take the measures necessary to prevent entry into or transit through their territories of all persons as designated by the Committee, and calls upon the Government of the Sudan to enhance cooperation and information-sharing with other States in this regard;

11. Urges all States, in particular those in the region, to report to the Committee on the actions they have taken to implement measures imposed by resolutions 1556(2004) and 1591(2005), including the imposition of targeted measures;

12. Expresses its intention, following the midterm report, to review the state of implementation, including obstacles to full and effective implementation of the measures imposed in resolution 1591(2005) and 1945(2010), with a view to ensuring full compliance;

13. Regrets that some individuals of the Government of the Sudan and armed groups in Darfur continue to commit violence against civilians, impede the peace process and disregard the demands of the Council, expresses its intention to impose targeted sanctions against individuals and entities that meet the listing criteria in paragraph 3 (c) of resolution 1591(2005), and encourages the Panel of Experts, in coordination with the joint African Union-United Nations mediation, to provide to the Committee, when appropriate, the names of any individuals, groups or entities that may meet the listing criteria;

14. Requests the Panel of Experts to continue to investigate the financing and role of armed, military and political groups in attacks against personnel of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, and notes that individuals and entities who plan, sponsor or participate in such attacks constitute a threat to stability in Darfur and may therefore meet the designation criteria provided for in paragraph 3 (c) of resolution 1591(2005);

15. Welcomes the work of the Committee, which has drawn on the reports of the Panel of Experts and taken advantage of the work done in other forums, to draw attention to the responsibilities of private sector actors in conflict-affected areas;

Cooperation

16. Calls upon the Government of the Sudan to remove all restrictions, limitations and bureaucratic impediments imposed on the work of the Panel of Experts, including by issuing timely multiple-entry visas to all members of the Panel for the duration of its mandate, and by waiving the requirement of Darfur travel permits for said Panel members, and urges the Government to enhance its cooperation and information-sharing with the Panel and allow the Panel free and unfettered access to all of Darfur;

17. Urges the Government of the Sudan to respond to the Committee's requests on measures put in place to protect civilians in various parts of Darfur, including those affected by new displacements; investigations conducted and accountability measures undertaken for killings of civilians and perpetrators of human rights violations and abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, investigations conducted and accountability measures undertaken for attacks against peacekeepers and humanitarian personnel; and the situation of civilian populations in areas such as eastern Jebel Marra, where the Panel of Experts, the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and humanitarian agencies and personnel have been denied access, and measures taken to allow timely, safe and unhindered access for humanitarian relief to these areas, while respecting the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance and the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law;

18. Urges all States, relevant United Nations bodies, the African Union and other interested parties to cooperate fully with the Committee and the Panel of Experts, in particular by supplying any information at their disposal on implementation of the measures imposed by resolutions 1556(2004) and 1591(2005), and to provide timely responses to information requests;

19. Requests the Panel of Experts to continue to coordinate its activities, as appropriate, with the operations of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and with international efforts to promote a political process in Darfur, and to assess in its interim and final reports progress towards reducing violations by all parties of the measures imposed by paragraphs 7 and 8 of resolution 1556(2004), paragraph 7 of resolution 1591(2005) and paragraph 10 of resolution 1945(2010), progress towards removing impediments to the political process, threats to stability in Darfur and the region, violations of international humanitarian law or violations or abuses of human rights, including attacks on the civilian population, sexual and gender-based violence and grave violations and abuses against children, and other violations of the above-mentioned resolutions, and to provide the Committee with information on the individuals and entities that meet the listing criteria in paragraph 3 (c) of resolution 1591(2005);

20. Reaffirms the mandate of the Committee to encourage dialogue with interested Member States, in particular those in the region, including by inviting representatives of such States to meet with the Committee to discuss implementation of the measures, and further encourages the Committee to continue its dialogue with the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur;

21. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Appointments. By a 21 March letter [S/2014/206], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that he had appointed five experts, in the areas of finance, international law, regional issues, aviation and arms, to serve on the Panel of Experts.

Report of Panel of Experts. In a later report [S/2015/31], the Panel stated that, following its appointment in March, it investigated the situation on the ground in Darfur, and visited Khartoum and the region to determine whether the relevant Security Council resolutions were being implemented. Cooperation provided by the Government of the Sudan improved significantly, although the Government did not always fully accede to requests from the Panel for access and information. The Panel identified the presence in Darfur of small arms ammunition manufactured after 2005, which had not been reported under previous mandates. Such ammunition included that manufactured in Khartoum in 2013, a certain violation of the arms embargo. Clear evidence was obtained of the certain continued use of improvised air-delivered munitions. The Panel also identified the presence of three weapons systems not previously reported as being deployed in Darfur, but had not yet identified the chain of custody for those systems. It confirmed the use of the Rakhsh armoured personnel carrier in Darfur, a certain violation of the arms embargo by the Government.

The number of Sudanese Air Force assets present in Darfur dropped to a historic low during the Panel's latest mandate. Sanctions violations were identified, including the probable transfer by the Government into Darfur of Antonov An-26 aircraft, subsequently used in an improvised bomber role. The certain "routine" violations of the arms embargo by the Government continued through the regular rotation of Sukhoi Su-25 attack/close air support jet fighters to an aviation maintenance facility near Khartoum. Overall, the reported number of aerial bombings declined but such activity peaked sporadically. In Darfur, the Panel observed an Antonov An-26 almost certainly being prepared for aerial bombing and obtained evidence of the almost certain continued use of Su-25 aircraft in their ground attack role.

The Panel also investigated violations of international humanitarian law, including attacks against civilians and civilian objects in Khor Abeche, South Darfur and Birka, North Darfur. The perpetrators were identified as members of the security forces of the Government of the Sudan. The investigation of the attacks on UNAMID peacekeepers in Kabkabiya, North Darfur, resulted in a recommendation for designation. The Panel identified violations that were almost certainly committed by SLA-Minni Minawi (SLA/MM) in Khor Abeche and Taweisha, North Darfur. It found that it was highly probable that SLA-Abdul Wahed Mohamed Nour (SLA/AW) incited protests within the Kalma internally displaced persons camp.

The Panel continued to face an impasse regarding implementation of the travel ban and assets freeze, mainly because the Sudan had taken no steps towards implementation. Follow-up action on violations of the travel ban reported in 2013 and a fresh violation in 2014 did not yield any results, owing to a lack of response from the countries concerned. The Panel identified a major source of financing for armed groups in Darfur through the illegal operation of vehicle checkpoints for collecting toll fees. Implementation of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur was progressing slowly. Impediments included procrastination by the Government and the Darfur Regional Authority, insecurity owing to clashes between the Government and the armed opposition groups, intertribal clashes and the prevalence of crime. The Panel stated that Darfur might not be immune to infiltration by radical Islamist elements. The civil war in South Sudan, where the Government of the Sudan and the Sudanese Revolutionary Front were directly or indirectly involved, would eventually affect the peace dynamics within the Sudan.

Security Council Committee. On 17 December [S/2014/913], the Chairman of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1591(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 319] concerning the Sudan transmitted to the Council a report on the Committee's activities in 2014. The Committee held four informal consultations, on 4 February, 9 May, 6 August and 20 August. It also held a formal meeting on 13 November, during which the Committee engaged in a dialogue with the Sudan and other countries in the region, including Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Kenya, Libya and South Sudan, to identify information gaps and capacity-building requirements in the context of the implementation of sanctions measures. The Committee Chair visited Khartoum and Darfur from 20–24 January. A preliminary report on the visit and the Chair's observations were circulated to the Committee on 10 February and 11 April, respectively.

Children and armed conflict

In May [A/68/878-S/2014/339], the Secretary-General issued his report on children and armed conflict, which included information on grave violations committed against children during armed conflict in Darfur in 2013. The increased mobilization and arming of children by communities exacerbated the risk of the re-recruitment of demobilized children. The United Nations, working with the AU through UNAMID, verified four cases of recruitment by the Sudan Armed Forces (SAF) and 14 by border guards, and received reports of 17 children allegedly recruited by SAF, border guards and the Abdul Wahid faction of the Sudanese Liberation Army (SLA/AW).

The United Nations documented the killing of 91 children (71 boys and 20 girls), and injury to 98 others (64 boys and 34 girls). Forty-three children were shot and killed and 32 others injured during clashes between government forces and armed groups, and during inter- and intra-ethnic fighting. At least 31 children were killed and 14 others injured in SAF air strikes. Incidents involving explosive remnants of war killed 17 children and injured 52 others. At least 62 girls were raped in 40 separate incidents in Darfur. In three cases, alleged perpetrators were identified as government forces and, in one case, elements of the Minni Minawi faction of SLA (SLA/MM).

On 21 July, the Sudan raised the age of recruitment into the Popular Defence Forces (PDF) from 16 to 18 years and established 18 as the minimum age for joining the national reserve service and the national service. The Justice and Equality Movement (JEM)-Gibril Ibrahim, SLA/MM and SLA/AW issued command orders prohibiting child recruitment within their ranks. Sheik Musa Hilal issued a similar order to nomadic communities under his leadership. Furthermore, 405 children formerly associated with armed groups and forces, including with the disbanded SLA-Historical Leadership, received reintegration support.

UNAMID

The African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID) was established in 2007 by Security Council resolution 1769(2007) [YUN 2007, p. 251] as the first AU-UN hybrid peacekeeping mission, replacing the AU Mission in the Sudan (AMIS). The core mandate of UNAMID was the protection of civilians. Other tasks included contributing to security for humanitarian assistance, monitoring and verifying implementation of agreements, assisting the political process, and promoting human rights and the rule of law. By resolution 2148(2014) of 3 April (see p. 302), the Council endorsed the Operation's revised priorities, which included the facilitation of the delivery of humanitarian assistance and the safety and security of humanitarian personnel; mediation between the Government and non-signatory armed movements; and support to the mediation of community conflict. By resolution 2173(2014) of 27 August (see p. 306), the Security Council extended the UNAMID mandate until 30 June 2015.

Financing

The report [A/68/619] of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of UNAMID for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 showed an expenditure of $1,415,722,000 gross ($1,392,626,400 net) against an apportionment of $1,448,574,000 gross ($1,423,320,300 net). The Secretary-General recommended that the General Assembly decide on the treatment of the unencumbered balance of $32,852,000 and of other income and adjustments amounting to $26,863,100.

In February [A/68/754], the Secretary-General submitted budget proposals for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, amounting to $1,244,690,000 gross ($1,222,403,300 net). The budget provided for the deployment of 260 military observers, 15,940 military contingent personnel, 2,310 UN police officers, 2,380 formed police personnel, 1,132 international staff, 3,058 national staff, 340 United Nations Volunteers and 6 Government-provided personnel. He recommended that the Assembly assess the amount of $207,448,333 for the period from 1 July to 31 August 2014; and assess the amount of $1,037,241,667 for the period from 1 September 2014 to 30 June 2015, should the Security Council decide to continue the mandate of the Operation.

In May [A/68/782/Add.15], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) recommended that the unencumbered balance of $32,852,000 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income and adjustments in the amount of $26,863,100 for the period ended 30 June 2013, be credited to Member States. The Committee considered it premature to make any recommendations on the Secretary-General's 2014–2015 budget proposal and, on that basis, recommended that the General Assembly do the following: authorize the Secretary-General to enter into commitments in the amount of $667,624,000 (equal to half of the Operation's budget for the 2013–2014 period), for the maintenance of UNAMID for the period from 1 July 2014 to 31 December 2014; assess the amount of $222,541,333 for the period from 1 July 2014 to 31 August 2014; and assess the amount of $445,082,667 for the period from 1 September 2014 to 31 December 2014, at a monthly rate of $111,270,667, should the Security Council decide to continue the Operation's mandate. In that connection, it noted that the Secretary-General should be requested to submit a revised budget proposal for 2014–2015, reflecting the Council's decision on the renewal of the mandate by no later than the main part of the Assembly's sixty-ninth (2014) session.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee [A/68/931], adopted resolution 68/297 without vote [agenda item 164].

