ment and gathering of larger groups in the ground safety zone; strengthening the coordination of activities between FYROM's armed forces and KFOR, disarming paramilitary extremist groups and bringing them to justice; and creating conditions for the return of the inhabitants of Tanusevci to their homes. The action plan also proposed that the FYROM Government strengthen the existing measures along the border and undertake additional ones to prevent a spillover of the conflict, especially by reinforcing police control with new border police units.

The seriousness of the problem and the timing of its occurrence demanded prompt preventive action, the Foreign Minister said. The Council should be aware that the incident in Tanusevci should be seen in the broader context of the Balkan region and its transformation into a peaceful, stable, democratic and prosperous European region. He called on the Council to support the measures proposed so as to reaffirm the preconditions for a peaceful and democratic development of the Balkans, with inviolable, stable and transparent borders.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 7 March [meeting 4290], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2001/7 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the participation of the Foreign Minister of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia in its meeting on 7 March 2001 and carefully listened to him.

The Council strongly condemns recent violence by ethnic Albanian armed extremists in the north of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, in particular the killing of three soldiers of the armed forces of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia in the area of Tanusevci. The Council regrets that the violence continues and calls for an immediate end to it.

The Council expresses its deep concern at those events, which constitute a threat to the stability and security not only of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia but also of the entire region. It calls on all political leaders in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, who are in a position to do so to isolate the forces behind the violent incidents and to shoulder their responsibility for peace and stability in the region.

The Council underlines the responsibility of the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia for the rule of law in its territory. It supports actions by the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to address the violence with an appropriate level of restraint and to preserve the political stability of the country and foster harmony between all ethnic components of the population.

The Council recalls the need to respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia. In this context it emphasizes that the border demarcation agreement, signed in Skopje on 23 February 2001, and ratified by the Parliament of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia on 1 March 2001, must be respected by all.

The Council welcomes the steps taken by the international security presence (KFOR) to control the border between Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia in accordance with the military-technical agreement signed in Kumanovo on 9 June 1999. It welcomes the ongoing dialogue between the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and KFOR on practical steps to address the immediate security situation and to prevent crossing of the border by extremists as well as possible violations of resolution 1160(1998) of 31 March 1998. It welcomes the efforts of all relevant international organizations in cooperation with the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to promote stability and to create conditions for a return of the inhabitants to their homes.

The Council will continue to follow the developments on the ground closely, and requests to be briefed regularly on the outcome of the efforts referred to above.

EU communications. On 8 March [S/2001/211], Sweden transmitted to the Secretary-General a declaration by the EU Presidency condemning the ethnic Albanian extremist attacks on 4 March near Tanusevci and calling for such acts to stop immediately. It also called on all FYROM political leaders to isolate the forces behind such attacks and shoulder their responsibility for peace and stability in the region. The EU reiterated its strong attachment to the principle of the inviolability of borders, including FYROM's territorial integrity and sovereignty.

In a further statement issued on 9 March [S/2001/217], the EU said that its Political and Security Committee had discussed FYROM's action plan for ending the violence and ensuring lasting stability on its border with FRY, and supported its policy of restraint, while preserving the country's political stability and fostering harmony and cooperation among all ethnic groups. It called on all neighbouring countries and international organizations active in the area to examine what support they could provide. The EU underlined the role played by KFOR, the EU and its monitoring mission, as well as the OSCE Spillover Monitor Mission to Skopje, especially in monitoring along FYROM's border.

NATO action. On 8 March [S/2001/214], the NATO Secretary-General informed the UN Secretary-General that, following a fact-finding mission by his Personal Representative, as well as visits of a NATO political-military team to Skopje, the North Atlantic Council (NAC) had, on the same day, taken a number of decisions concerning the ground safety zone in southern Serbia (see p. 347) and FYROM. Concerning FYROM, NAC welcomed the recent measures taken by the KFOR Commander, but charged its military authorities with identifying additional measures to enhance security along the FYROM border with Kosovo, FRY. NAC was also considering the findings of the Advisory Mission on Border Security, which recently returned from Skopje, as well as further bilateral and multilateral assistance to the Government. It promised to further study ways of showing political support to the FYROM Government, in the light of the recommendations by NATO's Deputy Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs, who recently visited Skopje. NAC would also meet with FYROM's Foreign Minister on 9 March, at his request, during which it hoped to address FYROM's concerns and to encourage continuation of its measured response to the situation at its northern border.

Security Council consideration. The Security Council, in statement S/PRST/2001/8 of 16 March on Kosovo (see p. 350), reiterated its strong support for FYROM, as expressed by the Council President in his statement on 7 March (see p. 369). It condemned the continuing extremist violence and supported FYROM's efforts to cooperate with NATO and other international organizations to end that violence.

Communications. On 20 March [S/2001/251], FYROM transmitted to the Secretary-General the conclusions of its Assembly following discussion of the current security situation from 16 to 18 March. The Assembly, noting the deteriorating security situation, said that FYROM's authorities, its Assembly, Government and defence-security structures would undertake adequate measures to secure peace and stability in the country and the security of all its citizens, as well as urgent measures to impede further escalation of the situation. It appealed to international organizations to continue their unconditional support for FYROM in preserving its stability, territorial integrity and sovereignty, and to provide that assistance without the presence of military forces from neighbouring countries on its territory. It called on all political parties to refrain from any destructive scenarios and to direct their activities to the service of the State and to peace, stability and democracy. It condemned the statements made in support of violence. The Assembly also asked for KFOR's greater presence and strong engagement along the whole stretch of the northern border and indicated its intention immediately to intensify the broad political dialogue through its institutions with all relevant political bodies in the country to facilitate the settlement of all problems.

Albania's Foreign Minister, in a 20 March statement [S/2001/249] issued in his capacity as Chairman-in-Office of the South-East European Cooperation Process, expressed concern about developments in FYROM and reaffirmed his full support for the safeguard of that country's sovereignty and territorial integrity. He appreciated the self-restraint of the FYROM Government and the constructive attitude of all Albanian political parties in dealing with the crisis, and encouraged them to advance ethnic coexistence through institutional solution of the existing problems. The Chairman-in-Office demanded the immediate cessation of the armed actions, stating that any legitimate demand of the Albanian community should be resolved peacefully and democratically.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 21 March [meeting 4301], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1345(2001), based on a draft [S/2001/256] prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions 1160(1998) of 31 March 1998, 1199(1998) of 23 September 1998, 1203(1998) of 24 October 1998, 1239(1999) of 14 May 1999 and 1244(1999) of 10 June 1999 and the statements by its President of 19 December 2000 (S/PRST/2000/40), 7 March 2001 (S/PRST/2001/7) and 16 March 2001 (S/PRST/2001/8),

Welcoming the steps taken by the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to consolidate a multi-ethnic society within its borders, and expressing its full support for the further development of this process,

Also welcoming the plan put forward by the Government of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia to resolve peacefully the crisis in certain municipalities in southern Serbia, and expressing encouragement for the implementation of political and economic reforms designed to reintegrate the ethnic Albanian population as full members of civil society,

Welcoming international efforts, including those of the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo, the international security presence in Kosovo (KFOR), the European Union, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in cooperation with the Governments of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and other States, to prevent the escalation of ethnic tensions in the area,

Further welcoming the contribution of the European Union to a peaceful solution to the problems in certain municipalities in southern Serbia, its decision substantially to increase the presence of the European Union Monitoring Mission there on the basis of its existing mandate, and its wider contribution to the region,

Welcoming the cooperation between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the authorities of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia in addressing the security problems in parts of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and certain municipalities in southern Serbia,

1. Strongly condemns extremist violence, including terrorist activities, in certain parts of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and certain municipalities in southern Serbia, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and notes that such violence has support from ethnic Albanian extremists outside these areas and constitutes a threat to the security and stability of the wider region;

2. Reaffirms its commitment to the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the other States of the region, as set out in the Helsinki Final Act;

3. Reiterates its strong support for the full implementation of resolution 1244(1999);

4. Demands that all those who are currently engaged in armed action against the authorities of those States immediately cease all such actions, lay down their weapons and return to their homes;

5. Supports the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia in their efforts to end the violence in a manner consistent with the rule of law;

6. Underlines the need for all differences to be resolved by dialogue among all legitimate parties;

7 Further underlines the requirement for all parties to act with restraint and full respect for international humanitarian law and human rights;

8. Welcomes the efforts of the Government of Albania to promote peace in the region and isolate extremists working against peace, and encourages it and all States to take all possible concrete steps to prevent support for extremists, taking also into account resolution 1160(1998);

9. Calls upon Kosovo Albanian political leaders, and leaders of the ethnic Albanian communities in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, southern Serbia and elsewhere, publicly to condemn violence and ethnic intolerance and to use their influence to secure peace, and calls upon all those who have contact with the extremist armed groups to make clear that they have no support from any quarter in the international community;

10. Welcomes the efforts of KFOR to implement resolution 1244(1999) in cooperation with the authorities of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and calls upon KFOR to continue further to strengthen its efforts to prevent unauthorized movement and illegal arms shipments across borders and boundaries in the region, to confiscate weapons within Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and to continue to keep the Council informed in accordance with resolution 1160(1998);

11. Calls upon States and appropriate international organizations to consider how they can best give practical help to efforts in the region further to strengthen democratic, multi-ethnic societies in the interests of all and to assist the return of displaced persons in the areas in question;

12. Calls upon all States in the region to respect each other's territorial integrity and to cooperate on measures that foster stability and promote regional political and economic cooperation in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, the basic principles of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the Stability Pact for South-East Europe;

13. Decides to monitor developments on the ground carefully and remain actively seized of the matter.

EU communications. The EU, in a 3 May statement [S/2001/442], condemned the renewed acts of violence by ethnic Albanian extremists in FYROM's northern region, including the killing of two soldiers, the occupation of several villages and the taking of hostages. It called on the extremists to stop the violence, release the hostages and withdraw immediately. The EU supported the inter-ethnic dialogue recently launched by FYROM authorities and urged ethnic Albanian leaders in Kosovo, FRY, and Albania's political leaders to condemn unambiguously those acts of terrorism and to use their influence to prevent violence.

On 11 May [S/2001/498], the EU welcomed the agreement on a broad coalition Government in FYROM, expressed hope that the new Government would serve as a solid platform for handling the hard political decisions that lay ahead and assured it of EU support in that difficult task.

In a further statement issued on 26 July [S/2001/751], the EU condemned the violation of the ceasefire in FYROM and appealed for its restoration. It enjoined the parties to relaunch negotiations and to show a spirit of compromise. It reiterated its support for a new mission to Skopje by the EU High Representative (the EU President), who would be accompanied by the NATO Secretary-General and the OSCE Chairman-in-Office.

Framework Agreement

On 13 August, President Boris Trajkovski of FYROM and the leaders of the country's four main political parties signed the "Framework Agreement in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia".

The Agreement laid out the principles basic to a modern democratic FYROM: the rejection of the use of violence to pursue political aims; the preservation of the State's sovereignty and territorial integrity and the multi-ethnic character of its society; the evolution of its Constitution so as to meet citizens' needs and conform with international standards; and the development of local self-government.

The Agreement provided for: the cessation of hostilities, an unconditional ceasefire, the voluntary disarmament and disbandment of ethnic Albanian armed groups, and the parties' acceptance of those conditions under which NATO would operate in the country; the development of a decentralized Government; non-discrimination and equal treatment for all, to be embodied in laws, particularly those regulating employment in public administration; special parliamentary procedures for the adoption of legislation; the Macedonian language as the country's official language and in international relations, with specific rules on the use of other native languages, in addition to Macedonian, in education and in units of local self-government; rules regarding the expression of identity in terms of State and local emblems; and timetables for the implementation of the constitutional amendments (within 45 days of the Agreement's signature), the legislative modifications and confidence-building measures, contained in annexes A, B and C, respectively, to the Agreement.

On the date of the Agreement's signature, the EU issued a statement [S/2001/802] welcoming the event as representing a crucial stage in FYROM's ongoing political process. It urged all parties to abide by the Agreement and to take all the measures for its speedy implementation. It reiterated its call for the scrupulous observance of the ceasefire and expressed readiness to convene a donors' conference soon after the Agreement's constitutional and legislative provisions had been adopted by the Parliament. It indicated that a reconstruction and rehabilitation programme to help in implementing the reforms was in preparation.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 13 August [meeting 4356], following consultations among Security Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2001/20 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the signing of the Framework Agreement in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia by President Trajkovski and the leaders of four political parties on 13 August 2001. The Council calls for the full and immediate implementation of the Agreement, which promotes the peaceful and harmonious development of civil society while respecting the ethnic identity and the interests of all Macedonian citizens.

The Council calls for the full implementation of its resolution 1345(2001) and reaffirms the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

The Council calls again on all those concerned, including on leaders of ethnic Albanian communities in the region, publicly to condemn violence and ethnic intolerance and to use their influence to secure peace. It reiterates its call to all who have contact with extremist groups to make clear to them that they have no support from any quarter in the international community. The Council condemns the ongoing violence by extremists and calls on all parties to respect the ceasefire. The Council rejects any attempt to use violence including the use of landmines to undermine the Framework Agreement, which has been negotiated by the democratically elected political leadership of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

The Council supports the actions of the President and Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia aimed at resolving the crisis, and assuring a stable and democratic future for all of the citizens of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, including through continued dialogue with the full representation of all legitimate political parties to strengthen democracy and preserve the multi-ethnic character of Macedonian society and the stability of the country.

The Council welcomes the efforts of the European Union, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in support of the Framework Agreement. It also calls on the international community to consider how best to assist the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia in facilitating its full implementation.

The Council will continue to follow closely developments on the ground.

During the Council's consideration on 28 August [meeting 4359] of the situation in the FRY province of Kosovo, the FYROM representative said that the signing of the Framework Agreement was a significant step towards a peaceful outcome of the political and security crisis in his country and noted that the Secretary-General had underlined UN readiness to assist in implementing it.

Drawing the Council's attention to the security dimension of the Agreement related to developments in Kosovo, he referred to recent UNMIK and KFOR activities along the border with Kosovo as contributing to a more efficient control of illegal border traffic and infiltration into FYROM. He stressed that, for the Agreement's security component to be effective, a complete cessation of the activities of ethnic Albanian insurgency instigators and supporters from Kosovo, including members of the Kosovo Protection Corps (KPC), had to be ensured. He reiterated his country's expectation that UNMIK and KFOR would put a stop to the infiltration and to all mobilization activities of former KPC fighters, including their joining the so-called National Liberation Army operating in FYROM. That was of particular importance for the success of the ongoing NATO operation in FYROM to disarm ethnic Albanian groups and to ensure their complete, voluntary disbandment.

Further developments

On 21 September [S/2001/897], FYROM transmitted to the Security Council the separate letters it had addressed to NATO and OSCE. By the former, FYROM thanked NATO for its response to FYROM's efforts to find a way out of its current crisis provoked by Albanian terrorists and illegal armed groups. Their disarmament and elimination were the foremost steps in the normalization of the country. FYROM would host an OSCE and EU monitoring mission and would support a light presence of NATO in the country upon the conclusion of its Operation Essential Harvest, to provide additional security for the mission. The modalities for such a security presence could be specified in a memorandum of understanding.

In its letter to OSCE, FYROM indicated its decision of 11 September to enhance the OSCE Spillover Monitor Mission to Skopje by increasing the number of monitors so as to assist the Government with the Framework Agreement's implementation, in particular with its confidence-building measures. As a priority, FYROM requested a rapid deployment of OSCE monitors and police advisers in sufficient numbers to provide a visible presence throughout the sensitive areas. It invited OSCE also to assist in other areas, especially the programmes of police training, media and inter-ethnic relations, as set out in the Agreement. It would further welcome OSCE involvement, through its Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights, in the conduct of the forthcoming censuses and elections in FYROM.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 26 September [meeting 4381], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1371 (2001), based on a draft [S/2001/902] prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions 1244(1999) of 10 June 1999 and 1345(2001) of 21 March 2001 and the statements by its President of 7 March 2001 (S/PRST/2001/7), 16 March 2001 (S/PRST/2001/8) and 13 August 2001 (S/PRST/2001/20),

Welcoming the steps taken by the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to consolidate a multi-ethnic society within its borders, and expressing its full support for the further development of this process,

Welcoming in this regard the signing of the Framework Agreement at Skopje on 13 August 2001 by the President of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the leaders of four political parties,

Welcoming international efforts, including those of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the European Union and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, in cooperation with the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and other States, to prevent the escalation of ethnic tensions in the area and to facilitate the full implementation of the Framework Agreement, thus contributing to peace and stability in the region,

Welcoming the letter from the Permanent Representative of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to the President of the Security Council of 21 September 2001,

1. Reaffirms its commitment to the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and other States of the region;

2. Calls for the full implementation of resolution 1345(2001);

3. Supports the full and timely implementation of the Framework Agreement, rejects the use of violence in pursuit of political aims and stresses that only peaceful political solutions can assure a stable and democratic future for the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia;

4. Welcomes the efforts of the European Union and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to contribute to the implementation of the Framework Agreement, in particular through the presence of international observers;

5. Endorses the efforts of Member States and relevant international organizations to support the implementation of the Framework Agreement and strongly supports in that regard the establishment of a multinational security presence in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia at the request of its Government to contribute towards the security of the observers, and invites the Government of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia to keep the Council informed;

6. Demands that all concerned ensure the safety of international personnel in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia;

7. Welcomes the efforts of the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo and the international security presence to implement fully resolution 1244(1999), in particular by further strengthening its efforts to prevent unauthorized movement and illegal arms shipments across borders and boundaries, to confiscate illegal weapons within Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and to keep the Council informed;

8. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

Communications. In a 9 October statement [S/2001/978], the EU expressed concern about the insufficient progress made by FYROM in implementing the Framework Agreement. The EU expected all democratic forces in the country to continue to engage fully and constructively in the parliamentary process and appealed to the Parliament to approve all of the Agreement's constitutional and legislative provisions. It was waiting for the Government to find an effective solution to the problem of amnesty for the rebels and for the return of the security forces to be coordinated with the international community's representatives. The EU stressed that its assistance in the reforms being carried out by the FYROM authorities was conditional upon the satisfactory conclusion of the parliamentary process of constitutional revision. In that regard, it noted that the conditions for the convening of a donors' conference had not yet been fulfilled.

The EU appreciated UN support for a multinational security presence in FYROM and welcomed NATO's decision to authorize the deployment of the Operation Amber Fox force to provide that presence and contribute to the security of the international monitors deployed by OSCE and the EU, whose number would be increased.

On 16 November [A/56/640-S/2001/1094], following adoption of the amendments to the FYROM Constitution, FYROM's President issued a statement welcoming those changes, saying the country had a great deal of work before it: immediate re-establishment of the State's sovereignty and rule of law throughout the country; the return of displaced persons to their homes before the winter; the reconstruction of their homes and repair of the infrastructure; the return of children to school; and initiating the process of healing and of overcoming differences. The President called on the international community to fulfil its commitments, including support for and involvement in the return of the security forces to the crisis regions. He also called for the early organization of the donors' conference. He welcomed the United States characterization of acts of armed provocation by Albanian groups in FYROM as acts of terrorism and called on all who considered violence as a solution to the problems to lay down their arms and to reintegrate into the community.

Georgia

During 2001, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and Head of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia (UNOMIG), with the assistance of the Russian Federation in its capacity as facilitator, the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General (France, Germany, Russian Federation, United Kingdom, United States) and OSCE, continued efforts to engage the Georgian and Abkhaz parties in negotiations towards a comprehensive settlement of their conflict, including a definition of the political status of Abkhazia as a sovereign entity within the State of Georgia. The long-awaited paper on the Basic Principles for the Distribution of Competences between Tbilisi (Georgia's Government) and Sukhumi (the Abkhaz leadership), intended to serve as the basis for substantial negotiations, was finalized in mid-December and transmitted to the parties. Adamant in its rejection of any suggestion that Abkhazia was within the State of Georgia, the Abkhaz party was not prepared to receive the paper. Consequently, the peace process remained stalled.

The successful holding of the third meeting on confidence-building measures between Georgia and Abkhazia in Yalta, Ukraine, in March yielded the Yalta Declaration and a Programme of Action on Confidence-building Measures. While those documents held promise of helping to narrow down the parties' divergent positions, by year's end, no significant implementation of the commitments and proposals they contained had been made. Furthermore, neither the parties' commitments on the voluntary return of refugees and displaced persons nor the recommendations of the 2000 joint assessment mission to the Gali district had been fulfilled. As noted by the Secretary-General, the parties neglected active work within the mechanisms of the UN-led Geneva peace process [YUN 1997, p. 365], in particular the Coordinating Council, thus threatening to defeat the purpose of that negotiating forum.

The month of October was marked by the shooting down of a UN helicopter on its way to resume patrolling in the upper Kodori Valley, as well as by large-scale hostilities in the conflict zone. Nonetheless, the Special Representative and UNOMIG, with the support of the Collective Peacekeeping Force of the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS peacekeeping force), remained steadfast in the discharge of their mandates and in their determination to de-escalate hostilities and stabilize the situation in that zone. The Security Council strongly supported those efforts and, recognizing the contributions of UNOMIG to the peace process in Georgia, extended its mandate twice during the year, the second time until 31 January 2002.

UN Observer Mission in Georgia

The United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia (UNOMIG), established by Security Council resolution 858(1993) [YUN 1993, p. 509], continued to monitor and verify compliance with the 1994 Agreement on a Ceasefire and Separation of Forces (Moscow Agreement) [YUN 1994, p. 583] and to fulfil other tasks as mandated by resolution 937(1994) [ibid., p. 584]. Monitoring involved daily ground and regular helicopter patrols. UNOMIG operated in close collaboration with the CIS peacekeeping force that had been in the zone of conflict, at the request of the parties, since 1994 [ibid., p. 583]. The Council extended UNOMIG's mandate twice during the year, the first time until 31 July 2001 and the second until 31 January 2002.

UNOMIG's main headquarters was located in Sukhumi (Abkhazia, Georgia), with some administrative headquarters in Pitsunda, a liaison office in the Georgian capital of Tbilisi and team bases and a sector headquarters in both the Gali and Zugdidi sectors. A team base in the Kodori Valley was manned by observers operating from Sukhumi.

UNOMIG was headed by the Secretary-General's Special Representative for Georgia, Dieter Boden (Germany), who was assisted by the Chief Military Observer, Major General Anis Ahmed Bajwa (Pakistan). As at 31 December 2001, it had a strength of 106 military observers.

Activities

Report of Secretary-General (January). In his January 2001 report [S/2001/59] describing the situation in Abkhazia, Georgia, and UNOMIG operations there from October to the end of 2000, summarized in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 397], the Secretary-General, observing that the continued lack of progress on the fundamental issue of the future political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia could jeopardize the whole peace process, called on both sides to muster enough political will to overcome the impasse. He appealed in particular to the Abkhaz side to demonstrate more flexibility and willingness to address the core political questions of the conflict and called for the early finalization of the draft document on basic principles for the distribution of competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi [ibid., p. 391] and for its presentation to the parties by the Special Representative and the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General, whose consensus position was deemed essential. The Secretary-General called on the two sides to enable the dignified, safe and secure return of people to the Gali district, and urged them to implement the recommendations of the 2000 joint assessment mission to that district [ibid., p. 397]. Together with the Resident Coordinator and Humanitarian Coordinator, UNOMIG would explore possibilities for increasing humanitarian aid to the population, including the allocation of a sum in the UNOMIG budget for limited ad hoc assistance.

Stressing that both sides bore primary responsibility for the security of UNOMIG's military and civilian personnel, the Secretary-General appealed to the Government of Georgia to bring to justice the perpetrators of the hostage-taking incidents of October 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 382] and of June [YUN 2000, p. 392] and December 2000 [ibid., p. 397]. He said the Government also needed to create the necessary security conditions in the upper Kodori Valley to allow UNOMIG to carry out its mandate fully in that area. Convinced of UNOMIG's crucial role in stabilizing the zone of conflict and in furthering the negotiation process, he recommended that the UNOMIG mandate be extended for a further six-month period, until 31 July.

Communication. On 29 January [S/2001/89], Georgia informed the Security Council about recent violations by the Abkhaz separatists of the 1994 Agreement on a Ceasefire and Separation of Forces [YUN 1994, p. 583]. The first violation took place on 25 January, when unidentified gunmen opened fire on a civilian gasoline transportation truck in the village of Chuburkhindgi, killing one civilian and seriously injuring two others, one of whom was kidnapped by the gunmen, who retreated with the truck to Abkhaz-controlled territory. The second violation took place on 26 January, when an anti-tank rocket was launched from Abkhaz-controlled territory on the left bank of the Inguri River towards Georgian-controlled territory, hitting a moving car near the CIS peacekeepers' checkpoint No. 301; the car exploded, seriously injuring four civilians.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION (January)

On 31 January [meeting 4269], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1339(2001), based on a draft [S/2001/93] prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling all its relevant resolutions, in particular resolution 1311(2000) of 28 July 2000, and the statement of its President of 14 November 2000 (S/PRST/2000/32),

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General of 18 January 2001,

Recalling the conclusions of the Lisbon and Istanbul summits of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe regarding the situation in Abkhazia, Georgia,

Stressing that the continued lack of progress on key issues of a comprehensive settlement of the conflict in Abkhazia, Georgia, is unacceptable,

Deeply concerned that, although currently mostly calm, the general situation in the conflict zone remains very volatile,

Noting the holding of the twelfth session of the Coordinating Council of the Georgian and Abkhaz sides on 23 January 2001,

Recalling the relevant principles contained in the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel adopted on 9 December 1994,

Welcoming the important contributions that the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia and the collective peacekeeping force of the Commonwealth of Independent States continue to make in stabilizing the situation in the conflict zone, noting that the working relationship between the Mission and the collective peacekeeping force has remained very close, and stressing the importance of close cooperation between them in the performance of their respective mandates,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General of 18 January 2001;

2. Strongly supports the sustained efforts of the Secretary-General and his Special Representative, with the assistance of the Russian Federation, in its capacity as facilitator, as well as of the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General and of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, to promote the stabilization of the situation and the achievement of a comprehensive political settlement, which must include a settlement of the political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia;

3. Strongly supports, in particular, the intention of the Special Representative to submit, in the near future, the draft paper containing specific proposals to the parties on the question of the distribution of constitutional competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi as a basis for meaningful negotiations;

4. Stresses the need to accelerate work on the draft protocol on the return of the refugees to the Gali region and measures for economic rehabilitation, as well as on the draft agreement on peace and guarantees for the prevention and for the non-resumption of hostilities;

5. Calls upon the parties, in particular the Abkhaz side, to undertake immediate efforts to move beyond the impasse and to engage in negotiations on the core political questions of the conflict and all other outstanding issues in the United Nations-led peace process;

6. Welcomes the readiness of the Government of Ukraine to host the third meeting on confidence-building measures, welcomes also the commitment of both sides to the conflict to meet in Yalta in March 2001, and notes the important contribution a successful conference would make to the peace process;

7. Reaffirms the unacceptability of the demographic changes resulting from the conflict, and reaffirms also the inalienable right of all refugees and displaced persons affected by the conflict to return to their homes in secure and dignified conditions, in accordance with international law and as set out in the Quadripartite Agreement on the Voluntary Return of Refugees and Displaced Persons of 4 April 1994;

8. Urges the parties, in this context, to address urgently and in a concerted manner, as a first step, the undefined and insecure status of spontaneous returnees to the Gali district, which remains an issue of serious concern;

9. Expresses its satisfaction with the joint assessment mission to the Gali district, carried out under the aegis of the United Nations, and looks forward to the careful consideration of the mission's recommendations regarding human rights, law enforcement and education;

10. Condemns all violations of the Moscow Agreement of 14 May 1994 on a Ceasefire and Separation of Forces, and notes with particular concern the Abkhaz military exercise conducted in November 2000;

11. Deplores the rise in criminality and activities of armed groups in the conflict zone, which constitutes a major destabilizing factor affecting the overall situation, calls upon the parties to increase their efforts at curbing them and to cooperate in good faith using the means provided by the Coordinating Council mechanism, condemns the recent killings of civilians and

Abkhaz militiamen, and calls upon both sides, in particular the Georgian side, to investigate these incidents and bring to justice those responsible;

12. Condemns the abduction of two military observers of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia on 10 December 2000, recalls that the Georgian and the Abkhaz sides bear the primary responsibility for the security of the Mission, the collective peacekeeping force of the Commonwealth of Independent States and other international personnel, and appeals to them to bring to justice the perpetrators of the hostage-taking incidents of October 1999, June 2000 and December 2000;

13. Calls upon the parties to ensure security and freedom of movement of the United Nations and other international personnel;

14. Welcomes the fact that the Mission is keeping its security arrangements under constant review in order to ensure the highest possible level of security for its staff;

15. Decides to extend the mandate of the Mission for a new period terminating on 31 July 2001, subject to a review by the Council of the mandate of the Mission in the event of any changes that may be made in the mandate or in the presence of the collective peacekeeping force, and expresses its intention to conduct a thorough review of the operation at the end of its current mandate, in the light of steps taken by the parties to achieve a comprehensive settlement;

16. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to keep the Council regularly informed and to report three months from the date of the adoption of the present resolution on the situation in Abkhazia, Georgia, and requests also the Secretary-General to provide for a briefing within three months on the progress of the political settlement, including on the status of the draft paper his Special Representative intends to submit to the parties as referred to in paragraph 3 above;

17. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Prior to the vote on the resolution, Georgia made a statement to the effect that the introduction of a new operative paragraph—paragraph 4—might jeopardize the upcoming third meeting on confidence-building measures and put the entire peace process on hold. The draft protocol and the draft agreement on peace guarantees referred to in that paragraph were unacceptable. The draft agreement, which it labelled dubious in many respects, was neither referred to in the Secretary-General's report nor discussed by the Council. Furthermore, it was not convinced that paragraph 4 as proposed would not be interpreted as exerting Council pressure on a Member State to enter into a peace agreement with a separate region, thus setting a dangerous precedent from the standpoint of international law. Stress should be placed, rather, on the need to accelerate work on the return of refugees and internally displaced persons to the Gali district, on the region's economic rehabilitation and on guarantees for the non-resumption of hostilities.

Communications. By a 27 February statement [S/2001/196], Georgia's Foreign Ministry stated that the Abkhaz regime's decision to hold self-styled local elections on 10 March was illegal and their results should be declared void. More than half the region's population had been expelled; the security and safety of the remaining Georgians were under constant threat, their basic human rights were regularly violated and free expression of the people's will was non-existent. It recalled the Security Council's reiteration in resolution 1287(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 387] that it considered unacceptable and illegitimate the holding of the self-styled referendum and elections in Abkhazia, Georgia. It further stated its belief that those unlawful elections created additional obstacles to the peace process, counteracted the good will of the Georgian Government and people, and undermined the international community's efforts to find a peaceful resolution, with full respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Georgia.

In a 19 March letter to the Council [S/2001/245], Georgia's President, Eduard Shevardnadze, noted that the deadlocked peace process in Abkhazia had led to the eviction of tens of thousands of people from their homes. He stated that further efforts should be directed towards reaching an agreement on the political status of Abkhazia, with full respect for Georgia's sovereignty and territorial integrity, and towards the unconditional and dignified return of all refugees and internally displaced persons to their homes. To those ends, Georgia proposed that the United Nations draft a document setting forth the basic principles on the distribution of constitutional competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi, to be debated and approved by the Security Council prior to its presentation to the two sides as a basis for further negotiations; and that decisive action be taken to ensure fulfilment of the Abkhaz regime's primary responsibility to secure the unconditional return of displaced persons, while asserting that there could be no linkage between the issue of Abkhazia's political status and the inalienable right of refugees and displaced persons to return home.

Ukraine, on 17 March [S/2001/242], transmitted to the Secretary-General the final documents of the third meeting on confidence-building measures between Georgia and Abkhazia (Yalta, 15-16 March), held under UN auspices within the framework of the Geneva peace process [YUN 1997, p. 365]. One was the Yalta Declaration, by which the two sides reaffirmed their commitments to the non-use of force in resolving their disputes and to create the conditions necessary for the safe return of refugees and internally displaced persons to their homes, the first phase being to the Gali district within the old borders. They asked the Special Representative to appeal to the United Nations, the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General, OSCE and CIS to guarantee the implementation of those commitments. The two sides further reaffirmed their commitment to observe their ceasefire accords and to prevent threats to the life and security of UNOMIG and CIS peacekeeping personnel.

The second document was a Programme of Action on confidence-building measures, to which was annexed a list of 15 specific measures in various fields, for the implementation of which they would provide organizational and technical support and create reporting channels and a database to record progress.

Ukraine, on 19 March [S/2001/247], referred to the foregoing meeting as having created a good platform for the conflicting sides to reach accord.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION (March)

The Security Council met twice on 21 March regarding the outcome of the third Georgia-Abkhaz meeting on confidence-building measures. The first Council meeting was held in private [meeting 4299], at which Ukraine briefed the Council on the subject.

At the second meeting [meeting 4300], following consultations among Council members, the President made statement S/PRST/2001/9 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the successful holding of the third meeting on confidence-building measures between the Georgian and Abkhaz sides in Yalta on 15 and 16 March 2001 and the resumption of dialogue between them, and notes the documents signed there. It hopes that action flowing from the Yalta meeting will lead to a narrowing of the positions of the two sides and stimulate further constructive dialogue aimed at achieving a comprehensive political settlement of the conflict, including a settlement of the political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia and other key issues. The Council underlines the contribution that confidence-building measures can bring to the peace process and commends the efforts by the Government of Ukraine in ensuring the success of the Yalta meeting.

The Council reaffirms its support for the efforts by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to enhance contacts at all levels between the Georgian and Abkhaz sides, in close cooperation with the Russian Federation, in its capacity as facilitator, the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The Council encourages the two sides to engage with renewed commitment in the peace process. The Council notes the stated willingness of the two sides to ensure favourable conditions for the continuation of the peace process, their stated commitment to the non-use of force and their stated determination to intensify efforts in order to create the necessary climate for the voluntary return of internally displaced persons and refugees in secure and dignified conditions. The Council also notes the important contribution that the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia and the collective peacekeeping force of the Commonwealth of Independent States continue to make in stabilizing the situation in the zone of conflict.

The Council underlines the unacceptability of the holding of self-styled local elections in Abkhazia, Georgia, on 10 March 2001, which it deems illegitimate and unhelpful. The organization of these elections represents an additional obstacle to the attempts to reach a comprehensive settlement of the conflict based on international law.

The Council stresses the importance of negotiations on the core political questions of the conflict. In this regard, it looks forward to the briefing to be provided by the Secretary-General on the progress of the political settlement, including on the status of the draft paper his Special Representative intends to submit to the two sides, as referred to in paragraph 16 of its resolution 1339(2001) of 31 January 2001.

The Council will remain actively seized of the matter and reaffirms its commitment to advancing the peace process.

Report of Secretary-General (April). In April [S/2001/401], the Secretary-General reported that no progress was achieved either on the fundamental issue of Abkhazia's future political status within the State of Georgia or on reaching agreement among the Group of Friends on the draft paper concerning the distribution of competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi, considered a prerequisite for presenting the text as a basis for negotiations. Moreover, in a 12 March letter, the Abkhaz leader, Vladislav Ardzinba, repeated his rejection of any discussion on the status question on the basis of an eventual draft paper. Nevertheless, key aspects of the question were addressed at a seminar (Pitsunda, Georgia, 12-13 February), which gave the Abkhaz and Georgian sides an opportunity to argue their positions on statehood and self-determination.

Referring to the third meeting on confidence-building measures, the Secretary-General observed that good-faith implementation by the two sides of their commitments would mark a qualitatively new stage in the confidence-building component of the peace process and would give a strong impetus to the settlement effort.

The Coordinating Council, chaired by the Special Representative, held its twelfth session (Sukhumi, 12 January). The two sides continued to use that Council's Working Groups I and III to expand direct bilateral contacts on security and economic issues. With UNHCR support, efforts were under way to revive Working Group II on refugees and internally displaced persons, but the Abkhaz side withdrew its agreement to participate in the scheduled April session of the Coordinating Council due to a serious deterioration in relations brought about by that month's violent events (see below).

The Abkhaz de facto authorities held "local elections" on 10 March, which the Special Representative, in a public statement, characterized as unacceptable and illegitimate. Similar statements were issued by the Council of Europe, OSCE and the Russian Federation's Ministry of Foreign Affairs. An exchange of letters took place between UNOMIG and the Abkhaz side concerning the violation of UNOMIG's freedom of movement in November 2000, when the Abkhaz side prohibited the overflight of territory under its control [YUN 2000, p. 397].

As to UNOMIG operations, the Secretary-General reported that the Special Representative obtained adequate security assurances from the Georgian authorities for patrolling in the upper Kodori Valley, which had been suspended following the December 2000 abduction of UNOMIG military observers [ibid.]. Based on those assurances and under revised UNOMIG security regulations, the Chief Military Observer decided to resume helicopter patrols over the Kodori Valley on 13 April. UNOMIG was also ready to resume ground patrols in the lower Valley in cooperation with the CIS peacekeeping force.

The overall situation in the conflict zone, particularly in the Gali region, remained volatile: 45 shooting incidents, 12 killings, 9 abductions, 8 mine blasts and 40 robberies were recorded. None directly targeted UNOMIG personnel. In response to a number of January clashes between Abkhaz and Georgian armed groups and attacks targeting the CIS peacekeeping force, UNOMIG increased patrols and defused tensions through its Joint Fact-finding Group and regular weekly quadripartite meetings with the two sides, UNOMIG and the CIS peacekeeping force. March saw incidents of recently laid landmines, as well as two bomb attacks on "election" day in the Gali district.

During April, a CIS vehicle was ambushed. An anti-tank mine was discovered on the beach some 400 metres from UNOMIG headquarters in Sukhumi, which a United Kingdom-based demining NGO dismantled. To stop an escalating cycle of violence between armed groups from the two sides that had been triggered by an ambush from the Georgian side on the main road north of Gali, the Special Representative, on 16 April, convened a meeting of the two sides at the main bridge over the Inguri River. In a signed Protocol, they agreed to verify the physical condition of all persons held, to transfer them to the custody of official structures and to hand over the bodies of those killed. In subsequent consultations with the two sides and separate meetings with Georgia's President and the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister", Anri Jergenja, the Special Representative urged them to implement the Protocol. The Abkhaz side had since reported to UNOMIG sightings of several armed groups crossing the ceasefire line into Abkhaz-controlled territory.

Faced with an increasing threat from landmines, UNOMIG enhanced its security measures to include the use of heavier mine- and ballistic-protected vehicles. In that regard, the Chief Military Observer took up with both sides the discovery of armour-piercing small arms ammunition at the site of the April firefights. UNOMIG introduced new security regulations for its staff in the Zugdidi sector in response to warnings from the Security Services there of possible abductions or hostage-taking by anti-Government groups.

Despite the continuing grave humanitarian situation in Abkhazia, humanitarian agencies continued to provide for much of the population's acute food and medical needs and to conduct mine clearance and small-scale rehabilitation programmes. UNHCR resumed limited operations in the Gali district, distributing building materials, school kits and hygiene parcels to schools serving returnee children. The work of NGOs continued to be hampered by border-crossing restrictions in the region.

The human rights situation in Abkhazia continued to be precarious. The killing in August 2000 of a legal assistant to the United Nations Human Rights Office in Sukhumi [YUN 2000, p. 395] remained unsolved. Nevertheless, that Office continued to monitor the practices of law enforcement agencies during pre-trial detention and criminal trials; to provide advisory services to the local population, mostly in cases involving the violation of ownership and property rights; and to conduct human rights education and training programmes. Particular attention was paid to the situation in the Gali district.

The Secretary-General observed that the attitude of blanket rejection adopted by the Abkhaz side was short-sighted and counterproductive. He appealed to all concerned to clear the way for the start of meaningful talks aimed at defining the status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia. He called on the two sides to implement without delay the recommendations of the 2000 joint assessment mission to the Gali district [ibid., p. 397], which were being finalized in consultation with the participating organizations, as well as their obligations under the 16 April 2001 Protocol, in particular the Georgian side's commitment to take effective measures to stop the activities of illegal armed groups crossing into the Gali district from the Georgian-controlled side of the ceasefire line. The Secretary-General stated that violations of UNOMIG's freedom of movement and the failure to bring to justice the perpetrators of the hostage-taking incidents that had targeted UNOMIG were not acceptable.

Communication. Georgia, in a 16 April statement [S/2001/377], while noting the positive developments aimed at reaching a settlement to the conflict in Abkhazia, Georgia, expressed concern over the recent violent events in the Gali district: the renewed activity of Abkhaz armed groups; a bus explosion that killed one civilian; a mine explosion that severely injured five children; the detainment of five civilians, two of whom were murdered; and the capture of a fishing boat with its five fishermen on the grounds that the boat was "in violation of Abkhaz territorial waters". Georgia thus called on the United Nations, the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General, OSCE, the Council of Europe, CIS and other international organizations to take immediate steps to improve the situation and not allow the escalating hostilities to jeopardize the peace process.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION (April)

The Security Council met twice on 24 April to consider the agenda item on the situation in Georgia. At the first meeting [meeting 4313], held in private, the Council heard a briefing by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General and Head of UNOMIG; at the second [meeting 4314], the President, following consultations among Council members, made statement S/PRST/2001/12 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council welcomes the briefing provided by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General, on 24 April 2001, in accordance with paragraph 16 of its resolution 1339(2001) of 31 January 2001. It welcomes also the presence of the Minister for Special Affairs of Georgia at its meeting.

The Council stresses that the continued lack of progress on key issues of a comprehensive settlement of the conflict in Abkhazia, Georgia, is unacceptable. It underlines the decisive importance of early negotiations on the core political questions of the conflict. It strongly supports, in this context, the efforts of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General to promote the achievement of a comprehensive political settlement based on the resolutions of the Security Council, which must include a settlement of the political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia.

The Council strongly supports, in particular, the intention of the Special Representative to submit, in the near future, his draft paper containing specific proposals to the parties on the question of the distribution of constitutional competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi. It calls on all those concerned to use their influence with a view to facilitating this process.

The Council welcomes the intention of the Special Representative to submit the draft paper to the parties soon, as a starting point for negotiation, and not as an attempt to impose or dictate any possible solution. It calls upon the parties constructively to accept the paper in this light and work towards a mutually acceptable settlement.

The Council will remain actively seized of the matter and reaffirms its commitment to advancing the peace process.

Communication. Belarus, on 20 June [S/2001/618], informed the Security Council of the 1 June decision of the Council of Heads of State of the Commonwealth of Independent States to extend the mandate of the CIS peacekeeping force in the conflict zone in Abkhazia, Georgia, until 31 December 2001.

Report of Secretary-General (July). The Secretary-General reported in July [S/2001/713] that, through the efforts of the Special Representative and the UNOMIG Chief Military Observer, the Georgian and Abkhaz sides, on 11 May, handed over the remains of those killed in the April firefights and exchanged all detainees. The lessening of tensions that followed allowed the seventh session of the Coordinating Council's Working Group I on security matters to be held (Sukhumi, 10 July) under the chairmanship of the Chief Military Observer. In a joint statement, the sides resolved to work together in a spirit of mutual trust in order to avoid further breaches of the 1994 Moscow Agreement [YUN 1994, p. 583], to reduce criminal activity and to bring criminals to justice.

On 8 and 9 July, two serious incidents in the Gulripshi area resulted in six people dead and two taken hostage outside UNOMIG's area of responsibility. In a 12 July statement, the Abkhaz side accused the Georgian side of involvement in those incidents. It cancelled its participation in the upcoming Coordinating Council session and refused to take part in a planned 16 July seminar on "State-legal aspects" of the settlement of the conflict—a follow-up to the February Pitsunda seminar (see p. 378)—to be held under the auspices of the Council of Europe.

Work on the issue of the future status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia intensified following Security Council statement S/PRST/2001/12 (see p. 379). The Group of Friends, in close consultation with the Special Representative, had accelerated the finalization of the draft paper on the distribution of competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi. The Special Representative visited Moscow in mid-July, where he met with high-ranking representatives of the Russian Federation, in its capacity as facilitator. The Abkhaz authorities reiterated their well-known position that any discussion of Abkhazia's political status was obsolete given its 1999 "Act on State Independence of the Republic of Abkhazia" [YUN 1999, p. 373].

Despite the unstable security situation in the zone of conflict, a steady return of internally displaced persons to the Gali region continued. In early May, the Special Representative submitted to the two sides the report of the 2000 joint assessment mission to the Gali district [YUN 2000, p. 397]; both sides informally indicated that the report was an objective representation of the situation and expressed willingness to discuss the implementation of its recommendations. On 15 June, in a major step towards confidence-building, the Abkhaz side handed over to the Georgian side the remains of the 15 Georgian soldiers killed in combat near Sukhumi in 1993.

UNOMIG continued its ground patrols from Sukhumi and the two sector headquarters in Gali and Zugdidi, along with its helicopter patrols. For security reasons, patrolling remained suspended in the upper Kodori Valley. A detailed regime for patrolling that region had been agreed upon between the Chief Military Observer and Georgia's Minister of Defence and was to be implemented as soon as the security situation allowed.

A series of hostage-taking incidents started in early April, and extensive UNOMIG efforts were required to bring the two sides together at the highest political level to prevent further escalation of the situation. Two Abkhaz delegates refused to attend the meetings of the Joint Fact-finding Group due to the failure of the Georgian authorities to take adequate measures to prevent the activities of illegal armed groups in the Gali region and to provide essential evidence in some investigation cases, which constituted a breach of the 2000 protocol for the joint investigation of violations of the Moscow Agreement [YUN 2000, p. 387]. Following the joint statement signed during the seventh session of Working Group I, however, both sides expressed readiness to strengthen their cooperation with the Joint Fact-finding Group, which had concluded its investigations in three cases: the 25 January fuel truck ambush; the 26 January anti-tank missile attack (see p. 375); and the April mine explosion in which five children were injured (see p. 379).

On 6 May, an Abkhaz customs officer driving a vehicle was stopped and taken by a group of armed men to the Georgian side of the ceasefire line. A meeting of the two sides, facilitated by UNOMIG and chaired by its Chief Military Observer, was held on 11 May at the main bridge over the Inguri River. That meeting led to the signing of a protocol in which the Georgian side agreed to consider evidence gathered by the Abkhaz side against three Georgians suspected of murder. It was also agreed that UNOMIG would verify the protocol's implementation. Immediately following the meeting, an exchange of hostages took place.

The reporting period saw the repeated violation of the Moscow Agreement. During a June NATO/Partnership for Peace military exercise, hosted by Georgia's armed forces and conducted in the Kulevi military manoeuvre area, UNOMIG's freedom of movement in that site was restricted. Georgian armoured personnel carriers and helicopters were observed operating in the restricted weapons zone. On 23 June, two Abkhaz armoured vehicles entered the restricted weapons zone during a military exercise and, on 7 July, a Georgian armoured personnel carrier was seen in the security zone. UNOMIG lodged protests with both sides for all those violations. The Georgian law enforcement agencies had begun a criminal case against two individuals suspected of involvement in the hostage-taking of UN observers, and measures were under way to arrest others involved.

A disturbing tendency by the two sides to restrict the movement of UNOMIG personnel had developed, thereby hindering UNOMIG's ability to fulfil its mandate. A serious instance of obstruction occurred on 30 April, when Abkhaz military personnel aimed a grenade launcher at a UNOMIG helicopter circling an Abkhaz observation post. On 14 June, the Georgian side prevented UNOMIG military observers from entering part of the restricted weapons zone. The next day, the same side advised UNOMIG against conducting helicopter flights over parts of its area of responsibility due to the ongoing military exercises; the situation was rectified following UNOMIG's protest.

On 30 April, the UNOMIG Zugdidi liaison team was detained for about four hours by a demonstration of some 100 internally displaced persons waiting to receive allowances from the Zugdidi Post Bank. The demonstrators demanded that the team contact the Minister for Distribution of Allowances to request that he negotiate with them. The team was released upon the arrival of the police and local authorities, but the demonstrators threatened to destroy UNOMIG's Zugdidi sector headquarters on 11 May if they had not received their allowances by 10 May. Despite UNOMIG's repeated requests, Georgian authorities failed to take measures to safeguard against that threat. On 11 May, quick police response to a demonstration outside the sector headquarters forestalled any damage.

With respect to the continued serious humanitarian situation in Abkhazia, Georgia, UNHCR initiated community-based rehabilitation of 14 schools requiring urgent attention in the upper and lower Gali regions and planned to expand its assistance to others. Despite the deplorable conditions found at many schools, they were attended by nearly 4,000 pupils in the 2000/01 school year. The rehabilitation of selected dispensaries and water purification systems would also be considered in 2001.

Violations of the right to life, the right to physical integrity and the right to liberty and security of person remained major issues of concern to the United Nations Human Rights Office in Abkhazia. The Office reported new cases of evictions and violations of the right to property, along with complaints about religious persecution. The number of abductions had markedly increased. The human rights situation remained particularly precarious in the Gali region, where the joint assessment mission had recommended the opening of a human rights branch office [YUN 2000, p. 397].

Encouraged by progress achieved within the Group of Friends on streamlining its position with regard to the draft paper on the distribution of competences, the Secretary-General appealed to the Group to complete that process with the cooperation of the Special Representative and said that the Abkhaz side should reconsider its position not to address the status question. He said both sides should work together to clarify the 8 and 9 July incidents (see p. 380), release the hostages and bring the perpetrators to justice. He further urged them to resume their work in the Coordinating Council as soon as possible.

The Secretary-General called on both sides to fulfil their commitments under the 1994 Quadripartite Agreement on the voluntary return of refugees and displaced persons [YUN 1994, p. 581] with renewed determination; invited them to implement the Yalta Programme of Action (see p. 377); and appealed for their full compliance with the Moscow Agreement. The Secretary-General concluded his report by recommending that UNOMIG's mandate be extended until 31 January 2002.

Communication. On 24 July [S/2001/733], Georgia expressed serious concern regarding the disruption by the Abkhaz side of the thirteenth

Georgian-Abkhaz Coordinating Council session scheduled for 17 July in Tbilisi. It said that such actions, designed to halt the peace process, were becoming routine. At the seventh session of Working Group I, the Georgian side had again underscored the need to create a joint action mechanism for the improvement of security conditions in the region. However, the Abkhaz side rejected all previous agreements and Georgian initiatives. Georgia claimed that returnees were being subjected to continuous violations of their fundamental rights by criminal elements and by the so-called law enforcement agencies of the illegitimate regime. Georgia also appealed for the resumption of dialogue between the sides.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION (July)

On 31 July [meeting 4353], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1364(2001), based on a draft [S/2001/747] prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling all its relevant resolutions, in particular resolution 1339(2001) of 31 January 2001, and the statements by its President of 21 March 2001 (S/PRST/2001/9) and 24 April 2001 (S/PRST/2001/12),

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General of 19 July 2001,

Recalling the conclusions of the Lisbon and Istanbul summits of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe regarding the situation in Abkhazia, Georgia,

Stressing that the continued lack of progress on key issues of a comprehensive settlement of the conflict in Abkhazia, Georgia, is unacceptable,

Deeply concerned by the interruption of negotiating activities following the killings and hostage-taking incidents in April and May 2001 in the district of Gali, on 8 and 9 July 2001 in the Gulripshi area and again on 22 July 2001 in Primorsk,

Expressing its regrets at the cancellation of the thirteenth session of the Coordinating Council of the Georgian and Abkhaz sides, initially scheduled for 17 July 2001, due to the withdrawal of the Abkhaz side following those incidents,

Recalling the relevant principles contained in the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel adopted on 9 December 1994,

Welcoming the important contributions that the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia and the collective peacekeeping force of the Commonwealth of Independent States continue to make in stabilizing the situation in the zone of conflict, noting that the working relationship between the Mission and the collective peacekeeping force has remained very close, and stressing the importance of close cooperation between them in the performance of their respective mandates,

Noting the invitation of the Georgian Government for the Security Council to dispatch a mission to the region,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General of 19 July 2001;

2. Regrets the deterioration of the situation in the zone of conflict due to the ongoing violence, hostage-taking incidents, the rise in criminality and the activities of illegal armed groups in the conflict zone, which constitutes a constant threat to the peace process;

3. Strongly supports the sustained efforts of the Secretary-General and his Special Representative, with the assistance of the Russian Federation, in its capacity as facilitator, as well as of the Group of Friends of the Secretary-General and of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, to promote the stabilization of the situation and the achievement of a comprehensive political settlement, which must include a settlement of the political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia;

4. Recalls the intention of the Special Representative to submit the draft paper on the question of the distribution of constitutional competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi as a basis for meaningful negotiations, and not as an attempt to impose or dictate any specific solution to the parties;

5. Stresses the importance of early submission to the parties of the paper as a starting point and significant catalyst for negotiations on a comprehensive political settlement, and deeply regrets that the Special Representative of the Secretary-General has not been in a position to do so;

6. Stresses also the need to accelerate work on the draft protocol on the return of the refugees to the Gali region and measures for economic rehabilitation, as well as on the draft agreement on peace and guarantees for the prevention and for the non-resumption of hostilities;

7. Calls upon the parties, in particular the Abkhaz side, to undertake immediate efforts to move beyond the impasse and to engage into negotiations on the core political questions of the conflict and all other outstanding issues in the United Nations-led peace process;

8. Welcomes the documents signed at the Yalta meeting on confidence-building measures in March 2001, and urges the Georgian and Abkhaz sides to implement the proposals agreed in those documents in a purposeful and cooperative manner;

9. Calls upon the parties to resume their work in the Coordinating Council and its relevant mechanisms as soon as possible;

10. Urges the parties to work together, through more effective use of existing arrangements within the Coordinating Council mechanisms, in order to clarify the incidents of 8, 9 and 22 July 2001, bring about the release of the hostages still being held and bring the perpetrators to justice;

11. Reaffirms the unacceptability of the demographic changes resulting from the conflict, and reaffirms also the inalienable right of all refugees and internally displaced persons affected by the conflict to return to their homes in secure and dignified conditions, in accordance with international law and as set out in the Quadripartite Agreement of 4 April 1994;

12. Further urges the parties, in this context, to address urgently and in a concerted manner, as a first step, the undefined and insecure status of spontaneous returnees to the Gali district, which remains an issue of serious concern;

13. Welcomes measures undertaken by the Government of Georgia, the United Nations Development Programme, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs and the World Bank to improve the situation of refugees and internally displaced persons to develop their skills and to increase their self-reliance with full respect for their inalienable right to return to their homes in secure and dignified conditions;

14. Recalls with satisfaction the joint assessment mission to the Gali district, carried out under the aegis of the United Nations, and looks forward to a discussion by the parties of practical steps to implement the mission's recommendations;

15. Deplores all violations of the Moscow Agreement of 14 May 1994 on a Ceasefire and Separation of Forces, and notes with particular concern the military exercises conducted by both parties in June and July 2001 in violation of the Moscow Agreement;

16. Expresses its concern at the disturbing tendency by the parties to restrict the freedom of movement of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia, thereby hindering the ability of the Mission to fulfil its mandate, urges both sides to return immediately to full compliance with the Moscow Agreement, which remains a cornerstone of the United Nations peace effort, and calls upon the parties to ensure the security and freedom of movement of United Nations and other international personnel;

17. Recalls that the Georgian and the Abkhaz sides bear the primary responsibility for the security of the Mission, the collective peacekeeping force of the Commonwealth of Independent States and other international personnel and for full compliance with all security arrangements agreed between them to preclude any further aggravation of the situation, and urges both parties to bring to justice the perpetrators of all hostage-taking incidents, particularly the abduction of two military observers of the Mission in the Kodori Valley on 10 December 2000;

18. Reminds the Georgian side in particular to uphold its commitment to put a stop to the activities of illegal armed groups crossing into Abkhazia, Georgia, from the Georgian-controlled side of the ceasefire line;

19. Welcomes the fact that the Mission is keeping its security arrangements under constant review in order to ensure the highest possible level of security for its staff;

20. Decides to extend the mandate of the Mission for a new period terminating on 31 January 2002, subject to a review by the Council of the mandate of the Mission in the event of any changes that may be made in the mandate or in the presence of the collective peacekeeping force of the Commonwealth of Independent States, and expresses its intention to conduct a thorough review of the operation at the end of its current mandate, in the light of steps taken by the parties to achieve a comprehensive settlement;

21. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to keep the Council regularly informed and to report three months from the date of the adoption of the present resolution on the situation in Abkhazia, Georgia, and requests also the Secretary-General to provide for a briefing within three months on the progress of the political settlement, including on the status of the draft paper his Special Representative intends to submit to the parties as referred to in paragraph 4 above;

22. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Communication. In a 16 July statement [S/2001/762], transmitted on 1 August, Georgia drew the international community's attention to the increasingly dangerous scale of the illegal exploitation of natural resources and other properties in the territory controlled by the separatist regime in Abkhazia, Georgia. It claimed that the Abkhaz separatist leadership continued, for the purpose of personal enrichment, to break up and plunder industrial and agricultural complexes and sell them to foreign entities, and that it misappropriated medical/resort facilities and adjacent territories. The international community and the Government of Georgia had unequivocally asserted on numerous occasions that the separatist regime's decisions regarding the utilization of real estate or any other property in the territory of Abkhazia were illegal and void. The scale of natural resources exploitation in Abkhazia violated Georgia's sovereign rights and caused serious damage to the environment. The felling of certain varieties of trees and forests protected under Georgia's endangered species list caused irreversible damage to the entire region's unique ecosystems. Georgia appealed to the international community and the global environment society to take steps to halt the irresponsible exploitation of the natural resources in Abkhazia, Georgia.

Security Council consultations. Following informal consultations on 8 October, the Security Council issued a press statement [S/2001/1298] strongly condemning the shooting down on that date of a UNOMIG helicopter near the Kodori Valley in Abkhazia, killing four UN observers, two local staff and three crew members. The Council offered its condolences to the bereaved families, and called for a speedy investigation into the incident and for bringing the perpetrators to justice. It underlined the importance of keeping security arrangements under constant review to ensure the highest possible level of security for UNOMIG personnel. It recalled that providing appropriate security conditions for UNOMIG's functioning at all times was the primary responsibility of both sides, pursuant to relevant Council resolutions and to their mutual obligations, including under the Yalta Declaration.

In further informal Council consultations on 12 and 29 October, the Secretariat gave a briefing on developments surrounding the incident. The remains of all nine victims had been recovered; UNOMIG had restricted movement in the region and drawn up preliminary staff relocation plans should they be needed. The investigation team, constituted on 14 October, was headed by Ukraine, the helicopter's country of registration. Its preliminary findings suggested that the crash had been caused by the impact of a surface-to-air missile fired from a portable launcher, probably by an armed infiltrator.

Report of Secretary-General (October). In an October report [S/2001/1008], the Secretary-General said the UNOMIG helicopter shot down on 8 October (see above) in the Gulripshi district of Abkhazia, Georgia, was on its way to resume patrolling in the upper Kodori Valley. The incident, he noted, marked a new low point in the situation in Georgia, which had been deteriorating in the past six months, adding that both sides had contributed to the current deplorable state of affairs. They had neglected essential political work within the mechanisms of the Geneva peace process, particularly the Coordinating Council; disregarded the implementation of agreed protocols; and failed to contain a situation with a clear potential for armed clashes. Since direct political contacts between the two sides had been reduced to a minimum, the efforts of the Special Representative and the Chief Military Observer since mid-August had focused on crisis management rather than on the promotion of a political settlement. The Special Representative was attempting through high-level political contacts with the two sides to re-establish dialogue between them and to revitalize existing negotiating mechanisms.

In August, the Russian Federation presented new proposals for the draft paper on distribution of competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi that suggested the inclusion of security guarantees. Following a series of meetings between the Special Representative and the Group of Friends in New York, Moscow and Tbilisi, it was further suggested that security guarantees be dealt with on a parallel track, based on the Yalta Declaration (see p. 377). The Group of Friends had yet to reach agreement on the basic paper for negotiations on the future political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia. A 1 August letter from the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" repeated the Abkhaz leadership's refusal to participate in any negotiations based on such a paper, claiming "State-legal relations" between Abkhazia and Georgia had broken off when the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics was still in existence.

The thirteenth session of the Coordinating Council, rescheduled for 9 October in Tbilisi, was postponed for the third time by the Special Representative due to insufficient political will on either side to engage in serious dialogue and to an increasing tendency to hold the peace process hostage to political demands. The implementation of agreed projects had almost come to a standstill, although some preparatory work within the framework of the Coordinating Council continued (see below).

On 18 October, the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" publicly suggested a closer association between Abkhazia and the Russian Federation. Russian officials at the highest levels, however, reaffirmed their commitment to Georgia's territorial integrity. Earlier, on 11 October, Georgia's Parliament adopted a resolution to replace the CIS peacekeeping force with an international peacekeeping mission without specifying its modalities.

Turning to UNOMIG's operations, the Secretary-General reported that, following abductions and counter-abductions in July and August, the Special Representative chaired an extraordinary ministerial meeting of both sides on 14 August, during which the parties agreed to locate, take into protective custody and return all abducted persons, and to combat illegal activities in the security zone. The first hostages were released two days later. The two sides increased their cooperation in the Joint Fact-finding Group, and participation by all parties in the Group's investigations markedly improved.

On 18 and 19 August, clashes between armed irregulars and Abkhaz security forces near the upper Kodori Valley, outside UNOMIG's area of responsibility, resulted in the death of four irregulars. According to local authorities in Tbilisi, the Abkhaz forces used two helicopters and a jet aircraft in the fighting, leading to Georgian accusations of Russian involvement. On 22 August, the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" claimed that 700 armed irregulars were massed on the Georgian side of the ceasefire line, in the northern part of UNOMIG's area of responsibility, poised to invade. The Abkhaz authorities responded with a partial military mobilization. To defuse tensions, UNOMIG's Chief Military Observer held meetings with top-level officials in Tbilisi and Sukhumi and received assurances that Georgia would prevent armed groups from crossing the ceasefire line. He further facilitated a meeting between the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" and the Georgian Minister of Special Affairs on 24 August in Sukhumi, followed by direct telephone contact between the former and Georgia's President. The armed irregulars appeared to withdraw from their positions and the Abkhaz authorities called off their partial mobilization. They also expressed readiness to return to the Coordinating Council.

Working Group I on security matters convened on 11 September in Tbilisi, during which the parties reaffirmed their commitment to the 1994 Moscow Agreement and recommended that: UNOMIG and the CIS peacekeeping force should resume regular patrols in the Kodori Valley; in the case of suspected summary execution during detention, UNOMIG medical personnel should be granted immediate access to conduct independent examination of the bodies; the Georgian side should report on criminal proceedings against the persons handed over to them on 11 May (see p. 381); both sides should locate persons still missing according to the 14 August protocol; and both sides should exchange written information about cases for investigation by the Joint Fact-finding Group during the weekly quadripartite meetings.

The situation worsened anew in the second week of September, when Georgian armed irregulars, together with fighters from the North Caucasus of predominantly Chechen origin, were in or near the Georgian-controlled upper Kodori Valley, as reported to UNOMIG by the Abkhaz side, at the same time that the Georgian authorities informed of the movement of three Abkhaz armoured vehicles to the Abkhaz-controlled lower Kodori Valley. A special UNOMIG helicopter patrol confirmed the presence of a field howitzer and two armoured personnel carriers at the Abkhaz checkpoint. At a UNOMIG-facilitated meeting on 28 September in Tbilisi, Georgia's President and the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" agreed to take steps to avert new fighting in and around the Kodori Valley. The Georgian side reportedly pledged to disperse the armed irregulars; the Abkhaz side pledged restraint in dealing with those irregulars, except in cases of criminal or unlawful activities, and appealed to the Group of Friends to help prevent new hostilities and provide security guarantees as requested in the Yalta Declaration. The Special Representative repeatedly urged Georgian officials to provide the necessary security guarantees for the resumption of UNOMIG patrols in the upper Kodori Valley.

Despite those undertakings, armed irregulars attacked an Abkhaz checkpoint in the village of Georgievskoe in the Abkhaz-controlled lower Kodori Valley on 3 and 4 October. One Abkhaz soldier and four civilians were killed, with five others reported missing. The Special Representative and the Chief Military Observer immediately held a series of meetings with senior government officials in Tbilisi to halt the escalation of violence. On 6 October, unknown irregulars attacked the Abkhaz security post in Tagiloni, near the ceasefire line; no casualties resulted. The assailants fled to the Georgian side of the ceasefire line.

Following the 8 October shooting down of the UNOMIG helicopter, the Special Representative travelled to Sukhumi to oversee rescue efforts and to meet with the Abkhaz leadership. On 9 October, he urged the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" to exercise restraint and not allow the fighting to spread to the upper Kodori Valley. The Abkhaz leadership and Georgia's President agreed to meet on the condition that the only issue to be addressed would be the de-escalation and the end of the ongoing fighting. Meanwhile, 12 local residents were killed in the village of Naa in continued fighting. On 9 October, two unidentified fighter aircraft attacked the villages of Georgievskoe and Chiena in the Abkhaz-controlled lower Kodori Valley and, later, two other aircraft bombed the village of Omarishara in the Georgian-controlled upper Kodori Valley. On 11 October, the Abkhaz side used artillery and airpower to drive the irregulars out of the lower valley, and, on 17 October, the Abkhaz side was again reported to have used helicopters and planes extensively against retreating irregulars about 10 kilometres from the border with the Russian Federation. The Georgian side again voiced suspicion of Russian involvement.

The Special Representative met with Georgia's President on 11 October to urge him to meet with the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" to avoid larger-scale hostilities, but no response had been received. The Georgian side was also urged not to send reinforcements or supplies into the area of fighting. Since 9 October, UNOMIG's Sukhumi headquarters and the Gali sector had been placed on high alert; operational patrolling from those sectors was suspended, but resumed on 18 October after the fighting had largely ended. Casualty estimates, in addition to civilians and UN staff, put those killed at 60 armed elements and about 16 Abkhaz troops; taken prisoner by Abkhaz forces were 10 irregulars.

Levels of crime remained high in the zone of conflict, especially in lower Gali. In some areas on the Abkhaz-controlled side of the ceasefire line, joint patrolling by Abkhaz militia, local residents and the CIS peacekeeping force helped reduce the level of lawlessness, and joint patrolling by Georgian police, local residents and the CIS peacekeeping force led to similar reductions on the Georgian side.

Due to the fighting in the Kodori Valley area and the volatile situation in Gali, many NGOs suspended their activities after 8 October. UNHCR expanded its school rehabilitation programme to 22 schools in the Gali district, as well as three schools in the Ochamchira district on a self-help basis; however, it still could not operate in the more remote and dangerous areas, such as Primorsk, where humanitarian needs were particularly urgent and only UNOMIG patrols had access. Restrictions on border crossings continued to hamper international NGOs, thus complicating the delivery of assistance and emergency evacuation planning.

Widespread organized crime, lack of effective law enforcement and the continuing stalemate regarding language policy in schools in the predominantly Georgian-speaking Gali district had adversely affected the return of displaced persons to their homes. Reports of human rights violations included harassment on ethnic and religious grounds, violations of fair trial standards and arbitrary and illegal detentions. The United Nations Human Rights Office handled individual complaints and monitored court sessions and detention facilities.

As a follow-up to the November 2000 joint assessment mission to the Gali district [YUN 2000, p. 397], Georgian and Abkhaz representatives and participants of the mission, on 24 September, explored ways to implement the mission's recommendations (see p. 380). Specific attention was given to progress in the return of displaced persons to the Gali district, human rights, public security and language of instruction. The issue of language was also taken up during a 20 September joint visit to the Gali district by the Georgian and Abkhaz Ministers of Education.

In his observations, the Secretary-General reminded both sides of their obligation to provide for the safety and security of UN personnel and to make it their top priority, emphasizing that perpetrators of criminal acts targeted against UNOMIG had to be brought to justice. He noted that the parties had neglected active work within the Geneva peace process mechanisms [YUN 1997, p. 365] and warned that the cancellation on three occasions of the Coordinating Council's thirteenth session over the past six months, twice at the Abkhaz side's request, threatened to defeat the purpose of that negotiating forum. Since the mechanisms had been set up to serve the parties' own security, especially in times of crises, he urged their immediate return to full participation in the Coordinating Council and in all its working groups.

The Secretary-General regretted the absence of meaningful negotiations on the future political status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia, as well as on the issue of facilitating the safe, secure and dignified return of the refugees and internally displaced persons to their homes. He noted that the promising Programme of Action on confidence-building measures had come to a standstill. In addition, he reminded the parties of their obligation to comply with the Moscow Agreement, the protocols agreed within the Coordinating Council framework and the commitments made during the weekly quadripartite meetings.

Security Council consideration. On 30 October, the Council held a private meeting [meeting 4400], during which the Special Representative, the Minister of Special Affairs of Georgia and the representative of Belgium held a constructive discussion on the situation in Georgia.

Further report of Secretary-General. In a later report [S/2002/88], the Secretary-General stated that the Special Representative, in consultation with the Group of Friends, was able to finalize in mid-December the paper on the "Basic Principles for the Distribution of Competences between Tbilisi and Sukhumi", which was to be presented to the Georgian and Abkhaz parties as a basis for substantive negotiations on the future status of Abkhazia within the State of Georgia. In preparation for those negotiations, the Special Representative held consultations in Sukhumi and Tbilisi; the Special Envoy of the Russian Federation also visited Sukhumi. At those consultations, the Abkhaz de facto "Prime Minister" rejected any suggestion that Abkhazia was "within the State of Georgia" and was not prepared to receive the letter transmitting the paper.

A major stumbling block had been the deployment since October of Georgian troops in the Kodori Valley because of the fighting and bombardments in the area. The Abkhaz side affirmed its unwillingness to discuss any subject with the Georgian side as long as those forces remained. The Special Representative repeatedly urged the Georgian side to withdraw its troops in compliance with the 1994 Moscow Agreement; the Group of Friends undertook a similar démarche on 14 December.

In the wake of the October hostilities in the Kodori Valley (see p. 385), contacts between the sides came practically to a standstill. No meetings within the Coordinating Council framework were held and no progress could be made on the implementation of the recommendations of the 2000 joint assessment mission to the Gali district. The lack of movement was partly attributable to internal developments on both sides. The dismissal of the Georgian Government on 1 November effectively immobilized the executive until mid-December. In Sukhumi, the Abkhaz leader was incapacitated by illness and the de facto "Prime Minister" faced a no-confidence vote in the Parliament on 31 October, which he overcame by 28 votes to 7.

controlled upper Kodori Valley, and, on 20 December, with the CIS peacekeeping force, resumed joint ground patrols in the Abkhaz-controlled lower Kodori Valley, which had been suspended owing to the October hostilities.

The Abkhaz side took responsibility for the 27 to 31 October air raids on the Marukh pass, near the Russian border, which had rendered the area relatively calm although unstable. On 10 November, an Abkhaz official was killed and another seriously wounded in an attack on the Tagiloni customs post on the Abkhaz side of the ceasefire line. On 17 November, an armed group ambushed a CIS peacekeeping force patrol north-east of Zugdidi, injuring one soldier. On 29 December, an armed group attacked the head of Pirveli Gali administration, who returned fire, killing one of the assailants. On three occasions in the second half of December, CIS peacekeeping force checkpoints came under small arms fire, injuring two soldiers.

As in the past, crime escalated in the Gali area with the beginning of the mandarin harvest, highlighting the weakness of law enforcement there. Abductions continued on both sides of the ceasefire line. Direct negotiations between Georgian and Abkhaz local authorities resulted in an exchange, on 15 and 31 December, of four Abkhaz and the remains of two for the remains of five Georgians. The Abkhaz side still held at least four civilians and five fighters taken prisoner in October.

Two mine incidents in the Gali region involving local civilians, and two in the Kodori Valley involving CIS patrols, led UNOMIG to suspend its patrolling in those sites until mine searches were undertaken by the CIS patrols. Restrictions were also imposed in the Zugdidi sector following the discovery of two containers with radioactive materials near Potskhodzteri at the end of December.

UNHCR had almost completed the rehabilitation of 24 schools in the Gali district and provided assistance to elderly displaced persons in Sukhumi. In November, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the German Government signed an agreement whereby UNDP would implement a telecommunications rehabilitation programme, which would serve displaced persons and returnees on both sides of the ceasefire line, extend links to Sukhumi and connect Tbilisi and the upper Kodori Valley. The Georgian and Abkhaz sides jointly identified the programme needs under the auspices of Working Group III of the Coordinating Council on socio-economic issues, for which the German Government granted an initial contribution of $150,000.

From 12 to 16 December, the United Nations Human Rights Office in Abkhazia conducted a human rights training seminar for de facto Abkhaz law enforcement agencies. Violation of the right to freedom of speech had been of serious concern, in particular a harassment campaign against the editor of a weekly publication and members of her family.

Financing

On 14 June [meeting 103], the General Assembly, having considered the Secretary-General's reports on UNOMIG's financial performance for the period 1 July 1999 to 30 June 2000 [A/55/682], the proposed budget for the Mission's maintenance from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 [A/55/768] and ACABQ's comments and recommendations thereon [A/55/874/Add.4], adopted without vote, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/55/968], resolution 55/267 [agenda item 144].

Financing of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia and the related reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 854(1993) of 6 August 1993, by which the Council approved the deployment of an advance team of up to ten United Nations military observers for a period of three months and the incorporation of the advance team into a United Nations observer mission if such a mission was formally established by the Council,

Recalling also Security Council resolution 858(1993) of 24 August 1993, by which the Council decided to establish the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Observer Mission, the latest of which was resolution 1339(2001) of 31 January 2001,

Recalling further its decision 48/475 A of 23 December 1993 on the financing of the Observer Mission and subsequent resolutions and decisions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 54/271 of 15 June 2000,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated by the General Assembly in its resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Observer Mission,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Observer Mission with the necessary financial resources to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia as at 30 April 2001, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 19.8 million United States dollars, representing 14 per cent of the total assessed contributions from the inception of the Observer Mission to the period ending 30 June 2001, notes that some 16 per cent of the Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States concerned, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

2. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full;

3. Urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Observer Mission in full and on time;

4. Expresses concern at the delay experienced by the Secretary-General in deploying and providing adequate resources to some recent peacekeeping missions, in particular those in Africa;

5. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

6. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

7. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to make the fullest possible use of facilities and equipment at the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, in order to minimize the costs of procurement for the Observer Mission;

8. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to take all necessary action to ensure that the Observer Mission is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

10. Also requests the Secretary-General, in order to reduce the cost of employing General Service staff, to continue efforts to recruit local staff for the Observer Mission against General Service posts, commensurate with the requirements of the Mission;

11. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia the amount of 27,896,341 dollars gross (26,175,806 dollars net) for the maintenance of the Observer Mission for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002, inclusive of the amount of 816,452 dollars gross (716,517 dollars net) for the support account for peacekeeping operations and the amount of 85,289 dollars gross (76,589 dollars net) for the United Nations Logistics Base;

12. Decides also to apportion among Member States the amount of 2,324,695 dollars gross (2,181,317 dollars net) for the period from 1 to 31 July 2001 in accordance with the levels set out in General Assembly resolution 55/235, as adjusted by the Assembly in its resolution 55/236 of 23 December 2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2001, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B of 23 December 2000;

13. Decides further that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 12 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 143,378 dollars approved for the Observer Mission for the period from 1 to 31 July 2001;

14. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 25,571,646 dollars gross (23,994,489 dollars net) for the period from 1 August 2001 to 30 June 2002, at a monthly rate of 2,324,695 dollars gross (2,181,317 dollars net), in accordance with paragraph 12 above, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the years 2001 and 2002, as set out in General Assembly resolution 55/5 B, subject to the decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Observer Mission beyond 31 July 2001;

15. Decides also that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 14 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 1,577,157 dollars approved for the period from 1 August 2001 to 30 June 2002;

16. Decides further that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Observer Mission, there shall be set off against the apportionment, as provided for in paragraphs 12 and 14 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance of 5,996,479 dollars gross (5,775,479 dollars net) in respect of the period ending 30 June 2000, of which 2,324,695 dollars gross (2,181,317 dollars net) pertains to the period from 1 to 31 July 2001 and 3,671,784 dollars gross (3,594,162 dollars net) pertains to the period from 1 August 2001 to 30 June 2002, in accordance with the composition of groups as set out in paragraphs 3 and 4 of General Assembly resolution 43/232 of 1 March 1989 and adjusted by the Assembly in subsequent relevant resolutions and decisions for the ad hoc apportionment of peacekeeping appropriations, the latest of which were resolution 52/230 of 31 March 1998 and decisions 54/456 to 54/458 of 23 December 1999 for the period 1998-2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2000, as set out in its resolutions 52/215 A of 22 December 1997 and 54/237 A of 23 December 1999;

17. Decides that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Observer Mission, their share of the unencumbered balance of 5,996,479 dollars gross (5,775,479 dollars net) for the period ending 30 June 2000, of which 2,324,695 dollars gross (2,181,317 dollars net) pertains to the period from 1 to 31 July 2001 and 3,671,784 dollars gross (3,594,162 dollars net) pertains to the period from 1 August 2001 to 30 June 2002, shall be set off against their outstanding obligations in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 16 above;

18. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

19. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel under the auspices of the United Nations participating in the Observer Mission;

20. Invites voluntary contributions to the Observer Mission in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

21. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-sixth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia".

The Assembly decided, on 24 December, that the item on UNOMIG financing would remain for consideration at its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session (decision 56/464) and that the item would be considered by the Fifth Committee at that session (decision 56/458).

Also in December [A/56/721 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General submitted the UNOMIG financial performance report for the period 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001.

Georgia–Russian Federation

On 29 October [S/2001/1022], Georgia claimed violation of its airspace and bombing of its territory on 28 and 29 October by warplanes from the Russian Federation. Georgia's repeated demands for an explanation and joint investigation into previous such violations had had no response. It therefore appealed to the Security Council and the world community to assess the situation and take steps to prevent aggression against Georgia.

On 15 November [A/56/633-S/2001/1085], the Russian Federation noted that it had fulfilled the key obligations specified in its 17 November 1999 joint statement with Georgia concerning the modalities for fulfilling the conditions laid down in the adapted Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE) and for regulating military bilateral ties. The remaining Russian weapons and equipment in Georgia subject to the CFE Treaty were withdrawn before 31 December 2000 or partially disposed of on the spot in conditions of transparency and under international monitoring. The disbandment and withdrawal of Russian military bases at Vaziani and Gudauta were completed in November in accordance with bilateral Georgia-Russian Federation agreements. The departure of Russian military personnel from the Gudauta base, located within the Georgian-Abkhaz conflict area, was protested by Abkhazia's population, who considered their presence a security guarantee in times of armed conflict. The facilities left behind were currently in use by the CIS peacekeeping force for its operations, which were under UNOMIG monitoring. Moscow and Tbilisi had yet to reach an agreement regarding the Russian military bases at Batumi and Akhalkalaki and other military facilities within Georgia; meanwhile, account should be taken of the considerable preparatory arrangements to be made for the return of the servicemen at those bases to the Russian Federation.

Georgia reported further violations of its airspace on 28 November [A/56/664-S/2001/1124] by two Russian military jets that overflew the Kodori gorge, and, on the previous night, by six jets that penetrated 50 kilometres into Georgia's airspace, bombing the territory adjacent to Birkani village, in the Akmeta district, as well as by military helicopters that carried out several air strikes on Georgian territory near the Chechnya and Ingushetia sections of the Georgia-Russian Federation border, including the outskirts of six villages in the area. Calling those violations undisguised aggression, Georgia warned that, if not suppressed, they could exacerbate the instability in the Caucasus. It was imperative for the international community to raise its voice against the violation of internationally accepted principles of peaceful coexistence. It demanded that the Russian Federation cease its repeated acts of aggression against Georgia, which reserved its right to take adequate steps as provided by international law.

Armenia-Azerbaijan

In 2001, Armenia and Azerbaijan were no closer to reaching a settlement of the armed conflict between them, which had erupted in 1992 [YUN 1992, p. 388] over the Nagorny-Karabakh region in Azerbaijan. The Minsk Group of OSCE (France, the Russian Federation and the United States) continued efforts to advance the peace process. In that context, the United States, one of the co-chairs of the Minsk Group, convened a meeting of the parties in Florida. Both sides addressed communications to the Secretary-General during the year regarding developments in the conflict. Nagorny Karabakh's communications were transmitted by Armenia.

Communications. On 4 April [A/56/62-S/2001/334], Azerbaijan transmitted to the Secretary-General a statement by its President, Heydar Aliyev, made at a meeting (Key West, Florida, 3 April) with the United States Secretary of State, Colin Powell, the Presidents of Armenia and Azerbaijan and co-chairs of the Minsk Group. President Aliyev said it was the first time the OSCE Minsk Group had convened with the Presidents of Armenia and Azerbaijan and other participants to discuss the question of the peaceful settlement of the Armenian-Azerbaijani Nagorny-Karabakh conflict. He hoped the meeting would play a positive role in resolving the 12-year conflict.

The President outlined the reasons preventing a settlement of the conflict, tracing its history from 1921. He recalled the direct meetings between the Presidents of Armenia and Azerbaijan that began in April 1999 on the initiative of the United States in a search for mutually acceptable compromises, pointing out that, at the end of that year, they were close to doing so. Armenia, however, reneged on the agreement reached. Unfortunately, as a result of those meetings, the co-chairs of the Minsk Group had adopted a wait-and-see position and had based their activities on the principle "What the Presidents agree upon will be acceptable to OSCE".

Azerbaijan did not consider the Presidents' meetings as replacing the activities of the co-chairs of the Minsk Group, but as mutually complementary to ensure progress in the negotiations towards a final settlement of the conflict. Azerbaijan remained committed to peace and the observance of the 1994 ceasefire regime [YUN 1994, p. 577], and would continue to strive for a complete and peaceful settlement of the conflict. The President called on the co-chairs of the Minsk Group to step up efforts to halt the armed conflict and establish stable peace.

Azerbaijan also requested that the item "The situation relating to Nagorno Karabakh" be retained on the list of matters of which the Security Council was seized [S/2001/422].

In response, the "Minister for Foreign Affairs of Nagorno Karabakh", in a 30 April letter transmitted by Armenia [A/56/64-S/2001/431], submitted a memorandum outlining Nagorno Karabakh's version of the region's history in order to prevent a one-sided interpretation of past events and to establish an objective historical basis in the search for a settlement to the conflict. The "Republic of Nagorno Karabakh" had refrained from discussing the problems of the past in the belief that it was unproductive and that both sides should concentrate on building a peaceful and stable future for the region.

On 16 May [A/56/75-S/2001/489], Azerbaijan rejected references to "Nagorno Karabakh" as a country and any attempt to disseminate within the United Nations the notion of Nagorno Karabakh as an independent entity. Armenia's circulation of the memorandum above was testimony to its direct participation in the conflict and to its aggressive and annexationist plans towards Azerbaijan.

By a 31 August statement [S/2001/844], the Chairman of the Milli Mejlis (Parliament) of Azerbaijan reported that "elections" were to be held on 5 September for local self-government bodies in the so-called "Nagorno-Karabakh Republic". The "elections", aimed at "legitimizing" the so-called "Nagorno-Karabakh Republic", contradicted the principles and norms of international law, the Constitution and laws of Azerbaijan and commonly accepted moral norms and values; they were null and void and had no legal consequences. It was another act of political provocation that would negatively affect the ongoing negotiations on the peaceful settlement of the Nagorno-Karabakh problem, in particular the mediation efforts of the Minsk Group.

The Chairman urged the international community not to remain indifferent to the fact that the occupation forces in Nagorno Karabakh were flagrantly defying the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Republic of Azerbaijan. He called on the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, the Inter-Parliamentary Union, the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly, the Parliamentary Assembly of the Black Sea Economic Cooperation, the CIS Inter-Parliamentary Assembly and the Parliamentary Union of the Member States of the Organization of the Islamic Conference, as well as the European Parliament and the North Atlantic Assembly, to condemn the act of political provocation and to support the just cause of Azerbaijan.

Cyprus

The year 2001 saw a significant breakthrough in UN efforts, through the Secretary-General's mission of good offices, in preparing the groundwork for meaningful negotiations towards a comprehensive settlement of the Cyprus question. For the first time, the President of Cyprus, Glafcos Clerides, and the Turkish Cypriot leader, Rauf R. Denktas, agreed to begin direct talks without preconditions until a comprehensive settlement was achieved. Those talks were scheduled to begin in January 2002 in Cyprus.

The United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus (UNFICYP) continued to assist in the restoration of normal conditions and in humanitarian functions. No progress was made during the year in removing the restrictions imposed in 2000 on UNFICYP by the Turkish Cypriot authorities and Turkish forces. The Security Council twice extended the UNFICYP mandate, the second time until 15 June 2002.

By decision 55/491 of 7 September, the General Assembly included in the draft agenda of its fifty-sixth (2001) session the item entitled "Question of Cyprus". On 24 December, by decision 56/464, it decided that the item would remain for consideration during its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session.

