Summary

The present addendum to the report of the Secretary-General on regional cooperation in the economic, social and related fields contains resolutions and decisions adopted at the sessions of the regional commissions in the first half of 2003, when four of the five regional commissions held their regular sessions: the Economic Commission for Europe held its fifty-eighth session in Geneva from 4 to 6 March; the Economic Commission for Africa held its thirty-sixth session/second session of the Conference of African Ministers of Finance, Planning and Economic Development in Addis Ababa on 1 June; and the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia held its twenty-second session in Beirut from 14 to 17 April. The Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific was scheduled to hold its fifty-ninth session in Bangkok from 24 to 30 April but, in view of the inauspicious regional situation resulting from the outbreak of severe acute respiratory syndrome (SARS), it was decided that the session would be held in two phases. The first phase was held from 24 to 25 April and the second, which will include a ministerial segment, will be held at an appropriate date to be determined in consultation with the Commission's member States. Resolutions or decisions emanating from the review of

II. Matters brought to the attention of the Council

Economic Commission for Africa

3. At its thirty-sixth session, the Economic Commission for Africa (ECA)/Conference of African Ministers of Finance, Planning and Economic Development issued a Ministerial Statement which emphasized the need for (a) mutual accountability, policy coherence and development effectiveness; (b) making the International Monetary Fund (IMF) work better for Africa; and (c) overcoming the macroeconomic challenges of HIV/AIDS and thereby contributing to meeting the Millennium Development Goals. The Conference of African Ministers also adopted a resolution on the proposed work programme of ECA for the biennium 2004-2005.

Ministerial statement

4. Key issues raised in the ministerial statement are summarized below.

5. On aid and development effectiveness, the Ministers recognized that if current trends continued, Africa would not meet the Millennium Development Goals. Reversing the trend would require a new and energized relationship between Africa and its partners, based on trust and a shared responsibility for development effectiveness. The Ministers welcomed the accession by 15 African countries to the African peer review mechanism envisaged under the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD) and urged those countries to move forward with peer review, as well as urging others to sign up. They welcomed progress on aid quality and official development assistance (ODA) commitments, but warned that the level of aid flows to Africa remained a major concern and needed to be further increased. They also welcomed the proposed International Finance Facility as the first of its kind, designed to mobilize additional resources for the poorest countries to meet the Millennium Development Goals; urged Africa's partners to ensure that all policies impacting on African development, including those in the areas of ODA, trade, market access and agriculture, were consistent with the Millennium Development Goals, and recommended that Africa's partners adopt domestic policy measures that would increase foreign direct investment flows to Africa.

6. On trade, the Ministers expressed their deep concern at the negative impact of the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) agricultural subsidies on the African agriculture sector and called for action by OECD countries to ensure that the poorest countries benefit quickly from trade liberalization by providing immediate duty-free and quota-free market access, removing non-tariff barriers and developing an appropriate price stabilization mechanism. They warned that negotiations on the key elements of the Doha Development Round had achieved little, with key deadlines for market access for agricultural products, TRIPS and public health, and special and differential treatment missed. They urged Africa's development partners to respond positively to African proposals in order to make the World Trade Organization Ministerial Meeting to be held in Cancun in September 2003 a success.

7. On debt, the Ministers warned that the enhanced Highly Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) initiative was not delivering long-term debt sustainability and called for the rapid establishment of a legal technical assistance facility to help those countries deal with creditor litigation. They recognized that domestic debt in many African countries required urgent attention because it reduced fiscal flexibility, raised domestic interest rates and crowded out investment; and endorsed the ECA plan to convene an African expert group meeting on debt relief in September 2003, to be followed by an international conference on African debt early in 2004 to meet the challenge of defining the policies, instruments and initiatives that could constitute the next step in the international community's efforts to reduce Africa's debt burden.

8. On the role of IMF, the Ministers recommended that IMF assist African countries in developing a menu of policy options, impose fewer structural conditions and provide for "floating tranches" or outcomes-based conditions, where appropriate. They urged the Bretton Woods institutions, bilateral partners and the African Development Bank to avoid cross-conditionalities that impeded African access to much-needed resources. They recommended that, to provide greater fiscal flexibility, IMF should also analyse the linkages, trade-offs and policy choices required to attain the Millennium Development Goals, as a basis for discussions with development partners on mobilizing the additional resources required for progress towards achieving the Millennium Development Goals. They proposed that evaluating exogenous shocks — commodity price volatility, natural disasters and aid shortfalls — should be a standard feature of IMF discussions with member States, and that access to concessional lending should be extended to countries suffering from exceptional exogenous shocks such as terrorist attacks and the onslaught of new communicable diseases.

9. On HIV/AIDS, the Ministers projected that the HIV/AIDS epidemic would cut approximately 1 per cent from gross domestic product growth rates, significantly diminishing the prospects of realizing the economic expansion necessary to reduce poverty. They underscored the crucial leadership role of ministers of finance, planning and economic development in mobilizing sufficient resources to confront the disease and in identifying strategies to mitigate the adverse socio-economic impacts of the epidemic. They stressed that additional resources were urgently needed to support Africa's efforts to confront HIV/AIDS; and urged the Bretton Woods institutions to consider revising the eligibility criteria for assistance to middle-income countries afflicted by the AIDS epidemic and to find ways of ensuring that countries could expand expenditure on health and social welfare without violating conditionalities that imposed limits on public spending.

Programme of work and priorities for the biennium 2004-2005

10. The Conference of Ministers also adopted a resolution on the programme of work and priorities of ECA for the biennium 2004-2005 in which it expressed its support of the proposed ECA work programme. The Conference of Ministers noted that the new programme structure of ECA had been endorsed by the Conference of Ministers and the Economic and Social Council in 2002 and was characterized by congruence between organizational and programme structures, reduction in the number of subprogrammes and the clustering of closely related activities under a single subprogramme to foster synergy and achieve greater efficiency and impact in the delivery of services. The Conference of Ministers was convinced that the proposed new organizational units, namely, the Trade and Regional Integration Division, the Office of Policy and Programme Coordination and the Human Resources Management and Finance Division, as well as the renaming of the Development Management Division as the Development Policy Management Division would demonstrate the Commission's commitment to improving the management of its programmes and the delivery of its substantive activities. It called on the Committee for Programme and Coordination and the General Assembly to support the proposed organizational and programme structures of the programme budget of ECA for the biennium 2004-2005 and to ensure that adequate resources were made available to the Commission for the implementation of that work programme.