Financing of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1769(2007) of 31 July 2007, by which the Council established the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur for an initial period of 12 months from 31 July 2007, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation, the latest of which was resolution 2113(2013) of 30 July 2013, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation until 31 August 2014,

Recalling also its resolution 62/232 A of 22 December 2007 on the financing of the Operation and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/284 of 28 June 2013,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Operation with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Noting the hybrid nature of the Operation, and in that regard stressing the importance of ensuring full coordination of efforts between the African Union and the United Nations at the strategic level, unity of command at the operational level and clear delegation of authority and accountability lines,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 95.9 million United States dollars, representing some 1 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 85 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Operation in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Recognizes the significant role played by quick-impact projects in achieving the overall objectives of the mission mandate, and in this regard requests the Secretary-General to ensure the implementation of planned projects as a matter of priority;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

11. Also requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Operation is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

12. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the Operation for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Estimates for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014

13. Authorizes the Secretary-General to enter into commitments for the Operation in a total amount not exceeding 639,654,200 dollars for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014;

Financing of the commitment authority

14. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 213,218,068 dollars for the period from 1 July to 31 August 2014, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

15. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 3,898,783 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the period from 1 July to 31 August 2014;

16. Further decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 426,436,132 dollars for the period from 1 September to 31 December 2014, at a monthly rate of 106,609,033 dollars, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238, subject to a decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Operation;

17. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 16 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 7,797,567 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the period from 1 September to 31 December 2014;

18. Also decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Operation, there shall be set off against their apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 59,715,100 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2013, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

19. Further decides that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Operation, there shall be set off against their outstanding obligations their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 59,715,100 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 18 above;

20. Decides that the decrease of 2,158,100 dollars in the estimated staff assessment income in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013 shall be set off against the credits in the amount of 59,715,100 dollars referred to in paragraphs 18 and 19 above;

21. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

22. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Operation under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

23. Invites voluntary contributions to the Operation in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

24. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur".

In response to General Assembly resolution 68/297 (see p. 319), the Secretary-General, in November [A/69/549], submitted a report on the revised budget for UNAMID for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, which amounted to $1,206,524,100 gross ($1,183,163,700 net). The proposed budget represented a reduction of $129.7 million, or 9.7 per cent, compared with the appropriation for the 2013–2014 period. The Secretary-General recommended that the Assembly appropriate the proposed amount for the maintenance of the Operation for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of $639,654,200 previously assessed for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 under resolution 68/297. It also recommended that the Assembly assess the additional amount of $566,869,900 for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015.

In December [A/69/671], ACABQ recommended that the Assembly appropriate the amount of $1,153,611,300 for the maintenance of UNAMID for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of $639,654,200 previously authorized for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 under resolution 68/297; and that it assess the additional amount of $513,957,100 for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2015.

The General Assembly, by decision 69/554 of 29 December, decided that the agenda item on UNAMID financing would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 December [meeting 77], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/69/687], adopted resolution 69/261 without vote [agenda item 166].

Financing of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid

Operation in Darfur and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1769(2007) of 31 July 2007, by which the Council established the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur for an initial period of 12 months from 31 July 2007, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation, the latest of which was resolution 2173(2014) of 27 August 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Operation until 30 June 2015,

Recalling also its resolution 62/232 A of 22 December 2007 on the financing of the Operation and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 68/297 of 30 June 2014,

1. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

2. Takes note of paragraph of 32 of the report of the Advisory Committee;

3. Decides to defer consideration of the recommendations contained in paragraphs 54 and 55 of the report of the Advisory Committee until the second part of the resumed sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to continue his efforts to mitigate the environmental impact of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur in full compliance with the existing rules and the relevant provisions of General Assembly resolutions;

5. Also requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Operation continues to implement mine detection and clearing services in a timely manner;

6. Further requests the Secretary-General to make every effort to ensure that all planned quick-impact projects are completed in a timely manner;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

7. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur the amount of 1,153,611,300 United States dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 for the maintenance of the Operation, inclusive of the amount of 639,654,200 dollars previously authorized for the Operation for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 under the terms of its resolution 68/297;

Financing of the appropriation

8. Decides, taking into account the amount of 639,654,200 dollars already apportioned under the terms of its resolution 68/297 for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014, to apportion among Member States the additional amount of 513,957,100 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 for the maintenance of the Operation, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014 and 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

9. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 8 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 11,167,950 dollars, representing the balance of the estimated staff assessment income of 22,864,300 dollars approved for the Operation;

10. Further decides to keep under review during its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur".

Abyei Area

Reports of Secretary-General (February and May). In response to Security Council resolution 2126(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 228], the Secretary-General, in February [S/2014/126], reported on the situation in the Abyei Area and on the deployment and operations of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei (UNISFA), providing an update since the Secretary-General's previous report [YUN 2013, p. 231].

The Secretary-General stated that the conflict in South Sudan (see p. 335) had a direct impact on the situation in the Abyei Area, as evidenced by an increase in tensions between communities. No progress was made in the implementation of the Cooperation Agreement between the Sudan and South Sudan of 27 September 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 220], which provided for the establishment of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. Nevertheless, the security situation remained generally calm, albeit unpredictable. Unauthorized armed elements from both sides remained in the Abyei Area in violation of the 20 June 2011 Agreement [YUN 2011, p. 195]. Likewise, the Sudan Oil Police continued to maintain approximately 120 to 150 personnel inside the Diffra oil complex in the northern Abyei Area in violation of the Agreement and Council resolutions 1990(2011) [ibid.], 2032(2011) [ibid., p. 206], 2046(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 184], 2047(2012) [ibid., p. 204], 2075(2012) [ibid., p. 207], 2104(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 224] and 2126(2013) [ibid., p. 228].

The seasonal migration of Misseriya nomads through the Abyei Area remained generally peaceful. UNISFA estimated that, as at 7 February, about 55,000 Misseriya, along with approximately 700,000 livestock, had moved southward through Abyei. As at 31 January, of the more than 6,000 people who had arrived from South Sudan in anticipation of the unilateral Ngok Dinka community referendum of October 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 231], approximately 4,500 had left the Abyei Area for Lakes, Unity and Warrap States in South Sudan. Approximately 70,000 Ngok Dinka were present in the Area, including 15,000 in Abyei town. Among that population, UNISFA observed the presence of around 660 military elements of the Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA) and the South Sudan National Police Service.

The Sudan and South Sudan made no further progress in implementing the 20 June 2011 Agreement. All Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism operations remained suspended further to the decision made by the Government of South Sudan on 22 November 2013 to temporarily withdraw its monitors from the Mechanism pending the resolution of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone centreline dispute. UN agencies and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) provided assistance and services to some 81,000 Ngok Dinka beneficiaries in the Abyei Area. Some 45,000 Ngok Dinka remained displaced, of whom approximately 25,000 were outside the Abyei Area.

As at 25 January, the military component of UNISFA stood at 4,090 of its authorized troop strength of 5,326. The remaining personnel were earmarked for the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism force protection unit.

The Secretary-General urged the two Governments to ensure the prompt redeployment of their forces out of the Abyei Area and allow UNISFA to implement its mandate to provide security and protect civilians unhindered. He also urged the two countries to extend their full support to the mission in ensuring the complete disarmament of local communities and in reviving traditional dispute resolution mechanisms between the Ngok Dinka and Misseriya communities. The Secretary-General further urged the Sudan and South Sudan to resume the meetings of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee in order to address the primary concerns of the population in the Abyei Area.

In May [S/2014/336], the Secretary-General reported on the situation in the Abyei Area and presented the conclusions of the strategic review of the UNISFA mandate, which was conducted jointly by the UN Secretariat and UNISFA in April with the participation of the humanitarian country team and UN country team in Abyei.

Tensions between the Ngok Dinka and Misseriya communities increased significantly. A series of serious security incidents occurred between SPLA and the South Sudan National Police Service and Sudanese armed militias. Lieutenant General Yohannes Tesfamariam, UNISFA Head of Mission and Force Commander, and the Secretary-General's Special Envoy for the Sudan and South Sudan, Haile Menkerios, met with the President of South Sudan, Salva Kiir, on 25 February in Juba, South Sudan, in an effort to secure the forces' redeployment. President Kiir stated that his Government would take measures to ensure the withdrawal of the SPLA and police forces by 10 March. Nevertheless, one company-strength group of SPLA and South Sudan police personnel remained deployed south of the Kiir/Bahr el-Arab River, in the village of Awang Thou. The forces threatened UNISFA patrols and obstructed their access to the area. With the overall stabilization of the security situation, UNISFA had observed the gradual return of displaced Ngok Dinka to their villages since the end of March.

The strategic review of the UNISFA mandate was conducted from 11 to 25 April. Both the Sudan and South Sudan informed the review team that they were content with UNISFA and its performance. Sudanese officials declared their support for the renewal of the mission's mandate, and requested that the military component be better supported; the national staff and independent contractors from the Sudan be brought back to Abyei; Sudanese contractors be allowed to operate in the area; and more pressure be placed on South Sudan to implement the Agreement of 20 June 2011. South Sudan reiterated its commitment to resolve the Abyei dispute amicably, consistent with the Abyei Protocol [YUN 2004, p. 236]. It recommended that UNISFA be mandated to take over the security of the Diffra oil installations, allowing the withdrawal of the Sudanese oil police units, and to manage the 2 per cent of the oil revenue earmarked for Abyei institutions in the Abyei Protocol. They also requested that resources available to the mission be increased to develop the territory's road infrastructure. The review team assessed that four options were available in considering the renewal of the UNISFA mandate: the withdrawing of UNISFA (option 1); maintaining the status quo (option 2); providing the United Nations with the executive authority to implement the Abyei proposal of September 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 207] submitted by the African Union High-level Implementation Panel (option 3); and supporting the resumption of community dialogue and administration by the communities under the supervision of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee (option 4). The Secretary-General said that option 4 was the one most likely to contribute to consolidating peace and security in Abyei, and to strengthen the possibility of a peaceful resolution of the dispute over the final status of the territory. It would also offer an exit strategy for the mission.

Both Governments informed the review team of their interest in establishing the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone and operationalizing the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. The Secretary-General set out three options with respect to UNISFA support to the Mechanism. Under option 1, all international monitors would be withdrawn, the advance party of force protection would be repatriated to Ethiopia, and all construction work would stop and equipment would be removed. Under option 2, a skeleton presence would be maintained to secure the investments made, pending the reactivation of the Mechanism. Option 3 would be completion of the infrastructure necessary to establish the initial operating capability and deployment of the additional elements of the Force Protection Unit.

The Secretary-General sought the endorsement of the Security Council in pursuing option 4 related to Abyei, and option 2 for the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. He recommended that the Council consider a four-month technical rollover of the mandate of UNISFA. During that period, an assessment would be conducted of the mandate and operational requirements related to the implementation of option 4. The Secretariat would further consult the parties, Ethiopia and the AU on the possibility and requirements for that option. He urged the Sudan and South Sudan to withdraw their armed forces and militia from the Abyei Area and prevent the entry of militias into the Area, in accordance with the terms of their agreements.

