Nations Conference on Landlocked Developing Countries, to be held in Turkmenistan from 5 to 8 August 2025,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 79/218 of 19 December 2024 on the follow-up to the Fifth United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries,

Expressing concern over the difficult external environment that the least developed countries, including graduating countries and recently graduated countries, face in their pursuit of achieving the Sustainable Development Goals and their own national development goals, including progressing towards graduation from the list of least developed countries, such as the adverse impacts of climate change, conflicts, long-lasting negative effects from the COVID-19 pandemic, deterioration in food and energy security, macroeconomic challenges and significant reductions in official development assistance,

Recognizing the positive contribution of migrants for inclusive growth and sustainable development in countries of origin and transit and destination countries, and that remittances from migrant workers, half of whom are women, are typically wages transferred to families, primarily to meet part of the needs of the recipient households,

Expressing concern over the reduction in official development assistance flows to the least developed countries, which risks reversing some of the development gains made by these countries in recent decades,

Noting with concern that debt burdens of the least developed countries are growing rapidly, with the total external debt of the least developed countries surging to 585.9 billion United States dollars in 2023, representing a threefold increase since 2010, which is squeezing fiscal space and constraining the ability of Governments to invest in sustainable development,

28. Takes note with appreciation of the work of the Office of the High Representative for the Least Developed Countries, Landlocked Developing Countries and Small Island Developing States to continue to mobilize resources and support the implementation of the Doha Programme of Action, including the establishment of the key deliverables and capacity-building to assist the least developed countries in mainstreaming the Programme of Action into their national development plans and strategies;
