NOTE

The resolutions and decisions of the Economic and Social Council are identified as follows:

Resolutions

Until 1977 (up to and including the resumed sixty-third session), the resolutions of the Economic and Social Council were numbered consecutively and were identified by an arabic numeral followed by an indication of the session in parentheses (for example: resolution 1773 (LIV), resolution 1915 (ORG-75), resolution 2046 (S-III), adopted at the fifty-fourth session, the organizational session for 1975 and the third special session, respectively). When several resolutions were adopted under the same number, each of them was identified by a capital letter (for example: resolution 1926 B (LVIII), resolutions 1954 A to D (LIX)). The last resolution so numbered is resolution 2130 (LXIII), of 14 December 1977.

Since 1978, as part of the new system adopted for symbols of Council documents, the resolutions have been numbered on a yearly basis and identified by two arabic numerals separated by an oblique stroke, the first numeral indicating the year, the second the number of the resolution in the annual series (for example: resolution 1990/47).

Decisions

Until 1973 (up to and including the resumed fifty-fifth session), the decisions of the Council were not numbered. From 1974 to 1977 (up to and including the resumed sixty-third session), the decisions were numbered consecutively and were identified by an arabic numeral followed by an indication of the session in parentheses (for example: decision 64 (ORG-75), decision 78 (LVIII), adopted at the organizational session for 1975 and the fifty-eighth session, respectively). The last decision so numbered is decision 293 (LXIII), of 2 December 1977.

Since 1978, as part of the new system adopted for symbols of Council documents, the decisions have been numbered on a yearly basis and identified by two arabic numerals separated by an oblique stroke, the first numeral indicating the year, the second the number of the decision in the annual series (for example: decision 1990/224).

In 1997, the resolutions and decisions adopted by the Council are being published in Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1997, Supplement No. 1.

Deeply appreciative of the fact that the work of the Working Group has not involved any additional expenditures and that its needs have been met from within existing resources,

Highly appreciative of the fact that the work done by the Working Group has already resulted in savings for the United Nations and its Member States and has created opportunities for further savings,

Taking note with deep interest of the proposed initiatives of the Working Group, including the promotion of computer-based decision-making techniques to facilitate the drafting of resolutions and documents in ways that would accelerate the reaching of agreements in the drafting process and the employment of modern information technology for the development activities of the United Nations,

Recognizing that the work done by the Working Group will support and facilitate the successful implementation of the initiatives being taken by the Secretary-General with a view to expanding the use of information technology and the availability and transparency of information in order further to facilitate access to United Nations information in all countries,

1997/3. Work of the Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling its resolutions 1995/5 and 1995/6 of 19 July 1995,

Recalling also its decision 1996/301 of 26 July 1996, in which it invited the Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods, when examining the question of the periodicity of amendments to the Recommendations on the Transport of Dangerous Goods,¹⁰ to take fully into account the views expressed by delegations during the substantive session of 1996 of the Council,

Bearing in mind the increasing volume of dangerous goods in worldwide commerce and the rapid expansion of technology and innovation,

Bearing in mind also the continuing need to meet the growing concern for the protection of life, property and the environment through the safe transport of dangerous goods, while facilitating trade,

Aware that, in order to achieve internationally harmonized laws, the Economic Commission for Europe, the International Maritime Organization, the International Civil Aviation Organization and other specialized agencies and international organizations involved in activities related to the transport of dangerous goods and interested Member States have responded positively to the various resolutions of the Council adopted since 15 April 1953 and that, being committed to taking the recommendations of the Committee as a basis for the formulation of their requirements and regulations, including those concerning labelling and classification, those organizations therefore rely on the work of the Committee,

Aware also of the advice of the Committee to the effect that reformatting the provisions applicable to all modes of transport contained in the Recommendations on the Transport of Dangerous Goods into a model regulation, annexed to a basic recommendation, that could be directly integrated into all modal national and international regulations would enhance harmonization, facilitate regular updating of all relevant instruments by the organizations or regulatory authorities concerned and result in considerable overall savings for the Governments of the Member States, the United Nations, the specialized agencies and other international organizations,

Reconfirming the need for the Committee to participate actively in relevant activities associated with the implementation of Agenda 21,¹¹ as expressed in Council resolution 1995/6,

The special problems and constraints on the economic and social development of the least developed and landlocked developing countries have been recognized by the international community, as well as within the context of the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s adopted by the Second United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries held at Paris from 3 to 14 September 1990,²⁷ the International Development Strategy for the Fourth United Nations Development Decade²⁸ and other international declarations. These constraints require focused priority attention in the Asia and Pacific region in order to mainstream these countries into the ongoing regional integration process and to associate them with the economic and social dynamism of the region. The Special Body on Least Developed and Landlocked Developing Countries provides a focused forum for addressing the special issues and problems facing these groups of countries, in the spirit of regional cooperation.

2. Serve as a mobilizer of ideas and a catalyst for action to identify and promote new policy options at the national, subregional and regional levels for the removal of constraints on the economic and social development efforts of the least developed and landlocked developing countries, with emphasis on the adoption of measures for increased mobilization of domestic and foreign resources, trade and private sector development, public sector reform and the provision of economic advice, on request, to Governments with limited internal capacity.

4. Foster and strengthen intercountry cooperation arrangements for exchanges of experience and technical cooperation between and among the least developed and landlocked developing countries and with other developing and developed countries in the region.

5. Without duplicating work done elsewhere, review and analyse the special transit trade and transport problems of Asian landlocked developing countries, recommend suitable measures for solving these problems in accordance with international legal instruments, in particular article 125 of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea,²⁹ and encourage these countries and their transit neighbours to deal with problems within the context of bilateral cooperation.

6. Promote liaison with development agencies and financial institutions, private sector organizations, non-governmental organizations and donor countries, within and outside the region, in its initiatives and activities for the benefit of the least developed and landlocked developing countries.

1997/5. Reform of the intergovernmental machinery of the Economic Commission for Africa

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling the various resolutions that have implications for the mandate and operations of the Economic Commission for Africa, in particular General Assembly resolutions 32/197 of 20 December 1977 and 33/202 of 29 January 1979 on the restructuring of the economic and social sectors of the United Nations system and resolution 44/211 of 22 December 1989, ³¹ See Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1987, Supplement No. 16 (E/1987/36), chap. IV.

Recalling further General Assembly resolutions 45/177 of 19 December 1990, 45/264 of 13 May 1991, 46/235 of 13 April 1992 and 50/227 of 24 May 1996 on the restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields, on the basis of which the regional commissions should be enabled fully to play their role under the authority of the General Assembly and the Economic and Social Council,

Bearing in mind resolution 809 (XXXI) of 8 May 1996 of the Conference of Ministers of the Economic Commission for Africa on the new strategic directions for the Commission,³²

Having taken note of the new policy and programme orientation of the Commission as well as the steps being taken to restructure the secretariat, and conscious of the need to align the intergovernmental machinery to this new orientation in order to enable the Commission to address the emerging challenges and priorities of the region effectively,

Having reviewed the existing intergovernmental machinery of the Commission,

Decides that the structure and functioning of the intergovernmental machinery of the Economic Commission for Africa shall be as follows:

A. ORGANS DEALING WITH OVERALL DEVELOPMENT ISSUES

1. Conference of African Ministers Responsible for Economic and Social Development and Planning and the Technical Preparatory Committee of the Whole

The Conference of African Ministers Responsible for Economic and Social Development and Planning shall provide legislative mandates and policy guidance for the work of the Commission, consider and endorse the programmes of work of the Commission, serve as a forum for articulating Africa's position on development issues on the agenda of the United Nations and decide upon the recommendations of its subsidiary bodies and of the Executive Secretary.

Since the mandate of the Conference encompasses the full spectrum of economic and social development issues, it shall assume the legislative responsibilities previously assigned to the Conference of African Ministers Responsible for Human Development, which shall be abolished.

The Conference shall meet biennially. Its next session shall be held in 1999. The Bureau of the Commission shall be expanded so as to include a representative from each of the five subregions of the continent – North, East, Southern, West and Central Africa. It shall consist of a chairman, three vice-chairmen and one rapporteur.

A Follow-up Committee is hereby established. It shall be composed of the members of the incoming and outgoing bureaux of the Commission. It shall meet as often as necessary, but at least once in inter-sessional years to review Commission affairs and progress in the implementation of decisions.

The meetings of the Follow-up Committee shall be convened by the Executive Secretary in consultation with the Chairman of the Commission as and when necessary.

³² Ibid., 1996, Supplement No. 15 (E/1996/35), chap. IV.

The five Intergovernmental Committees of Experts of the Subregional Development Centres shall meet annually and report to the Commission through the Technical Preparatory Committee of the Whole. In the years when the Commission does not meet, the reports of the Committees shall be presented to the Follow-up Committee of the Bureau of the Commission. The Committees shall oversee the overall formulation and implementation of the programme of work and priorities of the Subregional Development Centres and make recommendations on important issues concerning economic and social development in their respective subregions, as well as on the promotion and strengthening of subregional economic cooperation and integration.

3. Conference of African Ministers of Finance

The Conference of African Ministers of Finance shall be retained. It shall be convened biennially in alternate years with the Conference of African Ministers Responsible for Economic and Social Development and Planning. The Conference of African Ministers of Finance shall have a committee of experts to prepare for its meetings. This committee shall be convened before each session of the Conference.

In particular, the Committee shall address issues relating to the economic empowerment of women, the protection of their legal and human rights and improved access to education and health. It shall meet biennially.

2. Committee on Development Information

As the Commission strengthens its role in assisting member States in developing their national information and communication infrastructure, it needs a body that brings together experts and policy makers to advise it in this area. The beginnings of such a body exist in the high-level working group that helped to articulate "Africa's Information Society Initiative: An action framework to build Africa's information and communication infrastructure"³³ and in the African Technical Advisory Committee of Experts on Information Infrastructure, which was established to provide advice on the implementation of the Initiative. The Committee on Development Information shall build on the work of these bodies as well as that of the Joint Conference of African Planners, Statisticians, Population and Information Specialists.

The mission of the Committee on Human Development and Civil Society shall be to help to strengthen civil society and human development. It shall enable the Commission to draw on the opinions of experts in the public and private sectors and civil society. The Committee shall conduct development and follow-up activities pertaining to global and regional action programmes such as the Copenhagen Declaration on Social Development⁴ and the Programme of Action⁵ of the World Summit for Social Development and the African Charter for Popular Participation in Development and Transformation.³⁷ It shall review major trends and issues of regional interest in the areas of human development and civil society and shall assume the functions of the Ministerial Follow-up Committee of Fifteen of the Conference of African Ministers Responsible for Human Development. The Committee shall meet biennially.

6. Committee on Natural Resources and Science and Technology

The Committee on Natural Resources and Science and Technology shall assume the functions performed by the African Regional Conference on Science and Technology and the Conference of African Ministers Responsible for the Development and Utilization of Mineral Resources and Energy. It shall be composed of experts in these fields.

The Committee shall serve as a forum for the promotion of cooperation among African countries in the areas of science and technology and development and natural resources and for the provision of advice on science and technology issues relevant to the development of member States. It shall meet biennially.

7. Committee on Regional Cooperation and Integration

The Committee on Regional Cooperation and Integration shall assume some of the functions of the Conference of African Ministers of Trade and Regional Cooperation and Integration. In view of the important role that trade plays in regional cooperation and integration, the main focus of this work shall be trade – intra-African and international trade. The Committee shall be composed of experts in the field of international trade and integration drawn from government as well as the private sector.

In addition, the Committee shall promote the implementation of measures designed to strengthen economic cooperation and integration among African countries, assist African countries and their intergovernmental organizations in making the policy instruments for economic cooperation and integration of the African region more effective and identify measures to coordinate and harmonize microeconomic and macroeconomic policies among African countries as a prerequisite for accelerating regional economic integration. Recalling General Assembly resolution 41/203 of 11 December 1986 and subsequent relevant resolutions on programme planning,

Recalling also resolution 809 (XXXI) of 8 May 1996 of the Conference of Ministers of the Economic Commission for Africa on the new strategic directions for the Commission,³² and endorsing in particular the new orientations of the Commission as outlined in the document entitled "Serving Africa better: strategic directions for the Economic

"ANNEX I

"Recommendations of the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime of the Political Group of Eight

"To combat transnational organized crime efficiently, the members of the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime of the Political Group of Eight recommended the following:

"1. States should review their laws governing criminal offences, jurisdiction, law enforcement powers and international cooperation, as well as their measures dealing with law enforcement training and crime prevention, to ensure that the special problems created by transnational organized crime are effectively addressed.

"2. With the aim of improving mutual assistance, States should, as needed, develop mutual legal assistance arrangements or treaties and exercise flexibility in the execution of requests for mutual assistance.

"3. States should, where feasible, render mutual assistance, notwithstanding the absence of dual criminality.

"4. States developing mutual assistance treaties should ensure that the treaties:

"(a) Provide a clear description of the scope of the assistance available;

"(b) Encourage a speedy process for assistance;

"(c) Are as comprehensive as possible in terms of assistance available;

⁸² E/CN.15/1997/12.

“(d) Reflect the principle that evidence will be gathered in the manner sought by the requesting State, unless the procedures are contrary to the fundamental principles of the law of the requested State.

“In order further to facilitate cooperation against transnational organized crime, States should consider negotiating arrangements in areas that are not covered by mutual legal assistance treaties.

“5. States should establish a central authority structured to provide speedy coordination of requests. The central authority should provide a quality-control and prioritizing function for both incoming and outgoing requests to take into account both the seriousness of the offence and the urgency of the request. At the same time, the central authority should not be seen as an exclusive channel for assistance between States. Direct exchange of information between law enforcement agencies should be encouraged to the extent permitted by domestic laws or arrangements.

“6. States should prepare and distribute to other States materials that would describe the channels of communication for mutual assistance and extradition and the process for obtaining such assistance from them.

“7. In cases where a criminal activity occurs in several countries, States with jurisdiction should coordinate their prosecutions and the use of mutual assistance measures in a strategic manner so as to be more efficient in the fight against transnational criminal groups.

“8. States should be encouraged to develop, through treaties, arrangements and legislation, a network for extradition. They should modernize their extradition treaties by eliminating the lists of crimes and allowing for extradition for conduct punishable in both States by deprivation of liberty in excess of an agreed minimum period. They should make every effort to ensure that their domestic arrangements for extradition are flexible enough to permit extradition to States with a different legal tradition. They should seek to identify and eliminate obstacles to extradition, including those that may arise from the differences between legal systems, for example, by simplifying evidentiary and procedural requirements.

“9. States should ensure that their domestic arrangements for extradition are as effective and expeditious as possible. They should also consider the possibility of extradition without a treaty.

“10. If the extradition of nationals is not permitted by the requested State, and the extradition of one of its nationals is requested, the requested State should:

“(a) Allow for conditional extradition provided that it is only for trial and that its national will be returned promptly after trial to its territory to serve any sentence within the limits of the law of the requested State; or

“(b) Allow for transfer/surrender, when it is permitted by domestic law, only for trial and on condition that its national will be returned promptly after trial to its territory to serve any sentence within the limits of the law of the requested State; or

“(c) Apply the rule of aut dedere aut judicare by submitting the case, at the request of the requesting State, to its competent authorities in order that proceedings may be initiated if they are considered appropriate.

“11. States should promote other techniques for mutual education that will facilitate mutual assistance and extradition, such as language training, secondments and exchanges between personnel in central authorities or between executing and requesting agencies. Training courses, joint seminars and information exchange sessions should be encouraged on a bilateral, regional and worldwide basis.

“12. Consideration should also be given to posting in other States representatives of prosecuting agencies or of judicial authorities.

“13. States should provide effective protection for individuals who have given or have agreed to give information or evidence, or who participate or have agreed to participate in an investigation or prosecution of an offence, and for the relatives and associates of those individuals who require protection because of risk to their security of person.

“14. States should consider, as appropriate, reciprocal arrangements for the protection of witnesses and other endangered persons.

“15. States should consider adopting appropriate measures to ensure the protection of witnesses during criminal proceedings. These might include such methods as testifying by telecommunications or limiting the disclosure of the address and identifying particulars of witnesses. Consideration should be given to the temporary transfer as witnesses of persons in custody, enlargement of the admissibility of written statements and the use of modern technology, such as video links, to overcome some of the current difficulties in obtaining the testimony of witnesses located outside the prosecuting State.

“16. States should review their laws in order to ensure that abuses of modern technology that are deserving of criminal sanctions are criminalized and that problems with respect to jurisdiction, enforcement powers, investigation, training, crime prevention and international cooperation in respect of such abuses are effectively addressed. Liaison between law enforcement and prosecution personnel of different States should be improved, including the sharing of experience in addressing these problems. States should promote study in this area and negotiate arrangements and agreements to address the problem of technological crime and investigation.

“17. States should take all other lawful steps available under domestic legislation to ensure that they do not provide safe havens for criminals.

“18. We commend the work done by the International Criminal Police Organization and the World Customs Organization, and call upon these organizations to maintain and develop their support for operational activity, facilitating as rapid as possible an exchange of information between law enforcement agencies. We also call upon them to focus on a strategic overview of the methods of, and trends in, transnational organized crime for the benefit of all their member countries.

"19. In order to facilitate the work of law enforcement practitioners we will, on request, provide brief guides on our respective legal systems and on the mandates of relevant agencies.

"20. States should identify central contact points within their existing structures for the purpose of facilitating contact between their operational agencies. It may be useful to locate these points in liaison with the National Central Bureau of the International Criminal Police Organization.

"21. We stress the important contribution that liaison officers can make to the fight against transnational organized crime. We encourage States to make the most effective use possible of their liaison officers in other countries and to consider additional postings. We stress the need for liaison officers to have access, in accordance with the law of the host country, to all agencies of that country with relevant responsibilities.

"22. We reiterate our condemnation of drug trafficking, which is a major source of finance for transnational organized criminal groups.

"Therefore we:

"(a) Reaffirm the importance of the three United Nations conventions that are fundamental to action against illicit drugs, namely, the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1954 as amended by the Protocol of 1972,⁸³ the Convention on Psychotropic Substances of 1971⁸⁴ and the United Nations Convention Against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988;⁸⁵

"(b) Call upon all States to adopt and implement fully legislation in accordance with those conventions;

"(c) Believe in the value of giving the widest publicity to information issued by official international bodies, such as the International Narcotics Control Board, on illicit drug production, trafficking and the proceeds of the illicit drug trade;

"(d) Will work in all relevant forums to prevent the diversion of chemical precursors used in illicit drug production and take the necessary steps to implement fully all relevant international agreements;

"(e) Welcome and support the implementation of the recommendations of the United Nations International Drug Control Programme Working Group on Maritime Cooperation.

"23. In order to ensure more effective transnational crime prevention and foster public safety, we will develop strategies to identify and combat the illicit traffic in firearms. In furtherance of this goal, and in support of the specific recommendations contained in resolution 9 of 7 May 1995 of the Ninth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, held at Cairo from 29 April to 8 May 1995,⁸⁶ and Economic and Social Council resolution 1995/27 of 24 July 1995, we will review and encourage other States to review existing firearms laws and regulations to facilitate discussion at an international level. We will promote information exchange among our relevant law enforcement authorities. We will encourage States to enhance the exchange of information useful for law enforcement purposes (for example, data for the identification of illicit firearms and specific information on tests conducted on firearms and ammunition which have been used in the course of criminal activities).

"24. States should ensure that immigration services play their part in the fight against transnational organized crime. We note the involvement of transnational organized crime in alien smuggling and call upon all States to enact legislation to criminalize such smuggling of persons. Immigration services and other agencies should exchange information on the transnational movement of organized criminals, have as full as possible an exchange of information on forged and stolen documents used by traffickers and consider the most effective means for its communication. We will take the necessary steps to improve the quality of our travel documents. We encourage other States to improve theirs and will assist them in doing so.

"25. We support the exchange of law enforcement expertise regarding scientific and technological developments such as advances in the forensic sciences.

"26. We emphasize the relevance and effectiveness of techniques such as electronic surveillance, undercover operations and controlled deliveries. We call upon States to review domestic arrangements for those techniques and to facilitate international cooperation in these fields, taking full account of human rights implications. We encourage States to exchange experiences concerning their use.

"27. We emphasize the importance of giving the fullest possible protection to sensitive information received from other countries. The competent authorities of different States should advise each other on the requirements regarding the disclosure of information in the course of judicial and administrative proceedings and should discuss in advance potential difficulties arising from those requirements. A transmitting State may make conditions for the protection of sensitive information before deciding whether to transmit it. A receiving State must abide by the conditions agreed with the transmitting State.

"28. Building on current cooperative arrangements, the different agencies in our countries will develop their work together in specific law enforcement projects targeted on transnational organized crime. We have formulated practical guidance on project-based action and commend this approach to all States. Project-based action involves bilateral and multilateral priority-setting, targeting, resourcing and assessment of law enforcement operations, drawing on the strength of the full range of competent agencies.

"29. We welcome the resolve of the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to extend criminalization of money laundering to other serious offences.

"30. States should consider adopting legislative measures for the confiscation or seizure of illicit proceeds from drug trafficking and other serious offences, asset forfeiture, as required, and the availability of provisional arrangements such as the freezing or seizing of assets, always with due respect for the interests of bona fide third parties. States should also consider the introduction of arrangements for the equitable sharing of such forfeited assets.

"31. States should consider implementing measures to detect and monitor the physical transportation of cash and bearer-negotiable instruments at the border, subject to strict safeguards to ensure proper use of information and without impeding in any way the freedom of legitimate capital movements.

"32. States should adopt the necessary legislative and regulatory measures to combat corruption, establish standards of good governance and legitimate commercial and financial conduct and develop cooperation mechanisms to curb corrupt practices.

"33. We agree to share information on practical anti-money-laundering techniques and to draw on the experience gained to adapt and improve national and international training activities in this area, in conjunction with the action of the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering.

"34. In order to improve understanding and information on the detection of financial networks linked to transnational organized crime (in particular, investments by transnational organized crime), we encourage States to take measures to gather financial information and, as much as possible, facilitate the exchange of such information, including exchanges between law enforcement agencies and regulatory bodies.

"35. We urge States to adhere to and implement fully the existing relevant multilateral conventions whose provisions effectively contribute to the fight against all forms of transnational organized crime, in particular the conventions concerning the control of illicit drugs.

"36. We will keep under review the possibility of supplementing existing conventions and adopting new instruments in response to developing needs in the fight against transnational organized crime.

"37. We support and encourage the provision and reporting of clear and accessible information on adherence to and implementation of the main conventions.

"38. In order to avoid wasteful duplication and to ensure that limited resources are used to best effect, we urge international organizations to coordinate their programmes of work and to concentrate their efforts within their areas of competence on activities of practical value to member States.

"39. We will work together in the governing bodies of international organizations whenever possible in order to give more coherent impetus and coordination to the fight against transnational organized crime.

"40. We will seek to ensure that all international organizations that play an effective role in the fight against transnational organized crime have adequate resources to fulfil their mandate. We will also examine possibilities for providing appropriate financial resources for specific, practical and viable projects developed by the competent international organizations.

“Draft United Nations Framework Convention against Organized Crime

“The States Parties to the present Convention,

“Convinced that a flexible and efficient framework for multilateral and bilateral cooperation is required to intensify law enforcement, criminal justice and crime prevention activities of Member States,

“Article 2

“1. Each Contracting State shall make the offences enumerated in article 1 of the present Convention punishable by appropriate penalties that take into account their grave nature.

“2. Each Contracting State shall make punishable acts consisting of participation in or association with an organized crime group whose purpose it is to commit offences.

“3. Each Contracting State shall take the necessary measures to create the possibility of the confiscation of the profits deriving from organized crime.