Communication. By a 19 May letter [S/2014/356], South Sudan transmitted to the Security Council a note entitled “Proposals for the interim stabilization of the crisis situation in Abyei”. The proposals included consolidating support for the establishment of an autonomous administration of the Ngok Dinka; supporting the return and resettlement of the Ngok Dinka to their home areas in safety and dignity; facilitating the transition from humanitarian assistance to recovery and sustainable socioeconomic development; identifying and meeting the immediate needs of the Misseriya and other nomadic peoples during their seasonal migration; and ensuring support for the interim or transitional arrangements.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 May [meeting 7186], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2156(2014). The draft [S/2014/375] was submitted by Chad, France, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President on the situation in the Sudan and South Sudan, in particular resolutions 1990(2011) of 27 June 2011, 2024(2011) of 14 December 2011, 2032(2011) of 22 December 2011, 2046(2012) of 2 May 2012, 2047(2012) of 17 May 2012, 2075(2012) of 16 November 2012, 2104(2013) of 29 May 2013 and 2126(2013) of 25 November 2013, as well as the statements by its President of 31 August 2012 and 23 August 2013, and its statements to the press of 18 June 2012, 21 and 28 September 2012, 6 May 2013, 14 June 2013, 14 February 2014 and 17 March 2014,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Sudan and South Sudan and to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and recalling the importance of the principles of good-neighbourliness, non-interference and regional cooperation,

Reiterating that the territorial boundaries of States shall not be altered by force and that any territorial disputes shall be settled exclusively by peaceful means,

Affirming the priority it attaches to the full and urgent implementation of all outstanding issues from the Comprehensive Peace Agreement of 9 January 2005,

Reaffirming its previous resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict, its resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003 on the protection of humanitarian and United Nations personnel, and its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security,

Recalling the commitments made by the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan in the Agreement between the Government of the Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement on Temporary Arrangements for the Administration and Security of the Abyei Area of 20 June 2011, the Agreement between the Government of the Sudan and the Government of Southern Sudan on Border Security and the Joint Political and Security Mechanism of 29 June 2011 and the Agreement on the Border Monitoring Support Mission between the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan of 30 July 2011, as well as the agreements on cooperation and security arrangements of 27 September 2012, the decision of the Joint Political and Security Mechanism of 8 March 2013 and the implementation matrix of 12 March 2013, reached by the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan in Addis Ababa under the auspices of the African Union High-level Implementation Panel,

Emphasizing the importance of the full participation of women in the implementation of agreements and in the prevention and resolution of conflict and peacebuilding more broadly,

Expressing its full support for the efforts of the African Union on the situation between the Sudan and South Sudan, in order to ease the current tension and facilitate the resumption of negotiations on post-secession relations and the normalization of their relations, recalling in this regard the African Union Peace and Security Council communiqués of 24 April and 24 October 2012 and 25 January, 7 May, 29 July, 23 September, 26 October and 12 November 2013, its press statement of 6 November 2013, and the statement made by the Chairperson of the African Union Commission on 28 October 2013,

Noting with concern the stalled efforts by the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan to demilitarize the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, including the “14-mile area”, and to implement the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, in accordance with Security Council resolution 2046(2012) and the Peace and Security Council road map of 24 April 2012, as a result of South Sudan's continued disagreement with the location of the centreline of the Zone and its decision of 22 November 2013 to temporarily suspend its participation in the Mechanism,

Underlining the importance of establishing and maintaining effective monitoring by the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, including the 14-mile area,

Stressing that both countries will have much to gain if they show restraint and choose the path of dialogue instead of resorting to violence or provocations,

Welcoming the importance of recent meetings of President Bashir and President Kiir in continuing dialogue, recalling the decision in resolution 2046(2012) that the parties must resume immediately negotiations to reach agreement on the final status of Abyei under the auspices of the African Union High-level Implementation Panel, calling upon all parties to engage constructively in the process mediated by the Implementation Panel towards final agreement on the final status of the Abyei Area, and stressing that the parties must immediately implement pending aspects of the Agreement of 20 June 2011, in particular to resolve the dispute over the Abyei Area Council and immediately establish the Abyei Area Administration and Abyei Police Service,

Commending the continued assistance provided to the parties by the African Union High-level Implementation Panel, including its Chairperson, President Thabo Mbeki, and former Presidents Abdulsalami Abubakar and Pierre Buyoya, the Chairperson of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, Prime Minister Hailemariam Desalegn of Ethiopia, the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan and South Sudan, Mr. Haile Menkerios, and the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei under the leadership of Lieutenant General Yohannes Gebremeskel Tesfamariam,

Commending also the efforts of the Force in carrying out its mandate, including by its ongoing facilitation of peaceful migration throughout the Abyei Area, and expressing its deep appreciation for the work of the troop-contributing countries,

Noting with concern the current fragility of the security situation in the Abyei Area, acknowledging the contribution of the Force to enhanced peace and stability since its deployment, and determined to prevent the recurrence of violence against or displacements of civilians and to avert intercommunal conflict,

Expressing its determination that the future status of Abyei shall be resolved by negotiations between the parties in a manner consistent with the Comprehensive Peace Agreement and not by the unilateral actions of either party,

Deeply concerned by the public administration and rule of law vacuum in the Abyei Area, due to continued delays in the establishment of the Abyei Area Administration, Council and Police Service, including a special unit to deal with particular issues related to nomadic migration, which are essential to maintain law and order and prevent intercommunal conflict in Abyei,

Noting with concern the continued threat of intercommunal violence in the Abyei Area, including the ongoing tensions that prevent the Sudanese staff of the Force and other agencies from returning to Abyei,

Noting that the continued delay in establishing the temporary institutions and resolving the final status of Abyei contributes to tension in the region, emphasizing the importance of all parties refraining from any unilateral action to aggravate intercommunal relations within the Abyei Area, and expressing concern over the continued implications of what the Peace and Security Council described in its press statement of 6 November 2013 as “the decision by the Ngok Dinka to conduct a unilateral referendum”,

Bearing in mind the importance of coherence of United Nations assistance in the region,

Welcoming and encouraging efforts by the United Nations to sensitize peacekeeping personnel in the prevention and control of HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases in all of its peacekeeping operations,

Stressing the need for effective human rights monitoring, including of any sexual and gender-based violence and violations and abuses committed against children, taking note that there have been no developments with regard to the operationalization of human rights monitoring in the Abyei Area, and reiterating its concern at the lack of cooperation by the parties with the Secretary-General to this end,

Stressing also the urgency of facilitating the delivery of humanitarian assistance to all affected communities in the Abyei Area,

Affirming the importance of voluntary, safe, orderly return and sustainable reintegration of displaced persons, and of peaceful and orderly migration cycles respecting the traditional migratory routes from the Sudan to South Sudan through Abyei, and urging the Force to take measures as necessary to ensure security in the Abyei Area in accordance with its mandate,

Recalling its resolution 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013, and expressing grave concern at the threat to peace and security in Abyei arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Expressing concern about the residual threat of landmines and explosive remnants of war in the Abyei Area, which hinders the safe return of displaced persons to their homes and safe migration,

Welcoming the steps taken by the Force towards the effective implementation of its mandate, including through conflict prevention, mediation and deterrence,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 13 May 2014, including the assessment that the political and security situation on the ground has seriously deteriorated and could become untenable during the next dry season and 2014/15 migration cycle, and the recommendations contained therein,

Recognizing that the current situation in Abyei and along the border between the Sudan and South Sudan continues to constitute a serious threat to international peace and security,

1. Decides to extend until 15 October 2014 the mandate of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei as set out in paragraph 2 of resolution 1990(2011) and modified by resolution 2024(2011) and paragraph 1 of resolution 2075(2012), and, acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations, further decides to extend until 15 October 2014 the mandate of the Force as set out in paragraph 3 of resolution 1990(2011), and determines that, for the purposes of paragraph 1 of resolution 2024(2011), support to the operational activities of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism shall include support to the Ad Hoc Committees, as appropriate when so requested by consensual decisions of these mechanisms, within the operational area and existing capabilities of the Force;

2. Welcomes the strategic review by the United Nations of the Force, and the recommendations in the report of the Secretary-General of 13 May 2014 of support to the resumption of community dialogue and administration by the communities under the supervision of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee; in this regard, calls upon the communities and the Governments of the Sudan and South Sudan to work with the United Nations towards that goal; and stresses the importance of support in these efforts from the African Union;

3. Reiterates its demand that the Sudan and South Sudan immediately resume the work of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee to ensure steady progress on the implementation of the Agreement on Temporary Arrangements for the Administration and Security of the Abyei Area of 20 June 2011, including the implementation of the decisions of the Oversight Committee;

4. Further reiterates its demand that the Sudan and South Sudan urgently commence the establishment of the Abyei Area Administration and Council, including by resolving the deadlock over the composition of the Council, and constitute the Abyei Police Service, to enable it to take over policing functions throughout the Abyei Area, including the protection of oil infrastructure, in accordance with their commitments in the Agreement of 20 June 2011;

5. Decides to maintain the troops authorized by resolution 2104(2013) already deployed, and that the remaining authorized forces will only be deployed in case of reactivation of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, and at the appropriate time as deemed by the Secretary-General, to enable the Force to provide required force protection to the Mechanism and to enable the Force to fully support the Mechanism to conduct extended operations into the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone as soon as possible, and requests the Secretary-General to keep the Security Council fully updated on the status of deployment as part of his regular reporting cycle;

6. Expresses concern regarding the stalled efforts to fully operationalize the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, as a result of South Sudan's continued disagreement with the location of the centreline of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone and its decision of 22 November 2013 to temporarily suspend its participation in the Mechanism, and calls upon the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan to make timely and effective use of the Mechanism, the Joint Political and Security Mechanism and other agreed joint mechanisms to ensure the security and transparency of the Zone, including the 14-mile area;

7. Urges renewed efforts to determine conclusively the centreline of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone on the ground, and reiterates that the centreline of the Zone in no way prejudices the current or future legal status of the border, ongoing negotiations on the disputed and claimed areas, and demarcation of the borders;

8. Underscores that the protection of civilians mandate of the Force as set out in paragraph 3 of resolution 1990(2011) includes taking the actions necessary to protect civilians under imminent threat of physical violence, irrespective of the source of such violence;

9. Condemns the presence of Sudan People's Liberation Army/South Sudan National Police Service armed personnel and Diffra oil police units deployed in the Abyei Area, as well as the repeated entry of Misseriya militias into the territory, and reiterates its demands that immediately and without preconditions the Government of South Sudan fully redeploy its security service personnel from the Abyei Area and that the Government of the Sudan also redeploy the oil police in Diffra from the Abyei Area, and further reiterates, in accordance with relevant resolutions, in particular resolutions 1990(2011) and 2046(2012), that the Abyei Area shall be demilitarized from any forces, as well as armed elements of the local communities, other than the Force and the Abyei Police Service;

10. Supports the decision of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee of 3 May 2013 on Abyei's status as a weapons-free area, underscores the concern expressed by the African Union Peace and Security Council in its communiqué of 7 May 2013 over reports that various communities living in Abyei are heavily armed, recalls that in the Agreement of 20 June 2011 it is stipulated that Abyei should be a weapons-free area and that only the Force is authorized to carry weapons inside the Area, and in this regard urges the two Governments to take all necessary steps to ensure that Abyei is effectively demilitarized, including through disarmament programmes as necessary;

11. Requests that the Force, consistent with its mandate and within its existing capabilities, observe, document and report on the movement of weapons into Abyei and the presence of weapons within Abyei as part of the Secretary-General's regular reporting cycle;

12. Urges the two Governments immediately to take steps to implement confidence-building measures among the respective communities in the Abyei Area, including through reconciliation processes at the grass-roots level and supporting the Force in convening a peace conference between the Ngok Dinka and Misseriya traditional chiefs, and strongly urges all Abyei communities to exercise maximum restraint in all their engagements and to desist from inflammatory acts or statements that may lead to violent clashes, or any further unilateral activities;

13. Requests the Force to continue its dialogue with the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee and with the Misseriya and Ngok Dinka communities on effective strategies and oversight mechanisms for ensuring full compliance by all relevant parties with Abyei's status as a weapons-free area, with a particular priority placed on the urgent elimination of heavy or crew-served weapons, as well as rocket-propelled grenades, and calls upon the Governments of the Sudan and South Sudan, the Oversight Committee and the Misseriya and Ngok Dinka communities to extend full cooperation to the Force in this regard;

14. Calls upon all parties to cooperate fully with the findings and recommendations following the investigation by the Abyei Area Joint Investigation and Inquiry Committee into the killing of a Force peacekeeper and the Ngok Dinka paramount chief;

15. Expresses its intention to review, as appropriate, the mandate of the Force for possible reconfiguration of the mission in the light of the compliance by the Sudan and South Sudan with the decisions set forth in resolution 2046(2012) and their commitments as set forth in the Agreements of 20 and 29 June and 30 July 2011 and 27 September 2012, including the redeployment of all forces from the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, achieving full operational capability for the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism and the Ad Hoc Committees, as well as completing the full demilitarization of the Abyei Area;

16. Calls upon all Member States, in particular the Sudan and South Sudan, to ensure the free, unhindered and expeditious movement to and from Abyei and throughout the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone of all personnel, as well as equipment, provisions, supplies and other goods, including vehicles, aircraft and spare parts, which are for the exclusive and official use of the Force;

