On 5 April, the IGAD mediation team launched an SPLM intra-party dialogue forum, with a view to addressing the party leadership dispute and creating an environment conducive to political talks. On 10 June, the President and Riek Machar met on the margins of a summit held by the IGAD Heads of State and agreed to complete dialogue on the formation of a transitional government of national unity within 60 days. Nevertheless, SPLM/A in Opposition refused to attend multi-stakeholder round-table negotiations when they were reconvened on 20 June, citing objections to the presence of stakeholders other than those from the Government. The negotiations were subsequently adjourned.

On 11 May, the President outlined his road map for the peace process, stating that it should begin with a cessation of hostilities, the full deployment of the IGAD monitoring and verification mechanism, including its protection force, and the opening of humanitarian access. Thereafter, and pending the implementation of a comprehensive ceasefire, the Government would consider an amnesty for the crimes committed during the crisis and a transitional government of national unity would be formed. The transitional Government would then organize an all-inclusive national reconciliation conference in Juba, which would address the key political and security reforms necessary for the stability of the country, thereby setting the stage for a constitutional review process and the holding of general elections in 2017 or 2018. In a 19 June address to the parliament, the President stressed that a transitional Government could be formed only under his leadership, although additional posts might be created in the Government and the parliament for SPLM/A in Opposition, and that no elected leader would be removed from his or her post. During a consultative conference held in Nasser, Upper Nile State, from 15 to 18 April, SPLM/A in Opposition announced the launch of a resistance movement and recommended the immediate establishment of a federal system of government under a new leadership, following the signature of a comprehensive peace agreement.

On 5 April, the Government announced the establishment of a national platform for peace and reconciliation. On 9 May, separate talks in Addis Ababa between the Government and the SSDM/A Cobra Faction concluded with the signing of an agreement on the resolution of the conflict. The agreement established a Greater Pibor administrative area as an autonomous area within Jonglei State. It also stipulated that Cobra Faction forces were to be integrated into the ranks of the army, the national police and other security forces. On 10 June, the IGAD Heads of State announced their intention to consider punitive measures against those continuing to undermine the peace process.

Following the adoption of resolution 2155(2014) (see p. 336), UNMISS realigned its organizational structure and activities with reprioritized mandated tasks. The Mission revised its civilian protection strategy and developed a new human rights strategy and a strategy for the creation of conditions conducive to the delivery of humanitarian assistance. It also developed arrangements for supporting the implementation of the cessation of hostilities agreement.

On 8 May, UNMISS released its comprehensive public report on grave violations of human rights and international humanitarian law committed by both sides during the crisis in South Sudan. The report documented the widespread negative consequences of the conflict on the human rights situation in the country, including the deliberate targeting of civilians in extrajudicial and other unlawful killings, arbitrary arrest and detention, gender-based violence, enforced disappearances and ill-treatment and torture. UNMISS worked with the IGAD joint technical commission in Juba and provided logistical support for the deployment of IGAD monitoring and verification teams on the ground.

Security Council mission. On 8 August [S/2014/579], the Security Council informed the Secretary-General that it would send a mission to Africa and Europe, visiting Belgium and the Netherlands as well as Kenya, Somalia (see p. 355) and South Sudan, from 8 to 14 August. Eugène-Richard Gasana (Rwanda) and Samantha Power (United States) would lead the mission in South Sudan. Briefing the Council on 19 August [S/PV.7245], the United States reported that the mission held candid exchanges with President Kiir and Riek Machar. It stated there was no military solution to the crisis in South Sudan. It was time to resume the peace talks led by IGAD and develop plans for a transitional Government of national unity. There had to be accountability for the perpetrators of human rights violations, and the parties had to cooperate with UNMISS. The Council was prepared to impose consequences on spoilers of the peace process.

Report of Secretary-General (September). In his September report [S/2014/708] on South Sudan, the Secretary-General stated that the parties to the conflict in the country made little progress towards a political settlement. They continued to engage in sporadic fighting on the ground, with severe consequences for the civilian population, a deepening humanitarian crisis and violations of the cessation of hostilities agreement. Following a six-week adjournment, peace negotiations were reconvened in Addis Ababa on 4 August, but on 16 August, talks were again derailed when the Government suspended its participation until SPLM/A in Opposition signed the cessation of hostilities implementation matrix. The AU Peace and Security Council, in a 21 August communiqué, urged the parties to end the fighting and conclude the IGAD-facilitated talks. On 25 August, the IGAD Heads of State held an extraordinary summit in Addis Ababa. The summit, chaired by the Prime Minister of Ethiopia, was attended by the President of South Sudan and the leader of SPLM/A in Opposition. The IGAD Heads of State and Government endorsed a protocol on agreed principles on transitional arrangements towards resolution of the crisis, and called on stakeholders to conclude an agreement establishing a transitional Government of national unity within 45 days and to operationalize the principles set out in the protocol. The protocol confirmed President Kiir as the Head of State, Government and the armed forces for an interim period of 30 months, as well as his powers to appoint a Vice-President. SPLM/A in Opposition was granted authority to nominate a Prime Minister, mandated to coordinate the implementation of the agenda for the transition. The IGAD Heads of State also called on SPLM/A in Opposition to sign the protocol, and stated that those who obstructed the peace process would be held responsible and be denied participation in future political arrangements. SPLM/A in Opposition rejected the protocol, stating that it heavily favoured President Kiir and the Government, and denied having signed the implementation matrix. On 24 July, President Kiir signed a decree establishing the Greater Pibor Administrative Area, an autonomous area within Jonglei State. On 30 July, David Yau Yau was appointed Chief Administrator of the Area and was sworn in by the President on 12 August.

In Bunj, Maban County, between 3 and 5 August, Maban Defence Force elements targeted Nuer civilians and killed five Nuer humanitarian workers. UNMISS forces arrived in Bunj on 6 August to extract non-essential humanitarian workers and secure the airstrip as well as the compound of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). On 26 August, an UNMISS helicopter crashed during a flight from Wau to Bentiu. Three of the four Russian crew members died in the crash. The preliminary finding of a civil aviation investigation team confirmed that the helicopter was shot down by hostile fire. The Secretary-General condemned the killing of humanitarian workers and the shooting down of the UNMISS helicopter.

Communiqué. A 7 November letter [S/2014/796] from the Secretary-General addressed to the Security Council contained a joint communiqué on the prevention of conflict-related sexual violence. The communiqué was signed by the Secretary-General's Special Representative on Sexual Violence in Conflict, Zainab Hawa Bangura, and President Kiir during the Special Representative's visit to South Sudan (6–11 October), in accordance with Council resolution 2106(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 1112]. Elements of the communiqué included issuing and enforcing clear orders prohibiting sexual violence; developing action plans specific to SPLA and the South Sudan National Police Service; fighting the impunity of perpetrators and ensuring the access of survivors to justice through reform and capacity-building in the justice sector; ensuring the provision of appropriate services for survivors of sexual violence; and speaking out publicly against conflict-related sexual violence.

Report of Secretary-General (November). In November [S/2014/821], the Secretary-General reported that on 22 September, IGAD opened the sixth session of the peace talks in Barhir Dar, Ethiopia. Participants agreed on the duration of the transition period, decision-making mechanisms during the transition, a bicameral structure for the legislature, the size of the Cabinet, and the right of the appointee to a new Prime Minister post to contest elections at the end of the transition period. The 45-day deadline set out in the 25 August protocol expired on 9 October, without agreement on the formation of a transitional Government of national unity. Following the adjournment of the negotiations on 5 October, the IGAD Special Envoys engaged in a series of consultations with IGAD Heads of State and Government, as well as with President Kiir, opposition leader Riek Machar and other stakeholders, on the way forward. On 22 October, the Prime Minister of Ethiopia, Hailemariam Dessalegn, the President of Kenya, Uhuru Kenyatta, and the Prime Minister of Uganda, Ruhakana Rugunda, met with President Kiir in Juba.

From 15 to 18 October, talks aimed at promoting reconciliation within the leadership of SPLM took place in Arusha, United Republic of Tanzania. The talks were facilitated by the ruling party of Tanzania, Chama Cha Mapinduzi. Officials from SPLM, SPLM/A in Opposition, and formerly detained SPLM leaders established a framework for intra-SPLM dialogue. On 20 October, the framework document was signed by the SPLM factions in the presence of President Kiir and Riek Machar. On 23 and 24 October, President Kiir held consultative meetings with his Cabinet and the SPLM/A leadership on the 22 October "mini-summit" in Juba, as well as on the outcome of the first round of the intra-SPLM leadership dialogue in Arusha. SPLM/A in Opposition also held internal consultations in Nairobi in late October.

The sixth IGAD summit, devoted solely to the crisis in South Sudan, was held in Addis Ababa from 6 to 8 November. Participants included members of SPLM/A in Opposition, led by Riek Machar; formerly detained SPLM leaders; representatives of civil society; faith leaders; and members of the "women's block". The summit focused on reaching a power-sharing agreement between President Salva Kiir and former Vice-President Riek Machar. It granted the warring parties 15 days to consult with their constituencies on the structure of the transitional government. Resolutions adopted at the summit committed the parties to an unconditional, complete and immediate end to all hostilities. IGAD leaders resolved that any further violation of the cessation of hostilities agreement by any party would "invite" collective punitive action by the IGAD region against those responsible for such violations, including asset freezes, travel bans and an arms embargo. The IGAD leaders also authorized the IGAD region to intervene directly in South Sudan to protect life and restore peace. On 9 November, the Government and SPLM/A in Opposition signed the implementation matrix for the cessation of hostilities agreement of 23 January.

As at 5 November, the UNMISS troop strength stood at 10,335 military personnel out of an authorized military component of 12,500. As at 11 November, the actual strength of the UNMISS police component stood at 913 officers out of an authorized ceiling of 1,323 personnel.

The Secretary-General condemned the abduction of three UNMISS contractors and one UN staff member, two of whom remained missing. He called on the parties concerned to release the abductees and called on the Government to accord due process to the detainees. The Secretary-General recommended that the UNMISS mandate be extended for six months.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 November [meeting 7322], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2187(2014). The draft [S/2014/844] was submitted by Australia, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and national unity of South Sudan, and recalling the importance of the principles of non-interference, good-neighbourliness and regional cooperation,

Recalling its resolution 2086(2013) of 21 January 2013 and reaffirming the basic principles of peacekeeping, including consent of the parties, impartiality and non-use of force except in self-defence and defence of the mandate, and recognizing that the mandate of each peacekeeping mission is specific to the need and situation of the country concerned,

Expressing grave alarm and concern regarding the further deteriorating political, security and humanitarian crisis in South Sudan resulting from the internal Sudan People's Liberation Movement political dispute and subsequent violence caused by the country's political and military leaders,

Strongly condemning reported and ongoing human rights violations and abuses and violations of international humanitarian law, including those involving extrajudicial killings, ethnically targeted violence, rape and other forms of sexual and gender-based violence, recruitment and use of children, enforced disappearances, arbitrary arrests and detention, violence aimed at spreading terror among the civilian population, and attacks on schools, places of worship, hospitals and United Nations and associated peacekeeping personnel, by all parties, including armed groups and national security forces, as well as the incitement to commit such abuses and violations, further condemning harassment and targeting of civil society, humanitarian personnel and journalists, and emphasizing that those responsible for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights must be held accountable and that the Government of South Sudan bears the primary responsibility to protect civilians within its territory and subject to its jurisdiction, including from potential crimes against humanity and war crimes,

Expressing deep concern over the large-scale displacement of persons and deepening humanitarian crisis, stressing the responsibility borne by all parties to the conflict for the suffering of the people of South Sudan, and the necessity of ensuring that the basic needs of the population are met, commending United Nations humanitarian agencies and partners for their efforts to provide urgent and coordinated support to the population, calling upon all parties to the conflict to allow and facilitate, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law and United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian assistance, the full, safe and unhindered access of relief personnel, equipment and supplies to all those in need and timely delivery of humanitarian assistance, in particular to internally displaced persons and refugees, condemning all attacks against humanitarian personnel and facilities, and recalling that attacks against humanitarian personnel and depriving civilians of objects indispensable to their survival may amount to violations of international humanitarian law,

Commending the Intergovernmental Authority on Development initiative, as supported by the United Nations and the African Union, in establishing a forum for political and security dialogue, and expecting all parties to participate in this process and respect the decisions reached by successive Assemblies of Heads of State and Government of the Intergovernmental Authority,

Welcoming the cessation of hostilities and status of detainees agreements of 23 January 2014 mediated by the Intergovernmental Authority on Development, consensus on the declaration of principles between the parties, the establishment of the ceasefire Monitoring and Verification Mechanism, the Agreement to Resolve the Crisis in South Sudan of 9 May 2014 and the rededication and implementation modalities for the cessation of hostilities agreement, of 9 November 2014, while strongly condemning repeated and continuing violations of the cessation of hostilities agreement by all parties, which undermine peace efforts,

Taking note with interest of the United Nations Mission in South Sudan interim human rights report, of 21 February 2014, and its report entitled "Conflict in South Sudan: A Human Rights Report", of 8 May 2014,

Expressing grave concern that, according to the report of 8 May 2014, there are reasonable grounds to believe that war crimes and crimes against humanity, including extrajudicial killings, rape and other acts of sexual violence, enforced disappearances and arbitrary arrests and detention have been committed by both government and opposition forces,

Stressing the increasingly urgent and imperative need to end impunity in South Sudan and to bring to justice perpetrators of such crimes,

Welcoming the work of the African Union Commission of Inquiry on South Sudan in independent and public human rights monitoring, investigation and reporting, and the interim report of the Commission of Inquiry, of 27 June 2014, and anticipating with interest its findings and recommendations,

Strongly condemning the use of radio to broadcast hate speech and transmit messages instigating sexual violence against a particular ethnic group, which has the potential to play a significant role in promoting mass violence and exacerbating conflict, calling upon the Government of South Sudan to take the appropriate measures in order to deter such activity, and further urging all parties to desist from these actions and instead to contribute to promoting peace and reconciliation among the communities,

Emphasizing that persistent barriers to full implementation of resolution 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 will only be dismantled through dedicated commitment to women's empowerment, participation and human rights, and through concerted leadership, consistent information and action, and support, to build women's engagement in all levels of decision-making,

Expressing deep concern at persistent restrictions placed upon the movement and operations of the Mission, strongly condemning the attacks by government and opposition forces and other groups on United Nations and Intergovernmental Authority on Development personnel and facilities, including the December 2012 downing of a United Nations helicopter by the Sudan People's Liberation Army, the April 2013 attack on a United Nations convoy, the December 2013 attack on the Mission camp in Akobo, the August 2014 shooting down of a United Nations helicopter by unidentified armed groups, the August 2014 arrest and detention of an Intergovernmental Authority monitoring and verification team, the detentions and kidnappings of United Nations and associated personnel and the 2014 attacks on the Mission camps in Bor and Bentiu, and calling upon the Government of South Sudan to complete its investigations of these attacks in a swift and thorough manner and to hold those responsible to account,

Reiterating its request that the Mission take additional measures, as appropriate, to ensure the security of its air operations in South Sudan, and report thereon to the Security Council,

Stressing the importance of effective engagement and liaison with local communities, both within and outside the protection of civilians sites, in order to fulfil the protection of civilians mandate of the Mission,

Expressing grave concern regarding the threats made to oil installations, petroleum companies and their employees, and urging all parties to ensure the security of economic infrastructure,

Recalling its resolution 2117(2013) of 26 September 2013, and expressing grave concern at the threat to peace and security in South Sudan arising from the illicit transfer, destabilizing accumulation and misuse of small arms and light weapons,

Noting with serious concern reports of the indiscriminate use of cluster munitions, made by the Mine Action Service of the United Nations in Jonglei State in February 2014, and urging all parties to refrain from similar such use in the future,

Welcoming the deployment by the Intergovernmental Authority on Development of the Monitoring and Verification Mechanism, calling for the redeployment and/or progressive withdrawal of armed groups and allied forces invited by either side, consistent with the cessation of hostilities agreement of 23 January 2014, and warning of the serious consequences that could result from any regionalization of the conflict,

Welcoming also the appointment by the Secretary-General of Ms. Ellen Margrethe Løj as his Special Representative for South Sudan and Head of the Mission and Lieutenant General Yohannes Gebremeskel Tesfamariam as the Force Commander of the Mission, Reaffirming its resolutions 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1674(2006) of 28 April 2006, 1738(2006) of 23 December 2006 and 1894(2009) of 11 November 2009 on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, and resolution 1502(2003) of 26 August 2003 on the protection of humanitarian and United Nations personnel; resolutions 1612(2005) of 26 July 2005, 1882(2009) of 4 August 2009, 1998(2011) of 12 July 2011, 2068(2012) of 19 September 2012 and 2143(2014) of 7 March 2014 on children and armed conflict; and resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000, 1820(2008) of 19 June 2008, 1888(2009) of 30 September 2009, 1889(2009) of 5 October 2009, 1960(2010) of 16 December 2010, 2106(2013) of 24 June 2013 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013 on women and peace, and security; resolution 2150(2014) of 16 April 2014 on the prevention of and fight against genocide; resolution 2151(2014) of 28 April 2014 on security sector reform; and resolution 2171(2014) of 21 August 2014 on conflict prevention,

Taking note of the reports of the Secretary-General of 30 September and 18 November 2014 and the recommendations contained therein,

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/118], the Secretary-General stated that, following the sixth summit of the IGAD Heads of State and Government, government consultations were held in Juba on 24 November. On the issue of power-sharing, the Government concluded that executive power during the transition should remain with the President and the Vice-President, offering SPLM/A in Opposition a position of Prime Minister without executive power. It recommended that the demobilization, disarmament and reintegration of opposition forces be completed before the end of a pre-transition period of three months, and that deliberations on a federal system of governance be held through the constitution-making process during the transition.

SPLM/A in Opposition held consultations from 6 to 12 December in Pagak, Upper Nile State. It concluded that an executive Prime Minister from SPLM/A in Opposition should lead the transitional Government, with a ceremonial head of State; the Government and SPLM/A in Opposition should maintain separate armies throughout the transitional period until the holding of elections; and South Sudan should be reorganized as a federation of 21 states. On 18 December, the negotiation committees on leadership, security arrangements, and economic, wealth sharing, and public finance management resumed talks in Addis Ababa, with limited results. The IGAD Special Envoys adjourned the talks on 21 December.

Children and armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General (May). In May [A/68/878-S/2014/339], the Secretary-General issued his report on children and armed conflict, which included information on grave violations committed against children during the conflict in South Sudan in 2013. The United Nations received credible information on grave violations against children by both pro-Government forces and opposition forces aligned with Riek Machar Teny. Thousands of children were reportedly mobilized in Upper Nile and Jonglei States by the Nuer ethnic group aligned with opposition forces, also known as the "White Army". Thousands of children were killed or maimed, raped, displaced or orphaned. Attacks on schools and hospitals and their military use by all parties were also widespread, depriving children of access to education and health care, and adding to the humanitarian crisis.

Before the crisis that began in December 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 242], the United Nations verified the recruitment and use of 162 children, all boys and mostly between 14 and 17 years of age. Of the 162 children, 99 were associated with the Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA), 3 with South Sudan national police services and 35 with militia allied to David Yau Yau in Jonglei, and 25 were mobilized from Lou Nuer tribe to conduct community policing in Jonglei State. Sixty-three children were killed and 83 injured prior to the crisis. Child casualties resulted from clashes between SPLA and armed groups, from intercommunal conflict, and from five separate incidents involving explosive remnants of war.

The United Nations verified information of seven cases of sexual violence affecting seven girls. SPLA soldiers were allegedly responsible for those incidents. Twenty-six new incidents of military use of schools and hospitals by SPLA, South Sudan national police services and non-State actors were documented, affecting the access to education of approximately 13,000 children. The United Nations received reports of 250 children abducted as a result of intercommunal conflict.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In response to Security Council resolution 1612(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 863], the Secretary-General submitted a December report [S/2014/884] on the situation of children affected by armed conflict in South Sudan from 1 March 2011 to 30 September 2014. All parties to the conflict committed grave violations against children, including the recruitment and use of children in armed forces and groups, the killing and maiming of children, rape and other forms of sexual violence, attacks against schools and hospitals and the military use of schools, abduction, and the denial of humanitarian access. A total of 1,243 incidents were reported, affecting 68,776 children (33,207 boys, 22,487 girls and 13,082 sex unknown), of which 920 incidents affecting 54,674 children (25,018 boys, 17,744 girls and 11,912 sex unknown) were verified. The military use of schools alone affected the access of more than 50,000 children to education and safe spaces. The number and scale of violations had increased dramatically since the outbreak of conflict between SPLA and SPLA in Opposition in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 242]. From December 2013 to September 2014, the United Nations received reports of 591 incidents affecting 23,041 children, of which 475 incidents affecting 14,537 children were verified. More incidents were reported during that period than in 2012 and 2013 combined. From March 2011 to September 2014, a total of 64 children (18 boys and 46 girls) either escaped or were rescued from the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA).

South Sudan renewed the action plan on the release of children from armed forces and groups, which was first signed on 20 November 2009 by SPLA, by signing a revised action plan on 13 March 2012. Prior to the escalation of armed conflict in December 2013, South Sudan made progress in implementing the action plan. From January 2009 to 15 December 2013, 955 children associated with SPLA were released. With the escalation of violence in December 2013, however, those efforts were not only suspended, but largely reversed.

On 24 June 2014, during the visit to South Sudan of the Secretary-General's Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, the Ministry of Defence and Veteran Affairs and SPLA signed a re-commitment to the revised action plan, which contained explicit commitments to put an end to the recruitment, use, killing and maiming of children and sexual violence against children; stop and prevent attacks on schools and hospitals; vacate schools used by government forces and reinstate them as safe havens for learning; and investigate and hold accountable perpetrators of those grave violations. On 10 September, military orders were issued by the acting SPLA Chief of General Staff to reinforce previous orders prohibiting the recruitment and use of children and the occupation and military use of schools. At the end of September, 27 schools were still being used for military purposes by armed actors.

The Secretary-General condemned all grave violations committed against children. He urged the Government of South Sudan to take all the necessary measures to ensure accountability and to redouble efforts to advance the investigations in progress and prosecute those responsible for grave violations against children. He called on the Security Council, the AU and IGAD to ensure that accountability was central to any political settlement. The Secretary-General also urged the Government to develop a disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme for children separated from armed forces and groups, ensuring that all children were afforded adequate support and reintegration opportunities, with particular attention to the specific needs of girls.

UNMISS

With the establishment of South Sudan as an independent country on 9 July 2011, and the ending of the mandate of the United Nations Mission in the Sudan (UNMIS) on that day [YUN 2011, p. 196], the Security Council, by resolution 1996(2011) [ibid., p. 197], established the United Nations Mission in South Sudan (UNMISS) with the priority mandate of the protection of civilians and achievement of an improved security environment. In response to the crisis that began in December 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 242], the Council, by resolution 2132(2013) [ibid., p. 243], temporarily increased the overall troop and police strength of UNMISS to 12,500 personnel and the police component to 1,323 personnel. By resolution 2155(2014) of 27 May 2014 (see p. 336), the Council extended the UNMISS mandate until 30 November, with the responsibility of protecting the IGAD Monitoring and Verification Mechanism in addition to protecting civilians, monitoring and investigating human rights violations, creating the conditions for the delivery of humanitarian assistance and supporting the implementation of the cessation of hostilities agreement of 23 January. By resolution 2187(2014) of 25 November (see p. 343), the Council extended the UNMISS mandate until 30 May 2015.

Appointments. By a 12 June letter [S/2014/413], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Lieutenant General Yohannes Gebremeskel Tesfamariam (Ethiopia) as the UNMISS Force Commander, replacing Major General Delali Johnson Sakyi (Ghana), who completed his assignment on 9 June. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 16 June [S/2014/414].

On 18 July [S/2014/516], the Secretary-General informed the Council of his intention to appoint Ellen Margrethe Løj (Denmark) as his Special Representative and Head of UNMISS. She would succeed Hilde Johnson (Norway), who completed her assignment on 7 July. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 22 July [S/2014/517].

Financing

The report of the Secretary-General on the performance of the UNMISS budget for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/616] showed an expenditure of $838,447,000 gross ($819,717,500 net) against an apportionment of $839,490,000 gross ($821,466,800 net). The Secretary-General recommended that the General Assembly decide on the treatment of the unencumbered balance of $1,043,000 with respect to the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013; and on the treatment of other income/adjustments for the period ended 30 June 2013, amounting to $21,953,700.

In an April note [A/68/828] on financing UNMISS for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, the Secretary-General recommended that the Assembly authorize him to enter into commitments in the amount of $599,319,100 for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015; assess the amount of $48,332,185 for the period from 1 to 15 July 2014; and assess the amount of $550,986,915 for the period from 16 July to 31 December 2014 at a monthly rate of $99,886,517, should the Security Council decide to continue the mandate of the Mission.

In May [A/68/782/Add.17], ACABQ recommended that the unencumbered balance of $1,043,000 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income/adjustments in the amount of $21,953,700 for the period ended 30 June 2012, be credited to Member States. It also recommended that the Assembly authorize the Secretary-General to enter into commitments in the amount of $586,044,400 for the maintenance of UNMISS for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 and assess that amount at a monthly rate of $97,674,067, should the Council decide to extend the Mission's mandate.

The budget provided for the deployment of up to 166 military observers, 12,334 military contingent personnel, 663 UN police officers, 660 formed police unit personnel, 1,002 international staff, 1,608 national staff and 480 United Nations Volunteers. The proposed resources represented an increase of 18.8 per cent from the 2013–2014 apportionment. The increase was primarily attributable to the increase in the authorized strength of the military contingent and formed police unit personnel, as mandated by the Council in resolution 2155(2014) (see p. 336). The Secretary-General recommended that the General Assembly appropriate $1,097,894,000 for the maintenance of the Mission for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of $580,830,400 previously authorized for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014 under the terms of resolution 68/293 (see p. 349); and assess $517,063,600 for the period from 1 January 2015 to 30 June 2015, should the Council decide to extend the mandate of the Mission, in addition to the amount already assessed for the period from 1 July 2014 to 31 December 2014.

In December [A/69/650], ACABQ recommended that the proposed requirement of $1,097,894,000 for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 be reduced by $578,900. Accordingly, it recommended that the Assembly appropriate $1,097,315,100 for the maintenance of the Mission for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, inclusive of the amount of $580,830,400 previously authorized for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2014, should the Council decide to extend the UNMISS mandate; and assess $516,484,700 for the period from 1 January 2015 to 30 June 2015, in addition to the amount of $580,830,400 already assessed for the period from 1 July 2014 to 31 December 2014.

The General Assembly, by decision 69/554 of 29 December, decided that the agenda item on UNMISS financing would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Chad

Children and armed conflict

In May [A/68/878-S/2014/339], the Secretary-General issued his report on children and armed conflict, which included information on grave violations committed against children during armed conflict in Chad in 2013. The Secretary-General's Special Representative, jointly with UNICEF, visited Chad in May 2013. Chadian authorities renewed their commitment to engage constructively with the United Nations to expedite the implementation of the action plan to end and prevent underage recruitment in the Armée nationale tchadienne, signed in 2011 [YUN 2011, p. 223]; appointed a high-level focal point in that regard; and adopted a road map detailing 10 specific, time-bound measures to achieve compliance with the plan. Chad had taken significant steps to fulfil its obligations. A central child protection unit in the Ministry of Defence and one in each of the eight "defence and security zones" were established to coordinate the monitoring and protection of children's rights and to implement awareness-raising activities. Between August and October 2013, the Government and the United Nations jointly conducted screening and age verification of approximately 3,800 troops of the Armée nationale tchadienne in all eight zones. Since July 2013, troops of the Armée nationale tchadienne to be deployed in Mali had received predeployment training on child protection and international humanitarian law. In October 2013, a presidential directive confirmed 18 years as the minimum age for recruitment into the armed and security forces. It also established age verification procedures and instructed that "penal and disciplinary sanctions" would be taken against those violating the orders. On 4 February 2014, the recruitment and use of children was explicitly criminalized through the adoption of a presidential decree.

The Secretary-General said that Chad should pursue comprehensive screening and training of its armed and security forces to continue to prevent the presence of children. Although no new cases of the recruitment of children were documented by the United Nations in 2013 and no children were found during the joint screening exercises, interviews confirmed that, in the past, soldiers under the age of 18 were integrated into the Armée nationale tchadienne from armed groups.

The crisis in the Central African Republic (see p. 219), porous borders and weak State authority in the country resulted in the flow of approximately 80,000 refugees, including unaccompanied children, into Chad. In May 2013, the United Nations received allegations of cross-border recruitment of Chadian children by Séléka. Children associated with the ex-Séléka were reportedly crossing the border into the Central African Republic in the Tissi area.

Somalia

Despite progress towards key political milestones in Somalia, the security situation remained volatile in 2014. The Interim Juba Administration was formally inaugurated in January, and the implementation of the New Deal Somalia Compact, which included peacebuilding and State-building goals, gained momentum. A revised version of Vision 2016, the Federal Government's policy for the political transformation of Somalia, was issued in June. The AU Peace and Security Council adopted a revised concept of operations for the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM), which focused on operations against Al-Shabaab strongholds. AMISOM and the Somali National Army launched joint operations in the country that resulted in significant gains in territory controlled by Al-Shabaab. The capital Mogadishu, however, experienced protracted insecurity, as targeted killings and attacks against federal institutions and international personnel continued. Security within Mogadishu International Airport was bolstered with the deployment of the United Nations Guard Unit. On 1 September, the leader of Al-Shabaab was killed in a missile strike in Shabelle Hoose. The Secretary-General visited Mogadishu in October and called on Somali political leaders to work together and avoid political instability. On 14 October, the Puntland State of Somalia and the Federal Government signed an agreement to resume relations, which had been suspended since 2013.

In May, the Security Council extended the mandate of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSOM) for one year.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (March). In a March report on Somalia [S/2014/140], submitted in response to Security Council resolution 2102(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 252], the Secretary-General provided information on the implementation of the mandate of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSOM) and assessed the political and security implications of UN deployments in the country. The report covered the period from 16 November 2013 to 15 February 2014.

Prime Minister Abdi Farah Shirdon lost a no-confidence motion in the Somali Federal Parliament on 2 December 2013. Following extensive consultations, President Hassan Sheikh Mohamud nominated Abdiweli Sheikh Ahmed as the new Prime Minister on 12 December 2013. He was endorsed by the Parliament on 21 December 2013. On 17 January 2014, Mr. Ahmed announced the formation of his expanded cabinet composed of 25 members, including two women. On 20 January, the Interim Juba Administration was formally inaugurated in Kismaayo in a ceremony attended by international partners. On 8 January, the Parliament of Puntland elected Abdiweli Mohamed Ali Gaas as President for a five-year term. In "Somaliland", relations between the Government and the opposition deteriorated. The Justice and Welfare Party claimed it had been denied freedom of movement and permission to hold peaceful demonstrations against the Government. From 16 to 19 January, a third round of talks between the Federal Government of Somalia and "Somaliland" was hosted by Turkey in Istanbul. The two delegations adopted a communiqué establishing a joint secretariat in Turkey to institutionalize the process and agreeing that talks should take place every 90 days. The communiqué also provided for the establishment of a joint air traffic control board, and condemned the "atrocities committed" by the former Siad Barre regime, particularly in "Somaliland".

The security situation in Mogadishu remained volatile. Three justice officials were murdered on 23 and 30 November 2013, and a member of parliament was killed by a car bomb outside Villa Somalia on 6 December 2013. On 1 January 2014, Al-Shabaab claimed responsibility for a coordinated suicide car bombing that killed at least 12 people and injured several others at the Jazeera Hotel. On 10 February, a car bomb targeted a meeting at the Oriental Hotel, killing two and injuring five. Al-Shabaab claimed responsibility for a 13 February attack by a suicide car bomber on a UN convoy. Several Somali bystanders were killed in the attack.

Puntland also experienced renewed Al-Shabaab activities. On 5 December 2013, an Al-Shabaab suicide car bomber hit a convoy of the Puntland security forces in central Boosaaso, killing three police officers and four civilians and injuring several others. In early January 2014, Al-Shabaab carried out four raids against police checkpoints outside Boosaaso. On 21 January, two roadside explosions in Gaalkacyo killed three civilians and injured 13 others. Nevertheless, the elections in Puntland were held without major security incidents. “Somaliland” was relatively calm.

Implementation of the New Deal Somalia Compact and its peacebuilding and State-building goals gained momentum. The establishment of the UN multi-partner trust fund was completed. The United Nations continued to assist the Federal Government of Somalia with the provision of technical advice on the formation of the Federal Member States. UNSOM provided the Federal Government of Somalia with an options paper on State formation, including confidence-building measures.

Significant progress was made towards the implementation of resolution 2124(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 256]. On 21 January, the AU Peace and Security Council adopted a revised concept of operations for the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM), which focused on operations against Al-Shabaab’s strongholds and a degradation of its capability, which were to be followed by stabilization and drawdown phases. The United Nations worked with AMISOM and the Federal Government of Somalia on the implementation of the Human Rights Due Diligence Policy in Somalia, which included the development of a joint strategy and the establishment of a working group, as provided for in the revised Concept of Operations. As at 12 February, a total of 357 international and 973 national staff members from UNSOM and UN agencies, funds and programmes were deployed. The UNSOM deployment strength alone stood at 65 international and 19 national staff.

The Secretary-General observed that the change of Prime Minister and the appointment of a new cabinet through a constitutional process showed that Somalia’s political institutions continued to evolve positively. Inter-clan conflicts remained a potent source of instability and insecurity, however. He called on the Federal Government of Somalia and AMISOM to prevent the export of Somali charcoal and on Member States to prevent the import of that material, in compliance with the ban set out in Security Council resolution 2036(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 244].

Letter of Secretary-General. In a 1 April letter [S/2014/239], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that UNSOM had requested the consent of the Federal Government of Somalia to have a UN guard unit deployed to Somalia as soon as possible to strengthen UNSOM security within Mogadishu International Airport, as recommended by the Secretary-General in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 256]. Authorities confirmed their consent for the deployment of the guard unit, and Uganda agreed to contribute 410 personnel. They were expected to deploy by the end of April.

Report of Secretary-General (May). In May [S/2014/330], the Secretary-General reported to the Security Council on major developments in Somalia from 16 February and 30 April. He stated that the priority of the Federal Government was to advance the state formation process, in particular by establishing interim regional administrations. That process, however, remained rife with challenges. On 20 February, the Interim Juba Administration announced new ministerial and deputy ministerial appointments. Following elections in January, the government of Puntland continued to enhance its relations with regional and international actors. In March, the President of Puntland, Abdiweli Mohamed Ali Gaas, visited Ethiopia and Djibouti.

Tension between Puntland and “Somaliland” increased over the contested Sool and Sanaag regions. The 16 March visit to the disputed Sanaag region by the President of “Somaliland”, Ahmed Mohamed Mohamoud Silanyo, triggered a military build-up on both sides. Accusations made by senior Puntland officials that “Somaliland” was supporting Al-Shabaab further strained relations. “Somaliland” refuted the allegations and called on the Federal Government to intervene. On 15 April, “Somaliland” deployed its forces to the disputed Sool region and occupied the town of Taleex. The troops left the town the next day.

Early in March, AMISOM and the army launched Operation Eagle. During the first phase of the joint operations, significant gains were achieved on multiple fronts in territory controlled by Al-Shabaab. At the same time, Mogadishu experienced protracted insecurity. Mortar shelling, likely perpetrated by Al-Shabaab with the support of local sympathizers, continued. On 7 April, two international consultants working with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) were shot dead by a security guard at the airport in Gaalkacyo. The assailant and three suspects were arrested.

UNSOM provided advice to the Federal Government, at its request, on the implementation of the Vision 2016 political road map. UNSOM and UNDP, with support from DPA, deployed an electoral adviser to provide advice to the Federal Government on electoral priorities and legislation. On 26 February, the United Nations signed a status-of-mission agreement with the Federal Government.

The Secretary-General said that the lack of military helicopters threatened to limit the impact of the extended effort authorized by the Security Council in resolution 2124(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 256]. He called on Member States to expedite the deployment of helicopters and other force enablers in line with the AMISOM concept of operations. The Secretary-General also urged the Federal Government and the international community to accelerate the implementation of their political and financial commitments under the Somali Compact and Vision 2016.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 May [meeting 7188], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2158(2014). The draft [S/2014/377] was submitted by Australia, Chad, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Security Council mission. On 8 August [S/2014/579], the Security Council informed the Secretary-General that it would send a mission to Africa and Europe, visiting Belgium and the Netherlands as well as Kenya, Somalia and South Sudan

(see p. 341), from 8 to 14 August. Usman Sarki (Nigeria) and Mark Lydall Grant (United Kingdom) would lead the mission in Somalia. Briefing the Council on 19 August [S/PV.7245], the United Kingdom stated that President Hassan Sheikh Mohamud, Prime Minister Abdiwali Sheikh Ahmed and Speaker of the Parliament Mohamed Osman Jawari had hailed the United Nations as a key contributor to the protection of the sovereignty of Somalia. The mission had reiterated the importance of holding a referendum on the Constitution in 2015 and democratic elections in 2016, and had underlined the importance of the participation of women in the peace and reconciliation process. It had also reiterated the Council's determination to end the threat posed by Al-Shabaab to Somalia and the region.

Report of Secretary-General (September). In response to Security Council resolution 2158(2014) (see p. 354), the Secretary-General submitted a September report on Somalia [S/2014/699] covering major developments during the period from 1 May to 31 August. He stated that in May and June, tensions between State institutions threatened to derail political progress when a group of parliamentarians petitioned the President, Hassan Sheikh Mohamud, to resign for failing to implement the Federal Government's six-pillar policy for the political transformation of Somalia, known as Vision 2016. The President's 16 June address to the Federal Parliament helped to defuse the situation. A revised version of Vision 2016 was issued by the Federal Government on 30 June.

On 23 June, the Federal Government brokered an agreement on south-west Somalia between the two rival political initiatives based in Baidoa to establish an interim south-west administration. Key figures in the six-region state initiative, however, opposed the agreement. There were also positive developments in the implementation of the Addis Ababa Agreement of August 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 259]. The militia leader, Barre Adan Shire ("Hiralle"), returned to Mogadishu on 30 August 2014. About 118 members of his militia also returned and surrendered their weapons to AMISOM. Tension in the disputed Sool region grew when "Somaliland" forces seized the town of Taleex on 12 June. On 26 June, "Somaliland" forces withdrew from Taleex, leaving behind a pro-"Somaliland" Dhulbahante militia.

The overall security situation in Somalia remained volatile. In Mogadishu, the number of incidents attributed to Al-Shabaab abated during May and June, but incidents during Ramadan increased. On 24 May, Al-Shabaab fighters stormed the Federal Parliament building. Three AMISOM and 11 Somali troops were killed, while more than 20 others were injured, including a parliamentarian. Al-Shabaab vowed more attacks against the Federal Government and those it termed "invaders", including the United Nations. In July, Mogadishu experienced a surge in targeted assassinations. The victims comprised members of the Somali security forces and civilians, including two parliamentarians. On 30 August, Al-Shabaab attacked a National Intelligence and Security Agency prison in Mogadishu, resulting in the deaths of seven attackers and three Agency personnel.

Al-Shabaab continued to exert pressure in southern and central Somalia. It intensified guerrilla activities around Ceel Buur and Buulobarde in the Galguduud and Hiraan regions. On 26 June, insurgents carried out a complex attack against a Djiboutian base in Buulobarde, killing two Somali troops. On 8 May, Al-Shabaab fighters clashed with Puntland security forces in Feloja, Bari region. On 4 August, the Police Commissioner for the Bari region was killed in a suicide bombing in Boosaaso.

In support of the implementation of Vision 2016, UNSOM and UNDP deployed a chief electoral adviser and a senior electoral affairs officer to Somalia. UNSOM conducted a baseline survey of small arms and ammunition in Mogadishu. Its results were included in the Federal Government's report to the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) [YUN 1992, p. 202] and 1907(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 299] concerning Somalia and Eritrea. The Ministry of National Security, supported by UNSOM, convened the first meeting of the Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration Working Group in Mogadishu on 10 July. Logistical support continued to be provided by the United Nations Support Office for AMISOM, also to the army, as authorized by the Security Council in its resolution 2124(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 256] and the revised AMISOM concept of operations. It made arrangements to support the second joint AMISOM and army offensive, "Operation Indian Ocean", which began in August.

Security within Mogadishu International Airport was bolstered with the deployment of the United Nations Guard Unit, as recommended by the Secretary-General in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 256]. The Unit's first-phase deployment of 332 personnel within the main compounds at the airport was completed on 15 June. The second-phase deployment of 78 personnel was completed on 8 and 9 July, thereby achieving the mandated strength of 410 troops. The amendment to the status-of-mission agreement, aimed at facilitating the Unit's operations, remained under negotiation with the Federal Government.

The Secretary-General said that it was essential that military operations be followed by efforts to establish or improve governance structures in recovered areas and by the delivery of basic services, including security. He called on the international community to rally behind the Federal Government to consolidate those gains.

Year-end developments. In a later report on the situation in Somalia [S/2015/51], covering the period from 1 September to 31 December, the Secretary-General stated that a serious political crisis in the Federal Government arose following the 25 October announcement by Prime Minister Abdiweli Sheikh Ahmed of a cabinet reshuffle, which reportedly targeted a Minister close to the President, Hassan Sheikh Mohamud. On 6 December, Parliament voted to withdraw confidence in the Prime Minister. On 17 December, President Mohamud nominated Omar Abdirashid Ali Sharmarke as Prime Minister-designate. The nomination was confirmed by Parliament on 24 December. Despite the crisis, some progress was made on key political milestones. On 21 December, the Federal Parliament approved the Boundaries and Federation Commission and the Government budget for 2015. On 9 December, the Speaker established the Parliamentary Oversight Committee, a key body for the constitutional review process.

On 14 October, the Puntland State of Somalia and the Federal Government signed an agreement to resume relations, which had been suspended since August 2013. The implementation of the Addis Ababa Agreement of August 2013 continued in the Juba regions. A reconciliation conference was held in Kismaayo from 16 September to 5 October, with about 900 delegates attending. Some key stakeholders were absent, however, including opponents of the Interim Juba Administration. Representatives of the latter convened a parallel conference in Garbahaarrey from 6 to 23 October.

In “Somaliland”, political tension between the government and the opposition intensified over delays in approving the National Electoral Commission of “Somaliland” and passing the voter/civic registration act. On 15 November, parliamentarians from the ruling Kulmiye Party of “Somaliland” tabled an impeachment motion against the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Abdirahman Mohamed Abdillahi “Irro”. On 29 November, Parliament endorsed the National Electoral Commission.

On 1 September, the leader of Al-Shabaab, Sheikh Muktar Abu Zubeyr (Ahmed Godane), was killed in a missile strike in Shabelle Hoose. Al-Shabaab subsequently announced the name of their new leader, Al Sheikh Ahmad Dirie Abdikadir Umar (Abu Ubaidah), reasserted its alliance with the Al-Qaeda network, and announced its resolve to conduct reprisal attacks.

Attacks spiked in Mogadishu, targeting primarily officials of the Federal Government and causing civilian casualties. The United Nations was affected by security incidents on 3 and 14 December, resulting in a number of deaths and injuries among Somali bystanders and private security guards. On 25 December, elements of Al-Shabaab launched an attack inside the AMISOM protected area resulting in the death of AMISOM troops and civilian contractors.

In southern and central Somalia, AMISOM and the Somali National Army completed “Operation Indian Ocean” on 31 October. The operation recovered Jalaqsi, the last remaining Al-Shabaab stronghold in the Hiraan region, on 3 September; Rage-Ceele and Cadale in Shabelle Dhexe on 30 September and 1 October, respectively; and Baraawe in Shabelle Hoose, the key operational and revenue-generating hub of Al-Shabaab, on 6 October. AMISOM and security forces of the Interim Juba Administration captured Bulagadud, in Juba Hoose, on 7 October, but lost Koday Island to Al-Shabaab on 8 November. Stability had not yet been achieved in most of the recovered areas, and Al-Shabaab continued to attack AMISOM and Somali National Army forces. In Puntland, security forces began extensive operations against Al-Shabaab in the Galgala Mountains.

On 29 October, the Secretary-General visited Mogadishu with the President of the World Bank Group, the President of the Islamic Development Bank, and senior representatives of the African Development Bank and the AU. The Secretary-General met with the leadership of the Federal Government and other local stakeholders, including representatives of Somali women’s and youth groups. He called on Somali political leaders to work together and avoid political instability, and reaffirmed the commitment of the international community to supporting Somalia.

UNSOM and UNDP strengthened the Integrated Electoral Support Group to facilitate electoral planning, and to provide strategic advice to the Federal Government, Parliament and UNSOM leadership. The United Nations supported the Federal Government in implementing its stabilization strategy, which envisaged the establishment of caretaker administrations and law enforcement actors in 25 government-identified districts. Thirteen of those districts were recovered through joint operations, and caretaker administrations were deployed to 12 of them. UNDP and the Ministry of Interior and Federal Affairs were implementing a $3.5 million Peacebuilding Fund project to address the critical gaps in recovered areas.

Humanitarian conditions in Somalia worsened owing to drought, conflict, rising food prices, access constraints and slow funding. Over 1 million people were unable to meet their basic food requirements, an increase of 20 per cent since February 2014. The number of people in need of humanitarian aid reached 3.2 million. Over 2,200 violent incidents against humanitarian personnel and assets were recorded during the year, involving the deaths of six aid workers, the abduction of six, the injury of two, the attempted rape of one and the arrest of three people.

(For information on the human rights situation in Somalia, see p. 000.)

Piracy

In response to Security Council resolution 2125(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 260], the Secretary-General

submitted an October report [S/2014/740] on piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia covering major developments from 21 October 2013 to 15 October 2014. Piracy and armed robbery remained a major threat to shipping off the coast of Somalia, although there were no incidents of hijacking of commercial vessels during the reporting period. Thirteen incidents were reported to the International Maritime Organization (IMO) for the first three quarters of 2014, compared to some 20 attacks or attempted attacks by Somali pirates in 2013. Recent figures represented a significant decrease in incidents when compared to the 75 ships attacked in 2012 and 237 ships targeted by Somali pirates in 2011. No large commercial vessel had been hijacked or held for ransom by Somali pirates in more than two years.

The international community achieved considerable success in its efforts to combat Somali piracy as a result of close cooperation between and among States, regions, organizations, the maritime industry, the private sector and civil society. A Somali pirate kingpin, Mohamed Abdi Hassan, known as “Afweyne”, was arrested in October 2013 in Brussels. Another pirate leader, Mohamed Garfanji, was arrested in August 2014 in Mogadishu. The Secretary-General condemned the killing of two experts from the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC), Clément Gorrisen and Simon Davis, at the airport in Gaalkacyo, Puntland on 7 April. The experts were on a mission related to illicit financial flows accruing from piracy. Two suspects were in custody in a prison built under the UNODC Maritime Crime Programme. As at 13 October, 37 seafarers continued to be held hostage by Somali pirates.

The Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia held an extended gathering (Djibouti, 10–15 November), which included the fifteenth plenary session and the fourteenth meeting of the Board of the Trust Fund to Support Initiatives of States Countering Piracy off the Coast of Somalia. The fifteenth meeting of the Board of the Trust Fund and the sixteenth plenary session of the Contact Group were held in New York on 13 and 14 May 2014, respectively. During the reporting period, the Board approved 12 projects worth $4.9 million.

The Secretary-General observed that long-term security off the Somali coast needed to be built up onshore. Reconstructing Somalia’s judicial and maritime security capacity was the most critical and challenging element of the international community’s counter-piracy efforts. A strategy that supported security sector reform and the creation of regional security architecture would be critical to sustaining the progress achieved. The UN system and UNSOM were committed to supporting the Federal Government and the people of Somalia by providing assistance with regard to long-term sustainable development, institution-building and peacebuilding.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions concerning the situation in Somalia, especially resolutions 1814(2008) of 15 May 2008, 1816(2008) of 2 June 2008, 1838(2008) of 7 October 2008, 1844(2008) of 20 November 2008, 1846(2008) of 2 December 2008, 1851(2008) of 16 December 2008, 1897(2009) of 30 November 2009, 1918(2010) of 27 April 2010, 1950(2010) of 23 November 2010, 1976(2011) of 11 April 2011, 2015(2011) of 24 October 2011, 2020(2011) of 22 November 2011, 2077(2012) of 21 November 2012 and 2125(2013) of 18 November 2013, as well as the statements by its President of 25 August 2010 and of 19 November 2012,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General of 16 October 2014, as requested in resolution 2125(2013), on the implementation of that resolution and on the situation with respect to piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia,

Reaffirming its respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity, political independence and unity of Somalia, including Somalia’s sovereign rights in accordance with international law, with respect to offshore natural resources, including fisheries,

While noting that the joint counter-piracy efforts of States, regions, organizations, the maritime industry, the private sector, think tanks and civil society have resulted in a sharp decline in pirate attacks as well as hijackings since 2011, continuing to be gravely concerned by the ongoing threat that piracy and armed robbery at sea pose to the prompt, safe and effective delivery of humanitarian aid to Somalia and the region, to the safety of seafarers and other persons, to international navigation and the safety of commercial maritime routes and to other ships, including fishing activities in conformity with international law, and also gravely concerned by the extended range of the piracy threat into the western Indian Ocean and adjacent sea areas and increased pirate capacities,

Expressing concern about the reported involvement of children in piracy off the coast of Somalia, reported sexual exploitation of women and girls in areas controlled by pirates, as well as their reported coercion to participate in activities that support piracy,

Recognizing the need to investigate and prosecute not only suspects captured at sea, but also anyone who incites or intentionally facilitates piracy operations, including key figures of criminal networks involved in piracy who plan, organize, facilitate or illicitly finance or profit from such attacks, reiterating its concern over persons suspected of piracy having been released without facing justice, and reaffirming that the failure to prosecute persons responsible for acts of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia undermines anti-piracy efforts,

Further reaffirming that international law, as reflected in the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982, sets out the legal framework applicable to activities in the ocean, including countering piracy and armed robbery at sea,

Underlining the primary responsibility of the Somali authorities in the fight against piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia, and noting the several requests from Somali authorities for international assistance to counter piracy off the coast of Somalia, including the letter dated 4 November 2014 from the Permanent Representative of Somalia to the United Nations expressing the appreciation of Somali authorities to the Security Council for its assistance, expressing their willingness to consider working with other States and regional organizations to combat piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia and requesting that the provisions of resolution 2125(2013) be renewed for an additional 12 months,

Welcoming the participation of the Federal Government of Somalia and regional partners in the seventeenth plenary session of the Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia, hosted by the United Arab Emirates in Dubai on 28 October 2014,

Recognizing the work of the Contact Group to facilitate the prosecution of suspected pirates and to promote the establishment of the Law Enforcement Task Force, an ongoing network and mechanism for sharing information and evidence between investigators and prosecutors, in accordance with international law, welcoming the work of the Working Group on Capacity-Building of the Contact Group to coordinate judicial, penal and maritime capacity-building efforts to enable regional States to better tackle piracy, and welcoming the work of the Working Group on Disrupting Pirate Networks Ashore of the Contact Group to disrupt illicit financial flows linked to piracy,

Welcoming the financing provided by the Trust Fund to Support Initiatives of States Countering Piracy off the Coast of Somalia (the Trust Fund) to strengthen regional ability to prosecute suspected pirates and imprison those convicted in accordance with applicable international human rights law, noting with appreciation the assistance provided by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime Maritime Crime Programme, and being determined to continue efforts to ensure that pirates are held accountable,

Commending the efforts of the European Union operation Atalanta, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Operation Ocean Shield, the Combined Maritime Forces' Combined Task Force 151 commanded by the Republic of Korea, followed by New Zealand, as well as United States ships assigned to Combined Task Force 151 and North Atlantic Treaty Organization Task Force 508, the counter-piracy activities of the African Union onshore in Somalia and the naval activities of the Southern African Development Community and other States acting in a national capacity in cooperation with Somali authorities and each other to suppress piracy and to protect ships transiting through the waters off the coast of Somalia, and welcoming the Shared Awareness and Deconfliction initiative and the efforts of individual countries, including China, India, Iran (Islamic Republic of), Japan, the Republic of Korea and the Russian Federation, which have deployed naval counter-piracy missions in the region, as stated in the report of the Secretary-General,

Noting the efforts of flag States in taking measures to permit vessels sailing under their flag transiting the high-risk area to embark vessel protection detachments and privately contracted armed security personnel, and encouraging States to regulate such activities in accordance with applicable international law and permit charters to favour arrangements that make use of such measures,

Noting also the request of some Member States on the need to review the boundaries of the high-risk area on an objective and transparent basis, taking into account actual incidents of piracy, and noting that the high-risk area is set and defined by the insurance and maritime industry,

Welcoming the capacity-building efforts in the region made by the International Maritime Organization-funded Code of Conduct concerning the Repression of Piracy and Armed Robbery against Ships in the Western Indian Ocean and the Gulf of Aden (the Djibouti Code of Conduct), the Trust Fund and the activities of the European Union under its Mission on Regional Maritime Capacity-building in the Horn of Africa (EUCAP Nestor), which is working with the Federal Government of Somalia to strengthen its criminal justice system, and recognizing the need for all engaged international and regional organizations to coordinate and cooperate fully,

Supporting the development of a coastal police force, noting with appreciation the efforts made by the International Maritime Organization and the shipping industry to develop and update guidance, best management practices and recommendations to assist ships to prevent and suppress piracy attacks off the coast of Somalia, including in the Gulf of Aden, and the Indian Ocean area, and recognizing the work of the International Maritime Organization and the Contact Group in this regard, noting the efforts of the International Organization for Standardization, which has developed industry standards of training and certification for private maritime security companies when providing privately contracted armed security personnel on board ships in high-risk areas, and further welcoming the European Union's EUCAP Nestor, which is working to develop the sea-going maritime security capacities of Somalia, Djibouti, Seychelles and the United Republic of Tanzania,

Noting with concern that the continuing limited capacity and domestic legislation to facilitate the custody and prosecution of suspected pirates after their capture has hindered more robust international action against the pirates off the coast of Somalia, and too often has led to pirates being released without facing justice, regardless of whether there is sufficient evidence to support prosecution, and reiterating that, consistent with the provisions of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea concerning the repression of piracy, the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Acts against the Safety of Maritime Navigation of 10 March 1988 provides for parties to create criminal offences, establish jurisdiction and accept delivery of persons responsible for or suspected of seizing or exercising control over a ship by force or threat thereof or any other form of intimidation,

Underlining the importance of continuing to enhance the collection, preservation and transmission to competent authorities of evidence of acts of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia, welcoming the ongoing work of the International Maritime Organization, the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) and industry groups to develop guidance to seafarers on the preservation of crime scenes following acts of piracy, and noting the importance of enabling seafarers to give evidence in criminal proceedings to prosecute acts of piracy,

Recognizing that pirate networks continue to rely on kidnapping and hostage-taking to help generate funding to purchase weapons, gain recruits and continue their operational activities, thereby jeopardizing the safety and security of civilians and restricting the flow of commerce, and welcoming international efforts to coordinate the work of investigators and prosecutors, inter alia, through the Law Enforcement Task Force, and collect and share information to disrupt the pirate enterprise, as exemplified by INTERPOL's Global Database on Maritime Piracy, and taking note of the ongoing efforts of the Regional Fusion and Law Enforcement Centre for Safety and Security at Sea, hosted by Seychelles, to combat piracy and transnational organized crime,

Reaffirming international condemnation of acts of kidnapping and hostage-taking, including offences contained within the International Convention against the Taking of Hostages, strongly condemning the continuing practice of hostage-taking by pirates operating off the coast of Somalia, expressing serious concern at the inhumane conditions that hostages face in captivity, recognizing the adverse impact on their families, calling for the immediate release of all hostages, and noting the importance of cooperation between Member States on the issue of hostage-taking and the prosecution of suspected pirates for taking hostages,

Commending Kenya, Mauritius, Seychelles and the United Republic of Tanzania for their efforts to prosecute suspected pirates in their national courts, and noting with appreciation the assistance provided by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime Maritime Crime Programme, the Trust Fund and other international organizations and donors, in coordination with the Contact Group, to support Kenya, Mauritius, Seychelles, the United Republic of Tanzania, Somalia and other States in the region with their efforts to prosecute, or incarcerate in a third State after prosecution elsewhere, pirates, including facilitators and financiers ashore, consistent with applicable international human rights law, and emphasizing the need for States and international organizations to further enhance international efforts in this regard,

Welcoming the readiness of the national and regional administrations of Somalia to cooperate with each other and with States that have prosecuted suspected pirates with a view to enabling convicted pirates to be repatriated back to Somalia under suitable prisoner transfer arrangements, consistent with applicable international law, including international human rights law, and acknowledging the return from Seychelles to Somalia of convicted prisoners willing and eligible to serve their sentences in Somalia,

Recalling the reports of the Secretary-General which illustrate the seriousness of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia and provide useful guidance for the investigation and prosecution of pirates, including on specialized anti-piracy courts,

Stressing the need for States to consider possible methods to assist the seafarers who are victims of pirates, and welcoming in this regard the efforts of the Hostage Support Programme and the new Piracy Survivor Family Fund launched at the recent Contact Group session to provide support to hostages during their release and return home, as well as to their families throughout the hostage situation,

Recognizing the progress made by the Contact Group and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in the use of public information tools to raise awareness of the dangers of piracy and highlight the best practices to eradicate this criminal phenomenon,

Noting with appreciation the ongoing efforts of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to support efforts to enhance Somalia's maritime security and law enforcement capacities, and noting efforts by the Office and the United Nations Development Programme and the funding provided by the Trust Fund, the European Union, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the United States of America and other donors to develop regional judicial and law enforcement capacity to investigate, arrest and prosecute suspected pirates and to incarcerate convicted pirates consistent with applicable international human rights law,

Bearing in mind the Djibouti Code of Conduct, noting the operations of information-sharing centres in Yemen, Kenya and the United Republic of Tanzania and the regional maritime training centre in Djibouti, and recognizing the efforts of signatory States to develop the appropriate regulatory and legislative frameworks to combat piracy, enhance their capacity to patrol the waters of the region, interdict suspect vessels and prosecute suspected pirates,

Emphasizing that peace and stability within Somalia, the strengthening of State institutions, economic and social development and respect for human rights and the rule of law are necessary to create the conditions for a durable eradication of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia, and further emphasizing that Somalia's long-term security rests with the effective development by Somali authorities of the Somali National Security Forces,

Taking note with appreciation of the work of the Indian Ocean Rim Association at the 14th meeting of its Council of Ministers to bolster maritime security and safety, including through the announcement of the second Indian Ocean Dialogue, which will continue to explore options to enhance counter-piracy cooperation, including through improved maritime information-sharing arrangements and stronger national legal capacity and laws, encouraging the Association to pursue efforts that are complementary to and coordinated with the ongoing work of the Contact Group, and welcoming Somalia's application for membership in the Association as an important step towards building closer regional cooperation on maritime security and other issues,

Recognizing that the ongoing instability in Somalia and the acts of piracy and armed robbery at sea off its coast are inextricably linked, and stressing the need to continue the comprehensive response by the international community to repress piracy and armed robbery at sea and tackle its underlying causes, recognizing the need to undertake long-term and sustainable efforts to repress piracy and the need to create adequate economic opportunities for the citizens of Somalia,

Determining that the incidents of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia, as well as the activity of pirate groups in Somalia, are an important factor exacerbating the situation in Somalia, which continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security in the region,

Acting under Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Reiterates that it condemns and deplores all acts of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia;

2. Recognizes that the ongoing instability in Somalia is one of the underlying causes of the problem of piracy and contributes to the problem of piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia, while piracy in turn exacerbates instability by introducing large amounts of illicit cash that fuels additional crime and corruption in Somalia;

3. Stresses the need for a comprehensive response to repress piracy and tackle its underlying causes by the international community;

4. Underlines the primary responsibility of Somali authorities in the fight against piracy and armed robbery at sea off the coast of Somalia, and urgently requests the Somali authorities, with assistance from the Secretary-General and relevant United Nations entities, to pass a comprehensive set of anti-piracy and maritime laws without further delay and establish security forces with clear roles and jurisdictions to enforce these laws, and to continue to develop, with international support as appropriate, the capacity of Somali courts to investigate and prosecute persons responsible for acts of piracy and armed robbery, including key figures of criminal networks involved in piracy who plan, organize, facilitate or illicitly finance or profit from such attacks, and notes the proclamation by the President of Somalia on 30 June 2014 of the exclusive economic zone of Somalia;

5. Recognizes the need to continue to investigate and prosecute those who plan, organize or illicitly finance or profit from pirate attacks off the coast of Somalia, including key figures of criminal networks involved in piracy, and urges States, working in conjunction with relevant international organizations, to adopt legislation to facilitate prosecution of suspected pirates off the coast of Somalia;

8. Calls upon States to cooperate also, as appropriate, on the issue of hostage-taking, and the prosecution of suspected pirates for taking hostages;

9. Calls for the immediate and unconditional release of all seafarers held hostage by Somali pirates, and further calls upon the Somali authorities and all relevant stakeholders to redouble their efforts to secure their safe and immediate release;

10. Recognizes the need for States, international and regional organizations and other appropriate partners to exchange evidence and information for anti-piracy law enforcement purposes with a view to ensuring effective prosecution of suspected, and imprisonment of convicted, pirates and with a view to the arrest and prosecution of key figures of criminal networks involved in piracy who plan, organize, facilitate or illicitly finance and profit from piracy operations, and keeps under review the possibility of applying targeted sanctions against individuals or entities that plan, organize, facilitate or illicitly finance or profit from piracy operations if they meet the listing criteria set out in paragraph 8 of resolution 1844(2008); and calls upon all States

Sanctions

By resolution 733(1992) [YUN 1992, p. 199], the Security Council imposed a general and complete arms embargo on Somalia, and by resolution 751(1992) [ibid., p. 202], the Council established a Committee to oversee the embargo, expanding its mandate by resolution 1907(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 299]. The Council subsequently outlined certain exemptions to the embargo and further elaborated the scope of the measures. Following the adoption of resolution 1907(2009), which imposed a sanctions regime on Eritrea, the Committee, in 2010, changed its name to the “Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009) concerning Somalia and Eritrea”.

The Council, in 2002, by resolution 1425(2002) [YUN 2002, p. 206], established a Panel of Experts on Somalia to generate information on violations of the arms embargo with a view to strengthening it. The Panel of Experts was succeeded by the Monitoring Group on Somalia, established pursuant to resolution 1519(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 254], to focus on arms embargo violations. Subsequent resolutions extended and expanded the mandate of the Monitoring Group. After the adoption of resolution 1907(2009), the Monitoring Group changed its name to the “Monitoring Group on Somalia and Eritrea”.

By resolution 1916(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 298], the Council decided that the assets freeze it had imposed by resolution 1844(2008) [YUN 2008, p. 297] should not apply to the payment of funds, other financial assets or economic resources necessary to ensure the timely delivery of humanitarian assistance in Somalia. By the same resolution, the Council requested the Resident and Humanitarian Coordinator for Somalia to report to the Council every 120 days on any impediments to the delivery of humanitarian assistance. In resolution 1972(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 255], the Council renewed that exemption for 16 months. In 2012, the Council extended the mandate of the Group monitoring the sanctions imposed on Somalia, explicitly targeting those who obstructed the political transition process, while relaxing funding and equipment restrictions that could negatively impact the delivery of humanitarian aid.

In resolution 2111(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 270], the Council decided that until 6 March 2014, the arms embargo on Somalia would not apply to deliveries of weapons or military equipment or the provision of advice, assistance or training intended solely for the development of the Security Forces of the Federal Government of Somalia. By resolution 2142(2014), the Council renewed the partial lift of the arms embargo until 25 October 2014. By resolution 2182(2014) (see p. 367), the Council further renewed the exemption until 30 October 2015 and extended the mandate of the Monitoring Group until 30 November 2015.

Noting the request of the Federal Government of Somalia for assistance in weapons management, and encouraging relevant international actors, including the United Nations, to support the Federal Government in managing weapons and military equipment in an effective manner,

Report of Emergency Relief Coordinator (March).

On 10 March [S/2014/177], the Chair of the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009) on Somalia and Eritrea transmitted to the Council the report of the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator on the delivery of humanitarian assistance in Somalia, in accordance with resolution 2060(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 239]. The report covered the period from July 2013 to January 2014. It focused on the delivery of humanitarian assistance to affected populations in the regions of Somalia under the control or in areas of influence of Al-Shabaab. It outlined constraints to humanitarian access and mitigation measures to address the politicization, misuse and misappropriation of humanitarian assistance. The previous report on the topic covered the period from November 2012 to June 2013 [S/2013/415].

Despite continuous improvements, humanitarian needs remained vast and the gains fragile. Approximately 857,000 people were unable to meet basic food requirements without continued assistance, and a further two million people relied on livelihood support. Malnutrition rates remained among the highest in the world. One in seven children under the age of five, or 203,000 children, were estimated to be acutely malnourished. More than one million people were displaced and lacked access to adequate and basic services, such as shelter, water, sanitation, health and education.

The Under-Secretary-General and Emergency Relief Coordinator concluded that the lack of effective local administrations and rampant insecurity, including attacks by Al-Shabaab explicitly targeting humanitarian personnel, made Somalia one of the most volatile and operationally challenging environments for humanitarian workers. The implementation of enhanced due diligence measures by the Risk Management Unit significantly increased the ability of the humanitarian community to identify and redress the misuse and diversion of assistance. The Federal Government of Somalia needed to discharge its responsibility regarding “gatekeepers”—namely, self-appointed powerful guardians of settlements of internally displaced persons (IDPs)—to allow IDPs unfettered access to humanitarian assistance. Improved access in some parts of southern Somalia, mainly in towns recovered from Al-Shabaab, was expected to improve monitoring and enhance the accountability of humanitarian partners. In order to ensure robust risk analysis, all UN entities were encouraged to provide the Risk Management Unit with profile and biographical information and performance ratings of contractors and subcontractors.

Assessment team. In a 3 April letter to the Security Council [S/2014/243], the Secretary-General provided the findings of the assessment team, led by the UN Department of Political Affairs (DPA), that visited Mogadishu, Somalia, and Nairobi, Kenya, from 12 to 18 March. The team was deployed in line with Council resolution 2142(2014) (see p. 363), by which the Secretary-General was requested to provide, by 4 April, options and recommendations on UN technical assistance to the Federal Government of Somalia in complying with the resolution, and to improve its capacities to manage weapons and military equipment.

The political and security environment presented a considerable challenge to the Government’s effort to meet its reporting obligations and effectively manage weapons and ammunition stockpiles. Nevertheless, the Government and its international partners made some progress in establishing an institutional framework for overseeing weapons and ammunition management that was in line with national development priorities under the Somali Compact. The Somali Explosives Management Authority was established by President Hassan Sheikh Mohamud in August 2013. On 22 January 2014, the Government established an Arms and Ammunition Management Steering Committee to coordinate and monitor the implementation by the Federal Government of activities related to arms control and stockpile management, import, export and transit of weapons, tracking of weapons, public awareness-raising and legislative development. A multi-stakeholder Weapons and Ammunition Management Technical Working Group supported the Steering Committee in the implementation of its mandate. The Working Group’s workplan for 2014 included supporting compliance with resolutions 2093(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 247] and 2142(2014), establishing an arms registration system, constructing armouries and ammunition storage facilities and holding a government-wide workshop on arms and ammunition management responsibilities.

Options for enhancing reporting and weapons management included the provision of training and technical support; enhancement of codes of conduct and procedures for reporting on the structure and composition of security forces, infrastructure and weapons management; and establishment, under the authority of the Arms and Ammunition Management Steering Committee, of a joint verification team composed of Somali and international experts. International assistance was required to enhance the technical, human and administrative capacity of the Office of the National Security Adviser to the President to enable it to better coordinate inter-agency inputs to the Government’s notification and reporting obligations. The Office should update its recent reporting to the Security Council on the structure of the Somalia security forces; address the gaps identified by the Monitoring Group and the requirements of resolution 2142(2014); commence a baseline registration survey of the security sector; and begin a phased weapons and ammunition baseline survey through a weapons marking and registration process.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 22 May [meeting 7181], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/9 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the letter dated 3 April 2014 from the Secretary-General to the President of the Security Council (the letter) identifying options for supporting the Federal Government of Somalia in meeting its obligations under the partial suspension of the arms embargo. The Council underlines that improved arms and ammunition management in Somalia is a fundamental component of greater peace and stability for both Somalia and the region.

The Council underscores the need for the Federal Government of Somalia to show tangible progress in complying with the terms of the partial suspension of the arms embargo as highlighted in both the letter and resolution 2142(2014). The Council remains concerned about the diversion of arms and ammunition, including potentially to Al-Shabaab, which was also highlighted in resolution 2142(2014). In that regard, the Council welcomes the establishment by the Federal Government of an Arms and Ammunition Steering Committee as the overall body responsible for arms and ammunition management. The Council highlights the important role which should also be played by the Weapons and Ammunition Management Technical Working Group (Working Group) with respect to improving weapons management. The Council reiterates that its decision in October 2014 on the continuation of the suspension of the arms embargo will be informed by the Federal Government's compliance with its obligations to carry out Council decisions.

The Council underlines the importance of the international community supporting the Federal Government of Somalia in the areas identified in the letter. In particular, the Council underlines the urgent need for international support to the Office of the National Security Adviser, which coordinates the Federal Government's reporting obligations to the Council, as well as oversees the national architecture for weapons and ammunition management. The Council appeals to Member States and relevant international and regional organizations to provide support and equipment which focus on:

- (i) Improving the Federal Government of Somalia's reporting to the Council on the structure of its security forces, as well as improving its notifications to the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009) concerning Somalia and Eritrea (sanctions committee);
- (ii) Completing a baseline registration survey of the Somali security sector;

- (iii) Starting a weapons marking and registration process, in order to inform future verification activities.

The Council encourages Member States to provide financing and in-kind resources to accelerate key deliverables in the 2014 workplan of the Arms and Ammunition Steering Committee and its Working Group.

The Council also emphasizes, in particular, the need for five weapons marking machines, equipment required for mobile marking units for armouries outside of Mogadishu, and interim weapons storage facilities.

The Council underlines to all Member States and international organizations that all deliveries of military equipment and notifications should be coordinated through the Office of the National Security Adviser, which the Federal Government of Somalia has identified as the coordinating entity for arms and ammunition management.

The Federal Government of Somalia should consider establishing a joint verification team with international experts. The team should focus on physical verification of arms and ammunition provided to the Federal Government, as well as the systems of control in place for arms and ammunition management. The team should focus on supporting the Federal Government in complying with the decisions of the Council and the sanctions committee, in particular with respect to arms and ammunition management. The Council underlines that this team would complement the work of, and should coordinate with, the Monitoring Group on Somalia and Eritrea, in order to avoid any duplication in their respective activities. The Council encourages Member States, the United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia and relevant United Nations agencies, funds and programmes to support the establishment of this team. The Council further encourages Member States to provide sufficient financial resources to support the prompt establishment of this team.

The Council highlights that the work of the Monitoring Group is of paramount importance. The Council reiterates paragraph 32 of resolution 2111(2013) and reminds the Federal Government of Somalia of the importance of cooperating with the Monitoring Group. In that context, the Council encourages the Monitoring Group to increase its presence in Mogadishu and step up its interaction with the Office of the National Security Adviser, including by regular participation in the meetings of the Working Group.

The Council encourages all relevant members of the international community, the United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia, the United Nations agencies and the African Union to support the Federal Government of Somalia in improving its arms and ammunition management, including through providing financial and in-kind support to enhance its capacity. The Council underlines that the Federal Government is ultimately responsible for the management of its weapons and military equipment. The Council highlights its expectation that the Federal Government will make substantive progress in the months ahead.

Report of Emergency Relief Coordinator (September). In September [S/2014/655], the Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator transmitted his report covering the period from February to August. He stated that, according to an assessment conducted by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and the Famine Early Warning Systems Network, issued on 2 September, over 1 million people in Somalia faced acute food insecurity, a 20 per cent increase over the number of people affected six months earlier. The deterioration in the humanitarian situation was due to drought, conflict, restricted flow of commercial goods into areas affected by military operations and surging food prices. Drought conditions were present in southern, central and north-eastern Somalia from July 2014.

Delivering aid remained extremely difficult in Somalia, especially in areas under the control of Al-Shabaab. Territorial gains through military action by Somali and AMISOM security forces had not translated into safe and predictable road access. Al-Shabaab and other armed groups continued their attempts to control aid delivery. Humanitarian organizations strengthened efforts to identify risks, evaluate the capacity of implementing partners and track programmes with stronger reporting and auditing tools to ensure the delivery of critical, life-saving programmes. The Risk Management Unit continued to support the UN country team by conducting risk assessments of actual or proposed UN partner entities.

The Under-Secretary-General and Emergency Relief Coordinator concluded that conditions in Somalia were similar to the pre-famine period in 2010, when the combination of reduced humanitarian access, insecurity, an increase in commodity prices and two consecutive failed rainy seasons led to a crisis. Humanitarian partners required improved security and access and increased and flexible funding to effectively assist 3.1 million Somalis. The Under-Secretary-General and Emergency Relief Coordinator invited the Security Council to renew the humanitarian exemption provided in resolution 2111(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 270].

Report of Monitoring Group. On 10 October [S/2014/726], the Chair of the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009), in accordance with Council resolution 2011(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 270], transmitted to the Council the Somalia report of Monitoring Group on Somalia and Eritrea. The Monitoring Group stated that, since its previous report [YUN 2013, p. 265], international investment at the political level and reform efforts had not altered the underlying dynamics of the government system in terms of lack of transparency and accountability for public resources and clan-based interests dominating security forces and logistics. The deepening reliance on financial and security coping mechanisms produced lines of control parallel to the formal institutions of government. Consequently, the decline of popular support for the political configuration to the levels from before the end of the transition, and increasing clan-based instability in the capital and elsewhere, threatened to undermine the Federal Government, the prospects of reinforcing State institutions and peace and security in the country.

Al-Shabaab remained the principal threat to peace and security in Somalia and throughout the Horn of Africa. While the group was not able to retain its military strength and posture, it managed to maintain a violent footprint in Mogadishu and demonstrated its operational reach beyond the capital. It generated fatal attacks throughout southern and central Somalia, and inspired and coordinated attacks against the country's neighbours. The sustained counter-terrorism pressure and successful overcoming of internal divisions forced the Al-Shabaab core to place greater emphasis on exporting its violence beyond the borders of Somalia.

With the creation by the Security Council of an exemption to the arms embargo for the Federal Government, the Government incurred a corresponding set of obligations in terms of notifying the Committee of deliveries for the security sector and reporting to the Council on the structure of the government security forces and weapons management. Since the introduction of the exemption, the number of various types of arms that had been delivered or were expected to be delivered to the Federal Government pursuant to formal notifications to the Committee exceeded 13,000, with some 5.5 million rounds of ammunition. Some of the weapons and ammunition were diverted to arms markets in Mogadishu. Overall, given the anomalies, inaccuracies or lack of notifications to the Committee, the Federal Government had not imported weapons into Somalia in full compliance with its obligations. In addition, the Monitoring Group identified other violations of the arms embargo, including the diversion of weapons to arms networks connected to the Federal Government, arms deliveries to Puntland, the delivery of detonator cords to north-eastern Somalia and the delivery of military-type vehicles to Jubaland.

The scale of the international trade in Somali charcoal was largely consistent with the 2012–2013 period. On the basis of shipments documented and estimates of additional shipments, some 1 million bags of charcoal were exported each month from Kismayo, in addition to those exported from Al-Shabaab-controlled Barawe and other smaller ports. Al-Shabaab continued to benefit from the revenue generated.

Communication. In a 23 October letter to the Security Council [S/2014/760], Egypt, on behalf of the Arab Group, requested that the Council defer consideration of operative paragraphs 11 to 21 in the section of the draft resolution on the situation in Somalia entitled "Maritime interdiction of charcoal and arms".

Appointments. On 26 November [S/2014/854], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that, following the adoption of resolution 2182(2014) (see p. 367), he appointed five experts to serve on the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009).

Security Council Committee. On 17 December [S/2014/936], the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009) concerning Somalia and Eritrea transmitted to the Council a report on its 2014 activities. The Committee met six times in informal consultations (10 January, 21 February, 27 March, 15 May, 5 September and 10 October).

Children and armed conflict

In May [A/68/878-S/2014/339], the Secretary-General issued his report on children and armed conflict, which included information on grave violations committed against children during armed conflict in Somalia in 2013. The United Nations documented the recruitment and use of 1,293 children in Somalia, including by Al-Shabaab, the Somali National Army and allied militia, Ahl al-Sunna wal-Jama'a (ASWJ), the Somaliland Armed Forces and unknown armed elements. Al-Shabaab continued its campaign to recruit children and youth. The arbitrary arrest and detention of 1,009 children by the national army, including during operations against Al-Shabaab, remained a grave concern. Upon advocacy by the United Nations, 41 children detained by the national army for alleged association with Al-Shabaab were released in 2013.

At least 237 children were reportedly killed (179 boys and 58 girls) and 494 children were injured (383 boys and 111 girls) in 2013. The national army and allied militias were reportedly responsible for 334 child casualties (98 killed and 236 injured), followed by unknown armed groups (83 killed, 174 injured), Al-Shabaab (47 killed, 67 injured), AMISOM (7 killed, 14 injured), ASWJ (two killed, one injured), and the Puntland and the Somaliland forces (one child injured by each party). Child casualties mainly resulted from crossfire during clashes and indiscriminate shelling. Thirty children were killed and 51 others injured in incidents involving improvised explosive devices.

In 154 incidents of sexual violence, 152 girls and 2 boys were raped, including by unknown armed elements, members of the national army and allied militias, Al-Shabaab, ASWJ and the Somaliland forces. Twenty of the girls were subjected to sexual violence in the context of forced marriages following recruitment into Al-Shabaab. Twenty-one children were raped in 19 separate incidents by national army and unknown armed elements inside internally displaced persons camps.

Children formerly associated with armed forces or groups, including 863 boys and 237 girls, were enrolled in reintegration programmes. The United Nations continued to engage with the Federal Government of Somalia to ensure the implementation of the two action plans to end and prevent the recruitment and use of children and the killing and maiming of children by the national army. With the establishment of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSAM) [YUN 2013, p. 252], one Child Protection Adviser was deployed to support the process. In addition, a working group on children and armed conflict, comprising representatives of the Government, the United Nations, non-governmental organizations and the donor community, was established in Mogadishu; it reviewed standard operating procedures for the handover of children formerly associated with armed forces and groups before adoption by the Government in March 2014.

UNSAM

The United Nations Assistance Mission in Somalia (UNSAM) was established by the Security Council in resolution 2102(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 252] to support the peace and reconciliation process of the Federal Government of Somalia; provide policy advice to the Federal Government and AMISOM on peacebuilding and State-building, including on preparations for elections in 2016; and assist in the coordination of international donor support. The mandate also included monitoring and reporting to the Council on human rights violations, helping to prevent such abuses, and helping build the capacity of the Federal Government to promote respect for human rights, women's empowerment and child protection; the prevention of conflict-related sexual and gender-based violence; and strengthening justice institutions and helping to ensure accountability. The Mission, launched on 3 June 2013, replaced the United Nations Political Office for Somalia [YUN 2013, p. 266]. By resolution 2158(2014) of 29 May (see p. 354), the Security Council extended the UNSAM mandate for one year.

Financing

In a March report [A/68/327/Add.10], the Secretary-General requested the General Assembly to approve additional resources for UNSAM for 2014 in the amount of $22,156,200 net ($22,205,100 gross), and to approve a charge of $22,156,200 net against the provision for special political missions appropriated under section 3, Political affairs, of the 2014–2015 programme budget. In May [A/68/7/Add.26], ACABQ recommended that the Assembly approve additional resources for UNSAM for 2014 in the amount of $21,972,400 net ($22,016,500 gross) and approve a charge of $21,972,400 against the provision for special political missions appropriated under section 3 of the budget.

The Assembly, in resolution 68/280 of 30 June (see p. 1629), approved the budgets of the special political missions authorized by the Assembly and/or the Security Council, including UNSAM, as well as the charges against the provision appropriated for special political missions under section 3, Political affairs, of the 2014–2015 programme budget.

AMISOM

The African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) was authorized in 2007 [YUN 2007, p. 268] by the AU Peace and Security Council to support the transitional federal institutions in their efforts to stabilize the country, facilitate humanitarian assistance, and create conditions conducive to stabilization, reconstruction and development. By resolution 1744(2007) [ibid., p. 269], the Security Council approved the Mission's mandate, which was renewed every six months. Resolution 2036(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 244] widened the operational scope of AMISOM to four sectors and increased the Mission's force strength from 12,000 to a maximum of 17,731 uniformed personnel. The Mission was also called on to take necessary measures in coordination with the Transitional Federal Government to neutralize armed groups in the country. The Council, by resolution 2124(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 256], authorized an increase in AMISOM strength, from 17,731 to 22,126 uniformed personnel. By resolution 2182(2014) of 24 October (see p. 367), the Council authorized the deployment of AMISOM until 30 November 2015.

Report of AU Commission. Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2093(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 247], the Secretary-General, on 13 February [S/2014/100], transmitted to the Council a report of the AU Commission on the implementation of the AMISOM mandate and of Council resolution 2124(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 256]. The Commission stated that the recovery process in Somalia remained fraught with challenges. The Federal Government of Somalia pursued the implementation of the Six-Pillar Plan launched in November 2012, which revolved around good governance, economic recovery, social reconciliation, service delivery, building collaborative international relations, and the unity and integrity of the country. The Federal Government registered significant progress in security, public finance management, reconciliation and political outreach, and in laying the foundations of good governance. On 16 September 2013, the Federal Government of Somalia and the international community reached an agreement on the New Deal Compact outlining peacebuilding and State-building goals on inclusive politics, security, justice, economic foundation and revenue and services. The Vision 2016 Conference (Mogadishu, 2–6 September 2013) adopted recommendations on the review and implementation of the Provisional Constitution, the transition to democratic legitimacy, and the finalization of the Constitution by way of a referendum by December 2015. On 8 January 2014, the regional state of Puntland held presidential elections, which were won by former Federal Government of Somalia Prime Minister Abdiweli Mohamed Ali Gaas. The new President assumed office on 14 January. On 21 January, the Interim Juba Administration was formally inaugurated, marking a major milestone in the implementation of the 2013 Addis Ababa Agreement [YUN 2013, p. 259].

Al-Shabaab continued to attack civilians, AMISOM and Somali National Security Forces. AMISOM resumed its operations against Al-Shabaab safe havens in the Middle, Lower Juba and Bay regions. Due to rotations, the deployed force strength of the AMISOM military component stood at 22,056 of the authorized 22,126. In addition to providing support to the Federal Government of Somalia in recovering territory from Al-Shabaab control, AMISOM continued to work closely with the Federal Government in activities aimed at extending state authority.

The Federal Government of Somalia adopted the Post-Transition Human Rights Roadmap for Somalia for the 2013–2015 period. On 16 October 2013, a joint strategy on the implementation of the Secretary-General's Human Rights Due Diligence Policy in Somalia was agreed on between UNSOM, AMISOM and the United Nations Support Office for AMISOM (UNSOA), and a Joint Working Group was established. The AU Commission continued to encourage the development of strategies for AU-mandated peace support operations, using gender mainstreaming as a tool in streamlining and aligning functions, procedures and practices of current and future operations.

Financing

The Secretary-General's performance report on the financing of support for AMISOM for the period from 1 July to 30 June 2013 [A/68/605] detailed expenditures of $412,570,500 gross ($408,799,000 net) against an apportionment of $436,905,000 gross ($433,554,200 net). The mandate for the support provided to AMISOM was established by the Security Council in resolutions 1772(2007) [YUN 2007, p. 276] and 1863(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 271], and extended by subsequent Council resolutions. The United Nations Support Office for the African Union Mission in Somalia (UNSOA) was mandated to provide a logistical support package to AMISOM to support the efforts of the Transitional Federal Institutions of Somalia towards the stabilization of the country, facilitate the provision of humanitarian assistance, and create conditions conducive to long-term stabilization, reconstruction and development in Somalia.

In February [A/68/745], the Secretary-General submitted a budget proposal for UNSOA for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 in the amount of $497,210,200 gross ($492,687,600 net), representing an increase of 14.1 per cent ($61,409,200 gross) compared with the 2013–2014 approved budget. The budget provided for the deployment of 21,586 military contingent personnel, 260 AMISOM police officers, 280 AMISOM formed police personnel, 281 international staff, 191 national staff and 17 United Nations Volunteers. In May [A/68/782/Add.9], ACABQ recommended the appropriation of $494,968,100 for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015; assessment of $164,989,367 for the period from 1 July to 31 October 2014; and assessment of $329,978,733 for the period from 1 November 2014 to 30 June 2015, at a monthly rate of $41,247,342, should the Security Council decide to continue the mandate of the logistical support for AMISOM. It also recommended that the unencumbered balance of $24,334,500 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income/adjustments amounting to $4,139,300 for the period ended 30 June 2013, be credited to Member States.

Eritrea

Eritrea achieved independence from Ethiopia in 1993, following a 30-year war of liberation and a subsequent referendum, and its relations with its neighbours had since been turbulent. In the process of defining the borders of the new State, the country clashed with Ethiopia, Yemen and Djibouti, and maintained a complex relationship with the Sudan. In December 2009, invoking Eritrea's alleged support for Somali armed opposition groups and its border conflict with Djibouti, the Security Council imposed a sanctions regime on Eritrea, including a general and complete arms embargo, as well as a travel ban and an asset freeze on individuals and entities.

Sanctions

Appointment. By a 5 February letter [S/2014/79], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that, in view of the resignation of Cornelis Steenken, arms expert for Eritrea, he had appointed Joakim Gundel (Denmark) to serve as arms expert on the Monitoring Group on Somalia and Eritrea.

Report of Monitoring Group. On 10 October [S/2014/727], the Chair of the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 751(1992) and 1907(2009) concerning Somalia and Eritrea, in accordance with resolution 2111(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 270], transmitted to the Council the October report on Eritrea of the Monitoring Group on Somalia and Eritrea. Under the auspices of the Chair, two meetings between the Monitoring Group and Eritrea were convened, in Paris on 8 December 2013 and in Cairo, Egypt, on 14 February 2014.

The Monitoring Group found no evidence of Eritrean support to Al-Shabaab. It established that Eritrea continued to violate resolution 1907(2009) by importing weapons and ammunition from eastern Sudan with the knowledge and direction of Eritrean officials affiliated with the President's Office. The Group investigated allegations that Eritrea facilitated and in some cases provided weapons to three armed groups in South Sudan: the Sudanese People's Liberation Movement in Opposition, George Athor Deng's rebel forces, and the David Yau Yau group. It could not substantiate or confirm those allegations, as South Sudan did not provide any evidence to corroborate its claims. Eritrean support for regional armed groups continued to be linked to the Ethiopian-Eritrean rivalry in the Horn of Africa, the border dispute between Ethiopia and Eritrea, and the way in which the rivalry shaped Eritrean foreign policy. The Monitoring Group obtained evidence that Eritrea continued to support armed opposition groups from neighbouring countries, notably the Somalia-based Ogaden National Liberation Front, the Tigray People's Democratic Movement, and Ginbot Sebat.

The Government of Eritrea continued not to disclose its budget and appropriations, and the country's annual budget was not publicly available. The lack of financial transparency created limited effective monitoring of the country's compliance with resolution 1907(2009). The Group investigated whether hard currency from mining revenues was channelled through the financial structures of the Government to support activities that would constitute a violation of resolution 1907(2009). It did not identify any suspicious transfers but could not rule out that such funds had been diverted. It was the assessment of the Monitoring Group that senior Eritrean officials continued to collect millions of dollars each year through unofficial revenues by means of private business arrangements involving companies run by the People's Front for Democracy and Justice domestically and abroad. The Government continued to impose a variety of extraterritorial taxation requirements on Eritrean citizens abroad as well as foreign nationals of Eritrean descent. The Monitoring Group received credible testimonies that Eritrean officials were resorting to coercive measures to extract payment from Eritrean nationals.

The Monitoring Group noted the lack of progress on article 3 of the Comprehensive Agreement, concerning prisoners of war, signed on 6 June 2010 by Djibouti and Eritrea under the auspices of Qatar. Djiboutian officials informed the Group that Eritrea continued to hold 17 Djiboutians. Eritrea had yet to acknowledge that it held Djiboutian combatants or provide information on their condition.

The Security Council, in resolution 2182(2014) of 24 October (see p. 367), took note of the Monitoring Group's report on Eritrea and urged Eritrea to make available information pertaining to Djiboutian combatants missing in action since 2008.

North Africa

Libya

In 2014, the United Nations sought a peaceful resolution to the political and institutional crisis in Libya as the security situation deteriorated. On 3 February, the General National Congress adopted a road map on future transitional arrangements. Elections for the Constitutional Drafting Assembly took place on 20 February. On 25 June, elections were held for a new legislative body: the House of Representatives.

In July, the most serious armed conflict since 2011 broke out in Tripoli, Benghazi and elsewhere in Libya. The violence spread to other parts of Tripoli, with reports of indiscriminate shelling of heavily populated residential areas. The fighting brought about a rapid deterioration in living conditions. Following six weeks of armed hostilities in July and August, Libya appeared to be descending into a period of instability. The House of Representatives called for an unconditional ceasefire, to be supervised by the United Nations.

The House of Representatives rejected the 6 November verdict of the Constitutional Chamber of the Supreme Court concerning the unconstitutionality of paragraph 11 of the seventh amendment of the Constitutional Declaration adopted on 11 March. Reactions by the main political actors to the ruling appeared to strengthen anxieties regarding parallel legislative and executive bodies and fuelled the political crisis.

In March, the mandate of the United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL) was extended for a further 12-month period.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (February). In response to Security Council resolution 2095(2013)

[YUN 2013, p. 273], the Secretary-General, in February [S/2014/131], submitted a report on the United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL). The report covered major political and security developments in Libya, and provided an overview of the human rights situation.

On 3 February, the General National Congress adopted a road map on future transitional arrangements. It stipulated that the tenure of the General National Congress would continue until its authority could be transferred to a constitutionally elected legislative body, subject to the completion of the Constitution drafting process within the four-month period outlined in the Constitutional Declaration. If the Constitutional Drafting Assembly concluded, two months after convening, that it was unable to complete its task within the prescribed time, general elections would be called for a new interim Parliament and President under an amended Constitutional Declaration and new election law. The Parliament and President would serve for a period of 18 months from the date of the first session of the Constitutional Drafting Assembly, and any renewal of their terms would be subject to a popular referendum.

The General National Congress, in response to mounting public calls for it to be dissolved and replaced it with a new legislative body, adopted a resolution on 23 December 2013 stating that the Constitutional Drafting Assembly elections would be held in February 2014. The High National Election Commission recommended to the General National Congress that the vote take place on 20 February, in accordance with the Assembly electoral law. The elections took place as planned, but initial polling figures suggested a low turnout nationwide. The timeline also called for the completion of a draft constitution by July, to be followed by a referendum and general elections. The United Nations supported civic education and public outreach on constitutional issues.

The Secretary-General's proposal [YUN 2013, p. 278] to deploy a UN guard unit to ensure security for UN staff and premises in Tripoli, Libya, provoked a public controversy. The Special Representative of the Secretary-General called for a revision of the initial plan in a way that UNSMIL deemed to be most adapted to the Libyan situation. Other options were being considered and a new proposal was being finalized.

The Secretary-General observed that developments in Libya underscored the urgent need for the country's political forces to firmly commit themselves to the democratic process. Elections, while essential, were not the sole agent of democratization. Upholding principles of political pluralism and the recognition of diversity were central to any democratic process. He also called on all parties in Libya to voice their unambiguous support for the national dialogue and agree on a unified approach in order to maximize the chances of its success. The Secretary-General remained concerned by the apparent lack of progress in investigating the accelerating spate of assassinations in Benghazi and in the east. He called on the authorities to assume their responsibilities in providing security and putting an end to impunity. He also urged all parties in Benghazi and the east to reject the use of violence to achieve political objectives.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 14 March [meeting 7136], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2144(2014). The draft [S/2014/188] was submitted by Chad, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Nigeria, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Expressing grave concern at the lack of judicial process for conflict-related detainees, including children, many of whom continue to be held outside State authority, and at reports of human rights violations and abuses, including torture and sexual and gender-based violence, in detention centres, and in that regard underlining that all parties in Libya should extend full cooperation to the Mission on all issues pertaining to the promotion and protection of human rights,

Welcoming actions by the Government of Libya to address human rights issues, including the promulgation of a transitional justice law on 8 December 2013, the law against torture and discrimination on 9 April 2013 and the decree to redress the situation of victims of rape and violence adopted on 19 February 2014,

Reiterating that the voluntary, safe and sustainable return of refugees and internally displaced persons will be an important factor for the consolidation of peace in Libya,

Communications. On 17 June [S/2014/417], the United States reported to the Security Council that it had taken action in Libya to capture Ahmed Abu Khattalah, a senior leader of the militant group Ansar al-Sharia-Benghazi in Libya. The United States ascertained that Ahmed Abu Khattalah was a key figure in the armed attack on the United States Temporary Mission Facility and Annex in 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 256]. The measures taken were necessary to prevent armed attacks and were taken in accordance with the right of self-defence of the United States. They were reported to the Council in accordance with Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations.

On 26 August [S/2014/632], Libya transmitted to the Security Council the “Security Maintenance and Sustainable Stability in Libya” plan, adopted by the House of Representatives and the interim Government on 23 August.

Report of Secretary-General (September). In response to Security Council resolution 2144(2014) (see p. 378), the Secretary-General, in September [S/2014/653], reported on political and security developments, the human rights situation and UNSMIL activities in Libya. He stated that the most serious armed conflict since 2011 broke out in Tripoli, Benghazi and elsewhere in July. On 5 July, an incident involving members of rival brigades at a checkpoint near the UNSMIL compound in Tripoli triggered fighting that quickly escalated into heavy intermittent clashes spreading to other parts of western Tripoli. Heavy artillery and rocket fire in and around the airport left large sections of it, along with a number of aircraft, badly damaged or destroyed, and all air travel was suspended. The fighting soon engulfed other parts of the capital, with reports of indiscriminate shelling of heavily populated residential areas. Both parties brought large numbers of troops and heavy armaments into Tripoli.

On 17 July, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mohamed Abdelaziz, addressed the Security Council and appealed for the establishment of a UN stabilization and institution-building mission for Libya to empower the Government and prevent the country from becoming a failed State. In response, the President of the General National Congress, Nouri Abu-Sahmain, and a number of party leaders issued statements rejecting what they saw as the Government’s calls for international intervention. On 23 August, the Libya Dawn military coalition declared that it had achieved its primary objective of evicting the Zintan-linked brigades from the capital. Both parties to the conflict were nominally under the command of the Libyan authorities.

In the east, air strikes against several positions belonging to the Libya Dawn coalition conducted before and in the days following the declaration of victory by the coalition did little to thwart its advance. There was no independent confirmation of the identity of the jets that carried out the strikes. Violence had escalated since fighting began in mid-May, spreading to heavily populated residential areas. Indiscriminate shelling had reportedly resulted in deaths and injuries to civilians, including children. In resolution 2174(2014) of 27 August (see p. 386), the Security Council called on all parties to agree to an immediate ceasefire and to engage in an inclusive political dialogue.

Following six weeks of armed hostilities in the capital in July and August, Libya appeared to be descending into a period of instability. The use of heavy weaponry in densely populated areas by all sides, particularly in the capital, resulted in an unprecedented population movement. An estimated 100,000 people were displaced in Tripoli, with an additional 20,000 in the east. At least 100,000 crossed the borders into neighbouring countries. The fighting brought about a rapid deterioration in living conditions, including shortages of food, fuel, water and electricity, along with a rise in criminal activity.

Prior to the outbreak of armed conflict, on 2 March, protestors stormed chambers of the General National Congress. On 12 March, the General National Congress voted to approve a set of amendments to the Constitutional Declaration. Some of the recommendations were adopted, the most important being the provision for early legislative elections. Groups within the General National Congress passed a vote of no confidence in Prime Minister Ali Zeidan on 12 March. The Minister of Defence, Abdullah al-Thinni, was asked to serve as caretaker Prime Minister. On 4 May, the General National Congress elected Ahmed Meiteeg to succeed the caretaker Prime Minister. A group of 14 General National Congress members filed a legal challenge with the Supreme Court contesting the vote. The General National Congress confirmed Mr. Meiteeg's cabinet on 26 May. Mr. al-Thinni insisted that he would not vacate his position until the Supreme Court had issued its ruling. On 9 June, the Supreme Court declared the decision by the General National Congress to appoint Mr. Meiteeg unconstitutional. The General National Congress announced that it would abide by the decision, as did Mr. Meiteeg.

Security developments in the country notwithstanding, the constitutional process continued to move forward throughout the reporting period. On 20 February, initial polling in the national election for the Constitutional Drafting Assembly, although disrupted by boycotts and security problems, was sufficient to allow the High National Election Commission to announce preliminary results in 47 of the 60 races. Three rounds of subsequent polling filled 8 of the remaining 13 seats. On 21 April, the General National Congress convened the first session of the Constitutional Drafting Assembly in Al Baida. The Constitutional Declaration required the Constitutional Drafting Assembly to adopt a draft of the constitutional text for public referendum by 19 August. That schedule did not provide the Assembly with sufficient time to complete its work. Despite security challenges, municipal elections were held in 65 of the country's 102 municipalities.

Libya began its third transitional period with the holding of elections, on 25 June, for a new 200-member legislative body: the House of Representatives. Turnout for the elections was estimated at around 42 per cent of the 1.5 million registered voters, a significant decrease compared with the General National Congress elections of July 2012. The new Parliament convened for the first time on 4 August in Tobruk, but only 158 of the 188 elected members were present. The Parliament elected a speaker and two deputies. It also amended the Constitutional Declaration and restored some of the powers previously attributed to the President to the House of Representatives until the President of Libya was elected. The House of Representatives also called for an immediate and unconditional ceasefire, to be complied with by all parties, and for the United Nations to supervise the implementation of the ceasefire agreement. In a direct challenge to the authority of the House of Representatives, the Libya Dawn coalition called on the former General National Congress to convene, charging that the transitional caretaker government and the House of Representatives had violated the Constitutional Declaration and consequently lost legitimacy.

The nine-month stand-off between the Libyan authorities and federalist armed groups over control of four oil terminals was resolved on 6 April, when both sides agreed on a phased reopening of the terminals. The authorities agreed to investigate all cases of financial and administrative mismanagement in the oil sector since 2011, drop all legal proceedings against those involved in the closures, pay petroleum guards past salaries and entitlements, and relocate their headquarters to Brega, in the east.

At the beginning of July, 229 UNSMIL international and national staff members and government-provided personnel had been deployed in the country. On 7 July, owing to security conditions, UNSMIL, with the approval of the relevant departments at United Nations Headquarters, decided to temporarily relocate 69 of the 113 non-security international staff from the Mission area. On 13 and 14 July, almost all remaining internationally recruited staff were evacuated to Tunisia. On 22 July, the temporary evacuation was extended to all remaining internationally recruited staff members of UN agencies, funds and programmes. Five international security officers remained in Tripoli, including the Chief Security Adviser, to provide security reporting, daily monitoring of UN premises and assets, and security advice for national staff.

The Secretary-General said that a durable solution to Libya's political problems could only be attained through an inclusive political dialogue that was committed to uphold Libya's democratic transition. He was concerned about reports of torture, deaths in custody, kidnapping and secret detentions by brigades nominally affiliated with the Ministry of Justice or the Ministry of Defence. The handover of all detainees to the State was a prerequisite for the establishment of the rule of law in Libya. The Secretary-General called on the Libyan authorities to conduct criminal investigations into attacks targeting humanitarian workers, human rights defenders and media professionals and ensure that those responsible were held to account. He asked the Secretariat to conduct a review of the UN presence in Libya, in partnership with the Libyan authorities and in consultation with regional and international partners.

Communication. In a 7 November letter addressed to the Security Council [S/2014/801], Libya stated that the House of Representatives rejected the 6 November verdict of the Constitutional Chamber of the Supreme Court. The Court's verdict stated the unconstitutionality of paragraph 11 of the seventh amendment of the Constitutional Declaration adopted on 11 March and all of its effects; a judgment that was interpreted by the media as meaning the dissolution of the House of Representatives. In its statement, which was annexed to the letter, the House of Representatives said it rejected that verdict because the Constitutional Chamber of the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction over the Constitution, and the verdict was adopted at the Court's headquarters in Tripoli, which had been under the rule of militias since August and completely out of the control of the legitimate interim Government.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/144], the Secretary-General stated that the reactions by the main political actors to the 6 November ruling of the Supreme Court (see above) appeared to have strengthened anxieties regarding parallel legislative and executive bodies. The ruling and its aftermath continued to fuel the political crisis.

Following the Libya Dawn coalition's declaration of victory in Tripoli and the subsequent move by the General National Congress to reassert itself on the political scene, the coalition's leadership announced the appointment of a "government of national salvation". Prime Minister Abdullah al-Thinni continued to be regarded as the legitimate Head of Government. In late September, the House of Representatives reconfirmed Mr. al-Thinni as caretaker Prime Minister, who had effectively relocated the seat of Government to the east in view of political and security developments in the capital. The Libya Dawn coalition commenced a major military operation in the Warshafana tribal belt area. Weeks of heavy shelling of the Azizya and Suwani areas between late August and early October triggered a severe humanitarian crisis; at least 120,000 people were estimated to have been displaced.