“Article 3

“Each Contracting State shall consider establishing in its domestic penal legislation the possibility of criminal liability of corporate persons who derive profits from organized crime or function as a cover for the criminal organization.

“Article 4

“Each Contracting State shall take legislative measures to recognize, in its domestic law, the previous foreign conviction for offences referred to in article 1 of the present Convention for the purpose of establishing the criminal history of the alleged offender.

“Article 5

“1. Each Contracting State shall take legislative measures to establish its jurisdiction over the crimes mentioned in article 1 of the present Convention in the following cases:

“(a) When the crime is committed in the territory of that State or on board a vessel or aircraft registered in that State;

“(b) When the alleged offender is a national of that State. Such jurisdiction shall be independent of the punishability of the act in the place of its commission;

“(c) When the alleged offender is present in its territory and it does not extradite him. Such jurisdiction shall be independent of the punishability of the act in the place of its commission.

“2. The present Convention does not exclude any criminal jurisdiction exercised in accordance with domestic law.

“1. The offences mentioned in article 1 of the present Convention shall be deemed to be included as extraditable offences in any extradition treaty between the Contracting States. The Contracting States undertake to include the offences as extraditable offences in every extradition treaty to be concluded between them.

“2. If a Contracting State that makes extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty receives a request for extradition from another Contracting State with which it has no extradition treaty, it shall consider the present Convention as the legal basis for extradition in respect of the offences mentioned in article 1 of the present Convention. Extradition shall be subject to the other conditions provided for by the law of the requested State.

“3. The Contracting States which do not make extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty shall recognize the offences mentioned in article 1 of the present Convention as extraditable offences between them, subject to the conditions provided by the law of the requested State.

“4. The Contracting States, subject to their domestic legislation, shall consider simplifying the extradition of consenting persons who waive formal extradition proceedings by allowing direct transmission of extradition requests between appropriate ministries and extraditing persons based only on warrants of arrest or judgements.

“Article 7

“1. Each Contracting State shall consider necessary legislative measures, including extradition of its nationals, if the extradition is requested in respect of any offence defined in article 1 of the present Convention.

“2. Extradition of a national may be granted on the condition that the sentence pronounced abroad will be executed in the requesting State.

“Article 8

"Article 14

"A Contracting State may adopt stricter or more severe measures than those provided for by the present Convention if, in its opinion, such measures are desirable or necessary for the prevention or suppression of organized crime.

"Article 15

"1. For the purpose of examining the progress made by the Contracting States in achieving the realization of the obligations undertaken in the present Convention, these States shall provide periodic reports to the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, which shall carry out the functions hereinafter provided.

"2. The Contracting States undertake to provide such reports within two years of the entry into force of the present Convention for the Contracting State concerned, and thereafter, every five years.

“2. For each Contracting State ratifying, accepting, approving or acceding to the present Convention after the deposit of the twentieth instrument of such action, the Convention shall enter into force on the thirtieth day after the deposit by such State of that relevant instrument.

“1. A Contracting State may propose an amendment and file it with the Secretary-General of the United Nations. The Secretary-General shall thereupon communicate the proposed amendment to the Contracting States with a request that they indicate whether they favour a conference of Contracting States for the purpose of considering and voting upon the proposal. In the event that, within four months from the date of such communication, at least one third of the States favour such a conference, the Secretary-General shall convene the conference under the auspices of the United Nations. Any amendment adopted by a majority of Contracting States present and voting at the conference shall be submitted to the General Assembly for approval.

“2. An amendment adopted in accordance with paragraph 1 of the present article shall enter into force when it has been approved by the General Assembly and accepted by a two-thirds majority of Contracting States.

“3. When an amendment enters into force, it shall be binding on those States Parties that have accepted it, other Contracting States still being bound by the provisions of the present Convention and any earlier amendments they have accepted.

“Article 21

“1. The Secretary-General of the United Nations shall receive and circulate to all States the text of reservations made by Contracting States at the time of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession.

“2. A reservation incompatible with the object and purpose of the present Convention shall not be permitted.

“3. Reservations may be withdrawn at any time by notification to that effect addressed to the Secretary-General, who shall then inform all States. Such notification shall take effect on the date on which it is received by the Secretary-General.

“Article 22

“A Contracting State may denounce the present Convention by written notification to the Secretary-General of the United Nations. Denunciation becomes effective one year after the date of receipt of the notification by the Secretary-General.

“ANNEX IV

“Report of the Chairman of the Open-ended Working Group of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice on the Implementation of the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan against Organized Transnational Crime and the Question of the Elaboration of an International Convention against Organized Transnational Crime

“1. The Open-ended Working Group of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice on the Implementation of the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan against Organized Transnational Crime and the Question of the Elaboration of an International Convention against Organized Transnational Crime was established pursuant to Economic and Social Council resolution 1996/27 of 24 July 1996 and its mandate was set out in paragraph 10 of that resolution. The General Assembly, in its resolution 51/120 of 12 December 1996, requested the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice to consider as a matter of priority the question of the elaboration of an international convention against organized transnational crime, taking into account the views of all States on that matter, with a view to finalizing its work on this question as soon as possible. The Commission was also requested to report, through the Economic and Social Council, to the General Assembly at its fifty-second session on the results of its work on that question. The Working Group was therefore given the task of assisting the Commission in implementing the above-mentioned requests of the General Assembly.

"2. The Working Group had before it the following documents:

"(a) Report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan against Organized Transnational Crime;⁷⁹

"(b) Report of the Secretary-General on the question of the elaboration of an international convention against organized transnational crime;⁸⁰

"(c) Report of the informal meeting on the question of the elaboration of an international convention against organized transnational crime, held at Palermo, Italy, from 6 to 8 April 1997;⁸¹

"(d) Report of the Intergovernmental Expert Group Meeting on Extradition, held at Siracusa, Italy, from 10 to 13 December 1996.⁸²

"3. The Working Group was also provided with the following documents:

"(a) Views of the Government of the United States of America on the most effective means for discussion by the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its sixth session of the issue of the elaboration of conventions (annex V);

"(b) Views of the Government of Germany on an alternative solution for a draft United Nations framework convention on combating organized transnational crime (annex VI);

"(c) The forty recommendations elaborated and endorsed by the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime of the Political Group of Eight, which met at Lyon, France, from 27 to 29 June 1996 (annex I);

"(d) Non-paper containing a tentative idea of the Japanese delegation in relation to the elaboration of a convention on measures against organized crime.

"4. The Working Group first discussed the question of the elaboration of an international convention against organized transnational crime. The Working Group was of the view that its contribution would be most useful to the Commission if it considered the scope and content of such a convention, rather than engaging in a drafting exercise, which would be outside the mandate given by the Council and the Assembly and would require significantly more time than was available. The Working Group felt that organized crime presented grave global dangers to development and security and that the challenges it posed were becoming greater with time. In determining the scope and content of such a convention, the international community could draw on the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988,⁸⁵ but should be able to come up with new and more innovative and creative responses.

"5. The Working Group recognized that it was desirable to develop a convention that would be as comprehensive as possible. In this connection, several States indicated that their remaining reservations on the effectiveness and usefulness of a convention were contingent upon its scope of application and the measures for concerted action that such an instrument would include. Several States stressed the importance they attached to the nature of a convention as a framework instrument. One difficult issue would be arriving at an acceptable definition of organized crime. It was indicated, however, that that issue was not insuperable, especially in the presence of a strong and sustained political will. Several States were of the view that the definition was not necessarily the most crucial element of a convention and that the instrument could come into being without a definition of organized crime. In this connection, it was also suggested that the phenomenon of organized crime was evolving with such rapidity that a definition would limit the scope of application of a convention by omitting activities in which criminal groups might engage. Other States felt that the absence of a definition would send the wrong signal regarding the political will and commitment of the international community. In addition, avoiding the issue would eventually create problems regarding the implementation of a convention. In view of all this, concerted efforts to arrive at a solution should be made. There were several very important advances made at the regional level, where the matter of some of the constituent elements of a workable definition had been satisfactorily resolved. One example was the solution found for defining participation in organized criminal groups, used in the European Convention on Extradition.⁸⁹ The problem of definition could be solved by looking at each of its elements separately. It was suggested that a first step towards a definition might be to use the definitions of offences contained in other international instruments. It was agreed that the work required in connection with the definition could not be carried out by the Working Group but should be undertaken by governmental experts at a future time. There was also discussion about whether, in elaborating the definition, the focus should be on the transnational aspects of organized crime or on organized crime in general. It was pointed out that the mandate of the Commission was related to organized transnational crime but that the issue required further serious consideration in the context of determining the overall scope of a convention.

"6. In the context of the discussion on whether such a convention should include a list of offences, some States expressed their support for the inclusion of terrorist acts in such a list. Many States were of a contrary view, recalling the initiatives currently under way in the United Nations and other forums on terrorism and the conclusions of the Commission at its fifth session.

⁷⁹ E/CN.15/1997/6 and Corr.1, annex.

⁸⁹ Council of Europe, European Treaty Series, No. 24.

"7. The Working Group agreed that it would be useful to focus on widely accepted constituent elements of organized crime. In the discussion that ensued, the elements identified included some form of organization, continuity, the use of intimidation and violence, a hierarchical structure of groups, with division of labour, the pursuit of profit and the exercise of influence on the public, the media and political structures.

"8. The Working Group decided that the best way to proceed for the purpose of advancing the issue was to seek common ground, utilizing as many previous contributions as possible and building on the positive experience and valuable work done at other forums, such as the European Union and the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime of the Political Group of Eight. The draft United Nations framework convention against organized crime (annex III) was a useful point of departure and a good basis for further work. In this connection, the Working Group decided to discuss matters related to international cooperation in criminal matters that would form an essential part of an international legally binding instrument. The overriding concern would be to equip the international community with an effective instrument to strengthen action against organized crime.

"9. The Working Group agreed that extradition was crucial to international cooperation against organized crime and, as such, it would form a central component of such a convention. A number of States indicated that the extradition of nationals presented several legal and constitutional problems. While some States were in the process of studying the matter in depth, with a view to finding more efficient solutions and improving international cooperation, it would be difficult for them to comply with a provision envisaging extradition of nationals. It was consequently deemed important to incorporate in a convention a more detailed provision regarding the application of the principle aut dedere aut judicare. Since there were a number of countries where extradition of nationals was possible and it was also believed that a trend in that direction might develop in the future, it was agreed that the provision of article 7 of the draft United Nations framework convention was a good basis for discussion and should be retained. It was also agreed that the option of extraditing nationals should be left open, while specifying that extradition would be governed by national constitutional and legal provisions. It was suggested that, in finding an acceptable solution to this matter, the formula regarding extradition contained in the draft convention on terrorist bombings¹⁰⁰ could be relied upon. Inspiration could also be drawn from the statute of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the Former Yugoslavia since 1991.¹⁰¹ In addition, reference was made to article 6 of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988,⁸⁵ which could be used as a model to arrive at a more comprehensive extradition regime.

"10. On the question of corporate criminal liability (contained in article 3 of the draft United Nations framework convention), several States indicated that the concept was still not reflected in their legislation. In those States, criminal liability was personal and corporate entities could be held accountable only under civil and administrative law. Even where the concept of corporate criminal liability had begun to be introduced, such liability was attached to the person of the executive responsible for the management of the corporate entity. It was explained that the problem was one of legal tradition and philosophy, while it was recognized that corporate criminal liability was a powerful deterrent, in particular in view of the tendency of criminal groups to operate using corporate entities, either infiltrated or set up for the purpose of masking the nature of their illicit activities. The issue of corporate criminal liability was considered important but it required further clarification and elaboration in order to take into account the varying legal traditions of countries.

"11. Regarding the recognition of foreign convictions (contained in article 4 of the draft United Nations framework convention), it was indicated that there were a number of issues that required clarification and further work. It was clarified that the term 'conviction' was used in the sense of a finding of guilt and that the article tried to capture the essence of and build upon the concept reflected in paragraph 5 (h) of article 3 of the 1988 Convention. While the issue of prior criminal history was deemed important, because of its potential usefulness to the expeditious judicial processing of organized crime cases, it was necessary to discuss in detail the modalities for the exchange of the relevant information and the weight to be given to previous convictions within the framework of each jurisdiction. It was also indicated that the matter was directly related to the scope of application of such a convention, in particular regarding substantive law. It was important to formulate a provision on this issue that would ensure avoidance of problems related to double jeopardy or to offences existing in one jurisdiction but not in another.

"12. On police cooperation (article 11 of the draft United Nations framework convention), the issue of joint police operations merited further discussion, as it created a number of concerns for several countries. The desirability of closer cooperation between law enforcement agencies had been expressed in the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan,⁷⁸ but it was deemed important to stress that such cooperation would be pursued in accordance with national legislation. Similar provisions were included in the 1988 Convention and could be useful to the discussion of this question. With regard to paragraphs 2 and 3 of article 11, it was pointed out that the concept they contained was valid, but further work would be necessary in specifying modalities for application, especially in the context of a legally binding instrument such as a convention.

"13. Regarding article 12 of the draft United Nations framework convention, it was agreed that the idea was very important in view of the essential role reliable information played in action against organized crime.

¹⁰⁰ The International Convention for the Suppression of Terrorist Bombings was adopted by the General Assembly by its resolution 52/164 of 15 December 1997.

¹⁰¹ See Official Records of the Security Council, Forty-eighth Year, Supplement for April, May and June 1993, document S/25704, annex.

"Views of the Government of the United States of America on the most effective means for discussion by the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its sixth session of the issue of the elaboration of conventions

The provision, however, required considerably more work because the issue of databases involved a number of important matters, such as accessibility, protection of data and safeguards related to the protection of privacy, in addition to costs for the creation and maintenance of such databases. All these issues needed to be resolved in a manner acceptable to all, while retaining the usefulness of a database.

"14. There was general acceptance of the importance of witness protection (reflected in article 13 of the draft United Nations framework convention). Some States took the opportunity to indicate their intention to establish witness protection programmes, while others advised caution in approaching the matter, because of the risks associated with this mechanism, which related to the social conditions prevailing in countries and the possibility of diminished credibility of certain witnesses.

"15. The Working Group then discussed the issue of mutual legal assistance (article 10 of the draft United Nations framework convention), which was deemed one of the most important cooperation mechanisms to feature in a convention against organized crime. Article 10 was similar to the provisions of other United Nations instruments, but in view of the more comprehensive nature of the proposed convention, the provisions on mutual assistance should be more detailed and more innovative. The 1988 Convention could be used as a source of inspiration in order to arrive at the level of detail that was necessary. In this connection, reference was also made to the report of the informal meeting held at Palermo, which had discussed this issue extensively and included material for further consideration.

"16. The Working Group agreed that considerable work was required on the issue of the convention. For this purpose, it proposed that an open-ended intergovernmental inter-sessional group of experts should be established to consider all pending proposals related to the issue of conventions, as well as all elements thereof and appropriate cooperation modalities and mechanisms.

"17. The Working Group discussed and endorsed the proposals of the Secretary-General on the follow-up action for the implementation of the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan against Organized Transnational Crime. The Working Group expressed its support for the maintenance and expansion of the central repository on national legislation and other information and data related to organized transnational crime. It was suggested that the Secretariat should make efforts to identify methods for collecting information and legislative texts rather than merely addressing requests to States in the form of notes verbales. Concern was expressed regarding the resources necessary to undertake the activities required for follow-up action. In this connection, the importance attached to practical action to foster the implementation of the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan was reiterated.

"1. The Government of the United States of America considers it very important that discussion of all proposals for the elaboration of multilateral conventions to combat criminal conduct, in particular the question of the elaboration of an international convention against organized crime, take place in the Open-ended Working Group of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice on the Implementation of the Naples Political Declaration and Global Action Plan against Organized Transnational Crime and the Question of the Elaboration of an International Convention against Organized Transnational Crime. Such a discussion will be useful as a means for stimulating thought on the extent to which the various proposals can and should be incorporated into a single instrument. In addition, it will enable delegations to focus on the priority to be set concerning the criminal conduct governed by these different proposals.

"2. In addition to the proposal presented by the Government of Poland for a United Nations framework convention against organized crime (annex III), the following five proposals for multilateral conventions are either the subject of draft resolutions to be considered by the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its sixth session or have been broached in informal discussions among Member States: the proposal presented by the Government of Argentina for a convention to combat trafficking in children, the recommendation of the Buenos Aires expert group on combating corruption, a possible multilateral convention on firearms,¹⁰² a possible convention on trafficking in illegal migrants¹⁰³ and a possible convention on theft of motor vehicles.¹⁰⁴ However, the framework convention on organized crime proposed by Poland is intended to cover all of the other proposals, in whole or in part, by including, under article 1, trafficking in persons, corruption of public officials, illicit trafficking in or stealing of arms and illicit trafficking in or stealing of motor vehicles. Thus, these or any other potential single-issue conventions may be to some degree duplicative of the proposal made by Poland and, if consensus is reached on inclusion of such types of criminality in a framework convention on organized crime, it may subsequently be unnecessary to negotiate further instruments.

¹⁰² The Government of Mexico introduced a proposal for such a convention to the Organization of American States.

¹⁰⁴ The Government of Poland has introduced a draft resolution calling for the adoption of a model treaty on combating this form of criminality.

"3. Moreover, as is more fully set forth in the appendix to the present annex,¹⁰⁵ certain types of cooperation mechanisms cannot be dispensed with in combating organizations that engage in multiple forms of criminality; such mechanisms include law enforcement information exchange, training and technical assistance, mutual assistance, asset seizure and forfeiture, witness protection, extradition and harmonization of substantive criminal laws. The international community may decide that a single instrument would best ensure that all of these areas are addressed with sufficient consistency, that limited resources for negotiating conventions and fighting organized crime are used most efficiently and that the fight against organized crime is carried out in a comprehensive and logical fashion. If so, it would be inadvisable to continue to discuss the elaboration of other instruments separately.

"4. Finally, discussion of the merits of all potential instruments in the Working Group will be useful for the purpose of comparing the gravity of the various forms of criminality and determining which aspects constitute the most significant transnational criminal problems. The discussion of the level of prioritization that should be given to each form of criminality may assist the Commission in determining the extent to which other multilateral conventions should be pursued separately from a framework convention on organized crime, or whether they should be pursued at all.

"INTRODUCTION

"1. Recommendation 35 of the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime of the Political Group of Eight calls for States to adhere to and implement relevant existing multilateral conventions whose provisions contribute to the fight against all forms of transnational organized crime, while recommendation 36 contemplates a review of the feasibility of updating existing conventions and adopting new instruments in order to enhance the ability of States to fight transnational organized crime.

"2. Among the existing conventions that the Senior Experts Group has catalogued for the purpose of considering whether updating is feasible are: the Slavery Convention of 1926 as amended by the 1953 Protocol,¹⁰⁶ the Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery of 1956,¹⁰⁷ the International Convention for the Suppression of Counterfeiting Currency of 1929,⁹⁴ the Forced Labour Convention adopted in 1930 by the General Conference of the International Labour Organization,¹⁰⁸ the Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others of 1949,⁹³ the Convention on the Means of Prohibiting and Preventing the Illicit Import, Export and Transfer of Ownership of Cultural Property of 1970⁹⁵ and the International Convention on Mutual Administrative Assistance for the Prevention, Investigation and Repression of Customs Offences of 1977.^{108,110}

"3. In addition, the Government of Poland introduced, at the fifty-first session of the General Assembly, a draft United Nations framework convention against organized crime. The proposal raises issues regarding the feasibility of adopting a single convention to combat transnational organized crime, in contrast with the updating of existing instruments or the adoption of a number of new instruments, each dealing with a separate type of criminal conduct.

"4. Various options available for using multilateral instruments to fight transnational organized crime are briefly analysed below. Section I discusses the above-mentioned existing conventions, outlining some of the modifications that would be required to update them effectively to address contemporary phenomena of transnational organized crime. Section II examines additional multilateral instruments that could be adopted in order to combat transnational organized crime. Finally, section III contains a discussion of the potential benefits and drawbacks arising from the elaboration of a single consolidated framework convention on organized crime.

"I. UPDATING EXISTING INSTRUMENTS

"A. SLAVERY CONVENTION OF 1926 AS AMENDED BY THE 1953 PROTOCOL AND THE SUPPLEMENTARY CONVENTION ON THE ABOLITION OF SLAVERY, THE SLAVE TRADE AND INSTITUTIONS AND PRACTICES SIMILAR TO SLAVERY OF 1956

"5. The Slavery Convention of 1926 as amended by the 1953 Protocol¹⁰⁶ defines slavery and slave trading, obligating States parties to take various actions, including criminalization, to suppress those practices. The Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery of 1956¹⁰⁷ defines a number of practices akin to slavery (including debt bondage, serfdom, marriage

¹⁰⁹ United Nations, Treaty Series, vol. 1226, No. 19805.

¹¹⁰ The Senior Experts Group also included in its inventory of main international conventions dealing with organized crime the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1961 as amended by the 1972 Protocol, the Convention on Psychotropic Substances of 1971 and the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988. Given that the 1988 Convention is one of the most up-to-date and effective conventions dealing with organized crime and that it effectively supplements the 1961 Convention and the 1971 Convention, the merits of updating any of these instruments are not discussed below.

¹⁰⁵ The appendix was submitted to stimulate discussion in the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime on the means of implementing recommendations 35 and 36 of its forty recommendations for combating transnational organized crime.

practices exploitative of women's labour and exploitation of children's labour by their parents or guardians); it also obligates States parties to abolish those practices, criminalize certain specified conduct integral to the perpetuation of slavery and the slave trade and cooperate with each other in carrying out the purposes of the Convention. The conventions have been widely ratified.

"6. Neither the Slavery Convention nor the Supplementary Convention as currently drafted deals specifically with transnational organized crime, nor can they readily be interpreted as imposing an obligation upon States parties to criminalize such related manifestations of modern organized crime as the exploitation of illegal immigrants by organized criminal groups that have smuggled them across international boundaries, the use by criminal groups of compulsion as part of their perpetuation of the international prostitution trade or the compelling of minors to participate in international pornography rings. However, amendment of these instruments may be of assistance in combating these forms of trafficking in persons.¹¹¹

"7. Effective broadening of these conventions will require States to reach agreement both on the need to criminalize a number of additional classes of conduct and on general definitions of those offences. In addition, since both the Slavery Convention and the Supplementary Convention lack specific cooperation mechanisms between national law enforcement authorities to suppress such conduct, supplementation would require the drafting of a number of such mechanisms.¹¹²

"8. On balance, effective modernization would appear to require negotiation of a significant number of new provisions. Negotiating a supplemental instrument could also be complicated if some States regarded the occasion as an opportunity to reopen the debate on issues resolved at the time the conventions were originally concluded. Given these factors, the Senior Experts Group should weigh whether supplementation would be preferable to the elaboration of a new instrument or instruments to combat these forms of criminal conduct.

"B. FORCED LABOUR CONVENTION OF 1930

"9. The Forced Labour Convention of 1930¹⁰⁸ limits the conditions under which 'forced or compulsory labour' can be required and obligates States parties to suppress and criminalize those forms of compelled labour not sanctioned by the Convention.

"10. Although the exploitation of compelled labour by criminal groups described in section I.A above may be violative of the terms of the Forced Labour Convention in its present form, few States parties have established these forms of exploitation as discrete offences or have provided for enhanced penalties to deter sophisticated criminal groups from committing such offences. Thus, to be an effective means of suppressing the exploitation of persons controlled by organized criminal groups, the Convention would have to be amended accordingly.

"11. As in the case of the slavery conventions, given the need to define and punish additional classes of criminal conduct and to include provisions related to law enforcement cooperation, the adoption of a supplemental or amended instrument may require as extensive an effort as the elaboration of a separate new instrument or instruments.