17. Renews its call upon the Sudan and South Sudan to provide full support to the United Nations, including by promptly issuing visas to military, police and civilian United Nations personnel, including humanitarian personnel, without prejudice to their nationality, facilitating basing arrangements and flight clearances, and providing logistical support, and calls upon all parties to fully adhere to their obligations under the status-of-forces agreements;

18. Recognizes the absence of critical infrastructure projects affecting the Force peacekeeping personnel, notes

the action being taken to address this situation, and urges the Secretary-General to continue to take the measures available to him to remediate this situation and better enable the Force to implement its mandate;

19. Demands that the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan continue to facilitate the deployment of the United Nations Mine Action Service to ensure the freedom of movement of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism as well as the identification and clearance of mines in the Abyei Area and the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone;

20. Also demands that all parties involved provide humanitarian personnel with full, safe and unhindered access to civilians in need of assistance and all facilities necessary for their operations, in accordance with international law, including applicable international humanitarian law, and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance;

21. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that effective human rights monitoring is carried out, and the results included in his reports to the Security Council, and reiterates its call upon the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan to extend their full cooperation to the Secretary-General to this end, including by issuing visas to the concerned United Nations personnel;

22. Also requests the Secretary-General to take the measures necessary to ensure full compliance of the Force with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and to keep the Council informed if cases of such conduct occur;

23. Stresses that continued cooperation between the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan is also critical for peace, security and stability and future relations between them;

24. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to inform the Council of progress in implementing the mandate of the Force in two written reports, no later than 30 July and 30 September 2014, respectively, and to continue to bring to the Council's immediate attention any serious violations of the above-referenced agreements;

25. Notes the efforts of the Secretary-General to ensure close cooperation among United Nations missions in the region, including the Force, the United Nations Mission in South Sudan and the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, as well as his Special Envoy for the Sudan and South Sudan, and requests him to continue this practice;

26. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Reports of Secretary-General (July and September). In response to Security Council resolution 2156(2014) (see p. 323), the Secretary-General submitted a July report [S/2014/518] on the situation in Abyei and UNISFA operations. He stated that the security situation was relatively calm, although the underlying conditions remained volatile and unpredictable. The presence of small arms remained prevalent among the civilian population. UNISFA observed the entry and exit of small numbers of SPLA personnel in southern Abyei, in contravention of existing agreements between the Sudan and South Sudan.

Further to the recommendations of the strategic review of UNISFA (see p. 322), a joint delegation consisting of the UNISFA Head of Mission/Force Commander and representatives of the UN Secretariat and the AU Commission started a joint series of consultations with the Governments of the Sudan and South Sudan in Khartoum and Juba, respectively, from 25 June to 2 July, to encourage the parties to take concrete steps to promote the consolidation of peace and security in Abyei. Ethiopia decided to join the engagement with both parties, which would continue until the expiry of the UNISFA mandate on 15 October.

On 27 May, South Sudan informed UNISFA in writing of its intention to resume participation in the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. On 28 June, South Sudan informed UNISFA that its earlier objection was not related to the centreline coordinates, but to the use of the coordinates to demarcate the agreed border corridors in disputed border areas, which would amount to de facto border demarcation. On 16 June, the Mechanism resumed operations through aerial patrols of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone from its base in Kadugli, Southern Kordofan. There was no reported military presence or activity in the Zone. The Mission completed the construction of accommodation facilities for a force protection platoon at Gok Machar and, from 25 to 27 June, relocated troops from Kadugli. Work on the expansion of Gok Machar and Kadugli sites continued, and preparations for the development of Mechanism sites in Malakal and Buram were ongoing. As at 1 July, UNISFA, the Sudanese Armed Forces and SPLA had 25, 34 and 30 monitors, respectively, at the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism headquarters in Kadugli. Three UNISFA and two SPLA monitors were deployed at the Gok Machar site. The United Nations Mine Action Service surveyed 357 km and cleared 129 km of priority Mission routes, including the route between Gok Machar and the UNISFA headquarters in Abyei.

In September [S/2014/709], the Secretary-General reported that the Misseriya nomads had completed their seasonal migration and northward movement out of the Abyei area by mid-July. As at 10 September, only 5,000 Misseriya were estimated to be present in Dari, Al-Askar, Diffra, Mekines and Farouk, in northern Abyei.

UNISFA undertook two initiatives towards the implementation of the recommendations from the strategic review of UNISFA. In July, the Mission requested the cooperation of the Sudan in conducting a joint assessment of security threats to the oil installations in Diffra. The assessment would constitute a preliminary step in developing proposals aimed at addressing the country's concerns in that regard, thereby allowing the withdrawal of their police units. In a 16 September meeting with UNISFA, the Sudan objected to the singling out of the oil police and instead proposed a security assessment for the whole of the Abyei Area.

In August, UNISFA began engaging local communities on the need for intercommunal dialogue with the Misseriya and Ngok Dinka community groups. The Ngok Dinka traditional leadership expressed frustration and called upon the Misseriya to admit responsibility and provide compensation for the assassination of the Ngok Dinka Paramount Chief, Kuol Deng Kuol, on 4 May 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 227]. Some of their representatives also called on the Misseriya to recognize the outcome of the Ngok Dinka unilateral community referendum of October 2013, in which the majority of that community voted for Abyei to become a part of South Sudan. The Misseriya expressed concern over the extent to which that referendum could affect their ability to migrate through Abyei and gain access to sufficient water and grazing land for their livestock.

On 3 September, the media reported that the President of the Sudan had appointed Hassan Ali Nimir al-Julla, a member of the Misseriya Humr clan, as the new Co-Chairman of the Government of the Sudan to the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee. South Sudan had not yet confirmed the identity of its own Co-Chairman.

A team of representatives of DPKO, UNDP and the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) of the Secretariat visited Abyei, Juba and Khartoum from 10 to 20 September to meet with UNISFA, NGOs and UN country team personnel. The visit was conducted to develop proposals for operational support to the recommendations from the strategic review of UNISFA, in particular as they pertained to the stabilization of Abyei. The team's recommendations included modalities for UNISFA support to intercommunity dialogue; United Nations country team and UNISFA support to community protection committees that aimed to address communities' law and order needs in the absence of the Abyei Police Service; UNISFA support to the implementation of Abyei Joint Oversight Committee decisions pertaining to the establishment of a weapons-free zone throughout the Abyei area; and the adoption of measures to enhance coordination between UNISFA and UN agencies, funds and programmes.

The Secretary-General observed that UNISFA could not implement its mandate to support the maintenance of peace and security and protect civilians in the complete absence of governance and law and order institutions. He was concerned that the organization of elections in Abyei by the Sudan, in the absence of a joint administration, might lead to political tensions and security incidents. The Secretary-General therefore called on the Sudan and South Sudan to resume political dialogue on the management of Abyei. He decided to reconfigure the leadership of UNISFA and appoint a civilian as Head of Mission, separating the functions of Head of Mission and Force Commander.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 14 October [meeting 7276], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2179(2014). The draft [S/2014/728] was submitted by France, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions and the statements by its President on the situation in the Sudan and South Sudan, in particular resolutions 1990(2011) of 27 June 2011, 2024(2011) of 14 December 2011, 2032(2011) of 22 December 2011, 2046(2012) of 2 May 2012, 2047(2012) of 17 May 2012, 2075(2012) of 16 November 2012, 2104(2013) of 29 May 2013, 2126(2013) of 25 November 2013 and 2156(2014) of 29 May 2014, as well as the statements by its President of 31 August 2012 and 23 August 2013 and its statements to the press of 18 June, 21 and 28 September 2012, 6 May and 14 June 2013 and 14 February and 17 March 2014,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Sudan and South Sudan and to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and recalling the importance of the principles of good-neighbourliness, non-interference and regional cooperation,

Reiterating that the territorial boundaries of States shall not be altered by force and that any territorial disputes shall be settled exclusively by peaceful means,

Affirming the priority it attaches to the full and urgent implementation of all outstanding issues from the Comprehensive Peace Agreement of 9 January 2005,

Reaffirming its previous resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict; its resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict; its resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003 on the protection of humanitarian and United Nations personnel; and its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security,

Recalling the commitments made by the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan in the Agreement between the Government of the Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement on Temporary Arrangements for the Administration and Security of the Abyei Area of 20 June 2011, the Agreement between the Government of the Sudan and the Government of Southern Sudan on Border Security and the Joint Political and Security Mechanism of 29 June 2011 and the Agreement on the Border Monitoring Support Mission between the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan of 30 July 2011, as well as the agreements on cooperation and security arrangements of 27 September 2012, the decision of the Joint Political and Security Mechanism of 8 March 2013 and the implementation matrix of 12 March 2013, reached by the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan in Addis Ababa under the auspices of the African Union High-level Implementation Panel,

Emphasizing the importance of the full participation of women in the implementation of agreements and in the prevention and resolution of conflict and peacebuilding more broadly,

Expressing its full support for the efforts of the African Union on the situation between the Sudan and South Sudan, in order to ease the current tension and facilitate the resumption of negotiations on post-secession relations and the normalization of their relations, recalling in this regard the African Union Peace and Security Council communiqués of 24 April and 24 October 2012, 25 January, 7 May, 29 July, 23 September, 26 October and 12 November 2013 and 12 September 2014, the Peace and Security Council press statement of 6 November 2013 and the statement made by the Chairperson of the African Union Commission on 28 October 2013,

Noting with concern the stalled efforts by the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan to demilitarize the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, including the “14-mile area”, and to fully implement the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, in accordance with Security Council resolution 2046(2012) and the Peace and Security Council road map of 24 April 2012, as a result of South Sudan’s continued disagreement with the location of the centreline of the Zone,

Underlining the importance of fully establishing and maintaining effective monitoring by the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, including the 14-mile area,

Stressing that both countries will have much to gain if they show restraint and choose the path of dialogue instead of resorting to violence or provocations,

Welcoming further regular meetings between President Bashir and President Kiir for continuing dialogue, recalling the decision in resolution 2046(2012) that the parties must resume immediately negotiations to reach agreement on the final status of Abyei under the auspices of the African Union High-level Implementation Panel, calling upon all parties to engage constructively in the process mediated by the Implementation Panel towards final agreement on the final status of the Abyei Area, and stressing that the parties must immediately implement pending aspects of the Agreement of 20 June 2011, in particular to resolve the dispute over the Abyei Area Council and immediately establish the Abyei Area Administration and Abyei Police Service,

Commending the continued assistance provided to the parties by the African Union High-level Implementation Panel, including its Chairperson, President Thabo Mbeki, and former Presidents Abdulsalami Abubakar and Pierre Buyoya, the Chairperson of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, Prime Minister Hailemariam Dessalegn of Ethiopia, the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for the Sudan and South Sudan, Mr. Haile Menkerios, and the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei,

Commending also the efforts of the Force in effectively carrying out its mandate, including by its ongoing facilitation of peaceful migration throughout the Abyei Area, conflict prevention, mediation and deterrence, and expressing its deep appreciation for the work of the troop-contributing countries,

Noting with concern the fragility of the security situation in the Abyei Area, acknowledging the contribution of the Force to enhanced peace and stability since its deployment, and determined to prevent the recurrence of violence against or displacements of civilians and to avert intercommunal conflict,

Expressing its determination that the future status of Abyei shall be resolved by negotiations between the parties in a manner consistent with the Comprehensive Peace Agreement and not by the unilateral actions of either party,

Deeply concerned by the public administration and rule of law vacuum in the Abyei Area, due to continued delays in the establishment of the Abyei Area Administration, Council and Police Service, including a special unit to deal with particular issues related to nomadic migration, which are essential to maintain law and order and prevent intercommunal conflict in Abyei,

Noting with concern the continued threat of intercommunal violence in the Abyei Area, including the ongoing tensions that prevent Sudanese staff of the Force and other agencies from returning to Abyei,

Noting that the continued delay in establishing the temporary institutions and resolving the final status of Abyei contributes to tension in the region, urging all parties to refrain from any unilateral action to aggravate intercommunal relations within the Abyei Area, and expressing concern over the continued implications of what the Peace and Security Council described in its press statement of 6 November 2013 as “the decision by the Ngok Dinka to conduct a unilateral referendum”,