Incidents

Communications. Throughout 2001, the Secretary-General received numerous letters from the Government of Cyprus and from the Turkish Cypriot authorities containing charges and countercharges, protests and accusations, and explanations of position regarding the question of Cyprus. The letters from the "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus" were transmitted by Turkey.

In communications dated between 30 January and 2 November, Cyprus alleged massive violations of its national airspace and unauthorized intrusions into Nicosia's flight information region by Turkish military aircraft, while those from the "Representative of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus" claimed, in refutation, the existence of two independent States in Cyprus and that the flights took place within the sovereign airspace of the "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus" [A/55/755-S/2001/96, A/55/776-S/2001/119, A/55/854-S/2001/272, A/55/893-S/2001/343, A/55/990-S/2001/599, A/55/1025-S/2001/765, A/55/476-S/2001/972, A/55/525-S/2001/1044].

In other communications, Cyprus, on 13 February [A/55/782-S/2001/133], responding to a December 2000 letter from Turkey [A/55/715-S/2000/1231], described events that had led to Security Council resolution 186(1964) [YUN 1964, p. 165] and affirmed the continued operation of the 1960 Constitution of Cyprus, subject to necessary temporary modifications. Cyprus also protested what it called the illegal visit of Turkey's Minister for Foreign Affairs to the Turkish occupied areas of Cyprus between 16 and 18 April [A/55/909-S/2001/395].

The "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus" gave its own position on various aspects of the Cyprus situation and drew attention to statements made by the representatives of what it called the Greek Cypriot administration in several UN bodies, which it described as containing misrepresentations [A/55/1004-S/2001/645, A/56/504-S/2001/1006, A/55/790-E/2001/6, A/55/865-S/2001/229, A/55/976-S/2001/548, A/55/987-S/2001/576, A/56/669-S/2001/1139, A/56/690-S/2001/1165, A/56/700-S/2001/1187, A/56/755-S/2001/1256]. Both sides also made claims and counterclaims regarding: the arrest and sentencing of a Greek Cypriot, Panicos Tsiakourmas, and the arrest of a Turkish Cypriot, Omer Gazi Tekogul [A/55/737-S/2001/58, A/55/895-S/2001/345, A/55/922-S/2001/427, A/55/932-S/2001/457, A/55/993-S/2001/628]; the issue of the excavations at the archaeological site of Salamis [A/55/1026-S/2001/778, A/55/1032-S/2001/853]; the 10

October judgement in the case of Cyprus v. Turkey by the European Court of Human Rights [A/55/986-S/2001/575, A/55/1012-S/2001/678 & Corr.1, A/55/1030-S/2001/824]; and the application of Cyprus for membership in the EU [A/55/899-S/2001/356, A/56/451-S/2001/953, A/56/669-S/2001/1186, A/56/723-S/2001/1222]. On the last issue, the United Kingdom, on 5 November [A/56/612-S/2001/1059], disagreed with Turkey's assertions that Cyprus's application for EU membership was illegal and that the United Kingdom was obliged by the terms of the 1960 Treaty of Guarantee to veto that application.

Good offices mission

Proximity talks

The Secretary-General's Special Adviser on Cyprus, Alvaro de Soto, continued efforts during 2001 to convene the sixth round of proximity talks, scheduled for January, in Geneva, between the two Cyprus parties, led by Cyprus President Glafcos Clerides and Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf R. Denktas, to prepare for meaningful negotiations towards a comprehensive settlement. In his May report on UNFICYP [S/2001/534], the Secretary-General reported that Mr. de Soto travelled to the island in January for meetings with the two leaders, as well as to Greece and Turkey. Mr. Denktas had asked that no date be set for proximity talks. However, the Special Adviser continued to consult with a number of Governments and organizations and was proceeding with preparations so as to be of assistance to the parties when appropriate.

The Secretary-General later reported that he had met with Mr. Denktas in Salzburg, Austria, on 28 August [S/2001/1122], while his Special Adviser returned to Cyprus, remaining there from 29 August to 5 September. On 4 September, the Special Adviser conveyed to Mr. Clerides and Mr. Denktas the Secretary-General's invitation to resume the search for a comprehensive settlement in a new and reinvigorated phase of his good offices, beginning with separate meetings with the two leaders in New York on 12 September. That invitation was accepted by Mr. Clerides, but declined by Mr. Denktas.

Security Council consideration. On 26 September [S/2001/976], the Security Council President issued a press statement in which the Council expressed disappointment at the unjustified decision by the Turkish side to decline the Secretary-General's invitation and reaffirmed that progress could be made only at the negotiating table. The Council encouraged the Secretary-General and his Special Adviser to continue their efforts in accordance with resolution 1250(1999) [YUN 1999, p. 388] and gave full support to those efforts. It urged all concerned to cooperate with the Secretary-General and his Special Adviser and to show confidence in their judgement.

Communications. Mr. Denktas, "President of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus", in a 10 September letter transmitted by Turkey on 9 October [A/56/461-S/2001/959], informed the Secretary-General that he had declined to attend the proposed New York talks because he considered them premature. He reiterated that the Greek Cypriot's rejection of the Secretary-General's 12 September 2000 statement [SG/SM/7546], setting out his understanding of the status of the parties to the negotiations, had left no common ground for engaging in meaningful talks. The treatment of the Greek Cypriot side by all concerned as the legitimate Government of Cyprus and frequent statements to the effect that, "agreement or not", Cyprus would be accepted as an EU member, left no will or wish on the part of the Greek Cypriot leadership to share anything with the Turkish Cypriot side. Those developments had undermined the chances of success of the Secretary-General's mission of good offices. While convinced of the imperative to prepare the ground for meaningful negotiations, Mr. Denktas needed proof that the ground was really prepared so that the parties would not engage in yet another futile exercise. For those reasons, he was insisting on "common ground" with respect to the objective (the establishment of a new partnership) and guiding principles (the equal status of the parties and that neither could represent the other or the whole of Cyprus) before starting a new phase of reinvigorated and meaningful negotiations. Thus, securing a commitment from the two parties that the purpose of the UN-facilitated talks was the establishment of a new partnership based on the equal status of both would prepare the ground for the proposed reinvigorated phase of the talks.

The EU, in a 23 October statement on Cyprus [S/2001/1017], supported the Council President's 26 September statement (see p. 391), in particular the disappointment expressed at the Turkish side's refusal to take part in the 12 September meeting. It backed the Secretary-General's efforts to resume, without preconditions, the search for a comprehensive and lasting settlement and called on all parties involved to cooperate in the process for achieving a political settlement before the end of negotiations for the accession of Cyprus to the EU.

Agreement on direct talks

Turkey, on 14 November [A/56/622-S/2001/1077], transmitted a 12 November letter from Mr. Denktas, enclosing a paper entitled "Objectives and basic parameters of a Cyprus settlement", which formed the basis of his position during the 28 August meeting with the Secretary-General (see p. 391). According to Mr. Denktas, those parameters were in line with the ideas and principles that had emerged from the Secretary-General's good offices mission and reflected the realities of the island, as well as the objective of establishing a new partnership between the two parties.

The Secretary-General reported in November [S/2001/1122] that, following a proposal made directly to Mr. Clerides by Mr. Denktas for a face-to-face meeting without preconditions on the island, the two agreed through an exchange of letters to meet on 4 December in the United Nations Protected Area, in the presence of the Special Adviser.

On 10 December [S/2001/1162], the Secretary-General informed the Security Council that, at the 4 December meeting, the two leaders agreed that: the Secretary-General, in the exercise of his good offices mission, would invite them to direct talks to be held in Cyprus in mid-January 2002 on UN premises, with no preconditions; all issues would be on the table; negotiations would continue in good faith until a comprehensive settlement was achieved; and nothing would be agreed until everything was agreed. In transmitting the agreement to the Council, the Secretary-General indicated that the talks would begin on 16 January 2002.

The Council, in a 12 December press statement by its President [SC/7237], welcomed the agreement reached by the two leaders to begin direct talks and other positive developments and hoped that progress would be achieved resulting in a comprehensive settlement. The Council gave its full support to the Secretary-General's mission of good offices and encouraged him and his Special Adviser to continue to be of assistance to the parties.

Continuation of good offices mission

The Secretary-General, on 31 May [S/2001/556], drew the Security Council's attention to the fact that efforts related to his mission of good offices in Cyprus would continue at least throughout 2001. In furtherance of that mission, his Special Adviser would continue to be assisted by a small team. He asked the Council President to alert Council members to the importance of continuing support for his efforts in discharging his mission. The Council took note of the Secretary-General's letter on 5 June [S/2001/557].

The Secretary-General, on 5 December [S/2001/1182], informed the Council that the efforts relating to his mission would continue at least throughout 2002, which the Council took note of on 12 December [S/2001/1183].

UNFICYP

The United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus, established by Security Council resolution 186(1964) [YUN 1964, p. 165], continued in 2001 to monitor the ceasefire lines between the Turkish and Turkish Cypriot forces on the northern side and the Cypriot National Guard on the southern side of the island; to maintain the military status quo and prevent a recurrence of fighting; and to undertake humanitarian and economic activities. In the absence of a formal ceasefire agreement, the military status quo, as recorded by UNFICYP in 1974, remained the standard by which the Force judged whether changes constituted violations of the status quo.

UNFICYP, under the overall authority of the Acting Special Representative and Chief of Mission, Zbigniew Wlosowicz, continued to keep the area between the ceasefire lines, known as the buffer zone, under constant surveillance through a system of observation posts, and through air, vehicle and foot patrols.

During 2001, Alvaro de Soto continued as the Secretary-General's Special Adviser on Cyprus. On 6 December [S/2001/1184], the Secretary-General informed the Council of his intention to appoint Major General Jin Ha Hwang (Republic of Korea) as Force Commander, to succeed Major General Victory Rana (Nepal), whose tour of duty would end on 15 December. The Council noted that intended appointment on 12 December [S/2001/1185].

As at 31 December, UNFICYP, under the command of Major General Jin Ha Hwang, comprised 1,196 troops and 35 civilian police.

Activities

Report of Secretary-General (May). The Secretary-General, in his report covering developments and UNFICYP activities from 28 November 2000 to 29 May 2001 [S/2001/534], said that, except for a few minor incidents, the situation along the ceasefire line remained calm. Air violations in the UN buffer zone had decreased from 47 during the last reporting period [YUN 2000, p. 404] to 33. Since December 2000, the National Guard had developed two major defensive works on its ceasefire line just outside the UN buffer zone near Pyla. In response, the Turkish forces constructed two berms and dug 120 metres of a new trench between existing positions at a Turkish forces post. Despite repeated UNFICYP demands, the Turkish forces had refused to return that post to the status quo ante and had recently added a barbed wire fence to the north of that position. Reinforced concrete firing positions were also being installed along much of the National Guard ceasefire line.

Crossings of the maritime security lines (the seaward extensions of the median line of the buffer zone) continued as well. Restrictions imposed on UNFICYP by Turkish Cypriot authorities and Turkish forces in 2000 [ibid.] remained in force, including violation of the military status quo by the Turkish forces/Turkish Cypriot security forces in the village of Strovilia. Restrictions imposed along the Famagusta-Dherinia road continued to prevent UNFICYP from monitoring the whole of the fenced area of Varosha, limiting UNFICYP's observation to areas visible from static observation posts and from a short patrol route well away from the fence. Within Varosha, Turkish forces continued renovations of some buildings and flew flags on one of them in violation of the military status quo. Some tension developed in April in the mixed village of Pyla in the buffer zone as a result of the raising of Turkish and Turkish Cypriot flags in several locations, in violation of the agreement reached among the two communities in the village and UNFICYP.

UNFICYP assisted civilian activities in the buffer zone, by, for example, facilitating work to improve the water supply to the north and escorting farmers working on their land. In April, it also facilitated a visit by some 250 Greek Cypriots to a church in the buffer zone near Varosha, north-west of Lefka, to mark Saint George's Day. UNDP, through the United Nations Office for Project Services (UNOPS), continued to implement its programme to promote good will by encouraging Greek and Turkish Cypriots to work together in preparing and implementing projects of mutual concern, notably in public health, environment, sanitation, water, urban renovation, preservation of cultural heritage, natural resources and education.

The Secretary-General remarked that the conditions under which UNFICYP operated remained difficult owing to the restrictions imposed on it by the Turkish Cypriot authorities and Turkish forces. He considered the presence of UNFICYP essential for the maintenance of the ceasefire on the island and recommended that the Council extend its mandate for a further six months, until 15 December 2001.

Communications. In letters to the Secretary-General between February and June, the Government of Cyprus, representatives of the "Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus" and Turkey continued to debate the legal necessity for approval by both sides of the extension of UNFICYP's mandate [A/55/784-S/2001/136, A/55/866-S/2001/307, A/55/949-S/2001/507, A/55/970-S/2001/541, A/55/1003-S/2001/644].

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 15 June [meeting 4328], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1354(2001). The draft [S/2001/581] was prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General of 30 May 2001 on the United Nations operation in Cyprus, in particular the call to the parties to assess and address the humanitarian issue of missing persons with due urgency and seriousness,

Noting that the Government of Cyprus has agreed that in view of the prevailing conditions in the island it is necessary to keep the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus beyond 15 June 2001,

Welcoming and encouraging efforts by the United Nations to sensitize peacekeeping personnel in the prevention and control of HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases in all its peacekeeping operations,

1. Reaffirms all its relevant resolutions on Cyprus, in particular resolutions 1251(1999) of 29 June 1999 and subsequent resolutions;

2. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus for a further period ending 15 December 2001;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report, by 1 December 2001, on the implementation of the present resolution;

4. Urges the Turkish Cypriot side and Turkish forces to rescind the restrictions imposed on 30 June 2000 on the operations of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus, and to restore the military status quo ante at Strovilia;

5. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Report of Secretary-General (November). In November [S/2001/1122], the Secretary-General reported fewer incidents along the ceasefire lines. However, the restrictions imposed on UNFICYP operations continued, including the violation of the military status quo in Strovilia. Patrols to Varosha, which were prevented under those restrictions, resumed in September but under escort by Turkish Cypriot security forces. The number of air violations remained about the same, and crossings of the maritime security lines totalled about 250 crossings by Turkish forces of the western line and some 3,000 in the east near Famagusta from the south. Incursions in the buffer zone by Greek Cypriot hunters increased significantly in November with the beginning of the winter hunting season.

The National Guard continued to develop and strengthen the two defensive positions (see p. 393) just outside the buffer zone south of Pyla, reportedly to compensate for the minefield linking the two positions, which was being demined. The Turkish forces, for their part, reinforced their observation post adjacent to Pyla.

UNFICYP helped to facilitate monthly meetings of political party representatives from both sides, media gatherings, music rehearsals and a business forum at Ledra Palace. It continued its humanitarian support to 427 Greek Cypriots and 165 Maronites in the northern part of the island and those Turkish Cypriots in the southern part who had made themselves known to UNFICYP. It also facilitated the rotation of teachers at the Greek elementary school in Rizokarpaso in the Karpas peninsula. UNFICYP support of civilian activities in the buffer zone continued, including farming, liaison with local representatives to solve water problems, coordinating maintenance work on utilities, extending the Klimos river wall in Sector 2 to prevent flooding and reconstruction of a 73-bed hospital in Paralimni in Sector 4. UNFICYP also designated land in the buffer zone west of Nicosia for civilian use, mainly for housing. In Pyla, it brokered an agreement between Greek and Turkish Cypriot village leaders on road safety measures.

Efforts continued in overcoming obstacles to enable the Committee on Missing Persons to resume its activities, including specific proposals by the leaders of both sides concerning the Committee's work. Meanwhile, the Government of Cyprus continued to implement its unilateral programme of exhumation and identification of human remains.

The Secretary-General recommended that the Council extend the UNFICYP mandate for a further six months, until 15 June 2002.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 14 December [meeting 4436], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1384 (2001). The draft [S/2001/1190] was prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General of 30 November 2001 on the United Nations operation in Cyprus, in particular the call to the parties to assess and address the humanitarian issue of missing persons with due urgency and seriousness,

Noting that the Government of Cyprus has agreed that in view of the prevailing conditions in the island it is necessary to keep the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus beyond 15 December 2001,

Welcoming and encouraging efforts by the United Nations to sensitize peacekeeping personnel in the prevention and control of HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases in all its peacekeeping operations,

1. Reaffirms all its relevant resolutions on Cyprus, in particular resolution 1251(1999) of 29 June 1999 and subsequent resolutions;
2. Decides to extend the mandate of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus for a further period ending on 15 June 2002;
3. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report, by 1 June 2002, on the implementation of the present resolution;
4. Urges the Turkish Cypriot side and Turkish forces to rescind the restrictions imposed on 30 June 2000 on the operations of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus, and to restore the military status quo ante at Strovilia;
5. Decides to remain actively seized of the matter.

Financing

On 14 June [meeting 103], the General Assembly, having considered the Secretary-General's report on UNFICYP's financial performance for the period 1 July 1999 to 30 June 2000 [A/55/739], the proposed budget for UNFICYP's maintenance for the period 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 [A/55/788] and ACABQ's comments and recommendations thereon [A/55/874/Add.3], adopted, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/55/969], resolution 55/266 without vote [agenda item H3].

Financing of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus and the related reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 186(1964) of 4 March 1964, by which the Council established the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force, the latest of which was resolution 1331(2000) of 13 December 2000,

Recalling also its resolution 54/270 of 15 June 2000 on the financing of the Force,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations as stated in General Assembly resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Force by certain Governments,

Noting that voluntary contributions were insufficient to cover all the costs of the Force, including those incurred by troop-contributing Governments prior to 16 June 1993, and regretting the absence of an adequate response to appeals for voluntary contributions, including that contained in the letter dated 17 May 1994 from the Secretary-General to all Member States,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Force with the necessary financial resources to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

1. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus as of 30

April 2001, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 20.3 million United States dollars, representing some 10.7 per cent of the total assessed contributions from 16 June 1993 to the period ending 15 June 2001, notes that some 15.3 per cent of the Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States concerned, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

2. Expresses concern about the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full;

4. Urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Force in full and on time;

5. Expresses concern at the delay experienced by the Secretary-General in deploying and providing adequate resources to some recent peacekeeping missions, in particular those in Africa;

6. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

7. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

8. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to make the fullest possible use of facilities and equipment at the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, in order to minimize the costs of procurement for the Force;

9. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to take all necessary action to ensure that the Force is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

11. Also requests the Secretary-General, in order to reduce the cost of employing General Service staff, to continue efforts to recruit local staff for the Force against General Service posts, commensurate with the requirements of the Force;

12. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus the amount of 42,389,220 dollars gross (40,697,146 dollars net) for the maintenance of the Force for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002, inclusive of the amount of 1,240,621 dollars gross (1,088,767 dollars net) for the support account for peacekeeping operations and the amount of 129,599 dollars gross (116,379 dollars net) for the United Nations Logistics Base, a one-third share of this amount, equivalent to 13,565,715 dollars, to be funded through voluntary contributions from the Government of Cyprus, and an amount of 6.5 million dollars from the Government of Greece, subject to the review by the Security Council with regard to the question of termination or continuation of the Force;

13. Decides also, taking into consideration the funding through voluntary contributions from the Government of Cyprus of a one-third share of the cost of the Force, equivalent to 13,565,715 dollars, and of 6.5 million dollars from the Government of Greece, to apportion among Member States the amount of 22,323,505 dollars gross (20,631,431 dollars net), the said amount to be apportioned at a monthly rate of 1,860,292 dollars gross (1,719,286 dollars net) in accordance with the levels set out in General Assembly resolution 55/235, as adjusted by the Assembly in its resolution 55/236 of 23 December 2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the years 2001 and 2002, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B of 23 December 2000, subject to the review by the Security Council with regard to the question of termination or continuation of the Force;

14. Decides further that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 13 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 1,692,074 dollars approved for the Force for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002;

15. Decides that, taking into consideration the funding through voluntary contributions from the Government of Cyprus of a one-third share of the cost of the Force, equivalent to 14,630,809 dollars, and of 6.5 million dollars from the Government of Greece, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, there shall be set off against the apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 13 above, their respective share of the amount of 280,800 dollars gross (261,400 dollars net) of the unencumbered balance of 523,400 dollars gross (504,000 dollars net) in respect of the period ending 30 June 2000, in accordance with the compositions of groups set out in paragraphs 3 and 4 of General Assembly resolution 43/232 of 1 March 1989, as adjusted by the Assembly in its subsequent relevant resolutions and decisions for the ad hoc apportionment of peacekeeping appropriations, the latest of which were resolution 52/230 of 31 March 1998 and decisions 54/456 to 54/458 of 23 December 1999 for the period 1998-2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2000, as set out in its resolutions 52/215 A of 22 December 1997 and 54/237 A of 23 December 1999;

16. Decides also that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, their share of the unencumbered balance of 280,800 dollars gross (261,400 dollars net) in respect of the period ending 30 June 2000 shall be set off against their outstanding obligations in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 15 above;

17. Decides further that 168,000 dollars shall be returned to the Government of Cyprus and 74,600 dollars shall be returned to the Government of Greece;

18. Decides to continue to maintain as separate the account established for the Force for the period prior to 16 June 1993, invites Member States to make voluntary contributions to that account, and requests the Secretary-General to continue his efforts in appealing for voluntary contributions to the account;

19. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

20. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel under the auspices of the United Nations participating in the Force;

21. Invites voluntary contributions to the Force in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedures and practices established by the General Assembly;

22. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-sixth session the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations Peacekeeping Force in Cyprus".

On 24 December, the Assembly decided that the item on UNFICYP's financing would remain for consideration at its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session (decision 56/464) and that the Fifth Committee would continue consideration of the item at that session (decision 56/458).

Cooperation with OSCE

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/179 [YUN 2000, p. 408], the Secretary-General submitted a June report [A/56/125] describing cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE).

During the year, a number of meetings took place between the United Nations and OSCE, including attendance by the OSCE Secretary-General at the fourth high-level meeting with heads of regional organizations in February on "Cooperation for peace-building" (see p. 56) and participation in the annual high-level tripartite meeting of the United Nations, OSCE and the Council of Europe (Vienna, February) on the subject of good governance.

The United Nations and OSCE continued to practise a division of labour based on their comparative advantages: the United Nations retained the lead in Abkhazia, Georgia, and in Tajikistan; OSCE had the lead in the Republic of Moldova, South Ossetia, Georgia, and in the resolution of the conflict in and around the Nagorny-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan. Specific efforts were also made to improve consultation and cooperation in the field and between the respective headquarters, resulting in enhanced coordination aimed at making better use of international resources in the interests of the countries being assisted. The report listed specific cooperation activities by UN departments and programmes.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 21 December [meeting 91], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/216 [draft: A/56/L.66 & Add.1] by recorded vote (123-0-4) [agenda item 21 (i)].

Cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe

The General Assembly,

Recalling the framework for cooperation and coordination between the United Nations and the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which was signed on 26 May 1993, as well as its resolutions on cooperation between the two organizations,

Recalling also the principles embodied in the Helsinki Final Act and in the declaration at the 1992 Helsinki Summit by the heads of State or Government of the participating States of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe of their understanding that the Conference is a regional arrangement in the sense of Chapter VIII of the Charter of the United Nations and as such provides an important link between European and global security,

Acknowledging the increasing contribution of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security in its region through activities in early warning and preventive diplomacy, including through the activities of the High Commissioner on National Minorities, crisis management and post-conflict rehabilitation, as well as arms control and disarmament,

Recalling the Charter for European Security adopted at the Summit in Istanbul, Turkey, in November 1999, which reaffirms the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe as a primary organization for the peaceful settlement of disputes within its region and as a key instrument for early warning, conflict prevention, crisis management and post-conflict rehabilitation,

Recalling also the special ties between the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the Mediterranean Partners for Cooperation, as well as between that organization and the Asian Partners for Cooperation, Japan, the Republic of Korea and Thailand, which have been enhanced further in 2001,

Underlining the continued importance of enhanced cooperation and coordination between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General;

2. Notes with appreciation the further improvement of cooperation and coordination between the United Nations and its agencies and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, including at the level of activities in the field;

3. Welcomes, in this context, the meetings of the Secretary-General of the United Nations with the Chairman-in-Office and the Secretary-General of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the participation of the Chairman-in-Office at a meeting of the Security Council in January 2001, the participation of the Director-General of the United Nations Office at Geneva in a meeting of the Ministerial Council of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, which was held in Bucharest on 3 and 4 December 2001, and the participation of high-level United Nations representatives in meetings of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe;

4. Encourages further efforts of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to foster security and stability in its region through early warning, conflict prevention, crisis management and post-conflict rehabilitation, as well as through continued promotion of democracy, the rule of law, human rights and fundamental freedoms;

5. Welcomes the documents of the meeting of the Ministerial Council in Bucharest confirming the determination of the participating States of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to strengthen and deepen their cooperation with a view to protecting their citizens from new challenges to their security while safeguarding the rule of law, individual liberties and the right to equal justice under the law;

6. Commends the adoption of the decision and Action Plan on Terrorism, whereby participating States pledged to reinforce and develop bilateral and multilateral cooperation among themselves, with the United Nations and with other international and regional organizations in order to combat terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, wherever and by whomever committed, to contribute to the fulfilment of international obligations as enshrined, inter alia, in Security Council resolution 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, to act in conformity with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and to become parties to all twelve United Nations conventions and protocols related to terrorism as soon as possible;

7. Notes the review of the structures of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, undertaken at the initiative of the Romanian Chairmanship, with the goal of strengthening its efficiency, and the adoption of decisions to foster its role as a forum for political dialogue on issues of security and cooperation in Europe which promotes a more effective use of the means and mechanisms of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to counter threats and challenges to security and stability in its region;

8. Welcomes the decisions to strengthen cooperation in the economic and environmental sphere and to enhance the role of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in police-related activities;

9. Also welcomes the documents of the Ministerial Council meeting in Bucharest on enhancing the effectiveness of the human dimension meetings of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, promoting tolerance and non-discrimination, combating trafficking in human beings, improving the situation of Roma and Sinti, and on promoting equal opportunities for women and men and the continued close cooperation between the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights;

10. Notes with appreciation the active involvement of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and its commitment to continue to contribute substantially to conflict prevention, crisis management, and post-conflict stabilization in the region, thereby fostering peace and stability in the area;

11. Welcomes the establishment and the work of the Mission of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia to assist further progress in the consolidation of democracy, the strengthening of the rule of law and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the rights of persons belonging to national minorities;

12. Expresses its appreciation for the contribution by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to implementing Security Council resolution 1244(1999) of 10 June 1999, in particular for its substantial role in the preparation and organization of the Kosovo-wide election on 17 November 2001, in view of the consolidation of stability and prosperity in Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, on the basis of substantial autonomy, respecting the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, pending a final settlement, in accordance with resolution 1244(1999);

13. Salutes the commitment of participating States of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to the sovereignty, territorial integrity and unitary character of the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and their offer to assist and support strongly the full and timely implementation of the Framework Agreement concluded on 13 August 2001, including the programmes on police training and reform, media and inter-ethnic relations;

14. Supports the priorities of the work of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe for the continuous development of civil society and for increasing local ownership of the reform process in Bosnia and Herzegovina;

15. Commends the efforts to improve the coordination and efficiency of international engagement in the field of civilian implementation of the Dayton/Paris peace accords, as well as a timely decision on the best options for the succession of the United Nations International Police Task Force to allow for a smooth and comprehensive transition;

16. Underlines the importance of regional cooperation as a means of fostering good-neighbourly relations, stability and economic development, welcomes the implementation of the Stability Pact for South-Eastern Europe under the auspices of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe as an important long-term and comprehensive initiative to promote good-neighbourly relations, stability and economic development, and also welcomes the commitment of participating States of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to contribute further to the goals of the Stability Pact;

17. Notes the efforts undertaken in 2001 by the Republic of Moldova and the mediators of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the Russian Federation and Ukraine towards negotiation for a comprehensive political settlement of the Transnistrian issue, based on full respect of the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Republic of Moldova, welcomes the fulfilment by the Russian Federation, ahead of the agreed time, of the commitments undertaken at the summit of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe held in Istanbul, Turkey, in 1999 on the withdrawal and disposal of the equipment limited by the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe located in the Transnistrian region of the Republic of Moldova by the end of 2001, and encourages the timely fulfilment of other commitments concerning the Republic of Moldova undertaken by the participating States of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in Istanbul in 1999;

18. Welcomes the developments in the peace process in the Tskhinvali region/South Ossetia, Georgia, and the steps to reduce the quantities of small arms and light weapons in that region, as well as the progress made in 2001 towards meeting the commitments made in Istanbul on the future of Russian forces in Georgia, including the closure of the Russian base at Vaziani and the withdrawal of the equipment from the Russian base at Gudauta, encourages the implementation of the other Istanbul commitments, and with regard to Abkhazia, Georgia, calls for the resumption of a constructive dialogue aimed at achieving a comprehensive settlement, including a definition of the political status of Abkhazia as a sovereign entity within the State of Georgia;

19. Acknowledges the significant contribution to stability and confidence in the region made by the border monitoring operation of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe along the border between Georgia and the Chechen Republic of the Russian Federation;

20. Notes with satisfaction the engagement of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe towards cooperation with the five participating States of Central Asia, which has continued to grow in all dimensions, thus contributing to stability and prosperity in the region, as well as the commitment of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to assist in addressing specific threats to stability and security for the Central Asian participating States, and appreciates the valuable contribution of the Bishkek International Conference on enhancing security and stability in Central Asia, held on 13 and 14 December 2001, to addressing those problems, which are shared concerns among the participating States of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe;

21. Fully supports the activities of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe to achieve a peaceful solution to the conflict in and around the Nagorny-Karabakh region of the Republic of Azerbaijan, and welcomes cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in this regard;

22. Expresses deep concern at the failure to achieve a settlement of the Nagorny-Karabakh conflict despite the intensified dialogue between the parties and the active support of the Co-Chairmen of the Minsk Group of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, reaffirms that the prompt resolution of that protracted conflict will contribute to lasting peace, security, stability and cooperation in the South Caucasus region, reiterates the importance of continuing the peace dialogue, calls upon the sides to continue their efforts to achieve an early resolution of the conflict based on the norms and principles of international law, encourages the parties to explore further measures that would enhance mutual confidence and trust, including the release of prisoners of war, welcomes the commitment of the parties to the ceasefire and to achieving a peaceful and comprehensive settlement, and encourages the parties to continue their efforts, with the active support of the Co-Chairmen, to reach a just and enduring settlement;

23. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe", and requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe in implementation of the present resolution.

Cooperation with the Council of Europe

In response to resolution 55/3 [YUN 2000, p. 410], the Secretary-General submitted an August report on cooperation between the United Nations and the Council of Europe [A/56/302].

The Secretary-General reported that cooperation continued through direct contact between the secretariats of the two organizations, the Council's observer status in the General Assembly and the cooperation agreements between the Council and various UN specialized agencies and bodies, and meetings of the Secretaries-General of the two organizations. He highlighted specific cooperation activities between the Council and UN programmes and the Secretariat.

The Secretary-General observed that both organizations continued to have shared interests that lent themselves to cooperation in such areas as conflict prevention, post-conflict peace-building and confidence-building measures for increasing tolerance and understanding between people belonging to different ethnic groups, especially those within countries in crisis. He recommended that such cooperation be reported to the Assembly every other year, the next report to be submitted to its fifty-eighth (2003) session, and that the item be included in that session's provisional agenda.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 7 December [meeting 80], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/43 [draft: A/56/L.31 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 21 (c)].

Cooperation between the United Nations and the Council of Europe

The General Assembly,

Recalling the Agreement between the Council of Europe and the Secretariat of the United Nations signed on 15 December 1951 and the Arrangement on Cooperation and Liaison between the secretariats of the United Nations and the Council of Europe of 19 November 1971,

Acknowledging the contribution of the Council of Europe to the protection and strengthening of democracy, human rights and fundamental freedoms and the rule of law on the European continent, including its activities against racism and intolerance, the promotion of gender equality, social development and a common cultural heritage,

Acknowledging also that, with its significant expertise in the field of human rights, democratic institutions and the rule of law, the Council of Europe is contributing to conflict prevention, confidence-building and long-term post-conflict peace-building through political, legal and institutional reform,

Stressing the importance of adherence to the standards and principles of the Council of Europe and its contribution to the solution of conflicts throughout the whole of Europe,

Acknowledging the contribution of the Council of Europe to the development of international law, inter alia, international criminal law,

Noting the increasing openness of the Council of Europe, through its legal instruments, to the participation of States of other regions,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Notes with appreciation the further improvement of cooperation and coordination between the United Nations and its agencies and the Council of Europe, both at the level of headquarters and in the field;
3. Welcomes the increasingly close cooperation between the Council of Europe, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees;
4. Welcomes also the efforts of the Council of Europe to assist States in the ratification and implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, in particular the most recent meeting, held in Strasbourg, France, on 13 and 14 September 2001;
5. Expresses its appreciation to the Council of Europe for its contribution to the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held in Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001;

6. Welcomes the contribution of the Council of Europe to the preparations for the special session of the General Assembly on children, to be held in 2002;

7. Commends strongly the contribution of the Council of Europe to international action against terrorism, as defined by the Committee of Ministers of the Council in the conclusions of its session of 7 and 8 November 2001 in Strasbourg, taking into account Security Council resolutions 1368(2001) of 12 September 2001 and 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, including the intensification of legal cooperation to combat terrorism;

8. Welcomes the participation of the Council of Europe in the implementation of Security Council resolution 1244(1999) of 10 June 1999, in its cooperation with the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo, notably with regard to the reform of the judiciary, the promotion and protection of human rights, including the rights of minorities, property rights, population registration, childhood and youth programmes, education policies and the protection and restoration of cultural heritage;

9. Commends the role of the Council of Europe in the capacity-building programme of the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo, especially with regard to the electoral process in preparation for the Kosovo Assembly elections on 17 November 2001;

10. Welcomes the activities of the Council of Europe aimed at fulfilling the role assigned to it, under the General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina, with regard to the protection and promotion of human rights, and judicial and prison reform;

11. Welcomes also the major contribution of the Council of Europe to the Stability Pact for South-Eastern Europe, launched at the initiative of the European Union, and to the development of regional projects to support its aims;

12. Welcomes further the active role of the Council of Europe in the tripartite meetings between the United Nations, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the Council of Europe;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to continue exploring, with the Chairman of the Committee of Ministers and the Secretary-General of the Council of Europe, possibilities for further enhancement of cooperation, information exchange and coordination between the United Nations and the Council of Europe;

14. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the sub-item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and the Council of Europe", and requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on cooperation between the United Nations and the Council of Europe in implementation of the present resolution.

Strengthening of security and cooperation in the Mediterranean

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/38 [YUN 2000, p. 411], the Secretary-General submitted in July [A/56/153] replies received from Algeria, Mexico and Sweden, on behalf of the EU, to his note verbale requesting their views on ways to strengthen security and cooperation in the Mediterranean region.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First (Disarmament and International Security) Committee [A/56/541], adopted resolution 56/29 without vote [agenda item 79].

Strengthening of security and cooperation in the Mediterranean region

The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject, including resolution 55/38 of 20 November 2000,

Reaffirming the primary role of the Mediterranean countries in strengthening and promoting peace, security and cooperation in the Mediterranean region,

Bearing in mind all the previous declarations and commitments, as well as all the initiatives taken by the riparian countries at the recent summits, ministerial meetings and various forums concerning the question of the Mediterranean region,

Recognizing the indivisible character of security in the Mediterranean and that the enhancement of cooperation among Mediterranean countries with a view to promoting the economic and social development of all peoples of the region will contribute significantly to stability, peace and security in the region,

Recognizing also the efforts made so far and the determination of the Mediterranean countries to intensify the process of dialogue and consultations with a view to resolving the problems existing in the Mediterranean region and to eliminating the causes of tension and the consequent threat to peace and security, and their growing awareness of the need for further joint efforts to strengthen economic, social, cultural and environmental cooperation in the region,

Recognizing further that prospects for closer Euro-Mediterranean cooperation in all spheres can be enhanced by positive developments worldwide, in particular in Europe, in the Maghreb and in the Middle East,

Reaffirming the responsibility of all States to contribute to the stability and prosperity of the Mediterranean region and their commitment to respecting the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, as well as the provisions of the Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations,

Noting the peace negotiations in the Middle East, which should be of a comprehensive nature and represent an appropriate framework for the peaceful settlement of contentious issues in the region,

Expressing its concern at the persistent tension and continuing military activities in parts of the Mediterranean that hinder efforts to strengthen security and cooperation in the region,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General,

1. Reaffirms that security in the Mediterranean is closely linked to European security as well as to international peace and security;

2. Expresses its satisfaction at the continuing efforts by Mediterranean countries to contribute actively to the elimination of all causes of tension in the region and to the promotion of just and lasting solutions to the persistent problems of the region through peaceful means, thus ensuring the withdrawal of foreign forces of occupation and respecting the sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity of all countries of the Mediterranean and the right of peoples to self-determination, and therefore calls for full adherence to the principles of non-interference, non-intervention, non-use of force or threat of use of force and the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force, in accordance with the Charter and the relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

3. Commends the Mediterranean countries for their efforts in meeting common challenges through coordinated overall responses, based on a spirit of multilateral partnership, towards the general objective of turning the Mediterranean basin into an area of dialogue, exchanges and cooperation, guaranteeing peace, stability and prosperity, and encourages them to strengthen such efforts through, inter alia, a lasting multilateral and action-oriented cooperative dialogue among States of the region;

4. Recognizes that the elimination of the economic and social disparities in levels of development and other obstacles, as well as respect and greater understanding among cultures in the Mediterranean area will contribute to enhancing peace, security and cooperation among Mediterranean countries through the existing forums;

5. Calls upon all States of the Mediterranean region that have not yet done so to adhere to all the multilaterally negotiated legal instruments related to the field of disarmament and non-proliferation, thus creating the necessary conditions for strengthening peace and cooperation in the region;

6. Encourages all States of the region to favour the necessary conditions for strengthening the confidence-building measures among them by promoting genuine openness and transparency on all military matters, by participating, inter alia, in the United Nations system for the standardized reporting of military expenditures and by providing accurate data and information to the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms;

7. Encourages the Mediterranean countries to strengthen further their cooperation in combating terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, taking into account the relevant resolutions of the United Nations, and in combating international crime and illicit arms transfers and illicit drug production, consumption and trafficking, which pose a serious threat to peace, security and stability in the region and therefore to the improvement of the current political, economic and social situation and which jeopardize friendly relations among States, hinder the development of international cooperation and result in the destruction of human rights, fundamental freedoms and the democratic basis of pluralistic society;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report on means to strengthen security and cooperation in the Mediterranean region;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Strengthening of security and cooperation in the Mediterranean region".

Stability and development in South-Eastern Europe

On 23 February [A/55/809-S/2001/172], the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) submitted to the Secretary-General the text of the Summit Declaration of the Heads of State and Government of South-East European Countries at their fourth meeting (Skopje, 23 February) and the Action Plan for Regional Economic Cooperation.

On 10 October [A/56/466], Bulgaria transmitted the Declaration of Solidarity adopted by the heads of State of Albania, Bulgaria, Croatia, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia and FYROM during the Summit meeting of NATO candidate countries (Sofia, 5 October).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/530], adopted resolution 56/18 without vote [agenda item 68].

Maintenance of international security—good-neighbourliness, stability and development in South-Eastern Europe

The General Assembly,

Recalling the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and the Final Act of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, signed at Helsinki on 1 August 1975,

Recalling also the United Nations Millennium Declaration,

Recalling further its resolutions 48/84 B of 16 December 1993, 50/80 B of 12 December 1995, 51/55 of 10 December 1996, 52/48 of 9 December 1997, 53/71 of 4 December 1998, 54/62 of 1 December 1999 and 55/27 of 20 November 2000,

Convinced of the necessity of enhancing the overall conflict prevention and resolution capability of the United Nations system and other relevant regional organizations to prevent the outbreak of conflicts,

Emphasizing the crucial importance of the full implementation of Security Council resolution 1244(1999) of 10 June 1999 on Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and stressing, inter alia, the role and responsibility of the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo, supported by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the European Union, and of the Kosovo Force in that regard, as well as the importance of the implementation of Security Council resolutions 1345(2001) of 21 March 2001 and 1371(2001) of 26 September 2001,

Commending the significant progress made by the people and the authorities of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia towards establishing democracy and the important steps taken to cooperate with the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian

Law Committed in the Territory of the Former Yugoslavia since 1991,

Recalling the Stability Pact for South-Eastern Europe, and stressing the importance of the implementation of its objectives, with emphasis on regional cooperation,

Noting the importance of the activities of international organizations, such as the European Union, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the Council of Europe, as well as the contribution of the Central European Initiative and the Black Sea Economic Cooperation, for the implementation of the Stability Pact,

Welcoming the normalization of relations among all States of the Balkan region, and noting, in this respect, the Agreement for the delineation of the borderline between the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, signed at Skopje on 23 February 2001, as well as the re-establishment of diplomatic relations between Albania and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia,

Welcoming also the agreement of 29 June 2001 on succession issues among the States successors to the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia,

Welcoming further the signing of stabilization and association agreements and/or European agreements between the countries of the region and the European Union and its member States,

Reiterating the importance of the South-East European Cooperation Process and its contribution to security, stability and good-neighbourly relations in South-Eastern Europe, and recalling in particular the Summit Declaration and the Action Plan for Regional Economic Cooperation, adopted by the heads of State and Government of the participating and observer countries of the South-East European Cooperation Process at Skopje on 23 February 2001,

Emphasizing the crucial importance of strengthening regional efforts in South-Eastern Europe on arms control, demining, disarmament and confidence-building measures, and concerned that, in spite of the ongoing efforts, the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects persists,

Mindful of the importance of national and international activities of all relevant organizations aimed at the creation of peace, security, stability, democracy, cooperation and economic development and the observance of human rights and good-neighbourliness in South-Eastern Europe,

Taking note of the Declaration of Solidarity adopted by the heads of State participating in the Summit Meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization candidate countries held at Sofia on 5 October 2001,

Reaffirming its determination that all nations should live together in peace with one another as good neighbours,

1. Reaffirms the need for full observance of the Charter of the United Nations;

2. Calls upon all States, the relevant international organizations and the competent organs of the United Nations to respect the principles of territorial integrity and sovereignty of all States and the inviolability of international borders, to continue to take measures in accordance with the Charter and the commitments of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and through further development of regional arrangements, as appropriate, to eliminate threats to international peace and security and to help to prevent conflicts in South-Eastern Europe, which can lead to the violent disintegration of States;

3. Reaffirms the urgency of consolidating South-Eastern Europe as a region of peace, security, stability, democracy, cooperation and economic development and for the promotion of good-neighbourliness and the observance of human rights, thus contributing to the maintenance of international peace and security and enhancing the prospects for sustained development and prosperity for all peoples in the region as an integral part of Europe, and recognizes the role of the United Nations, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe and the European Union in promoting regional disarmament;

4. Calls upon all participants in the Stability Pact for South-Eastern Europe, as well as all concerned international organizations, to continue to support the efforts of the States of South-Eastern Europe towards regional stability and cooperation so as to enable them to pursue sustainable development and integration into European structures;

5. Calls upon all States and relevant international organizations to contribute to the full implementation of Security Council resolution 1244(1999) on Kosovo, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, as well as Council resolutions 1345(2001) and 1371(2001);

6. Rejects the use of violence in pursuit of political aims, and stresses that only peaceful political solutions can assure a stable and democratic future for South-Eastern Europe;

7. Welcomes the signing of the Framework Agreement at Ohrid, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, on 13 August 2001, and supports its full and timely implementation by the parties to the Agreement;

8. Stresses the importance of good-neighbourliness and the development of friendly relations among States, and calls upon all States to resolve their disputes with other States by peaceful means, in accordance with the Charter;

9. Urges the strengthening of relations among the States of South-Eastern Europe on the basis of respect for international law and agreements, in accordance with the principles of good-neighbourliness and mutual respect;

10. Recognizes the efforts of the international community, and welcomes in particular the assistance already provided by the European Union, other contributors and the Stability Pact for South-Eastern Europe in promoting the long-term process of democratic and economic development of the region;

11. Stresses that the rapprochement of the South-Eastern European States with the European Union will favourably influence the security, political and economic situation in the region, as well as good-neighbourly relations among the States;

12. Stresses also the importance of regional efforts aimed at preventing conflicts that endanger the maintenance of international peace and security and, in this regard, notes with satisfaction the role of the Multinational Peace Force for South-Eastern Europe;

13. Emphasizes the importance of continuous regional efforts and intensified dialogue in South-Eastern Europe aimed at arms control, disarmament and confidence-building measures as well as strengthening cooperation and undertaking appropriate measures at the national, subregional and regional levels to prevent and suppress acts of terrorism;

14. Welcomes the adoption, on 18 July 2001, of the Concluding Document of the negotiations under article V of annex 1.B to the General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina;

15. Recognizes the seriousness of the problem of anti-personnel mines in some parts of South-Eastern Europe, welcomes, in this context, the efforts of the international community in support of mine action, and encourages States to join and support these efforts;

16. Urges all States to take effective measures against the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects and to help programmes and projects aimed at the collection and safe destruction of surplus stocks of small arms and light weapons, and stresses the importance of closer cooperation among States, inter alia, in crime prevention, combating terrorism, illicit trade in people, organized crime, drug trafficking and money-laundering;

17. Calls upon all States and the relevant international organizations to communicate to the Secretary-General their views on the subject of the present resolution;

18. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Maintenance of international security—good-neighbourliness, stability and development in South-Eastern Europe".

Chapter VI

Middle East

The work of the United Nations in the Middle East in 2001 was affected by an ever-growing cycle of violence and retaliation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory and by the standstill in the peace negotiations between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), despite many international efforts to revive the process. The Palestinian intifada (uprising), which erupted in September 2000 following the visit of the then Israeli opposition leader, Ariel Sharon, to a holy Islamic site in the Old City of Jerusalem, continued in waves throughout the year.

Israeli and Palestinian negotiators met in late January in Taba, Egypt, and agreed on a number of issues with respect to the situation on the ground, but failed to achieve a comprehensive agreement. The deteriorating situation in the occupied territories and the election on 6 February of a new Israeli Government, headed by Mr. Sharon, led to a breakdown of bilateral negotiations between the two parties.

On 30 April, the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee, established following the 2000 summit in Sharm el-Sheikh (Egypt) and chaired by former United States Senator George Mitchell, reported to the President of the United States and the Secretary-General on the nature and causes of the ongoing violence. The Committee recommended a number of steps to end the violence, starting with the implementation of an unconditional ceasefire and the resumption of security cooperation. The report was accepted by both parties and a ceasefire was brokered in June by the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency of the United States, George Tenet. In June, the Secretary-General visited the region and encouraged the parties to consolidate the ceasefire and implement the Mitchell Committee's recommendations.

In late September, a meeting took place between Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and President of the Palestinian Authority (PA) and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat. Although the meeting achieved some progress, the assassination of an Israeli cabinet minister in October brought about a new wave of violence and reprisals. The Israeli Government refused to pursue further talks with Chairman Arafat and occupied and shelled PA buildings; at the same time, a number of Palestinian suicide bombers killed and injured Israeli civilians.

Concerned about the deteriorating situation in the region, the Security Council convened four times, twice in March, once in August and once in December, to discuss the situation in the Middle East, including the Palestinian question. On 27 March, a draft resolution, by which the Council would have expressed its determination to establish a UN observer force in the territories occupied by Israel, was not adopted due to the negative vote of the United States, a permanent Council member. On 15 December, a draft resolution, by which the Council would have encouraged the establishment of a monitoring mechanism to help the parties implement the Mitchell recommendations, was also not adopted due to the negative vote of the United States.

In December, the General Assembly resumed its tenth emergency special session, which first convened in 1997, to discuss the item "Illegal Israeli actions in Occupied East Jerusalem and the rest of the Occupied Palestinian Territory". The Assembly adopted the text that had not been adopted by the Council on 15 December. The resolution called for, among other things, the establishment of a monitoring mechanism. Another resolution, adopted on the same day, reiterated the applicability of the 1949 Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War (Fourth Geneva Convention) in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

The Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention on Measures to Enforce the Convention in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, convened in December in Geneva, under the chairmanship of Switzerland as the depositary of the Geneva Conventions. The Conference adopted a declaration which, among other things, called on Israel to respect the Convention's provisions.

In southern Lebanon, Israeli troops and their main Lebanese opponents, the paramilitary group Hizbullah, faced each other along the so-called Blue Line, the provisional border drawn by the United Nations following the withdrawal of Israeli troops from south Lebanon in June 2000. The dispute, which centred on control of the Shab'a farmland, also brought about increased tensions between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic.

The mandates of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) and of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) in the Golan Heights were extended twice during the year, and the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO) continued to assist both peacekeeping operations in their tasks. In 2001, having fulfilled most of its mandate with regard to observing the Israeli withdrawal from southern Lebanon, UNIFIL started a gradual reconfiguration and redeployment phase.

The United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, despite severe financial difficulties, continued to provide a wide-ranging programme of education, health relief and social services to over 3.8 million Palestinian refugees living both in and outside camps in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, as well as in Jordan, Lebanon and the Syrian Arab Republic. In 2001, the Agency was forced to shift its focus from development to humanitarian emergency assistance due to the increased violence and deteriorating socio-economic situation in the occupied territories. Two emergency appeals were launched to provide short-term emergency employment opportunities for refugees, in addition to food, shelter and health services.

During the year, the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories reported to the Assembly on the situation in the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, the Gaza Strip and the Golan Heights. The Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People continued to mobilize international support for the Palestinians. In July, together with the UN Division for Palestinian Rights, it organized an international meeting on the question of Palestine in Madrid, Spain, at which participants called for, among other things, the implementation of the Mitchell Committee's recommendations and for the establishment of an international presence to protect civilians and to monitor the implementation of agreements reached between the two parties.

By decision 56/450 of 21 December, the General Assembly deferred consideration of the agenda item "Armed Israeli aggression against the Iraqi nuclear installations and its grave consequences for the established international system concerning the peaceful use of nuclear energy, the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons and international peace and security" and included it in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh (2002) session. The item had been inscribed yearly on the Assembly's agenda since 1981, following the bombing by Israel of a nuclear research centre near Baghdad [YUN 1981, p. 275].

Overall situation

Report of Secretary-General. In a November report [A/56/642-S/2001/1100], the Secretary-General said that the Israeli-Palestinian crisis had entered its second year with an escalation of violence that continued throughout 2001.

Following the Sharm el-Sheikh Middle East Peace Summit of October 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 415] and in a further effort to reach agreement before the prime ministerial elections in Israel (6 February), senior Israeli and Palestinian negotiators held talks in Taba, Egypt, from 21 to 27 January 2001. In a joint statement, the two sides declared that they had never been closer to reaching an agreement. Substantial progress was achieved in each of the issues discussed: refugees, security, borders and Jerusalem. However, given the circumstances and time constraints, it proved impossible to reach a final understanding on all issues. As the parties remained deadlocked, further international efforts were made to revive the political process. In March, a discussion was generated by a joint Egyptian-Jordanian non-paper proposing steps to end the crisis and to restart negotiations. However, prior to the submission of the paper, new circumstances had evolved, including the establishment of a national unity Government in Israel, headed by Prime Minister Ariel Sharon. The new Government declared that it would honour previous diplomatic agreements approved by the Knesset (Parliament), but it would not conduct negotiations while the violence continued.

On 27 and 28 March, the Secretary-General took part in the Summit of the League of Arab States (LAS) in Amman, Jordan, where he discussed the crisis in the Middle East with heads of State and foreign ministers. In his statement to the Summit, he stressed that the international community and the Arab world had the right to criticize Israel for its continued occupation of Palestinian and Syrian territory, and for its excessively harsh response to the intifada. However, those points could be made more effectively if many Israelis did not believe that their existence was under threat: Israel had a right, enshrined in numerous UN resolutions, to exist in safety within internationally recognized borders. The Secretary-General emphasized that what was needed was movement towards an agreement that responded both to the legitimate desire of the Palestinians for national independence and to the legitimate claims of the Israelis to recognition and security.

The 30 April report of the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee, known as the Mitchell report, provided a viable basis for a return to the negotiating table; the Secretary-General fully endorsed its recommendations (see p. 409). Both parties accepted and reached agreement on a 13 June ceasefire, which was brokered by the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency of the United States, George Tenet. The Secretary-General visited the region from 12 to 18 June to encourage the parties to consolidate the ceasefire and move towards full implementation of the Mitchell report.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and PA President Yasser Arafat met on 26 September 2001 and agreed to resume full security cooperation and to exert maximum efforts to sustain the ceasefire. The meeting was made possible by international efforts, in particular those of the Russian Federation, the United States, the European Union (EU) and the United Nations, with the full support of Egypt and Jordan. The level of violent incidents declined and Israel took several positive steps, including the lifting of some internal closures. Significant statements were also made by a number of Member States, including the United States, envisioning the creation of a Palestinian State provided that Israel's right to exist was respected. However, that progress was sharply disrupted when Israeli cabinet minister Rehavam Zeevi was assassinated on 17 October by gunmen belonging to the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. Following the assassination, Israeli forces launched a major incursion into Palestinian-controlled areas. In order to defuse the situation, a "Quartet", composed of the United Nations (represented by the Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the PLO and the PA), the United States, the Russian Federation and the EU, issued a joint statement on 25 October, which was supported in a statement to the press on the same day by the Security Council President [SC/7188]. On 11 November, the Secretary-General met in New York with the United States Secretary of State, the Foreign Minister of the Russian Federation and the High Representative for Common Foreign and Security Policy of the EU. The Quartet welcomed United States President George W. Bush's statement to the General Assembly on 10 November, in which he pledged to work towards the day when two States, Israel and Palestine, would live peacefully together within secure and recognized borders.

The Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the five permanent members of the Security Council met with the Secretary-General on 12 November and issued a statement strongly encouraging Israelis and Palestinians to take the necessary security, economic and political steps to move from confrontation to the resumption of the political process. The Ministers, among other things, called on Israel to withdraw from all areas into which it had made incursions and to ensure greater restraint by the Israel Defence Forces (IDF). They also called on the PA to take all possible steps to put an end to violence and called on both parties to implement the Tenet plan and the recommendations of the Mitchell report.

In resolution 56/36 of 3 December (see p. 429), the General Assembly expressed its full support for the peace process, which began in Madrid in 1991 [YUN 1991, p. 221], the 1993 Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements [YUN 1993, p. 521] and the 1995 Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip [YUN 1995, p. 626]. It also called on the concerned parties to take the necessary steps to reverse all measures taken since 28 September 2000 and to implement the Fact-Finding Committee's recommendations.

Committee on Palestinian Rights. In its annual report [A/56/35 & Corr.1], the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People (Committee on Palestinian Rights) expressed concern over Israel's policies and actions in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including the illegal settlement policy; military incursions unprecedented in scope into various parts of the Territory, including areas under full Palestinian control; harsh and disproportionate attacks by IDF against Palestinians protesting the occupation; the widespread policy of targeted extrajudicial assassinations of Palestinian activists; and the overall harmful effect of the occupation on the Palestinians' living conditions. At the core of the conflict was the continuing Israeli occupation of the Palestinian Territory. The Committee called for the comprehensive implementation of the Mitchell Committee's recommendations, which afforded the most practicable route back to the peace process.

Occupied Palestinian Territory

Communications (3 January–12 March). In a series of letters dated between 3 January and 12 March [A/ES-10/54-S/2001/7, A/ES-10/55-S/2001/33,

A/ES-10/56-S/2001/50, A/ES-10/57-S/2001/101, A/ES-10/58-S/2001/131, A/ES-10/59-S/2001/156, A/ES-10/60-S/2001/175, A/ES-10/61-S/2001/189, A/ES-10/64-S/2001/209, A/ES-10/65-S/2001/226], the Permanent Observer of Palestine informed the Secretary-General and the Security Council President of the killing and injuring of Palestinians by Israeli forces and submitted lists of the names of those killed. He also referred to acts of violence and destruction by armed settlers, the bombardment of refugee camps, and the imposition of severe restrictions on the movement of persons and goods throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

In a series of communications dated between 8 January and 6 March [A/55/730-S/2001/24, A/55/742-S/2001/71, A/55/748-S/2001/81, A/55/762-S/2001/103, A/55/777-S/2001/125, A/55/781-S/2001/132, A/55/787-S/2001/137, A/55/819-S/2001/187, A/55/821-S/2001/193, A/55/823-S/2001/197], Israel responded to the Palestinian allegations and detailed Palestinian attacks against Israeli civilians. Israel called on the Palestinian leadership to abide by its commitments to control terrorist elements in the territory under its control.

In identical letters of 1 February [A/55/760-S/2001/98] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, the Permanent Observer of Palestine expressed concern regarding the possible use by Israeli forces of depleted uranium shells against Palestinian targets. Responding on 21 February [A/55/799-S/2001/158], Israel denied the Palestinian allegations regarding the use of depleted uranium. In a 16 February follow-up [A/55/793-S/2001/139], the Permanent Observer said that Israeli forces had used, on 12 February, an unknown type of gas against Palestinian civilians, which resulted in the admission of 40 Palestinians to local hospitals.

On 13 February [A/55/795], the Presidency of the EU deplored the practice of extrajudicial killings of Palestinians carried out by Israeli security forces. According to the EU, the existence of such a policy had been confirmed by Israel.

Security Council consideration (14-19 March).

At the request of the United Arab Emirates, on behalf of the Arab Group and LAS [S/2001/216], and Malaysia, on behalf of the Islamic Group at the United Nations [S/2001/231], the Security Council, on 15 and 19 March [meeting 4295], discussed the situation in the Middle East, including the Palestinian question. With the Council's consent, the President invited, among others, Egypt and Israel, at their request, to participate in the discussion without the right to vote. The President also invited the Permanent Observer of Palestine, at his own request [S/2001/225]. The Chairman of the Committee on Palestinian Rights was also invited to attend, at his own request. On 19 March, the Permanent Observer of the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC), at the request of Malaysia [S/2001/235], and the Deputy Permanent Observer of LAS, at the request of the United Arab Emirates [S/2001/236], were invited to participate in the discussion without the right to vote.

On 14 March, the Council had held private meetings on the subject with the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs of Israel [meeting 4292] and with the Permanent Observer of Palestine [meeting 4293], who had requested to participate in the discussion [S/2001/222].

Addressing the Council on 15 March [S/PV.4295], the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that since 18 December 2000, when the Council failed to adopt a draft resolution that would have expressed its determination to establish a UN observer force in the territories occupied by Israel [YUN 2000, p. 426], Israeli forces had killed more than 80 Palestinians and had wounded several thousand. He stressed that the underlying cause of the violence in the region was the Israeli occupation of Palestinian territory and the measures taken by Israeli forces, such as the confiscation of territory and the building of settlements. Since the beginning of the crisis on 28 September 2000 [ibid., p. 416], other measures had included the presence of the Israeli army and the use of its huge military machinery; the presence of the settlers and their use of weapons against Palestinians; the destruction of the Palestinian economy; and the transforming of the lives of the Palestinians into a veritable hell. With regard to the peace process, reasonable progress was achieved by the two parties in the Taba talks (see p. 405). However, the policies of the new Israeli Government, elected on 6 February, contradicted the bases of the peace process and the agreements concluded between the two parties. The Israeli Government in fact claimed that it could not negotiate while the violence persisted, though it continued to occupy Palestinian territory. At the same time, it also refused to negotiate from the point that was reached by the two sides in Taba and was reluctant to negotiate a final settlement in favour of new interim arrangements and solutions. The Permanent Observer called on the Council to restore control as a prelude to the resuscitation of the peace process through practical measures, including the establishment of an observer force.

Israel stated that the Palestinian intifada, as it had existed for nearly six months, was incompatible with international protection. The situation in the Palestinian territories was not one of a threatened people in dire need of protection. In fact, the only thing that Palestinians needed protection from was the consequences of their own actions, since the responsibility for the violence lay with the Palestinian authorities. The new Israeli Government had frozen settlement construction and had decided against any acts of collective punishment, out of a real desire for peace, which was its chief objective. The Palestinian request for an international observer mission was unnecessary, as Chairman Arafat had the ability to protect Palestinian lives by publicly calling on his people to stop the confrontation. Though he had promised Israeli officials repeatedly that he would take such a step, he had ignored his many opportunities to do so. The United Nations could not be called upon to put out fires on behalf of the same party that had kindled the flames. Such a precedent would send a message to the Palestinians—and every other aggrieved people of the world—that violence and aggression would lead to international protection. The Council had to recognize that sending UN personnel to the territories while the intifada continued had the potential to actually escalate the violence and further destabilize the region. In addition, the Mitchell Committee, with which Israel had expressed its willingness to cooperate fully, was expected to arrive in the region the following week and to report to the President of the United States and the Secretary-General on the nature and causes of the ongoing violence. As to the security situation, citizens had experienced abductions and murders on a daily basis both in the territories and inside Israel. It was irresponsible to portray Israel's response to that constantly looming threat as punitive action taken against the Palestinian people.

The United Arab Emirates, on behalf of the Arab Group, said that since December 2000 Israeli military forces had implemented a design of deliberate killing, siege and closure of Palestinian villages and cities. They were also implementing policies aimed at destroying the human, social and economic infrastructure of the Palestinian people. The intifada was a reflection of Palestinian desperation and frustration and one of the simplest means of self-defence against the Israeli war machine and the heavily armed settlers. The Council, among other things, should adopt the draft resolution that was submitted in December 2000 for the formation of an international observer force to provide protection to the Palestinian people.

The United States stated that it was firmly committed to ensuring that the Council did not adopt any resolution that was not supported by both the Israelis and the Palestinians. The Council, in December 2000, had acted wisely by not adopting a resolution calling for the premature establishment of an international presence in the region. The United States looked forward to a time when the parties would reach an agreement and turn to the Council for support and assistance in implementing it. It was entirely possible that an international presence that had an achievable mandate would be a part of that implementation effort. At that time of prospective peace, the United States would join with the rest of the Council in giving full support to the parties' own efforts to secure peace. Suggesting that the Council could somehow impose itself between the parties and play a constructive role by observing violence only served to divert the parties from the absolute necessity to meet and shape their shared destiny, which was a just and lasting peace.

Addressing the Council on 19 March, the Chairman of the Committee on Palestinian Rights said that more than 360 Palestinian civilians had been killed and some 15,000 wounded since the beginning of the crisis in September 2000. Israel was systematically responding with disproportionate force to every outbreak of protest throughout the Palestinian territory. Furthermore, groups of armed settlers regularly harassed and physically assaulted Palestinian civilians, destroying their property. Paradoxically, on the one hand, a state of affairs had been created that was fuelled by confrontation and a cycle of violence; on the other hand, unarmed populations were being asked to end the violence that was triggered by provocation and punitive expeditions on the part of the occupier.

Communications (16-27 March). In letters of 16 [A/ES-10/66-S/2001/239] and 21 [A/ES-10/67-S/2001/255] March, the Permanent Observer of Palestine informed the Secretary-General and the Council President that the killing and injuring of Palestinians continued; he submitted lists of the names of those killed.

In letters to the Secretary-General of 19 [A/55/842-S/2001/244], 26 [A/55/858-S/2001/278] and 27 [A/55/860-S/2001/280] March, Israel detailed Palestinian terrorist acts against Israeli civilians, including a mortar attack near a kibbutz, a shooting at a playground, a car bomb and a suicide bomb.

Security Council consideration (27 March). On 27 March [meeting 4305], the Security Council discussed the situation in the Middle East, including the Palestinian question, and considered the text of a draft resolution [S/2001/270] submitted by Bangladesh, Colombia, Jamaica, Mali, Mauritius, Singapore and Tunisia. By that draft, the Council would have expressed its determination to establish an appropriate mechanism to protect Palestinian civilians, including through the establishment of a UN observer force.

With the Council's consent, the President invited the Israeli representative to participate in the meeting. He also invited the Permanent Observer of Palestine to participate, at his own request [S/2001/282].

Speaking before the vote, in his capacity as the representative of Ukraine, the Council President said that, despite efforts made by all Council members, there was no common ground on the draft resolution. Without the necessary unanimity, he did not believe that the vote on the draft resolution would either achieve its original goal as regards the protection of Palestinian civilians or send any positive signal to the people in the region. Therefore, while supporting the contents of the draft text and being well aware of the outcome of the voting exercise that the Council was about to take, Ukraine would not take part in the vote.

Speaking after the Council's vote (9-1-4) on the draft resolution, which was not adopted owing to the negative vote of a permanent Council member, the United States said that it had opposed the draft text because it was unbalanced and unworkable and hence unwise. By the text, some States would call on the Council to impose a solution in the absence of an agreement between the parties. Instead, the Council should have called on the parties to end all violence and resume negotiations. The United States supported much of the substance that the Council had been discussing in the preceding week, but it could not allow the Council to adopt a draft resolution that risked damaging simultaneously the prospects for peace and the Council's own credibility.

The Permanent Observer of Palestine said that the failure to adopt the draft resolution meant that the Council was prevented by one of its permanent members from carrying out its duties to preserve international peace and security in accordance with the Charter. It also meant that the Council had failed to provide the support necessary to revive what was left of the Middle East peace process. The Permanent Observer supported the convening of the Arab summit in Amman and the participation of the Secretary-General in that meeting (see p. 405), but said that the Council's action had failed to send the right message to the summit, one that would promote interdependence and harmony between Arab action and international legitimacy in addressing the deteriorating situation in the region.

Communications (28 March-26 April). In a series of letters to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President [A/ES-10/68-S/2001/284, A/ES-10/69-S/2001/295, A/ES-10/70-S/2001/304, A/ES-

10/71-S/2001/314, A/ES-10/72-S/2001/332, A/ES-10/75-S/2001/352, A/ES-10/76-S/2001/372, A/ES-10/79-S/2001/418], the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that the killing and injuring of Palestinians continued and that Israel was employing excessive use of force; he submitted lists of the names of those killed.

In letters of 28 March [A/55/863-S/2001/291] and 23 April [A/55/910-S/2001/396], Israel said that Palestinian suicide bombers had killed and injured Israeli civilians.

On 18 April [S/2001/393], Morocco, as Chairman of the Al-Quds Committee, condemned Israel's use of force against unarmed Palestinians. The United Nations was called on to assume its responsibilities for implementing UN resolutions on the protection of civilians and of the Holy Places of Al-Quds al-Sharif, which had been threatened by the head of the Israeli Government.

Mitchell Committee report. On 30 April, the report of the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee, chaired by former United States Senator George Mitchell, was released under the auspices of the President of the United States. The Committee was established in November 2000 by the United States, in consultation with Israel and the PA, as agreed upon at the October 2000 Sharm el-Sheikh Summit [YUN 2000, p. 420], to look into the nature and causes of the ongoing violence in the Middle East since September 2000.

The Committee recommended a number of steps to end the violence by implementing an unconditional ceasefire and resuming security co-operation, rebuilding confidence by establishing a meaningful "cooling-off period" and implementing additional confidence-building measures, including a freeze by Israel of all settlement activity, to be followed by the resumption of negotiations.

The report was accepted by both parties, which, on 13 June, agreed to a ceasefire, brokered by the Director of the United States Central Intelligence Agency.

Communications (1 May-16 August). In letters dated between 1 May and 16 August [A/ES-10/80-S/2001/432, A/ES-10/81-S/2001/447, A/ES-10/83-S/2001/471, A/ES-10/84-S/2001/479, A/ES-10/85-S/2001/486, A/ES-10/86-S/2001/496, A/ES-10/87-S/2001/504, A/ES-10/88-S/2001/508, A/ES-10/89-S/2001/544, A/ES-10/90-S/2001/586, A/ES-10/91-S/2001/605, A/ES-10/92-S/2001/629, A/ES-10/93-S/2001/657, A/ES-10/94-S/2001/669, A/ES-10/95-S/2001/686, A/ES-10/96-S/2001/697, A/ES-10/97-S/2001/708, A/ES-10/98-S/2001/717, A/ES-10/99-S/2001/742, A/ES-10/100-S/2001/754, A/ES-10/102-S/2001/785, A/ES-10/103-S/2001/798], the Permanent Observer of Palestine detailed attacks on Palestinians by Israeli forces, including extrajudicial killings and the use of F-16 warplanes to fire missiles and rockets against Palestinian targets; he submitted lists of the names of those killed.

In letters dated between 1 May and 13 August [A/55/924-S/2001/435, A/56/69-S/2001/459, A/56/72-S/2001/473, A/56/78-S/2001/506, A/56/80-S/2001/524, A/56/81-S/2001/540, A/56/85-S/2001/555, A/56/91-S/2001/580, A/56/92-S/2001/585, A/56/97-S/2001/604, A/56/98-S/2001/611, A/56/119-S/2001/619, A/56/131-S/2001/656, A/56/138-S/2001/662, A/56/184-S/2001/696, A/56/201-S/2001/706, A/56/223-S/2001/737, A/56/225-S/2001/743, A/56/272-S/2001/768, A/56/280-S/2001/775, A/56/294-S/2001/787], Israel stated that the killing and injuring of Israeli civilians by Palestinian terrorists, including suicide bombers, continued. On 1 June, a Palestinian suicide bomber blew himself up near a Tel Aviv nightclub, killing 20 people and wounding 90 more.

In identical letters of 9 May [A/ES-10/82-S/2001/463] to the Secretary-General and the Council President, the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that the Israeli Prime Minister, Mr. Sharon, in a statement to the press on 8 May, claimed that the Palestinian territory occupied by Israel since 1967 was disputed and not occupied. He further rejected the cessation of settlement activities and made the resumption of negotiations conditional upon the total cessation of violence.

On 15 May [A/55/944-S/2001/491], the Permanent Observer transmitted to the Secretary-General the text of a resolution entitled "Dubious attempts by Israel to have a number of archaeological sites in East Jerusalem inscribed on the World Heritage List", adopted by the Council of LAS at its one hundred and fifteenth session at the level of ministers for foreign affairs (Cairo, Egypt, 12 March).

By a 24 May letter [A/55/956-S/2001/526], Bahrain transmitted to the Secretary-General the joint communiqué of the eleventh session of the Ministerial Council of the Cooperation Council of the Gulf Arab States and the EU (Manama, Bahrain, 23 April). Both organizations noted with deep concern the escalation of violence in the Middle East and, in particular, the use of excessive force against civilians.

On 29 May [A/55/974-S/2001/543], Qatar transmitted the final communiqué adopted by the extraordinary meeting of the Foreign Ministers of OIC on the grave situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territories (Doha, Qatar, 26 May). The meeting, among other things, called on the Security Council to secure the necessary international protection for the Palestinian people and to establish an international criminal tribunal to try those responsible for war crimes committed against the Palestinians. It also decided to stop all political contacts with the Israeli Government as long as the aggression and blockade against the Palestinian people and its National Authority continued. Qatar also transmitted to the Secretary-General the statement made by the Emir of Qatar at the extraordinary meeting [A/55/974/Add.1-S/2001/543/Add.1]. A summary of the outcome of the meeting was forwarded to the General Assembly President by Qatar [A/55/1022].

On 12 July [A/55/1017-S/2001/698], Bahrain transmitted to the Secretary-General the press communiqué of the Ministerial Council of the Cooperation Council of the Gulf Arab States (Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, 11 July). The Council said, among other things, that the settlements constituted the major danger to security and were preventing the achievement and advancement of the peace process.

On 30 July [A/55/1023-S/2001/750], Qatar condemned as a provocation against religious sentiments the decision by an Israeli religious group to lay a cornerstone for a temple at the Haram al-Sharif in Jerusalem, an act that was to be regarded as an affront to the sanctity of the Islamic Holy Places.

By a 7 August letter [A/56/275-S/2001/770] to the Secretary-General, Israel said that the Temple Mount Faithful, a small Israeli fringe group, had annually attempted to place a cornerstone on the Temple Mount. The Israeli high court had barred the group from entering the Mount and the Israeli police had actively enforced the decision. At no time did the group attempt to enter the Temple Mount compound and the cornerstone itself never entered the city. The Palestinian leadership, on the other hand, decided to capitalize on the event, declaring in advance a "day of rage" and calling on its people to defend the Mount. Consequently, crowds of Palestinians showered Jewish worshippers gathered below at the Western Wall with rocks and stones, forcing the evacuation of the site on the day when the Jewish people observed the holy day of Tish'a b'Av. With no efforts exerted by the Palestinian leadership to restore calm, Israeli soldiers were forced to enter the Mount to quell the disturbances; they did not enter the Al-Aqsa mosque.

On 1 August [S/2001/790], Belgium, on behalf of the EU, expressed concern with regard to the deteriorating situation in the region and the renewed escalation of violence. It called once again for the implementation of the Mitchell Committee's recommendations and for the rapid establishment of a third-party monitoring mechanism.

On 9 August [A/56/286-S/2001/780], Israel said that a Palestinian suicide bomber had that day detonated powerful explosives inside a restaurant in the centre of Jerusalem, killing 15 people and injuring 130 more. Two other Israelis had been shot and killed by Palestinians on the same day.

On the same day [S/2001/791], Belgium, on behalf of the EU, condemned the bombing in Jerusalem on 9 August and called on both sides to the conflict to regain their self-control and adopt a resolutely forward-looking approach.

In identical letters of 13 August to the Secretary-General and the Council President [A/ES-10/101-S/2001/783], the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that, on 10 August, Israeli security forces raided and closed down Orient House (PA offices in East Jerusalem) along with nine other buildings belonging to Palestinian institutions in and around Occupied East Jerusalem. The Israeli action represented an assault on Palestinian national dignity and Palestinian rights in Jerusalem.

On 13 August [A/55/1027-S/2001/784], Qatar, in its capacity as Chairman of OIC, condemned Israel's occupation of Orient House.

By letters of 15 [S/2001/797] and 16 [A/55/1029] August, Mali and Qatar informed the Security Council President and the Secretary-General that, at two urgent and successive meetings, the first of the Follow-up Committee of the Ninth Islamic Summit Conference and the second of the Islamic Group, both held on 15 August at the ambassadorial level, grave concern was expressed over the deteriorating situation that had developed in the Occupied Palestinian Territory as a result of Israel's seizure of Orient House and the closure of the PA's political and security offices.

Security Council consideration (20-21 August). At the request of Mali and Qatar on behalf of the Islamic Group [S/2001/797], the Security Council, on 20 and 21 August, discussed the situation in the Middle East, including the Palestinian question [meeting 4357]. With the Council's consent, the Council President invited, among others, Egypt and Israel, at their request, to participate in the discussion without the right to vote. The President also invited the Permanent Observer of Palestine to participate, at his request [S/2001/799]. The Chairman of the Committee on Palestinian Rights was also invited at his own request. In addition, invitations were extended to the Acting Permanent Observer of OIC to the United Nations, at the request of Mali [S/2001/800], and to the Deputy Permanent Observer of LAS, at the request of Tunisia [S/2001/801].

The Permanent Observer of Palestine said that Israel's military campaign and other measures, such as the withholding of Palestinian funds, had placed the Palestinian people, in essence, in a collective prison. The PA condemned the bombings that had taken place in Israel, but observed that the wave of explosions started long after the beginning of the Israeli military campaign in September 2000. The Permanent Observer noted that the Palestinians had accepted the Mitchell Committee's report and had called for the implementation of its recommendations. For its part, the Israeli Government, though it finally accepted the report, had come up with the notion of a seven-day cooling-off period as a condition for implementing the recommendations. The Palestinians viewed Israel's position as unrealistic and impractical.

Israel stated that it had accepted the Mitchell report as a road map leading back to the negotiating table. Even before the Tenet ceasefire took effect in June 2001, Israel had implemented its own unilateral ceasefire. Those actions were met with no reciprocal gestures from the Palestinian side. Consequently, 36 Israelis had been killed and 292 injured in over 1,300 separate attacks since the Tenet plan took effect. Thus, the Council's meeting was taking place not only against the backdrop that the Palestinians had depicted, but also against the backdrop of ongoing Palestinian terrorism. It appeared that despite the 9 August bombing in Jerusalem (see above), the Palestinians had no scruples about convening a Council meeting to discuss Israeli actions. That unprecedented escalation of Palestinian terror was not in itself a new phenomenon, since Israel had faced a calculated campaign of Palestinian terror for more than 10 months. What had changed was the frequency, intensity and horror of the attacks. Israel was obliged, under every norm of international law, to take action in defence of its citizens. In that regard, it should be treated like any other nation that faced armed aggression. The use of human beings as bombs was an alarming phenomenon that presented no obvious response, as individuals who were willing to sacrifice their lives in such a manner would not be deterred by ordinary means. Israel's response, therefore, had to be geared towards cutting off terror at its source, since, once it was unleashed, it was virtually impossible to stop. Chairman Arafat had himself become a party to terrorism, as he released terrorists from jail, used the official Palestinian media to incite them to violence, refused to re-arrest them even when they were about to commit murder, and invited the Hamas and Islamic Jihad organizations to join him in a unity coalition. As long as the Palestinians maintained that policy, Israel would continue to take the steps it deemed necessary to keep the Palestinians' killing machinery off its streets. Israel's seizure of Orient House was not a takeover, an occupation or an act of revenge, but an act of self-defence. Israel took temporary control of buildings that were being used by official Palestinian forces to assist terrorists in carrying out their attacks, and intelligence reports and illegal weapons had been recovered from Orient House that constituted irrefutable proof that the site was being used for political and military purposes. Israel regarded the draft resolution before the Council (an informal text that was not tabled) as a biased and one-sided document that sought to place the onus of the current situation squarely on one party. Since the Mitchell report referred to a direct, face-to-face approach, there appeared to be no justification for further complicating matters by subjecting implementation to international supervision and scrutiny or by imposing any kind of monitoring mechanism that had not been negotiated and agreed to by both parties. Israel therefore remained opposed to an international presence in the region, as that would contravene both the spirit and the letter of direct bilateral negotiations.

Communications (21 August–13 December). In letters dated between 21 August and 10 December [A/ES-10/104-S/2001/812, A/ES-10/105-S/2001/814, A/ES-10/107-S/2001/821, A/ES-10/108-S/2001/826, A/ES-10/111-S/2001/880, A/ES-10/112-S/2001/918, A/ES-10/114-S/2001/928, A/ES-10/115-S/2001/932, A/ES-10/116-S/2001/941, A/ES-10/117-S/2001/971, A/ES-10/118-S/2001/989, A/ES-10/119-S/2001/991, A/ES-10/121-S/2001/1007, A/ES-10/122-S/2001/1024, A/ES-10/123-S/2001/1036, A/ES-10/124-S/2001/1084, A/ES-10/125-S/2001/1092, A/ES-10/126-S/2001/1118, A/ES-10/128-S/2001/1149, A/ES-10/129-S/2001/1166], the Permanent Observer of Palestine informed the Secretary-General and the Council President that Israeli forces continued to kill and injure Palestinian civilians and had used, among other weapons, helicopter gunships to fire missiles against Palestinian security posts while bulldozers had destroyed Palestinian farmlands and buildings; he submitted lists of the names of those killed. On 4 December, Israeli forces fired missiles at PA buildings in Ramallah, in the vicinity of President Arafat's headquarters.

In a series of communications dated between 27 August and 13 December [A/56/324-S/2001/825, A/56/325-S/2001/834, A/56/346-S/2001/858, A/56/367-S/2001/875, A/56/386-S/2001/892, A/56/406-S/2001/907, A/56/438-S/2001/938, A/56/443-S/2001/942, A/56/444-S/2001/943, A/56/450-S/2001/948, A/56/483-S/2001/975, A/56/492-S/2001/990, A/56/506-S/2001/1011, A/56/514-S/2001/1023, A/56/604-S/2001/1048, A/56/617-S/2001/1071, A/56/663-S/2001/1121, A/56/668-S/2001/1133, A/56/670-S/2001/1141, A/56/678-S/2001/1150, A/56/706-S/2001/1198], Israel detailed acts of terrorism committed by Palestinians against Israeli targets and civilians. On 17 October, Israel's Minister of Tourism, Rehavam Zeevi, was killed by Palestinian gunmen. On 1 and 2 December, Palestinian suicide bombers killed 26 Israelis and injured over 200 more in attacks carried out in Jerusalem and Haifa.

On 27 August [A/ES-10/109-S/2001/830], the Sudan, as Chairman of the Arab Group, transmitted to the Secretary-General the texts of two resolutions adopted by the LAS Council at an emergency meeting on 22 August, held at the level of ministers for foreign affairs. The resolutions were entitled "The recent Israeli aggression against the City of Jerusalem" and "World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance".

By a 6 September letter [A/ES-10/110-S/2001/855], the PLO Chairman and PA President, Yasser Arafat, informed the Secretary-General that, on 6 September, Israeli forces started to seal off Al-Quds from the surrounding areas of Palestine and had strengthened their presence throughout the city and deployed large numbers of soldiers and policemen.

On 15 October [S/2001/977], Belgium transmitted a 9 October statement by the Presidency of the EU, which welcomed a declaration made by United States President George W. Bush acknowledging the right of the Palestinians to a viable State provided that Israel's right to exist was guaranteed.

On 22 October [S/2001/997], Mali and Qatar informed the Council President that an urgent meeting of the Islamic Group was held on that same day at the ambassadorial level to consider the deteriorating situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory as a result of Israel's escalation of military action against the Palestinian people. The Islamic Group requested the convening of a meeting of the Council in order to ensure immediate Israeli withdrawal from the areas that it had reoccupied in the preceding few weeks.

On 26 October [S/2001/1019], the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, as Chairman of the Arab Group, said that it was regrettable that the Council had not taken immediate measures as requested by the Islamic Group on 22 October. The Arab Group called on the Council to consider the situation and adopt a resolution on the matter, particularly with regard to the immediate withdrawal of the Israeli occupation forces.

By a 16 November letter [A/56/636-S/2001/1090], Chile transmitted to the Secretary-General the statement issued on 14 November by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the Rio Group (an organization of Latin American States) on the crisis in the Middle East. The Rio Group condemned the acts of violence and reaffirmed their adherence to the UN resolutions which had created a legal framework for the settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict.

By letters of 26 November [A/56/650-S/2001/1112] and 6 December [A/56/683-S/2001/1160] to the Secretary-General, Qatar condemned the inhuman acts committed by Israel against Palestinian citizens, and protested Israel's policy of assassinating Palestinian representative leaders.

In two separate letters of 7 December to the Secretary-General [A/56/696] and the Council President [S/2001/1170], Chile, on behalf of the Rio Group, called on Israel and the PA to bring to an immediate halt all acts of violence so as to restore the minimum conditions of confidence necessary to prevent a further deterioration in the situation.

By a 12 December letter [A/56/703-S/2001/1192], Qatar transmitted to the Secretary-General the text of a statement made by Qatar's Emir at the opening session of the Ninth Islamic Summit Conference (Doha, 10 December), and the text of the Conference's final communiqué, which called on the Council to dispatch international observers to the region to ensure the necessary protection for the Palestinian people.

Security Council consideration (14 December). At the request of Egypt on behalf of LAS [S/2001/1191], the Security Council, on 14 December [meeting 4438], discussed the situation in the Middle East, including the Palestinian question. With the Council's consent, the President invited, among others, Egypt and Israel, at their request, to participate in the discussion without the right to vote. The President also invited the Permanent Observer of Palestine to participate, at his own request [S/2001/1205], as well as the Chairman of the Committee on Palestinian Rights, also at his own request. The Council considered the text of a draft resolution [S/2001/1199] submitted by Egypt and Tunisia. By that draft, the Council would have encouraged all concerned to establish a monitoring mechanism to help the parties implement the Mitchell Committee's recommendations and called for resumed negotiations between the two sides.

Speaking before the vote, the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that Israel had announced earlier that week that it would sever all contact with PA President Arafat. That decision meant the abandonment of the negotiation process and the prelude to abandoning all existing arrangements between the two sides. On the question of terrorism, the Palestinian side rejected suicide bombings carried out in Israel targeting Israeli civilians. As to acts of violence carried out in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, the Palestinian side did not condone them but did not accept any attempt to label them as terrorist acts. Resistance to foreign occupation had been, and remained, a legitimate right under international law. Israel's violence against the Palestinians and widespread destruction of their property represented serious breaches of the Fourth Geneva Convention. The Permanent Observer charged Israel with, among other things, carrying out State terrorism against the Palestinians.

Israel said that there had been a recent incredible escalation of Palestinian terrorism against Israel, which was unparalleled in more than 14 months of violence. Israel had repeatedly expressed its sympathy for the unfortunate deaths of Palestinian civilians and for the Palestinian population that had to endure the precautionary security measures foisted upon Israel by the inaction of the Palestinian leadership. But while Israel considered the death of any civilian, whether Israeli or Palestinian, to be tragic, for the Palestinian terrorists those deaths were deliberate, premeditated and desired. The obstacle to peace in the region was not occupation, but the continuing murder of civilians and the Palestinian leadership's attempts to justify those murders. Mr. Arafat had no intention of ending the violence by taking action against the terrorists.