A military counter-offensive by Zintani forces against Kikla and al-Qal'a areas in the Nafusa Mountains left more than 170 people dead by the end of November, with hundreds injured and some 5,700 families displaced. Repeated calls by UNSMIL for all parties to cease fighting and allow for the delivery of humanitarian aid went largely unheeded. A major escalation in combat operations occurred on 13 December, when Misratan armed groups attacked al-Sidra, the country's biggest oil load port. The move signalled the launch of Operation Sunrise, the primary objective of which was to wrest control of the oil crescent area from the Petroleum Facilities Guard. In Eastern Libya, fighting intensified between Operation Dignity, whose ranks largely comprised elements of the Libyan army and other forces loyal to General

Khalifa Haftar, and the Benghazi Revolutionaries Shura Council, a coalition of Islamist revolutionary brigades. In Derna, on 3 October, the Shura Council of Islamic Youth pledged allegiance to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL).

On 29 September, parliamentarians within the House of Representatives, including members who boycotted parliamentary sessions in Tobruk, attended face-to-face talks in Ghadames. The meeting, presided over by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, concluded with a public commitment to convene a second round of talks to address outstanding differences between the two camps. In an unannounced visit on 11 October, the Secretary-General addressed the second round of talks. He stressed that military means could not solve the country's political and institutional crisis, and that a viable solution should be sought through peaceful dialogue.

The trial of Saif al-Islam Qadhafi, Abdullah Al-Senussi and 35 other former regime officials before the Tripoli Court of Assize, which was suspended during the fighting in Tripoli, resumed in October. Mr. Qadhafi remained in detention in Zintan, and eight defendants previously held in Misrata were moved to Tripoli in November.

ICC activities

Communications. In a 17 March letter [S/2014/197], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council a 24 January letter from the Registrar of the International Criminal Court (icc). By his letter, the Registrar, pursuant to the Negotiated Relationship Agreement between the International Criminal Court and the United Nations, transmitted the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I of the Court dated 31 May 2013 on the admissibility of the case against Saif al-Islam Qadhafi before the Court in the case of The Prosecutor v. Saif Al-Islam Gaddafi and Abdullah Al-Senussi. Pre-Trial Chamber I rejected the challenge by Libya to the admissibility of the case.

On 19 March [S/2014/203], the Secretary-General transmitted a 28 January letter from the icc Registrar transmitting the decision of Pre-Trial Chamber I, entitled Decision on the admissibility of the case against Abdullah Al-Senussi, in the case of The Prosecutor v. Saif Al-Islam Gaddafi and Abdullah Al-Senussi. Pre-Trial Chamber I decided, on 11 October 2013, that the case of Abdullah Al-Senussi was inadmissible before the Court, owing to the principle of complementarity set forth in article 17 (1) (a) of the Rome Statute [YUN 2013, p. 279]. The Registrar also informed the Secretary-General that the decision had been appealed.

Briefings by ICC Prosecutor. The Prosecutor of ICC, Fatou Bensouda, briefed the Council on 13 May [S/PV.7173] and 11 November [S/PV.7306] on the activities undertaken by her Office with regard to Libya. In her November briefing, the Prosecutor said that despite the elections in June, Libya was split, with two Governments vying for legitimacy. A worrisome aspect of the deteriorating situation was the ongoing spate of assassinations in Benghazi and the threats to media workers, human rights defenders and women in particular, and to prosecutors, judges and lawyers. There were indications that crimes that fell within ICC jurisdiction were being committed. The Prosecutor said that the possibility of forming an international contact group on justice issues through which material, legal and other support could be provided to Libya ought to be explored.

Progress was slow on the implementation of the memorandum of understanding between the Prosecutor's Office and the Government, which was meant to facilitate collaborative efforts to ensure that individuals allegedly responsible for committing crimes in Libya as at 15 February 2011 were brought to justice. The government focal point arranged a meeting outside of the country between members of the Prosecutor's investigation team and Libyan national investigators. The meeting provided an opportunity for valuable exchanges of information and ensured plans for follow-up meetings. It also laid the groundwork for coordination in the investigation and prosecution of individuals of concern. Nevertheless, the combined effect of instability and lack of resources severely undermined her Office's investigative efforts in Libya. The Office was obliged to scale down resources for investigations in the country, in effect limiting its ability to investigate new allegations of mass crimes committed by the rebel forces.

The Prosecutor called on Libya to surrender Saif al-Islam Qadhafi to the custody of the Court. Her Office was monitoring developments in the trial of Abdullah Al-Senussi in Libya. Ongoing violence and alleged threats to judges, prosecutors and lawyers did not bode well for a fair trial. The Prosecutor would assess whether to apply for a review of the judges' decision upholding Libya's request that the case be tried in Libya.

The Prosecutor remained concerned about the number of individuals in detention, some of whom reportedly lack access to due process and might be subject to torture and death in custody. It was incumbent upon the Government to ensure that detainees were either tried within a reasonable time and with full respect for their due-process rights, or released. The mass displacement of the Tawerghans also remained an issue of concern to the Prosecutor's Office and to the international community as a whole.

Communication. On 29 December [S/2014/953], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council a 12 December letter from the ICC President informing the Council of the decision on the non-compliance by Libya with requests for cooperation by the Court and referring the matter to the Council. The decision had been issued by Pre-Trial Chamber I on 10 December, in the case of The Prosecutor v. Saif Al-Islam Gaddafi. The Chamber found that Libya failed to comply with the request to surrender Mr. Qadhafi to the Court. It decided that the Presidency of the Court would transmit its decision to the Council.

Sanctions

By resolution 1970(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 267], the Security Council imposed on Libya an arms embargo, as well as a travel ban and asset freeze against individuals listed in two annexes. By its resolution 1973(2011) [ibid., p. 271], the Council strengthened the enforcement of the arms embargo and expanded the scope of the asset freeze to include the exercise of vigilance when doing business with Libyan entities, if States had grounds to believe that such business could contribute to violence and the use of force against civilians. The resolution listed additional individuals subject to the asset freeze and the travel ban, and established a Panel of Experts (see below). Resolution 2009(2011) [ibid., p. 280] introduced exceptions to the arms embargo and removed two listed entities subject to the asset freeze, while allowing the four remaining entities to be subjected to a partial assets freeze. In resolution 2040(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 253], the Council directed the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1970(2011) to review the remaining measures with regard to two listed entities and decided that the Committee was to lift the designation of those two entities. In resolution 2095(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 273], the Council further eased the arms embargo in relation to Libya concerning non-lethal military equipment. By resolution 2146(2014) (see below), the Council imposed measures on vessels in relation to attempts to illicitly export crude oil from Libya. By resolution 2174(2014) (see p. 386), the Council required the Committee's prior approval for the supply, sale or transfer of arms and material to Libya intended for security or disarmament assistance, with the exception of non-lethal military equipment.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 19 March [meeting 7142], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2146(2014). The draft [S/2014/200] was submitted by the United States.

Welcoming the calls of the Government of Libya and House of Representatives for an immediate ceasefire, underlining the need for all parties to engage in peaceful and inclusive political dialogue and to respect the democratic process, and encouraging the Arab League, the African Union and all those with influence on the parties, in particular neighbouring and regional countries, to support an immediate cessation of hostilities and constructive engagement with such a dialogue,

Recalling its decision in resolution 1970(2011) to refer the situation in Libya to the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court, and reaffirming the importance of the Government of Libya's cooperation with the Court and the Prosecutor,

Reaffirming the importance of holding accountable those responsible for violations or abuses of human rights or violations of international humanitarian law, including those involved in attacks targeting civilians,

9. Calls upon all States, in particular States neighbouring Libya, to inspect in their territory, including seaports and airports, in accordance with their national authorities and legislation and consistent with international law, in particular the law of the sea and relevant international civil aviation agreements, all cargo to and from Libya, if the State concerned has information that provides reasonable grounds to believe the cargo contains items the supply, sale, transfer or export of which is prohibited by paragraph 9 or 10 of resolution 1970(2011), as modified by paragraph 13 of resolution 2009(2011) and paragraphs 9 and 10 of resolution 2095(2013), for the purpose of ensuring strict implementation of those provisions;

11. Requires any Member State, when it undertakes an inspection pursuant to paragraph 9 of the present resolution, to submit promptly an initial written report to the Committee containing, in particular, explanation of the grounds for the inspections, the results of such inspections, and whether or not cooperation was provided, and, if prohibited items for transfer are found, further requires such Member States to submit to the Committee, at a later stage, a subsequent written report containing relevant details on the inspection, seizure and disposal, and relevant details of the transfer, including a description of the items, their origin and intended destination, if this information is not in the initial report;

12. Affirms its readiness to review the appropriateness of the measures contained in the present resolution, including the strengthening, modification, suspension or lifting of the measures, and its readiness to review the mandate of the Mission, as may be needed at any time in the light of developments in Libya;

13. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Communication. In a 17 September letter addressed to the Security Council [S/2014/676], the Sudan stated that, in line with its obligations under the Joint Military and Security Cooperation Protocol signed between the Sudan and Libya on 9 August 2012, the Sudan, on 4 September, deployed to Kufra Airport an Antonov-74 military aircraft loaded with logistical military supplies after obtaining approval and clearance from the commander of the joint forces from the Libyan part, Colonel Suliman Hamid Hassan.

Security Council Committee. On 17 December [S/2014/909], the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1970(2011) concerning Libya transmitted to the Council the report on its activities in 2014. During the year, the Committee held five informal consultations, on 26 February, 29 May, 2 June, and 2 and 12 September. It received an implementation report by one Member State and two addenda to an implementation report previously submitted by another Member State.

Panel of Experts. On 15 February [S/2014/106], the Security Council President circulated to Council members the final report of the Panel of Experts established pursuant to Council resolution 1973(2011). The report analysed the implementation of the measures imposed by resolution 1970(2011), including the arms embargo and asset freeze, and the modifications contained in resolutions 1973(2011), 2009(2011), 2016(2011), 2040(2012), and 2095(2013), respectively. It outlined the Panel's findings and presented recommendations to the Council, the Committee established pursuant to resolution 1970(2011) and Member States, including Libya, to improve the implementation of those measures.

The proliferation of weapons to and from Libya remained a major challenge for the stability of the country and the region. Despite some positive developments in rebuilding the Libyan security sector, most weapons were still under the control of non-State armed actors and border control systems remained ineffective. Over the previous three years, Libya had become a primary source of illicit weapons. The Panel continued to investigate leads in relation to transfers of such weapons to 14 countries. Cases under investigation reflected a diversified range of trafficking dynamics, including State-sponsored transfers by air and sea. In accordance with resolution 2009(2011), several Member States notified the Committee of transfers of military materiel to Libyan authorities. The creation of the country's Military Procurement Department allowed for a more accountable procurement process, but questions remained concerning the lack of centralized oversight of military procurement, the absence of identified procurement focal points for ministries other than the Ministry of Defence, the lack of clarity regarding end users and the capacity of the various forces to manage and secure stockpiles. The Panel was concerned about transfers to Libya in violation of the arms embargo, including non-notified deliveries to the national forces and transfers to non-State end users.

Several updates to the travel ban list were necessary to reflect changed status and new information. Of the 20 individuals listed, 5 were deceased, 4 were in Libya, 7 were in other countries, and the whereabouts of 4 remained unknown. The Panel investigated media reports indicating that four persons subject to the travel ban—Aisha Qadhafi, Mohammed Qadhafi, Hannibal Qadhafi and Safia Farkash Al-Barassi—had left Algeria and travelled to Oman in October 2012. Both Oman and Algeria indicated that Aisha Qadhafi and Mohammed Qadhafi had departed Algeria and were present in Oman. In February 2014, Oman indicated that Hannibal Qadhafi and Safia Farkash Al-Barassi were not residing in Oman and that it had no additional information about their location. The Panel also investigated an alleged plot to smuggle Saadi Qadhafi, who was subject to both the asset freeze and travel ban sanctions, and his family to Mexico in 2011.

Concerning the implementation of the asset freeze, the Panel obtained details on the efforts made by Saadi Qadhafi and his associates to hide, move and use assets that should have been frozen. High-value assets allegedly belonging to listed entities and/or individuals were located. Enquiries revealed instances in some Member States of inadequate legislative capacity to implement asset freeze measures. In one instance, the issue resulted in the dissipation of almost $2 million in funds that should have been frozen. The relevant Member States in those cases were aware of the situation and were attempting to address it.

Appointments. On 17 April [S/2014/288], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that he had appointed six experts to the Panel of Experts established pursuant to Council resolution 1973(2011) and extended by resolution 2144(2014) (see p. 378) and previous resolutions. The Council added a sixth expert to the Panel pursuant to resolution 2146(2014) (see p. 384).

On 17 September [S/2014/680], the Secretary-General informed the Council that he had appointed Mohammed Cherkaoui (United States) to serve as regional expert on the Panel of Experts, replacing Ali Ahmida (United States), who withdrew from the Panel on 27 June.

Children and armed conflict

In May [A/68/878-S/2014/339], the Secretary-General issued a report on children and armed conflict, which included information on grave violations committed against children during armed conflict in Libya in 2013. The situation for children in Libya remained precarious in 2013, with political tensions escalating into armed confrontations in al-Ajailat, al-Shagiga, Ghadamis, Tripoli, Benghazi and Sabha, sometimes involving the use of heavy weapons. The United Nations documented the killing of 14 children and the injury of 5 others in crossfire and improvised explosive device incidents or as a result of the use of heavy weaponry.

UNSMIL

The United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL) was a special political mission established in September 2011 by Security Council resolution 2009(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 280] at the request of Libyan authorities, following six months of armed conflict. The Mission was mandated to support the country's new transitional authorities in their post-conflict efforts for an initial period of three months. The Council modified and extended the UNSMIL mandate in resolutions 2022(2011) [ibid., p. 286], 2040(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 253] and 2095(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 273]. By resolution 2144(2014) of 14 March (see p. 378), the Council mandated UNSMIL, for a further 12-month period, to support Libyan government efforts to ensure the transition to democracy; promote the rule of law and monitor and protect human rights; control unsecured arms and related materiel in Libya and counter their proliferation; and build governance capacity.

Appointment. On 8 August [S/2014/583], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Bernardino León (Spain) as his new Special Representative and Head of UNSMIL. Mr. León would succeed Tarek Mitri (Lebanon). The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 12 August [S/2014/584].

Financing

In an April report [A/68/327/Add.12], the Secretary-General requested the General Assembly to approve proposed additional resources for 2014 for UNSMIL amounting to $22,793,200 net ($23,204,400 gross). He also requested the Assembly to approve a charge in the same amount against the provision for special political missions appropriated under section 3, Political affairs, of the programme budget for the 2014–2015 biennium. In May [A/68/7/Add.28], ACABQ recommended that the Assembly approve the additional resources for UNSMIL and the charge requested by the Secretary-General.

The Assembly, in resolution 68/280 of 30 June (see p. 1629), approved the budgets of the special political missions authorized by the Assembly and/or the Security Council, including UNSMIL, as well as the charges against the provision appropriated for special political missions under section 3, Political affairs, of the 2014–2015 programme budget.

Western Sahara

The ceasefire in Western Sahara between Morocco and the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguía el-Hamra y de Río de Oro (Frente Polisario) continued to hold, but there was no progress towards a resolution of the status of the disputed territory. Under a plan presented in 2007 by Frente Polisario [YUN 2007, p. 296], final status was to be decided in a referendum on self-determination that included independence as an option. Morocco, in turn, presented a plan for autonomy [ibid., p. 297]. The Secretary-General's Personal Envoy for Western Sahara engaged in consultations with the parties and neighbouring States to gauge their flexibility in developing a compromise solution. His Special Representative initiated consultations to update military agreement No. 1, the basic legal instrument governing ceasefire monitoring. The United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) also held several rounds of discussions separately with the Royal Moroccan Army and Frente Polisario to consider the parties' proposals for adjustments to military agreement No. 1. The Security Council extended the MINURSO mandate until 30 April 2015.

Political and security developments

Communication. On 28 March [S/2014/235], Morocco transmitted to the Security Council a letter from the Minister for Foreign Affairs and Cooperation of Morocco, Salahaddine Mezouar, addressed to the Secretary-General. The Minister for Foreign Affairs and Cooperation stated that since the adoption of Council resolution 2099(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 281], Morocco had met all of its commitments, including those related to human rights, and had taken measures to go beyond the recommended commitments. He noted that there had been no follow-up to the call issued by the Council for registration of the populations of the Tindouf camps. Morocco advocated for decisive participation by all parties in a negotiation process, and its initiative for an autonomy statute indicated its resolve to proceed in accordance with the parameters set by the Council.

Report of Secretary-General (April). In response to Security Council resolution 2099(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 281], the Secretary-General submitted an April report [S/2014/258] on the situation in Western Sahara, covering developments since his 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 280]. The ceasefire in Western Sahara between Morocco and Frente Polisario continued to hold and the people could live without fear of a resumption of armed conflict in the medium term. The part of Western Sahara under control of Morocco, west of the berm marking the ceasefire line, witnessed considerable Moroccan investment in infrastructure and in the social and cultural sphere. Public life proceeded peacefully due, in part, to the extensive presence of security forces. An increased number of delegations from foreign legislatures and diplomatic missions, as well as governmental and non-governmental institutions and journalists, visited the western part of the Territory. Some underlying discontent, however, remained perceptible among the Saharan population, expressing itself in sporadic demonstrations aimed at drawing attention to human rights concerns, socioeconomic issues and political demands, including the right to self-determination. They were swiftly dispersed by Moroccan security forces. As a result of negotiations by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), family visits programme flights, which had been suspended since June 2013, were to resume on 17 April 2014.

The Secretary-General's Personal Envoy for Western Sahara engaged in bilateral consultations with the parties and neighbouring States to gauge whether the parties were prepared to be flexible in developing the elements of a compromise solution. By April, he had undertaken three rounds of consultations with the parties and neighbouring States in the framework of the new approach and had begun visiting the capitals of the members of the Group of Friends of Western Sahara to confirm their support. The Personal Envoy visited the region from 18 to 30 January to clarify the issues and the positions of the parties. He emphasized that options were running out for the negotiating process and that progress needed to be made in 2014. The Personal Envoy returned to the region from 27 February to 7 March to meet with the working groups formed by Morocco and Frente Polisario and to receive their responses to the questions put to them during the consultations held in January.

As at 6 March, the military component of MINURSO stood at 225 personnel out of an authorized strength of 231. MINURSO observed and recorded six general violations of military agreement No. 1—the basic legal instrument governing the ceasefire monitoring of Western Sahara—by the Royal Moroccan Army, a significant decrease from the previous reporting period, when 42 such violations were recorded. MINURSO recorded one general violation by Frente Polisario forces. The Mission's assessment was that both parties remained committed to and respectful of the ceasefire, and that their observed violations did not jeopardize it in the medium term. The lack of precise ceasefire terms and differing interpretations of the ceasefire agreement, however, represented a major challenge to MINURSO monitoring operations and eroded the Mission's authority. The Special Representative therefore initiated consultations with the parties to update military agreement No. 1, based on proposals forwarded by them.

In January, for the first time since its inception, MINURSO witnessed a violation of the status-of-forces agreement when a group of Royal Moroccan Army soldiers gained unauthorized entry to the Mahbas team site, in pursuit of five unarmed civilians attempting to stage a demonstration inside the site. The five Saharan activists were apprehended in the operation by the Moroccan soldiers. The Special Representative protested the violation to Morocco. He received assurances that Morocco remained committed to strict implementation of the agreement, including respect for the inviolability of UN premises.

Landmines and explosive remnants of war in Western Sahara continued to endanger the lives of the local, nomadic and refugee populations, as well as MINURSO personnel. Two civilians were injured in a mine accident east of the berm. Frente Polisario reported a significant loss of livestock to mines, especially in the buffer strip. The Royal Moroccan Army reported 12 accidents, in which 1 person was killed, 18 were injured and 1 was unharmed west of the berm.

The Secretary-General called on the parties to engage seriously on the two core issues in the Security Council's guidance: the content of a political solution and the form of self-determination. He asked the international community for support in that regard. The Secretary-General said that the presence of MINURSO remained relevant as an instrument of stability; as a mechanism to support the implementation of Council resolutions relating to the Mission's mandate; and to provide independent information on the conditions on the ground to the United Nations and the international community. He therefore sought the Council's assistance in reasserting the mandated role of MINURSO, upholding peacekeeping standards and UN neutrality, and ensuring that the conditions for the successful operation of the Mission were met. He called on Morocco and Frente Polisario to cooperate fully with MINURSO in achieving those objectives. The Secretary-General recommended that the Council extend the Mission's mandate, with an increase of 15 military observers to the authorized strength, for a further 12 months, until 30 April 2015.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 April [meeting 7162], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2152(2014). The draft [S/2014/299] was submitted by France, the Russian Federation, Spain and the United States.

Welcoming the implementation of the enhanced refugee protection programme developed by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees in co-ordination with the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguía el-Hamra y de Río de Oro, which includes refugee and human rights training and awareness initiatives,

Reiterating its request for consideration of a refugee registration in the Tindouf refugee camps, and inviting efforts in this regard,

Welcoming the commitment of the parties to continue the process of negotiations through the United Nations-sponsored talks,

14. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (August). Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 68/91 [YUN 2013, p. 283], the Secretary-General submitted to the Assembly an August report [A/69/344] summarizing his April report to the Security Council on the situation concerning Western Sahara (see p. 389) and covering the period from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014. The Secretary-General stated that his Personal Envoy intended to pursue bilateral consultations in preparation for a resumption of face-to-face talks. The Personal Envoy informed the parties and the neighbouring States that he intended to return to the region every six weeks, beginning in May. While all interlocutors agreed in principle to that calendar, Morocco expressed reservations over parts of the Secretary-General's April report and stated its desire to clarify the objectives and framework of the negotiating process before agreeing to dates for the next trip to the region. In June, the Personal Envoy and UN senior officials held extensive consultations with Morocco in New York. The Personal Envoy also met with members of the Group of Friends, who stressed the need for a speedy resumption of mediation efforts. The Secretary-General reiterated his call to the parties to move towards a solution without further delay and urged them to engage in genuine negotiations with the support and facilitation of his Personal Envoy.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/246], the Secretary-General provided information on developments in Western Sahara since his April report. On the 6 November anniversary of Morocco's "Green March" into Western Sahara [YUN 1975, p. 175], King Mohammed VI stated that "the Sahara will remain part of Morocco until the end of time". He said that the autonomy initiative was the maximum Morocco could offer to achieve a final solution to the conflict and stressed that his country's sovereignty over its entire territory was "effective, inalienable and non-negotiable".

The Secretary-General stated that given the lack of progress towards a resolution of the dispute over the status of Western Sahara, the efforts of the United Nations through the work of his Personal Envoy and of MINURSO remained highly relevant. Growing frustrations among Western Saharans, coupled with the geographic expansion of criminal and extremist networks in the Sahel-Sahara zone, presented increased risks for the stability and security of the region and a settlement of the Western Sahara conflict would mitigate those potential risks. He welcomed the parties' discussion of military agreement No. 1 governing the ceasefire monitoring regime and called for continued and constructive cooperation with the Mission to move forward on the issues involved.

MINURSO continued to advocate that discrepancies vis-à-vis the determination of ceasefire monitoring violations and potential security concerns be addressed within the framework of military agreement No. 1. The Mission revived dedicated working group discussions with the parties that were initiated in November 2013 to clarify understandings of the agreement, reconcile variations in approach, address concerns put forward by each party with regard to application of the agreement and strengthen the MINURSO monitoring regime. In March, April and June, three rounds of discussions were held with representatives of the Royal Moroccan Army. In March, May, June and September, four rounds were held with representatives of the Frente Polisario forces. MINURSO considered the parties' initial proposals for potential adjustments to military agreement No. 1 and identified areas of concern.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth (Special Political and Decolonization) Committee [A/69/462], adopted resolution 69/101 without vote [agenda item 59].

Calling upon all the parties and the States of the region to cooperate fully with the Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy and with each other,

Reaffirming the responsibility of the United Nations towards the people of Western Sahara,

Welcoming, in this regard, the efforts of the Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy in search of a mutually acceptable political solution to the dispute, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara,

MINURSO

The United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MINURSO) was established by Security Council resolution 690(1991) [YUN 1991, p. 794] in accordance with settlement proposals accepted on 30 August 1988 by Morocco and Frente Polisario. The settlement plan, as approved by the Council, provided for a transitional period for the preparation of a referendum in which the people of Western Sahara would choose between independence and integration with Morocco. MINURSO continued to monitor compliance with the formal ceasefire between Frente Polisario and Morocco. Military agreement No. 1, which MINURSO had signed separately with the parties, remained the basic legal instrument governing the ceasefire monitoring of the disputed territory. The Mission's military observers carried out monitoring through a combination of ground and air patrols and observation posts, and through inspections of larger-than-company-size military units. Bilateral military agreements Nos. 2 and 3 [YUN 1999, pp. 179–180], committing both parties to cooperating with MINURSO in the exchange of mine-related information, the marking of mined areas and the destruction of mines and unexploded ordnance, remained in force. The Mission also provided support to assistance programmes to address the plight of displaced and separated Saharawi families.

Appointment. On 6 May [S/2014/322], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Kim Bolduc (Canada) as his Special Representative for Western Sahara and Head of MINURSO. She replaced Wolfgang Weisbrod-Weber (Germany), who would complete his assignment on 31 July. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 8 May [S/2014/323].

Financing

The Secretary-General's performance report on the MINURSO budget for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/608] showed an expenditure of $56,481,400 gross ($54,207,600 net) against an apportionment of $58,253,000 gross ($55,972,400 net).

In January [A/68/699], the Secretary-General submitted the MINURSO budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2014 in the amount of $54,019,300 gross ($51,728,800 net), exclusive of budgeted voluntary contributions in kind in the amount of $2,071,700. The budget provided for the deployment of 203 military observers, 27 military contingent personnel, 12 UN police officers, 91 international staff, 171 national staff, 16 United Nations Volunteers and 10 Government-provided personnel.

In April [A/68/782/Add.3], ACABQ recommended that the unencumbered balance of $1,771,600 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income/adjustments in the amount of $1,014,100 for the period ended 30 June 2012, be credited to Member States. Regarding the 2013–2014 budget, the Committee recommended that the overall requirement proposed by the Secretary-General be reduced by $139,700 and, accordingly, that the General Assembly appropriate an amount of $53,879,600 for the maintenance of the Mission for that period.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/930], adopted resolution 68/296 without vote [agenda item 163].

Americas

In 2014, the United Nations continued to advance the cause of lasting peace, human rights, good governance and the rule of law in the Americas.

In Haiti, political stalemate between the executive and legislative branches of Government continued to impede the stabilization process. Long-delayed legislative, municipal and local elections that had been scheduled for 26 October were postponed following an inconclusive national dialogue on democratic governance, elections and constitutional amendments. The security environment remained relatively stable. An increase in cholera cases, the continued presence of internally displaced persons and food insecurity remained areas of focus. While 2014 saw a 53 per cent decrease in the number of suspected cholera cases from the previous year, the number rose during the last quarter. A total sanitation campaign was launched aimed at stemming the spread of cholera. Haiti continued to make progress in relocating persons displaced by the earthquake of 2010. The original number of 1.5 million displaced persons had been reduced by 94 per cent. An estimated 3 million people were food-insecure. Funding for the Haiti humanitarian action plan stood at 51 per cent as at 30 December, with the cholera response underfunded.

The United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH) continued its efforts in implementing key mandated tasks such as ensuring a secure and stable environment, supporting the electoral process and rule of law, strengthening State institutions, providing humanitarian and development assistance, and protecting and promoting human rights. The Security Council extended the mandate of MINUSTAH until October 2015 and decided to reduce the Mission's military component.

In March, the representatives of El Salvador and Honduras outlined their official positions on the territorial dispute over the Gulf of Fonseca.

In October, the General Assembly again called for the necessity of ending the economic, commercial and financial embargo imposed by the United States against Cuba.

Central America

In 2014, the people of Central America furthered their efforts to consolidate peace and built democratic and equitable societies on the foundation established by years of successful UN peacemaking. The United Nations continued to assist the region through development programmes and other means.

Communication. In a 1 October [A/69/419] letter to the Secretary-General, Honduras detailed the General Principles of the Plan of the Alliance for Prosperity in the Northern Triangle adopted by the Northern Triangle countries: El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras.

Gulf of Fonseca Zone of Peace

In a 25 March [A/68/817] letter from El Salvador to the Secretary-General sent in response to a 4 March request from Honduras for the dispatch of a high-level United Nations representative to ascertain in situ the situation in the Gulf of Fonseca, El Salvador stated that a UN representative was not necessary because the situation in the Gulf was governed by the framework established by the Heads of State and Government of the coastal States of the Gulf in their declarations dated 4 October 2007, 30 March 2012, 4 December 2012 and 8 May 2013. El Salvador also condemned steps by Honduras to open a heliport and other infrastructure projects on Conejo Island, in perceived violation of El Salvador's sovereignty claim over the island. El Salvador requested that the Secretary-General continue to promote dialogue through the framework established by the Managua Declaration of 4 October 2007 and in direct consultation with the three coastal States of the Gulf; and that agenda item 41 of the General Assembly, entitled "The situation in Central America: progress in fashioning a region of peace, freedom, democracy and development", be used as the basis for addressing issues related to the Gulf of Fonseca, within the multilateral framework of the United Nations.

On 28 March [A/68/822-S/2014/234], Honduras transmitted identical letters addressed to the Secretary-General and the President of the Security Council on the situation in the Gulf of Fonseca. The letters focused on the claim of sovereignty by El Salvador over all the islands in the Gulf of Fonseca with the exception of the Island of Zacate Grande. Honduras expressed particular concern over a publicly announced military buildup by El Salvador, which Honduras perceived as designed to disrupt the regional balance of power. Honduras reiterated its political will to engage in constructive bilateral and trilateral dialogue on the comprehensive development of the Gulf of Fonseca and on its delimitation, by agreement and on the basis of international law.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the General Assembly decided that the agenda item on the situation in Central America: progress in fashioning a region of peace, freedom, democracy and development would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Haiti

In 2014, political stalemate between the executive and legislative branches of Government continued to impede the stabilization process in Haiti. Long-delayed legislative, municipal and local elections that had been scheduled for 26 October were postponed following inconclusive national dialogue. An increase in cholera cases, the continued presence of internally displaced persons (IDPs) and food insecurity remained areas of focus. While 2014 saw a 53 per cent decrease in the number of suspected cholera cases from the previous year, the number rose during the last quarter. Haiti continued to make progress in re-locating persons displaced by the earthquake of 2010. An estimated 3 million people were food-insecure. Funding for the Haiti humanitarian action plan stood at 51 per cent as at 30 December, with the cholera response underfunded.

The United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH) continued to ensure a secure and stable environment, supporting the electoral process and rule of law, strengthening State institutions, providing humanitarian and development assistance, and protecting and promoting human rights. The Security Council extended the mandate of MINUSTAH until October 2015 and decided to reduce the Mission's military component.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (March). In March [S/2014/162], pursuant to Security Council resolution 2119(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 290], the Secretary-General submitted a report on MINUSTAH, reviewing developments since his August 2013 report [YUN 2013 p. 289].

The reporting period was characterized by political stalemate between the executive branch and parliament. There was an initial increase in civil unrest and demonstrations, many of which were attributable to socioeconomic grievances and a growing sense of impatience with regard to continued delays in holding elections. In an effort to address the stalemate, the Government promulgated a new electoral law on 16 January focusing on the formation, functioning and financing of political parties, a precondition set by the opposition. That was followed by the 24 January launch of a national dialogue on democratic governance, elections and constitutional amendments mediated by the Episcopal Conference between the executive branch, parliament and political parties. On 3 February, the executive branch, parliament and some political parties reached a preliminary consensus on the holding of combined elections during the year for two thirds of the Senate, the Chamber of Deputies, municipal administrations and local councils; however, on 12 February, a number of opposition parties abandoned the dialogue, and on 15 February the formalization of the agreement was postponed.

Meanwhile, the security situation remained relatively stable. Crime statistics collected by the national police and MINUSTAH showed 817 homicides reported in 2013, which was 21 per cent lower than in 2012 and a reversal of a five-year trend. Violence and gang activity continued to be concentrated in major urban centres, with approximately 77 per cent of homicides in 2013 taking place in the Port-au-Prince metropolitan area. The average monthly number of reported rapes showed a slight increase to 33.8, compared with 30.5 during the previous reporting period.

On human rights, systemic deficiencies remained, notwithstanding progress in terms of Haiti's signing of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment [YUN 1984, p. 813] on 16 August 2013 and its accession to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights [YUN 1966, p. 419] on 8 October 2013. The 2014 humanitarian action plan identified a need for $169 million to provide basic services for the remaining IDPs living in camps and to address critical needs related to the cholera epidemic, food insecurity, nutrition, protection and disaster preparedness; as at March, only $6 million of the funds had been received.

The Secretary-General also highlighted accomplishments in key priority areas of the MINUSTAH consolidation plan, such as the professionalization of the Haitian National Police, electoral capacity-building and the rule of law and human rights; however, he warned that slow progress in other equally important areas risked jeopardizing some of those achievements. In particular, progress in justice and accountability had lagged behind the development of the national police, creating an imbalance in the delivery of the rule of law. The political impasse was also impeding the ability of national institutions to assume full responsibility over the electoral process.

Ad Hoc Advisory Group. The Ad Hoc Advisory Group on Haiti, mandated by Economic and Social Council decision 2004/322 [YUN 2004, p. 939] to follow and advise on the long-term development of the country, submitted an October report [E/2014/95] based on the findings of its visit to Haiti from 12 to 15 May (see p. 1098).

On 18 November, in resolution 2014/37 (see p. 1099), the Economic and Social Council extended the Advisory Group's mandate until the conclusion of the Council's 2015 session, with the purpose of providing advice on Haiti's long-term development strategy in order to promote socioeconomic recovery, reconstruction and stability.

Report of Secretary-General (August). In August [S/2014/617], the Secretary-General submitted a report on MINUSTAH reviewing developments since his prior report in March (see above). The reporting period saw, at the onset, the signing of the El Rancho Accord following the dialogue process mediated by the Episcopal Conference. The remainder of the period, however, was marked by protracted negotiations between the executive and the legislature on the implementation of the Accord, most notably on the establishment of an electoral council and the adoption of an amended electoral law, both prerequisites for organizing long-overdue local and legislative elections. A number of opposition politicians, including a group of six senators, rejected the Accord, arguing that their position on the installation of a balanced and credible Electoral Council had not been taken into consideration. Lingering opposition discontent about the composition of the Electoral Council continued to motivate resistance to a Senate vote on an electoral law, creating uncertainty over the fulfilment of remaining prerequisites for the holding of elections. On 10 June, the President issued an order in which he called for elections and set 26 October as the date for the first round. Following those developments, on 11 August, the Electoral Council addressed a letter to the President informing him that it was technically impossible to organize the first round of elections by 26 October owing to the lack of an amended electoral law. In response, the President initiated consultations with the leaders of both houses of parliament, the Electoral Council and some political parties on the steps required to ensure the holding of elections by the end of 2014.

The security environment remained relatively stable, including in the five departments vacated by the MINUSTAH military component: Grand-Anse, Nippes, South, South-East and North-West. Crime statistics demonstrated a solid downward trend in kidnappings, with a decrease of 74 per cent compared with the same period in 2013. There were 416 reported homicides, an increase of 24 per cent over the corresponding period in 2013, largely attributed to territorial gang disputes in security-sensitive neighbourhoods of the greater Port-au-Prince metropolitan area, where 76 per cent of the homicides were recorded. There were also 154 reported rapes, slightly higher than the 147 reported during the same period in 2013; and 194 public demonstrations triggered by socioeconomic grievances, representing an increase of 31 per cent compared with the same period in 2013.

The Secretary-General reported progress in the humanitarian and recovery situation. Since the 2010 earthquake [YUN 2010, p. 320], the number of IDPs in Haiti had fallen by 90 per cent. Between March and June 71 IDP sites were closed. One closure, affecting 145 households, was a result of a forced eviction by a landowner, and the rest as part of relocation programmes supported by humanitarian partners. As at 30 June, the Port-au-Prince metropolitan area contained 172 sites inhabited by 103,565 IDPs. The decrease in forced evictions notwithstanding, no durable solutions had been identified for some 70,000 of those remaining IDPs, while site conditions remained poor, with uneven access to water and functional toilets, and global acute malnutrition rates reaching 12.5 per cent.

As for the cholera situation, the epidemic had caused the deaths of 8,570 persons and infected 705,084, as at 20 July. Between January and June, there were 45 fatalities and 6,406 suspected cases, representing a decrease of 82 per cent compared with the same period in 2013. As at 13 August, funding for the humanitarian action plan stood at 39 per cent, representing $66 million of the required $168 million.

During the reporting period, MINUSTAH completed 56 quick-impact projects, including on strengthening the rule of law and good governance and cholera mitigation initiatives. The military component of MINUSTAH continued to reduce its personnel, as mandated by the Security Council in resolution 2119(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 290]. On 30 June, MINUSTAH achieved its mandated troop strength of 5,021 soldiers, marking a reduction of approximately 15 per cent in the number of uniformed personnel. As at 1 July, the military component consisted of 21 infantry companies and two composite engineering companies, with no maritime capability remaining.

On 14 and 15 July, the Secretary-General undertook his fifth visit to Haiti and met the President, the Prime Minister, parliamentarians, judges, police officers and representatives of civil society, as well as travelled to the countryside, and launched, alongside the Prime Minister, a total sanitation campaign aimed at stemming the spread of cholera. The Secretary-General observed that over the preceding 10 years, the security situation in Haiti had improved, key institutions had continued to be strengthened, more IDPs had been able to leave the earthquake victims camps, and progress had been made in quelling the cholera epidemic. Nevertheless, serious challenges remained that rendered that progress fragile and liable to setbacks.

He recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of MINUSTAH for an additional year, until 15 October 2015, and that the mandate reflect the improved—if still fragile—stability of the country and allow for a conditions-based deepening of the consolidation process, whereby the engagement of MINUSTAH would progressively diminish and its responsibilities transferred to the national authorities, with the support of international and bilateral partners.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 14 October [meeting 7277], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2180(2014). The draft [S/2014/732] was submitted by Brazil, Canada, France, the United States and Uruguay.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming its previous resolutions on Haiti, in particular resolutions 1542(2004) of 30 April 2004, 1576(2004) of 29 November 2004, 1608(2005) of 22 June 2005, 1658(2006) of 14 February 2006, 1702(2006) of 15 August 2006, 1743(2007) of 15 February 2007, 1780(2007) of 15 October 2007, 1840(2008) of 14 October 2008, 1892(2009) of 13 October 2009, 1908(2010) of 19 January 2010, 1927(2010) of 4 June 2010, 1944(2010) of 14 October 2010, 2012(2011) of 14 October 2011, 2070(2012) of 12 October 2012 and 2119(2013) of 10 October 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and unity of Haiti,

Recognizing that, over the past year, Haiti has taken steps towards stabilization, including the signing of the El Rancho Accord, which called for the conversion of the Transitional College of the Permanent Electoral Council into a new Provisional Electoral Council and provided for a period within which the 2013 electoral law would have been amended to allow for legislative, partial senatorial, municipal and local elections in 2014,

Noting with great concern that some elections have been postponed for three years and that Haiti still does not have an amended electoral law and that as a result the Provisional Electoral Council has concluded that it will not be possible to organize elections on 26 October 2014 as called for by the Government of Haiti,

Recognizing that the overall security situation remained relatively stable with some improvement since the adoption of resolution 2119(2013), which allowed the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti to continue to draw down and to adapt its configuration without undermining the security and stability of Haiti, and recognizing the importance of conditions-based security-related decisions about the future of the Mission,

Recognizing also the critical role of the Mission in ensuring stability and security in Haiti, commending the Mission for continuing to assist the Government of Haiti to ensure a secure and stable environment, expressing its gratitude to the personnel of the Mission and to their countries and paying tribute to those injured or killed in the line of duty, and commending also the wide range of reconstruction efforts in Haiti and the successful work achieved by the military engineering units of the Mission,

Underlining the need to further strengthen Haitian judicial and corrections systems in order to support a more integrated and cohesive Haitian security sector, noting the commitment by the Government of Haiti to strengthen the rule of law and to make further progress in security sector reform, and encouraging Haitian authorities to continue to pursue efforts in that regard,

Recognizing the interconnected nature of the challenges in Haiti, reaffirming that sustainable progress on security, the rule of law and institutional reform, national reconciliation and development, including the combat against unemployment and poverty, are mutually reinforcing, and welcoming the continuing efforts of the Government of

Haiti and the international community to address these challenges, in line with the Government's priorities,

Reiterating the critical role of the Haitian National Police for the security and stability of Haiti, stressing the importance of the ongoing strengthening, professionalization and reform of the National Police in order to enable it to assume full responsibility for the security of Haiti, noting the progress made in the implementation of the five-year 2012–2016 Haitian National Police development plan, and reiterating the importance of maintaining support for it, especially in the area of recruitment and retention,

Underscoring the importance of adequately funding the Haitian National Police to enhance its logistic, administrative and operational capacities, encouraging the Government of Haiti to take advantage of the support being provided by the international community to guarantee the provision of adequate security for the Haitian people, and calling upon all international partners to strengthen their coordination in this regard,

Recognizing the steps taken by the Superior Council of the Judiciary, including the adoption of its internal rules of procedure in June 2014, to carry out its mandate and promote the strengthening of judicial independence, and expressing the need to further address human rights concerns that still remain in the corrections system, such as prolonged pretrial detentions, prison overcrowding and sanitary conditions,

Acknowledging that, while important progress has been made in 2014, Haiti continues to face significant humanitarian challenges, with approximately 85,432 internally displaced persons, whose living conditions in the remaining camps, which are characterized by malnutrition and uneven access to water and sanitation, affecting especially women and children, must be further addressed,

Welcoming the ongoing efforts of the Government of Haiti to control and eliminate the cholera epidemic and the progress made in reducing the incidence of cholera in Haiti, urging the United Nations country team, in coordination with other actors, to continue to support the Government in addressing the structural weaknesses, in particular in the water and sanitation systems, underscoring the importance of strengthening the Haitian national health institutions, and recognizing United Nations efforts to combat cholera, including through the initiative of the Secretary-General to support the National Plan for the Elimination of Cholera in Haiti, stressing the importance of adequate and sustainable support with particular attention to rapid and targeted medical responses to outbreaks designed to reduce the threat, welcoming the visit that the Secretary-General undertook in July 2014 to Haiti, and taking note that he, among other things, launched jointly with the Prime Minister of Haiti, Mr. Laurent Lamothe, the "Total Sanitation Campaign" as a key initiative against cholera, and of the creation of the High-level Committee for the Elimination of Cholera,

Emphasizing that progress in the reconstruction of Haiti, as well as in the social and economic development of Haiti, including through effective, coordinated, commendable international development assistance and increased Haitian institutional capacity to benefit from this assistance, are crucial to achieving lasting and sustainable stability, and reiterating the need for security to be accompanied by social and economic development, including efforts in risk reduction and preparedness that address the country's extreme vulnerability to natural disasters, efforts in which the Government of Haiti plays a leading role,

Welcoming the continued development of the Government of Haiti's External Aid Coordination Framework for the Development of Haiti as its preferred donor coordination mechanism and venue for supporting the development priorities of the Government, welcoming also the increased joint programming of the United Nations country team in Haiti in alignment and coordination with the government-endorsed Integrated Strategic Framework, and welcoming further the commitment to foster greater alignment of international assistance with national priorities, increase transparency and strengthen mutual accountability, as well as the need for stronger coordination,

Urging donors to complete the pledges made at the conference held in New York on 31 March 2010 in order, inter alia, to help to promote access to services and jobs for the most vulnerable, and underlining the responsibility of the Government of Haiti to provide clear guidance to donors on its priorities and to facilitate delivery of assistance to those most in need,

Emphasizing the role of regional organizations in the ongoing process of stabilization and reconstruction of Haiti, and calling upon the Mission to continue to work closely with international financial institutions, regional and sub-regional organizations and other stakeholders, in particular the Organization of American States, the Union of South American Nations and the Caribbean Community,

Welcoming the continued efforts of the Haitian National Police to patrol and enhance its presence and direct engagement with the population, recognizing the continued community policing efforts of the Mission, in close coordination with camp committees, in camps for internally displaced persons, and welcoming their engagement with the population,

Expressing serious concern that sexual and gender-based violence, especially against women and children, remains a substantial problem, particularly in marginalized districts of Port-au-Prince, in remaining camps for internally displaced persons and in remote areas of the country,

Recognizing that strengthening national human rights institutions as well as respect for human rights, including of children, and due process, combating criminality and sexual and gender-based violence, and putting an end to impunity and ensuring accountability are essential to ensuring the rule of law and security in Haiti, including access to justice,

Reaffirming the authority of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Haiti in the coordination and conduct of all activities of United Nations agencies, funds and programmes in Haiti, and reaffirming also its support for the role of the Special Representative in ensuring optimal coordination and collaboration between the Mission and the United Nations country team in connection with the aspects of their respective mandates that are correlated, particularly as part of the Mission's conditions-based consolidation plan,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General of 29 August 2014,

2. Also decides that the overall force levels of the Mission will consist of up to 2,370 troops and of a police component composed of up to 2,601 personnel, the force levels recommended by the Secretary-General, and calls upon the Secretary-General to ensure that a force level close to the current level would remain in the country until his next report to the Security Council, and to alert the Council in that report of any major changes in the situation;

3. Affirms that adjustments to the force configuration should be based on the situation on the ground, compatible with the capacity of the Mission to maintain security in the context of impending parliamentary and local elections as well as presidential elections in 2015, taking into account the importance of maintaining a secure and stable environment and the impact of social and political realities on the stability and security of Haiti; the increasing development of Haitian State capabilities, in particular the ongoing strengthening of the Haitian National Police; and the national authorities' increasing exercise of the Haitian State's responsibility for the maintenance of stability and security in the country; and calls upon the Mission to maintain capacity, including appropriate air assets, to deploy troops rapidly throughout the country;

4. Affirms its commitment to act at any time to adapt the mandate and force levels of the Mission, if compelled by a change of conditions in Haiti, and if necessary to preserve the progress Haiti has made towards durable security and stability;

ate, international electoral assistance to the Government of Haiti in cooperation with international stakeholders, including the Organization of American States, the Union of South American Nations and the Caribbean Community, as appropriate;

9. Reaffirms that Haiti is at an important juncture in the consolidation of stability and democracy, and the engagement of its political leaders and stakeholders in dialogue and compromise is vital to securing the gains made in recent years, in order to set Haiti firmly on a path towards lasting stability and economic development and to enable Haitians to assume even greater responsibility in that regard;

10. Recalls its resolutions 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 and 2122(2013) of 18 October 2013, and encourages the Government of Haiti, with the support of relevant stakeholders, to promote increased political participation of women in Haiti, in accordance with the Constitution of Haiti;

14. Stresses the need for close coordination among the Mission, donors and the Government of Haiti to enhance the effectiveness and sustainability of Haitian National Police capacity-building efforts, and requests the Mission to facilitate this coordination and to continue to provide technical guidance to donor-funded projects, as requested, for the rehabilitation and construction of police and corrections facilities as well as for other projects aiming to support the institutional capacity of the National Police, as appropriate;

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the General Assembly decided that the item on the situation of democracy and human rights in Haiti would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Further developments. In a later report [S/2015/157], the Secretary-General highlighted developments between his August report (see p. 397) and 31 December that saw a failure to hold the long-delayed legislative, municipal and local elections. Some key opposition leaders had refused to participate in a series of consultations held between the President, leaders of both houses of parliament, the provisional Electoral Council and some political parties to seek consensus on the steps required to ensure the holding of elections, which led the Office of the President on 26 October to postpone the elections that had been scheduled for that day. On 1 December, the President established an 11-member presidential advisory commission with an eight-day mandate to advise on a solution to the crisis. The commission issued a report recommending a broad range of measures aimed at re-establishing trust in the political process and allowing for the holding of elections in 2015, while preserving the integrity of State institutions. The Government and the opposition were, however, unable to agree on implementation of the recommended measures.

The security environment during the reporting period remained generally stable, although an uptick in certain crimes, gang-related violence and public unrest was registered. On the humanitarian front, the last four months of the year saw an increase in the number of suspected cholera cases, especially in West, North, Artibonite and Centre departments. Heavy rainfall and illegal tapping of public water systems in urban areas were partly responsible for that increase. The Port-au-Prince metropolitan area was the worst hit, with nearly 9,000 cases. Nationwide, the cholera response effort faced a number of operational challenges due to lack of funding, which led to a reduction in the number of cholera treatment facilities from 250 in 2011 to 159 in 2014. Setbacks notwithstanding, the overall cholera reduction rate for 2014 in Haiti stood at 53 per cent. The situation of IDPs continued to improve; as at 30 December, according to the International Organization for Migration, there were 79,397 IDPs in 105 camps. Those figures represented a reduction of 94 per cent from the original 1.5 million IDPs and 93 per cent from the original number of IDP camps established after the 2010 earthquake [YUN 2010, p. 320]. Of the 105 camps, 49 camps hosting more than 62,600 IDPs were not targeted by any return or relocation initiatives. Efforts to close the remaining camps continued by providing relocation rental subsidies or by integrating camps into neighborhoods as part of a participatory urban planning process.

On food security, the Secretary-General reported that the situation remained fragile and had the potential to rapidly deteriorate in the event of a major natural disaster. An estimated 3 million people were food-insecure, more than 600,000 of them severely, while some 100,000 children under the age of 5 were affected by moderate acute malnutrition. As at 30 December, funding for the Haiti humanitarian action plan stood at 51 per cent. With the cholera response remaining underfunded, the Secretary-General stated that a 2015–2016 transitional appeal would replace the humanitarian action plan.

As at 31 December, the overall disbursement rate of UN projects funded by the Haiti Reconstruction Fund was 93 per cent. Only three programmes covered by the Fund were under way, namely, a $10 million “Earthquake prevention in the north” programme; a $30 million “Support to housing reconstruction” programme targeting Artibonite, North, West,

South and South-East departments; and a $2 million “Development of the dairy sector” programme.

MINUSTAH

In 2014, the United Nations Stabilization Mission in Haiti (MINUSTAH), established by Security Council resolution 1542(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 294], continued to implement its mandate which included ensuring a secure and stable environment, supporting the electoral process and reform of rule of law structures, strengthening State institutions, providing humanitarian and development assistance and protecting and promoting human rights. MINUSTAH was based in Port-au-Prince and led by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Haiti and Head of MINUSTAH, Sandra Honoré (Trinidad and Tobago). By resolution 2180(2014) (see p. 398), the Council extended the mandate of MINUSTAH until 15 October 2015.

Appointment. On 7 March [S/2014/175], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Lieutenant General José Luiz Jaborandy Jr. (Brazil) as Force Commander of MINUSTAH, succeeding Lieutenant General Edson Leal Pujol (Brazil), who would complete his assignment on 15 March. The Council took note of the letter on 11 March [S/2014/176].

Activities

The Secretary-General reported to the Council on MINUSTAH activities for the periods from 20 August 2013 to 7 March 2014 [S/2014/162] (see p. 396) and from 7 March to 29 August 2014 [S/2014/617] (see p. 397). A later report [S/2015/157] covered activities for the remainder of the year (see p. 401). In addition to political and security aspects, the reports summarized MINUSTAH activities in areas including electoral support; protection of vulnerable groups; community violence reduction; rule of law; human rights; gender; child protection; HIV/AIDS; quick-impact projects; the conduct and discipline of UN personnel; and public information and outreach.

Financing

The Secretary-General’s performance report on the MINUSTAH budget for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/626] showed expenditures of $629,247,000 against an appropriation of $648,394,000, leaving an unencumbered balance of $19,147,000 and other income and adjustments in the amount of $17,325,900. In February [A/68/737], the Secretary-General submitted a report on the proposed budget for MINUSTAH in the amount of $512,041,400 for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015. The budget provided for the deployment of 5,021 military personnel; 951 UN police officers; 1,600 formed police personnel; 50 Government-provided personnel; 402 international staff, including 5 temporary positions; 1,240 national staff; and 153 UN Volunteers.

The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ), in May [A/68/782/Add.10], recommended that for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, the unencumbered balance of $19,147,000, as well as other income and adjustments in the amount of $17,325,900, for the period ended 30 June 2013 be credited to Member States. It also recommended that the General Assembly appropriate an amount of $511,012,300 for the maintenance of MINUSTAH for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 and that the amount of $149,045,254 be assessed on Member States for the period from 1 July to 15 October 2014. ACABQ further recommended that the Assembly assess an amount of $361,967,046 for the period from 16 October 2014 to 30 June 2015 at a monthly rate of $42,584,358, should the Security Council decide to extend the Mission’s mandate.

Other Issues

Cuba–United States

Report of Secretary-General. In June [A/69/98], pursuant to General Assembly resolution 68/8 [YUN 2013, p. 297], the Secretary-General submitted a report on information received as at 7 July from 154 governments and 27 UN bodies and specialized agencies on the implementation of the resolution. The resolution called on States to refrain from the unilateral application of economic and trade measures against other States, and urged them to repeal or invalidate such measures.

Communications. In a 7 January letter [S/2014/15] to the Security Council President, Cuba requested that three letters, from 11 July 1960 [S/4378]; from 31 December 1960 [S/4605]; from 2 February 1990 letter [S/21120]; and a complaint from Cuba [S/10933] remain on the list of matters of which the Security Council was seized. In a 7 November letter [A/69/570] to the Secretary-General, the Russian Federation transmitted an appeal to the General Assembly, UN Member States and international parliamentary organizations from the State Duma of its Federal Assembly on the necessity of ending the commercial, economic and financial embargo against Cuba. In a 24 April letter [A/68/855] to the Secretary-General, Venezuela transmitted a special communiqué adopted on 19 April by the countries of the Bolivarian Alliance for the Peoples of Our America—Peoples’ Trade Treaty rejecting the illegal actions of the United States in establishing a “Cuban Twitter”, designed to provoke instability in Cuba, under the coordination, funding and implementation of the United States Agency for International Development.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 28 October [meeting 30], the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/5 [draft: A/69/L.4] by recorded vote (188-2-3) [agenda item 40].

Necessity of ending the economic, commercial and financial embargo imposed by the United States of America against Cuba

The General Assembly,

Determined to encourage strict compliance with the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming, among other principles, the sovereign equality of States, non-intervention and non-interference in their internal affairs and freedom of international trade and navigation, which are also enshrined in many international legal instruments,

Recalling the statements of the Heads of State or Government at the Ibero-American Summits concerning the need to eliminate the unilateral application of economic and trade measures by one State against another that affect the free flow of international trade,

Concerned about the continued promulgation and application by Member States of laws and regulations, such as that promulgated on 12 March 1996 known as “the Helms-Burton Act”, the extraterritorial effects of which affect the sovereignty of other States, the legitimate interests of entities or persons under their jurisdiction and the freedom of trade and navigation,

Taking note of declarations and resolutions of different intergovernmental forums, bodies and Governments that express the rejection by the international community and public opinion of the promulgation and application of measures of the kind referred to above,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolution 68/8;

2. Reiterates its call upon all States to refrain from promulgating and applying laws and measures of the kind referred to in the preamble to the present resolution, in conformity with their obligations under the Charter of the United Nations and international law, which, inter alia, reaffirm the freedom of trade and navigation;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "Necessity of ending the economic, commercial and financial embargo imposed by the United States of America against Cuba".

Asia and the Pacific

The United Nations continued its efforts in 2014 to address political and security challenges in Asia and the Pacific with the restoration and establishment of peace and stability especially in Afghanistan, Iraq and Yemen. The non-proliferation of nuclear weapons in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as well as Iran's nuclear programme were two major crises also faced by the United Nations.

In Afghanistan, the inauguration of President Ashraf Ghani and the agreement to establish a national unity Government with Chief Executive Officer Abdullah Abdullah brought an end to the electoral impasse and marked the first peaceful transfer of power in Afghanistan between elected leaders. The fourth Heart of Asia-Istanbul Process Ministerial Conference, held in Beijing, concluded with the adoption of the Declaration on Deepening Cooperation for Sustainable Security and Prosperity of the "Heart of Asia" Region reiterating support of the Afghan-owned and Afghan-led reconciliation process. The security situation in Afghanistan, however, remained volatile during the year, with 22,051 recorded incidents, the second highest number after 2011. The United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) continued to support Afghanistan's full assumption of leadership and ownership in the security, governance and development areas, as defined by the Kabul Process. The Security Council extended the mandate of UNAMA until 17 March 2015. On 31 December, the security transition to Afghan forces formally concluded as the mandate of the International Security Assistance Force, led by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), came to an end. In December, the Security Council welcomed the agreement between NATO and Afghanistan to establish the post-2014 non-combat Resolute Support Mission, which would train, advise and assist the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces. The sanctions regime against the Taliban and Al-Qaida and associated individuals and entities remained in effect. The Security Council strengthened and refined those measures during the year.

In Iraq, the threat posed by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) continued to undermine the stability and political dynamics of the country. Despite the rapidly deteriorating security situation, Iraq held its Council of Representatives elections. The formation of the new Government and the adoption of its ministerial programme, along with its demonstrated commitment to resolving long-standing issues through an inclusive political process, was a significant step towards promoting stability in Iraq. During the year, regional and international partners increased their support for Iraq in its fight against ISIL. ISIL and associated armed groups, however, continued to control large parts of the west and north of the country, where they continued to inflict civilian casualties, cause massive displacement and perpetrate systematic human rights violations. The United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq (UNAMI) continued to carry out its mandate, which was extended by the Security Council until 31 July 2015.

During the year, bilateral relations between Iraq and Kuwait were marked by positive developments. Kuwait supported the request made by Iraq that the Governing Council of the United Nations Compensation Commission to defer the requirement that Iraq deposit 5 per cent of oil proceeds into the Compensation Fund.

The Security Council Committees established to oversee the implementation of sanctions measures against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and to address Iran's nuclear programme continued their work, supported by their Panel of Experts. In March and in June, respectively, the Security Council extended the mandates of the Panel of Experts until April and July 2015.

The International Atomic Energy Agency continued to undertake monitoring and verification in relation to the nuclear-related measures set out in the Joint Plan of Action signed with Iran, which took effect on 20 January.

In Yemen, the Security Council continued its support for the political transition in accordance with the Gulf Cooperation Council initiative and implementation mechanism and the outcomes of the comprehensive National Dialogue Conference. In February, the Council imposed an assets freeze and a travel ban on individuals and entities engaging in or providing support for acts that threatened the peace, security or stability of Yemen. It established a committee to designate such individuals and entities and to oversee the implementation of the sanctions measures, and a panel of experts to assist the Committee in carrying out its mandate.

Afghanistan

In 2014, the international community continued to assist the Government of Afghanistan to lay the foundation for peace and stability and the restoration of economic and social development in view of the approaching political and security transitions of 2014 through the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA), under the direction of the Secretary-General's Special Representative and Head of Mission, and the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) led by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

During the year, the presidential and provincial council elections dominated the political, security and economic environment of Afghanistan. Following the presidential election on 5 April, a second-round run-off was held on 14 June between the two leading candidates. Political tensions over allegations of fraud led to a political impasse, which prompted a comprehensive audit by the Independent Election Commission. The inauguration of the President of Afghanistan on 29 September and the Agreement of 21 September to establish a national unity government brought an end to the electoral stalemate and marked the first peaceful transfer of power in Afghanistan between elected leaders. The fourth Heart of Asia-Istanbul Process Ministerial Conference (Beijing, 31 October), whereby participant countries expressed readiness to work with the new Government and strengthen cooperation across the region. While the security situation throughout the year remained volatile in terms of civilian casualties and population displacements, increased emphasis on regional dialogue resulted in a series of developments in the areas of trade and security cooperation. The security transition to Afghan forces formally concluded on 31 December as NATO-led ISAF operations ended.

The Security Council adopted two presidential statements, on the elections in Afghanistan, S/PRST/2014/11 (see p. 417), and on Afghan illicit drug production and drug trafficking, S/PRST/2014/12 (see p. 418). The Council, by resolution 2145(2014) (see p. 408), extended the mandate of UNAMA until 17 March 2015. The Council also, by resolution 2189(2014) (see p. 432), welcomed the agreement between NATO and Afghanistan to establish the post-2014 non-combat Resolute Support Mission.

Political and security developments

Report of Secretary-General (March). In his March report on the situation in Afghanistan [A/68/789-S/2014/163], the Secretary-General informed that on 17 January, four United Nations staff and 17 other Afghan and international civilians were killed in an attack on a restaurant in Kabul for which the Taliban had claimed responsibility. The reporting period saw unprecedented numbers of security incidents that had a negative impact on both the Afghan population and the ability of the United Nations to carry out mandated tasks and activities. The 17 January attack was the deadliest attack on foreign civilians since 2001.

Preparations for the 5 April elections remained on track. The formal campaign period for the presidential elections began on 2 February and on 4 March for provincial councils. On 5 January, President Hamid Karzai convened a meeting of the 11 presidential candidates at which he stressed the need for transparent elections and emphasized his commitment to non-interference by the Government. Election-related violence included an assassination attempt on vice-presidential candidate Ismail Khan on 24 January; and the fatal shooting of two members of the campaign team of presidential candidate Abdullah Abdullah in Herat on 1 February, with a third killed in Sari Pul on 7 February. Technical preparations for the elections remained further advanced than those for previous polls held in Afghanistan. Progress towards the establishment of a formal peace process with the armed opposition remained limited. UNAMA continued to facilitate local dialogue to mitigate inter-ethnic and intertribal tensions and to build confidence among communities.

Afghanistan continued to actively engage its neighbours and to promote regional cooperation, including its lead role in the Istanbul Process on Regional Security and Cooperation for a Secure and Stable Afghanistan, the pursuit of strengthened political dialogue and progress on confidence-building measures. On 17 January, India hosted a senior officials' meeting in New Delhi, during which "Heart of Asia" member States and supporting countries and organizations focused on issues of security, including the movement of extremist elements and the importance of regional energy cooperation for economic development and stability, as well as on reviewing progress on the six agreed confidence-building measures and funding modalities for the Process. Between 26 and 27 February, Afghanistan hosted a terrorism financing seminar as part of the counter-terrorism confidence-building measure. There were also ongoing efforts to strengthen bilateral ties between Afghanistan and other countries in the region. During the reporting period, senior officials from Afghanistan met with officials from the Islamic Republic of Iran, India, China, and Pakistan. On 13 February, President Karzai travelled to Ankara for the eighth Trilateral Summit with the President of Turkey and the Prime Minister of Pakistan; a joint statement welcomed the "positive momentum" in bilateral relations between Afghanistan and Pakistan, including strengthened trade and economic relations. On 22 February, the Minister of Finance of Pakistan led a high-level delegation to Kabul for the ninth session of the Afghanistan-Pakistan Joint Economic Commission. Also on 22 February, the Minister for Foreign Affairs of China visited Kabul and met with President Karzai and other senior officials.

The Secretary-General affirmed that the United Nations, in line with its mandate and at the request of Afghan authorities, would continue to provide technical assistance to and facilitate coherence in international support for the process. He encouraged all eligible Afghan citizens to participate in the 5 April elections, particularly women—not only as voters, but also as candidates, electoral workers and observers. The Secretary-General highlighted the importance of economic sustainability of Afghanistan, noting that the special meeting of the Joint Coordination and Monitoring Board held on 29 January reinforced the importance of continuity in progress on mutual commitments made in Tokyo, including addressing the reform, good governance and human rights agenda, and the growing fiscal gap between government revenue and expenditure. He further observed that humanitarian needs were foreseen to rise, including through civilian casualties and the displacement of conflict-affected populations. The coordination of humanitarian assistance would, therefore, continue to be a core component of the UN work in Afghanistan. The Secretary-General requested the Security Council to extend the mandate of UNAMA, due to expire on 19 March, for a further 12 months, thus reiterating the commitment of the United Nations to a sustained partnership with Afghanistan. By resolution 2145(2014) (see below), the Council extended the mandate of UNAMA until 17 March 2015.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 17 March [meeting 7139], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2145(2014). The draft [S/2014/184] was submitted by Australia.

Reaffirming that sustainable progress on security, governance, human rights, including the rights of women and girls, the rule of law and development as well as the cross-cutting issues of counter-narcotics, anti-corruption and accountability are mutually reinforcing and that governance and development programmes prioritized for implementation in transition should be consistent with the goals set forth in the Tokyo Declaration: Partnership for Self-Reliance in Afghanistan—From Transition to Transformation and the national priority programmes, and welcoming the continuing efforts of the Government of Afghanistan and the international community to address these challenges through a comprehensive approach,

Stressing the importance of a comprehensive and inclusive, Afghan-led and Afghan-owned political process important role of the United Nations to continue to monitor the drug situation in Afghanistan,

Stressing the need for coordinated regional efforts to combat the drug problem, and in this regard welcoming the holding of the Regional Ministerial Conference on Counter-Narcotics, in Islamabad on 12 and 13 November 2012, aimed at enhancing regional cooperation to counter narcotics,

On 5 April, voting took place in 6,082 polling centres, as 15 per cent of the 7,173 polling centres that had been planned originally were closed owing to security concerns or logistical issues, including 341 that were unable to open on election day. The final results were released by the Commission on 15 May as follows: Abdullah Abdullah (45 per cent); Ashraf Ghani Ahmadzai (31.6 per cent); Zalmay Rassul (11.4 per cent); Abdul Rab Rasul Sayyaf (7.3 per cent); Qutbuddin Hilal (2.8 per cent); Agha Sherzai (1.6 per cent); Daud Sultanzy (0.5 per cent); and Hedayat Amin Arsala (0.2 per cent). As no candidate gained more than 50 per cent of the vote, a second round of polling between the two front-runners was required under the Constitution. The Commission released the preliminary results for the 458 seats on the 34 provincial councils on 20 May—97 of the preliminary winners were women. Preparations for a second round of voting remained on track, and UNAMA continued to encourage a respectful campaign in the interests of national unity.

Between 1 March and 31 May, the United Nations recorded 5,864 security-related incidents relevant to the work, mobility and safety of civilian actors in Afghanistan, of which 23 involved United Nations personnel, mostly national staff. The high number of security incidents was mainly attributed to the electoral period, given operations by Afghan security forces and attempts by the Taliban to disrupt the electoral process. On 27 May, the United States set forth plans for a future drawdown of troop levels in Afghanistan, which planned for a normal embassy presence by the end of 2016. The following day, President Karzai released a statement welcoming the decision, however, a number of members of the National Assembly and civil society expressed concern about the readiness of Afghan security forces and the impact on the broader international commitment to Afghanistan. On 4 June, a meeting of defence ministers at NATO headquarters reviewed the progress made by ISAF, the mandate of which would end on 31 December. A follow-up training, advice and assistance mission was planned.

During the reporting period, Afghanistan continued to actively engage with its neighbours and promote regional cooperation. China, India, Iran and Pakistan welcomed the conduct of the first round of polling and to recognize the importance of a smooth political transition in Afghanistan for regional stability. The International Contact Group on Afghanistan and Pakistan held a meeting in Tokyo on 15 May, focusing on the status of the 2014 elections, arrangements for the Tokyo Mutual Accountability Framework ministerial review meeting, to be held in London later in the year, and continuing international support for Afghan security forces. Preparations continued for the fourth Heart of Asia Ministerial Conference, to be held in China in August.

The Secretary-General observed that the political engagement demonstrated by the candidates and the electorate, together with the efforts of electoral and security bodies, had been impressive, reinforcing national and international confidence in the future of Afghanistan. He urged the two presidential candidates to disavow fraud by their supporters, respect the authorities of the electoral management bodies and, along with their supporters, accept the outcome once electoral complaints had been adjudicated. Furthermore, with civilians increasingly caught in the crossfire between Afghan forces and anti-government elements, the Secretary-General reiterated the obligations of the parties to distinguish between civilians and combatants. The Secretary-General emphasized to Member States that even as the physical presence of their troops decreased, obligations to provide security and development assistance remained.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 June [meeting 7208], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/11 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the holding of the second round of the Afghan presidential election on 14 June 2014 and reiterates the importance of these historic elections to Afghanistan's transition and democratic development. It commends the participation and courage of the Afghan people to cast their ballot despite the threat and intimidation by the Taliban and other violent extremist and terrorist groups. It further commends the participation of Afghan women in the electoral process, and underlines the key role that they play in Afghan-led peace, democracy and stability.

The Council notes positively the efforts of the Afghan people to prepare for and hold these elections, including security arrangements, and reiterates the important role of the Afghan electoral institutions, including the Independent Election Commission and the Independent Electoral Complaints Commission. It calls upon Afghan electoral institutions to uphold the highest standards of integrity throughout this important and historic process, and emphasizes that all efforts must be made to ensure the integrity, neutrality and transparency of the electoral process, including the detection and prevention of fraud.

The Council calls upon all stakeholders to engage with the electoral institutions and processes with patience and respect, to refrain from any acts that incite imminent violence, civil disorder or lead to instability and to channel complaints through the established institutional mechanisms in line with the electoral laws and Constitution of Afghanistan.

The Council looks forward to the conclusion of the electoral process in accordance with the relevant laws and mandates of the electoral institutions and the orderly transition to a new administration and welcomes the ongoing support role of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan.

The Council calls upon all political entities to work together in accordance with the Afghan Constitution, with the aim of strengthening the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and national unity of Afghanistan in order to achieve a peaceful and prosperous future for all the people of Afghanistan.

The Council condemns the actions of those who attempted to disrupt the elections, such as terrorist attacks against civilians, including election personnel and candidates, as well as attacks against election infrastructure. It condemns violent and terrorist activities by the Taliban, Al-Qaida and other violent and extremist groups and illegal armed groups aimed at destabilizing the situation in the country.

The Council recognizes the sacrifices of the Afghan people and the Afghan National Security Forces during the election period, and reiterates that no terrorist act can reverse the path towards Afghan-led peace, democracy and stability.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 June [meeting 7208], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/12 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and national unity of Afghanistan.

The Council recognizes the threat posed by the production of, trade in and trafficking in illicit drugs to international peace and stability in different regions of the world and the important role played by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in this regard.

The Council expresses concern at the increase in poppy production, as noted in the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime Afghanistan Opium Survey 2013, noting the serious harm that opium cultivation, production and trafficking and consumption continue to cause to the stability, security, social and economic development and governance of Afghanistan as well as to the region and internationally, and stresses the important role of the United Nations to continue to monitor the drug situation in Afghanistan. The Council encourages the International Security Assistance Force to further effectively support, within its designated responsibilities, Afghan-led sustained efforts, including efforts by the Afghan National Security Forces, to address drug production and trafficking, in cooperation with relevant international and regional actors.

The Council notes that according to the World Drug Report 2013 Afghanistan remains one of the foremost source countries for opiates and cannabis resin.

The Council reaffirms that Afghanistan's peaceful future lies in building a stable, secure, economically sustainable State, free of terrorism and narcotics and based on the rule of law, strengthened democratic institutions, respect for the separation of powers, reinforced constitutional checks and balances and the guarantee and enforcement of citizens' rights and obligations. The Council renews its commitment to assisting Afghanistan on its path towards peace, democracy and reconstruction.

The Council welcomes the efforts of the Government of Afghanistan in fighting drug production in Afghanistan.

The Council stresses the importance of a comprehensive approach to address the security, economic, governance and development challenges in Afghanistan, which are of an interconnected nature, and recognizes that there is no purely military solution to ensure the stability of Afghanistan.

The Council calls upon the United Nations, with the support of the international community, to support the Government of Afghanistan's national priority programmes covering the issues of security, governance, justice and economic and social development and to support the full implementation of mutual commitments made on these issues at international conferences, as well as on continuing implementation of the National Drug Control Strategy, and requests that the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan, in an increasingly enabling function, assist the Government on its way towards ensuring full Afghan leadership and ownership, as defined by the Kabul Process.

The Council reiterates its support for the transition (Inteqal) process which will entail the assumption of full responsibility by Afghanistan's institutions in the security sector, consistent with the London, Kabul, Bonn and Tokyo Conferences and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Lisbon and Chicago summits.

The Council stresses the central and impartial role that the United Nations will continue to play in promoting peace and stability in Afghanistan by leading the efforts of the international community.

The Council reiterates its concern about the security situation in Afghanistan, in particular the ongoing violent and terrorist activities by the Taliban, Al-Qaida and other violent and extremist groups, illegal armed groups, criminals and those involved in the production of, trafficking in or trade in illicit drugs, and the strong links between terrorism activities and illicit drugs, resulting in threats to the local population, including women and children, national security forces and international military and civilian personnel, including humanitarian and development workers.

The Council notes with concern the existing links between international security, terrorism and transnational organized crime, money-laundering, and trafficking in illicit drugs and illegal arms, and in this regard emphasizes the need to enhance coordination of efforts at the national, subregional, regional and international levels in order to strengthen a global response to this serious challenge and in particular to close connections between international terrorism and illicit drugs. The Council welcomes the recent efforts carried out under the Russian presidency of the Financial Action Task Force on identification of the illicit financial flows linked to Afghan drug production and trafficking.

The Council emphasizes the need to enhance existing interregional and international cooperation and coordination mechanisms in order to develop an integrated, comprehensive and balanced response to the drug problem, including as part of a long-term security, development and institution-building agenda.

The Council encourages an enhanced collaboration between all relevant entities, including the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan, the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat, including the Police Division, and the United Nations Development Programme in order to have an effective and detailed coordination mechanism to prioritize activities, to support the National Drug Control Strategy and to ensure coordinated implementation of a United Nations comprehensive approach. It encourages the inclusion of combating drug trafficking and transnational organized crime in the work of all relevant United Nations entities involved in Afghanistan, in accordance with their respective mandates and actively maximizing synergies.

The Council reaffirms specifically in this context its support for the implementation, under the leadership and ownership of the Afghan people, of the commitments set out in the London and Kabul Conference communiqués, and of the Afghanistan National Development Strategy and the National Drug Control Strategy as part of the comprehensive implementation strategy to be taken forward by the Government of Afghanistan with the support of the region and the international community and with a central and impartial coordinating role for the United Nations, consistent with the Kabul Process and in line with the national priority programmes.

The Council, stressing the crucial importance of advancing regional and interregional cooperation, welcomes in this regard the continued commitment of the international community to support stability and development in Afghanistan, and calls upon the Government of Afghanistan, with the assistance of the international community, to accelerate the implementation of the National Drug Control Strategy, including through alternative livelihood programmes, encourages additional international support for the four priorities identified in the Strategy, and commends the support provided by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to the Triangular Initiative and the Central Asian Regional Information and Coordination Centre within the framework of the Paris Pact initiative and the Rainbow Strategy, the regional programme of the Office for Afghanistan and neighbouring countries, relevant efforts by the Istanbul Process on Regional Peace and Security for a Secure and Stable Afghanistan, the European Union, through the European Union Border Management Programme in Central Asia and Border Management in Northern Afghanistan, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization, the Collective Security Treaty Organization, the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation and the Regional Economic Cooperation Conference on Afghanistan process, and the continued engagement of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe with Afghanistan, based on the 2011 Vilnius ministerial declaration, by means of implementation of the Organization's project at its Border Management Staff College in Dushanbe, inter alia, the training of Afghan law enforcement officers on combating illicit drugs at the Domodedovo police academy of the Russian Federation and their continued training in the Drug Enforcement Administration Training Academy of the United States of America and the Siberian Law Institute and the North-Western Advanced Training Institute of the Federal Drug Control Service of the Russian Federation.

The Council calls upon States to strengthen international and regional cooperation to counter the threat to the international community posed by the production of, trafficking in and consumption of illicit drugs originating in Afghanistan, with a view to its progressive elimination, in accordance with the principle of common and shared responsibility in addressing the drug problem of Afghanistan, including through strengthening the law enforcement capacity and cooperation against the trafficking in illicit drugs and precursor chemicals and money-laundering and corruption linked to such trafficking. The Council also encourages Member States to undertake further action, as well as to consider, on the basis of concrete proposals by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime and the International Narcotics Control Board, through the Commission on Narcotic Drugs, possible new international initiatives aimed at strengthening the combat against illicit trafficking in chemicals.

The Council notes the ongoing importance of the counter-narcotics issue for the engagement of the United Nations in Afghanistan. It reiterates the need for the Council to be kept informed, including by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, of the threats of drug trafficking and related transnational crime on situations on the agenda of the Council, notably when examining the mandates of peacekeeping operations and political missions.

The Council reiterates its invitation to the Secretary-General to consider the threats resulting from drug trafficking and related illegal activities as a factor in conflict prevention strategies, conflict analysis, integrated missions assessments, planning and peacebuilding support and to consider including in his reports an analysis of the role played by these threats in situations on the agenda of the Council.

The Council welcomes further briefings on the situation of drug trafficking in Afghanistan, as necessary, by the Executive Director of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime.

Report of Secretary-General (September). In his September report on the situation in Afghanistan [A/69/540-S/2014/656], the Secretary-General reported that the second-round run-off in the presidential election was held on 14 June between Abdullah Abdullah and Ashraf Ghani Ahmadzai, without significant disruption from the insurgency. In the weeks after the vote, however, political tensions over allegations of massive fraud and the related activities of the electoral commissions led to a political impasse with destabilizing consequences for the political, security, economic and social environment of the country. At the request of the two candidates and the President of Afghanistan, the United Nations assumed an enhanced role in supporting the electoral process in order to help reach a broadly accepted result in the presidential election. On the basis of lessons learned from the first round and recommendations from the candidates, electoral observers and the international community, the Independent Election Commission made a number of amendments to the process, including improved pre-positioning of contingency materials to better respond to ballot shortages and taking steps to improve voter accessibility. On 18 June, Mr. Abdullah announced his disengagement from the electoral process, alleging institutional bias and claiming that the reported high turnout was based on massive fraud. On 1 July, the Commission began an audit of about 2,000 polling stations in an effort to address fraud concerns and diffuse growing political tensions. Mr. Abdullah, however, rejected the audit as insufficient and demanded an expansion of the audit. Beginning 4 July, representatives for both candidates engaged in bilateral discussions in an attempt to agree on a framework for a more expansive and robust audit, seeking the good offices and technical advice of the United Nations. Preliminary run-off results were released by the Commission on 7 July, against the advice of the United Nations, indicating a reversal of the position of the candidates from the first round, with Mr. Ghani receiving 56.4 per cent and Mr. Abdullah 43.6 per cent of the 7,947,527 valid votes. In response to the political impasse, United States Secretary of State, John Kerry visited Kabul on 11 July and commenced an intensive period of shuttle diplomacy. On 12 July, in a joint press conference Mr. Abdullah and Mr. Ghani confirmed their agreement on the technical and political frameworks developed in consultation with Secretary Kerry. The key technical elements of the agreement were based upon proposals developed by the United Nations. Both candidates agreed to participate in, and accede to the outcome of, the audit and that the next president would form a “government of national unity”, including the establishment of the position of government chief executive officer. The United Nations presented to the Commission a proposed set of recount and invalidation criteria, which were formally adopted on 30 July after consultations with the campaign teams. Protests took place in Kandahar City on 17 August, in reaction to the agreement for a government of national unity with some protesters threatening to support the Taliban movement if a coalition government were “imposed” on Afghanistan and demanding that if there were to be a government of national unity, it should include the Taliban and Hizb-e Islami; and on 19 August, clashes between campaign agents and temporary election workers took place at the Kabul audit site, which resulted in several injuries.

Insurgent groups, international terrorists and associated networks took advantage of the protracted political and electoral crisis and uncertainty to mount major assaults in Hilmand Province in the south, Faryab and Ghor provinces in the west, Logar Province in the centre, Nangarhar and Nuristan provinces in the east and Kunduz Province in the north-east. Attempts were made not only to capture but also to hold territory, resulting in casualties among civilians, security personnel and insurgents. Nevertheless, the Afghan security forces countered the majority of insurgent offensives and recovered control of district centres and security installations. Between 1 June and 15 August, the United Nations recorded 5,456 security-related incidents across the country, an increase 10.7 per cent over the same period in 2013 and an increase of 18.7 per cent over the same period in 2012. On 9 July, UNAMA released its mid-year report on the protection of civilians in armed conflict, covering the period from 1 January to 30 June. In the report, UNAMA documented 1,564 civilian deaths and 3,289 civilian injuries, an increase of 24 per cent over the same period in 2013.

Afghanistan continued to engage with Pakistan on security issues, however, tensions remained along the frontier between Pakistan and Afghanistan, with reciprocal allegations of support and sanctuary for insurgent groups linked to attacks on each other's territory. Afghanistan, India, Pakistan and Turkmenistan signed the operational plan for the Turkmenistan-Afghanistan-Pakistan-India gas pipeline on 8 July and later that month Afghanistan and China discussed increased economic engagement and the latter's potential role in the peace process.

The Secretary-General observed that larger-scale engagements by anti-Government forces throughout the year had tested Afghan security forces and that continuous and substantial international assistance would be required for several years to support Afghan institutions in ensuring the capacity and capability to counter ongoing threats. He urged that international commitments to the sustainment of Afghan forces made at the NATO summits in Lisbon, Portugal (2010), and Chicago, United States (2012), be met. He also welcomed the joint statement of the two candidates addressed to the NATO summit, in which they committed to an “inclusive political vision” and a government of national unity, as well as to concluding the bilateral security agreement with the United States and a status of forces agreement with NATO. The Secretary-General affirmed that a transfer of power through the electoral process, and the candidates' acceptance of the results, was the only means to provide a new leader and government with the mandate required to tackle the many challenges.

Security Council consideration. On 18 September [S/PV.7267], the Security Council discussed the situation in Afghanistan and was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and Head of UNAMA, Ján Kubiš, on the situation following the presidential and provincial elections. He stated that despite recent discussions between the teams of the two candidates, vital issues remained to be bridged. The protracted deadlock had deepened a crisis that had already taken a heavy political, security and economic toll on Afghanistan. He further added that swift agreement on, and the establishment of, a Government of national unity was required to address the country's growing challenges.

Beijing ministerial conference. The Secretary-General reported [A/69/647-S/2014/876] that the fourth Heart of Asia-Istanbul Process Ministerial Conference was held in Beijing, on 31 October, and concluded with the adoption of the Declaration on Deepening Cooperation for Sustainable Security and Prosperity of the "Heart of Asia" Region. The outcome document of the Conference reinforced the political aspects of the Heart of Asia-Istanbul Process and reiterated previous commitments to inclusive reconciliation and support for an Afghan-owned and Afghan-led peace process. Elements centred on economic cooperation were also strengthened, notably for progress on confidence-building measures.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In his December report [A/69/647-S/2014/876] on the situation in Afghanistan, the Secretary-General informed that the inauguration of the President of Afghanistan, Ashraf Ghani, on 29 September and the Agreement of 21 September to establish a national unity Government with Chief Executive Officer Abdullah Abdullah had brought an end to the electoral impasse and marked the first peaceful transfer of power in Afghanistan between elected leaders, which was welcomed in Afghanistan and by the international community. The Agreement followed the conclusion by the Independent Election Commission of the comprehensive audit of the presidential elections on 14 September. Unprecedented in scale and scope, the audit involved the individual opening and examination of more than 22,000 ballot boxes by the national electoral authorities, in the presence of the candidate agents, observers, media and the United Nations. President Ghani announced a robust agenda, encompassing governance, rule of law and the fight against corruption, with reconciliation as a top priority and plans for regional engagement. On 30 September, Afghanistan signed the Bilateral Security Agreement with the United States and the status-of-forces agreement with NATO, thereby providing the legal framework for continued international military assistance after 2014. The agreements facilitated the establishment of the NATO Resolute Support Mission that would provide training, advice and assistance to the Afghan security forces. On 22 September, the Taliban rejected the formation of the National Unity Government and called for a continuation of the conflict until "the end of foreign occupation". The Taliban also issued a statement on 30 September denouncing the security agreements with the United States and NATO. At the fourth Heart of Asia-Istanbul Process Ministerial Conference, held in Beijing on 31 October, President Ghani outlined the reform agenda of the new Government and underlined the priority of an effective Afghan-led and Afghan-owned peace process. The London Conference on Afghanistan on 4 December provided a basis for the renewal of political and financial support to the new Government and agreement around the main elements of the Government's reform agenda.

During the reporting period, multiple attacks took place on district administrative centres, security force checkpoints and major roads, without success in permanently capturing intended targets. The post-elections political impasse and the delayed signing of the security agreements with the United States and NATO had created an environment of uncertainty, seemingly emboldening anti-Government elements in their actions across the country to undermine public confidence in the Government and its security forces. Insurgents embarked on attacks against the Government in most parts of the country, significantly in Hilmand and Kandahar provinces in the south; Ghazni, Paktya and Paktika provinces in the south-east; Nangarhar Province in the east; Kunduz Province in the north-east; Faryab Province in the north; and Herat, Farah and Ghor provinces in the west. The Afghan security forces were able to counter the insurgency with relative effectiveness, although reportedly with significant casualties. The overall number of 19,469 security incidents documented across the country since the beginning of 2014 through 15 November constituted a 10.3 per cent increase over the same period in 2013 with 17,645 incidents. At the NATO Summit of Heads of State and Government in the United Kingdom on 4 and 5 September, NATO allies and partners pledged their continued support to the Afghan security forces until the end of 2017 and continued dialogue under the NATO-Afghanistan Enduring Partnership.

Since taking office, President Ghani had emphasized regional cooperation as a pivotal factor for the stability and prosperity of Afghanistan. He undertook visits to Saudi Arabia, China, Pakistan, Nepal and the United Kingdom. He also received the visit of the President of Turkey, Recep Tayyip Erdogan, and a ministerial delegation on 18 October in Kabul, during which they signed the Afghanistan-Turkey Strategic Partnership and Friendship Agreement that committed both countries to further cooperation on security, reconstruction, investment and trade. The Agreement of Border Connection Point among Afghanistan, China and Tajikistan was concluded on 5 November defining the border between the three countries, which pledged to respect mutual sovereignty and territorial integrity. With regard to Afghanistan and Pakistan, tensions persisted along the frontier between the countries; however, allegations of cross-border shelling and militant incursions had reduced. Engagement between Afghanistan and Pakistan increased during the reporting period.

The Secretary-General commended the two presidential candidates for working together and finding solutions and welcomed the reform agenda set forth by President Ghani. He observed that the timely appointment and confirmation of senior government officials was required to accelerate efforts to address Afghanistan's political, economic and security challenges. Noting that the year had been one of the more violent since 2001, the Secretary-General asserted that the underlying requirement for sustained and durable progress in Afghanistan was peace. President Karzai was commended for his leadership and achievement with regards to the democratic transfer of power. The Secretary-General welcomed his new Special Representative, Nicholas Haysom, who assumed the post in November.

Security Council consideration. On 18 December [S/PV.7347], the Security Council held discussions on the situation in Afghanistan. The Special Representative of the Secretary-General and Head of UNAMA, Nicholas Haysom, briefed the Council noting that while the electoral process was prolonged and challenging, the result was a leadership that was legitimate and broadly supported. He further remarked that UNAMA remained convinced that there was no better way forward than a National Unity Government, adding that the solution to the conflict in Afghanistan was political rather than military. The Council was also briefed by the Executive Director of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, Yury Fedotov, who reported that the transition had impacted drug control efforts in Afghanistan. He stated that while the new leadership and the international community faced challenges posed by illicit drugs, the transition also presented an opportunity to assess counter-narcotics strategies and to ensure strong and effective responses.

Communication. By an 11 December letter [S/2014/887], Afghanistan transmitted to the Council the Status of Forces Agreement that had been signed between Afghanistan and NATO in September 2014 and ratified by the country's Parliament in November 2014. The agreement provided the basis for the continued partnership of Afghanistan with NATO as at January 2015.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 12 December [meeting 7338], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2189(2014). The draft [S/2014/883] was submitted by Australia.

The Security Council,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and national unity of Afghanistan,

Recognizing Afghanistan's gains since the fall of the Taliban in 2001, in particular on democracy, governance, institution-building, economic development and human rights,

Condemning the ongoing violent and terrorist activities by the Taliban, Al-Qaida and other violent and extremist groups, illegal armed groups, criminals and those involved in the production of, trafficking in or trade in illicit drugs,

Reaffirming the importance of sustainable progress on security, development, human rights, in particular for women and children, democracy, governance, the fight against corruption, and economic development, taking all appropriate measures to ensure the protection of civilians, and of addressing the cross-cutting issue of counter-narcotics,

Emphasizing the important role that the United Nations continues to play in support of Afghanistan's full assumption of leadership and ownership in the areas of security, governance and development, welcoming in this regard the continued role of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan, and noting that the Secretary-General reports to the Security Council every three months on developments in Afghanistan,

Acknowledging the contribution of Afghanistan's partners to peace and security in Afghanistan,

Welcoming the increased capacities and capabilities of the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces, looking forward to the completion of security transition at the end of 2014, after which Afghan authorities will assume full responsibility for security, noting the conclusion of the International Security Assistance Force at the end of 2014, and underscoring the importance of sustained international support to continue building the capacities and capabilities of the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces,

Taking note of the letter dated 28 November 2014 from the Secretary-General to the President of the Security Council transmitting the final report on the operations of the International Security Assistance Force in Afghanistan,

Underlining the significance of the Lisbon, Bonn and Chicago declarations on Afghanistan, which stressed the long-term commitment, beyond 2014, to lasting peace, security and stability in Afghanistan,

Underlining also the significance of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Wales Summit Declaration on Afghanistan of 5 September 2014 which outlined the role of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and contributing partners in supporting lasting peace, security and stability in Afghanistan beyond 2014, including through the non-combat Resolute Support Mission to train, advise and assist the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces, the contribution to the financial sustainment of the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces and the long-term North Atlantic Treaty Organization-Afghanistan Enduring Partnership.

Noting the signing of the security and defence cooperation agreement between the United States of America and Afghanistan (bilateral security agreement) on 30 September 2014, and welcoming the signing of the status-of-forces agreement between Afghanistan and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on 30 September 2014 and as ratified by the Parliament of Afghanistan on 27 November 2014,

Noting also that the bilateral agreement between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Afghanistan and the invitation of the Government of Afghanistan to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to establish the Resolute Support Mission provide a sound legal basis for the Mission,

1. Underscores the importance of continued international support for the stabilization of the situation in Afghanistan and of further enhancing the capabilities and capacities of the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces in order for them to maintain security and stability throughout the country, and in this regard welcomes the agreement between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Afghanistan to establish the post-2014 non-combat Resolute Support Mission which will train, advise and assist the Afghan National Defence and Security Forces at the invitation of Afghanistan;

2. Looks forward to the leadership of the Resolute Support Mission working with the Government of Afghanistan and in close coordination and cooperation, where relevant, with the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Afghanistan;

3. Welcomes the commitment of the international community to continue to provide substantial support to the Government and the people of Afghanistan, and notes in this regard the long-term North Atlantic Treaty Organization-Afghanistan Enduring Partnership, Afghanistan's bilateral strategic partnership agreements and other bilateral agreements with other countries;

4. Affirms its readiness to revisit the present resolution in the context of the consideration by the Security Council of the situation in Afghanistan.

Year-end developments. By a later report [A/69/801-S/2015/151], the Secretary-General informed that the security transition to Afghan forces had formally concluded on 31 December at the end of the mandate of the ISAF led by NATO. At the close of 2014, the overall Kabul process of transition covering political, security and socioeconomic dimensions was completed, as outlined in major international conferences on Afghanistan in Kabul [YUN 2010, p. 347; Bonn, Germany [YUN 2011, p. 330]; and Tokyo [YUN 2012, p. 289].

In 2014, there were 22,051 recorded security incidents, which surpassed those of 2013 by 10 per cent. In terms of incidents recorded over the past 13 years, 2014 was the second highest, after 2011. Of those incidents, 68 per cent were recorded in southern, south-eastern and eastern regions, with Nangarhar Province being the most volatile. Armed clashes and improvised explosive devices accounted for 76 per cent of total incidents. The use of suicide attacks accounted for fewer than 1 per cent of all incidents recorded, though the 158 recorded attacks in 2014 represented a 47 per cent increase compared with 2013.

The joint secretariat of the Afghan Peace and Reintegration Programme reported that a total of 1,716 individuals had joined the Programme in 2014. Regarding regional cooperation, on 15 December in Tehran, a Memorandum of Understanding was signed by the commander of the Iranian Border Guards and his Afghan counterpart to enhance cooperation in countering terrorism and drug trafficking. Afghanistan and Pakistan continued to intensify efforts to improve security cooperation in December.

UNAMA

The United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) was established by Security Council resolution 1401(2002) [YUN 2002, p. 264] to promote, inter alia, national reconciliation and the responsibilities entrusted to the United Nations under the 2001 Bonn Agreement [YUN 2001, p. 263]. It comprised the Office of the Special Representative, two substantive pillars—one political and one on relief, recovery and reconstruction—and an administrative component. UNAMA was headquartered in Kabul and maintained a number of permanent field presences throughout the country. During the reporting period, UNAMA continued to pursue co-location options with UN agencies, funds and programmes to achieve financial efficiency and expanded existing co-location initiatives in Jalalabad, Bamyan, Kunduz and Farah. By resolution 2145(2014) (see p. 408), the Security Council extended the mandate of UNAMA until 17 March 2015.

Appointment of Special Representative. On 15 September [S/2014/674], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Nicholas Haysom (South Africa) as his Special Representative for Afghanistan and Head of UNAMA, effective 1 November, to replace Ján Kubiš (Slovakia), who would complete his assignment on 31 October. On 17 September [S/2014/675], the Council took note of the intention.

Financing

In October [A/69/363/Add.4], the Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly the proposed interim resource requirements for UNAMA for 2015, totalling $94,968,000 (net of staff assessment), representing a technical roll-over of 50 per cent of the level of projected expenditures during 2014. A detailed budget proposal for 2015 was to be prepared and submitted for consideration during the second part of the resumed sixty-ninth session of the Assembly.

In December [A/69/628], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) noted that the Secretary-General's submission contained insufficient budgetary information and recommended that the Assembly request the Secretary-General to submit a full budget proposal for 2015 at the earliest opportunity.

On 29 December, the Assembly, in section IV of resolution 69/262 (see p. 1632), endorsed the conclusions and recommendations of ACABQ.

International Security Assistance Force

The International Security Assistance Force (ISAF), a multinational force established by Security Council resolution 1386(2001) [YUN 2001, p. 267], was mandated, inter alia, to assist the Afghan Government in the maintenance of security in Kabul and its surrounding areas. By Council resolution 1510(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 310], the ISAF mandate was expanded to include the maintenance of security outside Kabul and its environs. ISAF concluded its mission at the end of 2014.

During 2014, the Secretary-General transmitted to the Council, in accordance with resolutions 1386(2001) and 2120(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 321], reports from NATO on ISAF activities for the periods from 1 November 2013 to 31 January 2014 [S/2014/179], 1 February to 30 April [S/2014/421] and 1 May to 31 July [S/2014/678]. In November, NATO submitted the final report on ISAF [S/2014/856].

During the reporting period, the ISAF campaign focused on preparing the Afghan National Security Forces to assume full responsibility for the security of Afghanistan by the end 2014. By November, the Afghan forces were leading 99 per cent of all operations and carrying out over 90 per cent of their own training. The only unilateral operations that ISAF continued to conduct were ISAF force protection, route clearance and redeployment. The increased capability of the Afghan forces enabled the progressive reduction of the ISAF Force. By the final month of its mission, December 2014, ISAF would have reduced from a high of over 130,000 personnel in 2011 to fewer than 15,000.

The achievements of ISAF had enabled fundamental changes to take place in Afghanistan. ISAF and the Afghan National Security Forces, together, had reduced the threat posed by Al-Qaida and its affiliates. The Afghan forces had made progress from an effective strength of virtually zero in 2001 to becoming a professional and capable force providing security across Afghanistan. The country had continued to make steady progress in developing the institutional capability necessary to direct and sustain the Afghan forces at the operational and strategic level. The Afghan forces were assessed as ready to assume full responsibility for security when ISAF conclude its mission at the end of 2014.

While the core objectives of ISAF had been achieved, more remained to be done. The Afghan forces had capability gaps and development shortfalls, especially in the Air Force, and equipment procurement, financial management and accountability procedures needed to improve. Endemic corruption persisted and further progress was required in the participation of women in security institutions and forces, in securing women's rights, and in the protection of children in armed conflict, especially in eliminating the recruitment of child soldiers.

There would be three strands to future NATO support. The first strand would be the Resolute Support Mission, a non-combat training, advisory and assistance mission focused at the institutional level in Kabul. The second strand would focus over the medium term on the financial sustainment of the Afghan forces through the adapted NATO-Afghan National Army Trust Fund. The third strand was the NATO-Afghanistan Enduring Partnership, which would strengthen the relationship of NATO with Afghanistan and provide capacity-building and practical cooperation in support of Afghan security institutions over the long term.

Sanctions

UN sanctions-related activities concerning Afghanistan were guided by the measures adopted by Security Council resolutions 2160(2014) (see p. 435) and 2161(2014) (see p. 441) and previous resolutions against Al-Qaida, the Taliban, their associates and associated entities, which further refined the assets freeze, travel ban and arms embargo imposed on those persons identified in the Al-Qaida Sanctions List created pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 265], 1333(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 273] and 1989(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 341] and the List established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011) [ibid., p. 337].

The initial Al-Qaida and Taliban Sanctions Committee, established by resolution 1267(1999), was split in two by the Security Council through resolutions 1988(2011) and 1989(2011). The subsequently re-named "Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) concerning Al-Qaida and associated individuals and entities" (Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee) was mandated to oversee implementation of the measures against individuals and entities associated with Al-Qaida. The "Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011)" was mandated to oversee implementation of the measures against individuals and entities associated with the Taliban in constituting a threat to the peace, stability and security of Afghanistan.

On 17 June, the Security Council, by resolution 2161(2014), decided to extend the mandate of the Office the Ombudsperson established by resolution 1904(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 355] for 30 months.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 17 June [meeting 7198], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2160(2014). The draft [S/2014/409] was submitted by Australia, France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous resolutions on international terrorism and the threat it poses to Afghanistan, in particular its resolutions 1267(1999) of 15 October 1999, 1333(2000) of 19 December 2000, 1363(2001) of 30 July 2001, 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, 1390(2002) of 16 January 2002, 1452(2002) of 20 December 2002, 1455(2003) of 17 January 2003, 1526(2004) of 30 January 2004, 1566(2004) of 8 October 2004, 1617(2005) of 29 July 2005, 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005, 1699(2006) of 8 August 2006, 1730(2006) of 19 December 2006, 1735(2006) of 22 December 2006, 1822(2008) of 30 June 2008, 1904(2009) of 17 December 2009, 1988(2011) and 1989(2011) of 17 June 2011, 2082(2012) and 2083(2012) of 17 December 2012 and 2133(2014) of 27 January 2014, and the relevant statements by its President,

Welcoming the process by which Afghanistan and its regional and international partners are entering into long-term strategic partnership and other agreements aimed at achieving a peaceful, stable and prosperous Afghanistan,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and national unity of Afghanistan,

Stressing the importance of a comprehensive political process in Afghanistan to support reconciliation among all Afghans,

Recognizing that the security situation in Afghanistan has evolved and that some members of the Taliban have reconciled with the Government of Afghanistan, have rejected the terrorist ideology of Al-Qaida and its followers and support a peaceful resolution to the continuing conflict in Afghanistan,

Recognizing also that, notwithstanding the evolution of the situation in Afghanistan and progress in reconciliation, the situation in Afghanistan remains a threat to international peace and security, and reaffirming the need to combat this threat by all means, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and international law, including applicable human rights, refugee and humanitarian law, stressing in this regard the important role that the United Nations plays in this effort,

Reiterating its firm commitment to support the Government of Afghanistan in its efforts to advance the peace and reconciliation process, including by the High Peace Council and the implementation of the Afghan Peace and Reintegration Programme, in line with the Kabul Conference communiqué of 20 July 2010 and the Bonn Conference conclusions, and within the framework of the Afghan Constitution and the application of the procedures introduced by the Security Council in resolutions 1988(2011) and 2082(2012) as well as other relevant resolutions of the Council,

Welcoming the decision taken by some members of the Taliban to reconcile with the Government of Afghanistan, to have no links to international terrorist organizations, including Al-Qaida, to respect the Constitution, including its human rights provisions, notably the rights of women, and to support a peaceful resolution to the continuing conflict in Afghanistan, and urging all those individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with the Taliban in constituting a threat to the peace, stability and security of Afghanistan to accept the Government's offer of reconciliation,

Reiterating its concern about the security situation in Afghanistan, in particular the ongoing violent and terrorist activities by the Taliban, Al-Qaida and other violent and extremist groups, illegal armed groups, criminals and those involved in terrorism and illicit brokering in arms and related materiel and arms trafficking and the production of or trafficking or trade in illicit drugs, and the strong links between terrorism and insurgency activities and illicit drugs, resulting in threats to the local population, including women, children, national security forces and international military and civilian personnel, including humanitarian and development workers,

Underscoring the importance of humanitarian aid operations, and condemning all acts or threats of violence against United Nations staff and humanitarian actors and any politicization of humanitarian assistance by the Taliban and associated groups or individuals,

Reiterating the need to ensure that the present sanctions regime contributes effectively to ongoing efforts to combat the insurgency and support the work of the Government of Afghanistan to advance reconciliation in order to bring about peace, stability and security in Afghanistan,

Urging all Member States to participate actively in maintaining and updating the Al-Qaida Sanctions List by contributing additional information pertinent to current listings, by submitting delisting requests when appropriate, and by identifying and nominating for listing additional individuals, groups, undertakings and entities which should be subject to the measures referred to in paragraph 1 of the present resolution,

Reminding the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) (the Committee) to remove expeditiously and on a case-by-case basis individuals, groups, undertakings and entities that no longer meet the criteria for listing outlined in the present resolution,

Recognizing the challenges, both legal and otherwise, to the measures implemented by Member States under paragraph 1 of the present resolution, welcoming improvements to the procedures of the Committee and the quality of the Al-Qaida Sanctions List, and expressing its intention to continue efforts to ensure that procedures are fair and clear,

Welcoming the establishment of the Office of the Ombudsperson pursuant to resolution 1904(2009) and the enhancement of the mandate of the Ombudsperson in resolutions 1989(2011) and 2083(2012), noting the significant contribution of the Office in providing additional fairness and transparency, and recalling the firm commitment of the Council to ensuring that the Office is able to continue to carry out its role effectively, in accordance with its mandate,

Welcoming further the fourth review in June 2014 by the General Assembly of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy of 8 September 2006 and the creation of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to ensure overall coordination and coherence in the counter-terrorism efforts of the United Nations system and the report of the Secretary-General of 14 April 2014 on activities of the United Nations system in implementing the Strategy,

Welcoming the continuing cooperation between the Committee and the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL), the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, in particular on technical assistance and capacity-building, and all other United Nations bodies, and encouraging further engagement with the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force to ensure overall coordination and coherence in the counter-terrorism efforts of the United Nations system,

In accordance with paragraph 41 of this resolution, the Office of the Ombudsperson shall be authorized to carry out the following tasks upon receipt of a delisting request submitted by, or on behalf of, an individual, group, undertaking or entity on the Al-Qaida Sanctions List or by the legal representative or estate of such individual, group, undertaking or entity (the petitioner).