Taking note of the announcement on 7 September 2014 by the Sudan National Election Commission to include the Abyei Area as a geographical constituency in the 2015 elections, which, according to the report of the Secretary-General of 30 September 2014, “can pose a serious risk to the stability of Abyei”,

Bearing in mind the importance of coherence of United Nations assistance in the region,

Welcoming and encouraging efforts by the United Nations to sensitize peacekeeping personnel in the prevention and control of HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases in all its peacekeeping operations,

Stressing the need for effective human rights monitoring, including of any sexual and gender-based violence and violations and abuses committed against children, taking note that there have been no developments with regard to the operationalization of human rights monitoring in the Abyei Area, and reiterating its concern at the lack of cooperation by the parties with the Secretary-General to this end,

Stressing also the urgency of facilitating the delivery of humanitarian assistance to all affected communities in the Abyei Area,

Affirming the importance of voluntary, safe, orderly return and sustainable reintegration of displaced persons, and of peaceful and orderly migration cycles respecting the traditional migratory routes from the Sudan to South Sudan through Abyei, and urging the Force to take measures as necessary to ensure security in the Abyei Area in accordance with its mandate,

Recalling its resolution 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013, and expressing grave concern at the threat to peace and security in Abyei arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Expressing concern about the residual threat of landmines and explosive remnants of war in the Abyei Area, which hinders the safe return of displaced persons to their homes and safe migration,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 30 September 2014, including the assessment that the political and security situation on the ground is relatively calm, but can easily escalate into open conflict, with a commensurate risk of deterioration of bilateral relations between the Sudan and South Sudan, and the recommendations contained therein,

Recognizing that the current situation in Abyei and along the border between the Sudan and South Sudan continues to constitute a serious threat to international peace and security,

1. Decides to extend until 28 February 2015 the mandate of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei as set out in paragraph 2 of resolution 1990(2011) and modified by resolution 2024(2011) and paragraph 1 of resolution 2075(2012), and, acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations, further decides to extend until 28 February 2015 the mandate of the Force as set out in paragraph 3 of resolution 1990(2011), and determines that, for the purposes of paragraph 1 of resolution 2024(2011), support to the operational activities of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism shall include support to the Ad Hoc Committees, as appropriate when so requested by consensual decisions of these mechanisms, within the operational area and existing capabilities of the Force;

2. Takes note of the recommendations in the report of the Secretary-General of 30 September 2014, and welcomes the initiatives of the Force to support resumption of community dialogue and administration by the communities under the supervision of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee; in this regard calls upon the communities and the Governments of the Sudan and South Sudan to take concrete steps towards that goal; and further welcomes the current and future support in these efforts from the United Nations, the African Union and the Government of Ethiopia;

3. Reiterates its demand that the Sudan and South Sudan immediately resume the work of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee, and calls upon the Government of South Sudan to name immediately an Oversight Committee Co-Chair to ensure steady progress on the implementation of the Agreement on Temporary Arrangements for the Administration and Security of the Abyei Area of 20 June 2011, including the implementation of the decisions of the Oversight Committee, and requests the Secretary-General to provide an assessment of progress on these issues in his regular reports, including on his recommendations resulting from the strategic review of the Force in May 2014;

4. Further reiterates its demand that the Sudan and South Sudan urgently commence the establishment of the Abyei Area Administration and Council, including by resolving the deadlock over the composition of the Council, and constitute the Abyei Police Service, to enable it to take over policing functions throughout the Abyei Area, including the protection of oil infrastructure, in accordance with their commitments in the Agreement of 20 June 2011;

5. Decides to maintain the troops authorized by resolution 2104(2013) already deployed, and that the remaining authorized forces shall continue to be deployed consistent with the progressive reactivation of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, to enable the Force to provide required force protection to the Mechanism and to enable the Force to fully support the Mechanism to conduct extended operations into the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone as soon as possible, and requests the Secretary-General to keep the Security Council fully updated on the status of deployment as part of his regular reporting cycle;

6. Expresses concern regarding the stalled efforts to fully operationalize the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, as a result of South Sudan's continued disagreement with the location of the centreline of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, and calls upon the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan to make timely and effective use of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism, the Joint Political and Security Mechanism and other agreed joint mechanisms to ensure the security and transparency of the Zone, including the 14-mile area;

7. Urges renewed efforts to determine conclusively the centreline of the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone on the ground, and reiterates that the centreline of the Zone in no way prejudices the current or future legal status of the border, ongoing negotiations on the disputed and claimed areas, and demarcation of the borders;

8. Underscores that the protection of civilians mandate of the Force as set out in paragraph 3 of resolution 1990(2011) includes taking the actions necessary to protect civilians under imminent threat of physical violence, irrespective of the source of such violence;

9. Condemns the presence of South Sudan security service personnel and Diffra oil police units deployed in the Abyei Area, as well as the repeated entry of Misseriya militias into the territory, and reiterates its demands that immediately and without preconditions the Government of South Sudan fully redeploy its security service personnel from the Abyei Area and that the Government of the Sudan also redeploy the oil police in Diffra from the Abyei Area, and further reiterates, in accordance with relevant resolutions, in particular resolutions 1990(2011) and 2046(2012), that the Abyei Area shall be demilitarized from any forces, as well as armed elements of the local communities, other than the Force and the Abyei Police Service;

10. Supports the decision of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee of 3 May 2013 on Abyei's status as a weapons-free area, underscores the concern expressed by the African Union Peace and Security Council in its communiqué of 7 May 2013 over reports that various communities living in Abyei are heavily armed, recalls that in the Agreement of 20 June 2011 it is stipulated that Abyei should be a weapons-free area and that only the Force is authorized to carry weapons inside the Area, and in this regard urges the two Governments to take all steps necessary to ensure that Abyei is effectively demilitarized, including through disarmament programmes as necessary;

11. Requests that the Force, consistent with its mandate and within its existing capabilities, observe, document and report on the movement of weapons into Abyei and the presence of weapons within Abyei as part of the Secretary-General's regular reporting cycle;

12. Urges the two Governments immediately to take steps to implement confidence-building measures among the respective communities in the Abyei Area, including through reconciliation processes at the grass-roots level and supporting the Force in convening a peace conference between the Ngok Dinka and Misseriya traditional chiefs, and strongly urges all Abyei communities to exercise maximum restraint in all their engagements and to desist from inflammatory acts or statements that may lead to violent clashes, or any further unilateral activities;

13. Requests the Force to continue its dialogue with the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee and with the Misseriya and Ngok Dinka communities on effective strategies and oversight mechanisms for ensuring full compliance by all relevant parties with Abyei's status as a weapons-free area, with a particular priority placed on the urgent elimination of heavy or crew-served weapons, as well as rocket-propelled grenades, and calls upon the Governments of the Sudan and South Sudan, the Oversight Committee and the Misseriya and Ngok Dinka communities to extend full cooperation to the Force in this regard;

14. Calls upon all parties to cooperate fully with the findings and recommendations following the investigation by the Abyei Area Joint Investigation and Inquiry Committee into the killing of a Force peacekeeper and the Ngok Dinka Paramount Chief;

15. Expresses its intention to review, as appropriate, the mandate of the Force for possible reconfiguration of the mission in the light of the compliance by the Sudan and South Sudan with the decisions set forth in resolution 2046(2012) and their commitments as set forth in the Agreements of 20 and 29 June and 30 July 2011 and 27 September 2012, including the redeployment of all forces from the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone, achieving full operational capability for the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism and the Ad Hoc Committees, as well as completing the full demilitarization of the Abyei Area;

16. Calls upon all Member States, in particular the Sudan and South Sudan, to ensure the free, unhindered and expeditious movement to and from Abyei and throughout the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone of all personnel, as well as equipment, provisions, supplies and other goods, including vehicles, aircraft and spare parts, which are for the exclusive and official use of the Force;

17. Renews its call upon the Governments of the Sudan and South Sudan to provide full support to the United Nations, including by promptly issuing visas to military, police and civilian United Nations personnel, including humanitarian personnel, without prejudice to their nationality, facilitating basing arrangements and flight clearances, and providing logistical support, and calls upon all parties to fully adhere to their obligations under the status-of-forces agreements;

18. Recognizes the absence of critical infrastructure projects affecting peacekeeping personnel of the Force, notes the action being taken to address this situation, and urges the Secretary-General to continue to take the measures available to him to remediate this situation and better enable the Force to implement its mandate;

19. Demands that the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan continue to facilitate the deployment of the Mine Action Service of the United Nations to ensure the freedom of movement of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism as well as the identification and clearance of mines in the Abyei Area and the Safe Demilitarized Border Zone;

20. Also demands that all parties involved provide humanitarian personnel with full, safe and unhindered access to civilians in need of assistance and all facilities necessary for their operations, in accordance with international law, including applicable international humanitarian law, and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance;

21. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that effective human rights monitoring is carried out and the results included in his reports to the Security Council, and reiterates its call upon the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan to extend their full cooperation to the Secretary-General to this end, including by issuing visas to the concerned United Nations personnel;

22. Also requests the Secretary-General to take the measures necessary to ensure full compliance of the Force with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and to keep the Security Council informed if cases of such conduct occur;

23. Stresses that continued cooperation between the Government of the Sudan and the Government of South Sudan is also critical for peace, security and stability and future relations between them;

24. Requests the Secretary-General, with support from the African Union Commission and the Government of Ethiopia, to explore options in the context of the Peace and Security Council communiqué of 12 September 2014, in which the parties are urged to use creative provisions based on mutual understanding to expedite implementation of the outstanding administrative and security elements of the Agreement of 20 June 2011, as appropriate, and to include their findings in the consolidated recommendations on the Force to be presented to the Security Council in the next report of the Secretary-General;

25. Also requests the Secretary-General to continue to inform the Security Council of progress in implementing the mandate of the Force in two written reports, no later than 1 December 2014 and 2 February 2015 respectively, and to continue to bring to the Council's immediate attention any serious violations of the above-referenced agreements;

26. Notes the efforts of the Secretary-General to ensure close cooperation among United Nations missions in the region, including the Force, the United Nations Mission in South Sudan and the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur, as well as his Special Envoy for the Sudan and South Sudan, and requests him to continue this practice;

27. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to resolution 2179(2014) (see p. 327), the Secretary-General submitted a December report [S/2014/862] on the situation in Abyei and UNISFA operations. He stated that the security situation in the Abyei Area remained relatively calm despite underlying tensions and volatility. On 4 November, President al-Bashir and President Kiir held a summit meeting in Khartoum, at which they agreed to the resumption of Abyei Joint Oversight Committee meetings. President Kiir pledged to appoint a new Committee Co-Chair for South Sudan.

Pursuant to the recommendations of the strategic review of UNISFA (see p. 322), the AU Commission, Ethiopia, the UN Secretariat and UNISFA conducted a follow-up mission to Khartoum and Juba from 4 to 8 November to engage with officials from the Sudan and South Sudan. The delegation encouraged the two Governments to take concrete steps to promote the consolidation of peace and security in Abyei and to explore creative approaches, based on mutual understanding, for the implementation of the 20 June 2011 Agreement, as called for in the communiqué of the 456th meeting of the AU Peace and Security Council held on 12 September.

The Sudan agreed to work towards the resumption of Joint Oversight Committee meetings without preconditions regarding their location. It was ready to consider creative approaches to addressing the current public administration and law and order vacuum in Abyei, within the framework of intercommunal dialogue and under the supervision of the Committee. The Sudan reiterated its position that the oil police units should remain inside the oil complex in Difra until the formation of the Abyei Police Service provided for in the 20 June 2011 Agreement. South Sudan confirmed its intention to appoint a new Co-Chair of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee and resume meetings, provided that the meetings initially took place outside the Abyei Area, due to continuing intercommunal tensions following the assassination of the Ngok Dinka Paramount Chief in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 277]. While also agreeing to explore creative approaches to addressing the situation in Abyei within the framework of intercommunal dialogue, South Sudan stated that a number of preconditions had to be fulfilled. First, the findings of the AU-led investigation into the assassination of the Paramount Chief had to be made available and the issue resolved through traditional mechanisms. Second, the Sudan had to withdraw its police units from Diffra. Should the police not be withdrawn, South Sudan said that it could deploy its own police elements in the territory to address its security concerns.

