Bulgaria: draft resolution

Attaching special importance to the world economic situation and being particularly concerned at some unfavourable economic developments,

Noting the keen interest shown in international economic problems during the general debate in the General Assembly,

Considering that States have an interest in the solution of a number of important international economic questions,

Bearing in mind that one of the fundamental purposes of the United Nations is to find a solution to international problems of an economic character with a view to promoting the well-being of all peoples,

Desiring to bring about a further intensification of the economic activities of the United Nations,

Proposes that the Secretary-General, on the basis of the records of the work of United Nations economic bodies during the past two years, should submit to the General Assembly at its fourteenth session a report on economic questions of special interest to many countries, including questions relating to the promotion of international trade and to assistance in the development of the less developed countries, the solution of which calls for international action, as for example, the convening of a conference of experts or other appropriate measures.