2. For delisting petitions not returned to the petitioner, the Ombudsperson shall immediately forward the delisting request to the members of the Committee, designating State(s), State(s) of residence and nationality or incorporation, relevant United Nations bodies and any other States deemed relevant by the Ombudsperson. The Ombudsperson shall ask these States or relevant United Nations bodies to provide, within four months, any appropriate additional information relevant to the delisting request. The Ombudsperson may engage in dialogue with these States to determine:

5. At the end of this four-month period of information-gathering, the Ombudsperson shall present a written update to the Committee on progress to date, including details regarding which States have supplied information, and any significant challenges encountered therein. The Ombudsperson may extend this period once for up to two months if he or she assesses that more time is required for information-gathering, giving due consideration to requests by Member States for additional time to provide information.

Dialogue (two months)

6. Upon completion of the information-gathering period, the Ombudsperson shall facilitate a two-month period of engagement, which may include dialogue with the petitioner. Giving due consideration to requests for additional time, the Ombudsperson may extend this period once for up to two months if he or she assesses that more time is required for engagement and the drafting of the comprehensive report described in paragraph 8 below. The Ombudsperson may shorten this time period if he or she assesses that less time is required.

7. During this period of engagement, the Ombudsperson:

(g) In the course of the information-gathering and dialogue phases and in the preparation of the report, the Ombudsperson shall not disclose any information shared by a State on a confidential basis, without the express written consent of that State; and

(h) During the dialogue phase, the Ombudsperson shall give serious consideration to the opinions of designating States, as well as other Member States that come forward with relevant information, in particular those Member States most affected by acts or associations that led to the original listing.

8. Upon completion of the period of engagement described above, the Ombudsperson, with the help of the Monitoring Team, as appropriate, shall draft and circulate to the Committee a comprehensive report that will exclusively:

(a) Summarize and, as appropriate, specify the sources of, all information available to the Ombudsperson that is relevant to the delisting request. The report shall respect confidential elements of Member States' communications with the Ombudsperson;

(b) Describe the activities of the Ombudsperson with respect to this delisting request, including dialogue with the petitioner; and

(c) Based on an analysis of all the information available to the Ombudsperson and the recommendation of the Ombudsperson, lay out for the Committee the principal arguments concerning the delisting request. The recommendation should state the views of the Ombudsperson with respect to the listing as of the time of the examination of the delisting request.

Committee discussion

(a) All decisions to release information from the comprehensive reports of the Ombudsperson, including the scope of information, are made by the Committee at its discretion and on a case-by-case basis;

(b) The comprehensive report reflects the basis for the recommendation of the Ombudsperson and is not attributable to any individual Committee member; and

(c) The comprehensive report, and any information contained therein, should be treated as strictly confidential and not shared with the petitioner or any other Member State without the approval of the Committee.

14. In cases where the Ombudsperson recommends retaining the listing, the requirement for States to take the measures in paragraph 1 of this resolution shall remain in place with respect to that individual, group, undertaking or entity, unless a Committee member submits a delisting request, which the Committee shall consider under its normal consensus procedures.

15. In cases where the Ombudsperson recommends that the Committee consider delisting, the requirement for States to take the measures described in paragraph 1 of this resolution shall terminate with respect to that individual, group, undertaking or entity 60 days after the Committee completes consideration of a comprehensive report of the Ombudsperson, in accordance with this annex, including paragraph 7 (h), unless the Committee decides by consensus before the end of that 60-day period that the requirement shall remain in place with respect to that individual, group, undertaking or entity; provided that, in cases where consensus does not exist, the Chair shall, on the request of a Committee member, submit the question of whether to delist that individual, group, undertaking or entity to the Security Council for a decision within a period of 60 days; and provided further that, in the event of such a request, the requirement for States to take the measures described in paragraph 1 of this resolution shall remain in force for that period with respect to that individual, group, undertaking or entity until the question is decided by the Council.

16. Following the conclusion of the process described in paragraphs 42 and 43 of this resolution, the Committee shall convey to the Ombudsperson, within 60 days, whether the measures described in paragraph 1 of this resolution are to be retained or terminated, setting out reasons and including any further relevant information, and an updated narrative summary of reasons for listing, where appropriate, for the Ombudsperson to transmit to the petitioner. The 60-day deadline applies to outstanding matters before the Ombudsperson or the Committee and will take effect from the adoption of this resolution.

17. After the Ombudsperson receives the communication from the Committee under paragraph 16 above, if the measures in paragraph 1 of this resolution are to be retained, the Ombudsperson shall send to the petitioner, with an advance copy sent to the Committee, a letter that:

(a) Communicates the outcome of the petition;

(b) Describes, to the extent possible and drawing upon the comprehensive report of the Ombudsperson, the process and the publicly releasable factual information gathered by the Ombudsperson; and

(c) Forwards from the Committee all information about the decision provided to the Ombudsperson pursuant to paragraph 16 above.

18. In all communications with the petitioner, the Ombudsperson shall respect the confidentiality of Committee deliberations and confidential communications between the Ombudsperson and Member States.

19. The Ombudsperson may notify the petitioner, as well as those States relevant to a case but which are not members of the Committee, of the stage the process has reached.

Other tasks of the Office of the Ombudsperson

20. In addition to the tasks specified above, the Ombudsperson shall:

(a) Distribute publicly releasable information about Committee procedures, including Committee guidelines, fact sheets and other documents prepared by the Committee;

(c) Submit biannual reports summarizing the activities of the Ombudsperson to the Council.

On 28 July, the Council adopted a presidential statement S/PRST/2014/14 (see p. 131), in which it expressed grave concern over the reports of the access to and seizure of oilfields and pipelines in the Syrian Arab Republic and Iraq by terrorist groups listed by the Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 265] and 1989(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 341], namely Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and Jabhat al-Nusra, and condemned any engagement in direct or indirect trade of oil from Syria and Iraq involving terrorist groups.

On 15 August, by resolution 2170(2014) (see p. 131), the Council imposed the assets freeze, travel ban and arms embargo on individuals associated with Al-Qaida, ISIL and Al-Nusrah Front (ANF). The Monitoring Team was also directed to report to the Committee within ninety days on the threat posed by ISIL and ANF.

On 24 September, by resolution 2178(2014) (see p. 135), the Council decided that with regard to foreign terrorist fighters, Member States should prevent and suppress recruiting, organizing, transporting or equipping; prevent and suppress financing; and prevent travel. The Monitoring Team was also requested to report to the Committee on the threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters recruited by or joining ISIL, ANF and all groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida.

On 19 November, the Council adopted a presidential statement S/PRST/2014/23 (see p. 139) setting out steps for the implementation of resolutions 2170(2014) and 2178(2014). The Council also expressed its determination to consider listing pursuant to resolution 2161(2014) individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida who were financing, arming, planning, or recruiting for them, or otherwise supporting their acts or activities.

Activities of Sanctions Committees

Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee

In December [S/2014/923], the Security Council Committee, pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) concerning Al-Qaida and associated individuals and entities (Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee), reported on its 2014 activities. The Committee met 12 times in informal consultations throughout the year. Its work included reviewing and updating the sanctions list; considering exemptions from the sanctions measures; considering the reports of the Monitoring Team and Ombudsperson; briefings by the Chair of the Committee to the Security Council; participating in an open briefing during the General Assembly review of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy, as well as in joint consultations on Yemen; and transmitting communications to Member States and the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) regarding the implementation of the sanctions measures.

Reports of Ombudsperson. On 31 January [S/2014/73], the Ombudsperson submitted her seventh report pursuant to Council resolution 2083(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 314], in which she reviewed the activities carried out by the Office from 1 August 2013 to 31 January 2014. During that period, two new delisting cases were submitted to the Office, both of which were accepted. One of the requests was made by an individual, while the other was made on behalf of an entity. Eleven reports were submitted to the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee during that period and the Ombudsperson appeared before it on five occasions to present eight cases. Since the issuance of the sixth report [YUN 2013, p. 326], six individuals and three entities had been delisted through the Ombudsperson process. In one additional case, a separate Committee decision resulted in the delisting of an individual during an active Ombudsperson case.

In her eighth report [S/2014/553], submitted on 31 July, the Ombudsperson reviewed the Office's activities from 1 February to 31 July 2014. Four new cases, presented by individuals, were submitted to the Office, all of which were accepted. This brought the total number of delisting petitions submitted since the establishment of the Office to 55 as at 31 July. Four reports were submitted to the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee during that period and the Ombudsperson appeared before it on four occasions to present five cases. Since the issuance of seventh report (see above), two individuals had been delisted through the Ombudsperson process and three requests had been denied.

In a later report [S/2015/80] covering the period 1 August 2014 to 31 January 2015, the Ombudsperson provided an update on the delisting cases.

Communication. By a 17 April letter [S/2014/286], Austria, Belgium, Costa Rica, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Liechtenstein, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland transmitted to the Security Council a paper entitled "Improving fair and clear procedures for a more effective United Nations sanctions system", concerning the implementation of the Council's sanctions regimes, particularly sanctions on Al-Qaida.

Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011)

In December, the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 337] submitted a report [S/2014/924] on its activities in 2014. The Committee met five times in informal consultations during the year. Its work included reviewing and updating the sanctions list; considering exemptions from the sanctions measures; considering the reports of the Monitoring Team; and transmitting communications to Member States and INTERPOL regarding the implementation of the sanctions measures. At the end of the reporting period, there were 134 individuals and 94 entities listed under the Taliban sanctions regime. During the reporting period, the Committee delisted an individual and listed four individuals under the Taliban sanctions regime.

Monitoring Team

The Security Council, in resolutions 1988(2011) and 1989(2011), decided that the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team would support both the Committee established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011) and the Committee established pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011) (the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee).

In addition to the periodic reports, the Monitoring Team was requested to submit specialized reports on the threat posed by ISIL and ANF, by resolution 2170(2014) (see p. 131), and foreign terrorist fighters, by resolution 2178(2014) (see p. 135).

Reports to Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee

On 22 January, the Chair of the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee transmitted to the Council the fifteenth report [S/2014/41] of the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team. The report identified three specific approaches to enhance sanctions implementation: deterring ransom payments to Al-Qaida and its affiliates to advance the assets freeze; using biometrics and changes to national inadmissible passenger criteria to advance the travel ban against listed individuals; and improving analysis of and measures to limit component availability for improvised explosive devices used by Al-Qaida and its affiliates. The report made recommendations for consideration by the Committee. The Monitoring Team focused on implementing the recommendations of the June 2013 report, most of which had been endorsed by the Committee. On 21 August, the Chair of the Committee transmitted to the Council its position on the recommendations contained in the Monitoring Team's fifteenth report [S/2014/620].

On 27 October, the Chair of the Committee submitted to the Council the Monitoring Team's sixteenth report [S/2014/770], which noted the increasing challenges of tackling foreign terrorist fighters and boosting efforts to counter violent extremism. The report provided an assessment of how the threat from Al-Qaida and its associates had evolved; charted the evolution of the sanctions regime; and outlined current work by the Team, including initial findings on foreign terrorist fighters and a case study on kidnap-for-ransom. The Team made recommendations to the Committee with regards to sanctions measures concerning assets freeze, travel ban and arms embargo.

Reports to Committee established pursuant to resolution 1988(2011)

On 11 April, the Chair of the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolution 1988(2011) transmitted its position on the recommendations contained in the Monitoring Team's third report [S/2014/283].

On 9 June, the Chair of the Committee transmitted to the Council the fourth report of the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team [S/2014/402]. The Monitoring Team recommended steps to disrupt Taliban income from illegal mining; informal translations of the sanctions list into Dari and Pashto to improve national implementation; and intensified work with INTERPOL and other international organizations to improve implementation of the sanctions measures.

On 11 December, the Chair of the Committee submitted to the Council the Monitoring Team's fifth report [S/2014/888]. The Monitoring Team informed that it had continued to receive a steady—albeit officially unconfirmed—flow of media reports indicating that some listed individuals had become increasingly adept at circumventing the sanctions measures, the travel ban in particular.

Reports to Committee established pursuant to resolution 2170(2014)

On 13 November, the Chair of the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee transmitted to the Council the report of the Analytical Support and Sanctions Monitoring Team on the threat posed by ISIL and ANF for the People of the Levant [S/2014/815], submitted in accordance with resolution 2170(2014). The Monitoring Team made 10 recommendations for consideration by the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee, which included proposals for three enhanced sanctions measures to address the threat. The Monitoring Team indicated that sanctions alone were insufficient to fully respond to the threat posed by ISIL and ANF, rather, a comprehensive approach was required, which would integrate multilateral strategies with national action by Member States.

Iraq

In 2014, the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq (UNAMI) and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Iraq continued to support the country in its transition to democratic governance and in promoting reconstruction and reconciliation.

During the year, Iraq witnessed a significant deterioration in the security situation, owing to the increased activity of Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL). Despite this, the Council of Representatives elections were held on 30 April. The formation of the new Government and the adoption of its ministerial programme in September was a significant step towards promoting stability in Iraq, and was universally welcomed by the international community. During the year, regional and international partners increased their support for Iraq in its fight against ISIL.

ISIL and associated armed groups, however, continued to control large parts of the west and north of the country, where they inflicted civilian casualties, caused massive displacement and perpetrated systematic human rights violations that might amount to war crimes or crimes against humanity. Relations between the Government of Iraq and the Kurdistan Regional Government faced challenges, arising from the period prior to the transfer of power. The year's end, however, witnessed a new era of political compromise and strengthened partnership between Baghdad and Erbil, particularly after the conclusion of a landmark agreement on energy exports and revenue-sharing marking a key achievement towards national reconciliation.

On 10 January, the Security Council adopted a presidential statement S/PRST/2014/1 (see below), in which it condemned the attacks perpetrated by the Al-Qaida affiliate, ISIL, against the people of Iraq in an attempt to destabilize the country and region. On 19 September, the Council adopted S/PRST/2014/20 (see p. 459), in which it welcomed the newly formed Government of Iraq and called on the international community to support its efforts to strengthen democratic institutions, maintain security and combat terrorism. On 30 July, the Council, by resolution 2169(2014) (see p. 457), extended the mandate of UNAMI until 31 July 2015.

Political and security developments

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 10 January [meeting 7093], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/1 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council deplores in the strongest terms the recent events in the cities of Ramadi and Fallujah in Anbar province in Iraq. The Council condemns the attacks that are being perpetrated by Al-Qaida affiliate, the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, against the people of Iraq in an attempt to destabilize the country and region. The Council recognizes that Iraqi security forces, local police and tribes in Anbar province are showing great courage as they fight to defeat the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant in their cities.

The Council urges the people of Iraq, including Iraqi tribes, local leaders and Iraqi security forces in Anbar province, to continue, expand and strengthen their cooperation against violence and terror and it stresses the critical importance of continued national dialogue and unity. The Council welcomes comments from Grand Ayatollah Sistani welcoming internally displaced residents of Anbar to Najaf and Karbala, as well as the commitment of a number of communities—Sunni, Shia and Kurd—to meet the needs of the displaced.

The Council expresses its strong support for the continued efforts of the Government of Iraq to help to meet the security needs of the entire population of Iraq.

In this regard, the Council acknowledges the efforts of the Iraqi security forces and Iraqi local police, whose members are also being targeted and killed in ongoing attacks by terrorists. The Council welcomes the commitment of the Government in the protection of the civilian population in Fallujah and elsewhere and to the provision of humanitarian relief, and encourages the Government to continue to work with the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq and humanitarian agencies to ensure the delivery of humanitarian relief. The Council expresses concern about the impact of the violence on civilians, and encourages the safe passage of civilians trapped in conflict areas, as well as the safe return of internally displaced persons as conditions allow.

The Council stresses the critical importance of continued national dialogue and unity, an inclusive political process, the holding of free and fair elections in April 2014 and the right to peaceful protest as guaranteed under the Iraqi Constitution. The Council believes that this is vital to underpin a unified national stance against terrorism and to ensure the long-term security of Iraq.

The Council reaffirms the need to bring perpetrators, organizers, financiers and sponsors of these reprehensible acts of terrorism to justice, and urges all States, in accordance with their obligations under international law and relevant Council resolutions, to cooperate actively with Iraqi authorities in this regard.

The Council reaffirms that the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (QE.J.115.04) is subject to the arms embargo and assets freeze imposed by Council resolutions 1267(1999) and 2083(2012) and underlines the importance of prompt and effective implementation of these measures.

The Council reaffirms the need to combat by all means, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, threats to international peace and security caused by terrorist acts, and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable, regardless of their motivation, wherever, whenever and by whomsoever committed. The Council reminds States that they must ensure that measures taken to combat terrorism comply with all their obligations under international law, in particular international human rights, refugee and humanitarian law.

The Council reaffirms its support for the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Iraq. The Council reiterates that no terrorist act can reverse the path towards peace, democracy and reconstruction in Iraq, which is supported by the people and the Government of Iraq and the international community.

Report of Secretary-General (March). In his second report [S/2014/190], submitted pursuant to Council resolution 2110(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 328], the Secretary-General indicated that Iraq had witnessed a significant deterioration in the security situation, especially in Anbar and adjacent governorates, owing to the increased activity of ISIL, which prompted the Government of Iraq to intensify operations against terrorists and militant groups in Anbar. Following Prime Minister al-Maliki's visit to Anbar on 15 February, the Council of Ministers adopted a plan that included providing funds for reconstruction and compensation for damaged property, integrating tribesmen who had fought alongside the Government into the local police and resettling displaced families. Terrorist attacks had also occurred in the outskirts of Baghdad International Airport; on 31 January, four rockets landed on the airport terminal, damaging two Iraqi Airways aircraft and causing injuries to two civilians. Five waves of coordinated attacks occurred in Baghdad as well, including two suicide attacks near the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 5 February and two indirect fire attacks targeted the international zone on 4 February.

The Secretary-General conducted visits to Bagdad and Erbil on 13 and 14 January, respectively, at which he urged senior Iraqi leaders to unite in tackling the security challenges and reiterated the importance of addressing the root causes of violence and unrest, including long-standing grievances and the unachieved political reconciliation. Despite the deteriorating security situation, preparations for the Council of Representatives elections scheduled for 30 April were on track. On 2 January, the Independent High Electoral Commission concluded its accreditation of political entities and coalitions for the elections with 718 candidates, including 224 women, running for 81 seats. In consultation with the Commission, UNAMI was expanding its electoral assistance capacity in Erbil and could cover Kirkuk if necessary, and continued to facilitate communication and the sharing of information with interested actors to encourage and strengthen observation for the electoral process by national entities. On 6 February, the Government of Iraq launched a national action plan to implement Council resolution 1325(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 1113] on women, peace and security, the first of its kind in the Middle East and North Africa.

The ongoing conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic had an adverse impact on the security, humanitarian and political situation in Iraq. The expanding campaign of ISIL prompted the Government of Iraq to call upon the international community to support the country's counter-terrorism efforts. On 15 January, the Prime Minister appealed to countries in the region to impede the financial transactions of ISIL. At the Second International Humanitarian Pledging Conference on Syria, held in Kuwait on 15 January, Iraq pledged a contribution of $13 million to assist Syrian refugees and internally displaced Syrians.

On 5 January, the Secretary-General appointed Jane Hall Lute as Special Adviser for the Relocation of Camp Hurriya Residents Outside of Iraq. On 28 January, the Government of Iraq approved a contribution of $500,000 to the United Nations trust fund for the relocation of camp residents outside Iraq.

The Secretary-General stressed the gravity of the political and security challenges in Iraq, which could have devastating and lasting implications for the country's long-term stability. He maintained that it was vital that democratic processes in Iraq prevail

despite the security challenges, and encouraged the political leadership to remain committed to holding the parliamentary elections throughout Iraq on 30 April. He also urged the Government of Iraq and the Kurdistan Regional Government to intensify their efforts to negotiate an agreement on all outstanding issues, including oil exports and a budget, and to formalize draft laws on hydrocarbons and revenue-sharing. The humanitarian situation in Anbar was of serious concern, as residents were caught up in the fighting and more than 360,000 people had been displaced. Furthermore, the Secretary-General urged the Government of Iraq, in collaboration with local authorities, to facilitate the formation of safe-access corridors to enable the provision of humanitarian assistance to residents. The Secretary-General expressed support for Iraq's fight against terrorism and appealed to national and local institutions and actors to forge an effective partnership in restoring law and order in Anbar and to stem the spread of violence to other parts of the country. The Government of Iraq was encouraged to exercise restraint in carrying out military operations and federal and local actors were urged to do everything possible to protect civilians in accordance with international humanitarian and human rights law. Members of the international community were called on to support the efforts of Iraq to stem the spread of terrorism, in compliance with the provisions of the United Nations Global Counter-Terrorism Strategy. The Secretary-General was disappointed about the continued absence of a status-of-mission agreement and reiterated his call for the support of the Government of Iraq in ensuring the finalization, signing and entry into force of the status-of-mission agreement for UNAMI without further delay.

Security Council consideration. On 27 March [S/PV.7149], the Council was briefed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and head of UNAMI, Nickolay Mladenov, who stated that as divisions continued to plague Iraqi politics, the ongoing conflict in Syria had added a regional dimension to sectarian tensions and was affording terrorist networks the occasion to forge links across the border and expand their support base. He further stressed that, while the United Nations would continue to support Iraq, the challenges ahead could not be resolved without dialogue and concessions.

Communications. By a 25 June letter [S/2014/440], Iraq wrote to the Secretary-General on military operations by ISIL in Mosul, Anbar and other areas of Iraq and requested urgent assistance from the international community.

By a 30 June letter [S/2014/457], Iraq reported on the looting of some of the project equipment and appliances by armed terrorists on 11 June, and of the Muthanna project, where remnants of the former chemical weapons programme were kept.

By an 8 July letter [S/2014/481], Iraq provided information with regard to the events in June that took place in the Governorate of Ninewa, and, in accordance with paragraph 2 of article V of the Convention on the Physical Protection of Nuclear Material, information that terrorist groups had seized control of nuclear material at the sites that came out of the control of the State and specifically at the University of Mosul.

Report of Secretary-General (July). In his third report [S/2014/485], submitted pursuant to Council resolution 2110(2013), the Secretary-General stated that the already precarious security situation in Iraq had worsened when ISIL and other armed elements took control of key cities and infrastructure in Iraq's north-western and north-central governorates, in particular in Ninewa, Salah al-Din, Anbar and Diyala provinces, causing significant civilian casualties and displacement and raising serious human rights concerns. Despite fragmentation in some of Iraq's main coalitions, a total of 9,043 registered candidates from 107 political entities and coalitions stood for the 328 seats in the Council of Representatives, compared with more than 6,000 candidates from 86 political entities and coalitions who stood for 325 seats in 2010. During the last week of electoral campaigning, covering the period from 1 to 29 April, there were intimidations and attacks on some candidates and campaign events, including an attack targeting a political rally in Baghdad on 25 April, which killed 35 and wounded 102. In accordance with the UNAMI mandate, the United Nations integrated electoral assistance team, continued to provide substantive advice and technical assistance to the Independent High Electoral Commission throughout the electoral process. Less than 1 per cent of polling stations failed to open for security reasons. Owing to the security situation, turnout rates were lowest in Anbar, Ninewa, Salah al-Din and Diyala governorates, averaging 54.5 per cent. On the other hand special voting saw a turnout of 77 per cent of eligible voters and 62 per cent of eligible voters cast their vote in the Council of Representatives elections. The overall turnout for the Governorate Council elections in the Kurdistan Region was 76 per cent. The Supreme Federal Court certified the final results on 16 June. The State of Law Coalition emerged as the largest parliamentary bloc, winning 92 (28 per cent) of the 328 seats in the Council of Representatives while the Ahrar, Nukhab and National Partnership Coalitions secured 34 seats (10 per cent); the Mouwaten Coalition won 28 seats (8 per cent); the Sunni coalitions Moutahidoun and Wataniya each obtained 22 seats (7 per cent); al-Arabiya gained 10 seats (3 per cent); two major Kurdish parties, the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan and the Kurdistan Democratic Party, each won 19 seats (6 per cent); Gorran won 9 seats (3 per cent); and the remaining 73 seats (22 per cent) went to more than 20 other coalitions and parties, including eight quota seats allocated to the Christian, Shabak and Turkmen minorities. On 1 July, the Council of Representatives held its inaugural session where 255 of the 328 newly elected Representatives attended. On 22 May, the Independent High Electoral Commission announced the provisional results for the Governorate Council elections in the Kurdistan Region. On 20 May, the Parliament re-elected Nechirvan Barzani of the Kurdistan Democratic Party as Kurdistan Region Prime Minister and voted for Qubad Talabani of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan as Deputy Prime Minister. The new Kurdistan Region Council of Ministers was sworn in on 18 June.

The security situation in Iraq's west and north-western governorates, in particular Anbar and Ninewa, continued to pose a threat to the country's stability. The governorates worst affected by violence were Baghdad, Ninewa, Salah al-Din, Diyala, Kirkuk, Babil and Wasit. On 1 July, UNAMI reported that in June alone, at least 2,417 people had been killed and 2,287 injured in Iraq. In Anbar, ISIL and other armed groups continued to engage in heavy fighting with Iraqi security forces in the Fallujah-Ramadi corridor. Although Iraqi security forces regained control of central Ramadi, Fallujah continued to remain largely in the hands of insurgents. In June, ISIL-led armed elements launched attacks in Samarra, Mosul, Baquba and Ramadi, which resulted in their taking control of several major cities, including Mosul, Tikrit and Haditha, as well as key infrastructure. More than half a million Iraqis had been internally displaced by the new wave of violence.

Iraq continued to face the challenge of the pending adoption of its national budget for 2014, more than six months into the financial year, owing to disagreements between the central Government and the Kurdistan Regional Government over provisions in the budget bill relating to oil export sales targets. On 22 May, the Kurdistan Regional Government announced that it had commenced oil exports through the Ceyhan pipeline into Turkey, independently of the Iraqi State Oil Marketing Organization.

The conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic continued to impact Iraq, with a flow of militants, weapons and supplies across the Iraqi-Syrian border. Cross-border activities by ISIL had led to at least one major attack by Iraqi security forces inside Syrian territory. The advances by ISIL following the takeover of Mosul on 9 June resulted in the capture by armed groups of the Al Qaim and Al Rabiya border crossings between Syria and Iraq.

During the reporting period, Iraq and the Islamic Republic of Iran enhanced their cooperation on judicial and economic matters. The Iranian Minister of Justice visit to Baghdad on 8 April was followed by a visit to Iran by Iraq's Chief Justice, Medhat al-Mahmoud, on 17 April, whereby memorandum of understanding on the implementation of the last of a series of judicial agreements between the two countries was signed. On 11 May, the Deputy Prime Minister and the Acting Minister of Finance held discussions with Iranian counterparts and signed several economic cooperation instruments, including a bilateral protocol for economic and investment cooperation.

Communities in Iraq continued to suffer from acts of violence and insecurity based on their ethnic and religious affiliations, particularly members of the Turkmen, Yazidi, Shabak and Christian communities. On 1 April, the Council of Ministers approved the National Strategy for the Advancement of Women (2014–2018), complementing the national action plan on Security Council resolution 1325(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 1113], which was launched by the Government in February.

UNAMI continued to monitor the human rights and humanitarian situation of the residents of Camp Hurriya and to facilitate solutions to camp management issues between the Government of Iraq and the residents' representatives. On 23 April, the Government of Iraq completed the installation of 1,488 large "T-walls" around 15 assembly areas within Camp Hurriya to increase residents' security. A meeting was held in Geneva on 26 June, under the auspices of Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the Secretary-General's Special Adviser for the Relocation of Camp Hurriya Residents Outside of Iraq, to discuss relocation opportunities for Camp Hurriya residents, with some 20 Member States and several international organizations in attendance.

The Secretary-General expressed concern regarding the rapidly deteriorating security situation, where ISIL-led armed elements had taken control of large swathes of territory and called upon Member States, including Iraq's neighbours, to come together and support Iraq in its fight against terrorism. He observed that terrorists' use of water as a weapon, which had led to deliberate flooding and consequent displacement of people and destruction of property, presented a dangerous trend. The Secretary-General commended the Independent High Electoral Commission for having conducted the Council of Representatives elections with professionalism. He also outlined that the next steps towards an immediate and long-term solution should include a broad-based national security plan with explicit guidelines for cooperation between the Government of Iraq and the Kurdistan Regional Government; an action plan to address the threat posed by all armed groups, based on a comprehensive assessment of the armed groups that fought together with ISIL; a sustainable and inclusive political process with the speedy formation of a new government; and an equitable social policy to address the concerns of all communities.

Communication. By a 22 July letter [S/2014/523], Iraq transmitted to the Secretary-General a letter from the Deputy Prime Minister and acting Minister for Foreign Affairs of Iraq, conveying the wish of the Government of Iraq that the mandate of UNAMI be extended for a further period of one year.

Security Council consideration. On 23 July [S/PV.7224], the Security Council held a briefing, followed by consultations, on the situation in Iraq. In his briefing, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and head of UNAMI, Nickolay Mladenov, reported that ISIL was now in control of about one-third of the country, committing gross violations of human rights, including the persecution of ethnic and religious minorities. He further highlighted the importance of a political road map and a comprehensive vision for re-engaging all communities in the country's decision-making process, adding that the impasse between Baghdad and Erbil must be solved immediately.

On 30 July [meeting 7230], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2169(2014). The draft [S/2014/540] was submitted by the United States.

6. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Security Council every three months on the progress made towards the fulfilment of all the responsibilities of the Mission;

7. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 19 September [meeting 7271], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/20 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the newly formed Government of Iraq and calls upon the international community to support its efforts to strengthen further democratic institutions, to maintain security and combat terrorism and to create a safe, stable and prosperous future for the people of Iraq. The Council reaffirms its support for the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Iraq and reaffirms further the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations.

The Council underscores the need for all segments of the Iraqi population to participate in the political process and engage in political dialogue. The Council is encouraged by the Government of Iraq's commitment to resolve longstanding issues through an inclusive political process and consistent with the Iraqi Constitution and looks forward to implementation of this commitment through its new national agenda. The Council encourages Iraq's leaders to accelerate implementation of this agenda and national reconciliation to address the needs of Iraq's diverse communities.

The Council also urges Member States to work closely with the Government of Iraq to identify how best the international community can aid implementation of the new Iraqi agenda. The Council reaffirms its full support for the United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq in advising and assisting the Iraqi people and the Government of Iraq in strengthening democratic institutions and advancing inclusive political dialogue.

The Council strongly condemns attacks by terrorist organizations, including the terrorist organization operating under the name "Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant" and associated armed groups, in Iraq, the Syrian Arab Republic and Lebanon and emphasizes that this large-scale offensive poses a major threat to the region. The Council expresses again its deep outrage about all Iraqis as well as nationals of other States who have been killed, kidnapped, raped or tortured by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, as well as its recruitment and use of children. The Council stresses the need that those who have committed or are otherwise responsible for violations of international humanitarian law or violations or abuses of human rights in Iraq must be held accountable, noting that some of these acts may constitute war crimes and crimes against humanity. The Council stresses the need for those responsible for such violations of international humanitarian law or violations or abuses of human rights to be held to account, and calls upon the Government of Iraq and the international community to work towards ensuring that all perpetrators are brought to justice.

The Council welcomes the Government of Iraq's efforts, in association with local and regional authorities, to combat the terrorist threat facing all Iraqis, including members of its ethnic and religious minorities, notably Yezidis and Christians, and women from all communities who have been particularly targeted by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant.

The Council reaffirms that all parties, including Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, associated armed groups and other militias, must respect the human rights of the Iraqi people and abide by all applicable obligations under international humanitarian law, including those protecting the civilian population, by which both official Iraqi forces and Member States that assist them must also abide.

The Council also recognizes the steps taken to address the urgent humanitarian needs of those displaced by the current conflict. The Council calls for an intensification of these efforts by all parties and urges all Member States to continue to fund the United Nations humanitarian appeals.

The Council urges the international community, in accordance with international law, to further strengthen and expand support for the Government of Iraq as it fights Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and associated armed groups. The Council welcomes the International Conference on Peace and Security in Iraq that took place in Paris on 15 September 2014 and the summit-level meeting of the Council responding to the global threat posed by foreign terrorist fighters that is scheduled for 24 September 2014.

The Council stresses that terrorism can only be defeated by a sustained and comprehensive approach involving the active participation and collaboration of all States, as well as international and regional organizations, to impede, impair, isolate and incapacitate the terrorist threat.

The Council reiterates the urgent need to stop any direct or indirect trade in oil from Iraq involving Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant with the aim of putting an end to financing terrorism.

The Council supports Iraq's further economic, social, political and diplomatic integration into the region and the international community and calls upon regional States to engage more actively to facilitate this process. The Council recognizes that the situation that now exists in Iraq is significantly different from that which existed at the time of the adoption of resolution 661(1990), and further recognizes the importance of Iraq achieving international standing equal to that which it held prior to the adoption of resolution 661(1990).

The Council reiterates that no terrorist act can reverse the path toward peace, democracy and reconstruction in Iraq, which is supported by the people and the Government of Iraq and by the international community.

Communications. By a 20 September letter [S/2014/691], Iraq transmitted to the Secretary-General a letter from its Minister for Foreign Affairs reaffirming the substance of the letter dated 25 June, in which the international community was requested to support the effort to eradicate ISIL and restore stability to Iraq.

By a 23 September letter [S/2014/695] addressed to the Secretary-General, the United States referred to the letters from the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Iraq dated 25 June and 20 September concerning military attacks by ISIL coming out of safe havens in Syria against the Iraqi people; and informed that the United States had initiated military actions in the Syria to eliminate the ISIL threat in Iraq.

Report of Secretary-General (October). In his first report [S/2014/774], submitted pursuant to Council resolution 2169(2014) (see p. 457), the Secretary-General stated that the threat posed by ISIL had continued to undermine the stability and political dynamics of Iraq. The reporting period witnessed a new stage of political compromise and enhanced national dialogue. Following the inaugural session of the new Council of Representatives on 1 July, Iraqi political blocs embarked on 10 weeks of intense negotiations over the distribution of sovereign and ministerial positions in the Government, which led to the appointment of a new cabinet and the adoption of its ministerial programme on 8 September. The Council of Representatives elected Fuad Masum as the new President of the Republic on 24 July. On 9 September the Council of Ministers established a reconstruction fund to rebuild areas damaged by the conflict and military operations, and further agreed to compensate and facilitate the return home of displaced persons and prepare a national action plan. On 13 September, Prime Minister, Haider al-Abadi, announced the halting of shelling and airstrikes against civilian-populated areas and reiterated his commitment to the protection of civilians.

Relations between Baghdad and Erbil continued to face challenges. On 11 July, the Kurdistan Regional Government confirmed that Peshmerga forces had taken full control of oilfields in Kirkuk, which was subsequently condemned by the federal Ministry of Oil.

During the reporting period, ISIL continued to control large swathes of the Country. Between 2 and 7 August, ISIL launched a wave of attacks against Kurdish-controlled areas that resulted in the takeover of a number of towns and villages in the districts of Hamdaniya, Mosul, Sinjar, Shekhan, Tal Afar and Tal Kaif in Ninewa governorate, as well as, temporarily, of the town of Gwer in Makhmour district in Erbil governorate displacing approximately 200,000 people. Between 5 and 12 October, ISIL made further territorial gains in Anbar, and on 11 October, the Anbar Provincial Council requested the Government of Iraq to seek deployments of coalition ground forces to help in the fight against ISIL. The western governorates of Iraq remained largely under the control of ISIL and associated armed groups. At the request of the Government of Iraq, on 8 August the United States started launching targeted airstrikes against ISIL positions. In September and October, other coalition partners joined the air campaign against ISIL targets.

The Secretary-General visited Iraq on 24 July and met national political and religious leaders, including President Fuad Masum.

The armed conflict between the Iraqi security forces and ISIL continued to take a toll on the civilian population of Iraq. Between 11 July and 13 October, at least 3,677 civilians were killed and 5,816 wounded. UNAMI verified that systematic and widespread violations of international law had been perpetrated by ISIL and associated armed groups. Particularly affected were the Turkmen, Shabak, Christian, Yezidi, Sabaeen, Kaka'e, Faili Kurd and Shiite Arab communities. UNAMI had confirmed reports that up to 2,500 women and children had been abducted by ISIL.

Baghdad was rocked by attacks deliberately targeting civilians and public places, the deadliest of which occurred on 22 July, when a double suicide bombing in Baghdad killed at least 29 civilians and wounded 55. Iraq continued to execute persons sentenced to death; since the beginning of 2014, Iraq had carried out 60 executions, including of four men convicted on 16 July under the Anti-Terrorism Law.

As at 18 September, 3,160 residents of Camp Hurriya had been registered with UNHCR, and of those residents 2,733 continued to live in Camp Hurriya. As at 13 October, 395 individuals had been relocated outside Iraq. During the reporting period, the armed conflict continued to exacerbate the humanitarian situation, with over 1.8 million Iraqi citizens displaced since the beginning of 2014.

The Secretary-General urged the international community to extend its support to the new Government and welcomed the order given by the Prime Minister to suspend Iraqi airstrikes in civilian areas and urged the Iraqi authorities to uphold its commitment to the protection of civilians. He further welcomed the commitment of the Prime Minister to resolving the outstanding budgetary disputes between his Government and the Kurdistan Regional Government.

Security Council consideration. On 18 November [S/PV.7314], the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and head of UNAMI briefed the Security Council stating that the crisis in Iraq had been further aggravated by the unresolved political, social and economic problems of the country's difficult transition to democracy; by the lack of agreement on the full implementation of the Constitution; by stalled reforms and sectarian differences; and by the country's exposure to the broader regional and global rifts. He added that the Iraqi Government's security strategy to counter ISIL was predicated upon organizing, supporting and integrating local communities into a national system that would allow them to keep their homes safe from terrorism; on restructuring and empowering the armed forces to fight ISIL; on strengthening cooperation with the Peshmerga; and on working with the international coalition and Iraq's allies and neighbours.

Communication. By identical letters dated 25 November [S/2014/851], addressed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, the United Kingdom stated that, in accordance with Article 51 of the UN Charter, the United Kingdom was taking measures in support of the collective self-defence of Iraq as part of international efforts led by the United States. Those measures were in response to request for assistance by Iraq contained in the letter dated 20 September and to enable Iraqi forces to regain control of the borders of Iraq by striking ISIL sites and military strongholds in Syria.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/82], the Secretary-General stated the Government of Iraq had continued to deploy popular mobilization force volunteers and steadily gained the support of tribal fighters to join military operations in areas under ISIL control in Anbar, Ninewa, Diyala, Kirkuk and Salah al-Din governorates. On 6 November, the Government pledged to provide military and financial assistance to local leaders and tribal fighters to aid their fight against ISIL. Furthermore, as part of ongoing efforts to professionalize Iraq's military and security institutions, Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi issued an executive order on 12 November retiring a number of senior army officers while transferring others to new posts. On 28 November, the Minister of the Interior announced that responsibility for security in Baghdad would be transferred from the army to the police. On 30 November, Prime Minister al-Abadi informed the Council of Representatives that some 50,000 non-serving Iraqi army soldiers would be removed from the payroll as part of ongoing efforts to counter corruption.

On 1 December, the Prime Minister issued an executive order prohibiting arbitrary arrest and detention in Iraq, mandating the electronic registration of detainees, accelerating the release of detainees already ordered by the courts and criminalizing unlawful imprisonment, abductions and attacks against civilians in line with the Constitution. On 2 December, an agreement was reached between Baghdad and Erbil, covering energy exports, revenue-sharing and the federal bankrolling of Peshmerga salaries—marking a key achievement towards national reconciliation.

During the reporting period, the security situation in Iraq remained volatile, with fighting continuing between ISIL and associated armed groups on the one hand and Iraqi security forces, Peshmerga and allied tribal and volunteer fighters on the other. On 20 November, the Iraqi security forces liberated Sa'adiya district, northeast of Diyala, while on 23 November, Peshmerga forces liberated Jalawla, along Iraq's border with Iran. On 27 December, the Iraqi security forces, aided by volunteer fighters, liberated the village of Yathrib and broke ISIL's siege on the town of Dhuliyah. On 17 December, Peshmerga forces, aided by popular mobilization force volunteers, reportedly regained territory from ISIL in the foothill areas of Sinjar Mountain. Baghdad continued to be afflicted by acts of terrorism; the deadliest incident occurred in Sadr City on 4 December, when 21 civilians were killed and 69 were wounded in two vehicle-borne improvised explosive attacks.

At the international level, the anti-ISIL coalition held a ministerial-level meeting in Brussels on 3 December, at which the representatives of some 60 countries outlined their current and prospective efforts to help Iraq to eliminate the threat of ISIL. Participants welcomed the participation of the Iraqi delegation, headed by the Prime Minister, and expressed their commitment to implement Security Council resolutions 2170(2014) (see p. 131) and 2178(2014) (see p. 135), as well as other relevant decisions.

On 18 December, the Secretary-General's Special Representative travelled to Erbil to urge the Prime Minister of the Kurdistan Regional Government to build on the 2 December agreement and to work on resolving longstanding issues with Baghdad. For 2014, UNAMI recorded a total number of 35,408 civilian casualties (12,282 killed and 23,126 injured)—the worst experienced in Iraq since the violence of 2006–2007.

UNAMI

The United Nations Assistance Mission for Iraq (UNAMI), established by Security Council resolution 1500(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 346], continued to support the Secretary-General in fulfilling his mandate under Council resolution 1483(2003) [ibid., p. 338], as extended by resolution 1546(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 348] and as stipulated in resolution 2110(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 328]. The Special Representative to the Secretary-General and Head of UNAMI and his substantive, security and administrative support staff were based in Baghdad, with regional offices in Basra, Erbil and Kirkuk.

Financing

In an October report [A/69/363/Add.5], the Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly the proposed resource requirements for UNAMI for 2015, totalling $136,994,000 net, representing an overall increase of $687,600 compared with the appropriation for 2014. Taking into account the estimated overrun of $4,412,200 at the end of 2014, the additional amount being sought for the Mission amounted to $141,406,200. In a December report [A/69/628], the ACABQ recommended that the Assembly approve the requested resources, subject to its observations and recommendations.

On 29 December, the Assembly, in section IV of resolution 69/262 (see p. 1632), endorsed the conclusions and recommendations of ACABQ.

Post-Development Fund mechanism

The International Advisory and Monitoring Board (IAMB) for Iraq, established by Security Council resolution 1483(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 338] to ensure that the Development Fund for Iraq was used in a transparent manner for the benefit of the Iraqi people and that Iraqi export sales of petroleum products were consistent with international market best practices, concluded its work on 30 June 2011, in accordance with the transition to a post-Development Fund for Iraq mechanism as outlined in Council resolution 1956(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 371]. The Governing Council of the United Nations Compensation Commission took up the task of monitoring the developments following the expiration of the IAMB mandate and the transfer of the oversight of the control, reporting and use of Iraqi oil export revenues to the Iraqi Committee of Financial Experts, established in 2006 by the Council of Ministers [YUN 2007, p. 353].

Reports of Secretary-General. In response to Council resolution 1956(2010), the Secretary-General submitted his sixth report [S/2014/422] on the United Nations Compensation Fund, evaluating compliance with paragraph 21 of resolution 1483(2003) on Iraqi oil exports. The Governing Council of the Compensation Fund held its seventy-seventh session on 29 and 30 April, during which the Iraqi delegation reaffirmed Iraq's commitment to meeting its obligations under relevant Security Council resolutions. In its conclusion on the issue of arrangements for ensuring that payments were made to the Compensation Fund, the Governing Council expressed its continued satisfaction with the transfer of 5 per cent of Iraq's oil revenues and the equivalent 5 per cent of the value of non-monetary payments to the Compensation Fund. The average monthly income of the Compensation Fund for the year to date was approximately $353 million. Noting that Iraq was nearing the conclusion of the fulfilment of its obligations, with outstanding compensation projected to be paid in full in 2015, the Governing Council encouraged the Government of Iraq and the Kurdistan Regional Government to work together to ensure that Iraq continued to deposit 5 per cent of all export sales of petroleum, petroleum products and natural gas from Iraq into the Compensation Fund, as required under paragraph 3 of Council resolution 1956(2010). The overall amount of compensation paid to date by the Commission was $45.5 billion, leaving approximately $6.9 billion outstanding to be paid to Kuwait to settle the last remaining claim.

In his seventh report [S/2014/940], the Secretary-General informed that the Governing Council had held its seventy-eighth session on 2 and 3 October, during which the Governing Council expressed satisfaction with the transfer of 5 per cent of Iraq's oil revenues and the equivalent of 5 per cent of the value of non-monetary payments to the Compensation Fund, and expressed its appreciation to Iraq for its continued commitment, especially given the difficult security circumstances in the country. Subsequently, the Governing Council held a special session on 18 December to consider a request from Iraq for a temporary postponement of the deposits of oil proceeds into the Compensation Fund. Noting the security circumstances in Iraq and the budgetary challenges associated with confronting that issue, and welcoming Kuwait's support for a temporary postponement, the Governing Council adopted decision 272(2014) [S/AC.26 (dec.272 (2014))], in which it postponed until 1 January 2016 the requirement that Iraq deposit into the Compensation Fund 5 per cent of the proceeds from all export sales of petroleum, petroleum products and natural gas and 5 per cent of the value of any non-monetary payments of petroleum, petroleum products and natural gas made to service providers into the Compensation Fund. The average monthly income accruing to the Compensation Fund for the year to date was approximately $351.2 million, leaving approximately $4.6 billion outstanding to be paid to Kuwait to settle the last remaining claim.

UN Iraq escrow account

Following the termination of all activities under the United Nations oil-for-food programme [YUN 2003, p. 362], the United Nations retained responsibility for the administration and execution of letters of credit issued under the programme by the bank holding the UN Iraq Account, Banque Nationale de Paris Paribas, for purchasing humanitarian supplies for the south/centre of Iraq, until such letters were executed or expired, in accordance with Council resolution 1483(2003) [ibid., p. 338]. By resolution 1958(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 376], the Council requested the Secretary-General to take actions to terminate all residual activities under the oil-for-food programme, including establishing an escrow account retaining $20 million for the Organization's expenses terminating those activities and $131 million for providing indemnification to the United Nations, its representatives, agents and independent contractors until 31 December 2016. Pursuant to that resolution, $151 million was transferred from the old escrow accounts to the new escrow account in 2010. All residual activities under the programme were terminated and all remaining unencumbered funds were transferred to the Development Fund of Iraq.

Report of Secretary-General (March). Pursuant to Security Council resolution 1958(2010), the Secretary-General submitted his third report [S/2014/221] on the escrow account referenced in paragraphs 4 and 5 of that resolution. Expenditure in 2013 on administrative activities amounted to $850,978, including $594,849 for the activities related to the orderly termination of the residual activities of the "oil-for-food" programme; $207,119 for the Organization's support to Member State investigations and Member State proceedings related to the programme; and $49,010 for the office of the High-level Coordinator created pursuant to resolution 1284(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 230]. No expenditure was incurred in relation to the Iraqi Government's obligation to indemnify the United Nations, its representatives, agents and independent contractors, as differences remained between the Government of Iraq and the Secretariat as to whether such obligations should be limited to the amount held in the indemnification escrow account; and whether they should expire and lapse on 31 December 2016. The Secretary-General noted that, as per resolution 1958(2010)—which called upon the Government of Iraq to provide direct payment to the beneficiaries or its representatives of the letters of credit as referred to in the note by the Secretary-General dated 8 December 2010 [YUN 2010, p. 375]—payments to certain beneficiaries remained outstanding. He urged the Government of Iraq to provide the payments without delay to those beneficiaries.

Report of Board of Auditors. In June, the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council the report [S/2014/535] of the Board of Auditors on the audit of the UN escrow (Iraq) account. The Board audited the financial statements of the escrow account established under the provisions of Council resolution 1958(2010) for 2013. The total income of the account for the year amounted to $1,107,000, while total expenditure amounted to $851,000 resulting in an excess of income over expenditure of $256,000. As at 31 December, total assets amounted to $151,897,000, while liabilities amounted to $115,000. Effective 1 July 2013, the UN Headquarters and the UN offices away from Headquarters cash pools were combined to form the main cash pool, with the escrow account participating. As at 31 December 2013, the main cash pool held total assets of $9,548.7 million, of which $151.7 million was due to the escrow account. The Board noted that it did not issue a long-form audit report for the period, as there were no material managerial issues to draw to the attention of the Security Council. It further noted that the two recommendations made for 2012 had been fully implemented.

Iraq-Kuwait

UN mediation of bilateral issues

In response to Security Council resolution 2107(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 334], the Secretary-General reported in 2014 on Iraq's compliance with its obligations concerning the issue of missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals and the repatriation of Kuwaiti property seized by Iraq during its occupation of Kuwait as at August 1990 [YUN 1990, p. 189]. During the reporting period, bilateral relations between Iraq and Kuwait were marked by steady progress.

Reports of Secretary-General. Pursuant to Council resolution 2107(2013), the Secretary-General submitted his second report [S/2014/191] on developments pertaining to the search for missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals and missing Kuwaiti property, including its national archives. The reporting period witnessed deepening ties between Iraq and Kuwait. The Secretary-General visited Iraq and Kuwait from 13 to 15 January. On 19 February, Iraq informed the Secretary-General that it had distributed approximately $1.4 million to compensate eligible beneficiaries, pursuant to the agreement between the Government of Iraq and the United Nations, signed in Baghdad on 26 May 2013, and pursuant to Council resolution 899(1994) [YUN 1994, p. 460]. The Deputy Special Representative for Political Affairs at UNAMI attended in an observer capacity the meetings of the Iraqi interministerial committee for missing Kuwaiti nationals, under the auspices of the Ministry of Human Rights. The Technical Subcommittee and the Tripartite Commission met in Kuwait on 28 and 30 January, respectively. A specialized team from the Ministry of Human Rights dug trenches between Muthanna and al-Salman in January, as well as close to the location of former sites where remains were found in 2003 and 2004. Additionally, in February, Iraq undertook an exploratory mission to locate a fourth site in the al-Tamur area in Karbala Governorate and collect coordinates based on the information provided by a witness. The Kuwaiti National Committee for Missing Persons and Prisoners of War Affairs used the genetic materials received from an excavation in Muthanna Governorate to verify DNA profiles in the missing persons database; however, no positive matches were yielded. With regard to the return of Kuwaiti property, on 13 January, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Kuwait responded to a request for assistance in ascertaining the authenticity and ownership of two paintings with the seal of Kuwait found in December 2013, stating that they had to be examined by the Kuwaiti National Council for Culture and Arts.

Observing that no Kuwaiti remains had been found since 2004, the Secretary-General urged Iraqi authorities to redouble their efforts and to explore all possible incentives to persuade witnesses and informants to come forward. He further noted that the Tripartite Commission and its Technical Subcommittee had been helpful in addressing the issue of missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals, and commended the steering role of the International Committee of the Red Cross. The Secretary-General expressed disappointment that no tangible progress had been achieved, with respect to the Kuwaiti national archives, and urged the Government of Iraq to bring innovative methods to their search. He was pleased that the Iraqi interministerial committee had been convening to coordinate the search for missing Kuwaiti property, and called on both the Iraqi and Kuwaiti committees on property to work closely and meet together on a regular basis.

In his third report [S/2014/480], the Secretary-General stated the legal obstacles to Kuwait's repossession of its consular premises in Basra were expected to be resolved as the current occupant had agreed to move out, thereby allowing Kuwait to reopen its consulate. The reporting period also witnessed continuing enhancement of bilateral relations between Iraq and Kuwait. The Secretary-General's Deputy Special Representative for Political Affairs at UNAMI held meetings in Baghdad with relevant Iraqi interlocutors throughout the reporting period, and carried out his quarterly visit to Kuwait on 9 June. The Secretary-General's Special Representative met with the Chairman and members of the National Committee for Missing Persons and Prisoners of War Affairs, on 17 March, whereby the Committee expressed its wish for Iraq to take full ownership of the humanitarian dossier, as well as its appreciation for the role of UNAMI. On 19 March, the Special Representative met Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki and debriefed him on his visit to Kuwait, during which the Prime Minister underlined the missing persons issue as a humanitarian matter, and assured that Iraq would make all resources available in the search for missing Kuwaiti persons and property and the national archives. The Iraqi interministerial committee on missing Kuwaiti nationals convened on 25 March and 13 May, under the auspices of the Ministry of Human Rights. The Secretary-General further reported that on 2 June, his Deputy Special Representative facilitated a meeting between Arkan Saleh and Duncan Spinner, head of the Iraqi operations of the International Commission on Missing Persons, an organization with experience in finding human remains in post-conflict settings. At his meetings with both Iraqi and Kuwait interlocutors, the Deputy Special Representative stressed that the use of science and technology and other innovative but cost-effective methods could be helpful in the search for the missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals. In March and May, a specialized team of the Ministry of Human Rights dug trenches in the Ain al-Tamur area in the Karbala Governorate. Additionally, a specialized team of the Ministries of Human Rights and Defence and the Medico-Legal Institute conducted exploratory and excavation works in Muthanna Governorate in June. No human remains were found at any of the locations.

On 8 June, the Deputy Special Representative observed a meeting of the Iraq-Kuwait joint interministerial committee on missing Kuwaiti property—the second of its kind since 15 May 2013—at which both sides agreed to meet on a biannual basis. He also observed the official handover of Kuwaiti artefacts and co-signed the inventory of items. The Secretary-General noted that tens of thousands of Iraqis and more than 300 Kuwaitis and third-country nationals remained unaccounted for from the pre-2003 decades, and, therefore, urged Iraq to take advantage of any available cost-effective modern technology to address this humanitarian issue and strive for concrete results. The Secretary-General stated that UNAMI would continue to provide its full assistance to promote, support and facilitate Iraqi efforts and that the Tripartite Commission and its Technical Subcommittee and the steering role of the International Committee of the Red Cross remained central in addressing the issue of missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals. He, however, remained disappointed that no evidence or information had emerged that would indicate the whereabouts of Kuwait's national archives, and thus urged the Iraqi interministerial committee coordinating the search for missing Kuwaiti property, including the national archives, to meet more frequently and to take advantage of the assistance of UNAMI.

In his fourth report [S/2014/776], the Secretary-General stated that the reporting period had witnessed steady progress in the enhancement of bilateral relations between Iraq and Kuwait. In July, Kuwait contributed $10 million to the United Nations humanitarian response in Iraq. The formation of the new Government in Iraq in September was warmly welcomed by Kuwait. Also in September, Kuwait participated in a number of international and regional initiatives aimed at supporting Iraq in its efforts to counter the threat of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), including the meeting hosted by Saudi Arabia, held in Jeddah on 11 September, and the International Conference on Peace and Security in Iraq, jointly hosted by France and Iraq, held in Paris on 15 September.

On 25 September, the Prime Minister of Iraq met the Prime Minister of Kuwait, in New York, and reiterated the desire of Iraq to continue building positive relations with Kuwait. During the reporting period, the Government of Iraq showed that it was resolved to obtain progress on the dossier by continuing to search for missing Kuwaiti and third-country nationals, in spite of a rapid deterioration in the security situation across the country. The Deputy Special Representative for Political Affairs continued to carry out his responsibilities under Council resolution 2107(2013). In Iraq, he met the Minister for Human Rights, the head of the interministerial committee on missing Kuwaiti property, including the national archives, the head of the Iraq programme of the International Commission on Missing Persons and the Kurdistan Regional Government authorities to assess progress and explore new avenues to advance the dossier; and, in September, he undertook his quarterly visit to Kuwait. On 22 October, the Tripartite Commission formally accepted the offer of UNAMI to serve as an observer to the tripartite mechanism. The Secretary-General further reported that, in August, the Iraqi interministerial committee on missing Kuwaiti nationals convened under the auspices of the Ministry of Human Rights to assess progress in the search for information on burial sites and in contacting witnesses and informants. Also in August, officials of the Ministry of Human Rights met with academics from Iraqi universities to discuss the geological scanning of grave sites and the possibility of using new technologies; and a specialized team of the Ministry of Human Rights carried out an exploratory and excavation operation in the Arabian Gulf Academy in Basra governorate, though no human remains were found. Furthermore, in September, an Iraqi witness travelled to Kuwait and identified the location where Kuwaiti military personnel had presumably been buried near the Kuwait naval base; the site was dug up, but nothing was found.

The Secretary-General hoped that the new Government of Iraq would continue to expand bilateral relations with Kuwait and enhance cooperation with relevant authorities in search of missing Kuwaiti persons and property. He urged Iraq to take advantage of assistance from Iraqi academics and to make use of new forensic and geological exploration techniques and infrastructure. He further urged the Iraqi interministerial committee on missing Kuwaiti property, including the national archives, to consider the suggestions of UNAMI on running special information campaigns exclusively for the archives.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/70], the Secretary-General remarked that bilateral relations between Iraq and Kuwait were marked by significant positive developments. Goodwill between the countries was further evidenced when Kuwait supported the request made by Iraq that the Governing Council of the United Nations Compensation Commission agree to a deferral of the requirement that Iraq deposit 5 per cent of oil proceeds into the Compensation Fund pursuant to paragraph 21 of Council resolution 1483(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 338]. In December, the Governing Council adopted its decision 272 (2014), by which it postponed, until 1 January 2016, the payment of the remaining $4.6 billion in reparation owed to Kuwait. On 21 December, the Prime Minister of Iraq visited Kuwait and met with Emir Sabah al-Sabah and Crown Prince Nawaf al-Sabah, as well as the Prime Minister of Kuwait, to discuss the common threat of terrorism. On 28 and 29 December, the fourth meeting of the Joint Ministerial Committee was held in Baghdad, at which Iraq and Kuwait signed key agreements and memorandums of understanding, including on bilateral security cooperation, navigation and trade relations. Kuwait further announced the opening of consulates in Basra and Erbil and agreed to facilitate the entry of diplomatic passport holders and all other travellers from Iraq. The Secretary-General also reported on activities in November, including, the visit of his Special Representative for Iraq to Kuwait; the establishment of joint committees to work on identifying potential grave sites by the Minister for Human Rights of Iraq; the meeting of the Iraqi interministerial committee on missing Kuwaiti nationals to review progress and to discuss practicalities linked to witnesses; and the publishing, by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Iraq, of quarter-page advertisements on missing Kuwaiti persons and property. Following the Tripartite Commission decision to grant UNAMI observer status, the Deputy Special Representative led an UNAMI delegation to Kuwait to attend the bimonthly meeting of the Commission's Technical Subcommittee, held on 19 November.

On 29 December, by decision 69/554, the General Assembly decided that the item on the “Consequences of the Iraqi occupation of and aggression against Kuwait” would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

UN Compensation Commission and Fund

The United Nations Compensation Commission, established in 1991 [YUN 1991, p. 195] for the resolution and payment of claims against Iraq for losses and damages resulting from its 1990 invasion and occupation of Kuwait [YUN 1990, p. 189], continued in 2014 to expedite the settlement of claims through the United Nations Compensation Fund, which was established at the same time as the Commission. Under Security Council resolution 1483(2003) [YUN 2003, p. 338], and reaffirmed in subsequent resolutions, most recently resolution 1956(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 371], the Fund received 5 per cent of the proceeds generated by export sales of Iraqi petroleum, petroleum products and natural gas.

During 2014, the Commission paid out $1.3 billion to Kuwait on 23 January; $990 million on 24 April; $1.19 billion on 24 July; and $1.06 billion on 23 October, all in respect of the only remaining claim with an outstanding award balance. As at the end of October, the Commission had paid out $47.8 billion, leaving approximately $4.6 billion remaining to be paid to the only outstanding claim.

Governing Council. The Commission’s Governing Council held two sessions in Geneva in 2014—the seventy-seventh (29 and 30 April) [S/2014/344] and seventy-eighth (2 and 3 October) [S/2014/734]—at which it considered, among other matters, Iraq’s continued contributions to the Compensation Fund in connection with its oil revenues; the conclusion of the Follow-up Programme for Environmental Awards; ensuring the orderly wind-down of the Commission; Iraq’s request for a copy of the archives of the Compensation Commission; ongoing audit activities in relation to the Commission undertaken by both the Board of Auditors and the Office of Internal Oversight Services; and the interim expenditure report for 2014 and approved budget for 2015. The Council reported that Jordan had been elected as one of the Vice-Presidents of the Governing Council, to replace Morocco, which held the vice-presidency for the period 2012–2013. It further reported that the Commission remained on track to pay the outstanding balance in full towards the end of 2015.

The Governing Council held a fourteenth special session on 18 December [S/2014/961] to consider the request made by Iraq for a temporary postponement of the requirement under Security Council resolution 1956(2010) that Iraq deposit 5 per cent of the proceeds from all export sales of petroleum, petroleum products and natural gas and 5 per cent of the value of any non-monetary payments of petroleum, petroleum products and natural gas made to service providers, into the Compensation Fund. The Council had been expecting the outstanding balance of $4.6 billion owed to Kuwait to be paid in full by the end of 2015, thereby concluding the mandate of the Compensation Commission. In considering the request of Iraq, however, Governing Council members recognized that the country was facing a challenging and costly security crisis and expressed their solidarity with it. The Council adopted decision 272 (2014), whereby it postponed until 1 January 2016 the requirement that Iraq deposit 5 per cent of oil proceeds and 5 per cent of the value of any non-monetary payments to service providers into the Compensation Fund. Quarterly payments towards the outstanding awards would resume in 2016 in accordance with Governing Council decision 267 (2009) [YUN 2009, p. 376]. In response to a request from Iraq, the Council agreed that deposits made by Iraq into the Compensation Fund since 1 October 2014 be returned to the Government of Iraq.

Report of Board of Auditors. In July, the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council the report [S/2014/538] of the Board of Auditors on the financial statements of the United Nations Compensation Commission for the biennium ended 31 December 2013. During the biennium a total of $9.1 billion was paid, compared with $6.1 billion for the previous biennium. As at 31 December 2013, the outstanding balance was $8.9 billion. The Commission had estimated that it should receive sufficient receipts from oil proceeds to discharge the remaining $8.9 billion compensation award to Kuwait during 2015. During 2013, the Follow-up Programme for Environmental Awards was concluded and the withheld funds were released. During the Programme, Kuwait had received fifteen awards totalling $3.03 billion. The Board concluded that with payment of the remaining outstanding award expected in 2015 and the conclusion of the Follow-up Programme for Environmental Awards, the Commission was approaching the completion of its mandate. The Board recommended, among other things, that the Compensation Commission continue to monitor the projected completion date for compensation payments to Kuwait and establish a formal liquidation plan for the orderly winding-up of its activities for approval by the Governing Council.

Timor-Leste

The United Nations Mission in East Timor (UNAMET) was established by Security Council resolution 1246(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 283] to conduct the 1999 popular consultation to ascertain the East Timorese people’s will on the future status of East Timor [ibid., p. 288]. Its mandate ended on 30 November 1999, in accordance with resolution 1262(1999) [ibid., p. 287].

On 15 September, by decision 68/666, the General Assembly decided to defer consideration of the item on the financing of UNAMET and to include it in the draft agenda of its sixty-ninth (2015) session.

On 29 December, by decision 69/554, the Assembly decided that the item on the financing of UNAMET would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

UNMIT

The United Nations Integrated Mission in Timor-Leste (UNMIT) was established by Security Council resolution 1704(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 422] to support the Government in consolidating stability, enhancing a culture of democratic governance and facilitating political dialogue; ensure the maintenance of public security; assist the Government in reviewing the role and needs of the security sector; strengthen capacity for promoting human rights, justice and reconciliation; and assist in implementing the Secretary-General's recommendations on justice and reconciliation. UNMIT completed its mandate on 31 December 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 339]. On 1 January 2013, the Mission commenced its administrative liquidation.

Financing

In June, the Assembly had before it the report [A/68/607] of the Secretary-General on the budget performance of UNMIT for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013. The total expenditures for the maintenance and liquidation of the Mission for 2012/13 amounted to $101,603,400 gross, compared to $101,604,900 gross appropriated under the terms of General Assembly resolution 67/245 B [YUN 2013, p. 337], representing an implementation rate of 100 per cent in terms of gross resource utilization. The Assembly also had before it the related report [A/68/782/Add.2] of the ACABQ, which made observations and recommended the approval of the Secretary-General's proposed actions. By resolution 68/288 (see below), the Assembly endorsed the conclusions and recommendations contained in the ACABQ report and decided to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth (2015) session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Integrated Mission in Timor-Leste".

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/919], adopted resolution 68/288 without vote [agenda item 154].

Democratic People's Republic of Korea

In 2014, the United Nations continued to address the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) and related issues. The Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1718(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 444], supported by the Panel of Experts, continued to carry out its mandate to oversee the implementation of the sanctions measures related to the DPRK. By resolution 2141(2014) (see below), the mandate of the Panel of Experts was extended until 5 April 2015.

Non-proliferation

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 5 March [meeting 7126], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2141(2014). The draft [S/2014/148] was submitted by the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its previous relevant resolutions, including resolutions 825(1993) of 11 May 1993, 1540(2004) of 28 April 2004, 1695(2006) of 15 July 2006, 1718(2006) of 14 October 2006, 1874(2009) of 12 June 2009, 1887(2009) of 24 September 2009, 1928(2010) of 7 June 2010, 1985(2011) of 10 June 2011, 2050(2012) of 12 June 2012, 2087(2013) of 22 January 2013 and 2094(2013) of 7 March 2013, as well as the statements by its President of 6 October 2006, 13 April 2009 and 16 April 2012,

Emphasizing, in that regard, the importance of credible, fact-based, independent assessments, analysis and recommendations, in accordance with the mandate of the Panel of Experts, as specified in paragraph 26 of resolution 1874(2009),

Determining that the proliferation of nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, as well as their means of delivery, continues to constitute a threat to international peace and security,

Acting under Article 41 of Chapter VII of the Charter of the United Nations,

1. Decides to extend until 5 April 2015 the mandate of the Panel of Experts on the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, as specified in paragraph 26 of resolution 1874(2009) and modified in paragraph 29 of resolution 2094(2013), expresses its intent to review the mandate and take appropriate action regarding further extension no later than 5 March 2015, and requests the Secretary-General to take the necessary administrative measures to this effect;

2. Requests the Panel of Experts to provide to the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1718(2006), no later than 5 August 2014, a midterm report on its work, and further requests that, after a discussion with the Committee, the Panel submit to the Council its midterm report by 5 September 2014, and also requests a final report to the Committee no later than 5 February 2015 with its findings and recommendations, and further requests that, after a discussion with the Committee, the Panel submit to the Council its final report no later than 5 March 2015;

6. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Communications. By a 7 March letter [S/2014/159], the DPRK transmitted to the Security Council a 5 March statement made by the spokesman for the Strategic Force of the Korean People's Army of the DPRK with regard to statements made by the United States over rocket-launch drills conducted by the Strategic Force.

By a 31 March letter [S/2014/237], the DPRK transmitted to the Council a statement, dated 30 March, of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the DPRK with regard to the Security Council's denouncement of DPRK rocket launch exercises.

By a 21 July letter [S/2014/512], the DPRK transmitted to the Council two statements dated 19 and 20 July, one released by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the other made by a spokesperson for the Policy Department of the National Defence Commission, presenting the position of the DPRK on missile launches and self-defence measures.

IAEA report

In September, the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Director General submitted to the IAEA Board of Governors and the General Conference a report on the application of safeguards in the DPRK [GOV/2014/42-GC(58)/21]. The Agency remained unable to carry out verification activities in the DPRK in connection with the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT). Consequently its knowledge of the nuclear programme of the DPRK remained limited. The Agency continued to monitor, mainly through satellite imagery, developments at the Yongbyon site, since the Director General's previous report, where it had observed on-going renovation and new construction activities at various locations within the site. Although the purpose of such activities could not be determined through satellite imagery alone, they appeared to be broadly consistent with the statements made by the DPRK that it was further developing its nuclear capabilities. External work on the building that in 2010 was stated to be a future 100 MW(th) light water reactor appeared to have been completed as at June 2013. The Agency had observed little further activity on the site, with no indication of the delivery or installation of major reactor components. Without access to the site, IAEA was unable to assess the reactor's design features or likely date of completion. Since late August 2013, IAEA had observed, through analysis of satellite imagery, steam discharges and the outflow of cooling water at the 5 MW(e) reactor, signatures which were consistent with the reactor's operation; however, it could not confirm the reactor's operational status because the Agency had no access to the reactor since April 2009. During March 2013, the DPRK had begun the construction of an extension to the building housing the reported centrifuge enrichment facility within the Yongbyon Nuclear Fuel Rod Fabrication Plant. Throughout the period covered by the report, the Agency had observed through satellite imagery further renovations to the reported centrifuge enrichment facility, including the installation of support structures. Without access to the site, IAEA could not confirm the purpose of those activities and remained unable to determine its configuration or operational status.

Sanctions Committee

In 2014, the Security Council Committee established by resolution 1718(2006) on the DPRK carried out its mandate to oversee the implementation of the sanctions measures in that resolution, which included an arms embargo; a nuclear, ballistic missiles and other weapons of mass destruction programmes-related embargo; and a travel ban and/or an assets freeze on designated persons and entities. By resolution 1874(2009) [YUN 2009, p. 384], the Council imposed additional measures—including an expansion of the embargo on arms and related materiel and technology, as well as financial measures to include a ban on financial transactions, technical training, advice, services or assistance related to such arms and materiel—and established a Panel of Experts to carry out certain tasks under the Committee's direction. In response to the launch using ballistic missile technology in December 2012 and the nuclear test of February 2013, the Council, by resolutions 2087(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 338] and 2094(2013) [ibid., p. 340], strengthened the existing sanctions regime in several areas including extending the list of prohibited items; designating additional entities and individuals; broadening the designation criteria; broadening the financial sanctions; strengthening inspection, seizure and disposal of cargo originating from, destined for or brokered by the DPRK; calling upon States to deny take-off, landing or overflight requests to any aircraft they had reason to believe was carrying prohibited items; and establishing a baseline definition of luxury goods.

By resolution 2141(2014) (see p. 468), the Council extended the mandate of the Panel of Experts until 5 April 2015. The Panel consisted of eight experts appointed by the Secretary-General on 4 April [S/2014/248]. In August [S/2014/569] and September [S/2014/643 & S/2014/710], the Secretary-General informed the Council of the replacement of three experts. The Panel submitted its final report in accordance with resolution 2094(2013) on 3 March [S/2014/147].

Committee reports. On 8 April [S/2014/253], the Chair of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1718(2006) transmitted to the Security Council the report of the Committee dated 2 April submitted in accordance with resolution 2094(2013) and presidential statement S/PRST/2012/13 [YUN 2012, p. 342]. The Council directed the Committee to update on an annual basis the consolidated list of individuals and entities subject to the assets freeze and/or travel ban; and the items contained in the lists specified in paragraph 5 (b) of resolution 2087(2013) (nuclear-related items), as well as document S/2012/947 [YUN 2012, p. 342] (ballistic missile-related items). In line with the Security Council's directive, the Committee approved an update to the identifying information contained in the Committee's consolidated list of individuals and entities; and an update to the items contained in the lists specified in paragraph 5 (b) of resolution 2087(2013) and document S/2012/947.

On 17 December [S/2014/920], the Chair of the Committee transmitted to the Security Council the report covering the Committee's activities in 2014. The Committee held six informal consultations (24 January, 24 February, 10 April, 16 June, 3 September and 11 December). It also held an open briefing for Member States to share information about the work of the Committee and the Panel of Experts. Seven Member States reported to the Committee on the implementation of resolutions 1718(2006), 1874(2009), 2087(2013) and 2094(2013): Austria [S/AC.49/2014/2]; Denmark [S/AC.49/2014/6]; Jordan [S/AC.49/2014/3]; Mongolia [S/AC.49/2014/5]; Morocco [S/AC.49/2014/7]; the Philippines [S/AC.49/2014/4]; and the United Kingdom [S/AC.49/2014/1]. The Committee also received 29 reports of alleged violations concerning measures imposed by the Security Council. On 2 April, the Committee approved updates to the lists of items prohibited from export to and import from the DPRK. On 28 July, the Committee approved the addition of one entity to its sanctions list. On 2 April, 20 June and 30 July, the Committee approved updates, including on identifying information contained in the sanctions list. The Committee continued to be assisted by the Panel of Experts.

Report of Panel of Experts. On 3 March [S/2014/147], the Coordinator of the Panel of Experts transmitted to the Security Council its final report in accordance with resolution 2094(2013) and document S/2013/186. The Panel stated that during the period under review, there had been no signs that the DPRK intended to respond to the Council's calls to abandon its nuclear, ballistic missile and other weapons of mass destruction programmes. The DPRK persisted with its arms trade and other prohibited activities in defiance of Security Council resolutions and continued activities related to its nuclear and ballistic missile programmes. The Panel did not view new measures as necessary in order to further slow the prohibited programmes of the DPRK, to dissuade it from engaging in proliferation activities or to halt its trade in arms and related materiel. Rather, the Panel believed Member States already had adequate tools at their disposal. The Panel, however, stated that overall implementation of existing sanctions should be improved. The DPRK was experienced in evading sanctions and thus presented a challenge to Member States. From the incidents analysed in the period under review, the Panel had found that the DPRK made increasing use of multiple and tiered circumvention techniques, whilst other incidents showed that the DPRK remained dependent on foreign procurement for certain items. The Panel made several recommendations, including that Member States exercise due vigilance on export to the DPRK of pilger milling machines and their mandrels, dies and lubricants for zirconium alloy tubes production, as well as ultrasonic test equipment for inspection; that Member States supply to the Committee and the Panel information at their disposal regarding non-compliance with the resolutions; that Member States report promptly to the Committee on all instances of inspections of cargo to, from or brokered by the DPRK, even when no prohibited items had been found; and that the Committee, with the assistance of the Panel, issue an Implementation Assistance Notice to remind Member States that the embargo on all arms and related materiel encompassed services or assistance related to the provision, manufacture, maintenance or use of arms or materiel.

Communication. By a 20 May letter [S/2014/360], Azerbaijan transmitted to the Secretary-General a letter dated 7 May to the Coordinator of the Panel of Experts established pursuant to Council resolution 1874(2009) which stated that all measures had been taken by Azerbaijan to enforce the respective provisions of Council resolutions 1718(2006), 1874(2009), 2087(2013) and 2094(2013).

By a 20 January letter [S/2014/37], the DPRK transmitted to the Security Council principled proposals to the South Korean authorities made by the National Defence Commission of the DPRK with regard to inter-Korean relations, as well as defending peace and security on the Korean peninsula and in the region.

By a 26 January letter [S/2014/53], the DPRK transmitted to the Council a 23 January letter by its National Defence Commission to the authorities, various political parties, social organizations and people of various circles of the Republic of Korea.

Iran

In 2014, the United Nations continued to address Iran's nuclear programme and the sanctions imposed by the Security Council in resolution 1737(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 436] and reinforced in further resolutions. The Committee established pursuant to resolution 1737(2006) worked to oversee the implementation of the sanctions regime, and was assisted by the Panel of Experts established in 2010 by Council resolution 1929(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 396]. In June, by resolution 2159(2014) (see p. 473), the Council extended the Panel's mandate until 9 July 2015.

Throughout the year, pursuant to Council resolution 1929(2010), the IAEA reported on the implementation of the NPT Safeguards Agreement and relevant provisions of Security Council resolutions in Iran.

Non-proliferation

IAEA reports

The Security Council had before it four reports by the IAEA Director General, submitted pursuant to Council resolution 1929(2010) regarding Iran's implementation of the 1974 NPT Safeguards Agreement between Iran and IAEA and relevant Council resolutions. In all four reports (see below), the Agency informed that it continued to verify the non-diversion of declared nuclear material at the nuclear facilities and locations outside facilities declared by Iran under its Safeguards Agreement; however, the Agency was not in a position to provide credible assurance about the absence of undeclared nuclear material and activities in Iran. The Agency also continued to undertake monitoring and verification in relation to the nuclear-related measures set out in the Joint Plan of Action (JPA), which took effect on 20 January. The Agency concluded that, contrary to the relevant resolutions of the Board of Governors and the Security Council, Iran had not suspended all of its enrichment related activities or its work on all heavy water related projects. Since 20 January, however, Iran had not produced UF₆ enriched above 5 per cent U-235 and all of its stock of UF₆ enriched up to 20 per cent U-235 had been further processed through downblending or conversion. Additionally, Iran had neither installed any major components at the IR-40 Reactor nor produced nuclear fuel assemblies for the IR-40 Reactor at the Fuel Manufacturing Plant (FMP), since the JPA took effect. The Agency remained concerned about the possible existence in Iran of undisclosed nuclear related activities involving military-related organizations, including activities related to the development of a nuclear payload for a missile. Iran had continued to provide the Agency with managed access to centrifuge assembly workshops, centrifuge rotor production workshops and storage facilities.

In March [S/2014/116 & GOV/2014/10], the IAEA Director General reported on developments since his November 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 347]. In response to the request by the E3+3 and Iran, the Agency began undertaking monitoring and verification in relation to the nuclear-related measures set out in the JPA, which took effect on 20 January. Pursuant to the Framework for Cooperation, technical meetings were held in Vienna (11 December 2013) and in Tehran (8 and 9 February 2014), at which Agency and Iranian officials reviewed progress on the implementation of the six initial practical measures and agreed on seven practical measures to be implemented by Iran during the next step of the JPA. The Agency confirmed that Iran had implemented the six initial practical measures within the specified three-month period. With regard to reprocessing activities, Iran had stated on 18 January that it would not engage in stages of reprocessing activities, or construction of a facility capable of reprocessing during the first step time-bound (six months). The Agency carried out inspection and design information verifications (DIVs) at the Tehran Research Reactor (TRR) and at the Molybdenum Iodine and Xenon Radioisotope Production (MIX) Facility on 9 and 10 February, respectively, and confirmed that there were no ongoing reprocessing related activities with respect to TRR, the MIX Facility and the other facilities to which the Agency had access in Iran. Regarding heavy water related projects, on 12 February, the Agency carried out a DIV at the IR-40 Reactor and observed that, since the Director General's previous report, none of the reactor's remaining major components had been installed. Iran had continued production of heavy water at the Heavy Water Production Plant. Although not under Agency safeguards, the plant was subject to managed access by the Agency on 8 December 2013. Regarding uranium conversion and fuel fabrication, on 10 and 12 February 2014, the Agency conducted a DIV and an inspection at FMP at Esfahan and verified that Iran had ceased the production of nuclear fuel assemblies using natural UO_2 for the IR-40 Reactor and that all of the fuel assemblies that had been produced previously remained at FMP. On 15 and 16 February, the Agency conducted a DIV and an inspection at the Fuel Plate Fabrication Plant (FPFP) during which it confirmed that the conversion of UF_6 enriched up to 20 per cent U-235 into U_3O_8 was ongoing and that there was no process line at the plant for the reconversion of oxides into UF_6 .

A June report [S/2014/391 & GOV/2014/28] stated that Iran had implemented the seven practical measures agreed with the Agency on 9 February. During technical meetings in Tehran (26 April and 12 May), the Agency put forward suggestions for practical measures to be implemented by Iran in relation to the Framework for Cooperation. At a technical meeting in Tehran on 20 May, the Agency and Iran agreed on five additional practical measures to be implemented by Iran during the next step by 25 August. Regarding reprocessing activities, the Agency carried out an inspection and a DIV at the MIX Facility and a DIV at TRR on 12 and 14 May, respectively, and confirmed that there were no ongoing reprocessing related activities at the facilities to which the Agency had access. The Agency also carried out a DIV at the IR-40 Reactor on 11 May and observed that none of the reactor's remaining major components had been installed. On uranium conversion and fuel fabrication, the Agency conducted a DIV and an inspection at FMP, on 10 and 11 May, and verified that Iran had continued its cessation of production of nuclear fuel assemblies using natural UO_2 for the IR-40 Reactor and that all of the fuel assemblies that had been produced previously remained at FMP. On 12 and 14 May, the Agency conducted a DIV and an inspection at FPFP, during which it confirmed that the conversion of UF_6 enriched up to 20 per cent U-235 into U_3O_8 was ongoing and that there was no process line at the plant for the reconversion of uranium oxides into UF_6 . Between 17 and 21 May, the Agency conducted a physical inventory verification (PIV) at the Uranium Conversion Facility, the results of which were being evaluated. On uranium conversion and fuel fabrication, the Agency conducted an inspection and a DIV at FMP, on 16 and 17 August, and verified that Iran had continued its cessation of production of nuclear fuel assemblies using natural UO_2 for the IR-40 Reactor and that all of the fuel assemblies that had been produced previously remained at FMP. On 18 and 19 August, the Agency conducted an inspection and a DIV at FPFP, during which it confirmed that there was no process line at the plant for the reconversion of uranium oxide into UF_6 .

A September report [S/2014/681 & GOV/2014/43] noted that during technical meetings in Tehran (16 and 17 August), Iranian and Agency officials discussed how to move ahead with the existing practical measures, including the five practical measures in the third step of the Framework for Cooperation agreed in May. The Agency confirmed that Iran had implemented three of the agreed five practical measures in the third step of the Framework for Cooperation, two of which were implemented after the agreed deadline of 25 August. Iran had begun discussions with the Agency on the other two practical measures at a technical meeting held in Tehran on 31 August. With regard to reprocessing activities, the Agency carried out a PIV and a DIV at TRR on 12 August, and a DIV at the MIX Facility on 13 August and confirmed that there were no ongoing reprocessing related activities with respect to TRR, the MIX Facility and the other facilities to which the Agency had access. Regarding heavy water related projects, the Agency carried out a DIV at the IR-40 Reactor on 11 August and observed that none of the reactor's remaining major components had been installed. Pursuant to one of the practical measures agreed in relation to the Framework for Cooperation, Iran concluded with the Agency a safeguards approach for the IR-40 Reactor on 31 August.

A November report [S/2014/837 & GOV/2014/58 & Corr.1] stated that during technical meetings in Tehran (7 October and 2 November), Iranian and Agency officials held discussions in relation to the implementation of the two practical measures agreed in May in the third step of the Framework for Cooperation that remained to be implemented, namely, those relating to the initiation of high explosives and to neutron transport calculations. At a 2 November meeting, Iran provided some explanation of related open source scientific publications; however, Iran had not provided any explanations that enabled the Agency to clarify outstanding practical measures, nor had it proposed any new practical measures in the next step of the Framework for Cooperation. On reprocessing activities, the agency carried out an inspection and a DIV at TRR on 6 October, and a DIV at the MIX Facility on 7 October, and confirmed that there were no ongoing reprocessing related activities with respect to TRR and the MIX Facility and at the other facilities to which the Agency had access. Regarding heavy water related projects, the Agency carried out a DIV at the IR-40 Reactor on 16 October and observed that none of the reactor's remaining major components had been installed. On uranium conversion and fuel fabrication, the Agency carried out a PIV and a DIV at FMP on 31 August and 1 September, the results of which were being evaluated. The Agency also conducted an inspection and a DIV at FMP on 14 October, and verified that Iran had continued its cessation of production of nuclear fuel assemblies using natural UO₂ for the IR-40 Reactor and that all of the fuel assemblies that had been produced previously remained at FMP. On 18 and 19 October, the Agency conducted an inspection and a DIV at FMP, during which it confirmed that there was no process line at the plant for the reconversion of uranium oxide into UF₆.

A later report [S/2015/159 & GOV/2015/15] noted that on 24 November the JPA, previously extended on 24 July until 24 November, had been further extended until 30 June 2015. The Agency would continue to undertake monitoring and verification in relation to the nuclear related measures set out in the Agreement.

Sanctions Committee

In 2014, the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1737(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 436] monitored the implementation of the embargo relating to Iran on proliferation-sensitive nuclear activities and the development of nuclear weapon delivery systems; the ban on the export and procurement of any arms and related materiel from Iran; financial and business restrictions; and an assets freeze and travel ban on designated individuals and entities. Those sanctions were renewed by resolutions 1747(2007) [YUN 2007, p. 374], 1803(2008) [YUN 2008, p. 409] and 1929(2010) [YUN 2010, p. 396].

The Committee was assisted by the Panel of Experts established pursuant to resolution 1929(2010) to carry out tasks under the direction of the Committee. By resolution 2159(2014) (see p. 473), the Council extended the Panel's mandate until 9 July 2015. The Panel's eight experts were appointed by the Secretary-General on 2 July [S/2014/464]. The Panel submitted its final report pursuant to resolution 2105(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 348] in June, and its midterm report pursuant to resolution 2159(2014) on 9 November 2013.

Committee report. The Chair of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1737(2006) transmitted to the Council the Committee's report [S/2014/932] covering its activities during 2014. During the year, the Committee met six times in informal consultations (20 January, 17 March, 2 and 23 June, 20 October and 8 December). The Committee approved a course of action for the six recommendations contained in the final report of the Panel of Experts for 2013 and authorized one exemption to the travel ban for a listed individual, allowing his participation in the IAEA General Conference. On 17 December, the Committee approved updates to its sanctions list. The Committee received one report [S/AC.50/2014/1] from Monaco on the implementation of resolutions 1803(2008) and 1929(2010).

Report of Panel of Experts. On 5 June [S/2014/394], pursuant to Security Council resolution 2105(2013), the Panel of Experts submitted the final report of its work over the period from 9 June 2013 to 8 June 2014, during which it held consultations with 32 Member States and undertook five inspection visits concerning reported incidents. The Joint Plan of Action (JPA) had established a six-month period ending 20 July in which Iran promised to take "voluntary measures" to begin to restore confidence in the peaceful nature of its nuclear programme. Although Council sanctions remained fully in place, during that period certain unilateral and multilateral sanctions were suspended, and some assets had been released; as at mid-April, Iran had received four instalments of $4.2 billion previously frozen abroad. The IAEA had reported that, to date, Iran had fulfilled its "voluntary measures" agreed to under the JPA. Nonetheless, some States had indicated to the Panel a degree of uncertainty, one source of which concerned the status of obligations regarding procurement related to uranium enrichment by Iran, should such activities be continued under a comprehensive solution. The Panel investigated more than two dozen cases involving alleged violations of resolution 1929(2010) and prior resolutions. The majority of incidents concerned the attempted procurement of dual-use items. The Panel reported that Iran had continued to engage in ballistic missile activities and had conducted a number of ballistic missile test launches over the past year in violation of resolution 1929(2010). Iran was also developing its launch capabilities: a new launch site near the city of Shahrud was identified. The Panel recommended that the Committee address a number of issues identified by the Panel as challenges to the effective implementation of sanctions including that, in the event of a comprehensive solution to the Iranian nuclear issue, States would require guidance regarding the status of Security Council sanctions contained in resolution 1929(2010) and previous resolutions, in particular with respect to nuclear-related procurement.

Yemen

Political and security developments

In 2014, the United Nations continued to support Yemen in its process of political transition. On 26 February, the Security Council adopted resolution 2140(2014) (see below), in which it welcomed the outcomes of the National Dialogue Conference and expressed strong support for completing the next steps of the transition. By the resolution, the Council established a sanctions regime of measures against individuals and entities engaging in or providing support for acts that threatened the peace, security or stability of Yemen. A Committee was therefore established to monitor the implementation of the freeze of financial assets and the travel ban on individuals or entities designated by the Committee. Despite the progress in Yemen's political transition, the country faced a deteriorating security situation in light of actions taken by the Houthis, and those who supported them, to undermine the political transition and the security of Yemen and the growing number of attacks carried out or sponsored by Al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula. The economic, security and social challenges confronting Yemen continued to leave many Yemenis in acute need of humanitarian assistance.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 August [meeting 7255], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/18 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the recent progress in Yemen's political transition, in line with the Gulf Cooperation Council initiative and implementation mechanism, including the recent meeting of the National Authority for Monitoring the Implementation of the National Dialogue Conference Outcomes held on 11 August 2014; and the economic reform agenda. The Security Council supports the President of Yemen, Mr. Abd Rabbuh Mansour Hadi, in his efforts to address the concerns of all parties within the framework of the National Dialogue Conference outcomes, urging the Yemeni authorities to expedite the process of reforms, including army and security sector reform.

The Council urges all the parties in Yemen to adhere to resolving their differences through dialogue and consultation, reject acts of violence to achieve political goals, refrain from provocation and fully abide by resolutions 2014(2011), 2051(2012) and 2140(2014). Furthermore, the Council calls upon all Member States to refrain from external interference which seeks to foment conflict and instability and instead to support the political transition.

The members of the Council note with concern that the Houthis and others continue to stoke the conflict in the north in an attempt to obstruct the political transition. The Council recalls that resolution 2140(2014) introduced targeted sanctions measures against individuals or entities engaging in or providing support for acts that threaten the peace, security or stability of Yemen. The Council supports the efforts of the Panel of Experts on Yemen in gathering and analysing information regarding the implementation of these measures, in particular incidents of undermining the political transition.

The Council expresses grave concern about the deterioration of the security situation in Yemen in the light of the action taken by the Houthis, led by Mr. Abdul Malik al-Houthi, and those who support them, to undermine the political transition and the security of Yemen. These actions include their escalating campaign to bring down the Government of Yemen; establishing camps in and around Sana'a; seeking to supplant the authority of the State by installing checkpoints on strategic routes into Sana'a; as well as ongoing fighting in Al Jawf. The Council calls upon all armed groups to refrain from any action which might exacerbate this already fragile situation.

The Council condemns the actions of Houthi forces commanded by Mr. Abdullah Yahya Al Hakim (Abu Ali al Hakim), who overran Amran, including the Yemeni Army Brigade headquarters, on 8 July 2014.

The Council calls upon the Houthis:

(a) To withdraw their forces from Amran and return Amran to Government of Yemen control;

(b) To cease all armed hostilities against the Government of Yemen in Al Jawf; and

(c) To remove the camps and dismantle the checkpoints they have erected in and around Sana'a.

The Council condemns the growing number of attacks carried out or sponsored by Al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula, and expresses its determination to address this threat in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and international law, including applicable human rights, refugee and humanitarian law, and, in this regard, through the Al-Qaida sanctions regime administered by the Security Council Committee pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) and 1989(2011), and reiterates its readiness, under the above-mentioned regime, to sanction further individuals, groups, undertakings and entities who do not cut off all ties to Al-Qaida and associated groups.

The Council stresses the need for an initial draft of the constitution to be passed to the National Authority review in a timely manner in order to conduct a referendum on the constitution without undue delay.

The Council reiterates its call for comprehensive, independent and impartial investigations, consistent with international standards, into alleged human rights violations and abuses in line with the outcomes of the National Dialogue Conference and the Gulf Cooperation Council initiative and implementation mechanism. The Security Council recalls its reference in resolution 2140(2014) to the early adoption of a law on transitional justice and national reconciliation.

The Council notes the formidable economic, security and social challenges confronting Yemen, which continue to leave many Yemenis in acute need of humanitarian assistance. It reaffirms the need to expedite economic reforms, which are a necessary part of achieving macroeconomic stability, fighting poverty and addressing the chronic humanitarian consequences of the crisis in a sustainable manner. It encourages rapid implementation of Government of Yemen plans to improve social protection, as well as urging the international community to support the humanitarian response plan, which remains underfunded. The Council also urges all parties to facilitate safe and unhindered access for humanitarian actors to reach people in need of humanitarian assistance. It also reaffirms the need for all parties to ensure the safety of civilians, including those receiving assistance, as well as the need to ensure the security of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel.

The Council remains closely engaged on the situation in Yemen and will continue to closely follow the next steps towards a peaceful political transition. In this regard, it welcomes the continued and coordinated efforts of the Gulf Cooperation Council, the Group of Ten Ambassadors, the Secretary-General's good offices, including through his Special Adviser on Yemen, Mr. Jamal Benomar, the wider diplomatic community and the next meeting of the Friends of Yemen that will take place on 24 September 2014 in New York. The Council underscores the need for continued international support for Yemen's political transition, including through the fulfilment of commitments made by donors to support Yemen.

Communication. By a 1 September letter [S/2014/685], the League of Arab States (LAS) transmitted to the Security Council the texts of the resolutions adopted by the LAS Council (Cairo, Egypt, 7 September), including a resolution concerning developments in the situation in Yemen.

Security Council press statement. On 23 September [SC/11578], the Security Council welcomed the signature of the Peace and National Partnership Agreement in Yemen, which built on the National Dialogue Conference outcomes and the Cooperation Council for the Arab States of the Gulf (GCC) Initiative and Implementation Mechanism, and supported the efforts of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Yemen in facilitating the signing and implementation of the agreement. The Council also called on all parties to implement all terms of the agreement in its entirety.

Communication. By a 27 October letter [S/2014/764], Kuwait transmitted to the Security Council, on behalf of the GCC, the position of the GCC States on Yemen.

Security Council press statement. On 8 November [SC/11638], the Council welcomed the formation of Yemen's new Government and urged all parties and political actors in Yemen to unite behind President Abdo Rabbo Mansour Hadi, Prime Minister Khaled Bahah and the new cabinet to keep the country on the path to stability and security.

Sanctions

The Committee established pursuant to Council resolution 2140(2014) (see p. 474) was mandated to oversee the implementation of the sanctions measures relating to Yemen, namely, an asset freeze and a travel ban. The measures applied to individuals or entities designated by the Committee as engaging in or providing support for acts that threatened the peace, security or stability of Yemen. Such acts included, but were not limited to, obstructing or undermining the successful completion of the political transition, as outlined in the GCC initiative and implementation mechanism agreement; impeding the implementation of the outcomes of the final report of the comprehensive National Dialogue Conference through violence, or attacks on essential infrastructure; or planning, directing or committing acts that violated applicable international human rights law or international humanitarian law, or acts that constituted human rights abuses, in Yemen. The Committee was assisted by a Panel of Experts.

Panel of Experts. On 16 April [S/2014/282], pursuant to resolution 2140(2014), in which the Council requested the Secretary-General to create for an initial period of 13 months, in consultation with the Committee established pursuant to the same resolution, a group of up to four experts ("Panel of Experts"). The Secretary-General provided to the Security Council the names of four experts appointed to serve on the panel.

Security Council considerations. On 14 May [S/PV.7175], the Council held a briefing followed by consultations on the work of the Committee established pursuant to resolution 2140(2014). The Chair of the Committee, the Permanent Representative of Lithuania, updated the Council on the discussions and activities of the Committee since the adoption of resolution 2140(2014). The Committee adopted guidelines for the conduct of its work on 4 April. The Committee's first meeting was held on 30 April to initiate a dialogue among the Committee, Yemen and GCC member countries to discuss implementation of the measures imposed by resolution 2140(2014). On 5 May, the Committee met in informal consultations with the three members of the Panel of Experts. The Council was advised that the Panel's report would be submitted to the Council no later than 25 June.

At the Council meeting on 11 December [S/PV.7336], the Chair of the Committee established pursuant to resolution 2140(2014), the Permanent Representative of Lithuania, updated the Council on the discussions and activities of the Committee from 15 May. On 7 November the Committee designated three individuals—Abd Al-Khaliq Al-Huthi, Abdullah Yahya Al-Hakim and Ali Abdullah Saleh—as subject to the assets freeze and travel ban measures. During the reporting period, the Committee met five times in informal consultations and convened one formal meeting. The informal consultations were organized to hear presentations by the Panel of Experts on its update report, interim report and statements of case concerning individuals who, in the Panel's assessment, met the criteria for designation; to hold an interactive discussion with the Al-Qaida Sanctions Committee and the Counter-Terrorism Committee on issues of mutual relevance in relation to Yemen; and to hear a briefing by the Special Adviser of the Secretary-General on Yemen. The focus of the formal meeting, which was convened after the designation of the three individuals, was on implementation-related aspects of the sanctions regime in Yemen and the region. On 25 November, the Committee approved a cooperation agreement with INTERPOL effective 4 December.

Panel of Experts. On 2 July [S/2014/465], the Secretary-General informed the Council that Mohammad-Mahmoud Ould Mohamedou (Mauritania), appointed to serve as armed groups expert on the Panel of Experts on Yemen and designated as the Coordinator of the Panel, withdrew from the Panel on 2 May. Accordingly, Mohammad Sbaiti (Lebanon) was appointed to serve as armed groups expert and Alma Abdul-Hadi Jadallah (Jordan), regional expert on the Panel of Experts, was designated to serve as the Coordinator of the Panel.

Committee report. By a 17 December letter [S/2014/906], the Chair of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2140(2014) transmitted to the Security Council the first annual report of the Committee, which covered the Committee's activities from 26 February to 31 December. During the reporting period, the Committee held six informal consultations and two formal meetings. As at the end of the reporting period, three individuals were on the sanctions list of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 2140(2014), having been designated on 7 November. Pursuant to Security Council resolution 2140(2014), the Secretary-General appointed four individuals to the Panel of Experts with the following areas of expertise: armed groups, finance, international humanitarian law and regional issues. In July, the Panel submitted to the Committee a report on its first visit to Yemen. In October, the Panel submitted to the Committee statements of case on four individuals who, in the Panel's assessment, met the designation criteria outlined in paragraphs 17 and 18 of resolution 2140(2014). The Panel conducted visits to Bahrain, Germany, Italy, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, the United Arab Emirates, the United Kingdom, the United States and Yemen.

Other issues

Cambodia

In 2014, the Secretary-General reported on progress made in implementing the Agreement between the United Nations and the Government of Cambodia concerning the Prosecution under Cambodian Law of Crimes Committed during the Period of Democratic Kampuchea. The 2003 Agreement, approved by the General Assembly in resolution 57/228 B [YUN 2003, p. 385] and entered into force on 29 April 2005, regulated cooperation between the United Nations and Cambodia in bringing to trial senior leaders of Democratic Kampuchea and those who were most responsible for the crimes committed during the period from 17 April 1975 to 6 January 1979. The Agreement provided, among other things, the legal basis and the principles and modalities of such cooperation.

Report of Secretary-General. In October [A/69/536], the Secretary-General reported on progress achieved by the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia since his last report in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 352]. The report described the completion plan and road map, which had been formulated on the basis of a rigorous forecast of the workload associated with the timely judicial completion of the three remaining cases; provided a projection regarding the anticipated use of the approved commitment authority for 2014; and addressed mechanisms for the future financing of the Chambers.

In regard to the Khmer Rouge trials, the charges in case 002 had been severed into two separate cases, styled as cases 002/01 and 002/02, each with a separate trial and judgement. In case 002/01, the Trial Chamber pronounced its judgement on 7 August, convicting two surviving senior leaders of the Khmer Rouge regime, Nuon Chea and Khieu Samphan, of crimes against humanity in connection, notably, with forced movements of population from Phnom Penh and later from the regions and sentencing them to life imprisonment. The Trial Chamber initiated the trial in case 002/02 which encompassed charges relating to genocide, forced marriage and rape, internal purges, treatment of Buddhists and targeting of former Khmer Republic officials, in addition to alleged crimes committed at four security centres (including S-21), three worksites and a number of adjacent work cooperatives. The evidentiary hearings began on 17 October. The investigations in cases 003 and 004 continued and were forecast to be concluded by the first and second quarters of 2015, respectively, with decisions on whether any of the cases would be sent for trial to follow by the third and fourth quarters of 2015, respectively.

Following the request of the General Assembly for a completion strategy with a clear road map for the Chambers, the Chambers prepared a completion plan in which major procedural milestones were defined and the timelines required for the judicial completion of the current caseload were projected. A judicial conclusion of case 002 was projected in 2019 and of the investigative phases in cases 003 and 004 in 2015.

The Secretary-General welcomed the approval by the Assembly of a commitment authority of up to $15.54 million for the international component for 2014, which had not been utilized but had served to secure staff contracts up to December 2014. While the commitment authority had provided the means for the United Nations to cope with such sporadic funding in respect of the international component, the same means did not exist for the national component. Despite the intensive fundraising efforts of the Special Expert to advise on United Nations Assistance to the Khmer Rouge Trials, the national component faced serious funding shortfalls, which threatened the judicial operations of the Chambers and could prolong the timelines.

The Secretary-General requested the approval of the Assembly for an appropriation in the amount of $6,974,900 for 2014 under section 29B, Office of Programme Planning, Budget and Accounts, of the programme budget for the biennium 2014–2015. In light of the shortfall in pledges for 2015, he further sought an appropriation of up to $23,954,400 for the international component and $5,028,800 for the national component, for a total of $28,983,200, to supplement the financial resources of the Chambers and to enable the Chambers to efficiently carry out their mandate, without the continuous threat of insufficient resources adversely affecting programme delivery. Additionally, the Secretary-General sought approval of the Assembly to use its discretion to provide reimbursable loans to the Government of Cambodia from the subvention of up to $5,028,800 in 2015 to ensure the welfare of the national staff and their families.

ACABQ report. In December [A/69/652], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) recommended that the General Assembly approve an appropriation in the amount of up to $6,974,900 to cover the shortfall for 2014 in the international component from the approved commitment authority section 29B, Office of Programme Planning, Budget and Accounts, of the programme budget for the biennium 2014–2015, and reduce the amount accordingly in the event of additional voluntary contributions received after October 2014. ACABQ also recommended that the Assembly authorize the Secretary-General to enter into commitments in an amount not to exceed $12.1 million for the period covering 2015 as a bridging financing mechanism, and requested the Secretary-General to report to the Assembly on the use of the commitment authority during the main part of its seventieth session in the second performance report on the programme budget for the biennium 2014–2015.