The UN Secretariat and UNISFA invited the Sudan and South Sudan, along with the AU Commission and Ethiopia, to participate in a high-level security meeting on Abyei in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, on 17 November. On 13 November, the Sudan requested that UNISFA postpone the meeting. On 18 November, the acting UNISFA Head of Mission met with Sudanese officials in Khartoum and urged them to participate in the meeting, which was rescheduled for late December. Following the postponement, Ethiopia reiterated to UNISFA, on 14 November, that should the Sudan and South Sudan continue to fail to meet their obligations towards the implementation of the 20 June 2011 Agreement, Ethiopia would withdraw its troops from UNISFA.

On 7 September, the Sudan National Election Commission announced its intention to include Abyei as a constituency in the 2015 elections. The Chairman of the Western Kordofan State election commission, Abdul Jabar Ibrahim, was quoted in the media, on 18 October, as stating that the Area was not among the State's constituencies for national or state polls. The Sudan considered the Abyei Area a district within the administrative boundaries of Western Kordofan State. Four days later, the media cited the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee Co-Chair for the Sudan, Hassan Ali Nimir, as reiterating that the citizens of Abyei would be included in the elections. On 17 November, the National Electoral Commission announced that the registration of voters for the 2015 elections had concluded. No registration was conducted in the Abyei Area.

As at 6 November, UNISFA, the Sudan and South Sudan had 15, 32 and 34 monitors deployed, respectively, to the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. As at 16 November, the UNISFA military component stood at 3,942 of the authorized strength of 5,326. The strength of the UNISFA police component stood at 24 out of the authorized strength of 50 police officers. Humanitarian actors continued to assist approximately 81,000 people in the Abyei Area.

In November, DPKO, OCHA and UNDP finalized the report of the follow-up mission on the strategic review of UNISFA. The mission recommended that UNISFA adopt a more systematic approach to confiscating weapons from small armed groups or individuals. Such an approach would be consistent with the 3 May 2013 decision of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee to make Abyei a "weapons-free zone".

The Secretary-General urged both Governments to reach an agreement on the modalities for the resumption of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee meetings without preconditions, and urged the Government of South Sudan to promptly appoint a new Committee Co-Chair. He called on the AU Commission to report the conclusions of the investigation into the assassination of the Ngok Dinka Paramount Chief to the AU Peace and Security Council.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/77], the Secretary-General stated that, consistent with the announcement made during the 4 November summit in Khartoum, President Salva Kiir, on 4 December, issued a decree appointing Deng Mading as the new Co-Chair for South Sudan of the Abyei Joint Oversight Committee. The security situation at the headquarters of the Joint Border Verification Monitoring Mechanism in Kadugli deteriorated in mid-December, following an escalation of fighting between the Sudanese Armed Forces and SPLM-N. From 10–12 December, the headquarters reported shelling and artillery fire between the two parties near Kadugli.

UNISFA

The United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei (UNISFA) was established in 2011 by Security Council resolution 1990(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 195] for an initial period of six months following the violence and population displacement that occurred in the Abyei Area as southern Sudan was preparing to declare its independence from the Sudan. The Area, straddling northern and southern Sudan, was claimed by both sides. UNISFA was deployed in the wake of the 20 June 2011 Agreement [ibid.] between the Government of the Sudan and SPLM to withdraw their respective forces and allow Ethiopian peacekeepers in Abyei. It was tasked with monitoring the border and facilitating the delivery of humanitarian aid, and was authorized to use force to protect civilians and humanitarian workers. By resolution 2024(2011) [ibid., p. 205], the UNISFA mandate was broadened to include tasks in support of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism. The Council, by resolution 2104(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 226], increased the authorized UNISFA troop ceiling to 5,326. By resolution 2156(2014) of 29 May (see p. 323), the Council extended the UNISFA mandate until 15 October; by resolution 2179(2014) of 14 October (see p. 327), the Council extended the mandate until 28 February 2015.

Appointment. By an 18 November letter [S/2014/835], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Major General Birhanu Jula Gelacha (Ethiopia) as UNISFA Force Commander. He replaced Major-General Yohannes Gebremeskel Tesfamariam (Ethiopia), who completed his assignment on 19 June. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 20 November [S/2014/836].

Financing

In June, the General Assembly considered the report [A/68/604] of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of UNISFA for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, which showed an expenditure of $257,846,200 gross ($256,308,900 net) against an apportionment of $257,932,000 gross ($256,573,400 net). The Secretary-General recommended that the General Assembly decide on the treatment of the unencumbered balance of $85,800 with respect to the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, and on the treatment of other income/adjustments for the period ended 30 June 2013 amounting to $6,906,600.

The Assembly also had before it a January report [A/68/728] of the Secretary-General on the UNISFA budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, which amounted to $328,210,600 gross ($326,075,900 net). The budget provided for the deployment of 225 military observers, 5,101 military contingent personnel, 50 UN police officers, 165 international staff, 107 national staff and 37 United Nations Volunteers.

ACABQ, in April [A/68/782/Add.4], recommended measures that would entail a reduction of $1,037,600 to the proposed UNISFA budget. It recommended that the Assembly appropriate $327,173,000 for the maintenance of the mission for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015; and that the unencumbered balance of $85,800 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income/adjustments amounting to $6,906,600 for the period ended 30 June 2013, be credited to Member States.

The General Assembly, by decision 69/554 of 29 December, decided that the agenda item on UNISFA financing would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/672/Add.1], adopted resolution 68/258 B without vote [agenda item 148].

Financing of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei B

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1990(2011) of 27 June 2011, by which the Council established the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei for a period of six months, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force, the latest of which was resolution 2156(2014) of 29 May 2014, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force until 15 October 2014,

Recalling also its resolution 66/241 A of 24 December 2011 on the financing of the Force and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 68/258 A of 27 December 2013,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Force with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to entrust the Head of Mission with the task of formulating future budget proposals in full accordance with the provisions of its resolutions 59/296 of 22 June 2005, 60/266 of 30 June 2006, 61/276 of 29 June 2007, 64/269 of 24 June 2010, 65/289 of 30 June 2011 and 66/264 of 21 June 2012, as well as other relevant resolutions;

2. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 41.2 million United States dollars, representing some 6 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 58 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Force in full;

4. Expresses concern at the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that proposed peacekeeping budgets are based on the relevant legislative mandates;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, subject to the provisions of the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure the full implementation of the relevant provisions of its resolutions 59/296, 60/266, 61/276, 64/269, 65/289 and 66/264;

10. Also requests the Secretary-General to take all action necessary to ensure that the Force is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

11. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of the Force for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

Budget estimates for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015

12. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei the amount of 343,815,800 dollars for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of 318,925,200 dollars for the maintenance of the Force, 20,636,700 dollars for the support account for peacekeeping operations and 4,253,900 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy;

Financing of the appropriation

13. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 99,817,490 dollars for the period from 1 July to 15 October 2014, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239 of 24 December 2012, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014, as set out in its resolution 67/238 of 24 December 2012;

14. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 13 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 1,094,633 dollars, comprising the estimated staff assessment income of 604,045 dollars approved for the Force, the prorated share of 380,265 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 110,323 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

15. Further decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 243,998,310 dollars for the period from 16 October 2014 to 30 June 2015, at a monthly rate of 28,651,317 dollars, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2014 and 2015, as set out in its resolution 67/238, subject to a decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Force;

16. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 15 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 2,675,767 dollars, comprising the estimated staff assessment income of 1,476,555 dollars approved for the Force, the prorated share of 929,535 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the support account and the prorated share of 269,677 dollars of the estimated staff assessment income approved for the United Nations Logistics Base;

17. Also decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, there shall be set off against their apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 13 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 6,992,400 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 67/239, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2013, as set out in its resolution 67/238;

18. Further decides that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, there shall be set off against their outstanding obligations their respective share of the unencumbered balance and other income in the amount of 6,992,400 dollars in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013, in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 17 above;

19. Decides that the increase of 178,700 dollars in the estimated staff assessment income in respect of the financial period ended 30 June 2013 shall be added to the credits in the amount of 6,992,400 dollars referred to in paragraphs 17 and 18 above;

20. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

21. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel participating in the Force under the auspices of the United Nations, bearing in mind paragraphs 5 and 6 of Security Council resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003;

22. Invites voluntary contributions to the Force in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

23. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Interim Security Force for Abyei".

Children and armed conflict

In May [A/68/878-S/2014/339], the Secretary-General issued his report on children and armed conflict, which included information on grave violations committed against children during armed conflict in the Sudan in 2013. The United Nations recorded the recruitment and use of 42 children in South Kordofan and Blue Nile States, including 2 by the Sudan Armed Forces (SAF). At least 6 children were killed in clashes and 10 were injured in mortar attacks. Unexploded ordnance-related incidents resulted in at least six children being injured in Blue Nile, and six children reportedly killed and nine others injured in a single incident in Um Baraka, South Kordofan province.

Sexual violence against children in the three areas—South Kordofan, Blue Nile State and Abyei—continued to be underreported in 2013 owing to limited monitoring capacity and victims' fear of stigmatization. The United Nations documented the rape of three girls, between 14 and 17 years of age, by pro-Government militias in two separate incidents in Abu Zabad, South Kordofan, on 19 November. It organized child protection training and orientation for 131 SAF and Popular Defence Force (PDF) officers. Nine children released by PDF in Abugibaiha, Talodi, and Kalogi, South Kordofan, and the 10 children who fled from the Sudan People's Liberation Movement-North (SPLM-N) camp in Mandi were reintegrated with support from the United Nations.

UNMIS

The United Nations Mission in the Sudan (UNMIS) was established by Security Council resolution 1590(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 304] to support implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement [ibid., p. 301]; facilitate and coordinate the voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons; assist with demining; and protect and promote human rights. The UNMIS mandate ended on 9 July 2011 with the establishment of South Sudan as an independent country on that date. UNMIS was closed by 31 August 2011 and its administrative liquidation was completed by 31 December 2011.

Financing

In a January report on the financing of UNMIS [A/68/709 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General stated that the Mission's assets, with a total inventory value of $293,013,900, were disposed of as at 31 July 2013. He recommended that the General Assembly approve the donation, on a free-of-charge basis, of assets with an inventory value of $6,276,200 and a corresponding residual value of $2,114,800 to the Government of the Sudan, and assets with an inventory value of $47,400 and a corresponding residual value of $25,600 to the Joint Integrated Units. In May [A/68/866], ACABQ recommended that the Assembly approve the donation of UNMIS assets as recommended by the Secretary-General.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/920], adopted resolution 68/294 without vote [agenda item 161].

Financing of the United Nations Mission in the Sudan

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Mission in the Sudan and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 1590(2005) of 24 March 2005, by which the Council established the United Nations Mission in the Sudan for an initial period of six months as from 24 March 2005, the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Mission, and resolution 1997(2011) of 11 July 2011, by which the Council decided to withdraw the Mission effective 11 July 2011 and called upon the Secretary-General to complete the withdrawal of all uniformed and civilian Mission personnel, other than those required for the liquidation of the Mission, by 31 August 2011,

Recalling also its resolution 59/292 of 21 April 2005 on the financing of the Mission and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/281 of 28 June 2013,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Trust Fund in Support of the Peace Process in the Sudan,

1. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Mission in the Sudan as at 30 April 2014, including the credits in the amount of 17.7 million United States dollars;

2. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

3. Notes with concern the delay in the Secretary-General's request for approval by the General Assembly to transfer assets of the Mission, and in this regard stresses the need to abide by the relevant provisions, regulations and rules governing the transfer of the assets of missions;

Disposition of assets of the United Nations Mission in the Sudan

4. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the Mission;

5. Approves the donation of assets of the Mission, with a total inventory value of 6,276,200 dollars and corresponding residual value of 2,114,800 dollars, to the Government of the Sudan;

6. Also approves the donation of assets of the Mission, with a total inventory value of 47,400 dollars and corresponding residual value of 25,600 dollars, to the Joint Integrated Units;

7. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled “Financing of the United Nations Mission in the Sudan”.