Egypt said that the destruction of the PA's installations by Israeli forces would not end the crisis or reduce the level of violence between the two parties. The Israeli decision to cut off contacts with Palestinian leaders only signified a desire to prolong the conflict and, perhaps, represented a complete renunciation of all agreements signed by the two parties and a prelude to a new phase in the conflict.

The United States said that the draft resolution under consideration failed to address the dynamic at work in the region. Instead, its purpose was to isolate politically one of the parties to the conflict by throwing the weight of the Council behind the other party. A major flaw of the draft resolution was that it never mentioned the acts of terrorism against Israel or those responsible for them. Terrorist organizations such as Hamas and the Palestinian Islamic Jihad were deliberately seeking to sabotage any potential peace negotiation between the two parties. It was President Arafat's responsibility to take a strategic stand against terrorism. The PA had to arrest those responsible for planning and carrying out terrorist attacks and destroy the structures that perpetuated terrorism. Israel, for its part, had to focus very carefully on the repercussions of any actions it took. Neither party could lose sight of the need to resume progress towards the resumption of a dialogue. The United States believed that the Council should not take an action that would turn the parties away from the efforts needed to improve an already tense situation. Consequently, the United States had decided to make use of its veto to block the draft resolution.

The draft resolution was not adopted (12-1-2), owing to the negative vote of a permanent member of the Council.

Emergency special session

In accordance with General Assembly resolution ES-10/7 [YUN 2000, p. 421] and at the request of Egypt [A/ES-10/130], on behalf of LAS, and South Africa, in its capacity as Chairman of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries [A/ES-10/131], the tenth emergency special session of the Assembly resumed on 20 December to discuss "Illegal Israeli actions in Occupied East Jerusalem and the rest of the Occupied Palestinian Territory". The session was first convened in April 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 394] and resumed in July and November of that year, as well as in March 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 425], February 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 402] and October 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 421].

The Assembly had before it two draft resolutions. By the first draft, the Assembly demanded the immediate cessation of all acts of violence and, among other things, encouraged all concerned to establish a monitoring mechanism to help the parties implement the Mitchell Committee's recommendations. By the second, it reiterated the applicability of the Fourth Geneva Convention to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, and expressed support for the declaration adopted by the 5 December Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Convention (see p. 425).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 20 December [meeting 15], the General Assembly adopted resolution ES-10/8 [draft: A/ES-10/L.7] by recorded vote (124-6-25) [agenda item 5].

Illegal Israeli actions in Occupied East Jerusalem and the rest of the Occupied Palestinian Territory

The General Assembly,

Recalling its relevant resolutions,

Recalling also relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolution 1322(2000) of 7 October 2000,

Emphasizing the need for a just, lasting and comprehensive peace in the Middle East based on Security Council resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967 and 338(1973) of 22 October 1973 and the principle of land for peace,

Emphasizing also in that regard the essential role of the Palestinian Authority, which remains the indispensable and legitimate party for peace and needs to be preserved fully,

Expressing its grave concern at the continuation of the tragic and violent events that have taken place since September 2000,

Expressing also its grave concern at the recent dangerous deterioration of the situation and its possible impact on the region,

Emphasizing further the importance of the safety and well-being of all civilians in the whole Middle East region, and condemning in particular all acts of violence and terror resulting in the deaths and injuries among Palestinian and Israeli civilians,

Expressing its determination to contribute to ending the violence and to promoting dialogue between the Israeli and Palestinian sides,

Reiterating the need for the two sides to comply with their obligations under the existing agreements,

Also reiterating the need for Israel, the occupying Power, to abide scrupulously by its legal obligations and responsibilities under the Fourth Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War of 12 August 1949,

1. Demands the immediate cessation of all acts of violence, provocation and destruction, as well as the return to the positions and arrangements that existed prior to September 2000;

2. Condemns all acts of terror, in particular those targeting civilians;

3. Also condemns all acts of extrajudiciary executions, excessive use of force and wide destruction of properties;

4. Calls upon the two sides to start the comprehensive and immediate implementation of the recommendations made in the report of the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee (Mitchell report) in a speedy manner;

5. Encourages all concerned to establish a monitoring mechanism to help the parties implement the recommendations of the report of the Fact-Finding Committee and to help to create a better situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory;

6. Calls for the resumption of negotiations between the two sides within the Middle East peace process on its agreed basis, taking into consideration developments in previous discussions between the two sides, and urges them to reach a final agreement on all issues, on the basis of their previous agreements, with the objective of implementing Security Council resolutions 242(1967) and 338(1973);

7. Decides to remain seized of the matter.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION ES-10/8:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Andorra, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Gabon, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

On the same day [meeting 15], the Assembly adopted resolution ES-10/9 [draft: A/ES-10/L.8] by recorded vote (133-4-16) [agenda item 5].

Illegal Israeli actions in Occupied East Jerusalem and the rest of the Occupied Palestinian Territory

The General Assembly,

Recalling its relevant resolutions, including resolutions of the tenth emergency special session on the situation in Occupied East Jerusalem and the rest of the Occupied Palestinian Territory,

Recalling also relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 237(1967) of 14 June 1967, 242(1967) of 22 November 1967, 259(1968) of 27 September 1968, 271(1969) of 15 September 1969, 338(1973) of 22 October 1973, 446(1979) of 22 March 1979, 452(1979) of 20 July 1979, 465(1980) of 1 March 1980, 468(1980) of 8 May 1980, 469(1980) of 20 May 1980, 471(1980) of 5 June 1980, 476(1980) of 30 June 1980, 478(1980) of 20 August 1980, 484(1980) of 19 December 1980, 592(1986) of 8 December 1986, 605(1987) of 22 December 1987, 607(1988) of 5 January 1988, 608(1988) of 14 January 1988, 636(1989) of 6 July 1989, 641(1989) of 30 August 1989, 672(1990) of 12 October 1990, 673(1990) of 24 October 1990, 681(1990) of 20 December 1990, 694(1991) of 24 May 1991, 726(1992) of 6 January 1992, 799(1992) of 18 December 1992, 904(1994) of 18 March 1994 and 1322(2000) of 7 October 2000,

Taking note with appreciation of the convening of the Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention, on 15 July 1999, as recommended by the General Assembly in its resolution ES-10/6 of 9 February 1999, and the statement adopted by the Conference,

Taking note with appreciation also of the reconvening of the above-mentioned Conference, on 5 December 2001, and the important declaration adopted by the Conference,

Recalling relevant provisions of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court,

Reaffirming the position of the international community on Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem, as illegal and as an obstacle to peace,

Expressing its concern at Israeli actions taken recently against the Orient House and other Palestinian institutions in Occupied East Jerusalem as well as other illegal Israeli actions aimed at altering the status of the city and its demographic composition,

Reiterating the applicability of the Fourth Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War of 12 August 1949 to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem,

Stressing that the Fourth Geneva Convention, which takes fully into account imperative military necessity, has to be respected in all circumstances,

Bearing in mind the relevant provisions of the Charter of the United Nations, including Article 96 thereof,

1. Expresses its full support for the declaration adopted by the Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention, convened on 5 December 2001 at Geneva;

2. Calls upon all members and observers of the United Nations as well as the Organization and its agencies to observe the above-mentioned declaration;

3. Decides to adjourn the tenth emergency special session temporarily and to authorize the President of the General Assembly at its most recent session to resume its meeting upon request from Member States.

Speaking before the votes on the two resolutions [A/ES-10/PV.15], the Assembly President said that one of the most daunting tasks before the United Nations was to bring lasting peace to the Middle East, an issue that not only involved the region, but was a global concern, constituting a serious threat to world peace and security. He urged both parties directly concerned to return to dialogue and negotiation.

The Permanent Observer of Palestine said that the resumption of the emergency special session was the result of the Security Council's failure to fulfil its primary responsibility due to the exercise by one of its permanent members of the veto during the vote on the draft resolution on 15 December (see p. 414). He called on Member States to adopt the same text of the draft resolution that had been before the Council and another draft concerning the Fourth Geneva Convention and the declaration adopted by the Conference of High Contracting Parties on 5 December. With regard to the situation in the Security Council, the question was whether the Council was used by some only when it suited them or whether it represented and acted on behalf of all members of the international community. The Palestinians would continue to work with the Council in the hope of overcoming the existing crisis. On 16 December, President Arafat had called for an immediate ceasefire in an attempt to stop the violence on the ground. On the other hand, the Israeli Government had adopted policies undermining the peace efforts; it had evaded the implementation of the Mitchell Committee's report by insisting on the precondition of seven quiet days and had then made a new demand, namely, that the PA had to first combat and end terrorism before peace negotiations could begin. Meanwhile, Israel continued to assault the PA and its institutions, disabling its security apparatus and preventing it from functioning. Finally, the Israeli Government had announced a boycott of the PA, which was tantamount to abandoning the peace process. The Permanent Observer charged the Israeli occupation with committing war crimes against the Palestinian people. The only solution to the crisis was to end the Israeli occupation and to ensure the rights of the Palestinians, including their right to establish their own independent State with Jerusalem as its capital.

Israel said that Chairman Arafat, a few days after calling for a stop to violent attacks against Israelis, had called for a continuation of the fighting during a rally in Ramallah. The PA had failed to take the steps necessary to end the violence and terrorism, steps that were a precondition for resuming political negotiations. The Assembly's emergency special session represented the continuance of the Palestinians' drive to win international sanction for their intransigence. After failing to prevail in the Security Council on 15 December, the Palestinians had turned to the Assembly, where numerous one-sided resolutions were adopted every year. The United Nations expended copious scarce resources each year to publicize the Palestinian cause, and an entire division of the Secretariat was devoted exclusively to advancing Palestinian rights. However, the root of the conflict in the region was terrorism and not the Israeli occupation. Only in UN resolutions was the basic reality of the conflict so grossly misinterpreted. The draft resolutions under consideration served merely to divert the attention and the resources of the international community, and to relieve the mounting pressure on the Palestinian leadership to exert its authority to bring an end to violence and terrorism. Furthermore, the texts made assertions that sought to prejudice the outcome of the negotiations and to establish a false correlation between those who perpetrated terror and those who fought it.

The United States said that it opposed the draft resolution [A/ES-10/L.7] because, among other things, it called for a monitoring mechanism regardless of whether the parties agreed to it. In addition, the text did not demand a cessation of terrorism. The United States was committed to achieving implementation of the Mitchell Committee's recommendations through the establishment of a durable ceasefire between the Israelis and the Palestinians. As the Palestinians assumed their responsibilities to confront terrorist groups, Israel needed to do its part to create an environment in which Palestinians could sustain and expand their efforts. Moreover, the daily plight of the Palestinian people had to be eased. The proper role of the United Nations was to facilitate and strengthen the agreements that the two parties had reached with each other. One-sided resolutions did not further that goal.

Qatar said that while Israel was committing atrocities in the occupied territories, it expected the PA to shoulder its responsibilities for security, something that was patently impossible. Israeli military actions had escalated tensions, sharpened hatred and increased violence, the proof being that while President Arafat, on 16 December, called for an end to military attacks by both sides, Israeli forces continued to invade entire areas in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. The Israeli Government had broken off all contacts with the PA and President Arafat was almost under house arrest. However, he could not be marginalized, as he remained the main interlocutor and participant in the peace process.

Switzerland, as depositary of the Geneva Conventions, said that on 5 December, 115 States parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention met in Geneva and issued a declaration by which they reaffirmed the applicability of the Convention to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including East Jerusalem (see p. 425). Switzerland stressed the need for all States to ensure a follow-up to the declaration's implementation.

Communications (21-26 December). In identical letters of 21 December to the Secretary-General and the Council President [A/ES-10/133-S/2001/1239], the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that Israel continued its military campaign against the Palestinian people; he submitted lists of the names of those killed.

On 26 December [A/ES-10/134-S/2001/1261], the Permanent Observer said that Israel, on Christmas Eve, had used military measures to prevent President Arafat from attending religious observances in Bethlehem. That step represented a severe violation of the agreements reached between the two sides and of the principle of freedom of movement and freedom of access to holy places.

Special Committee on Israeli Practices. In its thirty-third report [A/56/491], the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories (Special Committee on Israeli Practices) stated that relations between settlers in the West Bank and Gaza and the Palestinians were reaching, at times, high levels of intensity and violence. Approximately 190 settlements inhabited by about 360,000 settlers had been established in the West Bank and Gaza. The settlements were scattered throughout the occupied territories, but as in the case of the city of Hebron, they were often located close to Palestinian areas of residence. The system of bypass roads, enabling settlers to move quickly and safely through the West Bank, extended to almost 400 kilometres of roads and prevented the expansion of Palestinian villages and the movement of commerce and workers from one Palestinian area to another. The construction of such roads required the taking of Palestinian land, often land under cultivation, and the demolition of homes. Settlements and settlers were seen as being in a privileged position, to the disadvantage of the Palestinians with respect to the location of the settlements; the effects of settlements on surrounding lands; access to water; travel on bypass roads; and protection by Israeli security forces.

Report of Secretary-General. On 25 July [A/56/216], the Secretary-General informed the Assembly that Israel had not replied to his May request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement the relevant provisions of resolution 55/132 [YUN 2000, p. 428], demanding that Israel, among other things, cease all construction of new settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth (Special Political and Decolonization) Committee [A/56/550], adopted resolution 56/61 by recorded vote (145-4-3) [agenda item 88].

Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and the occupied Syrian Golan

The General Assembly,

Guided by the principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and affirming the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force,

Recalling its relevant resolutions, including those adopted at its tenth emergency special session, as well as relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967, 446(1979) of 22 March 1979, 465(1980) of 1 March 1980 and 497(1981) of 17 December 1981,

Reaffirming the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and to the occupied Syrian Golan,

Aware of the Middle East peace process started at Madrid and the agreements reached between the parties, in particular the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements of 13 September 1993, and the subsequent implementation agreements,

Expressing grave concern about the continuation by Israel of settlement activities, including the ongoing construction of the settlement in Jabal Abu-Ghneim and in Ras Al-Amud in and around Occupied East Jerusalem, in violation of international humanitarian law, relevant United Nations resolutions and the agreements reached between the parties,

Taking into consideration the detrimental impact of Israeli settlement policies, decisions and activities on the Middle East peace process,

Gravely concerned in particular about the dangerous situation resulting from actions taken by the illegal armed Israeli settlers in the occupied territory, as illustrated by the massacre of Palestinian worshippers by an illegal Israeli settler in Al-Khalil on 25 February 1994, and during the past year,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General,

1. Reaffirms that Israeli settlements in the Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan are illegal and an obstacle to peace and economic and social development;

2. Calls upon Israel to accept the de jure applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and to the occupied Syrian Golan and to abide scrupulously by the provisions of the Convention, in particular article 49;

3. Demands complete cessation of the construction of the settlement in Jabal Abu-Ghneim and of all Israeli settlement activities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan;

4. Stresses the need for full implementation of Security Council resolution 904(1994) of 18 March 1994, in which, among other things, the Council called upon Israel, the occupying Power, to continue to take and implement measures, including confiscation of arms, with the aim of preventing illegal acts of violence by Israeli settlers, and called for measures to be taken to guarantee the safety and protection of the Palestinian civilians in the occupied territory;

5. Reiterates its call for the prevention of illegal acts of violence by Israeli settlers, particularly in the light of recent developments;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/61:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, United States.

Abstaining: Nicaragua, Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands.

Jerusalem

East Jerusalem, where most of the city's Arab inhabitants lived, remained one of the most sensitive issues in the Middle East peace process and a focal point of concern for the United Nations in 2001. The escalation of violence and the occupation by Israeli forces of the PA's building in East Jerusalem, including Orient House (see p. 411), led to the resumption of the General Assembly's tenth emergency special session (see p. 414).

Communication. On 15 May [A/55/943-S/2001/490], the Permanent Observer of Palestine transmitted to the Secretary-General the text of a resolution adopted by the LAS Council at its one hundred and fifteenth regular session (Cairo, 12 March) on the question of Jerusalem. The Council, among other things, affirmed Palestinian sovereignty over East Jerusalem.

Special Committee on Israeli Practices. In its annual report [A/56/491], the Special Committee on Israeli Practices described restrictions imposed by Israeli authorities on Jerusalem's Palestinian population and Israeli violations of their human rights.

The Committee said that Israel had continued to pursue a policy of passive transfer of Palestinian residents of East Jerusalem, in order to establish a demographic balance between Jews and Arabs by capping the Arab population of Jerusalem at 26 per cent. Israel had used various means against Palestinian residents to prevent an increase in the population and had tried to encourage them to leave the city. Under Israeli law, Arab inhabitants were treated as permanent residents of the State of Israel. They did not possess Israeli citizenship but had the right to work in Israel without needing special permits. They could participate in local but not Israeli elections. A "centre of life" policy required Arab inhabitants, in order to retain their residency status, to prove that their centre of life was in Jerusalem by submitting documentary evidence, such as rental contracts or water bills. The policy had resulted in the confiscation of Jerusalem identity cards of those unable to prove that their centre of life was in Jerusalem; refusal by Israeli authorities to register children born to parents, one of whom did not possess a Jerusalem identity card; and refusal to register persons for family reunification, in particular a spouse who did not have an identity card. In 2001, Israeli authorities placed all requests for family reunification on hold. The proceeds from the arnona (municipal tax) were used to fund the provision of services by the Jerusalem Municipality. Even though more than 50 per cent of East Jerusalem was in the highest tax band, there was discrimination between the level of services provided to Palestinian areas and to Jewish areas. Israel was also seeking to prevent territorial contiguity between East Jerusalem and Ramallah to the north, East Jerusalem and Bethlehem to the south, and East Jerusalem and Jericho to the west and to control all the land around Jerusalem. An eastern ring road project envisioned the construction of a network of roads linking all the settlements and encircling Arab East Jerusalem. Lands had been confiscated and houses demolished for that purpose.

Committee on Palestinian Rights. In its annual report [A/56/35 & Corr.1], the Committee on Palestinian Rights said that since April 2001, it had observed with concern what appeared to be an emerging pattern of Israeli incursions into areas under full Palestinian control. On 10 August, Israeli forces occupied Orient House in East Jerusalem, an act that was aimed at accelerating the process of Judaization of the city. There had also been an increase in the demolition of Palestinian property, with some 30 Palestinian houses demolished in East Jerusalem. In addition, throughout the year, tenders had been issued by Israeli authorities for the construction of settler housing in and around Jerusalem.

Transfer of diplomatic missions

Report of Secretary-General. On 17 October [A/56/480], the Secretary-General reported that five Member States, including Israel, had replied to his request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement General Assembly resolution 55/50 [YUN 2000, p. 429], which addressed the transfer by some States of their diplomatic missions to Jerusalem in violation of Security Council resolution 478(1980) [YUN 1980, p. 426] and called on them to abide by the relevant UN resolutions. Israel said the one-sided approach reflected in those resolutions undermined fundamental agreements reached between the parties, according to which the achievement of a just and lasting peace in the region was possible only through direct bilateral negotiations.

Communications. In a 9 March letter to the Secretary-General [A/55/832-S/2001/210], Qatar expressed concern regarding a statement by United States Secretary of State Colin L. Powell to the effect that Jerusalem was the capital of Israel and that the United States should move its Embassy to that city. On 13 March [A/55/837-S/2001/220], the United Arab Emirates also took exception to Mr. Powell's remarks concerning Jerusalem.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 3 December [meeting 72], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/31 [draft: A/56/L.23 & Add.1] by recorded vote (130-2-10) [agenda item 42].

Jerusalem

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 36/120 E of 10 December 1981, 37/123 C of 16 December 1982, 38/180 C of 19 December 1983, 39/146 C of 14 December 1984, 40/168 C of 16 December 1985, 41/162 C of 4 December 1986, 42/209 D of 11 December 1987, 43/54 C of 6 December 1988, 44/40 C of 4 December 1989, 45/83 C of 13 December 1990, 46/82 B of 16 December 1991, 47/63 B of 11 December 1992, 48/59 A of 14 December 1993, 49/87 A of 16 December 1994, 50/22 A of 4 December 1995, 51/27 of 4 December 1996, 52/53 of 9 December 1997, 53/37 of 2 December 1998, 54/37 of 1 December 1999 and 55/50 of 1 December 2000, in which it, inter alia, determined that all legislative and administrative measures and actions taken by Israel, the occupying Power, which have altered or purported to alter the character and status of the Holy City of Jerusalem, in particular the so-called "Basic Law" on Jerusalem and the proclamation of Jerusalem as the capital of Israel, were null and void and must be rescinded forthwith,

Recalling also Security Council resolution 478(1980) of 20 August 1980, in which the Council, inter alia, decided not to recognize the "Basic Law" and called upon those States which had established diplomatic missions in Jerusalem to withdraw such missions from the Holy City,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General,

1. Determines that the decision of Israel to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the Holy City of Jerusalem is illegal and therefore null and void and has no validity whatsoever;
2. Deplores the transfer by some States of their diplomatic missions to Jerusalem in violation of Security Council resolution 478(1980) and their refusal to comply with the provisions of that resolution;
3. Calls once more upon those States to abide by the provisions of the relevant United Nations resolutions, in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations;
4. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/31:

former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Israel, Nauru.

Abstaining: Australia, Haiti, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Nicaragua, Papua New Guinea, Solomon Islands, Tuvalu, United States, Vanuatu.

Economic and social situation

A June report on the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of Palestinians in the occupied territory, including Jerusalem, and of the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan [A/56/90-E/2001/17] was prepared by the Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA), in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 2000/31 [YUN 2000, p. 431] and General Assembly resolution 55/209 [ibid., p. 432]; it covered the period since ESCWA's previous report [ibid., p. 430].

The report stated that the delays in the implementation of the agreements reached between Israel and the PLO, together with Israeli practices, particularly the settlement expansion and the closure of passage routes from areas controlled by the PA to Israel, had an adverse effect on the living conditions of the Palestinian people and were among the primary causes of the outbreak of violence. As a consequence of the crisis, restrictions on the mobility of the Palestinians had increased and mobility between the West Bank and Gaza, and between the occupied territory and the rest of the world, had been severely impeded. In addition, imports and exports trans-shipped through Israeli ports had been delayed or blocked completely, while the Gaza International Airport and the border crossings at Rafah and the Allenby/Karamah Bridge had been closed for extended periods. Since September 2000, Israel had engaged in a wide-ranging campaign to construct scores of new roads aimed at ensuring safe passage between the settlements and Israel, while Israeli military bases had been established throughout the West Bank. The geographical distribution of settlements restricted the growth of Palestinian communities. Although settlements themselves directly controlled less than 10 per cent of the West Bank and 5 per cent of Gaza, prospects for Palestinian sovereignty would be compromised by the extensive security measures required to ensure their existence. Israel had declared 290,970 acres of the West Bank (20.2 per cent of its total area) as closed military areas, and had created an additional 29 closed military areas in Gaza (420 acres). Moreover, Israel maintained 71 military bases in the West Bank (9,563 acres). Although most of those areas had low agricultural value, they constituted the major grazing areas in the West Bank. Since Palestinian pastoralists were denied access to those areas, the remaining grazing areas suffered from severe overgrazing and were under threat of permanent desertification.

Water remained a critical issue, with over 150 West Bank villages, home to some 215,000 Palestinians, not connected to a network of running water. Waste produced by Israeli settlements located in the Occupied Palestinian Territory continued to degrade the area's water resources, causing environmental damage that compromised the Palestinians' quality of life. A declaration stating that water and sewage infrastructures had not to be harmed despite the military conflict was signed by Israeli and Palestinian representatives at the Erez Junction on 31 January; the two sides promised to take steps to provide water and treat sewage in the West Bank and Gaza, and to repair quickly malfunctions and damage to the systems. Both sides made it clear in an appeal to their public opinions that the water systems were intertwined and served both populations, and that any harm done to them would cause damage to Israelis and Palestinians alike. However, Palestinians from the village of Hares reported that water had been regularly cut off since the inception of the crisis in September 2000—not by the Israeli water company that provided it, but by Jewish settlers operating under cover of darkness.

The crisis that erupted in September 2000 ended more than three years of limited economic recovery and progress in the PA areas. Private economic losses during the first three weeks of the crisis were estimated at $186.2 million. Lost income-earning opportunities were estimated at about half of the value of domestic production and nearly all of the income earned by Palestinians working in Israel. In addition, the loss of life, injuries and the physical destruction of private and public property had become more widespread. The main impact of mobility restrictions and border closures imposed by Israeli authorities had been the disruption of productive activities and the circulation of goods. The short-term economic losses included a reduction in the income of farmers, workers, merchants and business people who could not reach their places of employment in the occupied territory or who were unable to obtain inputs or sell their goods and services. Loss of employment in Israel plus mobility restrictions and border closures had resulted in an average unemployment rate of 38 per cent (more than 250,000 persons) as compared with 11 per cent (71,000 persons) in the first nine months of 2000. Owing to the high dependency ratio, unemployment directly affected the incomes of about 900,000 Palestinians, or 29 per cent of the population. The direct economic losses arising from movement restrictions were estimated at 50 per cent of the gross domestic product for the four-month period from October 2000 to January 2001 and 75 per cent of wage income earned by Palestinian workers in Israel.

Israeli settlement expansion in the Golan Heights continued, while employment opportunities and access to education for the Arab population remained limited. Moreover, Israel's taxation policy enhanced the deterioration of living standards of the Arab population.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 25 July [meeting 42], the Economic and Social Council adopted resolution 2001/19 [draft: E/2001/L.26] by roll-call vote (42-1-5) [agenda item 11].

Economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the occupied Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan

Recalling General Assembly resolution 54/230 of 22 December 1999,

Also recalling its resolution 2000/31 of 28 July 2000, Guided by the principles of the Charter of the United Nations affirming the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force, and recalling relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 242 (1967) of 22 November 1967, 465 (1980) of 1 March 1980 and 497 (1981) of 17 December 1981,

Reaffirming the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Stressing the importance of the revival of the Middle East peace process on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242 (1967), 338 (1973) of 22 October 1973 and 425 (1978) of 19 March 1978, and the principle of land for peace as well as the full and timely implementation of the agreements reached between the Government of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestinian people,

Reaffirming the principle of the permanent sovereignty of peoples under foreign occupation over their natural resources,

Convinced that the Israeli occupation impedes efforts to achieve sustainable development and a sound economic environment in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and the occupied Syrian Golan,

Gravely concerned about the deterioration of economic and living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and of the Arab population of the occupied Syrian Golan, and the exploitation by Israel, the occupying Power, of their natural resources,

Expressing grave concern over the continuation of the recent tragic and violent events that have led to many deaths and injuries,

Aware of the important work being done by the United Nations and the specialized agencies in support of the economic and social development of the Palestinian people,

Conscious of the urgent need for the development of the economic and social infrastructure of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and for the improvement of the living conditions of the Palestinian people as a key element of a lasting peace and stability,

1. Stresses the need to preserve the territorial integrity of all of the Occupied Palestinian Territory and to guarantee the freedom of movement of persons and goods in the Territory, including the removal of restrictions on going into and from East Jerusalem, and the freedom of movement to and from the outside world;

2. Also stresses the vital importance of the construction and operation of the seaport in Gaza and safe passage to the economic and social development of the Palestinian people;

3. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to cease its measures against the Palestinian people, in particular the closure of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, the enforced isolation of Palestinian towns, the destruction of homes and the isolation of Jerusalem;

4. Reaffirms the inalienable right of the Palestinian people and the Arab population of the occupied Syrian Golan to all their natural and economic resources, and calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, not to exploit, endanger or cause loss or depletion of these resources;

5. Also reaffirms that Israeli settlements in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and the occupied Syrian Golan, are illegal and an obstacle to economic and social development;

6. Stresses the importance of the work of the organizations and agencies of the United Nations and of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority;

7. Urges Member States to encourage private foreign investment in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, in infrastructure, job-creation projects and social development in order to alleviate the hardship of the Palestinian people and improve living conditions;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session, through the Economic and Social Council, a report on the implementation of the present resolution and to continue to include, in the report of the United Nations Special Coordinator, an update on the living conditions of the Palestinian people, in collaboration with relevant United Nations agencies;

9. Decides to include the item entitled "Economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan" in the agenda of its substantive session of 2002.

ROLL-CALL VOTE ON RESOLUTION 2001/19:

Abstaining: Angola, Cameroon, Costa Rica, Fiji, Honduras.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 21 December [meeting 90], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Second (Economic and Financial) Committee [A/56/564], adopted resolution 56/204 by recorded vote (148-4-4) [agenda item 101].

Permanent sovereignty of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and of the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan over their natural resources

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/209 of 20 December 2000, and taking note of Economic and Social Council resolution 2001/19 of 25 July 2001,

Reaffirming the principle of the permanent sovereignty of peoples under foreign occupation over their natural resources,

Guided by the principles of the Charter of the United Nations affirming the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force, and recalling relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 242 (1967) of 22 November 1967, 465 (1980) of 1 March 1980 and 497 (1981) of 17 December 1981,

Reaffirming the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Expressing its concern at the exploitation by Israel, the occupying Power, of the natural resources of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Aware of the additional detrimental economic and social impact of the Israeli settlements on Palestinian and other Arab natural resources, especially the confiscation of land and the forced diversion of water resources,

Reaffirming the need for an immediate resumption of negotiations within the Middle East peace process, on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242 (1967) of 22 November 1967, 338 (1973) of 22 October 1973 and 425 (1978) of 19 March 1978 and the principle of land for peace, and for the achievement of a final settlement on all tracks,

1. Takes note of the note by the Secretary-General on the economic and social repercussions of the Israeli occupation on the living conditions of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and of the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan;

2. Reaffirms the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people and the population of the occupied Syrian Golan over their natural resources, including land and water;

3. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, not to exploit, to cause loss or depletion of or to endanger the natural resources in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and in the occupied Syrian Golan;

4. Recognizes the right of the Palestinian people to claim restitution as a result of any exploitation, loss or depletion of, or danger to, their natural resources, and expresses the hope that this issue will be dealt with in the framework of the final status negotiations between the Palestinian and Israeli sides;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to report to it at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution, and decides to include in the agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Permanent sovereignty of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and of the Arab population in the occupied Syrian Golan over their natural resources".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/204:

In favour: Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Congo, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Abstaining: Cameroon, Fiji, Nicaragua, Papua New Guinea.

Other aspects

Special Committee on Israeli Practices. On 22 October, the Special Committee on Israeli Practices reported for the thirty-third time to the General Assembly on events in the territories it considered to be occupied—the Golan Heights, the West Bank, including East Jerusalem, and the Gaza Strip [A/56/491].

In addition to the annual report, the Special Committee, in response to a request by the Assembly in resolution 55/130 [YUN 2000, p. 435], submitted two periodic reports in 2001, one covering the period from 1 August 2000 to 30 April 2001 [A/56/428] and the other covering the period from May to August 2001 [A/56/428/Add.1]. The three reports contained information obtained from the Arab and Israeli press; testimony from persons from the occupied territories; and communications and reports from Governments, organizations and individuals. The Committee benefited from the cooperation of Egypt, Jordan, the Syrian Arab Republic, Palestinian representatives, the UN Resident Coordinator for the Syrian Arab Republic, and representatives from the International Labour Organization (ILO). As in the past, the Committee received no response from Israel to its request for cooperation and was unable to obtain access to the occupied territories, which had been the case since 1968, when the Committee was established [YUN 1968, p. 556].

The Committee stated that, since September 2000, tensions in Gaza, the West Bank and East Jerusalem had been greatly heightened. It was informed that the Israeli authorities had enforced their systems of control with intensity and severity and there had been almost daily hostile confrontations between Israeli forces and Palestinians. Conditions on the ground had been exacerbated due to the use of greatly disproportionate force by Israeli authorities. The toll of dead and injured was rising, with the Palestinians suffering the greater casualties. Closures of entry into and out of the West Bank and Gaza, internal closures of borders and numerous checkpoints and restrictions on movement out of towns and villages had resulted in a state of siege. The consequences of such systems of control on Palestinian life as a whole had been catastrophic, with grave consequences for the economic and social, cultural and political life, and other aspects of Palestinian life in the occupied territories.

Since the eruption of violence, the practices of Israeli authorities vis-à-vis the Palestinians on such matters as methods of arrest and interrogation, administrative detention, access to family and lawyers, and conditions of imprisonment had continued to be severe. At the same time, living conditions in the Palestinian refugee camps had deteriorated even further.

The Special Committee visited the Syrian Arab Republic and reported on the Israeli-occupied Syrian Golan Heights (for details, see p. 461).

The Special Committee observed that the extensive controls placed over the Palestinians in the occupied territories by the Israeli authorities, and the severe measures taken by Israel in enforcing such controls, appeared to be generally dismissive of human rights and oppressive.

Report of Secretary-General. On 25 July [A/56/218], the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly that Israel had not replied to his May request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement Assembly resolution 55/133 [YUN 2000, p. 434], demanding that Israel, among other things, cease all practices and actions that violated the human rights of the Palestinian people and accelerate the release of all remaining Palestinians arbitrarily detained or imprisoned.

Commission on Human Rights. The Human Rights Inquiry Commission to investigate violations of human rights and humanitarian law in the occupied Palestinian territories after 28 September 2000 was established on 2 January 2001, as recommended by the Commission on Human Rights in October 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 776] and endorsed by the Economic and Social Council in decision 2000/311 [ibid.]. The Commission held its first meeting in Geneva (14-16 January) and then visited the occupied Palestinian territories and Israel from 10 to 18 February. By a 16 March report to the Commission on Human Rights [E/CN.4/2001/121], the Inquiry Commission observed that the most worrying aspect of the escalation of violence was that the hopes and expectations created by the peace process were smothered by mutual perceptions ascribing the worst of motives to each other, thus generating intense distrust and destructive emotions. It recommended urgent measures for the protection of the Palestinians' human rights and for the transformation of the climate of hostility into one of dialogue and peace (for details, see p. 735).

On 21 March [E/CN.4/2001/30], the Special Rapporteur submitted to the Commission on Human Rights an update to his October 2000 mission report [YUN 2000, p. 775] on Israel's violations of human rights in the Palestinian territories occupied since 1967 (for details, see p. 736).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], following consideration of the Special Committee's annual and periodic reports and six reports of the Secretary-General on specific aspects of the situation in the occupied territories [A/56/214-219], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/550], adopted resolution 56/62 by recorded vote (145-4-2) [agenda item 88].

Israeli practices affecting the human rights of the Palestinian people in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem

The General Assembly,

Recalling its relevant resolutions, including those adopted at its tenth emergency special session, and the resolutions of the Commission on Human Rights,

Bearing in mind the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, the most recent of which are resolutions 904(1994) of 18 March 1994, 1073(1996) of 28 September 1996 and 1322(2000) of 7 October 2000,

Having considered the reports of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories and the reports of the Secretary-General,

Taking note of the report of the Human Rights Inquiry Commission established by the Commission on Human Rights and the report of the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in the Palestinian territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Aware of the responsibility of the international community to promote human rights and ensure respect for international law,

Reaffirming the principle of the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force,

Reaffirming also the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967,

Stressing the need for compliance with the Israeli-Palestinian agreements reached within the context of the Middle East peace process, as well as for the immediate and full implementation of the recommendations of the Sharm El-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee (Mitchell report),

Noting that during the reporting period, the third agreed-upon phase of redeployment of the Israeli army has not been implemented, and that serious incursions into the areas under the full control of the Palestinian Authority have occurred,

Concerned about the continuing violation of the human rights of the Palestinian people by Israel, the occupying Power, including the use of collective punishment, closure of areas, annexation of land, establishment of settlements and the continuing actions by it designed to change the legal status, geographical nature and demographic composition of the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem,

Deeply concerned by the tragic events that have occurred since 28 September 2000 and that have led to numerous deaths and injuries, mostly among Palestinians, the severe restrictions on the movement of persons and goods, and the widespread destruction, including of agricultural land,

Convinced of the positive impact of a temporary international or foreign presence in the Occupied Palestinian Territory for the safety and protection of the Palestinian people,

Convinced also of the need for third-party monitoring to help the parties to implement the recommendations of the Sharm El-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee,

Expressing its appreciation to the countries that participated in the Temporary International Presence in Hebron for their positive contribution,

Convinced of the need for the full implementation of Security Council resolutions 904(1994), 1073(1996) and 1322(2000),

1. Determines that all measures and actions taken by Israel, the occupying Power, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, in violation of the relevant provisions of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and contrary to the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, are illegal and have no validity;

2. Demands that the measures and actions taken in violation of the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949 cease immediately, including the practice of extrajudicial killings;

3. Condemns acts of violence, especially the excessive use of force by Israeli forces against Palestinian civilians, resulting in extensive loss of life, vast numbers of injuries and massive destruction;

4. Demands that Israel, the occupying Power, cease all practices and actions which violate the human rights of the Palestinian people;

5. Stresses the need to preserve the territorial integrity of all the Occupied Palestinian Territory and to guarantee the freedom of movement of persons and goods within the Palestinian territory, including the removal of restrictions on movement into and from East Jerusalem, and the freedom of movement to and from the outside world;

6. Calls for complete respect by Israel, the occupying Power, of all fundamental freedoms of the Palestinian people;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/62:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, United States.

Abstaining: Nicaragua, Papua New Guinea.

By resolution 56/142 of 19 December, the Assembly reaffirmed the right of the Palestinian people to self-determination, including their right to a State, and urged all States, as well as UN specialized agencies and organizations, to continue to support the Palestinian people in their quest for self-determination (see p. 630).

Work of Special Committee

In a July report [A/56/214], the Secretary-General stated that all necessary facilities were provided to the Special Committee on Israeli Practices, as requested in General Assembly resolution 55/130 [YUN 2000, p. 435]. Arrangements were made for it to meet in March and October, and a field mission was carried out to Egypt, Jordan and the Syrian Arab Republic in May. Two periodic reports [A/55/373 & Add.1] and the thirty-second annual report of the Special Committee [A/55/453] were circulated to Member States. The UN Department of Public Information continued to provide press coverage of Special Committee meetings and to disseminate information materials on its activities.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/550], adopted resolution 56/59 by recorded vote (83-4-58) [agenda item 88].

Work of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories

The General Assembly,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Guided also by the principles of international humanitarian law, in particular the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, as well as international standards of human rights, in particular the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenants on Human Rights,

Recalling its relevant resolutions, including resolution 2443(XXIII) of 19 December 1968, and relevant resolutions of the Commission on Human Rights,

Recalling also relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Aware of the lasting impact of the uprising (intifada) of the Palestinian people,

Convinced that occupation itself represents a gross violation of human rights,

Gravely concerned about the continuation of the tragic events that have taken place since 28 September 2000, including the excessive use of force by the Israeli occupying forces against Palestinian civilians, resulting in numerous deaths and injuries,

Having considered the reports of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories and the relevant reports of the Secretary-General,

Recalling the signing of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements by the Government of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993, as well as the subsequent implementation agreements, including the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip signed in Washington, D.C., on 28 September 1995,

Expressing the hope that, with the progress of the peace process, the Israeli occupation will be brought to an end and therefore violation of the human rights of the Palestinian people will cease,

1. Commends the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories for its efforts in performing the tasks assigned to it by the General Assembly and for its impartiality;

2. Demands that Israel cooperate with the Special Committee in implementing its mandate;

3. Deplores those policies and practices of Israel which violate the human rights of the Palestinian people and other Arabs of the occupied territories, as reflected in the reports of the Special Committee covering the reporting period;

4. Expresses grave concern about the situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, as a result of Israeli practices and measures, and especially condemns the excessive use of force in the past year which has resulted in more than seven hundred Palestinian deaths and tens of thousands of injuries;

5. Requests the Special Committee, pending complete termination of the Israeli occupation, to continue to investigate Israeli policies and practices in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967, especially Israeli lack of compliance with the provisions of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and to consult, as appropriate, with the International Committee of the Red Cross according to its regulations in order to ensure that the welfare and human rights of the peoples of the occupied territories are safeguarded and to report to the Secretary-General as soon as possible and whenever the need arises thereafter;

6. Also requests the Special Committee to submit regularly to the Secretary-General periodic reports on the current situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem;

7. Further requests the Special Committee to continue to investigate the treatment of prisoners in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967;

8. Requests the Secretary-General:

(a) To provide the Special Committee with all necessary facilities, including those required for its visits to the occupied territories, so that it may investigate the Israeli policies and practices referred to in the present resolution;

(b) To continue to make available such additional staff as may be necessary to assist the Special Committee in the performance of its tasks;

(c) To circulate regularly to Member States the periodic reports mentioned in paragraph 6 above;

(d) To ensure the widest circulation of the reports of the Special Committee and of information regarding its activities and findings, by all means available, through the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat and, where necessary, to reprint those reports of the Special Committee that are no longer available;

(e) To report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the tasks entrusted to him in the present resolution;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Report of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/59:

In favour: Algeria, Antigua and Barbuda, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Cambodia, Chile, China, Colombia, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Cyprus, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ghana, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jordan, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, United States.

Abstaining: Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bahamas, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Fiji, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Grenada, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Kazakhstan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Monaco, Mongolia, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Tonga, Ukraine, United Kingdom, Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

Fourth Geneva Convention

Conference of High Contracting Parties

The Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention on Measures to Enforce the Convention in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, reconvened on 5 December in Geneva, under the chairmanship of Switzerland as the depositary of the Geneva Conventions. By resolution ES-10/7 [YUN 2000, p. 421], the General Assembly had invited Switzerland to consult on the development of the humanitarian situation in the field, with the aim of ensuring respect for the Convention in accordance with common article 1 of the four Conventions. Accordingly, Switzerland undertook informal consultations at the bilateral level and held a series of informal meetings of a group of "Friends of the Depositary", including States parties from all regions of the world. The first Conference was held in July 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 415], following the recommendation made by the General Assembly in resolution ES-10/6 [ibid., p. 402]. The 1999 Conference adjourned on the understanding that it would convene again in the light of consultations on the development of the humanitarian situation in the field.

The Conference was attended by 115 high contracting parties and eight other participants and observers, including representatives from Palestine, the International Committee of the Red Cross, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) and the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights. Australia, Israel and the United States announced that they would not participate.

The Conference adopted without vote a declaration by which it reaffirmed the applicability of the Fourth Geneva Convention to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and reiterated the need for full respect for the Convention. The high contracting parties called on the occupying Power to respect the Convention's provisions and not to commit any grave breaches or other violations of the Convention.

Report of Secretary-General. In July [A/56/215], the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly that Israel had not replied to his May request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement Assembly resolution 55/131 [YUN 2000, p. 437] demanding that Israel accept the de jure applicability of the Fourth Geneva Convention in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and that it comply scrupulously with its provisions. Also in May, the Secretary-General noted, he had drawn the attention of all States parties to the Convention to paragraph 3 of resolution 55/131 calling on them to exert all efforts to ensure respect by Israel for the Convention's provisions.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/550], adopted resolution 56/60 by recorded vote (148-4-2) [agenda item 88].

Applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and the other occupied Arab territories

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Recalling its relevant resolutions,

Having considered the reports of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories and the relevant reports of the Secretary-General,

Considering that the promotion of respect for the obligations arising from the Charter of the United Nations and other instruments and rules of international law is among the basic purposes and principles of the United Nations,

Noting the convening of the meeting of experts of the high contracting parties to the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, at Geneva from 27 to 29 October 1998, at the initiative of the Government of Switzerland in its capacity as the depositary of the Convention, concerning general problems of application of the Convention in general and, in particular, in occupied territories,

Noting also the convening for the first time, on 15 July 1999, of a Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention, as recommended by the General Assembly in its resolution ES-10/6 of 9 February 1999, on measures to enforce the Convention in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and to ensure respect thereof in accordance with article 1 common to the four Geneva Conventions, and aware of the statement adopted by the Conference,

Stressing that Israel, the occupying Power, should comply strictly with its obligations under international law,

1. Reaffirms that the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, is applicable to the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967;

2. Demands that Israel accept the de jure applicability of the Convention in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967, and that it comply scrupulously with the provisions of the Convention;

3. Calls upon all States parties to the Convention, in accordance with article 1 common to the four Geneva Conventions, to exert all efforts in order to ensure respect for its provisions by Israel, the occupying Power, in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and other Arab territories occupied by Israel since 1967;

4. Reiterates the need for speedy implementation of the recommendations contained in its resolutions ES-10/3 of 15 July 1997, ES-10/4 of 13 November 1997, ES-10/5 of 17 March 1998, ES-10/6 of 9 February 1999 and ES-10/7 of 20 October 2000 with regard to ensuring respect by Israel, the occupying Power, for the provisions of the Convention;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

Palestinian women

The Secretary-General, in a report [E/CN.6/2001/2] to the Commission on the Status of Women on follow-up to and progress in the implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action [YUN 1995, p. 1170], reviewed, in response to Economic and Social Council resolution 2000/23 [YUN 2000, p. 439], the situation of Palestinian women and described assistance provided by UN organizations during the period from September 1999 to September 2000. He stated that women's employment and participation in the labour force grew faster than for men. That could be explained by the rapid expansion in the agriculture and services sectors, where women were present in high numbers. However, women were still found mainly in part-time jobs. The closure policy applied by the Israeli authorities, coupled with border crossing restrictions and the expansion of Israeli settlements, continued to have a detrimental effect on Palestinian economic development, in particular on the living conditions of Palestinian families. In addition, the imprisonment of Palestinian men had forced many women to take on additional burdens and acquire roles other than the ones traditionally performed by them. That situation had the potential of leading to conflicts within the family due to the difficulty in adapting to and accepting change, but it could also provide opportunities for women's empowerment as they gained new decision-making power within the household.

The UN system continued to provide assistance to Palestinian women. ESCWA, among other things, prepared a study on gender and citizenship and the role of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in the occupied territories, with the aim of increasing gender-sensitivity through action-oriented policy recommendations. UNRWA continued to provide education, health, relief and social services. More than 50 per cent of UNRWA's special hardship case families, who received direct food and material assistance from the Agency, were headed by women. Seventy Women's Programme Centres served as focal points within the refugee community for UNRWA's work with women. During 1999/2000, UNRWA's income-generation programme granted loans valued at $3.1 million to 3,716 women, who supported 20,050 dependants.

ILO carried out a number of activities in gender mainstreaming, the development of women's entrepreneurship and capacity-building on gender, poverty and employment.

The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) promoted society's awareness of the scope and meaning of women's rights, non-discrimination and gender equality, by using information from all its projects and education strategies, including better parenting, gender equality in education and life skills. The UNICEF women's health project included midwife training and workshops for maternal health care professionals and for physicians and nurses in hospital obstetric and neonatal departments. UNICEF also supported an enabling environment that influenced legislation and mobilized resources for Palestinian women.

The Secretary-General observed that the status and living conditions of Palestinian women were linked to the peace process. Towards the end of the reporting period, violence between Israeli security forces and Palestinian civilians erupted in the occupied territories, jeopardizing the peace process and hindering UN assistance efforts. It was particularly important that Palestinian women should continue to receive assistance in such areas as education, health, social services and microcredit. The gender perspective should continue to be fully integrated in international assistance programmes through, among other things, greater gender analysis and the collection of sex-disaggregated data.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 24 July [meeting 39], the Economic and Social Council, on the recommendation of the Commission on the Status of Women [E/2001/27 & Corr.1], adopted resolution 2001/2 by roll-call vote (39-1-1) [agenda item 14 (a)].

The situation of and assistance to Palestinian women

The Economic and Social Council,

Having considered with appreciation section III.A concerning the situation of Palestinian women and assistance provided by organizations of the United Nations system, contained in the report of the Secretary-General on follow-up to and implementation of the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action,

Recalling the Nairobi Forward-looking Strategies for the Advancement of Women, in particular paragraph 260 concerning Palestinian women and children, the Beijing Platform for Action adopted at the Fourth World Conference on Women, and the outcome of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly, entitled "Women 2000: gender equality, development and peace for the twenty-first century",

Recalling also its resolution 2000/23 of 28 July 2000 and other relevant United Nations resolutions,

Recalling further the Declaration on the Elimination of Violence against Women as it concerns the protection of civilian populations,

Stressing the need for compliance with the existing Israeli-Palestinian agreements concluded within the context of the Middle East peace process and the need to resume peace negotiations, as soon as possible, in order to reach a final settlement,

Concerned about the deterioration of the situation of Palestinian women in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and about the severe consequences of continuous illegal Israeli settlements activities as well as the harsh economic conditions and other consequences for the situation of Palestinian women and their families, resulting from the frequent closures and isolation of the occupied territory,

Expressing its condemnation of acts of violence, especially the excessive use of force against Palestinians, resulting in injury and loss of human life,

1. Calls upon the concerned parties, as well as the entire international community, to exert all the necessary efforts to ensure the immediate resumption of the peace process on its agreed basis, taking into account the common ground already gained, and calls for measures for tangible improvements in the difficult situation on the ground and living conditions faced by Palestinian women and their families;

2. Reaffirms that the Israeli occupation remains a major obstacle for Palestinian women with regard to their advancement, self-reliance and integration into the development planning of their society;

3. Demands that Israel, the occupying Power, comply fully with the provisions and principles of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Regulations annexed to the Hague Convention IV, of 18 October 1907, and the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, in order to protect the rights of Palestinian women and their families;

4. Calls upon Israel to facilitate the return of all refugees and displaced Palestinian women and children to their homes and properties, in compliance with the relevant United Nations resolutions;

5. Urges Member States, financial organizations of the United Nations system, non-governmental organizations and other relevant institutions to intensify their efforts to provide financial and technical assistance to Palestinian women, especially during the transitional period;

6. Requests the Commission on the Status of Women to continue to monitor and take action with regard to the implementation of the Nairobi Forward-looking Strategies for the Advancement of Women, in particular paragraph 260 concerning Palestinian women and children, the Beijing Platform for Action, and the outcome of the twenty-third special session of the General Assembly, entitled "Women 2000: gender equality, development and peace for the twenty-first century";

7. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to review the situation and to assist Palestinian women by all available means, and to submit to the Commission on the Status of Women at its forty-sixth session a report on the progress made in the implementation of the present resolution.

ROLL-CALL VOTE ON RESOLUTION 2001/2:

In favour: Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Austria, Bahrain, Bolivia, Brazil, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, China, Croatia, Cuba, Czech Republic, Denmark, Egypt, Ethiopia, France, Georgia, Honduras, Indonesia, Iran, Japan, Malta, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Republic of Korea, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, Sudan, Suriname, Uganda, United Kingdom, Venezuela.

Against: United States.

determination, for Israeli withdrawal from the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967 and for resolving the problem of the Palestine refugees.

The International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People, celebrated annually on 29 November, in accordance with Assembly resolution 32/40 B [YUN 1977, p. 304], was observed at UN Headquarters and at the UN Offices at Geneva and Vienna. However, due to the situation in the occupied territory and the enhanced security measures in New York and at Headquarters after 11 September 2001, the traditional Palestinian exhibit could not be organized.

Report of Secretary-General. In a November report on the question of Palestine [A/56/642-S/2001/1100], the Secretary-General made observations on the Middle East peace process (see p. 405). He stated that since the outbreak of the Palestinian intifada at the end of September 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 416] over 900 people had been killed and many thousands had been injured, the vast majority of them Palestinians. Israel's response to the violence had included a disproportionate use of military force and incursions into the area under full Palestinian authority. The Secretary-General condemned the practice of so-called "targeted assassinations" and attacks on civilians by settler groups. He also strongly condemned acts of violence or terror from whatever quarter, especially indiscriminate suicide bombing attacks against Israelis by Palestinian groups, and called on the PLO to control violence. Those developments had increased mutual distrust, hardened the positions of the two sides and strengthened extremist elements. Since the beginning of the intifada, the level of poverty, misery and suffering among Palestinians had increased dramatically.

By notes verbales of 18 and 24 July, the Secretary-General sought the positions of the Governments of Egypt, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and the Syrian Arab Republic, as well as the PLO, regarding steps taken by them to implement the relevant provisions of resolution 55/55 [YUN 2000, p. 440]. As at 15 November, only Israel and the PLO had responded.

Israel said that it viewed that resolution as unbalanced and an undue interference in the Israeli-Palestinian bilateral negotiations. The ongoing violence in the region was a result of a Palestinian decision to abandon peace negotiations and pursue their goals through violence and terrorism. The one-sided approach reflected in the resolution, which sought to dictate the outcome of the negotiating process, rewarded violence at a time when the Palestinian side should be compelled to renounce all acts of violence and return to the path of peaceful dialogue.

Issues related to Palestine

General aspects

The General Assembly continued to consider the question of Palestine in 2001. Having discussed the annual report of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People (Committee on Palestinian Rights) [A/56/35 & Corr.1], the Assembly adopted four resolutions, reaffirming, among other things, the necessity of achieving a peaceful settlement of the Palestine question—the core of the Arab-Israeli conflict—and stressing the need for the realization of the inalienable rights of the Palestinians, primarily the right to self-

The Permanent Observer of Palestine said that the many principles and components of the resolution remained valid and essential in the search for a just and a lasting solution to the decades-long question of Palestine. The decline of the situation on the ground since 28 September 2000 had been characterized by an excessive and indiscriminate use of force by Israeli occupying forces against Palestinian civilians. Israel, moreover, had not endorsed or accepted the recommendations contained in the Mitchell report (see p. 409).

The Secretary-General observed that only a package solution based on the Mitchell report, including not only security and economic aspects but also a political component, could halt the cycle of violence, restore calm and create the right atmosphere for the resumption of sustainable peace talks. There was no alternative to a return to the negotiating table and to a peaceful settlement. However, the mutual distrust between the parties had reached such a level that there was a need for constant third-party involvement in order to break the impasse. Therefore, it was imperative to accelerate joint efforts with a view to generating new momentum towards a peaceful solution to the crisis.

The Israeli-Palestinian confrontation had had a devastating impact on the humanitarian and economic situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory. Severe closures and blockades had resulted in large-scale losses to the Palestinian economy, wiping out more than three years of growth and increasing dramatically the level of unemployment and poverty. In addition, the drop in domestic tax revenue and the continued withholding of Palestinian tax revenues by Israeli authorities had led to a significant budget deficit in 2001. Therefore, a well-coordinated and concerted international relief and assistance effort was essential to address the most pressing needs and gradually improve living conditions. Measures were also needed to remove the restrictions placed on the movement of staff and goods related to the delivery of humanitarian assistance.

As the Assembly had underscored on many occasions, achieving a final and peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine was imperative for the attainment of a comprehensive and lasting peace in the Middle East. The Secretary-General hoped that there would also be movement on the Syrian and Lebanese tracks so that peace, security and stability could be achieved on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242(1967) [YUN 1967, p. 257] and 338(1973) [YUN 1973, p. 213].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 3 December [meeting 72], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/36 [draft: A/56/L.22 & Add.1] by recorded vote (131-6-20) [agenda item 41].

Peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine

The General Assembly,

Recalling its relevant resolutions, including resolutions adopted at the tenth emergency special session,

Recalling also the relevant Security Council resolutions, including resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967 and 338(1973) of 22 October 1973,

Aware that it has been more than fifty years since the adoption of resolution 181(II) of 29 November 1947 and thirty-four years since the occupation of Palestinian territory, including Jerusalem, in 1967,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General submitted pursuant to the request made in its resolution 55/55 of 1 December 2000,

Reaffirming the permanent responsibility of the United Nations with regard to the question of Palestine until the question is resolved in all its aspects,

Convinced that achieving a final and peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine, the core of the Arab-Israeli conflict, is imperative for the attainment of a comprehensive and lasting peace in the Middle East,

Aware that the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples is among the purposes and principles embodied in the Charter of the United Nations,

Affirming the principle of the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by war,

Affirming also the illegality of the Israeli settlements in the territory occupied since 1967 and of Israeli actions aimed at changing the status of Jerusalem,

Affirming once again the right of all States in the region to live in peace within secure and internationally recognized borders,

Recalling the mutual recognition between the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestinian people, and the signing by the two parties of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993, as well as the subsequent implementation agreements, including the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, signed in Washington, D.C., on 28 September 1995,

Recalling also the withdrawal of the Israeli army, which took place in the Gaza Strip and the Jericho area in 1995 in accordance with the agreements reached by the parties, and the initiation of the Palestinian Authority in those areas, as well as the subsequent redeployments of the Israeli army in the rest of the West Bank,

Noting with satisfaction the successful holding of the first Palestinian general elections,

Noting the appointment by the Secretary-General of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority, and its positive contribution,

Welcoming the convening of the Conference to Support Middle East Peace in Washington, D.C., on 1 October 1993, as well as all follow-up meetings and the international mechanisms established to provide assistance to the Palestinian people, including the donor meetings held in Lisbon on 7 and 8 June 2000 and in Stockholm on 11 April 2001,

Expressing its deep concern over the tragic events in Occupied East Jerusalem and the Occupied Palestinian Territory since 28 September 2000, which have resulted in a high number of deaths and injuries, mostly among Palestinian civilians, and concerned also about the clashes between the Israeli armed forces and the Palestinian police and the casualties on both sides,

Expressing its deep concern also over the continued imposition of closures and restrictions by Israel on the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, as well as the serious incursions into Palestinian-controlled areas and actions against Palestinian institutions,

Expressing its grave concern over the serious deterioration of the situation in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, and the difficulties facing the Middle East peace process,

Affirming the urgent need for the parties to implement the recommendations of the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee (Mitchell Committee) and to resume negotiations towards a final peaceful settlement,

1. Reaffirms the necessity of achieving a peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine, the core of the Arab-Israeli conflict, in all its aspects;

2. Expresses its full support for the peace process, which began in Madrid, and the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements of 1993, as well as the subsequent implementation agreements, and expresses the hope that the process will be reinvigorated and will soon lead to the establishment of a comprehensive, just and lasting peace in the Middle East;

3. Stresses the necessity for commitment to the principle of land for peace and the implementation of Security Council resolutions 242(1967) and 338(1973), which form the basis of the Middle East peace process;

4. Calls upon the concerned parties, the co-sponsors of the peace process and other interested parties, as well as the entire international community to exert all the efforts and initiatives necessary to reverse immediately all measures taken on the ground since 28 September 2000, in implementation of the recommendations of the Sharm el-Sheikh Fact-Finding Committee (Mitchell Committee), and in order to ensure a successful and speedy resumption of negotiations and conclusion of the peace process;

5. Stresses the need for:

(a) The realization of the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, primarily the right to self-determination and the right to establish their independent State;

(b) The withdrawal of Israel from the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967;

6. Also stresses the need for resolving the problem of the Palestine refugees in conformity with its resolution 194(III) of 11 December 1948;

7. Urges Member States to expedite the provision of economic and technical assistance to the Palestinian people during this critical period;

8. Emphasizes the importance for the United Nations to play a more active and expanded role in the current peace process and in the implementation of the Declaration of Principles;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to continue his efforts with the parties concerned, and in consultation with the Security Council, for the promotion of peace in the region and to submit progress reports on developments in this matter.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/36:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chad, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, New Zealand, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Nauru, Tuvalu, United States.

Abstaining: Australia, Canada, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Georgia, Germany, Hungary, Iceland, Latvia, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Poland, Romania, Rwanda, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, United Kingdom.

Speaking after the vote, the Permanent Observer of Palestine said that the result of the voting showed that there was a clear position regarding the State of Palestine, whose establishment was absolutely essential for achieving overall peace in the region. The Palestinian leadership, on 2 December, had adopted a series of decisions that declared a temporary state of emergency and made it illegal for any Palestinian faction not to comply with a ceasefire. The day after, however, Israeli helicopter gunships had fired missiles in the area of Chairman Arafat's offices. Terrorist attacks had been carried out inside Israel, but that phenomenon had started only a few years earlier and was an outcome of and not the reason for the current situation. The reason was the uprooting of the Palestinian people from their homeland and their denial of their own State for more than 50 years.

Israel stated that the international community was duty-bound to denounce Palestinian terrorist practices without ambiguity or understatement. By recalling the true nature of Palestinian terrorism and denouncing it for what it was, the international community could truly help the Palestinians to become committed to dialogue, coexistence and peace. Justice and peace would be restored to the region through education for peace, through an end to hatred and incitement and through an absolute renunciation of terrorist practices.

By decision 56/464 of 24 December, the Assembly decided that the agenda items entitled "Question of Palestine" and "The situation in the Middle East" would remain for consideration during its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session.

Committee on Palestinian Rights

As mandated by General Assembly resolution 55/52 [YUN 2000, p. 444], the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People continued to review the situation relating to the Palestine question, reported on it and made suggestions to the Assembly or the Security Council.

The Committee continued to encourage cooperation, coordination and networking among civil society organizations. It maintained and developed liaison with national, regional and international coordinating mechanisms accredited to it, in addition to the already-established liaison with NGOs. Consultations between the Committee and NGO representatives were held on 22 February 2001 in Vienna; Palestinian NGOs were unable to participate due to the general closure imposed by Israel on the occupied territory. The Committee asked NGOs to focus their work on mobilizing emergency relief; to lobby their Governments to live up to their responsibilities under the Fourth Geneva Convention; and to support initiatives at the United Nations and elsewhere to establish a protection force to be deployed in the Occupied Palestinian Territory. At the United Nations NGO meeting in solidarity with the Palestinian people (Madrid, Spain, 19 July), participants urged the Security Council to place an international protection force in the Occupied Palestinian Territory and decided to undertake advocacy steps in that regard.

The Committee continued to follow the Palestine-related activities of intergovernmental bodies, such as the Organization of African Unity, the Non-Aligned Movement Committee on Palestine and the Non-Aligned Movement Security Council Caucus, and, through its Chairman, participated in a number of high-level meetings of those bodies. Through its Bureau, the Committee continued to cooperate on the question of Palestine with the EU. A Committee delegation took part in the United Nations Latin American and Caribbean Meeting on the Question of Palestine (Havana, Cuba, 12-14 June). The Havana Declaration, the Meeting's final document, supported the right of the Palestinians to self-determination and the establishment of an independent and sovereign Palestinian State and the right to return to their homeland.

An NGO workshop, organized in Havana on 14 June in connection with the Meeting, focused on action by civil society in Latin America and the Caribbean in solidarity with the Palestinian people.

The Committee, together with the UN Division for Palestinian Rights, organized the United Nations International Meeting on the Question of Palestine: "The Road to Israeli-Palestinian Peace" (Madrid, 17-18 July), which was attended by, among others, international experts, representatives of Governments, intergovernmental organizations, UN system entities, the PA and the media. In the general remarks of the Meeting, participants expressed their conviction that the recommendations contained in the Mitchell report and the subsequent United States-brokered ceasefire agreement should be implemented as a whole; that Israel's excessive use of force, the closures and the economic blockade of Palestinian population centres, the incursions into Palestinian-controlled areas and all other measures of collective punishment against the Palestinian people should be brought to an end; that the high contracting parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention should expedite the reconvening of the Conference of High Contracting Parties; and that an international presence had to be established to protect innocent civilians and to monitor the implementation of agreements and understandings reached.

In its annual report to the Assembly [A/56/35 & Corr.1] covering the period from 11 October 2000 to 10 October 2001, the Committee said that peace talks had been suspended since January 2001, owing to the position on the peace negotiations taken by the new Israeli Government and the continuing violence in the West Bank, the Gaza Strip and East Jerusalem. The Al-Aqsa intifada, as it became known in 2001, had three distinctive characteristics: the rapid escalation of operations of the Israel Defence Forces (IDF) against the Palestinians; the introduction of a policy of targeted extrajudicial assassinations of Palestinian leaders and activists; and the frequent incursions into areas under full Palestinian control.

Since the beginning of the intifada in October 2000, over 660 Palestinians had been killed by IDF, security forces and settlers, while some 20,000 Palestinians had been wounded. IDF, in attacking the Palestinians, continued to rely on heavy and sophisticated weapons, using them in an indiscriminate manner. On 18 May, the Israeli Government changed the nature and scale of the conflict by authorizing the use of fighter aircraft against unprotected Palestinian targets. Since December 2000, more than 50 Palestinians had been killed in targeted attacks that often claimed the lives of innocent bystanders. Israeli incursions into Palestinian-controlled areas constituted a virtual reoccupation of Palestinian lands; they were often accompanied by the destruction of public and private property in Palestinian towns, villages and refugee camps.

During the year, the Israeli authorities had considered unilateral separation schemes aimed at further isolating Palestinian population centres from the settlements and restricting the movement of Palestinians throughout the occupied territory. In late September 2001, Israel established a 30-kilometre-long closed military zone in the northern part of the territory, stretching from Jenin to Tulkarm.

Despite intensive efforts by various international parties to hold violence in check and reach a political solution, the peace process remained at a standstill. A major obstacle to political dialogue and negotiations had been the persistence with which the Israeli authorities had been expanding the illegal settlements and infrastructure in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem. The number of settlers in the West Bank and Gaza had increased by 17,000 in 2001, reaching nearly 277,000. The scope and intensity of settler violence against the Palestinians also increased in the course of the year. In several parts of the West Bank, settlers had instituted armed patrols.

The Palestinian economy in 2001 showed signs of rapid disintegration as a result of the Israeli military occupation. Protracted closures and restrictions on the movement of goods and the labour force had decimated all sectors of the economy. In contrast to previous years, there had been a noticeable shift to emergency assistance and humanitarian aid. Unemployment rose to the 1996 levels, while the poverty rate reached the 50 per cent mark, meaning that half of the Palestinian population was living on $2 or less a day. In addition, Israeli authorities continued to exercise control over Palestinian water resources, with thousands of families deprived of connection to water networks.

The Committee, in its conclusions and recommendations, said that 34 years after the illegal occupation by Israel of Palestinian land, the Palestinians were yet to see their aspirations for self-determination and the exercise of their inalienable and natural rights realized. The deplorable events since September 2000 had underscored the urgency of pressing forward with efforts to bring calm, stabilize the situation and enable the parties to resume their dialogue. The Committee called for the immediate implementation of the Mitchell Committee recommendations and for the reconvening of the Conference of High Contracting Parties to the Fourth Geneva Convention, in order to ensure respect for the Convention and provide the necessary protection to the Palestinian people.

The Committee reaffirmed its long-standing position that the United Nations should continue to exercise its permanent responsibility with respect to all aspects of the question of Palestine until it was resolved in a satisfactory manner, in conformity with relevant UN resolutions and international legitimacy, and until the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people were fully realized. There was also a need for civil society initiatives, with special emphasis on mobilizing wide support for measures aimed at protecting the Palestinian people. The Committee would continue to review and assess its programme with a view to making it more responsive to the developments on the ground and in the peace process.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 3 December [meeting 72], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/33 [draft: A/56/L.19 & Add.1] by recorded vote (106-5-48) [agenda item 41].

Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 181(II) of 29 November 1947, 194(III) of 11 December 1948, 3236(XXIX) of 22 November 1974, 3375(XXX) and 3376(XXX) of 10 November 1975, 31/20 of 24 November 1976, 32/40 A of 2 December 1977, 33/28 A and B of 7 December 1978, 34/65 A of 29 November 1979 and 34/65 C of 12 December 1979, ES-7/2 of 29 July 1980, 35/169 A and C of 15 December 1980, 36/120 A and C of 10 December 1981, ES-7/4 of 28 April 1982, 37/86 A of 10 December 1982, 38/58 A of 13 December 1983, 39/49 A of 11 December 1984, 40/96 A of 12 December 1985, 41/43 A of 2 December 1986, 42/66 A of 2 December 1987, 43/175 A of 15 December 1988, 44/41 A of 6 December 1989, 45/67 A of 6 December 1990, 46/74 A of 11 December 1991, 47/64 A of 11 December 1992, 48/158 A of 20 December 1993, 49/62 A of 14 December 1994, 50/84 A of 15 December 1995, 51/23 of 4 December 1996, 52/49 of 9 December 1997, 53/39 of 2 December 1998, 54/39 of 1 December 1999 and 55/52 of 1 December 2000,

Having considered the report of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People,

Recalling the signing of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements, including its Annexes and Agreed Minutes, by the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestinian people, in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993, as well as the subsequent implementation agreements, in particular the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, signed in Washington, D.C., on 28 September 1995,

Reaffirming that the United Nations has a permanent responsibility with respect to the question of Palestine until the question is resolved in all its aspects in a satisfactory manner in accordance with international legitimacy,

1. Expresses its appreciation to the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People for its efforts in performing the tasks assigned to it by the General Assembly;

2. Considers that the Committee can continue to make a valuable and positive contribution to international efforts to promote the Middle East peace process and the full implementation of the agreements reached and to mobilize international support for and assistance to the Palestinian people during the transitional period;

3. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations of the Committee contained in chapter VII of its report;

4. Requests the Committee to continue to keep under review the situation relating to the question of Palestine and to report and make suggestions to the General Assembly or the Security Council, as appropriate;

5. Authorizes the Committee to continue to exert all efforts to promote the exercise of the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, to make such adjustments in its approved programme of work as it may consider appropriate and necessary in the light of developments, to give special emphasis to the need to mobilize support and assistance for the Palestinian people and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session and thereafter;

6. Requests the Committee to continue to extend its cooperation and support to Palestinian and other civil society organizations in order to mobilize international solidarity and support for the achievement by the Palestinian people of its inalienable rights and for a peaceful settlement of the question of Palestine, and to involve additional civil society organizations in its work;

7. Requests the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine, established under General Assembly resolution 194(III), and other United Nations bodies associated with the question of Palestine to continue to cooperate fully with the Committee and to make available to it, at its request, the relevant information and documentation which they have at their disposal;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to circulate the report of the Committee to all the competent bodies of the United Nations, and urges them to take the necessary action, as appropriate;

9. Also requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide the Committee with all the necessary facilities for the performance of its tasks.

Division for Palestinian Rights

Under the guidance of the Committee on Palestinian Rights, the Division for Palestinian Rights of the UN Secretariat continued to function as a centre of research, monitoring, preparation of studies, and collection and dissemination of information on all issues related to the Palestine question. The Division responded to requests for information and prepared and disseminated the following publications: a monthly bulletin covering action by the Committee, UN bodies and agencies, and intergovernmental organizations concerned with Palestine; a monthly chronology of events relating to the question of Palestine, based on media reports and other sources; reports of meetings organized under the auspices of the Committee; a special bulletin on the observance of the International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People (29 November); an annual compilation of relevant General Assembly and Security Council resolutions, decisions and statements; and an update of a study entitled "Origins and Evolution of the Palestine Problem, 1917-1988".

The Committee, in its annual report [A/56/35 & Corr.1], noted that the Division continued to develop the electronic United Nations Information System on the Question of Palestine (UNISPAL), as mandated by Assembly resolution 46/74 B [YUN 1991, p. 228]. The Division maintained the Internet web site entitled "NGO Network on the Question of Palestine" as a permanent tool of mutual information and cooperation between civil society and the Committee. It also continued the training programme for PA staff and issued its bimonthly newsletter entitled NGO Action News covering the activities of civil society on the various aspects of the question of Palestine.

The Committee requested the Division to continue its publications programme and other informational activities, particularly the further development of the UNISPAL documents collection and annual training activities for PA staff.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 3 December [meeting 72], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/34 [draft: A/56/L.20 & Add.1] by recorded vote (107-5-47) [agenda item 41].

Division for Palestinian Rights of the Secretariat

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People,

Taking note in particular of the relevant information contained in chapter V.B of that report,

Recalling its resolutions 32/40 B of 2 December 1977, 33/28 C of 7 December 1978, 34/65 D of 12 December 1979, 35/169 D of 15 December 1980, 36/120 B of 10 December 1981, 37/86 B of 10 December 1982, 38/58 B of 13 December 1983, 39/49 B of 11 December 1984, 40/96 B of 12 December 1985, 41/43 B of 2 December 1986, 42/66 B of 2 December 1987, 43/175 B of 15 December 1988, 44/41 B of 6 December 1989, 45/67 B of 6 December 1990, 46/74 B of 11 December 1991, 47/64 B of 11 December 1992, 48/158 B of 20 December 1993, 49/62 B of 14 December 1994, 50/84 B of 15 December 1995, 51/24 of 4 December 1996, 52/50 of 9 December 1997, 53/40 of 2 December 1998, 54/40 of 1 December 1999 and 55/53 of 1 December 2000,

1. Notes with appreciation the action taken by the Secretary-General in compliance with its resolution 55/53;

2. Considers that the Division for Palestinian Rights of the Secretariat continues to make a useful and constructive contribution;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide the Division with the necessary resources and to ensure that it continues to carry out its programme of work as detailed in the relevant earlier resolutions, in consultation with the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People and under its guidance, including, in particular, the organization of meetings in various regions with the participation of all sectors of the international community, the further development and expansion of the documents collection of the United Nations Information System on the Question of Palestine, the preparation and widest possible dissemination of publications and information materials on various aspects of the question of Palestine, and the provision of the annual training programme for staff of the Palestinian Authority;

4. Also requests the Secretary-General to ensure the continued cooperation of the Department of Public Information and other units of the Secretariat in enabling the Division to perform its tasks and in covering adequately the various aspects of the question of Palestine;

5. Invites all Governments and organizations to extend their cooperation to the Committee and the Division in the performance of their tasks;

6. Notes with appreciation the action taken by Member States to observe annually on 29 November the International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People, requests them to continue to give the widest possible publicity to the observance, and requests the Committee and the Division to continue to organize, as part of the observance of the Day of Solidarity, an annual exhibit on Palestinian rights in cooperation with the Permanent Observer Mission of Palestine to the United Nations.

Special information programme

As requested in General Assembly resolution 55/54 [YUN 2000, p. 446], the UN Department of Public Information in 2001 continued its special information programme on the question of Palestine, which included the organization of its annual training programme for Palestinian broadcasters and journalists and the organization of an international media encounter on the question of Palestine at the headquarters of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) in Paris. The quarterly UN Chronicle continued to cover the Palestine question and regularly reported on peacekeeping activities in the Middle East. The Radio News Unit covered aspects of the Palestine question and related issues in its news and current affairs programmes in various languages for regional and worldwide dissemination.

As in previous years, the United Nations information centres (UNICs), information services and other UN offices carried out numerous activities in connection with the International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian People. Throughout the year, many UNICs dealt with the Palestinian question and organized special outreach activities related to the issue, including the launch by UNIC Harare (Zimbabwe) of the UNESCO Bethlehem 2000 roving photo exhibit in May.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 3 December [meeting 72], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/35 [draft: A/56/L.21 & Add.1] by recorded vote (153-4-3) [agenda item 41].

Special information programme on the question of Palestine of the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People,

Taking note in particular of the information contained in chapter VI of that report,

Recalling its resolution 55/54 of 1 December 2000, Convinced that the worldwide dissemination of accurate and comprehensive information and the role of civil society organizations and institutions remain of vital importance in heightening awareness of and support for the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people,

Aware of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements signed by the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993, and of the subsequent implementation agreements, in particular the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip signed in Washington, D.C., on 28 September 1995,

Recalling with satisfaction the important contribution made by the United Nations towards the promotion of the Bethlehem 2000 Project,

1. Notes with appreciation the action taken by the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat in compliance with resolution 55/54;

2. Considers that the special information programme on the question of Palestine of the Department is very useful in raising the awareness of the international community concerning the question of Palestine and the situation in the Middle East in general, including the achievements of the peace process, and that the programme is contributing effectively to an atmosphere conducive to dialogue and supportive of the peace process;

3. Requests the Department, in full cooperation and coordination with the Committee on the Exercise of the Inalienable Rights of the Palestinian People, to continue, with the necessary flexibility as may be required by developments affecting the question of Palestine, its special information programme for the biennium 2002-2003, in particular:

(a) To disseminate information on all the activities of the United Nations system relating to the question of Palestine, including reports on the work carried out by the relevant United Nations organizations;

(b) To continue to issue and update publications on the various aspects of the question of Palestine in all fields, including materials concerning the recent developments in that regard, in particular the prospects for peace;

(c) To expand its collection of audio-visual material on the question of Palestine and to continue the production and preservation of such material, and the updating of the exhibit in the Secretariat;

(d) To organize and promote fact-finding news missions for journalists to the area, including the territory under the jurisdiction of the Palestinian Authority and the Occupied Territory;

(e) To organize international, regional and national seminars or encounters for journalists, aiming in particular at sensitizing public opinion to the question of Palestine;

(f) To continue to provide assistance to the Palestinian people in the field of media development, in particular to strengthen the training programme for Palestinian broadcasters and journalists initiated in 1995.

Assistance to Palestinians

UN activities

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/173 [YUN 2000, p. 448], the Secretary-General submitted a July report [A/56/123-E/2001/97 & Corr.1], in which he described UN assistance to the Palestinian people between June 2000 and May 2001.

During the reporting period, the realities and priorities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory had shifted significantly due to the crisis that began on 28 September 2000, following the visit of then Israeli opposition leader Ariel Sharon to the Temple Mount/Al-Haram al-Sharif in East Jerusalem [YUN 2000, p. 416]. Apart from loss of life and injuries, the crisis was characterized by severe internal and external closures of both the West Bank and Gaza, which resulted in large-scale losses to the Palestinian economy, wiping out more than three years of prior growth. The impact of the closures was monitored by the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the PLO and the PA, who continued to ensure coordination between the relevant institutions of the PA and UN agencies, and coordinated UN assistance related to the peace process in Jordan, Lebanon and the Syrian Arab Republic.

The Secretary-General said that the ongoing crisis in Israeli-Palestinian relations had been the most difficult and challenging since the United Nations began intensive development assistance to the Occupied Palestinian Territory in 1993 [YUN 1993, p. 534] and was testing the ability of the UN system to respond appropriately and effectively to urgent priority humanitarian needs. A UN emergency coordination mechanism, the Humanitarian Task Force for Emergency Needs, was established within days of the outbreak of the conflict. The Task Force, initially envisaged to focus on health needs, was extended to address other priority sectors, such as education, water and energy, as soon as the need became evident. In addition, ad hoc sector working groups were formed for job creation and food/social assistance, which were considered to be areas central to an effective emergency response. The UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs was supporting enhanced and strengthened capacities for planning and response to humanitarian needs through a variety of ongoing actions. Although emergency assistance received had contributed to meeting some of the immediate requirements, much work needed to be done to reduce and repair the extensive negative effects of the crisis on the Palestinian economy and society. What seemed initially to be a short-term emergency, warranting limited humanitarian aid, had developed into a protracted conflict necessitating more sustained UN action to address emergency needs and future development. It would be necessary for the UN system to strengthen and fine-tune existing coordination mechanisms, to eliminate potential duplication and to ensure responsiveness to needs identified by the beneficiaries. The various UN organizations and specialized agencies had to continue to reconfigure their work so as to strike the optimal balance between relief and development.

Seminar on assistance to Palestinian people.

On 7 March [A/56/59-E/2001/9], the Chairman of the Committee on Palestinian Rights notified the Secretary-General that the four Palestinian officials invited to speak at the seminar on assistance to the Palestinian people (Vienna, 20-21 February) and a number of NGO participants from the Occupied Territory were unable to attend owing to the general closure and travel restrictions imposed by Israel.

By a 19 June letter [A/56/89-E/2001/89], the Committee Chairman transmitted to the Secretary-General the report of the February seminar, which was attended by representatives of Governments, Palestine, intergovernmental organizations, NGOs and UN system organizations and agencies, and by experts. The participants discussed the crisis of 2000-2001, particularly the impact of Israeli policies on the Palestinian economy; the role of the UN system in alleviating hardships; assistance by Arab and Islamic States and intergovernmental organizations to the Palestinian people; and efforts by the international community. In his concluding remarks, the Committee Chairman emphasized that the change of leadership in Israel at the beginning of February 2001 had undercut the momentum for reaching a final and comprehensive agreement. Since September 2000, the Palestinian people had been reduced to fighting for their survival and for the satisfaction of their day-to-day needs rather than working for long-term development. The Committee called on the donor community to contribute the funds needed to remedy the serious budgetary crisis faced by the PA; Palestinian economic rehabilitation was a prerequisite for peace in the Middle East.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 14 December [meeting 87], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/111 [draft: A/56/L.59 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 20 (e)].

Assistance to the Palestinian people

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/173 of 14 December 2000,

Recalling also previous resolutions on the question,

Welcoming the signing of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993, between the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the Palestinian people, as well as the signing of the subsequent implementation agreements, including the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, in Washington, D.C., on 28 September 1995, and the signing of the Sharm el-Sheikh Memorandum on 4 September 1999,

Gravely concerned at the difficult economic and employment conditions facing the Palestinian people throughout the occupied territory,

Conscious of the urgent need for improvement in the economic and social infrastructure of the occupied territory and the living conditions of the Palestinian people,

Aware that development is difficult under occupation and best promoted in circumstances of peace and stability,

Noting the great economic and social challenges facing the Palestinian people and their leadership,

Conscious of the urgent necessity for international assistance to the Palestinian people, taking into account the Palestinian priorities,

Noting the convening of the United Nations seminar on assistance to the Palestinian people, held in Vienna on 20 and 21 February 2001, to review the state of the Palestinian economy,

Stressing the need for the full engagement of the United Nations in the process of building Palestinian institutions and in providing broad assistance to the Palestinian people, including assistance in the fields of elections, police training and public administration,

Noting the appointment by the Secretary-General of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority,

Welcoming the results of the Conference to Support Middle East Peace, convened in Washington, D.C., on

1 October 1993, and the establishment of the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee and the work being done by the World Bank as its secretariat, as well as the establishment of the Consultative Group,

Welcoming also the work of the Joint Liaison Committee, which provides a forum in which economic policy and practical matters related to donor assistance are discussed with the Palestinian Authority,

Welcoming further the results of the Ministerial Conference to Support Middle East Peace and Development, held in Washington, D.C., on 30 November 1998, and expressing appreciation for the pledges of the international donor community,

Welcoming the meeting of the Consultative Group in Frankfurt, Germany, on 4 and 5 February 1999, in particular the pledges of the international donor community and the presentation of the Palestinian Development Plan for the years 1999-2003,

Welcoming also the meeting of the Ad Hoc Liaison Committee held in Lisbon on 7 and 8 June 2000,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General,

Expressing grave concern at the continuation of the recent tragic and violent events that have led to many deaths and injuries,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Expresses its appreciation to the Secretary-General for his rapid response and efforts regarding assistance to the Palestinian people;

3. Expresses its appreciation to the Member States, United Nations bodies and intergovernmental, regional and non-governmental organizations that have provided and continue to provide assistance to the Palestinian people;

4. Stresses the importance of the work of the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority and of the steps taken under the auspices of the Secretary-General to ensure the achievement of a coordinated mechanism for United Nations activities throughout the occupied territories;

5. Urges Member States, international financial institutions of the United Nations system, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations and regional and interregional organizations to extend, as rapidly and as generously as possible, economic and social assistance to the Palestinian people, in close co-operation with the Palestine Liberation Organization and through official Palestinian institutions;

6. Calls upon relevant organizations and agencies of the United Nations system to intensify their assistance in response to the urgent needs of the Palestinian people in accordance with Palestinian priorities set forth by the Palestinian Authority, with emphasis on national execution and capacity-building;

7. Urges Member States to open their markets to exports of Palestinian products on the most favourable terms, consistent with appropriate trading rules, and to implement fully existing trade and cooperation agreements;

8. Calls upon the international donor community to expedite the delivery of pledged assistance to the Palestinian people to meet their urgent needs;

9. Stresses in this context the importance of ensuring the free passage of aid to the Palestinian people and the free movement of persons and goods;

10. Urges the international donor community, United Nations agencies and organizations and non-governmental organizations to extend as rapidly as possible emergency economic and humanitarian assistance to the Palestinian people to counter the impact of the current crisis;

11. Stresses the need to implement the Paris Protocol on Economic Relations of 29 April 1994, fifth annex to the Israeli-Palestinian Interim Agreement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, in particular with regard to the full and prompt clearance of Palestinian indirect tax revenues;

12. Suggests the convening in 2002 of a United Nations-sponsored seminar on assistance to the Palestinian people;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session, through the Economic and Social Council, on the implementation of the present resolution, containing:

- (a) An assessment of the assistance actually received by the Palestinian people;

- (b) An assessment of the needs still unmet and specific proposals for responding effectively to them;

14. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the sub-item entitled "Assistance to the Palestinian people".

UNRWA

In 2001, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East continued to provide vital education, health and relief and social services to a growing refugee population, despite a severe budget deficit and cash-flow crisis.

On 30 June, 3.87 million refugees were registered with UNRWA, an increase of 3.5 per cent over the 2000 figure of 3.7 million. The largest refugee population was registered in Jordan (42.3 per cent of the Agency-wide total), followed by the Gaza Strip (22 per cent), the West Bank (15.7 per cent), the Syrian Arab Republic (10.1 per cent) and Lebanon (9.9 per cent). Of the registered population, 36.51 per cent were aged 15 or under and about one third lived in 59 refugee camps, while the remainder resided in towns and villages.

In his annual report on the work of the Agency from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001 [A/56/13], the UNRWA Commissioner-General said that since the outbreak of strife in the Occupied Palestinian Territory in September 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 416], the Agency had had to develop an emergency programme of humanitarian assistance for the refugees affected by the severe economic decline in Gaza and the West Bank, brought about by closures and other restrictive measures applied by the Israeli authorities. Since October 2000, entry to or exit from Gaza and the West Bank had been severely restricted for Palestinians most of the time. The economic impact of the closures had rendered unemployed large numbers of Palestinians who worked in Israel. To meet immediate needs arising from the severe deterioration in economic conditions, the Agency launched emergency appeals (see p. 439).