Children and armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General. In accordance with Security Council resolution 2068(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 724], the Secretary-General, in May, submitted his annual report [A/68/878-S/2014/339] on the situation of children affected by armed conflict in 2013, which included the situation in Myanmar. The report stated that the recruitment and use of children by parties to conflict continued to be a concern in 2013. The United Nations received complaints of 37 children newly recruited into the Myanmar Armed Forces (Tatmadaw), including a 12-year-old boy, and 196 others previously recruited. Children used by the Tatmadaw continued to be deployed to the front-line as combatants and in other roles, in particular in Kachin State. Armed groups also continued to recruit and use children, including the Karen National Liberation Army (KNLA) and the KNLA Peace Council. Several cases of children associated with the Kachin Independence Army (KIA) and KNLA were reported and verified. At least seven children were killed and six others injured in sporadic fighting between the Tatmadaw and KIA in Kachin and northern Shan States, including air strikes by the Tatmadaw. During clashes between the Tatmadaw and KIA from October to November 2013, several schools were reportedly damaged in Kachin State and several others were closed. In Kachin and northern Shan State, mine fields laid by the Tatmadaw and KIA in close proximity to schools and hospitals remained a concern. Several reports of sexual violence against children by Tatmadaw soldiers were received in 2013, including the alleged gang-rape of a 14-year-old girl in northern Kachin State. In February 2014, a Tatmadaw soldier was sentenced to life imprisonment by a civilian court for the rape of a seven-year-old girl in northern Shan State. In 2013, 178 children, in one case as young as 12, were separated from the Tatmadaw, including 134 under the framework of the action plan between the Tatmadaw and the United Nations and 15 through the International Labour Organization forced labour complaint mechanism.

India–Pakistan

The United Nations Military Observer Group in India and Pakistan (UNMOGIP) continued in 2014 to monitor the ceasefire line in Jammu and Kashmir.

By a 28 January letter [S/2014/63], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to add Switzerland to the list of contributors to UNMOGIP. The Council took note of his intention on 29 January [S/2014/64].

In a 26 June letter [S/2014/458], the Secretary-General informed the Council of his intention to appoint Major General Delali Johnson Sakyi (Ghana) as Chief Military Observer and Head of Mission of UNMOGIP, to succeed Major General Young-Bum Choi (Republic of Korea), who completed his assignment on 16 June. The Council took note of his intention on 30 June [S/2014/459].

By a 11 October letter [S/2014/730], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Council a letter he received that day from Sartaj Aziz, Adviser to the Prime Minister of Pakistan on National Security and Foreign Affairs, regarding the deteriorating security situation along the line of control in Jammu and Kashmir.

Philippines

Children and armed conflict

Working Group. At its forty-first meeting, on 25 October 2013, the Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict examined the third report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict in the Philippines. At its forty-third meeting, on 14 February 2014, the Working Group adopted its conclusions on children and armed conflict in the Philippines [S/AC.51/2014/1]. The Working Group welcomed the commitment of the Philippines to develop an operational strategy for its armed forces and encouraged it to keep the United Nations country task force on monitoring and reporting informed about its progress. It also welcomed the steps taken by the Philippines in cooperating with the United Nations country task force on monitoring and reporting. Actions of non-State armed groups remained a major obstacle to ending and preventing all violations and abuses committed against children in the situation of armed conflict in the Philippines. The Working Group called upon all parties to the conflict in the Philippines to immediately end and prevent all violations and abuses committed against children, and demanded that all parties further implement previous conclusions of the Working Group. It recommended that the Security Council President transmit a letter to the Secretary-General inviting him to ensure that the country task force on monitoring and reporting strengthened its activities regarding all violations and abuses committed against children in the armed conflict in the Philippines, including the full and expeditious implementation of the action plan between the Moro Islamic Liberation Front and the United Nations in the Philippines signed on 1 August 2009; and requesting him to encourage the country task to renew its efforts to reach out to the New People's Army (NPA) with a view to developing an action plan to end and prevent the recruitment and use of children in violation of applicable international law and to address other violations and abuses against children committed by NPA in the Philippines.

On 4 March, the Security Council President forwarded to the Secretary-General a letter [S/2014/150] dated 27 February from the Chair of the Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict based on the Working Group's conclusions.

United Arab Emirates–Iran

The Greater Tunb, Lesser Tunb and Abu Musa

In a 10 February letter [S/2014/90] to the Secretary-General, the United Arab Emirates requested the Security Council to retain on its agenda for 2014 the item "Letter dated 3 December 1971 from the Permanent Representatives of Algeria, Iraq, the Libyan Arab Republic and the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen to the United Nations addressed to the President of the Security Council" [YUN 1971, p. 209], concerning Iran's occupation of the Greater Tunb, the Lesser Tunb and Abu Musa—three islands belonging to the United Arab Emirates—until such time as the dispute was resolved by peaceful means through direct negotiations or through the International Court of Justice.

By a 28 February letter [S/2014/143] to the Secretary-General, Iran, with reference to the 10 February letter from the United Arab Emirates to the Secretary-General (see above) and the letter dated 10 September 2013 from the League of Arab States (LAS) to the Security Council [YUN 2013, p. 354], rejected the claims regarding the three islands.

In a 21 April letter [S/2014/291] to the Secretary-General, the United Arab Emirates, in reference to the 28 February letter from Iran to the Secretary-General (see above), rejected and objected to the claims made by Iran on the sovereignty over the three islands.

By a 14 July letter [S/2014/496] to the Secretary-General, the United Arab Emirates reported that Iran had recently raised the Iranian flag over part of the island of Abu Musa and strongly protested against the action.

By a 25 July letter [S/2014/549] to the Secretary-General, Iran, with reference to the 14 July letter from the United Arab Emirates to the Secretary-General (see above), rejected the claims regarding the three islands.

In a 16 September letter [S/2014/686] to the Secretary-General, Libya, as Chair of the Group of Arab States for the month of September, conveyed the resolution adopted by the LAS Council at its 142nd ordinary session (Cairo, Egypt, 7 September) concerning the occupation by Iran of the three islands and the importance of the issue remaining on the agenda of the Security Council until Iran ended its occupation and the United Arab Emirates regained full sovereignty over the three islands.

By a 23 October letter [S/2014/759] to the Secretary-General, the United Arab Emirates, in reference to the 25 July letter from Iran to the Secretary-General (see above), rejected the claims made regarding the sovereignty over the islands of Abu Musa, the Greater Tunb and the Lesser Tunb and also included a copy of the 1971 Memorandum of Understanding regarding Abu Musa.

Europe and the Mediterranean

In 2014, the crisis in Ukraine emerged as a major new concern of the Security Council. The conflict, which opposed President Viktor Yanukovich and opposition leaders, led to the President leaving the country for an unknown destination and requesting military assistance of the Russian Federation to restore law and order. Meanwhile, there was a build-up of Russian troops in the Ukrainian Autonomous Republic of Crimea, which declared its independence following a referendum on 18 March. The peninsula was subsequently incorporated into the Russian Federation. The Security Council was unable to pass a resolution affirming Ukraine's territorial integrity. The General Assembly, however, in resolution 68/262 of 27 March, affirmed its commitment to the territorial integrity of Ukraine and urged the parties to pursue a peaceful solution. At the same time, armed separatist groups operating in parts of eastern and southern Ukraine took over the administration of a number of towns and villages. The fighting between separatist groups and the Ukrainian army resulted in significant loss of life and suffering for the civilian population and caused massive refugee flows to other parts of Ukraine. During the conflict, a Malaysia Airlines commercial aircraft flying over Ukrainian airspace was brought down with a missile on 18 July, killing 298 passengers and crew. The Security Council, in resolution 2166(2014) of 21 July, deplored the downing of the aircraft and called for an independent investigation into the incident. That investigation was led by the Netherlands, which in its preliminary report noted that the plane was hit by a large number of "high-energy objects from outside the aircraft." In other developments, Petro Poroshenko was elected President of Ukraine and proposed a peace plan for settling the conflict, including a unilateral ceasefire. On 5 and 19 September, respectively, under the auspices of the Trilateral Contact Group, the Minsk protocol to halt the conflict in eastern Ukraine and the Minsk memorandum clarifying implementation of the ceasefire agreement were signed. The Secretary-General joined other leaders in welcoming those agreements and in urging their full implementation.

The downwards trajectory followed by Bosnia and Herzegovina over the previous eight years continued in 2014, with ongoing challenges to the fundamentals of the 1995 Peace Agreement. A major development was the holding of elections in October which led to the appointment of a new government. The newly elected Presidency assumed office on 17 November and the House of Representatives was inaugurated on 9 December. Efforts were also initiated aimed at integrating Bosnia and Herzegovina into the European Union (EU). The Security Council renewed the authorization of the European Union Force-Althea for a further 12 months.

In Kosovo, the parties continued implementation of the 2013 Agreement of Principles Governing the Normalization of Relations. The Kosovo Assembly was dissolved in May and new elections were held on 8 June. No party gained an outright majority, leading to six months of political stalemate that ended on 19 November, when agreement was reached to form a coalition government. Serbia welcomed the establishment of the new Kosovo authorities and affirmed its readiness to engage them in discussions at the earliest opportunity. A number of serious incidents, however, occurred throughout the year, particularly in northern Kosovo, threatening its fragile security situation.

International efforts continued to advance the Georgia-Abkhaz peace process. International discussions under the leadership of the EU, the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to address security, stability and humanitarian issues in Georgia were held throughout the year. In June, the General Assembly adopted a resolution on the status of internally displaced persons (IDPs) and refugees from Abkhazia, Georgia, and the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia, Georgia, that called on all participants in the international discussions to ensure respect for human rights, and create favourable security conditions to the voluntary, safe, dignified and unhindered return of all IDPs and refugees.

No progress was made towards the settlement of the conflict between Armenia and Azerbaijan over the occupied Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan.

In Cyprus, efforts continued through the Secretary-General's good offices mission to reach a suitable peaceful settlement to the conflict opposing Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots. On 11 February, the leaders of the two sides concluded a joint declaration officially relaunching high-level negotiations on a comprehensive settlement of the Cyprus problem. The United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) continued to cooperate with the Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities. The Security Council extended the mandate of UNFICYP through 31 January 2015.

Bosnia and Herzegovina

In 2014, the international community continued to assist the two entities comprising the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina—the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina (where mainly Bosnian Muslim–Bosniacs—and Bosnian Croats resided) and the Republika Srpska (where mostly Bosnian Serbs reside)—in implementing the 1995 General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the annexes thereto (the “Peace Agreement”) [YUN 1995, p. 544]. Since the conclusion and withdrawal of the United Nations Mission in Bosnia and Herzegovina (UNMIBH) in December 2002 [YUN 2002, p. 359], those efforts had been led by the European Union (EU) and accomplished through the activities of the Office of the High Representative for the Implementation of the Peace Agreement on Bosnia and Herzegovina (OHR), responsible for the Agreement’s civilian aspects [YUN 1996, p. 293]; the European Union Police Mission in Bosnia and Herzegovina, responsible for helping develop sustainable policing arrangements, which were launched on 1 January 2003 [YUN 2003, p. 409] to ensure follow-on to UNMIBH; and the European Union Force-Althea (EUFOR-Althea), responsible for the Agreement’s military aspects, which were transferred to it by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in 2004 [YUN 2004, p. 401]. The Peace Implementation Council (PIC) and its Steering Board continued to monitor and facilitate the Agreement’s implementation.

The High Representative for Bosnia and Herzegovina reported on progress made in the implementation process and related political developments during the year (see below) in the context of his mission implementation plan, which set out a number of core tasks to be accomplished.

The downwards trajectory followed by Bosnia and Herzegovina over the previous eight years continued in 2014. The most significant developments were the flooding in mid-March that affected the country and the holding of the country’s seventh general elections on 12 October. The elections appeared to have generally been conducted in an orderly fashion, with an approximately 55 per cent overall voter turnout. The election results were certified on 10 November. The newly elected Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina assumed office on 17 November and the House of representatives was inaugurated on 9 December. On 5 November, the EU launched an initiative offering the country a real opportunity to make progress on integration with the Union. Limited progress was made towards meeting the outstanding requirements of the five objectives and two conditions necessary for the closure of OHR. Challenges to the basics of the Peace Agreement continued, including statements regarding the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and walkouts and boycotts of the country’s legislative bodies. In particular, the leadership of the Republika Srpska continued to ignore its obligation to fully cooperate with international organizations and agencies, failing to provide them with all information necessary for their work. The Security Council, by resolution 2183(2014) renewed the authorization of EUFOR-Althea for a further 12 months (see p. 487).

Implementation of Peace Agreement

Civilian aspects

The civilian aspects of the 1995 Peace Agreement entailed a broad range of activities, including the provision of humanitarian aid and resources for infrastructure rehabilitation, the establishment of political and constitutional institutions, the promotion of respect for human rights, and the holding of free and fair elections. The High Representative for Bosnia and Herzegovina, who chaired the PIC Steering Board and other key implementation bodies, was the final authority with regard to implementing the civilian aspects of the Peace Agreement.

Office of High Representative

Reports of High Representative. The High Representative for Bosnia and Herzegovina, Valentin Inzko (Austria), reported to the Security Council through the Secretary-General on the peace implementation process for the periods 21 October 2013 to 21 April 2014 [S/2014/314], 21 April to 21 October [S/2014/777] and 21 October 2014 to 21 April 2015 [S/2015/300]. The Council considered the reports of the High Representative on 11 November [S/PV.7308].

Political situation and other developments

The High Representative, briefing the Security Council on 15 May [S/PV.7176], presented the forty-fifth report [S/2014/314] covering the period from 21 October 2013 to 21 April 2014. According to the report, in response to the failure of the authorities to tackle their problems, and in support of a protest that began in Tuzla on 5 February, citizens in many cities in Bosnia and Herzegovina took to the streets on 7 February to call on the authorities to address many long-standing economic and social concerns. The demonstrations turned briefly violent, but resulted in no loss of life. Some political leaders and parties attempted to exploit the demonstrations for political gain in advance of the forthcoming elections. In the aftermath of the protests, a new form of civic organization, called “plenium”, emerged to allow for the exchange of views and agree on demands to be put before governments. One of the key demands of the “plenums” was the resignation of governments and this demand was met in four cantons (Tuzla, Sarajevo, Zenica and Bihac).

Also of major concern were statements and actions challenging the fundamentals of the General Framework Agreement. Unilateral actions by Republika Srpska towards adopting an entity-level residence law and the adoption by its government of a decree on residence verification, despite the fact that the matter was exclusively regulated at the state level, risked reversing measures taken to implement core provisions of the Agreement, including those related to freedom of movement.

The Central Election Commission was expected to announce that elections would be held in October, in accordance with the Bosnia and Herzegovina Election Law. On 15 April, the House of Representatives supported amendments to the Election Law, providing for limited technical improvement. The amendments, however, were sent for harmonization in the Collegium as they failed to receive the required support from Republika Srpska delegates. The Federation Parliament adopted, in April, amendments to the Law on Execution of the Budget of the Federation for 2014. Important progress was made in unblocking long-delayed appointments to the Federation Constitutional Court and its Vital National Interest Panel. On 11 April, the Federation Parliament adopted the Law on the Rights of Returnees to their Pre-war Place of Permanent Residence in Republika Srpska and the Brcko District.

Briefing the Security Council on 11 November [S/PV.7308], the High Representative, presented the forty-sixth report [S/2014/777] covering the period from 21 April to 21 October. The most significant developments during the period were the flooding that affected the country and the holding of the country's seventh general elections on 12 October. The elections appeared to have generally been conducted in an orderly fashion, but the high number of spoiled and invalid ballots was a source of controversy, prompting a recount for about 120 polling stations before the preliminary results were announced. Overall voter turnout stood at approximately 55 per cent. While the final election results were to be confirmed by the Central Election Commission, the preliminary results showed that, in the Federation, the Party for Democratic Action received the highest support. The Croatian Democratic Union reaffirmed its position as the largest Croat Party in Bosnia and Herzegovina. In Republika Srpska, the ruling coalition, the Alliance of Independent Social Democrats lost votes compared with 2010, but remained the largest party. The three-member Bosnia and Herzegovina Presidency saw the re-election of the current Bosniak member and two new Croat and Serb members. One of the candidates for the Croat member of the Presidency announced his intention to file a complaint alleging fraud.

Officials of Republika Srpska continued to question and challenge the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina, advocating for secession and the dissolution of the State. The issue of properties suffered a serious setback, with authorities in Republika Srpska seeking to transfer illegally the right of ownership over sites in the Kalinovik and Foca municipalities to the local municipality in violation of the High Representative's ban.

The authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina failed to make progress on the outstanding objectives for the closure of OHR. In a positive development, the country took steps to assume control of its air space, opening the Bosnia and Herzegovina Area Control Centre to provide air traffic services over parts of the Sarajevo flight information region. Final steps were also completed to make the Vital Interest Panel of the Federation Constitutional Court functional and, in July, the Federation Parliament adopted a new Federation Law on Internal Affairs, representing a workable model for cantonal laws to be similarly improved.

In a later report [S/2015/300], the High Representative informed that the election results for the State of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the two entities (the Federation and Republika Srpska), and the 10 cantons in the Federation were certified on 10 November. The Republika Srpska National Assembly appointed a government on the same day, the first to do so, which took office on 27 December. The newly elected Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina officially assumed office on 17 November. The House of Representatives of Bosnia and Herzegovina was inaugurated on 9 December, and the election of working bodies completed on 29 December. On 5 November, the Foreign Ministers of Germany and the United Kingdom launched an initiative, which became an EU initiative, offering the country an opportunity to make progress on integration with the EU. On 13 November, the Bosnia and Herzegovina Air Navigation services commenced services in the airspace between 10,000 and 32,500 feet.

Judicial reform

With the expiration of the justice sector reform strategy at the end of 2013, a new strategy for 2014–2018 was adopted by the Brcko District and Federation. It remained for the Republika Srpska government and the Bosnia and Herzegovina Council of Ministers to adopt the strategy. Corruption was still a concern, with a number of arrests of high-ranking officials in June and September, including the Federation's Deputy Prime Minister and several others on charges of tax evasion. The Supervisory Board for the Implementation of the War Crimes Prosecution Strategy expressed satisfaction with the pace of war crimes processing. Indicators suggested that the goal of reducing the number of unsolved cases by 5 per cent by September was surpassed. Nevertheless, the target of prosecuting the most complex war crimes cases by the end of 2015, and other war crimes cases by 2023, was unlikely to be met. A special report on the causes for the delay was being prepared. Additional judges and prosecutors were appointed to speed up the process.

Economic reform

Although the total economic impact caused by floods and landslides in May were estimated at 15 per cent of the gross national product, Bosnia and Herzegovina's economic recovery was more resilient than expected, with projected growth in 2014 close to 1 per cent. In the first eight months of the year, exports increased by 0.5 per cent, and imports by 5.6 per cent. Industrial production, however, decreased by 4.5 per cent compared to the previous year. Unemployment and foreign direct investment (FDI) levels remained a serious concern, with the official unemployment rate close to 44 per cent and FDI dropping 54.3 per cent in the first half of the year. The resumption of international disbursements, in particular by the International Monetary Fund and indirect taxes to help the country to alleviate the impact of the floods helped mitigate the risks to fiscal stability. The fact that the budget of state institutions had been locked at the same level for three years could impact the functioning of those institutions and their ability to meet their obligations. Furthermore, Bosnia and Herzegovina's non-compliance with its international obligations related to money-laundering, the financing of terrorism, and the energy sector, could prompt MONEYVAL (the Committee of Experts on the Evaluation of Anti-Money Laundering Measures and the Financing of Terrorism of the Council of Europe) to impose additional measures on the country. On 23 September, the Energy Community Ministerial Council declared Bosnia and Herzegovina in breach of its obligation in the gas sector by its failure to adopt legislation requested by the Council. The Energy Community secretariat was invited by the Council to assist the country in drafting the requested legislation.

Media development

Since the adoption of state-level legislation requiring public broadcasters within Bosnia and Herzegovina to establish the umbrella Public Broadcasting Corporation and implement key reforms to make more efficient use of resources and coordinate within a single system, no action had been taken towards registration. The financial sustainability of the system was also questioned, as transition provisions relating to the financing of public broadcasters were due to expire in less than six months. The failure of the Council of Ministers to appoint a new director to the state-level Communications Regulatory Agency crippled the institution regulating and overseeing public and private electronic media throughout the country.

Return of refugees and displaced persons

The Bosnia and Herzegovina authorities failed to create the conditions for ensuring the right of refugees and displaced persons to return to their pre-war homes. As a result, a possible recommendation by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees to stop granting refugee status to refugees from Bosnia and Herzegovina seemed problematic, especially in the light of the expected political fallout from the announcement of census results. The High Representative recommended new consultations with Bosnia and Herzegovina authorities at all levels and with international organizations on the issues following the establishment of new governments in the country after the elections.

The sustainable return of refugees and displaced persons to communities where their group was not a numerical majority was further hindered by divisions and discrimination within the education sector. The High Representative stated that the incoming authorities should address education in order to raise standards throughout the country based on the principles of non-discrimination, non-segregation and inclusiveness.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 11 November [meeting 7307], the Security Council adopted resolution 2183(2014) by vote (14-0-1). The draft [S/2014/794] was submitted by France, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the United Kingdom and the United States.

2. Reiterates that the primary responsibility for the further successful implementation of the Peace Agreement lies with the authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina themselves and that the continued willingness of the international community and major donors to assume the political, military and economic burden of implementation and reconstruction efforts will be determined by the compliance and active participation by all the authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina in implementing the Peace Agreement and rebuilding a civil society, in particular in full cooperation with the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the Former Yugoslavia since 1991 and the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals in accordance with their respective obligations under resolutions 827(1993) of 25 May 1993, 955(1994) of 8 November 1994 and 1966(2010) of 22 December 2010, in strengthening joint institutions, which foster the building of a fully functioning self-sustaining State able to integrate itself into the European structures, and in facilitating returns of refugees and displaced persons;

7. Recalls the support of the authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina for the European Union Force-Althea and the continued North Atlantic Treaty Organization presence and their confirmation that both are the legal successors to the Stabilization Force for the fulfilment of their missions for the purposes of the Peace Agreement, its annexes and appendices and relevant Security Council resolutions and can take such actions as are required, including the use of force, to ensure compliance with annexes 1-A and 2 of the Peace Agreement and relevant Council resolutions;

Military and police aspects

The European Union Force-Althea (EUFOR-Althea) in Bosnia and Herzegovina executed the military

aspects of the Peace Agreement as specified in annexes 1-A and 2, which were transferred to it by NATO in 2004 [YUN 2004, p. 401]. EUFOR-Althea activities in 2014 were described in reports covering the period from 1 December 2013 to 28 February 2014 [S/2014/531] and 1 March to 31 May 2014 [S/2014/702], which were submitted by the EU High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy, in accordance with Security Council resolutions.

EUFOR-Althea was comprised of around 600 personnel, based in Sarajevo, with liaison and observation teams in other parts of the country. It continued to monitor and advise the authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina in the context of activities related to ammunition and weapons storage sites; the civilian and military movement of weapons and military equipment; the disposal of surplus weapons and ammunition; and defence industry factories.

Kosovo

In 2014, the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK) continued to fulfil its mandate based on Security Council resolution 1244(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 353] and the reconfigured functions outlined in the Secretary-General's June and November 2008 reports [YUN 2008, pp. 438 & 441], following Kosovo's declaration of independence in February 2008 [ibid., p. 437], the entry into force of the Kosovo Constitution on 15 June [ibid., p. 439] and the deployment of the European Union Rule of Law Mission in Kosovo (EULEX) throughout Kosovo in December of that year [ibid., p. 442]. Serbia condemned Kosovo's declaration of independence and maintained that that action by Kosovo's Provisional Institutions violated Security Council resolution 1244(1999), which reaffirmed Serbia's sovereignty and territorial integrity, including Kosovo and Metohija. The position of the United Nations on the status of Kosovo was of status neutrality.

The International Court of Justice (ICJ), in a 2010 advisory opinion [YUN 2010, p. 416], concluded that Kosovo declaration of independence did not violate any applicable rule of law. In September of that year, the General Assembly acknowledged the ICJ advisory opinion and welcomed EU readiness to facilitate dialogue between Belgrade and Pristina [ibid.].

Reports of Secretary-General. The Secretary-General reported on the implementation of UNMIK mandate covering the periods from 16 October 2013 to 20 January 2014 [S/2014/68]; 21 January to 15 April [S/2014/305]; 16 April to 15 July [S/2014/558]; 16 July to 15 October [S/2014/773 & Corr.1]; and 16 October 2014 to 15 January 2015 [S/2015/74].

Following the EU-facilitated agreements reached between Pristina and Belgrade in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 361], the parties continued substantial implementation of the 19 April 2013 Agreement of Principles Governing the Normalization of Relations [ibid.]. UNMIK continued its engagement with Pristina and Belgrade and regional and international actors in promoting security, stability and respect for human rights in Kosovo and the region. The mayoral election held in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 362], resulted in victory for the Serbian Civic Initiative candidates in all four municipalities in northern Kosovo. The newly elected mayors and municipal assemblies in the north were sworn in on 11 January, with the exception of the mayor-elect of North Mitrovica, who decided not to take office and resigned from his position as Deputy Director of the Office for Kosovo and Metohija of the Government of Serbia. A new mayoral election in North Mitrovica was held on 23 February and was won in the first round by the Serbian Civic Initiative candidate. The North Mitrovica municipal assembly was inaugurated on 10 February. The four municipalities completed work on their statutes, and on 16 May, the Ministry of Local Government Administration certified the adopted statutes.

In an extraordinary session held on 7 May, over two thirds of the members of the Assembly of Kosovo voted to dissolve the Assembly, thus triggering an early election on 8 June. A total of 31 political entities, including 5 Kosovo Serb entities, participated in the elections, with 42.63 per cent of eligible voters casting ballots. EU election observers assessed that the elections had been transparent and well organized. On 4 July, the Kosovo Central Election Commission certified the election results. No single party achieved an overall majority in the Kosovo Assembly, which led to a deadlock on the election of the President of the Assembly and the formation of a new government. On 22 August, the Constitutional Court ruled unanimously that the election of the President of the Assembly on 17 July was unconstitutional and confirmed the right of the Democratic Party of Kosovo, with a relative majority as a pre-election bloc, to nominate a candidate for the post. The situation between the parties, however, remained polarized.

On 2 May, the Kosovo authorities and the EU finalized the draft text of a stabilization and association agreement for political and economic association.

On 6 March, the Kosovo government approved recommendations from a two-year strategic security sector review, including a recommendation to transform the Kosovo security forces into Kosovo armed forces. Constitutional amendments on the matter were submitted to the Assembly and were upheld by the Kosovo Constitutional Court. KFOR stated that making changes to the mandate, structure and functioning of the security forces might lead to discussion on their impact on the provision of continued NATO support to Kosovo. Progress was made regarding the integration of Kosovo Serbian personnel into the Kosovo police. By March, 284 former Serbian police officers were assigned to active duty in northern Kosovo.

The security situation in Kosovo remained overall stable, with the exception of several interethnic incidents. In March, Kosovo police raided the homes of several Kosovo Serb police officers and offices hosting a Belgrade-sponsored court. Serious incidents occurred for illegal logging activities, including near the administrative boundary line. Belgrade and Pristina remained engaged in the EU-facilitated dialogue, albeit at a slower pace because of the general elections in Serbia and the legislative elections in Kosovo. Progress was made in the implementation of the 19 April 2013 agreement, including the structure and staffing of the judiciary in Northern Kosovo.

The Security Council considered the Secretary-General's reports [S/2014/68], [S/2014/305], [S/2014/558] and [S/2014/773] on 10 February [S/PV.7108], 27 May [S/PV. 7183], 29 August [S/PV.7257] and 4 December [S/PV.7327], respectively.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/74], the Secretary-General noted that the achievement of a coalition agreement, the establishment of the Assembly of Kosovo and the formation of a new Kosovo government brought to an end six months of political stalemate. On 19 November, an agreement was reached to form a coalition government, which was signed on 8 December. On 9 December, the Assembly of Kosovo approved the new 21-member coalition government, including two women ministers, two Kosovo Serb representatives and a Kosovo Turk, reflecting efforts to build a multi-ethnic and democratic Kosovo. Serbia welcomed the establishment of the new Kosovo authorities and affirmed its readiness to engage at the earliest opportunity.

In December, the United Nations Development Programme completed implementation of the seven-year Kosovo Small Arms Control Initiative, which assisted Kosovo institutions in countering uncontrolled possession and proliferation of small arms and light weapons. In addition to the development of the legislative framework for weapons regulation and control, over 1,500 firearms were removed from circulation. The proliferation of small arms nevertheless remained a concern in Kosovo.

EULEX

The European Union Rule of Law Mission in Kosovo (EULEX), established to undertake an enhanced operational role in the rule-of-law area, with a focus on policing, justice and customs, became fully operational in April 2009 [YUN 2009, p. 412]. It operated under the overall authority and within the status-neutral framework of the United Nations and submitted reports to it on a regular basis.

On 23 April, the Assembly of Kosovo adopted a law on the ratification of the international agreement between Kosovo and the EU on EULEX, extending that Mission's mandate until 14 June 2016, and established a specialist court to try cases arising from the findings of the European Union Special Investigative Task Force. The Assembly also amended and supplemented the laws related to EULEX mandate. On 12 June, the EU Council endorsed the extension of EULEX mandate in Kosovo. The Kosovo Judicial Council and EULEX signed an agreement on the activity and cooperation of EULEX judges with Kosovo judges working in the local courts. The agreement clarified the number and role of EULEX judges to hear ongoing and upcoming cases and the procedure by which EULEX might request the Kosovo Judicial Council to refer cases to international judges.

The prosecution of war crimes resulted in the first conviction of rape as a war crime since 2002. Three EULEX judges also started the trial in the "Drenica Group" case against a number of high-profile defendants. EULEX continued to undertake monitoring, mentoring and advising activities around the rule of law and to implement its executive functions according to its mandate. Further steps were taken in the fight against corruption and serious crimes. Verdicts were pronounced in cases involving the Mission's judges and prosecutors. EULEX continued to facilitate the implementation of the agreements reached within the EU-facilitated dialogue on the normalization of relations between Pristina and Belgrade in the rule of law sector, including the registering and issuing of licenses to companies importing controlled goods through the northern crossing points. The Special Investigative Task Force, established in 2011 to investigate allegations of illicit trafficking in human organs contained in the report of the Council of Europe Special Rapporteur, Dick Marty, continued to gather information and evidence. On 29 July, the lead prosecutor explained that compelling evidence had been found to file an indictment against certain former senior officials of the Kosovo Liberation Army. Cooperation with judicial and law enforcement authorities in the region and elsewhere continued to be productive. EULEX continued to strengthen the rule of law throughout Kosovo, including by making arrests in Northern Kosovo of persons accused of war crimes and murder, and advised police in Northern Kosovo to set up a community policing strategy.

The Reports of the EU High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy on EULEX activities in 2014 were annexed to the Secretary-General's reports to the Security Council on UNMIK [S/2014/305, S/2014/558, S/2014/773, S/2014/74].

UNMIK

The United Nations Interim Administration in Kosovo (UNMIK), established in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 357] to facilitate a political process to determine Kosovo's political future, comprised five components: interim administration; institution-building; economic reconstruction; humanitarian affairs; and police and justice. Following Kosovo's declaration of independence in 2008 [YUN 2008, p. 437], and the deployment of EULEX in 2009 [YUN 2009, p. 412], the profile and size of UNMIK were reconfigured. The Mission's strategic goal remained the promotion of security, stability and respect for human rights in Kosovo and in the region through engagement with all communities in Kosovo, with the leadership in Belgrade and Pristina, and with regional and international actors. UNMIK was headed by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, Farid Zarif (Afghanistan).

Financing

The General Assembly considered the Secretary-General's performance report on the UNMIK budget for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/578], the proposed budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015 [A/68/701], and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) [A/68/782/Add.5].

KFOR

In accordance with resolution 1244(1999) [YUN, 1999, p. 353], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Security Council reports on the activities during 2014 of the Kosovo Force (KFOR) covering the periods from 1 January to 31 March [S/2014/371]; 1 April to 30 June [S/2014/587]; 1 July to 30 September [S/2014/830]; and 1 October to 31 December [S/2015/106]. On 31 December, the total number of KFOR troops in theatre remained at approximately 4,500.

During the year, KFOR, in close cooperation with the Kosovo police and EULEX, continued to contribute to maintaining a safe and secure environment and ensuring freedom of movement in Kosovo. The situation in the northern part of Kosovo remained reasonably stable, with the ongoing implementation of the EU-facilitated agreement on the normalization of relations between Belgrade and Pristina of 19 April [YUN 2013, p. 361] continuing to have a positive effect on the security situation.

Georgia

In 2014, international efforts continued to advance the Georgian-Abkhaz peace process, based on the 2001 Basic Principles for the Distribution of Competences between Tbilisi (Georgia's Government) and Sukhumi (the Abkhaz leadership) [YUN 2001, p. 386]. That document was intended to serve as a framework for negotiations on the status of Abkhazia as a sovereign state within the State of Georgia. Following the termination of the mandate of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia (UNOMIG) in June 2009 [YUN 2009, p. 418], the United Nations had continued to support the Geneva international discussions on security and stability and the return of internally displaced persons (IDPs) and refugees.

Geneva talks. In accordance with the 12 August 2008 six-point ceasefire plan between Georgia and the Russian Federation [YUN 2008, p. 456], and the provisions of the 8 September 2008 ceasefire implementation plan [ibid., p. 457], international discussions under the leadership of the EU and OSCE to address security, stability and humanitarian issues in Georgia were held throughout the year. At the twenty-seventh (26 March) [A/68/824-S/2014/231], twenty-eighth (18 June) [A/68/916-S/2014/441], twenty-ninth (8 October) [A/69/515-S/2014/737], and thirtieth (10 December) [A/69/672-S/2014/900] sessions, participants met in two parallel groups.

Working Group I focused on security and stability in the occupied Abkhazia and Tskhinvali regions of Georgia, especially the key issues of the non-use of force and international security arrangements, and the security situation on the ground. Participants engaged in drafting a statement on the non-use of force;

nonetheless, it was clearly stressed that such a statement should not substitute for a legally binding commitment from the Russian Federation to the non-use of force. Working Group II addressed the situation of IDPs, including their right of return and other durable solutions, and humanitarian and human rights issues, especially the violation of social, economic and cultural rights, the restriction of the freedom of movement and the right to education in the native language. The Geneva discussions remained the only forum for stakeholders to address the issues identified in resolution 68/274 (see below) on IDPs.

IDPs and refugees. In response to General Assembly resolutions 67/268 [YUN 2013, p. 365] and 68/274 (see below), the Secretary-General submitted reports on the status of IDPs and refugees from Abkhazia and the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia, covering the periods from 1 April 2013 to 31 March 2014 [A/68/868] and 1 April 2014 to 31 March 2015 [A/69/909]. The reports focused on the right to return of all refugees and IDPs and their descendants; prohibition of forced demographic changes; humanitarian access; the importance of preserving the property rights of refugees and IDPs; and the development of a timetable to ensure the prompt voluntary return of all refugees and IDPs to their homes.

In 2014, no major developments took place in regard to refugees and IDPs exercising their right to return and no new displacements were registered. The Ministry for Internally Displaced Persons from the Occupied Territories, Accommodation and Refugees of Georgia conducted a comprehensive registration of 262,704 IDPs. Although the main registration ended in December 2013, re-registration by the Ministry continued at its central office in Tbilisi until 31 May 2014, and thereafter as required. The generational aspects of displacement in the absence of durable solutions remained a concern. The largest numbers of IDPs were registered in Tbilisi and Zugdidi.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 June [meeting 90], the General Assembly adopted resolution 68/274 [draft: A/68/L. 47] by recorded vote (69-13-79) [agenda item 34].

Status of internally displaced persons and refugees from Abkhazia, Georgia, and the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia, Georgia

The General Assembly,

Recalling also all relevant Security Council resolutions on Georgia relating to the need for all parties to work towards a comprehensive peace and the return of internally displaced persons and refugees to their places of origin, and stressing the importance of their full and timely implementation,

Recognizing the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement as the key international framework for the protection of internally displaced persons,

Concerned by forced demographic changes resulting from the conflicts in Georgia,

Concerned also by the humanitarian situation caused by armed conflict in August 2008, which resulted in the further forced displacement of civilians,

Mindful of the urgent need to find a solution to the problems related to forced displacement in Georgia,

Underlining the importance of the discussions that commenced in Geneva on 15 October 2008 and of continuing to address the issue of the voluntary, safe, dignified and unhindered return of internally displaced persons and refugees on the basis of internationally recognized principles and conflict-settlement practices,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General concerning the implementation of resolution 67/268,

1. Recognizes the right of return of all internally displaced persons and refugees and their descendants, regardless of ethnicity, to their homes throughout Georgia, including in Abkhazia and the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia;

2. Stresses the need to respect the property rights of all internally displaced persons and refugees affected by the conflicts in Georgia and to refrain from obtaining property in violation of those rights;

3. Reaffirms the unacceptability of forced demographic changes;

4. Underlines the urgent need for unimpeded access for humanitarian activities to all internally displaced persons, refugees and other persons residing in all conflict-affected areas throughout Georgia;

5. Calls upon all participants in the Geneva discussions to intensify their efforts to establish a durable peace, to commit to enhanced confidence-building measures and to take immediate steps to ensure respect for human rights and create favourable security conditions conducive to the voluntary, safe, dignified and unhindered return of all internally displaced persons and refugees to their places of origin;

6. Underlines the need for the development of a timetable to ensure the voluntary, safe, dignified and unhindered return of all internally displaced persons and refugees affected by the conflicts in Georgia to their homes;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its sixty-ninth session a comprehensive report on the implementation of the present resolution;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled "Protracted conflicts in the GUAM area and their implications for international peace, security and development".

Communications. Throughout 2014, Georgia submitted letters to the Secretary-General and the Security Council on issues relating to the Black Sea region, the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia and Russia. The letters addressed the expansion of the border into Georgia's territory [A/68/714-S/2014/40], the fortieth anniversary of the adoption of Assembly resolution 3314 (XXIX) [YUN 1974, p. 846] entitled "Definition of Aggression" [A/69/665-S/2014/898]; and military-related and other activities by the Russian Federation affecting Abkhazia and the Tskhinvali/South Ossetia region [A/68/714-S/2014/40, A/68/755-S/2014/101], [A/68/771-S/2014/129], [A/68/793-S/2014/167], [A/68/982-S/2014/633], [A/69/537-S/2014/744], [A/69/618-S/2014/847], [A/69/644-S/2014/873], [A/69/665-S/2014/898] and [A/69/709-S/2014/941].

Armenia and Azerbaijan

In 2014, Armenia and Azerbaijan maintained their positions with regard to the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan. The conflict, which began in 1992 [YUN 1992, p. 388], was followed by a ceasefire in May 1994 [YUN 1994, p. 577]. Both sides addressed communications to the Secretary-General regarding the conflict. The OSCE Minsk Group (France, Russian Federation, United States) continued to mediate the dispute between the two countries.

Communications. In letters dated 13 January [A/68/706-S/2014/24]; 17 March [A/68/801-S/2014/198]; 15 April [A/68/847-S/2014/277]; 26 May [A/68/894-S/2014/383]; 30 June [A/68/938-S/2014/466]; 2 July [A/68/937-S/2014/467]; 4 August [A/68/964-S/2014/570]; 10 September [A/68/992-S/2014/666]; 15 October [A/689/541-S/2014/746]; and 20 October [A/69/547-S/2014/752], Armenia reported to the Secretary-General on violations of the ceasefire by the armed forces of Azerbaijan.

Azerbaijan drew the Secretary-General's attention to violations of the ceasefire by the military forces of Armenia in letters dated 10 January [A/68/695-S/2014/20]; 13 January [A/68/705-S/2014/22]; 10 March [A/68/794-S/2014/168]; 3 April [A/68/829-S/2014/249]; 2 May [A/68/865-S/2014/315]; 5 June [A/68/903-S/2014/398]; 2 July [A/68/939-S/2014/470]; 4 August [A/68/962-S/2014/566]; 6 August [A/68/967-S/2014/574]; 9 September [A/68/989-S/2014/658]; 2 October [A/69/420-S/2014/718]; 12 November [A/69/576-S/2014/811]; 19 November [A/69/608-S/2014/843]; 21 November [A/69/607-S/2014/841]; and 15 December [A/69/666-S/2014/899].

In a letter dated 12 February [A/68/752-S/2014/94], Azerbaijan condemned the surge of violence and provocation by Armenia in disregard of the appeal by the Presidents of the UN General Assembly and the International Olympic Committee to all warring parties in conflicts around the world to observe a truce during the Olympic Winter Games in Sochi, Russian Federation. On 18 February [A/68/760-S/2014/110], Armenia stated that it had accepted the truce willingly and abided by it, and accused Azerbaijan armed forces of ignoring the calls for the truce. On 24 February [A/68/768-S/2014/124], Azerbaijan requested the international community to play a more proactive role in ending the impunity of those responsible for the crimes committed against the Azerbaijani population during the conflict between the two countries, including in Khojaly [YUN 1992, p. 388]. On 9 April [A/68/835-S/2014/261], Armenia recalled the offensive by Azerbaijani armed forces in 1992 against the Armenian population in Maragha and paid tribute to the victims of that massacre, while drawing attention to the fact that Azerbaijan continued its policy against Armenia and Armenians based on xenophobia, racism and hate speech. On 24 April [A/68/853-S/2014/298], Azerbaijan refuted Armenia's assertions, and accused Armenia of expelling all non-Armenians, including Azerbaijanis, in furtherance of its policy of creating ethnically homogenous areas in the occupied territories of Azerbaijan.

On 1 August [A/68/960-S/2014/564], Azerbaijan welcomed the adoption of Assembly resolution 68/303 of 31 July (see p. 50) entitled "Strengthening the role of mediation in the peaceful settlement of disputes, conflict prevention and resolution" and stressed that Azerbaijan supported the promotion of mediation as a way to settle disputes and to prevent and resolve conflict. On 7 August [A/68/968-S/2014/577], Armenia expressed alarm at the escalation of tension and increase in ceasefire violations. It underlined the need for political will to accelerate the peace process and expressed its commitment to an early and lasting settlement of the dispute. In response, Azerbaijan, on 22 August [A/68/979-S/2014/616], listed a number of facts to refute the claims by Armenia, accusing it of disregarding resolutions of the Security Council and other international organizations by continuing its illegal occupation of the territories of Azerbaijan. On 12 November [A/69/583-S/2014/813], Armenia condemned the shooting down of an Armenian helicopter by Azerbaijan, stating that such action undermined the negotiation process for a peaceful settlement of the conflict.

By decision 68/660 of 15 September, the General Assembly decided to defer consideration of the item on the situation in the occupied territories of Azerbaijan and to include it in the draft agenda if its sixty-ninth session. On 29 December (decision 69/554), the Assembly decided that the item on the situation in the occupied territories of Azerbaijan would remain for consideration during its sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Cyprus

During 2014, the United Nations continued its sponsorship of the Cyprus peace talks. The Secretary-General's Special Adviser on Cyprus, with the support of the Special Representative, assisted the Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot leaders in implementing the 8 July 2006 Set of Principles and Decision [YUN 2006, p. 487], which included commitment to the unification of Cyprus based on a bizonal, bicomunal federation and political equality, and an agreement to meet regularly on issues affecting the day-to-day life of the Cypriot people. Discussions centred on core issues relating to governance and power-sharing, citizenship, property and territory.

The United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP), established to prevent the recurrence of fighting between the Greek Cypriot and the Turkish Cypriot communities and to contribute to the maintenance and restoration of law and order and a return to normal conditions, continued to assist in the restoration of normal conditions and in humanitarian functions, with its mandate extended until 31 January 2015 by the Security Council. The Secretary-General submitted two reports covering UNFICYP activities for the periods from 16 December 2013 to 20 June 2014 [S/2014/461] and 21 June to 15 December [S/2015/17].

Political and security developments

On 20 January [S/2014/39], the “Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus” expressed concern at the delaying tactics by Cyprus in drafting a joint statement that would be issued after the first leaders’ meeting, and its disappointment that the Greek Cypriot side had attempted to discredit the draft negotiated by the United Nations, in consultation with all relevant parties, including the Greek Cypriot leader, Nicos Anastasiades.

UNFICYP

The United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP), established in 1964 [YUN, 1964, p. 165], continued to monitor the ceasefire lines between the Turkish and Turkish Cypriot forces on the northern side of the island and the Cypriot National Guard on the southern side; maintain the military status quo and prevent recurrence of fighting; and undertake humanitarian and economic activities. Lisa Buttenheim (United States) continued to serve as the Secretary-General’s Special Representative for Cyprus and head of UNFICYP. In August, Espen Barth Eide (Norway) replaced Alexander Downer (Australia) as the Secretary-General’s Special Advisor on Cyprus [S/2014/618] and in May, Major General Kristin Lund (Norway) replaced Major General Chao Liu (China) as UNFICYP Force Commander [S/2014/328]. As at 15 December, UNFICYP comprised 860 troops and 66 civilian police.

Report of Secretary-General. In his July report [S/2014/461] covering UNFICYP activities from 16 December 2013 to 20 June 2014, the Secretary-General reported that the situation in the buffer zone remained calm and stable, with minor incidents and challenges. Concerning the Secretary-General's mission of good offices, the Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot leaders concluded, on 11 February, a joint declaration marking the official relaunch of high-level negotiations on a comprehensive settlement to the Cyprus problem. Following the resumption of high-level negotiations, the two leaders met on 31 March and 2 June. On 22 May, they agreed to meet at least twice a month to speed up the negotiation process. At the 2 June meeting, they discussed the revitalization of technical committees, confidence-building measures and other issues. On 27 February, the Greek Cypriot negotiator visited Ankara and the Turk Cypriot negotiator went to Athens, in a first exchange of its type in the Cyprus peace talks.

UNFICYP continued to maintain the integrity and stability of the buffer zone. The level of military violations by opposing forces remained low, and cooperation between UNFICYP and the opposition forces was good. Challenges to UNFICYP authority continued, however, as the opposing forces questioned the extent of the buffer zone in certain areas. In a new development, Turkish forces deployed 28 closed-circuit television cameras along the ceasefire line in central Nicosia and failed to remove them despite repeated protests by UNFICYP. While no progress was made with respect to military-related confidence-building measures, neither of the opposing forces conducted any major military exercises. During the reporting period, the two sides continued to withhold access to the four known mined areas in the buffer zone. The Committee on Missing Persons reported that the remains of 520 individuals were returned to their families, including 46 individuals during the reporting period. The number of missing persons identified in 2014, stood at 43. The United Nations continued to contribute to restoring normal conditions. UNFICYP issued more than 900 permits for farming and other civilian activities and facilitated the maintenance of utility infrastructure and the provision of basic services. As UNFICYP continued to play an essential role on the island, including in support of the good offices mission, the Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council extend the Force's mandate until 31 January 2015.

Year-end developments. In a later report [S/2015/17] covering the period from 21 June to 15 December, the Secretary-General noted that the situation along the ceasefire lines remained calm and stable because of UNFICYP regular patrolling and liaison with the opposing forces. Despite minor military violations committed by both forces, which resulted in occasional altercations with UNFICYP, relations between UNFICYP and the opposing forces remained good. For the seventh consecutive year, the Turkish Forces and the Cypriot National Guard did not conduct their annual military exercises. Efforts were ongoing at all levels to encourage both sides to advance demining inside and outside the buffer zone, including through the exchange of information on the whereabouts of minefields.

To help facilitate a return to normal conditions, UNFICYP continued to provide humanitarian support to 345 Greek Cypriots and 116 Maronites residing in the north. For Turkish Cypriots residing in the south, UNFICYP remained in contact with local authorities to ensure access to health, welfare and educational support. UNFICYP police assisted and facilitated investigations conducted by the respective police services into criminal matters within the buffer zone, and facilitated meetings of the Technical Committee on Crime and Criminal Matters. Contacts with various stakeholders continued in order to improve the situation in old town Nicosia. In cooperation with international and local partners, UNFICYP also supported 77 bicomunal civil society events involving around 2,870 individuals, and facilitated 65 religious services, involving more than 23,000 individuals, which were held in the buffer zone or required crossings to the other side.

The Committee of Missing persons continued with the exhumations, identification and return of the remains of missing persons. As at 18 December, the Committee's bicomunal teams of archaeologists had exhumed the remains of 948 missing persons on both sides of the island. The remains of 564 individuals were returned to their respective families, including 135 individuals during the reporting period. The total number of missing persons identified in 2014 stood at 157, the highest in any given year. UNFICYP also facilitated the post-mortem transfer of six Greek Cypriots for burial in the north. The Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council extend the UNFICYP mandate until 31 July 2015.

Ukraine

In 2014, following months of mass protests in Kiev that culminated in violence, the crisis in Ukraine emerged as a major new concern of the Security Council. The situation came to a head on 28 January when the Government of Ukraine resigned. Negotiations to settle the conflict were held between the parties, with the participation of EU representatives and the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of France, Germany and Poland, and a Special Envoy of the President of the Russian Federation. On 21 February, Ukraine President Viktor Yanukovich and opposition leaders signed, in Kiev, the "Agreement on the Settlement of the Crisis in Ukraine." The Agreement, transmitted to the Secretary-General by the Russian Federation on 23 February [S/2014/121], provided for the restoration of the 2004 Ukrainian Constitution, the creation of a national unity government, constitutional reforms to be completed in September, presidential elections to be held no later than December, and an investigation of the crisis. On 24 February [S/2014/122], Ukraine reported that on 22 February, President Yanukovich renounced the Agreement and refused to sign the law restoring the 2004 Constitution adopted by the Parliament. He left Kiev for an unknown destination, thus removing himself from his constitutional authority. On the same day, the Parliament adopted decrees on the removal of the president and early presidential elections which were set for 25 May. On 26 February [S/2014/132], Ukraine rejected allegations made by the Russian Federation of “threats to civil rights, particularly of minorities and religious confessions” in Ukraine as false and baseless.

Situation in Crimea

Following a request by Ukraine [S/2014/136], due to the deterioration of the situation in Ukraine’s Autonomous Republic of Crimea, the Security Council met on 28 February [S/PV.7123] in closed session to hear a briefing by Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs Oscar Fernández-Taranco, and in open session on 1 March [S/PV.7124] by Deputy Secretary-General Jan Eliasson who said that since briefing the Council the previous day by Mr. Fernández-Taranco, reports continued of serious developments in Ukraine, especially in Crimea, where key sites, including the regional parliament, reportedly continued to be blocked by unidentified armed men. Armed personnel took control also of regional administration buildings in several cities in the East and South of Ukraine. He recalled the Secretary-General’s statement of the same day reiterating his call for the full respect for and preservation of the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Ukraine. Meanwhile, Ukraine reported that Russian troops had illegally entered Crimea to allegedly protect the Russian-speaking population of the peninsula. It called on the Council to do everything possible to stop the aggression against Ukraine. The Russian Federation, for its part, contended that the Russian troops were deployed in Crimea at the request of local authorities, and submitted, on 3 March [S/2014/146], a statement by Mr. Yanukovich appealing to the Russian Federation to use its armed forces to restore law and order in the country.

At the Council’s meeting on 3 March [S/PV.7125], Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs Fernández-Taranco reported a continuing build-up of Russian troops in Crimea and that a number of Ukrainian military bases were surrounded by Russian troops. In addition, the situation in Eastern Ukraine remained fluid, with reports of demonstrations in certain cities and attempts by local groups to seize control of some official buildings. On 2 March, Ukraine’s Parliament urged Russia to fulfil the terms of the agreement on its Black Sea Fleet’s temporary presence in Ukraine and to withdraw its troops. Following the Council’s consultation, and in the light of developments on the ground, the Secretary-General asked the Deputy Secretary-General to travel to Ukraine so that he could brief the Secretary-General on next steps.

On 4 March [S/2014/152], Ukraine asserted that since Mr. Yanukovich was no longer a legitimate President of Ukraine, his request to the Russian Federation to use its military forces in Ukraine might not be regarded as an official request. It further informed the Council President on 7 March [S/2014/164], that the Crimean Parliament had decided to hold a referendum on 16 March on the issue of “reuniting Crimea with the Russian Federation.” At its meeting on 13 March [S/PV.7134], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Jeffrey Feltman informed the Council that on 11 March, reports were received that Crimean authorities had closed down the airspace of the peninsula to all commercial flights, except those from Moscow, and Crimea’s Parliament had adopted a “declaration of independence of the Autonomous Republic of Crimea”. The Parliament of Ukraine adopted a resolution urging the Parliament of Crimea to reconsider its decision of 6 March and to bring it in line with Ukraine’s constitution; if it failed to do so by 12 March, the Parliament of Ukraine would initiate the early termination of its powers.

The Secretary-General continued efforts to speak to all relevant parties with the aim of seeking a peaceful resolution of the crisis. Local authorities, however, denied the Assistant Secretary-General for Human Rights Ivan Šimonović access to Crimea. The human rights monitoring mission of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) was set to become operational in Ukraine. On 13 March [S/2014/186], Ukraine, invoking Article 51 of the UN Charter, requested States and the regional security systems to assist in restoring its sovereignty, territorial integrity and inviolability. It also informed the Council President, on 15 March [S/2014/193], that its Constitutional Court had found that the 6 March Decree of the Parliament of Crimea on the holding of a referendum on 16 March had violated Ukraine’s territorial integrity and breached Ukraine’s constitution.

On 15 March [S/PV. 7138], the Council had before it for consideration a draft resolution [S/2104/189] proposed by 42 States by which the Council would have noted with concern the intention to hold a referendum on the status of Crimea on 16 March, and would have declared that the referendum would have no validity and could not form the basis of altering the status of Crimea, and would have called on all States and international organizations and agencies not to recognize such change. The draft resolution was not adopted owing to the negative vote of a permanent member of the Council, namely the Russian Federation. On 17 March [S/2014/196], Ukraine noted that four days earlier it had referred to the European Court of Human Rights a breach of the European Convention on Human Rights by the Russian Federation and lodged an inter-State application Ukraine v. Russia under article 33 of that Convention.

Meanwhile, the crisis appeared to have deepened, the Deputy Secretary-General reported to the Council on 19 March [S/PV.7144]. The Crimean authorities announced that close to 97 per cent of those who voted in the 16 March referendum did so in favour of Crimea's secession from Ukraine. Subsequently, Crimea declared its independence, which was recognized by the Russian Federation. On 17 March, the EU and the United States applied targeted sanctions against Russian and Crimean officials. The next day, President of the Russian Federation Vladimir Putin signed a treaty to make Crimea part of the Russian Federation. At the same time, the Government in Kiev committed to never accept Crimea's independence or annexation. In other developments, reports emerged that two Ukrainian naval bases in Crimea were taken over by pro-Russian forces or unidentified groups. According to the Deputy Secretary-General, the latest events had heightened tensions and added new layers of complexity to an already precarious situation.

In an 18 March address to the State Duma [A/68/803-S/2014/201], President Putin defended his country's response to the crisis in Ukraine and indicated that he was submitting to the Federal Assembly a request to consider a constitutional law creating two new constituent entities within the Russian Federation: the Republic of Crimea and the city of Sevastopol, and to ratify the treaty admitting them.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 27 March [meeting 80], the General Assembly adopted resolution 68/262 [draft: A/68/L.39 & Add.1] by recorded vote (100-11-58) [agenda item 33 (b)].

Territorial integrity of Ukraine

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming the paramount importance of the Charter of the United Nations in the promotion of the rule of law among nations,

1. Affirms its commitment to the sovereignty, political independence, unity and territorial integrity of Ukraine within its internationally recognized borders;

2. Calls upon all States to desist and refrain from actions aimed at the partial or total disruption of the national unity and territorial integrity of Ukraine, including any attempts to modify Ukraine's borders through the threat or use of force or other unlawful means;

4. Welcomes the efforts of the United Nations, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and other international and regional organizations to assist Ukraine in protecting the rights of all persons in Ukraine, including the rights of persons belonging to minorities;

5. Underscores that the referendum held in the Autonomous Republic of Crimea and the city of Sevastopol on 16 March 2014, having no validity, cannot form the basis for any alteration of the status of the Autonomous Republic of Crimea or of the city of Sevastopol;

6. Calls upon all States, international organizations and specialized agencies not to recognize any alteration of the status of the Autonomous Republic of Crimea and the city of Sevastopol on the basis of the above-mentioned referendum and to refrain from any action or dealing that might be interpreted as recognizing any such altered status.

On 14 December [S/2014/895], Ukraine issued a statement on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of General Assembly resolution 3314 (XXIX) entitled "Definition of Aggression".

Security and human rights situations

On 16 April [S/PV.7157], Assistant Secretary-General for Human Rights Ivan Šimonović told the Security Council that during his visit to Crimea (21–22 March) he interacted with a wide range of interlocutors, including local authorities and civil society, and especially the victims themselves. The media manipulation contributed to a climate of fear and insecurity in the period preceding the referendum. The presence of paramilitary and so-called self-defence groups, as well as soldiers in uniform without insignia, was not conducive to an environment in which voters could freely exercise their right to hold opinions and to freedom of expression during the referendum on 16 March. There were credible allegations of harassment, arbitrary arrests and torture by those groups targeting activists and journalists who did not support the referendum.

Meanwhile, the security situation deteriorated significantly. Reportedly, armed pro-Russian activists established the People's Republic of Donetsk, taking control of Government buildings. In Luhansk, pro-Russian protesters continued to occupy the local security services building. In Kharkiv, participants in a pro-Ukrainian rally were attacked and beaten by pro-Russian demonstrators, resulting in some 50 persons being injured. While reports indicated that the number of protesters, including some allegedly from outside the region, had not significantly increased, the level of violence and the proportion of armed protesters had, with significant human rights implications.

The Council met again on 29 April [S/PV.7165], and was informed by Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman that there was a glimmer of hope for the outcome of the four-party talks between Ukraine, the Russian Federation, the United States and the EU held in Geneva on 17 April, aimed at de-escalating the crisis. The resulting Geneva agreement called for all sides to refrain from violence, intimidation and provocative actions; for all illegal armed groups to be disarmed; and for all illegally seized buildings, occupied streets and public places to be vacated. The emerging spirit of compromise of the 17 April talks, however, appeared to have evaporated. The implementation of the Geneva agreement stalled as parties sought to give different interpretations of what had been agreed upon. Unhelpful rhetoric further escalated the already high tensions. Meanwhile, the situation in parts of eastern and southern Ukraine continued to deteriorate. On 25 April, a group of OSCE military monitors and accompanying Ukrainian staff were captured and detained. There were increasing reports of torture, kidnappings and violent clashes. On 27 April, the mayor of Kharkiv was shot by unknown assailants and remained in critical condition. On the same day, self-declared separatists seized a local government building in Kostiantynivka, in Donetsk Oblast, while in Donetsk itself a pro-unity rally turned violent when separatist elements reportedly attacked the group with clubs and chains. Also, on 27 April, in Kharkiv, clashes between opponents and supporters of a unitary Ukraine broke out resulting in a number of injuries. On 29 April, self-declared separatist groups reportedly began an operation to take control of Lugansk.

On 14 May [A/68/879-S/2014/340], the Russian Federation transmitted to the Secretary-General the text of comments by its Deputy Defence Minister concerning assertions made by NATO and the United States on the lack of withdrawal of Russian troops from the border with Ukraine. According to the Deputy Defence Minister, no formal protest had been presented to the Russian Federation that it had failed to fulfil, or had directly violated its international obligations regarding conventional weapons. In the interest of preventing further provocation, the Russian Federation had withdrawn from the border. Meanwhile, Ukrainian forces continued to mass on the Russia-Ukraine border, where there was a 15,000-strong concentration of Ukrainian troops. There was a simultaneous build-up of NATO forces in Eastern Europe. He called on NATO and United States officials to refrain from misleading the international community regarding the real situation along the Russia-Ukraine border.

As to Ukraine's early presidential election, Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman informed the Council, at its 28 May meeting [S/PV.7185], that reports indicated that 60 per cent of Ukraine's eligible voters had voted, but the numbers varied considerably across the country. In parts of eastern Ukraine, eligible voters were denied their right to vote due to the seizure or blocking of polling stations, the destruction of electoral equipment, intimidation and violence. According to preliminary results, Petro Poroshenko won in the first round with 55 per cent of the vote. The Secretary-General welcomed President-elect Poroshenko's stated intention to engage immediately in dialogue and de-escalation. Both the Luhansk and Donetsk Oblasts areas, however, experienced a dramatic increase in deadly fighting. The Secretary-General was concerned by reports of scores of casualties; by suggestions regarding the circulation and use of heavier weaponry in the east; and by allegations of arms, fighters and trucks entering Ukraine. On 22 May, dozens of Ukrainian servicemen were killed and many wounded in an ambush by unknown armed persons at a military checkpoint in Volnovakha, and on 26 May, fierce fighting ensued when armed militia attempted to seize control of the Donetsk international airport.

In a 17 June press statement [SC/11442], Council members expressed their condolences to the families of all journalists killed while covering the crisis in Ukraine, encouraged a thorough investigation of all incidents of violence involving journalists and expressed concern about reported cases of detention and harassment of journalists covering the crisis in Ukraine.

Meeting again on 24 June [S/PV. 7205], the Council was informed by Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs Tayé-Brook Zerihoun that, due in large part to the initiative by President Poroshenko since his inauguration on 7 June, and the efforts of the international community, there were encouraging signs of a de-escalation of the conflict in Ukraine. On 20 June, Ukraine provided the Secretary-General with an official copy of President Poroshenko's peace plan [S/2014/431], which included de-escalatory measures, such as amnesty for those who did not participate in serious crimes, disarmament, the decentralization of power and early local and parliamentary elections, and a programme for creating jobs in the region. Simultaneously, he announced the start of a one-week unilateral ceasefire to give armed militia an opportunity to disarm. Government forces were ordered to withdraw from their engagements, allowing rebels a chance to lay down their weapons. According to the plan, all rebels who surrendered peacefully and had not committed grave crimes would be granted amnesty. Also, with a view to engaging with Ukraine's eastern regions, the President travelled on 19 June to the Donbass region, and the following day, to Donetsk and Lugansk. The Secretary-General was pleased that peace talks had reportedly started with representatives of the armed groups in eastern Ukraine, led by former Ukrainian President Leonid Kuchma. He also noted that the armed militia groups had agreed to reciprocate the ceasefire, despite previously rejecting the President's plan. In a welcome development, President Putin asked the Russian Parliament to revoke the authorization given to him to send troops to Ukraine. President Poroshenko's office welcomed the move as the first practical step after President Putin expressed support for the peace plan. Nevertheless, even after President Poroshenko's announced ceasefire, the armed groups publicly rejected the offer and continued their assault on Ukrainian forces. Other reports indicated that Ukrainian forces also continued their security operations. On 14 June, a Ukrainian Ilyushin-76 military transport airplane was shot down in Luhansk by armed militia, killing all 49 people on board. On 1 July [S/2014/460], Ukraine informed the Council President of President Poroshenko's decision not to continue the unilateral ceasefire as at 30 June, as insurgents had violated it over 100 times. The peace plan, however, remained in force.

Downing of Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17

At its 18 July meeting [S/PV.7219], the Security Council expressed its deepest sympathies and condolences to the families of those who had lost their lives aboard the Malaysia Airlines Flight MH17 on 17 July over Donetsk Oblast, Ukraine, and to the people and Governments of all the countries that had lost their citizens in the crash. Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman told the Council that, while the United Nations had at that point no independent verification of the circumstances regarding the tragic crash, reports suggested that a sophisticated surface-to-air missile was used. Nearly 300 people were killed, two-thirds of them from the Netherlands, including 80 children. The Secretary-General stated that there was clearly a need for a full and transparent international investigation. The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) offered to put together an international team.

Also, in an 18 July press statement [SC/11480], Council members called for a full and thorough international investigation into the incident and on all parties to grant access to the crash site to determine the cause of the incident.

On 21 July [meeting 7221], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2166(2014). The draft [S/2014/510] was submitted by Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Chad, Chile, France, Germany, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malaysia, the Netherlands, New Zea-

On 22 July [A/68/954-S/2014/524], the Russian Federation transmitted to the Secretary-General the transcript of the special briefing held the previous day by its Ministry of Defence on the crash of Malaysia Airlines flight MH17. On 7 August [S/2014/576], Ukraine clarified the decision of its President to maintain a ceasefire in the immediate area surrounding the crash site. The Netherlands, on 28 August [S/2014/639], informed the Council that, at the request of Ukraine, it had taken the lead in coordinating international efforts regarding the incident with flight MH17. The approach was twofold: recovery of the remains of the victims and their repatriation to their respective home countries; and an international technical investigation into the cause of the crash coordinated by the independent Dutch Safety Board, in accordance with annex 13 of the 1944 Convention on International Civil Aviation [YUN 1946-1947, pp. 728-740]. As at 22 August, 173 of the 298 victims had been identified. Regrettably, efforts to recover remains and belongings were severely hampered by the volatile security situation on the ground. Continuing armed clashes in the area prevented any resumption of activities on site in the immediate future.

At the Council's session on 19 September [S/PV.7269], convened at the request of the Russian Federation [S/2014/264], Under-Secretary-General Feltman updated the Council on developments related to the investigation of the crash. He recognized the pivotal role of the Netherlands in leading the investigation, with contributions by a number of countries, ICAO and the European Aviation Safety Agency. On 9 September, the Dutch Safety Board submitted its preliminary report [S/2014/657] containing the first actual findings based on various sources, including the cockpit voice recorder, the flight data recorder, air traffic control data, and radar and satellite images. While the report was preliminary, it asserted that the plane broke apart due to penetration by a large number of "high-energy objects from outside the aircraft." There was no indication that the plane had any technical or operational issues and no distress signal was received.

Also, on the same day [S/2014/690], the Russian Federation informed the Council President of issues that it considered should be examined during further investigation of the crash of the Malaysia Airlines plane.

The Netherlands, on 16 December [S/2014/903], updated the Council on steps it had taken regarding the repatriation and recovery efforts, the technical investigation and the accountability process. After the decision on 6 August to suspend the recovery mission owing to the volatile security situation on the ground, the Netherlands maintained daily contact with the OSCE mission in Ukraine. So far, 294 of the 298 victims had been identified. For the purposes of the investigation by the Dutch Safety Board, pieces of debris relevant to the investigation were recovered from the crash site between 16 and 23 November. The Board aimed to deliver its final public report by mid-2015.

Further developments

At the request of the Russian Federation [S/2104/264], the Council met on 5 August [S/PV.7234] on the situation in Ukraine. John Ging, Director of the Coordination and Response Division of the United Nations Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) reported that efforts to find a political solution to the crisis in Ukraine had borne little fruit. Insecurity and violence prevailed in conflict areas, resulting in a steadily worsening humanitarian situation. An estimated 3.9 million people lived in areas directly affected by violence. Fighting caused significant damage to infrastructure. Health supplies were running low and an estimated 70 per cent of health personnel had fled the area, leaving access to medical care significantly reduced. Damage to housing had so far affected 1,600 families. Supply routes were increasingly disrupted, and coping mechanisms among the affected populations were deteriorating. The OHCHR human rights monitoring mission and the World Health Organization reported that at least 1,367 people, both civilians and combatants, had been killed and 4,087 wounded in eastern Ukraine since mid-April. An additional 58,000 people had fled their homes since the start of July. There were 117,910 people registered as internally displaced throughout Ukraine, 87 per cent of whom were from the east of the country. The Russian Federation reported that 740,000 people had crossed its borders since the start of the year. UNHCR was reaching hosting areas for internally displaced persons (IDPs) and areas to which people were able to return, while OCHA deployed a humanitarian advisory team to Ukraine to assess needs and support the coordination of the response. On 11 August [S/2104/581], Ukraine informed that President Poroshenko was sending an international humanitarian aid mission to the Luhansk region.

Updating the Council on 8 August [S/PV.7239] on the situation in Ukraine, Assistant Secretary-General for Human Rights Ivan Šimonović reported that since April, 924 people had been abducted and 113 servicemen, military border guards and security personnel detained. In Crimea, UNHCR estimated that 15,200 people had left the Republic while tens of thousands continued to flee the fighting in the east of Ukraine, bringing the number of IDPs to over 117,910 as at 5 August.

On 11 August [S/2014/580], Ukraine informed the Council of the closure, beginning on 15 July, of the seaports of Kerch, Sevastopol, Feodosia, Yalta and Yevpatoria, located in Crimea and the city of Sevastopol, owing to the temporary occupation of those territories. On 15 August [S/2014/599, S/2014/602], Ukraine protested against Russian Federation attempts to establish its national jurisdiction over Ukrainian nuclear facilities located in Crimea, and over the continued aggression by the Russian Federation against Ukraine. On 22 August [S/2014/612], Ukraine also protested the illegal crossing of its border by a Russian Federation convoy.

As the crisis escalated, on 28 August [S/PV.7253] Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman reported to the Council that Presidents Putin and Poroshenko met officially on 26 August and multilateral talks were initiated. The Secretary-General called for the continuation of those talks, with a view to forging a peaceful way out of the conflict, based on President Poroshenko's peace plan (see p. 507). Those events, however, were overshadowed by reports of intensified fighting in south-eastern Ukraine. Illegal armed groups operating in the Donetsk region reportedly had intensified their activities, spreading violence along Ukraine's southern coast in the direction of the strategic port of Mariupol. The town of Novozovsk was seized by the armed groups. The southward spread of fighting along the border with the Russian Federation and the Sea of Azov marked a dangerous escalation in the conflict. The battle for Luhansk continued, and hostilities in Donetsk were spreading. The United Nations had no way of verifying information of Russian military involvement in that new wave of escalation, and the Russian Federation had rejected those reports.

On 3 September [S/2014/647], the Russian Federation forwarded to the Council President the 'Putin Plan' for the settlement of the conflict in Ukraine, which proposed that the parties to the conflict should agree on ending offensive operations by armed units and militia groups in southeast Ukraine in the Donetsk and Lugansk areas; the withdrawal of Ukraine forces to a safe distance from populated areas; allowing international monitoring of compliance with the ceasefire; excluding use of all military aircraft against civilians; organizing the exchange of those detained; opening humanitarian corridors; and repairing and rebuilding facilities.

President Poroshenko, in a 5 September statement [S/2014/652], said that, taking into account the Russian President's call for a ceasefire addressed to illegal armed groups of the Donbas and the signing of the protocol at the meeting of the Trilateral Contact Group on the implementation of the peace plan of the President of Ukraine, he had ordered a cease-fire starting that same day. On 17 September [S/2014/677], Ukraine expressed concern over a statement by the Russian defence minister concerning the deployment of full-scale and self-sufficient military force in Crimea, and on 25 September [S/2014/704], drew the Council President's attention to the discovery of a mass grave on 23 September in a coal mine in Komunar, near the village of Nyzhnia Krynka, sixty kilometres from Donetsk. On 3 October [SC/11588], Council members condemned the killing of a staff member of the International Committee of the Red Cross, Laurent DuPasquier, in Donetsk, Ukraine, on 2 October, and stressed the need for an objective investigation into the tragic death.

On 24 October [S/PV.7287], Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs Fernández-Taranco told the Council that efforts to end the conflict in Ukraine remained mixed. On 5 September, under the auspices of the Trilateral Contact Group, the Minsk protocol to halt the conflict in eastern Ukraine was signed, and the Minsk memorandum, which clarified implementation of the ceasefire agreement, was signed on 19 September. The Secretary-General joined other leaders in welcoming those agreements and in urging their full implementation. Initial steps were undertaken to implement the Minsk protocol and memorandum, including, the implementation of the ceasefire, the exchange of detained persons and Ukrainian Government's steps [S/2014/755] toward decentralization, including by the adoption of a special status, or interim self-governance, for certain areas in Donetsk and Luhansk. Violation of the ceasefire agreement, however, was a daily occurrence, with regular loss of life. The OSCE special monitoring mission, charged with monitoring and verifying the ceasefire and other provisions of the Minsk protocol, was doing its utmost to carry out its mandate in the face of logistical challenges. The United Nations engaged continuously with the mission and OSCE secretariat to identify specific areas where its expertise and resources could be of assistance. There were reports also on the alleged widespread use of internationally banned cluster munitions. In the run up to the elections, reports were received of alleged violence against parliamentary candidates and representatives of various parties, as well as inflammatory statements by armed rebel groups threatening to disrupt voting in areas of eastern Ukraine, and to hold their own elections on 2 November. International election monitoring efforts, led by OSCE, as well as international observers and domestic NGOs would be critical.

The Parliamentary elections were held on schedule on 26 October, Assistant Secretary-General ad interim for Political Affairs Jens Anders Toyberg-Frandzen reported to the Council on 12 November [S/PV.7311]. Although there was no voting in Crimea and those parts of Donbas under rebel control, elections were held throughout the rest of Ukraine. On 11 November, the Central Electoral Commission announced the official results of the elections. On 2 November, rebels in Donetsk and Luhansk held their own elections, in defiance of the Ukrainian Government. Following the elections, the rebels declared themselves as de facto independent from Ukraine and threatened to expand the territory under their control. A full mobilization, including the creation of local armies and security forces, was also announced. In response, President Poroshenko proposed that Parliament revoke the law providing for three years of greater autonomy or special status for the rebel-controlled areas that had been offered as fulfilment of a key tenet of the Minsk Protocol. On 5 November, Prime Minister of Ukraine Arseniy Yatsenyuk announced that pensions and subsidies would be halted to areas under rebel control.

On 3 November, hostilities in the east reignited. Citing credible threats from the rebel leadership that it would launch a new offensive, on 4 November, President Poroshenko ordered army reinforcements to key cities in southern and eastern Ukraine. Reaffirming that Kiev saw no military solution to the conflict and that it would not attempt to retake rebel areas held by rebel force, the President's stated objective was to protect Ukraine's territory from any further incursions [S/2014/792, S/2014/798]. On 9 November, hostilities were reported to be at their worst, with a heavy exchange of artillery and shelling in and around Donetsk. The upsurge in fighting came amidst regular reports from OSCE of an influx of large convoys of heavy weapons, tanks and troops flowing into rebel-held areas. With the onset of winter, the number of IDPs was expected to increase.

8. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report on means to strengthen security and cooperation in the Mediterranean region;

On the issue of conflict settlement, GUAM emphasized respect for sovereignty, territorial integrity and the inviolability of the internationally recognized borders of its members States.

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the General Assembly decided that the agenda item on the protracted conflicts in the GUAM area and their implications for international peace, security and development would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Middle East

The year 2014 was marked by the breakdown of peace negotiations between Palestinians and Israelis and a major escalation of violence in Gaza. Palestinian state-building efforts were undermined by restrictions imposed by Israel on the Occupied Palestinian Territory that prevented the normal movement of persons and goods, economic activity and sustained development and growth.

With the freezing of the peace process, the situation in Gaza remained precarious. As at 31 December, the registered Palestine refugee population in the Gaza Strip stood at 1,276,926. A third war in six years between Israel and armed militants erupted on 8 July and lasted 51 days. An estimated 2,251 Palestinians, 72 Israelis and eleven personnel of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) were killed. At its height, the conflict displaced over 475,000 people in Gaza and forced nearly 300,000 to take shelter in 90 UNRWA schools operating as emergency shelters. An estimated 100,000 homes were damaged or destroyed and approximately 118 UNRWA installations were damaged. An open-ended ceasefire was brokered by Egypt on 26 August. A UN board of inquiry was established to review the incidents in which death or injuries occurred at, or damage was done to, UN premises in Gaza, or in which the presence of weaponry was reported at those premises.

In the West Bank, the abduction and killing of three Israeli youths on 13 June and the subsequent killing of a Palestinian youth in East Jerusalem on 2 July were followed by increased tension, clashes and violence. The plans for expansion of settlements also continued. On 23 July, the Human Rights Council established a fact-finding mission to investigate all violations of international law in the Occupied Palestinian Territory since 13 June.

Ten years after the 2004 advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice, the construction of the separation wall and its associated regime continued, fragmenting Palestinian land, obstructing movement and access, further isolating East Jerusalem and harming the socioeconomic conditions of the Palestinian people. In 2014, the Israeli blockade of Gaza entered its eighth consecutive year. In September, the Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process brokered a trilateral agreement between Israel, the Palestinian Authority and the United Nations to enable work in the Gaza Strip, involving the private sector and giving a lead role to the Palestinian Authority, while providing security assurances through UN monitoring that dual-use materials would not be diverted from their civilian purpose; the mechanism became fully operational in November.

On 25 November, the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/23, by which it reaffirmed its commitment to the two-State solution of Israel and Palestine, living side by side in peace and security within recognized borders, based on the pre-1967 borders.

UNRWA continued to provide education, health, relief and social services, and microfinance to the growing refugee population in the Gaza Strip, the West Bank, the Syrian Arab Republic, Lebanon and Jordan. A severe funding crisis, however, put at risk the Agency's core services to the population, as at 31 December, of 5.1 million registered Palestine refugees. On 31 March, Filippo Grandi of Italy completed his nine-year tenure as UNRWA Commissioner-General and, on 1 April, was succeeded by Pierre Krähenbühl of Switzerland.

The General Assembly proclaimed 2014 as the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People.

During the year, Lebanon's stability was challenged by the political process, the deteriorating security and the protracted consequences of the Syrian conflict. In May, the Security Council stressed that the implementation of its resolution 1701(2006) remained crucial to ensuring stability and full respect for Lebanon's sovereignty and political independence. The security situation in Lebanon was significantly challenged in the second half of the year by attacks carried out by violent extremist groups, including Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and the Nusra Front, in areas bordering Syria. On 16 January, the Special Tribunal for Lebanon opened the in absentia trial of the persons accused in connection with the 2005 killing of former Prime Minister Rafiq Hariri. On 31 December, the Secretary-General extended the mandate of the Tribunal for a period of three years beginning 1 March 2015.

In 2014, Syrians fleeing the conflict in their country sought shelter in Lebanon, which hosted the largest number of Syrian refugees and had a higher proportion of refugees relative to its national population than any country in the world. As at November, there were 1.124 million registered Syrian refugees in Lebanon. As the number grew, Lebanon started to put in place a series of measures to restrict the flow of refugees.

On the political front in Lebanon, President Michel Sleiman's leadership upheld the country's disassociation policy, which was vital to prevent the Syrian crisis from exacerbating tensions in Lebanon. After his term ended, on 25 May, the presidency remained vacant, despite fourteen sessions of Parliament that had been scheduled but had failed to take place owing to a lack of quorum. In the absence of a president, the Council of Ministers led by Prime Minister Tammam Salam assumed power.

The stability along the Blue Line and in the area of operations of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) was threatened by heightened tension resulting from the outbreak of the Gaza conflict in July and August. Also, in August, the Security Council extended the mandate of UNIFIL for one year, until 31 August 2015, with no major operational changes.

In 2014, the conflict in Syria entered its fourth year. After two rounds of intra-Syrian negotiations in January and February, the talks of the Geneva Conference on Syria on implementation of the 2012 Geneva communiqué stalled. In February and in July the Security Council adopted resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014), respectively, regarding the humanitarian situation. On 28 March, the Human Rights Council adopted a resolution extending the mandate of the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria for one year. On 8 April, the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights called on the Security Council to refer the situation in Syria to the International Criminal Court.

On 29 April, a new fact-finding mission was established by Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) to investigate allegations of the use of toxic chemicals, in particular chlorine, for hostile purposes at various locations in Syria. On 30 September, the Joint Mission of the OPCW and the United Nations for the Elimination of the Chemical Weapons Programme of the Syrian Arab Republic concluded its work, having achieved the removal and destruction of that country's declared chemical-weapon stockpile.

Failure to resolve the conflict in Syria produced an enabling environment for ISIL, the Nusra Front and Al-Qaida-affiliated groups that spread outwards from Iraq and posed a threat to regional and international peace and security. On 15 August, the Security Council adopted resolution 2170(2014), expressing concern that parts of Syria were under the control of such groups and demanding their immediate disarmament and disbandment. On 23 September, the international coalition undertook air strikes against ISIL and other targets that continued into November on an almost daily basis.

In January, the Secretary-General issued his first report on children and armed conflict in Syria, which assigned blame on both Syrian Government forces and their associated militias; Syrian Kurdish armed groups; Free Syrian Army-affiliated groups; the Nusra Front; Ahrar al-Sham; ISIL; and other independent or unidentified armed groups for committing atrocities against children.

The mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF), established to supervise the observance of the ceasefire between Israel and Syria in the Syrian Golan and to ensure the separation of their forces, was renewed twice in 2014, in June and December, each time for a six-month period. The heavy fighting between Syrian armed forces and armed groups in proximity of the UNDOF headquarters in Camp Faouar and other positions in the central area of separation had two major consequences for the Force: the abduction of 45 of its peacekeepers, later released unharmed, and the relocation of UNDOF personnel from the Syrian to the Israeli side, which significantly reduced the Force's ability to carry out its mandate as agreed by the parties to the 1974 Disengagement of Forces Agreement.

Peace process

Diplomatic efforts

On 28 March, Israel postponed the release of a fourth and final batch of 26 "pre-Oslo" Palestinian prisoners, which had been agreed under the United States-brokered deal that had led to the restart of negotiations in July 2013. On 1 April, the State of Palestine submitted accession instruments to 21 international treaties and conventions. On the same day, Israel announced 708 reissued tenders for illegal settlement construction in East Jerusalem. On 23 April, the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and Hamas achieved reconciliation and agreed that a national consensus government would be formed within five weeks and elections held no later than six months after the Government's formation. The following day, the Israeli Cabinet suspended peace negotiations. On 2 June, President Mahmoud Abbas swore in the Government of national consensus headed by Prime Minister Rami Hamdallah. Israel declared its opposition to the unity Government and announced the construction of thousands of new settler homes, while the international community welcomed the consensus Government and the United States expressed its readiness to work with it.

Despite the breakdown of the talks between Israel and Palestine, the negotiators continued to meet to find a way out of the impasse. On 14 July, Egypt put forward a proposal for a ceasefire to end hostilities between Hamas in Gaza and Israel. In October, clashes between Palestinian youth and Israeli security forces in many parts of East Jerusalem and the West Bank took place on an almost daily basis. At the end of the year, the parties took constructive steps to de-escalate the tensions surrounding the holy sites, as per the understandings reached in Amman in November.

On 12 October, Norway, Egypt and Palestine co-hosted the Cairo International Conference on Palestine: Reconstructing Gaza. Representatives of more than 90 countries and organizations participated and pledged $5.4 billion dollars—half of which would be allocated to recovery and reconstruction in Gaza.

The Council discussed the situation in the Middle East, including the Palestinian question, at meetings held on 20 January [S/PV.7096 & Resumption 1], 25 February [S/PV.7118], 18 March [S/PV.7140], 29 April [S/PV.7164], 20 May [S/PV.7178], 23 June [S/PV.7204], 10 July [S/PV.7214], 18 July [S/PV.7220], 22 July [S/PV.7222], 28 July [S/PV.7225], 31 July [S/PV.7232], 18 August [S/PV.7243], 16 September [S/PV.7266], 21 October [S/PV.7281], 29 October [S/PV.7291], 17 November [S/PV.7312], 15 December [S/PV.7339] and 30 December [S/PV.7354].

Political and security developments

Communications. Israel and Palestine brought to the attention of the Secretary-General, the Security Council President and the General Assembly President information on attacks or violations of international law committed by either side throughout the year [S/2014/14, S/2014/23, S/2014/28, S/2014/107, A/ES-10/613-S/2014/47, A/ES-10/614-S/2014/59, A/ES-10/616-S/2014/118, A/ES-10/617-S/2014/128, A/ES-10/618-S/2014/135, A/ES-10/619-S/2014/154, A/ES-10/620-S/2014/180, A/ES-10/621-S/2014/205, A/ES-10/622-S/2014/214, A/ES-10/623-S/2014/257, A/ES-10/624-S/2014/280, A/ES-10/625-S/2014/289, S/2014/301, A/ES-10/628-S/2014/347, A/ES-10/629-S/2014/381, S/2014/385, S/2014/416, A/ES-10/631-S/2014/418, A/ES-10/632-S/2014/429, S/2014/454, A/ES-10/633-S/2014/455, A/ES-10/634-S/2014/468, A/ES-10/635-S/2014/471, S/2014/474, A/ES-10/636-S/2014/473, A/ES-10/637-S/2014/479, A/ES-10/638-S/2014/483, A/ES-10/639-S/2014/489, A/ES-10/640-S/2014/491, S/2014/495, S/2014/499, A/ES-10/641-S/2014/506, A/ES-10/642-S/2014/513, A/ES-10/643-S/2014/519, A/ES-10/644-S/2014/530, A/ES-10/645-S/2014/539, A/ES-10/646-S/2014/551, S/2014/557, A/ES-10/647-S/2014/563, A/ES-10/648-S/2014/567, S/2014/578, A/ES-10/649-S/2014/585, A/ES-10/650-S/2014/607, A/ES-10/651-S/2014/610, S/2014/627, A/ES-10/652-S/2014/621, A/ES-10/653-S/2014/624, S/2014/635, S/2014/636, A/ES-10/655-S/2014/634, A/ES-10/657-S/2014/672, S/2014/721, A/ES-10/660-S/2014/735, S/2014/758, A/ES-10/663-S/2014/775, S/2014/789, A/ES-10/664-S/2014/791, S/2014/804, A/ES-10/665-S/2014/810, A/ES-10/666-S/2014/820, S/2014/825, A/69/624-S/2014/850, S/2014/880, A/ES-10/667-S/2014/881, S/2014/926, A/ES-10/668-S/2014/927, A/ES-10/669-S/2014/947].

Security Council consideration (January–February). On 20 January [S/PV.7096 & Resumption 1], the Secretary-General addressed the Council's open debate, saying that the year 2014 would be decisive in helping Israelis and Palestinians draw back from an unsustainable status quo. The United States of America had laid out a framework—in which Jordan had paid an essential role—on all core issues to allow for continued negotiations towards a final agreement. Israeli and Palestinian leaders would be required to make bold decisions and painful compromises for peace, and had to therefore prepare their peoples for those necessary steps. The Secretary-General expressed concern about the recurrent violence on all sides, as well as about the continued settlement activity, which was illegal under international law. Gaza also remained a cause for concern. The realization of the Arab Peace Initiative [YUN 2002, p. 419] would yield benefits for all the peoples of the Middle East: for Palestinians, it would encourage the implementation of the State-building agenda, and for Israelis, it would bring security and recognition in the region and beyond. Reminding that the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) was starting the year with an expected end-of-year shortfall of $67 million under its regular budget, the Secretary-General encouraged all Member States to provide additional funding.

On 25 February [S/PV.7118], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Jeffrey Feltman informed the Council that the United States' efforts to forge a framework proposal as a basis for continued negotiation was reaching a defining moment and potentially would provide a credible horizon to achieve the two-State solution.

The situation on the ground remained fragile. In the West Bank, Israeli security forces carried out a total of 424 search and arrest operations. Clashes increased in and around Palestinian refugee camps, most notably in early February. Attacks by settlers on Palestinian property continued, as did the settlement activity, including in occupied East Jerusalem. In Gaza, the ceasefire understanding of November 2012 was eroding in both ending the hostilities and in opening the crossing for people and goods. The United Nations condemned the increased rocket fire towards Israel. Due to the ongoing closure of Gaza, the humanitarian situation continued to deteriorate. UNRWA urgently needed an additional $30 million to sustain critical emergency operations in Gaza, without which food aid would be cut back.

Meanwhile, efforts to bridge the Palestinian divide continued. Fatah and Hamas delegations met in Gaza to discuss the implementation of existing reconciliation agreements, including the formation of a national consensus government headed by President Abbas, and the organization of general elections.

Communication. In a letter dated 22 January to the Secretary-General [A/68/718-S/2014/49], Morocco transmitted the Final Communiqué of the twentieth session of the Al-Quds Committee of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (oic), held in Marrakech on 17 and 18 January.

Security Council consideration (March–April).

On 18 March [S/PV.7140], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman briefed the Council that eight months since the resumption of talks between Israelis and Palestinians, United States-led efforts were ongoing. A business conference on the importance of improving socioeconomic conditions in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, jointly organized by the Quartet and the United States Secretary of State, took place in Prague on 8 and 9 March. Unemployment had reached 23.4 per cent in 2013—the highest level since 2010. In February, the Palestinian Cabinet approved a $4.2 billion budget for 2014, reflecting a 9 per cent increase from 2013. The 2014 budget presented a deficit of $1.3 billion and development needs of $333 million.

On 3 March, the Israel Central Bureau of Statistics stated that construction in the settlements more than doubled in 2013 as compared to 2012. The Under-Secretary-General also expressed his concern about any movement towards the approval of settlement projects in East Jerusalem, and reiterated that settlement activities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory were contrary to international law and an obstacle to peace. Further, tensions increased with respect to the Temple Mount/Haram Al-Sharif.

In Gaza, the foundations of the ceasefire understanding were undermined by the dangerous escalation of violence that took place between 11 and 13 March. At the same time, the economic and humanitarian situation was also worsening, severely affecting the lives of the population.

On 29 April [S/PV.7164], the Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General, Robert Serry, briefed the Council that the nine-month long United States-brokered peace talks between Israel and Palestine, supported by the Quartet, had faltered and ended without any agreement to continue the talks.

On 28 March, the Israeli Cabinet postponed its decision to follow through with the release of the fourth and last tranche of 30 pre-Oslo prisoners [YUN 2012, p. 382]. On 1 April, interpreting that as a breach of a diplomatic truce in return for the release of 104 pre-Oslo prisoners, the Palestinians, by a unanimous vote of the PLO, proceeded with submitting accession instruments to many international treaties and conventions. On the same day, Israel reissued 708 tenders for settlement units in Gilo. Israel later indicated its understanding that they were nearing a deal to extend negotiations that comprised more than the aforementioned prisoners. In Israel's interpretation, the original understanding was valid as long as there was progress within the talks. Despite those events,

In subsequent developments, Palestinians reached a unity agreement on 23 April, stipulating, inter alia, that a national consensus government would be formed within five weeks, and elections would be held no later than six months after the formation of that Government. Following the announcement of that accord, Israel cancelled a meeting scheduled with Palestinian negotiators and suspended the talks. The political stalemate also impacted the already volatile situation in the West Bank and Gaza, which was serious and was likely to further deteriorate if not addressed. Settlements activities continued and the situation in East Jerusalem remained worrisome.

Communications. In a 3 March letter [A/68/799-S/2014/185] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Iraq, as Chair of the Group of Arab States for that month, made reference to the communiqué that was issued by the League of Arab States at its extraordinary session (Cairo, Egypt, 26 February), condemning Israel's aggressions against the Al-Aqsa mosque.

On 6 March [A/68/791-S/2014/161], Guinea, in its capacity as Chair of the oic Group transmitted a letter to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, by which it expressed concern about the attempt by Israel's parliament at imposing its sovereignty over the Al-Aqsa mosque.

On 26 March [A/68/818-S/2014/227], Indonesia and Japan transmitted to the Secretary-General the joint statement adopted at the second ministerial meeting of the Conference on Cooperation among East Asian Countries for Palestinian Development, issued on 1 March in Jakarta.

On 21 April [S/2014/290], Jordan transmitted a letter to the Security Council President expressing its concerns for the developments in East Jerusalem, in particular in the Al-Aqsa compound.

Security Council consideration (May–July).

On 20 May [S/PV.7178], Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs, Oscar Fernández-Taranco, focused his remarks to the Council on the impasse of the nine-month long peace talks between Israel and Palestine brokered by the United States, stressing that without a credible political horizon the Oslo paradigm was in jeopardy. He added that parties could not be rushed back to the table without proper parameters in place. The pause in the talks allowed for both parties to consider their next steps, while the Secretary-General remained committed to working with them to end the occupation that began in 1967 and establish a Palestinian State, living side by side in peace with Israel within secure and recognized borders. It was the responsibility of the two sides not to take unilateral steps that would complicate efforts to return to negotiations.

On 23 June [S/PV.7204], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman said that with peace negotiations suspended since the end of April and despite the restraint initially displayed by both sides, the situation on the ground had turned highly volatile with several disturbing developments. Intensive search operations in the West Bank for three Israeli students abducted near Hebron were ongoing with a corresponding increase in violence. The hunger strike by Palestinian administrative and other detainees since 24 April was in its sixty-first day. New settlement units had been announced. Further, the fragile calm in Gaza was interrupted by multiple rockets fired at Israel, and by the Israeli military response. On 2 June, President Abbas announced the formation of a government of national consensus based on the PLO commitments of recognition of Israel, non-violence and adherence to previous agreements; President Abbas also said that elections would be organized within six months.

On 10 July [S/PV.7214], the Secretary-General briefed the Council, as the situation in Israel and the Gaza Strip deteriorated. Following the firing of more than 550 rockets and mortars from Gaza into Israel by Hamas and Islamic Jihad, the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) launched more than 500 air strikes on Gaza, primarily targeting Hamas/Islamic Jihad facilities and private residences of their members. Eighty-eight Palestinians, many of them civilians, were reported killed and 339 injured. As at 9 July, some 150 homes had been destroyed or severely damaged, with nearly 900 people displaced.

Two days later [SC/11472], Council members issued a press statement that called for de-escalation; reinstitution of the November 2012 ceasefire [YUN 2012, p. 381]; respect for international humanitarian law, including the protection of civilians; and support for the resumption of direct negotiations.

On 18 July [S/PV.7220], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman reported to the Council about the intensification of violence in and around Gaza. While Israel had legitimate security concerns, the international community was concerned over Israel's heavy response. A ceasefire was indispensable and urgent, as the impact of the Gaza crisis was extending, and started to be felt within the entire region. Once calm was restored, it was imperative to immediately tackle the causes of the violence, including putting an end to weapons smuggling, the full opening of the crossings and bringing Gaza back under one legitimate Palestinian Government adhering to the PLO commitments.

On 22 July [S/PV.7222], the Secretary-General briefed the Council by teleconference from Ramallah, with forty Member States participating. He reiterated that it was essential to reach a ceasefire but also to address the deeper causes of the crisis and not merely delay it for another time. The most promising prospect of a ceasefire was an initiative put forward by Egypt on the basis of the November 2012 understanding on a ceasefire. That effort had garnered the support of President Abbas and had been discussed with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. Hamas, however, had yet to respond positively.

To address the causes of the crisis, it was imperative to tackle, among others, the question of governance. Tens of thousands of employees hired after 2007 and working in Gaza were not being paid, while more than 60,000 employees continued to receive salaries from Ramallah without performing essential government functions in Gaza. Underscoring that it was the third time that he had to participate in an emergency mission to the region since he took office, the Secretary-General said that the parties had to seize the opportunity not only to renew a ceasefire, but also to support a durable political, security, institutional and socioeconomic progress that stabilized Gaza.

On 28 July, the Council convened [S/PV.7225] to adopt a presidential statement (see below). On 31 July [S/PV. 7232], the Council met on the humanitarian situation in Gaza, a day after Israel's shelling of an UNRWA shelter. Under-Secretary-General for Humanitarian Affairs and Emergency Relief Coordinator Valerie Amos and UNRWA Commissioner-General Pierre Krähenbühl briefed the Council. Under-Secretary-General Amos said that more than 1,300 Palestinians had been killed—more than 80 per cent of whom were civilians, including 251 children—and 6,000 injured. Israel had faced rocket fire with 59 killed, of whom three were civilians and 56 soldiers. Up to 440,000 people in the Gaza Strip were displaced, amounting to almost 24 per cent of the population, and more than 240,000 were hosted in UNRWA schools, while others were seeking refuge wherever they could.

More than 240,000 people had sought protection in United Nations facilities and more than 103 of those facilities had come under attack; including the UNRWA school the previous day, which was hosting more than 3,300 displaced people and where 19 were killed and more than 100 injured. The United Nations had lost seven staff members, and other humanitarian workers had been killed since the outbreak of hostilities.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 28 July [meeting 7225], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/13 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council expresses grave concern regarding the deterioration in the situation as a result of the crisis related to Gaza and the loss of civilian lives and casualties.

The Council calls for full respect of international humanitarian law, including the protection of the civilian population, and reiterates the need to take appropriate steps to ensure the safety and well-being of civilians and their protection.

The Council expresses strong support for the call by international partners and the Secretary-General of the United Nations for an immediate and unconditional humanitarian ceasefire, allowing for the delivery of urgently needed assistance, and urges all parties to accept and fully implement the humanitarian ceasefire into the Eid period and beyond. The Council commends the Secretary-General and the Secretary of State of the United States of America, Mr. John Kerry, for their efforts in this regard.

The Council also calls upon parties to engage in efforts to achieve a durable and fully respected ceasefire, based on the Egyptian initiative. In this regard, the Council welcomes the efforts of international partners and the convening of the international meeting to support the ceasefire, in Paris on 26 July 2014, and urges all concerned regional and international parties to vigorously support efforts to consolidate an agreement between the parties.

The Council emphasizes that civilian and humanitarian facilities, including those of the United Nations, must be respected and protected, and calls upon all parties to act consistently with this principle.

The Council calls for the full implementation of its resolution 1860(2009) and stresses the need for immediate provision of humanitarian assistance to the Palestinian civilian population in the Gaza Strip, including through urgent additional contributions to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East. The Council recognizes and commends the vital role played by the Agency, along with other United Nations agencies and humanitarian organizations, in addressing the critical humanitarian needs in Gaza.

The Council urges the parties and the international community to achieve a comprehensive peace based on the vision of a region where two democratic States, Israel and Palestine, live side by side in peace within secure and recognized borders, as envisioned in Council resolution 1850(2008).

Communications. On 11 July [A/68/950-S/2014/486], Saudi Arabia, in its capacity as Chair of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (oic), transmitted to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President the final communiqué of the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of oic on the situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Al-Quds al-Sharif, which was adopted in Jeddah, on 10 July.

In a 21 July [S/2014/514] communication to the Security Council President, the Secretary-General transmitted a 13 July letter by Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas, which requested that the territory of the State of Palestine be placed under an international protection system by the United Nations, with the central aim of ensuring the protection of the Palestinian people.

In a 30 July letter [A/68/961-S/2014/561] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Bolivia and Iran, in their capacity as Co-Chairs of the Joint Coordination Committee of the Non-Aligned Movement and the Group of 77 and China, transmitted the communiqué of the Committee calling for an end to the Israeli military aggression against the Palestinian people, particularly in the Gaza Strip.

Security Council consideration (August–November). On 18 August [S/PV.7243] Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process Robert Serry briefed the Council. He cautioned that the slide towards a state of permanent conflict and hopelessness had to be halted at once, and that the restive situation in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, along with the Gaza crisis, served as a bleak warning of what the future might bring if the negative trend towards a one-State reality was not reversed. The two-State solution remained the only viable scenario.

In his 16 September [S/PV.7266] briefing to the Council, Mr. Serry said that the ceasefire agreement brokered by Egypt on 26 August had largely held but had to be solidified. Under the agreement, provisions for entry of humanitarian and relief aid and construction materials, and an expansion of the fishing zone to six nautical miles had been made.

On the humanitarian front, critical priorities included emergency shelter, energy and water, the absence of which would hinder progress in all other sectors. In that regard, on 10 September, the United Nations and the Palestinian Government had called for international donors to provide $550 million in aid to help the hundreds of thousands of Gazans affected by the conflict.

Furthermore, Gaza had to be opened for reconstruction and recovery, while legitimate security concerns with regard to dual-use material must be meaningfully addressed. The Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process had brokered a trilateral agreement between Israel, the Palestinian Authority and the United Nations to enable work in the Gaza Strip, involving the private sector in Gaza and giving a lead role to the Palestinian Authority, while providing security assurances through the United Nations that those materials would not be diverted from their civilian purpose.

In a 21 October [S/PV.7281] briefing to the Council following his first visit to Gaza since the conflict in Gaza, the Secretary-General reported on his participation in the International Conference on Palestine, which had been held in Cairo on 12 October and had focused on the reconstruction of Gaza.

Approximately $414 million were immediately needed for humanitarian relief, $1.2 billion for early recovery and $2.4 billion for reconstruction efforts. More than 100,000 residents of Gaza remained homeless, with over 50,000 still sheltering in UNRWA schools. Many lacked access to water and blackouts of up to 18 hours per day were common. Despite the harsh reality on the ground, the first supplies of construction materials were being delivered in Gaza under the temporary mechanism brokered by the Special Coordinator.

A united Palestinian government was beginning to take shape. The consolidation of the national consensus Government was crucial, as the effective management of Gaza's borders would facilitate the flow of construction materials into Gaza and allow the restoration of trade between Gaza and the West Bank.

The situation in the West Bank also demanded renewed attention, particularly in the light of plans to construct residential housing units in occupied East Jerusalem. Reiterating that settlement activities were illegal under international law and would jeopardize the pursuit of a two-State solution, the Secretary-General urged the Israeli Government to reverse those activities. Furthermore, he expressed his concern about unilateral actions, restrictions and provocations at the holy sites in Jerusalem, as well as about the mounting number of attacks by settlers.

On 29 October [S/PV.7291], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman briefed the Council at an emergency meeting held in the light of worrisome developments in Jerusalem, including growing violence and renewed settlement activities. He said that the Secretary-General was alarmed by new reports about the advancement of planning for some 1,000 Israeli settlements units in occupied East Jerusalem, in addition to the decision taken at the end of September to accelerate the construction of some 2,600 residential units also in East Jerusalem. New settlements threatened the very viability of the future State of Palestine.

The situation in East Jerusalem grew tenser after 22 October, when a Palestinian man drove his car into a train station and ran over passengers disembarking from the train, killing a three-month old baby and injuring six other people, one of whom succumbed to her injuries. The driver was shot dead by Israeli police as he tried to flee the scene. Tensions also escalated in rest of the West Bank, where Israeli forces shot and killed a Palestinian-American teenager near Ramallah, reportedly following stone- and Molotov cocktail-throwing during a demonstration.

On 17 November [S/PV.7312], ad interim Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs Jens Anders Franz Toyberg-Frandzen briefed the Council on the tensions surrounding access to the holy sites in Jerusalem and violence in Jerusalem and the West Bank, with clashes between Palestinian youth and Israeli security forces taking place on an almost daily basis. Violence had spread also elsewhere in Israel.

