A. Calendar of conferences and meetings

10. At its opening meeting, held on 2 September, the Committee considered the section of the report of the Secretary-General on the pattern of conferences containing information on the cycle of meetings and conferences (A/80/94, sect. II.A).

11. The Committee reviewed and adopted the draft calendar of conferences and meetings of the United Nations for 2026 as contained in document A/AC.172/2025/L.2.

12. II.A, and supplementary information,¹ sect. I.A).

Conclusions and recommendations

13. The Committee granted the requests of eight bodies to meet during the main part of the eightieth session of the General Assembly on the understanding that conference services would be allocated to all such meetings in a way that would not impede the work of the Assembly and its Main Committees.

Intersessional departures

14. The General Assembly, in its resolution 79/248, approved the draft calendar of conferences and meetings of the United Nations for 2025, as submitted by the Committee, and authorized the Committee to make any adjustments that might become necessary as a result of actions and decisions taken by the Assembly at its seventy-ninth session. The calendar was issued as document A/AC.172/2025/2.

15. The Committee approved the following requests:

(f) Request from the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Board to hold its eighty-first session in Vienna instead of New York.

B. Utilization of conference-servicing resources

16. At its opening meeting, the Committee considered the sections of the report containing an analysis of the utilization of conference-servicing resources by United Nations organs (A/80/94, sect. II.B, and supplementary information, sects. I.C and D) and concerning accessibility (A/80/94, sect. VI).

C. Enhancing integrated global management, leveraging technology and measuring the quality of conference services

17. At the same meeting, the Committee considered the sections of the report concerning developments in meetings services in 2024 (ibid., sect. II.F), new developments in documents management (ibid., sect. III.G), and enhancing integrated global management and measuring the quality of conference services (ibid., sect. V).

Discussion

18. One representative, noting the amount of time and resources involved in hosting major United Nations meetings, highlighted the importance of achieving concrete outcomes and eliminating redundancies. She said that the Committee should continue to identify ways to improve the efficiency of conference services. New technologies, especially artificial intelligence, could help in various ways, including conference planning, translation and other documentation services, and improving the accessibility of meetings.

19. She stressed the importance of guaranteeing data privacy and the personal safety of participants at conferences held outside major United Nations offices. Clear safeguards must be established before approving external venues for United Nations events and conferences.

20. Another representative said that videoconferencing had been a special format adopted during the coronavirus disease (COVID-19) pandemic and should not be expanded blindly. While some permanent missions might wish to participate in meetings remotely because of their staffing capacity, all official United Nations meetings should be held in person unless Member States decided otherwise for specific meetings. Another representative, while in agreement about the need not to expand videoconferencing without giving the matter due consideration, said it was important to understand the concerns of delegations and learn from the extraordinary measures taken during the pandemic.

21. One representative suggested that the UN80 Initiative could lead to new opportunities for the Department for General Assembly and Conference Management, especially in the provision of interpretation and translation services. In view of the Committee's upcoming discussion of efficiencies in the United Nations system, pilot projects based on the application of artificial intelligence were of particular interest.

22. Another representative welcomed the steps taken to reduce costs by identifying and eliminating duplication and overlap and to optimize resources without compromising on service provision. She also welcomed efforts to improve conference services, including videoconferencing, and to capitalize on new technologies, stressing that the six official languages must be treated equally in the development of any new platforms.

D. Matters related to documentation and publications

23. At its opening meeting, the Committee considered the sections of the report concerning matters related to documentation and publications (ibid., sect. III, and supplementary information, sect. II).

Discussion

24. One representative said that the timely issuance of documents in the six official languages was vital, especially for the Fifth Committee. She commended the Secretariat, in particular the Department for General Assembly and Conference Management, for its efforts to achieve this.

E. Matters related to language services

25. At its opening meeting, the Committee considered the section of the report concerning matters related to language services (A/80/94, sect. V).

Discussion

26. One representative said that Member States should receive updates on the implementation of the United Nations Strategic Framework on Multilingualism and that adequate resources should be allocated to ensure that conference services could be provided in full in all official languages.

27. He recommended that the Department increase the monitoring of interpretation quality and the training of interpreters to improve the accuracy of interpretation, factoring in the feedback received from Member States. Since high-quality conference services relied on well-trained, experienced interpreters, it was vital for the Department to recruit interpreters with excellent language skills.

28. Another representative noted that multilingualism was underfunded, and requested further details on the negative impact of the liquidity crisis on multilingualism. He asked which multilingualism-related mandates the Secretariat had not been, or would not be, able to fulfil due to the shortage of funds.

29. One representative emphasized that multilingualism meant more than the six official languages of the United Nations and asked how many non-official languages were used in the General Assembly, and how often.

30. Another representative drew attention to the impact that any reduction in interpretation services for regional groups would have on the work of Member States. She added that, in order for services to be provided effectively in all official languages, language posts should not be subject to geographical distribution.

Chapter IV

Adoption of the report and proposed dates for the organizational and substantive sessions of 2026

31. At its 572nd meeting, on 8 September, the Committee adopted the report and the proposed dates for its organizational and substantive sessions of 2026 so that the dates would be included in the calendar of conferences and meetings.