Although the international community's response to the emergency appeals showed a clear appreciation of the need for continued assistance for Palestine refugees, the level of support for UNRWA's regular budget did not convey a message of adequate recognition of the serious threat that the funding shortfalls posed to the Agency's services. Major donors had been increasing their annual contributions to the regular budget at a steady rate. However, that growth was offset by the increased number of refugees and by inflation.

Since the crisis erupted in September 2000, UNRWA had been forced to shift its focus from development to emergency humanitarian assistance. In addition, the violence and general closures imposed by Israel created a number of obstacles that impaired the Agency's ability to run its humanitarian operations effectively, staff were frequently delayed or prevented from arriving at their workplaces because of delays at Israeli checkpoints, and the movement of UNRWA trucks between the West Bank and Gaza carrying essential humanitarian cargoes had been suspended because of search procedures imposed by Israeli authorities. UNRWA had introduced an operational support officers programme that was designed to assist in alleviating the adverse effects the restrictions were having on the provision of humanitarian services.

Despite financial constraints, UNRWA had persisted with its long-term reform programme. The current phase focused on improving the efficiency and effectiveness of the management of the Agency's resources; the development of an open management culture; the strengthening of its strategic planning capabilities; expansion and improvement in the Agency's relations with donor countries and UN agencies and programmes; and increased responsiveness, effectiveness and efficiency in the Agency's operations in providing services for the refugees against the background of changing socio-political conditions.

In recognition of the increasing importance of project funding and to establish a more targeted fund-raising approach, UNRWA established Agency-wide project priorities that formed the basis for the projects section of the 2000-2001 biennium budget. The projects budget provided a complete picture of the Agency's financial requirements and linked the project-funded activities directly to programme activities under the regular budget. The 2000-2001 projects budget comprised mainly non-recurrent infrastructure costs.

Advisory Commission. By a 25 September letter to the Commissioner-General, which he included in his report [A/56/13], the Advisory Commission of UNRWA noted with concern the deteriorating political, social and economic situation in the region, which affected the Palestinian refugees in particular, and expressed concern at the difficulties faced by UNRWA resulting from a whole range of restrictions imposed by Israel. It also noted that pledges for the 2000-2001 budget amounted to only $280 million against the $310.4 million approved by the General Assembly. There was therefore a need to raise donor contributions to enable the Agency to rebuild its depleted reserves to meet operational needs. The Commission expressed appreciation for the implementation of management reforms and for the manner in which UNRWA's staff had continued to work despite the often dangerous conditions in which they had to carry out their humanitarian tasks.

Peace Implementation Programme

In its eighth year of operation, UNRWA's Peace Implementation Programme (PIP) remained the foremost channel for extrabudgetary funding of activities carried out within the framework of the Agency's education, health, relief and social services and income-generation programmes. Since its inception in October 1993 [YUN 1993, p. 569], PIP had improved the refugees' overall living conditions, created employment opportunities and developed infrastructure. Following the adoption of the 2000-2001 programme-based biennium budget, which divided the Agency's budget into regular budget and projects budget sections, all new non-core contributions were credited to the projects budget.

Between mid-2000 and mid-2001, UNRWA, with PIP funding, completed the construction of five schools, 20 additional classrooms, one school laboratory, one library, one home economics unit, two health centres, a public health laboratory, a community rehabilitation centre and a women's programme centre. PIP made it possible to complete the rehabilitation of 37 shelters for special hardship case families Agency-wide. In environmental health, a feasibility study was completed for improving water supply in camps and construction of a sewage system in the Syrian Arab Republic. Another major project for construction of sewer and water networks in camps in Lebanon was ongoing, while infrastructure improvements in the Shu'fat camp in the West Bank were completed. Other projects completed during the reporting period included: purchase of educational materials, library reference books and furniture; provision of school desks; integration of visually impaired children; care for destitute aged; provision for hospitalization services; promotion of tolerance, conflict resolution and basic human rights in UNRWA schools; and development of human resources for health staff. PIP also helped to sustain regular Agency programmes through the continued funding of university scholarships for refugee students and the procurement of medical supplies. Further funding went to upgrading facilities and courses at several UNRWA vocational training centres.

Cash expenditures under PIP amounted to $7.6 million during the reporting period. No new funding was received specifically for PIP and the small amount remaining was merged into the Agency's projects budget. As at 30 June 2001, the outstanding amount from donors related to ongoing PIP projects was $13.8 million.

Lebanon appeal

Most of the 380,000 registered Palestine refugees in Lebanon continued to face socio-economic hardship and depended almost entirely on UNRWA for basic services. By mid-2001, the Agency had received $9.2 million of the $11 million sought in additional contributions under the special emergency appeal, launched in 1997 to support essential health, education, relief and social services activities for Palestine refugees in Lebanon. Completed projects included construction, equipping and furnishing of a health centre, the construction and repair of shelters and the purchase of medical supplies.

Emergency appeals

The UNRWA Commissioner-General stated that the strife that broke out in September 2000 in the Occupied Palestinian Territory undermined years of economic progress and infrastructure development, with profound effects on refugees in terms of lives, livelihoods and shelter lost. Of the hundreds of Palestinians killed since the outbreak of the intifada, more than half were UNRWA-registered refugees, with many more injured. Over 1,700 shelters in refugee camps were damaged and many destroyed. Closures imposed by Israel limited mobility, economic activity and access to health and educational services.

Responding to that humanitarian crisis, UNRWA launched a series of emergency appeals that started with a flash emergency appeal in October 2000 and the first consolidated emergency appeal in November 2000, which covered the period from December 2000 to February 2001 [YUN 2000, p. 450]. The second emergency appeal, launched on 22 February 2001, enabled UNRWA to provide short-term emergency employment opportunities for refugees, in addition to food and cash assistance, shelter repairs and health services for the period from March to May 2001. The third appeal, launched on 22 June, provided for continued emergency relief from June to December 2001. UNRWA received $24 million in funding in response to the second emergency appeal, and approximately $63 million in response to the third.

Major service areas

UNRWA continued to provide educational, health, and relief and social services to, and carried out microfinance and microenterprise activities for, Palestine refugees throughout the occupied territories.

During the 2000/01 school year, the 634 UNRWA schools across the region accommodated 474,742 pupils, most of whom were in elementary and preparatory cycles, apart from 2,474 pupils at the five Agency secondary schools in Lebanon. Total enrolment increased by 1.67 per cent, or 7,787 pupils, over the 1999/2000 school year. The Jordan and Gaza fields each accounted for approximately one third of total Agency pupil enrolment, while the other three fields (Lebanon, Syrian Arab Republic, West Bank) together accounted for the remaining third. UNRWA's school system continued to maintain full gender equality, with 50 per cent of pupils being female. The education programme, which was run in co-operation with UNESCO, remained the largest single area of UNRWA activity, with 16,246 education personnel representing 72 per cent of all Agency staff. The policy of operating schools on a double-shift basis (housing two schools in a single building) continued due to financial constraints and steadily rising student enrolment. Also due to financial constraints, the Agency remained unable to extend the basic education cycle in the West Bank and Gaza from 9 to 10 years; however, tenth-grade students were accommodated in PA schools.

A new Palestinian curriculum was introduced in 2000/01, for first and sixth grades, to replace the Jordanian curriculum in the West Bank and the Egyptian curriculum in Gaza. In the Syrian Arab Republic, a new study plan and new curricula and textbooks for the elementary and preparatory cycles were gradually introduced. The Agency continued to provide remedial and special education services for pupils with learning difficulties. In the absence of sustained project funding for special education, UNRWA explored ways to provide assistance to all children with learning difficulties at no additional cost by utilizing the Agency's available resources and expertise. Total enrolment in the eight UNRWA vocational and technical training centres was 4,700 in the 2000/01 school year, a marginal decrease from the previous year. Overall, women accounted for 65.2 per cent of all trainees enrolled in technical/semi-professional courses. The Agency continued with project funding to support some university students with scholarship awards until they graduated and offered placement and career guidance services to Palestine refugee graduates of UNRWA training centres and other educational institutions.

UNRWA's health-care programme remained focused on comprehensive primary health care, including a full range of maternal and child health and family planning services; school health services, health education and promotion activities; outpatient medical care services; prevention and control of communicable diseases and non-communicable diseases; and specialist care, with emphasis on gynaecology and obstetrics, paediatrics and cardiology. Those services were complemented by dental and basic support services, such as radiology and laboratory facilities. Services were delivered through a network of 122 primary health-care facilities located in and outside refugee camps. UNRWA participated in two rounds of national immunization campaigns for poliomyelitis eradication in the context of a World Health Organization (WHO) regional strategy. The Agency continued to emphasize the development of human resources for health through basic, in-service and postgraduate training as a key element in improving programme efficiency and the quality of care. Approximately 1.2 million Palestine refugees in 59 official camps in the five fields of operation, representing 32 per cent of the total registered population, benefited from environmental health services provided by UNRWA in cooperation with local municipalities, including sewage disposal, the provision of safe drinking water, the collection and disposal of refuse and the control of insect and rodent infestation. The health budget for the 2000-2001 biennium was established at $108 million under the regular programme, representing 18.6 per cent of the Agency's total operating budget.

The relief and social services programme supported those Palestine refugees who were unable to meet the basic needs for food, shelter and other essentials. It also maintained records on Palestine refugees to determine eligibility for UNRWA services. Further strides were made to improve the performance of the field registration system, pending its redesign. The Unified Registration System Unit completed installation of a new version of the field registration system in all field and area offices and conducted training for all users, and a new system module to consolidate field social study data on special hardship case (SHC) families was installed. The principal means of assistance to SHC families were food support, shelter rehabilitation, selective cash assistance, hospitalization subsidies and preferential access to UNRWA training centres. The number of refugees in households that met the eligibility criteria—no male adult medically fit to earn an income and no other identifiable means of financial support above a defined threshold—increased by 4.7 per cent, from 207,150 on 30 June 2000 to 217,388 on 30 June 2001. The percentage of refugees enrolled in the programme was highest in Lebanon and lowest in Jordan. The modest allocation of $500,000 for selective cash assistance, which was partially reinstated in 2000 following the budget freeze in August 1997, was maintained in 2001. Since then, small grants, at an average of $138.50, had been provided on a case-by-case basis to SHC families facing emergency situations. UNRWA also rehabilitated a total of 358 shelters of SHC families, as compared to 217 in the previous reporting period. The poverty alleviation programme continued to address poverty at the micro level and to promote the income-generating capacity of poor refugees through skills training, apprenticeships, awareness-raising sessions on the cause of poverty, "start your own business" training and/or provision of credit. While the latter often benefited clients from SHC families, it increasingly included loans, ranging in size from $500 to $10,000, to both individuals and groups. UNRWA-sponsored centres within the refugee camps or community-based organizations (CBOs) increased from 131 at mid-2000 to 134 at mid-2001, with a total of 71 women's programme centres, 27 youth activity centres and 36 community rehabilitation centres for the physically and mentally challenged. CBOs offered social development activities, including skills-training opportunities for women and disabled people, technical assistance for refugee-owned and/or -operated income-generation enterprises, and public awareness drives on social issues, such as early marriage, drug addiction, smoking and domestic violence. The relief and social services programme continued to promote participation, self-reliance, organizational network building, revenue generation and project development skills. In accordance with previously established goals, the Agency pursued its commitment to strengthening the organizational capacities of CBOs to enable them to manage and sustain their progress autonomously. The regular budget for the relief and social services programme for the 2001-2002 biennium was $62.4 million, representing 10 per cent of UNRWA's total regular budget.

During the reporting period, UNRWA changed the name of its income-generation programme in the West Bank and Gaza Strip to the microfinance and microenterprise programme in order to draw a clear distinction between the commercial, self-sustaining and market-oriented microfinance services being delivered through it and the various income-generating activities being undertaken through the relief and social services programme. The microfinance and microenterprise programme continued to support the development of the small-scale business sector within the refugee community by providing working capital and capital investment loans. Those products strengthened business activity, created jobs, generated income for participants, helped alleviate poverty and encouraged women's economic participation. From mid-2000 to mid-2001, the programme provided 10,083 loans worth $9.92 million for Palestinian-owned enterprises, of which women entrepreneurs received 37.43 per cent. In the Gaza Strip, UNRWA's microfinance programme activities had made it the largest financial intermediary to small business and the microenterprise sector. In the West Bank, the Agency's microenterprise credit subprogramme was the fastest growing of its credit subprogrammes. As part of its institutional reform process, UNRWA established a microfinance and microenterprise programme advisory board to provide the Commissioner-General with policy guidance and recommendations. The credit operations of the microfinance and microenterprise programme were severely hampered by the economic consequences of the closures and other measures restricting the movement of labour and goods imposed by the Israeli authorities. The continuation of the conflict placed the programme's self-sufficiency at risk amidst the deteriorating business environment and could compel the programme to use up its capital base to survive the crisis.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/549], adopted resolution 56/52 by recorded vote (151-2-2) [agenda item 87].

Assistance to Palestine refugees

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/123 of 8 December 2000 and all its previous resolutions on the question, including resolution 194(III) of 11 December 1948,

Taking note of the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works

Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001,

Stressing the importance of the Middle East peace process,

Welcoming the signature in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993 by the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, the representative of the people of Palestine, of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements and the subsequent implementation agreements,

Aware that the Multilateral Working Group on Refugees of the Middle East peace process has an important role to play in the peace process,

1. Notes with regret that repatriation or compensation of the refugees, as provided for in paragraph 11 of its resolution 194(III), has not yet been effected and that, therefore, the situation of the refugees continues to be a matter of concern;

2. Also notes with regret that the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine has been unable to find a means of achieving progress in the implementation of paragraph 11 of General Assembly resolution 194(III), and requests the Commission to exert continued efforts towards the implementation of that paragraph and to report to the Assembly as appropriate, but no later than 1 September 2002;

3. Expresses its thanks to the Commissioner-General and to all the staff of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, recognizing that the Agency is doing all it can within the limits of available resources, and also expresses its thanks to the specialized agencies and to private organizations for their valuable work in assisting refugees;

4. Notes the significant success of the Peace Implementation Programme of the Agency since the signing of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements, and stresses the importance that contributions to this Programme not be at the expense of the General Fund;

5. Welcomes the increased cooperation between the Agency and international and regional organizations, States and relevant agencies and non-governmental organizations, which is essential to enhancing the contributions of the Agency towards improved conditions for the refugees and thereby the social stability of the occupied territory;

6. Urges all Member States to extend and expedite aid and assistance with a view to the economic and social development of the Palestinian people and the occupied territory;

7. Reiterates its deep concern regarding the persisting critical financial situation of the Agency, as outlined in the report of the Commissioner-General;

8. Commends the efforts of the Commissioner-General to move towards budgetary transparency and internal efficiency, and welcomes in this respect the unified budget for the biennium 2002-2003;

9. Welcomes the consultative process between the Agency, host Governments, the Palestinian Authority and donors on management reforms;

10. Notes with profound concern that the continuing shortfall in the finances of the Agency, in particular at this time of acute crisis, has a significant negative influence on the living conditions of the Palestine refugees most in need and that it therefore has possible consequences for the peace process;

11. Expresses deep concern about the continuing problem of restrictions on the freedom of movement of Agency staff, vehicles and goods in the occupied territory, which has an adverse impact on the operational effectiveness of the Agency's programmes;

12. Calls upon all donors, as a matter of urgency, to make the most generous efforts possible to meet the anticipated needs of the Agency, including the remaining costs of moving the headquarters to Gaza, encourages contributing Governments to contribute regularly and to consider increasing their regular contributions, and urges non-contributing Governments to contribute;

13. Decides to extend the mandate of the Agency until 30 June 2005, without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph 11 of its resolution 194(III).

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/52:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands.

Abstaining: Micronesia, United States.

The Assembly, on the same date [meeting 82] and also on the Fourth Committee's recommendation [A/56/549], adopted resolution 56/56 by recorded vote (151-3-1) [agenda item 87].

Operations of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 194(III) of 11 December 1948, 212(III) of 19 November 1948, 302(IV) of 8 December 1949 and all subsequent related resolutions,

Recalling also the relevant Security Council resolutions,

Having considered the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001,

Taking note of the letter dated 25 September 2001 from the Chairman of the Advisory Commission of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East addressed to the Commissioner-General, contained in the report of the Commissioner-General,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General submitted in pursuance of its resolutions

48/40 E, 48/40 H and 48/40 J of 10 December 1993 and 49/35 C of 9 December 1994,

Recalling Articles 100, 104 and 105 of the Charter of the United Nations and the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations,

Affirming the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967, including Jerusalem,

Aware of the fact that Palestine refugees have, for over five decades, lost their homes, lands and means of livelihood,

Also aware of the continuing needs of Palestine refugees throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory and in the other fields of operation, namely, in Lebanon, Jordan and the Syrian Arab Republic,

Further aware of the valuable work done by the refugee affairs officers of the Agency in providing protection to the Palestinian people, in particular Palestine refugees,

Gravely concerned about the increased suffering of the Palestine refugees, including loss of life and injury, during the recent tragic events in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem,

Gravely concerned also about the policies of closure and severe restrictions on the movement of persons and goods throughout the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem, which have had a grave impact on the socio-economic situation of the Palestine refugees,

Deeply concerned about the negative impact of these closures and restrictions on the staff and services of the Agency,

Deeply concerned also about the continuing critical financial situation of the Agency and its effect on the continuity of provision of necessary Agency services to the Palestine refugees, including the emergency-related programmes,

Aware of the work of the Peace Implementation Programme of the Agency,

Recalling the signing in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993 of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements by the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization and the subsequent implementation agreements,

Taking note of the agreement reached on 24 June 1994, embodied in an exchange of letters between the Agency and the Palestine Liberation Organization,

Aware of the establishment of a working relationship between the Advisory Commission of the Agency and the Palestine Liberation Organization in accordance with General Assembly decision 48/417 of 10 December 1993,

1. Expresses its appreciation to the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, as well as to all the staff of the Agency, for their tireless efforts and valuable work, including and particularly during the difficult situation of the past year;

2. Also expresses its appreciation to the Advisory Commission of the Agency, and requests it to continue its efforts and to keep the General Assembly informed of its activities, including the full implementation of decision 48/417;

3. Takes note of the functioning of the headquarters of the Agency in Gaza City on the basis of the Headquarters Agreement between the Agency and the Palestinian Authority;

4. Acknowledges the support of the host Government and the Palestine Liberation Organization for the Agency in the discharge of its duties;

5. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to accept the de jure applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and to abide scrupulously by its provisions;

6. Also calls upon Israel to abide by Articles 100, 104 and 105 of the Charter of the United Nations and the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations with regard to the safety of the personnel of the Agency, the protection of its institutions and the safeguarding of the security of the facilities of the Agency in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, including Jerusalem;

7. Calls once again upon the Government of Israel to compensate the Agency for damage to its property and facilities resulting from actions by the Israeli side;

8. Calls upon Israel particularly to cease obstructing the movement of the personnel, vehicles and supplies of the Agency, which has a detrimental impact on the Agency's operations;

9. Also calls upon Israel to cease its policies of closure and of placing restrictions on the movement of persons and goods, which have had a grave impact on the socio-economic situation of the Palestinian population, in particular the Palestine refugees;

10. Requests the Commissioner-General to proceed with the issuance of identification cards for Palestine refugees and their descendants in the Occupied Palestinian Territory;

11. Notes that the context created by the signing of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements by the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization and subsequent implementation agreements has had major consequences for the activities of the Agency, which is henceforth called upon, in close co-operation with the United Nations Special Coordinator for the Middle East Peace Process and Personal Representative of the Secretary-General to the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority, the specialized agencies and the World Bank, to continue to contribute towards the development of economic and social stability in the occupied territory;

12. Notes also that the functioning of the Agency remains essential in all fields of operation;

13. Notes further the significant success of the Peace Implementation Programme of the Agency, as well as the microfinance and enterprise programmes;

14. Expresses concern about those remaining austerity measures due to the financial crisis, which have affected the quality and level of some of the services of the Agency;

15. Reiterates its request to the Commissioner-General to proceed with the modernization of the archives of the Agency;

16. Urges all States, specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations to continue and to increase their contributions to the Agency so as to ease the current financial constraints and to support the Agency in maintaining the provision of the most basic and effective assistance to the Palestine refugees.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/56:

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, United States.

Abstaining: Micronesia.

UNRWA financing

In 2001, UNRWA's financial situation continued to be difficult and bleak, characterized by large funding shortfalls in the regular budget, depleted working capital and cash reserves, and cumulative deficits in certain project accounts. The structural deficit emanating from the inability of income to keep pace with needs arising from natural growth in the refugee population and inflation remained a problem. Despite a combination of ad hoc additional donor contributions and prudent financial management, a budget deficit was expected by the end of 2001 unless additional contributions were received.

At mid-2001, the Agency's cash position remained critical, forcing it to live from hand to mouth in terms of balancing incoming funds and outgoing payments. Expected cash expenditure in the regular programme was $311 million, as against expected cash income of $245 million. Working capital, defined as the difference between assets and liabilities in the regular budget for the calendar year, was for all practical purposes non-existent, making UNRWA vulnerable to any change in expected income or expenditure. Estimates indicated that the Agency's regular cash budget for 2001 would face a deficit of $66 million by year's end.

The Commissioner-General said that the Agency's 2002-2003 budget [A/56/13/Add.1] represented another step forward in the Agency's efforts to improve budgetary transparency and usefulness of the budget as a planning, managerial and fund-raising tool. The budget exercise was oriented towards preparing a programme-based budget more structured around UNRWA's service-providing role. The Agency's budget requirements for the 2002-2003 biennium were estimated at $791.7 million.

Working Group. The Working Group on the Financing of UNRWA held two meetings in 2001, on 14 September and 3 October. In its report to the General Assembly [A/56/430], the Working Group said that the critical financial situation of 2000 had continued in 2001. In 2000, UNRWA had an income of $270.9 million, of which $256 million was for the cash portion of the regular budget and $14.9 million for the in-kind portion. Those funds were received against a regular budget of $300.9 million, of which $280.4 million represented the cash portion and $20.5 million the in-kind portion, leaving a deficit of $24.4 million. In cash terms, UNRWA ended the year 2000 with nothing for its General Fund; consequently, it was forced to reduce expenditure to match income and could not allocate any funds towards building up the working capital or salary reserve. By the end of June 2001, UNRWA faced the prospect of a deficit in its regular cash budget of $66 million by the end of the year. However, additional contributions from the Agency's major donors reduced that deficit to $31 million by the end of September. Income for 2001 was expected to be $280 million, against a cash budget of $311 million.

The Working Group noted that UNRWA had made significant progress towards eliminating the structural deficit problem that had plagued the Agency in previous years, in particular through reductions in international staffing and other reforms. However, it expressed concern that eight years of austerity measures had eroded the level and quality of the services provided by UNRWA for some 4 million Palestine refugees.

The Working Group said that UNRWA services had to be viewed as the minimum required to enable the refugees to lead decent lives. Any further reduction in those services not only would deprive the refugees of the minimum level of support to which they were entitled, but could also have a destabilizing effect on the entire region. The Group expressed the hope that the international support for UNRWA embodied in the resolutions adopted each year by the General Assembly, in which the Assembly recognized the importance of UNRWA's work and requested that Governments contribute to it, would be translated into measures to ensure the survival of the Agency on a secure financial basis.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/549], adopted resolution 56/53 without vote [agenda item 87].

Working Group on the Financing of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 2656(XXV) of 7 December 1970, 2728(XXV) of 15 December 1970, 2971(XXVI) of 6 December 1971, 55/124 of 8 December 2000 and the previous resolutions on this question,

Recalling also its decision 36/462 of 16 March 1982, by which it took note of the special report of the Working Group on the Financing of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East,

Having considered the report of the Working Group,

Taking into account the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001,

Deeply concerned about the continuing financial situation of the Agency, which has affected and affects the continuation of the provision of necessary Agency services to Palestine refugees, including the emergency-related and humanitarian programmes,

Emphasizing the continuing need for extraordinary efforts in order to maintain, at least at the current level, the activities of the Agency, as well as to enable the Agency to carry out essential construction,

1. Commends the Working Group on the Financing of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East for its efforts to assist in ensuring the financial security of the Agency;

2. Takes note with approval of the report of the Working Group;

3. Requests the Working Group to continue its efforts, in cooperation with the Secretary-General and the Commissioner-General, to find a solution to the financial situation of the Agency;

4. Welcomes the new, unified budget structure for the biennium 2002-2003, which can contribute significantly to improved budgetary transparency of the Agency;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to provide the necessary services and assistance to the Working Group for the conduct of its work.

Displaced persons

In a September report [A/56/382] on compliance with General Assembly resolution 55/125 [YUN 2000, p. 456], which called for the accelerated return of all persons displaced as a result of the June 1967 and subsequent hostilities to their homes or former places of residence in the territories occupied by Israel since 1967, the Secretary-General said that since UNRWA was not involved in arrangements for the return of either refugees or displaced persons not registered with it, the Agency's information was based on requests by returning registered refugees for the transfer of their entitlements to their areas of return. Displaced refugees known by UNRWA to have returned to the West Bank and Gaza Strip since 1967 numbered 21,632. Records indicated that, between 1 July 2000 and 30 June 2001, 1,320 refugees had returned to the West Bank and 36 to Gaza. Some of the refugees might not have been displaced since 1967, but might be family members of a displaced registered refugee whom they either had accompanied on return or had joined later.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/549], adopted resolution 56/54 by recorded vote (151-3-1) [agenda item 87].

Persons displaced as a result of the June 1967 and subsequent hostilities

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 2252(ES-V) of 4 July 1967, 2341 B (XXII) of 19 December 1967 and all subsequent related resolutions,

Recalling also Security Council resolutions 237(1967) of 14 June 1967 and 259(1968) of 27 September 1968,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General submitted in pursuance of its resolution 55/125 of 8 December 2000,

Taking note also of the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001,

Concerned about the continuing human suffering resulting from the June 1967 and subsequent hostilities,

Taking note of the relevant provisions of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements, signed in Washington, D.C., on 13 September 1993 by the Government of the State of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization, with regard to the modalities for the admission of persons displaced in 1967, and concerned that the process agreed upon has not yet been effected,

1. Reaffirms the right of all persons displaced as a result of the June 1967 and subsequent hostilities to return to their homes or former places of residence in the territories occupied by Israel since 1967;

2. Expresses deep concern that the mechanism agreed upon by the parties in article XII of the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements on the return of displaced persons has not been effected, and expresses the hope for an accelerated return of displaced persons;

3. Endorses, in the meanwhile, the efforts of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East to continue to provide humanitarian assistance, as far as practicable, on an emergency basis and as a temporary measure, to persons in the area who are currently displaced and in serious need of continued assistance as a result of the June 1967 and subsequent hostilities;

4. Strongly appeals to all Governments and to organizations and individuals to contribute generously to the Agency and to the other intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned for the above-mentioned purposes;

5. Requests the Secretary-General, after consulting with the Commissioner-General, to report to the General Assembly before its fifty-seventh session on the progress made with regard to the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/54:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, United States.

Abstaining: Micronesia.

Education, training and scholarships

In a September report [A/56/375], the Secretary-General transmitted responses to the General Assembly's appeal in resolution 55/126 [YUN 2000, p. 457] for States, specialized agencies and NGOs to augment special allocations for scholarships and grants to Palestine refugees, for which UNRWA acted as recipient and trustee.

In the 2001 fiscal year, Japan awarded 12 fellowships to Palestine refugees who were employed by UNRWA as vocational training staff at the eight vocational training centres in the Agency's area of operations. During the 2000/01 academic year, owing to the cancellation in 1999 of the portion of the university scholarship fund for secondary school graduates financed from UNRWA's General Fund budget and the fact that financing was not forthcoming from donors to fund the subprogramme, UNRWA's Education Department used funds already available from the Japanese contribution, as well as from contributions made by Switzerland, to finance the studies of some students until their graduation. UNESCO granted 78 scholarships to Palestinian students in 2000/01, while WHO provided 27 fellowships/study tours for qualified Palestinian candidates. The United World Colleges offered one scholarship for 2000/01. The International Development Research Centre pledged $1,314,607 to UNRWA to finance the scholarship fund for Palestine refugee women in Lebanon, with an implementation period of six years. In 2000/01, 25 students were enrolled in seven specializations at various Lebanese universities.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/549], adopted resolution 56/55 by recorded vote (154-0-1) [agenda item 87].

Offers by Member States of grants and scholarships for higher education, including vocational training, for Palestine refugees

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 212(III) of 19 November 1948 on assistance to Palestine refugees,

Recalling also its resolutions 35/13 B of 3 November 1980, 36/146 H of 16 December 1981, 37/120 D of 16 December 1982, 38/83 D of 15 December 1983, 39/99 D of 14 December 1984, 40/165 D of 16 December 1985, 41/69 D of 3 December 1986, 42/69 D of 2 December 1987, 43/57 D of 6 December 1988, 44/47 D of 8 December 1989, 45/73 D of 11 December 1990, 46/46 D of 9 December 1991, 47/69 D of 14 December 1992, 48/40 D of 10 December 1993, 49/35 D of 9 December 1994, 50/28 D of 6 December 1995, 51/127 of 13 December 1996, 52/60 of 10 December 1997, 53/49 of 3 December 1998, 54/72 of 6 December 1999 and 55/126 of 8 December 2000,

Cognizant of the fact that the Palestine refugees have, for the last five decades, lost their homes, lands and means of livelihood,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General,

Having also considered the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001,

1. Urges all States to respond to the appeal made in its resolution 32/90 F of 13 December 1977 and reiterated in subsequent relevant resolutions in a manner commensurate with the needs of Palestine refugees for higher education, including vocational training;

2. Strongly appeals to all States, specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations to augment the special allocations for grants and scholarships to Palestine refugees, in addition to their contributions to the regular budget of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East;

3. Expresses its appreciation to all Governments, specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations that responded favourably to its resolutions on this question;

4. Invites the relevant specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to continue, within their respective spheres of competence, to extend assistance for higher education to Palestine refugee students;

5. Appeals to all States, specialized agencies and the United Nations University to contribute generously to the Palestinian universities in the Palestinian territory occupied by Israel since 1967, including, in due course, the proposed University of Jerusalem "Al-Quds" for Palestine refugees;

6. Appeals to all States, specialized agencies and other international bodies to contribute towards the establishment of vocational training centres for Palestine refugees;

7. Requests the Agency to act as the recipient and trustee for the special allocations for grants and scholarships and to award them to qualified Palestine refugee candidates;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/55:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Marshall Islands, Mauritania, Mexico, Micronesia, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Israel.

Proposed University of Jerusalem "Al-Quds"

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/129 [YUN 2000, p. 458], the Secretary-General submitted a September report on the proposal to establish a university for Palestine refugees in Jerusalem [A/56/421]. First mentioned by the Assembly in resolution 35/13 B [YUN 1980, p. 443], the issue had been the subject of annual reports by the Secretary-General.

To assist in the preparation of a feasibility study and at the Secretary-General's request, the Rector of the United Nations University again asked expert Mihaly Simai to visit the area and meet with Israeli officials. In response to the Secretary-General's note verbale of 18 July, requesting Israel to facilitate the visit, Israel, in a 17 September reply, stated that it had consistently voted against the resolution on the proposed university and that its position remained unchanged. It charged that the resolution's sponsors sought to exploit higher education for political purposes extraneous to genuine academic pursuits. Accordingly, Israel was of the opinion that the proposed visit would serve no useful purpose. The Secretary-General reported that it had not been possible to complete the study as planned.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/549], adopted resolution 56/58 by recorded vote (151-3-1) [agenda item 87].

University of Jerusalem "Al-Quds" for Palestine refugees

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 36/146 G of 16 December 1981, 37/120 C of 16 December 1982, 38/83 K of 15 December 1983, 39/99 K of 14 December 1984, 40/165 D and K of 16 December 1985, 41/69 K of 3 December 1986, 42/69 K of 2 December 1987, 43/57 J of 6 December 1988, 44/47 J of 8 December 1989, 45/73 J of 11 December 1990, 46/46 J of 9 December 1991, 47/69 J of 14 December 1992, 48/40 I of 10 December 1993, 49/35 G of 9 December 1994, 50/28 G of 6 December 1995, 51/130 of 13 December 1996, 52/63 of 10 December 1997, 53/52 of 3 December 1998, 54/75 of 6 December 1999 and 55/129 of 8 December 2000,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General,

Having also considered the report of the Commissioner-General of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East covering the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001,

1. Emphasizes the need for strengthening the educational system in the Palestinian territory occupied by Israel since 5 June 1967, including Jerusalem, and specifically the need for the establishment of the proposed university;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to take all necessary measures for establishing the University of Jerusalem "Al-Quds", in accordance with General Assembly resolution 35/13 B of 3 November 1980, giving due consideration to the recommendations consistent with the provisions of that resolution;

3. Calls once again upon Israel, the occupying Power, to cooperate in the implementation of the present resolution and to remove the hindrances that it has put in the way of establishing the University of Jerusalem "Al-Quds";

4. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the progress made in the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/58:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav

Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, United States.

Abstaining: Micronesia.

Property rights

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/128 [YUN 2000, p. 459], the Secretary-General submitted a September report [A/56/420] on steps taken to protect and administer Arab property, assets and property rights in Israel, and establish a fund for income derived therefrom, on behalf of the rightful owners. He indicated that he had transmitted the resolution to Israel and all other Member States, requesting information on any steps taken or envisaged with regard to its implementation.

In a 17 September reply, reproduced in the report, Israel stated that its position on the resolutions on Palestine refugees had been set forth in successive annual replies, the latest of which had been included in the Secretary-General's 2000 report on the subject [YUN 2000, p. 458]. Israel regretted that the resolutions regarding UNRWA remained rife with political issues irrelevant to the Agency's work and detached from the reality in the area. While Israel believed that UNRWA could play an important role in promoting the social and economic advancement foreseen in agreements between Israel and the Palestinians, it considered it essential that the Assembly consolidate the resolutions on UNRWA into one directly related to the Agency's humanitarian tasks.

No replies were received from other Member States.

Report of Conciliation Commission. The United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine, in its fifty-fifth report covering the period from 1 September 2000 to 31 August 2001 [A/56/290], noted its August 2000 report [YUN 2000, p. 459] and observed that it had nothing new to report since its submission.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/459], adopted resolution 56/57 by recorded vote (150-3-1) [agenda item 87].

Palestine refugees' properties and their revenues

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 194(III) of 11 December 1948, 36/146 C of 16 December 1981 and all its subsequent resolutions on the question,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General submitted in pursuance of resolution 55/128 of 8 December 2000,

Taking note also of the report of the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine for the period from 1 September 2000 to 31 August 2001,

Recalling that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the principles of international law uphold the principle that no one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his or her property,

Recalling in particular its resolution 394(V) of 14 December 1950, in which it directed the Conciliation Commission, in consultation with the parties concerned, to prescribe measures for the protection of the rights, property and interests of the Palestine Arab refugees,

Noting the completion of the programme of identification and evaluation of Arab property, as announced by the Conciliation Commission in its twenty-second progress report, and the fact that the Land Office had a schedule of Arab owners and file of documents defining the location, area and other particulars of Arab property,

Recalling that, in the framework of the Middle East peace process, the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Government of Israel agreed, in the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements of 13 September 1993, to commence negotiations on permanent status issues, including the important issue of the refugees,

1. Reaffirms that the Palestine Arab refugees are entitled to their property and to the income derived therefrom, in conformity with the principles of justice and equity;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to take all appropriate steps, in consultation with the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine, for the protection of Arab property, assets and property rights in Israel;

3. Expresses its appreciation for the work done to preserve and modernize the existing records of the Conciliation Commission;

4. Calls once again upon Israel to render all facilities and assistance to the Secretary-General in the implementation of the present resolution;

5. Calls upon all the parties concerned to provide the Secretary-General with any pertinent information in their possession concerning Arab property, assets and property rights in Israel that would assist him in the implementation of the present resolution;

6. Urges the Palestinian and Israeli sides, as agreed between them, to deal with the important issue of Palestine refugees' properties and their revenues in the framework of the final status negotiations of the Middle East peace process;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/57:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, United States.

Abstaining: Micronesia.

Peacekeeping operations

In 2001, the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization (UNTSO), originally set up to monitor the ceasefire called for by the Security Council in resolution S/801 of 29 May 1948 [YUN 1947-48, p. 427] in newly partitioned Palestine, continued its work. UNTSO's unarmed military observers fulfilled changing mandates—from supervising the original four armistice agreements between Israel and its neighbours (Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and the Syrian Arab Republic) to observing and monitoring other ceasefires, as well as performing a number of additional tasks. During the year, UNTSO personnel worked with the two remaining UN peacekeeping forces in the Middle East—the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force (UNDOF) in the Golan Heights and the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

During the year, UNIFIL underwent a gradual reconfiguration and redeployment, having confirmed the withdrawal of Israeli troops in June 2000 from southern Lebanon [YUN 2000, p. 460] and having assisted the Lebanese authorities as they returned to the area vacated by Israel. A line of withdrawal—the so-called Blue Line—was identified by the United Nations on the ground following the withdrawal of Israeli troops in 2000 [ibid., p. 462].

Lebanon

In 2001, serious breaches occurred relating to the farmlands in the Shab'a area on the border; the paramilitary group Hizbullah carried out attacks against targets inside Israel and the Israel Defence Forces (IDF) attacked targets within Lebanon, including Syrian radar installations. The Shab'a farmlands had been a source of contention since the withdrawal of Israeli forces from Lebanon in June 2000. According to the Lebanese Government, Israel's withdrawal from southern Lebanon was incomplete, as Israeli forces continued to occupy the Shab'a farms, while Israel's position was that the area was occupied Syrian territory and thus within the purview of Security Council resolution 242(1967) [YUN 1967, p. 257] on the Israeli-Syrian conflict, and not resolution 425(1978) [YUN 1978, p. 312], which dealt with Israel's withdrawal from Lebanon. However, Lebanon and the Syrian Arab Republic continued to claim that the Shab'a farmlands were inside Lebanese territory.

In January 2001, Staffan de Mistura assumed his position as the Secretary-General's Personal Representative for southern Lebanon, responsible for coordinating UN activities in the area.

In a series of communications received throughout the year [A/55/733-S/2001/43, A/55/736-S/2001/56, A/55/738-S/2001/62, A/55/766-S/2001/110, A/55/802-S/2001/164, A/55/818-S/2001/184, A/55/841-S/2001/243, A/55/868-S/2001/313, A/55/894-S/2001/344, A/55/898-S/2001/355, A/55/923-S/2001/430, A/55/930-S/2001/454, A/55/937-S/2001/476, A/55/938-S/2001/478, A/55/948-S/2001/502, A/55/959-S/2001/531, A/55/991-S/2001/606, A/55/995-S/2001/630, A/56/396-S/2001/901, A/56/503-S/2001/1004, A/56/695-S/2001/1177, A/56/718-S/2001/1206, A/56/762-S/2001/1337], Lebanon detailed Israeli attacks on southern Lebanon and the Western Bekaa, as well as Israeli violations of Lebanese sovereignty.

In communications dated between 6 February and 24 October [A/55/767-S/2001/111, A/55/792-S/2001/142, A/55/901-S/2001/364, A/55/1002-S/2001/643, A/56/507-S/2001/1012], Israel detailed terrorist attempts to infiltrate its northern border from Lebanon, as well as the launching of mortars and anti-tank shells by the paramilitary group Hizbullah against Israeli targets, in violation of the Blue Line.

Throughout 2001, Israel, Lebanon, the Syrian Arab Republic, other countries of the region and several international organizations transmitted communications to the United Nations concerning the situation on the Israel/Lebanon border.

In identical letters of 2 February [S/2001/99] to the Secretary-General and the Security Council President, Lebanon said that Israel had established a gateway complex at the entrance to the village of Ghajar, had excavated a trench there and had set up a 400-metre-long concrete barrier running parallel to the road leading to Ghajar inside Lebanese territory. That action constituted a violation of the Blue Line and an assault on Lebanon's sovereignty.

On 28 February [A/55/817-S/2001/180], Syria informed the Secretary-General that the Israeli authorities had begun to bring pressure to bear on the inhabitants of Ghajar for the construction of a barbed-wire fence that would result in the partitioning of the village. The inhabitants had stated unequivocally that they were born as Syrians and that they would remain Syrian in all circumstances.

On 29 March [A/55/864-S/2001/292], Lebanon said that Israel was threatening to launch new attacks on Lebanese territory based on the allegation that Lebanon had set about diverting the course of the Hasbani river, which would deprive Israel of its water. Lebanon stated that Israel's allegations were untrue and had the objective of obstructing Lebanon's reconstruction efforts in those areas that had been occupied by Israel for 22 years.

On 16 April [S/2001/367], Israel notified the Council President that, on 14 April, Hizbullah gunmen had fired two anti-tank missiles at an IDF tank on patrol on the Israeli side of the Blue Line, killing one Israeli soldier. That act of aggression followed continuous attacks and provocations from Lebanese territory since Israel's withdrawal in 2000.

Also on 16 April [A/55/900-S/2001/362], Syria said that Israeli formations had that day violated Lebanese airspace and bombed a Syrian radar installation in Lebanese territory. Syria regarded that aggression as a serious escalation that could undermine peace and stability in the region.

On 17 April [A/55/902-S/2001/371], Lebanon said that Israel's 16 April attack against Syrian military positions inside Lebanese territory had caused the death of one member of the Syrian Arab Force and the wounding of four others.

The United Arab Emirates, on 18 April [A/55/903-S/2001/375], condemned the aggression committed by Israeli forces against Lebanese territory on 16 April, as did Qatar, in its capacity as Chairman of the Organization of the Islamic Conference [A/55/906-S/2001/383].

Responding on 18 April [A/55/908-S/2001/385], Israel said that Syria, as the main power broker in Lebanon with 35,000 troops stationed there, supported Hizbullah and had directly enhanced the capacity of the organization to launch attacks against Israel. Syria had also allowed Hizbullah to maintain terrorist training facilities in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley. Following the act of aggression perpetrated by Hizbullah on 14 April (see above), Israel was compelled to respond and exercised its legitimate right to self-defence in the 16 April operation, which aimed to prevent the recurrence of aggression from Lebanese soil.

On 23 April [A/55/914-S/2001/407], Yemen condemned and denounced Israel's aggression against Lebanese territory and its bombing of Syrian forces in the Bekaa area.

On the same day [A/55/920-S/2001/426], Sweden, on behalf of the EU, said that Israel's attack on Syrian objectives in Lebanon, the first in many years, as a retaliation for Hizbullah attacks on the Shab'a farms, was an excessive and disproportionate response.

In identical letters of 2 May [A/55/926-S/2001/438 & CORR.1] to the Secretary-General and the Council President, Syria said that Israel had deliberately misled international public opinion by distorting the facts. The true reasons for the deteriorating situation in the Middle East were essentially attributable to the continuing Israeli policies of occupation, expansion and aggression. Israel was fully aware that Lebanon and Syria had a pact of brotherhood and cooperation that governed the relationship between the two countries. Consequently, Syria supported Lebanon by providing everything that it needed to defend its territory and achieve its security and stability.

On 3 May [A/55/927-S/2001/440], Syria said that on 14 April an Israeli military patrol inside Syrian territory fired several rounds at a Syrian police position in the sector of a UN position.

Lebanon, on 7 May [A/55/929-S/2001/444], said that the Syrian forces stationed inside Lebanese territory were there at the request and with the agreement of the Lebanese Government, and their presence was a necessary, legitimate and temporary one that was not Israel's concern.

On 29 May [A/55/958-S/2001/530], Lebanon said that Israel had installed an observation post 20 metres inside Lebanese territory in the vicinity of Ghajar village, in violation of Lebanese sovereignty and relevant UN resolutions.

On 27 June [A/55/1001-S/2001/642], Lebanon said that on 13 and 14 June Israeli forces deliberately set fire to extensive areas in the occupied Shab'a farmlands.

In two separate letters of 2 July to the Council President and the Secretary-General [S/2001/654, A/55/1006], Lebanon said that, on the previous day, Israeli warplanes had violated Lebanese airspace and attacked a Syrian radar position operating in Lebanon. Two members of the Syrian forces were wounded, as was an enlisted Lebanese soldier.

On the same day [A/55/1007-S/2001/653], Lebanon forwarded to the Secretary-General a statement issued on 30 June following consultations between the Lebanese and Syrian Ministers for Foreign Affairs. Having noted statements made by Israeli officials concerning acts of resistance to the Israeli occupation in the Shab'a farmlands and allegations made about the weapons used against Israeli forces, the Ministers said that the defensive weapons that the resistance possessed could not be compared with the weapons of mass destruction, warplanes, heavy artillery and battle tanks available to the Israeli armed forces. Lebanon affirmed its right under the UN Charter and relevant international covenants to liberate its territory using all legitimate means, and both Lebanon and Syria would hold Israel responsible for the consequences of any new aggression.

In identical letters of 3 July [A/55/1011, S/2001/670] to the Secretary-General and the Council President, Qatar said that the Arab Group at the United Nations had held a meeting that day in New York at the level of ambassadors and permanent representatives to the United Nations. The Arab Group condemned the repeated Israeli attacks on Lebanon and on the Syrian Arab forces operating in Lebanon. It affirmed its support for Lebanon in asserting all of its rights and in taking all legitimate measures to liberate the occupied Shab'a farmlands.

On 6 July [A/56/161-S/2001/673], Israel informed the Secretary-General that on 29 June two Israeli soldiers were wounded by shrapnel when Hizbullah terrorists fired dozens of anti-tank missiles and mortars at two army outposts in the Mount Dov region on the Israeli side of the Blue Line. By their active and tacit support for Hizbullah's activities, both Lebanon and Syria were in violation of basic norms of international law and relevant UN resolutions. Lebanon's failure to assert control in the southern part of the country was due, to a large extent, to the overwhelming degree of control that the Syrian Government exerted over its neighbour.

Responding on 30 July [A/56/226-S/2001/746], Syria said that Israel's letter sought to distract attention from its daily violations of Lebanon's territorial integrity and from the acts of aggression committed by Israeli aircraft against Syrian Arab forces operating in Lebanon. Lebanon had declared that the relevant international covenants gave it the right to take action to free its territory from Israeli occupation. Syria supported Lebanon in seeking the restoration of all of its territory.

On 9 August [A/56/283-S/2001/777], Israel replied that, contrary to Syria's assertions, it was not occupying Lebanese land in the Shab'a farmlands as it had withdrawn its forces from Lebanon in June 2000, as attested by Council resolution 1310(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 470]. Syria's allegations, moreover, had to be viewed within the context of the continued Syrian occupation of Lebanon.

By a 28 August letter to the Security Council President [S/2001/831], Israel noted that on 4 August UNIFIL had evacuated its position at the Abbasiyah checkpoint, which had controlled the northern pathway entering the village of Rajar. The Blue Line cut through Rajar, the northern path being inside Lebanese territory and the southern part inside Israeli territory. Following the evacuation, Hizbullah removed part of the dividing fence and started to construct an outpost at the approach to the village, posing a danger to the security of Israeli soldiers and civilians. Israel called on the United Nations to regain control of the Abbasiyah checkpoint, to establish a new outpost at the northern approach to Rajar and to enable the repair of the northern fence.

Responding on 4 September [S/2001/856], Lebanon said that Israel was attempting to cover up its provocations by land, air and sea, which were combined with a field trip by the Israeli Prime Minister over the whole length of Lebanon's southern border. There had also been a concentration of Israeli troops in that area.

Addressing the situation in the Ghajar/Abbasiyah area in a 5 September letter to the Security Council President [S/2001/848], the Under-Secretary-General for Peacekeeping Operations said that since the Israeli withdrawal from Lebanon, UNIFIL no longer exercised any control over the area of operation and did not maintain checkpoints since the drawing of the Blue Line [YUN 2000, p. 465]. UNIFIL carried out its functions through mobile patrols and observation from fixed positions and through close contacts with the parties to correct violations. The establishment of fixed positions was based on operational considerations and should not be dictated by the parties. In the vicinity of Ghajar, UNIFIL had a position known as 4-28, approximately 1.5 kilometres east of the village. UNIFIL temporarily stored containers about 200 metres away by a gate in the old technical fence on the road leading to the abandoned village of Abbasiyah. At no time did those containers constitute a position or, as asserted by Israel, a checkpoint. The village of Abbasiyah, the road leading to Ghajar and the entire surrounding area were clearly on the Lebanese side of the Blue Line. The United Nations was key to the establishment of the status quo in Ghajar and was endeavouring to maintain it. Initiatives at the political level by the United Nations combined with UNIFIL efforts on the ground, including assertive UNIFIL patrolling by armoured personnel carriers, were able to bring about a decrease in provocative activity resulting in reduced tension. The situation had improved significantly, fostering conditions on the ground that might allow a return to the status quo.

On 10 October [S/2001/957], the League of Arab States (LAS) forwarded to the Council President a resolution entitled "Solidarity with Lebanon", adopted by the LAS Council of Ministers at its one hundred and sixteenth regular session (Cairo, 9-10 September). The Ministers strongly condemned Israel for, among other things, its continued occupation of Lebanese territory, the detention of Lebanese prisoners and the refusal to hand over to the United Nations all the maps indicating the location of mines that Israeli forces had laid in southern Lebanon.

In connection with those allegations, Israel, on 6 December [S/2001/1173], said that when it withdrew forces from Lebanon in 2000, IDF transferred to UNIFIL all information pertaining to the location of minefields in southern Lebanon, including detailed maps. Since then, large quantities of mines and other devices had been laid by terrorist groups in southern Lebanon. It was the responsibility of the Lebanese Government to establish effective control and restore peace in the area.

In a 31 December letter [A/56/761-S/2001/1336], Lebanon informed the Secretary-General that on 24 December Israel had dug a trench on the road east of Ghajar, with the intention of erecting a fence along the town boundary in occupied Syrian territory to the heights above Abbasiyah. The work had been suspended following the intervention of UNIFIL's Commander and units of the Lebanese liaison service.

UNIFIL

The Security Council twice extended the mandate of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon in 2001, in January and July, each time for a six-month period.

UNIFIL, which was established by Council resolution 425(1978) [YUN 1978, p. 312] following Israel's invasion of Lebanon [ibid., p. 296], was originally entrusted with confirming the withdrawal of Israeli forces, restoring international peace and security, and assisting the Lebanese Government in ensuring the return of its effective authority in southern Lebanon. Following a second Israeli invasion of Lebanon in 1982 [YUN 1982, p. 428], the Council, in resolution 511(1982) [ibid., p. 450], authorized the Force to carry out, in addition to its original mandate, the interim task of providing protection and humanitarian assistance to the local population, while maintaining its positions in the area of deployment. With the withdrawal of IDF from Lebanon in June 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 461], UNIFIL's operational role changed significantly. A phased reinforcement was initiated in order for UNIFIL to carry out its tasks related to confirming Israel's withdrawal, which included extending its operations into those territories that had been occupied by IDF [ibid., p. 465]. In 2001, having fulfilled those responsibilities, UNIFIL started a reconfiguration and redeployment phase.

The Force headquarters, based predominantly in Naqoura, provided command and control, as well as liaison with Lebanon and Israel, UNDOF, UNTSO and a number of NGOs.

Composition and deployment

The reconfiguration and redeployment of UNIFIL proceeded as set out in the Secretary-General's April 2001 report (see p. 453). Following the repatriation of the Nepalese battalion and the Polish engineering company at the end of July, the Finnish and Irish battalions were repatriated in October and November, respectively. UNIFIL closed a number of rear positions and moved troops into closer proximity to the Blue Line.

As at 31 December, as a result of the reconfiguration, UNIFIL comprised 3,494 troops from Fiji (458), France (233), Ghana (811), India (819), Italy (52), Poland (483) and Ukraine (638). The Force was assisted in its tasks by 51 military observers of UNTSO. In addition, UNIFIL employed 448 civilian staff, of whom 135 were recruited internationally and 313 locally. On 6 August [S/2001/767], the Security Council took note of the Secretary-General's intention [S/2001/766] to appoint Major General Lalit Mohan Tewari (India) as Force Commander to replace Major General Seth Kofi Obeng (Ghana), who completed his tour of duty on 15 May.

Since the establishment of UNIFIL, 239 members of the Force had lost their lives: 78 as a result of firings or bomb explosions, 101 in accidents and 60 from other causes. A total of 344 were wounded by firing or mine explosions.

Activities

Report of Secretary-General (January). In a report on developments from 18 July 2000 to 18 January 2001 in the UNIFIL area of operations [S/2001/66], the Secretary-General said that the general situation in south Lebanon had remained stable, despite some minor violations of the Blue Line. As far as the reconfiguration of the UN presence in south Lebanon was concerned, of the three parts of its mandate, UNIFIL had essentially completed two. It had confirmed the withdrawal of Israeli forces and assisted the Lebanese authorities as they returned to the area vacated by Israel. The Force functioned in close cooperation with those authorities and no longer exercised any control over the area of operation. However, the Lebanese Government had yet to deploy its personnel down to the Blue Line and UNIFIL could not, of course, compel it to do so. UNIFIL was focusing on the remaining part of its mandate, the restoration of international peace and security. Pending a comprehensive peace, UNIFIL sought to maintain the ceasefire along the Blue Line through patrols and observation from fixed positions and close contact with the parties, with a view to correcting violations and preventing the escalation of incidents.

The Secretary-General observed that UNIFIL's functions had evolved into those of an observer mission. However, in view of the conditions in the region, he was reluctant to entrust the task to unarmed observers alone and therefore recommended instead a combination of armed infantry and unarmed observers, specifically two infantry battalions, a group of UNTSO observers and support. He also viewed a gradual reconfiguration as the most prudent and appropriate approach. As a possible first stage, UNIFIL's force could be brought back to the strength it had before the June 2000 augmentation—about 4,500 all ranks. In the light of the conditions in the area, he recommended that the Force's mandate be extended for another six months, until 31 July 2001.

Communications. By a 5 January letter [S/2001/14] to the Secretary-General, Lebanon requested that UNIFIL's mandate be extended for a further six-month period, especially in the light of Israel's daily violations of Lebanese sovereignty.

Responding on 17 January [S/2001/55], Israel rejected Lebanon's allegations regarding violations of its territory and drew attention to the regular assaults on Israeli soldiers and civilians emanating from Lebanon. Lebanon had not only failed to prevent those acts of aggression; it had encouraged them and failed to deploy its armed forces along the border with Israel.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION (January)

On 30 January [meeting 4267], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1337 (2001). The draft text [S/2001/87] was prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolutions 425(1978) and 426(1978) of 19 March 1978, 501(1982) of 25 February 1982, 508(1982) of 5 June 1982, 509(1982) of 6 June 1982, 520(1982) of 17 September 1982 and 1310(2000) of 27 July 2000, as well as its resolutions and the statements of its President on the situation in Lebanon,

Recalling further its resolution 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000,

Recalling also the Secretary-General's conclusion that, as of 16 June 2000, Israel had withdrawn its forces from Lebanon in accordance with resolution 425(1978) and met the requirements defined in the Secretary-General's report of 22 May 2000,

Emphasizing the interim nature of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon,

Recalling the relevant principles contained in the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel adopted on 9 December 1994,

Responding to the request of the Government of Lebanon as stated in the letter from its Permanent Representative to the United Nations of 5 January 2001 to the Secretary-General,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon of 22 January 2001 and endorses his observations and recommendations;

2. Decides to extend the present mandate of the Force for a further period of six months, until 31 July 2001;

3. Decides to return the military personnel of the Force to the operational level referred to in paragraph 24 of the Secretary-General's report of 22 January 2001 by 31 July, and requests that the Secretary-General take the necessary measures to implement this decision, including taking into account the upcoming rotations of the battalions, in consultation with the Government of Lebanon and the troop-contributing countries;

4. Reiterates its strong support for the territorial integrity, sovereignty and political independence of Lebanon within its internationally recognized boundaries;

5. Calls upon the Government of Lebanon to ensure the return of its effective authority and presence in the south, and in particular to increase the rate of the deployment of the Lebanese armed forces;

6. Welcomes the establishment of checkpoints by the Government of Lebanon in the vacated area, and encourages the Government of Lebanon to ensure a calm environment throughout the south, including through the control of all checkpoints;

7. Calls upon the parties to fulfil the commitments they have given to respect fully the withdrawal line identified by the United Nations, as set out in the Secretary-General's report of 16 June 2000, to exercise utmost restraint and to cooperate fully with the United Nations and with the Force;

8. Condemns all acts of violence, expresses concern about the serious breaches and violations of the withdrawal line, and urges the parties to put an end to them and to respect the safety of personnel of the Force;

9. Commends the Force for having fulfilled its mandate regarding verification of Israeli withdrawal, and supports its continued efforts to maintain the ceasefire along the withdrawal line through patrols and observation from fixed positions and close contacts with the parties, with a view to correcting violations and preventing the escalation of incidents;

10. Welcomes the contribution of the Force to operational demining, encourages further assistance in mine action by the United Nations to the Government of Lebanon in support of both the continued development of its national mine action capacity and emergency demining activities in the south, and calls upon donor countries to support these efforts through financial and in-kind contributions;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to continue consultations with the Government of Lebanon and other parties directly concerned on the implementation of the present resolution and to report to the Security Council thereon;

12. Looks forward to the early fulfilment of the mandate of the Force;

13. Endorses the general approach for reconfiguration of the Force, as outlined in paragraph 23 of the report of the Secretary-General of 22 January 2001, and requests the Secretary-General to submit to the Council a detailed report by 30 April 2001 on the Force's reconfiguration plans and on the tasks that could be carried out by the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization;

14. Decides to review the situation by early May 2001 and to consider any steps it deems appropriate regarding the Force and the Truce Supervision Organization, on the basis of this report;

15. Stresses the importance of, and the need to achieve, a comprehensive, just and lasting peace in the Middle East, based on all its relevant resolutions including its resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967 and 338(1973) of 22 October 1973.

Report of Secretary-General (April). In response to resolution 1337(2001), the Secretary-General submitted to the Security Council on 30 April [S/2001/423] an interim report on the plans for UNIFIL's reconfiguration and on the tasks that could be carried out by UNTSO. He reported that, since the adoption of resolution 1337(2001), serious breaches had occurred relating to the Shab'a farms dispute, with attacks carried out by the paramilitary group Hizbullah against targets inside Israeli territory and retaliatory attacks by IDF against targets in Lebanon. There had also been frequent minor ground violations of the Blue Line and almost daily violations of the Line by Israeli aircraft.

The Secretary-General said that UNIFIL would continue to focus on the Blue Line and the adjacent area. It was envisaged that the area would be divided into two sectors. The bulk of the troops would be deployed in protected positions close to the Blue Line and there would be fewer fixed positions to avoid too many personnel being absorbed by guard and maintenance duties. UNIFIL would be present on the Blue Line primarily through its patrols. Its headquarters would remain at Naqoura and UNIFIL would continue to require full freedom of movement to meet its operational, administrative and logistic requirements. UNTSO's unarmed military observers would be entirely mobile and would no longer maintain static observation posts, which would enable them to undertake daytime patrolling, carry out investigations and perform liaison functions. The strength of the Observer Group Lebanon (51) was deemed sufficient for those tasks. It was envisaged that the demining unit would remain, since mines remained a serious hazard for the Force. The Secretary-General's Personal Representative had been active in generating support for mine clearance and ensuring effective coordination between the Lebanese authorities and UN agencies. Once the reconfiguration was completed, the Force would comprise troops from France (headquarters guard), Ghana (infantry), India (infantry), Italy (helicopters), Poland (logistics) and Ukraine (engineers/demining). Its overall strength would then be close to 2,000 all ranks.

The Secretary-General stated that the Force's reconfiguration would be achieved through the non-replacement or reduction of units on the occasion of their normal rotations. Ireland had already said that it would not replace its contingent at the time of its rotation in October/November. The Finnish contingent would be reduced by 350 troops by the end of July, and the Secretary-General noted that he would not request a replacement for the remaining Finnish troops at the time of their repatriation in October. The departure of those two contingents would bring the Force's strength to about 3,600. The Secretary-General recommended that the Force maintain that level until January 2002 and noted that the reconfiguration could be completed during the following mandate, ending in July 2002.

Communications. By a 9 May letter to the Secretary-General [A/55/934-S/2001/464], Lebanon said that UNIFIL's reconfiguration, as recommended by the Secretary-General in his April report, would create a climate of instability in the area that could undermine the sense of security and safety created by the Mission's presence.

On 18 May [S/2001/500], the Security Council informed the Secretary-General that it endorsed in general the technical reconfiguration approach for UNIFIL.

On 9 July [S/2001/677], Lebanon requested the Council to extend UNIFIL's mandate, which was due to expire on 31 July, for a further period of six months.

Report of Secretary-General (July). In a report on UNIFIL covering 23 January to 20 July [S/2001/714], the Secretary-General said that the situation had been marked by general stability throughout most of the UNIFIL area of operation, with the exception of tensions and serious breaches of the Blue Line connected to the dispute over the Shab'a farms area, including Hizbullah attacks and Israeli retaliations. Israeli aircraft flew deep into Lebanese airspace almost daily; low-level flights that broke the sound barrier over populated areas caused great anxiety to the civilian population. Civil administration in south Lebanon was somewhat strengthened during the reporting period, with local administration and the central authority in Beirut taking a more active role. Communications, health and welfare systems, as well as postal services, made further slow progress towards integration with the rest of the country. The 1,000-strong contingent of the Lebanese Joint Security Force, comprising army and internal security forces, continued to operate in the areas vacated by Israel in 2000, carrying out patrolling and policing of local communities. The Lebanese Government continued to maintain the position that as long as there was no comprehensive peace with Israel, the Lebanese armed forces would not be deployed along the Blue Line. Areas along the Blue Line were monitored by Hizbullah through a network of mobile and fixed positions. In some instances, Hizbullah acted as surrogate for the civil administration by extending social, medical and educational services to the local population. On several occasions, Hizbullah personnel restricted UNIFIL's freedom of movement and interfered with its redeployment.

The focus of UNIFIL operations remained on the Blue Line and the adjacent area. A controversy arose between the Israeli authorities and the United Nations over a UNIFIL videotape, filmed on 8 October 2000, of vehicles that might have been used by Hizbullah in the abduction of three Israeli soldiers [YUN 2000, p. 471]. Israel and Lebanon had been offered the opportunity to view the tape, with the identities of non-UN personnel obscured, on UN premises. The Secretary-General initiated an investigation into the internal handling of the matter. In some villages in the south, tensions developed between local residents and former members of the dismantled South Lebanese Army who had returned home after serving their terms in prison for collaboration with Israel. UNIFIL continued to assist the civilian population in the form of medical care, water projects, equipment or services for schools and orphanages, and supplies of social services to the needy. The clearance of mines and unexploded ordnance in southern Lebanon gained momentum. At a high-level workshop on mine clearance, convened on 21 and 22 May by the Lebanese Government with the participation of the United Nations and NGOs, it was announced that the United Arab Emirates had pledged $50 million for mine clearance in the southern part of Lebanon. A Regional Mine Action Coordination Cell in Tyre, Lebanon, continued to coordinate UN mine-clearing activity, while the United Nations Mine Action Service cooperated closely with the National Demining Office of Lebanon.

The Secretary-General observed that, during his visit to the region in June (see p. 406), he had discussed violations of the Blue Line in the Shab'a farms area with the political leadership in Lebanon and Israel. In the light of conditions prevailing in the area, he recommended that UNIFIL's mandate be extended for another six months, until 31 January 2002.

Communication. In a 26 July letter to the Security Council President [S/2001/734], Lebanon said that the request to the Secretary-General to put forward an idea for the reconfiguration of UNIFIL as merely an observer mission should be abandoned. It regarded that request as incompatible with UNIFIL's original mission, as defined by Council resolutions 425(1978) and 426(1978) [YUN 1978, p. 312].

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION (July)

On 31 July [meeting 4354], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1365(2001). The draft [S/2001/748] was prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling all its previous resolutions on Lebanon, in particular resolutions 425(1978) and 426(1978) of 19 March 1978, 1310(2000) of 27 July 2000 and 1337(2001) of 30 January 2001, as well as the statements of its President on the situation in Lebanon, in particular the statement of 18 June 2000 (S/PRST/2000/21),

Recalling further the letter from its President to the Secretary-General of 18 May 2001,

Recalling also the Secretary-General's conclusion that, as of 16 June 2000, Israel had withdrawn its forces from Lebanon in accordance with resolution 425(1978) and met the requirements defined in the Secretary-General's report of 22 May 2000, as well as the Secretary-General's conclusion that the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon had essentially completed two of the three parts of its mandate, focusing now on the remaining task of restoring international peace and security,

Emphasizing the interim nature of the Force,

Recalling its resolution 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000,

Recalling further the relevant principles contained in the Convention on the Safety of United Nations and Associated Personnel adopted on 9 December 1994,

Responding to the request of the Government of Lebanon, as stated in the letter from its Permanent Representative to the United Nations of 9 July 2001 to the Secretary-General,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon of 20 July 2001, and endorses his observations and recommendations;

2. Decides to extend the present mandate of the Force, as recommended by the Secretary-General, for a further period of six months, until 31 January 2002;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to take the necessary measures to implement the reconfiguration and redeployment of the Force as outlined in his report and in accordance with the letter of the President of the Security Council of 18 May 2001 in the light of developments on the ground and in consultation with the Government of Lebanon and the troop-contributing countries;

4. Reiterates its strong support for the territorial integrity, sovereignty and political independence of Lebanon within its internationally recognized boundaries;

5. Calls upon the Government of Lebanon to take more steps to ensure the return of its effective authority throughout the south, including the deployment of Lebanese armed forces;

6. Calls upon the parties to ensure the Force is accorded full freedom of movement in the discharge of its mandate throughout its area of operation;

7. Encourages the Government of Lebanon to ensure a calm environment throughout the south;

8. Reiterates its call on the parties to continue to fulfil the commitments they have given to respect fully the withdrawal line identified by the United Nations, as set out in the Secretary-General's report of 16 June 2000, to exercise utmost restraint and to cooperate fully with the United Nations and the Force;

9. Condemns all acts of violence, expresses great concern about the serious breaches and the air, sea and land violations of the withdrawal line, and urges the parties to put an end to them and to respect the safety of the personnel of the Force;

10. Supports the continued efforts of the Force to maintain the ceasefire along the withdrawal line through mobile patrols and observation from fixed positions and through close contacts with the parties to correct violations, resolve incidents and prevent the escalation of incidents;

11. Welcomes the continued contribution of the Force to operational demining, encourages further assistance in mine action by the United Nations to the Government of Lebanon in support of both the continued development of its national mine action capacity and emergency demining activities in the south, commends donor countries for supporting these efforts through financial and in-kind contributions, and stresses the necessity to provide the Government of Lebanon and the Force with any additional maps and records on the location of mines;

12. Requests the Secretary-General to continue consultations with the Government of Lebanon and other parties directly concerned on the implementation of the present resolution;

13. Looks forward to the early fulfilment of the mandate of the Force;

14. Requests the Secretary-General, following appropriate consultations, including with the Government of Lebanon and the troop-contributing countries, to submit to the Council before the end of the present mandate a comprehensive report on the activities of the Force, taking into account its possible reconfiguration to an observer mission in the light of developments on the ground and on the tasks carried out by the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization;

15. Stresses the importance of, and the need to achieve, a comprehensive, just and lasting peace in the Middle East, based on all its relevant resolutions including its resolution 242(1967) of 22 November 1967 and 338(1973) of 22 October 1973.

Further developments. In a report on developments during the second half of 2001 [S/2002/55], the Secretary-General said that the general situation in south Lebanon continued to be stable, with the exception of tensions and breaches of the Blue Line in the Shab'a farms area. There was a decrease in the number of ground violations of the Line, but Israeli air violations continued on an almost daily basis. Local administration in the south was further strengthened, linked in large part to the successful municipal elections held in southern Lebanon in early September, which were marked by high voter turnout. As the Lebanese Government continued to refuse to deploy its troops along the Blue Line, Hizbullah increased its visible presence through its network of mobile and fixed positions. The United Nations facilitated international mine-action assistance to Lebanon under the supervision of the Secretary-General's Personal Representative and in collaboration with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). Concern over the number of mines and unexploded ordnance in southern Lebanon took on a new dimension in December when IDF turned over to UNIFIL a substantial amount of information on the presence of additional minefields in the area, most within a short distance of the Blue Line. Progress was achieved in discussions between the United Nations and Israel on issues connected to UNIFIL's videotapes of events related to the abduction by Hizbullah of three Israeli soldiers in October 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 471]. UNDP continued to lead the efforts of the UN system in working with the Lebanese authorities for the development and rehabilitation of the south.

Financing

Reports of Secretary-General and ACABQ (February and April). On 1 February, the Secretary-General submitted the financial performance report of UNIFIL for the period 1 July 1999 to 30 June 2000 [A/55/757]. Expenditures for the period totalled $149,475,700 gross ($146,146,100 net), excluding budgeted voluntary contributions in kind of $135,000, resulting in an overrun of $571,000 gross ($1,270,800 net) against the amount of $148,904,683 gross ($144,875,283 net) appropriated by the General Assembly in resolution 53/227 [YUN 1999, p. 448].

On 20 February [A/55/482/Add.1], the Secretary-General submitted the revised budget for UNIFIL for the period 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001 in the amount of $207,154,194 gross ($201,981,841 net), exclusive of budgeted voluntary contributions in kind amounting to $180,000. The amount represented a $26,437,900 reduction as compared to the approved gross budget allocated in 2000 by Assembly resolutions 54/267 [YUN 2000, p. 472] and 55/180 A [ibid., p. 474]. The revised budget was based on the fact that the budgeted deployment of two battalions, as envisaged by Assembly resolution 55/180 A, did not take place, and that the Security Council, in resolution 1337(2001) (see p. 452), had called for the reduction of UNIFIL to its previous strength, before its augmentation to some 4,500 troops in 2000.

The comments and recommendations of ACABQ were contained in a 4 April report [A/55/885] on UNIFIL's financial performance for the period from 1 July 1999 to 30 June 2000, and in a 6 April report [A/55/874] on the financing of UN peacekeeping operations.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION (June)

On 14 June [meeting 103], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee [A/55/681/Add.1], adopted resolution 55/180 B by recorded vote (115-3) [agenda item 138 (b)].

Financing of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon and the related reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Bearing in mind Security Council resolution 425 (1978) of 19 March 1978, by which the Council established the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force, the latest of which was resolution 1337(2001) of 30 January 2001,

Recalling its resolutions S-8/2 of 21 April 1978 on the financing of the Force and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 55/180 A of 19 December 2000,

Reaffirming its resolutions 51/233 of 13 June 1997, 52/237 of 26 June 1998, 53/227 of 8 June 1999, 54/267 of 15 June 2000 and 55/180 A,

Reaffirming also the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in General Assembly resolutions 1874 (S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Force,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Force with the necessary financial resources to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Concerned that the Secretary-General continues to face difficulties in meeting the obligations of the Force on a current basis, including reimbursement to current and former troop-contributing States,

Concerned also that the surplus balances in the Special Account for the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon have been used to meet expenses of the Force in order to compensate for the lack of income resulting from non-payment and late payment by Member States of their contributions,

1. Reaffirms its resolution 49/233 A of 23 December 1994, in particular those paragraphs regarding the peacekeeping budgetary cycles, which should be adhered to in the future budgetary process, where possible;

2. Expresses its deep concern that Israel did not comply with its resolutions 51/233, 52/237, 53/227, 54/267 and 55/180 A;

3. Stresses once again that Israel should strictly abide by its resolutions 51/233, 52/237, 53/227, 54/267 and 55/180 A;

4. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon as at 30 April 2001, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 124.5 million United States dollars, representing 3.9 per cent of the total assessed contributions from the inception of the Force to the period ending 31 January 2001, notes that some 20 per cent of the Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States concerned, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

5. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full;

6. Expresses concern about the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

7. Urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Force in full and on time;

8. Expresses concern at the delay experienced by the Secretary-General in deploying and providing adequate resources to some recent peacekeeping missions, in particular those in Africa;

9. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

10. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

11. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to make the fullest possible use of facilities and equipment at the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, in order to minimize the costs of procurement for the Force;

12. Endorses the conclusions and recommendations contained in the reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure full implementation;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to take all necessary action to ensure that the Force is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

14. Also requests the Secretary-General, in order to reduce the cost of employing General Service staff, to continue efforts to recruit local staff for the Force against General Service posts, commensurate with the requirements of the Force;

15. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to take the necessary measures to ensure the full implementation of paragraph 8 of General Assembly resolution 51/233, paragraph 5 of its resolution 52/237, paragraph 11 of its resolution 53/227, paragraph 14 of its resolution 54/267 and paragraph 14 of its resolution 55/180 A, stresses once again that Israel shall pay the amount of 1,284,633 dollars resulting from the incident at Qana on 18 April 1996, and requests the

Secretary-General to report on this matter to the Assembly during the main part of its fifty-sixth session;

16. Decides to reduce the appropriation provided by the General Assembly in its resolutions 54/267 and 55/180 A from the amount of 233,592,094 dollars gross (228,191,141 dollars net), inclusive of the amount of 6,967,059 dollars gross (5,895,590 dollars net) for the support account for peacekeeping operations and the amount of 1,089,216 dollars gross (969,161 dollars net) for the United Nations Logistics Base for the maintenance and expansion of the Force for the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 June 2001, to the amount of 207,154,194 dollars gross (201,981,841 dollars net), inclusive of the amount of 6,967,059 dollars gross (5,895,590 dollars net) for the support account and the amount of 1,089,216 dollars gross (969,161 dollars net) for the Logistics Base;

17. Decides also to reduce the apportionment provided by the General Assembly in its resolutions 54/267 and 55/180 A for the period from 1 February to 30 June 2001 from the amount of 97,330,038 dollars gross (95,079,645 dollars net) to the amount of 70,892,138 dollars gross (68,870,345 dollars net), taking into account the amount of 194,660,080 dollars gross (190,159,283 dollars net) already apportioned for the period from 1 July 2000 to 30 April 2001;

18. Decides further that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 17 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated reduced staff assessment income of 2,021,793 dollars approved for the Force for the period from 1 February to 30 June 2001;

19. Authorizes the Secretary-General to enter into commitments in the amount of 99,548,960 dollars gross (97,558,500 dollars net) for the maintenance of the Force for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2001, and decides to appropriate the amount of 6,021,721 dollars gross (5,284,652 dollars net) for the support account and the amount of 629,045 dollars gross (564,879 dollars net) for the United Nations Logistics Base, representing the prorated share of the Force in the support account and Logistics Base requirements for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002;

20. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 16,591,493 dollars gross (16,259,750 dollars net) for the period from 1 to 31 July 2001 in accordance with the levels set out in its resolution 55/235, as adjusted by the General Assembly in its resolution 55/236 of 23 December 2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2001, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B of 23 December 2000;

21. Decides also that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 20 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 331,743 dollars approved for the Force for the period from 1 to 31 July 2001;

22. Decides further to apportion among Member States the amount of 82,957,467 dollars gross (81,298,750 dollars net) for the period from 1 August to 31 December 2001, at a monthly rate of 16,591,493 dollars gross (16,259,750 dollars net) in accordance with paragraph 20 above, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2001, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B, subject to the decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Force beyond 31 July 2001;

23. Decides that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 22 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 1,658,717 dollars approved for the Force for the period from 1 August to 31 December 2001;

24. Decides also to apportion among Member States the amount of 6,021,721 dollars gross (5,284,652 dollars net) for the support account and the amount of 629,045 dollars gross (564,879 dollars net) for the United Nations Logistics Base for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 in accordance with paragraph 20 above, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the years 2001 and 2002, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B, the scale of assessments for the year 2001 to be applied against a portion thereof, that is, 3,010,861 dollars gross (2,642,326 dollars net) for the support account and 314,523 dollars gross (282,440 dollars net) for the Logistics Base for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2001, and the scale of assessments for the year 2002 to be applied against the balance, that is, 3,010,860 dollars gross (2,642,326 dollars net) for the support account and 314,522 dollars gross (282,439 dollars net) for the Logistics Base for the period from 1 January to 30 June 2002;

25. Decides further that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 24 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 737,069 dollars for the support account and 64,166 dollars for the United Nations Logistics Base approved for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002, 368,535 dollars for the support account and 32,083 dollars for the Logistics Base being amounts pertaining to the period from 1 July to 31 December 2001 and the balance, that is, 368,534 dollars, for the support account and 32,083 dollars for the Logistics Base pertaining to the period from 1 January to 30 June 2002;

26. Decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, there shall be set off against the apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 20 above, their respective share of the remaining balance of 186,252 dollars in the reserve account for third-party liability insurance of helicopters for the Force, in accordance with the composition of groups set out in paragraphs 3 and 4 of General Assembly resolution 43/232 of 1 March 1989, as adjusted by the Assembly in subsequent relevant resolutions and decisions, for the ad hoc apportionment of peacekeeping appropriations, the latest of which were its resolution 52/230 of 31 March 1998 and its decisions 54/456 to 54/458 of 23 December 1999 for the period 1998-2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2000, as set out in its resolutions 52/215 A of 22 December 1997 and 54/237 A of 23 December 1999;

27. Decides also that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, their share of the remaining balance of 186,252 dollars in the reserve account for third-party liability insurance of helicopters for the Force shall be set off against their outstanding obligations in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 26 above;

28. Takes note of additional requirements in the amount of 571,000 dollars gross (1,270,800 dollars net) for the operation of the Force for the period ending 30 June 2000, and authorizes the Secretary-General to utilize credits in an equal amount arising from the cancellation of obligations pertaining to the same period to meet the additional requirements;

29. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

30. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel under the auspices of the United Nations participating in the Force;

31. Invites voluntary contributions to the Force in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

32. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-sixth session, under the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations peacekeeping forces in the Middle East", the sub-item entitled "United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 55/180 B:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malaysia, Maldives, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Myanmar, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Romania, Russian Federation, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Tonga, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, United States.

The Assembly and the Committee each had adopted the fourth preambular paragraph and operative paragraphs 2, 3 and 15 by a single recorded vote of, respectively, 70 to 3, with 42 abstentions, and 69 to 2, with 40 abstentions.

Speaking after the vote in the Assembly, Israel said that it had voted against the text because of the reference to the April 1996 incident in Qana, Lebanon [YUN 1996, p. 429]. There was no precedent whatsoever for a particular Member State bearing sole financial responsibility for damage sustained by UN forces during peacekeeping operations. Such damages should be absorbed by the general budget for peacekeeping operations, in accordance with the principle of collective responsibility. Israel was also concerned about the political manipulation of the Fifth Committee and called on Member States to drop the annual four paragraphs regarding Qana that were dictated by Lebanon.

Speaking in exercise of the right of reply, Lebanon said that all additional paragraphs to the resolution called for by the Group of 77 developing countries were purely financial and administrative in nature and contained no political wording whatsoever. Israel should not leap into political discourse, but should implement the Assembly's resolutions calling on it to pay compensation for the damages it caused in 1996 to the compound of the international forces in Qana. The Group of 77 was calling for reparations and compensation for the United Nations, not for Lebanon.

Reports of Secretary-General and ACABQ (October). By a 3 October report [A/56/431 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General submitted the budget of UNIFIL for the period 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 in the amount of $136,816,100 gross ($132,983,100 net), inclusive of budgeted voluntary contributions in kind amounting to $201,200.

The comments and recommendations of ACABQ were contained in a 29 October report [A/56/510 & Corr.1].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION (December)

On 21 December [meeting 91], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/56/722], adopted resolution 56/214 by recorded vote (123-2-2) [agenda item 134 (b)].

Financing of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 and the related report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Bearing in mind Security Council resolution 425 (1978) of 19 March 1978, by which the Council established the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force, the most recent of which was resolution 1365(2001) of 31 July 2001,

Recalling its resolution S-8/2 of 21 April 1978 on the financing of the Force and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the most recent of which was resolution 55/180 B of 14 June 2001,

Reaffirming its resolutions 51/233 of 13 June 1997, 52/237 of 26 June 1998, 53/227 of 8 June 1999, 54/267 of 15 June 2000, 55/180 A of 19 December 2000 and 55/180 B,

Reaffirming also the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in General Assembly resolutions 1874 (S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the Force,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Force with the necessary financial resources to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Concerned that the Secretary-General continues to face difficulties in meeting the obligations of the Force on a current basis, including reimbursement to current and former troop-contributing States,

Concerned also that the surplus balances in the Special Account for the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon have been used to meet expenses of the Force in order to compensate for the lack of income resulting from non-payment and late payment by Member States of their contributions,

1. Takes note of the status of contributions to the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon as at 15 November 2001, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 179.4 million United States dollars, representing 4 per cent of the total assessed contributions from the inception of the Force up to the period ending 31 December 2001, notes that some 15.5 per cent of the Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States concerned, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

2. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States that have paid their assessed contributions in full and on time, and urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Force in full and on time;

3. Expresses its deep concern that Israel did not comply with General Assembly resolutions 51/233, 52/237, 53/227, 54/267, 55/180 A and 55/180 B;

4. Stresses once again that Israel should strictly abide by General Assembly resolutions 51/233, 52/237, 53/227, 54/267, 55/180 A and 55/180 B;

5. Expresses concern about the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

6. Also expresses concern at the delay experienced by the Secretary-General in deploying and providing adequate resources to some recent peacekeeping missions, in particular those in Africa;

7. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

8. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

9. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to make the fullest possible use of facilities and equipment at the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, in order to minimize the costs of procurement for the Force;

10. Takes note of paragraph 11 of, and endorses the remaining conclusions and recommendations contained in, the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure full implementation;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to take all necessary action to ensure that the Force is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

12. Also requests the Secretary-General, in order to reduce the cost of employing General Service staff, to continue efforts to recruit local staff for the Force against General Service posts, commensurate with the requirements of the Force;

13. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to take the necessary measures to ensure the full implementation of paragraph 8 of its resolution 51/233, paragraph 5 of its resolution 52/237, paragraph 11 of its resolution 53/227, paragraph 14 of its resolution 54/267, paragraph 14 of its resolution 55/180 A and paragraph 15 of its resolution 55/180 B, stresses once again that Israel shall pay the amount of 1,284,633 dollars resulting from the incident at Qana on 18 April 1996, and requests the Secretary-General to report on this matter to the Assembly at its resumed fifty-sixth session;

14. Decides to appropriate the amount of 137,257,440 dollars gross (133,375,991 dollars net) for the maintenance of the Force for the twelve-month period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002, inclusive of the amount of 642,540 dollars gross (594,091 dollars net) for the support account for peacekeeping operations, in addition to the amount of 6,021,721 dollars gross (5,284,652 dollars net) already appropriated for the support account for peacekeeping operations and the amount of 629,045 dollars gross (564,879 dollars net) already appropriated for the United Nations Logistics Base in its resolution 55/180 B, and inclusive of the amount of 99,548,960 dollars gross (97,558,500 dollars net) authorized in its resolution 55/180 B;

15. Decides also, taking into account the amount of 99,548,960 dollars gross (97,558,500 dollars net) already apportioned for the period from 1 July to 31 December 2001 and the amount of 6,650,766 dollars gross (5,849,531 dollars net) already apportioned for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 55/180 B, to apportion among Member States the amount of 6,820,197 dollars gross (6,464,658 dollars net) for the period from 1 to 31 January 2002 in accordance with the levels set out in its resolution 55/235, as adjusted in its resolution 55/236 of 23 December 2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2002, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B of 23 December 2000;

16. Decides further that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 15 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated additional staff assessment income of 355,539 dollars approved for the Force for the period from 1 to 31 January 2002;

17. Decides to apportion among Member States the amount of 30,888,283 dollars gross (29,352,833 dollars net) for the period from 1 February to 30 June 2002, at a monthly rate of 6,177,656 dollars gross (5,870,566 dollars net) in accordance with the scheme set out in the present resolution and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2002, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B, subject to the decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Force beyond 31 January 2002;

18. Decides also that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X), there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 17 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated additional staff assessment income of 1,535,450 dollars net approved for the Force for the period from 1 February to 30 June 2002;

19. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

20. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel under the auspices of the United Nations participating in the Force;

21. Invites voluntary contributions to the Force in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

22. Decides to keep under review during its fifty-sixth session, under the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations peacekeeping forces in the Middle East", the sub-item entitled "United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon".

Against: Israel, United States.

Abstaining: Papua New Guinea, Tuvalu.

The Assembly and the Committee each had adopted the fourth preambular paragraph and operative paragraphs 3, 4 and 13 by a single recorded vote of, respectively, 68 to 2, with 54 abstentions, and 69 to 2, with 40 abstentions.

Speaking before the vote in the Assembly, Israel said that the draft resolution violated the principle of collective responsibility, which dictated that costs resulting from peacekeeping operations were to be shared equally among Member States.