"C. CONVENTION FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF THE TRAFFIC IN PERSONS AND OF THE EXPLOITATION OF THE PROSTITUTION OF OTHERS OF 1949

"12. The Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others of 1949⁹³ obligates States parties to criminalize the procuring of persons to engage in prostitution and other conduct integral to the propagation of prostitution. It contains more extensive provisions for law enforcement cooperation than the Slavery Convention or the Forced Labour Convention, including provisions requiring: (a) covered offences to be considered extraditable between States parties; (b) prosecution of offenders by a State party that declines to extradite on the basis of the nationality of the offender; (c) cooperation by States parties (subject to domestic law) in the execution of letters of request regarding covered offences; (d) establishment of central authorities to coordinate implementation of the Convention and cooperate with other States; and (e) sharing of information regarding offences and offenders between States parties.

"13. Effective updating of this Convention could prove difficult, given that a significant number of States have not ratified it. In any case, substantial modification seems required to ensure the broad criminalization of such phenomena as the exploitation of minors in conjunction with the production of pornographic materials or sex tourism and to ensure that States parties are obligated to impose suitably enhanced punishment on participants in organized criminal schemes to engage in such conduct. Moreover, although this instrument focuses on ¹¹¹ It may be that these and other similar activities engaged in by organized criminal groups also could be appropriately included under the Forced Labour Convention adopted in 1930 by the General Conference of the International Labour Organization or the Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others.

cooperation mechanisms to a greater extent than either the Slavery Convention or the Forced Labour Convention, many additional forms of cooperation recommended by the Senior Experts Group as useful in fighting transnational organized crime are not currently included and a number of them could presumably be inserted.¹¹³

"D. INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION FOR THE SUPPRESSION OF COUNTERFEITING CURRENCY OF 1929

"14. The International Convention for the Suppression of Counterfeiting Currency of 1929⁹⁴ obligates States parties to criminalize the counterfeiting or alteration of domestic or foreign currency, as well as the distribution of counterfeit or altered currency. It also provides for: (a) confiscation of such currency; (b) covered offences to be considered extraditable between States parties; (c) prosecution of offenders by States parties that decline to extradite on the basis of the nationality of the offender; (d) cooperation between States parties (subject to domestic law) in the execution of letters of request regarding covered offences; (e) establishment of central authorities to coordinate implementation of the Convention and cooperate with States; and (f) sharing of information between States parties regarding offenders and evidence of offences.

"15. The application of this instrument is limited in scope to counterfeit or altered currency. Significant supplementation or the adoption of new instruments would be required to address such issues of concern as counterfeiting or alteration of credit cards, electronic transfers and other negotiable instruments and the need to provide for enhanced cooperation mechanisms in combating such criminal conduct.

"E. CONVENTION ON THE MEANS OF PROHIBITING AND PREVENTING THE ILLICIT IMPORT, EXPORT AND TRANSFER OF OWNERSHIP OF CULTURAL PROPERTY OF 1970

"16. The Convention on the Means of Prohibiting and Preventing the Illicit Import, Export and Transfer of Ownership of Cultural Property of 1970⁹⁵ obligates States parties to suppress illicit traffic in archaeological, historical, artistic and other property designated by States as being of particular cultural value, without explicitly requiring criminalization of proscribed conduct. The Convention also provides for, inter alia, the confiscation and return of cultural property to States parties from which it was removed and the designation of authorities for implementation of the Convention.

"17. Effectively updating this Convention could prove difficult in practice, for a significant number of States have not ratified it. In addition, given that it contains no explicit criminalization or law enforcement cooperation requirements, modernization seems to entail as much effort as would the creation of new instruments governing other related areas.

"F. INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION ON MUTUAL ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANCE FOR THE PREVENTION, INVESTIGATION AND REPRESSION OF CUSTOMS OFFENCES OF 1977

"18. The International Convention on Mutual Administrative Assistance for the Prevention, Investigation and Repression of Customs Offences of 1977¹⁰⁹ provides a broad framework for joint investigation, exchanges of information and other mutual assistance between States parties in connection with violations of customs laws, including smuggling of narcotics, cultural property and other contraband. It does not obligate States to criminalize particular forms of conduct.

"19. The Convention has been ratified by three members of the Political Group of Eight and thirty-one other States. Although additional States have expressed an interest in ratifying the Convention since it was amended in 1995 to permit contracting parties to make reservations, permitting reservations may hamper any effort to achieve broad implementation. Nonetheless, many of the forms of cooperation set forth in the Convention are useful mechanisms for international law enforcement and can serve as examples of cooperation mechanisms that might be drafted for insertion in other instruments governing transnational smuggling.

"II. ADOPTION OF INSTRUMENTS ADDRESSING OTHER FORMS OF CRIMINAL CONDUCT

"20. In addition to supplementing and modernizing existing conventions, Senior Experts Group recommendation 36 calls for consideration of the adoption of new instruments to respond to developing needs in the fight against transnational organized crime. In a number of other recommendations, the Senior Experts Group has already identified additional forms of criminal conduct for which there is a need for a concerted international law enforcement response to the infiltration of organized crime. Similar expressions of concern have been made in other international forums and by various States in their individual efforts to combat transnational organized crime. Some of the areas in which the need for action may be particularly acute and regarding which the Senior Experts Group may wish to evaluate the utility of adopting a new instrument or instruments are as follows:

"(a) Extortion and other violent crimes carried out by organized groups for profit;

"(b) Bribery and other corrupt practices;

"(c) Smuggling of and trafficking in nuclear materials for weapons of mass destruction;

"(d) Intellectual property violations;

"(e) Money laundering;

"(f) Crimes involving computers and other advanced technologies;

"(g) Illicit trafficking in firearms;

"(h) Auto theft.

¹¹³ For a more complete inventory of potential cooperation mechanisms that could be provided for, see footnote 112.

"21. Such an evaluation will require weighing such factors as the likelihood of elaborating an instrument that will enjoy widespread acceptance within the international community, the likely degree of effectiveness the instrument will have in aiding the suppression of the targeted conduct and the commitment of time and resources that will be required to elaborate a series of instruments governing these types of criminal conduct."¹¹⁴

"III. ADOPTION OF A SINGLE INSTRUMENT ON TRANSNATIONAL ORGANIZED CRIME

"22. Consideration could also be given to the alternative approach of adopting a single integrated instrument on various forms of criminal conduct engaged in by transnational groups. As previously stated, the Government of Poland introduced such a draft convention at the fifty-first session of the General Assembly.

"23. The major advantage of a single instrument creating obligations to criminalize and cooperate in combating a number of categories of conduct is the advantage it offers in terms of preserving time and resources over the negotiation of a series of new or supplemental instruments, each addressing a limited class of criminal conduct. Since each separate convention would be likely to contain a number of similar (if not identical) provisions, for example, with regard to the extradition of fugitives, legal assistance and other cooperation mechanisms, the negotiation of a single instrument could be expected to save considerable time and avoid needless renegotiation of such common provisions. In addition, the promulgation of a single instrument seems useful in order to arrive at an integrated response to particularly serious forms of transnational organized crime, since specialists in a number of law enforcement disciplines would collaborate in devising an effective unified strategy for cooperation in combating these phenomena and since a single secretariat administering the convention would be more easily able to identify and correct practical problems arising in the implementation of the strategy.

"24. The structure of the convention itself could take several possible forms. One approach could be for it to address a specific list of offences of the type set forth in section II above. Another approach might be to draft a convention that, like the proposal by the Government of Poland, seeks to define the term 'organized crime', and to include specific types of conduct under its rubric.

"25. The former approach, by virtue of being less complex, may enjoy some advantages over the latter. Initially, it may be difficult to arrive at a definition of 'organized crime' that enjoys widespread acceptance. As illustrated in the inventory of documents prepared by the Senior Experts Group, numerous different definitions of the term 'organized crime' have been devised. Given the great diversity among modern criminal groups, reaching a single meaningful definition will probably prove elusive and may interfere with the successful conclusion of the convention. Moreover, great care would have to be taken to ensure that the definition of 'organized crime' did not inadvertently legitimize actions by undemocratic Governments to suppress legitimate political opposition.

"26. In addition, a number of States may wish the definition of 'organized crime' to encompass terrorism,¹¹⁵ leading to problematic results. For example, the inclusion of terrorism may lead to an effort to define it more precisely, a task that will be extremely difficult, given the traditional divide between those States that consider acts of violence carried out by 'national liberation movements' to be permissible and those that wish to proscribe such conduct. The effort to define terrorism will thus divert attention from other issues and ultimately will not be conducive to achieving consensus. The inclusion of terrorism may also result in the duplication of provisions contained in the significant number of existing instruments aimed at combating terrorism.¹¹⁶

"27. Even if no effort is made to define these terms, there may be some difficulty in reaching agreement on the list of conduct to be proscribed under the convention. The convention may be seen by some States as an opportunity to seek the inclusion of modes of criminality with respect to which there can be at best a marginal claim that they constitute a significant transnational criminal problem. For example, a small number of States have called for conventions to combat illicit international adoption, trafficking in body parts or racial hatred. However, any effort to broaden the convention too greatly would divert focus from types of criminality that need to be addressed most urgently and could also make it more difficult to identify appropriate cooperation mechanisms for combating the conduct proscribed by the convention.

"28. The Government of the United States has prepared a discussion draft of a convention for the suppression of transnational organized crime, illustrating how a convention adhering to the recommendations of the Senior Experts Group could be structured. It is hoped that consideration of that document, together with the proposal by Poland, may be useful to the discussion of this issue.

"29. It is conceivable that there are other approaches that might be viable in this area, including the elaboration of a single instrument addressing a much more limited list of criminal activities than that described either in the discussion draft of the United States, presented below, or in the proposal by Poland, on which there is clear consensus that immediate criminalization and enhanced cooperation are required.

¹¹⁵ For example, the proposal made by Poland includes "terrorist acts" as a manifestation of organized crime.

¹¹⁶ The Senior Expert Group on Terrorism is also currently considering a United States proposal for a United Nations convention for the suppression of terrorist bombings.

Those authorities shall take their decision in the same manner as in the case of any other offence of a grave nature under the law of that State.

"2. Any person regarding whom proceedings are being carried out in connection with any of the offences set forth in article 1 of the present Convention shall be guaranteed fair treatment at all stages of the proceedings, including enjoyment of all the rights and guarantees provided by the law of the State in the territory of which that person is present.

Such State shall immediately make a preliminary inquiry, in accordance with its own laws.¹¹⁹

"2. Any person regarding whom the measures referred to in paragraph 1 of the present article are being taken shall be entitled:

"(a) To communicate with the nearest appropriate representative of the State of which that person is a national or which is otherwise entitled to establish such communication or, if that person is a stateless person, the State in the territory of which that person habitually resides;

“3. The rights referred to in paragraph 2 of the present article shall be exercised in conformity with the laws and regulations of the State in the territory of which the offender or the alleged offender is present, subject to the provision that the said laws and regulations must enable full effect to be given to the purposes for which the rights accorded under paragraph 1 of the present article are intended.

“Rules relating to extradition¹²¹

“1. The offences set forth in article 1 of the present Convention shall be deemed to be included as extraditable offences in any extradition treaty existing between any of the States Parties. States Parties undertake to include such offences as extraditable offences in every extradition treaty to be concluded between them.

“2. If a State Party which makes extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty receives a request for extradition from another State Party with which it has no extradition treaty, the requested State Party may, at its option, consider the present Convention as a legal basis for extradition in respect of the offences set forth in article 1 above. Extradition shall be subject to the other conditions provided by the law of the requested State.

“3. States Parties which do not make extradition conditional on the existence of a treaty shall recognize the offences set forth in article 1 of the present Convention as extraditable offences between themselves, subject to the conditions provided by the law of the requested State.

“4. The offences set forth in article 1 of the present Convention shall be treated, for the purposes of extradition between States Parties, as if they had been committed not only in the place in which they occurred but also in a place within the jurisdiction of the State Party requesting extradition.¹²²

“5. For purposes of extradition between the States Parties, none of the offences set forth in article 1 of the present Convention shall be regarded as a political offence or as an offence connected with a political offence or as an offence inspired by political motives.

“6. If a State Party denies extradition to another State Party for an offence set forth in article 1 of the present Convention because the person sought is a national of the requested Party, the requested Party shall, upon request of the requesting Party, transfer the person to the requesting Party for trial or other proceedings and the person transferred shall be returned to the requested Party to serve any sentence imposed in the requesting Party as a result of the trial or proceedings for which transfer was made.

“7. With respect to the offences as defined in the present Convention, the provisions of all extradition treaties and arrangements applicable between States Parties are modified as between States Parties to the extent necessary to give effect to the provisions of the present Convention.

“Mutual legal assistance

“1. States Parties shall afford one another the greatest measure of assistance in connection with proceedings brought in respect of the offences set forth in article 1 of the present Convention, including assistance in obtaining evidence at their disposal that is necessary for the proceedings.

“2. States Parties shall carry out their obligations under paragraph 1 above in conformity with any treaties on mutual assistance that may exist between them or pursuant to domestic law.¹²³

“3. For offences established in accordance with the present Convention, a State Party shall not decline to render mutual legal assistance on the ground of bank secrecy or on the ground that there is an absence of dual criminality.¹²⁴

“4. States Parties shall adopt measures sufficient to enable a person in the custody of one State Party, whose presence in another State Party is requested for purposes of assistance under the present Convention, to be transferred if the person consents and if the competent authorities of both States agree. For purposes of the present paragraph:

“(a) The State to which the person is transferred shall have the authority and obligation to keep the person transferred in custody, unless otherwise authorized by the State from which the person was transferred;

“(b) The State to which the person is transferred shall return the person to the custody of the State from which the person was transferred as soon as circumstances permit or as otherwise agreed by the competent authorities of both States;

“(c) The State to which the person is transferred shall not require the State from which the person was transferred to initiate extradition proceedings for the return of the person;

“(d) The person transferred shall receive credit for service of the sentence imposed in the State from which

A Party may transfer all or part of such assets or the proceeds of their sale to another Party, to the extent permitted by the laws of the transferring Party and upon such terms as it deems appropriate.

Each State Party shall, in particular, adopt effective measures:

"(a) For the purposes of carrying out the cooperation and assistance provided for under the present Convention, including the making and receiving of requests for cooperation and assistance, to designate a central authority that shall communicate directly with the central authorities of other States Parties;¹²⁹

"(b) To establish and maintain channels of communication between their competent authorities, agencies and services to facilitate the secure and rapid exchange of information concerning all aspects of the offences set forth in the present Convention, including, if the States Parties concerned deem it appropriate, links with other criminal activities;¹²⁹

"(c) To cooperate with one another in conducting inquiries, with respect to offences set forth in the present Convention, concerning:

"(ii) The movement of proceeds or property derived from the commission of such offences;

"(d) In appropriate cases and if not contrary to domestic law, to establish joint teams, taking into account the need to protect the security of persons and operations, in order to carry out the provisions of the present paragraph. Officials of any State Party participating in such teams shall act as authorized by the appropriate authorities of the Party in whose territory the operation is to take place; in all such cases, the States Parties involved shall ensure that the sovereignty of the Party in whose territory the operation is to take place is fully respected;

States Parties should consider, as appropriate, reciprocal arrangements for the protection of witnesses and other endangered persons;¹³²

“Law enforcement training¹³³”

“1. Each State Party shall, to the extent necessary, initiate, develop or improve a specific training programme for its law enforcement personnel, including prosecutors and investigating magistrates, and other personnel charged with the suppression of the offences set forth in the present Convention. Such programmes shall deal, in particular, with the following:

“(a) Methods used in the detection and suppression of the offences set forth in the present Convention;

“2. States Parties shall assist one another to plan and implement research and training programmes designed to share expertise in the areas referred to in paragraph 1 of the present article and, to this end, shall also, when appropriate, use regional and international conferences and seminars to promote cooperation and stimulate discussion on problems of mutual concern.¹³⁴

"ANNEX VI

"Views of the Government of Germany on an alternative solution for a draft United Nations framework convention on combating organized transnational crime

"1. Organized transnational crime threatens both the economic and the political structures of States. It is a global menace endangering industrial and developing societies alike and requires a global response. The draft United Nations framework convention against organized crime, submitted to the General Assembly by the Government of Poland (annex III), offers a good basis for discussion of this urgent problem by the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice.

"2. So far, national and international efforts to produce a workable definition of organized transnational crime have been unsuccessful. The definition contained in article 1 of the draft United Nations framework convention is, from the perspective of the Government of Germany, in part too narrow, in part too broad. Germany considers organized transnational crime not as a clearly definable criminal offence but as a complex phenomenon of criminality. Elements of a description could probably be agreed upon and set out in the preamble of such a convention. It is problematic even to give a paradigmatic list of specific crimes because, whereas everyone can agree on what constitutes murder, there is no international consensus on what constitutes, for example, corruption of public officials. This would lead to insuperable difficulties in penalizing such criminal behaviour and establishing jurisdiction.

"3. From the point of view of the Government of Germany, these difficulties could be circumvented by the following alternative solution:

"(a) The elaboration of a comprehensive United Nations convention on organized transnational crime should be based on the Model Treaty on Extradition⁹⁰ and the Model Treaty on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters;⁸⁸

"(b) Such a convention should refrain from reference to specific crimes but the point of reference would be the framework given by article 2 of the Model Treaty on Extradition, at least for extraditable offences. For the granting of legal assistance, probably no specific point of reference would be necessary;

"(c) A gap in the international armoury against organized transnational crime seems to stem from the fact that some legal systems do not penalize criminal behaviour that is not directly aimed at a concrete crime and therefore cannot qualify as participation in a crime, whereas the laws of Germany, France and Italy, for example, penalize participation on the basis of membership in a 'criminal association'. The convention ought to contain an obligation to penalize on these lines. This could follow the formulation of article 3, on conspiracy and association to commit offences, of the Convention, drawn up on the basis of article K.3 of the Treaty on European Union, relating to extradition between the member States of the European Union of 27 September 1996,¹³⁸ for example:

'Each party shall adopt such measures as may be necessary to establish as a criminal offence under its domestic law, when committed intentionally, the participation as an accomplice in or the organization or direction of others to commit an offence in the field of drug trafficking or other forms of organized crime';

"(d) Adequate provisions for skimming off the proceeds of crime are indispensable for an effective fight at the national and international levels against organized transnational crime. The convention should, therefore, oblige Member States to legislate to this effect;

"(e) In all international forums, there is general agreement that the scope for the imposition of penalties for money laundering in connection with drug trafficking is unsatisfactory. The convention should provide that, in principle, any other serious offence, in addition to drug-related offences, can be considered a predicate offence for money laundering;

"(f) Following the model of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988,⁸⁵ the convention should contain provisions for the domestic implementation of foreign forfeiture measures;

"(g) A precondition for fighting organized transnational crime at the national or international level is an effective witness protection programme; in this regard, see the relevant European Union recommendations, the forty recommendations of the Senior Experts Group on Transnational Organized Crime of the Political Group of Eight (annex I) and the idea underlying article 13 of the draft United Nations framework convention submitted by the Government of Poland;

"(h) In addition, the convention should make provision for police cooperation and training (see article 11 of the draft United Nations framework convention and article 9 of the 1988 Convention);

"(i) Finally, some new ideas put forward by the Council of Europe, the European Union and other international forums in the area of extradition and mutual assistance could be taken up in a United Nations convention."

"Model Strategies and Practical Measures on the Elimination of Violence against Women in the Field of Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

"1. The multifaceted nature of violence against women suggests that different strategies are required for different manifestations of violence and the various settings in which it occurs. The practical measures, strategies and activities described below can be introduced in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice to deal with the problem of violence against women. Except where otherwise specified, the term 'women' encompasses 'girl children'.

"2. Recalling the definition of violence against women contained in the Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women⁵⁷ and reiterated in the Platform for Action adopted by the Fourth World Conference on Women,⁶ the Model Strategies and Practical Measures on the Elimination of Violence against Women in the Field of Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice build upon the measures adopted by Governments in the Platform for Action, bearing in mind that some groups of women are especially vulnerable to violence.

"3. The Model Strategies and Practical Measures specifically acknowledge the need for an active policy of bringing into the mainstream a gender perspective in all policies and programmes related to violence against women and of achieving gender equality and equal and fair access to justice, as well as establishing the goal of gender balance in areas of decision-making related to the elimination of violence against women. The Model Strategies and Practical Measures should be applied as guidelines in a manner consistent with relevant international instruments, including the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women,¹⁴³ the Convention on the Rights of the Child⁶⁹ and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights,¹⁴⁷ with a view to furthering their fair and effective implementation.

"4. The Model Strategies and Practical Measures should be implemented by Member States and other entities, without prejudice to the principle of gender equality before the law, in order to facilitate the efforts by Governments to deal with the various manifestations of violence against women within the criminal justice system.

"5. The Model Strategies and Practical Measures are aimed at providing de jure and de facto equality between women and men. The Model Strategies and Practical Measures do not give preferential treatment to women but are aimed at ensuring that any inequalities or forms of discrimination that women face in achieving access to justice, in particular in respect of acts of violence, are redressed.

"I. CRIMINAL LAW

"6. Member States are urged:

"(a) To review, evaluate and revise periodically their laws, codes and procedures, especially their criminal laws, to ensure their value and effectiveness in eliminating violence against women and to remove provisions that allow for or condone violence against women;

¹⁴⁷ See General Assembly resolution 2200 A (XXI), annex.

against women are prohibited and, if not, to adopt measures to do so;

“(c) To review, evaluate and revise their criminal laws in order to ensure that:

- “(i) Persons who are brought before the courts on judicial matters in respect of violent crimes or who are convicted of such crimes can be restricted in their possession and use of firearms and other regulated weapons, within the framework of their national legal systems;

“(c) Women subjected to violence have an opportunity to testify in court proceedings equal to that of other witnesses and that measures are available to facilitate such testimony and to protect their privacy;

“(d) Rules and principles of defence do not discriminate against women and such defences as honour or provocation do not allow perpetrators of violence against women to escape all criminal responsibility;

“(e) Perpetrators who commit acts of violence against women while voluntarily under the influence of alcohol or drugs are not absolved of all criminal or other responsibility;

“(f) Evidence of prior acts of violence, abuse, stalking and exploitation by the perpetrator is considered during court proceedings, in accordance with the principles of national criminal law;

“(g) Courts, subject to the constitution of their State, have the authority to issue protection and restraining orders in cases of violence against women, including removal of the perpetrator from the domicile, prohibiting further contact with the victim and other affected parties, inside and outside the domicile, and to impose penalties for breaches of these orders;

“(h) Measures can be taken when necessary to ensure the safety of victims and their families and to protect them from intimidation and retaliation;

“(i) Safety risks are taken into account in decisions concerning non-custodial or quasi-custodial sentences, the granting of bail, conditional release, parole or probation.

“III. POLICE

“8. Member States are urged, within the framework of their national legal systems:

“(b) To develop investigative techniques that do not degrade women subjected to violence and that minimize intrusion into their lives, while maintaining standards for the collection of the best evidence;

“(c) To ensure that police procedures, including decisions on the arrest, detention and terms of any form of release of the perpetrator, take into account the need for the safety of the victim and others related through family, socially or otherwise, and that these procedures also prevent further acts of violence;

“(d) To empower the police to respond promptly to incidents of violence against women;

“(e) To ensure that the exercise of police powers is undertaken according to the rule of law and codes of conduct and that the police may be held accountable for any infringement thereof;

“IV. SENTENCING AND CORRECTION

“(ii) Stopping violent behaviour;

“(iii) Taking into account the impact on victims and their family members of sentences imposed on perpetrators who are members of their families;

“(iv) Promoting sanctions that are comparable to those for other violent crimes;

“(b) To ensure that a woman subjected to violence is notified of any release of the offender from detention or imprisonment where the safety of the victim in such disclosure outweighs invasion of the offender's privacy;

“(c) To take into account in the sentencing process the severity of the physical and psychological harm and the impact of victimization, including through victim impact statements where such practices are permitted by law;

“(d) To make available to the courts through legislation a full range of sentencing dispositions to protect the victim, other affected persons and society from further violence;

“(e) To ensure that the sentencing judge is encouraged to recommend treatment of the offender at the time of sentencing;

“(c) To ensure that women subjected to violence receive, through formal and informal procedures, prompt and fair redress for the harm that they have suffered, including the right to seek restitution or compensation from the offenders or the State;

“(d) To provide for court mechanisms and procedures that are accessible and sensitive to the needs of women subjected to violence and that ensure the fair processing of cases;

“(e) To establish a registration system for judicial protection and restraining orders, where such orders are permitted by national law, so that police or criminal justice officials can quickly determine whether such an order is in force.