The General Assembly, by decision 69/554 of 29 December, decided that the agenda item on UNMIS financing would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

South Sudan

The parties to the armed conflict in South Sudan made little progress towards a political settlement in 2014. On 23 January, the Government and the Sudan People’s Liberation Movement/Army (SPLM/A) in Opposition signed agreements on the cessation of hostilities and on the status of detainees. On 30 January, the Government signed a cessation of hostilities agreement with the South Sudan Democratic Movement/Army (SSDM/A) Cobra Faction. On 9 May, the two sides pledged to facilitate the deployment of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD) Monitoring and Verification Mechanism. On 11 May, the President outlined his road map for the peace process, stating that it should begin with a cessation of hostilities, the full deployment of the Mechanism and the opening of humanitarian access. On 24 July, President Kiir established the Greater Pibor Administrative Area, an autonomous area within Jonglei State. In November, the sixth IGAD summit authorized the IGAD region to intervene directly in South Sudan to protect life and restore peace. On 9 November, the Government and SPLM/A in Opposition signed the implementation matrix for the 23 January agreement (see below). The Security Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan until 30 May 2015.

Political and security developments

Communications. By an 8 January letter [S/2014/8], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council a communiqué on the situation in South Sudan, adopted by the AU Peace and Security Council at its 411th meeting (Banjul, Gambia, 30 December 2013). The Peace and Security Council condemned attacks against civilians in South Sudan, including the targeting of ethnic groups and other communities, and condemned the 19 December 2013 attack against the Akobo camp of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan (UNMISS), in which two peacekeepers and many civilians were killed. It urged South Sudanese stakeholders to extend full cooperation to the Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD) to facilitate an early solution to the crisis in the country, and demanded that the parties unconditionally cease hostilities.

By a 23 January letter [S/2014/46], South Sudan conveyed to the Security Council a press release issued the same date by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation of South Sudan, which noted a misinterpretation in some circles of a statement made by the President of South Sudan, Salva Kiir. South Sudan affirmed its wish to continue its relationship with the United Nations, particularly UNMISS, and the international community. It looked forward to a constructive dialogue on mechanisms to improve communication and logistical concerns as partners in mitigating the suffering of the people of South Sudan.

By an 11 March letter [S/2014/171], Eritrea conveyed to the Security Council a press statement on the recent developments in South Sudan, issued the same day by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Eritrea.

Report of Secretary-General (March). In response to Security Council resolution 2109(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 238], the Secretary-General submitted a March report [S/2014/158] covering major developments in South Sudan since the issuance of his November 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 242], as well as the implementation of resolution 2132(2013) [ibid., p. 243], by which the Council temporarily increased the overall force levels of UNMISS to support the protection of civilians and the provision of humanitarian assistance during the crisis that started on 15 December 2013 [ibid., p. 242].

On 4 January, IGAD, following individual consultations, proxy talks and direct talks, commenced the formal negotiation process between the parties in Addis Ababa. On 23 January, the Government and SPLM/A in Opposition signed agreements on the cessation of hostilities and on the status of detainees, paving the way towards an inclusive dialogue and a process of national reconciliation. The second phase of the political dialogue and national reconciliation process resumed in Addis Ababa on 11 February and adjourned on 3 March. The parties reached agreement on the modalities of the monitoring and verification mechanism and discussed the way forward on the national dialogue and issues related to the Sudan People’s Liberation Movement (SPLM). In the meantime, fighting at various locations continued and both sides remained in breach of the cessation of hostilities agreement. The President declared a state of emergency in Jonglei and Unity States on 1 January and in Upper Nile State on 17 January. On 20 January, the National Legislative Assembly, in an emergency session, unanimously approved the President’s decisions for a period of six months. On 30 January, in Addis Ababa, the Government signed a cessation of hostilities agreement with the South Sudan Democratic Movement/Army (SSDM/A) Cobra Faction, the armed group led by David Yau Yau.

The group agreed to remain neutral in the conflict between SPLA and SPLM/A in Opposition forces.

The humanitarian situation in South Sudan deteriorated sharply following the outbreak of violence. Within the first four weeks of the crisis, almost 500,000 persons were displaced within South Sudan and around 74,300 people crossed into neighbouring countries. Total displacement reached 900,000 persons, some 167,000 of whom crossed into neighbouring countries. The number of civilians in the “acute” or “emergency” categories of food insecurity increased from 1.1 million to 3.2 million. Some 500,000 displaced persons were in urgent need of food aid; thus, the survival of 3.7 million South Sudanese was in question. UNMISS assumed the lead in the management of safety and security of civilians in the protection sites within its bases, while humanitarian aid partners provided clean water, emergency latrines, food, health care and shelter to civilians. The Government and SPLM/A in Opposition committed themselves to facilitating humanitarian access to all civilians in need. Nevertheless, in several of the areas in greatest need, daily activities and humanitarian access were constrained by active hostilities, interference in humanitarian operations and attacks on aid workers.

On 21 February, UNMISS issued a public interim report on the serious human rights violations that had occurred from 15 December 2013 to 31 January 2014. As noted in the report, the crisis had widespread negative consequences for the human rights situation in many parts of the country. UNMISS estimated that thousands of people had been killed during the hostilities.

Mounting anti-UN sentiment emanated from misperceptions about the Mission’s role during the crisis. Unfounded allegations were made that UNMISS was not impartial and that the Mission was aiding and abetting the anti-government forces. The ability of UNMISS to move freely was increasingly obstructed. Demonstrations against the United Nations were organized in several state capitals. The situation reached a critical point on 19 January, when the Minister of Information, together with 65 armed SPLA soldiers, tried to forcibly enter the site for the protection of civilians in the UNMISS compound in Bor, Jonglei State. After the State Coordinator refused to grant entry to the armed soldiers, some of them threatened the State Coordinator and revoked all safety assurances previously given to UN personnel and assets in the area. Subsequently, following hostile statements against the United Nations from the Government, a number of incidents of harassment, threats and serious status-of-forces agreement violations occurred. In a 20 January press conference, President Kiir criticized UNMISS and accused the United Nations of attempting to act as a parallel government. On 23 January, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued a press statement explaining that the President’s remarks had been misinterpreted

(see p. 335). Following his meeting with the Secretary-General’s Special Representative, Hilde Johnson, on 24 January, the President largely retracted his comments about UNMISS and instructed security ministers to protect UN and international personnel. While the situation abated to some degree, some government officials continued to make critical public remarks about the Mission. The Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations, Hervé Ladsous, visited Juba on 3 February and protested such issues in his meeting with the President of South Sudan.

The Secretary-General called on SPLM to address its internal political crisis. He also called on the Government and South Sudanese stakeholders to engage in dialogue towards national reconciliation and an open democratic system of governance and pledged to make every effort to ensure that the perpetrators of crimes committed against civilians were brought to justice.

Letter of the Secretary-General. In a 9 May letter addressed to the Security Council [S/2014/337], the Secretary-General stated that on 13 March, the twenty-fifth extraordinary session of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of IGAD issued a communiqué on the situation in South Sudan, in which the Heads of State urged the parties to the conflict to comply with the 23 January Cessation of Hostilities Agreement. They requested the Security Council and the AU Peace and Security Council to provide all necessary support for the deployment of a Protection and Deterrence Force as part of the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism established under the Agreement. In an 8 April letter addressed to the Secretary-General, the IGAD Chair, Hailemariam Desalegn, Prime Minister of Ethiopia, requested the support of the United Nations for the Mechanism’s deployment. On 5 May, the United Nations received a proposal from IGAD outlining the concept of the proposed Force. The Secretariat was examining the proposal and would provide recommendations to the Security Council. President Salva Kiir and former Vice President Riek Machar met on 9 May in Ethiopia, where they signed the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan. Pending the Security Council’s decision on the IGAD request, the Secretary-General requested the Council to consider endorsing the provision by UNMISS of security to the monitoring and verification teams on an interim basis and within its existing capabilities. The Security Council took note of the Secretary-General’s letter on 14 May [S/2014/338].

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 27 May [meeting 7182], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2155(2014). The draft [S/2014/367] was submitted by Australia, Chad, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions 1996(2011) of 8 July 2011, 2046(2012) of 2 May 2012, 2057(2012) of 5 July 2012, 2109(2013) of 11 July 2013 and 2132(2013) of 24 December 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and national unity of South Sudan, and recalling the importance of the principles of non-interference, good-neighbourliness and regional cooperation,

Recalling its resolution 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013 and reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the need and situation of the country concerned,

Expressing grave alarm and concern regarding the rapidly deteriorating political, security and humanitarian crisis in South Sudan resulting from the internal Sudan People's Liberation Movement political dispute and subsequent violence caused by the country's political and military leaders,

Strongly condemning reported and ongoing human rights violations and abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, including those involving extrajudicial killings, ethnically targeted violence, sexual and gender-based violence, rape, recruitment and use of children, enforced disappearances, arbitrary arrests and detention, violence aimed at spreading terror among the civilian population, and attacks on schools and hospitals as well as United Nations peacekeeping personnel, by all parties, including armed groups and national security forces, as well as the incitement to commit such abuses and violations, and emphasizing that those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights must be held accountable and that the Government of South Sudan bears the primary responsibility to protect civilians within its territory and subject to its jurisdiction, including from potential crimes against humanity and war crimes,

Expressing deep concern over the large-scale displacement of persons and deepening humanitarian crisis, stressing the responsibility borne by all parties to the conflict for the suffering of the people of South Sudan, and the necessity of ensuring that the basic needs of the population are met, commending United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners for their efforts to provide urgent and coordinated support to the population, calling upon all parties to the conflict to allow and facilitate, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, the full, safe and unhindered access of relief personnel, equipment and supplies to all those in need and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance, in particular to internally displaced persons and refugees, condemning all attacks against humanitarian personnel and facilities, and recalling that attacks against humanitarian personnel and depriving civilians of objects indispensable to their survival may amount to violations of international humanitarian law,

Commending the Intergovernmental Authority on Development initiative, as supported by the United Nations and African Union, in establishing a forum for political and security dialogue, and expecting all parties to participate in this process and respect the decisions reached by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Intergovernmental Authority on 13 March 2014,

Welcoming the cessation of hostilities and status of detainees agreements of 23 January 2014, mediated by the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, consensus on the declaration of principles between the parties, the establishment of the ceasefire Monitoring and Verification Mechanism, and the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan, of 9 May 2014, while condemning repeated violations of the cessation of hostilities agreement by all parties, which undermine peace efforts,

Expressing its deep appreciation for the actions taken by United Nations Mission in South Sudan peacekeepers and troop- and police-contributing countries to protect civilians, including foreign nationals, under threat of physical violence and to stabilize the security situation, and further expressing appreciation for those Member States that have responded immediately to expedite the deployment of troops and police immediately after the adoption of resolution 2132(2013),

Taking note with interest of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan interim human rights report of 21 February 2014, and its report entitled "Conflict in South Sudan: A Human Rights Report", of 8 May 2014,

Expressing grave concern that, according to the report of 8 May 2014, there are reasonable grounds to believe that war crimes and crimes against humanity, including extrajudicial killings, rape and other acts of sexual violence, enforced disappearances and arbitrary arrests and detention, have been committed by all parties to the conflict in South Sudan,

Stressing the urgent and imperative need to end impunity in South Sudan and to bring to justice perpetrators of such crimes,

Welcoming the inaugural meeting, held on 12 March 2014, and the initiation of the work of the African Union Commission of Inquiry for South Sudan as critical steps in independent and public human rights monitoring, investigation and reporting,

Strongly condemning the use of radio to broadcast hate speech and transmit messages instigating sexual violence against a particular ethnic group, which has the potential to play a significant role in promoting mass violence and exacerbating conflict, calling upon the Government of South Sudan to take the appropriate measures in order to deter such activity, and further urging all parties to desist from these actions and instead to contribute to promoting peace and reconciliation among the communities,

Emphasizing that persisting barriers to full implementation of resolution 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 will only be dismantled through dedicated commitment to women's empowerment, participation and human rights, and through concerted leadership, consistent information and action, and support, to build women's engagement in all levels of decision-making,

Expressing deep concern at persistent restrictions placed upon the movement and operations of the Mission, strongly condemning the attacks by government and opposition forces and other groups on United Nations personnel and facilities, including the December 2012 downing of a United Nations helicopter by the Sudan People's Liberation