Speaking after the vote, Lebanon said that the principle of collective responsibility did not contradict the principle of international responsibility, by which any State that caused damage or harm to another State or to an international organization had to pay reparations.

On 24 December, the Assembly decided that the item on financing of the UN peacekeeping forces in the Middle East would remain for consideration at the resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session (decision 56/464) and that the Fifth Committee would continue consideration of UNIFIL's financing at that session (decision 56/458).

Syrian Arab Republic

In 2001, the General Assembly again called for Israel's withdrawal from the Golan Heights in the Syrian Arab Republic, which it had occupied since 1967. The area was effectively annexed by Israel when it extended its laws, jurisdiction and administration to the territory towards the end of 1981 [YUN 1981, p. 309].

Israeli policies and measures affecting the human rights of the population in the Golan Heights and other occupied territories were monitored by the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories (Committee on Israeli Practices) and were the subject of resolutions adopted by the Commission on Human Rights (see PART TWO, Chapter III) and the Assembly.

Committee on Israeli Practices. In its annual report [A/56/491], the Committee on Israeli Practices stated that it had visited Damascus and Quneitra province, which bordered the occupied area, where it received information from persons with personal knowledge of the occupied Syrian Arab Golan. Although the area did not experience the confrontations and violence that Gaza, the West Bank and East Jerusalem had witnessed during 2001, the economic and social conditions of the Arab population did not improve and the human rights situation continued to deteriorate. The problems of preserving the national identity of the Arab population, the expansion and increase in Israeli settlements and the privileged position of the settlers, economic hardships and the personal tragedies that afflicted families divided because of the occupation continued undiminished throughout the year.

Communications. On 18 May [A/56/79], Israel informed the Secretary-General of anti-Semitic statements made by the President of the Syrian Arab Republic, Bashar Al-Assad, at a welcoming ceremony in Damascus for Pope John Paul II and by senior Syrian officials on other occasions. Those allegations were denied by Syria on 14 June [A/56/94].

In a 29 May letter to the Secretary-General [A/55/957-S/2001/527], Syria stated that, on 2 May, two Israeli artillery shells had impacted south of Sayda village in Syrian territory.

On 16 July [A/56/185-S/2001/699], Syria informed the Secretary-General that Prime Minister Sharon, in a 10 July speech, had stated that increasing the Jewish population and bringing new residents into the Golan would transform settlement in that area into an irreversible reality.

Reports of Secretary-General. On 25 July [A/56/219], the Secretary-General reported that no reply had been received from Israel to his May request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement General Assembly resolution 55/134 [YUN 2000, p. 478], which called on Israel to desist from changing the physical character, demographic composition, institutional structure and legal status of the Golan, and from its repressive measures against the population.

By a 17 October report [A/56/480], the Secretary-General transmitted replies received from five Member States, including Israel, in response to his request for information on steps taken or envisaged to implement Assembly resolution 55/51 [YUN 2000, p. 477], which dealt with Israeli policies in the Syrian territory occupied since 1967, and resolution 55/50 [ibid., p. 429], on the transfer by some States of their diplomatic missions to Jerusalem (see p. 418).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 3 December [meeting 72], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/32 [draft: A/56/L.24 & Add.1] by recorded vote (90-5-54) [agenda item 42].

The Syrian Golan

The General Assembly,

Having considered the item entitled "The situation in the Middle East",

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General,

Recalling Security Council resolution 497(1981) of 17 December 1981,

Reaffirming the fundamental principle of the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by force, in accordance with international law and the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming once more the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the occupied Syrian Golan,

Deeply concerned that Israel has not withdrawn from the Syrian Golan, which has been under occupation since 1967, contrary to the relevant Security Council and General Assembly resolutions,

Stressing the illegality of the Israeli settlement construction and activities in the occupied Syrian Golan since 1967,

Noting with satisfaction the convening in Madrid on 30 October 1991 of the Peace Conference on the Middle East, on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967, 338(1973) of 22 October 1973 and 425(1978) of 19 March 1978 and the formula of land for peace,

Expressing grave concern over the halt in the peace process on the Syrian track, and expressing the hope that peace talks will soon resume from the point they had reached,

1. Declares that Israel has failed so far to comply with Security Council resolution 497(1981);

2. Also declares that the Israeli decision of 14 December 1981 to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the occupied Syrian Golan is null and void and has no validity whatsoever, as confirmed by the Security Council in its resolution 497(1981), and calls upon Israel to rescind it;

3. Reaffirms its determination that all relevant provisions of the Regulations annexed to the Hague Convention of 1907, and the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, continue to apply to the Syrian territory occupied by Israel since 1967, and calls upon the parties thereto to respect and ensure respect for their obligations under those instruments in all circumstances;

4. Determines once more that the continued occupation of the Syrian Golan and its de facto annexation constitute a stumbling block in the way of achieving a just, comprehensive and lasting peace in the region;

5. Calls upon Israel to resume the talks on the Syrian and Lebanese tracks and to respect the commitments and undertakings reached during the previous talks;

6. Demands once more that Israel withdraw from all the occupied Syrian Golan to the line of 4 June 1967 in implementation of the relevant Security Council resolutions;

7. Calls upon all the parties concerned, the co-sponsors of the peace process and the entire international community to exert all the necessary efforts to ensure the resumption of the peace process and its success by implementing Security Council resolutions 242(1967) and 338(1973);

8. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/32:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Argentina, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Bolivia, Botswana, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cape Verde, Chad, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Cuba, Cyprus, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Ghana, Guyana, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Tuvalu, United States.

Abstaining: Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Benin, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Haiti, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Monaco, Nauru, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Paraguay, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Romania, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Tonga, Ukraine, United Kingdom, Uruguay, Vanuatu, Yugoslavia.

On 10 December [meeting 82], the Assembly, under the agenda item on the report of the Committee on Israeli Practices and on the Fourth Committee's recommendation [A/56/550], adopted resolution 56/63 by recorded vote (147-2-3) [agenda item 88].

The occupied Syrian Golan

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Special Committee to Investigate Israeli Practices Affecting the Human Rights of the Palestinian People and Other Arabs of the Occupied Territories,

Deeply concerned that the Syrian Golan, occupied since 1967, has been under continued Israeli military occupation,

Recalling Security Council resolution 497(1981) of 17 December 1981,

Recalling also its previous relevant resolutions, the last of which was resolution 55/134 of 8 December 2000,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General submitted in pursuance of resolution 55/134,

Recalling its previous relevant resolutions in which, inter alia, it called upon Israel to put an end to its occupation of the Arab territories,

Reaffirming once more the illegality of the decision of 14 December 1981 taken by Israel to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the occupied Syrian Golan, which has resulted in the effective annexation of that territory,

Reaffirming that the acquisition of territory by force is inadmissible under international law, including the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming also the applicability of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, to the occupied Syrian Golan,

Bearing in mind Security Council resolution 237 (1967) of 14 June 1967,

Welcoming the convening in Madrid of the Peace Conference on the Middle East on the basis of Security Council resolutions 242(1967) of 22 November 1967 and 338(1973) of 22 October 1973 aimed at the realization of a just, comprehensive and lasting peace, and expressing grave concern about the stalling of the peace process on all tracks,

1. Calls upon Israel, the occupying Power, to comply with the relevant resolutions on the occupied Syrian Golan, in particular Security Council resolution 497(1981), in which the Council, inter alia, decided that the Israeli decision to impose its laws, jurisdiction and administration on the occupied Syrian Golan was null and void and without international legal effect, and demanded that Israel, the occupying Power, rescind forthwith its decision;

2. Also calls upon Israel to desist from changing the physical character, demographic composition, institutional structure and legal status of the occupied Syrian Golan and in particular to desist from the establishment of settlements;

3. Determines that all legislative and administrative measures and actions taken or to be taken by Israel, the occupying Power, that purport to alter the character and legal status of the occupied Syrian Golan are null and void, constitute a flagrant violation of international law and of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949, and have no legal effect;

4. Calls upon Israel to desist from imposing Israeli citizenship and Israeli identity cards on the Syrian citizens in the occupied Syrian Golan and from taking repressive measures against the population of the occupied Syrian Golan;

5. Deplores the violations by Israel of the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War, of 12 August 1949;

6. Calls once again upon Member States not to recognize any of the legislative or administrative measures and actions referred to above;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/63:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands.

Abstaining: Micronesia, Nicaragua, United States.

UNDOF

The mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force, established by Security Council resolution 350(1974) [YUN 1974, p. 205] to supervise the observance of the ceasefire between Israel and the Syrian Arab Republic in the Golan Heights area and ensure the separation of their forces, was renewed twice in 2001, in May and November, each time for a six-month period.

UNDOF maintained an area of separation, which was some 80 kilometres long and varied in width between approximately 10 kilometres in the centre to less than 1 kilometre in the extreme south. The area of separation was inhabited and policed by the Syrian authorities, and no military forces other than UNDOF were permitted within it.

Composition and deployment

As at 15 November, UNDOF comprised 1,056 troops from Austria (372), Canada (188), Japan (45), Poland (356) and Slovakia (95). It was assisted by 78 UNTSO military observers. Major General Bo Wrangler (Sweden) continued as Force Commander. The Force was entirely deployed within and close to the area of separation, with two base camps, 44 permanently manned positions and 11 observation posts. UNDOF's headquarters was located at Camp Faouar and an office was maintained in Damascus.

The Austrian battalion, which included a Slovak company, was deployed in the northern part of the area of separation, and the Polish battalion was deployed in the southern part. Both battalions conducted mine-clearing operations. The Canadian and Japanese logistic units, based in Camp Ziouani, with a detachment in Camp Faouar, performed second-line general transport, control and management of goods received by the Force and maintained heavy equipment.

Activities

UNDOF continued in 2001 to supervise the area of separation between Israeli and Syrian troops in the Golan Heights, to ensure that no military forces of either party were deployed there, by means of fixed positions and patrols. The Force, accompanied by liaison officers from the party concerned, carried out fortnightly inspections of equipment and force levels in the areas of limitation. As in the past, both sides denied inspection teams access to some of their positions and imposed some restrictions on the Force's freedom of movement. Israel, however, allowed inspections to resume in the Shab'a farms area (Area 6) in the second half of the year (see below).

UNDOF assisted the International Committee of the Red Cross with facilities for mail and the passage of persons through the area of separation. Within the means available, medical treatment was provided to the local population on request.

Reports of Secretary-General. The Secretary-General reported to the Security Council on UNDOF activities between 22 November 2000 and 18 May 2001 [S/2001/499] and between 19 May and 15 November 2001 [S/2001/1079]. Both reports noted that UNDOF continued to perform its functions effectively, with the cooperation of the parties. In general, the ceasefire in the Israel-Syria sector was maintained without serious incident and the UNDOF area of operation remained calm, except in the Shab'a farms area. Mines, especially in the area of separation, continued to pose a threat to UNDOF personnel and local inhabitants. Through the Minefield Security Programme, numerous known as well as previously unidentified minefields in the area of separation were marked.

UNDOF undertook a comprehensive review of its facilities, support structure and deployment and initiated a modernization programme to increase its monitoring and observation effectiveness. Key components of that programme were the full integration of the military and civilian administrative and logistics components of the Force, replacement of outdated facilities, consolidation of some positions in the area of separation and mobility enhancement.

The Secretary-General observed that the situation in the Israel-Syria sector remained generally quiet. However, the situation in the Middle East continued to be potentially dangerous and was likely to remain so unless and until a comprehensive settlement covering all aspects of the Middle East problem could be reached. He hoped that determined efforts would be made by all concerned to tackle the problem in all its aspects, with a view to arriving at a just and durable peace settlement, as called for by Council resolution 338(1973) [YUN 1973, p. 213]. Stating that he considered the Force's continued presence in the area to be essential, the Secretary-General, with the agreement of both Israel and Syria, recommended that UNDOF's mandate be extended for a further six months, until 30 November 2001 in the first instance and 31 May 2002 in the second.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 30 May [meeting 4322], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1351(2001). The draft [S/2001/523] was prepared in consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force of 18 May 2001, and also reaffirming its resolution 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000,

1. Calls upon the parties concerned to implement immediately its resolution 338(1973) of 22 October 1973;

2. Decides to renew the mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force for another period of six months, that is, until 30 November 2001;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to submit, at the end of this period, a report on the developments in the situation and the measures taken to implement resolution 338(1973).

On 27 November [meeting 4428], the Council unanimously adopted resolution 1381(2001). The draft [S/2001/1110] was prepared during consultations.

The Security Council,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force of 15 November 2001, and also reaffirming its resolution 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000,

1. Calls upon the parties concerned to implement immediately its resolution 338(1973) of 22 October 1973;

2. Decides to renew the mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force for another period of six months, that is, until 31 May 2002;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to submit, at the end of this period, a report on the developments in the situation and the measures taken to implement resolution 338(1973).

After the adoption of each resolution, the President made statements S/PRST/2001/15 [meeting 4322] and S/PRST/2001/37 [meeting 4428] on behalf of the Council:

In connection with the resolution just adopted on the renewal of the mandate of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force, I have been authorized to make the following complementary statement on behalf of the Security Council:

As is known, the report of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force states, in paragraph 11 [12 in the November report]: "... the situation in the Middle East continues to be potentially dangerous and is likely to remain so unless and until a comprehensive settlement covering all aspects of the Middle East problem can be reached". That statement of the Secretary-General reflects the view of the Security Council.

Financing

Reports of Secretary-General and ACABQ.

On 26 January, the Secretary-General presented a report on UNDOF's financial performance for the period 1 July 1999 to 30 June 2000 [A/55/747]. Expenditures totalled $35,026,400 gross ($34,320,700 net), resulting in an unencumbered balance of $324,900 gross ($297,700 net). On 9 February, he submitted UNDOF's proposed budget for the period 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002 [A/55/778] totalling $34,536,300 gross ($33,778,900 net), which reflected a 1.2 per cent decrease in gross terms compared with the resources approved for the preceding 12 months.

ACABQ's comments and recommendations on the two reports were contained in an April report to the Assembly [A/55/874/Add.1].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 14 June [meeting 103], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fifth Committee [A/55/975], adopted resolution 55/264 without vote [agenda item 138 (a)].

Financing of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force

The General Assembly,

Having considered the reports of the Secretary-General on the financing of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force and the related reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

Recalling Security Council resolution 350(1974) of 31 May 1974, by which the Council established the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force, and the subsequent resolutions by which the Council extended the mandate of the Force, the latest of which was resolution 1351(2001) of 30 May 2001,

Recalling also its resolution 3211 B (XXIX) of 29 November 1974 on the financing of the United Nations Emergency Force and of the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force, and its subsequent resolutions thereon, the latest of which was resolution 54/266 of 15 June 2000,

Reaffirming the general principles underlying the financing of United Nations peacekeeping operations, as stated in General Assembly resolutions 1874(S-IV) of 27 June 1963, 3101(XXVIII) of 11 December 1973 and 55/235 of 23 December 2000,

Noting with appreciation that voluntary contributions have been made to the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force,

Mindful of the fact that it is essential to provide the Force with the necessary financial resources to enable it to fulfil its responsibilities under the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Concerned that the surplus balances in the Special Account for the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force have been used to meet expenses of the Force in order to compensate for the lack of income resulting from non-payment and late payment by Member States of their contributions,

Bearing in mind the reported hardships incurred by the local staff upon relocation of the headquarters of the Force from Damascus to Camp Faouar, and welcoming the efforts made to address them,

1. Notes that some of the concerns regarding the improvement of the working conditions of the local staff in the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force have been addressed;

2. Reaffirms its request to the Secretary-General to continue the process of improving the working conditions of the local staff, including by making allowance for difficulties resulting from the relocation of the headquarters of the Force from Damascus to Camp Faouar, through mutual and fruitful dialogue;

3. Notes that paragraph 2 of its resolution 54/266 was not fully implemented, in particular with regard to making allowance for the difficulties mentioned in that paragraph, and in this regard requests the Secretary-General to take concrete measures to ensure the full implementation of the matter and to report thereon to the General Assembly during the first part of its resumed fifty-sixth session;

4. Takes note of the status of contributions to the Force as at 30 April 2001, including the contributions outstanding in the amount of 22.8 million United States dollars, representing some 1.4 per cent of the total assessed contributions from the inception of the Force to the period ending 31 May 2001, notes that some 19 per cent of the Member States have paid their assessed contributions in full, and urges all other Member States concerned, in particular those in arrears, to ensure payment of their outstanding assessed contributions;

5. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States which have paid their assessed contributions in full;

6. Expresses concern about the financial situation with regard to peacekeeping activities, in particular as regards the reimbursements to troop contributors that bear additional burdens owing to overdue payments by Member States of their assessments;

7. Urges all other Member States to make every possible effort to ensure payment of their assessed contributions to the Force in full and on time;

8. Expresses concern at the delay experienced by the Secretary-General in deploying and providing adequate resources to some recent peacekeeping missions, in particular those in Africa;

9. Emphasizes that all future and existing peacekeeping missions shall be given equal and non-discriminatory treatment in respect of financial and administrative arrangements;

10. Also emphasizes that all peacekeeping missions shall be provided with adequate resources for the effective and efficient discharge of their respective mandates;

11. Reiterates its request to the Secretary-General to make the fullest possible use of facilities and equipment at the United Nations Logistics Base at Brindisi, Italy, in order to minimize the costs of procurement for the Force;

12. Endorses the recommendations contained in paragraphs 8 and 26 of the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure their full implementation;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to take all necessary action to ensure that the Force is administered with a maximum of efficiency and economy;

14. Also requests the Secretary-General, in order to reduce the cost of employing General Service staff, to continue efforts to recruit local staff for the Force against General Service posts, commensurate with the requirements of the Force;

15. Decides to appropriate to the Special Account for the United Nations Disengagement Observer Force the amount of 35,689,968 dollars gross (34,793,582 dollars net) for the maintenance of the Force for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002, inclusive of the amount of 1,044,551 dollars gross (916,696 dollars net) for the support account for peacekeeping operations and the amount of 109,117 dollars gross (97,986 dollars net) for the United Nations Logistics Base;

16. Decides also to apportion among Member States the amount of 35,689,968 dollars gross (34,793,582 dollars net) at a monthly rate of 2,974,164 dollars gross (2,899,465 dollars net), in accordance with the levels set out in General Assembly resolution 55/235 and as adjusted by the Assembly in its resolution 55/236 of 23 December 2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the years 2001 and 2002, as set out in its resolution 55/5 B of 23 December 2000, subject to the decision of the Security Council to extend the mandate of the Force;

17. Decides further that, in accordance with the provisions of its resolution 973(X) of 15 December 1955, there shall be set off against the apportionment among Member States, as provided for in paragraph 16 above, their respective share in the Tax Equalization Fund of the estimated staff assessment income of 896,386 dollars approved for the Force for the period from 1 July 2001 to 30 June 2002;

18. Decides that, for Member States that have fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, there shall be set off against the apportionment, as provided for in paragraph 16 above, their respective share of the unencumbered balance of 324,900 dollars gross (297,700 dollars net) in respect of the period ending 30 June 2000, in accordance with the composition of groups set out in paragraphs 3 and 4 of General Assembly resolution 43/232 of 1 March 1989, as adjusted by the Assembly in subsequent relevant resolutions and decisions for the ad hoc apportionment of peacekeeping appropriations, the latest of which were resolution 52/230 of 31 March 1998 and decisions 54/456 to 54/458 of 23 December 1999 for the period 1998-2000, and taking into account the scale of assessments for the year 2000, as set out in its resolutions 52/215 A of 22 December 1997 and 54/237 A of 23 December 1999;

19. Decides also that, for Member States that have not fulfilled their financial obligations to the Force, their respective share of the unencumbered balance of 324,900 dollars gross (297,700 dollars net) in respect of the period ending 30 June 2000 shall be set off against their outstanding obligations in accordance with the scheme set out in paragraph 18 above;

20. Decides further, pursuant to the provisions of paragraph 13 of its resolution 53/226 of 8 June 1999, to credit back to Member States the amount of 4 million dollars during the fifty-fifth session of the General Assembly, representing the remaining net balance held in the suspense account for the Force, according to the procedures set out in paragraphs 16 to 19 above;

21. Emphasizes that no peacekeeping mission shall be financed by borrowing funds from other active peacekeeping missions;

22. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to take additional measures to ensure the safety and security of all personnel under the auspices of the United Nations participating in the Force;

23. Invites voluntary contributions to the Force in cash and in the form of services and supplies acceptable to the Secretary-General, to be administered, as appropriate, in accordance with the procedure and practices established by the General Assembly;

24. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-sixth session, under the item entitled "Financing of the United Nations peacekeeping forces in the Middle East", the sub-item entitled "United Nations Disengagement Observer Force".

On 24 December, the Assembly decided that the item on financing of the UN peacekeeping forces in the Middle East would remain for consideration during the resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session (decision 56/464) and that the Fifth Committee would continue consideration of the item on the financing of UNDOF at that session (decision 56/458).

Chapter VII

Disarmament

The United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, considered one of the most important disarmament events in 2001, met in July and adopted a Programme of Action, which was seen as a significant first step towards curbing the illicit trade and proliferation of those weapons. In August, the Security Council called on Member States to implement the Programme.

In 2001, the terrorist attacks of 11 September (see p. 60) and subsequent anthrax incidents in the United States raised further concern among the international community over the threat of bioterrorism and the use of weapons of mass destruction. Despite the increased concern, multilateral efforts to strengthen the 1971 Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction suffered setbacks, as the Fifth Review Conference of the States Parties was suspended in December due to divergent positions on key issues. Earlier in the year, the Ad Hoc Group of the States Parties to the Convention failed to conclude negotiation on a compliance protocol. In related action, the General Assembly, in November, recognizing the close connection between international terrorism and illicit arms-trafficking and the illegal movement of nuclear, chemical, biological and other potentially deadly materials, called for multilateral cooperation to deal with the problem.

The Conference on Disarmament once again did not agree on a programme of work and thus remained unable to take action on any of its agenda items during its 2001 session. The Disarmament Commission continued to consider ways and means to achieve nuclear disarmament and practical confidence-building measures in the field of conventional arms.

With regard to anti-personnel mines, the Third Meeting of the States Parties to the 1997 Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction, in September, noted that considerable areas of mined land had been cleared over the past year, casualty rates had been reduced in several of the most affected States and victim assistance had improved. The Second Review Conference of the States Parties to the 1980 Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects, held in December, agreed to amend article I of the Convention in order to expand the scope of its application to non-international armed conflicts. The Third Annual Conference of the States Parties to the 1980 Convention's amended Protocol on the Use of Mines, Booby Traps and Other Devices (Protocol II) reaffirmed the States parties' commitment to restricting the use of, or outlawing, anti-personnel landmines.

In November, the Conference on Facilitating the Entry into Force of the 1996 Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty called on signatory States to ratify the Treaty as soon as possible.

At the bilateral level, the Russian Federation and the United States conducted the last inspection pursuant to the provisions of the 1987 Treaty on Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces, under which they agreed to eliminate their intermediate-range and shorter-range missiles no later than three years after the Treaty's entry into force, and to conduct on-site inspections on each other's territory for 13 years. They also completed reductions of their respective nuclear arsenals, in accordance with the terms of the 1991 Treaty on the Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms (START I). During the year, both parties held discussions on additional reductions of their nuclear arsenals and on related strategic issues, including the 1972 Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems (ABM Treaty). In December, the United States announced that it had decided to withdraw unilaterally from the ABM Treaty.

UN role in disarmament

UN machinery

Disarmament issues before the United Nations were considered mainly through the General Assembly and its First (Disarmament and International Security) Committee, the Disarmament Commission (a deliberative body) and the Conference on Disarmament (a multilateral negotiating forum, which met in Geneva).

The Department for Disarmament Affairs of the UN Secretariat continued to support the work of Member States and treaty bodies, to service the Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters and to administer the UN disarmament fellowship programme.

Fourth special session on disarmament

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/33 M [YUN 2000, p. 484], the Secretary-General, in a July report [A/56/166], presented the views of seven Member States on the objectives, agenda and timing of the fourth special session of the Assembly devoted to disarmament.

The Assembly had decided, by resolution 51/45 C [YUN 1996, p. 447], to convene the special session in 1999, subject to the emergence of a consensus on its agenda and objectives.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 D without vote [agenda item 74 (m)].

Convening of the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 49/75 I of 15 December 1994, 50/70 F of 12 December 1995, 51/45 C of 10 December 1996, 52/38 F of 9 December 1997, 53/77 AA of 4 December 1998, 54/54 U of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 M of 20 November 2000,

Recalling also that, there being a consensus to do so in each case, three special sessions of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament were held, in 1978, 1982 and 1988, respectively,

Bearing in mind the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, adopted by consensus at the first special session devoted to disarmament, which included the Declaration, the Programme of Action and the Machinery for disarmament,

Bearing in mind also the objective of general and complete disarmament under effective international control,

Taking note of paragraph 145 of the Final Document of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, which supported the convening of the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament, which would offer an opportunity to review, from a perspective more in tune with the current international situation, the most critical aspects of the process of disarmament and to mobilize the international community and public opinion in favour of the elimination of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction and of the control and reduction of conventional weapons,

Taking note also of the report of the Disarmament Commission on its 1999 substantive session and of the fact that no consensus was reached on the item entitled

"Fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament",

Desiring to build upon the substantive exchange of views on the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament during the 1999 substantive session of the Disarmament Commission,

Reiterating its conviction that a special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament can set the future course of action in the field of disarmament, arms control and related international security matters,

Emphasizing the importance of multilateralism in the process of disarmament, arms control and related international security matters,

Noting that, with the recent accomplishments made by the international community in the field of weapons of mass destruction as well as conventional arms, the following years would be opportune for the international community to start the process of reviewing the state of affairs in the entire field of disarmament and arms control in the post-cold-war era,

Taking note of the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in which heads of State and Government resolved to strive for the elimination of weapons of mass destruction, particularly nuclear weapons, and to keep all options open for achieving that aim, including the possibility of convening an international conference to identify ways of eliminating nuclear dangers,

Taking note also of the report of the Secretary-General regarding the views of Member States on the objectives, agenda and timing of the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament,

1. Decides, subject to the emergence of a consensus on its objectives and agenda, to convene the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to seek the views of Member States on the objectives, agenda and timing of the special session and to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

3. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Convening of the fourth special session of the General Assembly devoted to disarmament".

Disarmament Commission

The Disarmament Commission, composed of all UN Member States, held seven plenary meetings in 2001 (New York, 9-27 April) [A/56/42] and organizational meetings on 9 April and 2 November.

The Commission continued to consider ways to achieve nuclear disarmament (see p. 473) and practical confidence-building measures in the field of conventional arms (see p. 506). The Commission adopted consensus texts on those items, following consideration of the issues by its working groups.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/538], adopted resolution 56/26 A without vote [agenda item 76 (d)].

Report of the Disarmament Commission

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Disarmament Commission,

Recalling its resolutions 47/54 A of 9 December 1992, 47/54 G of 8 April 1993, 48/77 A of 16 December 1993, 49/77 A of 15 December 1994, 50/72 D of 12 December 1995, 51/47 B of 10 December 1996, 52/40 B of 9 December 1997, 53/79 A of 4 December 1998, 54/56 A of 1 December 1999 and 55/35 C of 20 November 2000,

Considering the role that the Disarmament Commission has been called upon to play and the contribution that it should make in examining and submitting recommendations on various problems in the field of disarmament and in the promotion of the implementation of the relevant decisions adopted by the General Assembly at its tenth special session,

Bearing in mind its decision 52/492 of 8 September 1998,

1. Takes note of the report of the Disarmament Commission;

2. Reaffirms the importance of further enhancing the dialogue and cooperation among the First Committee, the Disarmament Commission and the Conference on Disarmament;

3. Also reaffirms the role of the Disarmament Commission as the specialized, deliberative body within the United Nations multilateral disarmament machinery that allows for in-depth deliberations on specific disarmament issues, leading to the submission of concrete recommendations on those issues;

4. Requests the Disarmament Commission to continue its work in accordance with its mandate, as set forth in paragraph 118 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, and with paragraph 3 of Assembly resolution 37/78 H of 9 December 1982, and to that end to make every effort to achieve specific recommendations on the items of its agenda, taking into account the adopted "Ways and means to enhance the functioning of the Disarmament Commission";

5. Notes that the Disarmament Commission, at its 2001 organizational session, adopted the following items for consideration at its 2002 substantive session:

(a) Ways and means to achieve nuclear disarmament;

(b) Practical confidence-building measures in the field of conventional arms;

6. Requests the Disarmament Commission to meet for a period not exceeding three weeks during 2002 and to submit a substantive report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to transmit to the Disarmament Commission the annual report of the Conference on Disarmament, together with all the official records of the fifty-sixth session of the General Assembly relating to disarmament matters, and to render all assistance that the Commission may require for implementing the present resolution;

8. Also requests the Secretary-General to ensure full provision to the Disarmament Commission and its subsidiary bodies of interpretation and translation facilities in the official languages and to assign, as a matter of priority, all the necessary resources and services, including verbatim records, to that end;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Report of the Disarmament Commission".

Conference on Disarmament

The Conference on Disarmament, a multilateral negotiating body, held a three-part session in Geneva in 2001 (22 January–30 March, 14 May–29 June and 30 July–14 September) [A/56/27].

The Conference continued to consider the cessation of the nuclear arms race and nuclear disarmament; prevention of nuclear war; prevention of an arms race in outer space; effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons; new types of weapons of mass destruction and new systems of such weapons; radiological weapons; a comprehensive programme of disarmament; and transparency in armaments.

During the session, successive Presidents of the Conference held consultations and put forward informal proposals with a view to reaching consensus on a programme of work, none of which achieved consensus. Thus, the Conference did not agree on a programme of work and did not re-establish or establish any mechanism on any of its substantive agenda items. However, on 14 June [CD/1646], the Conference reaffirmed its commitment to work towards the approval of a programme of work, maintaining the Amorim proposal [YUN 2000, p. 485], which envisaged the establishment of ad hoc committees with non-negotiating mandates on nuclear disarmament and the prevention of an arms race in outer space, as a basis for further consultations, and taking into consideration all relevant proposals. The Conference appointed three Special Coordinators on the review of its agenda (Germany), expansion of its membership (Bulgaria) and its improved and effective functioning (Sri Lanka), all of whom reported on their consultations at the end of the session. The Conference agreed that priority should be given to substantive work and that Special Coordinators on the same issues should be reappointed as early as possible at the 2002 session. The Conference requested its President and the incoming President to hold consultations during the intersessional period, with a view to beginning work early in 2002.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/538], adopted resolution 56/26 B without vote [agenda item 76 (c)].

Report of the Conference on Disarmament

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report of the Conference on Disarmament,

Convinced that the Conference on Disarmament, as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating forum of the international community, has the primary role in substantive negotiations on priority questions of disarmament,

Recognizing the need to conduct multilateral negotiations with the aim of reaching agreement on concrete issues for negotiation,

Recalling, in this respect, that the Conference has a number of urgent and important issues for negotiation,

1. Reaffirms the role of the Conference on Disarmament as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating forum of the international community;

2. Urges the Conference to fulfil that role in the light of the evolving international situation, with a view to making early substantive progress on priority items on its agenda;

3. Welcomes the strong collective interest of the Conference in commencing substantive work as soon as possible during its 2002 session;

4. Also welcomes the decision of the Conference to request its President to conduct appropriate consultations with its incoming President during the intersessional period to try to achieve this goal, as expressed in paragraph 40 of its report;

5. Further welcomes the recommendation of the Conference, as expressed in paragraph 41 of its report, to reappoint the Special Coordinator on Review of the Agenda of the Conference on Disarmament, the Special Coordinator on Expansion of Membership of the Conference on Disarmament and the Special Coordinator on Improved and Effective Functioning of the Conference on Disarmament as early as possible during its 2002 session;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to ensure the provision to the Conference of adequate administrative, substantive and conference support services;

7. Requests the Conference to submit a report on its work to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Report of the Conference on Disarmament".

Multilateral disarmament agreements

As at 31 December 2001, the following numbers of States had become parties to the multilateral agreements listed below (in chronological order, with the years in which they were initially signed or opened for signature).

(Geneva) Protocol for the Prohibition of the Use in War of Asphyxiating, Poisonous or Other Gases, and of Bacteriological Methods of Warfare (1925): 132 parties

The Antarctic Treaty (1959): 45 parties

Treaty Banning Nuclear Weapon Tests in the Atmosphere, in Outer Space and under Water (1963): 124 parties

Treaty on Principles Governing the Activities of States in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space, including the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies (1967) [YUN 1966, p. 41, GA res. 2222(XXI), annex]: 97 parties

Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco) (1967): 38 parties

Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (1968) [YUN 1968, p. 17, GA res. 2373(XXII), annex]: 187 parties

Treaty on the Prohibition of the Emplacement of Nuclear Weapons and Other Weapons of Mass Destruction on the Seabed and the Ocean Floor and in the Subsoil Thereof (1971) [YUN 1970, p. 18, GA res. 2660(XXV), annex]: 92 parties

Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction (1972) [YUN 1971, p. 19, GA res. 2826(XXVI), annex]: 144 parties

Convention on the Prohibition of Military or Any Other Hostile Use of Environmental Modification Techniques (1977) [YUN 1976, p. 45, GA res. 31/72, annex]: 66 parties

Agreement Governing the Activities of States on the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies (1979) [YUN 1979, p. 111, GA res. 34/68, annex]: 10 parties

Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects (1981): 88 parties

South Pacific Nuclear-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Rarotonga) (1985): 17 parties

Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE Treaty) (1990): 30 parties

Treaty on Open Skies (1992): 26 parties

Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction (1993): 145 parties

Treaty on the South-East Asia Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone (Bangkok Treaty) (1995): 10 parties

African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty (Pelindaba Treaty) (1996): 19 parties

Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty (1996): 89 parties

Inter-American Convention against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Ammunition, Explosives, and Other Related Materials (1997): 10 parties

Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction (Mine-Ban Convention, formerly known as Ottawa Convention) (1997): 122 parties

Inter-American Convention on Transparency in Conventional Weapons Acquisitions (1999): 4 parties

Agreement on Adaptation of the CFE Treaty (1999): 1 party

Nuclear disarmament

Conference on Disarmament

In 2001, despite the inability of the Conference on Disarmament to establish a subsidiary body on nuclear disarmament (see p. 469), some progress was made on the issue. In an important shift in position, the Russian Federation supported the establishment of a subsidiary body with an exploratory mandate for broad discussions on nuclear disarmament, and, in May [CD/1644], submitted a working paper containing a draft decision to establish an ad hoc committee based in part on the Amorim proposal (see p. 469), but with a vaguer mandate. Also in a change of position, the United States expressed its readiness to agree on a programme of work providing for the establishment of ad hoc committees on nuclear disarmament and on prevention of an arms race in outer space, in the context of ongoing negotiations on the prohibition of the production of fissile material for weapons purposes. Thus, for the first time in 30 years, there was a general willingness in the Conference to establish such a committee to consider nuclear disarmament.

Fissile material

The persistent difficulties in reaching an agreement on a programme of work prevented the Conference on Disarmament from establishing an ad hoc committee on the prohibition of the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons and other nuclear explosive devices, leaving the issue to be addressed in plenary meetings.

While Western and Eastern European countries continued to advocate the immediate re-establishment of an ad hoc committee and the start of negotiations on a fissile material cut-off treaty, China and States of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries maintained that negotiations on a treaty should be launched within the framework of a comprehensive and balanced programme of work and that the issue of existing stocks of fissile material must be addressed during negotiations.

During the year, the General Assembly returned to the question of the establishment of an ad hoc committee to negotiate a treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons and other nuclear explosive devices, which it had previously considered in resolutions 48/75 L [YUN 1993, p. 118], 53/77 I [YUN 1998, p. 493] and 55/33 Y [YUN 2000, p. 488].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 J without vote [agenda item 74].

The Conference on Disarmament decision (CD/1547) of 11 August 1998 to establish, under item 1 of its agenda entitled "Cessation of the nuclear arms race and nuclear disarmament", an ad hoc committee to negotiate, on the basis of the report of the Special Coordinator (CD/1299) and the mandate contained therein, a non-discriminatory, multilateral and internationally and effectively verifiable treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 48/75 L of 16 December 1993, 53/77 I of 4 December 1998 and 55/33 Y of 20 November 2000,

Convinced that a non-discriminatory, multilateral and internationally and effectively verifiable treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices would be a significant contribution to nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation,

Recalling the 1998 report of the Conference on Disarmament, in which, inter alia, the Conference records that, in proceeding to take a decision on this matter, that decision is without prejudice to any further decisions on the establishment of further subsidiary bodies under agenda item 1 and that intensive consultations will be pursued to seek the views of the members of the Conference on Disarmament on appropriate methods and approaches for dealing with agenda item 1, taking into consideration all proposals and views in that respect,

1. Recalls the decision of the Conference on Disarmament to establish, under item 1 of its agenda entitled "Cessation of the nuclear arms race and nuclear disarmament", an ad hoc committee which shall negotiate, on the basis of the report of the Special Coordinator and the mandate contained therein, a non-discriminatory, multilateral and internationally and effectively verifiable treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices;

2. Urges the Conference on Disarmament to agree on a programme of work that includes the immediate commencement of negotiations on such a treaty.

Security assurances

The Conference on Disarmament considered the issue of security assurances for non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons in the context of adopting its programme of work. Owing to the stalemate regarding a comprehensive programme of work, the Conference did not re-establish an ad hoc committee. Statements in plenary meetings addressed security assurances and generally reaffirmed members' long-held positions.

The question of security assurances was also addressed within the context of overcoming a deadlock on procedural matters. In that regard, the Special Coordinator appointed to review the agenda reported that there was a general agreement on retaining the item, at least in substance if not in wording.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/534], adopted resolution 56/22 by recorded vote (105-0-54) [agenda item 72].

Conclusion of effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the need to allay the legitimate concern of the States of the world with regard to ensuring lasting security for their peoples,

Convinced that nuclear weapons pose the greatest threat to mankind and to the survival of civilization,

Welcoming the progress achieved in recent years in both nuclear and conventional disarmament,

Noting that, despite recent progress in the field of nuclear disarmament, further efforts are necessary towards the achievement of general and complete disarmament under effective international control,

Convinced that nuclear disarmament and the complete elimination of nuclear weapons are essential to remove the danger of nuclear war,

Determined to abide strictly by the relevant provisions of the Charter of the United Nations on the non-use of force or threat of force,

Recognizing that the independence, territorial integrity and sovereignty of non-nuclear-weapon States need to be safeguarded against the use or threat of use of force, including the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Considering that, until nuclear disarmament is achieved on a universal basis, it is imperative for the international community to develop effective measures and arrangements to ensure the security of non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons from any quarter,

Recognizing that effective measures and arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons can contribute positively to the prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons,

Bearing in mind paragraph 59 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament, in which it urged the nuclear-weapon States to pursue efforts to conclude, as appropriate, effective arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, and desirous of promoting the implementation of the relevant provisions of the Final Document,

Recalling the relevant parts of the special report of the Committee on Disarmament submitted to the General Assembly at its twelfth special session, the second special session devoted to disarmament, and of the special report of the Conference on Disarmament submitted to the Assembly at its fifteenth special session, the third special session devoted to disarmament, as well as the report of the Conference on its 1992 session,

Recalling also paragraph 12 of the Declaration of the 1980s as the Second Disarmament Decade, contained in the annex to its resolution 35/46 of 3 December 1980, which states, inter alia, that all efforts should be exerted by the Committee on Disarmament urgently to negotiate with a view to reaching agreement on effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Noting the in-depth negotiations undertaken in the Conference on Disarmament and its Ad Hoc Committee on Effective International Arrangements to Assure Non-Nuclear-Weapon States against the Use or Threat of Use of Nuclear Weapons, with a view to reaching agreement on this question,

Taking note of the proposals submitted under the item in the Conference on Disarmament, including the drafts of an international convention,

Taking note also of the relevant decision of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, as well as the relevant recommendations of the Organization of the Islamic Conference,

Taking note further of the unilateral declarations made by all the nuclear-weapon States on their policies of non-use or non-threat of use of nuclear weapons against the non-nuclear-weapon States,

Noting the support expressed in the Conference on Disarmament and in the General Assembly for the elaboration of an international convention to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, as well as the difficulties pointed out in evolving a common approach acceptable to all,

Taking note of Security Council resolution 984(1995) of 11 April 1995 and the views expressed on it,

Recalling its relevant resolutions adopted in previous years, in particular resolutions 45/54 of 4 December 1990, 46/32 of 6 December 1991, 47/50 of 9 December 1992, 48/73 of 16 December 1993, 49/73 of 15 December 1994, 50/68 of 12 December 1995, 51/43 of 10 December 1996, 52/36 of 9 December 1997, 53/75 of 4 December 1998, 54/52 of 1 December 1999 and 55/31 of 20 November 2000,

1. Reaffirms the urgent need to reach an early agreement on effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons;

2. Notes with satisfaction that in the Conference on Disarmament there is no objection, in principle, to the idea of an international convention to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, although the difficulties with regard to evolving a common approach acceptable to all have also been pointed out;

3. Appeals to all States, especially the nuclear-weapon States, to work actively towards an early agreement on a common approach and, in particular, on a common formula that could be included in an international instrument of a legally binding character;

4. Recommends that further intensive efforts be devoted to the search for such a common approach or common formula and that the various alternative approaches, including, in particular, those considered in the Conference on Disarmament, be further explored in order to overcome the difficulties;

5. Recommends also that the Conference on Disarmament actively continue intensive negotiations with a view to reaching early agreement and concluding effective international arrangements to assure the non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, taking into account the widespread support for the conclusion of an international convention and giving consideration to any other proposals designed to secure the same objective;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Conclusion of effective international arrangements to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/22:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Bhutan, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Albania, Andorra, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Belarus, Belgium, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Disarmament Commission

In April [A/56/42], Working Group I of the Disarmament Commission considered its Chairman's working paper on ways and means to achieve nuclear disarmament. Following deliberations, the Group noted that the paper required further discussion, elaboration and refinement. On 26 April, the Group adopted its report by consensus and requested the Chairman to conduct intersessional consultations and to present a revised version of his paper before the Commission's 2002 session. The Chairman's paper, which was annexed to the Commission's report, discussed the interrelationship between nuclear disarmament, international peace, security and stability, achievements and current developments in nuclear disarmament, mechanisms dealing with nuclear disarmament and the role of the United Nations, and ways and means to achieve nuclear disarmament.

START and other bilateral agreements and unilateral measures

The United States and Russian Federation continued to implement the 1991 Treaty on the Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms (START I) [YUN 1991, p. 34], which entered into force on 5 December 1994 [YUN 1994, p. 145], by reducing their nuclear arms stockpiles. However, the START process was seemingly pushed into the background in 2001, overshadowed by proposals for a new strategic framework between the Russian Federation and the United States (see below). START II, which envisaged nuclear reductions to the level of 3,000 to 3,500 warheads, would, in effect, be superseded if the two nuclear Powers succeeded in completing a more far-reaching agreement. As at 5 December, both countries had completed reductions of their respective nuclear arsenals to the levels required under START I. The control mechanisms foreseen under the Treaty would stay in force until the end of 2009.

President George W. Bush of the United States, on 1 May (Washington, D.C.), outlining his views on a new United States defence policy, particularly regarding the establishment of missile defences, highlighted United States views on the need for new concepts of deterrence relying on both offensive and defensive forces, and the need for a new framework allowing for the establishment of missile defences in order for the United States to move beyond the constraints of the 1972 Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems (ABM Treaty) and to encourage further cuts in nuclear weapons. There was a pledge to consult closely with allies and other States on the missile defence issue. China reiterated its view that the ABM Treaty remained the cornerstone of strategic stability, emphasizing that United States missile defence plans would spark a new arms race. Although the Russian Federation also stressed the importance of the ABM Treaty, it welcomed the United States proposal for a new strategic dialogue and stated its readiness to hold negotiations on global strategic stability. The UN Secretary-General stated that the new United States defence policy impacted upon global security and strategic stability, and appealed to States to engage in negotiations towards legally binding disarmament agreements that were verifiable and irreversible.

The Foreign Ministers of member States of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) (Budapest, Hungary, 29-30 May) welcomed the United States' initiative on the strategic review and stressed that consultations would address the full range of strategic issues affecting NATO's common security. Related issues were taken up during the summit of the Group of Eight (G-8) major industrialized countries (Genoa, Italy, 20-22 July), following which, on 22 July, Presidents Bush and Vladimir V. Putin of the Russian Federation agreed in a joint statement that major changes in the world warranted concrete discussions on both offensive and defensive systems and that they would begin intensive bilateral consultations shortly thereafter on nuclear cutbacks and missile defences. During a further summit (Washington, D.C., and Crawford, Texas, 13-15 November), both leaders pledged to cut their nuclear arsenals. While President Bush announced that the United States would unilaterally reduce its stockpile of offensive warheads to between 1,700 and 2,200 over the next decade, the Russian Federation later indicated that it was prepared for reductions to a level of 1,500 warheads.

On 13 December, President Bush announced that the United States had decided to withdraw unilaterally from the ABM Treaty, stating that it hindered the Government's ability to develop ways to protect the country from future missile attacks from rogue States or terrorists. At the same time, the United States reiterated its willingness to develop elements of a new strategic relationship with Russia, including deep cuts in nuclear forces.

With the last inspection conducted on 31 May, pursuant to the provisions of the 1987 Treaty on Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces, Russia and the United States ended the 13-year inspection regime under the Treaty.

Communications. In September [A/56/348], Kazakhstan transmitted the text of the final memorandum of an international conference on "The twenty-first century: towards a nuclear-weapon-free world" (Almaty, Kazakhstan, 29-30 August), which called for humanity to use its scientific and technological capabilities in the service of further peaceful development, progress and prosperity. Kazakhstan also transmitted a September appeal by its parliament [A/C.1/56/5], which called on parliaments and Governments worldwide to take steps to eliminate nuclear weapons.

In October [A/C.1/56/4], South Africa, on behalf of the partner countries of the New Agenda

Initiative (Brazil, Egypt, Ireland, Mexico, New Zealand, South Africa, Sweden), transmitted a communiqué on further measures to be taken in pursuit of their joint initiative to achieve a nuclear-weapon-free world.

In November [A/56/609-S/2001/1053], Ukraine announced that it had destroyed, on 30 October, the last SS-24 intercontinental missile silo on its territory, marking the fulfilment of its commitment under START to eliminate in the course of seven years all nuclear arsenals and strategic offensive weapons.

Also in November [A/C.1/56/7], Mexico transmitted a paper, supported by members of the New Agenda Initiative on reductions of non-strategic nuclear weapons, stating that despite progress achieved in both strategic and non-strategic nuclear weapon reductions, the members remained concerned that the total number of nuclear weapons deployed and in stockpile still amounted to many thousands. The United States and Russia were urged to proceed with the reduction of non-strategic nuclear weapons in a transparent and irreversible manner.

Reports of Secretary-General. In August [A/56/309], the Secretary-General described action taken to implement General Assembly resolution 55/33 C [YUN 2000, p. 495] on the need for action to achieve a world free from nuclear weapons.

The Secretary-General stated that in 2000 the elimination of nuclear weapons remained a priority, during the Assembly's Millennium Summit, which adopted the Millennium Declaration [YUN 2000, p. 49], and during the Review Conference [ibid., p. 487] of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT), adopted by the Assembly in resolution 2373(XXII) [YUN 1968, p. 17]. However, despite the political commitments made, the level of international cooperation in disarmament remained lower than it could and should be. There was concern about the future of some important arms control and disarmament agreements, including the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty (CTBT) (see p. 482). The Secretary-General reiterated his call to States that had not done so to sign and ratify CTBT without delay and conditions.

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/33 N [YUN 2000, p. 497], the Secretary-General, in September [A/56/400], summarized the discussions of the Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters (see p. 519) regarding specific measures that might significantly reduce the risk of nuclear war. The Board concurred that nuclear danger would be eliminated only when nuclear weapons were eliminated and encouraged the Secretary-

General to assign that goal high priority. The Board members reached broad agreement on seven recommendations for reducing nuclear danger, while other measures and approaches received varying degrees of support. Annexed to the report were five discussion papers prepared by Board members.

In response to Assembly resolution 55/33 T [YUN 2000, p. 493] on nuclear disarmament, the Secretary-General, in September [A/56/404], reported on the resolution's implementation. He noted that the pace of implementation of the commitments made towards the elimination of nuclear weapons by world leaders at the Assembly's Millennium Summit [YUN 2000, p. 47] and by States parties to NPT during the 2000 Review Conference remained disappointingly low. Arms control and disarmament agreements played an essential role in the pursuit of nuclear disarmament and strengthening such agreements required action at all levels. Expressing concern at the continuing impasse in the Conference on Disarmament, the Secretary-General called on all members to overcome their differences so as to resolve outstanding issues and ensure the credibility of the Conference as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating body.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted a series of resolutions and decisions related to nuclear disarmament.

The Assembly adopted resolution 56/24 N by recorded vote (139-3-19) [agenda item 74].

A path to the total elimination of nuclear weapons

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 49/75 H of 15 December 1994, 50/70 C of 12 December 1995, 51/45 G of 10 December 1996, 52/38 K of 9 December 1997, 53/77 U of 4 December 1998, 54/54 D of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 R of 20 November 2000,

Recognizing that the enhancement of international peace and security and the promotion of nuclear disarmament mutually complement and strengthen each other,

Reaffirming the crucial importance of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons as the cornerstone of the international regime for nuclear non-proliferation and as an essential foundation for the pursuit of nuclear disarmament,

Recognizing the progress made by the nuclear-weapon States in the reduction of their nuclear weapons unilaterally or through negotiations, including the START process, and the efforts made towards nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation by the international community,

Reaffirming the conviction that further advancement in nuclear disarmament will contribute to consolidating the international regime for nuclear non-proliferation, ensuring international peace and security,

Bearing in mind the recent nuclear tests, as well as the regional situations, which pose a challenge to international efforts to strengthen the global regime for non-proliferation of nuclear weapons,

Taking note of the report of the Tokyo Forum for Nuclear Non-Proliferation and Disarmament, bearing in mind the various views of Member States on the report,

Welcoming the successful adoption of the Final Document of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and stressing the importance of implementing its conclusions,

Also welcoming the successful convening of the International Symposium for the Further Reinforcement of International Atomic Energy Agency Safeguards in the Asia-Pacific Region: Towards Universalization of Additional Protocol, recently held in Tokyo, and sharing the hope for continued efforts to hold similar symposiums in other regions for strengthening the International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards system, including universalization of its safeguards agreements, and the additional protocols thereto,

Encouraging the Russian Federation and the United States of America to continue their intensive consultations on the interrelated subjects of offensive and defensive systems and to complete them with a view to enhancing international peace and security,

Calling for efforts towards the success of the Conference on Facilitating the Entry into Force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty, to be convened in accordance with article XIV of the Treaty,

1. Reaffirms the importance of achieving the universality of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and calls upon States not parties to the Treaty to accede to it as non-nuclear-weapon States without delay and without conditions;

2. Also reaffirms the importance for all States parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons to fulfil their obligations under the Treaty;

3. Stresses the central importance of the following practical steps for the systematic and progressive efforts to implement article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and paragraphs 3 and 4 (c) of the decision on principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament of the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty:

(a) The importance and urgency of signatures and ratifications, without delay and without conditions and in accordance with constitutional processes, to achieve the early entry into force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty as well as a moratorium on nuclear-weapon-test explosions or any other nuclear explosions pending the entry into force of that Treaty;

(b) The establishment of an ad hoc committee in the Conference on Disarmament as early as possible during its 2002 session to negotiate a non-discriminatory, multilateral and internationally and effectively verifiable treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices, in accordance with the report of the Special Coordinator of 1995 and the mandate contained therein, taking into consideration both nuclear disarmament and non-proliferation objectives, with a view to its conclusion within five years and, pending its entry into force, a moratorium on the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons;

(c) The establishment of an appropriate subsidiary body with a mandate to deal with nuclear disarmament in the Conference on Disarmament as early as possible during its 2002 session in the context of establishing a programme of work;

(d) The inclusion of the principle of irreversibility to apply to nuclear disarmament, nuclear and other related arms control and reduction measures;

(e) An unequivocal undertaking by the nuclear-weapon States, as agreed at the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, to accomplish the total elimination of their nuclear arsenals, leading to nuclear disarmament, to which all States parties to the Treaty are committed under article VI of the Treaty;

(f) Deep reductions by the Russian Federation and the United States of America in their strategic offensive arsenals, while placing great importance on the existing multilateral treaties, with a view to maintaining and strengthening strategic stability and international security;

(g) Steps by all the nuclear-weapon States leading to nuclear disarmament in a way that promotes international stability, and based on the principle of undiminished security for all:

- (i) Further efforts by all the nuclear-weapon States to continue to reduce their nuclear arsenals unilaterally;
- (ii) Increased transparency by the nuclear-weapon States with regard to their nuclear weapons capabilities and the implementation of agreements pursuant to article VI of the Treaty and as voluntary confidence-building measures to support further progress on nuclear disarmament;
- (iii) The further reduction of non-strategic nuclear weapons, based on unilateral initiatives and as an integral part of the nuclear arms reduction and disarmament process;
- (iv) Concrete agreed measures to reduce further the operational status of nuclear weapons systems;
- (v) A diminishing role for nuclear weapons in security policies to minimize the risk that these weapons will ever be used and to facilitate the process of their total elimination;
- (vi) The engagement, as soon as appropriate, of all nuclear-weapon States in the process leading to the total elimination of their nuclear weapons;

(h) Reaffirmation that the ultimate objective of the efforts of States in the disarmament process is general and complete disarmament under effective international control;

4. Recognizes that the realization of a world free of nuclear weapons will require further steps, including deeper reductions in nuclear weapons by all nuclear-weapon States in the process of working towards achieving their elimination;

5. Invites the nuclear-weapon States to keep the States Members of the United Nations duly informed of the progress or efforts made towards nuclear disarmament;

6. Emphasizes the importance of a successful Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-

Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons in 2005 as the first session of the Preparatory Committee is convened in 2002;

7. Welcomes the ongoing efforts in the dismantlement of nuclear weapons, notes the importance of the safe and effective management of the resultant fissile materials and calls for arrangements by all the nuclear-weapon States to place, as soon as practicable, the fissile material designated by each of them as no longer required for military purposes under the International Atomic Energy Agency or other relevant international verification and arrangements for the disposition of such material for peaceful purposes in order to ensure that such material remains permanently outside military programmes;

8. Stresses the importance of further development of the verification capabilities, including International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards, that will be required to provide assurance of compliance with nuclear disarmament agreements for the achievement and maintenance of a nuclear-weapon-free world;

9. Calls upon all States to redouble their efforts to prevent and curb the proliferation of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction, confirming and strengthening, if necessary, their policies not to transfer equipment, materials or technology that could contribute to the proliferation of those weapons, while ensuring that such policies are consistent with the obligations of States under the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons;

10. Also calls upon all States to maintain the highest possible standards of security, safe custody, effective control and physical protection of all materials that could contribute to the proliferation of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction in order, inter alia, to prevent those materials from falling into the hands of terrorists;

11. Welcomes the adoption and stresses the importance of resolution GC(45)/RES/13, adopted on 21 September 2001 by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency, in which it is recommended that the Director General of the Agency, its Board of Governors and member States continue to consider implementing the elements of the plan of action outlined in resolution GC(44)/RES/19, adopted on 22 September 2000 by the General Conference of the Agency, to promote and facilitate the conclusion and entry into force of safeguards agreements and additional protocols, and calls for the early and full implementation of that resolution;

12. Encourages the constructive role played by civil society in promoting nuclear non-proliferation and nuclear disarmament.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 N:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belgium, Benin, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: India, Micronesia, United States.

Abstaining: Belarus, Bhutan, Brazil, China, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Egypt, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Mauritius, Mexico, Myanmar, New Zealand, Pakistan, Russian Federation, San Marino, South Africa, Sweden.

The Assembly adopted resolution 56/24 R by recorded vote (103-41-17) [agenda item 74 (r)].

Nuclear disarmament

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 49/75 E of 15 December 1994 on a step-by-step reduction of the nuclear threat, and its resolutions 50/70 P of 12 December 1995, 51/45 O of 10 December 1996, 52/38 L of 9 December 1997, 53/77 X of 4 December 1998, 54/54 P of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 T of 20 November 2000 on nuclear disarmament,

Reaffirming the commitment of the international community to the goal of the total elimination of nuclear weapons and the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free world,

Bearing in mind that the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction of 1972 and the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction of 1993 have already established legal regimes on the complete prohibition of biological and chemical weapons, respectively, and determined to achieve a nuclear weapons convention on the prohibition of the development, testing, production, stockpiling, loan transfer, use and threat of use of nuclear weapons and on their destruction, and to conclude such an international convention at an early date,

Recognizing that there now exist conditions for the establishment of a world free of nuclear weapons,

Bearing in mind paragraph 50 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament, calling for the urgent negotiation of agreements for the cessation of the qualitative improvement and development of nuclear-weapon systems, and for a comprehensive and phased programme with agreed time frames, wherever feasible, for the progressive and balanced reduction of nuclear weapons and their means of delivery, leading to their ultimate and complete elimination at the earliest possible time,

Noting the reiteration by the States parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons of their conviction that the Treaty is a cornerstone of nuclear non-proliferation and nuclear disarmament and the reaffirmation by the States parties of the importance of the decision on strengthening the review process for the Treaty, the decision on principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament, the decision on the extension of the Treaty and the resolution on the Middle East, adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Reiterating the highest priority accorded to nuclear disarmament in the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly and by the international community,

Recognizing that the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty and any proposed treaty on fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices must constitute disarmament measures, and not only non-proliferation measures,

Welcoming the entry into force of the Treaty on the Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms (START I), to which Belarus, Kazakhstan, the Russian Federation, Ukraine and the United States of America are States parties,

Welcoming also the ratification of the Treaty on Further Reduction and Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms (START II) by the Russian Federation, and looking forward to its early entry into force and its full implementation and to an early commencement of START III negotiations,

Noting with appreciation the unilateral measures by the nuclear-weapon States for nuclear arms limitation, and encouraging them to take further such measures,

Recognizing the complementarity of bilateral, plural and multilateral negotiations on nuclear disarmament, and that bilateral negotiations can never replace multilateral negotiations in this respect,

Noting the support expressed in the Conference on Disarmament and in the General Assembly for the elaboration of an international convention to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, and the multilateral efforts in the Conference on Disarmament to reach agreement on such an international convention at an early date,

Recalling the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons, issued on 8 July 1996, and welcoming the unanimous reaffirmation by all Judges of the Court that there exists an obligation for all States to pursue in good faith and bring to a conclusion negotiations leading to nuclear disarmament in all its aspects under strict and effective international control,

Mindful of paragraph 114 and other relevant recommendations in the Final Document of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, calling upon the Conference on Disarmament to establish, on a priority basis, an ad hoc committee to commence negotiations in 1998 on a phased programme of nuclear disarmament and for the eventual elimination of nuclear weapons with a specified framework of time,

Recalling paragraph 72 of the Final Document of the Thirteenth Ministerial Conference of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Cartagena, Colombia, on 8 and 9 April 2000,

Bearing in mind the principles and guidelines on the establishment of nuclear-weapon-free zones, adopted by the Disarmament Commission at its substantive session of 1999,

Welcoming the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in which heads of State and Government resolve to strive for the elimination of weapons of mass destruction, in particular nuclear weapons, and to keep all options open for achieving this aim, including the possibility of convening an international conference to identify ways of eliminating nuclear dangers,

Seized of the danger of the use of weapons of mass destruction, particularly nuclear weapons, in terrorist acts and the urgent need for concerted international efforts to control and overcome it,

1. Recognizes that, in view of recent political developments, the time is now opportune for all the nuclear-weapon States to take effective disarmament measures with a view to the elimination of these weapons;

2. Also recognizes that there is a genuine need to diminish the role of nuclear weapons in security policies to minimize the risk that these weapons will ever be used and to facilitate the process of their total elimination;

3. Urges the nuclear-weapon States to stop immediately the qualitative improvement, development, production and stockpiling of nuclear warheads and their delivery systems;

4. Also urges the nuclear-weapon States, as an interim measure, to de-alert and deactivate immediately their nuclear weapons and to take other concrete measures to reduce further the operational status of their nuclear-weapon systems;

5. Reiterates its call upon the nuclear-weapon States to undertake the step-by-step reduction of the nuclear threat and to carry out effective nuclear disarmament measures with a view to the total elimination of these weapons;

6. Calls upon the nuclear-weapon States, pending the achievement of the total elimination of nuclear weapons, to agree on an internationally and legally binding instrument on the joint undertaking not to be the first to use nuclear weapons, and calls upon all States to conclude an internationally and legally binding instrument on security assurances of non-use and non-threat of use of nuclear weapons against non-nuclear-weapon States;

7. Urges the nuclear-weapon States to commence plurilateral negotiations among themselves at an appropriate stage on further deep reductions of nuclear weapons as an effective measure of nuclear disarmament;

8. Underlines the importance of applying the principle of irreversibility to the process of nuclear disarmament, nuclear and other related arms control and reduction measures;

9. Welcomes the positive outcome of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and the unequivocal undertaking by the nuclear-weapon States, in the Final Document of the Review Conference, to accomplish the total elimination of their nuclear arsenals leading to nuclear disarmament, to which all States parties are committed under article VI of the Treaty, and the reaffirmation by the States parties that the total elimination of nuclear weapons is the only absolute guarantee against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons, and calls for the full and effective implementation of the steps set out in the Final Document;

10. Calls for the immediate commencement of negotiations in the Conference on Disarmament on a non-discriminatory, multilateral and internationally and effectively verifiable treaty banning the production of fissile material for nuclear weapons or other nuclear explosive devices on the basis of the report of the Special Coordinator and the mandate contained therein;

11. Urges the Conference on Disarmament to agree on a programme of work which includes the immediate commencement of negotiations on such a treaty with a view to their conclusion within five years;

12. Calls for the conclusion of an international legal instrument or instruments on adequate security assurances to non-nuclear-weapon States;

13. Calls also for the early entry into force and strict observance of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty;

14. Expresses its regret that the Conference on Disarmament was unable to establish an ad hoc committee on nuclear disarmament at its 2001 session, as called for in General Assembly resolution 55/33 T;

15. Reiterates its call upon the Conference on Disarmament to establish, on a priority basis, an ad hoc committee to deal with nuclear disarmament early in 2002 and to commence negotiations on a phased programme of nuclear disarmament leading to the eventual elimination of nuclear weapons;

16. Calls for the convening of an international conference on nuclear disarmament in all its aspects at an early date to identify and deal with concrete measures of nuclear disarmament;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution;

18. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Nuclear disarmament".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 R:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Armenia, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Albania, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Micronesia, Monaco, Nauru, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Abstaining: Argentina, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Cyprus, Georgia, India, Ireland, Israel, Japan, Kazakhstan, Mauritius, Pakistan, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Russian Federation, Sweden, Ukraine.

In the First Committee, paragraph 9 was adopted by a recorded vote of 132 to 3, with 6 abstentions. The Assembly retained the paragraph by a recorded vote of 149 to 3, with 6 abstentions.

The Assembly adopted resolution 56/24 C by recorded vote (98-45-14) [agenda item 74 (n)].

Reducing nuclear danger

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind that the use of nuclear weapons poses the most serious threat to mankind and to the survival of civilization,

Reaffirming that any use or threat of use of nuclear weapons would constitute a violation of the Charter of the United Nations,

Convinced that the proliferation of nuclear weapons in all its aspects would seriously enhance the danger of nuclear war,

Convinced also that nuclear disarmament and the complete elimination of nuclear weapons are essential to remove the danger of nuclear war,

Considering that, until nuclear weapons cease to exist, it is imperative on the part of the nuclear-weapon States to adopt measures that assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Considering also that the hair-trigger alert of nuclear weapons carries unacceptable risks of unintentional or accidental use of nuclear weapons, which would have catastrophic consequences for all mankind,

Emphasizing the imperative need to adopt measures to avoid accidental, unauthorized or unexplained incidents arising from computer anomaly or other technical malfunctions,

Conscious that limited steps relating to detargeting have been taken by the nuclear-weapon States and that further practical, realistic and mutually reinforcing steps are necessary to contribute to the improvement in the international climate for negotiations leading to the elimination of nuclear weapons,

Mindful that reduction of tensions brought about by a change in nuclear doctrines would positively impact on international peace and security and improve the conditions for the further reduction and the elimination of nuclear weapons,

Reiterating the highest priority accorded to nuclear disarmament in the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly and by the international community,

Recalling that in the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons it is stated that there exists an obligation for all States to pursue in good faith and bring to a conclusion negotiations leading to nuclear disarmament in all its aspects under strict and effective international control,

Welcoming the call in the United Nations Millennium Declaration to seek to eliminate the dangers posed by weapons of mass destruction and the resolve to strive for the elimination of weapons of mass destruction, particularly nuclear weapons, including the possibility of convening an international conference to identify ways of eliminating nuclear dangers,

1. Calls for a review of nuclear doctrines and, in this context, immediate and urgent steps to reduce the risks of unintentional and accidental use of nuclear weapons;

2. Requests the five nuclear-weapon States to take measures towards the implementation of paragraph 1 of the present resolution;

3. Calls upon Member States to take the necessary measures to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons in all its aspects and to promote nuclear disarmament, with the objective of eliminating nuclear weapons;

4. Takes note of the report prepared by the Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters and submitted by the Secretary-General in pursuance of paragraph 5 of

General Assembly resolution 55/33 N of 20 November 2000, in particular the seven recommendations highlighted for further action;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to take steps towards the implementation of the seven recommendations identified in the report of the Advisory Board that would significantly reduce the risk of nuclear war, including the proposal contained in the United Nations Millennium Declaration for convening an international conference to identify ways of eliminating nuclear dangers, and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Reducing nuclear danger".

Also on 29 November, the Assembly decided to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh (2002) session the item "Towards a nuclear-weapon-free world: the need for a new agenda" (decision 56/411).

ABM Treaty and other missile issues

In 2001, missile defence issues, particularly regarding the proliferation of long-range ballistic missiles, United States plans to establish a national missile defence system [YUN 1999, p. 469] and the status of the ABM Treaty, continued to be of international concern.

Regarding the ABM Treaty, on 13 December President Bush announced that the United States had decided to withdraw unilaterally from it, effective six months from the announcement, stating that it hindered the Government's ability to develop ways to protect the United States from future missile attacks from rogue States or terrorists; at the same time, he reiterated the United States willingness to develop a new strategic relationship with Russia, including deeper cuts in warheads. On 13 December [A/56/707], President Putin considered that decision a mistake but said it would not pose a threat to the Russian Federation's national security. The Secretary-General expressed concern that the annulment of the Treaty might provoke a new arms race, especially in the missile area, and called on States to explore new binding and irreversible initiatives.

The Russian Federation organized an international expert meeting (Moscow, 15 February) to continue discussions on its proposal for a global control system for the non-proliferation of missiles and missile technology. On 31 May, the Russian Federation and the United States ended the 13-year inspection regime under the 1987 Treaty on Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces [YUN 1987, p. 47], which had committed the two parties to eliminate their intermediate-range (1,000-5,500 kilometres) and shorter-range (500-1,000 kilometres) missiles no later than three years after the Treaty's entry into force in 1988 [YUN 1988, p. 56], and to conduct on-site inspections on each other's territory for 13 years. The European Union (EU), following a summit (Göteborg, Sweden, 15-16 June), issued a declaration stressing the need for a common position in the fight against ballistic missile proliferation.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/33 A [YUN 2000, p. 499], the Secretary-General, in a July report with later addenda [A/56/136 & Add.1,2], presented the views of eight Member States and the EU on the issue of missiles in all its aspects.

Expert panel. A panel of governmental experts, established by the Secretary-General in accordance with resolution 55/33 A to prepare a report on the issue of missiles for the Assembly's consideration in 2002, held its first session (New York, 30 July-3 August). Further meetings were scheduled for 2002.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [68 meeting], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 B by recorded vote (98-0-58) [agenda item 74 (d)].

Missiles

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 54/54 F of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 A of 20 November 2000,

Reaffirming the role of the United Nations in the field of arms regulation and disarmament and the commitment of Member States to take concrete steps to strengthen that role,

Realizing the need to promote regional and international peace and security in a world free from the scourge of war and the burden of armaments,

Convinced of the need for a comprehensive approach towards missiles, in a balanced and non-discriminatory manner, as a contribution to international peace and security,

Bearing in mind that the security concerns of Member States at the international and regional levels should be taken into consideration in addressing the issue of missiles,

Underlining the complexities involved in considering the issue of missiles in the conventional context,

Expressing its support for the international efforts against the development and proliferation of all weapons of mass destruction,

Considering that the Secretary-General has been requested, with the assistance of a panel of governmental experts, to prepare a report for the consideration of the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the issue of missiles in all its aspects,

1. Notes with satisfaction that the panel of governmental experts established by the Secretary-General held its first session in New York in 2001 and that it intends to convene two more sessions in 2002 in order to complete its mandate;

2. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General submitted pursuant to resolution 55/33 A;

3. Requests the Secretary-General further to seek the views of Member States on the issue of missiles in all its aspects and to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

4. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Missiles".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 B:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Benin, Bhutan, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkmenistan, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Albania, Andorra, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Belgium, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Paraguay, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Samoa, San Marino, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom, United States, Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

Also on 29 November [meeting 68], the Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 A by recorded vote (82-5-62) [agenda item 74 (e)].

Preservation of and compliance with the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 50/60 of 12 December 1995 and 52/30 of 9 December 1997 on compliance with arms limitation and disarmament and non-proliferation agreements and its resolutions 54/54 A of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 B of 20 November 2000 on preservation of and compliance with the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems,

Recognizing the historical role of the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems of 26 May 1972 between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as a cornerstone for maintaining global peace and security and strategic stability, and reaffirming its continued validity and relevance, especially in the current international situation,

Stressing the paramount importance of full and strict compliance with the Treaty by the parties,

Recalling that the provisions of the Treaty are intended as a contribution to the creation of more favourable conditions for further negotiations on limiting strategic arms,

Mindful of the obligations of the parties to the Treaty under article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Concerned that the implementation of any measures undermining the purposes and provisions of the Treaty affects not only the security interests of the parties, but also those of the whole international community,

Recalling the widespread concern about the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery,

1. Calls for continued efforts to strengthen the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems and to preserve its integrity and validity so that it remains a cornerstone in maintaining global strategic stability and world peace and in promoting further strategic nuclear arms reductions;

2. Calls also for renewed efforts by each of the States parties to preserve and strengthen the Treaty through full and strict compliance;

3. Calls upon the parties to the Treaty, in accordance with their obligations under the Treaty, to limit the deployment of anti-ballistic missile systems, to refrain from the deployment of anti-ballistic missile systems for the defence of the territory of their country, not to provide a base for such a defence and not to transfer to other States or deploy outside their national territory anti-ballistic missile systems or their components limited by the Treaty;

4. Considers that the implementation of any measure undermining the purposes and the provisions of the Treaty also undermines global strategic stability and world peace and the promotion of further strategic nuclear arms reductions;

5. Urges all Member States to support efforts aimed at stemming the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery;

6. Supports further efforts by the international community, in the light of emerging developments, towards safeguarding the inviolability and integrity of the Treaty, which is in the strongest interest of the international community;

7. Welcomes the ongoing dialogue between the Russian Federation and the United States of America on a new strategic framework premised on openness, mutual confidence and real opportunities for co-operation, which is of paramount importance, especially in a changing security environment, and hopes that this dialogue will successfully lead to substantial reductions in offensive nuclear forces and contribute to the maintenance of international stability;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Preservation of and compliance with the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 A:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Armenia, Barbados, Belarus, Bhutan, Botswana, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Cyprus, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Ecuador, Egypt, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Mali, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Nicaragua, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Republic of Moldova, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Turkmenistan, Uganda, United Republic of Tanzania, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Albania, Benin, Israel, Micronesia, United States.

Abstaining: Andorra, Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Mauritius, Monaco, Morocco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Romania, Samoa, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Trinidad and Tobago, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom, Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty

Status

As at 31 December, 165 States had signed the 1996 Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty (CTBT), adopted by General Assembly resolution 50/245 [YUN 1996, p. 454], and 89 had ratified it. During the year, instruments of ratification were deposited by Benin, Costa Rica, Croatia, Ecuador, Guyana, the Holy See, Jamaica, Latvia, Malta, Namibia, Nauru, Nigeria, Paraguay, the Philippines, Saint Lucia, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Uganda, Ukraine and Uruguay. In accordance with article XIV, CTBT was to enter into force 180 days after the 44 States possessing nuclear reactors, listed in annex 2 to the Treaty, had deposited their instruments of ratification. By year's end, 31 of those States had ratified the Treaty.

Conference on facilitating entry into force

The second Conference on Facilitating the Entry into Force of CTBT (New York, 11-13 November) was convened in accordance with article XIV of the Treaty, which stipulated that if the Treaty had not entered into force three years from the date it opened for signature (September 1996) [YUN 1996, p. 452], the depositary should convene a conference at the request of a majority of ratifying States to consider and decide by consensus measures to facilitate early entry into force. In February, the Secretary-General, as depositary, following a request from the majority of States [YUN 2000, p. 500], informed all States of his intention to convene the conference. The first conference took place in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 471].

On 13 November [CTBT-ART.XIV/2001/6], the Conference, which was attended by 109 ratifying and signatory States, nine non-signatory States and a number of specialized agencies and inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations (NGOs), adopted a Final Declaration, by which it reaffirmed strong support for CTBT and called on signatory States to ratify the Treaty as soon as possible, especially those whose ratification was needed for the Treaty's entry into force. It urged the three States (Democratic People's Republic of Korea, India, Pakistan) whose ratification was required for the Treaty's entry into force, but which had not yet signed, to do so, and called on the remaining two nuclear-weapon States (China, United States) to accelerate their ratification process. States were called on to maintain a moratorium on nuclear-weapon-test explosions or any other nuclear explosions.

In accordance with the Final Declaration, Mexico, which held the Presidency of the Conference, was entrusted with coordinating informal consultations with interested States to promote the Treaty's early entry into force and to encourage regional and multilateral initiatives aimed at promoting further signatures and ratifications.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November, the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/544], adopted decision 56/415 by recorded vote [agenda item 82].

Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty

At its 68th plenary meeting, on 29 November 2001, the General Assembly, by a recorded vote of 161 to 1, with no abstentions, and noting the holding of the Conference on Facilitating the Entry into Force of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty in New York from 11 to 13 November 2001, decided, on the recommendation of the First Committee, to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty".

RECORDED VOTE ON DECISION 56/415:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Micronesia, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: United States.

Preparatory Commission for CTBT Organization

The Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization, established in 1996 [YUN 1996, p. 452], continued efforts towards developing the global verification regime to monitor Treaty compliance, the options for enhanced cooperation under the relationship agreement between the United Nations and the Commission, adopted in General Assembly resolution 54/280 [YUN 2000, p. 501], and the level and pace of signatures and ratifications of CTBT as indicators of the international community's support for the Treaty. Progress was made in building the International Monitoring System (IMS) [YUN 1999, p. 472], the global network of 337 facilities in 90 countries, designed to track and detect nuclear explosions prohibited by CTBT via a global satellite communication system and transmit the data to the International Data Centre (IDC) in Vienna. By year's end, 121 stations had been completed and another 90 were either under construction or in contract negotiation. IDC and the verification system as a whole also continued to be developed and refined.

The Preparatory Commission held its fourteenth (24-26 April) [CTBT/PC-14/1], fifteenth (21-23 August) [CTBT/PC-15/1] and sixteenth (19-24 November) [CTBT/PC-16/1] sessions, all in Vienna, to consider the reports of its working groups and to discuss organizational, budgetary and other matters. The Commission adopted its 2002 programme and budget, totalling $85.1 million, of which approximately half was earmarked for IMS. The remainder would be used to develop IDC, the global communications infrastructure, and procedures and guidelines to support on-site inspection once the Treaty entered into force.

Note of Secretary-General. In August [A/56/317], the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly of the availability of the report of the Commission's Executive Secretary covering 2000.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 7 December [meeting 80], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/49 [draft: A/56/L.38 & Add.1] by recorded vote (134-1-2) [agenda item 21 (k)].

Cooperation between the United Nations and the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the note by the Secretary-General on cooperation between the United Nations and the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization,

Taking note also of the report of the Executive Secretary of the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization,

Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the sub-item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and the Preparatory Commission for the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/49:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chad, Chile, China, Colombia, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, San Marino, Senegal, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: United States.

Abstaining: India, Pakistan.

Non-Proliferation Treaty

Status

In 2001, the number of States party to the 1968 Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT), adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2373(XXII) [YUN 1968, p. 17], remained at 187. NPT entered into force on 5 March 1970.

2005 review conference

The parties to NPT decided that the first session of the Preparatory Committee for the 2005 Review Conference of the Parties would take place in New York from 8 to 19 April 2002.

Quinquennial review conferences, as called for under article VIII, paragraph 3, of the Treaty, were held in 1975 [YUN 1975, p. 27], 1980 [YUN 1980, p. 51], 1985 [YUN 1985, p. 56], 1990 [YUN 1990, p. 50], 1995 [YUN 1995, p. 189] and 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 487].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 O by recorded vote (156-1-3) [agenda item 74].

2005 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and its Preparatory Committee

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 2373(XXII) of 12 June 1968, the annex to which contains the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Noting the provisions of article VIII, paragraph 3, of the Treaty regarding the convening of review conferences at five-year intervals,

Recalling the decision of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on improving the effectiveness of the strengthened review process for the Treaty, which reaffirmed the provisions in the decision on strengthening the review process for the Treaty, adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty,

Noting the decision on strengthening the review process for the Treaty in which it was agreed that Review Conferences should continue to be held every five years, and noting that, accordingly, the next Review Conference should be held in 2005,

Recalling the decision of the 2000 Review Conference that three sessions of the Preparatory Committee should be held in the years prior to the Review Conference,

Recalling also its resolution 55/33 D of 20 November 2000, in which it welcomed the adoption by consensus of the Final Document of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

1. Takes note of the decision of the parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, following appropriate consultations, to hold the first session of the Preparatory Committee in New York from 8 to 19 April 2002;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to render the necessary assistance and to provide such services, including summary records, as may be required for the 2005 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and its Preparatory Committee.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 O:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Micronesia, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: India.

Abstaining: Cuba, Israel, Pakistan.

IAEA safeguards

As at 31 December, the Model Protocol Additional to Safeguards Agreements strengthening the safeguards regime of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), approved by the IAEA Board of Governors in 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 486], had been signed by 61 States, including the five nuclear-weapon States, and was in force or being provisionally applied in 25 States.

The IAEA General Conference [GC(45)/RES/13], as in previous years, requested all concerned States and other parties to safeguards agreements that had not done so to sign additional protocols promptly. Asking those that had signed the protocols to bring them into force, the Conference recommended that the Director General, the Board of Governors and member States continue to consider implementing elements of a plan of action outlined in a 2000 resolution of the Conference [YUN 2000, p. 504], in order to facilitate the entry into force of safeguards agreements and additional protocols.

For nearly three years, IAEA was unable to implement its mandate with regard to Iraq under the relevant Security Council resolutions (see p. 437). Thus, the Agency was not in a position to provide any assurances that Iraq was in compliance with its obligations under those resolutions. However, IAEA conducted, in January, a physical inventory verification under the safeguards agreement between Iraq and IAEA pursuant to NPT, during which Agency inspectors verified the presence of nuclear materials under safeguards. The General Conference [GC(45)/RES/17], noting that the physical inventory verification could not serve as a substitute for IAEA's Security Council-mandated activities, again called on Iraq to cooperate fully and provide the necessary access to enable IAEA to carry out its mandate.

Concerning the implementation of the agreement between IAEA and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) for the application of safeguards under NPT, the Director General stated in September that, since 1993, the Agency had not been able to verify fully that all nuclear material subject to safeguards in the DPRK had been declared to IAEA (see p. 464). In May, IAEA proposed practical steps to move the verification process forward, which the DPRK declined to accept unconditionally. On 21 September [GC(45)/RES/16], the General Conference, expressing deep concern over the continuing non-compliance of the DPRK with its safeguards agreement with IAEA, encouraged the DPRK to respond positively to the Agency's proposals.

Middle East

In 2001, the General Assembly (see below) and the IAEA General Conference [GC(45)/RES/18] took action regarding the risk of nuclear proliferation in the Middle East. While the Assembly called on the non-party in the region to accede to NPT and to place all its nuclear facilities under IAEA safeguards, IAEA emphasized the need for States in the region to accept the application of full-scope Agency safeguards to all their nuclear activities as an important confidence-building measure.

Pursuant to Assembly resolution 55/36 [YUN 2000, p. 505], the Secretary-General reported, in October [A/56/425], that apart from the IAEA resolution on the application of IAEA safeguards in the Middle East, he had not received any additional information since his 2000 report on the subject [YUN 2000, p. 505]. The IAEA resolution was annexed to the Secretary-General's report.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/539], adopted resolution 56/27 by recorded vote (153-3-6) [agenda item 77].

The risk of nuclear proliferation in the Middle East

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind its relevant resolutions,

Taking note of the relevant resolutions adopted by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency, the latest of which is resolution GC(45)/RES/18, adopted on 21 September 2001,

Cognizant that the proliferation of nuclear weapons in the region of the Middle East would pose a serious threat to international peace and security,

Mindful of the immediate need for placing all nuclear facilities in the region of the Middle East under full-scope safeguards of the International Atomic Energy Agency,

Recalling the decision on principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons on 11 May 1995, in which the Conference urged universal adherence to the Treaty as an urgent priority and called upon all States not yet parties to the Treaty to accede to it at the earliest date, particularly those States that operate unsafeguarded nuclear facilities,

Recognizing with satisfaction that, in the Final Document of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the Conference undertook to make determined efforts towards the achievement of the goal of universality of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, and called upon those remaining States not parties to the Treaty to accede to it, thereby accepting an international legally binding commitment not to acquire nuclear weapons or nuclear explosive devices and to accept International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards on all their nuclear activities, and underlined the necessity of universal adherence to the Treaty and of strict compliance by all parties with their obligations under the Treaty,

Recalling the resolution on the Middle East adopted by the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons on 11 May 1995, in which the Conference noted with concern the continued existence in the Middle East of unsafeguarded nuclear facilities, reaffirmed the importance of the early realization of universal adherence to the Treaty and called upon all States in the Middle East that had not yet done so, without exception, to accede to the Treaty as soon as possible and to place all their nuclear facilities under full-scope International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards,

Noting that Israel remains the only State in the Middle East that has not yet become party to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Concerned about the threats posed by the proliferation of nuclear weapons to the security and stability of the Middle East region,

Stressing the importance of taking confidence-building measures, in particular the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East, in order to enhance peace and security in the region and to consolidate the global non-proliferation regime,

Emphasizing the need for all parties directly concerned to consider seriously taking the practical and urgent steps required for the implementation of the proposal to establish a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and, as a means of promoting this objective, inviting the countries concerned to adhere to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and, pending the establishment of the zone, to agree to place all their nuclear activities under International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards,

Noting that one hundred and sixty-one States have signed the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty, including a number of States in the region,

1. Welcomes the conclusions on the Middle East of the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons;

2. Reaffirms the importance of Israel's accession to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons and placement of all its nuclear facilities under comprehensive International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards, in realizing the goal of universal adherence to the Treaty in the Middle East;

3. Calls upon that State to accede to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons without further delay and not to develop, produce, test or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons, and to renounce possession of nuclear weapons, and to place all its unsafeguarded nuclear facilities under full-scope International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards as an important confidence-building measure among all States of the region and as a step towards enhancing peace and security;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "The risk of nuclear proliferation in the Middle East".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/27:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Israel, Micronesia, United States.

Abstaining: Australia, Canada, Ethiopia, India, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago.

The First Committee adopted the sixth preambular paragraph by a recorded vote of 139 to 2, with 6 abstentions. The Assembly retained the paragraph by a recorded vote of 153 to 2, with 4 abstentions.

Prohibition of use of nuclear weapons

In 2001, the Conference on Disarmament was unable to undertake negotiations on a convention on the prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons, as called for in General Assembly resolution 55/34 G [YUN 2000, p. 506].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/537], adopted resolution 56/25 B by recorded vote (104-46-11) [agenda item 75 (e)].