1. Endorse the recommendations of the Conference on Theft of and Illicit Trafficking in Motor Vehicles, held at Warsaw on 2 and 3 December 1996¹⁶¹ and, among the various issues emerging from the Warsaw Conference, recommend the following points for immediate action by Governments:

(a) As a first priority, to support the development of the Automated Search Facility International Stolen Vehicle Database of the International Criminal Police Organization;

(b) To establish national centralized vehicle registration systems based on a standard set of data, which includes the physical description and identifying numbers of the motor vehicle as well as details of the registered owner or keeper;

(c) To request that vehicles written off by insurers are reported to the centralized vehicle registration system or, alternatively, that authorities check with private databases that keep such records, in order to prevent the vehicle identification number of a vehicle that has been written off from being used to hide the identity of a stolen vehicle;

(d) To find appropriate means in order to ensure that, prior to registration of an imported vehicle, national authorities confirm that a vehicle has not been reported stolen in any country of prior registration, inter alia, using the Automated Search Facility system of the International Criminal Police Organization;

(e) To promote the adoption of a standard format for a world vehicle identification number system applying to all vehicles manufactured within the country or exported to other countries, to provide for the secure marking of identifying numbers on component parts of the vehicles, and to encourage the keeping of such records by manufacturers and the practice of making them available to relevant law enforcement agencies;

(f) To consider mandating the installation of effective security devices by manufacturers, including effective immobilizers and perimeter security;

(g) To conclude on a bilateral or multilateral basis agreements on the return of stolen vehicles, based on the

Model Bilateral Treaty for the Return of Stolen or Embezzled Vehicles, contained in annex II below;

(h) To promote better operational cooperation and exchange of information among the relevant law enforcement and other agencies at the national and international levels.

2. Draw the attention of the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice to the following:

(a) The elaboration and the implementation of the technical cooperation activities to be requested of the Secretary-General, in accordance with paragraph 2 (g) of the recommendations of the Warsaw Conference; such activities should include the elaboration of a comprehensive training manual on vehicle identification;

Desiring to eliminate such difficulties and to regularize procedures for the expeditious return of such vehicles,

Have agreed as follows:

Article 1

For the purposes of the present Treaty:

(c) Found in the territory of a Party.

Article 3

1. Whenever police, customs or other authorities of a Party impound or seize a vehicle that they have reason to believe is registered, titled or otherwise documented in the territory of another Party, the first Party shall, within [thirty] days of such impoundment or seizure, notify, in writing, [the Embassy] of the other Party that its authorities have custody of the motor vehicle.

2. Such notification shall include all available identifying data about the vehicle of the type listed in appendix I, a description of the condition of the vehicle, the current location of the vehicle, the identity of the authority with physical custody of the vehicle and [any] information that indicates whether it was being used in connection with the commission of a crime.

Thereafter, the said authorities shall not operate, auction, dismantle or otherwise alter or dispose of the vehicle. However, the present Treaty shall not preclude the said authorities from operating, auctioning, dismantling or otherwise altering or disposing of the vehicle if:

(c) The vehicle has not been retrieved within the time period stated in article 7, paragraph 2, below by the person identified in the request for return as the owner or the authorized representative of the owner after the vehicle has been made available as provided for in article 7, paragraph 2, below; or

(d) There is no obligation under the present Treaty pursuant to article 8, paragraph 2 or 3, below to return the vehicle.

A copy of the request shall be transmitted under cover of a note to the [Ministry of Foreign Affairs] of the Requested Party. A request shall be made only after receipt by the consular officer of properly notarized certified copies of the following documents:

3. Except as noted in paragraph 2 (c) above, translations of documents need not be provided. The requirement for translation of a theft report may be waived by authorities of the Requested Party. No further legalization or authentication of documents will be required by the Requested Party.

Article 6

If a Party learns, through means other than a notification made pursuant to article 3 above, that the authorities of another Party may have impounded, seized or otherwise taken possession of a vehicle that may be registered or otherwise documented in the territory of the first Party, that Party:

(a) May, through a note to the [Ministry of Foreign Affairs] of the other Party, seek official confirmation of this and may request the other Party to provide the notification described in article 3, in which case the other Party shall either provide the notification or explain, in writing, why notification is not required; and

(b) May also, in appropriate cases, submit a request for the return of the vehicle as described in article 5 above.

Article 7

1. Except as provided for in article 8 below, the Requested Party shall, within [thirty] days of receiving a request for the return of a stolen or embezzled vehicle, determine whether the request for return meets the requirements of the present Treaty and shall notify [the Embassy] of the Requesting Party of its determination.

2. If the Requested Party determines that the request for the return of a stolen or embezzled vehicle meets the requirements of the present Treaty, the Requested Party shall within [fifteen] days of such determination make the vehicle available to the person identified in the request for return as the owner or the authorized representative of the owner. The vehicle shall remain available for the person identified in the request for return as the owner or the authorized representative of the owner to take delivery for at least [ninety] days. The Requested Party shall take the necessary measures to permit the owner or the authorized representative of the owner to take delivery of the vehicle and return it to the territory of the Requesting Party.

If a vehicle whose return is requested is being held in connection with a criminal investigation or prosecution, its return pursuant to the present Treaty shall be effected when its presence is no longer required for purposes of that investigation or prosecution. The Requested Party shall, however, take all practicable measures to ensure that substitute pictorial or other evidence is used wherever possible in such investigation or prosecution so that the vehicle may be returned as soon as possible.

2. If the ownership or custody of a vehicle whose return is requested is the subject of a pending judicial action in the Requested Party, its return pursuant to the present Treaty shall be effected at the conclusion of that judicial action. However, a Party shall have no obligation under the Treaty to return the vehicle if such judicial action results in the award of the vehicle to a person other than the person identified in the request for return as the owner of the vehicle or the authorized representative of the owner.

3. A Party shall have no obligation under the present Treaty to return a vehicle whose return is requested if the vehicle is subject to forfeiture under its laws because it was used in its territory for the commission of a crime. The Requested Party shall not forfeit the vehicle without giving the owner or the authorized representative of the owner reasonable notice and an opportunity to contest such forfeiture in accordance with its laws.

4. A Party shall have no obligation under the present Treaty to return a stolen or embezzled vehicle if no request for return is made within [sixty] days of a notification made pursuant to article 3 above.

5. If the return of a stolen or embezzled vehicle whose return is requested is postponed, pursuant to paragraph 1 or 2 of the present article, the Requested Party shall so notify [the Embassy] of the Requesting Party in writing within [thirty] days of receiving a request for the return of the vehicle.

Article 9

1. The Requested Party shall not impose any import or export duties, taxes, fines or other monetary penalties or charges on vehicles returned in accordance with the present Treaty, or on their owners or authorized representatives, as a condition for the return of such vehicles.

2. Actual expenses incurred in the return of the vehicle, including towing, storage, maintenance and transportation costs, as well as the costs of translation of documents required under the present Treaty, shall be borne by the person or entity seeking its return and shall be paid prior to the return of the vehicle. The Requested Party shall use its best efforts to keep such expenses at reasonable levels.

3. In particular cases, the expenses of return may include the costs of any repairs or reconditioning of a vehicle which may have been necessary to permit the vehicle to be moved to a storage area or to maintain it in the condition in which it was found. The person or entity seeking the return of a vehicle shall not be responsible for the costs of any other work performed on the vehicle while it was in the custody of the authorities of the Requested Party.

Article 10

The mechanisms for the recovery and return of stolen or embezzled vehicles under the present Treaty shall be in addition to those available under the laws of the Requested Party. Nothing in the Treaty shall impair any rights for the recovery of stolen or embezzled vehicles under applicable law.

Article 11

1. Any differences regarding the interpretation or application of the present Treaty shall be resolved through consultations between the Parties.

2. The present Treaty shall be subject to ratification. It shall enter into force on the date of exchange of instruments of ratification.

ANNEX

Guidelines for Action on Children in the Criminal Justice System

1. Pursuant to Economic and Social Council resolution 1996/13 of 23 July 1996, the present Guidelines for Action on Children in the Criminal Justice System were developed at the expert group meeting on the elaboration of a programme of action to promote the effective use and application of international standards and norms in juvenile justice, held at Vienna from 23 to 25 February 1997 with the financial support of the Government of Austria. In developing the Guidelines for Action, the experts took into account the views expressed and the information submitted by Governments.

2. Twenty-nine experts from eleven States in different regions, representatives of the Centre for Human Rights of the Secretariat, the United Nations Children's Fund and the Committee on the Rights of the Child, as well as observers for non-governmental organizations concerned with juvenile justice, participated in the meeting.

3. The Guidelines for Action are addressed to the Secretary-General and relevant United Nations agencies and programmes, States parties to the Convention on the Rights of the Child,¹⁶⁹ as regards its implementation, as well as Member States as regards the use and application of the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice (The Beijing Rules),¹⁶⁷ the United Nations Guidelines for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency (The Riyadh Guidelines)¹⁶⁸ and the United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty,¹⁶⁹ hereinafter together referred to as "United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice".

I. AIMS, OBJECTIVES AND BASIC CONSIDERATIONS

4. The aims of the Guidelines for Action are to provide a framework to achieve the following objectives:

(a) To implement the Convention on the Rights of the Child and to pursue the goals set forth in the Convention with regard to children in the context of the administration of juvenile justice, as well as to use and apply the United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice and other related instruments, such as the Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power,¹⁷⁰

(b) To facilitate the provision of assistance to States parties for the effective implementation of the Convention and related instruments.

5. In order to ensure effective use of the Guidelines for Action, improved cooperation between Governments, relevant entities of the United Nations system, non-governmental organizations, professional groups, the media, academic institutions, children and other members of civil society is essential.

6. The Guidelines for Action should be based on the principle that the responsibility for implementing the Convention clearly rests with the States parties thereto.

7. The basis for the use of the Guidelines for Action should be the recommendations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child.

8. In the use of the Guidelines for Action at both the international and national levels, consideration should be given to the following:

(a) Respect for human dignity, compatible with the four general principles underlying the Convention, namely: non-discrimination, including gender sensitivity, upholding the best interests of the child, the right to life, survival and development and respect for the views of the child;

(b) A rights-based orientation;

(c) A holistic approach to implementation through maximization of resources and efforts;

(d) The integration of services on an interdisciplinary basis;

(e) The participation of children and concerned sectors of society;

¹⁶⁹ General Assembly resolution 45/113, annex.

(g) Sustainability without continuing dependency on external bodies;

(h) Equitable application and accessibility to those in greatest need;

(i) Accountability and transparency of operations;

(j) Proactive responses based on effective preventive and remedial measures.

9. Adequate resources (human, organizational, technological, financial and information) should be allocated and utilized efficiently at all levels (international, regional, national, provincial and local) and in collaboration with relevant partners, including Governments, United Nations entities, non-governmental organizations, professional groups, the media, academic institutions, children and other members of civil society, as well as other partners.

II. PLANS FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD, THE PURSUIT OF ITS GOALS AND THE USE AND APPLICATION OF INTERNATIONAL STANDARDS AND NORMS IN JUVENILE JUSTICE

A. MEASURES OF GENERAL APPLICATION

10. The importance of a comprehensive and consistent national approach in the area of juvenile justice should be recognized, with respect for the interdependence and indivisibility of all rights of the child.

11. Measures relating to policy, decision-making, leadership and reform should be taken, with the goal of ensuring that:

(a) The principles and provisions of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice are fully reflected in national and local legislation policy and practice, in particular by establishing a child-oriented juvenile justice system that guarantees the rights of children, prevents the violation of the rights of children, promotes children's sense of dignity and worth and fully respects their age, their stage of development and their right to participate meaningfully in and contribute to society;

(b) The relevant contents of the above-mentioned instruments are made widely known to children in language accessible to children. In addition, if necessary, procedures should be established to ensure that each and every child is provided with the relevant information on his or her rights set out in those instruments, at least from his or her first contact with the criminal justice system, and is reminded of his or her obligation to obey the law;

(c) Understanding on the part of the public and the media of the spirit, aims and principles of justice centred on the child is promoted in accordance with the United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice.

B. SPECIFIC TARGETS

12. States should ensure the effectiveness of their birth registration programmes. In those instances where the age of the child involved in the justice system is unknown, measures should be taken to ensure that the true age of a child is ascertained by independent and objective assessment.

13. Notwithstanding the age of criminal responsibility, civil majority and the age of consent as defined by national legislation, States should ensure that children benefit from all their rights, as guaranteed to them by international law and, specifically in this context, those set forth in articles 3, 37 and 40 of the Convention.

14. Particular attention should be given to the following points:

(a) There should be a comprehensive child-centred juvenile justice process;

(b) Independent expert or other types of panels should review existing and proposed juvenile justice laws and their impact on children;

(c) No child who is under the legal age of criminal responsibility should be subject to criminal charges;

(d) States should establish juvenile courts with primary jurisdiction over juveniles who commit criminal acts and special procedures should be designed to take into account the specific needs of children. As an alternative, regular courts should incorporate such procedures, as appropriate. Wherever necessary, national legislative and other measures should be considered to accord all the rights of and protection for the child, where the child is brought before a court other than a juvenile court, in accordance with articles 3, 37 and 40 of the Convention.

15. A review of existing procedures should be undertaken and, where possible, diversion or other alternative initiatives to the classic criminal justice systems should be developed to avoid recourse to the criminal justice systems for young persons accused of an offence. Appropriate steps should be taken to make available throughout the State a broad range of alternative and educative measures at the pre-arrest, pre-trial, trial and post-trial stages, in order to prevent recidivism and promote the social rehabilitation of child offenders. Whenever appropriate, mechanisms for the informal resolution of disputes in cases involving a child offender should be utilized, including mediation and restorative justice practices, in particular processes involving victims. In the various measures to be adopted, the family should be involved, to the extent that it operates in favour of the good of the child offender. States should ensure that alternative measures comply with the Convention and the United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice, as well as other existing standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice, such as the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for Non-custodial Measures (The Tokyo Rules),¹⁷¹ with special regard to ensuring respect for due-process rules in applying such measures and for the principle of minimum intervention.

¹⁷¹ General Assembly resolution 45/110, annex.

16. Priority should be given to setting up agencies and programmes to provide legal and other assistance such as interpretation services to children, if necessary, free of charge, and, in particular, to ensure that the right of every child to have access to such assistance from the moment that the child is detained is respected in practice.

17. Appropriate action should be ensured to alleviate the problem of children in need of special protection measures, such as children working or living on the streets or children permanently deprived of a family environment, children with disabilities, children of minorities, immigrants and indigenous peoples and other vulnerable groups of children.

18. The placement of children in closed institutions should be reduced. Such placement of children should only take place in accordance with the provisions of article 37 (b) of the Convention as a matter of last resort and for the shortest period of time. Corporal punishment in the child justice and welfare systems should be prohibited.

19. The United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty¹⁶⁹ and article 37 (d) of the Convention also apply to any public or private setting from which the child cannot leave at will, by order of any judicial, administrative or other public authority.

20. In order to maintain a link between the detained child and his or her family and community and to facilitate his or her social reintegration, it is important to ensure easy access by relatives and persons who have a legitimate interest in the child to institutions where children are deprived of their liberty, unless the best interests of the child would suggest otherwise.

21. An independent body to monitor and report regularly on conditions in custodial facilities should be established, if necessary. Monitoring should take place within the framework of the United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice, in particular the United Nations Rules for the Protection of Juveniles Deprived of their Liberty. States should permit children to communicate freely and confidentially with the monitoring bodies.

22. States should consider positively requests from concerned humanitarian, human rights and other organizations for access to custodial facilities, where appropriate.

23. In relation to children in the criminal justice system, due account should be taken of concerns raised by intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations and other interested parties, in particular systemic issues, including inappropriate admissions and lengthy delays that have an impact on children deprived of their liberty.

24. All persons who have contact with or are responsible for children in the criminal justice system should receive education and training in human rights, the principles and provisions of the Convention and other United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice as an integral part of their training programmes. Such persons include police and other law enforcement officials, judges and magistrates, prosecutors, lawyers and administrators, prison officers and other professionals working in institutions where children are deprived of their liberty, health personnel, social workers, peacekeepers and other professionals concerned with juvenile justice.

25. In the light of existing international standards, States should establish mechanisms to ensure a prompt, thorough and impartial investigation into allegations against officials of deliberate violation of the fundamental rights and freedoms of children. States should equally ensure that those found responsible are duly sanctioned.

C. MEASURES TO BE TAKEN AT THE INTERNATIONAL LEVEL

26. Juvenile justice should be given due attention internationally, regionally and nationally, including within the framework of the United Nations system-wide action.

27. There is an urgent need for close cooperation between all bodies in this field, in particular, the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Division, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights/Centre for Human Rights, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Development Programme, the Committee on the Rights of the Child, the International Labour Organization, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and the World Health Organization. In addition, the World Bank and other international and regional financial institutions and organizations, as well as non-governmental organizations and academic institutions, are invited to support the provision of advisory services and technical assistance in the field of juvenile justice. Cooperation should therefore be strengthened, in particular with regard to research, the dissemination of information, training, the implementation and monitoring of the Convention and the use and application of existing standards, as well as with regard to the provision of technical advice and assistance programmes, for example, by making use of existing international networks on juvenile justice.

28. The effective implementation of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, as well as the use and application of international standards through technical cooperation and advisory service programmes, should be ensured by giving particular attention to the following aspects related to protecting and promoting the human rights of children in detention, strengthening the rule of law and improving the administration of the juvenile justice system:

(a) Assistance in legal reform;

(b) The strengthening of national capacities and infrastructures;

(c) Training programmes for police and other law enforcement officials, judges and magistrates, prosecutors, lawyers, administrators, prison officers and other professionals working in institutions where children are deprived of their liberty, health personnel, social workers, peacekeepers and other professionals concerned with juvenile justice;

(d) The preparation of training manuals;

(e) The preparation of information and education material to inform children about their rights in juvenile justice;

(f) Assistance with the development of information and management systems.

29. Close cooperation should be maintained between the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Division and the Department of Peacekeeping Operations of the Secretariat in view of the relevance of the protection of the rights of children in peacekeeping operations, including the problems of children and youth as victims and perpetrators of crime in peace-building and post-conflict or other emerging situations.

D. MECHANISMS FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF TECHNICAL ADVICE AND ASSISTANCE PROJECTS

30. In accordance with articles 43, 44 and 45 of the Convention, the Committee on the Rights of the Child reviews the reports of States parties on the implementation of the Convention. According to article 44 of the Convention, these reports should indicate factors and difficulties, if any, affecting the degree of fulfilment of the obligations under the Convention.

31. States parties to the Convention are invited to provide in their initial and periodic reports comprehensive information, data and indicators on the implementation of the provisions of the Convention and on the use and application of the United Nations standards and norms in juvenile justice.¹⁷²

32. As a result of the process of examining the progress made by States parties in fulfilling their obligations under the Convention, the Committee on the Rights of the Child may make suggestions and general recommendations to the States parties to ensure full compliance with the Convention (in accordance with article 45 (d) of the Convention). In order to foster the effective implementation of the Convention and to encourage international cooperation in the area of juvenile justice, the Committee transmits, as it may consider appropriate, to the specialized agencies, the United Nations Children's Fund and other competent bodies any reports from States parties that contain a request, or indicate a need, for advisory services and technical assistance, together with the observations and suggestions of the Committee, if any, on those requests or indications (in accordance with article 45 (b) of the Convention).

33. Accordingly, should a State party report and the review process by the Committee reveal any necessity to initiate reform in the area of juvenile justice, including through assistance by the United Nations technical advice and assistance programmes or those of the specialized agencies, the State party may request such assistance, including assistance from the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Division, the Centre for Human Rights and the United Nations Children's Fund.

¹⁷² See the general guidelines regarding the form and contents of periodic reports to be submitted by States parties under article 44, paragraph 1 (b), of the Convention, adopted by the Committee at its 343rd meeting (thirteenth session), on 11 October 1996 (CRC/C/58); for a summary of the discussion on the topic (the administration of juvenile justice) of the special thematic day of the Committee on the Rights of the Child, see the report of the Committee on its tenth session (Geneva, 30 October–17 November 1995) (CRC/C/46), pp. 33–39.

34. In order to provide adequate assistance in response to those requests, a coordination panel on technical advice and assistance in juvenile justice should be established, to be convened at least annually by the Secretary-General. The panel will consist of representatives of the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Division, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights/Centre for Human Rights, the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Development Programme, the Committee on the Rights of the Child, the institutes constituting the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network and other relevant United Nations entities, as well as other interested intergovernmental, regional and non-governmental organizations, including international networks on juvenile justice and academic institutions involved in the provision of technical advice and assistance, in accordance with paragraph 39 below.

35. Prior to the first meeting of the coordination panel, a strategy should be elaborated for addressing the issue of how to activate further international cooperation in the field of juvenile justice. The coordination panel should also facilitate the identification of common problems, the compilation of examples of good practice and the analysis of shared experiences and needs, which in turn would lead to a more strategic approach to needs assessment and to effective proposals for action. Such a compilation would allow for concerted advisory services and technical assistance in juvenile justice, including an early agreement with the Government requesting such assistance, as well as with all other partners having the capacity and the competence to implement the various segments of a country project, thus ensuring the most effective and problem-oriented action. This compilation should be developed continuously in close cooperation with all parties involved. It will take into account the possible introduction of diversion programmes and measures to improve the administration of juvenile justice, to reduce the use of remand homes and pre-trial detention, to improve the treatment of children deprived of their liberty and to create effective reintegration and recovery programmes.

36. Emphasis should be placed on formulating comprehensive prevention plans, as called for in the United Nations Guidelines for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency (The Riyadh Guidelines).¹⁶⁸ Projects should focus on strategies to socialize and integrate all children and young persons successfully, in particular through the family, the community, peer groups, schools, vocational training and the world of work. These projects should pay particular attention to children in need of special protection measures, such as children working or living on the streets or children permanently deprived of a family environment, children with disabilities, children of minorities, immigrants and indigenous peoples and other vulnerable groups of children. In particular, the placement of these children in institutions should be proscribed as much as possible. Measures of social protection should be developed in order to limit the risks of criminalization for these children.

37. The strategy will also set out a coordinated process for the delivery of international advisory services and technical assistance to States parties to the Convention, on the basis of joint missions to be undertaken, whenever appropriate, by staff of the different organizations and agencies involved, with a view to devising longer-term technical assistance projects.

38. Important actors in the delivery of advisory services and technical assistance programmes at the country level are the United Nations resident coordinators, with significant roles to be played by the field offices of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights/Centre for Human Rights, the United Nations Children's Fund and the United Nations Development Programme. The vital nature of the integration of juvenile justice technical cooperation in country planning and programming, including through the United Nations country strategy note, is emphasized.

39. Resources must be mobilized for both the coordinating mechanism of the coordination panel and regional and country projects formulated to improve observance of the Convention. Resources for those purposes (see paragraphs 34 to 38 above) will come either from regular budgets or from extrabudgetary resources. Most of the resources for specific projects will have to be mobilized from external sources.