He also reported on an increase in demolition of Palestinian buildings; continuing Israeli settlement expansion, which undermined efforts to calm the tensions in Jerusalem; and reconstruction progress in Gaza.

On 13 November, President Abbas and Prime Minister Netanyahu had separate meetings with King Abdullah of Jordan and United States Secretary of State John Kerry in Amman. On 14 November, the age restrictions for access to the Temple Mount/Haram Al-Sharif, were lifted and Friday prayers reportedly went without incident.

On 19 November, the Council issued a press statement [SC/11660], condemning in the strongest term the terrorist attack in a synagogue in Jerusalem that occurred a day earlier and resulted in the killing of four worshippers and a police officer.

Communications. In a 5 August letter [A/68/965], Bolivia transmitted to the Secretary-General its statement of 22 July.

On 22 August [A/ES-10/654-S/2014/615], Bolivia transmitted, on behalf of the countries that comprised the Bolivarian Alliance for the Peoples of Our America-Peoples' Trade Treaty (ALBA-TCP)—Bolivia, Cuba, Ecuador, Nicaragua and Venezuela—a joint communication on the situation in the State of Palestine condemning the Israeli aggression against the Palestinian people.

On 14 November [A/69/584-S/2014/814], Saudi Arabia transmitted to the Secretary-General a letter on behalf of the oic Ambassadorial Group expressing concern about the breaches of international law perpetrated by Israel in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in occupied East Jerusalem.

Also on 14 November [A/69/601-S/2014/816], Morocco transmitted to the Secretary-General a press communiqué issued by the first meeting of the oic Ministerial Contact Group that had met in Rabat on 12 November, following the Israeli incursions against the Al-Aqsa Mosque.

Security Council consideration (December). On 12 December [SC/11699], the Security Council issued a press statement expressing sorrow at the death of Palestinian Minister Ziad Abu Ein, which occurred after a demonstration in the Palestinian village of Turmus Ayya. The Council encouraged the parties to ensure that a swift and transparent investigation was undertaken, and took note of the willingness of Israel to conduct a joint investigation into the incident.

On 15 December [S/PV.7339], the Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process, Mr.erry, briefing the Council, described 2014 as a dramatic year during which efforts to achieve a negotiated settlement had stalled, a devastating 51-day war in Gaza had occurred, and violence throughout the West Bank, including in East Jerusalem, had increased. Israel was heading to the polls following the collapse of the ruling coalition, less than two years into its tenure. While constructive steps had been taken by the parties to de-escalate the tensions surrounding the holy sites as per the agreement reached in Amman, the situation on the ground remained explosive in Jerusalem and the West Bank.

In Gaza, as at 10 December, more than 17,000 individuals requiring material for shelter repairs had been cleared to purchase materials, and around 25,000 home owners were expected to have access to construction materials by the end of December.

On 30 December [S/PV.7354], the Council held a meeting to vote on draft resolution [S/2014/916] put forward by Jordan, calling for an end to the Israeli occupation of the Occupied Palestinian Territories by the end of 2017.

Communications. In a 10 December letter [A/ES-10/667-S/2014/881] to the Secretary-General and the Assembly and Council Presidents, Palestine condemned the killing of Minister Abu Ein by Israeli forces while he participated in a peaceful demonstration.

In a 16 December letter to the Council President [S/2014/901], Saudi Arabia, in its capacity as Chair of the OIC Ambassadorial Group in New York, expressed the Group's condemnation of the killing of Minister Abu Ein.

Peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine

Communication. In a 1 September letter [S/2014/685] the Security Council President, the League of Arab States transmitted the resolutions of the League's Council adopted at its 142nd session, held in Cairo on 7 September, which included 10 resolutions on the question of Palestine and the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Report of Secretary-General. In a September report [A/69/371-S/2014/650], submitted in response to General Assembly resolution 68/15 [YUN 2013, p. 383] and covering the period from September 2013 to August 2014, the Secretary-General shared the replies received by the parties concerning the notes verbales he had sent pursuant to that resolution, and presented his observations on the state of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and on international efforts to move the peace process forward.

In a May note, the Secretary-General had sought the positions of Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and Syria, as well as the State of Palestine, receiving replies from Israel and Palestine. Palestine stated that the Assembly resolutions devoted to the peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine usually received overwhelming support, which underscored the global approval of a solution that ensured Israel's withdrawal from the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967. Israel considered resolution 68/15 and similar resolutions passed annually by the Assembly one-sided and which only served to undermine the credibility of the United Nations as an impartial agent for the advancement of peace.

The Secretary-General observed that following the resumption of the peace process in July 2013 and the first formal round of talks of 14 August 2013, dialogue had intensified between Israelis and Palestinians with approximately 17 rounds of talks held by the end of the year. The negotiation efforts were, however, complicated by the repeated announcements of settlement expansion with each release of Palestinian prisoners.

On 28 March, Israel postponed its decision to release the fourth and final tranche of 30 pre-Oslo Palestinian prisoners, citing lack of progress in the peace talks. In response, on 1 April, and following the announcement on the same day of 708 reissued tenders for settlement units, President Abbas announced that the Palestinian leadership had unanimously voted to join 15 international conventions and treaties. On 24 April, Israel suspended the talks in response to the announcement a day earlier of an intra-Palestinian unity agreement for the formation of a national consensus government, stating that it would not negotiate with any Palestinian government backed by Hamas, which did not recognize Israel's right to exist. On 2 June, President Abbas announced the formation of a Government of national consensus headed by Prime Minister Hamdallah, which would abide by the PLO commitments regarding the recognition of Israel, non-violence and adherence to previous agreements.

Following the discovery of the bodies of three Israeli students on 30 June in the West Bank, tensions in Gaza increased further and, starting from 8 July, escalated with the launch of the Israel Defense Force operation Protective Edge, which aimed to destroy Hamas infrastructure and limiting rocket launches into Israel. On 17 July, the operation extended to Israeli ground incursions into Gaza, which had the objective of destroying the tunnel network.

At the peak of the crisis, there were approximately 520,000 internally displaced persons, or nearly 30 per cent of Gaza's population. Approximately 16,700 housing units had been destroyed or severely damaged, affecting some 100,000 Palestinians. Six UNRWA schools harbouring civilians were directly hit by shelling or affected by rocket fire, with serious loss of life and injuries. On 29 July, the premises of the Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process in Gaza were hit.

An open-ended ceasefire was brokered by Egypt on 26 August, ending the 50 days of fighting between Israel and the Gaza militants. Tensions and violence, however, continued in the West Bank and East Jerusalem throughout the reporting period.

The increase in settlements was also particularly concerning, with settler violence remaining high. The Secretary-General had repeatedly stressed that settlement activity in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, was illegal under international law. The demolitions and evictions that were carried out in Area C of the West Bank—constituting over 61 per cent of the West Bank territory—were of deep concern. Palestinians required access to a fair planning and zoning regime, so as not to resort to the building of unauthorized structures that led to unjustified demolitions.

As at September, there were 450 Palestinians held under administrative detention, more than twice the number being held in May. The Secretary-General reiterated that administrative detention should be used sparingly and exceptionally and those detained either charged and brought to trial or released.

Palestinians continued to advance their State-building programme, albeit limited to the territory under the Palestinian Authority's control, which excluded Area C, East Jerusalem and Gaza. Despite strong international consensus that the Palestinian Authority was capable of running a State, the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee was concerned primarily about fiscal sustainability and economic viability, owing to the Palestinian Authority's fiscal difficulties during the reporting period.

By decision 69/554 of 29 December, the Assembly decided that the agenda items on the situation in the Middle East and on the question of Palestine would remain for consideration during its sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Israeli settlements

The issue of Israeli settlements in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, remained central to the question of the Occupied Palestinian Territory and the peace negotiations. The Quartet road map [YUN 2003, p. 464] and the Joint Understanding [YUN 2007, p. 446] reached at the 2007 Annapolis Conference [ibid., p. 445] committed Israel to dismantle all settlement outposts erected since 2001 and to freeze, consistent with the 2001 report of the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee (Mitchell Report) [YUN 2001, p. 409], all settlement activity, including "natural growth".

Communications. Throughout the year, Palestine, in a series of letters, brought to the attention of the Secretary-General, the General Assembly and the Security Council [A/ES-10/612-S/2014/16, A/ES-10/615-S/2014/82, A/ES-10/626-S/2014/317, A/ES-10/627-S/2014/335, A/ES-10/630-S/2014/396, A/ES-10/656-S/2014/646, A/ES-10/659-S/2014/716, A/ES-10/661-S/2014/748, A/ES-10/662-S/2014/765] the ongoing construction and expansion of Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, as well as other Israeli activities that adversely affected Palestinian civilians.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Assembly resolution 68/82 [YUN 2013, p. 387], which reiterated its demand for the immediate and complete cessation of all Israeli settlement activities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem and in the occupied Syrian Golan, the Secretary-General submitted an August report [A/69/348], prepared by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, covering the period from 1 July 2013 to 15 May 2014. The report focused on both official and informal methods used by Israel to control land, which was then allocated to settlements; on how Israel had failed to maintain public order; and on how to ensure accountability for settler violence.

During the reporting period, Israel continued to expand existing settlements and approve new ones. According to the Israeli non-governmental organization Peace Now, in the West Bank and East Jerusalem, tenders for 6,013 housing units in Israeli settlements were announced, and 9,712 housing units were supported. Further expansion of Israeli settlements was also encouraged through funding: approximately $172 million were reportedly transferred to Israeli settlements through budget adjustments that were not included in the State budget.

Since 2004—the year of the International Court of Justice advisory opinion on the legal consequences of the construction of the wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory [YUN 2004, p. 465]—the settler population in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, had increased from an estimated 415,000 settlers to between 500,000 and 650,000 in 2012.

Since 2013, one of the official methods used by Israel to seize land for creating and expanding settlements was by claiming land as State land. In April 2014, the body responsible for this practice—the Blue Line Task Force—endorsed the declaration of approximately 250 acres in the West Bank as State land. Previous practice indicated that once the declaration of State land was endorsed, the land was allocated to Israeli settlements. Another method was the creation and "legalization" of outposts combined with the failure to implement demolition orders of existing ones.

Supporting agricultural and archaeological projects was among the informal methods of seizing land. In addition, acts of violence by Israeli settlers against Palestinians and their property took place on a regular basis. Of concern was the increase of settler violence in the Old City of Jerusalem, which rose from 3 in 2012 to 17 in 2013. Israel failed to protect Palestinians and Palestinian property from attacks by settlers, including the construction of physical obstacles impeding the access of Palestinians to their own farmlands, intimidation and violence against Palestinian farmers, and destruction of trees and crops.

In the occupied Syrian Golan, during the reporting period, Israeli authorities continued to consolidate the presence of settlements. In January, the Government of Israel approved a five-year plan for the development of around 7,400 acres (30,000 dunams) of land near existing settlements. The plan involved the removal of mines and the improvement of water infrastructure systems to grant agricultural land for up to 750 settler families.

The report concluded that Israel played a leading role in the establishment and expansion of Israeli settlements in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan, and had to, therefore, implement relevant United Nations resolutions and withdraw from territories occupied since 1967 and put an end to the creation and expansion of settlements. Furthermore, Israel had to stop the funding and support of archaeological projects, often managed by settlers, as well as the forcible transfer of the Palestinian population, including the Bedouin communities and herders residing in the central West Bank and the eastern periphery of Jerusalem. Israel had also the obligation to provide Palestinian communities in Area C with adequate housing and access to water and services.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth (Special Political and Decolonization) Committee [A/69/454] adopted resolution 69/92 by recorded vote (159-7-12) [agenda item 51].

Taking note of the recent reports of the Special Rapporteur of the Human Rights Council on the situation of human rights in the Palestinian territories occupied since 1967,

Recalling the report of the independent international fact-finding mission to investigate the implications of the Israeli settlements on the civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights of the Palestinian people throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Recalling also the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements of 13 September 1993 and the subsequent implementation agreements between the Palestinian and Israeli sides,

Recalling further the Quartet road map to a permanent two-State solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, and emphasizing specifically its call for a freeze on all settlement activity, including so-called natural growth, and the dismantlement of all settlement outposts erected since March 2001, and the need for Israel to uphold its obligations and commitments in this regard,

Recalling its resolution 67/19 of 29 November 2012,

Noting the accession by Palestine on 1 April 2014 to several human rights treaties and the core humanitarian law conventions,

Aware that Israeli settlement activities involve, inter alia, the transfer of nationals of the occupying Power into the occupied territories, the confiscation of land, the forced transfer of Palestinian civilians, including Bedouin families, the exploitation of natural resources and other actions against the Palestinian civilian population and the civilian population in the occupied Syrian Golan that are contrary to international law,

Bearing in mind the extremely detrimental impact of Israeli settlement policies, decisions and activities on the efforts to resume and advance the peace process, on the credibility of the peace process and on the prospects for the achievement of peace in the Middle East in accordance with the two-State solution of Israel and Palestine, living side by side in peace and security within recognized borders, on the basis of the pre-1967 borders,

Expressing grave concern about the continuation by Israel, the occupying Power, of settlement activities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, in violation of international humanitarian law, relevant United Nations resolutions, the agreements reached between the parties and obligations under the Quartet road map, and in defiance of the calls by the international community to cease all settlement activities,

Expressing grave concern in particular about Israel's construction and expansion of settlements in and around occupied East Jerusalem, including its so-called E-1 plan that aims to connect its illegal settlements around and further isolate occupied East Jerusalem, the continuing demolition of Palestinian homes and eviction of Palestinian families from the city, the revocation of Palestinian residency rights in the city, and ongoing settlement activities in the Jordan Valley,

Expressing grave concern about the continuing unlawful construction by Israel of the wall inside the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in and around East Jerusalem, and expressing its concern in particular about the route of the wall in departure from the Armistice Line of 1949, which is causing humanitarian hardship and a serious decline of socioeconomic conditions for the Palestinian people, is fragmenting the territorial contiguity of the Territory and undermining its viability, and could prejudice future negotiations and make the two-State solution physically impossible to implement,

Deeply concerned that the wall's route has been traced in such a way as to include the great majority of the Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Deploring settlement activities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan and any activities involving the confiscation of land, the disruption of the livelihood of protected persons, the forced transfer of civilians and the de facto annexation of land,

Recalling the need to end all acts of violence, including acts of terror, provocation, incitement and destruction,

Gravely concerned about the rising incidents of violence, destruction, harassment, provocation and incitement by extremist Israeli settlers in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, against Palestinian civilians, including children, and their properties, including historic and religious sites, and agricultural lands,

Taking note of the relevant reports of the Secretary-General,

Noting the special meeting of the Security Council convened on 26 September 2008, as well as the meeting of the Council of 18 February 2011,

1. Reaffirms that the Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan are illegal and an obstacle to peace and economic and social development;

2. Calls upon Israel to accept the de jure applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and to the occupied Syrian Golan and to abide scrupulously by the provisions of the Convention, in particular article 49, and to comply with all of its obligations under international law and cease immediately all actions causing the alteration of the character, status and demographic composition of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and of the occupied Syrian Golan;

3. Reiterates its demand for the immediate and complete cessation of all Israeli settlement activities in all of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan, and calls in this regard for the full implementation of all the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, including, inter alia, resolutions 446(1979), 452(1979) of 20 July 1979, 465(1980), 476(1980) and 1515(2003) of 19 November 2003;

4. Stresses that a complete cessation of all Israeli settlement activities is essential for salvaging the two-State solution on the basis of the pre-1967 borders;

5. Demands that Israel, the occupying Power, comply with its legal obligations, as mentioned in the advisory opinion rendered on 9 July 2004 by the International Court of Justice;

6. Reiterates its call for the prevention of all acts of violence, destruction, harassment and provocation by Israeli settlers, especially against Palestinian civilians and their properties, including historic and religious sites, and agricultural lands;

7. Calls for accountability for the illegal actions perpetrated by Israeli settlers in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, and stresses in this regard the need for the implementation of Security Council resolution 904(1994), in which the Council called upon Israel, the occupying Power, to continue to take and implement measures, including confiscation of arms, aimed at preventing illegal acts of violence by Israeli settlers, and called for measures to be taken to guarantee the safety and protection of the Palestinian civilians in the occupied territory;

8. Encourages all States and international organizations to continue to actively pursue policies that ensure respect for their obligations under international law with regard to all illegal Israeli practices and measures in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, particularly Israeli settlements;

9. Calls upon the relevant United Nations bodies to take all necessary measures and actions within their mandates to ensure full respect for and compliance with Human Rights Council resolution 17/4 of 16 June 2011, concerning the Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, and other relevant international laws and standards, and to ensure the implementation of the United Nations "Protect, Respect and Remedy" Framework, which provides a global standard for upholding human rights in relation to business activities that are connected with Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on the implementation of the present resolution.

Jerusalem

Report of Secretary-General. On 2 September [A/69/341], the Secretary-General reported that three Member States—Cuba, Mexico and Syria—had replied to his request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement Assembly resolution 68/16 [YUN 2013, p. 389] on Jerusalem. The resolution stressed that a comprehensive, just and lasting solution to the question of Jerusalem should take into account the legitimate concerns of both the Palestinian and Israeli sides, and should include internationally guaranteed provisions to ensure the freedom of religion and of conscience of its inhabitants, as well as permanent, free and unhindered access to the holy places by the people of all religions and nationalities.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 25 November [meeting 61], the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/24 [draft: A/69/L.25 & Add.I] by recorded vote (144-6-10) [agenda item 35].

Jerusalem

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 181(II) of 29 November 1947, in particular its provisions regarding the City of Jerusalem,

Recalling also its resolution 36/120 E of 10 December 1981 and all its subsequent relevant resolutions, including resolution 56/31 of 3 December 2001, in which it, inter alia, determined that all legislative and administrative measures and actions taken by Israel, the occupying Power, which have altered or purported to alter the character and status of the Holy City of Jerusalem, in particular the so-called “Basic Law” on Jerusalem and the proclamation of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, were null and void and must be rescinded forthwith,

Recalling further the Security Council resolutions relevant to Jerusalem, including resolution 478(1980) of 20 August 1980, in which the Council, inter alia, decided not to recognize the “Basic Law” on Jerusalem,

Recalling the advisory opinion rendered on 9 July 2004 by the International Court of Justice on the legal consequences of the construction of a wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, and recalling its resolution ES-10/15 of 20 July 2004,

Expressing its grave concern about any action taken by any body, governmental or non-governmental, in violation of the above-mentioned resolutions,

Expressing its grave concern also, in particular, about the continuation by Israel, the occupying Power, of illegal settlement activities, including provocations regarding the so-called E-1 plan, its construction of the wall in and around East Jerusalem, its restrictions on Palestinian access to and residence in East Jerusalem and the further isolation of the city from the rest of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, which are having a detrimental effect on the lives of Palestinians and could prejudice a final status agreement on Jerusalem,

Expressing its grave concern further about the continuing Israeli demolition of Palestinian homes, the revocation of residency rights and the eviction and displacement of numerous Palestinian families from East Jerusalem neighbourhoods, including Bedouin families, as well as other acts of provocation and incitement, including by Israeli settlers, in the city, including desecration of mosques and churches,

Expressing its concern about the Israeli excavations undertaken in the Old City of Jerusalem, including in and around religious sites,

Reaffirming that the international community, through the United Nations, has a legitimate interest in the question of the City of Jerusalem and in the protection of the unique spiritual, religious and cultural dimensions of the city, as foreseen in relevant United Nations resolutions on this matter,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the situation in the Middle East,

1. Reiterates its determination that any actions taken by Israel, the occupying Power, to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the Holy City of Jerusalem are illegal and therefore null and void and have no validity whatsoever, and calls upon Israel to immediately cease all such illegal and unilateral measures;

2. Stresses that a comprehensive, just and lasting solution to the question of the City of Jerusalem should take into account the legitimate concerns of both the Palestinian and Israeli sides and should include internationally guaranteed provisions to ensure the freedom of religion and of conscience of its inhabitants, as well as permanent, free and unhindered access to the holy places by people of all religions and nationalities;

3. Also stresses the need for the parties to observe calm and restraint and to refrain from provocative actions, incitement and inflammatory rhetoric, especially in areas of religious and cultural sensitivity, and expresses its grave concern in particular about the recent series of negative incidents in East Jerusalem;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on the implementation of the present resolution.

Other matters

Israeli practices affecting human rights of Palestinian people

Special Committee on Israeli Practices. By an August note [A/69/355], the Secretary-General submitted the forty-sixth report of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories (Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices), which was established by General Assembly resolution 2443(XXIII) [YUN 1968, p. 555] and was composed of three Member States: Sri Lanka (Chair), Malaysia and Senegal. The report covered the period from 27 June 2013 to 5 June 2014 and was submitted in response to Assembly resolution 68/80 [YUN 2013, p. 395], by which the Assembly requested the Special Committee to continue to investigate Israeli policies and practices in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, especially Israeli violations of the 1949 Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War (Fourth Geneva Convention), and to report to the Secretary-General as soon as possible. The Assembly also requested the Special Committee to continue to investigate the treatment of the thousands of prisoners and detainees, including children and women, in Israeli prisons and detention centres in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967.

The Special Committee held its annual consultations with Member States concerned with the implementation of resolution 68/80 in Geneva on 26 and 27 March, and convened other meetings in Amman (1–3 June) and in Cairo (4–5 June). It was unable to hold meetings in Syria, owing to the situation in that country, but engaged with interlocutors who travelled from the occupied Syrian Golan to Amman. Due to the Government of Israel's practice of non-cooperation, the Special Committee was unable to gain access to the occupied territories within its mandate or consult with the Israeli authorities.

According to information received from Palestinian officials, since the start of the occupation in 1967, the overall number of detainees held in Israeli prisons and detention facilities had exceeded 850,000, the majority of whom were Palestinians, including 25,000 children. As at June, 5,243 detainees were held in Israeli custody in more than 17 prisons, detention centres and military camps in the occupied West Bank and in Israel, including 198 children. In fact, the collapse of the nine-month-long peace negotiations brokered by the United States had been triggered by Israel reneging on its commitment to release, in March, the final group of 30 detainees held in Israeli custody since before the signing of the Oslo Accords in 1993. As at June, 191 Palestinians, including eight Legislative Council members, continued to be held by Israel under administrative detention, without charge or trial, for an indefinite period of time.

On 23 April, approximately 100 Palestinian administrative detainees launched a hunger strike to protest the continued use by Israel of administrative detention, and to demand that a basic standard of due process be observed, namely to know what they were accused of and to be able to defend themselves. By early June, the total number of Palestinian detainees on hunger strike reached more than 290. Furthermore, during the year, the Special Committee heard testimonies indicating that the medical needs of Palestinian detainees within the Israeli prison system had been neglected, in some cases leading to deaths that might have been avoided with proper care and timely diagnosis.

Other Israeli practices affecting the human rights of Palestinians in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, were the torture of detainees held in Israeli custody, 73 of whom had died since 1967 as a result; the detention of children, 76.5 per cent of whom in 2013 had endured some form of physical violence; Israeli settlement expansion; designation of areas as closed military zones, national parks and archaeological sites; demolition of Palestinian structures and the forcible transfer of families and communities; interference with humanitarian assistance; settler violence; and the excessive use of force by Israeli security forces.

In the Gaza Strip, during its mission to the region in June, the Special Committee heard of the critical situation in relation to fuel, electricity, food, water and sanitation, and unemployment. The Israeli blockade, which entered its eighth consecutive year [YUN 2007, p. 472] despite repeated calls by the international community to lift it, coupled with the access-restricted areas, was undermining the ability of Gaza's population to sustain itself. The escalation of hostilities between Israel, Hamas and Palestinian armed groups that took place in July and August, prior to the ceasefire agreement brokered by Egypt, had befallen the people of Gaza. Furthermore, Israel and foreign companies continued to exploit natural resources in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, as reported in June by the Working Group on the issue of human rights and transnational corporations and other business enterprises.

The Special Committee reiterated its call on Israel to cooperate with it in the implementation of its mandate; end the practice of administrative detention by either bringing to trial those administratively detained with all applicable judicial guarantees or by immediately releasing them; ensure that all Palestinian children detained by Israel had access to a lawyer; and prohibit the solitary confinement of minors. Furthermore, it recommended that Israel immediately cancel all existing demolition and eviction orders against Palestinian structures; end the blockade of Gaza; and cease the expansion of settlements in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem.

The Special Committee called upon the General Assembly to adopt measures to address Israel's long record of non-cooperation with the United Nations, particularly regarding the implementation of Assembly and Security Council resolutions; and upon the international community to apply pressure to ensure the lifting of the blockade.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Assembly resolution 68/83 [YUN 2013, p. 392], the Secretary-General submitted an August report [A/69/347], prepared by OHCHR, on Israeli practices affecting the human rights of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, covering the period 1 July 2013 to 15 May 2014. The report focused on four main themes: an assessment of the impact of the wall and related measures in the light of the 2004 advisory opinion of the ICJ on the Legal Consequences of a Wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory [YUN 2004, p. 465]; Israel's practice of administrative detention; the human rights situation in Gaza; and accountability for reported excessive use of force by security forces. It also provided an update on efforts to build Palestinian institutions.

A key component of the wall was what was known as the permit and gate regime. Since 2004, gates designated for agricultural access and the right to food of Palestinians had worsened with the extension of the wall affecting both those seeking to leave the area between the Green Line and the wall—the “seam zone”—and those seeking to access their land in the seam zone. The level of access was not enough for farmers to carry out adequate maintenance on their land and crops. Some parts of the wall had been rerouted because of Israeli court decisions, but still within the West Bank rather than along the Green Line or Israel. The expansion of the wall had also significant repercussion on the rights to health and education—it was estimated that approximately 11,000 Palestinians still had to pass through checkpoints to access education, health and other services.

Concerning the situation of Palestinians in Israeli administrative detention, on 18 May, a bill was approved by the Israeli Ministerial Committee on legislation that allowed, under certain conditions, for detainees on hunger strike to be force-fed and given medical treatment against their will.

In Gaza, due to the blockade, residents had relied heavily on transit and trade with Egypt through the Rafah crossing, as well as through tunnels used to smuggle goods. Since July 2013, however, Egypt had severely restricted travel through Rafah—with the passage of persons in both directions dropping by 76 per cent from the first to the second half of 2013—and had destroyed most smuggling tunnels. This had resulted in shortages of affordable fuel, construction materials, medicine and other goods. During the reporting period, an excessive use of force against Palestinians had been reported both in Gaza, with the killing of six people and the injuring of 121 others, and in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, where 30 Palestinians had died and 2,019 had been injured in incidents involving Israeli security forces.

During the reporting period, the Israeli Military Advocate General opened investigations into at least 10 out of the 30 Palestinian fatalities in incidents involving Israeli security forces in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem. By the end of the reporting period, however, no criminal investigations had been opened into allegations of violations of international humanitarian law in Gaza by the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) during the escalation of November 2012, even though two fact-finding committees were formed to investigate specific incidents.

The Turkel Commission—established in June 2010, following the killing of nine civilians by IDF during an interception at sea of a humanitarian flotilla sailing from Turkey to Gaza [YUN 2010, p. 439], to review the mechanisms used by Israel for investigating complaints of violations of the laws of armed conflict—was scheduled to report to the Government of Israel in September or October on the implementation of recommendations made by the Commission in its previous reports.

The Secretary-General recommended that the Governments of Israel and the State of Palestine carry out prompt, thorough, effective, independent and impartial investigations into allegations of unlawful killing or injury, or of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment by their security forces, and that those responsible be brought to justice in fair trials. Moreover, Israel should fully lift the blockade of Gaza; ensure that the rules of engagement or open fire regulations of Israeli security forces were consistent with international law; and rescind all policies and practices that led to the forced eviction of civilians. The State of Palestine should implement the Palestinian National Development Plan, while Palestinian armed groups in Gaza must respect international humanitarian law, especially in relation to all rules on the conduct of hostilities.

Report of the Special Rapporteur. By an 11 August note [A/69/301 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General transmitted to the Assembly the report by Special Rapporteur Makarim Wibisono on the situation of human rights in the Palestinian territories occupied since 1967, submitted in accordance with Human Rights Council resolution 5/1 [YUN 2007, p. 662]. (For information on the right of the Palestinian people to self-determination, and on the human rights situation in the territories occupied by Israel (see p. 927).

UN Register of Damage. On 9 September, in accordance with Assembly resolution ES-10/17 [YUN 2006, p. 529], the Secretary-General submitted to the Assembly a progress report, dated 20 June, from the Board of the United Nations Register of Damage Caused by the Construction of the Wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory [A/ES-10/658] covering the period from 15 June 2013 to 20 June 2014. During that period, the Board held three meetings in Vienna to review 3,570 claims for category A (agriculture) losses, 498 claims for category B (commercial) losses, 36 claims for category C (residential) losses and 217 claims for category E (access to services) losses. As at 20 June, the Board had decided to include most or all of the losses set out in 12,515 claim forms and to exclude 659 claim forms where none of the losses met the eligibility criteria, bringing the total number of decided claims to 13,174. There was a considerable gap between the number of claim forms collected and the ones processed by the Vienna Office of the Register of Damage, despite the diligent work of the secretariat. Further, despite donors' support, the resources available would be soon exhausted, thus putting into question the continuation of the claim-intake activity in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

During the reporting period, the Board addressed and took decisions on duplicate agricultural claims; divergent markings of the Green Line; loss of access to health services; interruption of education; destruction of items at the crossing gates; and theft from property in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, among others.

For its activities, the Board counted on the cooperation of the Palestinian Authority, the Palestinian National Committee for the Register of Damage and local governors, mayors and members of village councils; and for its funding, on the contributions of 18 United Nations Member States, as well as the Fund for International Development of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries. Israel continued to consider that any claims in relation to damage caused by the construction of the wall should be addressed through the existing Israeli mechanism. Despite that, the Executive Director of the Office of the Register of Damage maintained constructive contacts with relevant Israeli authorities and, during the reporting period, the Office did not experience any problem with access, freedom of movement, security and delivery of needed materials or issuance of required visas by Israel.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/69/454], adopted resolution 69/93 by recorded vote (158-8-11) [agenda item 51].

Israeli practices affecting the human rights of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem

The General Assembly,

Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights,

Recalling also the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the Convention on the Rights of the Child, and affirming that these human rights instruments must be respected in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Reaffirming its relevant resolutions, including resolution 68/83 of 11 December 2013 as well as those adopted at its tenth emergency special session,

Recalling the relevant resolutions of the Human Rights Council,

Recalling also the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, and stressing the need for their implementation,

Having considered the report of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories and the report of the Secretary-General on the work of the Special Committee,

Taking note of the recent reports of the Special Rapporteur of the Human Rights Council on the situation of human rights in the Palestinian territories occupied since 1967, as well as of other relevant recent reports of the Human Rights Council,

Aware of the responsibility of the international community to promote human rights and ensure respect for international law, and recalling in this regard its resolution 2625(XXV) of 24 October 1970,

Recalling the advisory opinion rendered on 9 July 2004 by the International Court of Justice, and recalling also General Assembly resolutions ES-10/15 of 20 July 2004 and ES-10/17 of 15 December 2006,

Noting in particular the Court's reply, including that the construction of the wall being built by Israel, the occupying Power, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in and around East Jerusalem, and its associated regime are contrary to international law,

Taking note of its resolution 67/19 of 29 November 2012,

Noting the accession by Palestine, on 1 April 2014, to several human rights treaties and the core humanitarian law conventions,

Reaffirming the principle of the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force,

Reaffirming also the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Reaffirming further the obligation of the States parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention under articles 146, 147 and 148 with regard to penal sanctions, grave breaches and responsibilities of the High Contracting Parties,

Reaffirming that all States have the right and the duty to take actions in conformity with international law and international humanitarian law to counter deadly acts of violence against their civilian population in order to protect the lives of their citizens,

Stressing the need for full compliance with the Israeli-Palestinian agreements reached within the context of the Middle East peace process, including the Sharm el-Sheikh understandings, and the implementation of the Quartet road map to a permanent two-State solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict,

Stressing also the need for the full implementation of the Agreement on Movement and Access and the Agreed Principles for the Rafah Crossing, both of 15 November 2005, to allow for the freedom of movement of the Palestinian civilian population within and into and out of the Gaza Strip,

Expressing grave concern about the continuing systematic violation of the human rights of the Palestinian people by Israel, the occupying Power, including that arising from the excessive use of force and military operations causing death and injury to Palestinian civilians, including children, women and non-violent, peaceful demonstrators; the arbitrary imprisonment and detention of Palestinians, some of whom have been imprisoned for decades; the use of collective punishment; the closure of areas; the confiscation of land; the establishment and expansion of settlements; the construction of a wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory in departure from the Armistice Line of 1949; the destruction of property and infrastructure; the forced displacement of civilians; and all other actions by it designed to change the legal status, geographical nature and demographic composition of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Deploing the conflict in and around the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014 and the civilian casualties caused, including the killing and injury of thousands of Palestinian civilians, including children, women and the elderly, the widespread destruction of thousands of homes and civilian infrastructure, including schools, hospitals, water, sanitation and electricity networks, economic, industrial and agricultural properties, public institutions, religious sites, and United Nations schools and facilities, the internal displacement of hundreds of thousands of civilians, and any violations of international law, including humanitarian and human rights law, in this regard,

Gravely concerned about the disastrous humanitarian situation and the critical socioeconomic and security situation in the Gaza Strip, including that resulting from the prolonged closures and severe economic and movement restrictions that in effect amount to a blockade and from the continuing and vastly negative repercussions of the military operations between December 2008 and January 2009, in November 2012 and in July and August 2014, as well as about the firing of rockets into Israel,

Recalling the statement by the President of the Security Council of 28 July 2014,

Stressing the need for the full implementation by all parties of Security Council resolution 1860(2009) of 8 January 2009 and General Assembly resolution ES-10/18 of 16 January 2009,

Stressing also that the situation in the Gaza Strip is unsustainable and that a durable ceasefire agreement must lead to a fundamental improvement in the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Gaza Strip, including through the sustained and regular opening of crossing points, and ensure the safety and well-being of civilians on both sides,

Gravely concerned by reports regarding serious human rights violations and grave breaches of international humanitarian law committed during the military operations in the Gaza Strip between December 2008 and January 2009, including the findings in the summary by the Secretary-General of the report of the Board of Inquiry and in the report of the United Nations Fact-finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict, and reiterating the necessity for serious follow-up by all parties of the recommendations addressed to them towards ensuring accountability and justice,

Expressing deep concern also about the Israeli policy of closures and the imposition of severe restrictions, including through hundreds of obstacles to movement, checkpoints and a permit regime, all of which obstruct the freedom of movement of persons and goods, including medical and humanitarian goods, throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and impair the Territory's contiguity, consequently violating the human rights of the Palestinian people and negatively impacting their socioeconomic situation and the efforts aimed at rehabilitating and developing the Palestinian economy, which remains that of a critical humanitarian situation in the Gaza Strip, while taking note of recent developments with regard to the situation of access there,

Expressing grave concern that thousands of Palestinians, including many children and women, continue to be held in Israeli prisons or detention centres under harsh conditions, including, inter alia, unhygienic conditions, solitary confinement, the extensive use of administrative detention of excessive duration without charge and denial of due process, lack of proper medical care and widespread medical neglect, including for prisoners who are ill, with the risk of fatal consequences, and denial of family visits, that impair their well-being, and expressing grave concern also about the ill-treatment and harassment and all reports of torture of any Palestinian prisoners,

Expressing deep concern about the recent hunger strikes by numerous Palestinian prisoners in protest of the harsh conditions of their imprisonment and detention by the occupying Power, while taking note of the agreement reached in May 2012 on conditions of detention in Israeli prisons and calling for its full and immediate implementation,

Expressing concern about the possible consequences of the enactment by Israel, the occupying Power, of military orders regarding the detention, imprisonment and deportation of Palestinian civilians from the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and recalling in this regard the prohibition under international humanitarian law of the deportation of civilians from occupied territories,

Stressing the need for the prevention of all acts of violence, harassment, provocation and incitement by extremist Israeli settlers, especially against Palestinian civilians, including children, and their properties, including homes, agricultural lands and historic and religious sites, and expressing deep concern about the violation of the human rights of Palestinians in this regard,

Convinced of the need for an international presence to monitor the situation, to contribute to ending the violence and protecting the Palestinian civilian population and to help the parties to implement the agreements reached, and in this regard recalling the positive contribution of the Temporary International Presence in Hebron,

Noting the continued efforts and tangible progress made in the Palestinian security sector, and noting also the continued cooperation that benefits both Palestinians and Israelis, in particular by promoting security and building confidence, and expressing the hope that such progress will be extended to all major population centres,

Urging the parties to observe calm and restraint and to refrain from provocative actions, incitement and inflammatory rhetoric, especially in areas of religious and cultural sensitivity, including in East Jerusalem, and to take every possible step to promote conditions conducive to the success of the resumed peace negotiations,

Emphasizing the right of all people in the region to the enjoyment of human rights as enshrined in the international human rights covenants,

1. Reiterates that all measures and actions taken by Israel, the occupying Power, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, in violation of the relevant provisions of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and contrary to the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, are illegal and have no validity;

2. Demands that Israel, the occupying Power, cease all practices and actions that violate the human rights of the Palestinian people, including the killing and injury of civilians, the arbitrary detention and imprisonment of civilians, the forced displacement of civilians, and the destruction and confiscation of civilian property, and that it fully respect human rights law and comply with its legal obligations in this regard, including in accordance with relevant United Nations resolutions;

Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, and calls for full cooperation with the relevant special rapporteurs and other relevant mechanisms and inquiries of the Human Rights Council;

5. Demands that Israel, the occupying Power, cease all of its settlement activities, the construction of the wall and any other measures aimed at altering the character, status and demographic composition of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in and around East Jerusalem, all of which, inter alia, gravely and detrimentally impact the human rights of the Palestinian people and the prospects for achieving without delay an end to the Israeli occupation that began in 1967 and a just, lasting and comprehensive peace settlement between the Palestinian and Israeli sides;

6. Calls for urgent attention to the plight and the rights, in accordance with international law, of Palestinian prisoners and detainees in Israeli jails, and calls for efforts between the two sides for the further release of prisoners and detainees;

7. Condemns all acts of violence, including all acts of terror, provocation, incitement and destruction, especially the excessive use of force by the Israeli occupying forces against Palestinian civilians, particularly in the Gaza Strip, which have caused extensive loss of life and vast numbers of injuries, including among thousands of children and women, massive damage and destruction to homes, economic, industrial and agricultural properties, vital infrastructure, including water, sanitation and electricity networks, religious sites and public institutions, including hospitals and schools, and United Nations facilities, and agricultural lands, and large-scale internal displacement of civilians;

11. Reiterates the need for respect for the territorial unity, contiguity and integrity of all of the Occupied Palestinian Territory and for guarantees of the freedom of movement of persons and goods within the Palestinian territory, including movement into and from East Jerusalem, into and from the Gaza Strip, between the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, and to and from the outside world;

12. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to cease its imposition of prolonged closures and economic and movement restrictions, including those amounting to a blockade on the Gaza Strip, and in this regard to fully implement the Agreement on Movement and Access and the Agreed Principles for the Rafah Crossing, both of 15 November 2005, in order to allow for the sustained and regular movement of persons and goods and for the acceleration of long overdue and massive reconstruction needs and economic recovery in the Gaza Strip, while noting the recent tripartite agreement facilitated by the United Nations in this regard;

Work of Special Committee

In response to Assembly resolution 68/80 [YUN 2013, p. 395], the Secretary-General issued a July report on the work of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices [A/69/128]. The Committee collected testimony from 35 victims, witnesses, officials and representatives of organizations working to document and prevent violations of human rights and international humanitarian law in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

The UN Department of Public Information continued to cover, in multiple languages, the activities of the Special Committee through traditional and new media platforms. The Department's Meetings Coverage Section produced press releases of the Committee's meetings and statements in English and French. The Committee was also prominently covered on the UN News Centre portal, with news stories posted online and distributed through the portal's e-mail service, RSS feeds, Facebook and Twitter accounts. UN Radio spotlighted issues and developments relating to the Committee's mandate, including news stories and programmes about the Israeli blockade of the Gaza Strip; the activities of UNRWA and special rapporteurs; and the overall economic, social and human rights conditions of people living in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/69/454], adopted resolution 69/90 by recorded vote (88-9-79) [agenda item 51].

Work of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories

The General Assembly,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Guided also by international humanitarian law, in particular the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, as well as international standards of human rights, in particular the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenants on Human Rights,

Recalling its relevant resolutions, including resolutions 2443(XXIII) of 19 December 1968 and 68/80 of 11 December 2013, and the relevant resolutions of the Human Rights Council, including resolutions S-12/1 of 16 October 2009 and S-21/1 of 23 July 2014,

Recalling also the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Taking into account the advisory opinion rendered on 9 July 2004 by the International Court of Justice on the legal consequences of the construction of a wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, and recalling in this regard its resolution ES-10/15 of 20 July 2004,

Recalling its resolution 58/292 of 6 May 2004,

Taking note of the report of the independent international fact-finding mission to investigate the implications of the Israeli settlements on the civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights of the Palestinian people throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Convinced that occupation itself represents a gross and grave violation of human rights,

Gravely concerned about the continuing detrimental impact of ongoing unlawful Israeli practices and measures in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, including the excessive use of force by the Israeli occupying forces against Palestinian civilians, resulting in the death and injury of civilians and the widespread destruction of property and vital infrastructure, including during the Israeli military operations in the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014, as well as ongoing settlement activities and construction of the wall, the internal forced displacement of civilians, the imposition of collective punishment measures, particularly against the civilian population in the Gaza Strip, where continuing severe restrictions on movement amount to a blockade, and the detention and imprisonment of thousands of Palestinians,

Gravely concerned also about all acts of violence, intimidation and provocation by Israeli settlers against Palestinian civilians and properties, including homes, mosques, churches and agricultural lands,

Gravely concerned in particular by reports regarding serious human rights violations and grave breaches of international humanitarian law committed during the military operations in the Gaza Strip between December 2008 and January 2009, including the findings in the summary by the Secretary-General of the report of the Board of Inquiry and in the report of the United Nations Fact-Finding Mission on the Gaza Conflict, and reiterating the necessity for serious follow-up by all parties to the recommendations addressed to them towards ensuring accountability and justice,

Deploing the killing and injury of thousands of civilians, including women and children, during the military operations in the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014,

Having considered the report of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories and the relevant reports of the Secretary-General,

Recalling the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements of 13 September 1993 and the subsequent implementation agreements between the Palestinian and Israeli sides,

Taking note of the application of Palestine for admission to membership in the United Nations, submitted on 23 September 2011,

Recalling its resolution 67/19 of 29 November 2012, by which, inter alia, Palestine was accorded non-member observer State status in the United Nations, and taking note of the follow-up report of the Secretary-General,

Noting the accession by Palestine, on 1 April 2014, to several human rights treaties and the core humanitarian law conventions,

4. Expresses grave concern about the critical situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, particularly in the Gaza Strip, as a result of unlawful Israeli practices and measures, and especially condemns and calls for the immediate cessation of all illegal Israeli settlement activities and the construction of the wall, the lifting of the blockade of the Gaza Strip, as well as a complete cessation of the excessive and indiscriminate use of force and military operations against the civilian population, settler violence, the destruction and confiscation of properties, the forced displacement of civilians, all measures of collective punishment, and the detention and imprisonment of thousands of civilians;

5. Requests the Special Committee, pending complete termination of the Israeli occupation, to continue to investigate Israeli policies and practices in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967, especially Israeli violations of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and to consult, as appropriate, with the International Committee of the Red Cross according to its regulations in order to ensure that the welfare and human rights of the peoples of the occupied territories are safeguarded and to report to the Secretary-General as soon as possible and whenever the need arises thereafter;

6. Also requests the Special Committee to submit regularly to the Secretary-General periodic reports on the current situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem;

7. Further requests the Special Committee to continue to investigate the treatment and status of the thousands of prisoners and detainees, including children and women, in Israeli prisons and detention centres in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967, and expresses grave concern about harsh conditions and ill-treatment of prisoners and recent hunger strikes, while taking note of the agreement reached in May 2012 concerning conditions of detention in Israeli prisons and calling for its full and immediate implementation;

Economic and social situation

In May, the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia, in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 2013/8 [YUN 2013, p. 397] and General Assembly resolution 68/235 [ibid., p. 400], prepared a report [A/69/81-E/2014/13] on the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan. The report covered the period from 1 April 2013 to 31 March 2014.

During 2013, the overall economy of the Occupied Palestinian Territory continued its negative trend. Unemployment was recorded at 38.5 in Gaza and at 18.2 in the West Bank, affecting 33.5 per cent of Palestinian women, 32.3 per cent of refugees and 39 per cent of youth. Food insecurity levels rose dramatically affecting over 1.5 million Palestinians (34 per cent of the population). Since 2000, UNRWA had spent more than $900 million in food and cash assistance benefiting the poorest refugees in Gaza, where more than 800,000 refugees depended on the Agency's food assistance.

The poor quality and insufficient water and inadequate wastewater treatment posed a major public health problem, particularly for children in Gaza. The public health system in Gaza remained fragile, dependent on donor aid and vulnerable to the closure of borders, restrictions on the movement of people and goods, and Israeli military operations. Those conditions were exacerbated by power cuts of up to 16 hours a day owing to a shortage of fuel entering Gaza. In 2013, almost 15,000 patients had to leave Gaza to access life-saving medical care in East Jerusalem, the West Bank, Israel and Egypt. The volume of permit applications through the Erez crossing increased by 48 per cent in 2013 compared with 2012, reflecting more demand owing to drug shortages and reduced access via Rafah to Egypt.

During the reporting period, 40 Palestinian civilians were killed and another 3,654 injured by Israeli security forces and settlers throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory. The casualties included at least 5 Palestinian children killed and another 1,001 injured. A total of 4,881 Palestinians, including 183 minors, had been detained or imprisoned by Israeli security forces by January, with reported torture, ill-treatment and denial of rights. In 2013, 663 Palestinian structures, including homes, were demolished, displacing 1,103 people. Over 1 billion square metres of Palestinian land had been seized by Israel since the onset of the occupation in 1967. During 2013, Israel started construction on 2,534 housing units in settlements in the West Bank, excluding East Jerusalem, comprising an increase of 123.7 per cent over 2012. Violence and attacks by settlers continued with impunity. In 2013, 93 attacks were recorded against Palestinians, including children, their property and holy places.

Israeli measures had a detrimental impact on the environment and natural resources and curtailed Palestinian development and livelihood through discriminatory policies, including in access to land and water allocation. Israeli settlers consumed six times more water than Palestinians in the West Bank. Ninety per cent of the water from the Gaza aquifer was not safe for drinking without prior treatment, further exacerbating the conditions of the Palestinians living there.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 16 July [meeting 45] the Economic and Social Council adopted resolution 2014/26 [draft: E/2014/L.26] by roll-call vote (44-2-2) [agenda item 14].

Taking note of the report by the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia on the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan, as transmitted by the Secretary-General,

Taking note, in that regard, of the accession by Palestine, on 1 April 2014, to several human rights treaties and the core humanitarian law conventions,

Taking note also of General Assembly resolution 67/19 of 29 November 2012, of 16 December 2008, the principle of land for peace, the Arab Peace Initiative and the Quartet road map, as well as compliance with the agreements reached between the Government of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestinian people,

Reaffirming the principle of the permanent sovereignty of peoples under foreign occupation over their natural resources, and expressing concern in that regard about the exploitation of natural resources by Israel, the occupying Power, and Israeli settlers in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan, particularly as a result of settlement activities, which are illegal under international law,

Convinced that the Israeli occupation has gravely impeded the efforts to achieve sustainable development and a sound economic environment in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan, and expressing grave concern about the consequent deterioration of economic and living conditions,

Commending the efforts of the Palestinian Government, despite the many constraints, to improve the economic and social situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, especially in the areas of governance, the rule of law and human rights, livelihoods and productive sectors, education and culture, health, social protection, infrastructure and water, and welcoming in that regard the United Nations Development Assistance Framework, launched on 15 August 2013, which is aimed at, inter alia, enhancing developmental support and assistance to the Palestinian people and strengthening institutional capacity in line with Palestinian national priorities,

Gravely concerned about the accelerated construction of settlements and implementation of other related measures by Israel in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, particularly in and around occupied East Jerusalem, as well as in the occupied Syrian Golan, in violation of international humanitarian law and relevant United Nations resolutions,

Encouraging all States and international organizations to continue to actively pursue policies to ensure respect for their obligations under international law with regard to all illegal Israeli practices and measures in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, particularly Israeli settlements,

Taking note of the report of the independent international fact-finding mission to investigate the implications of the Israeli settlements on the civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights of the Palestinian people throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Expressing deep concern about the rising incidence of violence, harassment, provocation, vandalism and incitement in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, in particular by illegal armed Israeli settlers against Palestinian civilians, including children, and their properties, including homes, historic and religious sites and agricultural lands, and calling for accountability for the illegal actions perpetrated in that regard,

Gravely concerned by the serious repercussions on the economic and social conditions of the Palestinian people caused by Israel's construction of the wall and its associated regime inside the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in and around East Jerusalem, and the resulting violation of their economic and social rights, including the rights to work, to health, to education, to property, to an adequate standard of living and to freedom of access and movement,

Recalling, in that regard, the advisory opinion rendered on 9 July 2004 by the International Court of Justice on the legal consequences of the construction of a wall in the Occupied Palestinian Territory and General Assembly resolution ES-10/15, and stressing the need to comply with the obligations mentioned therein,

Expressing grave concern at the extensive destruction by Israel, the occupying Power, of properties, including the increased demolition of homes, economic institutions, historical landmarks, agricultural lands and orchards, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, in particular in connection with its construction of settlements and the wall and confiscation of land, contrary to international law, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including in and around East Jerusalem,

Expressing grave concern also over the continuing forced displacement and dispossession of Palestinian civilians, including the Bedouin community, due to the continuing and intensifying policy of home demolitions, evictions and revocation of residency rights in and around occupied East Jerusalem, as well as measures to further isolate the city from its natural Palestinian environs, which have seriously exacerbated the already critical socioeconomic situation being faced by the Palestinian population,

Expressing grave concern further about ongoing Israeli military operations and policies of closures and severe restrictions on the movement of persons and goods, the imposition of crossing closures, checkpoints and a permit regime throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and the consequent negative impact on the socioeconomic situation of the Palestinian people, in particular the Palestinian refugee population, which remains that of a humanitarian crisis,

Expressing grave concern, in particular, about the continuing crisis in the Gaza Strip as a result of the prolonged Israeli closures and severe economic and movement restrictions that in effect amount to a blockade, and calling in that regard for the full implementation of Security Council resolution 1860(2009) of 8 January 2009 with a view to ensuring the full opening of the border crossings for the sustained and regular movement of persons and goods, including humanitarian aid, commercial flows and construction materials, and emphasizing the need for security for all civilian populations,

Recognizing the prolonged negative impact of the military operations between December 2008 and January 2009 and in November 2012 on the economic conditions, the provision of social services and the living conditions of the Palestinian civilian population in the Gaza Strip, including as a result of the heavy casualties among civilians, including hundreds of children and women, the internal displacement of thousands of civilians and the widespread damage to homes, vital civilian infrastructure, hospitals, schools, food supply installations, economic, industrial and agricultural properties and several United Nations facilities in the Gaza Strip,

Recalling, in that regard, the relevant United Nations reports, including those of the Economic and Social Council, the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia and the Human Rights Council,

Expressing deep concern about the short- and long-term detrimental impact of such widespread destruction and the

hampering of the reconstruction process by Israel, the occupying Power, on the socioeconomic and humanitarian conditions of the Palestinian civilian population in the Gaza Strip, where the humanitarian crisis continues to deepen, and calling in that regard for the immediate acceleration of the reconstruction process in the Gaza Strip with the assistance of the donor countries, including the disbursement of funds pledged at the International Conference in Support of the Palestinian Economy for the Reconstruction of Gaza, held in Sharm el-Sheikh, Egypt, on 2 March 2009,

Gravely concerned about various reports of the United Nations and specialized agencies regarding the substantial aid dependency caused by prolonged border closures, inordinate rates of unemployment, widespread poverty and severe humanitarian hardships, including food insecurity and rising health-related problems, including high levels of malnutrition, among the Palestinian people, especially children, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Expressing grave concern at the deaths and injuries caused to civilians, including children, women and peaceful demonstrators, and emphasizing that the Palestinian civilian population must be protected in accordance with international humanitarian law,

Emphasizing the importance of the safety and well-being of all civilians, and calling for the cessation of all acts of violence, including all acts of terror, provocation, incitement and destruction, and all firing of rockets,

Expressing deep concern that thousands of Palestinians, including many children and women, continue to be held in Israeli prisons or detention centres under harsh conditions, including unhygienic conditions, solitary confinement, excessive use of administrative detention, lack of proper medical care and denial of family visits and of due process, that impair their well-being, and expressing deep concern also about any ill-treatment and harassment of Palestinian prisoners and all reports of torture, while taking note of the agreement reached in May 2012 on conditions of detention in Israeli prisons and calling for its full and immediate implementation,

Conscious of the urgent need for the reconstruction and development of the economic and social infrastructure of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, as well as the urgent need to address the humanitarian crisis facing the Palestinian people, including by ensuring the unimpeded provision of humanitarian assistance and the sustained and regular flow of persons and goods into and out of the Gaza Strip,

Recognizing the efforts by the Palestinian Government, with international support, to rebuild, reform and strengthen its damaged institutions and promote good governance, emphasizing the need to preserve the Palestinian national institutions and infrastructure, and commending in that regard the ongoing efforts to develop the institutions of an independent Palestinian State, including through the implementation of the Palestinian National Development Plan 2011–2013 on governance, economy, social development and infrastructure, and the significant achievements made, as confirmed by the positive assessments made by international institutions regarding readiness for statehood, including by the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, the United Nations and the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee for the Coordination of the International Assistance to Palestinians, while also expressing concern about the negative impact of the current financial crisis being faced by the Palestinian Government,

Commending, in that regard, the important work being done by the United Nations, the specialized agencies and the donor community in support of the economic and social development of the Palestinian people in line with their national development and State-building plan, as well as the assistance being provided in the humanitarian field,

Welcoming the formation of the new Palestinian Government of national consensus under the authority of President Mahmoud Abbas, in line with the Quartet principles, and emphasizing the need for the respect and preservation of the territorial integrity and unity of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Calling upon both parties to fulfil their obligations under the road map, in cooperation with the Quartet,

1. Calls for the full opening of the border crossings of the Gaza Strip, in line with Security Council resolution 1860(2009), to ensure humanitarian access as well as the sustained and regular flow of persons and goods and the lifting of all movement restrictions imposed on the Palestinian people, including those restrictions arising from ongoing Israeli military operations and the multi-layered closures system, and for other urgent measures to be taken to alleviate the serious humanitarian situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, which is critical in the Gaza Strip, and calls for compliance by Israel, the occupying Power, with all of its legal obligations under international humanitarian law and United Nations resolutions in that regard;

Occupied Palestinian Territory, and emphasizes the need for security for all civilian populations;

Fourth Geneva Convention

The applicability of the 1949 Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War (Fourth Geneva Convention) to the Israeli-occupied territories was reaffirmed during the year by the General Assembly and several other UN bodies, including the Special Committee on Israeli Practices.

Report of Secretary-General. Issues related to Palestine

General aspects

In 2014, the General Assembly, the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People (Committee on Palestinian Rights) and other UN bodies addressed issues related to Palestine, and several UN programmes and agencies continued to provide assistance to the Palestinian people.

Committee on Palestinian Rights

The Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People (Committee on Palestinian Rights) was established by Assembly resolution 3376(XXX) [YUN 1975, p. 248] with the task of recommending a programme designed to enable the Palestinian people to exercise their inalienable rights. In 2014, the Committee was composed of 26 Member States and had 20 Member States as observers, in addition to the State of Palestine, the African Union, the League of Arab States and the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (oic).

Committee report. In response to Assembly resolution 68/12 [YUN 2013, p. 403], the Committee submitted its annual report to the Assembly [A/69/35] covering the period from 7 October 2013 to 6 October 2014. During the reporting period, the activities of the Committee and its Bureau focused on bringing the attention of the international community to the 2014 International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People, as proclaimed in that resolution, with the objective of mobilizing wide support for ending the Israeli occupation and realizing the two-State solution. The Committee reiterated that a permanent settlement of the question of Palestine could be reached only by ending the Israeli occupation that began in 1967; by achieving the independence of the State of Palestine based on the pre-1967 borders, with East Jerusalem as its capital; and by achieving a just and agreed solution to the issue of Palestinian refugees. The tragic events in Gaza, which had undergone three Israeli military assaults in six years, reinforced the view. The ceasefire should be solidified and the root causes of the crisis fully addressed, including a lifting of the illegal blockade on Gaza.

In March, the Committee organized an international meeting in Quito, Ecuador. In April, it held a round table in Geneva on legal aspects of the question of Palestine. In May, it organized an international meeting on the question of Jerusalem in Ankara, Turkey, in cooperation with the oic and Turkey. In July, it held a seminar in Nairobi on assistance to Palestinian people. The Committee also organized a series of events within the framework of the International Year of Solidarity with the Palestinian People, including a joint meeting with the League of Arab States in Cairo, at which a joint declaration was adopted; a special meeting to commemorate the tenth anniversary of the advisory opinion of the ICJ on the separation wall; and high-level briefings and film screenings at United Nations Headquarters in New York.

The Committee noted that the establishment of a Palestinian government of national unity under the leadership of President Mahmoud Abbas, which the Committee strongly supported and which all UN Member States should support, provided an opportunity to stabilize Gaza. National elections should be held as planned, and Gaza crossings should be opened.

The Committee noted that the latest round of negotiations had failed, as it had happened in 2000–2001 and 2007–2008, in large part owing to the acceleration of Israel's illegal settlement campaign in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and its failure to honour the agreement to release Palestinian prisoners. The Committee observed that, in each case, the failure of negotiations was followed by an outbreak of violence. The repeated failure also reflected the limitations of the traditional format of bilateral Israeli-Palestinian final status talks facilitated by a single Member State. In that regard, the Committee suggested to propose innovative approaches and formats that could help break the deadlock.

The Committee welcomed the establishment, on 23 July, of a fact-finding mission by the Human Rights Council to investigate all violations of international law in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, in particular in Gaza, since 13 June. The Committee also welcomed the request by the Palestinian leadership addressed to the Secretary-General that the territory of the occupied State of Palestine be placed under an international protection system by the United Nations, and called upon the Secretary-General to expedite the review of that request and submit his recommendations to the Security Council and the General Assembly. The Committee further welcomed the accession by the State of Palestine, on 1 April, to 21 international conventions and treaties, and encouraged the signature of additional international instruments, which would allow it to pursue justice and accountability for Palestinian victims through the available international legal mechanisms. The Committee called upon the Assembly to establish provisions for a mechanism that would allow the United Nations to document the costs—an estimated $7 billion annually—borne by the Palestinian economy, particularly in Gaza and in Area C of the West Bank, owing to the Israeli occupation.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 25 November [meeting 61], the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/20 [draft: A/69/L.21 & Add.1] by recorded vote (94-7-56) [agenda item 36].

Assistance to Palestinians

UN activities

In response to General Assembly resolution 68/100 [YUN 2013, p. 408], the Secretary-General submitted a report covering the period from May 2013 to April 2014 [A/69/84-E/2014/75], through the Economic and Social Council, on the implementation of assistance to the Palestinians.

During the reporting period, the Palestinian Authority (PA) continued to implement the Palestinian National Development Plan 2011–2013, and developed the Palestinian National Development Plan 2014–2016. In support of those efforts, the United Nations came forth with the United Nations Development Assistance Framework for the State of Palestine 2014–2016, thus complementing the humanitarian programming outlined in the 2014 Strategic Response Plan for the Occupied Palestinian Territory, which had a total budget of $390 million. UNRWA programme goals for the period 2010–2015 were reflected in the Agency's medium-term strategy, which was estimated at $639.4 million for 2013–2014, excluding emergency relief interventions.

The 2014–2016 Framework focused on six priority areas: economic empowerment, livelihoods, decent work and food security; governance, rule of law, justice and human rights; education; health care; social protection; and urban development, natural resource management and infrastructure, which required $1.2 billion. As at April, one third of that budget had been mobilized.

The United Nations continued to coordinate and deliver humanitarian assistance, including food assistance, to over 1 million people; water and sanitation assistance to over 1.5 million people; and health and nutrition services to nearly 2.5 million people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory. Despite continued closures in Gaza that hampered operations, the United Nations implemented development works worth nearly $450 million and, in 2013, through UNRWA construction projects, generated 4,000 full-time equivalent jobs.

Regarding education, nine United Nations agencies continued to support the implementation of the "Education for All" package for the State of Palestine, from which 70 pilot schools had benefited. UNRWA had provided free primary education to 283,307 students enrolled in 344 elementary and preparatory schools across the West Bank and Gaza. In the context of health care, the Agency operated 42 facilities, one hospital and one non-communicable disease referral centre in Gaza and the West Bank employing over 2,000 staff. The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) and the World Health Organization (WHO) supported the Ministry of Health in procuring polio vaccines, and coordinated a national immunization campaign from which 639,481 children under the age of five had benefited. UNICEF scaled up its psychosocial programmes implemented in family centres in Gaza through five psychosocial emergency teams and through the Ministry of Education and Higher Education, that reached approximately 150,000 children, half of them girls (of whom 37,145 were adolescents), with professional psychosocial support services.

In the field of employment, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) targeted around 4,000 families across the West Bank and Gaza and focused on income-generating activities in microenterprise and small enterprise development, housing, education, health and rehabilitation. The United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), through 41 women's centres, focused on job opportunities in food processing and marketing, which had directly benefited 536 women workers; and over 35,800 women had benefited from the overall services provided at the centres.

With regard to food security and agriculture, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) had provided intensive training to 350 farmers on integrated pest management, global agricultural practices certification, integrated crop management and integrated plant protection. UNDP had finalized the development of an additional 240 hectares (2,400 dunums) for poor farmers in areas of the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, that were in direct proximity to Israeli settlements or in the seam zones, bringing the total reclaimed land to approximately 1,200 hectares (12,000 dunums) in 2013.

In regard to human rights, UN-Women had established 49 women's centres for survivors of gender-based violence and eight community-based women's centres that also served as shelters. More than 300 women had benefited from psychosocial, social and legal counselling services at the first multipurpose anti-violence centre in Gaza, and a monthly average of 20 women had benefited from similar services at a women's centre in the West Bank.

Regarding support to Palestinian institutions, the United Nations provided technical assistance to line ministries for the development of sectoral strategies that informed the Palestinian National Development Plan 2014–2016. Technical assistance had been also provided to the Government of the State of Palestine in the area of human rights. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) had worked closely with the Government in the preparation of a guidance document on human rights to be incorporated in the Palestinian National Development Plan. That document had been adopted by the Government in January. UN-Women had supported the Ministries of Social Affairs and of Women's Affairs supported the establishment of an observatory on women's access to justice under the Palestinian Independent Commission for Human Rights. The International Labour Organization (ILO) had finalized an actuarial assessment providing different scenarios for a new social security scheme, while the United Nations Office for Project Services had continued its programme of enhancing the operational capacity of the Palestinian Civil Police, the national security forces, the Presidential Guard and other security services, including the Civil Defence in their disaster risk response responsibilities.

During the reporting period, the Office of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process had continued to ensure effective coordination among the PA, the United Nations, the international community and the Government of Israel. The Ad Hoc Liaison Committee held one meeting in New York on 25 September 2013.

In 2013, Palestine had struggled to meet its financial obligations, since expenditures were slightly higher than expected and revenue was less than projected. Although external financing had been higher than expected, Palestine had accumulated considerable arrears during the year, particularly to the private sector and the pension system, and had increased its stock of debt to domestic banks to $1.2 billion by February 2014.

The 2013 Consolidated Appeal Process for the Occupied Palestinian Territory had requested a revised amount of $401.6 million to tackle the most urgent humanitarian needs, of which 65.9 per cent had been funded. Despite the increasing needs, the 2014 Strategic Response Plan for the Occupied Palestinian Territory had requested $390 million. As at 7 April, only 17 per cent had been raised. Additional support was also urgently needed for the UNRWA core budget, which faced a shortfall of $68.2 million for 2014, and for its 2013 Emergency Appeal for the Occupied Palestinian Territory, which had an estimated $163.2 million shortfall.

On 16 July, by decision 2014/236, the Economic and Social Council took note of the Secretary-General's report on assistance to the Palestinian people.

UNCTAD assistance to Palestinians

At its sixty-first session (Geneva, 15–26 September) [TD/B/61/10 & Corr.1, 2], UNCTAD Trade and Development Board considered a secretariat report [TD/B/61/3] on assistance to the Palestinian people. The report considered the constraints imposed on Palestinian economic development, which had continued to lose ground in 2014 due to one more year of prolonged occupation.

Overall economic growth in the Occupied Palestinian Territory dropped from an average of about 11 per cent in 2010 and 2011 to a mere 1.5 per cent in 2013—the lowest rate of growth since 2006—well below that of population growth. In Gaza, growth fell from an average of 26 per cent in 2010 and 2011 to 4.5 per cent in 2013. Real gross domestic product was 20 per cent below its level in 1994.

Only one in four households in the Occupied Palestinian Territory was classified as food secure. The Israeli occupation of Area C, which included more than 61 per cent of the area of the West Bank and was under complete Israeli control, deprived the economy of the Occupied Palestinian Territory of much of its natural resource base. Area C included the most fertile agricultural areas and the bulk of Palestinian land reserves for development activities, thus constituting the backbone of Palestinian economy.

To tap the economic potential of Area C, UNCTAD recommended that Israel take measures such as removing the barriers it had installed that hampered investment; grant permits for critical projects, such as the construction of wells to meet growing demand for water; and allow the Palestinian National Authority to establish a planning and zoning regime. To the Palestinian National Authority, UNCTAD recommended, among other measures, to further enhance its policy attention to Area C in a more systematic manner; build its own legal capacity to provide Palestinian communities, producers and investors with legal aid to seek redress; and establish a national land registry to survey and register all land, especially in Area C; and enact legislation, in particular, a Palestinian land law and mortgage and foreclosure laws.

Despite difficult field conditions and the acute need for mobilizing additional resources, UNCTAD continued to respond to the complex needs of the Palestinian economy. Securing extrabudgetary resources, however, remained critical for enhancing UNCTAD support to the Palestinian people.

Welcoming steps to ease the restrictions on movement and access in the West Bank, while stressing the need for further steps to be taken in this regard, and recognizing that such steps would improve living conditions and the situation on the ground and could promote further Palestinian economic development,

Welcoming also the tripartite agreement facilitated by the United Nations regarding access to the Gaza Strip, and calling for its full implementation and for complementary measures that address the need for a fundamental change in policy that allows for the sustained and regular opening of the border crossings for the movement of persons and goods, including for humanitarian and commercial flows and for the reconstruction and economic recovery of Gaza,

Stressing that the situation in the Gaza Strip is unsustainable and that a durable ceasefire agreement must lead to a fundamental improvement in the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Gaza Strip and ensure the safety and well-being of civilians on both sides,

Stressing also the urgency of reaching a durable solution to the crisis in Gaza through the full implementation of Security Council resolution 1860(2009) of 8 January 2009, including by preventing the illicit trafficking in arms and ammunition and by ensuring the sustained reopening of the crossing points on the basis of existing agreements, including the 2005 Agreement on Movement and Access between the Palestinian Authority and Israel,

Stressing, in this regard, the importance of the effective exercise by the Palestinian Authority of its full government responsibilities in the Gaza Strip in all fields, including through its presence at the Gaza crossing points,

Noting the active participation of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority in the activities of the Special Envoys of the Quartet,

Reaffirming the necessity of achieving a comprehensive resolution of the Arab-Israeli conflict in all its aspects, on the basis of relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967, 338(1973) of 22 October 1973, 1397(2002) of 12 March 2002, 1515(2003) of 19 November 2003, 1850(2008) of 16 December 2008 and 1860(2009), as well as the terms of reference of the Madrid Conference and the principle of land for peace, in order to ensure a political solution, with two States—Israel and an independent, democratic, contiguous, sovereign and viable Palestinian State—living side by side in peace and security and mutual recognition,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General,

Expressing grave concern about continuing violence against civilians,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;

2. Expresses its appreciation to the Secretary-General for his rapid response and ongoing efforts regarding assistance to the Palestinian people, including with regard to the emergency humanitarian needs in the Gaza Strip;

pices of the Secretary-General to ensure the achievement of a coordinated mechanism for United Nations activities throughout the occupied territories;

5. Urges Member States, international financial institutions of the United Nations system, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations and regional and interregional organizations to extend, as rapidly and as generously as possible, economic and social assistance to the Palestinian people, in close cooperation with the Palestine Liberation Organization and through official Palestinian institutions;

6. Welcomes the meetings of the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee for the Coordination of the International Assistance to Palestinians of 19 March and 25 September 2013 and 22 September 2014, the outcome of the Cairo International Conference on Palestine: Reconstructing Gaza, held on 12 October 2014 and the generous donor response to support the needs of the Palestinian people, and urges the rapid disbursement of donor pledges;

7. Stresses the importance of following up on the results of the Cairo International Conference on Palestine: Reconstructing Gaza, to effectively promote economic recovery and reconstruction in a timely and sustainable manner;

8. Calls upon donors that have not yet converted their budget support pledges into disbursements to transfer funds as soon as possible, encourages all donors to increase their direct assistance to the Palestinian Authority in accordance with its government programme in order to enable it to build a viable and prosperous Palestinian State, underlines the need for equitable burden sharing by donors in this effort, and encourages donors to consider aligning funding cycles with the Palestinian Authority's national budget cycle;

9. Calls upon relevant organizations and agencies of the United Nations system to intensify their assistance in response to the urgent needs of the Palestinian people in accordance with priorities set forth by the Palestinian side;

10. Expresses its appreciation for the work of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, and recognizes the vital role of the Agency in providing humanitarian assistance to the Palestinian people, particularly in the Gaza Strip;

11. Calls upon the international community to provide urgently needed assistance and services in an effort to alleviate the difficult humanitarian situation being faced by Palestinian women, children and their families and to help in the reconstruction and development of relevant Palestinian institutions;

12. Stresses the role that all funding instruments, including the European Commission's Palestinian-European Mechanism for the Management of Socioeconomic Aid and the World Bank trust fund, have been playing in directly assisting the Palestinian people;

13. Urges Member States to open their markets to exports of Palestinian products on the most favourable terms, consistent with appropriate trading rules, and to implement fully existing trade and cooperation agreements;

14. Calls upon the international donor community to expedite the delivery of pledged assistance to the Palestinian people to meet their urgent needs;

15. Stresses, in this context, the importance of ensuring free humanitarian access to the Palestinian people and the free movement of persons and goods;

16. Also stresses the need for the full implementation by both parties of existing agreements, including the Agreement on Movement and Access and the Agreed Principles for the Rafah Crossing, of 15 November 2005, to allow for the freedom of movement of the Palestinian civilian population, as well as for imports and exports, within and into and out of the Gaza Strip;

17. Further stresses the need to ensure the safety and security of humanitarian personnel, premises, facilities, equipment, vehicles and supplies, as well as the need to ensure safe and unhindered access by humanitarian personnel and the delivery of supplies and equipment, in order to allow such personnel to efficiently perform their task of assisting affected civilian populations;

18. Urges the international donor community, United Nations agencies and organizations and non-governmental organizations to extend to the Palestinian people, as rapidly as possible, emergency economic assistance and humanitarian assistance, particularly in the Gaza Strip, to counter the impact of the current crisis;

On 29 December (decision 69/554), the Assembly decided that the agenda item on assistance to the Palestinian people would remain for consideration during its resumed sixty-ninth (2015) session.

UNRWA

The United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) continued to provide education, health, relief and social services, and microfinance to the growing refugee population in all its five fields of operation—the Gaza Strip, the West Bank, Jordan, Lebanon and the Syrian Arab Republic.

Report of Commissioner-General. The UNRWA Commissioner-General, in his annual report on the work of the agency [A/70/13], said that in 2014, violence and marginalization continued to affect Palestine refugees in all five of the Agency's fields of operation.

The situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory was marked by the breakdown of peace negotiations between Palestinians and Israelis in April, a major escalation of violence and continued restrictions on rights and opportunities for the Territory's 1.9 million registered Palestine refugees. As at 31 December, the registered Palestine refugee population in the Gaza Strip stood at 1,276,926. The hostilities that occurred between 8 July and 26 August caused widespread loss of life, massive internal displacement and unprecedented damage to homes and infrastructure. An estimated 2,251 Palestinians were killed (1,462 civilians), including 538 children and 306 women. Approximately 11,000 injuries were reported and were estimated to have resulted in 1,000 long-term or permanent disabilities. Eleven UNRWA personnel were among those killed. Seventy-two Israelis and one foreigner were also killed (6 civilians), including one child. At its height, the conflict displaced over 475,000 people in Gaza; and nearly 300,000 took shelter in 90 UNRWA schools operating as designated emergency shelters. An estimated 100,000 homes were damaged or destroyed, affecting more than 600,000 people; and some 118 UNRWA installations were damaged, including 83 schools and 10 health centres. On seven separate occasions, UNRWA schools that had been sheltering displaced persons were struck directly or in the immediate vicinity by shells or other munitions because of Israeli actions, resulting in at least 44 Palestinians being killed and at least 227 injured.

Gaza entered its eighth year of blockade imposed by Israel. The almost continuous closure of the border by Egypt also exacerbated the situation. In 2014, UNRWA priorities for Gaza were the provision of humanitarian assistance, including the provision of food to 868,000 people, and child protection. Food insecurity in Gaza was primarily caused by a lack of economic access rather than by food unavailability. Unemployment rate among refugees in Gaza reached 40.9 per cent by the year's end.

Technology was the only sector not crippled by the blockade, and UNRWA secured donor support for the social enterprise Gaza Gateway, launched in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 411], which combined skills development with service delivery to strengthen graduates' employability, and introduced new buyers to Gaza's information and communications technology industry. Education remained also paramount for UNRWA, with almost 240,000 students in 252 schools. Ninety per cent of the schools, however, continued to run on double shift.

The 774,176 Palestine refugees registered with UNRWA in the West Bank continued to endure difficult economic and social conditions. The abduction and killing of three Israeli youth in the West Bank on 13 June and the subsequent killing of a Palestinian youth in East Jerusalem on 2 July, were followed by increased tension, clashes and violence. During operations by Israeli security forces in 2014, the use of deadly force in the West Bank continued to increase, with 21 Palestine refugees killed by comparison to 17 in 2013. At least 122 Palestine refugees were injured by the use of live ammunition in and around refugee camps in 2014, an increase of 139 per cent from 2013. Of special concern to UNRWA were Israeli plans to transfer Bedouin communities—a majority of whom were Palestine refugees—from Area C to three townships. If implemented, there were serious concerns that it would be contrary to Israel's obligations under international law, including the prohibition on forcible transfer.

During the year, humanitarian-funded interventions supported 13,200 poor refugee households through cash-for-work opportunities or food vouchers. The family health team model—by which care was delivered by a multidisciplinary medical team composed of at least one doctor, one nurse and one clerk—was implemented in 35 of the 42 West Bank health clinics or focal points, while the family protection programme and gender-based violence referral system was introduced in all 19 refugee camps. Primary education was provided to 50,566 students.

The crisis in Syria increasingly affected the 528,616 Palestine refugees registered with UNRWA in the country. Since the start of the conflict, 14 UNRWA staff members had been killed and 30 staff had been missing. Furthermore, many Palestine refugees had been killed or seriously injured by parties to the conflict, including in incidents that affected UNRWA installations. In 2014, UNRWA established 10 new health points to serve displaced refugee communities throughout Syria. The Syrian authorities continued to express support for Palestine refugees and to facilitate the work of UNRWA. Use of 43 government school buildings allowed UNRWA to almost double enrolment rates among Palestine refugee children, from 24,000 in 2013 to 46,000 in 2014, while the deployment of innovative learning (such as self-learning, Internet modules and televised lessons) reached children who could not access classes. Despite the cooperation from the Syrian Government, the pervasive nature of the conflict seriously affected the Agency's operations in the country. At least 46 of a total of 219 UNRWA schools, clinics and other facilities had been damaged. UNRWA school buildings and its Damascus Training Centre continued to serve as temporary accommodation for Syrians and Palestine refugees.

More than 80 per cent of Palestine refugees resided in Damascus and the surrounding suburbs, which continued to suffer intense armed engagements throughout 2014. After near-total closure for more than twelve months, from January UNRWA was able to intermittently secure humanitarian access into Yarmouk, in the Damascus area, distributing food and health kits to the 18,000 civilians trapped inside. The Agency was granted access to the Qabr Essit camp, also in the Damascus area, which had been under government control since 2013. Cash assistance was expanded from two rounds of $42 per person in 2013 to three rounds of $64 per person in 2014. Events in Syria continued to have significant implications for UNRWA operations in Jordan and Lebanon. The Agency recorded approximately 45,000 Palestine refugees from Syria in Lebanon and 15,000 in Jordan.

Palestinian refugees in Lebanon, of whom 452,669 were registered with UNRWA, continued to face acute socioeconomic deprivation and barriers to fully enjoying a broad range of human rights. On 25 May, the term of President Michel Sleiman ended and the presidency remained vacant. UNRWA continued to advocate for Palestine refugees' right to work in Lebanon, which remained highly restricted. The conflict in Syria had a serious impact on Lebanon, with sporadic eruptions of clashes involving armed groups linked to that conflict. The Palestinian leadership reiterated its disassociation from all domestic and regional conflicts. In May, however, the Lebanese authorities imposed further restrictions to the entry of Palestine refugees from Syria into Lebanon, and UNRWA appealed to the Lebanese authorities to uphold the principle of non-refoulement (non-expulsion) and equal treatment of all refugees in accordance with international standards. During the year, the implementation of the family health team approach was completed in Lebanon's 27 health centres. Through the Education in Emergency response of UNRWA, 7,300 Palestine refugee students could participate in regular classes, while large-scale improvements were undertaken in Palestine refugee camps in Lebanon.

Jordan hosted 2,117,361 Palestine refugees registered with UNRWA, 15,000 refugees from Syria and increasing numbers from other countries. While Jordan had remained stable in an insecure region, the influx of people presented increasing challenges to Jordan's resources and infrastructure. The vast majority of Palestine refugees enjoyed social, economic and political rights, but a group of 150,000 Palestine refugees, who had fled Gaza in 1967, was excluded from access to government services and was subject to a range of other restrictions. The same applied to Palestine refugees from Syria, who lived in fear of arrest and deportation, especially since January 2013, when the Jordanian Government had announced a policy of non-admission of Palestine refugees from Syria. UNRWA appealed to Jordan to uphold the principle of non-refoulement and equal treatment of all refugees, and requested Jordan to consider temporary access for Palestine refugees fleeing Syria.

In 2014, the roll-out of the family health team approach took place only in 18 of Jordan's 24 health centres because of inadequate funding. Despite that limitation, UNRWA succeeded in ensuring good access to health services for Palestine refugees from Syria, who were eligible to access primary services at all the 24 health centres, with 97 per cent reporting that they had no problems accessing the medical care they needed. Approximately 2,100 children from Syria enrolled in UNRWA schools in Jordan in 2014.

UNRWA continued to follow the framework set out in its medium-term strategy 2010–2015, which provided direction based on 15 strategic objectives, each of which contributed to one or more of four human development goals: a long and healthy life; acquired knowledge and skills; a decent standard of living; and human rights enjoyed to the fullest. Concerning the first goal, UNRWA delivered primary health care to Palestine refugees through its 137 health centres, providing 9.3 million outpatient medical consultations to Palestinian refugees. In regard to acquired knowledge and skills, UNRWA provided general education to approximately 494,944 Palestine refugee children in about 666 elementary and preparatory schools, and developed and finalized the implementation of a policy framework supporting children with special needs. In the context of a decent standard of living, in 2014, UNRWA delivered a social safety net comprised of food, cash and specialized services to almost 290,000 Palestine refugees; financed 34,967 loans valued at $34.38 million; and provided training in technical and vocational skills to almost 7,300 students, of whom 43.4 per cent were women. As for the full enjoyment of human rights, internally, UNRWA promoted protection in and through its programming and service delivery, and externally, it promoted greater respect for international law. During the year, to address gender-based violence, the staff of UNRWA benefited from 1,197 basic, 622 in-depth and 636 specialized trainings.

On 31 March, Filippo Grandi (Italy) completed his nine-year tenure as UNRWA Commissioner-General. His successor, Pierre Krähenbühl (Switzerland), was appointed by the Secretary-General effective 1 April.

Advisory Commission. The UNRWA Advisory Commission in its comments on the Agency's report on its 2014 activities [A/70/13] expressed concern about the effects that violence had on the Agency's ability to serve the needs of Palestine refugees in areas affected by conflict; the increasing demands imposed by the conflict in Syria on UNRWA in the neighbouring countries; and the lack of access by the Agency to, and information on, its staff who had been detained by the relevant authorities. The Commission called on all relevant parties to comply fully with their obligations under international law, including humanitarian law, to respect United Nations resolutions, enable UNRWA to fulfil its humanitarian obligations without unnecessary hindrance or cost, and refrain from taking any actions that jeopardized the safety, security or neutrality of UNRWA staff and installations. It also urged all relevant parties to grant access for humanitarian purposes to refugee populations.

The Commission was also concerned about the persisting funding shortfalls, in particular for the UNRWA General Fund, which undermined the Agency's ability to promote human development and meet refugee needs. The Commission, therefore, urged donors and partners to mobilize the resources needed to secure service delivery.

Report of Conciliation Commission. In response to General Assembly resolution 68/76 [YUN 2013, p. 412], the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine submitted, in September, its sixty-eighth report [A/69/349], covering the period from 1 September 2013 to 31 August 2014. The Commission, which was established by Assembly resolution 194(III) [YUN 1948–1949, p. 203] to facilitate the repatriation, resettlement and economic and social rehabilitation of the refugees and payment of compensation, said that it had nothing to report since its previous submission.

Communication. In a 29 January letter [A/68/723-S/2014/62] addressed to the Secretary-General, the Presidents of the General Assembly and of the Security Council, the State of Palestine conveyed its grave concern about the critical humanitarian situation of Palestine refugees in Syria, underscoring the dire conditions of those refugees trapped in the Al-Yarmouk camp.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/69/453], adopted resolution 69/86 by recorded vote (163-1-10) [agenda item 50].

Assistance to Palestine refugees

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 194(III) of 11 December 1948 and all its subsequent resolutions on the question, including resolution 68/76 of 11 December 2013,

Recalling also its resolution 302(IV) of 8 December 1949, by which, inter alia, it established the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East,

Recalling further the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Aware of the fact that, for more than six decades, the Palestine refugees have suffered from the loss of their homes, lands and means of livelihood,

Affirming the imperative of resolving the problem of the Palestine refugees for the achievement of justice and for the achievement of lasting peace in the region,

Acknowledging the essential role that the Agency has played for over 60 years since its establishment in ameliorating the plight of the Palestine refugees through the provision of education, health, relief and social services and ongoing work in the areas of camp infrastructure, microfinance, protection and emergency assistance,

Taking note of the report of the Commissioner-General of the Agency covering the period from 1 January to 31 December 2013,

Aware of the continuing needs of the Palestine refugees throughout all the fields of operation, namely, Jordan, Lebanon, the Syrian Arab Republic and the Occupied Palestinian Territory,

Expressing grave concern at the especially difficult situation of the Palestine refugees under occupation, including with regard to their safety, well-being and socioeconomic living conditions,

Expressing grave concern in particular at the grave humanitarian situation and socioeconomic conditions of the Palestine refugees in the Gaza Strip, and underlining the importance of emergency and humanitarian assistance and urgent reconstruction efforts,

Noting the signing of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements on 13 September 1993 by the Government of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization and the subsequent implementation agreements,

1. Notes with regret that repatriation or compensation of the refugees, as provided for in paragraph 11 of General Assembly resolution 194(III), has not yet been effected, and that, therefore, the situation of the Palestine refugees continues to be a matter of grave concern and the Palestine refugees continue to require assistance to meet basic health, education and living needs;

2. Also notes with regret that the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine has been unable to find a means of achieving progress in the implementation of paragraph 11 of General Assembly resolution 194(III), and reiterates its request to the Conciliation Commission to continue exerting efforts towards the implementation of that paragraph and to report to the Assembly on the efforts being exerted in this regard as appropriate, but no later than 1 September 2015;

3. Affirms the necessity for the continuation of the work of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East and the importance of its unimpeded operation and its provision of services, including emergency assistance, for the well-being, protection and human development of the Palestine refugees and for the stability of the region, pending the just resolution of the question of the Palestine refugees;

4. Calls upon all donors to continue to strengthen their efforts to meet the anticipated needs of the Agency, including with regard to increased expenditures arising from conflicts and instability in the region and the serious socioeconomic and humanitarian situation, particularly in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, and those needs mentioned in recent emergency, recovery and reconstruction appeals and plans for the Gaza Strip and in the regional crisis response plans to address the situation of Palestine refugees in the Syrian Arab Republic and those Palestine refugees who have fled to countries in the region;

5. Commends the Agency for its provision of vital assistance to the Palestine refugees and its role as a stabilizing factor in the region and the tireless efforts of the staff of the Agency in carrying out its mandate;

6. Decides to invite Brazil and the United Arab Emirates, in accordance with the criterion set forth in General Assembly decision 60/522 of 8 December 2005, to become members of the Advisory Commission of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East.

Financing

In 2014, UNRWA expended $1.3 billion. The largest expenditure amounted to $669.7 million under the unrestricted regular budget, accounting for 52.1 per cent of total expenditure. Restricted fund activities, emergency activities and projects accounted for 3.7 per cent, 18.3 per cent and 25.1 per cent, respectively. Education remained the largest programme funded from the general fund, accounting for $401 million (59.9 per cent), followed by executive and support programme at $111.1 million (16.6 per cent); health at $105.3 million (15.7 per cent); relief and social services at $38.5 million (5.8 per cent); and infrastructure at $13.6 million (2 per cent).

An addendum to the Commissioner-General's report on the work of UNRWA in 2013 [A/69/5/Add.4] included the report of the Board of Auditors on the financial statements of UNRWA for the year ended on 31 December 2013.

Working Group. The Working Group on the Financing of UNRWA was established by Assembly resolution 2656(XXV) [YUN 1970, p. 280] to study all aspects of the financing of the Agency. In 2013, its mandate was renewed by Assembly resolution 68/76 [YUN 2013, p. 412]. In 2014, the Working Group consisted of 9 Member States and held six meetings, on 30 June; 15 July; 20 August and 5, 10, and 18 September [A/69/391].

The Working Group noted that, as at August, with an expected cash deficit at year's end of $55.9 million, UNRWA would not be able to meet its financial obligations by the end of October. As at the end of December 2013, the UNRWA General Fund cash balance was $2.9 million, with a monthly cash outflow of $55 million (comprising staff and non-staff costs), which meant that UNRWA had no working capital. An injection of some $165 million in working capital would be required to create a minimum safety cushion. The cash deficiency was recurrent in nature and had worsened over the years, as costs had risen faster than the rate of growth in traditional donor income.

The Working Group was concerned about the inadequacy of project funding in view of the Agency's urgent need to meet the needs of a growing refugee population.

Following the military escalation in Gaza, on 8 July, UNRWA launched an emergency flash appeal for $295.4 million to provide emergency assistance to 500,000 people. Prior to it, in March, UNRWA had launched an emergency appeal for $300 million, of which 85 per cent would cover activities in the Gaza Strip and 15 per cent activities in the West Bank. To sustain the most critical emergency operations in Gaza, UNRWA required at least $118 million, the majority of which was needed for food aid. As at 31 August, the Agency had received pledges totalling only $111.1 (37 per cent of the emergency appeal target). UNRWA had been forced to suspend the school feeding programme since September 2013, which had provided one meal per day to the nearly quarter of a million students in Gaza, and an important psychosocial programme for children.

The Working Group noted with concern the large funding gap anticipated for the UNRWA General Fund in 2014. It encouraged the Assembly to keep the programme budget for the biennium 2014–2015 under review to ensure the Agency's ability to deliver. It urged Governments to contribute to UNRWA on a regular basis, raise their level of support, or continue their contributions. The Working Group also urged donor Governments to put in place increased multi-year funding to allow UNRWA to better plan its activities.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/69/453], adopted resolution 69/88 by recorded vote (166-6-6) [agenda item 50].

Operations of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 194(III) of 11 December 1948, 212(III) of 19 November 1948, 302(IV) of 8 December

1949 and all subsequent related resolutions, including its resolution 68/78 of 11 December 2013,

Recalling also the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Having considered the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 January to 31 December 2013,

Taking note of the letter dated 17 June 2014 from the Chair of the Advisory Commission of the Agency to the Commissioner-General,

Deeply concerned about the extremely critical financial situation of the Agency, caused in part by the structural underfunding of the Agency, as well as its rising expenditures resulting from the deterioration of the socioeconomic and humanitarian conditions and the conflicts and rising instability in the region and their significant negative impact on the provision of necessary Agency services to the Palestine refugees, including its emergency, recovery, reconstruction and development programmes in all fields of operation,

Recalling Articles 100, 104 and 105 of the Charter of the United Nations and the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations,

Recalling also the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel, Affirming the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967, including East Jerusalem,

Aware of the continuing needs of the Palestine refugees in all fields of operation, namely, Jordan, Lebanon, the Syrian Arab Republic and the Occupied Palestinian Territory,

Gravely concerned about the extremely difficult socioeconomic conditions being faced by the Palestine refugees in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, particularly in the refugee camps in the Gaza Strip, as a result of the recurrent military operations, continuing prolonged Israeli closures, the construction of settlements and the wall, and the severe economic and movement restrictions that in effect amount to a blockade, which have deepened unemployment and poverty rates among the refugees, with potentially lasting, long-term negative effects, while taking note of developments with regard to the situation of access there, particularly the recent tripartite agreement facilitated by the United Nations,

Deploing the conflict in and around the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014, and the civilian casualties caused, including the killing and injury of thousands of Palestinian civilians, including children, women and the elderly, as well as the widespread destruction of or damage to thousands of homes and civilian infrastructure, including schools, hospitals, water, sanitation and electricity networks, economic, industrial and agricultural properties, public institutions, religious sites, and United Nations schools and facilities, as well as the internal displacement of hundreds of thousands of civilians, and any violations of international law, including humanitarian and human rights law, in this regard,

Deploing also attacks affecting United Nations installations, including Agency schools sheltering displaced civilians, and all other breaches of the inviolability of United Nations premises during the conflict in the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014,

Gravely concerned about the lasting negative repercussions of the military operations in the Gaza Strip between December 2008 and January 2009, as well as in November 2012, on the humanitarian and socioeconomic situation of the Palestine refugees in the Gaza Strip,

Commending the extraordinary efforts by the Agency to provide shelter to more than 290,000 Palestinian civilians, the majority of them Palestine refugees, as well as emergency relief, medical, food, protection and other humanitarian assistance during the military operations of July and August 2014,

Recalling, in this regard, its resolution ES-10/18 of 16 January 2009 and Security Council resolution 1860(2009) of 8 January 2009,

Expressing regret over the continuing restrictions that impede the Agency's efforts to repair and rebuild thousands of damaged or destroyed refugee shelters, and calling upon Israel to ensure the unimpeded import of essential construction materials into the Gaza Strip and to reduce the burdensome cost of importation of Agency supplies, while taking note of recent developments regarding the situation of access there, including the recent tripartite agreement facilitated by the United Nations in this regard,

Expressing concern about the severe classroom shortage in the Gaza Strip, which has been compounded by the destruction caused to schools in the Israeli military operations of July and August 2014, as well as the continuing use of Agency schools to shelter displaced persons, and the consequent negative impact on the right to education of refugee children,

Stressing the urgent need for the advancement of reconstruction in the Gaza Strip, including by ensuring the timely facilitation of construction projects and by sustaining the swift entry of construction materials needed for projects managed by the Agency, and the need for the accelerated implementation of other urgent United Nations-led civilian reconstruction activities,

Welcoming contributions made to the Agency's emergency appeals for the Gaza Strip following the military operations in July and August 2014, and calling urgently on the international community for continued support in accordance with the Agency's strategic response plan,

Welcoming also the convening of the Cairo International Conference on Palestine: Reconstructing Gaza, on 12 October 2014, and urging the timely and full disbursement of pledges for expediting the provision of humanitarian assistance and the reconstruction process,

Stressing that the situation in the Gaza Strip is unsustainable and that a durable ceasefire agreement must lead to a fundamental improvement in the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Gaza Strip, including through the sustained and regular opening of crossing points, and ensure the safety and well-being of civilians on both sides,

Affirming the need to support the Palestinian national consensus government in its assumption of full government responsibilities in both the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, in all fields, as well as through its presence at Gaza's crossing points,

Noting with appreciation the progress made towards rebuilding the Nahr el-Bared refugee camp, commending the Government of Lebanon, donors, the Agency and other concerned parties for the continuing efforts to assist affected and displaced refugees, and emphasizing the need for additional funding to complete the reconstruction of the camp and end the displacement of its 27,000 residents without delay,

Expressing deep concern at the critical situation of Palestine refugees in the Syrian Arab Republic and at the impact of the crisis on the Agency's ability to deliver its services, and regretting profoundly the loss of life among refugees and the killing of 14 staff members of the Agency during the crisis since 2012,

Emphasizing the need for increased assistance to Palestine refugees in the Syrian Arab Republic as well as those who have fled to neighbouring countries, and emphasizing the necessity of ensuring open borders for Palestine refugees fleeing the crisis in the Syrian Arab Republic, consistent with the principles of non-discrimination and non-refoulement under international law, and recalling in this regard the statement by the President of the Security Council of 2 October 2013,

Aware of the valuable work done by the Agency in providing protection to the Palestinian people, in particular Palestine refugees, and recalling the need for the protection of all civilians in situations of armed conflict,

Deploring the endangerment of the safety of the Agency's staff and the damage and destruction caused to the facilities and properties of the Agency during the period covered by the report of the Commissioner-General, and stressing the need to maintain the neutrality of and safeguard the inviolability of United Nations premises, installations and equipment at all times,

Deploring also the breaches of the inviolability of United Nations premises, the failure to accord the property and assets of the Organization immunity from any form of interference and the failure to protect United Nations personnel, premises and property,

Deploring the killing and injury of Agency staff members by the Israeli occupying forces in the Occupied Palestinian Territory since September 2000, including the 11 Agency personnel killed during the military operations in the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014,

Deploring also the killing and wounding of refugee children and women sheltering in the Agency schools by the Israeli occupying forces during the military operations of July and August 2014,

Deeply concerned about the continuing imposition of restrictions on the freedom of movement and access of the Agency's staff, vehicles and goods, and the injury, harassment and intimidation of the Agency's staff, which undermine and obstruct the work of the Agency, including its ability to provide essential basic and emergency services,

Aware of the agreement between the Agency and the Government of Israel,

Taking note of the agreement reached on 24 June 1994, embodied in an exchange of letters between the Agency and the Palestine Liberation Organization,

1. Reaffirms that the effective functioning of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East remains essential in all fields of operation;

7. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Working Group on the Financing of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East and the efforts to assist in ensuring the financial security of the Agency, and requests the Secretary-General to provide the necessary services and assistance to the Working Group for the conduct of its work;

8. Commends the Agency's six-year Medium-Term Strategy, which commenced in January 2010, and the continuing efforts of the Commissioner-General to increase the budgetary transparency and efficiency of the Agency, as reflected in the Agency's programme budget for the biennium 2014–2015, and welcomes the progress made in the preparation of the medium-term strategy for 2016–2021;

12. Encourages the Agency to provide increased assistance, in accordance with its mandate, to affected Palestine refugees in the Syrian Arab Republic as well as those who have fled to neighbouring countries, as detailed in the Syria regional crisis response plans, and calls upon donors to urgently ensure sustained support to the Agency in this regard;

13. Welcomes the progress made thus far by the Agency in rebuilding the Nahr el-Bared refugee camp in northern Lebanon, and calls for the expeditious completion of its reconstruction, for the continued provision of relief assistance to those displaced following its destruction in 2007 and for the alleviation of their ongoing suffering through the provision of the necessary support and financial assistance until the reconstruction of the camp is complete;

14. Encourages the Agency, in close cooperation with other relevant United Nations entities, to continue making progress in addressing the needs and rights of children, women and persons with disabilities in its operations, including through the provision of necessary psychosocial and humanitarian support, in accordance with the Convention on the Rights of the Child, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, respectively;

16. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to comply fully with the provisions of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949;

17. Also calls upon Israel to abide by Articles 100, 104 and 105 of the Charter of the United Nations and the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations in order to ensure the safety of the personnel of the Agency, the protection of its institutions and the safeguarding of the security of its facilities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, at all times;

18. Calls for a full and transparent investigation into all of the incidents affecting the Agency's facilities during the conflict in the Gaza Strip in July and August 2014, with a view to ensuring accountability for all violations of international law;

19. Urges the Government of Israel to expeditiously reimburse the Agency for all transit charges incurred and other financial losses sustained as a result of delays and restrictions on movement and access imposed by Israel;

20. Calls upon Israel particularly to cease obstructing the movement and access of the staff, vehicles and supplies of the Agency and to cease the levying of taxes, extra fees and charges, which affect the Agency's operations detrimentally;

21. Reiterates its call upon Israel to fully lift the restrictions impeding or delaying the import of necessary construction materials and supplies for the reconstruction and repair of thousands of damaged or destroyed refugee shelters, and for the implementation of suspended and urgently needed civilian infrastructure projects in refugee camps in the Gaza Strip;

22. Requests the Commissioner-General to proceed with the issuance of identification cards for Palestine refugees and their descendants in the Occupied Palestinian Territory;

23. Notes with appreciation the positive contribution of the Agency's microfinance and job-creation programmes, and calls upon the Agency, in close cooperation with the relevant agencies, to continue to contribute to the development of the economic and social stability of the Palestine refugees in all fields of operation;

24. Reiterates its appeals to all States, the specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations to continue and to augment the special allocations for grants and scholarships for higher education to Palestine refugees in addition to their contributions to the regular budget of the Agency and to contribute to the establishment of vocational training centres for Palestine refugees, and requests the Agency to act as the recipient and trustee for the special allocations for grants and scholarships;

25. Urges serious follow-up efforts by the Agency and the donor community to meet the goals set forth in the conclusions endorsed by the special meeting of a group of supporters of the Agency, held on 26 September 2013 on the margins of the general debate of the General Assembly at its sixty-eighth session;

26. Urges all States, the specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations to support the Agency's valuable and necessary work in assisting the Palestine refugees in all fields of operation by providing or increasing their contributions to the Agency in order to address the serious financial constraints and underfunding affecting the Agency's regular budget, noting that financial needs have been exacerbated by conflicts and instability in the recent period and the deteriorating humanitarian situation on the ground;

27. Calls, in this regard, for the full and timely funding by donors of the Agency's emergency, recovery and reconstruction programmes as set out in its emergency appeals and response plans.

Displaced persons

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 68/77 [YUN 2013, p. 417] the Secretary-General submitted an August report [A/69/345] on persons displaced as a result of the June 1967 and subsequent hostilities. The resolution requested the Secretary-General, after consulting with the UNRWA Commissioner-General, to report to the Assembly on the progress made in implementing that resolution.

On 19 May, the Secretary-General sought information from Member States, including Israel, on action taken or envisaged to implement the provisions of Assembly resolutions 68/76 to 68/80. UNRWA was not involved in any arrangements for the return of unregistered refugees or displaced persons. Its information was based on requests by returning registered refugees for the transfer of their UNRWA records from Jordan, Lebanon or Syria to the areas to which they had returned. The Agency would not necessarily be aware of the return of any registered refugees who did not request the transfer of their registration records. Based on information obtained from the UNRWA Commissioner-General for the period from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014, 242 refugees registered with the Agency had returned to the West Bank and 257 to Gaza from places outside the Occupied Palestinian Territory. The number of displaced registered refugees known by UNRWA to have returned since June 1967 amounted to approximately 35,628. The Agency was unable to estimate the total number of displaced inhabitants who had returned, although it had kept records of registered refugees. The records were perhaps incomplete, particularly with respect to the location of such refugees.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

4. Strongly appeals to all Governments and to organizations and individuals to contribute generously to the Agency and to the other intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned for the above-mentioned purposes;

Palestinian women

In a report to the 2014 session of the Commission on the Status of Women [E/CN.6/2014/6], submitted in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 2013/17 [YUN 2013, p. 419], the Secretary-General highlighted the situation of Palestinian women between 1 October 2012 and 30 September 2013 and gave an overview of UN assistance in education and training; health; economic empowerment and livelihoods; the rule of law and violence against women; power and decision-making; and institutional development.

The impact of the protracted crisis continued to had a devastating effect on the psychosocial well-being of women and families. The living conditions of women varied depending on sociocultural factors and the different status applied to Palestinian women and men in different areas. Food insecurity remained a significant challenge, due to factors such as the continued closure of the Gaza Strip, restrictions on access in the West Bank and related high rates of poverty, increases in food prices and threats to livelihoods. In 2012, female-headed households received a monthly average of $131 in assistance compared with $78 for male-headed households. The targeted assistance was successful in lowering the percentage of overall food-insecure households, from 54 to 36 per cent for female-headed households and from 37 to 33 per cent for male-headed households.

In the labour market, women's overall unemployment rate had almost doubled, from 17 per cent in 2002 to 32.9 per cent in 2012, while for men it had decreased from 33.5 to 20.5 per cent over the same period. In 2012, the average daily wage for women was 86.8 per cent of that for men. Most women in formal employment worked in the public sector—health and education—outside of which they had few prospects of earning a living wage. Women were being pushed progressively into unpaid and family jobs in the agricultural sector, domestic work and a broad range of cleaning jobs.