Convention on the Prohibition of the Use of Nuclear Weapons

The General Assembly,

Convinced that the use of nuclear weapons poses the most serious threat to the survival of mankind,

Bearing in mind the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice of 8 July 1996 on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons,

Convinced that a multilateral, universal and binding agreement prohibiting the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons would contribute to the elimination of the nuclear threat and to the climate for negotiations leading to the ultimate elimination of nuclear weapons, thereby strengthening international peace and security,

Conscious that some steps taken by the Russian Federation and the United States of America towards a reduction of their nuclear weapons and the improvement in the international climate can contribute towards the goal of the complete elimination of nuclear weapons,

Recalling that, in paragraph 58 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, it is stated that all States should actively participate in efforts to bring about conditions in international relations among States in which a code of peaceful conduct of nations in international affairs could be agreed upon and that would preclude the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons,

Reaffirming that any use of nuclear weapons would be a violation of the Charter of the United Nations and a crime against humanity, as declared in its resolutions 1653 (XVI) of 24 November 1961, 33/71 B of 14 December 1978, 34/83 G of 11 December 1979, 35/152 D of 12 December 1980 and 36/92 I of 9 December 1981,

Determined to achieve an international convention prohibiting the development, production, stockpiling and use of nuclear weapons, leading to their ultimate destruction,

Stressing that an international convention on the prohibition of the use of nuclear weapons would be an important step in a phased programme towards the complete elimination of nuclear weapons, with a specified framework of time,

Noting with regret that the Conference on Disarmament, during its 2001 session, was unable to undertake negotiations on this subject as called for in General Assembly resolution 55/34 G of 20 November 2000,

1. Reiterates its request to the Conference on Disarmament to commence negotiations in order to reach agreement on an international convention prohibiting the use or threat of use of nuclear weapons under any circumstances;

2. Requests the Conference on Disarmament to report to the General Assembly on the results of those negotiations.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/25 B:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Albania, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Moldova, Romania, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Abstaining: Argentina, Armenia, Azerbaijan, China, Georgia, Japan, Kazakhstan, Republic of Korea, Russian Federation, Turkmenistan, Ukraine.

Advisory opinion of International Court of Justice

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/33 X [YUN 2000, p. 507] on the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice that the threat or use of nuclear weapons was contrary to the UN Charter [YUN 1996, p. 461], the Secretary-General presented information received from five States (Jordan, Malaysia, Mexico, Philippines, Syrian Arab Republic) on measures they had taken to implement the resolution and nuclear disarmament [A/56/130 & Add.1].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 S by recorded vote (111-29-21) [agenda item 74 (v)].

Follow-up to the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 49/75 K of 15 December 1994, 51/45 M of 10 December 1996, 52/38 O of 9 December 1997, 53/77 W of 4 December 1998, 54/54 Q of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 X of 20 November 2000,

Convinced that the continuing existence of nuclear weapons poses a threat to all humanity and that their use would have catastrophic consequences for all life on Earth, and recognizing that the only defence against a nuclear catastrophe is the total elimination of nuclear weapons and the certainty that they will never be produced again,

Reaffirming the commitment of the international community to the goal of the total elimination of nuclear weapons and the creation of a nuclear-weapon-free world,

Mindful of the solemn obligations of States parties, undertaken in article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, particularly to pursue negotiations in good faith on effective measures relating to cessation of the nuclear-arms race at an early date and to nuclear disarmament,

Recalling the principles and objectives for nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament adopted at the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Welcoming the unequivocal undertaking by the nuclear-weapon States to accomplish the total elimination of their nuclear arsenals leading to nuclear disarmament, adopted at the 2000 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Recalling the adoption of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty in its resolution 50/245 of 10 September 1996, and expressing its satisfaction at the increasing number of States that have signed and ratified the Treaty,

Recognizing with satisfaction that the Antarctic Treaty and the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba are gradually freeing the entire southern hemisphere and adjacent areas covered by those treaties from nuclear weapons,

Noting the efforts by the States possessing the largest inventories of nuclear weapons to reduce their stockpiles of such weapons through bilateral agreements or arrangements and unilateral decisions, and calling for the intensification of such efforts to accelerate the significant reduction of nuclear-weapon arsenals,

Stressing the importance of strengthening all existing nuclear-related disarmament, arms control and reduction measures,

Recognizing the need for a multilaterally negotiated and legally binding instrument to assure non-nuclear-weapon States against the threat or use of nuclear weapons,

Reaffirming the central role of the Conference on Disarmament as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating forum, and regretting the lack of progress in disarmament negotiations, particularly nuclear disarmament, in the Conference during its 2001 session,

Emphasizing the need for the Conference on Disarmament to commence negotiations on a phased programme for the complete elimination of nuclear weapons with a specified framework of time,

Desiring to achieve the objective of a legally binding prohibition of the development, production, testing, deployment, stockpiling, threat or use of nuclear weapons and their destruction under effective international control,

Recalling the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons, issued on 8 July 1996,

Taking note of the relevant portions of the note by the Secretary-General relating to the implementation of resolution 55/33 X,

1. Underlines once again the unanimous conclusion of the International Court of Justice that there exists an obligation to pursue in good faith and bring to a conclusion negotiations leading to nuclear disarmament in all its aspects under strict and effective international control;

2. Calls once again upon all States immediately to fulfil that obligation by commencing multilateral negotiations in 2002 leading to an early conclusion of a nuclear weapons convention prohibiting the development, production, testing, deployment, stockpiling, transfer, threat or use of nuclear weapons and providing for their elimination;

3. Requests all States to inform the Secretary-General of the efforts and measures they have taken on the implementation of the present resolution and nuclear disarmament, and requests the Secretary-General to apprise the General Assembly of that information at its fifty-seventh session;

4. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Follow-up to the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice on the Legality of the Threat or Use of Nuclear Weapons".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 S:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Argentina, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Albania, Andorra, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Israel, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Monaco, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Russian Federation, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States.

Abstaining: Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Canada, Croatia, Cyprus, Estonia, Finland, Georgia, Japan, Kazakhstan, Liechtenstein, Micronesia, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkmenistan, Yugoslavia.

The First Committee adopted paragraph 1 by a recorded vote of 139 to 4, with 2 abstentions. The Assembly retained the paragraph by a recorded vote of 153 to 4, with 2 abstentions.

Radioactive waste

On 18 June, the Joint Convention on the Safety of Spent Fuel Management and on the Safety of Radioactive Waste Management [YUN 1997, p. 487] entered into force, 90 days following the deposit of the twenty-fifth instrument of ratification, acceptance or approval.

The IAEA General Conference, in September [GC(45)/RES/10], recalled its previous requests to States shipping radioactive materials to assure concerned States that the Agency's regulations regarding the transportation of such materials had been honoured, and called for further efforts to improve measures relating to international maritime transport in that respect.

Communication. In September [A/56/360], Chile transmitted a communiqué on the transport of radioactive material and hazardous wastes, adopted by the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of countries of the Rio Group (Santiago, 27 March), which expressed concern about the transit of radioactive material and hazardous wastes along the coasts of member States, in view of the risks of harmful effects on the health of coastal populations and on the marine environment.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 L without vote [agenda item 74 (c)].

Prohibition of the dumping of radioactive wastes

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind resolutions CM/Res.1153(XLVIII) of 1988 and CM/Res.1225(L) of 1989, adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Organization of African Unity, concerning the dumping of nuclear and industrial wastes in Africa,

Welcoming resolution GC(XXXIV)/RES/530 establishing a Code of Practice on the International Transboundary Movement of Radioactive Waste, adopted on 21 September 1990 by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency at its thirty-fourth regular session,

Taking note of the commitment by the participants in the Summit on Nuclear Safety and Security, held in Moscow on 19 and 20 April 1996, to ban the dumping at sea of radioactive wastes,

Considering its resolution 2602 C (XXIV) of 16 December 1969, in which it requested the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament,* inter alia, to consider effective methods of control against the use of radiological methods of warfare,

Aware of the potential hazards underlying any use of radioactive wastes that would constitute radiological warfare and its implications for regional and international security, in particular for the security of developing countries,

Recalling all its resolutions on the matter since its forty-third session in 1988, including its resolution 51/45 J of 10 December 1996,

Also recalling resolution GC(45)/RES/10 adopted by consensus on 21 September 2001 by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency at its forty-fifth regular session, in which States shipping radioactive materials are invited to provide, as appropriate, assurances to concerned States, upon their request, that the national regulations of the shipping State take into account the Agency's transport regulations and to provide them with relevant information relating to the shipment of such materials; the information provided should in no case be contradictory to the measures of physical security and safety,

Welcoming the adoption at Vienna, on 5 September 1997, of the Joint Convention on the Safety of Spent Fuel Management and on the Safety of Radioactive Waste Management, as recommended by the participants at the Summit on Nuclear Safety and Security,

Noting with satisfaction that the Joint Convention on the Safety of Spent Fuel Management and on the Safety of Radioactive Waste Management entered into force on 18 June 2001, and noting also that the Secretariat has convened a preparatory meeting of the Contracting Parties, to be held from 10 to 14 December 2001, to prepare for the first Review Meeting of the Contracting Parties,

Desirous of promoting the implementation of paragraph 76 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament,

1. Takes note of the part of the report of the Conference on Disarmament relating to a future convention on the prohibition of radiological weapons;

2. Expresses grave concern regarding any use of nuclear wastes that would constitute radiological warfare and have grave implications for the national security of all States;

3. Calls upon all States to take appropriate measures with a view to preventing any dumping of nuclear or radioactive wastes that would infringe upon the sovereignty of States;

4. Requests the Conference on Disarmament to take into account, in the negotiations for a convention on the prohibition of radiological weapons, radioactive wastes as part of the scope of such a convention;

5. Also requests the Conference on Disarmament to intensify efforts towards an early conclusion of such a convention and to include in its report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session the progress recorded in the negotiations on this subject;

6. Takes note of resolution CM/Res.1356(LIV) of 1991, adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Organization of African Unity, on the Bamako Convention on the Ban on the Import of Hazardous Wastes into Africa and on the Control of Their Transboundary Movements within Africa;

7. Expresses the hope that the effective implementation of the International Atomic Energy Agency Code of Practice on the International Transboundary Movement of Radioactive Waste will enhance the protection of all States from the dumping of radioactive wastes on their territories;

8. Appeals to all Member States that have not yet taken the necessary steps to become party to the Joint Convention on the Safety of Spent Fuel Management and on the Safety of Radioactive Waste Management to do so in time to attend the first Review Meeting of the Contracting Parties;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Prohibition of the dumping of radioactive wastes".

*The Conference of the Committee on Disarmament became the Committee on Disarmament as from the tenth special session of the General Assembly. The Committee on Disarmament was redesignated the Conference on Disarmament as from 7 February 1984.

Nuclear-weapon-free zones

Africa

As at 31 December, 19 States had ratified the African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Pelindaba) [YUN 1995, p. 203], which was opened for signature in 1996 [YUN 1996, p. 486]. China, France and the United Kingdom had ratified Protocols I and II thereto, and France had also ratified Protocol III. The Russian Federation and the United States had signed Protocols I and II. The Treaty had 55 signatories.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/529], adopted resolution 56/17 without vote [agenda item 67].

African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Pelindaba)

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 54/48 of 1 December 1999 and all its other relevant resolutions, as well as those of the Organization of African Unity,

Recalling also the successful conclusion of the signing ceremony of the African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Pelindaba) that was held at Cairo on 11 April 1996,

Recalling further the Cairo Declaration adopted on that occasion, which emphasized that nuclear-weapon-free zones, especially in regions of tension, such as the Middle East, enhance global and regional peace and security,

Noting the statement made by the President of the Security Council on behalf of the members of the Council on 12 April 1996, in which it was stated that the signature of the African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty constituted an important contribution by the African countries to the maintenance of international peace and security,

Considering that the establishment of nuclear-weapon-free zones, especially in the Middle East, would enhance the security of Africa and the viability of the African nuclear-weapon-free zone,

1. Calls upon African States that have not yet done so to sign and ratify the African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Pelindaba) as soon as possible so that it may enter into force without delay;

2. Expresses its appreciation to the nuclear-weapon States that have signed the Protocols that concern them, and calls upon those that have not yet ratified the Protocols concerning them to do so as soon as possible;

3. Calls upon the States contemplated in Protocol III to the Treaty that have not yet done so to take all necessary measures to ensure the speedy application of the Treaty to territories for which they are, de jure or de facto, internationally responsible and which lie within the limits of the geographical zone established in the Treaty;

4. Calls upon the African States parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons that have not yet done so to conclude comprehensive safeguards agreements with the International Atomic Energy Agency pursuant to the Treaty, thereby satisfying the requirements of article 9 (b) of and annex II to the Treaty of Pelindaba when it enters into force, and to conclude additional protocols to their safeguards agreements on the basis of the Model Protocol approved by the Board of Governors of the Agency on 15 May 1997;

5. Expresses its gratitude to the Secretary-General of the United Nations, the Secretary-General of the Organization of African Unity and the Director General of the International Atomic Energy Agency for the diligence with which they have rendered effective assistance to the signatories to the Treaty;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty".

Asia

Central Asia

In 2001, negotiations continued on drafting the text of a treaty for a nuclear-weapon-free zone in Central Asia. Although the UN-sponsored expert group, consisting of experts from each of the five States of the region (Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan), had met in 2000 and accepted almost all the draft provisions on an ad credendum basis (as an article of faith) [YUN 2000, p. 508], outstanding issues remained.

On 29 November, the General Assembly decided to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh (2002) session the item "Establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in Central Asia" (decision 56/412).

Mongolia

In accordance with General Assembly resolution 55/33 S [YUN 2000, p. 509], a UN-sponsored expert group meeting (Sapporo, Japan, 5-6 September), held under the auspices of the UN Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific (see p. 521), examined ways and means of strengthening Mongolia's international security and nuclear-weapon-free status. The Foreign Ministers of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries (New York, 14 November) [A/56/682-S/2001/1159] reaffirmed support for Mongolia's nuclear-weapon-free status and considered that the institutionalization of that status would be an important measure towards strengthening the non-proliferation regime in the region.

South-East Asia

Regarding the Treaty on the South-East Asia Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone (Bangkok Treaty), which opened for signature in 1995 [YUN 1995, p. 207] and entered into force in 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 495], States parties continued negotiations with nuclear-weapon States regarding the accession of the latter to the Treaty's Protocol. The implementing organs of the Treaty—a Commission and an Executive Committee—had begun their work and undertaken consultations with IAEA. Ratification by the Philippines in 2001 raised the number of ratifying States to 10.

Latin America and the Caribbean

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/542], adopted resolution 56/30 without vote [agenda item 80].

Consolidation of the regime established by the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco)

The General Assembly,

Recalling that, in its resolution 1911(XVIII) of 27 November 1963, it expressed the hope that the States of Latin America would take appropriate measures to conclude a treaty that would prohibit nuclear weapons in Latin America,

Recalling also that, in the same resolution, it voiced its confidence that, once such a treaty was concluded, all States, and in particular the nuclear-weapon States, would lend it their full cooperation for the effective realization of its peaceful aims,

Considering that, in its resolution 2028(XX) of 19 November 1965, it established the principle of an acceptable balance of mutual responsibilities and obligations between nuclear-weapon States and those that do not possess such weapons,

Recalling that the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco) was opened for signature at Mexico City on 14 February 1967,

Noting with satisfaction the holding on 14 February 1997 of the eleventh special session of the General Conference of the Agency for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean in commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the opening for signature of the Treaty of Tlatelolco,

Recalling that, in its preamble, the Treaty of Tlatelolco states that military denuclearized zones are not an end in themselves but rather a means for achieving general and complete disarmament at a later stage,

Recalling also that, in its resolution 2286(XXII) of 5 December 1967, it welcomed with special satisfaction the Treaty of Tlatelolco as an event of historic significance in the efforts to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons and to promote international peace and security,

Recalling further that in 1990, 1991 and 1992 the General Conference of the Agency for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean approved and opened for signature a set of amendments to the Treaty of Tlatelolco, with the aim of enabling the full entry into force of that instrument,

Recalling resolution C/E/RES.27 of the Council of the Agency for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean, in which the Council called for the promotion of cooperation and consultations with other nuclear-weapon-free zones,

Noting with satisfaction that the Treaty of Tlatelolco is now in force for thirty-two sovereign States of the region,

Also noting with satisfaction that the amended Treaty of Tlatelolco is fully in force for Argentina, Barbados, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Guyana, Jamaica, Mexico, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Suriname, Uruguay and Venezuela,

1. Welcomes the concrete steps taken by some countries of the region during recent years for the consolidation of the regime of military denuclearization established by the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco);

2. Urges the countries of the region that have not yet done so to deposit their instruments of ratification of the amendments to the Treaty of Tlatelolco approved by the General Conference of the Agency for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean in its resolutions 267(E-V), 268(XII) and 290(E-VII);

3. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Consolidation of the regime established by the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco)".

Middle East

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/30 on the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East [YUN 2000, p. 511], the Secretary-General, in July [A/56/187], reported on the implementation of the resolution. He carried out consultations with concerned parties within and outside the region to explore further ways to promote the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone. He believed that the multilateral Working Group on Arms Control and Regional Security, which functioned under the auspices of the Middle East multilateral peace process, could act as a forum for discussing the issue and stressed the importance of reaching early agreement on a comprehensive agenda for the Group. The report included the views of Belgium (on behalf of the EU), Egypt, Mexico and the Syrian Arab Republic.

In September, the IAEA General Conference, in a resolution on the Middle East [GC(45)/RES/18], called on all parties directly concerned to take steps required for the implementation of the proposal to establish a mutually and effectively verifiable nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/532], adopted resolution 56/21 without vote [agenda item 71].

Establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 3263 (XXIX) of 9 December 1974, 3474 (XXX) of 11 December 1975, 31/71 of 10 December 1976, 32/82 of 12 December 1977, 33/64 of 14 December 1978, 34/77 of 11 December 1979, 35/147 of 12 December 1980, 36/87 A and B of 9 December 1981, 37/75 of 9 December 1982, 38/64 of 15 December 1983, 39/54 of 12 December 1984, 40/82 of 12 December 1985, 41/48 of 3 December 1986, 42/28 of 30 November 1987, 43/65 of 7 December 1988, 44/108 of 15 December 1989, 45/52 of 4 December 1990, 46/30 of 6 December 1991, 47/48 of 9 December 1992, 48/71 of 16 December 1993, 49/71 of 15 December 1994, 50/66 of 12 December 1995, 51/41 of 10 December 1996, 52/34 of 9 December 1997, 53/74 of 4 December 1998, 54/51 of 1 December 1999 and 55/30 of 20 November 2000 on the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East,

Recalling also the recommendations for the establishment of such a zone in the Middle East consistent with paragraphs 60 to 63, and in particular paragraph 63 (d), of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly,

Emphasizing the basic provisions of the above-mentioned resolutions, which call upon all parties directly concerned to consider taking the practical and urgent steps required for the implementation of the proposal to establish a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East and, pending and during the establishment of such a zone, to declare solemnly that they will refrain, on a reciprocal basis, from producing, acquiring or in any other way possessing nuclear weapons and nuclear explosive devices and from permitting the stationing of nuclear weapons on their territory by any third party, to agree to place their nuclear facilities under International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards and to declare their support for the establishment of the zone and to deposit such declarations with the Security Council for consideration, as appropriate,

Reaffirming the inalienable right of all States to acquire and develop nuclear energy for peaceful purposes,

Emphasizing the need for appropriate measures on the question of the prohibition of military attacks on nuclear facilities,

Bearing in mind the consensus reached by the General Assembly since its thirty-fifth session that the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East would greatly enhance international peace and security,

Desirous of building on that consensus so that substantial progress can be made towards establishing a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East,

Welcoming all initiatives leading to general and complete disarmament, including in the region of the Middle East, and in particular on the establishment therein of a zone free of weapons of mass destruction, including nuclear weapons,

Noting the peace negotiations in the Middle East, which should be of a comprehensive nature and represent an appropriate framework for the peaceful settlement of contentious issues in the region,

Recognizing the importance of credible regional security, including the establishment of a mutually verifiable nuclear-weapon-free zone,

Emphasizing the essential role of the United Nations in the establishment of a mutually verifiable nuclear-weapon-free zone,

Having examined the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of General Assembly resolution 55/30,

1. Urges all parties directly concerned to consider seriously taking the practical and urgent steps required for the implementation of the proposal to establish a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East in accordance with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, and, as a means of promoting this objective, invites the countries concerned to adhere to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons;

2. Calls upon all countries of the region that have not done so, pending the establishment of the zone, to agree to place all their nuclear activities under International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards;

3. Takes note of resolution GC(45)/RES/18, adopted on 21 September 2001 by the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency at its forty-fifth regular session, concerning the application of Agency safeguards in the Middle East;

4. Notes the importance of the ongoing bilateral Middle East peace negotiations and the activities of the multilateral Working Group on Arms Control and Regional Security in promoting mutual confidence and security in the Middle East, including the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone;

5. Invites all countries of the region, pending the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East, to declare their support for establishing such a zone, consistent with paragraph 63 (d) of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, and to deposit those declarations with the Security Council;

6. Also invites those countries, pending the establishment of the zone, not to develop, produce, test or otherwise acquire nuclear weapons or permit the stationing on their territories, or territories under their control, of nuclear weapons or nuclear explosive devices;

7. Invites the nuclear-weapon States and all other States to render their assistance in the establishment of the zone and at the same time to refrain from any action that runs counter to both the letter and the spirit of the present resolution;

8. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;

9. Invites all parties to consider the appropriate means that may contribute towards the goal of general and complete disarmament and the establishment of a zone free of weapons of mass destruction in the region of the Middle East;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to pursue consultations with the States of the region and other concerned States, in accordance with paragraph 7 of resolution 46/30 and taking into account the evolving situation in the region, and to seek from those States their views on the measures outlined in chapters III and IV of the study annexed to his report of 10 October 1990 or other relevant measures, in order to move towards the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East;

11. Also requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution;

12. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in the region of the Middle East".

South Pacific

In 2001, the number of States that had ratified the 1985 South Pacific Nuclear-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Rarotonga) [YUN 1985, p. 58] remained at 17. China and the Russian Federation had ratified Protocols 2 and 3, and France and the United Kingdom had ratified all three Protocols.

Under Protocol 1, the States internationally responsible for territories situated within the zone would undertake to apply the relevant prohibitions of the Treaty to those territories; under Protocol 2, the five nuclear-weapon States would provide security assurances to parties or to territories within the same zone; and under Protocol 3, the five would not carry out nuclear tests in the zone.

Southern hemisphere and adjacent areas

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 G by recorded vote (148-4-4) [agenda item 74 (j)].

Nuclear-weapon-free southern hemisphere and adjacent areas

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 51/45 B of 10 December 1996, 52/38 N of 9 December 1997, 53/77 Q of 4 December 1998, 54/54 L of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 I of 20 November 2000,

Welcoming the adoption by the Disarmament Commission at its 1999 substantive session of a text entitled "Establishment of nuclear-weapon-free zones on the basis of arrangements freely arrived at among the States of the region concerned",

Determined to pursue the total elimination of nuclear weapons,

Determined also to continue to contribute to the prevention of the proliferation of nuclear weapons in all its aspects and to the process of general and complete disarmament under strict and effective international control, in particular in the field of nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction, with a view to strengthening international peace and security, in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling the provisions on nuclear-weapon-free zones of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, the first special session devoted to disarmament,

Stressing the importance of the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba, establishing nuclear-weapon-free zones, as well as the Antarctic

Treaty, to, inter alia, achieve a world entirely free of nuclear weapons,

Underlining the value of enhancing cooperation among the nuclear-weapon-free zone treaty members by means of mechanisms such as joint meetings of States parties, signatories and observers to those treaties,

Recalling the applicable principles and rules of international law relating to the freedom of the high seas and the rights of passage through maritime space, including those of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea,

1. Welcomes the continued contribution that the Antarctic Treaty and the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba are making towards freeing the southern hemisphere and adjacent areas covered by those treaties from nuclear weapons;

2. Calls for the ratification of the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba by all States of the region, and calls upon all concerned States to continue to work together in order to facilitate adherence to the protocols to nuclear-weapon-free zone treaties by all relevant States that have not yet done so;

3. Welcomes the steps taken to conclude further nuclear-weapon-free zone treaties on the basis of arrangements freely arrived at among the States of the region concerned, and calls upon all States to consider all relevant proposals, including those reflected in its resolutions on the establishment of nuclear-weapon-free zones in the Middle East and South Asia;

4. Convinced of the important role of nuclear-weapon-free zones in strengthening the nuclear non-proliferation regime and in extending the areas of the world that are nuclear-weapon-free, and, with particular reference to the responsibilities of the nuclear-weapon States, calls upon all States to support the process of nuclear disarmament and to work for the total elimination of all nuclear weapons;

5. Calls upon the States parties and signatories to the treaties of Tlatelolco, Rarotonga, Bangkok and Pelindaba, in order to pursue the common goals envisaged in those treaties and to promote the nuclear-weapon-free status of the southern hemisphere and adjacent areas, to explore and implement further ways and means of cooperation among themselves and their treaty agencies;

6. Welcomes the vigorous efforts being made among States parties and signatories to those treaties to promote their common objectives, and considers that an international conference of States parties and signatories to the nuclear-weapon-free zone treaties might be held to support the common goals envisaged in those treaties;

7. Encourages the competent authorities of the nuclear-weapon-free-zone treaties to provide assistance to the States parties and signatories to those treaties so as to facilitate the accomplishment of these goals;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Nuclear-weapon-free southern hemisphere and adjacent areas".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 G:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: France, Monaco, United Kingdom, United States.

Abstaining: India, Israel, Russian Federation, Spain.

The First Committee adopted paragraph 3 and its last three words, "and South Asia", by two separate recorded votes of 136 to 2, with 8 abstentions, and 132 to 3, with 8 abstentions, respectively. The Assembly also retained paragraph 3 and the last three words by recorded votes of 145 to 1, with 7 abstentions, and 140 to 2, with 8 abstentions, respectively.

Bacteriological (biological) and chemical weapons

Bacteriological (biological) weapons

In 2001, the terrorist attacks of 11 September (see p. 60) and subsequent anthrax incidents in the United States again raised concern among the international community over the threat of bioterrorism and the use of weapons of mass destruction. Despite the increased concern, multi-lateral efforts to strengthen the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Bacteriological (Biological) and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction (BWC), adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2826(XXVI) [YUN 1971, p. 19], suffered setbacks, as the Ad Hoc Group of the States Parties to the Convention failed to conclude negotiation on a compliance protocol and the Fifth Review Conference of the States parties (see below) was suspended.

Ad Hoc Group

The Ad Hoc Group of the States Parties to BWC held its twenty-second (12-23 February) [BWC/AD HOC GROUP/55-1], twenty-third (23 April-11 May) [BWC/AD HOC GROUP/56-1] and twenty-fourth (23 July-17 August) sessions in 2001, all in Geneva.

The Group continued to consider elements of the rolling text of a future draft protocol on verification and confidence-building relating to the preamble; general provisions; definitions of terms and objective criteria; measures to promote compliance; investigations; confidentiality issues; legal issues, measures related to article X of the Convention (scientific and technological exchange and technical cooperation); declaration formats; and seat of the organization. Work continued to be conducted under the guidance of the Chairman and Friends of the Chair.

At the twenty-third session, the Chairman consolidated "written elements" of the rolling text into a single document (the composite text) containing compromise proposals on all outstanding issues. Discussions explored solutions on a limited number of specific issues, as identified by the Chairman, in the following areas: definitions; declarations; follow-up after submission of declarations; measures to strengthen implementation of article III of the Convention; investigations; and legal issues. The Ad Hoc Group was not able to continue negotiations on the draft protocol because the composite text was not acceptable to all States parties.

Fifth Review Conference

The Fifth Review Conference of the States Parties to BWC (Geneva, 19 November-7 December) [BWC/CONF.V/12] was held to review the provisions and operation of the Convention. Previous review conferences were held in 1980 [YUN 1980, p. 70], 1986 [YUN 1986, p. 64], 1991 [YUN 1991, p. 52] and 1996 [YUN 1996, p. 477].

The Conference established a General Committee, a Committee of the Whole, a Drafting Committee and a Credentials Committee. Substantive issues relating to the provisions and operation of the Convention were discussed largely by the Committee of the Whole. On 30 November, the Conference took note of the draft report of the Committee. Due to persisting divergent views on certain key issues regarding several of the Convention's articles, the Conference, on 7 December, decided by consensus to adjourn and reconvene in November 2002.

The General Assembly, by decision 56/414 of 29 November, requested the Secretary-General to continue to assist the depositary Governments, to provide such services as might be required to implement the decisions and recommendations of the Review Conferences as well as the decisions contained in the final report of the 1994 Special Conference of the States Parties to the Convention [YUN 1994, p. 138], and to assist and provide such services as might be required to hold the Fifth Review Conference. The Assembly decided to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh (2002) session the item on BWC.

Preparatory process

The Preparatory Committee for the Fifth Review Conference (Geneva, 25-27 April) [BWC/CONF.V/PC/1] agreed on, among other things, the date, venue, provisional agenda, draft rules of procedure, background documentation and final documents of the Conference.

Chemical weapons

Chemical weapons convention

In 2001, Dominica, Nauru, Uganda and Zambia ratified the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction, bringing the total number of States parties to 145. The number of signatories stood at 165. The Convention was adopted by the Conference on Disarmament in 1992 [YUN 1992, p. 65] and entered into force in 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 499].

The sixth session of the Conference of the States Parties to the Convention (The Hague, Netherlands, 14-19 May) [OPCW, C-VI/6 & Corr.1] considered, among other issues, the status of the Convention's implementation, fostering international cooperation for peaceful purposes in the area of chemical activities, ensuring universality of the Convention and administrative and budgetary matters. Based on recommendations of the Executive Council of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW), the Conference adopted decisions on the OPCW analytical database and on-site databases, agreements on privileges and immunities of OPCW, and administrative and budgetary matters, including approval of the 2002 OPCW programme and budget. It approved the relationship agreement between the United Nations and OPCW (see p. 495) and a request of the Russian Federation to use a chemical weapons production facility for purposes not prohibited under the Convention. The seventh session of the Conference of the States Parties was scheduled to take place in October 2002.

The first review conference of the Convention was planned to begin on 28 April 2003 in The Hague. Preparations were under way by OPCW (see p. 495).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 K without vote [agenda item 74 (i)].

Implementation of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction

The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject of chemical weapons, in particular resolution 55/33 H of 20 November 2000, adopted without a vote, in which it noted with appreciation the ongoing work to achieve the objective and purpose of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction,

Determined to achieve the effective prohibition of the development, production, acquisition, transfer, stockpiling and use of chemical weapons and their destruction,

Noting with satisfaction that since the adoption of resolution 55/33 H, three additional States have ratified or acceded to the Convention, bringing the total number of States parties to the Convention to one hundred and forty-three,

1. Emphasizes the necessity of universal adherence to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction, and calls upon all States that have not yet done so to become parties to the Convention without delay;

2. Notes with appreciation the ongoing work of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons to achieve the objective and purpose of the Convention, to ensure the full implementation of its provisions, including those for international verification of compliance with it, and to provide a forum for consultation and cooperation among States parties;

3. Stresses the importance of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in verifying compliance with the provisions of the Convention as well as in promoting the timely and efficient accomplishment of all its objectives;

4. Also stresses the vital importance of full and effective implementation of and compliance with all provisions of the Convention;

5. Urges all States parties to the Convention to meet in full and on time their obligations under the Convention and to support the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons in its implementation activities;

6. Stresses the importance to the Convention that all possessors of chemical weapons, chemical weapons production facilities or chemical weapons development facilities, including previously declared possessor States, should be among the States parties to the Convention, and welcomes progress to that end;

7. Welcomes the cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the signature of the Relationship Agreement between the United Nations and the Organization, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Implementation of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction".

Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons

In 2001, OPCW conducted some 1,100 inspections at chemical weapons facilities in 49 States parties. All 8.6 million chemical weapons declared by the four States parties possessing chemical weapons were inventoried by OPCW inspectors and regularly re-inspected to ensure non-diversion. Since the entry into force of the Convention, one fifth of those chemical munitions and containers had been destroyed, and all 61 former chemical weapons production facilities declared by 11 States parties had been deactivated and shut down.

In preparation for the first review conference of the Convention, OPCW was conducting a review process of the Convention and its implementation. The review process would focus on scientific and technological developments and their impact on the Convention, the verification regime, the scope of the Convention's schedules of chemicals, the need for universal adherence and programmes to coordinate international cooperation and assistance. The review was being directed by a working group of the OPCW Executive Council.

The OPCW Executive Council addressed a wide range of issues at its twenty-third (20-23 February), twenty-fourth (3-6 April), twenty-fifth (27-28 June), twenty-sixth (25-28 September) and twenty-seventh (4-7 December) sessions. In the light of the terrorist attacks of 11 September (see p. 60), the Executive Council considered the implementation of the Convention within the context of global efforts to combat all forms of terrorism, including those involving chemical weapons. In that regard, it established a working group to develop recommendations for OPCW's contribution to the global anti-terrorism effort.

Cooperation between United Nations and OPCW

The Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and OPCW, signed in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 516] and approved by the Conference of the States Parties (see p. 494) and the General Assembly in 2001 (see below), entered into force on 24 September.

Notes by Secretary-General. By a June note [A/55/988], the Secretary-General submitted the text of the Agreement for approval by the General Assembly.

In October [A/56/490], the Secretary-General submitted to the Assembly the 2000 report of OPCW, in accordance with the Agreement.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 7 September [meeting 111], the General Assembly adopted resolution 55/283 [draft: A/55/L.92 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 181].

Cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 51/230 of 22 May 1997, by which it invited the Secretary-General to take steps to conclude with the Director-General of the Technical Secretariat of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons an agreement between the United Nations and the organization to regulate the relationship between the two organizations, and to present the negotiated draft relationship agreement to the General Assembly for its approval,

Noting the decision of the Conference of the States Parties to the Chemical Weapons Convention of 17 May 2001 to approve the Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons,

Having considered the Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons,

1. Approves the Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons, the text of which is annexed to the present resolution;

2. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-sixth and subsequent sessions the item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons".

ANNEX

Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons

The United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons,

Bearing in mind the relevant provisions of the Charter of the United Nations (hereinafter the "Charter") and of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction (hereinafter the "Convention"),

Bearing in mind that, in accordance with the Charter, the United Nations is the principal organization dealing with matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security, and acts as a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of the goals set out in the Charter,

Considering that the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (hereinafter "OPCW") shares the purposes and principles of the Charter, and that its activities performed pursuant to the provisions of the Convention contribute to the realization of the purposes and principles of the Charter,

Desiring to make provision for a mutually beneficial relationship, to avoid unnecessary duplication of their activities and services and to facilitate the discharge of the respective responsibilities of both organizations,

Noting General Assembly resolution 51/230 of 22 May 1997 and the relevant decision of the Conference of the States Parties at its fourth session (C-IV/DEC.4, dated 2 July 1999) calling for the conclusion of a relationship agreement between the United Nations and OPCW,

Have agreed as follows:

Article IGeneral

1. The United Nations recognizes OPCW as the organization, in relationship to the United Nations as specified in this Agreement, responsible for activities to achieve the comprehensive prohibition of chemical weapons in accordance with the Convention.

2. The United Nations recognizes that OPCW, by virtue of the Convention, shall function as an independent, autonomous international organization in the working relationship with the United Nations established by this Agreement.

3. OPCW recognizes the responsibilities of the United Nations, in accordance with its Charter, in particular in the fields of international peace and security and economic, social, cultural and humanitarian development, protection and preservation of the environment and peaceful settlement of disputes.

4. OPCW undertakes to conduct its activities in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter to promote peace, disarmament and international cooperation and with due regard to the policies of the United Nations furthering safeguarded worldwide disarmament.

Article IICooperation

1. The United Nations and OPCW, recognizing the need to work jointly to achieve mutual objectives, and with a view to facilitating the effective exercise of their responsibilities, agree to cooperate closely within their respective mandates and to consult on matters of mutual interest and concern. To that end, the United Nations and OPCW shall cooperate with each other in accordance with the provisions of their respective constituent instruments.

2. Cooperation between the United Nations and OPCW, in particular, shall require that:

(a) Cases of particular gravity and urgency which, in accordance with paragraph 36 of article VIII of the Convention, shall, including relevant information and conclusions, be brought directly to the attention of the General Assembly and the Security Council by the Executive Council, through the Secretary-General, in accordance with the existing United Nations procedures;

(b) Cases of particular gravity which, in accordance with paragraph 4 of article XII of the Convention, shall, including relevant information and conclusions, be brought to the attention of the General Assembly and the Security Council by the Conference of the States Parties, through the Secretary-General, in accordance with the existing United Nations procedures;

(c) OPCW shall, in accordance with paragraph 27 of Part XI of the Verification Annex, closely cooperate with the Secretary-General in cases of the alleged use of chemical weapons involving a State not party to the Convention or in a territory not controlled by a State Party to the Convention and, if so requested, shall in such cases place its resources at the disposal of the Secretary-General;

(d) OPCW and the United Nations shall, in accordance with their respective mandates, explore possibilities for cooperation in the provision of assistance to States concerned in cases of the use or serious threat of use of chemical weapons, as provided for in paragraph 10 of article X of the Convention;

(e) OPCW and the United Nations shall, insofar as covered by their respective mandates, in the context of economic and technological development in their member States, cooperate to foster international co-operation for peaceful purposes in the field of chemical activities and facilitating the exchange of chemicals, equipment and scientific and technical information relating to the development and application of chemistry for purposes not prohibited under the Convention; and

(f) The United Nations and OPCW shall cooperate on any matter that may relate to the object and purpose of the Convention, or which may arise in connection with its implementation.

3. OPCW, within its competence and in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, shall cooperate with the General Assembly and the Security Council by furnishing them, at the request of either, such information and assistance as may be required in the exercise of their respective responsibilities under the Charter of the United Nations.

4. The United Nations and OPCW shall cooperate in the field of public information and shall arrange, upon request, for the exchange of information, publications and reports of mutual interest and for the furnishing of special reports and studies and information.

5. The Secretariat of the United Nations and the Technical Secretariat of OPCW shall maintain a close working relationship in accordance with such arrangements as may be agreed between the Secretary-General and the Director-General.

Article IIICoordination

The United Nations and OPCW recognize the necessity of achieving, where applicable, effective coordination of the activities and services of OPCW and of the United Nations, and of avoiding unnecessary duplication of their activities and services.

Article IVReporting

1. The Director-General will keep the United Nations informed of the routine activities of OPCW, and will report on a regular basis, as appropriate and as duly mandated by the Executive Council, through the Secretary-General to the General Assembly and the Security Council.

2. If the Executive Council takes a decision to provide, pursuant to article X of the Convention, supplementary assistance to a State Party to the Convention requesting such assistance in connection with the use or threat of use of chemical weapons, the Director-General (representing OPCW, as specified in this Agreement) shall transmit to the Secretary-General (representing the United Nations, as specified in this Agreement) the above-mentioned decision of the Executive Council, together with the investigation report prepared by the Technical Secretariat in connection with the request for such assistance.

3. Whenever decisions are taken by the Conference of the States Parties, pursuant to article XII of the Convention, on measures, including collective measures recommended to States Parties, to ensure compliance with the Convention and to redress and remedy any situation which contravenes the provisions of the Convention, the Director-General, upon instructions from the Conference, shall inform the General Assembly and the Security Council accordingly, through the Secretary-General.

4. Should the Secretary-General report to the United Nations on the common activities of the United Nations and OPCW or on the development of relations between them, any such report shall be promptly transmitted by the Secretary-General to OPCW.

5. Should the Director-General report to OPCW on the common activities of OPCW and the United Nations or on the development of relations between them, any such report shall be promptly transmitted by the Director-General to the United Nations.

Article V

Reciprocal representation

1. The Secretary-General shall be entitled to attend and to participate in relation to matters of common interest, without vote and in accordance with the relevant rules of procedure, in sessions of the Conference of the States Parties and in sessions of the Executive Council of OPCW. The Secretary-General shall also be invited, as appropriate, to attend and to participate without vote in such other meetings as OPCW may convene at which matters of interest to the United Nations are under consideration. The Secretary-General may, for the purposes of this paragraph, designate any person as his/her representative.

2. The Director-General shall be entitled to attend plenary meetings of the General Assembly of the United Nations for the purpose of consultations. The Director-General shall be entitled to attend and to participate without vote in the meetings of the Committees of the General Assembly and in meetings of the Economic and Social Council and, as appropriate, of any subsidiary organs of these bodies and the General Assembly. The Director-General may, at the invitation of the Security Council, attend its meetings to supply the Council, as duly mandated by the Executive Council, with information or give other assistance with regard to matters within the competence of OPCW. The Director-General may, for the purposes of this paragraph, designate any person as his/her representative.

3. Written statements presented by the United Nations to OPCW for distribution shall be distributed by the Technical Secretariat of OPCW to all members of the appropriate organ(s) or subsidiary organ(s) of OPCW. Written statements presented by OPCW to the United Nations for distribution shall be distributed by the Secretariat of the United Nations to all members of the appropriate organ(s) or subsidiary organ(s) of the United Nations.

Article VI

Agenda items

1. The United Nations may propose agenda items for consideration by OPCW. In such cases, the United Nations shall notify the Director-General of the agenda item or items concerned, and the Director-General shall, in accordance with his/her authority and the relevant rules of procedure, bring any such agenda item or items to the attention of the Conference of the States Parties, the Executive Council or such other organ(s) of OPCW as may be appropriate.

2. OPCW may propose agenda items for consideration by the United Nations. In such cases, OPCW shall notify the Secretary-General of the agenda item or items concerned, and the Secretary-General shall, in accordance with his/her authority, bring any such item or items to the attention of the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council or such other organ(s) of the United Nations as may be appropriate.

Article VII

International Court of Justice

1. The United Nations takes note of article XIV, paragraph 5, of the Convention, which empowers the Conference of the States Parties or the Executive Council of OPCW, subject to authorization from the General Assembly of the United Nations, to request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question(s) arising from within the scope of activities of OPCW, apart from any question(s) concerning the mutual relationship between OPCW and the United Nations.

2. The United Nations and OPCW agree that each such request for an advisory opinion shall first be submitted to the General Assembly, which will decide upon the request in accordance with Article 96 of the Charter.

3. When seeking an advisory opinion, as referred to in paragraph 1 of this article, OPCW agrees to furnish, in accordance with the Confidentiality Annex to the Convention and the OPCW Policy on Confidentiality, any such information as may be required by the International Court of Justice in accordance with the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

Article VIII

Resolutions of the United Nations

The Secretary-General shall transmit to the Director-General resolutions of the General Assembly or the Security Council pertaining to issues relevant to the Convention. Upon receipt thereof, the Director-General will bring the resolutions concerned to the attention of the relevant organs of OPCW and will report back to the Secretary-General on any action taken by OPCW, as appropriate.

Article IX

United Nations laissez-passar

Officials of OPCW shall be entitled, in accordance with such administrative arrangements as may be concluded between the Secretary-General and the Director-General, to use the laissez-passar of the United Nations as a valid travel document where such use is recognized by States Parties in the applicable instruments defining the privileges and immunities of OPCW and its officials. The administrative arrangements will take into account, to the extent possible, the special requirements of OPCW arising from its verification activities under the Convention.

Article X

Personnel arrangements

1. The United Nations and OPCW agree to consult whenever necessary concerning matters of common interest relating to the terms and conditions of employment of staff.

2. The United Nations and OPCW agree to cooperate regarding the exchange of personnel, bearing in mind the nationality of States members of OPCW, and to determine conditions of such cooperation in supplementary arrangements to be concluded for that purpose in accordance with article XIV of this Agreement.

Article XI

Budgetary and financial matters

1. OPCW recognizes the desirability of establishing budgetary and financial cooperation with the United Nations in order that OPCW may benefit from the experience of the United Nations in this field and in order to ensure, as far as may be practicable, the consistency of the administrative operations of the two organizations in this field.

2. The United Nations may arrange for studies to be undertaken concerning budgetary and financial matters of interest to OPCW with a view, as far as may be practicable, to achieving coordination and securing consistency in such matters.

3. OPCW agrees to follow, as far as may be practicable, the standard budgetary and financial practices and forms used by the United Nations.

Article XII

Expenses

Expenses resulting from any cooperation or provision of services pursuant to this Agreement shall be subject to separate arrangements between OPCW and the United Nations.

Article XIII

Protection of confidentiality

1. Subject to paragraphs 1 and 3 of article II, nothing in this Agreement shall be so construed as to require either the United Nations or OPCW to furnish any material, data and information whose disclosure could, in its judgement, require it to violate its obligation, under its constituent instrument or policy on confidentiality, to protect such information.

2. The United Nations and OPCW shall ensure the appropriate protection, in accordance with their constituent instruments and policies on confidentiality, in respect to such information.

Article XIV

Implementation of the Agreement

The Secretary-General and the Director-General may enter into such supplementary arrangements and develop such practical measures for the implementation of this Agreement as may be found desirable.

Article XV

Amendments

This Agreement may be amended by mutual consent between the United Nations and OPCW. Any such amendment, once agreed upon, shall enter into force on the date on which the United Nations and OPCW have exchanged written notifications that their internal requirements for entry into force have been met.

Article XVI

Entry into force

1. This Agreement shall enter into force on the date on which the United Nations and OPCW have exchanged written notifications that their internal requirements for entry into force have been met.

2. This Agreement shall be applied provisionally by the United Nations and OPCW upon signature.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned, being duly authorized representatives of the United Nations and OPCW, have signed the present Agreement.

SIGNED this 17th day of October 2000 at New York in two originals in the English language.

For the United Nations
(Signed) Louise FRÉCHETTE
Deputy Secretary-General

For the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons
(Signed) José M. BUSTANI
Director-General

On 7 December [meeting 80], the Assembly adopted resolution 56/42 [draft: A/56/L.30] without vote [agenda item 21 (i)].

Cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/283 of 7 September 2001, in which it approved the Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons, and the decision of 17 May 2001 of the Conference of the States Parties to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction to approve the Agreement,

Having received the annual report for 2000 of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons on the implementation of the Convention,

1. Welcomes the entry into force of the Agreement concerning the Relationship between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons;

2. Takes note of the annual report for 2000 of the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons submitted by its Director-General on its behalf;

3. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the sub-item entitled "Cooperation between the United Nations and the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons".

Conventional weapons

---

The United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All its Aspects was one of the major disarmament events in 2001. The Programme of Action adopted by the Conference was seen as a significant first step towards curbing the illicit trade and proliferation of those weapons. However, several important issues were not included in the document; no agreement was reached on restricting the supply of small arms and light weapons to Governments; the issue of prohibition of unrestricted trade and private ownership of small arms and light weapons designed for military purposes remained outside the document; and it contained no commitment to negotiate international legal instruments on marking and tracing small arms and light weapons or on regulating brokering activities in their transfers. In related action, the General Assembly, prior to the Conference, had adopted a Protocol against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Their Parts and Components and Ammunition (resolution 55/255) (see p. 1036), which was designed to strengthen cooperation among States in order to prevent, combat and eradicate illicit activities involving firearms and ammunition, and supplemented the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime.

Other major activities relating to certain conventional weapons were carried out within the framework of preparations for the Second Review Conference of the States Parties to the 1980 Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects [YUN 1980, p. 76] and at the Review Conference itself, held in December. Regarding anti-personnel mines, the Third Annual Conference of the States Parties to Amended Protocol II to the 1980 Convention took place, as did the Third Meeting of the States Parties to the 1997 Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction [YUN 1997, p. 503].

During the year, a number of activities contributed to a wider acceptance by Governments of the UN Register of Conventional Arms, which remained the most well-known instrument of transparency for conventional weapons. However, differences persisted among Member States regarding the Register's future development, especially on expanding its scope to include data on military holdings and procurement through national production, on the same basis as data on transfers. The question of the inclusion of weapons of mass destruction continued to be controversial.

Small arms

Expert meetings. The Group of Governmental Experts on Small Arms, established pursuant to General Assembly resolution 54/54 V [YUN 1999, p. 487], completed its study on the feasibility of restricting the manufacture and trade of small arms and light weapons to manufacturers and dealers authorized by States (third and final session, New York, 5-9 February). It also held informal meetings (Ottawa, Canada, 29 January-2 February) [A/CONF.192/PC/33 & A/CONF.192/2]. The Group identified and evaluated options and approaches at the national, regional and global levels related to manufacturing, stockpiles and surplus weapons, and trade, including brokering and related activities.

Illicit traffic

Reports of Secretary-General. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/33 F [YUN 2000, p. 520], the Secretary-General, in a July report [A/56/182], described UN initiatives and regional and subregional efforts to assist States to curb the illicit traffic in small arms and to collect them. He described requests for assistance received from Albania, Cambodia, the Congo, Kenya, Niger and Papua New Guinea, and the UN response thereto.

In response to Assembly resolution 55/33 Q [YUN 2000, p. 519], the Secretary-General, in an August report [A/56/296], provided an overview of his ongoing consultations on illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons. He presented the outcome of meetings convened under UN auspices, by regional and subregional organizations and by States or groups of States (see pp. 511-14). Annexed to the report were the views of 12 Member States on the types and quantities of surplus, confiscated or collected small arms and light weapons that had been destroyed, and on their methods of destruction.

UN Conference

The United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects (New York, 9-20 July 2001) [A/CONF.192/15] adopted the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects. States participating at the Conference numbered 169. UN bodies, other international and regional organizations and NGOs also participated.

The Programme of Action contained commitments at the national, regional and global levels for combating the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons, measures for enhancing cooperation among States and for assisting those affected, as well as a follow-up mechanism to oversee implementation and further development.

States were committed to develop, strengthen and implement agreed norms and measures to prevent, combat and eradicate illicit manufacture and trade. The Programme emphasized post-conflict regions and promoting responsible action by States regarding small weapons' export, import, transit and retransfer. States were also committed to developing or strengthening national legislation and administrative measures and to criminalizing illicit activities; to applying unique markings on and accurate record-keeping of each weapon; to destroying illicit or surplus weapons as necessary; and to enhancing transparency. They agreed to support national disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes; to further enhance cooperation among themselves in tracing and identifying illicit arms; and to assist affected States. The Programme of Action encouraged the United Nations and other international organizations to undertake initiatives to promote its implementation. It requested the Secretary-General, through the Department for Disarmament Affairs (DDA), to collate and circulate data and information on the Programme's implementation, provided by States on a voluntary basis. A conference would be convened no later than 2006 to review progress made in implementing the Programme. In the interim, biennial meetings would be held for that purpose, and a UN study would be undertaken to examine the feasibility of developing an international instrument to identify and trace small arms and light weapons.

A statement by the Conference President, annexed to the report, while noting that the Conference had taken a significant step forward, expressed disappointment that agreement could not be reached on the need to establish and maintain controls over private ownership of small arms and light weapons and the need to prevent the sales of those weapons to non-State groups.

Preparatory Committee

The Preparatory Committee for the Conference held its second (8-19 January) and third (19-30 March) sessions, both in New York [A/CONF.192/1]. At those sessions, the Committee considered a large number of proposals by Member States on the draft programme of action and documents transmitted by them, including a statement by South Africa [A/CONF.192/PC/31], on its unilateral destruction of surplus small arms; by Bulgaria [A/CONF.192/PC/37], views and suggestions on regional and subregional activities; by France [A/CONF.192/PC/38], a summary of the Franco-Swiss Seminar on the Traceability of Small Arms and Light Weapons (Geneva, 12-13 March); and by Namibia [A/CONF.192/PC/35], the text of the Declaration concerning Firearms, Ammunition and Other Related Materials in the Southern African Development Community (see p. 511).

The Committee adopted a decision, based on a joint proposal by Brazil, Mali, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom [A/CONF.192/PC/57], to proclaim the first day of the Conference "Small Arms Destruction Day", and to call on States to organize voluntarily on that day the public destruction of small arms and light weapons. It also recommended that the draft programme of action, drawn up on the basis of the Chairman's working paper, be forwarded to the Conference for further consideration and that the Conference be held at the ministerial level. The Committee adopted several procedural decisions.

Communication. On 9 July [S/2001/732], Colombia proposed an open debate on the question of small arms in the Security Council in August, under its Presidency. Among the proposed issues for consideration was the outcome of the Conference.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 31 August [meeting 4362], the Security Council President made statement S/PRST/2001/21 on behalf of the Council:

The Security Council reaffirms the statement of its President of 24 September 1999 (S/PRST/1999/28) and its resolution 1209(1998) of 19 November 1998, and notes with grave concern that the destabilizing accumulation and uncontrolled spread of small arms and light weapons in many regions of the world increases the intensity and duration of armed conflicts, undermines the sustainability of peace agreements, impedes the success of peace-building, frustrates efforts aimed at the prevention of armed conflict, hinders considerably the provision of humanitarian assistance, and compromises the effectiveness of the Security Council in discharging its primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security. The Council expressed grave concern at the harmful impact of small arms and light weapons on civilians in situations of armed conflict, particularly on vulnerable groups such as women and children, and recalls in this regard its resolutions 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000 and 1314(2000) of 11 August 2000.

The Council further notes with satisfaction the growing awareness within the international community of the problem of the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons as a challenge that involves security, humanitarian and development dimensions. In this regard the Council welcomes recent global and regional initiatives such as the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects; the Protocol against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Their Parts and Components and Ammunition, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime; the Document on Small Arms and Light Weapons adopted by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe; the resolution on small arms of the Council of Ministers of the European Union; the Bamako Declaration on an African Common Position on the Illicit Proliferation, Circulation and Trafficking of Small Arms and Light Weapons; and the extension of the Economic Community of West African States Moratorium on the Production and Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons.

The Council welcomes the adoption of the Programme of Action of the United Nations Conference in the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, and calls on all Member States to take the required measures to promptly implement the recommendations contained therein. The Council recognizes its responsibility in assisting in the implementation of this Programme of Action, and stresses that the success of this Programme depends on the political will and efforts of Member States to implement its measures at the national, regional and global levels, as well as on the provision of international cooperation and assistance and on the follow-up agreed by the Conference, including the convening of a review conference no later than 2006.

The Council reaffirms the inherent right of individual or collective self-defence in accordance with Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations and, subject to the Charter, the right of each State to import, produce and retain small arms and light weapons for its self-defence and security needs. Bearing in mind the considerable volume of licit trade in small arms and light weapons, the Council underlines the vital importance of effective national regulations and controls for this trade. In this regard, arms-exporting countries should exercise the highest degree of responsibility in small arms and light weapons transactions, and all countries have the responsibility to prevent their illegal diversion and re-export, so as to stem the leakage of legal weapons to illegal markets. The Council also stresses the importance of international cooperation to enable States to identify and trace in a timely and reliable manner illicit small arms and light weapons.

The Council underlines the importance of practical disarmament measures in averting armed conflicts and encourages States and relevant international and regional organizations to facilitate the appropriate cooperation of civil society actors in activities related to the prevention and combating of the excessive and destabilizing accumulation of and illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, including facilitating greater awareness and better understanding of the nature and scope of this problem.

The Council recognizes the important role of regional and subregional organizations in providing useful information and perspectives on the regional and subregional dimensions that characterize arms flows to conflicts, and underscores the importance of regional agreements and cooperation in this regard.

The Council emphasizes the importance of the effective collection and control of small arms and light weapons, and of their storage and destruction, as appropriate, in the context of disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programmes, as well as other measures that may contribute to the effective disposal of small arms and light weapons, and to prevention of the spread of these weapons to other regions. To this end, the Council welcomes the publication by the Secretary-General of the Handbook on Environmentally Sound Methods of Destruction of Small Arms, Light Weapons, Ammunition and Explosives. The Council stresses the importance of incorporating, on a case-by-case basis, in the negotiation, consolidation and implementation of peace agreements, as well as in the mandates of United Nations peacekeeping operations, appropriate provisions for the disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of ex-combatants, taking into account the special needs of child soldiers.

The Council reiterates its call for the effective implementation of arms embargoes imposed by the Council in its relevant resolutions, and encourages Member States to provide the Sanctions Committees with available information on alleged violations of arms embargoes. The Council expresses its determination to continue to improve the efficiency of the arms embargoes imposed by the Council on a case-by-case basis, including through the establishment of specific monitoring mechanisms or similar arrangements as appropriate. The Council stresses the need to engage the relevant international organizations, non-governmental organizations, business and financial institutions and other actors at the international, regional and local levels to contribute to the implementation of arms embargoes.

The Council stresses the need for cooperation and sharing of information among the Member States, and among the different Sanctions Committees on arms traffickers that have violated arms embargoes established by the Council. This information could also be provided to Interpol's International Weapons and Explosives Tracking System database or any other relevant database that may be developed for this purpose.

The Council stresses the need for innovative strategies to address the relationship between the illicit exploitation of natural and other resources and the purchase and trade in illegal weapons in those situations under its consideration. The Council expresses its intention to continue to consider employing effective measures to prevent the illicit exploitation of natural and other resources from fuelling those conflicts. In this regard, information on financial or other transactions fuelling the illicit flow of arms to those conflicts should be made available to the Council.

The Council requests the Secretary-General to include in his reports regarding relevant situations under consideration in the Council analytical assessments on the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons including, to the extent possible and within available resources, availability, stockpiling, lines of supply, brokering, transportation arrangements and financial networks for these weapons, as well as their humanitarian impact, especially on children.

The Council recognizes the role of the Secretary-General in supporting the coordination of all United Nations activities to combat the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons. In this connection, the Council requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the Council by September 2002 containing specific recommendations on ways and means in which the Council may contribute to deal with the question of illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in situations under its consideration, taking into account the views of Member States, recent experiences in the field and the contents of this statement.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 U without vote [agenda item 74 (g)].

Assistance to States for curbing the illicit traffic in small arms and collecting them

The General Assembly,

Considering that the proliferation and illicit circulation of arms and traffic in small arms impede development, constitute a threat to populations and to national and regional security and are a factor contributing to the destabilization of States,

Deeply disturbed by the magnitude of the proliferation, illicit circulation and traffic of small arms in the States of the Sahelo-Saharan subregion,

Noting with satisfaction the conclusions of the United Nations advisory missions dispatched by the Secretary-General to the affected countries of the subregion to study the most appropriate way of halting the illicit circulation of small arms and collecting them,

Welcoming the designation of the Department for Disarmament Affairs of the Secretariat as a centre for the coordination of all activities of United Nations bodies concerned with small arms,

Thanking the Secretary-General for his report on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa, and bearing in mind the statement on small arms made by the President of the Security Council on 24 September 1999,

Welcoming the recommendations resulting from the meetings of the States of the subregion held at Banjul, Algiers, Bamako, Yamoussoukro and Niamey to establish close regional cooperation with a view to strengthening security,

Welcoming also the initiative taken by the Economic Community of West African States concerning the declaration of a moratorium on the importation, exportation and manufacture of small arms and light weapons in West Africa,

Recalling the Algiers Declaration adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity at its thirty-fifth ordinary session, held at Algiers from 12 to 14 July 1999,

Emphasizing the need to advance efforts towards wider cooperation and better coordination in the struggle against the accumulation, proliferation and widespread use of small arms through the common understanding reached at the meeting on small arms held at Oslo on 13 and 14 July 1998 and the Brussels Call for Action adopted by the International Conference on Sustainable Disarmament for Sustainable Development, held at Brussels on 12 and 13 October 1998,

Bearing in mind the Bamako Declaration on an African Common Position on the Illicit Proliferation, Circulation and Trafficking of Small Arms and Light Weapons, adopted at Bamako on 1 December 2000,

Taking note of the millennium report of the Secretary-General,

Welcoming the Programme of Action of the first United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, held in New York from 9 to 20 July 2001, Recognizing the important role that the organizations of civil society play in detection, prevention and arousing public awareness in efforts to curb the illicit traffic in small arms,

1. Notes with satisfaction the Declaration of the Ministerial Conference on Security, Stability, Development and Cooperation in Africa, held in Abuja on 8 and 9 May 2000, encourages the Secretary-General to pursue his action in the context of the implementation of resolution 49/75 G of 15 December 1994 and of the recommendations of the United Nations advisory missions, aimed at curbing the illicit circulation of small arms and collecting such arms in the affected States that so request, with the support of the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa and in close cooperation with the Organization of African Unity;

2. Encourages the establishment in the countries of the Sahelo-Saharan subregion of national commissions to combat the proliferation of small arms, and invites the international community to lend its support wherever possible to ensure the smooth functioning of the said commissions;

3. Welcomes the Declaration of a Moratorium on the Importation, Exportation and Manufacture of Small Arms and Light Weapons in West Africa, adopted by the heads of State and Government of the Economic Community of West African States in Abuja on 31 October 1998, and encourages the international community to support the implementation of the said moratorium;

4. Encourages the involvement of civil society organizations and associations in the efforts of the national committees to combat the illicit traffic in small arms and their participation in the implementation of the moratorium on the importation, exportation and manufacture of small arms and light weapons in West Africa;

5. Takes note of the conclusions of the meeting of Ministers for Foreign Affairs of the Economic Community of West African States, held in Bamako on 24 and 25 March 1999, with respect to the modalities for implementing the Programme for Coordination and Assistance for Security and Development, and welcomes the adoption by the meeting of a plan of action;

6. Encourages cooperation between State organs, international organizations and civil society in combating the illicit traffic in small arms and supporting operations to collect the said arms in the subregions;

7. Invites the Secretary-General and those States and organizations that are in a position to do so to provide assistance to States for curbing the illicit traffic in small arms and collecting them;

8. Calls upon the international community to provide technical and financial support to strengthen the capacity of civil society organizations to take action to combat the illicit trade in small arms;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to consider the matter and to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

10. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Assistance to States for curbing the illicit traffic in small arms and collecting them".

On 24 December [meeting 92], the Assembly, also on the recommendation of the First Committee

[A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 V without vote [agenda item 74 (q)].

The illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 50/70 B of 12 December 1995, 52/38 J of 9 December 1997, 53/77 E and 53/77 T of 4 December 1998, 54/54 R of 1 December 1999, 54/54 V of 15 December 1999 and 55/33 Q of 20 November 2000,

Recalling also its decision 55/415 of 20 November 2000 to convene the United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects in New York from 9 to 20 July 2001,

Welcoming the adoption by consensus of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects by the Conference, held in New York from 9 to 20 July 2001,

1. Decides to convene a conference, no later than 2006, to review progress made in the implementation of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, the date and venue to be decided by the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session;

2. Also decides to convene a meeting of States on a biennial basis, commencing in 2003, to consider the national, regional and global implementation of the Programme of Action;

3. Calls upon all States to implement the Programme of Action;

4. Encourages the United Nations and other appropriate international and regional organizations to undertake initiatives to promote the implementation of the Programme of Action;

5. Encourages non-governmental organizations and civil society to engage, as appropriate, in all aspects of international, regional, subregional and national efforts to implement the Programme of Action;

6. Encourages all States to promote and strengthen regional and subregional initiatives to prevent, combat and eradicate the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects;

7. Continues to encourage States to take appropriate national measures to destroy surplus, confiscated or collected small arms and light weapons, subject to any legal constraint associated with the preparation of criminal prosecutions, unless another form of disposition or use has been officially authorized and provided that such weapons have been duly marked and registered, and to submit, on a voluntary basis, information to the Secretary-General on types and quantities destroyed as well as the methods of their destruction or disposition;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that resources and expertise are made available to the Secretariat to promote the implementation of the Programme of Action;

9. Encourages all initiatives to mobilize resources and expertise to promote the implementation of the Programme of Action and to provide assistance to States in their implementation of the Programme of Action;

10. Requests the Secretary-General to undertake a United Nations study, commencing during the fifty-sixth session of the General Assembly, within available financial resources and with any other assistance provided by States in a position to do so, and with the assistance of governmental experts appointed by him on the basis of equitable geographical representation, while seeking the views of States, to examine the feasibility of developing an international instrument to enable States to identify and trace, in a timely and reliable manner, illicit small arms and light weapons and to submit the study to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session;

11. Decides to consider at its fifty-seventh session further steps to enhance international cooperation in preventing, combating and eradicating illicit brokering in small arms and light weapons;

12. Requests the Secretary-General, within existing resources, through the Department for Disarmament Affairs of the Secretariat, to collate and circulate data and information provided by States on a voluntary basis, including national reports, on the implementation by those States of the Programme of Action;

13. Also requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

14. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session an item entitled "The illicit trade in small arms and light weapons in all its aspects".

Convention on excessively injurious conventional weapons and Protocols

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/37 [YUN 2000, p. 522], the Secretary-General reported on the status, as at 31 May [A/56/163], of the 1980 Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects and its three annexed Protocols [YUN 1980, p. 76]: on Non-Detectable Fragments (Protocol I); on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Mines, Booby Traps and Other Devices, as amended on 3 May 1996 (Protocol II) [YUN 1996, p. 484]; and on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Incendiary Weapons (Protocol III); as well as the 1995 Protocol on Blinding Laser Weapons (Protocol IV) [YUN 1995, p. 221], which had taken effect on 30 July 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 530].

The accession of Bolivia, Mali, Nauru and the Republic of Korea and the succession of Yugoslavia brought the number of States parties to the Convention to 88 as at 31 December.

As decided by the Second Annual Conference of the States Parties to Amended Protocol II in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 521], the Third Annual Conference was held in Geneva on 10 December [CCW/AP.II/CONF.3/4 (Parts I and II) & Corr.1,2]. The Conference reviewed the operation and status of amended Protocol II and examined 38 national reports received from 36 States parties, containing information on dissemination of information on the Protocol to armed forces and civilians; mine clearance and rehabilitation programmes; steps taken to meet technical requirements of the Protocol and other relevant information; legislation related to the Protocol; measures taken on international technical information exchange, on international cooperation on mine clearance, and on technical cooperation and assistance; and other relevant matters. The Conference adopted a final document, containing conclusions and recommendations and an appeal to States that had not done so to accede to amended Protocol II as soon as possible. The Conference recommended that the Secretary-General, as depositary, and the President of the Conference exercise their authority to achieve the goal of universality of the Protocol and called on States parties to promote wider adherence. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 56/28 (see below), the Conference decided to convene the Fourth Annual Conference in December 2002.

Second Review Conference

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/37 [YUN 2000, p. 522] and based on the decisions of the First Review Conference in 1995-1996 [YUN 1996, p. 484], the Second Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention met (Geneva, 11-21 December) [CCW/CONF.II/2] to review the scope and operation of the Convention and its annexed Protocols, and to consider proposals for amending them, as well as proposals for additional protocols relating to other categories of conventional weapons. The Preparatory Committee for the Conference held its second (2-6 April) [CCW/CONF.II/PC.2/1] and third (24-28 September) [CCW/CONF.II/PC.3/1] sessions, as well as informal intersessional consultations, all in Geneva.

The Conference, which was attended by 65 States parties, a number of signatory States and non-parties, the International Committee of the Red Cross, the United Nations Children's Fund and NGOs, adopted by consensus its report and Final Declaration. The Declaration contained a decision to amend article I of the Convention by extending its scope of application to situations referred to in article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, while excluding situations of internal disturbances and tensions—riots and isolated and sporadic acts of violence—as not being armed conflicts. Other parts of that decision contained some restrictions and explanations relating to the amendment.

The Final Declaration contained procedural decisions relating to: follow-up work on decisions of the Conference, to be overseen by a chairman-designate at a meeting of the States parties in December 2002; the establishment of a group of governmental experts to meet in 2002 to consider the issue of explosive remnants of war and to further explore the issue of mines other than anti-personnel mines; promotion of compliance with the Convention and its annexed Protocols; and consideration of issues concerning small-calibre weapons and ammunition. The Conference decided to convene the next review conference five years following the entry into force of any amendments adopted, but not later than 2006. The Conference proposed that the next review conference consider further measures in relation to other conventional weapons, which may be deemed to cause unnecessary suffering or to have indiscriminate effects.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/540], adopted resolution 56/28 without vote [agenda item 78].

Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/37 of 20 November 2000 and previous resolutions referring to the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects,

Recalling with satisfaction the adoption, on 10 October 1980, of the Convention, together with the Protocol on Non-Detectable Fragments (Protocol I), the Protocol on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Mines, Booby Traps and Other Devices (Protocol II) and the Protocol on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Incendiary Weapons (Protocol III), which entered into force on 2 December 1983,

Also recalling with satisfaction the adoption by the Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects, on 13 October 1995, of the Protocol on Blinding Laser Weapons (Protocol IV), and on 3 May 1996 of the amended Protocol on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Mines, Booby Traps and Other Devices (Protocol II), which entered into force on 30 July 1998 and 3 December 1998, respectively,

Welcoming the additional ratifications and acceptances of or accessions to the Convention, as well as the ratifications and acceptances of or accessions to amended Protocol II and Protocol IV,

Recalling the role played by the International Committee of the Red Cross in the elaboration of the Convention and the Protocols thereto,

Recalling also that the States parties at the Review Conference declared their commitment to keeping the provisions of Protocol II under review in order to ensure that the concerns regarding the weapons it covers are addressed, and that they would encourage the efforts of the United Nations and other organizations to address all problems of landmines,

Commending the efforts of the Secretary-General and the President of the First Annual Conference of States Parties to Amended Protocol II towards the promotion of the goal of universality of amended Protocol II,

Noting that, in conformity with article 8 of the Convention, conferences may be convened to examine amendments to the Convention or to any of the Protocols thereto, to examine additional protocols concerning other categories of conventional weapons not covered by existing Protocols or to review the scope and application of the Convention and the Protocols thereto and to examine any proposed amendments or additional protocols,

Noting also that, in accordance with article 13 of amended Protocol II, a conference of States parties to that Protocol shall be held annually for the purpose of consultations and cooperation on all issues in relation to the Protocol,

Noting further that the rules of procedure of the First Annual Conference of States Parties to Amended Protocol II provide for the invitation of States not parties to the Protocol, the International Committee of the Red Cross and interested non-governmental organizations to take part in the Conference,

Welcoming the particular efforts of the International Committee of the Red Cross in raising awareness of the humanitarian consequences of explosive remnants of war,

Welcoming also the results of the Second Annual Conference of States Parties to Amended Protocol II, held at Geneva from 11 to 13 December 2000,

Recalling the decision of States parties to the Convention to convene the next review conference from 11 to 21 December 2001, preceded by three sessions of the preparatory committee for the review conference, on 14 December 2000, from 2 to 6 April 2001 and from 24 to 28 September 2001, respectively,

Welcoming the convening, in the context of the preparatory process, of the informal open-ended consultations of the States parties to the Convention and other interested States at Geneva from 27 to 31 August 2001, which provided for structured discussions, building on work by the respective Friends of Chair on several issues pertaining to the Second Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention and the Preparatory Committee for the Second Review Conference,

1. Calls upon all States that have not yet done so to take all measures to become parties, as soon as possible, to the Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects and the Protocols thereto, in particular the amended Protocol on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Mines, Booby Traps and Other Devices (Protocol II), with a view to achieving the widest possible adherence to this instrument at an early date, and calls upon successor States to take appropriate measures so that ultimately adherence to these instruments will be universal;

2. Calls upon all States parties to the Convention that have not yet done so to express their consent to be bound by the Protocols to the Convention;

3. Welcomes the convening, on 10 December 2001, of the Third Annual Conference of States Parties to Amended Protocol II, in accordance with article 13 thereof, and calls upon all States parties to amended Protocol II to address at that meeting, inter alia, the question of holding the fourth annual conference in 2002;

4. Welcomes also the proposal contained in the Final Declaration of the Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention, adopted by consensus on 3 May 1996, that the next review conference consider the question of eventual further measures in relation to other conventional weapons which may be deemed to cause unnecessary suffering or to have indiscriminate effects;

5. Notes, therefore, the proposals put forward by States parties and the International Committee of the Red Cross for consideration by the 2001 Review Conference, concerning, inter alia, the following issues:

- (a) Compliance procedures and mechanisms;
- (b) Explosive remnants of war;
- (c) Extension of the scope of application of the Convention and the Protocols thereto to non-international armed conflicts;
- (d) Landmines other than anti-personnel mines;
- (e) Small-calibre ammunitions;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to render the necessary assistance and to provide such services, including summary records, as may be required for the Second Review Conference of the States Parties to the Convention as well as for any possible continuation of work after the Conference, should the States parties deem it appropriate;

7. Also requests the Secretary-General, in his capacity as depositary of the Convention and the Protocols thereto, to continue to inform the General Assembly periodically of ratifications and acceptances of and accessions to the Convention and the Protocols thereto;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Convention on Prohibitions or Restrictions on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects".

Practical disarmament

The group of interested States, established in 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 531] to examine and support concrete projects of practical disarmament, met four times in 2001 (27 March, 17 May, 10 October and 13 December) to discuss practical disarmament measures in Cambodia, Kenya and Niger. The group continued to consider the provision of political and technical advice to several institutions involved in practical disarmament measures. Discussions in that regard focused on the Programme of Action adopted at the 2001 Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects (see p. 499) and its relevance to other practical disarmament measures under consideration.

Disarmament Commission action. In 2001 [A/56/42], the Disarmament Commission allocated to Working Group II the item entitled "Practical confidence-building measures in the field of conventional arms". The Group took note of a non-paper presented by the Chair, which was seen as a contribution to the Group's future work but required further discussion, elaboration and refinement. The non-paper was annexed to the Commission's report. On 26 April, the Working Group adopted its report by consensus.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 P without vote [agenda item 74 (h)].

Consolidation of peace through practical disarmament measures

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 51/45 N of 10 December 1996, 52/38 G of 9 December 1997, 53/77 M of 4 December 1998, 54/54 H of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 G of 20 November 2000,

Convinced that a comprehensive and integrated approach towards certain practical disarmament measures often is a prerequisite to maintaining and consolidating peace and security and thus provides a basis for effective post-conflict peace-building, namely the rehabilitation and social and economic development in areas that have suffered from conflict; such measures are, inter alia, collection and responsible disposal, preferably through destruction, of weapons obtained through illicit trafficking or illicit manufacture as well as of weapons and ammunition declared by competent national authorities to be surplus to requirements, particularly with regard to small arms and light weapons, unless another form of disposition or use has been officially authorized and provided that such weapons have been duly marked and registered; confidence-building measures; disarmament, demobilization and reintegration of former combatants; demining; and conversion,

Noting with satisfaction that the international community is more than ever aware of the importance of such practical disarmament measures, especially with regard to the growing problems arising from the excessive accumulation and uncontrolled spread of small arms and light weapons, which pose a threat to peace and security and reduce the prospects for economic development in many regions, particularly in post-conflict situations,

Stressing that further efforts are needed in order to develop and effectively implement programmes of practical disarmament in affected areas so as to complement, on a case-by-case basis, peacekeeping and peace-building efforts,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General prepared with the assistance of the Group of Governmental Experts on Small Arms, and in particular the recommendations contained therein, as an important contribution to the consolidation of the peace process through practical disarmament measures,

Taking into account the deliberations at the 2001 substantive session of the Disarmament Commission in Working Group II on agenda item 5, entitled "Practical confidence-building measures in the field of conventional arms", and encouraging the Disarmament Commission to continue its efforts aimed at the identification of such measures,

Welcoming the Programme of Action adopted by the United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, which should be implemented expeditiously,

1. Stresses, in the context of the present resolution, the particular relevance of the "Guidelines on conventional arms control/limitation and disarmament, with particular emphasis on consolidation of peace in the context of General Assembly resolution 51/45 N", adopted by the Disarmament Commission by consensus at its 1999 substantive session;

2. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the consolidation of peace through practical disarmament measures, submitted pursuant to resolution 51/45 N, and once again encourages Member States, as well as regional arrangements and agencies, to lend their support to the implementation of recommendations contained therein;

3. Welcomes the activities undertaken by the group of interested States that was formed in New York in March 1998, and invites the group to continue to analyse lessons learned from previous disarmament and peace-building projects, as well as to promote new practical disarmament measures to consolidate peace, especially as undertaken or designed by affected States themselves;

4. Encourages Member States, including the group of interested States, to lend their support to the Secretary-General in responding to requests by Member States to collect and destroy small arms and light weapons in post-conflict situations;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution, taking into consideration the activities of the group of interested States in this regard;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Consolidation of peace through practical disarmament measures".

Transparency

Conference on Disarmament. In 2001, the issue of transparency in armaments was considered during plenary meetings of the Conference on Disarmament [A/56/27] in connection with efforts to reach a comprehensive agreement on the establishment of subsidiary bodies on agenda items. Although the Conference did not establish or re-establish any mechanism to deal with transparency in armaments because it did not achieve consensus on a programme of work, the Special Coordinator for the review of the agenda of the Conference (see p. 469) stated that there was general agreement on retaining the item.

UN Register of Conventional Arms

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/33 U [YUN 2000, p. 524], the Secretary-General submitted the ninth annual report on the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms [A/56/257 & Add.1,2], which was established in 1992 [YUN 1992, p. 75] to promote enhanced levels of transparency on arms transfers.

The report presented information provided by 117 Governments on imports and exports during 2000 in the seven categories of conventional arms (battle tanks, armoured combat vehicles, large-calibre artillery systems, attack helicopters, combat aircraft, warships, and missiles and missile launchers). Governments also provided information on procurement from national production and military holdings. The report indicated a substantial increase in the number of submissions.

In response to the Assembly's request in resolution 55/33 U that the Secretary-General implement the recommendations contained in the 2000 report of the Group of Governmental Experts on the continuing operation and further development of the Register [YUN 2000, p. 524], the report outlined regional activities undertaken by the Secretariat during the year, through DDA, in collaboration with Governments and regional organizations, to enhance familiarity with and greater participation in the Register.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 Q by recorded vote (135-0-23) [agenda item 74 (s)].

Transparency in armaments

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 46/36 L of 9 December 1991, 47/52 L of 15 December 1992, 48/75 E of 16 December 1993, 49/75 C of 15 December 1994, 50/70 D of 12 December 1995, 51/45 H of 10 December 1996, 52/38 R of 9 December 1997, 53/77 V of 4 December 1998, 54/54 O of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 U of 20 November 2000 entitled "Transparency in armaments",

Continuing to take the view that an enhanced level of transparency in armaments contributes greatly to confidence-building and security among States and that the establishment of the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms constitutes an important step forward in the promotion of transparency in military matters,

Welcoming the consolidated report of the Secretary-General on the Register, which includes the returns of Member States for 2000,

Welcoming also the response of Member States to the request contained in paragraphs 9 and 10 of resolution 46/36 L to provide data on their imports and exports of arms, as well as available background information regarding their military holdings, procurement through national production and relevant policies,

Stressing that the continuing operation of the Register and its further development should be reviewed in order to secure a Register that is capable of attracting the widest possible participation,

1. Reaffirms its determination to ensure the effective operation of the United Nations Register of Conventional Arms, as provided for in paragraphs 7 to 10 of resolution 46/36 L;

2. Calls upon Member States, with a view to achieving universal participation, to provide the Secretary-General by 31 May annually with the requested data and information for the Register, including nil reports if appropriate, on the basis of resolutions 46/36 L and 47/52 L, the recommendations contained in paragraph 64 of the 1997 report of the Secretary-General on the continuing operation of the Register and its further development and the recommendations contained in paragraph 94 of the 2000 report of the Secretary-General and the appendices and annexes thereto;

3. Invites Member States in a position to do so, pending further development of the Register, to provide additional information on procurement from national production and military holdings and to make use of the "Remarks" column in the standardized reporting form to provide additional information such as types or models;

4. Reaffirms its decision, with a view to further development of the Register, to keep the scope of and participation in the Register under review and, to that end:

(a) Recalls its request to Member States to provide the Secretary-General with their views on the continuing operation of the Register and its further development and on transparency measures related to weapons of mass destruction;

(b) Requests the Secretary-General, with the assistance of a group of governmental experts to be convened in 2003, on the basis of equitable geographical representation, to prepare a report on the continuing operation of the Register and its further development, taking into account the work of the Conference on Disarmament, the views expressed by Member States and the reports of the Secretary-General on the continuing operation of the Register and its further development, with a view to a decision at its fifty-eighth session;

5. Also requests the Secretary-General to implement the recommendations contained in his 2000 report on the continuing operation of the Register and its further development and to ensure that sufficient resources are made available for the Secretariat to operate and maintain the Register;

6. Invites the Conference on Disarmament to consider continuing its work undertaken in the field of transparency in armaments;

7. Reiterates its call upon all Member States to cooperate at the regional and subregional levels, taking fully into account the specific conditions prevailing in the region or subregion, with a view to enhancing and coordinating international efforts aimed at increased openness and transparency in armaments;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on progress made in implementing the present resolution;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Transparency in armaments".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 Q:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Latvia, Lesotho, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritius, Micronesia, Monaco, Mongolia, Mozambique, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Swaziland, Sweden, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Algeria, Bahrain, China, Comoros, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Egypt, Iran, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Mauritania, Mexico, Morocco, Myanmar, Pakistan, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syrian Arab Republic, Tunisia, Yemen.

The First Committee adopted paragraphs 4 (b) and 6 by separate recorded votes of 123 to 4, with 13 abstentions, and 123 to none, with 17 abstentions, respectively. The Assembly retained the paragraphs by 133 to 4, with 12 abstentions, and 133 to none, with 17 abstentions, respectively.

Transparency of military expenditures

In response to General Assembly resolution 54/43 [YUN 1999, p. 497], the Secretary-General, in August [A/56/267], presented reports received from 59 Member States on military expenditures for the latest fiscal year for which data were available. The reporting instrument was that recommended by the Assembly in resolution 35/142 B [YUN 1980, p. 88].

Also in accordance with resolution 54/43, DDA facilitated and participated in a meeting of the Committee on Hemispheric Security of the Organization of American States (Washington, D.C., 4 May), which was devoted to arms transparency issues at the regional level.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/526], adopted resolution 56/14 without vote [agenda item 64 (b)].

Objective information on military matters, including transparency of military expenditures

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 53/72 of 4 December 1998 and 54/43 of 1 December 1999 on objective information on military matters, including transparency of military expenditures,

Also recalling its resolution 35/142 B of 12 December 1980, which introduced the United Nations system for the standardized reporting of military expenditures, and its resolutions 48/62 of 16 December 1993, 49/66 of 15 December 1994, 51/38 of 10 December 1996 and 52/32 of 9 December 1997, calling upon all Member States to participate in it, and its resolution 47/54 B of 9 December 1992, endorsing the guidelines and recommendations for objective information on military matters and inviting Member States to provide the Secretary-General with relevant information regarding their implementation,

Noting that since then national reports on military expenditures and on the guidelines and recommendations for objective information on military matters have been submitted by a number of Member States belonging to different geographic regions,

Convinced that the improvement of international relations forms a sound basis for promoting further openness and transparency in all military matters,

Also convinced that transparency in military matters is an essential element for building a climate of trust and confidence between States worldwide and that a better flow of objective information on military matters can help relieve international tension and is therefore an important contribution to conflict prevention,

Noting the role of the standardized reporting system, as instituted through its resolution 35/142 B, as an important instrument to enhance transparency in military matters,

Conscious that the value of the standardized reporting system would be enhanced by a broader participation of Member States,

Welcoming, therefore, the report of the Secretary-General on ways and means to implement the guidelines and recommendations for objective information on military matters, including, in particular, how to strengthen and broaden participation in the standardized reporting system,

Recalling that the guidelines and recommendations for objective information on military matters recommended certain areas for further consideration, such as the improvement of the standardized reporting system,

Noting the efforts of several regional organizations to promote transparency of military expenditures, including standardized annual exchanges of relevant information among their member States,

1. Calls upon Member States to report annually, by 30 April, to the Secretary-General their military expenditures for the latest fiscal year for which data are available, using, preferably and to the extent possible, the reporting instrument as recommended in its resolution 35/142 B or, as appropriate, any other format developed in conjunction with similar reporting on military expenditures to other international or regional organizations, and, in the same context, encourages Member States that have no information to provide to submit nil returns;

2. Recommends the guidelines and recommendations for objective information on military matters to all Member States for implementation, fully taking into account specific political, military and other conditions prevailing in a region, on the basis of initiatives and with the agreement of the States of the region concerned;

3. Encourages relevant international bodies and regional organizations to promote transparency of military expenditures and to enhance complementarity among reporting systems, taking into account the particular characteristics of each region, and to consider the possibility of an exchange of information with the United Nations;

4. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on objective information on military matters, including transparency of military expenditures;

5. Requests the Secretary-General, within available resources:

(a) To continue the practice of sending an annual note verbale to Member States requesting the submission of data to the standardized reporting system, together with the reporting format and related instructions, and to publish in a timely fashion in appropriate United Nations media the due date for transmitting data on military expenditures;

(b) To circulate annually the reports on military expenditures as received from Member States;

(c) To continue consultations with relevant international bodies with a view to ascertaining requirements for adjusting the present instrument, with a view to encouraging wider participation, and to make recommendations, based on the outcome of those consultations and taking into account the views of Member States, on necessary changes to the content and structure of the standardized reporting system;

(d) To encourage relevant international bodies and organizations to promote transparency of military expenditures and to consult with those bodies and organizations with emphasis on examining possibilities for enhancing complementarity among international and regional reporting systems and for exchanging related information between those bodies and the United Nations;

(e) To encourage the United Nations regional centres for peace and disarmament in Africa, in Asia and the Pacific, and in Latin America and the Caribbean to assist Member States in their regions in enhancing their knowledge of the standardized reporting system;

(f) To promote international and regional/sub-regional symposia and training seminars to explain the purpose of the standardized reporting system and to give relevant technical instructions;

(g) To report on experiences gained during such symposia and training seminars;

6. Encourages Member States:

(a) To inform the Secretary-General about possible problems with the standardized reporting system and their reasons for not submitting the requested data;

(b) To provide the Secretary-General, in time for deliberation by the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session, with their views and suggestions on ways and means to strengthen and broaden participation in the standardized reporting system, including necessary changes to its content and structure;

7. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Objective information on military matters, including transparency of military expenditures".