40. The coordination panel may wish to encourage, and in fact be the vehicle for, a coordinated approach to resource mobilization in this area. Such resource mobilization should be on the basis of a common strategy as contained in a programme document drawn up in support of a global programme in this area. All interested United Nations bodies and agencies as well as non-governmental organizations that have a demonstrated capacity to deliver technical cooperation services in this area should be invited to participate in such a process.

E. FURTHER CONSIDERATIONS FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF COUNTRY PROJECTS

41. One of the obvious tenets in juvenile delinquency prevention and juvenile justice is that long-term change is brought about not only when symptoms are treated but also when root causes are addressed. For example, excessive use of juvenile detention will be dealt with adequately only by applying a comprehensive approach, which involves both organizational and managerial structures at all levels of investigation, prosecution and the judiciary, as well as the penitentiary system. This requires communication, inter alia, with and among police, prosecutors, judges and magistrates, authorities of local communities, administration authorities and with the relevant authorities of detention centres. In addition, it requires the will and ability to cooperate closely with each other.

42. To prevent further overreliance on criminal justice measures to deal with children's behaviour, efforts should be made to establish and apply programmes aimed at strengthening social assistance, which would allow for the diversion of children from the justice system, as appropriate, as well as for improving the application of non-custodial measures and reintegration programmes. To establish and apply such programmes, it is necessary to foster close cooperation between the child justice sectors, the different services in charge of law enforcement and the social welfare and education sectors.

III. PLANS CONCERNED WITH CHILD VICTIMS AND WITNESSES OF CRIME

43. In accordance with the Declaration of Basic Principles of Justice for Victims of Crime and Abuse of Power,¹⁷⁰ States should undertake to ensure that child victims and witnesses of crime are provided with appropriate access to justice and fair treatment, restitution, compensation and social assistance. If applicable, measures should be taken to prevent the settling of penal matters through compensation outside the justice system, when doing so is not in the best interests of the child.

44. Police, lawyers, the judiciary and other court personnel should receive training in dealing with cases in which children are victims. States should consider establishing, if they have not yet done so, specialized offices and units to deal with cases involving offences against children. States should establish, as appropriate, a code of practice for the proper management of cases involving child victims.

45. Child victims should be treated with compassion and respect for their dignity. They are entitled to access to the mechanisms of justice and to prompt redress, as provided for by national legislation, for the harm they have suffered.

46. Child victims should have access to assistance that meets their needs, such as advocacy, protection, economic assistance, counselling, health and social services, social reintegration and physical and psychological recovery services. Special assistance should be given to those children who are disabled or ill. Emphasis should be placed upon family- and community-based rehabilitation rather than institutionalization.

47. Judicial and administrative mechanisms should be established and strengthened where necessary to enable child victims to obtain redress through formal or informal procedures that are prompt, fair and accessible. Child victims and/or their legal representatives should be informed accordingly.

48. Access should be allowed to fair and adequate compensation for all child victims of violations of human rights, specifically torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, including rape and sexual abuse, unlawful or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, unjustifiable detention and miscarriage of justice. The legal representation needed to bring an action within an appropriate court or tribunal, as well as interpretation into the native language of the child, if necessary, should be available.

49. Child witnesses of crime need assistance in the judicial and administrative processes. States should review, evaluate and improve, as necessary, the situation for children as witnesses of crime in their evidential and procedural law to ensure that the rights of children are fully protected. In accordance with the different law traditions, practices and legal frameworks, direct contact between the child victim and the offender should be avoided as far as possible during the process of investigation and prosecution as well as during trial hearings. The identification of the child victim in the media should be prohibited, where necessary, to protect the privacy of the child. Where prohibition is contrary to the fundamental legal principles of Member States, such identification should be discouraged.

50. States should consider, if necessary, amendments to their penal procedural codes to allow for, inter alia, videotaping of testimony by the child and presentation of the videotaped testimony in court as an official piece of evidence. In particular, police, prosecutors, judges and magistrates should apply more child-friendly practices, for example, in police operations and interviews of child witnesses.

51. The responsiveness of judicial and administrative processes to the needs of child victims and witnesses of crime should be facilitated by:

(a) Informing child victims of their role and the scope, timing and progress of the proceedings and of the disposition of their cases, especially where serious crimes are involved;

(b) Encouraging the development of child witness preparation schemes to familiarize children with the criminal justice process prior to giving evidence. Appropriate assistance should be provided to child victims and witnesses throughout the legal process;

(c) Allowing the views and concerns of child victims to be presented and considered at appropriate stages of the proceedings where their personal interests are affected, without prejudice to the accused and in accordance with the relevant national criminal justice system;

(d) Taking measures to minimize delays in the criminal justice process, protecting the privacy of child victims and witnesses and, where necessary, ensuring their safety from intimidation and retaliation.

52. Children displaced illegally or wrongfully retained across borders are, as a general principle, to be returned to their country of origin. Due attention should be paid to their safety and they should be treated humanely and should receive necessary assistance, pending their return. They should be returned promptly to ensure compliance with the Convention on the Rights of the Child.¹⁷³ Where the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction of 1980,¹⁷³ the Convention on Protection of Children and Cooperation in respect of Intercountry Adoption of 1993¹⁷⁴ or the Convention on Jurisdiction, Applicable Law, Recognition, Enforcement and Cooperation in respect of Parental Responsibility and Measures for the Protection of the Child of 1996,¹⁷⁴ approved by the Hague Conference on Private International Law, is applicable, the provisions of the convention in question with regard to the return of the child should be promptly applied. Upon the return of the child, the country of origin should treat the child with respect, in accordance with international principles of human rights, and offer adequate family-based rehabilitation measures.

53. The United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, including the institutes constituting the Programme network, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights/Centre for Human Rights, the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Development Programme, the Committee on the Rights of the Child, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the World Bank and interested non-governmental organizations should assist Member States, at their request, from within the overall appropriations of their regular budgets or from extrabudgetary resources, in developing multidisciplinary training, education and information activities for law enforcement and other criminal justice personnel, including police officers, prosecutors, judges and magistrates.

1997/31. Victims of crime and abuse of power

(a) Whether those draft minimum rules duplicate or contradict existing conventions or standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice;

(b) The necessity of elaborating such an instrument;

(c) The diversity of legal systems and practices in each Member State.

1997/33. Elements of responsible crime prevention: standards and norms

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 46/152 of 18 December 1991 on the creation of an effective United Nations crime prevention and criminal justice programme,

Recalling also its resolution 1992/22 of 30 July 1992 on the implementation of General Assembly resolution 46/152 concerning operational activities and coordination in the field of crime prevention and criminal justice, in section VI of which it determined that crime prevention in urban areas and juvenile and violent criminality would be one of the priority themes that should guide the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice in the development of a detailed programme,

Recalling further its resolution 1995/9 of 24 July 1995 on guidelines for the prevention of urban crime,

Taking into account the fact that a growing and undermining criminality highlights the inadequacy of conventional criminal policies and the need urgently to devise preventive approaches,

Considering that the challenge and the magnitude of modern crime, including organized crime, combined with the insufficient resources of the criminal justice system, for example, the overpopulation of prisons and overburdened criminal justice systems, reinforce the need for non-repressive crime prevention,

Considering also that an international effort is necessary to develop an effective strategy on responsible crime prevention,

1. Takes note of the preliminary draft of elements of responsible crime prevention: standards and norms, annexed to the present resolution;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to seek comments from Member States, relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, as well as the institutes constituting the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network, on the draft contained in the annex to the present resolution, including the advisability of elaborating such an instrument;

3. Also requests the Secretary-General to report to the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, at a future session, on the comments received;

4. Further requests the Secretary-General to organize, drawing upon extrabudgetary funds, an ad hoc expert group meeting to examine the comments, to elaborate proposals for further action and to report thereon to the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice;

5. Urges Member States and relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, as well as the institutes constituting the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network, to extend to the Secretary-General their full support in implementing the present resolution.

ANNEX

Elements of responsible crime prevention: standards and norms

I. THE CONCEPT OF CRIME PREVENTION

1. The prevention of crime through non-punitive measures is to be considered an important complement to the administration of criminal law. It constitutes a legitimate response by society to threats to the safety of citizens posed by criminal acts.

2. The concept of crime prevention should not be limited to conventional forms of crime, including domestic violence, but should encompass new forms of crime, such as organized crime, terrorism, illegal trafficking in migrants, computer crime and cybercrime, environmental crime, corruption and illegal commerce related to the acquisition and development of weapons of mass destruction.

3. The concept of crime prevention should take into account the growing internationalization of criminal activities and the relationship between the global economy, advanced technologies and national phenomena of crime, with special consideration for developing countries.

II. RESPONSIBLE CRIME PREVENTION

4. Under all circumstances, measures of crime prevention should be carried out in strict conformity with the relevant provisions of international law and international standards of human rights.

5. Crime prevention should respect principles such as the rule of law, the protection of individual rights and freedoms, the principle of equality before the law and due process.

6. Whenever preventive measures are adopted which do not infringe upon the principles set out in paragraphs 4 and 5 above but which affect human rights, they must be implemented in strict accordance with the principle of the rule of law and of proportionality.

7. If the impact of a preventive measure on human rights is comparable to that of a penal measure, there should be provision for the same legal guarantees, including controls by the courts or by an ombudsman.

8. Measures which touch upon the rights of those who are considered to be at risk of becoming offenders should be handled in strict accordance with the principles set out in paragraphs 4 and 5 above [with great restraint]. Prediction of future criminality at the individual level requires a high degree of caution and stigmatization should be avoided. However, this should not obviate the development of secondary prevention programmes for persons with known risk factors.

9. In the planning and implementation of preventive measures, affirmative action may play a role but discrimination should always be avoided.

10. If the police are a partner in the implementation of prevention programmes, their participation should not be hidden and any confusion of roles should be avoided. Data collected in relation to prevention programmes should be used for the criminal investigation of serious crime only.

11. The limits within which the private security sector may act should be defined by law. The private security sector, in accordance with human rights standards, should not exercise any function which, by its nature, is incompatible with the rule of law and the principle that the use of force is reserved for the State.

12. Codes of conduct for public officials and other persons involved are useful supplements to legal regulations in order to reduce the risks connected with preventive measures.

13. Preventive measures that do not in any way affect the rights of individuals need little legal regulation. Over-regulation in this respect would unduly limit the development of these types of measures.

III. THE PROMOTION OF RESPONSIBLE CRIME PREVENTION

14. Governments should take appropriate steps to promote and to regulate crime prevention through the establishment of special councils or other agencies, provisions for funding and the dissemination of information. Crime prevention programmes should be developed and implemented in collaboration with the police, municipalities, the private sector and other interested parties in a manner that clearly sets objectives and defines roles.

15. Crime prevention strategies at the national, local and community levels should also address the root causes of crime through social, economic, public health and educational policies. Where appropriate, crime prevention programmes should be linked to comprehensive programmes addressing social marginalization and exclusion.

16. Community-based programmes of crime prevention that include the active participation of citizens, the business sector, the police and other relevant parties should be encouraged and developed. These programmes should avoid activities with the potential to affect the rights of others.

17. Crime prevention measures which target groups at risk of becoming offenders, especially youth, should be promoted and should include educational opportunities, employment, housing and leisure facilities. These measures should avoid the stigmatization of the target groups.

18. Where necessary, educational support, such as instruction in parental skills, and special medical care should be offered as early as possible to families with children at risk. Steps should be taken to ensure that these provisions do not stigmatize the clients or infringe upon their rights.

19. Situational crime prevention programmes should be developed, to include target hardening, environmental design and surveillance. These programmes should not unduly reduce the quality of the built environment or limit free access to the public domain or public facilities.

20. Victim-oriented crime prevention consisting of, inter alia, the provision of information and advice to potential victims, should be promoted. Steps should be taken to avoid the undue rise of fear of crime or the stigmatization of the target groups.

21. Victims of crime should be offered protection, where necessary, and should be informed of possible ways to reduce the risks of future victimization, with due consideration for the rights of offenders. Due regard should be given to means of avoiding the tendency to blame the victim, as well as to reparation by the offender.

22. To promote prevention, provisions should be made available or strengthened for out-of-court mediation in appropriate penal matters, if this option is foreseen in national legislation. Procedures should comply with the principles of due process.

23. Research on crime prevention, including evaluation studies, should be promoted, taking into account the interests and rights of all parties involved. The international exchange of information on best practices, in terms of both effectiveness and respect for human rights, should be facilitated.

1997/34. Implementation of the United Nations Declaration on Crime and Public Security

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 51/60 of 12 December 1996, by which the Assembly, convinced that the adoption of a declaration on crime and public security would contribute to the enhancement of the struggle against serious transnational crime, approved the United Nations Declaration on Crime and Public Security,

Noting that the General Assembly, in its resolution 51/60, urged Member States to make every effort to ensure that the Declaration became generally known and was observed and implemented in full in accordance with their respective national legislation,

Noting also that the General Assembly, in its resolution 51/60, invited the Secretary-General to inform all States and the relevant specialized agencies and organizations of the adoption of the Declaration,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General on technical cooperation and coordination of activities¹⁸⁷ setting forth the information provided to date by Member States on their efforts to observe and implement in full General Assembly resolution 51/60 and the United Nations Declaration on Crime and Public Security in accordance with their national legislation;

2. Requests the Secretary-General, utilizing a questionnaire or other means to ensure standardized responses, to seek from Member States, as well as from any interested intergovernmental organizations or United Nations institutes, information related to the implementation of the Declaration, including in particular, in the case of Member States, the following:

(a) A summary of existing legislation and pending legislative proposals to combat serious transnational crime, including organized crime, illicit drug and arms trafficking, smuggling of other illicit articles, organized trafficking in persons, terrorist crimes and the laundering of proceeds from serious crimes;

(b) A summary of bilateral, regional, multilateral and global extradition, mutual legal assistance and other types of law enforcement cooperation arrangements;

(c) A summary of involvement or participation in law enforcement training and education activities at the international level;

transnational crime, including measures to require adequate record-keeping and reporting of suspicious transactions by financial and related institutions, to permit the seizure and forfeiture of the proceeds of crime, to limit the application of any bank secrecy laws with respect to criminal operations and to obtain the cooperation of financial institutions in detecting any operations that may be used for money laundering;

(g) A summary of measures undertaken to combat and prohibit corruption and bribery;

3. Urges all Member States to respond fully to the request by the Secretary-General for information on their efforts to implement the Declaration, either in their initial responses if they have not yet responded or, if necessary, in an amended version of any previous response;

4. Recognizes that the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Division of the Secretariat should continue to provide technical assistance to Member States in their efforts to implement the Declaration, drawing on extrabudgetary resources;

8. Decides that the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, at its eighth session, should review the report of the Secretary-General and should continue to consider the implementation of the Declaration.

1997/35. Technical cooperation and interregional advisory services in crime prevention and criminal justice

4. Welcomes the cooperation between the Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Division and the United Nations International Drug Control Programme, in particular in the area of action against money laundering, and calls upon the two programmes to continue to undertake joint activities, in particular the elaboration and execution of technical cooperation projects;

5. Expresses its concern at the lack of adequate resources, which may impede progress in the further operationalization of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme and hamper the implementation of those projects that have been elaborated so far in response to urgent requests from countries in need;

1997/36. International cooperation for the improvement of prison conditions

The Economic and Social Council,

Gravely alarmed by the serious problem confronting many Member States as a result of prison overcrowding,

Convinced that conditions in overcrowded prisons may affect the human rights of prisoners,

Bearing in mind the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners,¹⁸⁰ adopted by the First United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders and approved by the Economic and Social Council in its resolutions 663 C (XXIV) of 31 July 1957 and 2076 (LXII) of 13 May 1977, ¹⁹⁰ Ibid., 1995, Supplement No. 10 and addendum (E/1995/30 and Add.1), chap. I, sect. D.

Recalling General Assembly resolution 45/111 of 14 December 1990, adopted on the recommendation of the Eighth United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders,¹⁹¹ by which the Assembly affirmed the Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners, annexed to that resolution,

Recognizing that prison overcrowding requires the implementation of effective policies directed towards the rehabilitation of prisoners and their social reintegration, as well as the application of the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners and the Basic Principles for the Treatment of Prisoners,

Mindful of the fact that the physical and social conditions associated with prison overcrowding may result in outbreaks of violence in prisons, a development that could pose a grave threat to law and order,

Recalling the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for Non-custodial Measures (The Tokyo Rules),¹⁷¹

Recalling also the resolutions on the conditions of prisoners adopted by United Nations congresses on the prevention of crime and the treatment of offenders, in particular resolution 16 on reduction of the prison population, alternatives to imprisonment and social integration of offenders and resolution 17 on the human rights of prisoners, both adopted on 6 September 1985 by the Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders,¹⁹²

Taking note of the resolution adopted at the seminar entitled "Criminal justice: the challenge of prison overcrowding", organized by the Latin American Institute for the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders with the support of the European Commission, and held at San José, Costa Rica, from 3 to 7 February 1997, in which it was recommended, inter alia, that the number of prisoners should not exceed the number that could be held in decent conditions,

Taking note also of the Kampala Declaration on Prison Conditions in Africa, annexed to the present resolution,

Noting the nomination of a special rapporteur on prisons in Africa by the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights, in accordance with recommendations contained in the Kampala Declaration,

Mindful that many Member States lack the necessary resources to resolve the problem of prison overcrowding,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to provide assistance to countries, at their request and within existing resources or, where possible, funded by extrabudgetary resources if available, for the improvement of their prison conditions in the form of advisory services, needs assessment, capacity-building and training;

2. Invites other entities of the United Nations system, including the United Nations Development Programme and the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network, as well as intergovernmental organizations, to assist the Secretary-General in implementing the request contained in paragraph 1 above;

3. Urges Member States, if they have not yet done so, to introduce appropriate alternatives to imprisonment in their criminal justice systems;¹⁹³

4. Recommends that Member States, if they have not yet done so, adopt appropriate effective measures to reduce pre-trial detention;

5. Invites international and regional financial institutions such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund to incorporate into their technical assistance programmes measures to reduce prison overcrowding, including the construction of adequate infrastructure and the development of alternatives to imprisonment in criminal justice systems;

6. Requests the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice to discuss the issue of prison overcrowding in the context of technical cooperation at its eighth session, with a view to achieving greater international cooperation in that area;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its eighth session on the implementation of the present resolution.

ANNEX

Kampala Declaration on Prison Conditions in Africa

Prison conditions

Considering that in many countries in Africa the level of overcrowding in prisons is inhuman, that there is a lack of hygiene, insufficient or poor food, difficult access to medical care, a lack of physical activities or education, as well as an inability to maintain family ties,

Bearing in mind that any person who is denied freedom has a right to human dignity,

Bearing in mind also that the universal norms on human rights place an absolute prohibition on torture of any description,

Bearing in mind further that some groups of prisoners, including juveniles, women, the old and the mentally and ¹⁹³ See the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for Non-custodial Measures (The Tokyo Rules) (General Assembly resolution 45/110, annex) and Human Rights and Pre-trial Detention: Handbook of International Standards relating to Pre-trial Detention (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.94.XIV.6).

physically ill, are especially vulnerable and require particular attention,

Bearing in mind that juveniles must be separated from adult prisoners and that they must be treated in a manner appropriate to their age,

Remembering the importance of proper treatment for female detainees and the need to recognize their special needs,

The participants in the International Seminar on Prison Conditions in Africa,¹⁹⁴ held at Kampala from 19 to 21 September 1996, recommend:

1. That the human rights of prisoners should be safeguarded at all times and that non-governmental agencies should have a special role in this respect;

2. That prisoners should retain all rights which are not expressly taken away by the fact of their detention;

3. That prisoners should have living conditions which are compatible with human dignity;

4. That conditions in which prisoners are held and the prison regulations should not aggravate the suffering already caused by the loss of liberty;

5. That the detrimental effects of imprisonment should be minimized so that prisoners do not lose their self-respect and their sense of personal responsibility;

6. That prisoners should be given the opportunity to maintain and develop links with their families and the outside world;

7. That prisoners should be given access to education and skills training in order to make it easier for them to reintegrate into society after their release;

8. That special attention should be paid to vulnerable prisoners and that non-governmental organizations should be supported in their work with these prisoners;

9. That all the norms of the United Nations and the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights¹⁹⁵ on the treatment of prisoners should be incorporated into national legislation in order to protect the human rights of prisoners;

10. That the Organization of African Unity and its member States should take steps to ensure that prisoners are detained in the minimum conditions of security necessary for public safety.

Remand prisoners

Considering that in most prisons in Africa a great proportion of prisoners are awaiting trial, sometimes for several years, ¹⁹⁴ The seminar was organized jointly by Prison Reform International and the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights, in partnership with the Foundation for Human Rights Initiative and the Government of Uganda through the Prisons Department, and with the participation of the International Committee of the Red Cross and International Prison Watch.

¹⁹⁵ United Nations, Treaty Series, vol. 1520, No. 26363.

Considering also that for this reason the procedures and policies adopted by the police, the prosecuting authorities and the judiciary can significantly influence prison overcrowding,

The participants in the International Seminar on Prison Conditions in Africa, held at Kampala from 19 to 21 September 1996, recommend:

1. That the police, the prosecuting authorities and the judiciary should be aware of the problems caused by prison overcrowding and should join the prison administration in seeking solutions to reduce this;
2. That judicial investigations and proceedings should ensure that prisoners are kept in remand detention for the shortest possible period, avoiding, for example, continual remands in custody by the court;
3. That there should be a system for regular review of the time detainees spend on remand.

Prison staff

Considering that any improvement in conditions for prisoners will be dependent on staff having pride in their work and a proper level of competence,

Bearing in mind that this will only happen if staff are properly trained,

The participants in the International Seminar on Prison Conditions in Africa, held at Kampala from 19 to 21 September 1996, recommend:

1. That there should be a proper career structure for prison staff;
2. That all prison personnel should be linked to one government ministry and that there should be a clear line of command between the central prison administration and the staff in prisons;
3. That the State should provide sufficient material and financial resources for staff to carry out their work properly;
4. That in each country there should be an appropriate training programme for prison staff to which the United Nations African Institute for the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders should be invited to contribute;
5. That there should be a national or subregional institution to deliver this training programme;
6. That the penitentiary administration should be directly involved in the recruitment of prison staff.

Alternative sentencing

Noting that, in an attempt to reduce prison overcrowding, some countries have been trying to find a solution through amnesties or pardons or by building new prisons,

Considering that overcrowding causes a variety of problems, including difficulties for overworked staff,

Taking into account the limited effectiveness of imprisonment, especially for those serving short sentences, and the cost of imprisonment to the whole of society,

Considering the growing interest in African countries in measures which replace custodial sentences, especially in the light of human rights principles,

Considering that community service and other non-custodial measures are innovative alternatives to imprisonment and that there are promising developments in Africa in this regard,

Considering also that compensation for damage done is an important element of non-custodial sentences,

Considering further that legislation can be introduced to ensure that community service and other non-custodial measures will be imposed as an alternative to imprisonment,

The participants in the International Seminar on Prison Conditions in Africa, held at Kampala from 19 to 21 September 1996, recommend:

1. That petty offences should be dealt with according to customary practice, provided that this meets human rights requirements and that those involved so agree;
2. That, whenever possible, petty offences should be dealt with by mediation and should be resolved between the parties involved without recourse to the criminal justice system;
3. That the principle of civil reparation or financial recompense should be applied, taking into account the financial capability of the offender or of his or her parents;
4. That the work done by the offender should, if possible, recompense the victim;
5. That community service and other non-custodial measures should, if possible, be preferred to imprisonment;
6. That there should be a study of the feasibility of adapting successful African models of non-custodial measures and applying them in countries where they are not yet being used;
7. That the public should be educated about the objectives of these alternatives and how they work.