Army, the April 2013 attack on a United Nations convoy, the December 2013 attack on the Mission camp in Akobo and the 2014 attacks on the Mission camp in Bor, and calling upon the Government of South Sudan to complete its investigations of these attacks in a swift and thorough manner and to hold those responsible to account,

Expressing grave concern regarding the threats made to oil installations, petroleum companies and their employees, and urging all parties to ensure the security of economic infrastructure,

Recalling its resolution 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013, and expressing grave concern at the threat to peace and security in South Sudan arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Noting with serious concern reports of the indiscriminate use of cluster munitions, made by the United Nations Mine Action Service in Jonglei State in February 2014, and urging all parties to refrain from similar such use in the future,

Welcoming the initiative of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development for the deployment of the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism, calling for the re-deployment and/or progressive withdrawal of armed groups and allied forces invited by either side, consistent with the cessation of hostilities agreement of 23 January 2014, and warning of the serious consequences that could result from any regionalization of the conflict,

Reaffirming its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, and resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003 on the protection of humanitarian and United Nations personnel; resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012, and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict; resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace and security; resolution 2150(2014) of 16 April 2014 on the prevention of and fight against genocide; and resolution 2151(2014) of 28 April 2014 on security sector reform,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 6 March 2014 and the recommendations contained therein,

Determining that the situation in South Sudan continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Endorses the cessation of hostilities agreement accepted and signed by South Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement/Army (in Opposition) on 23 January 2014, also endorses the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan signed on 9 May 2014 by South Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement/Army (in Opposition); calls for immediate and full implementation of the agreements by both parties, and expresses its readiness to consider all appropriate measures against those who take action that undermines the peace, stability and security of South Sudan, including those who prevent the implementation of these agreements;

2. Urges all parties to engage in an open and fully inclusive national dialogue seeking to establish lasting peace, reconciliation and good governance, including through the full and effective participation of youth, women, diverse communities, faith groups, civil society and the formerly detained Sudan People's Liberation Movement leaders, encourages the efforts of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development and the United Nations to reach a peace agreement between the parties, and further urges them to ensure that child protection provisions are integrated into all peace negotiations and peace agreements;

3. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan until 30 November 2014, and also decides that the Mission shall, within the authorized troop ceiling of 12,500 set out in paragraph 8 below, include a component consisting, inter alia, of three battalions, with additional responsibility for protecting the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development as set out in paragraph 4 (d) below, as well as implementing the overall mandate of the Mission as set out in paragraphs 4 (a), (b) and (c) below, consistent with paragraph 5 below;

4. Also decides that the mandate of the Mission shall be as follows, and authorizes the Mission to use all means necessary to perform the following tasks:

(a) Protection of civilians:

- (i) To protect civilians under threat of physical violence, irrespective of the source of such violence, within its capacity and areas of deployment, with specific protection for women and children, including through the continued use of the Mission's child protection and women's protection advisers;
- (ii) To deter violence against civilians, including foreign nationals, especially through proactive deployment, active patrolling with particular attention to displaced civilians, including those in protection sites and refugee camps, humanitarian personnel and human rights defenders, and identification of threats and attacks against the civilian population, including through regular interaction with the civilian population and closely with humanitarian, human rights and development organizations, in areas at high risk of conflict, including, as appropriate, schools, places of worship, hospitals and the oil installations, in particular when the Government of South Sudan is unable or failing to provide such security;
- (iii) To implement a Mission-wide early warning strategy, including a coordinated approach to information-gathering, monitoring, verification, early warning and dissemination, and response mechanisms, including response mechanisms to prepare for further potential attacks on United Nations personnel and facilities;
- (iv) To maintain public safety and security within and of the Mission's protection of civilians sites;
- (v) To exercise good offices, confidence-building and facilitation in support of the Mission's protection strategy, especially in regard to women and children, including to facilitate intercommunal reconciliation in areas of high risk of conflict as an essential part of long-term State-building activity;

- (vi) To foster a secure environment for the eventual safe and voluntary return of internally displaced persons and refugees, including, where compatible and in strict compliance with the United Nations human rights due diligence policy, through monitoring of, ensuring the maintenance of international human rights standards by, and specific operational coordination with the police services in relevant and protection-focused tasks, in order to strengthen the protection of civilians;
- (b) Monitoring and investigating human rights:
- (i) To monitor, investigate, verify and report publicly and regularly on abuses and violations of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, including those that may amount to war crimes or crimes against humanity;
 - (ii) To monitor, investigate, verify and report specifically and publicly on violations and abuses committed against children and women, including all forms of sexual and gender-based violence in armed conflict by accelerating the implementation of monitoring, analysis and reporting arrangements on conflict-related sexual violence and by strengthening the monitoring and reporting mechanism for grave violations against children;
 - (iii) To coordinate with, and offer technical support to, where appropriate, the African Union Commission of Inquiry for South Sudan;
- (c) Creating the conditions for the delivery of humanitarian assistance:
- (i) To contribute to the creation of the conditions for the delivery of humanitarian assistance, including by helping to establish the necessary security conditions and by exercising its good offices, confidence-building and facilitation, so as to allow, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, the full, safe and unhindered access of relief personnel to all those in need in South Sudan and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance, in particular to internally displaced persons and refugees;
 - (ii) To ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel where appropriate, and to ensure the security of installations and equipment necessary for the implementation of mandated tasks;
- (d) Supporting the implementation of the cessation of hostilities agreement:
- (i) To ensure proper coordination with the Joint Technical Committee, Monitoring and Verification Mechanism and Monitoring and Verification Teams, as appropriate;
 - (ii) To provide mobile and dedicated fixed site security to the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, as established in line with the decisions of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Intergovernmental Authority at its meetings held on 31 January and 13 March 2014;
 - (iii) To provide support to the work of the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism as described in the cessation of hostilities agreement;
- 5. Emphasizes that the protection of civilians, as described in paragraph 4 (a) above, must be given priority in decisions about the use of available capacity and resources within the Mission;
 - 6. Requests the Secretary-General, through his Special Representative for South Sudan, to continue to direct the operations of an integrated Mission, coordinate all activities of the United Nations system in South Sudan, and support a coherent international approach to achieving peace in South Sudan;
 - 7. Endorses the recommendation made by the Secretary-General in his report of 6 March 2014 to increase the overall force levels of the Mission to support its restructured mandate as defined in paragraph 4 of the present resolution;
 - 8. Decides that the Mission shall consist of a military component of up to 12,500 troops of all ranks and of a police component, including appropriate formed police units, of up to 1,323 personnel; and that the civilian component shall be reduced accordingly to tasks outlined in paragraph 4 above; requests that the Secretary-General provide detailed information on force generation, restructuring of the Mission force, logistical support and enablers, including as part of his regular reports; and requests the Secretary-General to review needs on the ground and provide an updated assessment of the force's operations, deployment and future requirements 120 days after the present resolution;
 - 9. Requests the Mission to focus and streamline its activities across its military, police and civilian components in order to achieve progress on the tasks outlined in paragraph 4 above, recognizes that certain Mission tasks will therefore be ceased, and in this regard requests the Secretary-General to undertake a full personnel review in June 2014 and to include the details in his next regular report on the Mission;
 - 10. Expresses its intention to keep the requirements and composition of Mission components under active review, and to review this mandate and make any necessary adjustments, at an appropriate stage in the implementation of a credible peace agreement between the parties;
 - 11. Authorizes the Secretary-General to take the steps necessary, in accordance with paragraph 8 above, to expedite force and asset generation and, as necessary, discontinue the inter-mission cooperation already authorized under resolution 2132(2013);
 - 12. Requests the Mission to increase its presence and active patrolling in areas of high risk of conflict, high concentrations of internally displaced persons, including as guided by its early warning strategy, and key routes for population movement, and to conduct regular reviews of its geographic deployment to ensure that its forces are best placed to protect civilians, and requests the Secretary-General to provide updates on these reviews as part of his regular reports;
 - 13. Further requests that the Mission continue to ensure full compliance with the United Nations zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and keep the Security Council fully informed about the progress of the Mission in this regard, and urges troop-contributing countries to take appropriate preventive action, including predeployment awareness training, and to ensure full accountability in cases of such conduct involving their personnel;

14. Encourages the Mission to fully implement the United Nations human rights due diligence policy, and requests the Secretary-General to include progress made in implementing the policy in his reports to the Council;

15. Condemns in the strongest terms attacks on and threats made to Mission personnel and United Nations facilities, including violations of the status-of-forces agreements, stresses that such attacks may constitute war crimes, demands that all parties respect the inviolability of United Nations premises and immediately desist and refrain from any violence against those gathered at United Nations facilities, and stresses that efforts to undermine the ability of the Mission to implement its mandate and attacks on United Nations personnel will not be tolerated;

16. Demands that the Government of South Sudan and all relevant parties cooperate fully in the deployment, operations and monitoring, verification and reporting functions of the Mission, in particular by guaranteeing the safety, security and unrestricted freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel, throughout the territory of South Sudan, and further calls upon the Government to ensure freedom of movement for internally displaced persons, including those leaving and entering protection of civilians sites, and to continue to support the Mission by the allocation of land for protection of civilians sites;

17. Also demands that all parties allow, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, the full, safe and unhindered access of relief personnel, equipment and supplies to all those in need and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance, in particular to internally displaced persons and refugees, and stresses that any returns of internally displaced persons or refugees must be undertaken on a voluntary and informed basis in conditions of dignity and safety;

18. Further demands that all parties immediately cease all forms of violence, human rights violations and abuses, violations of international humanitarian law, including gender-based violence, rape and other forms of sexual violence, and violations and abuses against children in violation of applicable international law such as those involving their recruitment and use, killing and maiming, abduction and attacks against schools and hospitals, strongly urges the Government of South Sudan to fully and immediately implement its action plan to end and prevent child recruitment signed on 12 March 2012, further strongly urges the opposition forces to fully and immediately implement their commitment to end grave violations against children, signed on 10 May 2014, and calls for specific and time-bound commitments to combat sexual violence in accordance with resolutions 1960(2010) and 2106(2013);

19. Calls upon the Government of South Sudan to move forward expeditiously and transparently to complete the investigations of allegations of human rights violations and abuses consistent with international standards, to hold to account all those responsible for violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law and to ensure that all victims of sexual violence have equal protection under the law and equal access to justice, and to safeguard equal respect for the rights of women and girls in these processes;

20. Emphasizes the importance of the full and effective participation of women at all levels in the implementation of agreements and in the prevention and resolution of conflict and peacebuilding more broadly, calls upon all parties to take measures to ensure women's full and effective representation and leadership in all conflict resolution and peacebuilding efforts, including through support to women's civil society organizations and incorporating gender expertise in peace talks, encourages troop- and police-contributing countries to take measures to increase the deployment of women in the military, police and civilian components of the Mission, and reaffirms the importance of appropriate gender expertise and training in all missions mandated by the Council;

21. Condemns attacks on oil installations, petroleum companies and their employees, and the continued fighting around these facilities, and urges all parties to ensure the security of economic infrastructure;

22. Requests that the Secretary-General report to the Council on the implementation of the mandate of the Mission every 60 days following the adoption of the present resolution;

23. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (July). In response to Security Council resolution 2155(2014) (see p. 336), the Secretary-General submitted a July report [S/2014/537] on developments in South Sudan, including the reconfiguration of UNMISS and the personnel review. The third session of the peace process opened on 28 April, culminating on 5 May in the signing by the Government and SPLM/A in Opposition of an agreement by which the parties recommitted themselves to the cessation of hostilities agreement of 23 January (see p. 335). On 6 May, the parties adopted an agenda for the political dialogue, which included discussions on a permanent ceasefire, transitional governance and interim arrangements and a permanent constitution. On 9 May, President Salva Kiir and former Vice-President Riek Machar met in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and signed an agreement to resolve the crisis in South Sudan, under which they pledged to facilitate the deployment of the IGAD monitoring and verification mechanism. On 19 May, the talks adjourned without agreement on the matrix prepared by the IGAD mediation team outlining the steps required for the implementation of the cessation of hostilities agreement or a framework for discussions on transitional arrangements.