Women's health, as well as critical water, sanitation and hygiene situation, remained reasons of concern. In Gaza, less than 10 per cent of available groundwater resources were suitable for drinking purposes; and in the West Bank, over 1 million people continued to access less than 60 litres per capita per day of water. With regard to school enrolment rates, parity had been reached in primary education, and girls outnumbered boys in secondary and higher education. Illiteracy rates among individuals aged 15 years or older in the Occupied Palestinian Territory had fallen in the period 1997–2012 from 13.9 per cent to 4.1 per cent. There were, however, considerable differences between the sexes: 1.8 per cent for males compared with 6.4 per cent for females. Female illiteracy rates were highest in rural areas (8.6 per cent), followed by refugee camps (6.3 per cent) and urban localities (6.1 per cent).

While women continued to participate in a range of roles in political life, they remained underrepresented in decision-making bodies. As at September 2013, women held only 3 out of a total of 24 ministerial level posts in the Palestinian Government.

The Palestinian Legislative Council was not functional during the reporting period and, therefore, there was a hold on the passing of new laws or amending existing ones, including those that were discriminatory towards women and in contradiction to human rights. Violence against women remained a serious concern. According to the Palestinian Independent Commission for Human Rights and civil society partners, 24 women were killed in the name of so-called “honour” between January and August 2013, in a significant deterioration over 2012, when 12 women were killed over the whole year. According to UNDP and UN-Women, the number of cases was most likely underreported.

The PA took noteworthy steps to strengthen capacity to prevent and respond to violence against women. The Ministry of Women’s Affairs signed memorandums of understanding with six key line ministries for the operationalization of a national strategy to combat violence against women. The Ministry also finalized a national regulation for the establishment of women’s protection centres. In June, the Palestinian Civil Police launched a strategy for family protection units that provided a framework for addressing the rights of victims of violence in accordance with international standards.

UN entities continued to implement many initiatives to promote women’s and girls’ access to education and training. The programme “Education for All” was being piloted in 47 schools, and the World Food Programme (WFP) provided date bars and milk to 88,834 children (49 per cent girls). UNRWA continued to provide primary and secondary education in Gaza to 222,000 students (48.6 per cent girls), and primary education to 51,695 students in the West Bank (58 per cent girls), while UNICEF implemented after-school activities reaching out to 10,000 adolescents (50 per cent girls).

With regard to health, the United Nations Population Fund, supported the implementation of the national obstetric care protocol through the training of 316 health providers; provided home visits to 2,625 pregnant women, as well as postnatal care to 1,664 women in the West Bank and Gaza; and supported the launch of the Youth Peer Education Network, whose aim was to promote healthy lifestyle among youth and raise awareness of sexual and reproductive health and HIV/AIDS.

In the context of economic empowerment and livelihood, the International Labour Organization (ILO) provided direct support to six women’s cooperatives, and UNDP trained women entrepreneurs and gave technical assistance to 28 women’s cooperatives. WFP reached 310,148 female beneficiaries through food distribution and conditional voucher programmes.

Microfinance support continued to be a source of short-term poverty alleviation in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. In the West Bank, the Agency’s microfinance programme provided 35 per cent of loans to women (out of a total of 10,067) amounting to 27 per cent of the total value of loans ($13.7 million); while in Gaza, the programme provided 39 per cent of loans to women (out of a total of 1,382), also amounting to 27 per cent of the total value of loans ($1.48 million). Also in Gaza, UNRWA reached a total of 1,108 female graduates through its Young Women Leaders Programme.

United Nations entities implemented a range of initiatives to improve women’s access to justice and prevent and respond to violence against women. Priority was given to the implementation of the National Strategy to Combat Violence Against Women 2011–2019. UN-Women supported the institutionalization of the Family Protection Units in the Palestinian Civil Police, which, in 2012, had handled 2,849 cases of family violence. UNDP supported the Gender Unit of the Civilian Police, including the development of a diploma programme on gender-responsive policing targeting mid- and high-level officers. From 2011 to June 2013, UNDP provided legal aid services to a total of 43,609 women in Gaza and the West Bank, tripling the number of women who were granted legal representation in courts and almost doubling the number provided with legal information and advice. Through the gender-based violence referral system established by UNRWA in all its field operations, 414 cases were reported (75 per cent female) in the West Bank, the majority of which received individual counselling. In Gaza, 384 survivors of gender-based violence were detected through the system.

As for institutional development, in addition to the UN-Women assistance to the Ministry of Women’s Affairs and the Ministry of Planning, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization supported the Palestinian Women’s Documentation and Research Centre in advancing gender equality and women’s empowerment through capacity-building, research, advocacy and documentation activities. ILO assisted the National Committee for Women’s Employment in developing its three-year strategic plan to advocate for gender-sensitive policies, legislation and capacity-building interventions; and UNICEF supported the Ministry of Social Affairs to strengthen the national child protection system so that girls and young women were afforded greater protection from violence, abuse and exploitation. One of the results was that an amended child law came into force.

The Secretary-General noted that high levels of unemployment and poverty persisted, and many Palestinian women and girls still faced significant obstacles in accessing basic services, health care, justice institutions, water and sanitation, and economic opportunities. The first ever United Nations Development Assistance Framework for Palestine—developed by the UN country team during the reporting period—and the new Palestinian National Development Plan should be used to improve efficiency among all development actors, the Secretary-General said. That included new joint programmes building on gender equality and the empowerment of women initiatives funded under the Millennium Development Goals Achievement Fund [YUN 2007, p. 877] that ended in April 2013. More determined action was needed by all actors to increase women's participation and representation at all levels of decision-making and to support women in elected and appointed posts, possibly applying UN-Women experience in building the capacity of women leaders in different regions.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 12 June [meeting 22], the Economic and Social Council, on the recommendation of the Commission on the Status of Women [E/2014/27], adopted resolution 2014/1 by recorded vote (12-2-15) [agenda item 16 (j)].

Situation of and assistance to Palestinian women

The Economic and Social Council,

Having considered with appreciation the report of the Secretary-General,

Recalling the Nairobi Forward-looking Strategies for the Advancement of Women, in particular paragraph 260 concerning Palestinian women and children, the Beijing Platform for Action, adopted at the Fourth World Conference on Women, and the outcomes of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly, entitled "Women 2000: gender equality, development and peace for the twenty-first century",

Recalling also its resolution 2013/17 of 24 July 2013 and other relevant United Nations resolutions, including General Assembly resolution 57/337 of 3 July 2003 on the prevention of armed conflict and Security Council resolution 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 on women and peace and security,

Recalling further the Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women as it concerns the protection of civilian populations,

Recalling the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the Convention on the Rights of the Child, and reaffirming that these human rights instruments must be respected in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Expressing deep concern about the grave situation of Palestinian women in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, resulting from the severe impact of the ongoing illegal Israeli occupation and all of its manifestations,

Expressing grave concern about the increased difficulties being faced by Palestinian women and girls living under Israeli occupation, including the continuation of home demolitions, evictions of Palestinians, the revocation of residency rights, arbitrary detention and imprisonment and escalating settler violence against Palestinian civilians and their property, as well as high rates of poverty, unemployment, food insecurity, inadequate water supply and unsafe drinking water, incidents of domestic violence and declining health, education and living standards, including the rising incidence of trauma and the decline in their psychological well-being, and expressing grave concern about the dire humanitarian crisis and the insecurity and instability on the ground in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, in particular in the Gaza Strip,

Deploing the dire economic and social conditions of Palestinian women and girls in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and the systematic violation of their human rights resulting from the severe impact of ongoing illegal Israeli practices, including the forced displacement of civilians and confiscation of land, particularly in connection with the construction and expansion of settlements and the wall, which continue to constitute a major obstacle to peace on the basis of the two-State solution, and the continued imposition of closures and restrictions on the movement of persons and goods, including the permit regime throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, which have detrimentally affected their right to health care, including access of pregnant women to health services for antenatal care and safe delivery, education, employment, development and freedom of movement,

Gravely concerned, in particular, about the critical socio-economic and humanitarian situation in the Gaza Strip, including that resulting from Israeli military operations, including those in November 2012, and the continuing imposition of a blockade consisting of the prolonged closure of border crossings and severe restrictions on the movement of persons and goods, as well as the continued impeding of the reconstruction process by Israel, the occupying Power, which has detrimentally affected every aspect of the lives of the civilian population, especially women and children, in the Gaza Strip,

Stressing the importance of providing assistance, especially emergency assistance, to alleviate the dire socio-economic and humanitarian situation being faced by Palestinian women and their families, and recognizing the essential efforts and support being provided by the United Nations agencies and other humanitarian aid organizations on the ground,

Reiterating the importance of increasing the role of women in peacebuilding and decision-making with regard to conflict prevention and the peaceful resolution of conflicts as part of efforts to ensure the safety and well-being of all women in the region, and stressing the importance of their equal participation and involvement in all efforts for the achievement, maintenance and promotion of peace and security,

1. Reaffirms that the Israeli occupation remains the major obstacle for Palestinian women with regard to their advancement, self-reliance and integration into the development of their society, and stresses the importance of efforts to increase their role in decision-making with regard to conflict prevention and resolution and to ensure their equal participation and involvement in all efforts for the achievement, maintenance and promotion of peace and security;

5. Calls upon Israel to facilitate the return of all refugees and displaced Palestinian women and children to their homes and properties, in compliance with the relevant United Nations resolutions;

6. Stresses the urgent need for sustained and active international involvement, including by the Quartet, to assist the parties in advancing and accelerating peace process negotiations for the achievement of a just, lasting and comprehensive peace settlement that ends the occupation which began in 1967 and results in the independence of a democratic, contiguous and viable State of Palestine living side by side in peace and security with Israel and its neighbours, on the basis of United Nations resolutions, the Quartet road map to a permanent two-State solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and the Arab Peace Initiative adopted by the Council of the League of Arab States at its fourteenth session;

7. Requests the Commission on the Status of Women to continue to monitor and take action with regard to the implementation of the Nairobi Forward-looking Strategies for the Advancement of Women, in particular paragraph 260 concerning Palestinian women and children, the Beijing Platform for Action, and the outcomes of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly, entitled "Women 2000: gender equality, development and peace for the twenty-first century";

8. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to review the situation, to assist Palestinian women by all available means, including those set out in his report, and to submit to the Commission on the Status of Women at its fifty-ninth session a report, including information provided by the Economic and Social Commission for

Lebanon

In 2014, Lebanon's stability was challenged by its political process, the deteriorating security and the protracted consequences of the Syrian conflict. On several occasions, the Security Council appealed to all Lebanese parties to preserve national unity in the face of attempts to undermine it, and stressed the importance to respect Lebanon's policy of disassociation and to refrain from any involvement in the Syrian crisis. The implementation of Council resolution 1701(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 583] remained crucial to ensuring stability in the country and full respect for Lebanon's sovereignty and political independence.

Lebanon hosted the largest number of Syrian refugees—approximately 80 per cent of whom were women and children—and had a higher proportion of refugees relative to its national population than any country in the world. At the beginning of the year only, refugees crossing into Lebanon had totalled over 860,000—a six-fold increase over 2013. As at November, there were 1.124 million registered Syrian refugees in Lebanon. On 31 May, Lebanon announced that Syrian refugees who returned to Syria after 1 June would lose their refugee status in Lebanon. Problems arose also in securing birth registration for Syrian refugee children born in Lebanon.

With regard to the political situation, President Michel Sleiman's leadership upheld the country's disassociation policy, which was vital to prevent the Syrian crisis from exacerbating tensions in Lebanon. On 25 May, however, when his term ended, the presidency remained vacant despite fourteen sessions of Parliament that had been scheduled but had failed to take place owing to a lack of quorum. In the absence of a president, the Council of Ministers led by Prime Minister Tammam Salam assumed the powers of the presidency. On 30 November, the Constitutional Court upheld the legality of the decision taken on 5 November by parliamentarians to extend the Parliament's mandate until 20 June 2017.

No progress was made towards the delineation of the Lebanese-Syrian border, as called for in Security Council resolutions 1680(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 571] and 1701(2006). The delineation of the border was in fact crucial to extend the authority of the Government of Lebanon throughout the whole Lebanese territory and to enable the Lebanese Armed Forces (LAF) to secure borders, thus preventing the entry of arms or related materiel. Further, there was no progress on the issue of the Shab'a Farms, the disputed agricultural area where Lebanon, Syria and Israel converged. There had still been no reaction from either Israel or Syria to the provisional definition of that area contained in the Secretary-General's report of 30 October 2007 [YUN 2007, p. 488].

The area of operations of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) remained relatively stable, despite serious violations by Israel of Lebanese sovereignty and territorial integrity. In July and August, stability along the Blue Line was threatened by heightened tension resulting from the outbreak of the Gaza conflict; rockets were fired on nine occasions from Lebanon towards Israel, with Israel responding with artillery fire on five occasions. Two serious incidents in the Shab'a Farms Area (Sector East) took place on 5 and 7 October. In each instance, the quick intervention by UNIFIL and positive engagement by both Lebanon and Israel helped to contain the situation. Tripartite meetings were held throughout the year: on 29 January, 24 March, 7 May, 23 July and 17 September, in addition to a videoconference on 25 August that focused on rocket launchings; on each side's concerns emanating from the situation in Syria; and on role of UNIFIL along the Blue Line.

There was no change in the status of the Israeli-occupied northern part of the village of Ghajar and the adjacent area north of the Blue Line, which remained a violation of resolution 1701(2006) and of Lebanese sovereignty.

In 2014, LAF continued to work robustly to contain threats from armed groups along the border with Syria. Significant challenges to the security situation, however, came in the form of attacks carried out by violent extremist groups, including Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) and the Nusra Front in the Bekaa Valley. By year's end, Lebanese soldiers and security personnel continued to be held hostage near Aarsal by the Nusra Front and ISIL. On 14 August, Lebanon approved a grant of $1 billion from Saudi Arabia to support the Lebanese security forces and combat terrorism. On 23 December, the Future Movement—former Prime Minister Rafiq Hariri's party, led after his death by his son Saad Hariri—and Hizbullah initiated a dialogue under Speaker Nabih Berri's auspices aimed at lowering tensions between the Sunni and Shia communities, and agreeing on a mechanism to elect a new president.

One year after its formation, the International Support Group for Lebanon was concerned that the challenges facing Lebanon had become more severe.

On 16 January, the Special Tribunal for Lebanon opened the in absentia trial of the persons accused in connection with the 2005 killing of former Prime Minister Hariri. In December, the Secretary-General extended the mandate of the Tribunal for a period of three years beginning 1 March 2015.

Political and security developments

Security Council consideration. The Security Council considered the situation in Lebanon, UNIFIL and the implementation of Council resolutions 1559(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 506], 1680(2006) and 1701(2006) in meetings held throughout the year.

On 20 January [S/PV.7096 & Resumption 1], the Secretary-General commended President Michel Sleiman's leadership in upholding the country's disassociation policy, which was vital to prevent the Syrian crisis from exacerbating tensions in Lebanon. On 16 January, nine years after the assassination of former Prime Minister Hariri, the trial of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon started. Violations of Lebanon's border with Syria continued, including an escalation of rocket firing and air strikes into Lebanon's Bekaa region. Refugees crossing into Lebanon had totalled over 860,000—a six-fold increase over 2013. The situation in the area of operations of UNIFIL remained relatively stable thanks to the cooperation of the Lebanese and Israeli authorities to contain incidents. The Security Council and the International Support Group for Lebanon [YUN 2013, p. 422] called for generous support for the humanitarian response and stabilization efforts, as well as for LAF, to whom Saudi Arabia pledged $3 billion in assistance.

On 25 February [S/PV.7118], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Jeffrey Feltman welcomed the formation, on 15 February, of a government of national interest, despite the continued tensions stemming from a series of terrorist attacks, as well as incidents of shelling and shooting from across the Syrian border into Lebanon.

On 20 May [S/PV.7178], Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs Oscar Fernández-Taranco reminded Council members that the term of President Sleiman's presidency would expire on 25 May and reiterated the importance of holding successful elections in Lebanon—entirely Lebanese-owned and free of foreign interference—and of avoiding a vacancy in the presidency. The security plan approved by the Government of Prime Minister Tammam Salam had improved security in Tripoli and the Bekaa Valley, despite incidents connected with the conflict in Syria and incidents in the Palestinian refugee camps.

On 29 May, the Council convened [S/PV.7190] to adopt a presidential statement (see p. 569).

On 23 June [S/PV.7204], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman informed the Council that Italy had hosted a ministerial conference in Rome on 17 June within the framework of the International Support Group for Lebanon on support to LAF.

On 4 August [SC/11507], the Security Council in a press statement condemned the attacks by violent extremist groups against LAF and internal security forces in the area of Aarsal, at the border with Syria, beginning on 2 August, which had led to at least 14 deaths, 86 injured, and 22 missing among the Lebanese security forces, in addition to civilian casualties.

On 14 August [S/PV.7241], the Council issued an official communiqué, following a closed meeting with UNIFIL troop- and police-contributing countries and a briefing by Assistant Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations Edmond Mulet.

On 26 August [S/PV.7248], the Security Council drew attention to a letter from the Secretary-General dated 31 July, by which the Secretary-General had recommended the renewal of the mandate of UNIFIL (see p. 572).

In his 16 September [S/PV.7266] briefing to the Council, Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process Robert Serry said that LAF had regained control of the border town of Arsal from militants from Syria, including of the Nusra Front and ISIL, but efforts to secure the release of 27 LAF hostages continued. Between 11 July and 25 August, 10 separate incidents of rocket launchings from southern Lebanon towards Israel had taken place, and on five occasions the Israel Defense Forces (IDF) had responded with fire across the Blue Line—the United Nations-brokered delineation of the Israel-Lebanon border.

In a 21 October [S/PV.7281] briefing to the Council, the Secretary-General expressed his concern about the escalation of violence that had taken place in the country since the August attacks by ISIL and the Nusra Front on Arsal, and about the fighting that took place at the beginning of the month between the Nusra Front and Hizbullah outside the town of Brital.

On 15 December [S/PV.7339], Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process Serry said that the United Nations Deputy Secretary-General was in Beirut for the launch of the new Lebanon crisis response plan to address the refugee presence in the country. He also reported that, on 5 December, a member of the Lebanese security forces had been executed by his captors, while 25 other Lebanese soldiers and security personnel were still being held hostage by the Nusra Front and ISIL. Further, on 2 December, six Lebanese soldiers had been killed in an attack on an army patrol by militants near the Syrian border.

Communications. In two letters, dated 9 January [A/68/703-S/2014/18] and 14 January [A/68/707-S/2014/25] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Lebanon transmitted complaints against Israel for waging electronic warfare on its communication and data networks.

Appointment. On 25 November [S/2014/860], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Sigrid Kaag (Netherlands) as the United Nations Special Coordinator for Lebanon, succeeding Derek Plumbly (United Kingdom). The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 28 November [S/2014/861].

In resolution 69/212 of 19 December (see p. 1194), the General Assembly reiterated its request to Israel to assume responsibility for compensation to Lebanon and other countries affected by the oil slick on Lebanese and Syrian shores caused by Israeli military action in 2006 [YUN 2006, p. 1215].

Implementation of resolution 1559(2004)

The Secretary-General submitted his nineteenth and twentieth semi-annual reports on the implementation of Security Council resolution 1559(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 506], which called for strict respect of the sovereignty, territorial integrity, unity and political independence of Lebanon under the sole and exclusive authority of the Government, the withdrawal of all remaining foreign forces from Lebanon, and the disbanding and disarmament of all Lebanese and non-Lebanese militias.

Report of Secretary-General (April). In April [S/2014/296], the Secretary-General, in his nineteenth semi-annual report, remarked that no tangible progress on key provisions of resolution 1559(2004) had taken place since his previous report in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 423]. Lebanon continued to face serious challenges to its stability and security, both internally and along its borders with Syria, including from arms smuggling and from further influxes of refugees. Despite being the smallest and most vulnerable of the countries neighbouring Syria, Lebanon hosted the largest number of Syrian refugees and, as a consequence, was facing significant humanitarian and socioeconomic challenges. Positive developments, however, had taken place on the political front.

Lebanon witnessed many terrorist incidents during the reporting period, leading to at least 65 fatalities and more than 400 injuries. The conflict in Syria continued to have an impact on the security and stability of Lebanon, with at least five attacks by the Syrian air force on the area around the Lebanese town of Arsal, close to the Syrian-Lebanese border. Among the positive developments during the reporting period were the opening of the trial in the Special Tribunal for Lebanon on 16 January of the persons accused in connection with the 2005 killing of former Prime Minister Hariri and the formation of a 24-member government on 15 February. The new Government committed itself to, among other things, preserving the sovereignty and improving the security of Lebanon; respecting Security Council resolutions; supporting the National Dialogue, including resuming discussions concerning the national defence strategy; building the capabilities of the armed forces; and following up on decisions agreed upon in the context of the International Support Group for Lebanon.

Since the adoption of resolution 1559(2004) on 2 September 2004 [YUN 2004, p. 506], the provisions that had been implemented were the holding of presidential and parliamentary elections, the withdrawal of Syrian troops and military assets from Lebanon in April 2005, and the establishment of full diplomatic relations between Lebanon and Syria in 2009. The delineation of the Syrian-Lebanese border, however, had still not taken place. Further, the existence and activities of Lebanese and non-Lebanese militias along the border continued to pose a threat to the stability of the country and the region. The delineation and demarcation of the boundaries of Lebanon remained essential to guaranteeing national sovereignty and territorial integrity, as provided for by resolution 1559(2004), and in line with the 1989 Taif Agreement. The occupation by IDF of the northern part of the village of Ghajar and an adjacent area north of the Blue Line continued, in violation of the sovereignty of Lebanon and resolutions 1559(2004) and 1701(2006).

During the reporting period, no progress was made in relation to the issue of the Shab'a Farms—a disputed agricultural area where Lebanon, Syria and Israel converged. Also in violation of resolutions 1559(2004) and 1701(2006), during the reporting period, unmanned aerial vehicles and fixed-wing aircraft of the Israeli armed forces made almost daily overflights of Lebanon. Lebanon had reiterated to the United Nations its intention to extend State authority over all Lebanese territory, as called for in the Taif Agreement and in resolution 1559(2004). The armed forces and internal security forces had played a crucial role in that respect under difficult circumstances. The ability of the Lebanese State to fully exercise its authority over all its territory, however, continued to be challenged. Several incidents—mostly linked to the war in Syria—had undermined national security and exacerbated sectarian tensions in Lebanon. Concern continued about the involvement of Lebanese fighters in Syria, notably those of Hizbullah. While Hizbullah publicly acknowledged its involvement in that fighting, the Lebanese Government continued to call upon all parties to adhere to the policy of disassociation agreed upon in the Baabda Declaration [YUN 2012, p. 422] during the National Dialogue session of June 2012.

Lebanese and non-Lebanese militias within the country continued to operate outside the control of the Government, in violation of resolution 1559(2004), with the armed component of Hizbullah being the most heavily armed. On 4 December, a Hizbullah commander was assassinated in Beirut. In addition, a number of Palestinian armed groups continued to operate in the country inside and outside the refugee camps.

The Secretary-General reiterated his support to the National Dialogue as the best way to deal with the issue of arms and achieve the goal of no weapons or armed forces in Lebanon other than those of the Lebanese State. A National Dialogue session was held on 31 March under the leadership of the President of Lebanon, to which the main Lebanese political groups participated, with the exception of Hizbullah and the Lebanese Forces.

An encouraging step had been the discussion of the President's 2012 vision for developing a national defence strategy. The Secretary-General urged all parties to engage in the National Dialogue and to implement the decisions relating to the disarmament of non-Lebanese groups and the dismantling of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command and Fatah al-Intifada military bases. Further, he urged the Government and armed forces of Lebanon to take all measures necessary to prohibit Hizbullah from acquiring weapons and building paramilitary capacities outside the authority of the State, and called upon countries in the region to encourage the transformation of the armed group into a solely political party.

Report of Secretary-General (October). In October, the Secretary-General submitted his twentieth semi-annual report [S/2014/720] on the implementation of resolution 1559(2004), providing an update on the subject since the April report. In response to the political situation in Lebanon, the Security Council, in a 29 May presidential statement (see p. 569), expressed disappointment and concern that the presidential elections had not been conducted within the time frame set out in the Constitution.

During the reporting period, Lebanon witnessed further challenges to its security situation, including five terrorist attacks and car bombs that left at least three people dead and tens injured. There were also at least 15 attacks by the Syrian air force on the area around the Lebanese town of Aarsal. In its press statement of 4 August, the Council condemned the attack by violent extremist groups on LAF and internal security forces around that town. The attack had started on 2 August and by the time it ended, on 7 August, caused some 100 fatalities and numerous injuries. Further, there were at least 23 cross-border shelling incidents and rocket attacks in the north-east of Lebanon, and reports of 22 air raids by the Syrian air force on Lebanese territory, which caused at least five deaths and more than 20 injuries. The Lebanese authorities had highlighted the need to defend Lebanon from such attacks and, on 25 July, the armed forces responded by firing back at the Syrian aircraft that had violated Lebanese sovereignty.

Until his term as President of Lebanon ended on 25 May, Michel Sleiman had maintained his calls for all Lebanese parties to disassociate themselves from the war in Syria. The Secretary-General, however, expressed his concern about the failure to elect a new president since Mr. Sleiman's mandate had ended, leaving the position of Head of State vacant for more than four months and increasing the country's vulnerability. No sessions of the National Dialogue had been convened since 5 May. On 26 September, the Secretary-General met the Lebanese Prime Minister and highlighted the importance of international support for the security and stability in Lebanon.

At the border between Lebanon and Syria, reports continued of arms trafficking in both directions, which caused concern among several Member States.

Israeli officials stated that they would act to prevent advanced weapons systems from being transferred to Hizbullah from Syria. Senior Hizbullah representatives, for their part, stated that they had no intention of acquiring chemical weapons. Despite the difficulty in controlling the border between Lebanon and Syria, LAF had been deployed to tighten security along the border. No tangible progress towards the disbanding and disarming of Lebanese and non-Lebanese militias had been made during the reporting period. The Secretary-General reiterated the view that the National Dialogue was the best way to deal with the issue of arms and achieve the ultimate goal of no weapons or armed forces in Lebanon other than those of the Lebanese State.

The humanitarian conditions for Palestine refugees in Lebanon was growing dire. The influx of an additional 44,000 refugees from Syria had increased the tension between the Palestine refugees who had been residing in Lebanon and those arriving from Syria. The Secretary-General reiterated his call on donors to support UNRWA and its vital work in providing services to Palestine refugees in Lebanon. Lebanon hosted the largest number of refugees per capita in the world. The Secretary-General welcomed the activation of the multi-donor trust fund, established with the help of the World Bank, and encouraged Member States to fulfil their burden-sharing responsibilities by contributing generously through that and other mechanisms. The Secretary-General also called upon Israel to adhere to its obligations under relevant Security Council resolutions: to withdraw its forces from the northern part of the village of Ghajar and an adjacent area north of the Blue Line; and to cease its overflights of Lebanese airspace.

Implementation of resolution 1701(2006) and UNIFIL activities

Security Council resolution 1701(2006) [YUN 2006, p. 583], which was approved by both the Lebanese and the Israeli Governments, brought about a ceasefire, effective 14 August 2006, between Israel and Hizbullah after a month-long conflict that caused hundreds of civilian deaths and major infrastructure damage throughout Lebanon. By the same resolution, the Council expanded the mandate of UNIFIL to undertake substantial new tasks, in addition to tasks mandated under resolutions 425(1978) [YUN 1978, p. 312] and 426(1978) [ibid.], and authorized an increase in UNIFIL strength from 2,000 to a maximum of 15,000 troops. The Secretary-General updated the Council on the implementation of resolution 1701(2006) in three periodic reports during the year.

UNIFIL was established by Council resolution 425(1978), following Israel's invasion of Lebanon [YUN 1978, p. 296]. The Force was originally entrusted with confirming the withdrawal of Israeli forces, restoring international peace and security, and assisting Lebanon in regaining authority in the southern part of the country. Following a second invasion in 1982 [YUN 1982, p. 425], the Council, in resolution 511(1982) [ibid., p. 450], authorized the Force to carry out the additional task of providing protection and humanitarian assistance to the local population. After the withdrawal of Israeli forces from Lebanon in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 465], UNIFIL was reinforced in order to monitor those territories previously occupied by Israel, to prevent the recurrence of fighting and to create conditions for the restoration of Lebanese authority in the area.

Communications. Throughout the year, Lebanon reported on Israeli violations of resolution 1701(2006) by air, land and sea, which resulted in the loss of Lebanese sovereignty and territorial integrity [A/68/726-S/2014/70, A/68/772-S/2014/155, A/68/776-S/2014/134, A/68/806-S/2014/204, A/68/839-S/2014/284, A/68/848-S/2014/278, A/68/851-S/2014/294, A/68/876-S/2014/326, A/68/885-S/2014/359, A/68/888-S/2014/366, A/68/945-S/2014/482, A/68/952-S/2014/507, A/68/957-S/2014/548, A/68/973-S/2014/582, A/68/987-S/2014/654, A/69/412-S/2014/712, A/69/427-S/2014/717, A/69/526-S/2014/741, A/69/581-S/2014/823, A/69/715-S/2015/5, A/69/714-S/2015/8].

Israel, in communications sent from February through December to the Security Council, responded to some of Lebanon's letters and reported on Lebanese violations of Israeli sovereignty [S/2014/86, S/2014/254, S/2014/494, S/2014/626, S/2014/630, S/2014/724, S/2014/795, S/2014/878].

Report of Secretary-General (February). In February, the Secretary-General submitted his first report of the year [S/2014/130] on the implementation of Security Council resolution 1701(2006), covering the period from 14 November 2013 to 27 February 2014.

In the midst of Lebanon's protracted political process and deteriorating security situation, UNIFIL area of operations remained relatively stable despite two serious violations of resolution 1701(2006), on 15 and on 29 December 2013. On 15 December, one IDF soldier was killed by a LAF soldier shooting across the Blue Line in an individual act. On 29 December, rockets launched from southern Lebanon against Israel were met with artillery response. Lebanon and Israel displayed their resolve to safeguard the quiet along the Blue Line and their commitment to resolution 1701(2006), although their respective outstanding obligations under the resolution remained pending.

There was an upsurge in terrorist incidents related to the conflict in Syria, as Al-Qaida-linked armed groups claimed responsibility for terrorist attacks in Lebanon, including a double suicide bombing of the Embassy of Iran in Beirut on 19 November 2013. As at 5 February 2014, there were a further six suicide bombings in Lebanon, killing 15 people. On 27 December 2013, former Minister Mohamad Chatah was assassinated, along with other five people, in a car bomb attack. On 16 January, the Special Tribunal for Lebanon opened the in absentia trial of the persons accused in connection with the 2005 killing of former Prime Minister Hariri. Cross-border shelling and shooting from Syria into Lebanon continued.

The International Support Group for Lebanon met in New York on 25 November 2013. On 15 December, a multi-donor trust fund was established by the World Bank in support of Lebanon's stabilization efforts. The liaison and coordination arrangements between UNIFIL and the parties continued to serve as the foundation in implementing resolution 1701(2006), safeguarding the cessation of hostilities, ensuring full respect for the Blue Line, and protecting security and stability in southern Lebanon. The parties continued to engage constructively with UNIFIL both at the tripartite and bilateral levels. The tripartite forum chaired by the Force Commander of UNIFIL remained the key mechanism for addressing all security and military operational issues related to the implementation of resolution 1701(2006). During the reporting period, three tripartite meetings were held, on 4 and 16 December 2013 and 29 January 2014.

UNIFIL observed a number of brief ground violations of the Blue Line committed by Lebanese shepherds and farmers, mainly in the Shab'a Farms area (Sector East). There was no change in the status of the Israeli-occupied northern part of the village of Ghajar and the adjacent area north of the Blue Line, which remained a violation of resolution 1701(2006) and of Lebanese sovereignty. Israel was yet to respond to the proposal of UNIFIL regarding security arrangements aimed at facilitating IDF withdrawal from the area, submitted to both parties on 25 June 2011. LAF had informed UNIFIL of its approval in 2011 [YUN 2011, p. 463]. Air violations, mostly by unmanned aerial vehicles, continued almost daily in violation of resolution 1701(2006) and of Lebanese sovereignty. UNIFIL protested to IDF, calling upon the authorities to cease them immediately. The Israeli authorities continued to claim that the reconnaissance overflights were necessary security measures.

UNIFIL generally enjoyed full freedom of movement throughout its area of operations. During the reporting period, however, UNIFIL troops encountered five cases of unfriendly behaviour by civilians, some involving aggressive conduct towards peacekeepers and, in one instance, theft of UNIFIL equipment, which the Force reported to the Lebanese authorities. Despite those incidents, UNIFIL relations with the local population remained generally positive. The Force participated in joint outreach activities with United Nations agencies and non-governmental organizations, providing medical, dental and veterinary assistance and implementing water and sanitation projects.

UNIFIL also provided assistance to LAF in establishing an area free of armed personnel, assets and weapons between the Blue Line and the Litani River, other than those of the Government of Lebanon and of UNIFIL. Israel alleged that Hizbullah had been building up its military presence inside populated areas in southern Lebanon and that unauthorized weapons were being transferred into Lebanon, including into the area of operations of UNIFIL. UNIFIL, however, had neither been provided with, nor found, evidence of the unauthorized transfer of arms into its area of operations.

UNIFIL Maritime Task Force continued to carry out its dual mandate of conducting maritime interdiction operations and training LAF. Along the line of buoys, UNIFIL observed IDF patrol boats dropping depth charges and flares, but it had no mandate to monitor that line, which Israel had installed unilaterally and which Lebanon did not recognize. UNIFIL also continued to work with the parties to establish visible markers along the Blue Line. As at 29 January, the Force had cleared 300 points from mines, measured 230 points, constructed 203 points and verified 182 points.

As at 27 January 2014, the total military strength of UNIFIL was 10,113, including 365 women, supported by 52 military observers, including two women, of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO). The civilian component consisted of 935 international and national staff, including 90 and 160 women, respectively. The Maritime Task Force consisted of three frigates, four fast patrol boats and two helicopters.

The Secretary-General remained concerned by the lack of progress towards achieving a permanent ceasefire to the conflict, envisaged in resolution 1701(2006), as major obligations under the resolution remained outstanding and required action by both parties.

Communication. In a 24 March letter [S/2014/216] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria transmitted its comments on the Secretary-General's February report (see above). Since Council resolution 1701(2006) was adopted as a result of Israel's military aggression against Lebanon, Syria believed that dealing with matters such as displaced Syrians in Lebanon and the demarcation of the border between Lebanon and Syria was outside the scope of resolution 1701(2006) and pertained to the national sovereignty of both countries.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 29 May [meeting 7190], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/10 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council recalls all its previous resolutions and the statements by its President on the situation in Lebanon.

The Council pays tribute to the work of the outgoing President of Lebanon, Mr. Michel Sleiman, and expresses its disappointment and concern that the election of a new President of Lebanon has not taken place within the constitutional time frame. The Council urges the Parliament to uphold Lebanon's long-standing democratic tradition and to work to ensure that presidential elections take place as soon as possible and without external interference.

The Council reiterates its full support for the Government of Lebanon to discharge its duties during this interim period in accordance with the Constitution, until the election of the new President.

The Council looks forward to the continued engagement of the Lebanese authorities with the international community, in particular the International Support Group for Lebanon, to mobilize support for Lebanon. The Council reiterates the need for sustained international support to Lebanon in addressing the economic, security and humanitarian challenges facing the country and in meeting Lebanon's international obligations.

Recalling the statement by its President of 10 July 2013, the Council appeals to all Lebanese parties to preserve national unity in the face of attempts to undermine the stability of the country, consistent with their commitment in the Baabda Declaration, and stresses the importance for all Lebanese parties to respect Lebanon's policy of disassociation and to refrain from any involvement in the Syrian crisis.

The Council also stresses that effective implementation of Council resolution 1701(2006) and all other relevant Council resolutions remains crucial to ensuring stability in Lebanon and full respect for the sovereignty, territorial integrity, unity and political independence of Lebanon.

Report of Secretary-General (June). In June, the Secretary-General submitted his second report of the year [S/2014/438] on the implementation of Security Council resolution 1701(2006), covering the period from 28 February to 26 June. The area of operations of UNIFIL remained generally calm and stable. The cessation of hostilities was interrupted on 14 March, when IDF conducted heavy artillery shelling into Lebanon and directed tank fire at two houses in response to a roadside explosion that hit its patrol in the area of Shab'a Farms, south of the Blue Line. Immediately after the incident, UNIFIL engaged both parties urging them to defuse tensions and facilitate the restoration of the cessation of hostilities.

The security situation in Lebanon saw notable improvement following the adoption by the new Government of Lebanon of security plans for Tripoli and the Bekaa region, whose implementation began on 1 April and led to the successful interdiction of people and materiel associated with terrorist activities. Three terrorist attacks did, however, occur: on 16 and 29 March, and on 20 June, killing a total of 8 people.

The ongoing conflict in Syria led to a further influx of Syrian nationals into Lebanon: as at 11 June, there were 1,093,603 registered Syrian refugees assisted by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR)—an increase of approximately 197,906 since February. Lebanon established a committee chaired by the Prime Minister to address refugee-related issues. On 31 May, the Minister of the Interior announced that Syrian refugees who returned to Syria after 1 June would lose their refugee status in Lebanon. Approximately 80 per cent of Syrian refugees in Lebanon were women and children; problems arose also in securing birth registration for Syrian refugee children born in Lebanon, owing to a weak legal framework.

On the political front, upon the expiration of the term of President Sleiman, the powers of the presidency transferred to the Council of Ministers under the leadership of Prime Minister Salam, in accordance with the Constitution. On 5 March the International Support Group for Lebanon met in Paris.

UNIFIL continued to carry out, along with LAF, daily activities between the Blue Line and the Litani River. In 17 cases, UNIFIL patrols encountered unfriendly or hostile behaviour from local civilians, but the relations with the local population remained largely positive.

Two tripartite meetings took place, on 24 March and on 7 May, at which the incidents occurred during the reporting period were addressed. Following discussions at the 24 March meeting about the 14 March incident, UNIFIL increased its presence along the Blue Line in the Shab'a Farms area to deter possible illicit activities. UNIFIL continued to work with the parties to erect visible markers along the Blue Line; as at 3 June, the Force had cleared 307 points from mines, measured 235 points, constructed 216 points and verified 194 points.

Hizbullah continued to acknowledge publicly that it maintained a substantial military capacity separate from that of the Lebanese State, which allegedly served as a deterrent against potential aggression from Israel. President Sleiman continued to advocate the approach to the control of Hizbullah's arms contained in the national defence strategy proposal that he had presented under the National Dialogue in September 2012. On 31 March and 5 May, President Sleiman chaired National Dialogue sessions, at which participants considered how best to take forward the national defence strategy proposal and to abide by Lebanon's policy of disassociation pursuant to the Baabda Declaration of 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 422]. Arms outside the control of the State continued to threaten stability in Lebanon. Despite a drop in the frequency and size of attacks on civilians, suicide bomb attacks took place on 19 February, 16 and 29 March. While a greater degree of stability appeared to have been established in Tripoli, no progress was made in the dismantling of the military bases of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command and Fatah al-Intifada—as decided during the 2006 National Dialogue. The existence of such bases compromised Lebanese sovereignty and impeded the ability of the State to monitor and control effectively parts of the Lebanese-Syrian border. On 28 March, leaders of Palestinian factions in the Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon signed a memorandum of understanding to insulate the camps from regional and local tensions. Despite that positive step, however, several camps witnessed increased intra-Palestinian violence.

UNIFIL cleared more than 1,307 square metres of hazardous areas to provide access to Blue Line points, found and destroyed 116 anti-personnel landmines and reached seven Blue Line points. No progress was made in delineating or demarcating the Lebanese-Syrian border, including in areas where it was uncertain or disputed, as called for in Security Council resolutions 1680(2006) and 1701(2006).

As at 8 June, the total military strength of UNIFIL was 10,112, including 407 women, from 37 troop-contributing countries, supported by 52 UNTSO military observers, including two women. The civilian component consisted of 962 international and national staff, including 236 women. The Force's Maritime Task Force consisted of two frigates, including one carrying a helicopter, a corvette with a helicopter and five fast patrol boats.

The Secretary-General urged the parties to work towards fulfilling their respective obligations under resolution 1701(2006), and to make full use of the de-confliction tools UNIFIL put at their disposal. He remained concerned about incidents impeding UNIFIL movement and aggressive behaviour towards its personnel, and called for the implementation of earlier decisions of the National Dialogue, including the disarmament of non-Lebanese groups and the dismantling of the military bases of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command and Fatah al-Intifada.

Report of Secretary-General (November). In November, the Secretary-General submitted his third report of the year [S/2014/784] on the implementation of Council resolution 1701(2006), covering the period from 27 June to 5 November. In the first part of the reporting period, he noted that the prevailing stability along the Blue Line and in the area of operations of UNIFIL was threatened by heightened tension resulting from the outbreak of the Gaza conflict in July and August. During that period, rockets were fired on nine occasions from Lebanon towards Israel. On five occasions, Israel responded with artillery fire. In addition, there were two serious incidents in the Shab'a Farms area (Sector East), on 5 and 7 October. In each instance, quick intervention by UNIFIL and positive engagement by both Lebanon and Israel through UNIFIL liaison and coordination channels helped to contain the situation. In spite of those incidents, both parties reaffirmed their commitment to the implementation of resolution 1701(2006) and worked with UNIFIL to mitigate tensions and preserve the general calm along the Blue Line.

The security situation in Lebanon was significantly challenged by attacks carried out by violent extremist groups, including ISIL and the Nusra Front, in areas bordering Syria. On 2 August, militant groups entered Aarsal, precipitating five days of deadly fighting with LAF that ended with the withdrawal of the militants to the outskirts of the town. On 14 August, Lebanon approved a grant of $1 billion from Saudi Arabia to support the Lebanese security forces and combat terrorism. In addition, Member States stepped up assistance to LAF following the attack on Aarsal.

As at early November, there were 1.1 million registered Syrian refugees in Lebanon—an increase of 30,000 since June.

Since the end of President Sleiman's term in office on 25 May, fourteen sessions of Parliament scheduled to elect a new President had failed to take place owing to a lack of quorum. In the absence of a President, the Council of Ministers led by Prime Minister Salam had assumed the powers of the Presidency. The Parliament's term was due to expire on 20 November and the political parties had been engaged in discussions about a further extension of the Parliament's mandate if the parliamentary elections due to be held by 16 November did not take place. A ministerial meeting of the International Support Group for Lebanon took place in New York on 26 September in New York. Participants were concerned that on the first anniversary of the Group's formation the challenges facing Lebanon had become more severe over the past year. The Group reconvened on 28 October in Berlin.

In the area of operations of UNIFIL, there were nine incidents of rockets launched from Lebanon towards Israel between July and August, to some of which IDF responded by firing artillery shells into Lebanon. UNIFIL maintained close contact with both sides, investigated all the incidents, and shared its findings and recommendations with both parties. Violations of Lebanese airspace by IDF continued, with almost daily overflights by unmanned aerial vehicles. Since June, UNIFIL had also observed a significant increase in the number of Blue Line violations mainly by IDF, which the Secretary-General considered unacceptable. During the reporting period, there were also serious incidents involving IDF and LAF personnel aiming their weapons at peacekeepers. UNIFIL strongly protested each incident to the concerned party. In general, however, UNIFIL generally enjoyed full freedom of movement throughout its area of operations.

UNIFIL and LAF continued to carry out their coordinated activities. During the reporting period, two regular tripartite meetings were held, on 23 July and 17 September, in addition to a videoconference on 25 August. The tripartite discussions largely focused on the rocket launchings and on each side's concerns about the situation in Syria. At the centre of those discussions was the role of UNIFIL in maintaining stability in its area of operations and along the Blue Line.

UNIFIL made progress with the parties in establishing markers along the Blue Line. As at 14 October, the Force had cleared access lanes to 311 points from mines and unexploded ordnance, measured 238 points, constructed 225 points and verified 203 points.

As at 21 October, the total military strength of UNIFIL was 10,519 from 38 troop-contributing countries, including 410 women, supported by 55 UNTSO military observers, including one woman. The civilian component consisted of 1,159 personnel, including 238 women. With a view to streamlining the Maritime Task Force requirements while maintaining its operational capability, the Department for Peacekeeping Operations recommended reconfiguring the Maritime Task Force in phases by gradually substituting frigates with corvettes.

The Secretary-General urged the parties to take more tangible steps towards full compliance with resolution 1701(2006), as the deployment of UNIFIL in southern Lebanon could not substitute for a permanent ceasefire and a long-term solution. At the same time, the parties must maintain their commitment to the cessation of hostilities; fully respect the Blue Line in its entirety; continue working with UNIFIL on confidence-building measures, including visibly marking the Blue Line; and further strengthen the liaison and coordination arrangements. There were also other actions that each party had to undertake separately. For Israel, they included the withdrawal of IDF from northern Ghajar and the adjacent area north of the Blue Line, which was long overdue, and the full cessation of violations of Lebanese airspace, which exacerbated tensions in the area of operations of UNIFIL. For Lebanon, it was important to make further progress towards exercising effective authority over the entire Lebanese territory, preventing the use of its territory for hostile activities, and ensuring the implementation of Government decisions and of resolution 1701(2006) with respect to an area free of armed personnel, assets and weapons other than those of the Government and of UNIFIL.

Four years into the Syrian conflict, the impact of that crisis on Lebanon had never been as severe. The Secretary-General called upon the Government of Syria and all parties fighting in that country to cease violations of the border and to respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Lebanon. He also condemned the participation of Lebanese parties and citizens in the conflict in Syria in breach of the policy of disassociation adopted by the Government of Lebanon and of the principles of the 2012 Baabda Declaration.

The Secretary-General appealed to the international community to fully acknowledge the unique burden Lebanon bore in hosting the largest number of refugees from Syria, and to recognize the need for sustained international efforts to assist them and share the burden. Further, he welcomed Palestinian efforts to work with the Lebanese authorities to maintain order in the Palestinian refugee camps, and reiterated how crucial it was to improve the living conditions of Palestine refugees in Lebanon.

Recognizing that for both Lebanon and Israel the exploration and development of their offshore oil and gas reserves was a national priority, he encouraged both Governments to address the delimitation of their respective maritime exclusive zones.

UNIFIL

Appointment. On 12 June [S/2014/411], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council of his intention to appoint Major General Luciano Portolano (Italy) as Head of Mission and Force Commander of UNIFIL to succeed Major General Paolo Serra (Italy), who would complete his assignment on 24 July. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention on 16 June [S/2014/412].

Extension of UNIFIL mandate. On 31 July [S/2014/554], the Secretary-General requested the Council to consider the renewal of the mandate of UNIFIL, which was due to expire on 31 August, for one year. On 26 August, by resolution 2172(2014) (see below), the Council extended the mandate for one year, until 31 August 2015, with no major changes in deployment.

As at 23 July, unpaid assessed contributions to the Special Account for UNIFIL amounted to $19.2 million and amounts owed to UNIFIL troop-contributors totalled $24.1 million. Reimbursements of troop and contingent-owned equipment costs had been made for the periods up to 30 April and 31 March, respectively, in accordance with the quarterly payment schedule.

Financing

The General Assembly had before it the Secretary-General's performance report on the budget of UNIFIL for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/618]. Expenditures amounted to $545.3 million, representing an almost full utilization of resources, leaving an unencumbered balance of $7,500.

In February [A/68/757], the Secretary-General submitted the budget of UNIFIL for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, amounting to $488,946,300. The budget provided for the deployment of 15,000 military personnel, 313 international staff and 653 national staff.

In May [A/68/782/Add.12], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) recommended that the unencumbered balance of $7,500, as well as other income and adjustments in the amount of $6,996,400, be credited to Member States. It also recommended that the Assembly appropriate $487,208,400 for the maintenance of UNIFIL for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, and assess an amount of $81,201,400 for the period from 1 July to 31 August 2014.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee [A/68/928], adopted resolution 68/292 by recorded vote (138-3-1) [agenda item 159 (b)].

Financing of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 425(1978) of 19 March 1978 regarding the establishment of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force, the latest of which was resolution 2115(2013) of 29 August 2013, by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force until 31 August 2014,

Recalling also its resolution S-8/2 of 21 April 1978 on the financing of the Force and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 67/279 of 28 June 2013,

Special Tribunal for Lebanon

The Special Tribunal for Lebanon was established in 2007 [YUN 2007, p. 505] to investigate and prosecute the perpetrators of the terrorist bombing on 14 February 2005 [YUN 2005, p. 551] that resulted in the death of former Lebanese Prime Minister Hariri and 21 others in Beirut. It succeeded the United Nations International Independent Investigation Commission, which was established by Security Council resolution 1595(2005) [ibid., p. 553]. The Tribunal consisted of the Chambers, the Office of the Prosecutor, the Defence Office and the Registry. On 16 January, the Special Tribunal opened the in absentia trial of the persons accused in connection with the killing of Prime Minister Hariri.

Extension of mandate. On 23 December [S/2014/949], the Secretary-General informed the Council of his intention to extend the mandate of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon for a period of three years beginning 1 March 2015, as the work of the Tribunal had not been completed. On 26 December [S/2014/950], the Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention.

Syrian Arab Republic

In 2014, the conflict in Syria entered its fourth year. After two rounds of intra-Syrian negotiations in January and February, the talks of the Geneva Conference on Syria on implementation of the 2012 Geneva communiqué [YUN 2012, p. 448] stalled. Between March 2011 and March 2014, more than 100,000 people had been killed; more than 600,000 people injured; and more than 9.3 million people were in need of humanitarian assistance, 6.5 million of whom were internally displaced. Nearly 2.6 million people had sought refuge in neighbouring countries and North Africa. Approximately half of the 540,000 Palestine refugees registered in Syria had been displaced within the country, with at least another 70,000 displaced abroad. Some 5.5 million Syrian children needed assistance.

During the year, the continuing non-compliance with Security Council resolution 2139(2014) (see p. 578) prompted the Council to adopt resolution 2165(2014) (see p. 583), which enabled the United Nations and partners to reach more locations where assistance was urgently needed.

On 28 March, the Human Rights Council adopted a resolution extending the mandate of the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria for one year. On 8 April, the High Commissioner for Human Rights called on the Security Council to refer the situation in Syria to the International Criminal Court.

On 29 April, a new fact-finding mission was established by the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) to investigate allegations of the use of toxic chemicals, in particular chlorine, for hostile purposes at various locations during the year.

The Joint Mission of the OPCW and the United Nations for the Elimination of the Chemical Weapons Programme ended on 30 September.

Failure to resolve the conflict in Syria produced an enabling environment for Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), and Al-Qaida-affiliated groups, spreading outwards from Iraq and posing a threat to regional and international peace and security. On 15 August, the Security Council adopted resolution 2170(2014) (see p. 131), expressing concern that parts of Syria were under the control of such groups and demanding their immediate disarmament and disbandment. On 23 September, the international coalition undertook air strikes against ISIL and other targets, which continued into November on an almost daily basis.

In January, the Secretary-General issued his first report on children and armed conflict in Syria, which assigned blame on both Syrian Government forces and their associated militias; Syrian Kurdish armed groups; Free Syrian Army (FSA)-affiliated groups; the Nusra Front; Ahrar al-Sham; ISIL; and other independent or unidentified armed groups for committing atrocities against children.

On 14 February [S/2014/108], the Sudan, in its capacity as Chair of the Group of Arab States for the month of February, expressed the Group's support to a Security Council draft resolution concerning the humanitarian assistance to and protection of civilians in Syria.

On 2 April [S/2014/244], France transmitted a report on the torture and summary execution of persons incarcerated by the Syrian regime. The report was made public in January and was prepared by a commission of inquiry consisting of legal, medical and medical imaging experts, chaired by the former Chief Prosecutor of the Special Court for Sierra Leone.

On 9 April [A/68/833-S/2014/255], the Russian Federation transmitted to the Secretary-General a declaration by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the member States of the Collective Security Treaty Organization on the escalation of tensions in north-western Syria, which was adopted in Moscow on 3 April.

On 19 May [A/68/884-S/2014/361], Switzerland transmitted to the Secretary-General a letter sent to all United Nations Member States and Observers calling upon them to co-sponsor the French draft Security Council resolution referring the situation in Syria since March 2011 to the International Criminal Court.

Security Council consideration. On 20 January [S/PV.7096 & Resumption 1], the Secretary-General, addressing the Council's open debate, expressed his gratitude to the many countries that had pledged generous funding at the Second International Humanitarian Pledging Conference on Syria, held in Kuwait City on 15 January.

On 22 February [S/PV.7116], the Council held a meeting to vote on a draft resolution, which was adopted unanimously as resolution 2139(2014).

On 23 June [S/PV.7204], Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Feltman summarized the six points made by the Secretary-General on 20 June concerning Syria to help address the situation in the country in an integrated way.

On 14 July [S/PV.7216], the Council held a meeting to vote on a draft resolution, which was adopted unanimously as resolution 2165(2014).

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 22 February [meeting 7116], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2139(2014). The draft [S/2014/115] was submitted by Australia, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions 2042(2012) of 14 April 2012, 2043(2012) of 21 April 2012 and 2118(2013) of 27 September 2013, and the statements by its President of 3 August 2011, 21 March and 5 April 2012 and 2 October 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Syrian Arab Republic, and to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Being appalled at the unacceptable and escalating level of violence and the death of well over 100,000 people in the Syrian Arab Republic, including over 10,000 children, as reported by the Secretary-General and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict,

Expressing grave alarm at the significant and rapid deterioration of the humanitarian situation in the Syrian Arab Republic, in particular the dire situation of hundreds of thousands of civilians trapped in besieged areas, most of whom are besieged by the Syrian armed forces and some by opposition groups, as well as the dire situation of over three million people in hard-to-reach areas, and deploring the difficulties in providing, and the failure to provide, access for the humanitarian assistance to all civilians in need inside the Syrian Arab Republic,

Emphasizing the need to respect the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian emergency assistance, and stressing the importance of such assistance being delivered on the basis of need, devoid of any political prejudices and aims, commending the efforts of the United Nations and all humanitarian and medical personnel in the Syrian Arab Republic and in neighbouring countries, and condemning all acts or threats of violence against United Nations staff and humanitarian actors, which have resulted in the death, injury and detention of many humanitarian personnel,

Expressing grave concern at the increasing number of refugees and internally displaced persons caused by the conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic, which has a destabilizing impact on the entire region, and underscoring its appreciation for the significant and admirable efforts that have been made by the countries of the region, notably Lebanon, Jordan, Turkey, Iraq and Egypt, to accommodate the more than 2.4 million refugees who have fled the Syrian Arab Republic as a result of the ongoing violence, while acknowledging the enormous political, socioeconomic and financial impact of the presence of large-scale populations in these countries, and underscoring the need for all parties to respect and maintain the security and civilian character of camps for refugees and internally displaced persons,

Welcoming the pledges totalling 2.5 billion United States dollars made at the Second International Humanitarian Pledging Conference for Syria, hosted by Kuwait on 15 January 2014, and expressing its appreciation to Member States and regional and subregional organizations that have pledged to provide humanitarian assistance to people in need in all parts of the Syrian Arab Republic, including internally displaced persons, as well as to refugees in neighbouring host countries, and calling upon all Member States to ensure the timely disbursement of pledges and continued support in line with growing humanitarian needs,

Calling upon all parties to immediately end all violence which has led to human suffering in the Syrian Arab Republic, save the Syrian Arab Republic's rich societal mosaic and cultural heritage and take appropriate steps to ensure the protection of its World Heritage Sites,

Strongly condemning the increased terrorist attacks resulting in numerous casualties and destruction carried out by organizations and individuals associated with Al-Qaida, its affiliates and other terrorist groups, and reiterating its call upon all parties to commit to putting an end to terrorist acts perpetrated by such organizations and individuals, while reaffirming that terrorism in all its forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable, regardless of their motivation, wherever, whenever and by whomsoever committed,

Expressing its regret that the statement by its President of 2 October 2013 has not delivered as expected and has not yet translated into meaningful progress on the ground, and that humanitarian aid delivery continues to be impeded throughout the Syrian Arab Republic, while condemning all cases of denial of humanitarian access and recalling that arbitrary denial of humanitarian access and depriving civilians of objects indispensable to their survival, including wilfully impeding relief supply and access, can constitute a violation of international humanitarian law,

Emphasizing that the humanitarian situation will continue to deteriorate in the absence of a political solution to the crisis, reiterating its endorsement of the final communiqué of the Action Group for Syria (Geneva communiqué) of 30 June 2012, and demanding that all parties work towards the immediate and comprehensive implementation of the Geneva communiqué aimed at bringing an immediate end to all violence, violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international law, and facilitating the Syrian-led political process launched in Montreux, Switzerland, on 22 January 2014, leading to a transition that meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people and enables them independently and democratically to determine their own future,

1. Strongly condemns the widespread violations of human rights and international humanitarian law by the Syrian authorities, as well as the human rights abuses and violations of international humanitarian law by armed groups, including all forms of sexual and gender-based violence, as well as all grave violations and abuses committed against children in contravention of applicable international law, such as recruitment and use, killing and maiming, rape, attacks on schools and hospitals, as well as arbitrary arrest, detention, torture, ill treatment and use as human shields, as described in the report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic;

2. Demands that all parties immediately put an end to all forms of violence, irrespective of where it comes from, cease and desist from all violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights and reaffirm their obligations under international humanitarian law and international human rights law, and stresses that some of these violations may amount to war crimes and crimes against humanity;

3. Also demands that all parties immediately cease all attacks against civilians, as well as the indiscriminate employment of weapons in populated areas, including shelling and aerial bombardment, such as the use of barrel bombs, and methods of warfare which are of a nature to cause superfluous injury or unnecessary suffering, and recalls in this regard the obligation to respect and ensure respect for international humanitarian law in all circumstances, and further recalls, in particular, the obligation to distinguish between civilian populations and combatants and the prohibition against indiscriminate attacks and attacks against civilians and civilian objects as such;

4. Further demands that all parties, in particular the Syrian authorities, fully implement the provisions of the statement by the President of the Security Council of 2 October 2013, including through facilitating the expansion of humanitarian relief operations, in accordance with applicable provisions of international humanitarian law and the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian emergency assistance;

5. Calls upon all parties to immediately lift the sieges of populated areas, including in the old city of Homs (Homs), Nubul and Zahra (Aleppo), Madamiyet Elsham (Rural Damascus), Yarmouk (Damascus), eastern Ghouta (Rural Damascus), Darayya (Rural Damascus) and other locations, and demands that all parties allow the delivery of humanitarian assistance, including medical assistance, cease depriving civilians of food and medicine indispensable to their survival, and enable the rapid, safe and unhindered evacuation of all civilians who wish to leave, and underscores the need for the parties to agree on humanitarian pauses, days of tranquillity, localized ceasefires and truces to allow humanitarian agencies safe and unhindered access to all affected areas in the Syrian Arab Republic, recalling that starvation of civilians as a method of combat is prohibited by international humanitarian law;

6. Demands that all parties, in particular the Syrian authorities, promptly allow rapid, safe and unhindered humanitarian access for United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners, including across conflict lines and across borders, in order to ensure that humanitarian assistance reaches people in need through the most direct routes;

7. Urges all parties, in particular the Syrian authorities, to take all appropriate steps to facilitate the efforts of the United Nations, its specialized agencies and all humanitarian actors engaged in humanitarian relief activities to provide immediate humanitarian assistance to the affected people in the Syrian Arab Republic, including by promptly facilitating safe and unhindered humanitarian access to populations in need of assistance in all areas under their control, and encourages further cooperation between the United Nations, its specialized agencies and all parties concerned, including Syrian civil society organizations, to facilitate access and the delivery of assistance in the entirety of the Syrian territory;

8. Demands that all parties respect the principle of medical neutrality and facilitate free passage to all areas for medical personnel, equipment, transport and supplies, including surgical items, and recalls that under international humanitarian law the wounded and sick must receive, to the fullest extent practicable, and with the least possible delay, medical care and attention required by their condition and that medical and humanitarian personnel, facilities and transport must be respected and protected, and expresses grave concern in this regard at the removal of medical supplies from humanitarian shipments;

9. Also demands that all parties take all appropriate steps to protect civilians, including members of ethnic, religious and confessional communities, and stresses that in this regard the primary responsibility to protect the Syrian population lies with the Syrian authorities;

10. Further demands that all parties demilitarize medical facilities, schools and other civilian facilities and avoid establishing military positions in populated areas and desist from attacks directed against civilian objects;

11. Strongly condemns the arbitrary detention and torture of civilians in the Syrian Arab Republic, notably in prisons and detention facilities, as well as kidnappings, abductions and forced disappearances, and demands the immediate end of these practices and the release of all arbitrarily detained persons, starting with women and children, as well as sick, wounded and elderly people, and including United Nations personnel and journalists;

12. Urges all parties to take all appropriate steps to ensure the safety and security of United Nations personnel, those of its specialized agencies, and all other personnel engaged in humanitarian relief activities, without prejudice to their freedom of movement and access, stresses that the primary responsibility in this regard lies with the Syrian authorities, and further stresses the need not to impede these efforts;

13. Stresses the need to end impunity for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights, and reaffirms that those who have committed or are otherwise responsible for such violations and abuses in the Syrian Arab Republic must be brought to justice;

14. Strongly condemns the increased terrorist attacks resulting in numerous casualties and destruction carried out by organizations and individuals associated with Al-Qaida, its affiliates and other terrorist groups, urges the opposition groups to maintain their rejection of these organizations and individuals which are responsible for serious violations of international humanitarian law in opposition-held areas, calls upon the Syrian authorities and opposition groups to commit to combating and defeating organizations and individuals associated with Al-Qaida, its affiliates and other terrorist groups, demands that all foreign fighters immediately withdraw from the Syrian Arab Republic, and reaffirms that terrorism in all its forms and manifestations constitutes one of the most serious threats to international peace and security and that any acts of terrorism are criminal and unjustifiable, regardless of their motivation, wherever, whenever and by whomsoever committed;

15. Emphasizes that the humanitarian situation will continue to deteriorate in the absence of a political solution, welcomes in this regard the Geneva Conference on Syria, launched in Montreux, Switzerland, on 22 January 2014, and demands that all parties work towards the comprehensive implementation of the Geneva communiqué of 30 June 2012 leading to a genuine political transition that meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people and enables them independently and democratically to determine their own future, and further stresses that rapid progress on a political solution should include full participation by all groups and segments of Syrian society, including women, and represents the only sustainable opportunity to resolve the situation in the Syrian Arab Republic peacefully and that the implementation of the present resolution is key to meeting the humanitarian needs of the Syrian people;

16. Urges all Member States to contribute or increase their support to the United Nations humanitarian appeals to meet the spiralling needs of people affected by the crisis and to provide this support in coordination with the relevant United Nations agencies, and to ensure that all pledges are honoured in full, and further urges all Member States, based on burden-sharing principles, to support the neighbouring host countries to enable them to respond to the growing humanitarian needs, including by providing direct support;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council on the implementation of the present resolution by all parties in the Syrian Arab Republic, in particular paragraphs 2 to 12, in 30 days from its adoption and every 30 days thereafter, and upon receipt of the report of the Secretary-General expresses its intent to take further steps in the case of non-compliance with the present resolution;

18. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Implementation of resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014)

Report of Secretary-General (March). In March [S/2014/208], pursuant to paragraph 17 of Security Council resolution 2139(2014) (see above), in which the Council requested the Secretary-General to report to it every 30 days on the implementation of the resolution by all parties in Syria, the Secretary-General provided information on the humanitarian situation in the country covering the period from 22 February to 21 March. The information was based on the data provided by the Syrian Government and the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria.

Indiscriminate and disproportionate attacks, including aerial bombings, shelling, mortars and car bombs in populated areas, caused mass civilian death and injuries, and forced displacement. Clashes between government and opposition forces continued in most parts of the country. Many car bombings and suicide attacks, including against civilian targets were claimed by ISIL and the Nusra Front. Clashes also took place between armed opposition groups and ISIL, mainly in the north. Government-controlled cities and towns, including Damascus, were subject to mortar attacks by armed opposition groups. Reported daily death tolls were on average more than 200 people, including civilians. Fighting was particularly intense in Aleppo, Dar'a and Rural Damascus governorates. At least 500,000 people had been displaced from Aleppo since late January, and 159,000 from Dar'a as at the end of February. In Rural Damascus governorate, around 50,000 people had fled the city of Yabroud—which was recaptured by Government forces on 16 March—including nearly 14,000 who had fled to Aarsal in Lebanon.

Despite the worsening security situation, in February, the World Food Programme (WFP) and partners were able to provide food to 3.7 million people in 13 of the country's 14 governorates. Between 22 February and 8 March, UNHCR and partners delivered essential relief items for more than 1 million people in all governorates, except Deir-ez-Zor. On 25 February, the International Organization for Migration reached Deir-ez-Zor governorate for the first time since March 2013 with basic life-saving commodities for 13,000 internally displaced persons. Since 23 February, UNRWA delivered food for 140,000 Palestine refugees, and primary education to 41,500 children throughout the country. UNICEF provided water treatment supplies benefiting approximately 1.8 million people, and the World Health Organization (WHO) reached nearly 441,000 beneficiaries with medicines (excluding vaccines) in six governorates.

During the reporting period, the fourth round of the polio vaccination campaign was carried out, reaching 2.8 million children under 5 years of age.

The independent international commission of inquiry on Syria presented the findings from its report, covering from 15 July 2013 to 20 January 2014, to the Human Rights Council. The report stated that Government forces and pro-government militia had committed crimes against humanity and war crimes, including massacres. Torture and ill-treatment were routinely committed at official detention facilities by intelligence agencies, at checkpoints around besieged areas, in house raids and as part of the sieges of communities. Armed opposition groups had also committed war crimes and other violations of international humanitarian law, including massacres, and had inflicted severe physical or mental pain on civilians in areas under their control, during apprehension and/or detention. Hospitals, ambulances and medical staff continued to come under attack, and medical facilities were used for military purposes.

As the conflict intensified, more people were slipping out of the reach of humanitarian organizations: as at the end of March, around 3.5 million people were estimated to be in need of assistance in hard-to-reach areas, an increase of 1 million since the beginning of 2014. Following the adoption of Council resolution 2139(2014), the Government of Syria established a working group of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Social Affairs, the United Nations country team in Syria and the Syrian Arab Red Crescent to discuss ways to enhance humanitarian access and implement the resolution. At the request of the United Nations, the working group also included representatives of the government security forces. In a 19 March letter to the United Nations Emergency Relief Coordinator, the President of the National Coalition of Syrian Revolutionary and Opposition Forces (Syrian Coalition) pledged the commitment of the Coalition and the Free Syrian Army to complying with that resolution. The formation of the working group notwithstanding, there was no progress in streamlining and speeding up procedures to facilitate United Nations convoys during the reporting period. The governmental process for approval remained extremely complex and time-consuming.

Around 220,000 people remained besieged in various locations: approximately 175,000 people by Government forces and 45,000 by opposition groups. No new ceasefires were reached in besieged areas during the reporting period. In Homs, following the ceasefire that allowed the evacuation of 1,366 people from the old city in early February, shelling and bombing returned to pre-ceasefire levels. Since 15 March, an additional 200 people had been evacuated from the old city following an agreement between the parties and the Governor of Homs.

The Secretary-General remained concerned about the participation of foreign elements and groups in the fighting, and called upon all States, organizations and groups to immediately cease supporting the violence and to use their influence to promote a political solution instead. He urged the Government of Syria to speed up convoy procedures, ensure the safe passage of humanitarian convoys at all Government-controlled checkpoints; facilitate the passage of medicines, including surgical supplies, and continue to speed up the approval of visas. Further, he urged opposition forces to facilitate safe and unhindered humanitarian access and grant safe passage to convoys, particularly at checkpoints under their control; and ensure the safety and security of humanitarian staff.

Communications. In letters [S/2014/182, S/2014/224, S/2014/287] transmitted between 13 March and 17 April by the Netherlands, Saudi Arabia and the United Kingdom to the President of the Security Council, the Syrian Coalition expressed its assessments of the first two rounds of the Geneva Conference on Syria; the Coalition's commitment to Council resolution 2139(2014); and the Coalition's concern about the Syrian Government's violation of that resolution, respectively.

In identical letters dated 24 March to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President [A/68/811-S/2014/212], Syria provided an overview of the humanitarian cooperation between its Government and the United Nations in accordance with resolution 2139(2014), including the establishment of a joint Government-United Nations committee, which met four times in March.

On 11 April [A/68/845-S/2014/269], Qatar reiterated that it had sought to find a political solution to the crisis through the League of Arab States, as the competent regional organization.

Report of Secretary-General (April). In his April report [S/2014/295], on the implementation of Council resolution 2139(2014), covering the period from 22 March to 21 April, the Secretary-General observed that two months since the adoption of that resolution, none of the parties to the conflict had adhered to the demands of the Council. Fighting between Government and opposition forces, as well as between various opposition groups, continued in many parts of Syria. In Aleppo, fighting had escalated with significant shelling and the continued use of other heavy weaponry by Government forces. The use of missiles and rocket launchers by opposition groups had also resulted in a high number of casualties and injuries; an average of 20 shells and missiles were reported to have fallen daily on neighbourhoods in Aleppo. Foreign fighters supported all sides of the Syrian conflict, including extremist groups, armed opposition groups and the Government. The United Nations, however, was unable to provide a verified assessment of their presence and activities. Thousands of people were forcibly displaced, the largest numbers from opposition-held areas into areas under Government control, which were considered safer.

The treatment of civilians under the control of parties to the conflict continued to raise serious concerns, as there were reports of killings, enforced disappearances, torture, arbitrary arrest and detention, kidnappings, and increasing sexual violence. In addition, there had been reports of child recruitment and child labour. On 28 March, the Human Rights Council adopted a resolution extending the mandate of the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria for one year. On 8 April, the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights called on the Security Council to refer the situation in Syria to the International Criminal Court (ICC). On 29 March, ISIL reportedly executed and mutilated the bodies of members of the Free Syrian Army held hostage. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) received the names of 24 victims of the incident. Concerns also remained about the situation of civilians in other areas under opposition control, particularly around Kassab, as well as about the situation of detainees in the Government-run Aleppo Central Prison, which had been surrounded by several armed groups since mid-2013.

Approximately 9.3 million people, more than 6.5 million of them internally displaced, needed urgent humanitarian assistance. It was estimated that 3.5 million people resided in areas that were difficult or impossible for humanitarian actors to reach. That included at least 242,000 people who lived in areas besieged by either government or opposition forces. WFP reported an increase in the number of people supported with food in hard-to-reach areas with an estimated 297,750 people reached, up from 115,500 during the previous period. The assistance provided, however, only reached 34 out of the 262 locations identified as being hard to reach or besieged, a mere 13 per cent of locations.

Distribution of the aid transported between 20 and 25 March from Turkey to Syria through one border crossing was ongoing in opposition-, Government- and Kurdish-controlled areas. Requests made by the United Nations to the Syrian authorities to urgently authorize the use of additional border crossings remained pending. The delivery of medical supplies was negotiated on a case-by-case basis, and was restricted by the Government for delivery in opposition-held areas. Negotiations, however, were ongoing to allow at least medicines and medical supplies into opposition areas. Prior to distribution, supplies were checked multiple times by security forces. The March round of the polio vaccination campaign had reached almost 3 million children while there was no progress on the demilitarization of hospitals.

A total of 18 international non-governmental organizations (NGOs) were authorized to work in Syria, but they were prevented from partnering with national NGOs.

The Secretary-General regretted that, while the crisis in Syria could be resolved only through a political solution, after two rounds of intra-Syrian negotiations in January and February, the talks of the Geneva Conference on Syria on implementation of the 2012 Geneva communiqué had stalled. He urged the parties, and in particular the Government of Syria, to honour their obligations under international humanitarian law, as Council resolution 2139(2014) left no room for interpretation or further negotiation of access. He also called upon all parties to the conflict to work with the United Nations to establish lasting arrangements at key border and combat line crossings to facilitate access, and called on Syria to streamline convoy procedures.

Communications. On 28 April [A/68/860-S/2014/304], in identical letters addressed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria presented its position with respect to the Secretary-General's April report (see above), commenting, among other things, that the report failed to make the connection between the humanitarian situation in Syria and the need to combat terrorism.

In letters [S/2014/308, S/2014/362] of 30 April and 21 May transmitted by Saudi Arabia and the Netherlands to the Council President, the Syrian Coalition expressed its concern about the Syrian Government's failure to abide by Council resolution 2139(2014) and expressed the Coalition's support to refer the situation in Syria to the ICC.

Report of Secretary-General (May). In his May report [S/2014/365], on the implementation of Council resolution 2139(2014), covering the period from 22 April to 19 May, the Secretary-General observed that violence continued unabated across Syria. In Aleppo, Government forces continued to carry out indiscriminate air strikes, while opposition forces had detonated large tunnel bombs underneath Government military positions in the centre of the city, destroying dozens of building. Further, the city experienced significant cuts in its water supply from 5 to 13 May. Non-Syrian fighters continued to support both opposition groups and Government forces, and messages designed to recruit them circulated on various social networks. On 8 May, France, Germany, Jordan, Morocco, Spain, Sweden, the Netherlands, Tunisia, Turkey, the United Kingdom and the United States met in Brussels to discuss measures to improve cooperation among their countries to prevent the travel of their nationals to Syria to join the fighting.

Disrespect for human life and dignity remained a defining feature of the Syrian conflict and was at the root of the continued killing, enforced disappearances, torture, arbitrary arrests and detentions, kidnappings, and the sexual and gender-based violence. Explosive weapons continued to be used indiscriminately in populated areas, where children were at the forefront of the casualties. Approximately 241,000 people were deliberately forced to live under the inhumane and illegal conditions of siege warfare, and for over 3.5 million others, access to humanitarian assistance was extremely inadequate.

The Secretary-General noted that the Government of Syria was failing in its responsibility to look after its own people through its refusal to give consent to humanitarian organizations to use all means at their disposal, including the use of border crossings operated by opposition groups, for the delivery of life-saving humanitarian assistance. The Government of Syria arbitrarily withholding consent for the opening of all relevant border crossings was a violation of international humanitarian law, and non-compliance with resolution 2139(2014).

Resolution 2139(2014) demanded that sieges be immediately lifted, that schools and hospitals be respected and protected from attack, that medical personnel and supplies be immediately allowed to reach all those in need. The parties to the conflict, however, were not heeding those demands, and resolution 2139(2014) had yet to make a difference to the lives of the millions of people in need in Syria. The Secretary-General called on the Council to consider what steps it would take to secure compliance with its demands. The Secretary-General, following consultations with the League of Arab States, had accepted with deep regret the request of Lakhdar Brahimi to relinquish his duties as Joint Special Representative of the United Nations and the League of Arab States, effective 31 May.

Communications. On 27 May [A/68/893-S/2014/378], in identical letters addressed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria presented its position with respect to the Secretary-General's May report (see above) deploring the attempts of some Member States and United Nations Secretariat officials to legitimize the violation of Syria's sovereignty under the pretext of delivering humanitarian assistance, and disapproved the use, in the report, of the term "armed opposition" to refer to what the Government of Syria considered terrorist organizations affiliated with Al-Qaida.

In letters [S/2014/379, S/2014/389, S/2014/432] transmitted between 28 May and 23 June by the United Kingdom, Qatar and France to the Council President, the Syrian Coalition drew the attention of the Council to the systematic violations by the Syrian regime of Council resolution 2139(2014); the presidential elections under way in Syria and the obstacles that they posed to the realization of peace and stability in the Middle East; and the threat posed by ISIL and that organization's links with the Bashar Al-Assad regime, respectively.

On 2 June [A/68/901-S/2014/386], Syria transmitted to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President a press release of the same day issued by the Syrian High Relief Commission, regarding the implementation of Council resolution 2139(2014) and the relevant humanitarian response plan.

On 13 June [S/2014/407], Syria informed the Secretary-General and the Council President that presidential elections were held on 3 June across the country and abroad with 3.8 per cent of the total ballots being invalid. Syria also said that the allegations that the elections could hinder a peaceful solution to the crisis in the country had been proved false.

Report of Secretary-General (June). In June [S/2014/427], the Secretary-General submitted his fourth report on the implementation of Council resolution 2139(2014), covering the period from 20 May to 17 June. Severe levels of violence were ongoing with intensified use of barrel bombs by Government forces against civilian populations, and the continuation of mortar attacks against residential neighbourhoods by the armed opposition forces. There was no progress made towards the implementation of the Geneva Communiqué. On 3 June, the Government of Syria held presidential elections, in which no opposition candidate ran. The elections were held outside the framework of the Geneva process.

OHCHR continued to receive reports of arbitrary arrest and detention, torture and ill treatment, allegedly perpetrated by members of the Syrian security apparatus, including military intelligence, political security, State security and air force intelligence. On 22 May, Syrian armed forces entered Aleppo Central Prison, breaking the siege imposed by several armed opposition groups since mid-2013. On 9 June, President Bashar Al-Assad issued a legislative decree granting a general amnesty for crimes committed before 9 June.

The humanitarian situation had further deteriorated during the reporting period. Estimates indicated that the number of people in need had reached 10.8 million. Clearance requirements imposed by the Government further undermined access to people in desperate need of assistance; by 9 June, only 12 per cent of the planned 4.25 million people in WFP food dispatch plan were reached in comparison to 26 per cent in April.

By early June, eight opposition groups had signed a declaration of commitment on compliance with international humanitarian law and facilitation of humanitarian assistance. Six of those groups signed during the reporting period.

Deteriorating security and direct attacks on aid workers continued. On 24 May, a warehouse run by the Syrian Arab Red Crescent in Douma was attacked while the United Nations team was present. One Red Crescent driver was injured and several civilians were killed. As at June, 29 United Nations staff were detained.

The sixth country-wide polio vaccination campaign reached 2.8 million children in all 14 governorates. As at 9 June, however, there were 36 confirmed cases of polio, and 160 cases of measles. As at 17 June, the total funding for the Syria Humanitarian Assistance Response Plan and the Syria Regional Refugee Response Plan stood at 29 per cent ($6.5 billion requested, $1.9 billion received) with the Syria Humanitarian Assistance Response Plan 26 per cent funded and the Syria Regional Refugee Response Plan 31 per cent funded.

The Secretary-General expressed his concern about the indiscriminate use of hundreds of barrel bombs on defenceless civilians in populated neighbourhoods, which was a war crime.

Communication. In a 25 June communication [S/2014/439] to the Security Council President, Germany transmitted a letter of the same day from the Syrian Coalition highlighting the Coalition's efforts to implement resolution 2139(2014), as well as what the Coalition considered the resolution's non-compliance by the Government of Syria.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 14 July [meeting 7216], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2165(2014). The draft [S/2014/490] was submitted by Australia, Chad, Chile, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions 2042(2012) of 14 April 2012, 2043(2012) of 21 April 2012, 2118(2013) of 27 September 2013 and 2139(2014) of 22 February 2014, and the statements by its President of 3 August 2011, 21 March and 5 April 2012 and 2 October 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Syrian Arab Republic and to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Being appalled at the unacceptable and escalating level of violence and the death of more than 150,000 people, including well over 10,000 children, as a result of the Syrian conflict, as reported by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict,

Expressing grave alarm at the significant and rapid deterioration of the humanitarian situation in the Syrian Arab Republic, at the fact that the number of people in need of assistance has grown to over 10 million, including 6.4 million internally displaced persons and over 4.5 million living in hard-to-reach areas, and that over 240,000 are trapped in besieged areas, as reported by the Secretary-General,

Deploing the fact that the demands made in its resolution 2139(2014) and the provisions of the statement by its President of 2 October 2013 have not been heeded by the Syrian parties to the conflict, as stated in the reports of the Secretary-General of 22 May and 20 June 2014, and recognizing that, while some steps have been undertaken by the Syrian parties, they have not had the necessary impact on the delivery of humanitarian assistance to all people in need throughout the Syrian Arab Republic,

Commending the indispensable and ongoing efforts of the United Nations, its specialized agencies and all humanitarian and medical personnel in the Syrian Arab Republic and in neighbouring countries to alleviate the impact of the conflict on the Syrian people,

Reiterating its appreciation for the significant and admirable efforts that have been made by the countries of the region, notably Lebanon, Jordan, Turkey, Iraq and Egypt, to accommodate the more than 2.8 million refugees who have fled the Syrian Arab Republic as a result of ongoing violence, including the approximately 300,000 refugees who have fled since the adoption of resolution 2139(2014), and urging again all Member States, based on burden-sharing principles, to support these neighbouring host countries to enable them to respond to the growing humanitarian needs, including by providing direct support,

Strongly condemning the continuing widespread violations of human rights and international humanitarian law by the Syrian authorities, as well as the human rights abuses and violations of international humanitarian law by armed groups,

Stressing the need to end impunity for violations of international humanitarian law and violations and abuses of human rights, and reaffirming that those who have committed or are otherwise responsible for such violations and abuses in the Syrian Arab Republic must be brought to justice,

Expressing grave alarm, in particular, at the continuing indiscriminate attacks in populated areas, including an intensified campaign of aerial bombings and the use of barrel bombs in Aleppo and other areas, artillery, shelling and air strikes, and the widespread use of torture, ill-treatment and sexual and gender-based violence as well as all grave violations and abuses committed against children, and reiterating that some of these violations may amount to war crimes and crimes against humanity,

Reiterating its demand that all parties demilitarize medical facilities, schools and other civilian facilities and avoid establishing military positions in populated areas and desist from attacks directed against civilian objects,

Reaffirming the primary responsibility of the Syrian authorities to protect the population in the Syrian Arab Republic and reiterating that parties to armed conflict bear the primary responsibility to take all feasible steps to ensure the protection of civilians, and recalling in this regard its demand that all parties to armed conflict comply fully with the obligations applicable to them under international law related to the protection of civilians in armed conflict, including journalists, media professionals and associated personnel,

Recalling the need for all parties to respect the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law and the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian emergency assistance,

Expressing grave alarm at the spread of extremism and extremist groups, the targeting of civilians based on their ethnicity, religion and/or confessional affiliations, expressing further grave alarm at the increased attacks resulting in numerous casualties and destruction, indiscriminate shelling by mortars, car bombs, suicide attacks, tunnel bombs, as well as hostage-taking, kidnappings and attacks against civilian infrastructure, including deliberate interruptions of water supply, condemning terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, and recalling in this regard its resolutions 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, 1624(2005) of 14 September 2005, 2129(2013) of 17 December 2013 and 2133(2014) of 27 January 2014,

Deeply disturbed by the continued, arbitrary and unjustified withholding of consent to relief operations and the persistence of conditions that impede the delivery of humanitarian supplies to destinations within the Syrian Arab Republic, in particular to besieged and hard-to-reach areas, and noting the view of the Secretary-General that arbitrarily withholding consent for the opening of all relevant border crossings is a violation of international humanitarian law and an act of non-compliance with resolution 2139(2014),

Emphasizing that the humanitarian situation will continue to deteriorate further in the absence of a political solution to the crisis, reiterating its endorsement of the final communiqué of the Action Group for Syria (Geneva communiqué) of 30 June 2012, and demanding that all parties work towards the immediate and comprehensive implementation of the Geneva communiqué aimed at bringing an immediate end to all violence, violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international law, and facilitating the Syrian-led process launched in Montreux, Switzerland, on 22 January 2014, leading to a transition that meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people and enables them independently and democratically to determine their own future,

Recalling its intent, expressed in its resolution 2139(2014), to take further steps in the case of non-compliance with the resolution,

Determining that the deteriorating humanitarian situation in the Syrian Arab Republic constitutes a threat to peace and security in the region,

Underscoring that Member States are obligated under Article 25 of the Charter to accept and carry out the decisions of the Council,

1. Reiterates that all parties to the conflict, in particular the Syrian authorities, must comply with their obligations under international humanitarian law and international human rights law and must fully and immediately implement the provisions of its resolution 2139(2014) and the statement by its President of 2 October 2013;

2. Decides that the United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners are authorized to use routes across conflict lines and the border crossings of Bab al-Salam, Bab al-Hawa, Al Yarubiyah and Al-Ramtha, in addition to those already in use, in order to ensure that humanitarian assistance, including medical and surgical supplies, reaches people in need throughout the Syrian Arab Republic through the most direct routes, with notification to the Syrian authorities, and to this end stresses the need for all border crossings to be used efficiently for United Nations humanitarian operations;

3. Also decides to establish a monitoring mechanism, under the authority of the Secretary-General, to monitor, with the consent of the relevant neighbouring countries of the Syrian Arab Republic, the loading of all humanitarian relief consignments of the United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners at the relevant United Nations facilities, and any subsequent opening of the consignments by the customs authorities of the relevant neighbouring countries, for passage into the Syrian Arab Republic across the border crossings of Bab al-Salam, Bab al-Hawa, Al Yarubiyah and Al-Ramtha, and with notification by the United Nations to the Syrian authorities, in order to confirm the humanitarian nature of these relief consignments;

4. Further decides that the United Nations monitoring mechanism shall be deployed expeditiously;

5. Decides that the decisions contained in paragraphs 2 and 3 of the present resolution shall expire 180 days from the adoption of the present resolution, and shall be subject to review by the Security Council;

6. Also decides that all Syrian parties to the conflict shall enable the immediate and unhindered delivery of humanitarian assistance directly to people throughout the Syrian Arab Republic by the United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners, on the basis of United Nations assessments of need and devoid of any political prejudices and aims, including by immediately removing all impediments to the provision of humanitarian assistance;

7. Notes, in this regard, the role that ceasefire agreements that are consistent with humanitarian principles and international humanitarian law could play to facilitate the delivery of humanitarian assistance in order to help to save civilian lives, and further underscores the need for the parties to agree on humanitarian pauses, days of tranquility, localized ceasefires and truces to allow humanitarian agencies safe and unhindered access to all affected areas in the Syrian Arab Republic in accordance with international humanitarian law, and recalls that starvation of civilians as a method of combat is prohibited by international humanitarian law;

8. Decides that all Syrian parties to the conflict shall take all appropriate steps to ensure the safety and security of United Nations and associated personnel, those of its specialized agencies and all other personnel engaged in humanitarian relief activities as required by international humanitarian law, without prejudice to their freedom of movement and access, stresses the need not to impede or hinder these efforts, and recalls that attacks on humanitarian workers may amount to war crimes;

9. Reiterates that the only sustainable solution to the current crisis in the Syrian Arab Republic is through an inclusive and Syrian-led political process with a view to full implementation of the Geneva communiqué of 30 June 2012, endorsed in its resolution 2118(2013) and contained in annex II thereto, pays tribute to the efforts of Mr. Lakhdar Brahimi, and welcomes the appointment of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria, Mr. Staffan de Mistura;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council on the implementation of the present resolution and on compliance with it by all Syrian parties to the conflict, within the framework of his reporting on resolution 2139(2014);

11. Affirms that it will take further measures in the event of non-compliance with the present resolution or resolution 2139(2014) by any Syrian party;

12. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Communication. In a letter dated 16 July [S/2014/505], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that, pursuant to Council resolution 2165(2014), he had requested the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs to work on the establishment of the monitoring mechanism, including its expeditious deployment.

Report of Secretary-General (July). In July [S/2014/525], the Secretary-General submitted his fifth report on the implementation of Council resolution 2139(2014), covering the period from 18 June to 21 July, during which no major changes took place as compared with the previous reporting period.

Heavy fighting continued in and around Aleppo, with air and ground bombardment by Government forces on opposition-held districts between 6 June to 14 July. In Dar'a governorate, barrel bombs were used on opposition-held areas, while in Idlib governorate, Government air strikes resulted in the deaths of dozens of civilians. Government-controlled cities and towns continued to be subject to indiscriminate mortar attacks, shelling and vehicle-borne improvised explosive devices by armed opposition groups and extremists, notably the cities of Homs, Damascus, Rural Damascus and Hamah. All parties to the conflict were increasingly targeting vital services resulting in interruptions to the supply of safe drinking water and electricity. Following negotiations since 2 June to access the water pumping station to conduct repairs and provide fuel, on 19 July repairs to the damaged water network began.

On 29 June, ISIL declared an Islamic caliphate, stretching from Aleppo governorate to Diyala governorate in eastern Iraq, covering an area with an estimated population of up to 7 million people. Fighting intensified in Syria between ISIL and the Government and armed opposition, resulting in the displacement of 250,000 people. Developments in the Ninewa governorate of Iraq had resulted in displacement and insecurity in areas along the Syrian-Iraqi borders. UNHCR had started the registration of an estimated 3,000 newly arrived Iraqi refugees in Syria, while an estimated 1,000 Syrians previously seeking refuge in Iraq had crossed back into the eastern part of Syria. Estimates indicated that hundreds of Syrians were returning to their country daily.

On 20 June, the Secretary-General set out six key areas for urgent action. First was bringing an end to the violence. Second, protecting the human rights, safety and dignity of the Syrian people. Third, starting a serious political process for a new Syria. Fourth, addressing the issue of accountability for the serious crimes committed by all sides. Fifth, completing the destruction of the chemical weapons production facilities, which had been achieved, and sixth, the need to address the regional dimensions of the conflict, including the extremist threat. On 10 July, the Secretary-General appointed Staffan de Mistura as his Special Envoy for the Syrian Arab Republic to replace Lakhdar Brahimi.

The Secretary-General underscored that the parties had continued to obstruct humanitarian assistance to those most in need, and to withhold consent for operations in a completely arbitrary manner as a tactic of war. He said that it was the continuing non-compliance with resolution 2139(2014) (see p. 578) that had led the Security Council to adopt resolution 2165(2014) (see p. 583), a resolution which should not have been necessary. Resolution 2165(2014) made four additional border crossings available to the United Nations and its implementing partners, and could help humanitarian actors to reach up to 2.9 million more people, if security and other conditions allowed. Therefore, he called upon the parties to the conflict, in the strongest terms, to comply with the demands of the Council contained in resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014).

On 28 July, the Council issued presidential statement S/PRST/2014/14 (see p. 131), stressing the obligation of the Member States to prevent and suppress the financing of terrorist acts, and expressing grave concern over the reports of the access to and seizure of oilfields and pipelines in Syria and Iraq by terrorist groups listed by the Security Council Committee, namely ISIL and the Nusra Front.

Communications. On 29 July [A/68/958-S/2014/547], Syria conveyed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President the position of its Government regarding the fifth report (see above) of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolution 2139(2014). The letter summarized efforts by the Government to facilitate the delivery of humanitarian assistance, and raised concern about the reference in the report to the area of separation in the Golan, as that area was covered by the Secretary-General's reports on the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF).

In a 31 July letter [S/2014/559] transmitted by Turkey to the Security Council President, the Syrian Coalition drew the Council's attention to the Syrian regime's refusal to implement Council resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014).

Report of Secretary-General (August). In August [S/2014/611], the Secretary-General submitted his sixth report pursuant to paragraph 17 of Security Council resolution 2139(2014) and paragraph 10 of Council resolution 2165(2014) (see p. 583), covering the period from 22 July to 18 August.

The United Nations established the monitoring mechanism foreseen in paragraph 3 of resolution 2165(2014) to ensure that additional cross-border operations authorized under that resolution were transparent. As a result, new cross-line and cross-border openings became accessible. The mechanism became operational on 23 July in Turkey and on 2 August in Jordan, following the deployment and training of advanced teams of United Nations monitors. Deployment of monitoring teams to Iraq remained pending owing to ongoing fighting and insecurity in the north-western part of that country.

During the reporting period, the United Nations and its partners sent five shipments—four from Turkey and one from Jordan—of food, non-food, water and sanitation, and medical supplies to Syria under the terms of resolution 2165(2014), using two border crossings. United Nations teams monitored the loading of the shipments and accompanied the loaded vehicles to the border crossing. In line with resolution 2165(2014), the United Nations notified the Government of Syria in advance of each shipment, including details about content, destination and number of beneficiaries, and confirming the humanitarian nature of the shipment.

The protection situation worsened. Reportedly, over 1,000 civilian deaths occurred in August only, the deadliest month since the start of the war. The prolongation of the conflict in Syria had created fertile ground for radical armed groups, including those affiliated with Al-Qaida. During the reporting period, events taking place in Iraq and the latest fighting in Arsal, Lebanon, demonstrated the devastating impact of the Syrian conflict on the neighbouring countries.

ISIL increased its influence in Syria making advances in three governorates and taking over, in one of them, two of the three remaining Government-controlled military bases. In Idlib governorate, the Nusra Front took full control of a strip of the Turkish-Syrian border, including one border crossing, following an offensive on the Free Syrian Army. The Nusra Front was in control of the smuggling trade on the border, a key source of income for armed opposition groups.

On 14 August, the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2170(2014) (see p. 131), condemning the recruitment by ISIL, the Nusra Front and all other entities associated with Al-Qaida of foreign terrorist fighters. Meanwhile, ISIL communication and recruitment campaigns continued to promote the “Islamic Caliphate” through professionally made audio- and visual material in different languages. The territory encompassing ISIL-declared Islamic caliphate, from Aleppo governorate to Diyala governorate in eastern Iraq, was extending and was estimated to have a population of up to 9 million people.

The Secretary-General asked Special Envoy de Mistura and Deputy Special Envoy Ramzy Ezzeldin Ramzy to look for new openings to launch a political process that would contribute to the implementation of the six points he presented on 20 June.

Regarding humanitarian access across borders, following the adoption of resolution 2165(2014), had resulted in broader reach to areas in five governorates, including Aleppo. There had also been new openings in access across conflict lines in three governorates. Many of those locations had not received assistance since the onset of the conflict. Of particular note was that, in August, medical supplies, including surgical items, reached a number of opposition-held areas. Overall, assistance reached 48 (approximately 17 per cent) of the 287 locations identified as besieged or hard to reach. Food assistance by WFP and UNRWA reached 469,510 people in 23 hard-to-reach areas compared to 95,838 people in 14 hard-to-reach locations during the previous reporting period. UNHCR, UNRWA and UNICEF delivered non-food items to 81,151 people in 23 hard-to-reach areas compared to 62,090 people in 29 hard-to-reach locations during the previous reporting period. Designated terrorist groups, however, continued to severely constrain access to the eastern governorates of Syria.

Communications. On 26 August [A/68/983-S/2014/631], Syria conveyed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President the position of its Government regarding the sixth report (see above) of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014). The report did not reflect accurately the number of Iraqi refugees who had entered its territory, which stood, as at 24 August, at 95,000. Syria found deplorable that, in all its reports, the Secretariat had failed to mention the facilities that the Government provided to United Nations organizations in connection with the delivery of assistance; that the Secretariat said it was incapable of verifying whether foreign fighters were present in Syria; and that the United Nations officials responsible for drafting the Secretary-General’s sixth report continued to ignore the fact that armed terrorist groups were primarily responsible for the ever-worsening humanitarian crisis in Syria.

In a letter of 27 August [S/2014/637] transmitted by Norway to the Security Council President in relation to the implementation of Council resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014), the Syrian Coalition said that, one year after the gravest chemical weapons attack of the twenty-first century, in which nearly 1,500 Syrians were killed, no one had been held accountable.

Report of Secretary-General (September). The Secretary-General submitted his seventh report in September [S/2014/696] on the implementation of Security Council resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014), covering the period from 19 August to 17 September.

Civilians continued to be displaced because of ongoing fighting and conflict. Parties to the conflict targeted vital services and infrastructure. Reduced availability of water and electricity was reported in four governorates. During the reporting period, ISIL increased its influence in Syria, predominantly along the main supply lines and in areas with border crossings, natural resources and key infrastructure. Although the United Nations did not have the means to independently verify numbers and origins, non-Syrian fighters, including designated terrorist groups, increasingly were participating in the fighting in Syria, on all sides of the conflict. Estimates on the number of new foreign fighters joining ISIL per month in Syria ranged from about 200 to 300 to up to 6,000 fighters in July alone.

On 11 September, the 45 UNDOF peacekeepers, who had been detained by the Nusra Front since 28 August, were released and were found in good condition. The situation in UNDOF on the Syrian side and the area of separation significantly deteriorated in mid-September, when armed groups made advances around UNDOF positions, posing a direct threat to the safety and security of United Nations peacekeepers. As a result, all United Nations personnel in those positions were relocated.

The Special Envoy for Syria, de Mistura, and his Deputy, Ramzy, visited Damascus from 9 to 13 September for initial discussions with Government officials, opposition representatives, and representatives of civil society organizations and women’s groups. It was their first visit to the country since the new Special Envoy took up his assignment on 1 September.

On 27 August, the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria released its eighth report, based on 480 interviews and evidence collected between 20 January and 15 July. The commission reported that both Government forces and the armed groups named in the report, including ISIL, had committed massacres and war crimes. Women and children continued to be severely affected by the conflict. As at 17 September, about 130 of the 153 students abducted by ISIL on 29 May continued to be held by the group. Furthermore, ISIL targeted media personnel and educational institutions. The commission of inquiry had yet to receive any response from Syria to its latest letter of 30 July—the third in 2014—asking for access to Syria, which continued to be denied.

The Secretary-General underlined that ISIL was a consequence, not a cause, of the conflict in Syria, which had deep political roots and needed to be resolved through negotiations. He observed that the lack of progress in finding a political solution and the continued deterioration of the security situation was driving increasing numbers of Syrians to negotiate local agreements to stop the fighting. Some local ceasefires, however, were the result of coercion and deliberate starvation; they were not credible and should not be supported. The involvement of the United Nations as a guarantor in such negotiations was being sought. The Secretary-General urged all sides, especially the Government of Syria, to consider cooperating with the United Nations in identifying ways to build lasting local agreements, ensuring that such agreements met international standards and included relief and recovery elements.

Communications. On 26 September [A/69/411-S/2014/705], Syria conveyed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President the position of its Government regarding the seventh report (see above) of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014). Syria noted that the report continued to ignore the realities of the situation in Syria, and described armed terrorist groups as “armed groups”, although the international community had affirmed that those groups were terrorist entities. The report also strayed from the mandate established for the Secretary-General, in that it addressed issues removed from the humanitarian situation, such as the situation of UNDOF and the use of chlorine.

On 25 September [S/2014/703], Saudi Arabia transmitted to the Security Council President a letter of the same day from the National Coalition of Syrian Revolutionary and Opposition Forces (Syrian Coalition) about the attacks carried out against Syrian refugees trapped in Arsal, Lebanon, near the border with Syria.

Report of Secretary-General (October). The Secretary-General submitted in October [S/2014/756] his eighth report on the implementation of Security Council resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014) covering the period from 18 September to 17 October.

Heinous attacks and atrocities against civilians continued, committed by all sides in the Syrian conflict. On 1 October, twin bomb attacks occurred close to a school in Homs, killing over 50 people, including 29 children, and injuring dozens more, a large majority of them children. The Government of Syria accused “armed terrorist groups”. No party claimed responsibility for the attacks. The international coalition undertook air strikes on 23 September against ISIL and other targets in Syria. The Secretary-General, however, observed that while the international community had rightly mobilized to counter the threat posed by terrorism, a military campaign alone could not resolve the crisis in Syria or halt the spread of terrorism from Syria and Iraq. In response to coalition air strikes, ISIL, the Nusra Front and other Islamist groups accused the international coalition of fighting a war against Islam and called for retaliation against the coalition and those perceived to be “collaborators”, including civilians, thus heightening the insecurity of aid workers. Recruitment of fighters, including foreign fighters, had reportedly increased following the beginning of the international coalition air strikes.

The threat posed by ISIL raised serious additional protection concerns, as evidenced by the offensive on the Kurdish town of Ayn al-Arab/Kobane City in Aleppo governorate, on 16 September, which resulted in the massive displacement of civilians, including into Turkey, and large numbers of deaths and injuries. More than 190,000 refugees had crossed into Turkey since the offensive began. The Secretary-General observed that the international community had to better share the burden of hosting over 3 million refugees fleeing Syria. He said that while the world’s attention had focused on the barbarity of ISIL and its advance in Syria, people throughout the country faced grave abuses at the hands of the Government and other parties to the conflict, who continued to violate international human rights and humanitarian law.

Access to hard-to-reach areas, where some 4.7 million people were in need, remained very limited. Approximately, 241,000 people remained besieged, the majority by Government forces, despite the Government’s repeated statements that it was looking after its people. Humanitarian actors on the ground continued to serve people in need throughout Syria at great personal risk.

At the twenty-seventh session of the Human Rights Council, the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria presented its eighth report noting that Government forces used chlorine gas, an illegal weapon. In addition, the commission reported that members of ISIL had committed massacres targeting civilians, captured soldiers, and deliberately exposed civilians, including women and children, to violence and indoctrination. Anti-government armed groups continued to commit crimes without regard to international law. The commission repeated its call to the Security Council to consider referring the situation in Syria to ICC. Members of the commission of inquiry, OHCHR and United Nations human rights monitors continued to be denied access to the country.

In early October, the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General to Syria, de Mistura, resumed his consultations, visiting Iran, Jordan, Kuwait and Lebanon.

Communications. On 28 October [S/2014/769], Syria conveyed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President the position of its Government regarding the eighth report (see above) of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014). Syria noted that the report continued to describe armed terrorist groups as “armed groups” or the “armed opposition”, contradicting international acknowledgement, albeit belated, of the terrorist nature of those groups.

In a 29 October communication [S/2014/772] to the Security Council President, Denmark transmitted a letter of the same day from the Syrian Coalition highlighting the Coalition’s efforts to implement resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014), as well as what the Coalition considered the non-compliance of the resolutions by the Government of Syria.

Report of Secretary-General (November). In November [S/2014/840], the Secretary-General submitted his ninth report on the implementation of Security Council resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014), covering the period from 18 October to 16 November and providing a review of events since the adoption of resolution 2165(2014).

Government forces, armed opposition groups and designated terrorists continued to attack, kill and injure civilians with impunity. Attacks by the Government, many of which were carried out with barrel bombs, took place in Aleppo, Damascus and Homs, among other places, killing many civilians, including children. Armed opposition and designated terrorist groups continued to shell Government-controlled areas, including in civilian-populated zones, using mortars and small rockets, causing civilian deaths and casualties. The use of improvised explosive devices, including vehicle-borne improvised explosive devices and suicide bombs, were also reported.

Civilians continued to be displaced: as at late October, the Syrian Arab Red Crescent had registered 100,000 internally displaced in two locations alone. During the reporting period, ISIL and the Nusra Front, both listed terrorist groups, increased efforts aimed at recruiting domestic and foreign fighters.