African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights

Considering that the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights has the mandate to ensure the promotion and the protection of human and peoples' rights in Africa,

Considering also that the Commission has shown on many occasions its special concern on the subject of poor prison conditions in Africa and that it has adopted special resolutions and decisions on this question previously,

The participants in the International Seminar on Prison Conditions in Africa, held at Kampala from 19 to 21 September 1996, recommend that the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights:

1. Should continue to attach priority to the improvement of prison conditions throughout Africa;

2. Should nominate a Special Rapporteur on Prisons in Africa as soon as possible;

3. Should make the member States aware of the recommendations contained in the present Declaration and publicize United Nations and African norms and standards on imprisonment;

4. Should cooperate with non-governmental organizations and other qualified institutions in order to ensure that the recommendations contained in the present Declaration are implemented in all the member States.

1997/37. Review of the United Nations International Drug Control Programme: strengthening the United Nations machinery for international drug control within the scope of the existing international drug control treaties and in accordance with the basic principles of the Charter of the United Nations

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling the special session of the General Assembly devoted to the question of international cooperation against illicit production, supply, demand, trafficking and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and the adoption by the Assembly, on 23 February 1990, during that special session, of the Political Declaration and the Global Programme of Action,¹⁹⁶ including the proclamation of the period from 1991 to 2000 as the United Nations Decade against Drug Abuse,

Taking note of the existing international drug control treaties, the Global Programme of Action and the United Nations System-wide Action Plan on Drug Abuse Control,¹⁹⁷ which contain a sound and comprehensive framework for drug control activities by States and all the relevant international organizations, and stressing the need for consistency in efforts to implement those activities,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 45/179 of 21 December 1990, by which the Assembly established the United Nations International Drug Control Programme as the single body with the exclusive responsibility for coordinating all drug control activities within the United Nations system and for providing effective leadership in promoting international cooperation in drug control, thereby producing a catalytic impact on other international and national bodies,

Recognizing with appreciation the valuable work done by the International Narcotics Control Board in encouraging Member States to adhere to the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988⁸⁵ and to ensure the comprehensive implementation of the provisions of that Convention,

Recognizing that Governments have the main responsibility for implementing the international drug control treaties, and emphasizing that the United Nations system has an important role in strengthening the national capacity to do so,

¹⁹⁶ General Assembly resolution S-17/2, annex.

¹⁹⁷ See A/49/139-E/1994/57.

Deeply alarmed by the magnitude of the increasingly rising trend in the illicit production, supply, demand, trafficking and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, which are a grave and persistent threat to the health and well-being of millions of people, in particular youth, in all countries of the world,

Noting that contributions to the United Nations International Drug Control Programme have hitherto been made by a limited number of States and that the future of the Programme depends on the retention of existing donors and an enhanced donor base,

Expressing appreciation to donors for their contributions, which have been essential to the growth of the Programme as a centre of excellence,

Recognizing that to maintain and enhance its activities, the Programme depends on general-purpose funds as well as earmarked funds,

Recognizing also that the provision of appropriate and sufficient policy guidance is essential to the success of the Programme, and recalling its resolution 1991/38 of 21 June 1991, in which it called upon the Commission on Narcotic Drugs to give policy guidance to the Programme and to monitor its activities,

Noting the progress of the ad hoc open-ended informal inter-sessional working group established by the Commission at its thirty-ninth session for the purpose of considering options for improving the work of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies, in particular its agenda and organization, and of examining the role of the Commission as the governing body of the Programme, as well as possible options designed to enhance active participation by more Member States,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 51/64 of 12 December 1996, in which the Assembly decided to convene a special session in June 1998 to consider, inter alia, special measures to strengthen international cooperation in addressing the problem of illicit drugs,

1. Recognizes that the extraordinary and unrelentingly high levels of illicit use, cultivation, production and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and of illicit drug trafficking necessitate a comprehensive review of the international drug control machinery in place, including institutional arrangements and approaches in the light of the work of the task force on reform of the United Nations established by the Secretary-General, giving due consideration to questions of governance and improved policy guidance from Member States, in particular with reference to the threat to the security of States arising from the use, consumption and production of and trafficking in illicit drugs;

2. Concludes that the general decline in resources allocated to the United Nations International Drug Control Programme from both regular and extrabudgetary sources seriously impairs the efforts of the international community against illicit trafficking in and abuse of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and requires innovative solutions for funding;

3. Reaffirms the leadership role of the Programme as the main focus for concerted international action for drug abuse control and as the international coordinator of drug control activities, in particular within the United Nations system;

4. Requests the Secretary-General:

(a) To convene a small group of experts, selected after appropriate consultations, inter alia, with Governments, and with due regard to equitable geographical distribution and relevant sectoral expertise, to undertake a comprehensive review of how the efforts against illicit drugs have evolved within the United Nations system since the creation of the United Nations International Drug Control Programme pursuant to General Assembly resolution 45/179, with the aim of identifying measures to strengthen future international cooperation against illicit drugs;

(b) To instruct the expert group, inter alia, to identify any measures necessary to strengthen the core activities of the Programme, taking into account the work of the task force on reform of the United Nations established by the Secretary-General and the ability of the United Nations system to perform its increasing tasks in the light of existing mandates;

(c) To prepare a progress report on the issues identified by the expert group, to be submitted to the General Assembly at its special session devoted to the fight against the illicit production, sale, demand, traffic and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and related activities, to be held in June 1998;

1997/38. Demand for and supply of opiates for medical and scientific needs

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling its resolutions 1979/8 of 9 May 1979, 1980/20 of 30 April 1980, 1981/8 of 6 May 1981, 1982/12 of 30 April 1982, 1983/3 of 24 May 1983, 1984/21 of 24 May 1984, 1985/16 of 28 May 1985, 1986/9 of 21 May 1986, 1987/31 of 26 May 1987, 1988/10 of 25 May 1988, 1989/15 of 22 May 1989, 1990/31 of 24 May 1990, 1991/43 of 21 June 1991, 1992/30 of 30 July 1992, 1993/37 of 27 July 1993, 1994/5 of 20 July 1994, 1995/19 of 24 July 1995 and 1996/19 of 23 July 1996,

Emphasizing that the need to balance the global licit supply of opiates against the legitimate demand for opiates for medical and scientific purposes is central to the international strategy and policy of drug abuse control,

Noting the fundamental need for international cooperation and solidarity with the traditional supplier countries in drug abuse control in general and in the universal application of the provisions of the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1961¹⁹⁸ in particular,

Having considered the Report of the International Narcotics Control Board for 1996,¹⁹⁹ in which it is stated that in 1995 global consumption of opiates exceeded the production of opiate raw materials, and noting that efforts were made by the two traditional supplier countries, India and Turkey, to maintain, together with other producing countries, the balance between supply and demand,

Noting the importance of opiates in pain relief therapy as advocated by the World Health Organization,

1. Urges all Governments to continue to contribute to the maintenance of a balance between the licit supply of and demand for opiates for medical and scientific needs, the achievement of which would be facilitated by maintaining, insofar as their constitutional and legal systems permit, support to the traditional supplier countries, and to cooperate in preventing the proliferation of sources of production and manufacture for export;

2. Urges Governments of all producing countries to adhere strictly to the provisions of the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1961¹⁹⁸ and to take effective measures to prevent illicit production or diversion of opiate raw materials to illicit channels;

3. Urges consumer countries to assess their needs for opiates realistically and to communicate those needs to the International Narcotics Control Board in order to ensure easy supply;

4. Commends the Board for its efforts in monitoring the implementation of the relevant Economic and Social Council resolutions and in particular:

(a) In urging the Governments concerned to adjust global production of opiate raw materials to a level corresponding to actual licit needs and to avoid unforeseen imbalances between the licit supply of and demand for opiates caused by the sales of products manufactured from seized and confiscated drugs;

(b) In arranging informal meetings during sessions of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs with the main States importing and producing opiate raw materials;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to transmit the present resolution to all Governments for consideration and implementation.

ANNEX

Baku Accord on Regional Cooperation against Illicit Cultivation, Production, Trafficking, Distribution and Consumption of Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances and Their Precursors

A. NATURE AND EXTENT OF THE PROBLEM

1. The Subcommittee on Illicit Drug Traffic and Related Matters in the Near and Middle East opened its thirty-second session at Baku on 17 February 1997 with an expanded membership, better representing the diverse character of the region as a whole and of its subregions, and affording greater possibilities for more in-depth discussion of the illicit drug-trafficking situation and its impact on the region and of new cooperative modalities for effective counteraction. The new composition of the Subcommittee is indicative of global developments in illicit drug trafficking, which are reflected in conditions in some States in the Near and Middle East.

2. The expanding and complex system of global organized drug crime, involving cultivation, production, trafficking, distribution and consumption activities, which penetrate various sectors, has already left its mark on the region. Associated criminal activities, especially narcotics-related terrorism and the arms trade, have assumed alarming proportions in spite of law enforcement efforts.

3. The consequences of illicit drug trafficking in the Near and Middle East are a mirror image of developments at the global level, characterized by the erosion of the hard-won benefits of development, the diversion of some countries from their developmental path, the destabilization of the socio-economic order, the destruction of the moral and social fabric of society and the undermining of the quality of life of the peoples of the region.

4. As the illicit traffic in and abuse of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances are serious and growing concerns in the region, the development of an accurate annual estimate of the situation and trends is essential to the successful development and implementation of regional strategies and subregional programmes. An accurate assessment of the magnitude and dimensions of the illicit drug problem in the region is the necessary starting point for both rational policy-making and the promotion of public awareness. In the absence of a reliable and comprehensive intelligence assessment, substantial misconceptions might arise and resources might be misallocated. Moreover, early detection and subsequent action aimed at controlling emerging problems might become extremely difficult.

B. DECLARATION

We, representatives of the States members of the Subcommittee on Illicit Drug Traffic and Related Matters in the Near and Middle East,

Having gathered at the thirty-second session of the Subcommittee, held at Baku from 17 to 21 February 1997, to consider the Baku Accord on Regional Cooperation against Illicit Cultivation, Production, Trafficking, Distribution and Consumption of Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances and Their Precursors,

Deeply concerned about the spread of drug abuse in the region and its effects on youth and on future generations,

Deeply concerned also about the rising illicit cultivation of narcotic crops and the illicit production of and trafficking in drugs, which pose the main threat to the political, economic, social and cultural structure and stability of the region,

Reaffirming our commitment to combat the multidimensional problems involving illicit drugs,

Convinced that concerted action and comprehensive, well-coordinated programmes are the only means by which to fight problems involving illicit drugs,

Have agreed on the following:

1. Nationally and regionally coordinated strategies should be developed for the implementation of the mandates and recommendations contained in the Global Programme of Action adopted by the General Assembly at its seventeenth special session, on 23 February 1990,¹⁹⁶ the Tehran Declaration adopted by the Ministerial-level Conference at the twenty-ninth session of the Subcommittee on Illicit Drug Traffic and Related Matters in the Near and Middle East, held at Tehran from 24 to 28 October 1992,²⁰⁰ and other relevant international drug control instruments;

2. Training in the field of drug law enforcement is a priority for many States of the region, and interested national authorities should seek the assistance of competent intergovernmental bodies in the development of inter-agency multidisciplinary training courses for law enforcement officials of the region, taking into account socio-economic differences, as well as evaluating on an ongoing basis the relevance and impact of all training material and programmes in their respective national circumstances;

3. Efforts should be made by the international community and intergovernmental bodies and organizations to establish cooperative relations with the authorities in Afghanistan in order to assist in the eradication of illicit cultivation, production and trafficking of narcotic drugs, especially in the drug-producing areas of the country, and to provide them with packages of aid and the means of economic reform, such as human development and capacity-building, mobilization of resources and industrial development, to enable them to resort to alternative sources of income, which would provide better economic possibilities for future generations;

4. Focal points should be established in the capital cities of States members of the Subcommittee in order to improve cooperation and coordination at the national and regional levels, and their titles and addresses should be communicated to their counterparts in the region to enable them to undertake the following action:

(a) To discuss with one another, as frequently as necessary, operational drug control matters and other modi operandi;

(b) To develop drug intelligence networks to ensure the rapid and secure exchange of information on all illicit drug-trafficking operations;

(c) To share expertise and knowledge in drug law enforcement;

(d) To promote field visits for drug control officers in the region in order to build up mutual confidence and trust, which are conducive to smooth operations;

(e) To exchange information on drug-trafficking trends and trend indicators, as well as intelligence information on the movement of narcotic drugs, psychotropic substances, precursors and methods of concealing assets, bearing in mind the fact that criminal organizations employ a wide range of sophisticated financial mechanisms, including corporate entities and offshore financial havens, to conceal the origin of their funds;

(f) To exchange skills and techniques used in the detection, investigation and suppression of offences involving illicit drug trafficking and the collection of evidence;

(g) To cooperate and coordinate efforts towards the use of controlled delivery in cases relating to trafficking in narcotic drugs, psychotropic substances and precursors and to money laundering;

(h) To harmonize drug legislation, in particular with regard to the application of adequate penalties for drug offences;

(i) To facilitate mutual cooperation regarding the identification, seizure, forfeiture and sharing of proceeds proved to be derived from drug-related criminality;

5. All States should be urged to take effective action to control and prevent the diversion of substances frequently used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances, as well as the materials and equipment used in their manufacture. In particular, States of the region should:

(a) Consider notifying the Secretary-General, under the provisions of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988,⁸⁵ article 12, paragraph 10 (a), that any country exporting to them a substance in table I of the Convention should supply them with advance notification of such export, and request that such notification be extended to cover substances in table II as well;

(b) Accede, if they are exporters of substances in table I or table II of the 1988 Convention, to the request of the International Narcotics Control Board to provide such pre-export notifications voluntarily to importing countries, even in the absence of a specific request for such notification;

6. States of the region should require import authorizations for all substances in schedules III and IV of the Convention on Psychotropic Substances of 1971,⁸⁴

7. All States in the region should be urged to adopt further legislative and administrative measures to prevent and sanction money laundering;

8. All States members of the Subcommittee should be urged to make every effort to ensure that the present Accord becomes generally known and is observed and implemented in full in accordance with their domestic laws;

9. The international community should be requested to assist and cooperate in the development of illicit crop eradication programmes and to promote alternative development programmes;

10. As proposed in the international drug control treaties, the international community, including intergovernmental bodies, should assist transit countries in enhancing their capabilities to suppress illicit drug trafficking;

11. The international community, including intergovernmental bodies, should provide financial assistance to States of the region that lack technical equipment and in which the Government exercises control over licit drugs and combats illicit trafficking;

12. To stem the flow of illicit drugs, reducing illicit drug demand is as important as reducing illicit drug supply and trafficking. Significant progress in drug control cannot be made without that balanced approach. Prevention and demand reduction must be intensified and accorded the high priority that they deserve;

13. Comprehensive preventive programmes must be designed to emphasize a multisectoral and intersectoral approach as an integral part of national development planning. They should focus on protecting young people, who are at risk of becoming consumers and traffickers, and should safeguard their well-being and quality of life, thereby maintaining a drug-free society. Using all preventive, educational, medical and legal information available, such programmes should raise the awareness of youth of the negative consequences of drug abuse and should be tailored individually to target specific groups of potential young abusers;

14. In order to maintain the traditional privacy of the family recognized in most States in the region, States members of the Subcommission should consider ensuring anonymity to any abuser who undergoes medical examination, treatment and rehabilitation;

15. All States should be called upon to strengthen their national legal and judicial systems in conformity with the existing international drug control treaties, in order to improve and carry out effective drug control activities in cooperation with other States;

16. States in the region should consider facilitating the extradition of persons accused of drug-trafficking offences and refrain from granting political asylum or other forms of protection to such persons;

17. All States should recognize the negative impact on anti-trafficking activities by customs, border-control and law enforcement authorities created by the absence or loss of effective exercise of sovereignty in any part of a State because of internal strife, foreign occupation or other causes, which may give rise to illicit transit traffic in drugs, and should condemn any violation of national borders and territorial integrity;

18. The Subcommission should continue to meet on an annual basis in a capital city of the region;

19. The Secretary-General is invited to consider, upon request by interested Governments, how the various elements contained in the present Accord might be carried out and to examine with them the most suitable modalities for following up appropriate activities at the national, regional and international levels;

20. The Secretary-General is also invited to transmit the text of the present Accord to all States Members of the United Nations to serve as a background document for the special session of the General Assembly devoted to the fight against the illicit production, sale, demand, traffic and distribution of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances and related activities, to be held in June 1998.

1997/40. Contribution to the strengthening of the Global Programme of Action: anti-drug strategy in the Americas

The Economic and Social Council,

Conscious of the importance of the implementation of the Global Programme of Action adopted by the General Assembly at its seventeenth special session, on 23 February 1990,¹⁹⁶ and recognizing the necessity of strengthening the mechanisms and principles contained therein,

1. Welcomes the joint efforts of States of the Americas to achieve the approval and adoption of a strategy for dealing with the drug problem in the Americas, in strict conformity with the principles of international law and with due regard for the principles of shared responsibility, comprehensiveness and a balanced approach to action aimed at reducing both demand and supply, on a global and multidisciplinary basis;

2. Takes note with satisfaction of the document entitled "Anti-drug strategy in the hemisphere",²⁰¹ approved by the Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission of the Organization of American States at its twentieth regular session, held at Buenos Aires in October 1996, and signed at Montevideo in December 1996;

3. Urges the international community to take due account of the anti-drug strategy in the hemisphere as a significant contribution to the strengthening of the Global Programme of Action adopted by the General Assembly at its seventeenth special session.

Concerned about the continued availability to drug traffickers of chemicals listed in tables I and II of the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances of 1988⁸⁵ and about the emergence of substitute chemicals and different processes used in the illicit manufacture of amphetamine-type stimulants,

Aware of the progress made in the regulation and monitoring of shipments of controlled chemicals, resulting from cooperation between the competent national and regional authorities of a number of States and the assistance of the International Narcotics Control Board,

Recognizing the need for the establishment of a mechanism for the rapid exchange of information on shipments of concern of listed precursor chemicals and on suspicious shipments of those chemicals in particular,

Recognizing also the important role of the Board in monitoring and facilitating the implementation of measures designed to strengthen cooperation in preventing the diversion of chemicals into illicit manufacture of psychotropic substances and the diversion of psychotropic substances from licit manufacture and trade into illicit trafficking,

Welcoming the continuing efforts of the United Nations International Drug Control Programme and the Board to address, in a comprehensive way, problems of amphetamine-type stimulants, including activities related to the recommendations contained in the report of the Expert Meeting on Amphetamine-type Stimulants, held at Shanghai, China, from 25 to 29 November 1996,²⁰²

Welcoming the multifaceted nature of the recommendations contained in the report of the Expert Meeting, which cover prevention, education, information, precursor control, legislation and regulation of amphetamine-type stimulants and their precursors,

Welcoming also the multilateral initiative jointly proposed by the United States of America and the European Union to prevent the diversion of precursor chemicals from international commerce,

Stressing the importance of the initiative of the European Union involving the launching of an early-warning mechanism, and welcoming its willingness to share experiences with Member States and with the United Nations International Drug Control Programme,

Recalling its resolutions 1995/20 of 24 July 1995 and 1996/29 of 24 July 1996,

I

“Noting further the importance of new players taking the initiative at the local, national and international levels, in particular individuals and organizations of civil society, in partnership with Governments, as emphasized in the Copenhagen Declaration on Social Development and the Programme of Action of the World Summit for Social Development,⁷⁶

“Bearing in mind the conclusion of the Fourth World Conference on Women, that women should be enabled to benefit from lifelong learning, including volunteer activity,²⁰⁸ and noting that much volunteer activity is performed by women and that such socially useful work should be appropriately recognized and supported,

“Convinced that the need for volunteer effort is greater than ever in the light of the adverse impact of such global problems as environmental degradation, poverty, drug abuse and human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) on the more vulnerable sectors of society and of the trend for civil society, in partnership with government and the private sector, to assume ever greater responsibilities in the development process,

“Convinced also that a year designed to enhance the recognition, facilitation, networking and promotion of volunteer service, with particular emphasis on activity at the local level, could make a significant contribution to generating increased awareness of the achievements and the further potential of volunteer service, to encouraging offers of service from a greatly expanded number of individuals and to channelling resources to augment the effectiveness of such service,

“Noting with satisfaction that the proposal for the year has gained widespread support within civil society,

“1. Proclaims the year 2001 as the International Year of Volunteers;

“2. Invites Governments, the United Nations system and intergovernmental, volunteer and non-governmental organizations and community-based organizations to collaborate and identify ways and means of enhancing the recognition, facilitation, networking and promotion of volunteer service in the preparations for and observance of the Year;

“3. Designates the United Nations Volunteers programme, without prejudice to existing priorities, as the focal point for the preparations, implementation and follow-up of the Year, in close collaboration with other organizations of the United Nations system, and encourages the United Nations Volunteers to continue the process of close collaboration and partnership with Governments and international and national volunteer and non-governmental organizations, in particular, with regard to the preparations for and implementation of the Year;

“4. Invites policy-making organs and the relevant organizations of the United Nations system to consider, in the context of their substantive mandates, the principles and objectives of the Year, making special efforts through new and existing programmes during the period 1998–2001 and to pursue follow-up action to the Year for the benefit of all countries and peoples;

“5. Appeals to Member States, as well as all other participants in the observance of the Year, to highlight the year 2001 as a special occasion benefiting the peoples of the world in their quest for a better life for all, based on the voluntary commitment of individuals and groups to make available their time and to share their resources and skills in the interest of those less advantaged;

“6. Calls for a concerted promotional and information campaign on behalf of the Year at the national, regional and international levels, with the strong participation of the mass media;

“7. Requests the Secretary-General to take specific measures, within existing resources and with support from voluntary resources, through all the communications media at his disposal, in particular within the mandate of the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat, to give widespread publicity to the preparations for and observance of the Year and to disseminate information on the subject.”

1997/45. Proclamation of an international year of mountains

The Economic and Social Council,

Mindful that mountains represent an essential component of the global life-support system and a positive asset offering opportunities for sustainable development, if adequately managed on the basis of the best available scientific knowledge and with due regard to the protection of nature and the interests of humankind,

Recognizing that, as a major ecosystem representing the complex and interrelated ecology of this planet, mountains are essential to the survival of the global ecosystem and play an important role in shaping life on Earth,

Noting that mountains are an important source of water, energy, minerals, forest and agricultural products and biological diversity, which are all of vital importance to both individual States and the international community,

Bearing in mind that mountains cover at least one fifth of the Earth's landscape and are home to at least 10 per cent of the world's population, predominantly economically poor people,

Recognizing that it is economically and socially more costly to sustain life in mountain areas than in lowland areas, and concerned about the widespread poverty, unemployment and poor health among mountain inhabitants and the loss of indigenous knowledge,

Confirming that, at the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, the international community recognized that there was a lack of knowledge about mountain ecosystems and called for renewed international and regional cooperation to develop an integrated approach for conserving, upgrading and using the land, water, plant, animal and human resources and promoting alternative livelihood opportunities for mountain inhabitants with a view to improving their living standards,²⁰⁹

Welcoming the various regional and subregional initiatives and international instruments, such as the Alpine Convention, which provide frameworks for international cooperation for the protection of mountain environments,

Recalling its decision 1995/235 of 17 July 1995 on the report of the Commission on Sustainable Development, and taking note of the decisions of the General Assembly at its nineteenth special session on the overall review and appraisal of the implementation of Agenda 21,¹¹

Bearing in mind that an international conference entitled "Mountain research: challenges and prospects in the twenty-first century" was held at Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan, from 14 to 18 October 1996 and adopted a decision to draw the attention of the international community to the exceptional importance of mountain ranges for mankind and to propose that the General Assembly declare an international year of mountains,

Recalling its resolution 1980/67 of 25 July 1980, in which it recognized that the celebration of international years can promote international cooperation and understanding in accordance with the guidelines contained therein,

1. Invites Governments, in cooperation with relevant regional and international organizations, to undertake awareness-raising activities concerning the problems and challenges faced by mountainous countries and communities;

2. Encourages Governments and intergovernmental organizations to coordinate regional and international cooperation and facilitate the exchange of information and experience among the specialized agencies and relevant regional and international organizations, research institutions and non-governmental organizations on issues related to mountain regions, including the manageability and interaction of mountains and the economy, the impact of mountains on the socio-economic development of countries and sustainable human development, and the like;

3. Welcomes and supports the ongoing efforts to prepare and negotiate subregional and interregional agreements on mountains, thus reinforcing legal mechanisms to protect fragile mountain ecosystems and promote sustainable and equitable development in mountain regions;

4. Encourages national, regional and international networking of people's initiatives and the activities of local, regional and international non-governmental organizations working on mountain development, and supports those organizations in their efforts to exchange information and experience;

5. Requests the Secretary-General, in consultation with Governments and relevant regional, international and non-governmental organizations, to submit to the Council at its substantive session of 1998 a report on the desirability of proclaiming an international year of mountains and on other ways and means of ensuring the sustainable development of mountain countries.

