(g) To support the implementation of the recommendations of the independent international fact-finding mission on Myanmar and assisting the work of the ongoing Independent Mechanism;

(h) To fully implement the recommendations contained in the report of the independent inquiry into the involvement of the United Nations in Myanmar from 2010 to 2018.

2. Under the terms of operative paragraph 22 of the draft resolution, the General Assembly would request the Special Envoy to continue to participate by way of interactive dialogue in the seventy-sixth session of the Assembly.

II. Relationship of the proposed requests to the proposed programme budget for 2021

3. The activities referred to in the draft resolution relate to subprogramme 1, Prevention, management and resolution of conflicts, of programme 2, Political affairs, of the proposed programme plan for 2021 (A/75/6 \(Sect.3\)) and section 3, Political affairs, of the proposed programme budget for 2021 (A/75/6 \(Sect. 3\)/Add.2).

III. Activities by which the proposed requests would be implemented

4. Pursuant to operative paragraph 21 (b) of the draft resolution, the Secretary-General would extend the appointment of the Special Envoy on Myanmar, who would carry out work relating to the good offices of the Secretary-General. Accordingly, the Office of the Special Envoy is assumed to be a special political mission under thematic cluster I, Special and personal envoys, advisers and representatives of the Secretary-General.

5. The Special Envoy would continue to function on a when-actually-employed basis and be supported by a small team, based in Nay Pyi Taw and at Headquarters.

6. The Office would continue to work with a wide range of actors, including the Government of Myanmar, to provide the good offices of the Secretary-General and encourage progress in the democratic transition, especially following the general elections held on 8 November 2020, and accountability. In particular, the Office would continue to work on promoting social cohesion and enabling a solution to the situation of the Rohingya community and other minorities. In that context, in line with the recommendations of the Advisory Commission on Rakhine State, the Special Envoy would undertake efforts so that there would be a definite advancement following elections towards the attainment of political, social and economic rights by the Rohingya community. The Special Envoy would continue to support and advocate durable solutions for those displaced by violence. She would do the same for efforts to create conditions for voluntary, dignified, safe and sustainable returns to places of origin or choice, including by addressing root causes and the scaling-up of development projects in Rakhine, one of the poorest states in Myanmar. On those fronts, the Special Envoy would work in close cooperation with key stakeholders, especially regional organizations, including the Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

7. To improve the conditions of the members of the Rohingya community and others living in Bangladesh and Myanmar, the Office would work with officials and relevant actors within and outside Myanmar towards unfettered humanitarian access and sustained dialogue between the Myanmar authorities and refugees and pursue other confidence-building measures. In addition, the Special Envoy would support the efforts of the international community to provide continued political and financial support to the management of the multidimensional crisis by Bangladesh. In that regard, she would work for the effective and comprehensive implementation of recommendations of the Advisory Commission on Rakhine State and help to mobilize the coordinated system-wide support of the Organization in this regard. As part of that effort, the Special Envoy would help to advance progress on the implementation of the memorandum of understanding signed on 6 July 2018 by the Government of Myanmar, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and the United Nations Development Programme on United Nations system support for creating the conditions for the voluntary, safe and sustainable return of refugees from Bangladesh and their reintegration into Rakhine State. That would include advocating greater access to more locations covered under the quick-impact projects of the memorandum that are aimed at supporting recovery and resilience-based development for the benefit of all communities in Rakhine State. The memorandum has been extended until June 2021.

8. With regard to national reconciliation, the Office of the Special Envoy would continue to advocate that all sides exercise restraint and avoid actions that could reverse the gains of the peace process while providing protection and access to civilians in need, which is paramount for greater efforts towards a more inclusive peace process. In the post-elections context, the Office would reinforce the importance of all leaders in Myanmar, taking a resounding unified stance against incitement and hatred, an approach that needs to go together with promoting a democratic transition that is widely inclusive, transparent and accessible so that it can serve as a nationally unifying event. The Special Envoy would aim to lead the efforts of the United Nations system so that national stakeholders are able to engage with various entities of the United Nations with the resources and tools available to support national reconciliation efforts.

9. To ensure close coordination with key stakeholders in Myanmar, the Office would remain in Nay Pyi Taw. The small presence in New York would allow for continued close consultations with Member States and help to build greater coherence and coordination in the overall engagement of the United Nations on Myanmar. The Special Envoy would also work closely with the United Nations country team in Myanmar on a range of activities relevant to her mandate. In addition, in carrying out its mandate, the Office would work in partnership with a wide range of actors within the United Nations system and among external partners. The Special Envoy would also maintain regular and close contact with interested Members States.