The international coalition continued to carry out air strikes against ISIL in Syria on an almost daily basis. Approximately, 865 people had been killed, including 50 civilians, in Aleppo, Deir ez-Zor, Hasakeh, Idlib and Raqqah since the strikes began. In response to the attacks, ISIL placed its fighters in populated areas, raising additional concerns for the protection of civilians, and changed its main positions.

On 14 November, the independent international commission of inquiry on Syria released a paper based on the first-hand accounts of 300 victims and witnesses, which detailed the use by ISIL of the terror and brutality inflicted upon those not confirming to its mores.

Fighting also took place in Idlib between the Nusra Front and the Syrian Revolutionary Front, a group being considered as part of the Free Syrian Army; and between ISIL and the Kurdish People’s Protection Units for the city of Ayn al-Arab/Kobane.

Briefing the Security Council on 30 October, Special Envoy de Mistura, laid out an action plan that included a strategic de-escalation of violence that focused on select zones of stability anchored on a “freezing of the fronts” between Government and opposition forces, starting with Aleppo. Following a meeting with the President of Syria on 10 November in Damascus, the Special Envoy took note of the Government’s intent to implement a freeze in Aleppo.

As at late October, 12.2 million people were in need of assistance—nearly 5 million of whom lived in hard-to-reach areas, despite the additional access granted through resolution 2165(2014)—and 7.6 million people internally displaced. Another 3.2 million people had fled to neighbouring countries, with approximately 212,000 people besieged.

The Secretary-General expressed his appreciation for the international community’s resolve to address the threat posed by ISIL and other Al-Qaida-affiliated groups, but remained concerned that a military campaign alone could lead to further radicalization and spark a cycle of renewed violence. The adoption of resolution 2165(2014) had enabled the United Nations and partners to reach more locations where assistance was urgently needed, but humanitarian needs continued to rise and the situation on the ground continued to deteriorate.

While the international community had to do whatever it could to make sure that the rights of people in Syria were respected and their needs met, it was the ultimate responsibility of the parties to the conflict to reduce the violence and end the conflict. The proposal made by the Secretary-General’s Special Envoy to establish incremental freezes, beginning with the city of Aleppo, was exactly intended for that purpose: to lead to a strategic de-escalation of violence, starting from specific areas with a national impact.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In a later report [S/2015/48], the Secretary-General provided an update of the situation in Syria for December. Widespread conflict and high levels of violence continued throughout the country, particularly in the governorates of Aleppo, Hama, Homs, Deir ez-

Zor, Rif Dimashq, Damascus, Hasakeh, Idlib, Dar'a, Quneitra and Raqqa. Indiscriminate aerial bombings, including the use of barrel bombs, by Government forces and indiscriminate shelling by armed opposition, extremist and listed terrorist groups, resulted in deaths, injuries and the displacement of civilians.

In the governorate of Aleppo, aerial bombardment and shelling of opposition-controlled eastern Aleppo continued; while in Rif Dimashq, there were Government aerial bombardment against opposition-held areas, with the districts of Douma, Hamouria, Khan el-Sheikh and Zabadani being the most affected. Severe levels of violence were reported in Dar'a, killing at least 200 people, including 37 children and 16 women. In the governorate of Homs, at least four civilians, including a child, were killed in the district of Waer as a result of Government shelling.

In mid-December, Ahrar al-Sham, the Nusra Front and other armed groups took control of two strategic military bases in Wadi al-Daif and Hamidiyah in Idlib. They also surrounded the Abou al-Dohour airport in rural Idlib and targeted roads between Hama and Aleppo and Idlib and Ladhqiyyah, reinforcing their presence in rural Hama. Parties to the conflict continued to target civilian facilities, including vital services and infrastructure. In late December, the Nusra Front and possibly other armed groups cut electricity and water supplies in Idlib and Aleppo cities, affecting approximately 1.7 million people. International coalition airstrikes against ISIL led by the United States continued, targeting mostly ISIL positions in Kobani.

Civilians continued to be displaced as a result of the conflict. During December, at least 40,000 people fled clashes in Sheikh Meskin in western rural Dar'a governorate, seeking refuge in the surrounding villages. Consultations with the Syrian parties and a wide range of interlocutors inside and outside the Syrian Arab Republic addressed the parameters of the proposed "freeze" arrangements to start in Aleppo City. Special Envoy de Mistura visited Istanbul and Gaziantep and met with the Syrian Opposition Coalition and armed opposition groups to explain the difference between the proposed Aleppo freeze and previous local ceasefire initiatives.

Communications. On 23 November [S/2014/846], Syria conveyed to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President the position of its Government regarding the ninth report (see above) of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014), explaining that the success in delivering assistance from inside Syrian territory would not have had occurred without the full cooperation of the Government with the United Nations and its agencies in Syria.

In communications of 24 November [S/2014/848] and 15 December [S/2014/902] transmitted by Saudi Arabia to the Security Council President, the Syrian Coalition urged the Council to strengthen and renew resolution 2165(2014); insist on coordination between the United Nations and Syrian aid organizations; insist that the United Nations makes full use of the mandate of resolution 2165(2014), particularly for cross-border aid delivery; and increase humanitarian commitments to the Syrian people.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 17 December [meeting 7344], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2191(2014). The draft [S/2014/897] was submitted by Australia, Chad, Chile, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Republic of Korea, Rwanda, the United Kingdom and the United States.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions 2042(2012) of 14 April 2012, 2043(2012) of 21 April 2012, 2118(2013) of 27 September 2013, 2139(2014) of 22 February 2014, 2165(2014) of 14 July 2014 and 2175(2014) of 29 August 2014, and the statements by its President of 3 August 2011, 21 March and 5 April 2012 and 2 October 2013,

Reaffirming its strong commitment to the sovereignty, independence, unity and territorial integrity of the Syrian Arab Republic and to the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Expressing outrage at the unacceptable and escalating level of violence and the killing of more than 191,000 people, including well over 10,000 children, as a result of the Syrian conflict, as reported by the Secretary-General and his Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict,

Gravely distressed by the continued deterioration of the devastating humanitarian situation in the Syrian Arab Republic and by the fact that now more than 12.2 million people in the Syrian Arab Republic—of whom 7.6 million are internally displaced, 4.5 million are living in hard-to-reach areas and 212,000 are trapped in besieged areas, including Palestinian refugees—require urgent humanitarian assistance, including medical assistance, and noting with concern that approximately one million more people have been displaced within the Syrian Arab Republic since the adoption of resolution 2165(2014),

Gravely concerned at the lack of effective implementation of its resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014) by the parties to the Syrian domestic conflict, recalling in this regard their legal obligations under international humanitarian law and international human rights law, as well as all the relevant decisions of the Security Council, including by ceasing all attacks against civilians and civilian objects, including those involving attacks on schools and medical facilities and the deliberate interruptions of water supply, the indiscriminate use of weapons, including artillery, barrel bombs and air strikes, indiscriminate shelling by mortars, car bombs, suicide attacks and tunnel bombs, as well as the use of starvation of civilians as a method of combat, including by the besiegement of populated areas, and the widespread use of torture, ill-treatment, arbitrary executions, extrajudicial killings, enforced disappearances and sexual and gender-based violence as well as all grave violations and abuses committed against children,

Expressing its grave concern that areas of the Syrian Arab Republic are under the control of Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant and Al-Nusrah Front and about the negative impact of their presence, violent extremist ideology and actions on stability in the Syrian Arab Republic and the region, including the devastating humanitarian impact on the civilian populations which has led to the displacement of hundreds of thousands of people, reaffirming its resolve to address all aspects of the threat posed by Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant, Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida, and calling for the implementation of Council resolutions 2170(2014) of 15 August 2014 and 2178(2014) of 24 September 2014 and the statement by its President of 28 July 2014,

Strongly condemning the arbitrary detention and torture of civilians in the Syrian Arab Republic, notably in prisons and detention facilities, as well as the kidnappings, abductions, hostage-taking and forced disappearances, and demanding the immediate end of these practices and the release of all arbitrarily detained persons starting with women and children, as well as sick, wounded and elderly people, including United Nations and humanitarian personnel and journalists,

Recalling its strong condemnation in resolution 2175(2014) of all forms of violence and intimidation to which those participating in humanitarian operations are increasingly exposed, as well as attacks on humanitarian convoys and acts of destruction and looting of their assets, and its urging of all parties involved in an armed conflict to promote the safety, security and freedom of movement of humanitarian personnel and United Nations and associated personnel and their assets, and urging that all parties to the Syrian domestic conflict must take all appropriate steps to ensure the safety and security of United Nations and associated personnel, those of its specialized agencies and all other personnel engaged in humanitarian relief activities,

Noting that, despite all the challenges, the United Nations and its implementing partners continue to deliver life-saving assistance to millions of people in need, and taking note that hard-to-reach locations in Aleppo, Idlib, Qunaytirah and Dar'a have been reached since the adoption of resolution 2165(2014) through humanitarian aid delivered across borders, stressing, however, in this regard that most people in hard-to-reach and besieged areas remain difficult for the United Nations and its implementing partners to reach with humanitarian assistance,

Expressing deep concern at the continuing and new impediments to the delivery of humanitarian assistance across borders and across conflict lines, encouraging the United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners to take steps to scale up humanitarian deliveries into hard-to-reach and besieged areas, including by using, as effectively as possible, border crossings under resolution 2165(2014), and noting that the United Nations monitoring mechanism is operational and is continuing its activities, including monitoring shipments and confirming their humanitarian nature, in accordance with resolution 2165(2014),

Reaffirming the need to support the United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners in their efforts to expand the delivery of humanitarian assistance to reach all people in need in the Syrian Arab Republic, and further reaffirming its decision in resolution 2165(2014) that all Syrian parties to the conflict shall enable the immediate and unhindered delivery of humanitarian assistance directly to people throughout the Syrian Arab Republic by the United Nations humanitarian agencies and their implementing partners, on the basis of United Nations assessments of need and devoid of any political prejudices and aims, including by immediately removing all impediments to the provision of humanitarian assistance,

Noting the role that ceasefire agreements which are consistent with humanitarian principles and international humanitarian law can play in facilitating the delivery of humanitarian assistance in order to help to save civilian lives,

Recalling the need for all parties to respect the relevant provisions of international humanitarian law and the United Nations guiding principles of humanitarian emergency assistance,

Expressing grave concern at the more than 3.2 million refugees, including more than 2.5 million women and children, who have fled the Syrian Arab Republic as a result of ongoing violence, and recognizing that the continued deterioration of the humanitarian situation in the Syrian Arab Republic is further contributing to the movement of refugees and poses risks to regional stability,

Reiterating its deep appreciation for the significant and admirable efforts that have been made by the countries of the region, notably Lebanon, Jordan, Turkey, Iraq and Egypt, to accommodate Syrian refugees, including the approximately 400,000 refugees who have fled the Syrian Arab Republic since the adoption of resolution 2165(2014), and mindful of the immense costs and social challenges incurred by these countries as a consequence of the crisis,

Noting with concern that the international response to the Syrian and regional crisis continues to fall short of meeting the needs as assessed by host Governments and the United Nations, therefore urging once again all Member States, based on burden-sharing principles, to support the United Nations and the countries of the region, including by adopting medium- and long-term responses to alleviate the impact on communities, providing increased, flexible and predictable funding as well as increasing resettlement efforts, and taking note in this regard of the Berlin Communiqué on solidarity with refugees and their hosts of 28 October 2014,

Noting with grave concern that impunity in the Syrian Arab Republic contributes to widespread violations and abuses of human rights and violations of international humanitarian law, stressing the need to end impunity for these violations and abuses, and re-emphasizing in this regard the need for those who have committed or are otherwise responsible for such violations and abuses in the Syrian Arab Republic to be brought to justice,

Emphasizing that the humanitarian situation will continue to deteriorate further in the absence of a political solution to the crisis,

Determining that the deteriorating humanitarian situation in the Syrian Arab Republic continues to constitute a threat to peace and security in the region,

Underscoring that Member States are obligated under Article 25 of the Charter to accept and carry out the decisions of the Council,

1. Demands that all parties to the Syrian domestic conflict, in particular the Syrian authorities, immediately comply with their obligations under international humanitarian law and international human rights law, and fully and immediately implement all the provisions of Security Council resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014) and the statement by its President of 2 October 2013, and recalls that some of the violations and abuses committed in the Syrian Arab Republic may amount to war crimes and crimes against humanity;

2. Decides to renew the decisions in paragraphs 2 and 3 of resolution 2165(2014) for a period of 12 months, that is, until 10 January 2016;

3. Also decides to conduct, six months after the renewal of these decisions, a review of the implementation of paragraph 2 of the present resolution;

4. Expresses its full support for the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria, Mr. Staffan de Mistura, looks forward in particular to further advice from the Special Envoy concerning his proposals aimed at reducing violence, including through the implementation of freeze zones, emphasizes that if the violence in the Syrian Arab Republic continues to escalate, the humanitarian situation will continue to worsen, and reiterates that the only sustainable solution to the current crisis in the Syrian Arab Republic is through an inclusive and Syrian-led political process that meets the legitimate aspirations of the Syrian people, with a view to full implementation of the Geneva communiqué of 30 June 2012 endorsed in its resolution 2118(2013) and contained in annex II thereto;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Council on the implementation of the present resolution and on compliance by all parties to the Syrian domestic conflict, within the framework of his reporting on resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014);

6. Reaffirms that it will take further measures under the Charter of the United Nations in the event of non-compliance with the present resolution or resolution 2139(2014) or 2165(2014) by any party to the Syrian domestic conflict;

7. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria

Effective 31 May, the Joint Special Representative of the United Nations and the League of Arab States for Syria Lakhdar Brahimi relinquished his duties. On 10 July, the Secretary-General announced the appointments of Staffan de Mistura as his Special Envoy for Syria, and of Ramzy Ezzeldin Ramzy as Deputy Special Envoy.

In September [A/69/363/Add.1], the Secretary-General proposed resource requirements for the Office of the Special Envoy of Secretary-General for Syria for 2015 in the amount of $11,871,100 (net of staff assessment).

In December [A/69/628], the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (ACABQ) took note of the relocation of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria from Geneva to Brussels; and of the request for redeployment and reclassification of five positions from Geneva to Damascus. ACABQ recommended that, while it had no objection to the position of the Special Envoy for Syria to be based in Brussels for 2015, the Secretary-General should keep the arrangement for the location of the Special Envoy for Syria under review. Furthermore, considering that the functions of the five security-related positions were no longer required in Geneva and considering the need for additional security capacity in Damascus, ACABQ recommended that the five positions at the General Service (Other level) be abolished in Geneva and five new positions at the local level be established in Damascus. ACABQ also recommended the abolishment of the position for the Special Assistant at the P-4 level, which had been vacant since 1 November 2012; and further recommended the application of a 50 per cent vacancy factor to the estimates for international staff for 2015 (compared to the 30 per cent proposed by the Secretary-General) taking into account the actual average vacancy rate of 54 per cent for the period from January to August 2014, the actual vacancy rate of 53.6 per cent as at 30 September 2014, and the number of vacant posts of two years and longer in the Office.

The General Assembly, in section IV of resolution 69/262 of 29 December (see p. 1631), decided on a vacancy rate of 40 per cent for the Office of the Special Envoy of the Secretary-General for Syria.

Children and armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Security Council resolution 1612(2005) [YUN 2005, p. 863], in January the Secretary-General issued his first report [S/2014/31] on children and armed conflict in Syria covering the period from 1 March 2011 to 15 November 2013.

Access and security issues in Syria posed serious limitations to reporting; as a consequence, the United Nations country task force was able to independently monitor and report only on a limited number of cases inside Syria, and the information was based to a large extent on interviews conducted by the United Nations, including numerous accounts from Syrian refugees.

As at December 2013, the United Nations estimated that more than 100,000 individuals had been killed, including more than 10,000 children, and many more injured since March 2011. During the first two years of the conflict, most incidents of killing and maiming of children were attributed to government forces. Armed opposition groups increasingly engaged in such acts during 2013. The report also stressed the disappearance of many children, and highlighted that children in Syria had experienced an elevated level of distress because of witnessing the killing and injuring of members of their families and peers, or of being separated from their family and/or displaced.

In its initial stages, violations were committed largely by the Government of Syria, which led to the listing of Government forces in the annexes to the 2012 annual report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict [YUN 2012, p. 724] for patterns of killing and maiming of children and for recurrent attacks against schools and hospitals and protected personnel. As the conflict intensified and the opposition became more organized, an increasing number of violations committed by the Free Syrian Army (FSA)-affiliated groups was documented, leading to the listing of FSA in the annexes to the 2013 annual report of the Secretary-General on children and armed conflict [YUN 2013, p. 168] for the recruitment and use of children. In the same report, the Government forces were also listed for grave sexual violence against children. Known perpetrators of grave violations against children included also the Syrian armed and intelligence forces; Government-associated militias such as the Shabiha; the popular committees (later formalized under the National Defence Forces); Syrian Kurdish armed groups; FSA-affiliated groups; the Nusra Front; Ahrar al-Sham; ISIL; and other independent or unidentified armed groups.

Of concern were cases of recruitment or attempted recruitment of children mostly from lack of education or job opportunities and peer pressure within refugee populations in neighbouring countries. Most incidents were related to recruitment by FSA-affiliated groups or Syrian Kurdish armed groups. While the United Nations did not receive reports of children formally recruited by Government forces, they reportedly intimidated and seized young males, including those under the age of 18, to join their ranks. The United Nations also gathered reports of the use of children as human shields during Syrian Government forces ground operations, particularly in 2011 and 2012.

Children were arrested, detained, ill-treated and tortured in detention facilities by Government forces in large-scale arrest campaigns, particularly in 2011 and 2012. Children were arrested for their or their relatives' actual or perceived participation in demonstrations or support to armed opposition groups. Multiple accounts of witnesses indicated that many children were held in the same cells as adults, and that children as young as 11 years old suffered ill treatment and acts tantamount to torture to extract confessions or humiliate them or to pressure a relative to surrender or confess. Access to children detained was largely denied to the United Nations and humanitarian actors. In addition, family members of children detained often did not receive any information on their whereabouts. Children were also caught in cross-fire between Government forces and armed groups, or between armed groups themselves.

Sexual violence was believed to be largely underreported owing to fears of reprisals and social stigma, combined with the lack of safe and confidential response services. Sexual violence against girls and women, or the fear of sexual violence, was reported as one of the reasons for which families were internally displaced or fled Syria. The United Nations also received reports of allegations of rape and other forms of sexual violence against women and girls, including in the presence of relatives, by Government forces at checkpoints or during incursions and house searches of families perceived to be pro-opposition.

Schools and hospitals had been seriously affected by the conflict in Syria and disproportionately targeted by all parties. In addition, indiscriminate Syrian Government air strikes and shelling by armed opposition groups on populated areas damaged or destroyed education and health facilities. Moreover, the United Nations received several reports of abduction of children by pro-Government militias or armed opposition groups in exchange for ransom or the release of prisoners, or as pressure on relatives perceived as supporting the opposing party.

The Secretary-General urged all parties to stop all grave violations committed against children and take all appropriate steps to protect children; immediately release abducted women and children; cease the military use of schools and hospitals; and take all measures to prevent and halt all forms of sexual violence and abuse against boys and girls. The Secretary-General also called upon the Government of Syria to put an end to the killing and maiming of children; halt the arbitrary arrest and detention of children; and ensure that all Government-affiliated militias put an end to all violations against children. Further, the Secretary-General urged opposition groups to put an end to the killing and maiming of children and other grave violations against children, and to take all appropriate steps to protect children; and prevent and halt the recruitment of children.

Working Group conclusions. The Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict examined the Secretary-General's first report on children and armed conflict in Syria (see above) and submitted its conclusions [S/AC.51/2014/4] in November. The Working Group agreed to recommend that the President of the Security Council transmit a letter to the Government of Syria reiterating the Council's profound indignation at the death of well over 10,000 children, as a result of the Syrian conflict; and demand that the Government immediately cease all violations against children, and comply fully with resolutions 2139(2014) and 2165(2014) and the Council's presidential statement of 2 October 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 438]. The Working Group also agreed to send letters from its Chair calling upon the World Bank and the donor community to provide the necessary financial resources to ensure that children affected by armed conflict in Syria had access to adequate health care and nutrition, as well as appropriate education.

Communications. In a 6 February letter [S/2014/245] to the Security Council President, Syria underscored its cooperation with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, who had visited the country twice.

Syria had established a national committee on violations against children and had provided the Special Representative with data concerning human rights violations against children—information that had not been mentioned in the Secretary-General's report on children and armed conflict in Syria.

In a letter dated 18 September [A/69/394-S/2014/684] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria reported the death, on 16 September, of 15 children in Idlib governorate who had died after been given expired and poisoned measles vaccine that was obtained from unknown sources at fictitious health institutions affiliated with armed terrorist groups and Turkey.

In a 2 October letter [A/69/421-S/2014/715] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria denounced the attack on a school complex by armed terrorist groups in Homs city, which took place on 1 October, killing 33 civilians, including 22 children.

UNSMIS

By its resolution 2059(2012) [YUN 2012, p. 449], the Security Council renewed the mandate of the United Nations Supervision Mission in Syria (UNSMIS) for a final period of 30 days and expressed its willingness to renew it again only if the Secretary-General reported, and the Council confirmed, the cessation of the use of heavy weapons and a reduction of violence by all sides sufficient to allow UNSMIS to implement its mandate. As those conditions were not met, UNSMIS mandate came to an end on 19 August 2012.

Financing

In April [A/68/782/Add.1], ACABQ recommended that the General Assembly approve the action proposed by the Secretary-General in his November 2013 report on UNSMIS [YUN 2013, p. 441], namely, to appropriate and assess the expenditure amount of $6,530,100 for the Mission for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013. In that report, the Secretary-General provided that during the liquidation period, the Mission disposed of approximately 700 non-expendable assets, about 40 per cent of which were transferred to the Office of the Joint Special Representative and the remainder to either neighbouring peacekeeping missions or the United Nations reserve. ACABQ recommended that the Assembly request the Secretary-General to reflect such details clearly in future reports on the budget performance of the peacekeeping missions. Furthermore, according to the supplementary information provided to the ACABQ, UNSMIS borrowed $10 million from the Peacekeeping Reserve Fund, which were used to cover the expenditure incurred by the Mission from strategic deployment stocks and other miscellaneous charges that could arise. ACABQ recommended that the Reserve Fund be used in strict compliance with Assembly resolution 47/217 [YUN 1992, p. 1022], by which the Fund was established.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 30 June [meeting 99], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/68/921], adopted resolution 68/295 without vote [agenda item 162].

Financing of the United Nations Supervision Mission in the Syrian Arab Republic

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Supervision Mission in the Syrian Arab Republic for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 2043(2012) of 21 April 2012, by which the Council established for an initial period of 90 days the United Nations Supervision Mission in the Syrian Arab Republic under the command of a Chief Military Observer, and Council resolution 2059(2012) of 20 July 2012, by which the Council renewed the mandate for a final period of 30 days,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Mission with the financial resources necessary to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Supervision Mission in the Syrian Arab Republic as at 30 April 2014, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 0.5 million United States dollars, representing some 3 per cent of the total assessed contributions, notes with concern that only 122 Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

2. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

Budget performance report for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

3. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Supervision Mission in the Syrian Arab Republic the amount of 6,530,100 dollars, previously authorized by the Advisory Committee for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, under the terms of section VI of its resolution 64/269 of 24 June 2010;

Financing of the appropriation for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013

4. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 6,530,100 dollars for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, in accordance with the levels updated in its resolution 64/249 of 24 December 2009, taking into account the scale of assessments for 2012, as set out in its resolution 64/248 of 24 December 2009;

5. Also decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 4 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of 162,400 dollars, representing the estimated staff assessment income approved for the Mission for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013;

6. Further decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session the item entitled “Financing of the United Nations Supervision Mission in the Syrian Arab Republic”.

By decision 69/554 of 29 December, the General Assembly decided that the agenda item on the financing of UNSMIS would remain for consideration during its sixty-ninth (2015) session.

Use of chemical weapons

Communications. In letters on 8 February [S/2014/88] and 14 April [A/68/846-S/2014/271] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria said that since the inception of the crisis, it had been unjustly accused by certain countries, including Member States of the Council, to have used chemical weapons. Those countries not only ignored that Syria complied with its obligation under the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction (Chemical Weapons Convention), but they were, along with terrorist organizations, responsible for the crimes that were committed in Syria with chemical weapons, including the 2014 attack in Kafr Zayta.

In letters [S/2014/274, S/2014/285, S/2014/370, S/2014/637, S/2014/649, S/2014/824] transmitted by Turkey, the United Arab Emirates, France, Norway and Saudi Arabia to the Security Council President between April and November, the Syrian Coalition brought to the Council’s attention that, in the preceding five months, the Syrian regime had engaged in systematic attacks in opposition-held areas using chemical weapons in violation of Council resolution 2118(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 443]. By that resolution, the Council endorsed the OPCW Executive Council decision of 27 September 2013, which contained special procedures both for the destruction of Syria’s chemical weapons stockpiles, as well as the stringent verification thereof.

OPCW-UN joint mission for the elimination of the chemical weapons programme in Syria

On 27 September 2013, the Executive Council of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) decided to establish special procedures for the expeditious destruction of Syria’s chemical weapons programme. On the same day, the Security Council, by its resolution 2118(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 443], endorsed the OPCW Executive Council decision, authorized a United Nations advance team to provide early assistance to OPCW activities in Syria, and requested OPCW Director-General and the Secretary-General to closely cooperate in the implementation of the Executive Council decision. In a letter of 7 October 2013 to the Council, the Secretary-General outlined the proposal for a Joint Mission of OPCW and the United Nations, which was officially authorized by the Council on 11 October.

On 23 June 2014, the Joint Mission confirmed that all declared chemical weapons materials of Syria had been removed from Syrian territory. In the immediate months following the completion and removal of declared chemical weapons, the Joint Mission re-configured its capacities, and then was formally closed on 30 September.

OPCW reports. In letters [S/2014/52, S/2014/133, S/2014/220, S/2014/300, S/2014/368, S/2014/444, S/2014/533, S/2014/622, S/2014/706, S/2014/767, S/2014/853, S/2014/948] sent between January and December to the Security Council, the Secretary-General transmitted twelve monthly reports issued in 2014—from the fourth to the fifteenth report—by OPCW Director-General pursuant to paragraph 12 of Council resolution 2118(2013). Collectively, the reports covered the period from 21 December 2013 to 22 December 2014.

In January [S/2014/52], the Secretary-General recalled that, in 2013, OPCW Executive Council had set the intermediate milestone of 31 December 2013 for the removal of the most critical chemical weapons precursor, binary and end-state materials from Syria for destruction outside the country; however, because of several factors, including logistical and technical issues, as well as the volatile security situation, the milestone had not been met. Nevertheless, the removal of chemical weapons material from Syria did start on 7 January 2014, when a first quantity of priority chemical materials was moved from storage sites to Latakia and subsequently loaded onto a cargo vessel.

Between 21 January and 21 February [S/2014/133], Syria met the early milestones, including the functional destruction of its capacity to produce, mix and fill chemical weapons munitions, and the destruction of all unfilled chemical munitions. It destroyed its mobile production facilities and specialized equipment at many chemical weapons production facilities. Two intermediate milestones for the removal of chemical weapons material from Syria for destruction outside the country however were not met. As a result, the process of eliminating the chemical weapons programme fell behind schedule.

Between 23 February and 22 March [S/2014/220], Syria accelerated the removal of chemical weapons material from its territory and made important progress in reducing its stockpile. As at 24 April, the total figure for removal and in-country destruction of all chemical weapons material had reached 92.5 per cent, including 96.45 per cent of high-priority chemical materials and 81.09 per cent of other chemical materials removed.

Transmitting the eighth reports of OPCW in May [S/2014/368], the Secretary-General announced that no further removal of chemical weapons material had taken place between 25 April and 22 May, and expressed his concern about the allegations regarding the use of chlorine gas for hostile purposes at various locations. To investigate those allegations, on 29 April, the OPCW Director-General announced the establishment of an OPCW Fact-Finding Mission.

On 23 June [S/2014/444], the OPCW-UN joint mission confirmed that all declared chemical weapons materials of Syria had been removed from Syrian territory or, in the case of isopropanol, destroyed in the country. The achievement of that critical milestone followed the movement of the remaining chemical materials to the port of Latakia, where they were loaded onto a cargo vessel for onward transportation and destruction. As at late June, the following steps remained to be undertaken for the full elimination of the chemical weapons programme of Syria: the destruction of the chemicals at sea- and at land-based facilities; the destruction of structures at 12 production facilities pending agreement on the modalities of destruction by the OPCW Executive Council; the destruction of one item of loading equipment at one production facility; the destruction of one building located at a production facility under the control of armed opposition groups; and the conclusion of consultations regarding any possible remaining discrepancies in the original declaration submitted by Syria.

Between 24 June and 25 July [S/2014/533], following the completion of the removal of declared chemical weapons materials from Syria, attention continued to focus on the remaining steps (see above) of the elimination of the Syrian chemical weapons programme.

In the period between 25 July and 22 August [S/2014/622], the destruction of declared priority chemical weapons materials of Syria on board a United States maritime vessel was completed. Progress was also made in the destruction of the remaining declared chemical weapons materials at designated facilities outside of Syria. Following consultations with OPCW Director-General, the Secretary-General announced that the OPCW-UN joint Mission would be officially concluded on 30 September.

In September [S/2014/706], OPCW finalized arrangements with the United Nations Office for Project Services to enable OPCW to continue its remaining inspection and verification activities inside Syria beyond 30 September. To ensure continuity, the Secretary-General asked Special Coordinator for the Joint Mission, Sigrid Kaag, to continue to assist him.

Between 23 September and 22 October [S/2014/767], OPCW Executive Council discussed the second report of the OPCW Fact-Finding Mission in Syria, mandated to establish the facts surrounding allegations of toxic chemicals, reportedly chlorine, for hostile purposes. Between 23 October and 22 November [S/2014/853], OPCW Director-General advised of the imminent start of the destruction of the 12 chemical weapons productions facilities remaining in Syria, while OPCW technical experts continued their dialogue with the Syrian authorities regarding the country's initial declaration and subsequent amendments.

In December [S/2014/948], too, OPCW Director-General advised of the imminent start of the destruction of the remaining 12 chemical weapons production facilities in Syria. Regarding Syria's initial declaration and subsequent amendments, OPCW technical experts continued their dialogue with the Syrian authorities and undertook a visit to Syria, from 10 to 15 December. The third report of the OPCW fact-finding mission in Syria provided a more detailed account of the work undertaken by the fact-finding mission earlier in 2014.

Following the appointment of Sigrid Kaag (Netherlands) as the United Nations Special Coordinator for Lebanon, the Secretary-General asked High Representative for Disarmament Affairs, Angela Kane (Germany), to continue to exercise the good offices on his behalf in the implementation of resolution 2118(2013).

Communications. On 1 July [S/2014/462], Saudi Arabia transmitted to the Council President a 17 June letter it had sent to OPCW Director-General in response to a previous communication sent by Syria to the Director-General. Saudi Arabia denied the claims appearing in Syria's letter that it was sending explosive and toxic material to armed groups in Syria. Since joining OPCW, Saudi Arabia had consistently reaffirmed its commitment to the Chemical Weapons Convention and all the requirements set out therein.

In a 30 December letter [S/2014/955], Australia, France, Jordan, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Republic of Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States transmitted to the Council President the first, second and third report of OPCW fact-finding mission established on 29 April. The first report on 16 June—a summary covering the period from 3 to 31 May—announced the establishment of the mission; the second report, dated 10 September, included key findings; and the third report, released on 18 December, presented, with a high degree of confidence, the mission's conclusions that chlorine had been used as a weapon. Those reports were integral to the Security Council's role in monitoring the implementation of resolution 2118(2013), whose first and second paragraphs indicated that the use of chemical weapons anywhere constituted a threat to international peace and security, and condemned any use of chemical weapons in Syria.

The Syrian Golan

The Golan Heights in the Syrian Arab Republic, occupied by Israel since 1967, were effectively annexed when Israel extended its laws, jurisdiction and administration to the territory in 1981 [YUN 1981, p. 309]. In 2014, the General Assembly reiterated its demand that Israel withdraw from all the occupied Syrian Golan to the line of 4 June 1967, in implementation of the relevant Security Council resolutions, and called upon Israel to resume talks with Syria and Lebanon. The United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) continued to supervise the ceasefire between Israel and Syria in the Golan Heights, and to ensure the separation of militaries. The Force's mandate was extended twice during the year, in June and in December.

Reports of Secretary-General. In his August report [A/69/327] to the General Assembly, the Secretary-General stated that no reply had been received from Israel in response to an April note issued by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights on his behalf requesting information on steps taken or envisaged for the implementation of resolution 68/84 [YUN 2013, p. 453]. In addition to the response from Syria, replies had been received from Algeria, Colombia, Cuba and Slovakia.

On 2 September [A/69/341], the Secretary-General reported that, as at 11 August, Cuba, Mexico and Syria had replied to his request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement Assembly resolution 68/17 [YUN 2013, p. 452] on the Syrian Golan. The resolution demanded that Israel withdraw from all the occupied Syrian Golan to the line of 4 June 1967, in implementation of the relevant Security Council resolutions.

Special Committee on Israeli Practices. The Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories, in its August report [A/69/355], stated that the Committee was not able to hold meetings in Syria owing to the prevailing situation in the country, but met with interlocutors who travelled from the occupied Syrian Golan to Amman.

Approximately 20,000 Israeli settlers resided in 33 settlements in the occupied Syrian Golan, enjoying disproportionate benefits in terms of water and agricultural resources. In January, the Government of Israel had reportedly approved a project proposal to develop over 7,400 acres (30,000 dunums) of land in the occupied Syrian Golan, which included the establishment of 750 farming estates and $108 million in investment over four years. Further, Israel had sponsored agricultural expansion, which was strategically timed to increase settler presence in the occupied Syrian Golan at a time of protracted internal conflict in Syria.

Testimony also focused on the exploitation of natural and agricultural resources, including prospecting by Israel for oil through a local subsidiary of United States-based Genie Energy, which was granted a licence early in 2013 by Israel to explore for oil and gas in a 153-square-mile radius in the southern part of the occupied Syrian Golan. Further, it was impossible to market apples grown locally, with the Syrian market disrupted and traditional markets in the Occupied Palestinian Territory inaccessible owing to Israeli occupation policies and practices.

The Special Committee called upon Israel to comply with Council resolution 497(1981) [YUN 1981, p. 312], which annulled the decision of Israel on the annexation of the occupied Syrian Golan and to immediately take steps to cease the expansion of and reverse settlements in the area.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 25 November [meeting 61], the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/25 [draft: A/69/L.26 & Add.1] by recorded vote (99-6-57) [agenda item 35].

The Syrian Golan

The General Assembly,
Having considered the item entitled "The situation in the Middle East",

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the situation in the Middle East,

Recalling Security Council resolution 497(1981) of 17 December 1981,

Reaffirming the fundamental principle of the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force, in accordance with international law and the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming once more the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the occupied Syrian Golan, Deeply concerned that Israel has not withdrawn from the Syrian Golan, which has been under occupation since 1967, contrary to the relevant Security Council and General Assembly resolutions,

Stressing the illegality of the Israeli settlement construction and other activities in the occupied Syrian Golan since 1967,

Noting with satisfaction the convening in Madrid on 30 October 1991 of the Peace Conference on the Middle East, on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967, 338(1973) of 22 October 1973 and 425(1978) of 19 March 1978 and the formula of land for peace,

Expressing grave concern over the halt in the peace process on the Syrian track, and expressing the hope that peace talks will soon resume from the point they had reached,

1. Declares that Israel has failed so far to comply with Security Council resolution 497(1981);

2. Also declares that the Israeli decision of 14 December 1981 to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the occupied Syrian Golan is null and void and has no validity whatsoever, as confirmed by the Security Council in its resolution 497(1981), and calls upon Israel to rescind it;

3. Reaffirms its determination that all relevant provisions of the Regulations annexed to the Hague Convention of 1907, and the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, continue to apply to the Syrian territory occupied by Israel since 1967, and calls upon the parties thereto to respect and ensure respect for their obligations under those instruments in all circumstances;

4. Determines once more that the continued occupation of the Syrian Golan and its de facto annexation constitute a stumbling block in the way of achieving a just, comprehensive and lasting peace in the region;

5. Calls upon Israel to resume the talks on the Syrian and Lebanese tracks and to respect the commitments and undertakings reached during the previous talks;

6. Demands once more that Israel withdraw from all the occupied Syrian Golan to the line of 4 June 1967 in implementation of the relevant Security Council resolutions;

7. Calls upon all the parties concerned, the co-sponsors of the peace process and the entire international community to exert all the necessary efforts to ensure the resumption of the peace process and its success by implementing Security Council resolutions 242(1967) and 338(1973);

8. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on the implementation of the present resolution.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 December [meeting 64], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/69/454] adopted resolution 69/94 by recorded vote (162-1-15) [agenda item 51].

The occupied Syrian Golan

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories,

Deeply concerned that the Syrian Golan, occupied since 1967, has been under continued Israeli military occupation,

Recalling Security Council resolution 497(1981) of 17 December 1981,

Recalling also its previous relevant resolutions, the most recent of which was resolution 68/84 of 11 December 2013,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General submitted in pursuance of resolution 68/84,

Recalling its previous relevant resolutions in which, inter alia, it called upon Israel to put an end to its occupation of the Arab territories,

Reaffirming once more the illegality of the decision of 14 December 1981 taken by Israel to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the occupied Syrian Golan, which has resulted in the effective annexation of that territory,

Reaffirming that the acquisition of territory by force is inadmissible under international law, including the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming also the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the occupied Syrian Golan,

Bearing in mind Security Council resolution 237(1967) of 14 June 1967,

Welcoming the convening at Madrid of the Peace Conference on the Middle East on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967 and 338(1973) of 22 October 1973 aimed at the realization of a just, comprehensive and lasting peace, and expressing grave concern about the stalling of the peace process on all tracks,

1. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to comply with the relevant resolutions on the occupied Syrian Golan, in particular Security Council resolution 497(1981), in which the Council, inter alia, decided that the Israeli decision to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the occupied Syrian Golan was null and void and without international legal effect and demanded that Israel, the occupying Power, rescind forthwith its decision;

2. Also calls upon Israel to desist from changing the physical character, demographic composition, institutional structure and legal status of the occupied Syrian Golan and in particular to desist from the establishment of settlements;

3. Determines that all legislative and administrative measures and actions taken or to be taken by Israel, the occupying Power, that purport to alter the character and legal status of the occupied Syrian Golan are null and void, constitute a flagrant violation of international law and of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and have no legal effect;

4. Calls upon Israel to desist from imposing Israeli citizenship and Israeli identity cards on the Syrian citizens in the occupied Syrian Golan, and from its repressive measures against the population of the occupied Syrian Golan;

5. Deplores the violations by Israel of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949;

6. Calls once again upon Member States not to recognize any of the legislative or administrative measures and actions referred to above;

UNDOF

The mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF), established by Security Council resolution 350(1974) [YUN 1974, p. 205] to supervise the observance of the ceasefire between Israel and Syria in the Syrian Golan and to ensure the separation of their forces, was renewed twice in 2014, in June and in December, each time for a six-month period.

To carry out its mandate, UNDOF maintained an area of separation, which was over 75 kilometres long and varied in width between approximately 10 kilometres in the centre to 200 metres in the extreme south. UNDOF headquarters was located at Camp Yafour, and an administrative office was maintained in Damascus. Logistics support to UNDOF was provided by Camp Ziouani, the alternate headquarters of the Force.

In 2014, the heavy fighting between the Syrian armed forces and armed groups close to the UNDOF headquarters in Camp Faouar and other positions in the central area of separation had two major consequences for the Force: the abduction by armed groups, on 28 August, of 45 of its peacekeepers, who were released unharmed on 11 September; and the relocation, between 13 and 15 September, of UNDOF personnel and military observers from several positions in the area of separation from the Syrian to the Israeli side, which significantly reduced the Force's ability to carry out its mandate, as agreed by the parties to the 1974 Agreement on Disengagement of Forces [YUN 1974, p. 198]. As at 12 November, UNDOF comprised 929 troops, including 30 women, from Fiji, India, Ireland, Nepal and the Netherlands, and 80 military observers, including one woman, from UNTSO. Philippines withdrew its contingent of 344 peacekeepers in September.

Communications. In a 12 February letter [A/68/763-S/2014/97] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Syria reported that, on 31 January, the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Israel had called for Israeli sovereignty over the Golan Heights. Syria emphasized that politically, legally and morally, it was unacceptable that Israel should be allowed to persist in its refusal to implement United Nations resolutions on ending the Israeli occupation of the Syrian Golan and the other occupied Arab territories, including Council resolution 497(1981).

In a 5 March letter [A/68/786-S/2014/156], Syria drew the attention of the Security Council to a violation of the Agreement on Disengagement between Israeli and Syrian Forces (Agreement) by Israel that had taken place the same day, and called on the Council to condemn unequivocally Israel's aggressions, which contravened international law and increased tension around the area of disengagement.

Report of Secretary-General (March). Pursuant to resolution 2131(2013) [YUN 2013, p. 457] and previous ones, the Secretary-General reported in March [S/2014/199] to the Security Council on UNDOF activities between 4 December 2013 and 10 March 2014.

The ceasefire between Israel and Syria was generally maintained. The Syrian armed forces continued to deploy personnel and equipment inside the area of separation and carried out military activities and security operations against armed members of the opposition in the UNDOF area of operation, in violation of the Agreement. Seven incidents of firing from the Syrian side into the area of separation and across the ceasefire line took place, while heavy clashes between the Syrian armed forces and armed members of the opposition continued. Incidents of note took place on 27 December, 13 and 29 January, and on 6 and 9 February.

On numerous occasions during periods of fighting between the Syrian armed forces and armed members of the opposition, United Nations personnel were forced to take shelter in their positions. UNDOF continued to observe and report instances of transborder movements of unidentified individuals between Lebanon and Syria in the northern part of the area of separation. The Force Commander maintained regular contact with IDF and the Senior Syrian Arab Delegate.

On 2 February, UNDOF vehicles carrying out a night movement that had been coordinated with the Senior Syrian Arab Delegate were fired upon by light and heavy machine gun fire, as the vehicles approached a Syrian armed forces checkpoint. There was no injury to United Nations peacekeepers, but some bullets hit the United Nations vehicles. The Force Commander strongly protested the incident to the Senior Syrian Arab Delegate, who stated that an investigation would be carried out, and that armed members of the opposition had been moving in the area at the same time, which may have prompted Syrian armed forces personnel to fire when the UNDOF vehicles approached the checkpoint.

During the reporting period, United Nations personnel encountered increased restrictions of movement and heightened risk, owing also to the placement of improvised explosive devices alongside roads in the area of separation. Within that challenging environment, UNDOF supervised the area of separation by manning static positions and conducting around-the-clock observation to ensure that the military forces of both parties were excluded from it. UNDOF, through Observer Group Golan, also continued to establish temporary observation posts in several locations along the ceasefire line.

As at 3 March, UNDOF comprised 1,240 troops, including 38 women, from Fiji, the Philippines, India, Ireland, Nepal and the Netherlands, and 86 military observers from UNTSO, including three women, who assisted the Force.

Communications. In letters sent on 19 and on 25 March [A/68/804-S/2014/201, A/68/814-S/2014/219], Syria informed the Secretary-General and the Security Council President of Israel's violations of the Agreement that occurred on 5, 18 and 19 March; and set out Syria's position regarding the March report (see above) of the Secretary-General on UNDOF.

On 3 June [S/2014/388], Israel, wrote to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, expressing its concern over the Syrian violation on 2 June of the 1974 Disengagement Agreement, when a 122-mm rocket was launched into the Israeli side of the Mount Hermon area.

Report of Secretary-General (June). In his June report [S/2014/401], the Secretary-General gave an account of UNDOF activities from 11 March to 28 May.

During the reporting period, the most significant violation since the conclusion of the Agreement occurred on 18 and 19 March, when IDF fired into the areas of separation and limitation on the Syrian side, which, according to Syrian authorities, resulted in the death of two Syrian soldiers and wounding 17 others. IDF fire was in response to what IDF claimed was the placing of an improvised explosive device in the Israeli-occupied Golan that injured four IDF soldiers. Further, on 19 March, IDF conducted air strikes on three Syrian armed forces locations on the Syrian side, and, on 23 and 24 April, a Syrian armed forces aircraft dropped a bomb in the area of separation. The investigation of UNDOF into the incidents could not establish whether the explosion that injured IDF soldiers on 18 March had resulted from a drifted mine or an improvised explosive device, while it found out that the 19 March Israeli air strikes had hit locations where Syrian armed or security forces were based.

The heavy fighting between the Syrian armed forces and armed members of the opposition that had started in UNDOF area of operation at the end of January, immediately adjacent to the area of separation, continued throughout the reporting period, interrupted only by short phases when fighting decreased. On numerous occasions, rounds landed inside or near United Nations positions, at times forcing United Nations personnel to take shelter.

During the reporting period, United Nations personnel encountered increased restrictions of movement and risk, owing also to the placement by armed members of the opposition of improvised explosive devices alongside roads in the area of separation. UNDOF continued to adapt its operational posture to the military activities of the Syrian armed forces and armed members of the opposition in its area of operation.

As at 23 May, UNDOF comprised 1,251 troops, including 47 women, from Fiji, the Philippines, India, Ireland, Nepal and the Netherlands, and 77 UNTSO military observers, including four women.

The Secretary-General underscored that a mix of factors was contributing to a volatile security situation, which further undermined the Agreement. It remained critical that both sides worked through UNDOF in case of incidents along or across the ceasefire line. He observed that the presence of Syrian armed forces and unauthorized military equipment in the area of separation were grave violations of the Agreement.

Communications. On 17 June [S/2014/415], in identical letters to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Israel expressed its concern about a statement included in the June report of the Secretary-General, namely that Israel had committed the most significant violation of the Disengagement Agreement since 1974. Stressing that it had acted in self-defence, Israel noted that, in the previous five months, it had incurred more intentional attacks than in the previous 40 years.

On 23 June [S/2014/434], Israel informed the Secretary-General and the Council President that an attack of the previous day from Syria into Israel had killed a 13-year-old boy and injured four others. Israel had shown restraint until that moment, but it could not be expected to stand by as its soldiers and citizens were targeted.

Also in a 23 June letter [A/68/913-S/2014/435], Syria informed the Security Council President of violations of the Disengagement Agreement by Israel that took place on 22 and 23 June, when tank and mortar shells and two rockets were fired, and five Israeli aircraft attacked Syrian law enforcement forces positions, killing four persons and wounding nine.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 June [meeting 7209], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2163(2014). The draft [S/2014/437] was submitted by the Russian Federation and the United States.

The Security Council,

Noting with concern that the situation in the Middle East is tense and is likely to remain so, unless and until a comprehensive settlement covering all aspects of the Middle East problem can be reached,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General of 10 June 2014 on the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force, and reaffirming its resolution 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000,

Stressing that both parties must abide by the terms of the disengagement of forces agreement of 31 May 1974 between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic and scrupulously observe the ceasefire,

Concurring with the findings of the Secretary-General that the ongoing military activities conducted by any actor in the area of separation continue to have the potential to escalate tensions between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic, jeopardize the ceasefire between the two countries, and pose a risk to the local civilian population and United Nations personnel on the ground,

Expressing grave concern at all violations of the disengagement of forces agreement,

Stressing that there should be no military forces in the area of separation other than those of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force,

Strongly condemning the recent intense fighting in the area of separation, and calling upon all parties to the Syrian domestic conflict to cease military actions in the area of operation of the Force, and further condemning the increased use by elements of the Syrian opposition and other groups of improvised explosive devices in the area of operation of the Force,

Condemning the use of heavy weapons by both the Syrian armed forces and armed members of the opposition in the ongoing Syrian conflict in the area of separation, including the use of tanks by the Syrian armed forces and opposition during clashes,

Condemning also the horrific crimes committed by some armed members of the opposition, and calling upon all parties to the ongoing conflict to respect international humanitarian law,

Echoing the Secretary-General's call upon all parties to the Syrian conflict to cease military actions throughout the country, including in the area of operation of the Force,

Strongly condemning the incidents threatening the safety and security of United Nations personnel in recent months,

Underscoring the need for the Force to have at its disposal all means and resources necessary to carry out its mandate safely and securely, and recalling that the theft of United Nations weapons and ammunition, vehicles and other assets, and the looting and destruction of United Nations facilities, are unacceptable,

Expressing its profound appreciation to the military and civilian personnel of the Force, including those from Observer Group Golan, for their service and continued contribution, in an increasingly challenging operating environment, underscoring the important contribution that the continued presence of the Force makes to peace and security in the Middle East, welcoming steps taken to enhance the safety and security of the personnel of the Force, including Observer Group Golan personnel, and stressing the need for continued vigilance to ensure the safety and security of Force and Observer Group Golan personnel,

1. Calls upon the parties concerned to implement immediately its resolution 338(1973) of 22 October 1973;

2. Stresses the obligation on both parties to scrupulously and fully respect the terms of the disengagement of forces agreement of 31 May 1974, calls upon the parties to exercise maximum restraint and prevent any breaches of the ceasefire and the area of separation, and underscores that there should be no military activity of any kind in the area of separation, including military operations by the Syrian Arab Armed Forces;

3. Underlines that there should be no military activity of the armed opposition groups in the area of separation, and urges Member States to convey strongly to the Syrian armed opposition groups in the area of operation of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force the need to halt all activities that endanger United Nations peacekeepers on the ground and to accord the United Nations personnel on the ground the freedom to carry out their mandate safely and securely;

4. Calls upon all parties to cooperate fully with the operations of the Force, to respect its privileges and immunities and to ensure its freedom of movement, as well as the security of and unhindered and immediate access for the United Nations personnel carrying out their mandate, including the unimpeded delivery of Force equipment and the temporary use of an alternative port of entry and departure, as required, to ensure safe and secure troop rotation activities, in conformity with existing agreements, and urges prompt reporting by the Secretary-General to the Security Council and troop-contributing countries of any actions that impede the ability of the Force to fulfil its mandate;

5. Welcomes the efforts being undertaken by the Force to implement the Secretary-General's zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and to ensure full compliance of its personnel with the United Nations code of conduct, requests the Secretary-General to continue to take all necessary action in this regard and to keep the Council informed, and urges troop-contributing countries to take preventive and disciplinary action to ensure that such acts are properly investigated and punished in cases involving their personnel;

6. Decides to renew the mandate of the Force for a period of six months, that is, until 31 December 2014, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Force has the required capacity and resources to fulfil the mandate in a safe and secure way;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report every 90 days on developments in the situation and the measures taken to implement resolution 338(1973).

Communication. In identical letters [S/2014/625] of 25 August, Israel informed the Secretary-General and the Council President about attacks launched at Israel from Syria on 24 and 25 August.

Report of Secretary-General (September). In September [S/2014/665], the Secretary-General reported on UNDOF activities between 29 May and 3 September. During the reporting period, the situation in the UNDOF area of operation was very volatile and was evolving rapidly, with heavy fighting continuing between the Syrian armed forces and the armed members of the opposition and other armed groups in the area of separation. Several UNDOF peacekeepers of the Fijian battalion were detained by armed elements. The ceasefire between Israel and Syria generally was maintained, but several incidents of firing across the ceasefire line occurred, resulting in casualties.

Syrian armed forces maintained a larger number of soldiers, and increased their heavy equipment inside the area of separation. In the morning of 27 August, approximately 100 members of several armed groups, including the Nusra Front, launched an attack on Syrian armed forces positions in the area of separation. UNDOF evacuated its personnel from the Charlie gate to Camp Ziouani—the alternate headquarters of the Force. Armed groups also engaged the Syrian armed forces in other positions, and, following several hours of heavy fighting, the armed elements gained control of the Bravo gate and other positions.

In the afternoon of the same day, eight armed fighters forcibly entered one of UNDOF positions while UNDOF personnel were in the shelter, and demanded that the United Nations personnel vacate the position to avoid injury in the ongoing fighting. The UNDOF personnel refused and remained in the shelter while the fighting continued. The Force Commander spoke to the leader of the armed fighters and requested that the armed elements vacate the position and not harm the United Nations peacekeepers. The armed fighters, however, remained inside the United Nations premises and continued their attack on the Syrian armed forces through the night. Some armed elements ransacked the position and took United Nations and personal items from it. The following day, the armed fighters who had remained at the position overnight demanded that the UNDOF personnel leave the position, leaving behind their vehicles. After the Force Commander gave orders for the United Nations personnel to vacate the position, the armed fighters took the weapons of the UNDOF personnel and then transported 45 UNDOF peacekeepers of the Fijian contingent to the area of the Bravo gate with the understanding that they would be allowed to cross to the Israeli-occupied side. The detained peacekeepers, however, were sent elsewhere and no additional information on their status or location was established.

Since the fierce fighting that started on 27 August, and the siege of two UNDOF positions, UNDOF Force Commander had been in close contact with the Senior Syrian Arab Delegate and IDF. Both parties provided full support to UNDOF in ensuring the safe evacuation of its peacekeepers from positions that had to be vacated as a result of the ongoing fighting. The Force Commander and Secretariat staff were also in ongoing contact with Member States that might have influence over the armed groups, in order to bring about the immediate, unconditional and safe release of the members of the Fijian contingent.

There were also incidents involving UNDOF patrols and considerable restrictions of movement and risk for United Nations personnel, owing to the placement of improvised explosive devices alongside roads in the area of separation by armed members of the opposition.

As at 2 September, UNDOF comprised 1,271 troops, including 48 women, from Fiji, the Philippines, India, Ireland, Nepal and the Netherlands, and 81 UNTSO military observers, including one woman.

The Secretary-General strongly condemned the forced removal of the Fijian peacekeepers from their position and their detention by armed elements, and called for their immediate, unconditional and safe release. Further, he noted that armed opposition groups and other armed groups had gained control of a large part of the area of separation, including a section of the main road connecting the two UNDOF camps—Camp Faouar and Camp Ziouani—and the crossing between the Israeli and the Syrian sides. The Secretary-General also expressed his concern about the firing of a cluster ammunition round, which was contrary to the Convention on Cluster Munitions of 2008 [YUN 2008, p. 623].

Communication. In identical letters [S/2014/667] to the Secretary-General and the Council President, dated 15 September, Syria set out its position regarding the September report (see above) of the Secretary-General, reiterating its commitment to the Disengagement Agreement; denouncing Israel's violations of the Agreement; and condemning the abduction of United Nations peacekeepers by armed terrorist groups. The United Nations had ignored the intelligence provided by Syria and had failed to react, thus encouraging the groups to persist in their acts.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 19 September [meeting 7270], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2014/19 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms the importance of maintaining the disengagement of forces agreement of 31 May 1974 between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic. The Council stresses that, despite the latest security challenges and the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force's temporary relocation of the majority of its personnel across the Alpha line, both parties must remain committed to the terms of the disengagement of forces agreement and scrupulously observe the ceasefire and the separation of forces. The Council also urges both parties to continue to offer support to the Force during this period of heightened security threats, and to offer the Force and the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization-Observers Group Golan safe passage and resupply when requested.

The Council also reaffirms its unconditional support for the Force and the importance of maintaining the Force as a vital contributor to peace and security in the Middle East. The Council notes with concern the deteriorating security situation in the area of operation of the Force due to the ongoing Syrian conflict and the activities of several non-State armed actors, including Al-Nusra Front, and the risk it poses to the disengagement of forces agreement and to United Nations peacekeepers serving there. In this connection, the Council recognizes the necessity of efforts to flexibly adjust the posture of the Force to minimize risk to United Nations personnel as the Force continues to implement its mandate, while emphasizing that the ultimate goal is for the peacekeepers to return to their positions in the area of operation of the Force as soon as practicable.

The Council condemns recent hostile acts against United Nations peacekeepers in the area of operation of the Force by terrorist groups and non-State armed actors designated by the Council and stresses that there can never be any justification for these attacks on and detention of United Nations peacekeepers. The Council is deeply concerned that firing in close proximity to United Nations positions and camps also significantly increases risk to United Nations personnel. To this end, the Council demands that all groups other than the Force must abandon all Force positions and the Qunaytirah crossing point and return the peacekeepers' vehicles, weapons and other equipment. The Council reiterates that the mandate, impartiality, operations, safety and security of the Force must be respected. The Council calls upon all parties to allow the Force to operate freely and to ensure full security of its personnel and full implementation of the 1974 agreement.

The Council commends peacekeepers of the Force and the United Nations Truce Supervision Operation-Observers Group Golan for their bravery in facing the threats and challenges in their area of operation, and extends its appreciation to the troop-contributing countries. The Council notes the importance of maintaining the force strength and self-defence resources of the Force at the level necessary to carry out its important mandate and to retain its quick reaction and counter-improvised explosive device capabilities, which have proved indispensable in the face of a changing security environment.

The Council urges Member States with influence to convey strongly to non-State armed actors in this area the need to halt immediately all activities that endanger United Nations peacekeepers on the ground and impede them in the implementation of their duties as mandated by the Council. The Council recalls the obligation of all Member States to ensure that any person who participates in the financing, planning, preparation or perpetration of terrorist acts or in supporting terrorist acts is brought to justice and notes the importance of this obligation with respect to terrorist acts directed against United Nations peacekeepers.

The Council requests that the Secretary-General provide an update within 30 days on steps necessary to maintain the ability of the Force to carry out its mandate, including options for monitoring the ceasefire and the separation of forces even under circumstances when security conditions constrain the Force from fully operating in the area of separation and the area of limitation on the Bravo side, and to keep the Council updated on ways it can support the continuation of this vital mission.

Report of Secretary-General (December). In November [S/2014/859], the Secretary-General reported on UNDOF activities between 4 September and 19 November. During the reporting period, the heavy fighting between Syrian armed forces and various armed groups, including the Nusra Front, in the areas of limitation and separation, which had started in late August, intensified. Between 13 and 15 September, the significant deterioration of the security situation necessitated the temporary relocation of UNDOF personnel and military observers from a few remaining positions in the area of separation to the Israeli-occupied side. The Syrian armed forces carried out more than 40 air strikes in the days immediately following the UNDOF relocation, targeting several locations in the areas of separation and limitation.

On 11 September, the 45 UNDOF peacekeepers, who had been detained since 28 August, were released unharmed to UNDOF.

During the reporting period, the Syrian armed forces withdrew from additional positions and checkpoints in the areas of separation and limitation, leaving armed groups in control of more territory in UNDOF area of operations. Further to the presidential statement of 19 September (see above), the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, in coordination with UNDOF, held consultations with the parties to the Disengagement Agreement on the necessary steps to maintain the ability of UNDOF to carry out its mandate.

The Department also held consultations with Israel and Syria in New York on the reconfiguration and activities of UNDOF. Both parties expressed their commitment to the Disengagement Agreement and the continuation of UNDOF with its established mandate; regarded the relocation of UNDOF from Camp Faouar and other positions as a temporary measure; and expressed the desire to see the full return of UNDOF to the area of separation, when the security conditions allowed.

Following the decision by the Philippines to withdraw its contingent, 344 Philippine peacekeepers left the mission between 18 and 27 September. As at 12 November, UNDOF comprised 929 troops, including 30 women, from Fiji, India, Ireland, Nepal and the Netherlands, and 80 UNTSO military observers, including one woman.

The Secretary-General recommended that the Security Council extend the mandate of UNDOF for further six months, until 30 June 2015, a decision to which both Syria and Israel agreed.

Communication. In identical letters [S/2014/885] to the Secretary-General and the Council President, dated 11 December, Syria set out its position regarding the Secretary-General's December report (see above). Syria stressed that the occupied Syrian Golan was an integral part of Syria and, therefore, UNDOF was present until Israel's occupation came to an end in accordance with relevant Council resolutions. Syria welcomed the fact that the report had documented the crimes committed in the area of separation by armed terrorist groups, including the Nusrah Front, and that the report had recognized such groups' responsibility for the deteriorating situation in the area. Syria, however, said that the Council needed to counteract the States that supported the armed terrorist groups, in order to drive such groups out of the area of separation.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 18 December [meeting 7346], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 2192(2014). The draft [S/2014/904] was submitted by the Russian Federation and the United States.

The Security Council,

Noting with concern that the situation in the Middle East is tense and is likely to remain so, unless and until a comprehensive settlement covering all aspects of the Middle East problem can be reached,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General of 28 November 2014 on the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force, and reaffirming its resolution 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000,

Stressing that both parties must abide by the terms of the disengagement of forces agreement of 31 May 1974 between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic and scrupulously observe the ceasefire,

Concurring with the findings of the Secretary-General that the ongoing military activities conducted by any actor in the area of separation continue to have the potential to escalate tensions between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic, jeopardize the ceasefire between the two countries, and pose a risk to the local civilian population and United Nations personnel on the ground,

Expressing grave concern at all violations of the disengagement of forces agreement,

Stressing that there should be no military forces in the area of separation other than those of the Force,

Strongly condemning the recent intense fighting in the area of separation, calling upon all parties to the Syrian domestic conflict to cease military actions in the area of operation of the Force and to respect international humanitarian law, and further condemning the use by armed Syrian extremist groups of improvised explosive devices in the area of operation of the Force,

Condemning the use of heavy weapons by both the Syrian armed forces and armed groups in the ongoing Syrian conflict in the area of separation, including the use of tanks by the Syrian armed forces and opposition during clashes,

Echoing the Secretary-General's call upon all parties to the Syrian domestic conflict to cease military actions throughout the country, including in the area of operation of the Force,

Strongly condemning the incidents threatening the safety and security of United Nations personnel in recent months, including the detention of 45 Force peacekeepers by Al-Nusrah Front, stressing that there can never be any justification for these attacks on and detention of United Nations peacekeepers, and emphasizing the need to hold those responsible accountable,

Reaffirming its readiness to consider listing individuals, groups, undertakings and entities providing support to Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant or to Al-Nusrah Front, including those who are financing, arming, planning or recruiting for Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant or Al-Nusrah Front and all other individuals, groups, undertakings and entities associated with Al-Qaida under the Al-Qaida sanctions regime pursuant to resolutions 1267(1999) of 15 October 1999 and 1989(2011) of 17 June 2011, including those participating in or otherwise supporting attacks against United Nations peacekeepers, Recognizing the necessity of efforts to flexibly adjust the posture of the Force on a temporary basis to minimize the security risk to United Nations personnel as the Force continues to implement its mandate, while emphasizing that the ultimate goal is for the peacekeepers to return to their positions in the area of operation of the Force as soon as practicable,

Underscoring the need for the Force to have at its disposal all means and resources necessary to carry out its mandate safely and securely, and recalling that the theft of United Nations weapons and ammunition, vehicles and other assets and the looting and destruction of United Nations facilities are unacceptable,

Expressing its profound appreciation to the military and civilian personnel of the Force, including those from Observer Group Golan, for their service and continued contribution in an increasingly challenging operating environment, underscoring the important contribution that the continued presence of the Force makes to peace and security in the Middle East, welcoming steps taken to enhance the safety and security of personnel of the Force, including Observer Group Golan personnel, and stressing the need for continued vigilance to ensure the safety and security of Force and Observer Group Golan personnel,

1. Calls upon the parties concerned to implement immediately its resolution 338(1973) of 22 October 1973;

2. Stresses the obligation on both parties to scrupulously and fully respect the terms of the disengagement of forces agreement of 31 May 1974, calls upon the parties to exercise maximum restraint and prevent any breaches of the ceasefire and the area of separation, and underscores that there should be no military activity of any kind in the area of separation, including military operations by the Syrian Arab Armed Forces;

3. Underlines that there should be no military activity of the armed opposition groups in the area of separation, and urges Member States to convey strongly to the Syrian armed opposition groups in the area of operation of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force the need to halt all activities that endanger United Nations peacekeepers on the ground and to accord the United Nations personnel on the ground the freedom to carry out their mandate safely and securely;

4. Calls upon all groups other than the Force to abandon all Force positions and the Qunaytirah crossing point and to return the peacekeepers' vehicles, weapons and other equipment;

5. Calls upon all parties to cooperate fully with the operations of the Force, to respect its privileges and immunities and to ensure its freedom of movement, as well as the security of and unhindered and immediate access for the United Nations personnel carrying out their mandate, including the unimpeded delivery of Force equipment and the temporary use of alternative ports of entry and departure, as required, to ensure safe and secure troop rotation and resupply activities, in conformity with existing agreements, and urges prompt reporting by the Secretary-General to the Security Council and troop-contributing countries of any actions that impede the ability of the Force to fulfil its mandate;

6. Welcomes the efforts being undertaken by the Force to implement the Secretary-General's zero-tolerance policy on sexual exploitation and abuse and to ensure full compliance of its personnel with the United Nations code of conduct, requests the Secretary-General to continue to take all necessary action in this regard and to keep the Council informed, and urges troop-contributing countries to take preventive and disciplinary action to ensure that such acts are properly investigated and punished in cases involving their personnel;

7. Decides to renew the mandate of the Force for a period of six months, that is, until 30 June 2015, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Force has the required capacity and resources to fulfil the mandate in a safe and secure way;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to report every 90 days on developments in the situation and the measures taken to implement resolution 338(1973).

Financing

The General Assembly had before it the performance report of UNDOF from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013 [A/68/596], which showed expenditures amounting to $46,238,700 gross ($45,059,900 net) against an appropriation of $45,992,000 gross ($44,929,300 net). The budget provided for the deployment of 1,047 military contingent personnel, 46 international staff and 110 national staff. The Assembly also considered the Secretary-General's report [A/68/725] containing the budget for the period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, which amounted to $62,417,100 gross ($60,930,600 net) providing for the deployment of 1,284 military contingent personnel, 58 international staff (including 12 temporary positions) and 110 national staff.

In May [A/68/782/Add.6], ACABQ recommended that the unencumbered balance of $4,500 for the period from 1 July 2012 to 30 June 2013, as well as other income and adjustments in the amount of $663,700, for the period ended 30 June 2013, be credited to Member States. It also recommended that the General Assembly appropriate an amount of $62,394,900 for the maintenance of UNDOF for the 12-month period from 1 July 2014 to 30 June 2015, should the Security Council decide to extend the mandate of UNDOF beyond 30 June 2014.

The United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO) was the first ever peacekeeping operation

established by the United Nations. It was originally set up to monitor the ceasefire called for by Security Council resolution S/801 of 29 May 1948 [YUN 1947–1948, p. 427] in the newly partitioned Palestine. In 2014, UNTSO continued its work through its military observers who fulfilled evolving mandates—from supervising the four armistice agreements between Israel and its neighbours (Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Syrian Arab Republic) to monitoring other ceasefires, as well as performing other tasks. During the year, UNTSO personnel also worked with the two other peacekeeping forces in the area: the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) and the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

UNTSO operated under a UN regular budget appropriation of $74,291,900 million for the 2013–2014 period.

Disarmament

Progress in nuclear disarmament was not reflected in the work of key United Nations disarmament bodies—the Disarmament Commission, the Conference on Disarmament and the General Assembly’s First Committee. The Conference on Disarmament was unable to commence substantive negotiations based on an agreed programme of work, while the Disarmament Commission ended a third consecutive three-year cycle without agreement on matters of substance. Nevertheless, 2014 was also a year of highlights. The Arms Trade Treaty entered into force on 24 December, marking the opening of a new chapter in collective efforts to bring responsibility, accountability and transparency to the global arms trade. Another significant achievement was the removal and destruction of the Syrian Arab Republic’s declared chemical-weapon stockpile under the auspices of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons–United Nations Joint Mission for the Elimination of the Chemical Weapons Programme of the Syrian Arab Republic.

The General Assembly continued its efforts to promote disarmament, including through observing the first International Day for the Total Elimination of Nuclear Weapons on 26 September and establishing the Group of Governmental Experts for a treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices. All nuclear-weapon States signed the protocol to the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia that would, when ratified, provide binding negative security assurances to States parties. The Assembly decided to convene in New York in 2015 the third Conference of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia to promote coordination and convergence in the implementation of the provisions of those treaties and in strengthening the regime of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation. On the other hand, nuclear-armed States continued to modernize their nuclear arsenals and, in the case of some nuclear-armed States, expand them.

The humanitarian approach to nuclear disarmament gathered renewed momentum. During the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly, in the First Committee, a total of 155 States endorsed the joint statement on the humanitarian consequences of nuclear weapons proposed by New Zealand, and 20 States endorsed the separate joint statement made by Australia. The tenth anniversary of Security Council resolution 1540(2004), designed to prevent non-State actors from acquiring weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery, was observed on 28 April. It provided an important opportunity to review the status of the resolution and to look forward. In commemoration of the tenth anniversary, the Council held a meeting on 7 May entitled “Non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction”, during which 60 States expressed their support for the effective implementation of resolution 1540(2004). The third Nuclear Security Summit (The Hague, Netherlands, 24–25 March) issued The Hague Summit’s Communiqué which reaffirmed the fundamental responsibility of States to maintain effective security of all nuclear and other radioactive materials, including those used in nuclear weapons and facilities under their control. The Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons completed its work and made recommendations to the Conference.

The United Nations regional centres for peace and disarmament continued to help with capacity-building measures for preventing the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons, while also assisting Member States and key stakeholders in implementing Security Council resolution 1540(2004).

UN machinery

Disarmament issues before the United Nations were considered mainly through the Security Council, the General Assembly and its First (Disarmament and International Security) Committee, the Disarmament Commission (a deliberative body) and the Conference on Disarmament (a multilateral negotiating forum which met in Geneva). The Organization also maintained efforts to engage civil society organizations concerned with disarmament issues.

The United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs provided substantive and organizational support to UN bodies, fostered disarmament measures and disseminated impartial and up-to-date information.

UN Office for Disarmament Affairs

The United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs (UNODA) continued to provide for norm-setting in disarmament through the work of the General Assembly and its First Committee, the Disarmament Commission, the Conference on Disarmament and other bodies. It fostered disarmament measures, encouraged regional disarmament efforts, provided information on multilateral disarmament and reinforced the Organization's advocacy potential in disarmament and non-proliferation. The Office maintained regional centres for Africa, Asia and the Pacific, and Latin America and the Caribbean.

In the area of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation, UNODA organized and supported activities to facilitate the preparation and implementation of national plans for further implementation of Security Council resolution 1540(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 544]. It also produced, in cooperation with the Department of Public Information, a short film entitled Weapons of mass destruction: threats and global responses to promote resolution 1540(2004) on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of its adoption. With respect to conventional weapons, UNODA promoted the online reporting facility, "The Global Arms Trade", for use by Member States. It continued its advocacy of disarmament and non-proliferation issues with Member States and civil society, and expanded its interaction with the media, think tanks and civil society organizations.

During the year, UNODA issued its flagship publication, The United Nations Disarmament Yearbook (Sales Nos. E.14.IX.7 and E.14.IX.9).

Fourth special session devoted to disarmament

On 2 December (decision 69/518), the General Assembly, by recorded vote (175-0-4), decided to hold at a later date an organizational session of the Open-ended Working Group on the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament for the purpose of setting a date for its substantive session in 2015 and 2016. The Working Group had to submit a report on its work, including possible substantive recommendations, before the end of the Assembly's seventy-first (2016) session. The Assembly included the item on the convening of the fourth special session in the provisional agenda of its seventieth (2015) session.

Disarmament Commission

In 2014, the Disarmament Commission, comprising all UN Member States, held six plenary meetings (New York, 7–25 April) [A/69/42]. The main agenda items included recommendations for achieving the objective of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, addressed by the Commission's Working Group I; and practical confidence-building measures in the field of conventional weapons, addressed by Working Group II. Working Group I held eight meetings from 9 to 24 April, during which it considered the Chair's three working papers, as well as working papers submitted by Indonesia on behalf of the Non-Aligned Movement; Iraq on behalf of the League of Arab States; and Mexico. On 24 April, the Chair concluded that there was no consensus on the working paper and decided to circulate it under his own responsibility and without prejudice to the position of any delegation. Working Group II held 10 meetings from 10 to 24 April, during which it discussed the Chair's non-paper on the subject, which was later revised. On 24 April, the Working Group was unable to achieve consensus on the Chair's third revised non-paper; and was informed that the Chair's non-paper would be issued as a working paper under his own responsibility and without prejudice to the position of any delegation. The Commission adopted the reports of its subsidiary bodies and the conclusions contained therein. No recommendations were put forward by the Commission.

On 25 April, the Disarmament Commission adopted its report to be presented to the General Assembly at its sixty ninth session.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/442], adopted resolution 69/77 without vote [agenda item 98 (b)].

Report of the Disarmament Commission

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Disarmament Commission,

Recalling its resolutions 47/54 A of 9 December 1992, 47/54 G of 8 April 1993, 48/77 A of 16 December 1993, 49/77 A of 15 December 1994, 50/72 D of 12 December 1995, 51/47 B of 10 December 1996, 52/40 B of 9 December 1997, 53/79 A of 4 December 1998, 54/56 A of 1 December 1999, 55/35 C of 20 November 2000, 56/26 A of 29 November 2001, 57/95 of 22 November 2002, 58/67 of 8 December 2003, 59/105 of 3 December 2004, 60/91 of 8 December 2005, 61/98 of 6 December 2006, 62/54 of 5 December 2007, 63/83 of 2 December 2008, 64/65 of 2 December 2009, 65/86 of 8 December 2010, 66/60 of 2 December 2011, 67/71 of 3 December 2012 and 68/63 of 5 December 2013,

Considering the role that the Disarmament Commission has been called upon to play and the contribution that it should make in examining and submitting recommendations on various problems in the field of disarmament and in promoting the implementation of the relevant decisions adopted by the General Assembly at its tenth special session,

Recalling in particular General Assembly resolution 45/62 B of 4 December 1990, in which it noted with satisfaction the adoption by consensus of a set of "Ways and means to enhance the functioning of the Disarmament Commission", Assembly decision 52/492 of 8 September 1998 concerning the efficient functioning of the Commission and Assembly resolution 61/98, which contains additional measures for improving the effectiveness of the methods of work of the Commission,

Reaffirming the mandate of the Disarmament Commission as the specialized, deliberative subsidiary body of the General Assembly that allows for in-depth deliberations on specific disarmament issues, leading to the submission of concrete recommendations on those issues, and recalling that the Commission shall make every effort to ensure that, in so far as possible, decisions on substantive issues be adopted by consensus, as set forth in paragraph 118 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly,

Emphasizing once again the important place of the Disarmament Commission within the United Nations multilateral disarmament machinery,

1. Takes note of the report of the Disarmament Commission;

2. Reaffirms the importance of further enhancing the dialogue and cooperation among the First Committee, the Disarmament Commission and the Conference on Disarmament, notes that the Commission has not submitted any substantive recommendations to the General Assembly in the course of the past 15 years, and thus encourages the revitalization of the work of the Commission in its upcoming triennial cycle;

3. Emphasizes the need for a focused and results-oriented discussion on the items on the agenda of the Disarmament Commission;

4. Requests the Disarmament Commission to continue its work in accordance with its mandate, as set forth in paragraph 118 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, and with paragraph 3 of Assembly resolution 37/78 H of 9 December 1982 and to that end to make every effort to achieve specific recommendations on the items on its agenda, taking into account the adopted "Ways and means to enhance the functioning of the Disarmament Commission";

5. Recommends that the Disarmament Commission intensify consultations with a view to reaching agreement on the items on its agenda, in accordance with General Assembly decision 52/492, before the start of its substantive session of 2015, providing for focused deliberations and keeping in mind the proposal to include a third agenda item;

6. Encourages the Disarmament Commission to invite, as appropriate, the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research to prepare background papers on the items on its agenda and, if need be, other disarmament experts to present their views, as provided for in paragraph 3 (e) of resolution 61/98, upon the invitation of the Chair and with the prior approval of the Commission;

7. Requests the Disarmament Commission to meet for a period not exceeding three weeks during 2015, namely from 6 to 24 April, and to submit a substantive report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session, and stresses that the report of the Commission should contain a summary by the Chair of the proceedings to reflect different views or positions if no agreement can be reached on the specific agenda item deliberated on, as provided for in paragraph 3.4 of the adopted "Ways and means to enhance the functioning of the Disarmament Commission";

8. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure full provision to the Disarmament Commission and its subsidiary bodies of interpretation and translation facilities in the official languages and to assign, as a matter of priority, all the resources and services necessary, including verbatim records, to that end, and also requests the Secretary-General to transmit to the Commission the annual report of the Conference on Disarmament on its 2014 Session, together with all the official records of the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly relating to disarmament matters, and to render all assistance that the Commission may require for implementing the present resolution;

9. Invites Member States to submit their views and proposals on the matter early enough to enable practical consultations among them prior to the beginning of the substantive session of 2015 of the Disarmament Commission, with a view to facilitating its constructive outcome, and in this regard encourages the Chair-designate to commence consultations and preparations for the substantive session of 2015 in a timely manner upon his or her nomination;

10. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session, under the item entitled "Review of the implementation of the recommendations and decisions adopted by the General Assembly at its tenth special session", the sub-item entitled "Report of the Disarmament Commission".

Conference on Disarmament

The Conference on Disarmament, a multilateral negotiating body, held 28 formal and 29 informal plenary meetings (Geneva, 20 January–28 March, 12 May–27 June, and 28 July–12 September) [A/69/27]. The Conference considered the cessation of the nuclear arms race and nuclear disarmament (see p. 620); prevention of nuclear war (ibid.); prevention of an arms race in outer space (see p. 678); effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons (see p. 623); new types of weapons of mass destruction (WMDs) and new systems of such weapons: radiological weapons (see p. 640); comprehensive programme of disarmament (see p. 612); and transparency in armaments (see p. 677).

On 21 January [CD/PV.1302], while addressing the Conference, the Secretary-General expressed his hope that the Conference—as the sole standing body on disarmament negotiations—would make 2014 a year of creativity and action. He noted that there was progress on which to build—as the open-ended working group, which convened in Geneva in 2013, had generated some new thinking on the way forward. The Secretary-General suggested that while the Conference continued to seek a path towards renewed disarmament negotiations, it was important that it developed treaty frameworks and proposals through structured discussions. Laying such a foundation for future negotiations would be a concrete first step towards revalidating the relevance of the Conference. He hoped the Conference could make good progress before the third preparatory meeting for the 2015 Review Conference on the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT), as that would significantly boost morale for that important event.

The Conference concluded its 2014 session without reaching consensus on a programme of work. It decided to hold its 2015 session between January and

September, and requested the current and incoming Presidents to conduct intersessional consultations and to make recommendations, taking into account relevant proposals, views and discussions.

On 10 September, the Conference adopted its report [CD/2004] for submission to the General Assembly.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/442], adopted resolution 69/76 without vote [agenda item 98 (a)].

Report of the Conference on Disarmament

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Conference on Disarmament,

Convinced that the Conference on Disarmament, as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating forum of the international community, has the primary role in substantive negotiations on priority questions of disarmament,

Recognizing the message of the Secretary-General of the United Nations, as well as the addresses of Ministers for Foreign Affairs and other high-level officials in the Conference on Disarmament, as expressions of support and concern for the endeavours of the Conference and as calls for the Conference to immediately commence negotiations to advance disarmament goals through the adoption of a balanced and comprehensive programme of work,

Recognizing also the need to conduct multilateral negotiations with the aim of reaching agreement on concrete issues, and considering that the present international climate should give additional impetus to multilateral negotiations,

Noting with renewed concern that, despite the intensive efforts by States members and successive Presidents of the Conference on Disarmament in the 2014 session to reach consensus on a programme of work on the basis of relevant proposals and suggestions, the Conference did not succeed in commencing its substantive work, including negotiations, as called for by the General Assembly in its resolution 68/64 of 5 December 2013, or in agreeing on and implementing a programme of work,

Recalling, in this respect, that the Conference on Disarmament has a number of urgent and important issues for negotiation to achieve disarmament goals,

Welcoming the overwhelming call for greater flexibility with respect to commencing the substantive work of the Conference on Disarmament without further delay, on the basis of a balanced and comprehensive programme of work,

Appreciating the continued cooperation among the States members of the Conference on Disarmament as well as the six successive Presidents of the Conference at its 2014 session,

Noting with appreciation the significant contributions made during the 2014 session to promote substantive discussions on issues on the agenda, including the informal discussions held pursuant to the decision contained in document CD/1978, and noting the discussions on the functioning of the Conference on Disarmament, as well as the discussions held on other issues that could also be relevant to the current international security environment,

Emphasizing the importance of the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research, as a stand-alone, autonomous institution, and the contribution that its research makes,

Recognizing the importance of engagement between civil society and the Conference on Disarmament according to decisions taken by the Conference,

Stressing the urgent need for the Conference on Disarmament to commence its substantive work at the beginning of its 2015 session,

1. Reaffirms the role of the Conference on Disarmament as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating forum of the international community;

2. Appreciates the strong support expressed for the Conference on Disarmament during its 2014 session by Ministers for Foreign Affairs and other high-level officials, while also acknowledging their concern about its ongoing impasse, and takes into account their calls for greater flexibility with respect to commencing the substantive work of the Conference without further delay;

3. Calls upon the Conference on Disarmament to further intensify consultations and to explore possibilities for overcoming its ongoing deadlock of well over a decade by adopting and implementing a balanced and comprehensive programme of work at the earliest possible date during its 2015 session, bearing in mind the decision on the programme of work adopted by the Conference on 29 May 2009, as well as other relevant present, past and future proposals;

4. Welcomes the decision of the Conference on Disarmament to re-establish the informal working group with a mandate to produce a programme of work robust in substance and progressive over time in implementation, and appreciates the efforts of the Co-Chair and Vice Co-Chair of the informal working group;

5. Also welcomes the fact that the Conference on Disarmament, pursuant to document CD/1978, held a series of structured and substantive informal discussions on all items on the agenda of the Conference;

6. Further welcomes the decision of the Conference on Disarmament to request the current President and the incoming President of the Conference to conduct consultations during the intersessional period and, if possible, to make recommendations, taking into account all relevant proposals, past, present and future, including those submitted as documents of the Conference, views presented and discussions held, and to endeavour to keep the membership of the Conference informed, as appropriate, of their consultations;

7. Requests all States members of the Conference on Disarmament to cooperate with the current President and successive Presidents in their efforts to guide the Conference to the early commencement of its substantive work, including negotiations, in its 2015 session;

8. Recognizes the importance of continuing consultations in 2015 on the question of the expansion of the membership of the Conference on Disarmament;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to ensure and to strengthen, if needed, the provision to the Conference on Disarmament of all necessary administrative, substantive and conference support services;

10. Requests the Conference on Disarmament to submit to the General Assembly at its seventieth session a report on its work;

11. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session, under the item entitled “Review of the implementation of the recommendations and decisions adopted by the General Assembly at its tenth special session”, the sub-item entitled “Report of the Conference on Disarmament”.

Also on the same day (decision 69/519), the Assembly decided to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth (2015) session the item entitled “Revitalizing the work of the Conference on Disarmament and taking forward multilateral disarmament negotiations”.

Comprehensive programme of disarmament

The Conference on Disarmament discussed agenda item 6, “Comprehensive Programme of Disarmament”, in informal plenary meetings (25–26 June). Delegations reaffirmed or further elaborated their respective positions on the agenda item.

UN role in disarmament

Disarmament and development

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 68/37 [YUN 2013, p. 466], the Secretary-General submitted a July report [A/69/152] regarding trends to further strengthen within the United Nations the relationship between disarmament and development. The report contained information received from 12 countries (Albania, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Iraq, Mexico, Panama, Portugal, Qatar, Spain, Ukraine) on measures to devote part of the resources made available by the implementation of disarmament and arms limitation agreements to economic and social development. Within the United Nations, the main coordination mechanisms on issues relating to arms and development remained the United Nations Mine Action Team, the Coordinating Action on Small Arms, and the Inter-Agency Working Group on Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration.

The Secretary-General said that the United Nations continued to implement the recommendations contained in key documents on disarmament and development, including the action programme adopted at the 1987 International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development [YUN 1987, p. 82], and the 2004 report of the Group of Governmental Experts on the relationship between disarmament and development [YUN 2004, p. 579]. In recent years, it had broadened the scope of disarmament and arms regulation efforts to address the social and economic impact of the use of conventional weapons, their proliferation and accumulation and the illicit trade, in particular, in small arms. The 2013 Arms Trade Treaty [YUN 2013, p. 507] explicitly acknowledged the interlinkage between development and, peace and security and human rights, as well as the security, social, economic and humanitarian consequences of the illicit and unregulated trade in conventional weapons. The Treaty would provide a framework for international cooperation and capacity-building regarding the prevention of diversion and questionable transfers. Given the direct impact that armed violence could have on achieving agreed goals pertaining to development, a goal related to peace and security needed to be high on the agenda when looking ahead towards the post-2015 development framework (see p. 960).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/56 without vote [agenda item 96 (ii)].

Relationship between disarmament and development

The General Assembly,

Recalling that the Charter of the United Nations envisages the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources,

Recalling also the provisions of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly concerning the relationship between disarmament and development, as well as the adoption on 11 September 1987 of the Final Document of the International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development,

Bearing in mind the new challenges for the international community in the fields of development, poverty eradication and the elimination of the diseases that afflict humanity,

Stressing the importance of the symbiotic relationship between disarmament and development and the important role of security in this connection, and concerned at increasing global military expenditure, which could otherwise be spent on development needs,

Recalling the report of the Group of Governmental Experts on the relationship between disarmament and development and its reappraisal of this significant issue in the current international context,

Bearing in mind the importance of following up on the implementation of the action programme adopted at the 1987 International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development,

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on the implementation of the present resolution, including the information provided by Member States pursuant to paragraph 6 above;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session, under the item entitled "General and complete disarmament", the sub-item entitled "Relationship between disarmament and development".

Women and disarmament

In response to General Assembly resolution 68/33 [YUN 2013, p. 467], the Secretary-General submitted a report on women, disarmament, non-proliferation and arms control [A/69/114 & Add.I] containing the replies of 16 Member States, the European Union, and six UN organizations to his request for their views on ways and means of promoting the role of women in those areas.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/61 by recorded vote (183-0-0) [agenda item 96 (r)].

Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters

The Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters, which advised the Secretary-General and served as the Board of Trustees of the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research (UNIDIR), held its sixty-first (New York, 5–7 March) and sixty-second (Geneva, 2–4 July) sessions. The Board considered the disarmament and security implications of emerging technologies and verification, with a special focus on new verification technologies. A report of the Secretary-General [A/69/208] summarized the Board’s deliberations.

The Advisory Board recommended that the Secretary-General commission a study to examine the distinction between armed/military drones and unarmed/peaceful/civilian drones, and such ideas as improving transparency in targeted unmanned aerial vehicle strikes as a confidence-building measure and developing a robust oversight and accountability mechanisms for targeted strikes outside active battlefields. The proposed study should also consider international humanitarian law and how relevant principles, such as distinction, proportionality and military necessity should be applied to avoid excessive injurious or indiscriminate effects. The Secretary-General should include in the study a broader range of emerging technologies that might have an impact on international security and the arms control process, including in the field of outer space; encourage international and regional organizations to engage in and discuss the issue of emerging technologies; encourage Member States to take into account their responsibility and obligation to the wider international community when using such technologies, given the absence of international regulation; encourage States to develop and implement relevant inter-State transparency and confidence-building measures; use his authority to promote the importance of developing new verification technologies for the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and encourage States to share such technologies; and encourage Member States to share information derived from national technical means to enhance verification with multilateral organizations.

The Advisory Board recommended that the Secretary-General foster more active and constructive interaction and cooperation among existing organizations based on extensive verification regimes through information- and experience-sharing, and should consider convening a meeting of the relevant organizations to discuss cooperation. The Secretary-General should encourage Member States with the requisite means to assist other States, in particular developing countries, with capacity-building in monitoring and verification; and convene a new Panel of Government experts on verification in all its aspects, with a focus on the role of new verification technologies.

Serving as the Board of Trustees of UNIDIR, the Advisory Board approved the Institute’s workplan and budget for 2014–2015, as well as the submission to the General Assembly of the report of the Institute’s Director on its activities and financial status.

Nuclear disarmament

In response to General Assembly resolutions 68/40 [YUN 2013, p. 469], 68/42 [ibid., p. 479] and 68/47 [ibid., p. 472], the Secretary-General submitted a July report, with later addendum [A/69/131 & Add.1] on nuclear disarmament. He observed that Governments and civil society had carried forward efforts to achieve a world without nuclear weapons, including through major international initiatives to promote the humanitarian approach to nuclear disarmament and to take forward multilateral disarmament negotiations. Mexico hosted the second Conference on the Humanitarian Impact of Nuclear Weapons (Nayarit, 13–14 February), which concluded that beyond the immediate death and destruction caused by a detonation, socioeconomic development would be hampered, the environment damaged and suffering would be widespread, especially for the poor and most vulnerable.

The international community made some progress towards the consolidation and further establishment of nuclear-weapon-free zones. On 6 May, on the margins of the third session of the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the nuclear-weapon States (China, France, Russian Federation, United Kingdom, United States) signed the Protocol to the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia [YUN 2006, p. 645], providing legally binding assurance that they would respect the application of the Treaty and neither use, nor threaten to use, nuclear weapons against the parties to the Treaty. The signing of the Protocol marked an important milestone towards the consolidation of the zone. The third preparatory meeting for the third Conference of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia was held on 7 May in New York.

Nuclear-weapon States continued to implement commitments on nuclear disarmament, principally by promoting greater transparency through multilateral and unilateral means and implementing their treaty obligations. At their fifth conference (Beijing, 14–15 April), the nuclear-weapon States reaffirmed their commitment to the shared goal of nuclear disarmament and to general and complete disarmament, and emphasized the importance of joint efforts in implementing the actions agreed to at the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons [YUN 2010, p. 531]. They also reviewed their work on specific joint initiatives, such as a glossary of key nuclear terms and a common reporting framework. The Russian Federation and the United States continued to work towards the full implementation of the Treaty on Measures for the Further Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms. [ibid., p. 514]. At the session of the Bilateral Consultative Commission (Geneva, February), the parties reached agreement on additional procedures for inspecting deployed United States Trident II submarine-launched ballistic missiles and on the telemetric information on intercontinental ballistic missiles and submarine-launched ballistic missile launches to be exchanged in 2014. In April, the United States released newly declassified data, updating annual figures for the first time since 2010, which indicated that its total weapons stockpile consisted of 4,804 warheads as at 30 September 2013. Other States also continued to undertake or initiate new efforts aimed at facilitating the nuclear disarmament process. The members of the Nuclear Non-proliferation and Disarmament Initiative issued a ministerial statement of 26 September, urging all nuclear-weapon States and those outside the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons to take steps towards the speedy, final and total elimination of their nuclear weapons.

The Secretary-General observed that despite some progress in implementing nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation agreements, Member States and civil society expressed growing frustration with the slow pace of progress. While the nuclear-armed States with the largest nuclear arsenals continued to make progress in reducing their deployment of strategic nuclear weapons, the total estimated number of such weapons, deployed and non-deployed, still amounted to several thousand. Moreover, a number of States continued to rely on nuclear weapons in their defence and security policies and many of them continued to pursue programmes for modernizing their nuclear weapons, delivery systems and related infrastructure. Some nuclear-armed States also continued to quantitatively expand their nuclear arsenals. Despite the stalemate plaguing the UN disarmament machinery, the lack of progress towards the total and irreversible elimination of nuclear weapons had led to a continuing search for new means to carry forward the work of achieving the common goal of a world without nuclear weapons. The Secretary-General and the High Representative for Disarmament Affairs continued to promote nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation. In January, the Secretary-General urged the Conference on Disarmament to live up to the expectations of the international community, lest it be overtaken by events. At the Nuclear Security Summit held in The Hague in March, the Secretary-General warned that nuclear security would be jeopardized by the very existence of such weapons and by the vast amounts of weapons-usable nuclear material in stockpiles outside any international regulatory controls.

Included in the report were replies from 10 Member States on measures they had taken to implement resolution 66/42 [YUN 2013, p. 479] concerning the follow-up to the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice (see p. 627) on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/40 by recorded vote (124-48-10) [agenda item 96 (x)].

Reducing nuclear danger

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind that the use of nuclear weapons poses the most serious threat to mankind and to the survival of civilization,

Reaffirming that any use or threat of use of nuclear weapons would constitute a violation of the Charter of the United Nations,

Convinced that the proliferation of nuclear weapons in all its aspects would seriously enhance the danger of nuclear war,

Convinced also that nuclear disarmament and the complete elimination of nuclear weapons are essential to remove the danger of nuclear war,

Considering that, until nuclear weapons cease to exist, it is imperative on the part of the nuclear-weapon States to adopt measures that assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Considering also that the hair-trigger alert of nuclear weapons carries unacceptable risks of unintentional or accidental use of nuclear weapons, which would have catastrophic consequences for all mankind,

Emphasizing the need to adopt measures to avoid accidental, unauthorized or unexplained incidents arising from computer anomaly or other technical malfunctions,

Conscious that limited steps relating to de-alerting and de-targeting have been taken by the nuclear-weapon States and that further practical, realistic and mutually reinforcing steps are necessary to contribute to the improvement in the international climate for negotiations leading to the elimination of nuclear weapons,

Mindful that a diminishing role for nuclear weapons in the security policies of nuclear-weapon States would positively impact on international peace and security and improve the conditions for the further reduction and the elimination of nuclear weapons,

Reiterating the highest priority accorded to nuclear disarmament in the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly and by the international community,

Recalling the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons that there exists an obligation for all States to pursue in good faith and bring to a conclusion negotiations leading to nuclear disarmament in all its aspects under strict and effective international control,

Recalling also the call, in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, to seek to eliminate the dangers posed by weapons of mass destruction and the resolve to strive for the elimination of weapons of mass destruction, particularly nuclear weapons, including the possibility of convening an international conference to identify ways of eliminating nuclear dangers,

1. Calls for a review of nuclear doctrines and, in this context, immediate and urgent steps to reduce the risks of unintentional and accidental use of nuclear weapons, including through de-alerting and de-targeting nuclear weapons;

2. Requests the five nuclear-weapon States to take measures towards the implementation of paragraph 1 above;

3. Calls upon Member States to take the measures necessary to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons in all its aspects and to promote nuclear disarmament, with the objective of eliminating nuclear weapons;

4. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General submitted pursuant to paragraph 5 of its resolution 68/40 of 5 December 2013;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to intensify efforts and support initiatives that would contribute towards the full implementation of the seven recommendations identified in the report of the Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters that would significantly reduce the risk of nuclear war, and also to continue to encourage Member States to consider the convening of an international conference, as proposed in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, to identify ways of eliminating nuclear dangers, and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its seventieth session;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session, under the item entitled "General and complete disarmament", the sub-item entitled "Reducing nuclear danger".

Decreasing the operational readiness of nuclear weapons systems

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 62/36 of 5 December 2007, 63/41 of 2 December 2008, 65/71 of 8 December 2010 and 67/46 of 3 December 2012,

Recalling also that the maintenance of nuclear weapons on high alert was a feature of cold war nuclear postures, and welcoming the increased confidence and transparency since the cessation of the cold war,

Concerned that, notwithstanding the end of the cold war, several thousand nuclear weapons remain on high alert, ready to be launched within minutes,

Noting the continuing engagement in multilateral disarmament forums in support of further reductions to the operational status of nuclear weapons systems,

Recognizing that the maintenance of nuclear weapons systems at a high level of readiness increases the risk of the unintentional or accidental use of such weapons, which would have catastrophic humanitarian consequences,

Recognizing also that reductions in deployments and the lowering of operational status contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, as well as to the process of nuclear disarmament, through the enhancement of confidence-building and transparency measures and a diminishing role for nuclear weapons in security policies,

Welcoming the steps taken by some States in support of nuclear disarmament, including de-targeting initiatives, increasing the amount of preparation time required for deployment and other measures to diminish further the possibility of nuclear launches resulting from accidents, unauthorized actions or misperceptions,

Welcoming also the adoption by consensus of the conclusions and recommendations for follow-on actions by the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, including the commitments of the nuclear-weapon States to promptly engage with a view to, inter alia, considering the legitimate interest of non-nuclear-weapon States in further reducing the operational status of nuclear weapons systems in ways that promote international stability and security,

Acknowledging, in this regard, the continued dialogue among the nuclear-weapon States to advance their nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament commitments under the action plan of the 2010 Review Conference and the potential of this process for leading to deeper engagement on nuclear disarmament and greater mutual confidence,

Taking note of the references to operational readiness in reports of the nuclear-weapon States to the third session of the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Welcoming all opportunities to address the further reduction of the operational status of nuclear weapons systems as a step leading to nuclear disarmament,

1. Calls for further practical steps to be taken to decrease the operational readiness of nuclear weapons systems, with a view to ensuring that all nuclear weapons are removed from high alert status;

2. Looks forward to the issue of the lowering of the operational readiness of nuclear weapons systems being addressed further at the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons;

3. Urges States to update the General Assembly on progress made in the implementation of the present resolution;

4. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Fissile material

The Conference on Disarmament held informal meetings from 4 to 6 June, during which it discussed, among other things, the ban on the production of fissile materials for nuclear weapons and other explosive devices. Those informal discussions were neither pre-negotiations nor negotiations, and complemented, and in no case replaced, the Conference on Disarmament's on-going activities. The report on the discussion was contained in the reports of the Coordinators on the various substantive agenda items [CD/1995].

Prior to the meeting of the Conference, the Group of Governmental Experts established by the Secretary-General in accordance with General Assembly resolution 67/53 [YUN 2012, p. 478] to develop recommendations on possible aspects that could contribute to, but not negotiate, a treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices held its first (31 March–11 April) and second (11–22 August) sessions in Geneva.

On 2 December (decision 69/516), the Assembly, by recorded vote (177-1-5), welcomed the commencement of the work of the Group of Governmental Experts and the informal discussion of a treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices that took place in the Conference on Disarmament from 4 to 6 June.

It also decided to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth (2015) session, under the item entitled "General and complete disarmament", the sub-item entitled "Treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices".

Security assurances

The Conference on Disarmament discussed agenda item "Effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of the use of nuclear weapons” (or “negative security assurances”) in informal plenary meetings from 18 to 20 June. The Conference considered the briefing note submitted by Ukraine on 1 March concerning the guarantees of the sovereignty, territorial integrity and inviolability of the territory and frontiers of Ukraine [CD/1975]; a non-paper on violations of Ukraine’s laws in force and of Ukrainian-Russian agreements by military units of the Black Sea fleet of the Russian Federation on the territory of Ukraine [CD/1976]; the address by the Parliament of Ukraine (Verkhovna Rada) to the guarantors States of the Security of Ukraine adopted on 11 March [CD/1977]; the reports of the Coordinators on the various substantive agenda items [CD/1995]; and the text of the section on disarmament and international security of the final document of the XVII Ministerial Conference of the Non-Aligned Movement (Algiers, Algeria, 26–29 May) [CD/2002].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/437], adopted resolution 69/30 by recorded vote (125-0-56) [agenda item 93].

Conclusion of effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the need to allay the legitimate concern of the States of the world with regard to ensuring lasting security for their peoples,

Convinced that nuclear weapons pose the greatest threat to mankind and to the survival of civilization,

Noting that the renewed interest in nuclear disarmament should be translated into concrete actions for the achievement of general and complete disarmament under effective international control,

Convinced that nuclear disarmament and the complete elimination of nuclear weapons are essential to remove the danger of nuclear war,

Determined to abide strictly by the relevant provisions of the Charter of the United Nations on the non-use of force or threat of force,

Recognizing that the independence, territorial integrity and sovereignty of non-nuclear-weapon States need to be safeguarded against the use or threat of use of force, including the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Considering that, until nuclear disarmament is achieved on a universal basis, it is imperative for the international community to develop effective measures and arrangements to ensure the security of non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons from any quarter,

Recognizing that effective measures and arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons can contribute positively to the prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons,

Bearing in mind paragraph 59 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament, in which it urged the nuclear-weapon States to pursue efforts to conclude, as appropriate, effective arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, and desirous of promoting the implementation of the relevant provisions of the Final Document,

Recalling the relevant parts of the special report of the Committee on Disarmament submitted to the General Assembly at its twelfth special session, the second special session devoted to disarmament, and of the special report of the Conference on Disarmament submitted to the Assembly at its fifteenth special session, the third special session devoted to disarmament, as well as the report of the Conference on its 1992 session,

Recalling also paragraph 12 of the Declaration of the 1980s as the Second Disarmament Decade, contained in the annex to its resolution 35/46 of 3 December 1980, in which it is stated, inter alia, that all efforts should be exerted by the Committee on Disarmament urgently to negotiate with a view to reaching agreement on effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Noting the in-depth negotiations undertaken in the Conference on Disarmament and its Ad Hoc Committee on Effective International Arrangements to Assure Non-Nuclear-Weapon States against the Use or Threat of Use of Nuclear Weapons, with a view to reaching agreement on this question,

Taking note of the proposals submitted under the item in the Conference on Disarmament, including the drafts of an international convention,

Taking note also of the relevant decision of the Thirteenth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held in Kuala Lumpur on 24 and 25 February 2003, which was reiterated at the Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Conferences of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held in Havana on 15 and 16 September 2006, in Sharm el-Sheikh, Egypt, on 15 and 16 July 2009, and in Tehran on 30 and 31 August 2012, as well as the relevant recommendations of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation,

Taking note further of the unilateral declarations made by all the nuclear-weapon States on their policies of non-use or non-threat of use of nuclear weapons against the non-nuclear-weapon States,

Noting the support expressed in the Conference on Disarmament and in the General Assembly for the elaboration of an international convention to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, as well as the difficulties pointed out in evolving a common approach acceptable to all,

Taking note of Security Council resolution 984(1995) of 11 April 1995 and the views expressed on it,

Recalling its relevant resolutions adopted in previous years, in particular resolutions 45/54 of 4 December 1990, 46/32 of 6 December 1991, 47/50 of 9 December 1992, 48/73 of 16 December 1993, 49/73 of 15 December 1994, 50/68 of 12 December 1995, 51/43 of 10 December 1996, 52/36 of 9 December 1997, 53/75 of 4 December 1998, 54/52 of 1 December 1999, 55/31 of 20 November 2000, 56/22 of 29 November 2001, 57/56 of 22 November 2002, 58/35 of 8 December 2003, 59/64 of 3 December 2004, 60/53 of 8 December 2005, 61/57 of 6 December 2006,

62/19 of 5 December 2007, 63/39 of 2 December 2008, 64/27 of 2 December 2009, 65/43 of 8 December 2010, 66/26 of 2 December 2011, 67/29 of 3 December 2012 and 68/28 of 5 December 2013,

1. Reaffirms the urgent need to reach an early agreement on effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons;

2. Notes with satisfaction that in the Conference on Disarmament there is no objection, in principle, to the idea of an international convention to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, although the difficulties with regard to evolving a common approach acceptable to all have also been pointed out;

3. Appeals to all States, especially the nuclear-weapon States, to work actively towards an early agreement on a common approach and, in particular, on a common formula that could be included in an international instrument of a legally binding character;

4. Recommends that further intensive efforts be devoted to the search for such a common approach or common formula and that the various alternative approaches, including, in particular, those considered in the Conference on Disarmament, be further explored in order to overcome the difficulties;

5. Also recommends that the Conference on Disarmament actively continue intensive negotiations with a view to reaching early agreement and concluding effective international agreements to assure the non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, taking into account the widespread support for the conclusion of an international convention and giving consideration to any other proposals designed to secure the same objective;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "Conclusion of effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons".

Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty

Status

As at 31 December, the 1996 Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty (CTBT) adopted by General Assembly resolution 50/245 [YUN 1996, p. 454], had been signed by 183 States and ratified by 163. During the year, instruments of ratification were deposited by Niue and the Congo. Pursuant to article XIV, CTBT would enter into force 180 days after the 44 States possessing nuclear reactors listed in Annex 2 of the Treaty had deposited their instruments of ratification. By year's end, 36 of those States had ratified the Treaty.

Group of Eminent Persons. The Group of Eminent Persons met (Stockholm, Sweden, 11–12 April) to promote the entry into force of the CTBT and reinvigorate international endeavours towards that goal. The Group outlined a strategy to secure ratification by the outstanding Annex 2 States, and agreed to promote the Treaty's entry into force through multi-layered engagement.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Assembly resolution 68/68 [YUN 2013, p. 477], the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Preparatory Commission for CTBT, submitted a July report [A/69/137], covering the period from June 2013 to May 2014, on the efforts of States that had ratified the Treaty towards its universalization and the possibilities for providing assistance on ratification procedures to States that requested it.

CTBT Ministerial Meeting

The seventh CTBT biennial Ministerial Meeting (New York, 26 September), attended by over 90 CTBT signatories, reaffirmed its commitment to the CTBT as a core element of the international nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation regime. Participating ministers joined the Secretary-General in urging the eight remaining Annex 2 States to ratify the Treaty without delay in order to achieve its earliest entry into force.

The Meeting adopted a joint ministerial statement calling for the entry into force of CTBT. The ministers acknowledged the importance of the Treaty's entry into force as "a vital step towards the reduction and eventual elimination of nuclear weapons by constraining the development and qualitative improvement of nuclear weapons.” The statement further highlighted the role of the Group of Eminent Persons in assisting in the process of entry into force and stressed the importance of the on-site inspection simulation, the Integrated Field Exercise 2014 in Jordan.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/446], adopted resolution 69/81 by recorded vote (179-1-3) [agenda item 102].

Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty

The General Assembly,

Reiterating that the cessation of nuclear-weapon test explosions or any other nuclear explosions constitutes an effective nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation measure, and convinced that this is a meaningful step in the realization of a systematic process for achieving nuclear disarmament,

Recalling that the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty, adopted by the General Assembly by its resolution 50/245 of 10 September 1996, was opened for signature on 24 September 1996,

Stressing that a universal and effectively verifiable Treaty constitutes a fundamental instrument in the field of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation and that, after more than 15 years, its entry into force is more urgent than ever before,

Encouraged by the signing of the Treaty by 183 States, including 41 of the 44 whose ratification is needed for its entry into force, and welcoming the ratification of the Treaty by 163 States, including 36 of the 44 whose ratification is needed for its entry into force, among which there are 3 nuclear-weapon States,

Recalling its resolution 68/68 of 5 December 2013,

Welcoming the adoption by consensus of the conclusions and recommendations for follow-on actions of the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, in which the Conference, inter alia, reaffirmed the vital importance of the entry into force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty as a core element of the international nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation regime and included specific actions to be taken in support of the entry into force of the Treaty,

Welcoming also the Final Declaration adopted by the eighth Conference on Facilitating the Entry into Force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty, held in New York on 27 September 2013, convened pursuant to article XIV of the Treaty, and recalling the Joint Ministerial Statement on the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty, adopted at the ministerial meeting held in New York on 26 September 2014,

Noting the establishment of a group of eminent persons to complement efforts to secure ratifications from the remaining Annex 2 countries and to support the article XIV process, and noting also that the group met in Stockholm on 10 and 11 April 2014 and decided to establish three subgroups to focus on the promotion of ratification by countries whose ratification is needed for the entry into force of the Treaty,

1. Stresses the vital importance and urgency of signature and ratification, without delay and without conditions, in order to achieve the earliest entry into force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty;

2. Welcomes the contributions by the signatory States to the work of the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization, in particular its efforts to ensure that the verification regime of the Treaty will be capable of meeting the verification requirements of the Treaty upon its entry into force, in accordance with article IV of the Treaty;

3. Underlines the need to maintain momentum towards completion of all elements of the verification regime;

4. Urges all States not to carry out nuclear-weapon test explosions or any other nuclear explosions, to maintain their moratoriums in this regard and to refrain from acts that would defeat the object and purpose of the Treaty, while stressing that these measures do not have the same permanent and legally binding effect as the entry into force of the Treaty;

5. Shares the grave concern of the Security Council about the nuclear test conducted by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on 12 February 2013, expressed in Council resolution 2094(2013) of 7 March 2013, recalls Council resolutions 1718(2006) of 14 October 2006 and 1874(2009) of 12 June 2009, calls for full compliance with the obligations under the relevant resolutions, and reaffirms its support for the Six-Party Talks;

6. Urges all States that have not yet signed the Treaty, in particular those whose ratification is needed for its entry into force, to sign and ratify it as soon as possible;

7. Urges all States that have signed but not yet ratified the Treaty, in particular those whose ratification is needed for its entry into force, to accelerate their ratification processes with a view to ensuring their earliest successful conclusion;

8. Welcomes, since its previous resolution on the subject, the ratification of the Treaty by the Congo and Niue, since every ratification is a significant step towards the early entry into force of the Treaty;

9. Also welcomes the recent expressions from among the remaining States whose ratification is needed for the Treaty to enter into force of their intention to pursue and complete the ratification process;

10. Urges all States to remain seized of the issue at the highest political level and, where in a position to do so, to promote adherence to the Treaty through bilateral and joint outreach, seminars and other means;

11. Requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization, to prepare a report on the efforts of States that have ratified the Treaty towards its universalization and on possibilities for providing assistance on ratification procedures to States that so request it and to submit such a report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session;

12. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled “Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty”.

Preparatory Commission for the CTBT Organization

The Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization (CTBTO), established by the signatory States in 1996 [YUN 1996, p. 452], held its forty-second session (16–17 June) [CTBT/PC42/2 & Corr.1], a special session (21 August) [CTBT/PC42/2 Add.1 & Corr.1], and its forty-third session (28–30 October) [CTBT/PC-43/2] in Vienna.

Progress made by the Commission included the steady growth of the International Monitoring System (IMS) [YUN 1999, p. 472], which comprised 321 monitoring stations, 16 radionuclide laboratories and 40 noble gas detection systems located in over 90 countries. As at December, 281 facilities and 22 noble gas systems were certified. With three facilities and four noble gas systems certified during the year, the operational capacity of IMS had reached 90 per cent. With the completion of the IMS in sight, future attention would be shifted to maintaining sustainability, cost effectiveness and financial viability of the CTBT verification regime. Two strategic goals, the operation and sustainment of the verification system, and the development of on-site-inspection operational capabilities, were identified in the organization's mid-term strategy through 2017.

Note of Secretary-General. In July, the Secretary-General transmitted to the General Assembly the report [A/69/164] of the Executive Secretary of the Preparatory Commission for 2013, pursuant to article IV, paragraph 1, of the Agreement to Regulate the Relationship between the United Nations and the Preparatory Commission for CTBTO, annexed to Assembly resolution 54/280 [YUN 2000, p. 501].

Report of Secretary-General. In his 2014 consolidated report on cooperation between the United Nations and regional and other organizations [A/69/228-S/2014/560], the Secretary-General indicated that the World Meteorological Organization collaborated with CTBTO, principally in the area of the numerical simulation of atmospheric transport and dispersion, in "backtracking" mode. Nine Regional Specialized Meteorological Centres were currently involved.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 68], the General Assembly adopted resolution 69/112 [draft: A/69/L.15 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 123 (v)].

Cooperation between the United Nations and the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General,

Taking note also of the report of the Executive Secretary of the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization,

Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventy-first session, under the item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and regional and other organizations", the sub-item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization".

Advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 68/47 [YUN 2013, p. 472] regarding the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice that the threat of use of nuclear weapons was contrary to the UN Charter [YUN 1996, p. 461], the Secretary-General presented in July information [A/69/131] from eight Member States (Cuba, Ecuador, Georgia, Iraq, Lebanon, Libya, Mexico, Ukraine) on measures they had taken to implement the resolution and towards nuclear disarmament.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/43 by recorded vote (134-23-23) [agenda item 96 (z)].

Follow-up to the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 49/75 K of 15 December 1994, 51/45 M of 10 December 1996, 52/38 O of 9 December 1997, 53/77 W of 4 December 1998, 54/54 Q of 1 December 1999, 55/33 X of 20 November 2000, 56/24 S of 29 November 2001, 57/85 of 22 November 2002, 58/46 of 8 December 2003, 59/83 of 3 December 2004, 60/76 of 8 December 2005, 61/83 of 6 December 2006, 62/39 of 5 December 2007, 63/49 of 2 December 2008, 64/55 of 2 December 2009, 65/76 of 8 December 2010, 66/46 of 2 December 2011, 67/33 of 3 December 2012 and 68/42 of 5 December 2013,

Convinced that the continuing existence of nuclear weapons poses a threat to humanity and all life on Earth, and recognizing that the only defence against a nuclear catastrophe is the total elimination of nuclear weapons and the certainty that they will never be produced again,

Reaffirming the commitment of the international community to the realization of the goal of a nuclear-weapon-free world through the total elimination of nuclear weapons,

Mindful of the solemn obligations of States parties, undertaken in article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, particularly to pursue negotiations in good faith on effective measures relating to cessation of the nuclear arms race at an early date and to nuclear disarmament,

Recalling the principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament adopted at the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the unequivocal commitment of nuclear-weapon States to accomplish the total elimination of their nuclear arsenals leading to nuclear disarmament, agreed at the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and the action points agreed at the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons as part of the conclusions and recommendations for follow-on actions on nuclear disarmament,

Sharing the deep concern at the catastrophic humanitarian consequences of any use of nuclear weapons, and in this context reaffirming the need for all States at all times to comply with applicable international law, including international humanitarian law,

Calling upon all nuclear-weapon States to undertake concrete disarmament efforts, and stressing that all States need to make special efforts to achieve and maintain a world without nuclear weapons,

Noting the five-point proposal for nuclear disarmament of the Secretary-General, in which he proposes, inter alia, the consideration of negotiations on a nuclear weapons convention or agreement on a framework of separate mutually reinforcing instruments, backed by a strong system of verification,

Recalling the adoption of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty in its resolution 50/245 of 10 September 1996, and expressing its satisfaction at the increasing number of States that have signed and ratified the Treaty,

Recognizing with satisfaction that the Antarctic Treaty, the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba and the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia, as well as Mongolia's nuclear-weapon-free status, are gradually freeing the entire southern hemisphere and adjacent areas covered by those treaties from nuclear weapons,

Recognizing the need for a multilaterally negotiated and legally binding instrument to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the threat or use of nuclear weapons pending the total elimination of nuclear weapons,

Reaffirming the central role of the Conference on Disarmament as the sole multilateral disarmament negotiating forum,

Emphasizing the need for the Conference on Disarmament to commence negotiations on a phased programme for the complete elimination of nuclear weapons with a specified framework of time,

Stressing the urgent need for the nuclear-weapon States to accelerate concrete progress on the 13 practical steps to implement article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons leading to nuclear disarmament, contained in the Final Document of the 2000 Review Conference,

Taking note of the Model Nuclear Weapons Convention that was submitted to the Secretary-General by Costa Rica and Malaysia in 2007 and circulated by the Secretary-General,

Desiring to achieve the objective of a legally binding prohibition of the development, production, testing, deployment, stockpiling, threat or use of nuclear weapons and their destruction under effective international control,

Recalling the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons, issued on 8 July 1996,

1. Underlines once again the unanimous conclusion of the International Court of Justice that there exists an obligation to pursue in good faith and bring to a conclusion negotiations leading to nuclear disarmament in all its aspects under strict and effective international control;

2. Calls once again upon all States immediately to fulfil that obligation by commencing multilateral negotiations leading to an early conclusion of a nuclear weapons convention prohibiting the development, production, testing, deployment, stockpiling, transfer, threat or use of nuclear weapons and providing for their elimination;

3. Requests all States to inform the Secretary-General of the efforts and measures they have taken with respect to the implementation of the present resolution and nuclear disarmament, and requests the Secretary-General to apprise the General Assembly of that information at its seventieth session;

4. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session, under the item entitled "General and complete disarmament", the sub-item entitled "Follow-up to the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons".

Prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons

In 2014, no progress was made on a convention on the prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons, as the Conference on Disarmament was unable to undertake negotiations on the subject, as called for in General Assembly resolution 68/58 [YUN 2013, p. 480]. The Assembly reiterated its request to the Conference to commence negotiations.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/441], adopted resolution 69/69 by recorded vote (125-50-7) [agenda item 97 (d)].

Convention on the Prohibition of the Use of Nuclear Weapons

The General Assembly,

Convinced that the use of nuclear weapons poses the most serious threat to the survival of mankind,

Bearing in mind the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice of 8 July 1996 on the legality of the threat or use of nuclear weapons,

Convinced that a multilateral, universal and binding agreement prohibiting the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons would contribute to the elimination of the nuclear threat and to the climate for negotiations leading to the ultimate elimination of nuclear weapons, thereby strengthening international peace and security,

Conscious that some steps taken by the Russian Federation and the United States of America towards a reduction of their nuclear weapons and the improvement in the international climate can contribute towards the goal of the complete elimination of nuclear weapons,

Recalling that in paragraph 58 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly it is stated that all States should actively participate in efforts to bring about conditions in international relations among States in which a code of peaceful conduct of nations in international affairs could be agreed upon and which would preclude the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Reaffirming that any use of nuclear weapons would be a violation of the Charter of the United Nations and a crime against humanity, as declared in its resolutions 1653(XVI) of 24 November 1961, 33/71 B of 14 December 1978, 34/83 G of 11 December 1979, 35/152 D of 12 December 1980 and 36/92 I of 9 December 1981,

Determined to achieve an international convention prohibiting the development, production, stockpiling and use of nuclear weapons, leading to their ultimate destruction,

Stressing that an international convention on the prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons would be an important step in a phased programme towards the complete elimination of nuclear weapons, with a specified framework of time,

Noting with regret that the Conference on Disarmament, during its 2014 session, was unable to undertake negotiations on this subject as called for in General Assembly resolution 68/58 of 5 December 2013,

1. Reiterates its request to the Conference on Disarmament to commence negotiations in order to reach agreement on an international convention prohibiting the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons under any circumstances;

2. Requests the Conference on Disarmament to report to the General Assembly on the results of those negotiations.

Humanitarian approach to nuclear disarmament

The Second Conference on the Humanitarian Impact of Nuclear Weapons (Nuevo Vallarta, Nayarit, Mexico, 13–14 February), attended by delegations from 146 States, the United Nations, the International Committee of the Red Cross, the Red Cross and Red Crescent movement and civil society organizations, discussed global and long-term consequences of nuclear detonation with respect to public health, humanitarian assistance, the economy, development and environmental issues, climate change, food security and risk management, amongst others.

The Chair's summary [CD/1979], transmitted to the Conference on Disarmament, stated that the effects of a nuclear weapon detonation were not constrained by national borders. Beyond the immediate death and destruction caused by a detonation, socioeconomic development would be hampered and the environment damaged. Suffering would be widespread, and the poor and vulnerable would be the most severely affected. Reconstruction of infrastructure and regeneration of economic activities, trade, communications, health facilities, and schools would take several decades, causing profound social and political harm. Radiation exposure could result in short- and long-term negative effects in every organ of the human body and increase cancer risks and future hereditary pathologies. As more countries deployed more nuclear weapons on higher levels of combat readiness, the risks of accidental, mistaken, unauthorized or intentional use of those weapons grew significantly. No State or international organization had the capacity to address or provide the short- and long-term humanitarian assistance and protection needed in case of a nuclear weapon explosion. Moreover, it would not be possible to establish such capacities, even if attempted. The broad-based and comprehensive discussions on the humanitarian impact of nuclear weapons should lead to the commitment of States and civil society to reach new international standards and norms, through a legally binding instrument. The time had come to initiate a diplomatic process conducive to that goal. That process should comprise a specific time-frame, the definition of the most appropriate fora, and a clear and substantive framework, making the humanitarian impact of nuclear weapons the essence of disarmament efforts.

Non-proliferation

Status

In 2014, the number of States parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT) stood at 190. Regarded as the cornerstone of the global nuclear non-proliferation regime, the Treaty was adopted by the General Assembly in 1968 by resolution 2373(XXIII) [YUN 1968, p. 16], and entered into force in 1970. It was extended indefinitely in 1995 by Assembly resolution 50/70 [YUN 1995, p. 189].

2015 review conference

Following the entry into force of NPT, quinquennial review conferences, as called for under article VIII, paragraph 3 of the Treaty, were held beginning in 1975 [YUN 1975, p. 27], with the most recent in 2010 [YUN 2010, p. 531].

Preparatory Committee. In accordance with the decision of NPT parties, as noted in General Assembly resolution 66/33 [YUN 2011, p. 502], the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference held its third and final session (New York, 28 April–9 May) [NPT/CONF.2015/1] to conduct preparatory work for the review of the operation of the Treaty. Among the documents before the Committee were reports submitted under actions 5, 20 and 21 of the Final Document of the 2010 Review Conference on Implementation of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons by China: [NPT/CONF.2015/PC.III/13]; France [NPT/CONF.2015/PC.III/14]; the United Kingdom [NPT/CONF.2015/PC.III/15]; the United States [NPT/CONF.2015/PC.III/16]; and a statement on measures taken by the Russian Federation [NPT/CONF.2015/PC.III/17].

At its third session, the Preparatory Committee agreed to recommend to the Conference the draft rules of procedure for the 2015 Review Conference as contained in annex III of its report. It recommended that specialized agencies and international and regional intergovernmental organizations be invited to make oral presentations on a case-by-case basis; and representatives of non-governmental organizations be allowed to attend meetings and address the Conference. It also made decisions on the nomination of the President of the 2015 Review Conference and the chairmanship of its main committees and the drafting committee. The Preparatory Committee adopted the draft provisional agenda of the 2015 Review Conference as contained in annex IV to its report, and the allocation of items as contained in annex V. It decided to refer to the 2015 Review Conference the matter of the Conference's final documents. On 9 May, the Preparatory Committee adopted its final report.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

Towards a nuclear-weapon-free world: accelerating the implementation of nuclear disarmament commitments

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 1 (I) of 24 January 1946, 67/34 of 3 December 2012 and 68/39 of 5 December 2013,

Reiterating its grave concern at the danger to humanity posed by nuclear weapons, which should inform all deliberations, decisions and actions relating to nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation,

Recalling the expression of deep concern by the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons at the catastrophic humanitarian consequences of any use of nuclear weapons, and its resolve to seek a safer world for all and to achieve the peace and security of a world without nuclear weapons,

Noting with satisfaction the growing awareness of the humanitarian impact of nuclear weapons in multilateral disarmament forums,

Bearing in mind the discussions held at the Conferences on the Humanitarian Impact of Nuclear Weapons, hosted by Norway on 4 and 5 March 2013 and by Mexico on 13 and 14 February 2014, aimed at understanding and developing a greater awareness of the catastrophic consequences of nuclear weapons detonations, which further reinforce the urgency of nuclear disarmament, and welcoming the announcement by Austria to convene a third meeting on the humanitarian impact of nuclear weapons on 8 and 9 December 2014,

Emphasizing the evidence presented at the Conferences on the Humanitarian Impact of Nuclear Weapons, which detailed the catastrophic consequences that would result from a nuclear weapon detonation, reaching well beyond national borders, the lack of capacity of States and international organizations to deal with the aftermath, and the risk of an occurrence due to an accident, systems failure or human error,

Recalling the convening, on 26 September 2013, of the high-level meeting of the General Assembly on nuclear disarmament and resolution 68/32 of 5 December 2013 on the follow-up to the 2013 high-level meeting of the Assembly on nuclear disarmament and the decisions contained therein,

Recalling also that the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons will take place 20 years after the indefinite extension of the Treaty and 70 years after the use of nuclear weapons on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, representing a historic opportunity to advance nuclear disarmament,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General on taking forward multilateral nuclear disarmament Negotiations, which includes the steps already taken by Member States to promote multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations pursuant to resolution 68/46 of 5 December 2013,

Underlining the importance of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation education,

Reaffirming that transparency, verifiability and irreversibility are cardinal principles applying to nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation, which are mutually reinforcing processes,

Recalling the decisions and the resolution adopted at the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the basis upon which the Treaty was indefinitely extended, and the Final Documents of the 2000 and the 2010 Review Conferences of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and in particular the unequivocal undertaking by the nuclear-weapon States to accomplish the total elimination of their nuclear arsenals, leading to nuclear disarmament, in accordance with commitments made under article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Reaffirming the commitment of all States parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons to apply the principles of irreversibility, verifiability and transparency in relation to the implementation of their treaty obligations,

Recalling that the 2010 Review Conference reaffirmed and recognized that the total elimination of nuclear weapons is the only absolute guarantee against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons and the legitimate interest of non-nuclear-weapon States in receiving unequivocal and legally binding negative security assurances from nuclear-weapon States pending the total elimination of nuclear weapons,

Recognizing the continued vital importance of the entry into force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty to the advancement of nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation objectives, and welcoming the recent ratification of the Treaty by the Congo and Niue,

Reaffirming the conviction that, pending the total elimination of nuclear weapons, the establishment and maintenance of nuclear-weapon-free zones enhances global and regional peace and security, strengthens the nuclear non-proliferation regime and contributes towards realizing the objectives of nuclear disarmament, welcoming the third preparatory meeting for the third Conference of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia, held in New York on 7 May 2014, and welcoming also the coordination by Indonesia of the third Conference, to be held in 2015,

Welcoming the signing by the nuclear-weapon States of the Protocol to the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia on 6 May 2014, and urging those States to continue to make real progress towards strengthening all existing nuclear-weapon-free zones through, inter alia, the withdrawal or revision of any reservations or interpretative declarations contrary to the object and purpose of the treaties establishing such zones,

Recalling the encouragement expressed at the 2010 Review Conference for the establishment of further nuclear-weapon-free zones, on the basis of arrangements freely arrived at among the States of the region concerned, reaffirming the expectation that this will be followed by concerted international efforts to create such zones in areas where they do not currently exist, especially in the Middle East, and in that context recognizing the agreement at the 2010 Review Conference on practical steps to fully implement the 1995 resolution on the Middle East,

Acknowledging the ongoing efforts towards the full implementation of the Treaty between the Russian Federation and the United States of America on Measures for the Further Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms, while re-emphasizing the encouragement of the 2010 Review Conference to both States to continue discussions on follow-on measures in order to achieve deeper reductions in their nuclear arsenals,

Deeply disappointed at the continued absence of progress towards multilateral negotiations on nuclear disarmament, in particular in the Conference on Disarmament, despite intensive efforts during its 2014 session,

Underlining the importance of multilateralism in relation to nuclear disarmament, while recognizing also the value of unilateral, bilateral and regional initiatives and the importance of compliance with the terms of such initiatives,

Recalling the third session of the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, held in New York from 28 April to 9 May 2014,

Taking note of the reports presented by the nuclear-weapon States to the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference at its third session, pursuant to actions 5, 20 and 21 of the action plan on nuclear disarmament contained in the Final Document of the 2010 Review Conference,

Emphasizing the importance of a successful 2015 Review Conference, which should contribute to strengthening the Treaty and making progress towards achieving its full implementation and universality, and monitor the implementation of commitments made and actions agreed at the 1995, 2000 and 2010 Review Conferences,

1. Reiterates that each article of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons is binding on the States parties at all times and in all circumstances and that all States parties should be held fully accountable with respect to strict compliance with their obligations under the Treaty, and calls upon all States parties to comply fully with all decisions, resolutions and commitments made at the 1995, 2000 and 2010 Review Conferences;

7. Encourages further steps by all nuclear-weapon States, in accordance with the action plan on nuclear disarmament contained in the Final Document of the 2010 Review Conference, to ensure the irreversible removal of all fissile material designated by each nuclear-weapon State as no longer required for military purposes, and calls upon all States to support, within the context of the International Atomic Energy Agency, the development of appropriate nuclear disarmament verification capabilities and legally binding verification arrangements, thereby ensuring that such material remains permanently outside military programmes in a verifiable manner;

10. Urges the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to fulfil its commitments under the Six-Party Talks, including those in the September 2005 joint statement, to abandon all nuclear weapons and existing nuclear programmes, to return, at an early date, to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and to adhere to its International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards agreement, with a view to achieving the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula in a peaceful manner, and reaffirms its firm support for the Six-Party Talks;

11. Urges all States to work together to overcome obstacles within the international disarmament machinery that are inhibiting efforts to advance the cause of nuclear disarmament in a multilateral context, and to immediately implement the three specific recommendations of the 2010 Review Conference action plan addressed to the Conference on Disarmament, and once again urges the Conference on Disarmament to commence, without delay, substantive work that advances the agenda of nuclear disarmament, particularly through multilateral negotiations;

12. Urges the nuclear-weapon States to supplement the reports presented to the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 Review Conference at its third session with concrete and detailed information concerning their implementation of the undertakings set out in action 5 of the action plan on nuclear disarmament contained in the Final Document of the 2010 Review Conference;

13. Calls upon the nuclear-weapon States to implement their nuclear disarmament commitments, both qualitative and quantitative, in a manner that enables the States parties to regularly monitor progress, including through a standard detailed reporting format, thereby enhancing confidence and trust not only among the nuclear-weapon States but also between the nuclear-weapon States and the non-nuclear-weapon States and contributing to sustainable nuclear disarmament;

14. Calls upon all States parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons to implement without delay all elements of the 2010 Review Conference action plan so that progress across all of the pillars of the Treaty can be realized;

16. Calls upon the 2015 Review Conference to agree on an additional set of measures to build on the commitments made and actions agreed at the 1995, 2000 and 2010 Review Conferences and take forward the aims and purpose of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons;

17. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session, under the item entitled “General and complete disarmament”, the sub-item entitled “Towards a nuclear-weapon-free world: accelerating the implementation of nuclear disarmament commitments” and to review the implementation of the present resolution at that session.

Compliance and commitments

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/59 by recorded vote (170-1-10) [agenda item 96 (b)].

Compliance with non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and commitments

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 66/49 of 2 December 2011 and other relevant resolutions on the question,

Recognizing the abiding concern of all Member States for ensuring respect for the rights and obligations arising from treaties to which they are parties and from other sources of international law,

Convinced that observance by Member States of the Charter of the United Nations and compliance with non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements to which they are parties and with other agreed obligations are essential for regional and global peace, security and stability,

Stressing that failure by States parties to comply with such agreements and with other agreed obligations not only adversely affects the security of States parties but also can create security risks for other States relying on the constraints and commitments stipulated in those agreements,

Stressing also that the viability and effectiveness of non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and of other agreed obligations require that those agreements be fully complied with and enforced,

Concerned by non-compliance by some States with their respective obligations,

Noting that verification and compliance, and enforcement in a manner consistent with the Charter, are integrally related,

Recognizing the importance of and support for effective national, regional and international capacities for such verification, compliance and enforcement,

Recognizing also that full compliance by States with all their respective non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and with other agreed obligations they have undertaken contributes to efforts to prevent the development and proliferation, contrary to international obligations, of weapons of mass destruction, related technologies and means of delivery, as well as to efforts to deny non-State actors access to such capabilities,

1. Underscores the contribution that compliance with non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and with other agreed obligations makes to enhancing confidence and to strengthening international security and stability;

2. Urges all States to implement and to comply fully with their respective obligations;

3. Welcomes efforts by all States to pursue additional areas of cooperation, as appropriate, that can increase confidence in compliance with existing non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and commitments and reduce the possibility of misinterpretation and misunderstanding;

4. Calls upon all Member States to encourage and, for those States in a position to do so, to appropriately assist States which request assistance to increase their capacity to implement fully their obligations;

5. Calls upon Member States to support efforts aimed at the resolution of compliance questions by means consistent with such agreements and with international law;

6. Welcomes the role that the United Nations has played and continues to play in maintaining the integrity of certain arms limitation and disarmament and non-proliferation agreements and in addressing threats to international peace and security;

7. Calls upon all concerned States to take concerted action, in a manner consistent with relevant international law, to encourage, through bilateral and multilateral means, the compliance by all States with their respective non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and with other agreed obligations, and to hold those not in compliance with such agreements accountable for their non-compliance in a manner consistent with the Charter of the United Nations;

8. Urges those States not currently in compliance with their respective obligations and commitments to make the strategic decision to come back into compliance;

9. Encourages efforts by all States, the United Nations and other international organizations, pursuant to their respective mandates, to take action, consistent with the Charter, to prevent serious damage to international security and stability arising from non-compliance by States with their existing non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament obligations;

10. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventy-second session, under the item entitled "General and complete disarmament", the sub-item entitled "Compliance with non-proliferation, arms limitation and disarmament agreements and commitments".

Missiles

The Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) held its twenty-eighth plenary meeting (Oslo, Norway, 29 September–3 October). MTCR partners reiterated their commitment to limit the risks of proliferation by controlling transfers that could contribute to delivery systems for weapons of mass destruction (WMDs) and appealed to all States to support the non-proliferation aims of the Regime by observing its Guidelines, and establishing appropriate national legislation and law enforcement mechanisms. They welcomed that a number of countries, which were not members of the Regime, had committed to observing the Guidelines in their national export control concerning missile technology. Partners invited countries to declare full adherence to the Guidelines and encouraged relevant regional bodies and institutions to give attention to the role of export controls in preventing the proliferation of missiles capable of carrying WMDs, including the role of export controls. They reaffirmed the critical importance of MTCR ongoing technical work, and underlined that the rapid technological development related to sensitive items and technologies continued to require awareness and effective actions to address those developments.

On 2 December (decision 69/517), the General Assembly decided to include in the provisional agenda of its seventy-first (2016) session the item entitled "Missiles".

Hague Code of Conduct

The 137 Subscribing States to The Hague Code of Conduct against Ballistic Missile Proliferation (HCOC), adopted in 2002 [YUN 2002, p. 504], held their thirteenth regular meeting (Vienna, 29–30 May) to discuss ways to further develop the Code and encourage new subscriptions. Subscribing States reaffirmed that the threat to international peace and security posed by the proliferation of WMDs and their means of delivery constituted a serious concern of the international community, particularly in some regions. In that regard, the recent ballistic missile launches by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea were noted. They stressed the ongoing need to stem the proliferation of WMDs and their means of delivery and to encourage new subscriptions to the HCOC, particularly by countries with space-launch vehicles and ballistic-missile capabilities. Subscribing States stressed the importance of the full implementation of the Code, in particular with regard to pre-launch notifications and the timely submission of annual declarations, and underlined the importance of further steps in that direction.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/44 by recorded vote (162-1-17) [agenda item 96 (f)].

The Hague Code of Conduct against Ballistic Missile Proliferation

The General Assembly,

Concerned about the increasing regional and global security challenges caused, inter alia, by the ongoing proliferation of ballistic missiles capable of delivering weapons of mass destruction,

Bearing in mind the purposes and principles of the United Nations and its role and responsibility in the field of international peace and security in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations,

Emphasizing the significance of regional and international efforts to prevent and curb comprehensively the proliferation of ballistic missile systems capable of delivering weapons of mass destruction, as a contribution to international peace and security,

Welcoming the adoption of the Hague Code of Conduct against Ballistic Missile Proliferation on 25 November 2002 at The Hague, and convinced that the Code of Conduct will contribute to enhancing transparency and confidence among States,

Recalling its resolutions 59/91 of 3 December 2004, 60/62 of 8 December 2005, 63/64 of 2 December 2008, 65/73 of 8 December 2010 and 67/42 of 3 December 2012 entitled "The Hague Code of Conduct against Ballistic Missile Proliferation",

Recalling also that the proliferation of ballistic missiles capable of delivering weapons of mass destruction, as recognized by the Security Council in its resolution 1540(2004)

of 28 April 2004 and subsequent resolutions, constitutes a threat to international peace and security,

Confirming its commitment to the Declaration on International Cooperation in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space for the Benefit and in the Interest of All States, Taking into Particular Account the Needs of Developing Countries, as contained in the annex to its resolution 51/122 of 13 December 1996,

Recognizing that States should not be excluded from utilizing the benefits of space for peaceful purposes, but that in reaping such benefits and in conducting related cooperation they must not contribute to the proliferation of ballistic missiles capable of carrying weapons of mass destruction,

Mindful of the need to combat the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery,

1. Welcomes the fact that 137 States have so far subscribed to the Hague Code of Conduct against Ballistic Missile Proliferation as a practical step against the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery;

2. Also welcomes the advancement of the universalization process of the Code of Conduct, and underscores the importance of making further efforts, at both the regional and the international levels, towards achieving universalization;

3. Calls upon all States that have not yet subscribed to the Code of Conduct, in particular those possessing space launch vehicle and ballistic missile capabilities and those developing corresponding national programmes, to do so;

4. Encourages States that have already subscribed to the Code of Conduct to make efforts to increase participation in the Code and to further improve its implementation;

5. Notes progress in the implementation of the Code of Conduct, which contributes to enhancing transparency and building confidence among States through the submission of pre-launch notifications and annual declarations on space and ballistic missile policies, and underlines the importance of further steps in this direction;

6. Encourages the exploration of further ways and means to deal effectively with the problem of the proliferation of ballistic missiles capable of delivering weapons of mass destruction and to deepen the relationship between the Code of Conduct and the United Nations;

Non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction

Tenth anniversary of Security Council resolution 1540(2004)

On 7 May, at the request of the Republic of Korea [S/2014/313], the Security Council held a special session on "commemorating the tenth anniversary of the adoption of resolution 1540(2004) [YUN 2004, p. 544] and looking ahead." The resolution related to the non-proliferation of WMDs. According to the Republic of Korea, over the past 10 years, significant strides had been made towards the realization of the universal implementation of resolution 1540(2004). Member States had exerted efforts to fulfil their obligations, as evidenced by the fact that 172 of the 193 Member States had voluntarily submitted their national reports to the Committee set up to report on the implementation of the resolution. Global cooperation had also advanced. Despite past achievements, daunting challenges still lay ahead in an operational environment made increasingly complex by the rapid advances in science and technology. Moving forward from a decade of awareness-raising to a decade of full and sustained implementation would require a long-term vision and strategy. The sophisticated deception mechanisms employed by proliferators would require effective multilateralism and a whole-of-society approach. The tenth anniversary also provided the opportunity to strengthen the political will of leaders to ensure full implementation of resolution 1540(2004) and to promote public awareness among civil society throughout the globe on the continuing importance of the resolution in combating the proliferation of WMDs.

The Deputy Secretary-General, speaking before the Council [S/PV.7169], stated that for resolution 1540(2004) to work more effectively, there had to be a global commitment and a global enterprise. It was critical for every country to implement the resolution, as terrorists and traffickers tended to target countries whose customs, borders, trade ports and airports were not well monitored or controlled. The Deputy Secretary-General hoped to see expanded regional cooperation in implementing the resolution, especially since States sharing borders often faced similar challenges. Civil society also had a major role to play in moving the world closer to meeting the goals of resolution 1540(2004). Supporting the implementation of the resolution was a high priority for the United Nations and a key task for the Office for Disarmament Affairs.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 7 May [meeting 7169], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2104/7 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council, meeting on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the adoption of resolution 1540(2004), reaffirms that the proliferation of nuclear, chemical and biological weapons and their means of delivery constitutes a threat to international peace and security.

The Council remains gravely concerned by the threat of terrorism and the risk that non-State actors may acquire, develop, traffic in or use nuclear, chemical and biological weapons and their means of delivery.

The Council, recognizing the urgent need for all States to take additional effective measures to prevent the proliferation of nuclear, chemical or biological weapons and their means of delivery, reaffirms that States shall take effective measures to prevent non-State actors from acquiring weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery and to establish domestic controls to prevent their proliferation. The Council calls upon all States to step up their efforts to implement resolution 1540(2004), focusing on areas in which measures taken may be strengthened, with a view to achieving full implementation of the resolution by 2021.

The Council commends the contributions of the Security Council Committee established pursuant to resolution 1540(2004) and, recalling resolution 1977(2011), by which it extended the mandate of the Committee for 10 years, reaffirms its continued support for the Committee.

The Council directs the Committee to monitor implementation of resolution 1540(2004) and urges all States to inform the Committee regularly on measures they have taken or intend to take to implement the resolution. In particular, the Council calls upon all States that have not yet presented their first reports on the implementation of resolution 1540(2004) to do so without delay, in line with the Committee's objective of achieving universal reporting.

The Council recommends that the Committee consider developing a strategy towards full implementation of resolution 1540(2004) and incorporating such strategy in the comprehensive review by the Committee on the status of implementation of resolution 1540(2004), which is to be submitted to the Council before December 2016.

The Council recalls its decision that Member States shall inform the Council immediately of any violation of resolution 1540(2004), including acquisition by non-State actors of chemical weapons, their means of delivery and related materials, in order to take necessary measures.

The Council recognizes that many States continue to require assistance in implementing resolution 1540(2004) and stresses the need for enhanced assistance in this area. The Council encourages and supports national, regional and subregional capacity-building events as a means to support the implementation of resolution 1540(2004).

The Council reiterates the need to continue to enhance ongoing cooperation between the Committee and relevant committees as necessary.

The Council recognizes the importance of countering nuclear, chemical and biological threats in the context of resolution 1540(2004). In this regard, the Council reaffirms the necessity to prevent non-State actors having access to, or assistance and financing for nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, related materials and their means of delivery. The Council emphasizes the need for the Committee to coordinate its non-proliferation work with other international, regional and subregional organizations.

The Council notes the Hague Nuclear Security Summit communiqué of 25 March 2014, in which the significant contribution made by the United Nations to strengthening nuclear security was recognized, including the work undertaken by the Committee.

The Council encourages the Committee, at its discretion, to draw on relevant expertise, including in civil society, industry and the private sector, with, as appropriate, the consent of their States.

Security Council Committee on WMDs

Committee report. The Security Council Committee, which was set up to report on the implementation of resolution 1540(2004) regarding the non-proliferation of WMDs and was extended to 25 April 2021 by resolution 1977(2011) [YUN 2011, p. 506], submitted a December report [S/2014/958] on the review of the implementation of resolution 1540(2004) for 2014. The report consisted of a practical summary of activities in the areas of implementation; assistance; cooperation with international, regional and subregional organizations; and transparency and outreach, as facilitated by the Committee and its Group of Experts. The report also contained an assessment of progress measured against the Committee's programme of work and an analysis of implementation. As at December, 173 of the 193 Member States had submitted national implementation reports, including two States (Lesotho and Malawi) that had submitted initial reports. In addition, 24 States provided additional information, including information on their effective national policies, such as those preventing financial institutions from engaging in the financing of proliferation activities and strengthening controls to prevent the illicit trafficking of WMDs and related materials. In 2014, Colombia, Croatia, Mexico, Montenegro, the Niger, and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia submitted national implementation action plans, bringing to 14, the total number of such plans received by the Committee. The Committee's working group on monitoring and national implementation considered 68 matrices, 55 of which were approved and sent to States for review. The matrices were being converted into the new matrix template and revised. Although the Committee did not meet the 2014 deadlines for receiving all of the revised matrices, the objective was to complete the revision of all matrices by April 2015, in order to complete the comprehensive review of the implementation of the resolution before December 2016. The Committee's working group also considered the compilation of effective practices, templates and guidance and a possible technical reference guide for resolution 1540(2004). Six States and four international, regional and subregional organizations and others submitted to the Committee information on relevant experiences, lessons learned and effective practices in the areas of concern of resolution 1540(2004).

The Committee's recommendations included preparations for the conduct of the comprehensive review of the implementation of the resolution due to be submitted to the Security Council before December 2016. The Committee should develop a plan identifying the objectives, scope, timing and participants by 31 March 2015, drawing on outside expertise to assist in those efforts, including the Office for Disarmament Affairs and other UN bodies; and, with the assistance of its experts, develop and begin execution of a strategy in line with that plan no later than 30 September 2015. The Group of Experts should prepare a non-paper on the conduct of the comprehensive review by 28 February 2015. The first draft of the report should be in the hands of the Committee by 1 September 2016. The Committee also recommended that the format and style of future annual reviews be revised to provide more analysis of trends in implementation, as well as more insights and data regarding the implementation activities of Member States. During the year, reports on implementation of the resolution were submitted by Azerbaijan [S/AC.44/2014/2], the Czech Republic [S/AC.44/2014/6], Guyana [S/AC.44/2014/7], Lesotho [S/AC.44/2014/3], Malawi [S/AC.44/2014/8], Montenegro [S/AC.44/2014/5], Mongolia [S/AC.44/2014/4], Togo [S/AC.44/2014/9] and Ukraine [S/AC.44/2014/1].

In May [S/2014/369], the Committee submitted its thirteenth programme of work for the period from 1 June 2014 to 31 January 2015.

New types of WMDs

Conference on Disarmament. The issue of radiological weapons, which had been on the agenda of the Conference on Disarmament since 1979, was considered in informal plenary meetings on 25 and 26 June, under agenda item 5 on "New types of weapons of mass destruction and new systems of such weapons; radiological weapons" [CD/2004]. The Conference had before it the reports of the Coordinators on the various substantive agenda items [CD/1995], and the text of the section on disarmament and international security of the final document of the XVII Ministerial Conference of the Non-Aligned Movement (Algiers, Algeria, 26–29 May) [CD/2002]. Delegations reaffirmed or further elaborated their respective positions on the agenda item.

Terrorism and WMDs

The United Nations continued to promote international action against terrorism through collaborative efforts with Member States and regional and international organizations, and through the work of the Counter-Terrorism Committee (see p. 142) and the Al-Qaida and Taliban Sanctions Committee (see p. 434).

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 68/41 [YUN 2013, p. 490], the Secretary-General, in July [A/69/138 & Add.1], presented the views of 18 Member States, the European Union (EU) and 14 international organizations, including UN agencies, on measures taken to prevent terrorists from acquiring WMDs, their means of delivery, and related materials and technologies.

IAEA report. The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Director General, in a July report [GOV/2014/36-GC(58)/14] on nuclear security for the period from 1 July 2013 to 30 June 2014, stated that the Agency continued to assist States to build and develop their nuclear security capacity by establishing and providing for the application of nuclear security guidance; facilitating adherence to and implementation of the relevant international legal nuclear security instruments, including facilitating the entry into force of the 2005 Amendment [YUN 2005, p. 602] to the Convention on the Physical Protection of Nuclear Material (CPPNM) [YUN 1980, p. 161]; and helping States to establish effective and sustainable national nuclear security infrastructure. One State became party to CPPNM during the reporting period, and nine States adhered to the 2005 Amendment to the Convention, bringing the number of Contracting States to 77.

As at 30 June 2014, 122 States had informed the Agency's Director General of their intention to implement the 2003 Code of Conduct on the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources [YUN 2003, p. 1033]—a non-binding international legal instrument that provided guidance for ensuring the control of radioactive sources—and 89 States of their intention to implement its supplementary Guidance on the Import and Export of Radioactive Sources [YUN 2005, p. 1563]. The International Convention for the Suppression of Acts of Nuclear Terrorism, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 59/290 [YUN 2005, p. 1411], gained seven adherents, bringing the number of States Parties to 94 as at 30 June 2014. The Agency continued to facilitate adherence to and implementation of international instruments, not only through its regular activities within its legislative assistance programme, but also by holding a Treaty Event during the fifty-seventh General Conference to promote universal adherence to relevant multilateral treaties. The Agency continued its coordinating role among Member States' programmes dedicated to the security of radioactive sources. The third meeting of the Working Group on Radioactive Source Security held in May, reviewed progress and achievements in multilateral and bilateral initiatives, and provided input with respect to Member States' needs for future training and development of guidance by the Agency. The Border Monitoring Working Group, established to coordinate the activities of the Agency and major donors in border controls, met in June in Ispra, Italy, and its technical subgroup in April, in Washington, D.C. The Working Group continued to facilitate implementation of programmes in Member States through the optimization of international assistance, including the distribution of radiation detection equipment, development of related training programmes, and development of concepts of operation and standard operating procedures in Cambodia, Lebanon, Malaysia, Thailand and Viet Nam.

During the reporting period, two States joined the Agency's Incident and Trafficking Database (ITDB) Programme, bringing the total number of participants to 126. States reported 149 incidents to ITDB, 14 of which involved illegal possession of and attempts to sell nuclear material or radioactive sources, with four of those involving nuclear material. Forty cases of theft or loss of radioactive sources were reported, four of which involved the theft of Category 1 to 3 radioactive sources. In two of the four incidents, the radioactive sources had not been reported as being recovered. The remaining 97 incidents involved unauthorized activities apparently unrelated to criminal activities. Since the database began in 1995, States had reported a total of 2,556 incidents. The Agency continued to give high priority to the development and implementation of integrated nuclear security support plans, assisting Member States in applying a structured and holistic approach to nuclear security capacity building, and enabling increased coordination between the Agency, the State concerned and potential donors. Seven Member States approved their plans, bringing the total number approved to 54. The Agency also continued to develop the Nuclear Security Information Portal, including its nuclear forensics user group as a single point of resources for Member States on nuclear activities.

Nuclear Security Summit. The third Nuclear Security Summit (The Hague, Netherlands, 24–25 March) chartered the accomplishments of the past four years, identifying which of the objectives set out in the Washington Work Plan of the 2010 Summit [YUN 2010, p. 535] and the Seoul Communiqué of the 2012 Summit [YUN 2012, p. 496] had not been met and proposed ways to achieve them. The Hague Summit's Communiqué reaffirmed the fundamental responsibility of States to maintain at all times effective security of all nuclear and other radioactive materials, including those used in nuclear weapons and facilities under their control. It identified 11 areas for continued attention, such as the need for further strengthening and coordinating international cooperation in nuclear security; a strengthened and comprehensive international nuclear security architecture consisting of legal instruments, international organizations and initiatives, internationally accepted guidance and good practices; voluntary measures that States could consider taking to show they had established effective security of their nuclear materials and facilities while protecting sensitive information; special precautions for handling nuclear materials, which were appropriately secured, consolidated and accounted for; better protection of radioactive sources; nuclear safety measures and nuclear security measures designed and managed in a coherent and coordinated manner in the specific areas where nuclear security and nuclear safety overlapped; measures to secure nuclear material by nuclear operators; measures to address the growing threat of cyberattacks, including those on critical information infrastructure and control systems; enhancing the security of nuclear and other radioactive materials in domestic and international transport; locating and securing nuclear material out of regulatory control, including through effective export control arrangements and law enforcement mechanisms; and the development of nuclear forensics into an effective tool for determining the origin of nuclear and other radioactive materials and providing evidence for the prosecution of acts of illicit trafficking and other malicious acts.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/50 without vote [agenda item 96 (b)].

Preventing the acquisition by terrorists of radioactive sources

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 62/46 of 5 December 2007, 65/74 of 8 December 2010 and 67/51 of 3 December 2012,

Recognizing the essential contribution of radioactive materials and sources to social and economic development, and the benefits drawn from their use for all States,

Recognizing also the determination of the international community to combat terrorism, as evident in relevant General Assembly and Security Council resolutions,

Deeply concerned by the threat of terrorism and the risk that terrorists may acquire, traffic in or use radioactive materials or sources in radiological dispersion or emitting devices,

Deeply concerned also by the potential threat to human health and the environment that would result from the use of such devices by terrorists,

Noting with concern the ongoing occurrence of nuclear and radioactive materials that are outside of regulatory control or being trafficked,

Recalling the importance of international conventions aimed at preventing and suppressing such a risk, in particular the International Convention for the Suppression of Acts of Nuclear Terrorism, adopted on 13 April 2005, and the Convention on the Physical Protection of Nuclear Material, adopted on 26 October 1979, as well as its Amendment, adopted on 8 July 2005,

Noting that actions of the international community to combat the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and prevent access by non-State actors to weapons of mass destruction and related material, notably Security Council resolutions 1540(2004) of 28 April 2004 and 1977(2011) of 20 April 2011, constitute contributions to the protection against terrorism using such materials,

Stressing the importance of the role of the International Atomic Energy Agency in promoting and reinforcing the safety and security of radioactive materials and sources, in particular by establishing technical guidance and supporting States in the improvement of national legal and regulatory infrastructure, and in strengthening coordination and complementarities among various nuclear or radiological security activities,

Noting the organization by the International Atomic Energy Agency of the International Conference on Nuclear Security: Enhancing Global Efforts, held in Vienna from 1 to 5 July 2013, as well as the International Conference on the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources: Maintaining the Continuous Global Control of Sources throughout their Life Cycle, held in Abu Dhabi from 27 to 31 October 2013,

Stressing the contribution of the International Atomic Energy Agency to preventing illicit trafficking in radioactive materials and facilitating information-sharing on materials out of regulatory control through, inter alia, the Incident and Trafficking Database and its work in the field of nuclear forensics,

Noting the importance of the Joint Convention on the Safety of Spent Fuel Management and on the Safety of Radioactive Waste Management with respect to its provisions on the safety of disused sealed sources,

Highlighting the importance of the Code of Conduct on the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources and of its supplementary Guidance on the Import and Export of Radioactive Sources as valuable instruments for enhancing the safety and security of radioactive sources, noting that 123 States members of the International Atomic Energy Agency have made a political commitment to implement the provisions of the Code and 90 States have made a similar commitment to the supplementary Guidance, while recognizing that they are not legally binding, and highlighting the importance of the International Atomic Energy Agency Revised Action Plan for the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources and its Nuclear Security Plan for 2014–2017, and of the voluntary contributions of Member States to the International Atomic Energy Agency Nuclear Security Fund,

Noting that a number of States have not yet become parties to the pertinent international instruments,

Encouraging Member States to make voluntary contributions to the International Atomic Energy Agency Nuclear Security Fund,

Taking note of resolutions GC(58)/RES/10 and GC(58)/RES/11, adopted by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency at its fifty-eighth regular session, which address measures to strengthen international cooperation in nuclear, radiation, transport and waste safety and measures to protect against nuclear and radiological terrorism, and of the International Atomic Energy Agency Nuclear Security Plan for 2014–2017,

Welcoming the fact that Member States have taken multilateral actions to address this issue, as reflected in General Assembly resolution 68/10 of 6 November 2013,

Noting the various international efforts and partnerships to enhance nuclear and radiological security and to implement measures contributing to nuclear material security in relation to the security of radioactive substances, encouraging the efforts to secure those materials, and noting also in this respect recommendations of the International Atomic Energy Agency with regard to safe and secure management of radioactive sources,

Taking note of the findings of the International Conference on the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources of 2013, which, inter alia, call for further assessment of the merits of developing an international convention on the safety and security of radioactive sources so that Member States can make the best-informed decisions on the matter,

Noting that the Radiological and Nuclear Terrorism Prevention Unit of the International Criminal Police Organization (INTERPOL) works with nations to strengthen capabilities to counter nuclear smuggling and prevent terrorists from acquiring nuclear or radiological materials, and that INTERPOL Operation Fail Safe promotes the sharing of sensitive law-enforcement information on known nuclear smugglers,

Welcoming the ongoing individual and collective efforts of Member States to take into account in their deliberations the dangers posed by the lack or insufficiency of control over radioactive materials and sources, and recognizing the need for States to take more effective measures to strengthen those controls in accordance with their national legal authorities and legislation and consistent with international law,

Mindful of the responsibilities of every Member State, in accordance with international obligations, to maintain effective nuclear safety and security, asserting that responsibility for nuclear security within a State rests entirely with that State, and noting the important contribution of international cooperation in supporting the efforts of States to fulfil their responsibilities,

Mindful also of the urgent need to address, within the United Nations framework and through international cooperation, this rising concern for international security,

1. Calls upon Member States to support international efforts to prevent the acquisition and use by terrorists of radioactive materials and sources and, if necessary, suppress such acts, in accordance with their national legal authorities and legislation and consistent with international law;

2. Encourages all Member States that have not yet done so to become party to the International Convention for the Suppression of Acts of Nuclear Terrorism as soon as possible, in accordance with their legal and constitutional processes;

3. Urges Member States to take and strengthen national measures, as appropriate, to prevent the acquisition and use by terrorists of radioactive materials and sources, as well as terrorist attacks on nuclear plants and facilities which would result in radioactive releases, and, if necessary, to suppress such acts, in particular by taking effective measures to account for, secure and physically protect such facilities, materials and sources in accordance with their international obligations;

4. Encourages Member States to enhance their national capacities with appropriate means of detection and related architecture or systems, including through international cooperation and assistance in conformity with international law and regulations, with a view to detecting and preventing illicit trafficking in radioactive materials and sources;

5. Invites Member States, in particular those producing and distributing radioactive sources, to support and endorse the efforts of the International Atomic Energy Agency to enhance the safety and security of radioactive sources, as described in General Conference resolution GC(58)/

RES/10 and to enhance the security of radioactive sources as described in the Nuclear Security Plan for 2014–2017;

6. Urges all States to work towards following the guidance contained in the International Atomic Energy Agency Code of Conduct on the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources, including, as appropriate, the Guidance on the Import and Export of Radioactive Sources, noting that the Guidance is supplementary to the Code, and encourages Member States to notify the Director General of the Agency of their intention to do so pursuant to General Conference resolution GC(58)/RES/10;

7. Encourages Member States to work with the International Atomic Energy Agency to enhance the non-legally binding international framework for radioactive sources, especially on the safe and secure management of disused radioactive sources, in accordance with relevant resolutions of the Agency, in particular with resolutions GC(58)/RES/10 and GC(58)/RES/11;

8. Recognizes the value of information exchange on national approaches to controlling radioactive sources, and takes note of the endorsement by the Board of Governors of the International Atomic Energy Agency of a proposal for a formalized process for a voluntary periodic exchange on information and lessons learned and for the evaluation of progress made by States towards implementing the provisions of the Code of Conduct on the Safety and Security of Radioactive Sources;

9. Encourages Member States to participate, on a voluntary basis, in the International Atomic Energy Agency Incident and Trafficking Database programme;

11. Encourages cooperation among and between Member States and through relevant international and, where appropriate, regional organizations aimed at strengthening national capacities in this regard;

12. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventy-first session, under the item entitled “General and complete disarmament”, the sub-item entitled “Preventing the acquisition by terrorists of radioactive sources”.

Also on the same date [meeting 62], the Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/39 without vote [agenda item 96 (y)].

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 68/41 of 5 December 2013,

Recognizing the determination of the international community to combat terrorism, as evidenced in relevant General Assembly and Security Council resolutions,

Deeply concerned by the growing risk of linkages between terrorism and weapons of mass destruction, and in particular by the fact that terrorists may seek to acquire weapons of mass destruction,

Cognizant of the steps taken by States to implement Security Council resolution 1540(2004) on the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, adopted on 28 April 2004,

Welcoming the entry into force on 7 July 2007 of the International Convention for the Suppression of Acts of Nuclear Terrorism,

In response to General Assembly resolution 68/38 [YUN 2013, p. 491], the Secretary-General, in July and September [A/69/118 & Add.1], presented replies received from Argentina, Cuba, Ecuador, El Salvador, Georgia, Iraq, Mexico, Pakistan, Portugal, Ukraine and the EU regarding their views on the promotion of multilateralism in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation.

Also in July and September [A/69/154 & Add.1], the Secretary-General, in response to Assembly resolution 68/46 [YUN 2003, p. 492], presented the replies received from 29 Member States conveying their views on how to take forward multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations, including on steps they had taken towards that end.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/54 by recorded vote (131-5-49) [agenda item 96 (v)].

Promotion of multilateralism in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation

The General Assembly,

Determined to foster strict respect for the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling its resolution 56/24 T of 29 November 2001 on multilateral cooperation in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation and global efforts against terrorism and other relevant resolutions, as well as its resolutions 57/63 of 22 November 2002, 58/44 of 8 December 2003, 59/69 of 3 December 2004, 60/59 of 8 December 2005, 61/62 of 6 December 2006, 62/27 of 5 December 2007, 63/50 of 2 December 2008, 64/34 of 2 December 2009, 65/54 of 8 December 2010, 66/32 of 2 December 2011, 67/38 of 3 December 2012 and 68/38 of 5 December 2013 on the promotion of multilateralism in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation,

Recalling also the purpose of the United Nations to maintain international peace and security and, to that end, to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace, as enshrined in the Charter,

Recalling further the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in which it is stated, inter alia, that the responsibility for managing worldwide economic and social development, as well as threats to international peace and security, must be shared among the nations of the world and should be exercised multilaterally and that, as the most universal and most representative organization in the world, the United Nations must play the central role,

Convinced that, in the globalization era and with the information revolution, arms regulation, non-proliferation and disarmament problems are more than ever the concern of all countries in the world, which are affected in one way or another by these problems and therefore should have the possibility to participate in the negotiations that arise to tackle them,

Bearing in mind the existence of a broad structure of disarmament and arms regulation agreements resulting from non-discriminatory and transparent multilateral negotiations with the participation of a large number of countries, regardless of their size and power,

Aware of the need to advance further in the field of arms regulation, non-proliferation and disarmament on the basis of universal, multilateral, non-discriminatory and transparent negotiations with the goal of reaching general and complete disarmament under strict international control,

Recognizing the complementarity of bilateral, plurilateral and multilateral negotiations on disarmament,

Recognizing also that the proliferation and development of weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear weapons, are among the most immediate threats to international peace and security which need to be dealt with, with the highest priority,

Considering that the multilateral disarmament agreements provide the mechanism for States parties to consult one another and to cooperate in solving any problems which may arise in relation to the objective of, or in the application of, the provisions of the agreements and that such consultations and cooperation may also be undertaken through appropriate international procedures within the framework of the United Nations and in accordance with the Charter,

Stressing that international cooperation, the peaceful settlement of disputes, dialogue and confidence-building measures would make an essential contribution to the creation of multilateral and bilateral friendly relations among peoples and nations,

Being concerned at the continuous erosion of multilateralism in the field of arms regulation, non-proliferation and disarmament, and recognizing that a resort to unilateral actions by Member States in resolving their security concerns would jeopardize international peace and security and undermine confidence in the international security system as well as the foundations of the United Nations itself,

Noting that the Seventeenth Ministerial Conference of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries, held in Algiers from 26 to 29 May 2014, welcomed the adoption of resolution 68/38 on the promotion of multilateralism in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation and underlined the fact that multilateralism and multilaterally agreed solutions, in accordance with the Charter, provide the only sustainable method of addressing disarmament and international security issues,

Reaffirming the absolute validity of multilateral diplomacy in the field of disarmament and non-proliferation, and determined to promote multilateralism as an essential way to develop arms regulation and disarmament negotiations,

1. Reaffirms multilateralism as the core principle in negotiations in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation with a view to maintaining and strengthening universal norms and enlarging their scope;

2. Also reaffirms multilateralism as the core principle in resolving disarmament and non-proliferation concerns;

3. Urges the participation of all interested States in multilateral negotiations on arms regulation, non-proliferation and disarmament in a non-discriminatory and transparent manner;

4. Underlines the importance of preserving the existing agreements on arms regulation and disarmament, which constitute an expression of the results of international cooperation and multilateral negotiations in response to the challenges facing mankind;

5. Calls once again upon all Member States to renew and fulfil their individual and collective commitments to multilateral cooperation as an important means of pursuing and achieving their common objectives in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation;

6. Requests the States parties to the relevant instruments on weapons of mass destruction to consult and cooperate among themselves in resolving their concerns with regard to cases of non-compliance as well as on implementation, in accordance with the procedures defined in those instruments, and to refrain from resorting or threatening to resort to unilateral actions or directing unverified non-compliance accusations against one another to resolve their concerns;

7. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General containing the replies of Member States on the promotion of multilateralism in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation, submitted pursuant to resolution 68/38;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to seek the views of Member States on the issue of the promotion of multilateralism in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation and to submit a report thereon to the General Assembly at its seventieth session;

Taking forward multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 68/46 of 5 December 2013 on taking forward multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations for the achievement and maintenance of a world without nuclear weapons,

Deeply concerned about the catastrophic humanitarian consequences of any use of nuclear weapons,

Recalling the Declaration of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament, in which it is stated, inter alia, that all the peoples of the world have a vital interest in the success of disarmament negotiations and that all States have the right to participate in disarmament negotiations,

Reaffirming the role and functions of the Conference on Disarmament and the Disarmament Commission, as set out in the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly,

Recalling the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in which it is stated, inter alia, that responsibility for managing worldwide economic and social development, as well as threats to international peace and security, must be shared among the nations of the world and should be exercised multilaterally and that, as the most universal and most representative organization in the world, the United Nations must play the central role,

Welcoming the efforts of Member States to secure progress in multilateral disarmament and the support of the Secretary-General for such efforts, and noting in this regard the Secretary-General's five-point proposal on nuclear disarmament,

Recalling the outcome, including the action points, of the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Reaffirming the absolute validity of multilateral diplomacy in the field of disarmament and non-proliferation, and determined to promote multilateralism as an essential way to develop arms regulation and disarmament negotiations,

Recognizing the absence of concrete outcomes of multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations within the United Nations framework for more than a decade,

Recognizing also the increased political attention to disarmament and non-proliferation issues and that the international political climate is more conducive to the promotion of multilateral disarmament and moving towards the goal of a world without nuclear weapons,

Welcoming the high-level meeting of the General Assembly on nuclear disarmament, held on 26 September 2013 pursuant to its resolution 67/39 of 3 December 2012, which highlighted the wish of the international community for progress in this field, and noting its resolution 68/32 of 5 December 2013 as a follow-up to this meeting,

Welcoming also the report on the work of the Open-ended Working Group to develop proposals to take forward multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations for the achievement and maintenance of a world without nuclear weapons, which was established by the General Assembly by its resolution 67/56 of 3 December 2012 and which met during 2013, reflecting the discussions and proposals made during its deliberations to take forward multilateral nuclear disarmament negotiations for the achievement and maintenance of a world without nuclear weapons,

IAEA safeguards

The verification programme of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) remained at the core of multilateral efforts to curb the proliferation of nuclear weapons. The Agency had an essential verification role under NPT, as well as other treaties, such as those establishing nuclear-weapon-free zones. Comprehensive safeguards agreements concluded pursuant to NPT and the Model Additional Protocols to those agreements, which granted the Agency complementary verification authority, were approved by the IAEA Board of Governors in 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 486]. They remained the principal legal instruments strengthening the Agency’s safeguards regime.

According to the IAEA 2014 annual report [GC(59)/7], safeguards were applied during the year for 180 States with safeguards agreements in force with the Agency. States for which both comprehensive safeguards agreements and additional protocols were in force numbered 118. For 65 of those States, the Agency concluded that all nuclear material remained in peaceful activities. For the remaining 53 States, as all the necessary evaluations remained ongoing, the Agency was unable to draw the same conclusion.

For those 53 States and for the 54 with a comprehensive safeguards agreement in force but no additional protocol, the Agency was only able to conclude that declared nuclear material remained in peaceful activities. Integrated safeguards were implemented for 53 States. Safeguards were also implemented with regard to declared nuclear material in selected facilities in the five nuclear-weapon States with voluntary offer agreements. For those five States, the Agency concluded that nuclear material to which safeguards had been applied in selected facilities remained in peaceful activities or had been withdrawn as provided for in the agreements. For three States in which safeguards were implemented, the Agency concluded that nuclear material, facilities or other items to which safeguards were applied remained in peaceful activities. As at 31 December, the Agency could not draw any safeguards conclusions for 12 NPT non-nuclear-weapon States without safeguards agreements in force.

The General Assembly, in resolution 69/7 of 3 November (see p. 1162), took note of the IAEA 2013 report [YUN 2013, p. 494].

Democratic People’s Republic of Korea

In September, the Director General submitted a report [GOV/2014/42-GC(58)/21] to the IAEA Board of Governors and General Conference on the application of safeguards in the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK). The report stated that on 30 March, the DPRK Foreign Ministry announced additional actions that the DPRK would consider, including conducting a new form of nuclear test for bolstering up its nuclear deterrence. The DPRK officials reiterated the country’s right to conduct further nuclear tests and stated that the DPRK would simultaneously carry out economic construction and the building of nuclear forces. Since the Director General’s 2013 report, the IAEA had observed ongoing renovation and new construction activities at various locations within the site. Although the purpose of such activities could not be determined through satellite imagery alone, they appeared to be broadly consistent with the DPRK’s statements that it was further developing its nuclear capabilities.

The Director General continued to call upon the DPRK to comply fully with its obligations under relevant Security Council resolutions, to cooperate promptly with the Agency in the full and effective implementation of its NPT Safeguards Agreement and to resolve all outstanding issues, including those that had arisen during the absence of Agency inspectors from the DPRK. The Agency would continue to maintain its readiness to play an essential role in verifying the DPRK nuclear programme.

IAEA General Conference. In a September resolution [GC(58)/RES/15], the IAEA General Conference condemned the three nuclear tests conducted by the DPRK and called on the country to refrain from conducting any further nuclear tests. The Conference deplored all the DPRK ongoing nuclear activities, including the restart of the 5 MW graphite moderated reactor, the operation, extension and further renovation of the uranium enrichment facility, and construction activities at the light water reactor at Yongbyon; and urged it to halt all such activities and any efforts to readjust or expand its nuclear facilities.

(For more information on UN concern with the DPRK nuclear programme and related sanctions, see p. 468.)

Iran

During the year, the Director General submitted four reports [GOV/2014/10, GOV/2014/28, GOV/2014/43, GOV/2014/58 & Corr.1] to the Board of Governors on the implementation of Iran's NPT safeguards agreements and relevant Security Council resolutions. Contrary to the relevant binding resolutions of the Board of Governors and the Security Council, Iran did not implement the provisions of its Additional Protocol or the Subsidiary Arrangements to its comprehensive safeguards agreement. It failed to suspend all enrichment-related activities or to suspend all heavy-water related activities, as well as to resolve the Agency's concerns about possible military dimensions to its nuclear programme. From 20 January, the Agency undertook monitoring and verification in relation to the nuclear-related measures set out in the Joint Plan of Action [YUN 2013, p. 495]. On 24 July, the Plan was extended until 24 November, and further extended until 30 June 2015.

(For more information on UN concern with Iran's nuclear programme and related sanctions, see p. 471.)

Middle East

Report of Director General. In an August report [GOV/2014/45-GC(58)/15] on the application of IAEA safeguards in the Middle East, the IAEA Director General noted that all States in the region, except Israel, were parties to NPT and had undertaken to accept comprehensive Agency safeguards. As at 27 June, two States of the region (Djibouti and Somalia) that were parties to NPT had yet to bring into force their comprehensive safeguards agreements with the Agency. During the reporting period, no additional protocols were brought into force by a State in the region. A long-standing and fundamental difference of views between Israel and the other States of the region remained with regard to the application of comprehensive Agency safeguards to all nuclear activities in the region. All States in the region, except Israel, emphasized that there was no automatic sequence linking the application of comprehensive safeguards to all activities in the Middle East, or the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone, to the prior conclusion of a peace settlement. Israel, however, took the view that Agency safeguards, as well as all other regional security issues, could not be addressed in isolation from the creation of stable regional security conditions and that those issues should be addressed in the framework of a regional security and arms control dialogue that could be resumed in the context of a multilateral peace process. The Director General was therefore unable to make further progress in fulfilling his mandate regarding the application of comprehensive Agency safeguards covering all nuclear activities in the Middle East, but would continue consultations regarding the early application of comprehensive Agency safeguards on all nuclear activities in the region.

IAEA General Conference. In a resolution of 25 September [GC(58)/RES/16], the IAEA General Conference affirmed the need for all States in the region to accept the application of full-scope Agency safeguards to all nuclear activities as an important confidence-building measure towards enhancing peace and security in the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone. It requested the Director General to continue consultations on the early application of full-scope Agency safeguards to all nuclear activities in the region.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Assembly resolution 68/65 [YUN 2013, p. 495], the Secretary-General stated in an October report [A/69/130 (Part II)] that apart from the IAEA resolution on the application of Agency safeguards in the Middle East (see above), he had not received any additional information since his 2013 report [ibid.].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/443], adopted resolution 69/78 by recorded vote (161-5-18) [agenda item 99].

The risk of nuclear proliferation in the Middle East

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind its relevant resolutions,

Taking note of the relevant resolutions adopted by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency, the latest of which is resolution GC(58)/RES/16, adopted on 25 September 2014,

Cognizant that the proliferation of nuclear weapons in the region of the Middle East would pose a serious threat to international peace and security,

Mindful of the immediate need for placing all nuclear facilities in the region of the Middle East under full-scope safeguards of the Agency,

Recalling the decision on principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons on 11 May 1995, in which the Conference urged universal adherence to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons as an urgent priority and called upon all States not yet parties to the Treaty to accede to it at the earliest date, particularly those States that operate unsafeguarded nuclear facilities,

Recognizing with satisfaction that, in the Final Document of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the Conference undertook to make determined efforts towards the achievement of the goal of universality of the Treaty, called upon those remaining States not parties to the Treaty to accede to it, thereby accepting an international legally binding commitment not to acquire nuclear weapons or nuclear explosive devices and to accept Agency safeguards on all their nuclear activities, and underlined the necessity of universal adherence to the Treaty and of strict compliance by all parties with their obligations under the Treaty,

Recalling the resolution on the Middle East adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on 11 May 1995, in which the Conference noted with concern the continued existence in the Middle East of unsafeguarded nuclear facilities, reaffirmed the importance of the early realization of universal adherence to the Treaty, and called upon all States in the Middle East that had not yet done so, without exception, to accede to the Treaty as soon as possible and to place all their nuclear facilities under full-scope Agency safeguards,

Noting with satisfaction that, in the Final Document of the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the Conference emphasized the importance of a process leading to full implementation of the 1995 resolution on the Middle East and decided, inter alia, that the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the co-sponsors of the 1995 resolution, in consultation with the States of the region, would convene a conference in 2012, to be attended by all States of the Middle East, on the establishment of a Middle East zone free of nuclear weapons and all other weapons of mass destruction, on the basis of arrangements freely arrived at by the States of the region and with the full support and engagement of the nuclear-weapon States,

Expressing regret that the conference was not convened in 2012 as mandated and that little progress has been achieved towards the implementation of the resolution on the Middle East adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty,

Taking note with appreciation of the note by the Secretary-General on the letters received from Member States confirming support for declaring the Middle East a region free from weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, as contained in document A/68/781,

Recalling that Israel remains the only State in the Middle East that has not yet become a party to the Treaty,

Concerned about the threats posed by the proliferation of nuclear weapons to the security and stability of the Middle East region,

Stressing the importance of taking confidence-building measures, in particular the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East, in order to enhance peace and security in the region and to consolidate the global non-proliferation regime,

Emphasizing the need for all parties directly concerned to seriously consider taking the practical and urgent steps required for the implementation of the proposal to establish a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and, as a means of promoting this objective, inviting the countries concerned to adhere to the Treaty and, pending the establishment of the zone, to agree to place all their nuclear activities under Agency safeguards,

Noting that 183 States have signed the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty, including a number of States in the region,

1. Recalls the conclusions on the Middle East of the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and calls for the speedy and full implementation of the commitments contained therein;

2. Stresses that the resolution on the Middle East adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty is an essential element of the outcome of the 1995 Conference and of the basis on which the Treaty was indefinitely extended without a vote in 1995;

3. Reiterates that the resolution on the Middle East adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty remains valid until its goals and objectives are achieved;

4. Calls for immediate steps towards the full implementation of that resolution;

5. Reaffirms the importance of Israel's accession to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and placement of all its nuclear facilities under comprehensive International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards, in realizing the goal of universal adherence to the Treaty in the Middle East;

6. Calls upon that State to accede to the Treaty without further delay, not to develop, produce, test or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons, to renounce possession of nuclear weapons and to place all its unsafeguarded nuclear facilities under full-scope Agency safeguards as an important confidence-building measure among all States of the region and as a step towards enhancing peace and security;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its seventieth session on the implementation of the present resolution;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "The risk of nuclear proliferation in the Middle East".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 69/78:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Cabo Verde, Cambodia, Central African Republic, Chad, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Fiji, Finland, Georgia, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kiribati, Kuwait, Kyrgyzstan, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Liberia, Libya, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Marshall Islands, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Montenegro, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Niger, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Samoa, San Marino, Sao Tome and Principe, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Serbia, Seychelles, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, Somalia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Swaziland, Sweden, Switzerland, Syrian Arab Republic, Tajikistan, Thailand, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Timor-Leste, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Tuvalu, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Uzbekistan, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Canada, Israel, Micronesia, Palau, United States.

Syrian Arab Republic

In a September report submitted to the IAEA Board of Governors on the implementation of the NPT safeguards agreement in the Syrian Arab Republic [GOV/2014/44], the Director General stated that on 17 February and 29 May, Syria indicated its readiness to receive Agency inspectors, and to provide support for the purpose of performing a physical inventory verification at the Miniature Neutron Source Reactor (MNSR). As the assessment of the security situation in Syria from the UN Department of Safety and Security had not changed, however, the Agency was not in a position to send inspectors to the country. The Agency continued to monitor, through the review of satellite imagery, the MNSR, the yellowcake storage area at the Homs Phosphoric Acid Pilot Plant and other locations of safeguards relevance to the Agency. Syria had not yet responded to the Director General's call to cooperate fully with the Agency in connection with unresolved issues related to the Dair Alzour site and other locations.

Radioactive waste

As described in the IAEA 2014 annual report [GC(59)/7], the Agency launched a new service aimed at assisting Member States in establishing a global nuclear safety framework. The Integrated Review Service for Radioactive Waste and Spent Fuel Management, Decommissioning and Remediation (ARTEMIS) was a peer review service intended for facility operators and implementing organizations responsible for radioactive waste management, decommissioning of nuclear facilities and remediation of contaminated sites, as well as for regulators, government agencies and national policy/decision makers. In 2014, work began on developing guidelines for ARTEMIS, and initiation of the first review was expected in 2015. The Agency also established a dedicated activity to assist Member States in identifying safe management strategies and practices for large amounts of radioactive waste generated from nuclear or radiological emergencies. As part of the Agency's activities in the area of the safety management of spent fuel, an International Workshop on the Development and Application of a Safety Case for Dual Purpose Casks for Spent Nuclear Fuel was held at Agency Headquarters in May, with 54 participants from 19 States and the European Commission. The workshop enhanced the participants' understanding of dual purpose casks through analyses of current practices and discussions of ways to further improve application of the concept.

The Agency contributed to the safe management of radioactive materials released to the environment through its work with the International Maritime Organization and through various conventions. During the year, the Agency updated the inventory of human-made radioactive materials at sea and the radiological assessment procedure to ensure that radioactivity levels of candidate materials for dumping were low enough to preclude radiological impact on the marine environment. The Organizational Meeting for the Fifth Review Meeting of the Contracting Parties to the Joint Convention on the Safety of Spent Fuel Management and on the Safety of Radioactive Waste Management (The Joint Convention) [YUN 1997, p. 487], which entered into force in 2001 [YUN 2001, p. 487], was also held in May. The meeting discussed the timetable for the Fifth Review Meeting.

On 25 September [GC(58)/RES/10], the IAEA General Conference called upon the secretariat to strengthen and expand its programme of training and education activities, focusing on building institutional, technical and managerial capabilities in Member States, and to continue efforts to preserve its knowledge and institutional memory relating to nuclear safety and the safe disposal of radioactive waste.

Preparatory meeting for Conference on nuclear-weapon-free zones and Mongolia

The third preparatory meeting for the third Conference of States Parties and Signatories of Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia was held (New York, 7 May) on the margins of the third session of the Preparatory Committee for the 2015 NPT Review Conference. The participants discussed procedural issues relating to the Third Conference, to be held in 2015, and agreed to hold informal meetings in New York to discuss the draft outcome document for the Conference. They stressed the important role nuclear-weapon-free zones played in maintaining international peace and security, and encouraged further cooperation among them in areas of common interest. They reiterated calls for the withdrawal of interpretative declarations and reservations to the protocols to the nuclear-weapon-free zone treaties made by the nuclear-weapon States.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/66 by recorded vote (176-0-4) [agenda item 96].

Third Conference of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia, 2015

The General Assembly,

Recognizing the right of any group of States to conclude regional treaties in order to ensure the total absence of nuclear weapons in their respective territories, as established by article VII of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Recalling the provisions on nuclear-weapon-free zones of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament,

Welcoming the important contribution of the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba and the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia, as well as the Antarctic Treaty, to the achievement of the objectives of nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation, and towards freeing the southern hemisphere and adjacent areas covered by those treaties from nuclear weapons,

Recalling its resolution 67/52 of 3 December 2012 on Mongolia's international security and nuclear-weapon-free status,

Reaffirming the conviction that, pending the total elimination of nuclear weapons, the establishment and maintenance of nuclear-weapon-free zones enhances global and regional peace and security, strengthens the nuclear non-proliferation regime and contributes towards realizing the objectives of nuclear disarmament,

Urging States that have not yet established nuclear-weapon-free-zone treaties to accelerate efforts in this direction, particularly in the Middle East, through agreements freely arrived at among the States of the region concerned, in accordance with the provisions of the Final Document of the first special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament and the principles adopted by the Disarmament Commission in 1999,

Taking note of paragraph 172 of the Final Document of the Sixteenth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held in Tehran from 26 to 31 August 2012, in which the Heads of State and Government stated their belief that those nuclear-weapon-free zones were positive steps and important measures towards strengthening global nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation,

Welcoming the proclamation of the Latin American and Caribbean region as a Zone of Peace, which was made on the occasion of the Second Summit of the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States, held in Havana on 28 and 29 January 2014,

Welcoming also the signing of the legally binding Protocol to the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia by the nuclear-weapon States in New York on 6 May 2014,

Recalling that concerned States are encouraged to ratify the nuclear-weapon-free zone treaties and the relevant protocols thereto, and to constructively consult and cooperate to bring about the entry into force of the relevant legally binding protocols to all such nuclear-weapon-free-zone treaties, which include negative security assurances, as expressed in the action plan adopted without a vote in 2010 at the Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Recognizing the progress made on increased collaboration within and between zones at the first and second Conferences of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones, held in Mexico City from 26 to 28 April 2005 and in New York on 30 April 2010, respectively, at which States reaffirmed their need to cooperate in order to achieve their common objectives,

Welcoming the third preparatory meeting for the third Conference of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia, held in New York on 7 May 2014, at which it was agreed to hold a series of informal meetings in New York to discuss the draft outcome document for the third Conference, to be held in 2015,

1. Decides to convene the third Conference of States Parties and Signatories to Treaties that Establish Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zones and Mongolia as a one-day Conference, in New York in 2015;

2. Also decides that the objective of the Conference will be to consider ways and means to enhance consultations and cooperation among States parties and signatories, the treaty agencies and other interested States, with the purpose of promoting coordination and convergence in the implementation of the provisions of the treaties and in strengthening the regime of nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation;

3. Urges the States parties and signatories to treaties that have established nuclear-weapon-free zones to develop activities of cooperation and coordination in order to promote their common objectives in the framework of the Conference;

Middle East

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 68/27 [YUN 2013, p. 500], the Secretary-General in July reported [A/69/130 (Part I) & Add.1] on the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East. Efforts intensified at bringing the States of the region together to reach an agreement on the arrangements for the postponed conference on the establishment of a Middle East zone free of nuclear weapons and all other WMDs. The facilitator (Finland) of the conference and the convenors held three rounds of open-ended informal consultations (Glion, Switzerland, 21–22 October, 2013; 25–26 November, 2013; 4–5 February, 2014). Many States expressed support for convening the conference before the end of 2014. Two subsequent rounds of informal consultative meetings were held (Geneva, 14 May; 24–25 June), however, differences among the parties persisted on several important aspects of the conference, including on its agenda and the modalities for the conference.

The report also included the replies on the matter from 12 Member States—Argentina, Australia, Cuba, Ecuador, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Lebanon, Mexico, Portugal, Syria and Ukraine, as well as the League of Arab States and the European Union.

Bacteriological (biological) and chemical weapons

In 2014, Member States continued to focus on strengthening the 1972 Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction (Biological Weapons Convention) (BWC) [YUN 1971, p. 19] and the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction (CWC) [YUN 1993, p. 111].

Bacteriological (biological) weapons

Bacteriological (biological) weapons convention

As at 31 December, 169 States had either ratified or acceded to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on

Meeting of States parties

In accordance with the decision of the Seventh Review Conference of the States Parties to BWC [YUN 2011, p. 522], a meeting of those States was convened (Geneva, 1–5 December) [BWC/MSP/2014/5]. It was attended by 110 States parties, 3 signatory States, 2 observer States, the United Nations, including the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute and the Office of Disarmament Affairs, 3 observer organizations and 15 non-governmental organizations and research institutes.

To further enhance the functioning of the database system to facilitate requests for and offers of exchange of assistance and cooperation, States parties noted the value of assessing its functionality, strengthening its utilization and improving its operation. They also agreed on the value of actively promoting and featuring more prominently the assistance and cooperation database for use on the main Implementation Support Unit webpage. They noted the value of considering in 2015 reasons for its low usage in order to address potential obstacles. To further strengthen international cooperation and ensure that all States parties had access to the benefits of developments in the life sciences, States parties noted the value of harnessing recent advances, including those in enabling technologies; vaccine development and production; biological production technologies; equipment and technical, practical and theoretical training for maintenance, occupational health and safety for high containment laboratories in order to strengthen the sustainable development of States parties, taking into account the needs of developing countries in meeting health-related challenges. States parties also agreed on the value of continuing in 2015, to explore strengthening the procedures and mechanisms for the provision of assistance, including information on, and the feasibility of an inventory of the types of assistance that States parties could provide; a data bank containing publicly available information on means of protection against, and responses to, biological and toxin weapons; procedures, or codes of conduct, for the provision of means of protection against, and responses to, the use of biological and toxin weapons to the requesting State party; a fund for assistance to affected States parties; and capacity-building for international regional and sub-regional organizations. States parties took note of the report of the Implementation Support Unit [BWC/MSP/2014/4], which called on them to continue working closely with the Unit in fulfilling its mandate.

Meeting of experts

The Meeting of Experts (Geneva, 4–8 August) [BWC/MSP/2014/MX/3] was attended by 84 States parties, 4 signatory States, 2 observer States, the United Nations and a number of its bodies and agencies, the European Union and other international and non-governmental organizations. Topics discussed at the Meeting included strengthening cooperation and assistance under Article X; reviewing developments in science and technology related to the Convention; and strengthening national implementation.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/447], adopted resolution 69/82 without vote [agenda item 103].

Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction

The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions relating to the complete and effective prohibition of bacteriological (biological) and toxin weapons and to their destruction,

Stressing that, although there are now 170 States parties to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction, including all the permanent members of the Security Council, there is a continuing need to achieve universalization of the Convention,

Reaffirming its call upon all signatory States that have not yet ratified the Convention to do so without delay, and calling upon those States that have not signed the Convention to become parties thereto at the earliest possible date, thus contributing to the achievement of universal adherence to the Convention,

Bearing in mind its call upon all States parties to the Convention to participate in the implementation of the recommendations of the review conferences of the parties to the Convention, including the exchange of information and data agreed to in the Final Declaration of the Third Review Conference of the Parties to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction, later amended by the Final Declaration of the Seventh Review Conference, and to provide such information and data in conformity with the standardized procedure to the Implementation Support Unit within the Office for Disarmament Affairs of the Secretariat on an annual basis and no later than 15 April,

Welcoming the reaffirmation made in the Final Declarations of the Fourth, Sixth and Seventh Review Conferences that under all circumstances the use of bacteriological (biological) and toxin weapons and their development, production and stockpiling are effectively prohibited under article I of the Convention,

Recognizing the importance of ongoing efforts by States parties to enhance international cooperation, assistance and the fullest possible exchange in biological sciences and technology for peaceful purposes, recognizing also that there still remain challenges and obstacles to be overcome in order to enhance international cooperation, and recognizing further the value of building capacity through international cooperation, in line with the Final Document of the Seventh Review Conference,

Reaffirming the importance of national measures, in accordance with constitutional processes, in strengthening the implementation of the Convention by States parties, in line with the Final Document of the Seventh Review Conference,

Reaffirming also the importance of the review of developments in the field of science and technology related to the Convention,

Noting the decision of the Seventh Review Conference to retain the previous structures from the 2003–2010 intersessional process, consisting of annual meetings of States parties preceded by annual meetings of experts, and to continue to allocate five days to each meeting of States parties and each meeting of experts during the 2012–2015 intersessional process,

Recalling the decision of the Seventh Review Conference that the Eighth Review Conference shall be held in Geneva not later than 2016,

1. Notes with satisfaction the successful outcome of and the decisions on all provisions of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction reached at the Seventh Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention, and calls upon States parties to the Convention to participate and actively engage in their implementation;

3. Also notes with appreciation that the Seventh Review Conference decided that the questions of (a) how to enable fuller participation in the confidence-building measures, and (b) how to strengthen implementation of article VII, including consideration of detailed procedures and mechanisms for the provision of assistance and cooperation by States parties, shall be discussed in 2012 and 2013 and 2014 and 2015, respectively, during the 2012–2015 intersessional process;

4. Notes with satisfaction that the meeting of States parties and the meeting of experts, held in Geneva from 9 to 13 December 2013 and from 4 to 8 August 2014, respectively, successfully addressed the three standing agenda items and the biennial item on the agenda, and calls upon States parties to the Convention to continue to participate in and contribute to the work of the intersessional process and, in particular, to make the most of the time allotted to consideration of the new biennial agenda item to be discussed in 2014 and 2015 on Article VII in the remaining meetings of experts and meetings of States parties during the current intersessional process;

5. Appreciates the information and data on confidence-building measures provided by States parties to date, recalls the discussions on the biennial item on confidence-building measures in 2012 and 2013 and relevant paragraphs of the reports of the meetings of States parties, and calls upon all States parties to the Convention to participate in the exchange of information and data on confidence-building measures called for in the relevant decisions of the review conferences;

6. Notes with appreciation the decision of the Seventh Review Conference on the establishment of a database to facilitate requests for and offers of exchange of assistance and cooperation, and urges States parties to submit to the Implementation Support Unit, on a voluntary basis, requests for and offers of cooperation and assistance, including in terms of equipment, materials and scientific and technological information regarding the use of biological and toxin agents for peaceful purposes;

8. Notes with satisfaction the decision of the Seventh Review Conference on the establishment of a sponsorship programme in order to support and increase the participation of developing States parties in the meetings of the intersessional programme, and calls upon States parties in a position to do so to offer voluntary contributions for the programme;

9. Notes with appreciation the work of the Implementation Support Unit and its contribution to supporting the intersessional process;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to render the necessary assistance to the depositary Governments of the Convention, to provide such services as may be required for the implementation of the decisions and recommendations of the review conferences and to render the necessary assistance and to provide such services as may be required for the remaining meetings of experts and the meetings of States parties during the current intersessional process;

11. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its seventieth session the item entitled "Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction".

Chemical weapons

Chemical weapons convention

As at 31 December, the number of States that had either ratified or acceded to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and Their Destruction stood at 190. The number of signatories remained at 165. The Convention was adopted by the Conference on Disarmament in 1992 [YUN 1992, p. 64] and entered into force in 1997 [YUN 2007, p. 499].

Nineteenth Session of the Conference of States Parties

The nineteenth session of the Conference of States Parties (The Hague, Netherlands, 1–5 December) [C-19/5] was attended by 132 States parties, 2 signatory States, 6 international organizations, specialized agencies and other international bodies, as well as representatives of the global chemical industry and scientific community.

The Conference expressed concern that the three possessor States parties (Libya, Russian Federation, United States) were unable to fully meet the final extended deadline of 29 April 2012 for the destruction of their chemical weapons stockpiles, but noted that measures were being implemented towards that end. The Conference noted that measures continued to be undertaken for destruction activities to meet the planned completion date of 31 December 2020 by the Russian Federation; September 2023 by the United States; and December 2016 by Libya. The Conference encouraged the possessor States concerned to include confirmation, in the required reporting to the Executive Council and the Conference, indicating that they remained on schedule to complete destruction activities by their planned completion dates. With regard to the destruction of abandoned chemical weapons by Japan in China, the Conference urged the relevant States parties to continue to make the fullest possible effort to complete the destruction of those weapons as soon as possible.

The Conference considered and approved the report of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (opcw) on the implementation of the Convention in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 506].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/67 by recorded vote (181-0-1) [agenda item 96 (aa)].

Implementation of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction

The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject of chemical weapons, in particular resolution 68/45 of 5 December 2013, adopted without a vote,

Determined to achieve the effective prohibition of the development, production, acquisition, transfer, stockpiling and use of chemical weapons and their destruction,

Welcoming the significant progress achieved in the elimination of the Syrian chemical weapons programme, and noting in particular the completed elimination by 23 June 2014, that is, in the first half of 2014, of all declared chemical weapons material and equipment from the territory of the Syrian Arab Republic, despite uniquely challenging conditions,

Noting that the following actions remain to be taken:

(a) Destruction of chemical weapons material removed from the territory of the Syrian Arab Republic, outside its territory,

(b) Destruction of the 12 remaining declared chemical weapons production facilities,

(c) Inspections of the declared sites that remain to be inspected,

Urging the Technical Secretariat of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the Syrian authorities to continue to cooperate through technical discussions on outstanding issues regarding the declaration of the Syrian Arab Republic, with a view to the soonest resolution of questions raised by the Technical Secretariat to further the accuracy and completeness of the declaration,

Commending the invaluable contribution of the Joint Mission of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the United Nations and the personnel of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons to the progress achieved in the elimination of the Syrian chemical weapons programme, as well as the assistance and support extended to this endeavour by the States parties, and welcoming the effective coordination between the Government of the Syrian Arab Republic and the Joint Mission and the personnel of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons,

Reaffirming the broad support for the decision of the Director-General of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons to send a mission to establish the facts surrounding the allegations of the use of toxic chemicals, reportedly chlorine, for hostile purposes in the Syrian Arab Republic, and re-emphasizing its unequivocal support for the decision of the Director-General to continue the mission, while stressing that the safety and security of mission personnel remains the top priority,

Underlining the fact that the use of chemical weapons by anyone under any circumstances would be reprehensible and completely contrary to the legal norms and standards of the international community,

Reaffirming the importance of the outcome of the Third Special Session of the Conference of the States Parties to Review the Operation of the Chemical Weapons Convention, held in The Hague from 8 to 19 April 2013 (the Third Review Conference), including its consensus final report, in which the Conference addressed all aspects of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction, and made important recommendations on its continued implementation,

Emphasizing that the Third Review Conference welcomed the fact that the Convention is a unique multilateral agreement banning an entire category of weapons of mass destruction in a non-discriminatory and verifiable manner under strict and effective international control and noted with satisfaction that the Convention continues to be a remarkable success and an example of effective multilateralism,

Convinced that the Convention, 17 years after its entry into force, has reinforced its role as the international norm against chemical weapons, and that it constitutes a major contribution to:

- (a) International peace and security,
- (b) Eliminating chemical weapons and preventing their re-emergence,
- (c) The ultimate objective of general and complete disarmament under strict and effective international control,
- (d) Excluding completely, for the sake of all mankind, the possibility of the use of chemical weapons,
- (e) Promoting international cooperation and exchange in scientific and technical information in the field of chemical activities among States parties for peaceful purposes in order to enhance the economic and technological development of all States parties,

1. Emphasizes that the universality of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction is essential to achieving its object and purpose and to enhancing the security of States parties, as well as to international peace and security, underlines the fact that the objectives of the Convention will not be fully realized as long as there remains even a single State not party to the Convention that could possess or acquire such weapons, and calls upon all States that have not yet done so to become parties to the Convention without delay;

2. Underlines the fact that the full, effective and non-discriminatory implementation of all articles of the Convention makes a major contribution to international peace and security through the elimination of existing stockpiles of chemical weapons and the prohibition of their acquisition and use, and provides for assistance and protection in the event of use or threat of use of chemical weapons and for international cooperation for peaceful purposes in the field of chemical activities;

3. Notes the impact of scientific and technological progress on the effective implementation of the Convention and the importance for the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and its policymaking organs of taking due account of such developments;

4. Reaffirms that the obligation of the States parties to complete the destruction of chemical weapons stockpiles and the destruction or conversion of chemical weapons production facilities in accordance with the provisions of the Convention and the Annex on Implementation and Verification (Verification Annex) and under the verification of the Technical Secretariat of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons is essential for the realization of the object and purpose of the Convention;

5. Stresses the importance to the Convention that all possessors of chemical weapons, chemical weapons production facilities or chemical weapons development facilities, including previously declared possessor States, should be among the States parties to the Convention, and welcomes progress to that end;

6. Recalls that the Third Special Session of the Conference of the States Parties to Review the Operation of the Chemical Weapons Convention expressed concern regarding the statement made by the Director-General of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in his report to the Executive Council of the Organization at its sixty-eighth session, provided in accordance with paragraph 2 of decision C-16/DEC.11 of 1 December 2011 adopted by the Conference of the States Parties at its sixteenth session, that three possessor States parties, namely, Libya, the Russian Federation and the United States of America, had been unable to fully meet the final extended deadline of 29 April 2012 for the destruction of their chemical weapons stockpiles, and also expressed determination that the destruction of all categories of chemical weapons should be completed in the shortest time possible in accordance with the provisions of the Convention and the Verification Annex, and with the full application of the relevant decisions that have been taken;

7. Notes with concern that, along with the threat of the possible production, acquisition and use of chemical weapons by States, the international community also faces the danger of the production, acquisition and use of chemical weapons by non-State actors, including terrorists, concerns which have highlighted the necessity of achieving universal adherence to the Convention, as well as the high level of readiness of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons, and stresses that the full and effective implementation of all provisions of the Convention, including those on national implementation (article VII) and assistance and protection (article X), constitutes an important contribution to the efforts of the United Nations in the global fight against terrorism in all its forms and manifestations;

8. Notes that the effective application of the verification system builds confidence in compliance with the Convention by States parties;

9. Stresses the importance of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in verifying compliance with the provisions of the Convention as well as in promoting the timely and efficient accomplishment of all its objectives;

10. Urges all States parties to the Convention to meet in full and on time their obligations under the Convention and to support the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in its implementation activities;

11. Welcomes progress made in the national implementation of article VII obligations, commends the States parties and the Technical Secretariat for assisting other States parties, on request, with the implementation of the follow-up to the plan of action regarding article VII obligations, and urges States parties that have not fulfilled their obligations under article VII to do so without further delay, in accordance with their constitutional processes;

12. Emphasizes the continuing relevance and importance of the provisions of article X of the Convention, welcomes the activities of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in relation to assistance and protection against chemical weapons, supports further efforts by both States parties and the Technical Secretariat to promote a high level of readiness to respond to chemical weapons threats as articulated in article X, and welcomes the effectiveness and efficiency of the increased focus on making full use of regional and subregional capacities and expertise, including taking advantage of established training centres;

13. Reaffirms that the provisions of the Convention shall be implemented in a manner that avoids hampering the economic or technological development of States parties and international cooperation in the field of chemical activities for purposes not prohibited under the Convention, including the international exchange of scientific and technical information, and chemicals and equipment for the production, processing or use of chemicals for purposes not prohibited under the Convention;

14. Emphasizes the importance of the provisions of article XI of the Convention relating to the economic and technological development of States parties, recalls that the full, effective and non-discriminatory implementation of those provisions contributes to universality, and also reaffirms the undertaking of the States parties to foster international cooperation for peaceful purposes in the field of chemical activities of the States parties and the importance of that cooperation and its contribution to the promotion of the Convention as a whole;

15. Notes with appreciation the ongoing work of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons to achieve the object and purpose of the Convention, to ensure the full implementation of its provisions, including those for international verification of compliance with it, and to provide a forum for consultation and cooperation among States parties;

16. Welcomes the cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons within the framework of the relationship agreement between the United Nations and the Organization, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention;

Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons

The Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW), mandated to oversee the implementation of the Chemical Weapons Convention and provide a forum for consultation [C-20/4], reported that in 2014 it had verified the destruction of 4,084.258 metric tons of chemical weapons—resulting in a total of 61,444.607 metric tons (78 per cent of the declared global amount) of Category I chemical weapons that were verified as destroyed since the Convention entered into force in 1977 [YUN 1977, p. 499]. During the year, the secretariat conducted 10 inspections regarding abandoned chemical weapons and 5 inspections concerning old chemical weapons. The OPCW-UN Joint Mission in Syria, established in 2013 [YUN 2013, p. 507], completed its operations on 30 September 2014. The OPCW was able to verify the destruction of 98 per cent of chemical weapons declared by Syria, including all Category 1 chemicals. That achievement was the result of the intensive collective effort of the technical secretariat and States parties, amid often dangerous circumstances. In April, the Director General established the OPCW Fact-Finding Mission in Syria in response to persistent allegations of use of chlorine gas as a weapon in that country (see p. 596).

The Verification Programme carried out 241 inspections of industrial facilities, the highest number ever conducted in a single year. Three OPCW tools to assist States parties in the identification of scheduled chemicals were updated, and a new communication tool—the Secure Information Exchange System—was launched to provide a direct, electronic channel for the secure exchange of confidential information between the secretariat and States parties. Facility agreements and arrangements were concluded between OPCW and Finland, Germany, the United Kingdom and the United States.

Reports of Secretary-General. In July, in a note [A/69/171] on cooperation between the United Nations and OPCW, the Secretary-General transmitted to the General Assembly the OPCW report for 2012 [YUN 2012, p. 514].

In an August consolidated report [A/69/228-S/2014/560] on cooperation between the United Nations and regional and other organizations, the Secretary-General stated that OPCW, as a member of the Counter-Terrorism Implementation Task Force and Co-Chair of the Working Group on Preventing and Responding to Weapon of Mass Destruction Attacks, would spearhead a Task Force project aimed at ensuring the interoperability of relevant UN agencies and international partners in the event of a chemical or biological attack or incident. With the support of OPCW, the Biological Weapons Convention Implementation Support Unit of the United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs and the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific organized a workshop on the national implementation of the Biological Weapons Convention and the Chemical Weapons Convention.

1925 Geneva Protocol

The 1925 Protocol for the Prohibition of the Use in War of Asphyxiating, Poisonous or Other Gases, and of Bacteriological Methods of Warfare (1925 Geneva Protocol), which prohibits the use of chemical and biological weapons in war, entered into force in 1928.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 2 December [meeting 62], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/69/440], adopted resolution 69/53 by recorded vote (181-0-2) [agenda item 96 (d)].

The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject, in particular resolution 67/35 of 3 December 2012,

Determined to act with a view to achieving effective progress towards general and complete disarmament under strict and effective international control,

Recalling the long-standing determination of the international community to achieve the effective prohibition of the development, production, stockpiling and use of chemical and biological weapons, as well as the continuing support for measures to uphold the authority of the Protocol for the Prohibition of the Use in War of Asphyxiating, Poisonous or Other Gases, and of Bacteriological Methods of Warfare, signed at Geneva on 17 June 1925, as expressed by consensus in many previous resolutions,

Programme of Action on illicit trade in small arms

The Fifth biennial meeting of States to consider the implementation of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All its Aspects [YUN 2001, p. 499] (New York, 16–20 June) [A/CONF.192/BMS/2014/2] considered stockpile management, including physical security measures; implementation of the International Tracing Instrument; and international cooperation and assistance, including capacity-building, training and the transfer of technology and equipment. States also discussed the follow-up to the second Conference to Review Progress Made in the Implementation of the Programme of Action [YUN 2012, p. 517] and agreed on topics to be considered at the Open-ended Meeting of Governmental Experts in 2015. Sixty-eight States submitted national reports on their implementation of the Programme of Action and the International Tracing Instrument. The Meeting considered a report by the Secretary-General on recent developments in the manufacturing, technology and design of small arms and light weapons and their implications for the implementation of the International Tracing Instrument [A/CONF.192/BMS/2014/1].

The Meeting agreed to undertake measures to prevent, combat and eradicate the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects. The measures included taking advantage of technological advances to strengthen stockpile management; and considering further developments in the manufacturing, technology and design of small arms and light weapons and their implications for the full and effective implementation of the International Tracing Instrument. The Meeting also urged States and international, regional and subregional organizations to render cooperation and assistance and the transfer of technology and equipment, in line with the needs and priorities of recipient States; and to consider options for developing a comprehensive international assistance framework to provide resources, training, capacity-building and technical assistance to developing countries in support of the effective implementation of the International Tracing Instrument. The Outcome document of the meeting was annexed to its report.