1997/46. International Year of Thanksgiving, 2000

The Economic and Social Council,

Considering that the dedication of a year to the act of giving thanks gives us the opportunity to remember the fundamental importance of cultural diversity in the development of a rich and harmonious international life and that one of the purposes of the United Nations, as expressed in its Charter, is to achieve international cooperation in solving international problems in the economic, social, cultural and humanitarian areas without creating any distinctions based on race, sex, language or religion,

Convinced that the observance of the year 2000 as an international year of thanksgiving within the United Nations will bring together the efforts of nations to achieve full tolerance and strengthen universal peace,

Mindful that the Preamble to the Charter of the United Nations includes the practice of tolerance as one of the principles that need to be applied to prevent war and maintain peace,

Affirming that this initiative will contribute to international cooperation by creating an awareness among peoples and Governments of the importance of gratitude, as much in the personal and civic life of every human being as in the relations between the countries and cultures of the world,

Affirming also that the proposal to begin the twenty-first century and the new millennium with an international year of thanksgiving to celebrate the gift of life as the most noble expression of the human spirit is intended to promote friendship and solidarity between nations,

1. Reaffirms that such an expression of gratitude will bring together national and international efforts to achieve full tolerance and strengthen universal peace and international cooperation;

2. Recommends that the General Assembly, at its fifty-second session, proclaim the year 2000 as International Year of Thanksgiving;

3. Invites all Member States and interested intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to do whatever they can in their respective areas of expertise to contribute to the preparations for the Year and to publicizing it.

1997/47. International Year for the Culture of Peace, 2000

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 50/173 of 22 December 1995, entitled "United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education: towards a culture of peace", in which it expressed satisfaction with the transdisciplinary project, adopted by the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, entitled "Towards a culture of peace",²¹⁰

Recalling also General Assembly resolution 51/101 of 12 December 1996 on a culture of peace, in which it called for the promotion of a culture of peace based on the Preamble to the Charter of the United Nations and the purposes and principles of the United Nations,

Expressing its deep concern about the persistence and proliferation of violence and conflicts of a diverse nature in various parts of the world,

Emphasizing the link between peace and development and the need for a culture of peace that can lead, through education, science and communication, to respect for all human rights and the promotion of democracy, tolerance, dialogue, reconciliation and solidarity, as well as to international cooperation and economic development, and thus to sustainable human development,

Aware of the need to mobilize public opinion at the national and international levels for the purpose of establishing and promoting a culture of peace and the central role that the United Nations system could play in this regard, ²¹⁰ See United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, Records of the General Conference, Twenty-eighth Session, vol. 1, Resolutions, sect. IV.

Bearing in mind the memorandum of understanding between the Director-General of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, signed in Paris on 19 October 1995,

Convinced that an international year for the culture of peace at the turn of the millennium would provide the opportunity to boost the efforts of the international community to establish and promote an everlasting culture of peace,

1. Recommends that the General Assembly, at its fifty-second session, proclaim the year 2000 as International Year for the Culture of Peace;

2. Also recommends that the programme of activities and the scope of the Year should focus on respect for cultural diversity and the promotion of tolerance, solidarity, cooperation, dialogue and reconciliation and should be based on activities at the national and international levels;

3. Further recommends that the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization should be designated as the focal point for the Year and should bear the responsibility for coordinating the inter-organizational aspects of the programmes and activities of the other bodies within the United Nations system and other organizations concerned and for mobilizing resources to meet the budgetary requirements for the Year;

4. Requests the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to submit to the Council, at its substantive session of 1998, a report on the state of preparations for the Year to enable it to make appropriate proposals to the General Assembly at its fifty-third session.

Recalling its resolutions 1994/24 of 26 July 1994, 1995/2 of 3 July 1995 and 1996/47 of 26 July 1996,

Noting with concern the continuing spread of human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS), in particular HIV/AIDS-associated deaths in 1996, which represent approximately 25 per cent of all HIV-related mortality since the beginning of the epidemic, the severe impact on development prospects and the worsening impact on individuals, households and society,

Recognizing that women and men are affected differently by HIV/AIDS and that in 1996 nearly half of the new infections occurred in women,

Recognizing also that special efforts are needed to help developing countries to combat AIDS,

Noting with concern the increasingly dramatic situation of millions of children worldwide who are living under the threat of the HIV/AIDS epidemic, and welcoming the theme of the 1997 World AIDS Campaign on Children Living in a World with AIDS,

Noting with appreciation the progress achieved in the implementation of the activities of the Joint and Co-sponsored United Nations Programme on Human Immunodeficiency Virus/Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome by its co-sponsoring organizations during its first full year of operation, and acknowledging the continued efforts made by Governments in response to HIV/AIDS at the national level as well as the financial support provided by countries for these efforts,

Noting that the Programme, which was established to provide a coordinated United Nations response to the epidemic, constitutes an important example of effective system-wide coordination in the context of United Nations reform efforts,

Taking note of the note by the Secretary-General transmitting the report of the Executive Director of the Joint and Co-sponsored United Nations Programme on Human Immunodeficiency Virus/Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome,²¹⁶ which discusses the HIV/AIDS activities of the organizations of the United Nations system, and welcoming the increased involvement of the Secretary-General in the response to HIV/AIDS and his support to the Programme,

1. Urges the co-sponsors of the Joint and Co-sponsored United Nations Programme on Human Immunodeficiency Virus/Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (HIV/AIDS) and other relevant organizations of the United Nations system to strengthen their commitment to the response to the epidemic by integrating HIV/AIDS components throughout their operational activities at the global, regional and country levels and in their follow-up activities to global conferences;

2. Requests co-sponsoring organizations and the Programme to disseminate clear guidance to country-level staff on the role and functions of the United Nations theme groups on HIV/AIDS and their respective roles in providing technical assistance and to report back to their respective governing bodies and to the Programme Coordinating Board on measures undertaken in this respect;

5. Appeals to Governments and the co-sponsors, and encourages other interested actors, to broaden their programme activities in the area of HIV/AIDS in order to cover all aspects of the epidemic, in particular addressing its social and economic dimensions, especially in developing countries, and emphasizing, in this context, a gender-based approach;

6. Urges all donors to continue their support and those not contributing substantially to increase their support to the Programme, giving priority to funding the core budget in order to ensure sustainable financing of the Programme;

7. Welcomes the support of other countries, and urges all those in a position to do so to contribute to the Programme;

1997/53. Consumer protection

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 39/248 of 9 April 1985, by which the Assembly adopted guidelines for consumer protection,

Recalling also its resolutions 1988/61 of 27 July 1988 and 1990/85 of 27 July 1990, as well as resolution 48/7 of 23 April 1992 of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific,²¹⁷ in which Governments were urged to implement the guidelines for consumer protection and the Secretary-General was requested to provide assistance to Governments to that end,

Recalling in particular its resolution 1995/53 of 28 July 1995, in which it requested the Secretary-General, inter alia, to elaborate guidelines in the area of sustainable consumption patterns and to examine the possible extension of those guidelines into other areas,

Noting that the Commission on Sustainable Development, at its third session, recommended that the guidelines for consumer protection be expanded to include guidelines for sustainable consumption patterns,²¹⁷

Taking note of Commission on Sustainable Development decision 4/13 of 3 May 1996,²¹⁸ in which it requested Consumers International to assist the United Nations and its Member Governments in the early revision of the guidelines for consumer protection to include aspects of more sustainable consumption and production patterns,

Aware that the need for assistance in the area of consumer protection, in particular in developing countries and countries with economies in transition, remains great,

1. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General on consumer protection,²¹⁹ prepared pursuant to Council resolution 1995/53, containing information on the progress achieved within the United Nations system in promoting the implementation of the guidelines for consumer protection, as well as on regional and international cooperation in promoting consumer protection;

2. Recognizes the impact that the guidelines have had in many countries in promoting just, equitable and sustainable economic and social development through their implementation by Governments;

²¹⁷ See Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1995, Supplement No. 12 (E/1995/32), chap. I, para. 45, sect. E.

²¹⁸ Ibid., 1996, Supplement No. 8 (E/1996/28), chap. I, sect. C.

²¹⁹ E/1997/61.

3. Also recognizes the important role of civil society, in particular non-governmental organizations, in promoting the implementation of the guidelines;

4. Welcomes the recent initiatives of the United Nations in partnership with international consumer organizations, such as Consumers International, donors and host Governments, in convening regional conferences on consumer protection, such as those held in Africa and in the Asia and Pacific region, for fostering the implementation of the guidelines and initiating the process of revising the guidelines and extending them into the area of sustainable consumption patterns and other possible areas;

5. Urges Member States, other entities of the United Nations system and relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to continue their efforts to implement effectively the guidelines for consumer protection and to continue work on the elaboration of guidelines to cover sustainable consumption patterns and other areas;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to undertake this work through the convening of an interregional expert group meeting, to be financed from extrabudgetary resources and in collaboration with interested Governments, Consumers International and other concerned entities active in this field, taking into account the recommendations emanating from the recently held regional conferences on consumer protection to include aspects of more sustainable consumption patterns;

7. Recommends that the interregional expert group meeting elaborate specific recommendations for guidelines for sustainable consumption patterns for submission to the Council at its substantive session of 1998 through the Commission on Sustainable Development at its sixth session;

1997/54. Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean in the context of reform of the United Nations

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean resolution 553 (XXVI) on reform of the United Nations and its impact on the Commission²²⁰ and, in particular, its decision to establish an ad hoc working group open to all its member countries, which group was empowered, inter alia, to recommend to the Commission strategic directions for its future activities in the context of the ongoing process of reform of the United Nations,

Taking note of the discussions at the second meeting of the ad hoc working group established pursuant to Commission resolution 553 (XXVI), held in New York on 5 June 1997, ²²⁰ See Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1996, Supplement No. 17 (E/1996/37), chap. III, sect. F.

Bearing in mind its resolution 1996/41 of 26 July 1996 and General Assembly resolution 50/227 of 24 May 1996, which refer to the restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields and call for a review of the regional commissions with a view to strengthening and enhancing their effectiveness as action- and policy-oriented bodies,

Bearing in mind also its request that the regional commissions should continue to undertake their own assessments, as called for in General Assembly resolution 50/227, and should report to the Council at its substantive session of 1997,

Taking note of the notes of 15 and 21 April 1997 by the secretariat of the Commission entitled "Review of recent reforms adopted by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean"²²¹ and "Management pilot scheme",²²²

Reaffirming that the initiative on the management pilot scheme presented by the Commission secretariat is aimed at strengthening the role of the organization as a centre of excellence charged with collaborating with member States in a comprehensive analysis of development processes geared to the design, monitoring and evaluation of public policies and the resulting provision of operational services in the fields of specialized information, advisory services and training and support for regional and international cooperation and coordination,

Convinced that it is essential for the United Nations, in carrying out activities in the economic, social and related fields, to take account of the regional dimension and the decentralization of tasks in accordance with the comparative advantages of its subsidiary bodies located in the developing regions,

1. Notes with satisfaction the progress made by the secretariat of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean in fulfilling the instructions of the Commission, as expressed in its resolution 553 (XXVI), in particular with regard to institutional matters and management improvement and the coordination of activities with other organizations, in order to maintain its validity and relevance in the face of evolving circumstances that affect not only Latin American and Caribbean development, but also the United Nations;

2. Also notes with satisfaction the work carried out by the ad hoc working group established pursuant to Commission resolution 553 (XXVI) in defining priorities for all elements of the programme of work of the Commission for the biennium 1998-1999²²³ and the progress achieved in formulating additional strategic directions;

3. Urges the ad hoc working group, in consultation with the Executive Secretary of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean, to ensure that, notwithstanding the changing internal and external circumstances affecting the implementation of the programme of work, the activities carried out by the secretariat of the Commission are based on the priorities established and the guidelines contained in the progress report of the ad hoc working group;

4. Supports the general thrust of the management pilot scheme,²²² which will be developed and described in detail and submitted for consideration and approval by the States members of the Commission before its implementation, taking into account the statements made by the members of the ad hoc working group during its second meeting, held in New York on 5 June 1997;

5. Requests the Executive Secretary to keep members informed during the implementation phase of the management pilot scheme, through the ad hoc working group, with the aim of monitoring its effectiveness and impact on the work of the Commission;

6. Concurs with the general thrust of the strategic proposal by the secretariat of the Commission on deployment of human resources contained in the document on reform measures,²²¹ with a view to generating, while ensuring the optimum utilization of expertise available within the Commission and the United Nations system, more effective results, in accordance with the needs and requirements of the countries of the region, for a given amount of resources by adequately altering the mix of in-house staff and outsourced expertise and services, and welcomes further consultation between the secretariat and member States on the details of such a plan prior to implementation;

7. Recommends that, as reform of the United Nations proceeds in the economic, social and related areas, a clear division of responsibilities should be established with regard to regional activities in Latin America and the Caribbean between the Commission, on the one hand, and the programmes, agencies and funds of the United Nations system and regional intergovernmental organizations, on the other, with a view to achieving appropriate coordination and mutual reinforcement in their respective activities;

8. Requests the Executive Secretary to continue to intensify, in the general context of the reform process of the United Nations in the economic, social and related areas, the reform measures referred to in the present resolution and in Commission resolution 553 (XXVI) and to report thereon to the Commission at its next session, to be held in Aruba in April 1998.

Recalling General Assembly resolution 50/81 of 14 December 1995, by which the Assembly adopted the World Programme of Action for Youth to the Year 2000 and Beyond, annexed thereto, as an integral part of that resolution,

²²³ LC/G.1901(SES.26/6).

Noting especially that in paragraph 123 of the Programme of Action current regional and interregional conferences of ministers responsible for youth affairs in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean and Western Asia were invited to intensify cooperation among each other and to consider meeting regularly at the international level under the aegis of the United Nations to provide an effective forum for a focused global dialogue on youth-related issues,

Noting that in paragraph 124 of the Programme of Action youth-related bodies and organizations of the United Nations system were invited to cooperate with the above-mentioned conferences,

Welcoming the second session of the World Youth Forum of the United Nations System, held at Vienna from 25 to 29 November 1996, pursuant to General Assembly resolutions 44/59 of 8 December 1989 and 50/81, which was convened by the United Nations in partnership with the Austrian Federal Youth Council, and taking note of the report of the Forum,²²⁴

Mindful that the Secretary-General, in his report on the implementation of the Programme of Action,²²⁵ recommended that action be taken to implement the global recommendations of the Programme of Action and that a report be submitted to the General Assembly, through the Commission for Social Development, on progress achieved and obstacles encountered,

Reiterating the call on all States that have not already done so to formulate and adopt an integrated national youth policy, in consultation with youth and youth-related organizations, as reflected in paragraph 112 of the Programme of Action,

1. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the World Programme of Action for Youth to the Year 2000 and Beyond²²⁵ and of the report of the Secretary-General on cooperation of the United Nations with the Government of Portugal in holding the World Conference of Ministers Responsible for Youth,²²⁶

2. Calls upon all States, all United Nations bodies, the specialized agencies, the regional commissions and the intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned, in particular youth organizations, to make all possible efforts for the implementation of the Programme of Action, in accordance with their experience, situation and priorities;

3. Encourages the regional commissions, within their mandates, pursuant to the Programme of Action, to convene biennial meetings of regional non-governmental youth organizations, regional offices of youth-related bodies and organizations of the United Nations system and regional intergovernmental organizations to review and discuss issues and trends as well as regional action;

4. Stresses again the importance of the active and direct participation of youth and youth organizations at the local, national, regional and international levels in promoting and implementing the Programme of Action and in evaluating the progress achieved and obstacles encountered in its implementation, as well as the need to support the activities of youth mechanisms that have been set up by youth and youth organizations;

5. Welcomes the offer of the Government of Portugal to host the World Conference of Ministers Responsible for Youth, to be held at Lisbon from 8 to 12 August 1998 in cooperation with the United Nations, as well as its support to the holding of the third session of the World Youth Forum of the United Nations System, which is to be convened by the United Nations in partnership with the Portuguese National Youth Council at Braga, Portugal, from 2 to 6 August 1998;

6. Notes with appreciation that the Government of Portugal has agreed to support the participation of ministers responsible for youth in the least developed countries as identified by the General Assembly;

7. Invites all States, youth-related bodies, organizations and agencies of the United Nations system, the intergovernmental organizations concerned, as well as non-governmental youth organizations, to support that Conference;

1997/56. First regional meeting convened by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean to evaluate the World Summit for Social Development

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling paragraph 95 (h) of the Programme of Action of the World Summit for Social Development,⁵ in which the Summit recommended that regional commissions, in cooperation with the regional intergovernmental organizations and banks, convene, on a biennial basis, a meeting at a high political level to review the progress made towards implementing the outcome of the Summit, exchange views on their respective experiences and adopt the appropriate measures,

1. Welcomes the convening by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean of the first regional meeting to evaluate the World Summit for Social Development, which was held at São Paulo, Brazil, from 6 to 9 April 1997, with the participation of high-level representatives of Latin American and Caribbean countries;

2. Expresses its appreciation for the final document of the meeting, known as the São Paulo Consensus,²²⁷ in which the signatories undertook, inter alia, commitments related to the implementation of the Programme of Action of the World Summit for Social Development;

3. Invites other regions to convene their respective evaluation meetings on the Summit.

1997/57. Enlargement of the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling its decision 1995/304 of 26 July 1995, in which it decided, inter alia, to increase, on the basis of equitable geographical representation, the current membership of the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations and to implement that decision after the completion of its review of arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations,

Considering that, consistent with the practice of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies in these matters, it would be desirable to receive the views of the Committee on this question,

Recognizing that the Committee is at present undertaking a review of its methods of work, that this review could have implications for its enlargement and that it is therefore not yet in a position to present its final views to the Council,

1. Requests the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations to present its views on the enlargement of the Committee to the Council;

2. Decides to take a decision on this matter in 1998.

*40th plenary meeting

1997/58. Strengthening of the Non-Governmental Organizations Section of the Secretariat

The Economic and Social Council,

Noting that growing interest in the work of the United Nations on the part of non-governmental organizations has led to a very large increase in the number of applications for consultative status with the Economic and Social Council,

Noting also that the increase in the number of non-governmental organizations entails a consequent increase in the number of quadrennial reports to be considered by the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations,

Recognizing the need for further improvements in the working methods of the Committee,

Recalling that in its resolution 1996/31 of 25 July 1996, the Council placed additional responsibilities on the Non-Governmental Organizations Section of the Secretariat,

Recognizing the efforts of the staff of the Section to respond to the vastly increased demands placed upon it in recent years,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-second session setting out specific proposals to ensure that the current and foreseeable workload of the Non-Governmental Organizations Section of the Secretariat can be met effectively and efficiently;

2. Recommends that the General Assembly, taking into account the report of the Secretary-General and measures taken by the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations to improve its methods of work and to deal with this workload, provide the necessary human, financial and technical resources to the Section to enable it to carry out its responsibilities, as set out in Council resolution 1996/31, efficiently, effectively and expeditiously.

1997/59. Operational activities of the United Nations for international development cooperation: follow-up to policy recommendations of the General Assembly

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolutions 47/199 of 22 December 1992 and 50/120 of 20 December 1995 on the triennial policy review of operational activities for development of the United Nations system, as well as Assembly resolution 50/227 of 24 May 1996 on further measures for the restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields and Council resolution 1996/42 of 26 July 1996,

Recalling also that, in order to fulfil its coordination role and in accordance with the policies formulated by the General Assembly, the Council should consider, on an annual basis in the operational activities segment, the overall financial picture of the United Nations funds and programmes, including the availability of resources, the priorities and programmes agreed upon in the funds and programmes, the adopted targets and further guidance on priorities, and should make recommendations thereon to the Assembly and the funds and programmes,

Reaffirming that operational activities for development within the United Nations system have a critical and unique role to play in enabling developing countries to continue to take a lead role in the management of their own development process and that the funds and programmes constitute important vehicles for advancing international development cooperation,

Noting with regret that, although significant progress has already been made in the restructuring and rationalization of the governance and functioning of the United Nations funds and programmes, there has not been, as part of the overall reform process, any substantial increase in resources for operational activities for development on a predictable, continuous and assured basis and that the consultations on prospective new modalities for financing have not reached a conclusion,

Expressing serious concern at the persistent insufficiency of resources for the operational development activities of the United Nations, in particular the decline in contributions to core resources,

Recognizing the importance of non-core resources as a supplement to core resources aimed at enhancing the capacity of the United Nations development system to deliver operational activities,

Stressing that the fundamental characteristics of the operational activities of the United Nations system should be, inter alia, their universal, voluntary and grant nature, their neutrality and their multilateralism, as well as their ability to respond to the needs of developing countries in a flexible manner, and that the operational activities of the United Nations system are carried out for the benefit of the developing countries at the request of those countries and in accordance with their own policies and priorities for development,

Recognizing the need for priority allocation of scarce grant resources to programmes and projects in low-income countries, in particular the least developed among them,

Recognizing also that the United Nations development system should take into account the specific needs and requirements of the countries with economies in transition,

Noting with appreciation the sustained contributions of many donors and recipient countries to the operational activities for development in a spirit of partnership and the recently expressed willingness of some donors to increase their contribution to the funds and programmes,

Recognizing that capacity-building and its sustainability are an essential element for the operational activities of the United Nations system at the country level, which should be country-led and country-driven, bearing in mind the individual mandates and complementarities of the organizations and bodies of the United Nations development system,

Noting that General Assembly resolution 50/120, Council resolution 1996/42 and the present resolution provide an opportunity to review all aspects of operational activities,

Noting also that much remains to be done to achieve the goals set by the General Assembly in its resolution 50/120,

1. Takes note of the reports and notes by the Secretary-General²²⁸ and the reports of the United Nations funds and programmes;²²⁹

2. Strongly reaffirms that the efficiency, effectiveness and impact of the operational activities of the United Nations system must be enhanced by, inter alia, a substantial increase in their funding on a predictable, continuous and assured basis, commensurate with the increasing needs of developing countries, as well as through the full implementation of General Assembly resolutions 47/199, 48/162 of 20 December 1993, 50/120 and 50/227;

²²⁸ A/52/155-E/1997/68 and Add.1, E/1997/65 and Add.1-4 and Corr.1, E/1997/78 and E/1997/89.

²²⁹ Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1997, Supplement No. 12 (E/1997/32/Rev.1), E/1997/34 and Add.1, E/1997/49, E/1997/59, E/1997/72, E/1997/79, E/1997/L.20, DP/1997/6, DP/1997/12 and DP/1997/22.

3. Urges the developed countries, in particular those countries whose overall performance is not commensurate with their capacity, taking into account established official development assistance targets, including targets established at the Second United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries,²³⁰ and their current level of contribution, to increase substantially their official development assistance, including contributions to the operational activities for development of the United Nations system;

4. Stresses that other countries that are in a position to do so should strive to augment their assistance within the framework of development cooperation;

5. Recommends that the Executive Boards of the United Nations funds and programmes review and monitor their funding arrangements, as a matter of priority and within the context of their regular meetings, with a view to making funding more secure and predictable with respect to core resources and to meeting their funding targets, their programme objectives and the priorities and needs of programme countries, and calls upon the Executive Boards to take decisions on their own funding arrangements in accordance with General Assembly resolution 50/227, in particular annex I, paragraph 12, and to report thereon to the Council at its substantive session of 1998;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to update proposals for funding modalities within the context of the efforts to provide United Nations operational activities with resources, in particular core resources, on a predictable, continuous and assured basis, taking into account that voluntary contributions from official sources should remain the main source for funding those activities;

7. Reaffirms that the objective of capacity-building and its sustainability should continue to be an essential part of the operational activities of the United Nations system at the country level, should be country-driven and situation-specific and should be based on the programme approach, to the extent possible, consistent with national development plans and priorities;

8. Notes the preparations for the impact evaluation of operational activities on capacity-building requested in paragraph 56 of General Assembly resolution 50/120, and invites the bodies of the United Nations system to participate actively and to support the ongoing study of the Secretariat;

9. Emphasizes that capacity-building should aim at strengthening national execution, in particular with regard to the institutional and human resource development of all relevant participants in the development process, with a view to enhancing local ownership and management of the development process, utilizing available local capacities and expertise;

10. Reaffirms that the United Nations development system should continue to work on developing a common understanding of the concept of capacity-building as it applies to the respective mandates of each organization, taking into account the experience acquired to date and the new and emerging requirements of programme countries;

11. Requests the Secretary-General, in the context of the preparations for the next triennial policy review, to report to the General Assembly, through the Council, on the implementation of Assembly resolution 50/120, Council resolution 1996/42 and the present resolution and on the progress made and the problems encountered and to make appropriate recommendations, including recommendations on delegating authority and decision-making to the field-level staff, establishing a more coordinated system-wide approach to monitoring and evaluation and strengthening the coordination of regional, subregional and field-level activities of the United Nations system.

1997/60. Eradication of poverty

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling its agreed conclusions 1996/1 on the coordination of United Nations system activities for poverty eradication,²³¹

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the agreed conclusions of the 1996 coordination segment of the Council on the eradication of poverty,²³²

1. Reaffirms that the goal of eradicating poverty in the world is an ethical, social, political and economic imperative;

2. Also reaffirms that the Council will continue to provide overall guidance and oversee system-wide coordination in the implementation of its agreed conclusions 1996/1 on the eradication of poverty²³¹ by all organizations of the United Nations system;

3. Stresses the need for implementation by the United Nations system of agreed conclusions 1996/1 of the Council as regards coordinated United Nations support and the availability of resources for poverty eradication activities at the field level;

4. Welcomes the steps already taken by its functional commissions, in particular the Commission for Social Development and the Commission on the Status of Women, to implement the recommendations of the Council on the coordination of the multi-year programmes of the functional commissions related to poverty eradication, and calls upon all relevant functional commissions to implement fully the recommendations contained in its agreed conclusions 1996/1;

5. Decides, in accordance with its agreed conclusions 1996/1, to carry out in 1999, under the agenda item on integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits, an overall review of the theme of poverty eradication in order to contribute to the special session of the General Assembly in the year 2000 for the overall review of the World Summit for Social Development and to the five-year review of the Platform for Action of the Fourth World Conference on Women,⁶ also in the year 2000.

1997/61. Integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling General Assembly resolutions 45/264 of 13 May 1991 on restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields, 46/235 of 13 April 1992, 48/162 of 20 December 1993 and 50/227 of 24 May 1996 on further measures for the restructuring and revitalization of the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields and 51/240 of 20 June 1997 on the Agenda for Development, as well as agreed conclusions 1995/1 of 28 July 1995 of the Council on coordinated follow-up by the United Nations system and implementation of the results of the major international conferences organized by the United Nations in the economic, social and related fields,²³³ and its resolution 1996/36 of 26 July 1996 on follow-up to the major international United Nations conferences and summits, including the implementation of their respective programmes of action,

Recognizing the efforts made by the Secretary-General, through the Administrative Committee on Coordination, to establish coordinating inter-agency mechanisms in support of integrated and coordinated follow-up of the major international conferences and summits,

Recognizing also that coordinated follow-up implies that the major conferences should be viewed as interlinked and as contributing to an integrated framework of and a global partnership for development and that, in this context, the major cross-cutting themes established in the world conferences need to be identified and built upon,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits²³⁴ and of the report of the Director-General of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations on the outcome of the World Food Summit, held at Rome from 13 to 17 November 1996,²³⁵ including action to be taken to follow up the outcome at all appropriate levels,

1. Stresses the need further to promote integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major international conferences in the economic, social and related fields;

3. Welcomes the decision taken by the Administrative Committee on Coordination to integrate the follow-up of the World Food Summit and the second United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II), held at Istanbul, Turkey, from 3 to 14 June 1996, within the context of integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of United Nations conferences;

4. Requests all organizations of the United Nations system to integrate further the results of the major international conferences and summits into their programmes of work, to promote the effective implementation of the goals and commitments established by the United Nations conferences and to continue to contribute relevant information, analyses and assessments thereon in support of the Council's own thematic and action-oriented reviews; in this context, consideration may be given to the possibility of preparing, on the basis of national reporting, a country-wide compendium of best practices as regards the implementation of the goals and commitments at the field level;

5. Reaffirms the need to continue to ensure the harmonization and coordination of the agendas and programmes of work of the functional commissions by promoting a clearer division of labour among them and by providing clear policy guidance to them, decides that, to this end, the Council could periodically organize meetings on specific issues to allow for more dialogue with the chairpersons and the secretariats, as appropriate, of the functional commissions, other subsidiary and related bodies and the relevant executive boards and that the Bureau should also assist the Council in identifying economic, social and related issues for discussion at its sessions and should maintain contacts with the bureaux of the functional commissions and other subsidiary bodies, thus allowing for better interaction between the Council and those bodies and assisting the Council in fulfilling its role, and stresses that the Secretariat should assist the Council by ensuring that all functional commissions are made aware of the relevant recommendations of the Council and of the relevant work of other functional commissions so that they are well focused and supportive of each other's programmes of work;

6. Stresses the importance of ensuring that reports on conference follow-up submitted to the Council and its functional commissions draw on the experience gained at all levels, and, for this purpose, also stresses the need to enhance cooperation in the preparation of such reports between relevant departments of the Secretariat and the United Nations funds and programmes;

7. Decides to take appropriate measures to ensure that the regional commissions, within their respective mandates and priorities, can carry out their important role in assisting countries in each region in the integrated implementation of the recommendations of the major United Nations conferences and summits, as well as measures to ensure the active participation of the regional commissions relating to the implementation at the regional level of the results of major United Nations conferences; to this end, the Council shall continue to enhance coordination with and among the regional commissions, inter alia, by ensuring more effective participation by them in the substantive work of the Council in relation to conference follow-up;

8. Stresses the need for the Administrative Committee on Coordination to ensure that the highest priority continues to be given to the integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits;

9. Also stresses the need for the Committee to ensure that there is effective inter-agency support for the work of the intergovernmental bodies dealing with conference follow-up, including the Council and its functional commissions, that there is regular updating and feedback on the incorporation of the work of the task forces at the country level and that the Council is kept fully informed of the work and decisions of the Committee concerning integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits;

10. Encourages the Committee to include in its comprehensive review of the integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits information on the progress made in the area of statistics and indicators, taking into account the work done by the Statistical Commission as well as other ongoing work, in particular the work being done in developing countries;

11. Calls upon the organizations of the United Nations system to continue to give priority attention to the provision of effective support to the resident coordinators, including the full utilization and implementation of the outputs of the task forces;

13. Reiterates the importance of the provisions on the mobilization of resources contained in its agreed conclusions 1995/1²³³ for the effective implementation of the results of the major international conferences in the economic, social and related fields;

14. Decides to include the item entitled "Integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits" in the agenda of its substantive session on an annual basis, and requests the Secretary-General, in cooperation with organizations of the United Nations system, to submit to it a report on the progress achieved by the United Nations system at the intergovernmental, inter-agency and country levels, with specific recommendations on ways to enhance the integrated and coordinated implementation and follow-up of the major United Nations conferences and summits.

1997/62. Science and technology for development

The Economic and Social Council,

Recognizing, without prejudice to the ongoing review being undertaken on the implementation of General Assembly resolution 50/227 of 24 May 1996 with regard to its subsidiary bodies, the role of the Commission on Science and Technology for Development as a forum for the examination of science and technology questions, for improving understanding of science and technology policies for development and for the formulation of recommendations and guidelines on science and technology matters within the United Nations system, all in relation to development,

Recognizing also that the Commission, in carrying out its work, should pay special attention to the needs and requirements of developing countries, in particular the least developed countries and landlocked and small island developing States, and that it should in addition take into consideration the relevant problems of countries with economies in transition,

Taking note with appreciation of the report of the Working Group on Information and Communication Technologies for Development of the Commission on Science and Technology for Development²³⁶ and the conclusions and recommendations contained therein,

Recognizing that the social and economic potential of information and communication technologies is enormous, and that the risks for those without the capabilities to access, design, produce and use the new products and service applications may lead to their marginalization from active participation in the global economy,

Taking note with satisfaction of the note by the secretariat of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development on the scientific and technological aspects of sustainable energy systems,²³⁷

Taking note with satisfaction also of the report by the Gender Advisory Board on its work,²³⁸

Noting with satisfaction that the science, technology and innovation policy reviews directed at a broad spectrum of sectors, including industry, social sectors and government itself, have started, with one review already completed, another under way and a third awaiting financing,

Taking note of the other relevant documentation submitted to the Commission for consideration at its third session,²³⁹

Noting that the fourth session of the Commission is scheduled to take place twenty years after the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development, held at Vienna from 20 to 31 August 1979, and recognizing that there is a need to define a new vision and to enhance continuously the role for the United Nations system in the area of science and technology for development,

Recalling Commission decision 2/101 of 24 May 1995 on its working methods,²⁴⁰ which was ratified by the Council,

Recognizing that enhanced transparency and accountability are essential for the efficient and effective functioning of the Commission,

Welcoming the initiative taken by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in holding a World Science Conference in 1999 to strengthen the commitment of countries to scientific research and development in the service of societal progress,

ACTIVITIES TO FOLLOW UP THE EARLIER WORK OF THE COMMISSION

A. INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGIES FOR DEVELOPMENT

1. Recommends that all developing countries and countries with economies in transition establish a national strategy for information and communication technologies, taking into account, inter alia, the guidelines proposed by the Working Group on Information and Communication Technologies for Development of the Commission on Science and Technology for Development²³⁶ and that, where such strategies already exist, they could be reviewed in the light of those guidelines;

2. Also recommends that action be taken by national Governments to establish a task force or commission or to ensure that an existing entity is charged with the design of the national strategy for information and communication technologies;

3. Invites countries, in order to facilitate the exchange of experience among them at the international and regional levels, to prepare a report on their strategies for information and communication technologies for the next session of the Commission, to be held in 1999, and stresses that the reports should include the priorities of each national strategy, the mechanisms for updating and the procedures for implementing the strategy and that, to enhance the value of the reports, consideration might be given to the organization of workshops, all of which should be financed from extrabudgetary resources;

4. Invites relevant bodies of the United Nations system to assess their capability to provide assistance and promote cooperation in the area of information and communication technologies and to suggest areas in which they are best able to assist developing countries and countries with economies in transition in the design and implementation of their national strategies for information and communication technologies;

5. Requests the secretariat of the Commission to synthesize the results of those assessments and to hold an inter-agency meeting within existing resources in cooperation with the Commission to review that synthesis;

E. NEW SUBSTANTIVE THEME AND OTHER ACTIVITIES

12. Decides that the substantive theme for the inter-sessional period 1997–1999 shall be “Science and technology partnerships and networking for national capacity-building” and that the theme shall include North-South as well as South-South partnerships and networks involving, inter alia, enterprises, educational bodies, research institutions, governmental science and technology departments and other actors in the field of science and technology, with particular attention to be paid to biotechnology and energy;

13. Also decides to hold a panel meeting on biotechnology and its impact on development, bringing together country experts and experts from relevant institutions and United Nations agencies working on that subject, in order to identify critical issues relevant to development that are not sufficiently covered by existing forums, with particular attention to food production, and to recommend how further work on those issues might be undertaken;

1997/65. Establishment of an ad hoc open-ended Intergovernmental Forum on Forests of the Commission on Sustainable Development

The Economic and Social Council,

Recalling its decision 1995/226 of 1 June 1995, approving the establishment of an ad hoc open-ended intergovernmental panel on forests of the Commission on Sustainable Development to pursue consensus and formulate coordinated proposals for action towards the management, conservation and sustainable development of all types of forests,

Recognizing that the management, conservation and sustainable development of all types of forests is a crucial factor in economic and social development, environmental protection and the Earth's life-support system,

Taking into account the decision taken by the General Assembly at its nineteenth special session to continue the intergovernmental policy dialogue on forests through the establishment of an ad hoc open-ended Intergovernmental Forum on Forests under the aegis of the Commission on Sustainable Development to work in an open, transparent and participatory manner, with a focused and time-limited mandate, charged with, inter alia, (a) promoting and facilitating the implementation of the proposals for action of the Intergovernmental Panel on Forests; (b) reviewing, monitoring and reporting on progress in the management, conservation and sustainable development of all types of forests; and (c) considering matters left pending as regards the programme elements of the Intergovernmental Panel, in particular trade and environment in relation to forest products and services, transfer of technology and the need for financial resources,²⁴⁴

Taking into account also the decision of the General Assembly at its nineteenth special session that the Forum should identify the possible elements of and work towards consensus on international arrangements and mechanisms, for example, a legally binding instrument, and should report on its work to the Commission on Sustainable Development in 1999; based on that report, and depending on the decision of the Commission at its eighth session, the Forum should engage in further action on establishing an intergovernmental negotiation process on new arrangements and mechanisms or a legally binding instrument on all types of forests; the Forum should convene as soon as possible to elaborate further its terms of reference and decide on organizational matters; and the Forum should be serviced by a small secretariat within the Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the Secretariat, supported by voluntary extrabudgetary contributions from Governments and international organizations,²⁴⁵

2. Also decides that the Forum should hold its first (organizational) session in New York from 1 to 3 October 1997 so that the preparations for its substantive sessions can start without delay;

3. Further decides that, at its first session, the Forum shall schedule its programme of work, decide on the modalities of its work, including the election and designation of officers, and recommend to the Council the number, venue and duration of its substantive sessions, which could be of up to two weeks each, and, recognizing the wide range of issues to be addressed, decides that the Forum may consider dividing its work between in-session working groups, on the understanding that no more than two working groups would meet simultaneously;

4. Decides that the Forum should be serviced by a small secretariat within the secretariat of the Commission on Sustainable Development, supported by voluntary extrabudgetary contributions from Governments and international organizations, that the operation of the Forum will require funding to support activities as well as meetings and participation by representatives of developing countries and major groups from developing countries, that the participation of major groups should be in accordance with the rules of procedure of the Commission and that, in this regard, the following sources of funding should be considered: voluntary extrabudgetary contributions from Governments and international organizations to support the work of the Forum, secondments from international organizations and in-kind contributions from countries and international organizations, including the hosting of meetings;

5. Encourages interested Governments and organizations to make early voluntary contributions to ensure that the work of the Forum starts quickly;

6. Recommends that support from the United Nations system should, as far as possible, be derived from the reallocation of resources within the existing budgets of United Nations bodies in order to respond to high-priority activities.

Noting that the large majority of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories are small island Territories,

Welcoming the assistance extended to Non-Self-Governing Territories by certain specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in particular the United Nations Development Programme,

Stressing that, because the development options of small island Non-Self-Governing Territories are limited, there are special challenges to planning for and implementing sustainable development and that those Territories will be constrained in meeting the challenges without the continued cooperation and assistance of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system,

Stressing also the importance of securing necessary resources for funding expanded assistance programmes for the peoples concerned and the need to enlist the support of all major funding institutions within the United Nations system in that regard,

Mindful of the imperative need to keep under continuous review the activities of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in the implementation of the various United Nations decisions relating to decolonization,

Bearing in mind the extremely fragile economies of the small island Non-Self-Governing Territories and their vulnerability to natural disasters, such as hurricanes, cyclones and sea level rise, and recalling other relevant General Assembly resolutions,

6. Expresses its appreciation to those specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system that have continued to cooperate with the United Nations and the regional and subregional organizations in the implementation of resolution 1514 (XV) and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations, and requests all the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to implement the relevant provisions of those resolutions;

7. Requests the specialized agencies, other organizations of the United Nations system and international and regional organizations to examine and review conditions in each Territory so as to take appropriate measures to accelerate progress in the economic and social sectors of the Territories;

8. Requests the specialized agencies, the international institutions associated with the United Nations and regional organizations to strengthen existing measures of support and formulate appropriate programmes of assistance to the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories, within the framework of their respective mandates, in order to accelerate progress in the economic and social sectors of those Territories;

9. Recommends that the executive heads of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system formulate, with the active cooperation of the regional organizations concerned, concrete proposals for the full implementation of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations and submit the proposals to their governing and legislative organs;

10. Also recommends that the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system continue to review at the regular meetings of their governing bodies the implementation of resolution 1514 (XV) and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

Recalling also its resolution 1996/40 of 26 July 1996,

Guided by the principles of the Charter of the United Nations, affirming the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force, and recalling relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 242 (1967) of 22 November 1967, 465 (1980) of 1 March 1980 and 497 (1981) of 17 December 1981,

Reaffirming the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949,⁶² to the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Stressing the importance of the revival of the Middle East peace process on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242 (1967), 338 (1973) of 22 October 1973 and 425 (1978) of 19 March 1978 and the principle of land for peace, as well as the full and timely implementation of the agreements reached between the Government of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestinian people,

Reaffirming the principle of the permanent sovereignty of people under foreign occupation over their natural resources,

Convinced that the Israeli occupation impedes efforts to achieve sustainable development and a sound economic environment in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and the occupied Syrian Golan,

Gravely concerned about the deterioration of the economic and living conditions of the Palestinian people in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and of the Arab population of the occupied Syrian Golan, and the exploitation by Israel, the occupying Power, of their natural resources,

Aware of the important work being done by the United Nations and the specialized agencies in support of the economic and social development of the Palestinian people,

Conscious of the urgent need for the development of the economic and social infrastructure of the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and for the improvement of the living conditions of the Palestinian people as a key element of a lasting peace and stability,

2. Also stresses the vital importance of the operation and construction of the Gaza airport, the seaport in Gaza and safe passage to the economic and social development of the Palestinian people;

3. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to cease its measures against the Palestinian people, in particular the closure of the occupied Palestinian territory, the enforced isolation of Palestinian towns, the destruction of homes and the isolation of Jerusalem;

5. Reaffirms that Israeli settlements in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and the occupied Syrian Golan are illegal and an obstacle to economic and social development;

6. Stresses the importance of the work of the organizations and agencies of the United Nations and of the United Nations Special Coordinator in the Occupied Territories under the auspices of the Secretary-General;

7. Urges Member States to encourage private foreign investment in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, in infrastructure, job-creation projects and social development, in order to alleviate the hardship of the Palestinian people and improve their living conditions;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-third session, through the Economic and Social Council, a report on the implementation of the present resolution and to continue to include, in the report of the Special Coordinator, an update on the living conditions of the Palestinian people, in collaboration with relevant organizations and agencies of the United Nations;

9. Decides to include the item henceforth to be entitled "Economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan" in the agenda of its substantive session of 1998.

ANNEX

Summary by the Vice-President of the Economic and Social Council, Mr. Anwarul Karim Choudhury (Bangladesh), of the informal consultations on the follow-up to General Assembly resolution 50/227: review of the Commission on Science and Technology for Development, the Committee for Development Planning, the Committee on New and Renewable Sources of Energy and on Energy for Development and the Committee on Natural Resources

1. In the preparations for the substantive session of 1997 of the Economic and Social Council in New York and during the session itself in Geneva, several rounds of consultations were held, in pursuance of General Assembly resolution 50/227, relating to a review of the Commission on Science and Technology for Development, the Committee for Development Planning, the Committee on New and Renewable Sources of Energy and on Energy for Development and the Committee on Natural Resources, as part of the Council's review of its subsidiary bodies. These consultations were assisted by the valuable background information, ideas and suggestions provided at the request of the Member States by the chairpersons of the bodies under priority review, the secretariat of the Council and other relevant substantive secretariats. The Group of 77 and China and the European Union also submitted written comments and proposals for consideration in the review exercise. On the basis of these various inputs, an informal outline for discussion (dated 30 June 1997) was presented by the Vice-President as mandated. During the substantive session, a comprehensive review of the mandates, composition and working methods of each of the four bodies under review was carried out.

2. The present summary, prepared by the Vice-President, of the issues addressed is intended to facilitate further consultations.

3. On process, the broad perception during the consultations was that:

(a) The intergovernmental process mandated by General Assembly resolution 50/227 should continue at the resumed substantive session of 1997; it was also observed, however, that the Council's review would benefit from further information, to be provided by the Secretary-General;

(b) There was a need to coordinate the intergovernmental process of the review to ensure there was no duplication.

4. On the Commission on Science and Technology for Development, the main areas of concern were as follows:

(a) The role of the Commission, its profile and its impact;

(b) Intergovernmental oversight, its relationship with the Council and the Trade and Development Board as well as with other intergovernmental bodies, including the Commission on Sustainable Development;

(c) Coordination, inter alia, through its agenda and work programme;

(d) The relationship between the Commission and its substantive secretariat, and with organizations of the United Nations system;

(e) The size, composition and completion of membership (vacancies, regional balance and the like).

5. On the Committee for Development Planning, the main areas of concern were as follows:

(a) The role of the Committee in preparing for development discussions in the Council, particularly during its high-level segment, as well as its role in the identification and analysis of new and emerging trends and issues in the area of development;

(b) The name of the Committee: it could be changed to Committee for Development Policies, as suggested by the Committee itself, or to Committee for Development Issues;

(c) The role of the Committee in reviewing the list of the least developed countries: whether this function could be carried out by some other United Nations body;

(d) Clarification of the relationship between the Committee and the Secretary-General's High-level Advisory Board on Sustainable Development.

6. On the Committee on New and Renewable Sources of Energy and on Energy for Development, the main areas of concern were as follows:

(a) How to deal effectively, at an expert level, with the energy issue, which is of particular importance for the developing countries;

(b) The place of the Committee in the subsidiary machinery of the Council: should it report to the Council directly or through the Commission on Sustainable Development;

(c) Arrangements for dissemination and use of the reports of the Committee;

(d) Linkages with other United Nations bodies.

7. On the Committee on Natural Resources, the main areas of concern were as follows:

(a) The place of the Committee in the machinery of the Council and its relationship with other bodies, particularly the Commission on Sustainable Development and the Committee on New and Renewable Sources of Energy and on Energy for Development;

(b) Whether issues of freshwater management require separate consideration in the Committee or can be discussed in the Commission on Sustainable Development;

(c) How to address effectively the issue of minerals and whether it is feasible to combine this function with the work on energy in the Committee on New and Renewable Sources of Energy and on Energy for Development;

(d) Arrangements for dissemination and use of the reports of the Committee.