Verification

In response to General Assembly resolution 54/46 [YUN 1999, p. 498], the Secretary-General submitted a September report [A/56/347] updating developments since 1999 on the verification of treaties. The report contained the views of one Member State (Qatar) on the recommendations contained in the expert study on verification in all its aspects, including the UN role in verification [YUN 1995, p. 233].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/527], adopted resolution 56/15 without vote [agenda item 65].

Verification in all its aspects, including the role of the United Nations in the field of verification

The General Assembly,

Noting the critical importance of, and the vital contribution that has been made by, effective verification measures in arms limitation and disarmament agreements and other similar obligations,

Reaffirming its support for the sixteen principles of verification drawn up by the Disarmament Commission,

Recalling its resolutions 40/152 O of 16 December 1985, 41/86 Q of 4 December 1986, 42/42 F of 30 November 1987, 43/81 B of 7 December 1988, 45/65 of 4 December 1990, 47/45 of 9 December 1992, 48/68 of 16 December 1993, 50/61 of 12 December 1995, 52/31 of 9 December 1997 and 54/46 of 1 December 1999,

Recalling also the reports of the Secretary-General of 11 July 1986, 28 August 1990, 16 September 1992, 26 July 1993, 22 September 1995, 6 August 1997, 9 July 1999 and 10 September 2001, and the addenda thereto,

1. Reaffirms the critical importance of, and the vital contribution that has been made by, effective verification measures in arms limitation and disarmament agreements and other similar obligations;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session on further views received from Member States pursuant to resolutions 50/61, 52/31 and 54/46;

3. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Verification in all its aspects, including the role of the United Nations in the field of verification".

Anti-personnel mines

1997 Convention

The number of States parties to the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction (Mine-Ban Convention), which was adopted in 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 503] and entered into force in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 498], totalled 122 as at 31 December. During the year, 13 States ratified or acceded to the Convention.

The Third Meeting of the States Parties to the Convention (Managua, Nicaragua, 18-21 September) [APLC/MSP.3/2001/1], convened pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/33 V [YUN 2000, p. 526], reviewed the general status and operation of the Convention. It noted that 30 countries had destroyed their stockpile of anti-personnel mines completely, while 17 others were in the process of doing so, and that considerable areas of mined land had been cleared over the past year, casualty rates had been reduced in several of the world's most affected States and victim assistance had improved. On 21 September, the States parties adopted the President's Action Programme, which outlined specific initiatives and activities envisaged for the intersessional period and identified priorities for the coming year. They also adopted a Declaration, in which the States parties, reaffirming their commitment to the total eradication of anti-personnel mines and to addressing the inhumane effects of those weapons, called on all Governments and people to join in the common task to meet the challenges of mine action.

The Standing Committee on the general status and operation of the Convention noted that 34 States parties had reported that they had retained anti-personnel mines for training and development purposes. In 2001, the Standing Committee on mine clearance and related technologies became the Standing Committee on mine clearance, mine awareness and mine action technologies and the Standing Committee on victim assistance, socio-economic reintegration and mine awareness became the Standing Committee on victim assistance and socio-economic reintegration.

The Fourth Meeting of the States Parties was planned for September 2002 in Geneva.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 M by recorded vote (138-0-19) [agenda item 74 (t)].

Implementation of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 54/54 B of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 V of 20 November 2000,

Reaffirming its determination to put an end to the suffering and casualties caused by anti-personnel mines, which kill or maim hundreds of people every week, mostly innocent and defenceless civilians and especially children, obstruct economic development and reconstruction, inhibit the repatriation of refugees and internally displaced persons, and have other severe consequences for years after emplacement,

Believing it necessary to do the utmost to contribute in an efficient and coordinated manner to facing the challenge of removing anti-personnel mines placed throughout the world, and to ensure their destruction,

Wishing to do the utmost in ensuring assistance for the care and rehabilitation, including the social and economic reintegration, of mine victims,

Welcoming the entry into force on 1 March 1999 of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction, and noting with satisfaction the work undertaken to implement the Convention and the substantial progress made towards addressing the global landmine problem,

Recalling the First Meeting of States Parties to the Convention, held at Maputo from 3 to 7 May 1999, and the reaffirmation made in the Maputo Declaration of a commitment to the total eradication of anti-personnel mines,

Recalling also the Second Meeting of States Parties to the Convention, held at Geneva from 11 to 15 September 2000, and the Declaration of the Second Meeting of States Parties reaffirming the commitment to implement completely and fully all provisions of the Convention,

Recalling further the Third Meeting of States Parties to the Convention, held at Managua from 18 to 21 September 2001, and the Declaration of the Third Meeting of States Parties reaffirming the unwavering commitment both to the total eradication of anti-personnel mines and to addressing the insidious and inhumane effects of those weapons,

Noting with satisfaction that additional States have ratified or acceded to the Convention, bringing the total number of States that have formally accepted the obligations of the Convention to one hundred and twenty-two,

Emphasizing the desirability of attracting the adherence of all States to the Convention, and determined to work strenuously towards the promotion of its universalization,

Noting with regret that anti-personnel mines continue to be used in conflicts around the world, causing human suffering and impeding post-conflict development,

1. Invites all States that have not signed the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction to accede to it without delay;

2. Urges all States that have signed but not ratified the Convention to ratify it without delay;

3. Stresses the importance of the full and effective implementation of, and compliance with, the Convention;

4. Urges all States parties to provide the Secretary-General with complete and timely information, as required under article 7 of the Convention, in order to promote transparency and compliance with the Convention;

5. Invites all States that have not ratified the Convention or acceded to it to provide, on a voluntary basis, information to make global mine action efforts more effective;

6. Renews its call upon all States and other relevant parties to work together to promote, support and advance the care, rehabilitation and social and economic reintegration of mine victims, mine awareness programmes, and the removal of anti-personnel mines placed throughout the world and the assurance of their destruction;

7. Invites and encourages all interested States, the United Nations, other relevant international organizations or institutions, regional organizations, the International Committee of the Red Cross and relevant non-governmental organizations to participate in the programme of intersessional work established at the First Meeting of States Parties to the Convention and further developed at the Second and Third Meetings of States Parties to the Convention;

8. Requests the Secretary-General, in accordance with article 11, paragraph 2, of the Convention, to undertake the preparations necessary to convene the Fourth Meeting of States Parties to the Convention at Geneva from 16 to 20 September 2002, and, on behalf of States parties and in accordance with article 11, paragraph 4, of the Convention, to invite States not parties to the Convention, as well as the United Nations, other relevant international organizations or institutions, regional organizations, the International Committee of the Red Cross and relevant non-governmental organizations to attend the Meeting as observers;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Implementation of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 M:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kenya, Latvia, Lesotho, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Mozambique, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

both held in Lusaka, Zambia [A/56/457], requested assistance from the international community to eradicate small arms and light weapons from Africa.

At the subregional level, the heads of State and Government of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) (Lusaka, July) [S/2001/700] renewed for a second three-year period the 1998 ECOWAS Moratorium on the Importation, Exportation and Manufacture of Light Weapons in West Africa [YUN 1998, p. 537] as from 5 July 2001.

On 9 March [A/CONF.192/PC/35], member States of the Southern African Development Community, meeting in Windhoek, Namibia, adopted a Declaration concerning Firearms, Ammunition and Other Related Materials in the subregion.

Standing Advisory Committee

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/34 B [YUN 2000, p. 528], the Secretary-General, in August [A/56/285], described the activities of the United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa. At its fifteenth ministerial meeting (Bujumbura, Burundi, 16-20 April), the Standing Committee reviewed the geopolitical and security situation of its member States, examined cooperation on security matters among them and evaluated the implementation of its previous decisions.

In September, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) transmitted the report of the Committee's sixteenth ministerial meeting (Kinshasa, DRC, 13-17 August) [A/56/378-S/2001/890]. The Committee reviewed the geopolitical and security situation in Central Africa and intergovernmental cooperation in security matters there, and adopted its 2001-2002 work programme.

In December, the DRC transmitted the report of the subregional conference on the protection of women and children in armed conflict in Central Africa (Kinshasa, 14-16 November) [A/56/680-S/2001/1155], organized by the Standing Committee. The conference adopted a plan of action for implementation at the national, subregional and international levels.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/537], adopted resolution 56/25 A without vote [agenda item 75 (a)].

Regional confidence-building measures: activities of the United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the purposes and principles of the United Nations and its primary responsibility for the

Regional and other approaches to disarmament

Africa

In 2001, the Organization of African Unity (OAU) Council of Ministers, at its seventy-fourth ordinary session from 5 to 8 July, and the OAU Assembly of Heads of State and Government, at its thirty-seventh ordinary session from 9 to 11 July, maintenance of international peace and security in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling its resolutions 43/78 H and 43/85 of 7 December 1988, 44/21 of 15 November 1989, 45/58 M of 4 December 1990, 46/37 B of 6 December 1991, 47/53 F of 15 December 1992, 48/76 A of 16 December 1993, 49/76 C of 15 December 1994, 50/71 B of 12 December 1995, 51/46 C of 10 December 1996, 52/39 B of 9 December 1997, 53/78 A of 4 December 1998, 54/55 A of 1 December 1999 and 55/34 B of 20 November 2000,

Considering the importance and effectiveness of confidence-building measures taken at the initiative and with the participation of all States concerned and taking into account the specific characteristics of each region, since such measures can contribute to regional stability and to international peace and security,

Convinced that the resources released by disarmament, including regional disarmament, can be devoted to economic and social development and to the protection of the environment for the benefit of all peoples, in particular those of the developing countries,

Recalling the guidelines for general and complete disarmament adopted at its tenth special session, the first special session devoted to disarmament,

Convinced that development can be achieved only in a climate of peace, security and mutual confidence both within and among States,

Bearing in mind the establishment by the Secretary-General on 28 May 1992 of the United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa, the purpose of which is to encourage arms limitation, disarmament, non-proliferation and development in the subregion,

Recalling the Brazzaville Declaration on Cooperation for Peace and Security in Central Africa, the Bata Declaration for the Promotion of Lasting Democracy, Peace and Development in Central Africa, and the Yaoundé Declaration on Peace, Security and Stability in Central Africa,

Bearing in mind resolutions 1196(1998) and 1197(1998), adopted by the Security Council on 16 and 18 September 1998 respectively, following its consideration of the report of the Secretary-General on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa,

Emphasizing the need to strengthen the capacity for conflict prevention and peacekeeping in Africa,

Recalling the decision of the fourth ministerial meeting of the Standing Advisory Committee in favour of establishing, under the auspices of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, a subregional centre for human rights and democracy in Central Africa at Yaoundé,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on regional confidence-building measures, which deals with the activities of the United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa in the period since the adoption by the General Assembly of resolution 55/34 B;

2. Reaffirms its support for efforts aimed at promoting confidence-building measures at regional and subregional levels in order to ease tensions and conflicts in Central Africa and to further peace, stability and sustainable development in the subregion;

3. Also reaffirms its support for the programme of work of the Standing Advisory Committee adopted at the organizational meeting of the Committee, held at Yaoundé from 27 to 31 July 1992;

4. Notes with satisfaction the progress made by the States members of the Standing Advisory Committee in implementing the programme of activities for the period 2000-2001, in particular by:

(a) Holding the Subregional Conference on the Question of Refugees and Displaced Persons in Central Africa at Bujumbura from 14 to 16 August 2000;

(b) Holding the fourteenth ministerial meeting of the Standing Advisory Committee at Bujumbura on 17 and 18 August 2000;

(c) Holding the fifteenth ministerial meeting of the Standing Advisory Committee at Bujumbura from 16 to 20 April 2001;

(d) Holding the meeting of experts on the texts governing the Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa at Libreville from 2 to 5 July 2001;

(e) Holding the sixteenth ministerial meeting of the Standing Advisory Committee at Kinshasa from 13 to 17 August 2001;

5. Emphasizes the importance of providing the States members of the Standing Advisory Committee with the essential support they need to carry out the full programme of activities which they adopted at their ministerial meetings;

6. Welcomes the creation of a mechanism for the promotion, maintenance and consolidation of peace and security in Central Africa, to be known as the Council for Peace and Security in Central Africa, by the Conference of Heads of State and Government of the member countries of the Economic Community of Central African States, held at Yaoundé on 25 February 1999, and requests the Secretary-General to give his full support to the effective realization of that important mechanism;

7. Emphasizes the need to make the early warning mechanism in Central Africa operational so that it will serve, on the one hand, as an instrument for analysing and monitoring political situations in the States members of the Standing Advisory Committee with a view to preventing the outbreak of future armed conflicts and, on the other hand, as a technical body through which the member States will carry out the programme of work of the Committee, adopted at its organizational meeting held at Yaoundé in 1992, and requests the Secretary-General to provide it with the assistance necessary for it to function properly;

8. Requests the Secretary-General, pursuant to Security Council resolution 1197(1998), to provide the States members of the Standing Advisory Committee with the necessary support for the implementation and smooth functioning of the Council for Peace and Security in Central Africa and the early warning mechanism;

9. Also requests the Secretary-General to support the establishment of a network of parliamentarians with a view to the creation of a subregional parliament in Central Africa;

10. Requests the Secretary-General and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees to continue to provide increased assistance to the countries of Central Africa for coping with the problems of refugees and displaced persons in their territories;

11. Welcomes with satisfaction the decision taken at the fourteenth ministerial meeting to organize a subregional conference on the protection of women and children in armed conflict, and requests the Secretary-General to lend all the necessary support for the holding of the conference;

12. Thanks the Secretary-General for having established the Trust Fund for the United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa;

13. Appeals to Member States and to governmental and non-governmental organizations to make additional voluntary contributions to the Trust Fund for the implementation of the programme of work of the Standing Advisory Committee;

14. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide the States members of the Standing Advisory Committee with assistance to ensure that they are able to carry on their efforts;

15. Also requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution;

16. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Regional confidence-building measures: activities of the United Nations Standing Advisory Committee on Security Questions in Central Africa".

Asia and the Pacific

In 2001, the Association of South-East Asian Nations (ASEAN), its Regional Forum (ARF) and the Council for Security and Cooperation in Asia and the Pacific continued to address issues related to security and stability in the region. The UN Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific also contributed to confidence-building and stability in the region through its activities (see p. 521).

The ministers participating in the thirty-fourth ASEAN Ministerial Meeting (23-24 July) and the eight meeting of ARF (25 July), both held in Hanoi, Viet Nam, emphasized the importance of confidence-building, acknowledging that it remained the foundation and main thrust of the ARF process.

The Department for Disarmament Affairs, together with the Institute of Security and International Studies, Chulalongkorn University and the Embassy of Sri Lanka, all based in Thailand, co-sponsored a regional seminar on "International security issues: a call for regional co-operation" (Bangkok, 14 December). Discussions centred on the challenges posed by the illicit trafficking of small arms and light weapons in the region and how to tackle the issue within the context of the Programme of Action adopted by the 2001 UN Conference on small arms (see p. 499).

Europe

through the Euro-Atlantic Partnership Council and the NATO-Russian Permanent Joint Council, both established in 1997 [YUN 1997, pp. 518-19], as well as through the Partnership for Peace initiative, established in 1994 to promote bilateral co-operation between NATO and individual partner countries in the Euro-Atlantic area. In August/September, NATO collected weapons voluntarily handed over by Albanian militias in the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

The EU continued to implement its 1998 Joint Action on small arms [YUN 1998, p. 540] and published, in January, its second annual report on the implementation of the EU Code of Conduct for Arms Exports [ibid.]. States parties to the 1990 Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe (CFE Treaty) [YUN 1990, p. 79], at their Second Review Conference (Vienna, 28 May-1 June), reaffirmed the fundamental role of the Treaty as a cornerstone of European security.

On 18 June, negotiations were finalized on regional stability in Southern Europe, within the context of the 1995 General Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and Herzegovina (the Peace Agreement) [YUN 1995, p. 544]. The 20 participating States had achieved consensus on a concluding document containing a number of confidence- and security-building measures. The States parties to the 1996 Agreement on Sub-regional Arms Control [YUN 1996, p. 493], signed by Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina and Republika Srpska, Croatia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, continued to implement the Agreement and considered proposals for voluntary measures to increase confidence and transparency.

The European Council, in July, adopted two regulations that provided the basis for a coherent and effective approach for EU action on anti-personnel landmines in third countries. The Council, in a 15 November resolution, welcomed the results of the UN Conference on small arms and called for negotiations on a legally binding international instrument regulating arms brokering.

In November, the 1999 Stability Pact for South-Eastern Europe [YUN 1999, p. 397] launched a regional plan to combat the proliferation of small arms and light weapons, which was modelled after the Programme of Action adopted by the UN Conference on small arms (see p. 499).

The Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, in addition to efforts to promote conflict prevention and confidence-building measures, continued to play a leading role in the region regarding the issue of small arms and light weapons.

Latin America

The General Assembly of the Organization of American States (OAS) (San José, Costa Rica, 3-5 June) adopted a number of resolutions relating to peace, security and disarmament in the hemisphere, particularly regarding combating the illicit trafficking of firearms, confidence- and security-building measures, transparency in conventional weapons and anti-personnel mines. Regarding anti-personnel mines, OAS member States reaffirmed their goal of global elimination of those weapons, and of the advent of the western hemisphere as an anti-personnel-mine-free zone. At their eleventh summit (Lima, Peru, 23-24 November) [CD/1659], the heads of State and Government of Latin American countries and of Spain and Portugal (the Ibero-American Community) adopted the "Lima Declaration: United for Tomorrow", by which they condemned terrorism and reaffirmed support for the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco) [YUN 1967, p. 13] and the Managua Declaration adopted by the Third Meeting of the States Parties to the Mine-Ban Convention (see p. 509).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 H without vote [agenda item 74 (o)].

Regional disarmament

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 45/58 P of 4 December 1990, 46/36 I of 6 December 1991, 47/52 J of 9 December 1992, 48/75 I of 16 December 1993, 49/75 N of 15 December 1994, 50/70 K of 12 December 1995, 51/45 K of 10 December 1996, 52/38 P of 9 December 1997, 53/77 O of 4 December 1998, 54/54 N of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 O of 20 November 2000 on regional disarmament,

Believing that the efforts of the international community to move towards the ideal of general and complete disarmament are guided by the inherent human desire for genuine peace and security, the elimination of the danger of war and the release of economic, intellectual and other resources for peaceful pursuits,

Affirming the abiding commitment of all States to the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations in the conduct of their international relations,

Noting that essential guidelines for progress towards general and complete disarmament were adopted at the tenth special session of the General Assembly,

Taking note of the guidelines and recommendations for regional approaches to disarmament within the context of global security adopted by the Disarmament Commission at its 1993 substantive session,

Welcoming the prospects of genuine progress in the field of disarmament engendered in recent years as a result of negotiations between the two super-Powers,

Taking note of the recent proposals for disarmament at the regional and subregional levels,

Recognizing the importance of confidence-building measures for regional and international peace and security,

Convinced that endeavours by countries to promote regional disarmament, taking into account the specific characteristics of each region and in accordance with the principle of undiminished security at the lowest level of armaments, would enhance the security of all States and would thus contribute to international peace and security by reducing the risk of regional conflicts,

1. Stresses that sustained efforts are needed, within the framework of the Conference on Disarmament and under the umbrella of the United Nations, to make progress on the entire range of disarmament issues;

2. Affirms that global and regional approaches to disarmament complement each other and should therefore be pursued simultaneously to promote regional and international peace and security;

3. Calls upon States to conclude agreements, wherever possible, for nuclear non-proliferation, disarmament and confidence-building measures at the regional and subregional levels;

4. Welcomes the initiatives towards disarmament, nuclear non-proliferation and security undertaken by some countries at the regional and subregional levels;

5. Supports and encourages efforts aimed at promoting confidence-building measures at the regional and subregional levels to ease regional tensions and to further disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation measures at the regional and subregional levels;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Regional disarmament".

Also on 29 November [meeting 68], on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], the Assembly adopted resolution 56/24 I by recorded vote (151-1-1) [agenda item 74 (p)].

Conventional arms control at the regional and subregional levels

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 48/75 J of 16 December 1993, 49/75 O of 15 December 1994, 50/70 L of 12 December 1995, 51/45 Q of 10 December 1996, 52/38 Q of 9 December 1997, 53/77 P of 4 December 1998, 54/54 M of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 P of 20 November 2000,

Recognizing the crucial role of conventional arms control in promoting regional and international peace and security,

Convinced that conventional arms control needs to be pursued primarily in the regional and subregional contexts since most threats to peace and security in the post-cold-war era arise mainly among States located in the same region or subregion,

Aware that the preservation of a balance in the defence capabilities of States at the lowest level of armaments would contribute to peace and stability and should be a prime objective of conventional arms control,

Desirous of promoting agreements to strengthen regional peace and security at the lowest possible level of armaments and military forces,

Noting with particular interest the initiatives taken in this regard in different regions of the world, in particular the commencement of consultations among a number of Latin American countries and the proposals for conventional arms control made in the context of South Asia, and recognizing, in the context of this subject, the relevance and value of the Treaty on Conventional Armed Forces in Europe, which is a cornerstone of European security,

Believing that militarily significant States and States with larger military capabilities have a special responsibility in promoting such agreements for regional security,

Believing also that an important objective of conventional arms control in regions of tension should be to prevent the possibility of military attack launched by surprise and to avoid aggression,

1. Decides to give urgent consideration to the issues involved in conventional arms control at the regional and subregional levels;

2. Requests the Conference on Disarmament to consider the formulation of principles that can serve as a framework for regional agreements on conventional arms control, and looks forward to a report of the Conference on this subject;

3. Requests the Secretary-General, in the meantime, to seek the views of Member States on the subject and to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

4. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Conventional arms control at the regional and subregional levels".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 I:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Entrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Abstaining: Bhutan.

terrorism and illicit arms-trafficking and the illegal movement of nuclear, chemical, biological and other potentially deadly materials, and called for multilateral cooperation in dealing with the problem.

In October, the Department for Disarmament Affairs (DDA) sponsored a symposium at which high-level experts discussed terrorism and its relationship to disarmament, as well as the contributions that disarmament multilateral treaties and institutions could make in addressing related threats. The experts considered an overview of the terrorist threat to international peace and security, focusing on aspects relating to nuclear, chemical and biological weapons and small arms and light weapons. It also discussed the question of financing weapons acquisitions by terrorists.

(See also p. 63.)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 T without vote [agenda item 74].

Multilateral cooperation in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation and global efforts against terrorism

The General Assembly,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling that the United Nations Millennium Declaration stated that the responsibility for managing threats to international peace and security must be shared among the nations of the world,

Recognizing that disarmament and non-proliferation are essential for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Emphasizing that all General Assembly and Security Council resolutions relating to terrorism, in particular General Assembly resolutions 49/60 of 9 December 1994 and 56/1 of 12 September 2001 and Security Council resolutions 1368(2001) of 12 September 2001 and 1373(2001) of 28 September 2001, demonstrate the unity and solidarity of the international community in the face of the common threat of terrorism and its determination to combat it,

Recognizing the close connection between international terrorism and illicit arms-trafficking and the illegal movement of nuclear, chemical, biological and other potentially deadly materials,

Reaffirming the importance of taking all necessary steps to combat terrorism in all its forms and manifestations,

Noting with concern the lack of sufficient progress in multilateral disarmament diplomacy,

Determined to build a common response to global threats in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation,

1. Reaffirms multilateralism as a core principle in negotiations in the area of disarmament and non-

Other disarmament issues

Terrorism

Following the terrorist attacks of 11 September on the United States, the Security Council (see p. 61) and the General Assembly (see below) noted the close connection between international proliferation with a view to maintaining and strengthening universal norms and enlarging their scope;

2. Emphasizes that progress is urgently needed in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation in order to help maintain international peace and security and to contribute to global efforts against terrorism;

3. Calls upon all Member States to renew and fulfil their individual and collective commitments to multilateral cooperation as an important means of pursuing and achieving their common objectives in the area of disarmament and non-proliferation.

Prevention of an arms race in outer space

In 2001, the Conference on Disarmament did not establish an ad hoc committee on the prevention of an arms race in outer space. Nonetheless, many delegations continued to raise the issue of the militarization of outer space, particularly in connection with ongoing plans by the United States to develop a national missile defence system (see p. 480).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/535], adopted resolution 56/23 by recorded vote (156-0-4) [agenda item 73].

Prevention of an arms race in outer space

The General Assembly,

Recognizing the common interest of all mankind in the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes,

Reaffirming the will of all States that the exploration and use of outer space, including the Moon and other celestial bodies, shall be for peaceful purposes and shall be carried out for the benefit and in the interest of all countries, irrespective of their degree of economic or scientific development,

Reaffirming also the provisions of articles III and IV of the Treaty on Principles Governing the Activities of States in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space, including the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies,

Recalling the obligation of all States to observe the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations regarding the use or threat of use of force in their international relations, including in their space activities,

Reaffirming paragraph 80 of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly, in which it is stated that in order to prevent an arms race in outer space further measures should be taken and appropriate international negotiations held in accordance with the spirit of the Treaty,

Recalling its previous resolutions on this issue, and taking note of the proposals submitted to the General Assembly at its tenth special session and at its regular sessions, and of the recommendations made to the competent organs of the United Nations and to the Conference on Disarmament,

Recognizing that prevention of an arms race in outer space would avert a grave danger for international peace and security,

Emphasizing the paramount importance of strict compliance with existing arms limitation and disarmament agreements relevant to outer space, including bilateral agreements, and with the existing legal regime concerning the use of outer space,

Considering that wide participation in the legal regime applicable to outer space could contribute to enhancing its effectiveness,

Noting that the Ad Hoc Committee on the Prevention of an Arms Race in Outer Space, taking into account its previous efforts since its establishment in 1985 and seeking to enhance its functioning in qualitative terms, continued the examination and identification of various issues, existing agreements and existing proposals, as well as future initiatives relevant to the prevention of an arms race in outer space, and that this contributed to a better understanding of a number of problems and to a clearer perception of the various positions,

Noting also that there were no objections in principle in the Conference on Disarmament to the re-establishment of the Ad Hoc Committee, subject to re-examination of the mandate contained in the decision of the Conference on Disarmament of 13 February 1992,

Emphasizing the mutually complementary nature of bilateral and multilateral efforts in the field of preventing an arms race in outer space, and hoping that concrete results will emerge from those efforts as soon as possible,

Convinced that further measures should be examined in the search for effective and verifiable bilateral and multilateral agreements in order to prevent an arms race in outer space, including the weaponization of outer space,

Stressing that the growing use of outer space increases the need for greater transparency and better information on the part of the international community,

Recalling in this context its previous resolutions, in particular resolutions 45/55 B of 4 December 1990, 47/51 of 9 December 1992 and 48/74 A of 16 December 1993, in which, inter alia, it reaffirmed the importance of confidence-building measures as means conducive to ensuring the attainment of the objective of the prevention of an arms race in outer space,

Conscious of the benefits of confidence- and security-building measures in the military field,

Recognizing that negotiations for the conclusion of an international agreement or agreements to prevent an arms race in outer space remain a priority task of the Ad Hoc Committee and that the concrete proposals on confidence-building measures could form an integral part of such agreements,

1. Reaffirms the importance and urgency of preventing an arms race in outer space and the readiness of all States to contribute to that common objective, in conformity with the provisions of the Treaty on Principles Governing the Activities of States in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space, including the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies;

2. Reaffirms its recognition, as stated in the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Prevention of an Arms Race in Outer Space, that the legal regime applicable to outer space does not in and of itself guarantee the prevention of an arms race in outer space, that the regime plays a significant role in the prevention of an arms race in that environment, that there is a need to consolidate and reinforce that regime and enhance its effectiveness and that it is important to comply strictly with existing agreements, both bilateral and multilateral;

3. Emphasizes the necessity of further measures with appropriate and effective provisions for verification to prevent an arms race in outer space;

4. Calls upon all States, in particular those with major space capabilities, to contribute actively to the objective of the peaceful use of outer space and of the prevention of an arms race in outer space and to refrain from actions contrary to that objective and to the relevant existing treaties in the interest of maintaining international peace and security and promoting international cooperation;

5. Reiterates that the Conference on Disarmament, as the single multilateral disarmament negotiating forum, has the primary role in the negotiation of a multilateral agreement or agreements, as appropriate, on the prevention of an arms race in outer space in all its aspects;

6. Invites the Conference on Disarmament to complete the examination and updating of the mandate contained in its decision of 13 February 1992 and to establish an ad hoc committee as early as possible during its 2002 session;

7. Recognizes, in this respect, the growing convergence of views on the elaboration of measures designed to strengthen transparency, confidence and security in the peaceful uses of outer space;

8. Urges States conducting activities in outer space, as well as States interested in conducting such activities, to keep the Conference on Disarmament informed of the progress of bilateral and multilateral negotiations on the matter, if any, so as to facilitate its work;

9. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Prevention of an arms race in outer space".

Seabed treaty

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 44/116 O [YUN 1989, p. 81], the Secretary-General, in a July report [A/56/172], presented the replies of three Governments in response to his request for information on technological developments relevant to the Treaty on the Prohibition of the Emplacement of Nuclear Weapons and Other Weapons of Mass Destruction on the Seabed and the Ocean Floor and in the Subsoil Thereof, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 2660 (XXV) [YUN 1970, p. 18], and to the verification of compliance with the Treaty.

Disarmament and development

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/33 L [YUN 2000, p. 533], the Secretary-General, in July [A/56/183], described activities undertaken to implement the action programme adopted at the 1987 International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development [YUN 1987, p. 83]. In that context, the Secretary-General noted that DDA, in collaboration with the UN Department of Economic and Social Affairs, organized on 26 April in New York a symposium to examine the interrelationship between armed conflicts, military expenditures and development. DDA continued to seek the views of independent experts on the changing paradigm of disarmament and development.

The report contained information submitted by Sweden, on behalf of the EU, on the implementation of the action programme, pursuant to resolution 55/33 L.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 E without vote [agenda item 74 (f)].

Relationship between disarmament and development

The General Assembly,

Recalling the provisions of the Final Document of the Tenth Special Session of the General Assembly concerning the relationship between disarmament and development,

Recalling also the adoption on 11 September 1987 of the Final Document of the International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development,

Recalling further its resolutions 49/75 J of 15 December 1994, 50/70 G of 12 December 1995, 51/45 D of 10 December 1996, 52/38 D of 9 December 1997, 53/77 K of 4 December 1998, 54/54 T of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 L of 20 November 2000,

Bearing in mind the Final Document of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, and the Final Document of the Thirteenth Ministerial Conference of the Movement of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Cartagena, Colombia, on 8 and 9 April 2000,

Welcoming the different activities organized by the high-level Steering Group on Disarmament and Development, as described in the report of the Secretary-General,

Stressing the growing importance of the symbiotic relationship between disarmament and development in current international relations,

1. Calls upon the high-level Steering Group on Disarmament and Development to strengthen and enhance its programme of activities, in accordance with the mandate set out in the action programme adopted at the International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development;

2. Urges the international community to devote part of the resources made available by the implementation of disarmament and arms limitation agreements to economic and social development, with a view to reducing the ever-widening gap between developed and developing countries;

3. Invites all Member States to communicate to the Secretary-General, by 15 April 2002, their views and proposals for the implementation of the action programme adopted at the International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development, as well as any other views and proposals with a view to achieving the goals of the action programme, within the framework of current international relations;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to take action, through appropriate organs and within available resources, for the implementation of the action programme adopted at the International Conference on the Relationship between Disarmament and Development;

5. Also requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

6. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Relationship between disarmament and development".

Arms limitation and disarmament agreements

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/33 K [YUN 2000, p. 534], the Secretary-General submitted a July report with later addendum [A/56/165 & Add.1] containing information from seven Member States on measures they had taken to ensure the application of scientific and technological progress in the context of international security, disarmament and related areas, without detriment to the environment or to its effective contribution to attaining sustainable development.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

By decision 56/416 of 29 November, the General Assembly took note of the report of the First Committee [A/56/545] on compliance with arms limitation and disarmament and non-proliferation agreements.

Also on 29 November [meeting 68], the Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/536], adopted resolution 56/24 F by recorded vote (154-0-5) [agenda item 74 (k)].

Observance of environmental norms in the drafting and implementation of agreements on disarmament and arms control

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 50/70 M of 12 December 1995, 51/45 E of 10 December 1996, 52/38 E of 9 December 1997, 53/77 J of 4 December 1998, 54/54 S of 1 December 1999 and 55/33 K of 20 November 2000,

Emphasizing the importance of the observance of environmental norms in the preparation and implementation of disarmament and arms limitation agreements,

Recognizing that it is necessary to take duly into account the agreements adopted at the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, as well as prior relevant agreements, in the drafting and implementation of agreements on disarmament and arms limitation,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General, Mindful of the detrimental environment effects of the use of nuclear weapons,

1. Reaffirms that international disarmament forums should take fully into account the relevant environmental norms in negotiating treaties and agreements on disarmament and arms limitation and that all States, through their actions, should fully contribute to ensuring compliance with the aforementioned norms in the implementation of treaties and conventions to which they are parties;

2. Calls upon States to adopt unilateral, bilateral, regional and multilateral measures so as to contribute to ensuring the application of scientific and technological progress in the framework of international security, disarmament and other related spheres, without detriment to the environment or to its effective contribution to attaining sustainable development;

3. Welcomes the information provided by Member States on the implementation of the measures they have adopted to promote the objectives envisaged in the present resolution;

4. Invites all Member States to communicate to the Secretary-General information on the measures they have adopted to promote the objectives envisaged in the present resolution, and requests the Secretary-General to submit a report containing this information to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Observance of environmental norms in the drafting and implementation of agreements on disarmament and arms control".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/24 F:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya,

Against: None.

Abstaining: France, Israel, Micronesia, United Kingdom, United States.

Studies, information and training

Disarmament studies programme

The Group of Governmental Experts on restricting the manufacture and trade in small arms and light weapons to manufacturers and dealers authorized by Governments, appointed by the Secretary-General pursuant to General Assembly resolution 54/54 V [YUN 1999, p. 487], completed its study in February. Its report [A/CONF.192/2] was submitted to the 2001 UN Conference on small arms (see p. 499). The Panel of Governmental Experts on the issue of missiles in all its aspects, appointed by the Secretary-General in response to Assembly resolution 55/33 A [YUN 2000, p. 499], also met during the year, as did the Group of Governmental Experts on disarmament and non-proliferation education, appointed by the Secretary-General pursuant to Assembly resolution 55/33 E [YUN 2000, p. 535].

In 2001, the Assembly, in resolution 56/24 Q, requested the Secretary-General to prepare, with the assistance of governmental experts, a report on the continuing operation and future development of the UN Register of Conventional Arms (see p. 507), for consideration in 2003. By resolution 56/24 V, the Assembly requested the Secretary-General to prepare, with the assistance of governmental experts, a study on the feasibility of developing an international instrument to enable States to identify and trace illicit small arms and light weapons, also to be considered in 2003.

Disarmament Information Programme

During the year, a major focus of the Disarmament Information Programme was the information campaign on the 2001 UN Conference on small arms, launched by DDA in collaboration with the UN Department of Public Information. Other activities, carried out through DDA publications, web-site access, symposiums and exhibits, focused on multilateral disarmament agreements relating to weapons of mass destruction and conventional weapons. DDA hosted a panel seminar on the implications for disarmament and the United Nations of the revolution in military affairs, and, in collaboration with the Global Security Institute, a symposium on lessons for today from the Cuban missile crises. In the wake of the terrorist attacks of 11 September, the Department sponsored a symposium on terrorism and disarmament (New York, 25 October). Efforts were made to raise awareness about the links between gender and disarmament, and to support weapons collection projects in communities that had suffered from conflicts or civil strife.

Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters

The Advisory Board on Disarmament Matters, which advised the Secretary-General on the disarmament studies programme and implementation of the Disarmament Information Programme and served as the Board of Trustees of the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research (UNIDIR) (see below), held its thirty-sixth and thirty-seventh sessions (New York, 31 January–2 February; Geneva, 25–27 July) [A/56/418]. At its thirty-sixth session, the Board deliberated on the “revolution in military affairs”, the illicit trade in small arms, reducing nuclear danger and non-proliferation regimes. In July, it continued discussions on some of those items and also addressed nuclear-weapon-free zones as instruments of disarmament.

The Board agreed that, among other things, there existed a crisis of multilateral disarmament diplomacy and that the United Nations had important roles to play in addressing the crisis; the proposal contained in the Millennium Declaration, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 55/2 [YUN 2000, p. 49], for convening a major international conference on eliminating nuclear dangers would best be pursued through an incremental process given the lack of global consensus to convene the conference; and disarmament and non-proliferation regimes were inseparable and mutually dependent on the wider international strategic environment. In response to Assembly resolution 55/33 N [ibid., p. 497], the Board forwarded to the Secretary-General specific measures to reduce nuclear danger (see p. 474).

UN Institute for Disarmament Research

The Secretary-General transmitted to the General Assembly the report of the UNIDIR Director covering the period from July 2000 to July 2001, as well as the report of the UNIDIR Board of Trustees on the proposed 2001–2002 programme of work and budget [A/56/359].

The Institute's research activities continued to focus on global security, regional security and human security. The report highlighted UNIDIR's networking initiatives with other research institutes, as well as disarmament entities in the UN system, and contained a list of publications issued during the reporting period.

The Board of Trustees recommended a subvention of $213,000 from the UN regular budget for 2002, which the Assembly approved on 24 December (resolution 56/255, section I).

Disarmament fellowship, training and advisory services

In 2001, 28 fellows participated in the UN disarmament fellowship, training and advisory services programme, which began in Geneva on 3 September and ended in New York on 8 November. The programme included a study session in Geneva; study trips to Austria, The Hague (Netherlands), Germany and Japan; and a study session at UN Headquarters.

Regional centres for peace and disarmament

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/537], adopted resolution 56/25 C without vote [agenda item 75 (d)].

United Nations regional centres for peace and disarmament

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/34 F of 20 November 2000 regarding the maintenance and revitalization of the three United Nations regional centres for peace and disarmament,

Recalling also the reports of the Secretary-General on the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa, the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific and the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean,

Reaffirming its decision, taken in 1982 at its twelfth special session, to establish the United Nations Disarmament Information Programme, the purpose of which is to inform, educate and generate public understanding and support for the objectives of the United Nations in the field of arms control and disarmament,

Bearing in mind its resolutions 40/151 G of 16 December 1985, 41/60 J of 3 December 1986, 42/39 D of 30 November 1987 and 44/117 F of 15 December 1989 on the regional centres for peace and disarmament in Nepal, Peru and Togo,

Recognizing that the changes that have taken place in the world have created new opportunities as well as posed new challenges for the pursuit of disarmament and, in this regard, bearing in mind that the regional centres for peace and disarmament can contribute substantially to understanding and cooperation among States in each particular region in the areas of peace, disarmament and development,

Noting that in paragraph 146 of the Final Document of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of the Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, the heads of State or Government welcomed the decision adopted by the General Assembly on maintaining and revitalizing the three regional centres for peace and disarmament in Nepal, Peru and Togo,

1. Reiterates the importance of the United Nations activities at the regional level to increase the stability and security of its Member States, which could be promoted in a substantive manner by the maintenance and revitalization of the three regional centres for peace and disarmament;

2. Reaffirms that, in order to achieve positive results, it is useful for the three regional centres to carry out dissemination and educational programmes that promote regional peace and security aimed at changing basic attitudes with respect to peace and security and disarmament so as to support the achievement of the principles and purposes of the United Nations;

3. Appeals to Member States in each region and those that are able to do so, as well as to international governmental and non-governmental organizations and foundations, to make voluntary contributions to the regional centres in their respective regions to strengthen their programmes of activities and implementation;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to provide all necessary support, within existing resources, to the regional centres in carrying out their programmes of activities;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "United Nations regional centres for peace and disarmament".

Africa

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/34 D [YUN 2000, p. 539], the Secretary-General described the activities of the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa [A/56/137], covering the period from July 2000 to June 2001. The Centre was established in Lomé, Togo, in 1986 [YUN 1986, p. 85].

During the reporting period, the Centre provided substantive and political support to the Programme for Coordination and Assistance for Security and Development, to ensure the effective implementation of the ECOWAS Moratorium on the Importation, Exportation and Manufacture of Small Arms and Light Weapons in West Africa [YUN 1998, p. 537]. As part of its advocacy and outreach programme, the Centre in January, inaugurated the disarmament forum—a monthly briefing on disarmament, peace and security issues in Africa. In May, the Centre, with the support of the Government of Germany, launched the fellowship programme on peace, security and disarmament in Africa, which permitted three research fellows each year to conduct research on a topic related to peace, security and disarmament in the region.

In the course of the year, the Centre assisted a number of African countries, including Togo, Kenya and Guinea-Bissau, to address problems related to small arms and light weapons, and, in addition, organized or assisted in organizing conferences, seminars and training programmes on disarmament and security-related issues. Working with civil society organizations, the Centre provided assistance and technical support to the launching of a continent-wide campaign for peace.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/537], adopted resolution 56/25 D without vote [agenda item 75 (b)].

United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa

The General Assembly,

Mindful of the provisions of Article 11, paragraph 1, of the Charter of the United Nations stipulating that a function of the General Assembly is to consider the general principles of cooperation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and arms limitation,

Recalling its resolutions 40/151 G of 16 December 1985, 41/60 D of 3 December 1986, 42/39 J of 30 November 1987 and 43/76 D of 7 December 1988 on the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa, and its resolutions 46/36 F of 6 December 1991 and 47/52 G of 9 December 1992 on regional disarmament, including confidence-building measures,

Recalling also its resolutions 48/76 E of 16 December 1993, 49/76 D of 15 December 1994, 50/71 C of 12 December 1995, 51/46 E of 10 December 1996, 52/220 of 22 December 1997, 53/78 C of 4 December 1998, 54/55 B of 1 December 1999 and 55/34 D of 20 November 2000,

Aware of the widespread support for the revitalization of the Regional Centre and the important role that the Centre can play in the present context in promoting confidence-building and arms-limitation measures at the regional level, thereby promoting progress in the area of sustainable development,

Taking into account the report of the Secretary-General on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa,

Bearing in mind the efforts undertaken in the framework of the revitalization of the activities of the Regional Centre for the mobilization of the resources necessary for its operational costs,

Taking into account the need to establish close cooperation between the Regional Centre and the Mechanism for Conflict Prevention, Management and Resolution of the Organization of African Unity, in conformity with the relevant decision adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity at its thirty-fifth ordinary session, held at Algiers from 12 to 14 July 1999,

Welcoming the adoption by the United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, held in New York from 9 to 20 July 2001, of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, and emphasizing the need for the appropriate implementation of the Programme of Action by all States,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General, and commends the activities which the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa is continuing to carry out, in particular in support of the efforts made by the African States in the areas of peace and security;

2. Reaffirms its strong support for the revitalization of the Regional Centre, and emphasizes the need to provide it with the necessary resources to enable it to strengthen its activities and carry out its programmes;

3. Appeals once again to all States, as well as to international governmental and non-governmental organizations and the foundations, to make voluntary contributions in order to strengthen the programmes and activities of the Regional Centre and facilitate their implementation;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide the necessary support to the Regional Centre for better achievements and results;

5. Also requests the Secretary-General to facilitate the establishment of close cooperation between the Regional Centre and the Organization of African Unity, in particular in the area of peace, security and development, and to continue to assist the Director of the Regional Centre in his efforts to stabilize the financial situation of the Centre and revitalize its activities;

6. Appeals in particular to the Regional Centre, in cooperation with the Organization of African Unity, regional and subregional organizations and the African States, to take steps to promote the consistent implementation of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Africa".

Asia and the Pacific

As requested by the General Assembly in resolution 55/34 H [YUN 2000, p. 540], the Secretary-General described the activities of the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific from August 2000 to July 2001 [A/56/266]. The Centre was inaugurated in Kathmandu, Nepal, in 1989 [YUN 1989, p. 88].

During the period under review, the Centre organized the thirteenth regional disarmament meeting in Asia and the Pacific on prospects for further confidence-building (Kathmandu, 9-11 March), which focused on issues relating to the Korean peninsula, denuclearization and non-proliferation, organized crime, terrorism, information technology and national security, and disarmament and the environment. The Centre organized a meeting on disarmament and the Pacific (Wellington, New Zealand, 27-30 March), which examined the region's security and disarmament concerns. The Centre organized a conference (Kanazawa, Japan, 28-31 August 2001) on "The Asia-Pacific region: evolution of the scope of security and disarmament in the twenty-first century", which discussed, among other things, stability and prosperity in North-East Asia, human security, disarmament and non-proliferation, and issues relating to the illicit trade in small arms.

The Centre continued to assist the five Central Asian States (Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan) in the drafting of a treaty on the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in Central Asia (see p. 489), as well as Mongolia, to consolidate its nuclear-weapon-free status (see p. 489).

During the year, progress was made towards relocating the Centre to Kathmandu, which, for lack of sufficient extrabudgetary resources, continued to operate from Headquarters.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/537], adopted resolution 56/25 F without vote [agenda item 75 (f)].

United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 42/39 D of 30 November 1987 and 44/117 F of 15 December 1989, by which it established the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and renamed it the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific, with headquarters in Kathmandu and with the mandate of providing, on request, substantive support for the initiatives and other activities mutually agreed upon by the Member States of the Asia-Pacific region for the implementation of measures for peace and disarmament, through appropriate utilization of available resources,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General, in which he expresses his belief that the mandate of the Regional Centre remains valid and that the Centre could be a useful instrument for fostering a climate of cooperation in the post-cold-war era,

Noting that trends in the post-cold-war era have emphasized the function of the Regional Centre in assisting Member States as they deal with new security concerns and disarmament issues emerging in the region,

Commending the useful activities carried out by the Regional Centre in encouraging regional and sub-regional dialogue for the enhancement of openness, transparency and confidence-building, as well as the promotion of disarmament and security through the organization of regional meetings, which has come to be widely known within the Asia-Pacific region as the "Kathmandu process",

Expressing its appreciation to the Regional Centre for its organization of the thirteenth regional disarmament meeting in Asia and the Pacific, held at Kathmandu from 9 to 11 March 2001, the United Nations regional disarmament meeting on the theme "A Pacific Way to Disarmament", held at Wellington from 27 to 30 March 2001, and the meeting of the United Nations Conference on Disarmament Issues on the theme "The Asia-Pacific region: evolution of the scope of security and disarmament in the twenty-first century", held at Kanazawa, Japan, from 28 to 31 August 2001,

Welcoming the idea of the possible creation of an educational and training programme for peace and disarmament in Asia and the Pacific for young people with different backgrounds, to be financed from voluntary contributions,

Noting the important role of the Regional Centre in assisting region-specific initiatives of Member States, including its assistance in the work related to the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone in Central Asia, as well as to Mongolia's international security and nuclear-weapon-free status, including the organization of a United Nations-sponsored non-governmental expert group meeting on the theme "Ways and means of strengthening Mongolia's international security and nuclear-weapon-free status", held at Sapporo, Japan, on 5 and 6 September 2001,

Appreciating highly the important role that Nepal has played as the host nation of the headquarters of the Regional Centre,

1. Reaffirms its strong support for the forthcoming operation and further strengthening of the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific;

2. Underlines the importance of the Kathmandu process as a powerful vehicle for the development of the practice of region-wide security and disarmament dialogue;

3. Expresses its appreciation for the continuing political support and voluntary financial contributions to the Regional Centre, which are essential for its continued operation;

4. Appeals to Member States, in particular those within the Asia-Pacific region, as well as to international governmental and non-governmental organizations and foundations, to make voluntary contributions, the only resources of the Regional Centre, to strengthen the programme of activities of the Centre and the implementation thereof;

5. Requests the Secretary-General, taking note of paragraph 6 of General Assembly resolution 49/76 D of 15 December 1994, to provide the Regional Centre with the necessary support, within existing resources, in carrying out its programme of activities;

6. Urges the Secretary-General to ensure the physical operation of the Regional Centre from Kathmandu within six months of the date of signature of the host country agreement and to enable the Centre to function effectively;

7. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

8. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "United Nations Regional Centre for Peace and Disarmament in Asia and the Pacific".

Latin America and the Caribbean

As requested by the General Assembly in resolution 55/34 E [YUN 2000, p. 541], the Secretary-General reported on the activities of the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean from August 2000 to June 2001 [A/56/154]. The Centre was inaugurated in Lima, Peru, in 1987 [YUN 1987, p. 88].

The activities of the Centre related to firearms, ammunition and explosives; anti-personnel mines; nuclear issues; disarmament and development; civil-military relations; and information and public events.

A number of activities were carried out under a project on the regional clearing house on firearms, ammunition and explosives, an initiative designed to nurture national and regional expertise in the area of practical disarmament. In January, the Centre and the Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission were designated the implementing institutions for projects on illicit trafficking in firearms, ammunition and explosives, under a memorandum of understanding between DDA and OAS. A workshop organized by the Centre in February on civil-military relations in the region addressed such issues as democratic society's influence on armed forces and highlighted the need for greater participation of civil society in security-related matters. The Centre held a workshop (Lima, 28 March) on preparations for the third meeting of the States parties to the Mine-Ban Convention (see p. 509). On 30 May, it acted as an observer in the destruction of 33,421 anti-personnel mines in northern Peru, a first step to the destruction of 310,000 landmines. The Centre collaborated with, among others, the UN Mine Action Service to organize a workshop (Lima, 31 May–1 June) on international mine action standards, intended to assist in the development and amendment of national mine action standards in the region.

The Centre also undertook activities relating to the 2001 UN Conference on small arms and participated in information and training events within and outside the region, including seminars, conferences, workshops and symposiums.

As at 31 December 2000, the balance of the Trust Fund for the Centre totalled $61,608.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/537], adopted resolution 56/25 E without vote [agenda item 75 (c)].

United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 41/60 J of 3 December 1986, 42/39 K of 30 November 1987 and 43/76 H of 7 December 1988 on the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean, with headquarters in Lima,

Recalling also its resolutions 46/37 F of 9 December 1991, 48/76 E of 16 December 1993, 49/76 D of 15 December 1994, 50/71 C of 12 December 1995, 52/220 of 22 December 1997, 53/78 F of 4 December 1998, 54/55 F of 1 December 1999 and 55/34 E of 20 November 2000,

Underlining the revitalization of the Regional Centre, the efforts made by the Government of Peru to that end and the appointment of the Director of the Centre by the Secretary-General,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General, which concludes that the Regional Centre has launched projects aimed at furthering the understanding of the relationship between security and development, enhanced the role of the United Nations as a regional catalyst for activities on peace and disarmament and acted as a politically neutral platform for discussions on security and development issues,

Noting the agreement between the Regional Centre and the Inter-American Drug Abuse Control Commission to strengthen their cooperation with respect to their mutual interest in reducing firearms trafficking and related activities among States under their respective mandates, as well as to strengthen the capacity of those countries to deal with those problems,

Noting also that security and disarmament issues have always been recognized as significant topics in Latin America and the Caribbean, the first inhabited region in the world to be declared a nuclear-weapon-free zone,

Bearing in mind the important role that the Regional Centre can play in promoting confidence-building measures, arms control and limitation, disarmament and development at the regional level,

Also bearing in mind the importance of information, research, education and training for peace, disarmament and development in order to achieve understanding and cooperation among States,

Recognizing the need to provide the three United Nations regional centres for peace and disarmament with sufficient financial resources for the planning and implementation of their programmes of activities,

1. Reiterates its strong support for the role of the United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean in the promotion of United Nations activities at the regional level to strengthen peace, stability, security and development among its member States;

2. Expresses its satisfaction and congratulates the Regional Centre for the vast range of activities carried out last year;

3. Encourages the Regional Centre to continue to provide assistance for the States of the region in all issues related to disarmament, including the effective implementation of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects and, in this connection, welcomes the holding of a regional seminar in Santiago, from 19 to 21 November 2001;

4. Expresses its appreciation for the political support and financial contributions to the Regional Centre, which are essential for its continued operation;

5. Invites all States of the region to take part in the activities of the Regional Centre, proposing items for inclusion in its agenda, making greater and better use of the Centre's potential to meet the current challenges facing the international community and with a view to fulfilling the aims of the Charter of the United Nations in the fields of peace, disarmament and development;

6. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General on the relationship between disarmament and development, and supports the role that the Regional Centre plays to promote those issues in the region in pursuit of its mandate to promote economic and social development related to peace and disarmament;

7. Appeals to Member States, in particular the States of the Latin American and Caribbean region, and to international governmental and non-governmental organizations and to foundations, to make voluntary contributions to strengthen the Regional Centre, its programme of activities and the implementation thereof;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to provide the Regional Centre with all necessary support, within existing resources, so that it may carry out its programme of activities in accordance with its mandate;

9. Also requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

10. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "United Nations Regional Centre for Peace, Disarmament and Development in Latin America and the Caribbean".

Chapter VIII

Other political and security questions

United Nations consideration of other political and security questions in 2001 included the Organization's efforts to support and consolidate democratization worldwide, the promotion of decolonization, public information activities and the peaceful uses of outer space.

The first meeting of the follow-up mechanism to the Fourth (2000) International Conference of New or Restored Democracies agreed to draw up a comprehensive plan to implement the Cotonou Declaration on peace, security, democracy and development adopted at that Conference. Plans were under way for convening the Fifth International Conference in 2003.

The Secretary-General submitted an updated plan of action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism (2001-2010), setting out action to be taken by the administering Powers, other Member States, the UN system and non-governmental organizations to support the process.

The Department of Public Information made considerable progress in reorienting the Organization's information and communications policies. The adoption of new technologies allowed for a wider dissemination of accurate information on the work of the Organization. A notable achievement in the reorientation process was the highly successful pilot project for direct international radio broadcasting from UN Headquarters.

In December, the General Assembly noted the establishment of action teams to implement the recommendations of the Third (1999) United Nations Conference on the Exploration and Peaceful Uses of Outer Space and requested the Secretary-General to report on the implementation process.

The Assembly further adopted a resolution on the role of science and technology in the context of international security and disarmament, which encouraged the use of science and technology for peaceful purposes, and another on developments in information and telecommunications, calling on States to promote information security.

In September, the Assembly adopted a resolution declaring 21 September of each year as the International Day of Peace, to be observed as a day of global ceasefire and non-violence.

General aspects of international security

Support for democracies

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/43 [YUN 2000, p. 543], the Secretary-General, in an October report [A/56/499], reviewed the results of the Fourth (2000) International Conference of New or Restored Democracies and the Cotonou Declaration on peace, security, democracy and development adopted by the Conference [YUN 2000, p. 544], and reported on the activities of the Conference's follow-up mechanism. The report also offered perspectives and suggestions on how the United Nations could promote and consolidate democratic development worldwide.

At the first meeting of the follow-up mechanism to the Conference (Benin, 20 September), participants agreed to draw up a comprehensive plan to implement the provisions of the Cotonou Declaration. Member States accepted Mongolia's invitation to hold the Fifth International Conference in 2003 in Ulaanbaatar.

The Secretary-General stated that, because of the biennialization of consideration of the item (resolution 55/285), the next report on new or restored democracies, containing an updated inventory of UN activities in that field, would be submitted to the Assembly's fifty-eighth (2003) session. Towards that end, all UN departments, offices, funds and programmes would be informed of the contents of the Cotonou Declaration and asked to reflect on the activities within their mandates that would contribute to its implementation.

The Secretary-General observed that the near doubling of the number of democracies worldwide was one of the most remarkable achievements of the 1990s, and the United Nations had played an important supporting role. There could be no one prescribed form of democracy, but it had to be authentic, reflecting the culture, history and experience of its citizens, and based on the rule of law. The benchmark for sustainable democracy was the extent to which a State acted in accordance with civil, political, eco-conomic, social and cultural rights. The status of human rights was therefore a barometer of a healthy democracy. Democracy was also a fundamental right of all citizens. It was intrinsically linked to sustainable development, contributing to poverty eradication and development, and should be seen as the most promising long-term strategy for preventing armed conflict. Peace and security were essential preconditions for a healthy and vibrant democracy and, once established, democratic culture was the best safeguard against war, destruction and terrorism.

The Secretary-General stated that international forums, such as the International Conference of New or Restored Democracies and the Community of Democracies, played an important role in advancing the democratization process, and they should consider further steps towards that end. Activities of Governments, the UN system and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) to assist the democratization process had dramatically increased, and it was important to continue those efforts. The Secretary-General called on States to explore the lessons learned in the practice of democracy and share them with civil society and the international community. He declared that he stood ready to work together with new or restored democracies and all Member States to achieve the goals of the Cotonou Declaration.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 14 December [meeting 86], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/96 [draft: A/56/L.46 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 35].

Support by the United Nations system of the efforts of Governments to promote and consolidate new or restored democracies

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the indissoluble links between the principles enshrined in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the foundations of any democratic society,

Recalling its resolution 49/30 of 7 December 1994, in which it recognized the importance of the Managua Declaration and Plan of Action adopted by the Second International Conference of New or Restored Democracies in July 1994, as well as its resolutions 50/133 of 20 December 1995, 51/31 of 6 December 1996, 52/18 of 21 November 1997, 53/31 of 23 November 1998, 54/36 of 29 November 1999 and 55/43 of 27 November 2000,

Recalling also the United Nations Millennium Declaration adopted by heads of State and Government on 8 September 2000, in particular paragraphs 6 and 24 thereof,

Recalling further the declarations and plans of action of the four international conferences of new or restored democracies adopted in Manila in 1988, Managua in 1994, Bucharest in 1997 and Cotonou in 2000,

Recalling that the Fourth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies focused on peace, security, democracy and development,

Considering the major changes taking place on the international scene and the aspirations of all peoples for an international order based on the principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations, including the promotion and encouragement of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all and other important principles, such as respect for the equal rights and self-determination of peoples, peace, democracy, justice, equality, the rule of law, pluralism, development, better standards of living and solidarity,

Expressing its deep appreciation to the Government of Benin for the generous manner in which it hosted and provided facilities for the Fourth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies,

Bearing in mind that the activities of the United Nations carried out in support of the efforts of Governments to promote and consolidate democracy are undertaken in accordance with the Charter and only at the specific request of the Member States concerned,

Taking note with satisfaction of the seminars, workshops and conferences on democratization and good governance convened in 2001, as well as those held under the auspices of the International Conference of New or Restored Democracies,

Taking note of the views expressed by Member States in the debate on this question at its forty-ninth to fifty-sixth sessions,

Bearing in mind that democracy, development and respect for all human rights and fundamental freedoms are interdependent and mutually reinforcing and that democracy is based on the freely expressed will of the people to determine their own political, economic, social and cultural systems and on their full participation in all aspects of their lives,

Noting that a considerable number of societies have recently undertaken significant efforts to achieve their social, political and economic goals through democratization and the reform of their economies, pursuits that are deserving of the support and recognition of the international community,

Expressing its deep appreciation for the support provided by Member States, the United Nations system, including the specialized agencies, and other intergovernmental organizations to the Government of Benin for the holding of the Fourth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General, and its focus on the Cotonou Declaration, and the final report adopted by the Fourth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies in Cotonou on 6 December 2000,

1. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General;

2. Encourages Member States to promote democratization and to make additional efforts to identify possible steps to support the efforts of Governments to promote and consolidate new or restored democracies;

3. Welcomes the work carried out by the intergovernmental follow-up mechanism to the Fourth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies;

4. Invites Member States, the relevant specialized agencies and bodies of the United Nations system, and other intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to continue to contribute actively to the follow-up to the Fourth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies;

5. Recognizes that the United Nations has an important role to play in providing timely, appropriate and coherent support to the efforts of Governments to achieve democratization within the context of their development efforts;

6. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to improve the capacity of the Organization to respond effectively to the requests of Member States by providing coherent and adequate support for their efforts to achieve the goals of good governance and democratization;

7. Stresses that the activities of the Organization must be undertaken in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations;

8. Commends the Secretary-General, and through him the United Nations system, for the activities undertaken at the request of Governments to support efforts to consolidate democracy;

9. Requests the Secretary-General to examine options for strengthening the support provided by the United Nations system for the efforts of Member States to consolidate democracy, including the designation of a focal point;

10. Welcomes the decision of the Government of Mongolia to host the Fifth International Conference of New or Restored Democracies in 2003;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session on the implementation of the present resolution;

12. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Support by the United Nations system of the efforts of Governments to promote and consolidate new or restored democracies".

Regional aspects of international peace and security

South Atlantic

As requested in General Assembly resolution 55/49 [YUN 2000, p. 545], the Secretary-General submitted an October report on the zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic [A/56/454], declared in 1986 to promote cooperation among States of the region in the political, economic, scientific, technical, cultural and other fields [YUN 1986, p. 369]. The Secretary-General stated that, as at 30 September, four Governments (Argentina, Dominican Republic, Gambia, South Africa) had responded to his request for views on the implementation of the declaration's objectives; a fifth response, from Brazil, was submitted later [A/56/454/Add.1]. Five UN bodies had also responded.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 21 November [meeting 61], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/7 [draft: A/56/L.12 & Add.1] by recorded vote (93-0-1) [agenda item 36].

Zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 41/11 of 27 October 1986, in which it solemnly declared the Atlantic Ocean, in the region between Africa and South America, a zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic,

Recalling also its subsequent resolutions on the matter, including resolution 45/36 of 27 November 1990, in which it reaffirmed the determination of the States of the zone to enhance and accelerate their cooperation in the political, economic, scientific, cultural and other spheres,

Reaffirming the importance of the purposes and objectives of the zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic as a basis for the promotion of cooperation among the countries of the region,

Reaffirming also that the questions of peace and security and those of development are interrelated and inseparable and that cooperation for peace and development among States of the region will promote the objectives of the zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic,

Recalling the agreement reached at the third meeting of the States members of the zone, held in Brasilia in 1994, to encourage democracy and political pluralism and, in accordance with the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, to promote and defend all human rights and fundamental freedoms and to cooperate towards the achievement of these goals,

Aware of the importance that the States of the zone attach to the protection of the environment of the region, and recognizing the threat that pollution from any source poses to the marine and coastal environment, its ecological balance and its resources,

Welcoming the adoption of the Programme of Action to Prevent, Combat and Eradicate the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects at the United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects, held in New York from 9 to 20 July 2001,

Taking note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General, submitted in accordance with General Assembly resolution 55/49 of 29 November 2000,

1. Calls upon all States to cooperate in the promotion of the objectives established in the declaration of the zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic and to refrain from any action inconsistent with those objectives and with the Charter of the United Nations and relevant resolutions of the Organization, in particular actions that may create or aggravate situations of tension and potential conflict in the region;

2. Welcomes the progress towards the full entry into force of the Treaty for the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons in Latin America and the Caribbean (Treaty of Tlatelolco) and of the African Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone Treaty (Treaty of Pelindaba);

3. Encourages all States, in particular the members of the zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic, to cooperate in promoting and strengthening global, regional, subregional and national initiatives to prevent, combat and eradicate the illicit trade in small arms and light weapons;

4. Welcomes in this regard the entry into force of the Inter-American Convention against the Illicit Manufacturing of and Trafficking in Firearms, Ammunition, Explosives and Other Related Materials, adopted in November 1997, and the adoption of the Inter-American Convention on Transparency in Conventional Weapons Acquisitions by the Organization of American States in June 1999;

5. Also welcomes the Bamako Declaration on an African Common Position on the Illicit Proliferation, Circulation and Trafficking of Small Arms and Light Weapons, adopted by the Ministers of the States members of the Organization of African Unity on 1 December 2000, the Declaration concerning Firearms, Ammunition and Other Related Materials in the Southern African Development Community, adopted by the heads of State or Government of the States members of the Community at Windhoek on 9 March 2001, as well as the Protocol on the Control of Firearms, Ammunition and Other Related Materials in the Southern African Development Community Region, adopted by the heads of State and Government of the States members of the Community at Blantyre, Malawi, in August 2001, and the initiatives taken by States members of the Economic Community of West African States to further extend their agreement on a moratorium on the import, export and manufacture of light weapons;

6. Reaffirms the importance for Member States to contribute by all means at their disposal to an effective and lasting peace in Angola, and in that context reiterates that the primary cause of the present situation in Angola is the failure of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, under the leadership of Jonas Savimbi, to comply with its obligations under the Peace Accords, the Lusaka Protocol and relevant Security Council resolutions;

7. Affirms the importance of the South Atlantic to global maritime and commercial transactions and its determination to preserve the region for all peaceful purposes and activities protected by international law, in particular the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea;

8. Calls upon Member States to continue their efforts towards the achievement of appropriate regulation of maritime transport of radioactive and toxic wastes, taking into account the interests of coastal States and in accordance with the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea and the regulations of the International Maritime Organization and the International Atomic Energy Agency;

9. Views with concern the increase in drug trafficking and related crimes, including drug abuse, and calls upon the international community and the States members of the zone to promote regional and international cooperation to combat all aspects of the problem of drugs and related offences;

10. Recognizes, in the light of the number, magnitude and complexity of natural disasters and other emergencies, the need to continue to strengthen the coordination of humanitarian assistance by States members of the zone, so as to ensure a timely and effective response;

11. Welcomes the offer by Benin to host the sixth meeting of the States members of the zone;

12. Requests the relevant organizations, organs and bodies of the United Nations system to render all appropriate assistance that States members of the zone may seek in their joint efforts to implement the declaration of the zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to keep the implementation of resolution 41/11 and subsequent resolutions on the matter under review and to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session, taking into account, inter alia, the views expressed by Member States;

14. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Zone of peace and cooperation of the South Atlantic".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/7:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Belarus, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Cambodia, Canada, Chile, China, Colombia, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Egypt, Equatorial Guinea, Finland, France, Gambia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Iceland, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Myanmar, Netherlands, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Moldova, Romania, San Marino, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: None.

Abstaining: United States.

Indian Ocean

In 2001, the Ad Hoc Committee on the Indian Ocean (New York, 5 July) [A/56/29] continued to consider approaches for achieving the goals of the 1971 Declaration of the Indian Ocean as a Zone of Peace, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2832(XXVI) [YUN 1971, p. 34].

Pursuant to resolution 54/47 [YUN 1999, p. 519], the Chairman of the Committee, following informal consultations with Committee members, concluded that implementation of the Declaration gave rise to a number of difficulties, making progress in that regard elusive. It was generally felt that the time was not yet opportune for a focused discussion on practical measures to ensure conditions of peace, security and stability in the Indian Ocean region, and the General Assembly should allow further time for consultations on how that could be achieved. Three permanent members of the Security Council (France, United Kingdom, United States) continued their non-participation in the Committee's work.

The Ad Hoc Committee reaffirmed the conclusions of its 1994 [YUN 1994, p. 155], 1995 [YUN 1995, p. 182] and 1996 [YUN 1996, p. 512] sessions and re-emphasized the need to foster consensual, step-by-step approaches. It reiterated its conviction that the participation of all permanent Security Council members and the major maritime users of the Indian Ocean in the Committee's work would assist the progress of a mutually beneficial dialogue to develop conditions of peace, security and stability in the region. The Chairman was requested to continue informal consultations and to report to the Assembly in 2003.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First (Disarmament and International Security) Committee [A/56/528], adopted resolution 56/16 by recorded vote (110-3-41) [agenda item 66].

Implementation of the Declaration of the Indian Ocean as a Zone of Peace

The General Assembly,

Recalling the Declaration of the Indian Ocean as a Zone of Peace, contained in its resolution 2832(XXVI) of 16 December 1971, and recalling also its resolution 54/47 of 1 December 1999 and other relevant resolutions,

Recalling also the report of the Meeting of the Littoral and Hinterland States of the Indian Ocean held in July 1979,

Recalling further paragraph 148 of the Final Document of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, in which it was noted, inter alia, that the Chairperson of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Indian Ocean would continue his informal consultations on the future work of the Committee,

Emphasizing the need to foster consensual approaches that are conducive to the pursuit of such endeavours,

Noting the initiatives taken by countries of the region to promote cooperation, in particular economic cooperation, in the Indian Ocean area and the possible contribution of such initiatives to overall objectives of a zone of peace,

Convinced that the participation of all permanent members of the Security Council and the major maritime users of the Indian Ocean in the work of the Ad Hoc Committee is important and would assist the progress of a mutually beneficial dialogue to develop conditions of peace, security and stability in the Indian Ocean region,

Considering that greater efforts and more time are required to develop a focused discussion on practical measures to ensure conditions of peace, security and stability in the Indian Ocean region,

Having considered the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Indian Ocean,

1. Takes note of the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Indian Ocean;

2. Reiterates its conviction that the participation of all permanent members of the Security Council and the major maritime users of the Indian Ocean in the work of the Ad Hoc Committee is important and would greatly facilitate the development of a mutually beneficial dialogue to advance peace, security and stability in the Indian Ocean region;

3. Requests the Chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee to continue his informal consultations with the members of the Committee and to report through the Committee to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to render, within existing resources, all necessary assistance to the Ad Hoc Committee, including the provision of summary records;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-eighth session the item entitled "Implementation of the Declaration of the Indian Ocean as a Zone of Peace".

Decolonization

The General Assembly's Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples (Special Committee on decolonization) held its annual session in New York in two parts—21 February and 12 March (first part); and 18-19, 21 and 28-29 June and 2-3 July (second part). It considered various aspects of the implementation of the 1960 Declaration, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 1514(XV) [YUN 1960, p. 49], including general decolonization issues and the situation of individual Non-Self-Governing Territories (NSGTs). Pursuant to Assembly resolution 55/147 [YUN 2000, p. 549], the Special Committee transmitted to the Assembly the report on its 2001 activities [A/56/23].

Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism

Plan of Action for the Second Decade

The Secretary-General, as requested in General Assembly resolution 55/146 [YUN 2000, p. 548], submitted a March report [A/56/61], the annex to which contained the plan of action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism (2001-2010). The Secretary-General explained that, since the views and suggestions of Member States contained in the plan of action for the first Decade [YUN 1991, p. 777], and approved by the Assembly in resolution 46/181 [ibid.], remained largely relevant for the Second Decade, that plan had been updated accordingly.

The plan of action set out steps to be taken at the international level, areas in which the United Nations, in cooperation with the administering Powers, should take action as a matter of priority, and areas in which the administering Powers should take action; identified the role of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the UN system and NGOs; and indicated action the Special Committee on decolonization should take. The plan also provided for coordination, review, appraisal and reporting.

Caribbean regional seminar

As part of its activities to implement the plan of action for the Second International Decade, the Special Committee on decolonization [A/56/23] organized a Caribbean regional seminar (Havana, Cuba, 23-25 May) to review political, economic and social developments in the small island NSGTs.

The seminar welcomed the proclamation of the Second International Decade as a political framework for supporting the decolonization process and the UN role in that regard, and called for the full implementation of the Decade's plan of action. The regional seminars served as effective forums for discussing the concerns of NSGTs and for presenting their views and recommendations to the Special Committee.

In addition to recommending measures to move NSGTs closer to self-determination and restating earlier recommendations [YUN 2000, p. 549], the seminar called for the regular update of the decolonization web page by the Secretariat's Departments of Political Affairs (DPA) and of Public Information (DPI) to raise awareness of the political rights of NSGTs and the options for determining their political status. Participants urged the Special Committee to implement its programme of work regarding the situation in NSGTs and called for their increased involvement in UN system programmes and activities for furthering the decolonization process. The seminar encouraged UN information assistance to those NSGTs with observer status in UN world conferences and General Assembly special sessions. It requested those Special Committee members that were members of the Economic and Social Council to support the inclusion as observers in the Council of those NSGTs that were associate members of UN regional commissions.

Participants welcomed as an observer at the seminar, for the first time, the representative of the United Kingdom and a statement regarding the United Kingdom's intention to engage with the Special Committee with a view to enhancing cooperation.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/74 [draft: A/56/L.40] by recorded vote (132-2-21) [agenda item 18].

Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples

The General Assembly,

Having examined the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples,

Recalling its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and all its subsequent resolutions concerning the implementation of the Declaration, most recently resolution 55/147 of 8 December 2000, as well as the relevant resolutions of the Security Council,

Bearing in mind the declaration of the period 2001-2010 as the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and the need to examine ways to ascertain the wishes of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories on the basis of resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions on decolonization,

Recognizing that the eradication of colonialism has been one of the priorities of the Organization and continues to be one of its priorities for the decade that began in 2001,

Reconfirming the need to take measures to eliminate colonialism before 2010, as called for in its resolution 55/146 of 8 December 2000,

Reiterating its conviction of the need for the eradication of colonialism, as well as of racial discrimination and violations of basic human rights,

Noting with satisfaction the achievements of the Special Committee in contributing to the effective and complete implementation of the Declaration and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations on decolonization,

Stressing the importance of the participation of the administering Powers in the work of the Special Committee,

Noting with concern that the non-participation of certain administering Powers has adversely affected the implementation of the mandate and work of the Special Committee,

Noting with satisfaction the cooperation and active participation of some administering Powers in the work of the Special Committee,

Noting that the other administering Powers have now agreed to work informally with the Special Committee,

Taking note of the consultations and agreements between the parties concerned in some Non-Self-Governing Territories and the action taken by the Secretary-General in relation to certain Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Aware of the pressing need of newly independent and emerging States for assistance from the United Nations and its system of organizations in the economic, social and other fields,

Aware also of the pressing need of many of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories, including in particular small island Territories, for economic, social and other assistance from the United Nations and the organizations of its system,

Taking special note of the fact that the Special Committee held a Caribbean regional seminar to review the situation in the small island Non-Self-Governing Territories, particularly their political evolution towards self-determination for the year 2001 and beyond, in Havana from 23 to 25 May 2001,

1. Reaffirms its resolution 1514(XV) and all other resolutions and decisions on decolonization, including its resolution 55/146, in which it declares the period 2001-2010 the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and calls upon the administering Powers, in accordance with those resolutions, to take all necessary steps to enable the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories concerned to exercise fully as soon as possible their right to self-determination, including independence;

2. Reaffirms once again that the existence of colonialism in any form or manifestation, including economic exploitation, is incompatible with the Charter of the United Nations, the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights;

3. Reaffirms its determination to continue to take all steps necessary to bring about the complete and speedy eradication of colonialism and the faithful observance by all States of the relevant provisions of the Charter, the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights;

4. Affirms once again its support for the aspirations of the peoples under colonial rule to exercise their right to self-determination, including independence, in accordance with relevant resolutions of the United Nations on decolonization;

5. Approves the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples covering its work during 2001, including the programme of work envisaged for 2002;

6. Calls upon the administering Powers to cooperate fully with the Special Committee to finalize before the end of 2002 a constructive programme of work on a case-by-case basis for the Non-Self-Governing Territories to facilitate the implementation of the mandate of the Special Committee and the relevant resolutions on decolonization, including resolutions on specific Territories;

7. Welcomes the ongoing consultations between the Special Committee and New Zealand, as administering Power for Tokelau, with the participation of representatives of the people of Tokelau, with a view to formulating a programme of work on the question of Tokelau;

8. Requests the Special Committee to continue to seek suitable means for the immediate and full implementation of the Declaration and to carry out those actions approved by the General Assembly regarding the International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism and the Second International Decade in all Territories that have not yet exercised their right to self-determination, including independence, and in particular:

(a) To formulate specific proposals to bring about an end to colonialism and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

(b) To continue to examine the implementation by Member States of resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions on decolonization;

(c) To continue to pay special attention to the small Territories, including through the dispatch of visiting missions, and to recommend to the General Assembly the most suitable steps to be taken to enable the populations of those Territories to exercise their right to self-determination, including independence;

(d) To finalize before the end of 2002 a constructive programme of work on a case-by-case basis for the Non-Self-Governing Territories to facilitate the implementation of the mandate of the Special Committee and the relevant resolutions on decolonization, including resolutions on specific Territories;

(e) To take all necessary steps to enlist worldwide support among Governments, as well as national and international organizations, for the achievement of the objectives of the Declaration and the implementation of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

(f) To conduct seminars, as appropriate, for the purpose of receiving and disseminating information on the work of the Special Committee, and to facilitate participation by the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories in those seminars;

(g) To observe annually the Week of Solidarity with the Peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories;

9. Calls upon all States, in particular the administering Powers, as well as the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, to give effect within their respective spheres of competence to the recommendations of the Special Committee for the implementation of the Declaration and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

10. Calls upon the administering Powers to ensure that the economic activities in the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration do not adversely affect the interests of the peoples but instead promote development, and to assist them in the exercise of their right to self-determination;

11. Urges the administering Powers concerned to take effective measures to safeguard and guarantee the inalienable rights of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to their natural resources, including land, and to establish and maintain control over the future development of those resources, and requests the administering Powers to take all necessary steps to protect the property rights of the peoples of those Territories;

12. Reiterates that military activities and arrangements by administering Powers in the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration should not run counter to the rights and interests of the peoples of the Territories concerned, especially their right to self-determination, including independence, calls upon the administering Powers concerned to terminate such activities and to eliminate the remaining military bases in compliance with the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, and also calls upon the administering Powers to promote alternative sources of livelihood for the peoples of the Territories concerned;

13. Urges all States, directly and through their action in the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, to provide moral and material assistance to the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, and requests that the administering Powers take steps to enlist and make effective use of all possible assistance, on both a bilateral and a multilateral basis, in the strengthening of the economies of those Territories;

14. Reaffirms that the United Nations visiting missions to the Territories are an effective means of ascertaining the situation in the Territories, as well as the wishes and aspirations of their inhabitants, and calls upon the administering Powers to continue to cooperate with the Special Committee in the discharge of its mandate and to facilitate visiting missions to the Territories;

15. Calls upon the administering Powers that have not participated formally in the work of the Special Committee to do so at its session in 2002;

16. Requests the Secretary-General, the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to provide economic, social and other assistance to the Non-Self-Governing Territories and to continue to do so, as appropriate, after they exercise their right to self-determination, including independence;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to provide the Special Committee with the facilities and services required for the implementation of the present resolution, as well as of the other resolutions and decisions on decolonization adopted by the General Assembly and the Special Committee.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/74:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: United Kingdom, United States.

Abstaining: Belgium, Bulgaria, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Netherlands, Republic of Korea, Slovenia, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkey.

Speaking after the vote, the United Kingdom said that it continued to find some elements of the text unacceptable, including, but not limited to, operative paragraph 12, which called on the administering Powers to eliminate the remaining military bases in NSGTs. However, it remained sincerely committed to furthering the process of informal dialogue with the Special Committee on decolonization.

By decision 56/464 of 24 December, the Assembly decided that the agenda item on the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples would remain for consideration during its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session.

Implementation by international organizations

In May [A/56/65], the Secretary-General reported that he had brought General Assembly resolution 55/139 [YUN 2000, p. 553] on the implementation of the 1960 Declaration on decolonization to the attention of the specialized agencies and international institutions associated with the United Nations and invited them to submit information regarding their implementation activities in support of NSGTs. Replies received from 13 departments, agencies and institutions were summarized in a May report of the President of the Economic and Social Council [E/2001/57]. According to the information provided, a number of specialized agencies and organizations continued to extend assistance to NSGTs through programmes from within their own budgetary resources, in addition to their respective contributions as executing agencies of projects funded by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). UNDP itself continued to fund assistance projects in close collaboration with other agencies and organizations.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 26 July [meeting 43], the Economic and Social Council adopted resolution 2001/28 [draft: E/2001/L.22, orally revised] by roll-call vote (30-0-19) [agenda item 9].

Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations

The Economic and Social Council,

Having examined the report of the Secretary-General and the report of the President of the Economic and Social Council containing the information submitted by the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system on their activities with regard to the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples,

Having heard the statement by the representative of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples,

Recalling General Assembly resolutions 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960 and 1541(XV) of 15 December 1960, the resolutions of the Special Committee and other relevant resolutions and decisions, including in particular Economic and Social Council resolution 2000/30 of 28 July 2000,

Bearing in mind the relevant provisions of the final documents of the successive Conferences of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries and of the resolutions adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity, the Pacific Islands Forum and the Caribbean Community,

Conscious of the need to facilitate the implementation of the Declaration,

Welcoming the current participation in their capacity as observers of those Non-Self-Governing Territories that are associate members of the regional commissions in United Nations world conferences in the economic and social sphere, subject to the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and in accordance with relevant United Nations resolutions and decisions, including resolutions and decisions of the Assembly and the Special Committee on specific Territories, and in the special session of the Assembly for an overall review and appraisal of the implementation of the outcome of the United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II), held in New York from 6 to 9 June 2001,

Noting that the large majority of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories are small island Territories,

Welcoming the assistance extended to Non-Self-Governing Territories by certain specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in particular the United Nations Development Programme,

Stressing that, because the development options of the small island Non-Self-Governing Territories are limited, there are special challenges to planning for and implementing sustainable development and that those Territories will be constrained in meeting the challenges without the continued cooperation and assistance of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system,

Stressing also the importance of securing the necessary resources for funding expanded assistance programmes for the peoples concerned and the need to enlist the support of all major funding institutions within the United Nations system in that regard,

Reaffirming the mandates of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to take all the appropriate measures, within their respective spheres of competence, to ensure the full implementation of resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions,

Expressing its appreciation to the Organization of African Unity, the Pacific Islands Forum, the Caribbean

Community and other regional organizations for the continued cooperation and assistance they have extended to the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in this regard,

Expressing its conviction that closer contacts and consultations between and among the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and regional organizations help to facilitate the effective formulation of assistance programmes to the peoples concerned,

Mindful of the imperative need to keep under continuous review the activities of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in the implementation of the various relevant United Nations decisions,

Bearing in mind the extremely fragile economies of the small island Non-Self-Governing Territories and their vulnerability to natural disasters, such as hurricanes, cyclones and sea-level rise, and recalling the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly,

Recalling General Assembly resolution 55/139 of 8 December 2000, entitled "Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations",

1. Takes note of the report of the President of the Economic and Social Council containing the information submitted by the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system on their activities with regard to the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and endorses the observations and suggestions arising therefrom;

2. Also takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;

3. Recommends that all States intensify their efforts in the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to ensure the full and effective implementation of the Declaration, contained in resolution 1514(XV), and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

4. Reaffirms that the specialized agencies and other organizations and institutions of the United Nations system should continue to be guided by the relevant resolutions of the United Nations in their efforts to contribute to the implementation of the Declaration and all other relevant General Assembly resolutions;

5. Also reaffirms that the recognition by the General Assembly, the Security Council and other United Nations organs of the legitimacy of the aspirations of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to exercise their right to self-determination entails, as a corollary, the extension of all appropriate assistance to those peoples;

6. Expresses its appreciation to those specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system that have continued to cooperate with the United Nations and the regional and subregional organizations in the implementation of resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations, and requests all the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to implement the relevant provisions of those resolutions;

7. Requests the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and international and regional organizations to examine and review conditions in each Territory so as to take appropriate measures to accelerate progress in the economic and social sectors of the Territories;

8. Requests the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations and regional organizations to strengthen existing measures of support and formulate appropriate programmes of assistance to the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories, within the framework of their respective mandates, in order to accelerate progress in the economic and social sectors of those Territories;

9. Recommends that the executive heads of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system formulate, with the active cooperation of the regional organizations concerned, concrete proposals for the full implementation of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations and submit the proposals to their governing and legislative organs;

10. Also recommends that the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system continue to review, at the regular meetings of their governing bodies, the implementation of resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

11. Welcomes the continuing initiative exercised by the United Nations Development Programme in maintaining close liaison among the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and in providing assistance to the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

12. Encourages Non-Self-Governing Territories to take steps to establish and/or strengthen disaster preparedness and management institutions and policies;

13. Requests the administering Powers concerned to facilitate, when appropriate, the participation of appointed and elected representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories in the relevant meetings and conferences of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in accordance with relevant United Nations resolutions and decisions, including resolutions and decisions of the General Assembly and the Special Committee, on specific Territories, so that the Territories may benefit from the related activities of those agencies and organizations;

14. Recommends that all Governments intensify their efforts in the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system of which they are members to accord priority to the question of providing assistance to the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

15. Draws the attention of the Special Committee to the present resolution and to the discussion held on the subject at the substantive session of 2001 of the Economic and Social Council;

16. Welcomes the adoption by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean of resolution 574(XXVII) of 16 May 1998 calling for the necessary mechanisms for its associate members, including small island Non-Self-Governing Territories, to participate in the special sessions of the General Assembly, subject to the rules of procedure of the Assembly, to review and assess the implementation of the plans of action of those United Nations world conferences in which the Territories originally participated in the capacity of observer, and in the work of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies;

17. Requests the President of the Council to continue to maintain close contact on these matters with the Chairman of the Special Committee, and to report thereon to the Council;

18. Requests the Secretary-General to follow the implementation of the present resolution, paying particular attention to cooperation and integration arrangements for maximizing the efficiency of the assistance activities undertaken by various organizations of the United Nations system, and to report thereon to the Council at its substantive session of 2002;

19. Decides to keep these questions under continuous review.

ROLL-CALL VOTE ON RESOLUTION 2001/28:

In favour: Angola, Argentina, Bahrain, Bolivia, Brazil, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, China, Costa Rica, Cuba, Egypt, Ethiopia, Fiji, Honduras, Indonesia, Iran, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Nigeria, Pakistan, Peru, Republic of Korea, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, Sudan, Suriname, Syrian Arab Republic, Uganda, Venezuela.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Andorra, Austria, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Malta, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Romania, Russian Federation, United Kingdom, United States.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth (Special Political and Decolonization) Committee [A/56/555], adopted resolution 56/67 by recorded vote (106-0-50) [agenda items 93 & 12].

Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations

The General Assembly,

Having considered the item entitled "Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations",

Having also considered the report of the Secretary-General on the item,

Having examined the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to the item,

Recalling its resolutions 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960 and 1541(XV) of 15 December 1960 and the resolutions of the Special Committee, as well as other relevant resolutions and decisions, including in particular Economic and Social Council resolution 2000/30 of 28 July 2000,

Bearing in mind the relevant provisions of the final documents of the successive Conferences of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries and of the resolutions adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity, the Pacific Islands Forum and the Caribbean Community,

Conscious of the need to facilitate the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, contained in resolution 1514(XV),

Noting that the large majority of the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories are small island Territories,

Welcoming the assistance extended to Non-Self-Governing Territories by certain specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in particular the United Nations Development Programme,

Also welcoming the current participation in the capacity of observers of those Non-Self-Governing Territories which are associate members of regional commissions in the world conferences in the economic and social sphere, subject to the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and in accordance with relevant United Nations resolutions and decisions, including resolutions and decisions of the Assembly and the Special Committee on specific Territories, and in the special session of the General Assembly on the review and appraisal of the implementation of the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development, held at Headquarters from 30 June to 2 July 1999,

Noting that only some specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system have been involved in providing assistance for Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Stressing that, because the development options of the small island Non-Self-Governing Territories are limited, there are special challenges to planning for and implementing sustainable development and that those Territories will be constrained in meeting the challenges without the continued cooperation and assistance of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system,

Stressing also the importance of securing the necessary resources for funding expanded assistance programmes for the peoples concerned and the need to enlist the support of all major funding institutions within the United Nations system in that regard,

Reaffirming the mandates of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to take all appropriate measures, within their respective spheres of competence, to ensure the full implementation of General Assembly resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions,

Expressing its appreciation to the Organization of African Unity, the Pacific Islands Forum, the Caribbean Community and other regional organizations for the continued cooperation and assistance they have extended to the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in this regard,

Expressing its conviction that closer contacts and consultations between and among the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and regional organizations help to facilitate the effective formulation of assistance programmes to the peoples concerned,

Mindful of the imperative need to keep under continuous review the activities of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in the implementation of the various United Nations decisions relating to decolonization,

Bearing in mind the extremely fragile economies of the small island Non-Self-Governing Territories and their vulnerability to natural disasters, such as hurricanes, cyclones and sea-level rise, and recalling the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/139 of 8 December 2000 on the implementation of the Declaration by the specialized agencies and the international institutions associated with the United Nations,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Recommends that all States intensify their efforts in the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to ensure the full and effective implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, contained in General Assembly resolution 1514(XV), and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations;
3. Reaffirms that the specialized agencies and other organizations and institutions of the United Nations system should continue to be guided by the relevant resolutions of the United Nations in their efforts to contribute to the implementation of the Declaration and all other relevant General Assembly resolutions;
4. Reaffirms also that the recognition by the General Assembly, the Security Council and other United Nations organs of the legitimacy of the aspirations of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to exercise their right to self-determination entails, as a corollary, the extension of all appropriate assistance to those peoples;
5. Expresses its appreciation to those specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system that have continued to cooperate with the United Nations and the regional and subregional organizations in the implementation of General Assembly resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations, and requests all the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to implement the relevant provisions of those resolutions;
6. Requests the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and international and regional organizations to examine and review conditions in each Territory so as to take appropriate measures to accelerate progress in the economic and social sectors of the Territories;
7. Urges those specialized agencies and organizations of the United Nations system that have not yet provided assistance for Non-Self-Governing Territories to do so as soon as possible;
8. Requests the specialized agencies and other organizations and institutions of the United Nations system and regional organizations to strengthen existing measures of support and formulate appropriate programmes of assistance to the remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories, within the framework of their respective mandates, in order to accelerate progress in the economic and social sectors of those Territories;
9. Requests the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system concerned to provide information on:
  - (a) Environmental problems facing the Non-Self-Governing Territories;
  - (b) The impact of natural disasters, such as hurricanes and volcanic eruptions, and other environmental problems, such as beach and coastal erosion and droughts, on those Territories;

(c) Ways and means to assist the Territories to fight drug trafficking, money-laundering and other illegal and criminal activities;

(d) The illegal exploitation of the marine resources of the Territories and the need to utilize those resources for the benefit of the peoples of the Territories;

10. Recommends that the executive heads of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system formulate, with the active cooperation of the regional organizations concerned, concrete proposals for the full implementation of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations and submit the proposals to their governing and legislative organs;

11. Also recommends that the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system continue to review at the regular meetings of their governing bodies the implementation of General Assembly resolution 1514(XV) and other relevant resolutions of the United Nations;

12. Welcomes the continuing initiative exercised by the United Nations Development Programme in maintaining close liaison among the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and in providing assistance for the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

13. Encourages Non-Self-Governing Territories to take steps to establish and/or strengthen disaster preparedness and management institutions and policies;

14. Requests the administering Powers concerned to facilitate, when appropriate, the participation of appointed and elected representatives of Non-Self-Governing Territories in the relevant meetings and conferences of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in accordance with relevant United Nations resolutions and decisions, including resolutions and decisions of the General Assembly and the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples on specific Territories, so that the Territories may benefit from the related activities of those agencies and organizations;

15. Recommends that all Governments intensify their efforts in the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system of which they are members to accord priority to the question of providing assistance for the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

16. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to assist the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in working out appropriate measures for implementing the relevant resolutions of the United Nations and to prepare for submission to the relevant bodies, with the assistance of those agencies and organizations, a report on the action taken in implementation of the relevant resolutions, including the present resolution, since the circulation of his previous report;

17. Commends the Economic and Social Council for its debate and resolution on this question, and requests it to continue to consider, in consultation with the Special Committee, appropriate measures for coordination of the policies and activities of the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system in implementing the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly;

18. Requests the specialized agencies to report periodically to the Secretary-General on the implementation of the present resolution;

19. Requests the Secretary-General to transmit the present resolution to the governing bodies of the appropriate specialized agencies and international institutions associated with the United Nations so that those bodies may take the necessary measures to implement the resolution, and also requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

20. Requests the Special Committee to continue to examine the question and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session.

Military activities and arrangements in colonial countries

The Special Committee on decolonization considered military activities and arrangements by colonial Powers in Territories under their administration. It had before it Secretariat working papers containing information on, among other subjects, military activities and arrangements in Bermuda [A/AC.109/2001/9], Guam [A/AC.109/2001/4] and the United States Virgin Islands [A/AC.109/2001/3]. On 3 July, it recommended a draft decision for adoption by the General Assembly (see below).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

In December, the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/554], adopted decision 56/420 by recorded vote (92-51) [agenda items 92 & 18].

Military activities and arrangements by colonial Powers in Territories under their administration

At its 82nd plenary meeting, on 10 December 2001, the General Assembly, by a recorded vote of 92 to 51, with no abstentions, and on the recommendation of the Special Political and Decolonization Committee (Fourth Committee), adopted the following text:

"1. The General Assembly, having considered the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to an item on the agenda of the Special Committee entitled 'Military activities and arrangements by colonial Powers in Territories under their administration', and recalling its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960 and all other relevant resolutions and decisions of the United Nations relating to military activities in colonial and Non-Self-Governing Territories, reaffirms its strong conviction that military bases and installations in the Territories concerned could constitute an obstacle to the exercise by the people of those Territories of their right to self-determination, and reiterates its strong views that existing bases and installations, which are impeding the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, should be withdrawn.

"2. Aware of the presence of such bases and installations in some of those Territories, the General Assembly urges the administering Powers concerned to continue to take all necessary measures not to involve those Territories in any offensive acts or interference against other States.

"3. The General Assembly reiterates its concern that military activities and arrangements by colonial Powers in Territories under their administration might run counter to the rights and interests of the colonial peoples concerned, especially their right to self-determination and independence. The Assembly once again calls upon the administering Powers concerned to terminate such activities and to eliminate such military bases in compliance with its relevant resolutions. Alternative sources of livelihood for the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories should be provided.

"4. The General Assembly reiterates that the colonial and Non-Self-Governing Territories and areas adjacent thereto should not be used for nuclear testing, dumping of nuclear wastes or deployment of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction.

"5. The General Assembly deplores the continued alienation of land in colonial and Non-Self-Governing Territories, particularly in the small island Territories of the Pacific and Caribbean regions, for military installations. The large-scale utilization of the local resources for this purpose could adversely affect the economic development of the Territories concerned.

"6. The General Assembly takes note of the decision of some of the administering Powers to close or downsize some of those military bases in the Non-Self-Governing Territories.

"7. The General Assembly requests the Secretary-General to continue to inform world public opinion of those military activities and arrangements in colonial and Non-Self-Governing Territories which constitute an obstacle to the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples.

"8. The General Assembly requests the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples to continue to examine this question and to report thereon to the Assembly at its fifty-seventh session."

RECORDED VOTE ON DECISION 56/420:

In favour: Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Cyprus, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Andorra, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Paraguay, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Economic and other activities affecting the interests of NSGTs

The Special Committee on decolonization continued consideration of economic and other activities affecting the interests of the peoples of NSGTs. It had before it Secretariat working papers containing information on, among other things, economic conditions, with particular reference to foreign economic activities in Anguilla, American Samoa, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Guam, Montserrat, the Turks and Caicos Islands and the United States Virgin Islands [A/AC.109/2001/13, A/AC.109/2001/17, A/AC.109/2001/9, A/AC.109/2001/8, A/AC.109/2001/15, A/AC.109/2001/4, A/AC.109/2001/6, A/AC.109/2001/7, A/AC.109/2001/3].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/554], adopted resolution 56/66 by recorded vote (147-2-5) [agenda items 92 & 18].

Economic and other activities which affect the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Having considered the item entitled "Economic and other activities which affect the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories",

Having examined the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to the item,

Recalling its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, as well as all other relevant General Assembly resolutions, including, in particular, resolutions 46/181 of 19 December 1991 and 55/146 of 8 December 2000,

Reaffirming the solemn obligation of the administering Powers under the Charter of the United Nations to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the Territories under their administration and to protect the human and natural resources of those Territories against abuses,

Reaffirming also that any economic or other activity that has a negative impact on the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and on the exercise of their right to self-determination in conformity with the Charter and General Assembly resolution 1514(XV) is contrary to the purposes and principles of the Charter,

Reaffirming further that the natural resources are the heritage of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, including the indigenous populations,

Aware of the special circumstances of the geographical location, size and economic conditions of each Territory, and bearing in mind the need to promote the economic stability, diversification and strengthening of the economy of each Territory,

Conscious of the particular vulnerability of the small Territories to natural disasters and environmental degradation,

Conscious also that foreign economic investment, when done in collaboration with the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and in accordance with their wishes, could make a valid contribution to the socio-economic development of the Territories and could also make a valid contribution to the exercise of their right to self-determination,

Concerned about any activities aimed at exploiting the natural and human resources of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to the detriment of the interests of the inhabitants of those Territories,

Bearing in mind the relevant provisions of the final documents of the successive Conferences of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries and of the resolutions adopted by the Assembly of Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity, the Pacific Islands Forum and the Caribbean Community,

1. Reaffirms the right of peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories to self-determination in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations and with General Assembly resolution 1514(XV), containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, as well as their right to the enjoyment of their natural resources and their right to dispose of those resources in their best interest;

2. Affirms the value of foreign economic investment undertaken in collaboration with the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories and in accordance with their wishes in order to make a valid contribution to the socio-economic development of the Territories;

3. Reaffirms the responsibility of the administering Powers under the Charter to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, and reaffirms the legitimate rights of their peoples over their natural resources;

4. Reaffirms its concern about any activities aimed at the exploitation of the natural resources that are the heritage of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, including the indigenous populations, in the Caribbean, the Pacific and other regions, as well as their human resources, to the detriment of their interests, and in such a way as to deprive them of their right to dispose of those resources;

5. Affirms the need to avoid any economic and other activities which adversely affect the interests of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

6. Calls once again upon all Governments that have not yet done so to take, in accordance with the relevant provisions of General Assembly resolution 2621(XXV) of 12 October 1970, legislative, administrative or other measures in respect of their nationals and the bodies corporate under their jurisdiction that own and operate enterprises in the Non-Self-Governing Territories that are detrimental to the interests of the inhabitants of those Territories, in order to put an end to such enterprises;

7. Reiterates that the damaging exploitation and plundering of the marine and other natural resources of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, in violation of the relevant resolutions of the United Nations, is a threat to the integrity and prosperity of those Territories;

8. Invites all Governments and organizations of the United Nations system to take all possible measures to ensure that the permanent sovereignty of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories over their natural resources is fully respected and safeguarded;

9. Urges the administering Powers concerned to take effective measures to safeguard and guarantee the inalienable right of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to their natural resources and to establish and maintain control over the future development of those resources, and requests the administering Powers to take all necessary steps to protect the property rights of the peoples of those Territories;

10. Calls upon the administering Powers concerned to ensure that no discriminatory working conditions prevail in the Territories under their administration and to promote in each Territory a fair system of wages applicable to all the inhabitants without any discrimination;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to continue, through all means at his disposal, to inform world public opinion of any activity that affects the exercise of the right of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories to self-determination in conformity with the Charter and General Assembly resolution 1514(XV);

12. Appeals to the mass media, trade unions and non-governmental organizations, as well as individuals, to continue their efforts to promote the economic well-being of the peoples of the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

13. Decides to follow the situation in the Non-Self-Governing Territories so as to ensure that all economic activities in those Territories are aimed at strengthening and diversifying their economies in the interest of their peoples, including the indigenous populations, and at promoting the economic and financial viability of those Territories;

14. Requests the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples to continue to examine this question and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/66:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, Gabon, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: Israel, United States.

Abstaining: France, Georgia, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, United Kingdom.

Dissemination of information

The Special Committee on decolonization held consultations in June with representatives of DPA and DPI on the dissemination of information on decolonization. The Committee also considered a DPI report on the topic [A/AC.109/2001/19].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Special Committee on decolonization [A/56/23], adopted resolution 56/73 by recorded vote (147-2-4) [agenda item 18].

Dissemination of information on decolonization

The General Assembly,

Having examined the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to the dissemination of information on decolonization and publicity for the work of the United Nations in the field of decolonization,

Recalling its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and other resolutions and decisions of the United Nations concerning the dissemination of information on decolonization, in particular General Assembly resolution 55/145 of 8 December 2000,

Recognizing the need for flexible, practical and innovative approaches towards reviewing the options of self-determination for the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories with a view to achieving the goals of the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism,

Reiterating the importance of dissemination of information as an instrument for furthering the aims of the Declaration, and mindful of the role of world public opinion in effectively assisting the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories to achieve self-determination,

Recognizing the role played by the administering Powers in transmitting information to the Secretary-General in accordance with the terms of Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations,

Aware of the role of non-governmental organizations in the dissemination of information on decolonization,

1. Approves the activities in the field of dissemination of information on decolonization undertaken by the Department of Public Information and the Department of Political Affairs of the Secretariat;

2. Considers it important to continue its efforts to ensure the widest possible dissemination of information on decolonization, with particular emphasis on the options of self-determination available for the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories;

3. Requests the Department of Political Affairs and the Department of Public Information to take into account the suggestions of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples to continue their efforts to take measures through all the media available, including publications, radio and television, as well as the Internet, to give publicity to the work of the United Nations in the field of decolonization and, inter alia:

(a) To continue to collect, prepare and disseminate, particularly to the Territories, basic material on the issue of self-determination of the peoples of Non-Self-Governing Territories;

(b) To seek the full cooperation of the administering Powers in the discharge of the tasks referred to above;

(c) To maintain a working relationship with the appropriate regional and intergovernmental organizations, particularly in the Pacific and Caribbean regions, by holding periodic consultations and exchanging information;

(d) To encourage the involvement of non-governmental organizations in the dissemination of information on decolonization;

(e) To report to the Special Committee on measures taken in the implementation of the present resolution;

4. Requests all States, including the administering Powers, to continue to extend their cooperation in the dissemination of information referred to in paragraph 2 above;

5. Requests the Special Committee to follow the implementation of the present resolution and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/73:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: United Kingdom, United States.

Abstaining: France, Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia.

Speaking after the vote, the United Kingdom stated that it continued to view the obligation that the text placed on the Secretariat to publicize decolonization issues as an unwarranted drain on scarce UN resources.

Information on Territories

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/137 [YUN 2000, p. 558], the Secretary-General submitted a May report [A/56/67] showing the dates on which information on economic, social and educational conditions in NSGTs was transmitted to him from 1999 to 2001, under Article 73 e of the United Nations Charter.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/553], adopted resolution 56/65 by recorded vote (149-0-6) [agenda item 91].

Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations

The General Assembly,

Having examined the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to the information from Non-Self-Governing Territories transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations and the action taken by the Special Committee in respect of that information,

Having also examined the report of the Secretary-General,

Recalling its resolution 1970(XVIII) of 16 December 1963, in which it requested the Special Committee to study the information transmitted to the Secretary-General in accordance with Article 73 e of the Charter and to take such information fully into account in examining the situation with regard to the implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, contained in General Assembly resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960,

Recalling also its resolution 55/137 of 8 December 2000, in which it requested the Special Committee to continue to discharge the functions entrusted to it under resolution 1970(XVIII),

Stressing the importance of timely transmission by the administering Powers of adequate information under Article 73 e of the Charter, in particular in relation to the preparation by the Secretariat of the working papers on the Territories concerned,

1. Approves the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to the information from Non-Self-Governing Territories transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations;

2. Reaffirms that, in the absence of a decision by the General Assembly itself that a Non-Self-Governing Territory has attained a full measure of self-government in terms of Chapter XI of the Charter, the administering Power concerned should continue to transmit information under Article 73 e of the Charter with respect to that Territory;

3. Requests the administering Powers concerned to transmit or continue to transmit to the Secretary-General the information prescribed in Article 73 e of the Charter, as well as the fullest possible information on political and constitutional developments in the Territories concerned, within a maximum period of six months following the expiration of the administrative year in those Territories;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to ensure that adequate information is drawn from all available published sources in connection with the preparation of the working papers relating to the Territories concerned;

5. Requests the Special Committee to continue to discharge the functions entrusted to it under General Assembly resolution 1970(XVIII), in accordance with established procedures.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/65:

In favour: Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, Gabon, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Saint Lucia, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Tonga, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

Against: None.

Abstaining: France, Israel, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, United Kingdom, United States.

Study and training

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/140 [YUN 2000, p. 559], the Secretary-General reported on offers of study and training scholarships for inhabitants of NSGTs during the period 1 June 2000 to 7 June 2001 by seven Member States (Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Canada, Colombia, Mexico, Norway, Qatar) and one non-member State (Holy See) [A/56/88]. Fifty-three Member States and two non-member States had made such offers over the years.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/556], adopted resolution 56/68 without vote [agenda item 94].

Offers by Member States of study and training facilities for inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/140 of 8 December 2000,

Having examined the report of the Secretary-General on offers by Member States of study and training facilities for inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories, prepared pursuant to its resolution 845(IX) of 22 November 1954,

Conscious of the importance of promoting the educational advancement of the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Strongly convinced that the continuation and expansion of offers of scholarships is essential in order to meet the increasing need of students from Non-Self-Governing Territories for educational and training assistance, and considering that students in those Territories should be encouraged to avail themselves of such offers,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Expresses its appreciation to those Member States that have made scholarships available to the inhabitants of Non-Self-Governing Territories;
3. Invites all States to make or continue to make generous offers of study and training facilities to the inhabitants of those Territories that have not yet attained self-government or independence and, wherever possible, to provide travel funds to prospective students;
4. Urges the administering Powers to take effective measures to ensure the widespread and continuous dissemination in the Territories under their administration of information relating to offers of study and training facilities made by States and to provide all the necessary facilities to enable students to avail themselves of such offers;
5. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;
6. Draws the attention of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples to the present resolution.

Visiting missions

In June, the Special Committee on decolonization considered the question of sending visiting missions to NSGTs [A/56/23]. It adopted a resolution stressing the need to dispatch periodic visiting missions to facilitate the full implementation of the 1960 Declaration on decolonization, called on administering Powers to receive those missions in the Territories under their administration, and asked its Chairman to enter into consultations with the administering Power of Guam to facilitate a mission to that Territory to coincide with a proposed plebiscite scheduled for September 2002.

In draft resolutions on 11 small NSGTs (see p. 547) and on Tokelau (see p. 546), which it recommended to the General Assembly for adoption, the Committee endorsed a number of conclusions and recommendations concerning the sending of visiting missions to Territories.

Puerto Rico

In accordance with the Special Committee's 2000 resolution concerning the self-determination and independence of Puerto Rico [YUN 2000, p. 560], the Committee's Rapporteur, in a May report [A/AC.109/2001/L.3], described recent political developments, United States military and crime prevention activities in Puerto Rico, UN action and the views of the parties concerned on Puerto Rico's political status.

On the basis of its usual practice, the Committee acceded to requests for hearings from representatives of a number of organizations, who presented their views on 21 June [A/56/23]. The Committee adopted a resolution without vote by which it reaffirmed the inalienable right of the people of Puerto Rico to self-determination and independence; called on the United States to assume its responsibility to expedite a process to allow the Puerto Rican people to exercise that right; urged the United States to halt all military drills and manoeuvres on the island of Vieques and to return it to the people of Puerto Rico; and requested the Rapporteur to report in 2002 on the resolution's implementation.

Territories under review

East Timor

The Secretariat, in a working paper submitted in May [A/AC.109/2001/18], updated the Special Committee on decolonization on East Timor's transition to independence. The paper drew attention to the Secretary-General's report to the Security Council on 16 January [S/2001/42], in which he noted that a consensus had emerged among East Timorese leaders to seek independence by the end of 2001. Broad public consultations that began in 2000 had led to an agreement on a two-phased approach: a nationwide consultation and decisions regarding the electoral modalities and composition of the Constituent Assembly; and the drafting of a constitution by the Constituent Assembly. The modalities for the adoption of the constitution, whether by the Assembly or by referendum, were still under discussion. On 16 March, the regulation on the election of the Constituent Assembly was promulgated and the civil registration of all residents began. Those elections were held on 30 August.

(For further information on political and security developments and human rights issues relating to East Timor, see PART ONE, Chapter IV, and PART TWO, Chapter III, respectively.)

Falkland Islands (Malvinas)

The Special Committee on decolonization considered the question of the Falkland Islands (Malvinas) on 29 June [A/56/23], when it examined a Secretariat working paper on constitutional and political developments, mine clearance, and economic and social conditions in that Territory [A/AC.109/2001/11].

In a 3 January letter to the Secretary-General [A/55/729], Argentina transmitted a press communiqué reiterating its determination to recover sovereignty over the Malvinas and surrounding islands and maritime areas by peaceful means, and reaffirming its conviction that the resumption of negotiations with the United Kingdom on the sovereignty question would help create a framework for achieving a fair and lasting solution to the dispute. In response, the United Kingdom, on 19 March [A/55/843], restated that it had no doubt about its sovereignty over the Falkland Islands and the other Territories in question and rejected as unfounded any sovereignty claims by Argentina.

On 29 October [A/56/515], Argentina rejected a 1999 United Kingdom "White Paper on Partnership for Peace and Prosperity: Britain and the Overseas Territories" insofar as it referred to the Malvinas, South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands. It rejected their designation as Overseas Territories of the United Kingdom, as well as any attempt to introduce unilateral changes in that situation while the sovereignty dispute was still unresolved. The letter recalled several General Assembly resolutions recognizing the existence of a sovereignty dispute over those Territories.

On 10 November [A/56/PV.44], President Fernando de la Rúa of Argentina, in remarks before the General Assembly, recalled the repeated United Nations requests for Argentina and the United Kingdom to resume negotiations on a just and lasting solution to the sovereignty dispute. He reiterated Argentina's readiness to resume those bilateral negotiations and to support the Secretary-General's good offices mission to that end.

In exercise of its right of reply, the United Kingdom, in a 10 November letter to the Assembly President [A/56/616], welcomed the Argentine President's resolve to continue that bilateral dialogue, which would build on the positive exchanges between the two countries. The United Kingdom pointed out that the joint statement signed in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 536] demonstrated clearly that the two countries could manage their differences over sovereignty, while making progress on matters of common interest in the South Atlantic but that did not compromise the United Kingdom's position on sovereignty. It had a duty to respect the right to self-determination of the people of the Falkland Islands, whose representatives had expressed to the Special Committee on 29 June the wish to exercise that right. The British Government remained committed to the joint statement and, despite their differences, was confident that the two countries could build on it and that their relations would continue to flourish in the spirit of cooperation and mutual interest.

In that context, Argentina and the United Kingdom conveyed to the Secretary-General, in a joint letter of 19 November [A/56/639], the text of an exchange of notes on an understanding between the two Governments to carry out a feasibility study on the clearance of landmines in the Falkland Islands (Malvinas).

By decision 56/410 of 26 November, the Assembly deferred consideration of the item on the Falkland Islands (Malvinas) and included it in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh (2002) session.

Gibraltar

The Special Committee on decolonization considered the question of Gibraltar on 19 and 29 June [A/56/23]. Before it was a working paper describing political developments and economic and social conditions in the Territory, and setting forth the positions of the United Kingdom (the administering Power), Gibraltar and Spain concerning Gibraltar's future status [A/AC.109/2001/10].

In statements made to the Foreign Affairs Committees of the Spanish Senate and the Spanish Congress on 8 February and 14 March, respectively, the Minister for Foreign Affairs reaffirmed Spain's long-standing goal of regaining sovereignty over Gibraltar, while on 15 March, the Spanish President, according to press reports, cautioned that any change in the status of the Territory would be considered a serious violation of the 1713 Treaty of Utrecht and a very grave act.

Regular discussions continued between Gibraltar and United Kingdom officials, including talks on modernizing Gibraltar's Constitution. According to the Government of Gibraltar, its Select Committee on Constitutional Reform aimed to propose to the United Kingdom reforms that would end the Territory's colonial status through self-determination. According to British and Spanish press reports, the United Kingdom reiterated that it would consider only constitutional reform proposals by Gibraltar that were in line with international obligations, including the Treaty of Utrecht. A further statement issued by the United Kingdom on 11 April reiterated its defence of Gibraltar's interests and its intention to continue regular meetings and ongoing discussions with officials in Gibraltar on key matters of mutual interest.

After hearing statements by Spain, the Chief Minister of Gibraltar and the Leader of the Opposition, the Special Committee decided to continue consideration of the question in 2002.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

In December, the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/557], adopted decision 56/421 without vote [agenda item 18].

Question of Gibraltar

At its 82nd plenary meeting, on 10 December 2001, the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Special Political and Decolonization Committee (Fourth Committee), adopted the following text:

"The General Assembly, recalling its decision 55/427 of 8 December 2000, and recalling at the same time that the statement agreed to by the Governments of Spain and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland at Brussels on 27 November 1984 stipulated, inter alia, the following:

'The establishment of a negotiating process aimed at overcoming all the differences between them over Gibraltar and at promoting cooperation on a mutually beneficial basis on economic, cultural, touristic, aviation, military and environmental matters. Both sides accept that the issues of sovereignty will be discussed in that process. The British Government will fully maintain its commitment to honour the wishes of the people of Gibraltar as set out in the preamble of the 1969 Constitution', takes note of the fact that, as part of this process, the Ministers for Foreign Affairs of Spain and of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland hold annual meetings alternately in each capital, the most recent of which was held in London on 26 July 2001, and urges both Governments to continue their negotiations with the object of reaching a definitive solution to the problem of Gibraltar in the light of relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and in the spirit of the Charter of the United Nations."

In a 7 May letter [S/2001/453], Spain drew attention to the final report of the Monitoring Mechanism on Sanctions with regard to Angola [S/2000/1225 & Corr.1,2], which contained a reference to Gibraltar that it felt implied that Gibraltar was a country. Spain wished to make clear that Gibraltar was an NSGT administered by the United Kingdom, subject to the decolonization process and over which Spain maintained a claim of sovereignty.

New Caledonia

The Special Committee on decolonization considered the question of New Caledonia on 29 June and 2 and 3 July [A/56/23]. Before it was a Secretariat working paper describing the political situation and economic developments in the Territory [A/AC.109/2001/14].

In accordance with the 1998 Nouméa Accord on the Territory's future status [YUN 1998, p. 574], the transfer of power from France (the administering Power) continued in 2001. Several services and jurisdictions were transferred to the Government of New Caledonia, and measures were under way to transfer the Institut de Formation des Personnels Administratifs and the Office des Postes et Télécommunications. A later Secretariat working paper [A/AC.109/2002/13] reported that, according to the French Government, the new institutions remained steady throughout 2001, in spite of uncertainties in the political sphere, and there was progress in redressing the Territory's economic imbalance and intensifying regional ties. Seven new "laws of the country", mainly related to labour conditions, were enacted.

The first municipal elections after the signing of the Nouméa Accord were held from 11 to 18 March, with the integrationist Rassemblement pour la Calédonie dans la République (RPCR) receiving 58 per cent of the vote and the pro-independence Front de libération nationale kanak socialiste (FLNKS), 37 per cent. In new elections held on 5 April, following the resignation of President Jean Lèques, Pierre Frogier of RPCR was elected New Caledonia's second President and Dédé Gorodey of FLNKS, Vice-President. RPCR held six portfolios in the new Cabinet and its ally, the Fédération des comités de coopération indépendantistes, one. FLNKS held three portfolios, and one of its components, Union Calédonienne, held one. Rotation of the presidency of the Customary Senate proceeded according to plan. The Senate currently focused on land tenure and on making French law and customary law compatible.

However, progress continued to be hindered by the friction between RPCR and FLNKS, owing to their differing interpretations of "collegiality" in government matters. Those opposing positions remained acute throughout 2001, particularly over the FLNKS insistence on participation in the Government's decision-making process. That disagreement was heightened in September when the French State Council invalidated the appointment of an FLNKS government member because of irregularities in the April congressional elections, weakening the FLNKS position in the Government. In October, FLNKS expressed its disagreement over that decision and announced that its two remaining Cabinet members would not take part in government affairs until it had reviewed its position at a party Congress. That was further complicated by internal divisions within FLNKS over the issue of leadership.

The French Secretary of State for Overseas Territories visited New Caledonia in November, after which both FLNKS and RPCR agreed to hold a second meeting of signatories of the Nouméa Accord in January 2002. Meanwhile, tensions arising from the increasing arrivals of settlers from the French Territory of Wallis and Futuna led to violent confrontations in December with the local Kanak community, which demanded that all Wallisians leave Kanak tribal land.

The issue of voter eligibility [YUN 1999, p. 538] remained unsettled, as ratification of a constitutional amendment by a joint session of the French National Assembly and the Senate was indefinitely postponed.

At its 3 July meeting, the Special Committee adopted a resolution on the question of New Caledonia [A/AC.109/2001/28], deciding to keep under continuous review the Nouméa Accord process and to report to the General Assembly in 2002.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/557], adopted resolution 56/70 without vote [agenda item 18].

Question of New Caledonia

The General Assembly,

Having considered the question of New Caledonia,

Having examined the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to New Caledonia,

Reaffirming the right of peoples to self-determination as enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations,

Recalling its resolutions 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960 and 1541(XV) of 15 December 1960,

Noting the importance of the positive measures being pursued in New Caledonia by the French authorities, in cooperation with all sectors of the population, to promote political, economic and social development in the Territory, including measures in the area of environmental protection and action with respect to drug abuse and trafficking, in order to provide a framework for its peaceful progress to self-determination,

Noting also, in this context, the importance of equitable economic and social development, as well as continued dialogue among the parties involved in New Caledonia in the preparation of the act of self-determination of New Caledonia,

Noting with satisfaction the intensification of contacts between New Caledonia and neighbouring countries of the South Pacific region,

1. Welcomes the significant developments that have taken place in New Caledonia as exemplified by the signing of the Nouméa Accord of 5 May 1998 between the representatives of New Caledonia and the Government of France;

2. Urges all parties involved, in the interest of all of the people of New Caledonia, to maintain, in the framework of the Nouméa Accord, their dialogue in a spirit of harmony;

3. Notes the relevant provisions of the Nouméa Accord aimed at taking more broadly into account the Kanak identity in the political and social organization of New Caledonia, and also those provisions of the Accord relating to control of immigration and protection of local employment;

4. Also notes the relevant provisions of the Nouméa Accord to the effect that New Caledonia may become a member or an associate member of certain international organizations, such as international organizations in the Pacific region, the United Nations, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and the International Labour Organization, in accordance with their regulations;

5. Further notes the agreement between the signatories of the Nouméa Accord that the progress made in the emancipation process shall be brought to the attention of the United Nations;

6. Welcomes the fact that the administering Power invited to New Caledonia, at the time the new institutions were established, a mission of information which comprised representatives of countries of the Pacific region;

7. Calls upon the administering Power to transmit information regarding the political, economic and social situation of New Caledonia to the Secretary-General;

8. Invites all parties involved to continue to promote a framework for the peaceful progress of the Territory towards an act of self-determination in which all options are open and which would safeguard the rights of all New Caledonians according to the letter and the spirit of the Nouméa Accord, which is based on the principle that it is for the populations of New Caledonia to choose how to control their destiny;

9. Welcomes measures that have been taken to strengthen and diversify the New Caledonian economy in all fields, and encourages further such measures in accordance with the spirit of the Matignon and Nouméa Accords;

10. Also welcomes the importance attached by the parties to the Matignon and Nouméa Accords to greater progress in housing, employment, training, education and health care in New Caledonia;

11. Acknowledges the contribution of the Melanesian Cultural Centre to the protection of the indigenous culture of New Caledonia;

12. Notes the positive initiatives aimed at protecting the natural environment of New Caledonia, notably the "Zonéco" operation designed to map and evaluate marine resources within the economic zone of New Caledonia;

13. Acknowledges the close links between New Caledonia and the peoples of the South Pacific and the positive actions being taken by the French and territorial authorities to facilitate the further development of those links, including the development of closer relations with the countries members of the Pacific Islands Forum;

14. Welcomes, in this regard, the accession by New Caledonia to the status of observer in the Pacific Islands Forum, continuing high-level visits to New Caledonia by delegations from countries of the Pacific region and high-level visits by delegations from New Caledonia to countries members of the Pacific Islands Forum;

15. Decides to keep under continuous review the process unfolding in New Caledonia as a result of the signing of the Nouméa Accord;

16. Requests the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples to continue to examine the question of the Non-Self-Governing Territory of New Caledonia and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session.

Tokelau

The Special Committee on decolonization considered, on 28 June, the question of Tokelau (the three small atolls of Nukunonu, Fakaofu and Atafu in the South Pacific), administered by New Zealand [A/56/23]. Before it was a Secretariat working paper detailing constitutional and political developments, as well as economic and social conditions in the Territory, and setting out the positions of New Zealand and Tokelau on the Territory's future status [A/AC.109/2001/5].

According to New Zealand, Tokelau had advanced its governance project, enabling the gradual implementation of the Modern House of Tokelau project [YUN 1998, p. 575]. Starting in January, a transition team [YUN 2000, p. 563] spent two weeks on each atoll to consult on good governance, conduct workshops, review national and village administration, complete training needs identification and inform people about the project. On 8 March, a Joint Committee [ibid.] charged with Modern House project oversight met to review progress. The Joint Committee noted the Taupulega's (each village's Council of Elders) agreement to a village governance structure for Nukunonu and the appointment of a village General Manager; approved a capacity-building programme and the appointment of a 12-month National Project Manager and part-time village coordinators; and decided to develop a Modern House web site. It agreed that the Taupulega was the basis of government and decision-making; that new structures should promote public service, incorporating both national and village services; and that Tokelau's limited resources and skills should be maximized through the coordination, integration and sharing of services.

On 10 February, the General Fono (Tokelau's national representative body) adopted the Tokelau Public Service Rules 2001, establishing a three-member Tokelau Employment Commission to succeed the State Services Commissioner in New Zealand. A later working paper [A/AC.109/2002/6] reported that Tokelau officially took over local public services as scheduled on 1 July. In November, the General Fono approved a Tokelau Public Service manual, setting down principles governing service, terms and conditions of work, as well as guidance for public servants.

The General Fono also changed the basis for its membership from the current system of equal representation (six members for each of the three atolls) to a new system of proportional representation based on the 2001 census. Under the new structure, seats in the new 21-member Fono would be determined by each atoll's population size (8 from Atafu, 7 from Fakaofu and 6 from Nukunonu).

Meetings were held in New York in June between the Ulu-o-Tokelau (titular head of the Territory), his delegation, the Administrator and the Special Committee's Working Group for the Pacific Region, to develop a programme of work defining key activities and to assist in assessing Tokelau's progress towards self-determination. It was agreed that the programme of work would be revised and expanded as the situation evolved.

On 8 October, New Zealand, in a statement to the Fourth Committee, said that Tokelau and New Zealand saw self-determination as a dynamic and evolving process. New Zealand's withdrawal of its State Services Commissioner as employer of the Tokelau Public Service was a major step towards self-government, and Tokelau's international identity was developing with its admission as an associate member of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) on 15 October. At issue in Tokelau was not the elimination of colonialism but a resolution of issues of governance; New Zealand continued to respect Tokelau's wish to move at its own pace towards self-determination.

On 28 June, the Ulu-o-Tokelau told the Special Committee that the act of self-determination would not be a sudden vote on the options available but was a long process of elimination and negotiation with the administering Power on the merits and demerits of the free association and integration options.

Governance and capacity-building were two important areas that would continue to be consolidated through the Modern House project, and much energy would be required to support the equal development of all three villages, especially the councils of elders, which would be a major focus in the coming months. Of equal importance was the attention paid to the economic sector. New Zealand had demonstrated its commitment to the Tokelau process with extra resources and material support for the Modern House project and the Tokelau Trust Fund, and the depth of understanding of the Administrator had contributed immensely to the success of the Tokelau process.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/557], adopted resolution 56/71 without vote [agenda item 18].

Question of Tokelau

The General Assembly,

Having considered the question of Tokelau,

Having examined the chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples relating to the question of Tokelau,

Recalling the solemn declaration on the future status of Tokelau, delivered by the Ulu-o-Tokelau (the highest authority on Tokelau) on 30 July 1994, which states that an act of self-determination in Tokelau is now under active consideration, together with the constitution of a self-governing Tokelau, and that the present preference of Tokelau is for a status of free association with New Zealand,

Recalling also its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and all resolutions and decisions of the United Nations relating to Non-Self-Governing Territories, in particular General Assembly resolution 55/143 of 8 December 2000,

Recalling further the emphasis placed in the solemn declaration on the terms of Tokelau's special relationship with New Zealand, including the expectation that the form of help that Tokelau could continue to expect from New Zealand in promoting the well-being of its people, besides its external interests, would be clearly established within the framework of that relationship,

Noting with appreciation the continuing exemplary co-operation of New Zealand as the administering Power with regard to the work of the Special Committee relating to Tokelau and its readiness to permit access by United Nations visiting missions to the Territory,

Noting also with appreciation the collaborative contribution to the development of Tokelau by New Zealand and the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in particular the United Nations Development Programme and the World Health Organization,

Recalling the dispatch in 1994 of a United Nations visiting mission to Tokelau,

Noting that, as a small island Territory, Tokelau exemplifies the situation of most remaining Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Noting also that, as a case study pointing to successful decolonization, Tokelau has wider significance for the United Nations as it seeks to complete its work in decolonization,

1. Notes that Tokelau remains firmly committed to the development of self-government and to an act of self-determination that would result in Tokelau assuming a status in accordance with the options on future status for Non-Self-Governing Territories contained in principle VI of the annex to General Assembly resolution 1541(XV) of 15 December 1960;

2. Also notes the desire of Tokelau to move at its own pace towards an act of self-determination;

3. Further notes the inauguration in 1999 of a national Government based on village elections by universal adult suffrage;

4. Acknowledges Tokelau's goal to return authority to its traditional leadership, and its wish to provide that leadership with the necessary support to carry out its functions in the contemporary world;

5. Also acknowledges the progress made towards that goal under the Modern House of Tokelau project, and Tokelau's view that that project, in its governance and economic development dimensions, is seen by its people as the means to achieving their act of self-determination;

6. Notes that, consistent with the expressed desires of past traditional leaders and the principles of the Modern House of Tokelau, Tokelau has established a local public service employer which enabled the New Zealand State Services Commissioner to withdraw from his role as employer of the Tokelau Public Service as from 30 June 2001;

7. Also notes the positive outcomes of the visit by the elected village and national leaders to New Zealand in May 2001;

8. Welcomes the initiation of the dialogue with the administering Power and the Territory in June 2001 with a view to the development of a programme of work for Tokelau in accordance with General Assembly resolution 55/147 of 8 December 2000;

9. Acknowledges the continuing support which New Zealand has committed to the Modern House of Tokelau project in the period 2001-2002, and the co-operation of the United Nations Development Programme in aligning its programmes under the project;

10. Notes that the Constitution of a self-governing Tokelau will continue to develop as a part and as a consequence of the building of the Modern House of To-kelau, and that both have national and international importance for Tokelau;

11. Acknowledges Tokelau's need for continued reassurance given the cultural adjustments that are taking place with the strengthening of its capacity for self-government and, given that local resources cannot adequately cover the material side of self-determination, the ongoing responsibility of Tokelau's external partners to assist Tokelau in balancing its desire to be self-reliant to the greatest extent possible with its need for external assistance;

12. Notes the special challenge inherent in the situation of Tokelau, among the smallest of the small Territories, and how a Territory's exercise of its inalienable right to self-determination may be brought closer, as in the case of Tokelau, by the meeting of that challenge in innovative ways;

13. Welcomes the assurance of the Government of New Zealand that it will meet its obligations to the United Nations with respect to Tokelau and abide by the freely expressed wishes of the people of Tokelau with regard to their future status;

14. Also welcomes the application by Tokelau, with the full support of New Zealand, for associate membership in the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and its application for full membership in the Forum Fisheries Agency;

15. Calls upon the administering Power and United Nations agencies to continue to provide assistance to Tokelau as it further develops its economy and governance structures in the context of its ongoing constitutional evolution;

16. Requests the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples to continue to examine the question of the Non-Self-Governing Territory of Tokelau and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session.

Western Sahara

The Special Committee on decolonization considered the question of Western Sahara on 21 June [A/56/23]. A Secretariat working paper [A/AC.109/2001/12] provided details of the Secretary-General's good offices with the parties concerned and action taken by the General Assembly and the Security Council (see p. 213). The Special Committee transmitted the relevant documentation to the Assembly's fifty-sixth (2001) session to facilitate the Fourth Committee's consideration of the question. The Secretary-General's report was submitted to the Assembly in July [A/56/159].

Island Territories

The Special Committee on decolonization [A/56/23] considered working papers prepared by the Secretariat on American Samoa [A/AC.109/2001/17], Anguilla [A/AC.109/2001/13], Bermuda [A/AC.109/2001/9], the British Virgin Islands [A/AC.109/2001/8], the Cayman Islands [A/AC.109/2001/15], Guam [A/AC.109/2001/4], Montserrat

[A/AC.109/2001/6], Pitcairn [A/AC.109/2001/2], St. Helena [A/AC.109/2001/16], the Turks and Caicos Islands [A/AC.109/2001/7] and the United States Virgin Islands [A/AC.109/2001/3], describing political developments and economic and social conditions in each of those 11 island Territories. On 28 June, the Committee approved a two-part consolidated draft resolution for adoption by the General Assembly (see below).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/557], adopted resolutions 56/72 A and B without vote [agenda item 18].

Questions of American Samoa, Anguilla, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Guam, Montserrat, Pitcairn, St. Helena, the Turks and Caicos Islands and the United States Virgin Islands

A General

The General Assembly,

Having considered the questions of American Samoa, Anguilla, Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands, the Cayman Islands, Guam, Montserrat, Pitcairn, St. Helena, the Turks and Caicos Islands and the United States Virgin Islands, hereinafter referred to as "the Territories",

Having examined the relevant chapter of the report of the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples,

Recalling its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and all resolutions and decisions of the United Nations relating to those Territories, including, in particular, the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly at its fifty-fifth session on the individual Territories covered by the present resolution,

Recognizing that the specific characteristics and the sentiments of the peoples of the Territories require flexible, practical and innovative approaches to the options for self-determination, without any prejudice to territorial size, geographical location, size of population or natural resources,

Recalling its resolution 1541(XV) of 15 December 1960, containing the principles that should guide Member States in determining whether or not an obligation exists to transmit the information called for under Article 73 e of the Charter of the United Nations,

Expressing its concern that, even forty-one years after the adoption of the Declaration, there still remain a number of Non-Self-Governing Territories,

Acknowledging the significant achievements by the international community towards the eradication of colonialism in accordance with the Declaration, and conscious of the importance of continuing effective implementation of the Declaration, taking into account the target set by the United Nations to eradicate colonialism by 2010 and the plan of action for the Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism,

Noting the positive constitutional developments in some Non-Self-Governing Territories about which the Special Committee has received information, while also acknowledging the need for recognition to be given to expressions of self-determination by the peoples of the Territories consistent with practice under the Charter,

Recognizing that in the decolonization process there is no alternative to the principle of self-determination as enunciated by the General Assembly in its resolutions 1514(XV), 1541(XV) and other resolutions,

Welcoming the stated position of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland that it continues to take seriously its obligations under the Charter to develop self-government in the dependent Territories and, in cooperation with the locally elected Governments, to ensure that their constitutional frameworks continue to meet the wishes of the people, and the emphasis that it is ultimately for the peoples of the Territories to decide their future status,

Welcoming also the stated position of the Government of the United States of America that it supports fully the principles of decolonization and takes seriously its obligations under the Charter to promote to the utmost the well-being of the inhabitants of the Territories under United States administration,

Aware of the special circumstances of the geographical location and economic conditions of each Territory, and bearing in mind the necessity of promoting economic stability and diversifying and strengthening further the economies of the respective Territories as a matter of priority,

Conscious of the particular vulnerability of the Territories to natural disasters and environmental degradation and, in this connection, bearing in mind the programmes of action of the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, the World Conference on Natural Disaster Reduction, the Global Conference on the Sustainable Development of Small Island Developing States and other relevant world conferences,

Aware of the usefulness both to the Territories and to the Special Committee of the participation of appointed and elected representatives of the Territories in the work of the Special Committee,

Convinced that the wishes and aspirations of the peoples of the Territories should continue to guide the development of their future political status and that referendums, free and fair elections and other forms of popular consultation play an important role in ascertaining the wishes and aspirations of the people,

Convinced also that any negotiations to determine the status of a Territory must not take place without the active involvement and participation of the people of that Territory,

Recognizing that all available options for self-determination of the Territories are valid as long as they are in accordance with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned and in conformity with the clearly defined principles contained in resolutions 1514(XV), 1541(XV) and other resolutions of the General Assembly,

Mindful that United Nations visiting missions provide an effective means of ascertaining the situation in the Territories, and considering that the possibility of sending further visiting missions to the Territories at an appropriate time and in consultation with the administering Powers should be kept under review,

Mindful also that, by holding a Caribbean regional seminar at Havana from 23 to 25 May 2001, the Special Committee was able to hear the views of the representatives of the Territories, as well as Governments and organizations in the region, in order to review the political, economic and social conditions in the Territories,

Mindful further that, in order for it to enhance its understanding of the political status of the peoples of the Territories and to fulfil its mandate effectively, it is important for the Special Committee to be apprised by the administering Powers and to receive information from other appropriate sources, including the representatives of the Territories, concerning the wishes and aspirations of the peoples of the Territories,

Mindful, in this connection, that the holding of regional seminars in the Caribbean and Pacific regions and at Headquarters and other venues, with the active participation of representatives of the Non-Self-Governing Territories, provides a helpful means for the Special Committee to fulfil its mandate, while recognizing the need for reviewing the role of those seminars in the context of a United Nations programme for ascertaining the political status of the Territories,

Mindful also that some Territories have not received a United Nations visiting mission for a long period of time and that no visiting missions have been sent to some of the Territories,

Noting with appreciation the contribution to the development of some Territories by specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system, in particular the United Nations Development Programme, and regional institutions such as the Caribbean Development Bank,

Noting that some territorial Governments have made efforts towards achieving the highest standards of financial supervision, but that some others have been listed by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development as having met the criteria of a tax haven according to its definition, and noting also that some territorial Governments have expressed concern about insufficient dialogue between them and the Organisation,

Recalling the ongoing efforts of the Special Committee in carrying out a critical review of its work with the aim of making appropriate and constructive recommendations and decisions to attain its objectives in accordance with its mandate,

1. Reaffirms the inalienable right of the peoples of the Territories to self-determination, including, if they so wish, independence, in conformity with the Charter of the United Nations and with General Assembly resolution 1514(XV), containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples;

2. Reaffirms also that it is ultimately for the peoples of the Territories themselves to determine freely their future political status in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Charter, the Declaration and the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly, and in that connection calls upon the administering Powers, in cooperation with the territorial Governments, to facilitate programmes of political education in the Territories in order to foster an awareness among the people of their right to self-determination in conformity with the legitimate political status options, based on the principles clearly defined in General Assembly resolution 1541(XV);

3. Requests the administering Powers to transmit to the Secretary-General information called for under Article 73 e of the Charter and other updated information and reports, including reports on the wishes and aspirations of the peoples of the Territories regarding their future political status as expressed in fair and free referendums and other forms of popular consultation, as well as the results of any informed and democratic processes consistent with practice under the Charter that indicate the clear and freely expressed wish of the people to change the existing status of the Territories;

4. Stresses the importance for it to be apprised of the views and wishes of the peoples of the Territories and to enhance its understanding of their conditions;

5. Reaffirms that United Nations visiting missions to the Territories at an appropriate time and in consultation with the administering Powers are an effective means of ascertaining the situation in the Territories, and requests the administering Powers and the elected representatives of the peoples of the Territories to assist the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples in this regard;

6. Reaffirms also the responsibility of the administering Powers under the Charter to promote the economic and social development and to preserve the cultural identity of the Territories, and recommends that priority continue to be given, in consultation with the territorial Governments concerned, to the strengthening and diversification of their respective economies;

7. Requests the administering Powers, in consultation with the peoples of the Territories, to take all necessary measures to protect and conserve the environment of the Territories under their administration against any environmental degradation, and requests the specialized agencies concerned to continue to monitor environmental conditions in those Territories;

8. Calls upon the administering Powers, in cooperation with the respective territorial Governments, to continue to take all necessary measures to counter problems related to drug trafficking, money-laundering and other offences;

9. Calls upon the administering Powers to enter into constructive dialogue with the Special Committee before the fifty-sixth session of the General Assembly to develop a framework for the implementation of provisions of Article 73 e of the Charter and the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to the Colonial Countries and Peoples for the period 2001-2010;

10. Notes the particular circumstances that prevail in the Territories concerned, and encourages the political evolution in them towards self-determination;

11. Urges Member States to contribute to the efforts of the United Nations to usher in the twenty-first century in a world free of colonialism, and calls upon them to continue to give their full support to the Special Committee in its endeavours towards that noble goal;

12. Invites the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to initiate or to continue to take all necessary measures to accelerate progress in the social and economic life of the Territories, and calls for closer cooperation between the Special Committee and the Economic and Social Council in furtherance of the provision of assistance to the Territories;

13. Takes note of statements made by the elected representatives of the Territories concerned emphasizing their willingness to cooperate with all international efforts aimed at preventing abuse of the international financial system and to promote regulatory environments with highly selective licensing procedures, robust supervisory practices and well-established anti-money-laundering regimes;

14. Calls for an enhanced and constructive dialogue between the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development and the concerned territorial Governments with a view to bringing about the changes needed to meet the highest standards of transparency and information exchange in order to facilitate the removal of those Non-Self-Governing Territories from the list of jurisdictions classified as tax havens, and requests the administering Powers to assist those Territories in resolving the matter;

15. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly on the implementation of decolonization resolutions since the declaration of the International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism;

16. Requests the Special Committee to continue its examination of the question of the small Territories and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session with recommendations on appropriate ways to assist the peoples of the Territories in exercising their right to self-determination.

Individual territories

*The General Assembly,
Referring to resolution A above,*

I

American Samoa

Taking note of the report by the administering Power that most American Samoan leaders express satisfaction with the Territory's present relationship with the United States of America,

Taking note with interest of the statement made and the information on the political and economic situation in American Samoa provided by the Governor of American Samoa and the delegate of American Samoa to the United States Congress to the Caribbean regional seminar, held at Havana from 23 to 25 May 2001,

Noting that the Government of the Territory continues to have significant financial, budgetary and internal control problems and that the Territory's deficit and financial condition are compounded by the high demand for governmental services from the rapidly growing population, a limited economic and tax base and recent natural disasters,

Noting also that the Territory, similar to isolated communities with limited funds, continues to experience a lack of adequate medical facilities and other infrastructural requirements,

Aware of the efforts of the Government of the Territory to control and reduce expenditures, while continuing its programme of expanding and diversifying the local economy,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Calls upon the administering Power to continue to assist the territorial Government in the economic and social development of the Territory, including measures to rebuild financial management capabilities and strengthen other governmental functions of the Government of the Territory;

3. Welcomes the invitation extended to the Special Committee on the Situation with regard to the Implementation of the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples by the Governor of American Samoa to send a visiting mission to the Territory;

II

Anguilla

Conscious of the commitment of both the Government of Anguilla and the administering Power to a new and closer policy of dialogue and partnership through the Strategic Country Programme 2000-2003,

Aware of the efforts of the Government of Anguilla to continue to develop the Territory as a viable offshore centre and well-regulated financial centre for investors, by enacting modern company and trust laws, as well as partnership and insurance legislation, and computerizing the company registry system,

Noting the need for continued cooperation between the administering Power and the territorial Government in tackling the problems of drug trafficking and money-laundering,

Noting also that general elections were held on 3 March 2000, resulting in a new coalition government in the House of Assembly,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Calls upon the administering Power and all States, organizations and United Nations agencies to continue to assist the Territory in social and economic development;

3. Welcomes the Country Cooperation Framework of the United Nations Development Programme for the period 1997-1999 currently being implemented following consultations with the territorial Government and key development partners in the United Nations system and the donor community;

4. Also welcomes the assessment by the United Nations Development Programme that the Territory has made considerable progress in the domain of sustainable human development and in its sound management and preservation of the environment, which has been incorporated into the National Tourism Plan;

5. Further welcomes the assessment by the Caribbean Development Bank in its 1999 report on the Territory that, despite economic contraction in the first quarter, the economy rebounded to reach 6 per cent growth during 1999;

III

Bermuda

Noting the results of the independence referendum held on 16 August 1995, and conscious of the different viewpoints of the political parties of the Territory on the future status of the Territory,

Noting also the functioning of the democratic process and the smooth transition of government in November 1998,

Noting further the comments made by the administering Power in its White Paper entitled "Partnership for Progress and Prosperity: Britain and the Overseas Territories",

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Calls upon the administering Power to continue to work with the Territory for its socio-economic development;

3. Requests the administering Power to elaborate, in consultation with the territorial Government, programmes specifically intended to alleviate the economic, social and environmental consequences of the closure of the military bases and installations of the United States of America in the Territory;

IV

British Virgin Islands

Noting the completion of the constitutional review in the Territory and the coming into force of the amended Constitution, and noting also the results of the general elections held on 17 May 1999,

Noting also the results of the constitutional review of 1993-1994, which made it clear that a prerequisite to independence must be a constitutionally expressed wish by the people as a result of a referendum,

Taking note of the statement made in 1995 by the Chief Minister of the British Virgin Islands that the Territory was ready for constitutional and political advancement towards full internal self-government and that the administering Power should assist through the gradual transfer of power to elected territorial representatives,

Noting that the Territory is emerging as one of the world's leading offshore financial centres,

Noting also the need for continued cooperation between the administering Power and the territorial Government in countering drug trafficking and money-laundering,

Noting further that the Territory commemorated its annual British Virgin Islands-United States Virgin Islands Friendship Day on 27 May 2000 in official ceremonies on Tortola,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Requests the administering Power, the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system and all financial institutions to continue to provide assistance to the Territory for socio-economic development and the development of human resources, bearing in mind the vulnerability of the Territory to external factors;

V

Cayman Islands

Noting the constitutional review of 1992-1993, according to which the population of the Cayman Islands expressed the sentiment that the existing relations with the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland should be maintained and that the current status of the Territory should not be altered,

Aware that the Territory has one of the highest per capita incomes in the region, a stable political climate and virtually no unemployment,

Noting the actions taken by the territorial Government to implement its localization programme to promote increased participation by the local population in the decision-making process in the Cayman Islands,

Noting with concern the vulnerability of the Territory to drug trafficking, money-laundering and related activities,

Noting the measures taken by the authorities to deal with those problems,

Noting also that the Territory has emerged as one of the world's leading offshore financial centres,

Noting further the approval by the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly of the Territory's Vision 2008 Development Plan, which aims to promote development that is consistent with the aims and values of Caymanian society,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Requests the administering Power, the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system to continue to provide the territorial Government with all required expertise to enable it to achieve its socio-economic aims;

3. Calls upon the administering Power and the territorial Government to continue to cooperate to counter problems related to money-laundering, smuggling of funds and other related crimes, as well as drug trafficking;

4. Requests the administering Power, in consultation with the territorial Government, to continue to facilitate the expansion of the current programme of securing employment for the local population, in particular at the decision-making level;

5. Welcomes the implementation of the Country Cooperation Framework of the United Nations Development Programme for the Territory, which is designed to ascertain national development priorities and United Nations assistance needs;

VI

Guam

Recalling that, in a referendum held in 1987, the registered and eligible voters of Guam endorsed a draft Guam Commonwealth Act that would establish a new framework for relations between the Territory and the administering Power, providing for a greater measure of internal self-government for Guam and recognition of the right of the Chamorro people of Guam to self-determination for the Territory,

Recalling also its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples, and all resolutions and decisions of the United Nations relating to the Non-Self-Governing Territories, in particular, General Assembly resolutions 55/144 A and B of 8 December 2000,

Recalling further the requests by the elected representatives and non-governmental organizations of the Territory that Guam not be removed from the list of the Non-Self-Governing Territories with which the Special Committee is concerned, pending the self-determination of the Chamorro people and taking into account their legitimate rights and interests,

Aware that negotiations between the administering Power and the territorial Government on the draft Guam Commonwealth Act are no longer continuing and that Guam had established the process for a self-determination vote by the eligible Chamorro voters,

Cognizant that the administering Power continues to implement its programme of transferring surplus federal land to the Government of Guam,

Noting that the people of the Territory have called for reform in the programme of the administering Power with respect to the thorough, unconditional and expeditious transfer of land property to the people of Guam,

Conscious that immigration into Guam has resulted in the indigenous Chamorros becoming a minority in their homeland,

Aware of the potential for diversifying and developing the economy of Guam through commercial fishing and agriculture and other viable activities,

Noting the proposed closing and realigning of four United States Navy installations on Guam and the request for the establishment of a transition period to develop some of the closed facilities as commercial enterprises,

Recalling the dispatch in 1979 of a United Nations visiting mission to the Territory, and noting the recommendation of the 1996 Pacific regional seminar for sending a visiting mission to Guam,

Noting with interest the statements made and the information on the political and economic situation in Guam provided by the representatives of the Territory to the Caribbean regional seminar, held at Havana from 23 to 25 May 2001,

1. Requests the administering Power to work with Guam's Commission on Decolonization for the Implementation and Exercise of Chamorro Self-Determination with a view to facilitating Guam's decolonization and to keep the Secretary-General informed of the progress to that end;

2. Calls upon the administering Power to take into consideration the expressed will of the Chamorro people as supported by Guam voters in the plebiscite of 1987 and as provided for in Guam law, encourages the administering Power and the territorial Government of Guam to enter into negotiations on the matter, and requests the administering Power to inform the Secretary-General of progress to that end;

3. Requests the administering Power to continue to assist the elected territorial Government in achieving its political, economic and social goals;

4. Also requests the administering Power, in co-operation with the territorial Government, to continue to transfer land to the original landowners of the Territory;

5. Further requests the administering Power to continue to recognize and respect the political rights and the cultural and ethnic identity of the Chamorro people of Guam, and to take all necessary measures to respond to the concerns of the territorial Government with regard to the question of immigration;

6. Requests the administering Power to cooperate in establishing programmes specifically intended to promote the sustainable development of economic activities and enterprises, noting the special role of the Chamorro people in the development of Guam;

7. Also requests the administering Power to continue to support appropriate measures by the territorial Government aimed at promoting growth in commercial fishing and agricultural and other viable activities;

VII

Montserrat

Taking note with interest of the statements made and the information on the political and economic situation in Montserrat provided by the elected representative of the Territory to the Caribbean regional seminar, held at Havana from 23 to 25 May 2001,

Taking note of the statement made by the Chief Minister of Montserrat on 22 May 1998 on the occasion of the observance of the Week of Solidarity with the Peoples of All Colonial Territories Fighting for Freedom, Independence and Human Rights,

Noting that the last visiting mission to the Territory took place in 1982,

Noting also the functioning of a democratic process in Montserrat and that general elections were held in the Territory in November 1996,

Taking note of the reported statement of the Chief Minister that his preference was for independence within a political union with the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States and that self-reliance was more of a priority than independence,

Noting with concern the dire consequences of a volcanic eruption, which led to the evacuation of three quarters of the Territory's population to safe areas of the island and to areas outside the Territory, in particular Antigua and Barbuda and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and which continues to have a negative impact upon the economy of the island,

Noting the efforts of the administering Power and the Government of the Territory to meet the emergency situation caused by the volcanic eruption, including the implementation of a wide range of contingency measures for both the private and the public sectors in Montserrat,

Noting also the coordinated response measures taken by the United Nations Development Programme and the assistance of the United Nations Disaster Management Team,

Noting with concern that a number of the inhabitants of the Territory continue to live in shelters because of volcanic activity,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Calls upon the administering Power, the specialized agencies and other organizations of the United Nations system as well as regional and other organizations to continue to provide urgent emergency assistance to the Territory in alleviating the consequences of the volcanic eruption;

3. Welcomes the support of the Caribbean Community in the construction of housing in the safe zone to alleviate a shortage caused by the environmental and human crisis of the eruption of the Montsufriere volcano, as well as the material and financial support from the international community to help alleviate the suffering caused by the crisis;

VIII

Pitcairn

Taking into account the unique nature of Pitcairn in terms of population and area,

Expressing its satisfaction with the continued economic and social advancement of the Territory, as well as with the improvement of its communications with the outside world and its management plan to address conservation issues,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Also requests the administering Power to continue its assistance for the improvement of the economic, social, educational and other conditions of the population of the Territory;

3. Calls upon the administering Power to continue its discussions with the representatives of Pitcairn on how best to support their economic security;

IX

St. Helena

Taking into account the unique character of St. Helena, its population and its natural resources,

Noting that a Commission of Inquiry into the Constitution appointed at the request of the Legislative Council of St. Helena reported its recommendations in March 1999, and that the Legislative Councillors are currently considering its recommendations,

Also noting the administering Power's commitment to consider carefully suggestions for specific proposals for constitutional change from territorial Governments as stated in its White Paper entitled "Partnership for Progress and Prosperity: Britain and the Overseas Territories",

Welcoming the participation of an expert from the St. Helena Legislative Council for the first time in the Pacific regional seminar held at Majuro, from 16 to 18 May 2000,

Aware of the establishment by the Government of the Territory of the Development Agency in 1995 to encourage private sector commercial development on the island,

Also aware of the efforts of the administering Power and the territorial authorities to improve the socio-economic conditions of the population of St. Helena, in particular with regard to food production, continuing high unemployment and limited transport and communications, and calls for continuing negotiations to allow access to Ascension Island by civilian charter flights,

Noting with concern the problem of unemployment on the island and the joint action of the administering Power and the territorial Government to deal with it,

1. Notes that the administering Power has taken note of various statements made by members of the Legislative Council of St. Helena about the Constitution and that it is prepared to discuss them further with the people of St. Helena;

2. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

3. Requests the administering Power and relevant regional and international organizations to continue to support the efforts of the territorial Government to address the socio-economic development challenges, including the high unemployment and the limited transport and communications problems;

X

Turks and Caicos Islands

Taking note with interest of the statements made and the information on the political and economic situation in the Turks and Caicos Islands provided by the Cabinet Minister as well as a member of the legislature from the opposition of the Territory to the Caribbean regional seminar, held at St. John's from 21 to 23 May 1997,

Noting that the People's Democratic Movement was elected to power in the Legislative Council elections held in March 1999,

Also noting the efforts by the Government of the Territory to strengthen financial management in the public sector, including efforts to increase revenue,

Noting with concern the vulnerability of the Territory to drug trafficking and related activities, as well as its problems caused by illegal immigration,

Noting the need for continued cooperation between the administering Power and the territorial Government in countering drug trafficking and money-laundering,

Welcoming the assessment by the Caribbean Development Bank in its 1999 report that the economic performance of the Territory remained strong, with an increase in gross domestic product estimated at 8.7 per cent, reflecting strong growth in the tourism and construction sectors,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Invites the administering Power to take fully into account the wishes and interests of the Government and the people of the Turks and Caicos Islands in the governance of the Territory;

3. Calls upon the administering Power and the relevant regional and international organizations to continue to provide assistance for the improvement of the economic, social, educational and other conditions of the population of the Territory;

4. Calls upon the administering Power and the territorial Government to continue to cooperate in order to counter problems related to money-laundering, smuggling of funds and other related crimes, as well as drug trafficking;

5. Welcomes the assessment by the Caribbean Development Bank in its 1999 report that the economy continued to expand with considerable output and low inflation;

6. Also welcomes the first Country Cooperation Framework approved by the United Nations Development Programme for the period 1998-2002, which should, inter alia, assist in the development of a national integrated development plan that will put into place procedures for determining the national development priorities over ten years, with the focus of attention on health, population, education, tourism and economic and social development;

7. Takes note of the statement made by the elected Chief Minister in May 2000 that the Territory is in the process of developing diversified resource mobilization strategies, including joint ventures with the private sector, and that external assistance would be welcomed as part of that process;

XI

United States Virgin Islands

Taking note with interest of the statements made and the information provided by the representative of the Governor of the United States Virgin Islands to the Caribbean regional seminar, held at Havana from 23 to 25 May 2001,

Noting that although 80.4 per cent of the 27.5 per cent of the electorate that voted in the referendum on the political status of the Territory held on 11 October 1993 supported the existing territorial status arrangements with the administering Power, the law required the participation of 50 per cent of the registered voters for the results to be declared legally binding and therefore the status was left undecided,

Noting also the continuing interest of the territorial Government in seeking associate membership in the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States and observer status in the Caribbean Community and the Association of Caribbean States,

Noting further the necessity of further diversifying the economy of the Territory,

Noting the efforts of the Government of the Territory to promote the Territory as an offshore financial services centre,

Noting with satisfaction the interest of the Territory in joining the United Nations International Drug Control Programme as a full participant,

Recalling the dispatch in 1977 of a United Nations visiting mission to the Territory,

Noting that the Territory commemorated its annual British Virgin Islands-United States Virgin Islands Friendship Day on 27 May 2000 in official ceremonies on Tortola,

1. Requests the administering Power, bearing in mind the views of the people of the Territory ascertained through a democratic process, to keep the Secretary-General informed of the wishes and aspirations of the people regarding their future political status;

2. Also requests the administering Power to continue to assist the territorial Government in achieving its political, economic and social goals;

3. Further requests the administering Power to facilitate the participation of the Territory, as appropriate, in various organizations, in particular the Organization of Eastern Caribbean States, the Caribbean Community and the Association of Caribbean States;

4. Expresses concern that the Territory, which is already heavily indebted, had to borrow 21 million United States dollars from a commercial bank to carry out its year 2000 computer compliance programme, and calls for the United Nations year 2000 programme to be made available to the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

5. Notes that the general elections held in the Territory in November 1998 resulted in the orderly transfer of power;

6. Expresses concern that the territorial Government is facing severe fiscal problems, which has resulted in an accumulated debt of more than 1 billion dollars;

7. Welcomes the measures being taken by the newly elected territorial Government in addressing the crisis, including the adoption of a five-year operating and strategic financial plan, and calls upon the administering Power to provide every assistance required by the Territory to alleviate the fiscal crisis, including, inter alia, the provision of debt relief and loans;

8. Notes that the 1994 report of the United States Virgin Islands Commission on Status and Federal Relations concluded that, owing to the insufficient level of voter participation, the results of the 1993 referendum were declared legally null and void.

ment of resources to UN information centres, co-operation between the Department of Public Information (DPI) and the University for Peace in Costa Rica [A/AC.198/2001/6], a progress report on the pilot project on the development of an international radio broadcasting capacity for the United Nations, the continued multilingual development, maintenance and enrichment of the UN web site, and the 2000 activities of the Joint United Nations Information Committee (see below).

By decision 56/419 of 10 December, the Assembly increased the Committee's membership from 96 to 98.

Reorientation of information and communications activities

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/136 B [YUN 2000, p. 578], the Secretary-General submitted to the Committee on Information a March report [A/AC.198/2001/2] highlighting recent measures to develop further the conceptual framework and operational priorities for the reorientation of the Organization's information and communications policies, as detailed to the Committee in 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 583]. DPI had made considerable progress in the core areas of policy and strategic direction, the use of new technology, media access, radio and television programming, the development of thematic information programmes, building global partnerships, information activities in the field, publications and library services.

Building on worldwide public interest in the United Nations generated by the Millennium Summit [YUN 2000, p. 47], innovations were made to increase support for DPI activities, including the optimization of information technology to bring UN goals and activities to all regions of the world, particularly to news desks; strengthening the UN web site; creation of a 24-hour UN news service; introduction of live, 15-minute UN radio broadcasts in the six official languages to radio stations worldwide; implementation of "The United Nations Works" programme [ibid., p. 572]; and new ways of building partnerships within the UN system and with NGOs, academic institutions, the business community and the media.

Underlying DPI's initiatives was the commitment to embrace new communications technology to strengthen programmes and allow for the instantaneous transmission of text, image and voice messages. Guidelines for Internet publishing were issued and new web pages launched. Based on the recommendation of an expert consultant, DPI was proposing a 5-year technology strategy to overhaul its 30-year-old radio and television broadcast facilities to meet the require-

UN public information

The General Assembly's 96-member Committee on Information, at its twenty-third session held in New York from 30 April to 11 May 2001 (first part) and from 5 to 7 September (resumed) [A/56/21 & Add.1], continued to consider UN information policies and activities and to evaluate and follow up efforts made and progress achieved in information and communications. The Committee had before it reports on the reorientation of UN activities in public information and communications, public information activities for the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations (2001) (see p. 1013), and the implementation of the views of host Governments on the integration of UN information centres with UNDP field offices. It also considered the equitable disbursements of the new media production and dissemination environment.

Use of the Internet-based United Nations News Centre increased, and its new design included a "ticker tape" for breaking news and headline summaries, improved audio links and regular feature and interview sections. Integrated digital photo management was also being deployed, while an electronic mail-based news alert service for news desks worldwide was to be launched in 2002.

DPI continued to enhance its services to the media through an increased flow of information from the Office of the Spokesman for the Secretary-General, briefings for journalists in various world regions through teleconferencing, along with high-level briefings to senior journalists, and the continued global placement of op-ed articles by the Secretary-General and other senior officials.

A successful example of DPI's reorientation was the pilot project for direct international radio broadcasting from UN Headquarters (see below). DPI also increased the flow of live television feeds and other readily usable video materials for use by international news syndicators and national broadcasters.

DPI continued to help Secretariat departments and other entities to develop information programmes and products to advocate their work on priority issues. It was implementing communications strategies, similar to the one developed for the Millennium Summit, to publicize the forthcoming series of follow-up conferences and Assembly special sessions, utilizing, among other methods, the creative techniques and expertise of modern global public relations companies on a pro bono basis. In cooperation with the Department of Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO), it continued to provide operational planning and support to field information offices to strengthen the public information capacity of peacekeeping and other missions.

In addition, DPI strongly encouraged learning and teaching about the United Nations through visits and programmes at Headquarters, model UN conferences and related products, and distance learning.

UN information centres were working extensively with educational institutions and youth organizations to stimulate interest in the Organization. Through investment in new technology, significant improvements were made in the transmission of information material to those centres and in their ability to disseminate it locally.

Technological innovation also enhanced the production, range and circulation of UN publications in both print and electronic formats. The UN Chronicle continued its large hard-copy subscriber base, while online editions made spontaneous readership and response possible. Africa Recovery continued to work with key African dailies to reproduce UN stories locally, and an electronic mail service was being planned to provide journalists in Africa with more timely information. The first half-century of the editions of the Yearbook of the United Nations were being compiled on CD-ROM. UN Development Business continued to provide procurement and bidding information on development projects worldwide, and its web site allowed for faster, more efficient dissemination of information.

The Dag Hammarskjöld Library's new web page on technical assistance to small and field libraries, aimed at preventing the duplication of work, facilitating resource sharing and encouraging the exchange of training, standards and best practices, was being further developed into a comprehensive UN system library network. The Library was also translating into all official languages the United Nations Documentation: Research Guide and its Bibliographic Information System Thesaurus, as well as other documentation databases, and was posting more pre-1993 parliamentary documents on the optical disk system. The Library also continued to expand its Secretariat partnerships and its inter-agency cooperative efforts.

UN international radio broadcasting capacity

The Committee on Information considered a March progress report by the Secretary-General, submitted pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/136 B [YUN 2000, p. 578], on the implementation of the pilot project for the development of an international radio broadcasting capacity for the United Nations [A/AC.198/2001/7]. Launched in August 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 574], the project, through its live, 15-minute radio programmes, continued to provide information daily in the six official UN languages on events throughout the world from a UN perspective. The programme also included interviews, background reports, features, updates from peacekeeping missions and coverage of activities related to development. It also served as a public service mechanism and covered issues of priority to Member States, such as the HIV/AIDS epidemic. The Secretary-General's reaction to breaking news was featured on a regular basis. To meet the needs of specific markets, broadcasts were received worldwide through a range of transmission vehicles, including satellite communication providers, short-wave transmitters, telephone transmissions from DPI's International Broadcasting Centre and the Internet.

DPI continued to expand partnerships with local, regional and national broadcasting organizations in the different languages of transmission. It also enhanced cooperation with the UN common system and would continue to develop its field network of contributors and pursue more frequent access by United Nations Radio staff to delegations and field staff.

In a final report on the implementation of the pilot project submitted in July [A/AC.198/2001/10], the Secretary-General said that United Nations Radio had succeeded in establishing itself as an important international broadcaster and had contributed to the overall goal of generating understanding about the United Nations among millions of listeners across the globe. It had proved useful to media outlets, mainly in the developing world, and even broadcasters with correspondents in New York had picked up the feed, thereby further amplifying the international coverage of the United Nations. The project also constituted a striking example of DPI's commitment to multilingualism, and the partnerships it had generated demonstrated the high regard in which its programming was held.

Positive feedback had been received from both partner stations and individual listeners. During the first part of the twenty-third session of the Committee on Information, Member States expressed widespread support for the development of the project and its role in enabling developing nations to meet their information and communications needs.

In terms of the project's future, the production and distribution of relevant and timely radio products would be reinforced by cost-effective production techniques. As part of the upgrading of its radio and television facilities, DPI was acquiring an electronic news production system that would permit easy news gathering and radio editing. Promotion activities in support of the live radio broadcast would continue, and the database developed for the Russian-language radio stations would be replicated in other official languages.

The cost of the project, estimated to amount to $1.9 million by 31 December 2001, was absorbed within the approved 2000-2001 programme budget. Without a legislative mandate for continuing the project beyond the pilot phase, resource provisions were not included in the proposed 2002-2003 programme budget. However, an estimated $3.5 million would be required if the Assembly should decide to continue the project.

DPI activities

The Secretary-General's September report on questions related to information [A/56/411] noted that DPI had reoriented its activities to ensure that communication was at the heart of the strategic management of the Organization. It was responding to the General Assembly's call to maintain and improve its activities in areas of special need in developing countries through the outreach of UN information centres in the field, training programmes at Headquarters for media practitioners from developing countries, and special communication strategies for the current cycle of conferences and special sessions of the Assembly on economic and social issues.

Through use of the latest technologies, DPI was retooling its capabilities to widen the Organization's outreach in a fast-moving and competitive communications environment. It was developing an electronic mail-based United Nations News Service to provide instantaneously specially targeted information to influential journalists in every region, and had successfully developed an in-house capability for live webcasting. As part of its efforts to strengthen the UN web site, all parliamentary documents were to be made available in the six official languages through the Official Document System (ODS) in early 2002, and the United Nations CyberSchoolBus, the site for young people and teachers, was redesigned and a uniform database-driven navigational system implemented. As part of continuing efforts to bridge the digital divide, DPI organized training seminars in Beirut, Lebanon, and New York on the use of the Internet as a tool for development.

The Office of the Spokesman for the Secretary-General added a new section to its web page containing the Secretary-General's latest statements, including a quote of the day. DPI, with the assistance of its information centres, continued to build and expand its network of United Nations Radio rebroadcasting partners. It continued to enhance the electronic delivery of news on UN system activities through a redesigned News Centre web site, featuring an improved search function. The Department was also developing the ability of UN offices around the world to post news directly onto the central News Centre. In addition to its weekly and annual television programmes, DPI also produced special documentaries on the worldwide proliferation of small arms and on the problems of people emerging from conflict, both of which won international film festival awards. In cooperation with Synergy Films, it produced a film on AIDS in South Africa entitled "Together We Can".

DPI improved its working relationships with the 1,600 associated NGOs, focusing on a new system to monitor compliance with the criteria for association and on increased outreach.

In cooperation with other UN departments, DPI implemented its thematic information programmes, which included communication strategies to promote global conferences and special sessions of the General Assembly. It also organized a number of activities in support of the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations (see p. 1013), proclaimed by the General Assembly in resolution 53/22 [YUN 1998, p. 1031]. Those activities were detailed in a March report of the Secretary-General [A/AC.198/2001/3].

Library services

The Dag Hammarskjöld Library continued to reinforce its commitment to bridging the digital divide by placing major emphasis on web-related activities, the digitization of UN documents, inter-agency resource sharing, the provision of extensive training programmes and multilingual access to written information, and forging strategic partnerships throughout the UN system. It launched the Arabic, Chinese and Russian versions of its own web page in July. The page entitled "United Nations documentation: research guide", already available in Arabic and French, was being translated into the other three official languages. With the upcoming web availability of the United Nations Bibliographic Information System Thesaurus in Arabic, Chinese and Russian, multilingual subject access to the ODS and other UN documentation databases would be achieved.

Inter-agency cooperative efforts continued through the United Nations System Electronic Information Acquisition Consortium, which centralized the purchasing of online information products and services for more than 50 entities throughout the UN system. The Consortium continued to effect significant cost savings, thus providing permanent missions and UN offices worldwide with previously unaffordable access to electronic databases and services.

The number of UN depository libraries continued to grow, with 394 as at 30 June. Since January, 35 depository libraries had converted their hard-copy entitlements of official records and documents into ODS access. DPI continued to expand its cartographic and geographic services with revised peacekeeping and general maps and new maps posted on the cartographic web site for free access by Member States and the Secretariat. In August, DPI began development of a common UN geographic database in cooperation with the Department of Political Affairs, DPKO and the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs.

UN information centres

The United Nations information centres (UNICs) continued to disseminate information on the work and priority themes of the Organization to the general public, as well as to key partners, including the private sector, NGOs, the media, academics and students. Their public outreach activities, such as seminars, round tables, media briefings, press conferences, film screenings, exhibits, workshops and conferences, helped to raise awareness and understanding of the United Nations among local communities. The centres were resourceful in highlighting significant UN events during the year, particularly activities in support of the General Assembly's special session on HIV/AIDS (see p. 1125). DPI strengthened the centres' technological capacity, allowing them to produce better and timely information materials locally. A growing number of centres had developed their own web sites, providing news and other information materials on UN themes and events, including local-language versions of major reports.

At its 2001 session, the Committee on Information considered the Secretary-General's report on the implementation of the views of host Governments on the integration of UNICs with field offices of UNDP [A/AC.198/2001/4], prepared in response to General Assembly resolution 55/136 B [YUN 2000, p. 578]. Seven of 14 host Governments had responded to a survey questionnaire inviting comments and suggestions on the integration experience. Of those, five Governments made specific recommendations on enhancing the effectiveness of the centres located in their capitals. Subsequent efforts were made to address those issues.

In March [A/AC.198/2001/5], the Secretary-General reported on the equitable disbursement of resources to UNICs along with a breakdown of host government assistance.

Development of UN web sites

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/136 B [YUN 2000, p. 578], the Secretary-General reported in March on the continued multilingual development, maintenance and enrichment of the UN web sites [A/AC.198/2001/8]. He said that progress had been slower than expected due to a lack of in-house expertise and resources in the non-working languages of the Secretariat. Moreover, achieving a truly equal multilingual web site would remain elusive if the issues of public information content creation and ongoing maintenance, coordination and management were not dealt with separately. Regular maintenance and enhancement of the web site required a sound staffing and resource foundation, and thus the need for additional allocations. Accordingly, DPI believed that the feasibility study called for in an earlier report [YUN 2000, p. 576] was still necessary.

To date, six proposals for the further development of the UN web site had been presented to the Committee on Information for its consideration, each involving additional funding. However, given the constraints imposed by a zero-growth budget, future development and enhancement of the web site would depend on policy decisions by the Assembly with regard to making official documents available online in all languages free of charge. Decisions would also have to be made regarding the gradual development of the various language components. Furthermore, the gap between the English and other language sites continued to grow, ensuring that total language parity would become increasingly challenging and resource-intensive. Therefore, the proposal presented in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 576] continued to represent the minimum resource requirement for establishing a sound footing for regular web-site maintenance and enhancement.

Meanwhile, the Information Technology Section had been restructured to focus on the development of the language sites with a team for each language. DPI would continue to develop special web pages for specific UN events and all efforts would be made to present such sites in the six official languages. DPI had also started identifying portions of the main English language site for rendition in each of the other official languages. Each language site was scheduled to be enhanced in small modules. The policy issues related to making all public information available in all official languages were to be examined through an interdepartmental working group.

The General Assembly, in resolution 56/253 of 24 December (see p. 1297), requested the Secretary-General to report to the Assembly's fifty-seventh (2002) session on the financial implications of redressing the imbalance among the six official languages of the United Nations on the UN web site.

JUNIC

At its twenty-seventh session (Geneva, 10-12 July) [ACC/2001/13], the Joint United Nations Information Committee (JUNIC), the inter-agency Administrative Committee on Coordination (ACC) body on information activities within the UN system, proposed that its secretariat look further into the possibility of creating a .un domain name, in order to create a powerful branding for the UN system and restrict the possible misuse of the United Nations name. JUNIC supported the call by ACC and the Committee on Information for the establishment of a central UN Internet portal, coordinated by DPI, encompassing all web sites of UN system organizations.

JUNIC examined the issue of web journalism and the effect of the availability of online publications on hard-copy sales. Nearly all members of JUNIC reported that online availability of sales publications either kept sales stable or led to small increases, and several members reported that the outsourcing of translation work combined with in-house quality control produced satisfactory results and led to considerable savings. JUNIC requested DPI to conduct a survey of photographic materials available within UN system organizations, providing online links among the libraries and, resources permitting, filling the thematic gaps.

JUNIC considered communications and public information challenges in preparing for the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development (see p. 749) and in follow-up to the June General Assembly special session on HIV/AIDS (see p. 1125), and decided that an open-ended steering group would be developed for the Summit, based on a similar group established for the special session on HIV/AIDS.

JUNIC noted that although many UN system organizations were implementing programmes in support of the global campaign for poverty eradication, additional efforts were needed to communicate with one voice. It agreed that inter-agency public information cooperation should be re-energized, making it more dynamic, issues-oriented, results-based, flexible and modern. To those ends, JUNIC agreed to retain its fixed annual session to promote a common sense of purpose within the UN information community and to facilitate networking, and to establish a direct link to the weekly Communications Group meeting held at Headquarters so that its members could be better informed. Committee members should establish steering groups to develop and implement joint communications strategies for priority issues or major conferences. JUNIC also agreed to retain its rotating two-year chairmanship and to keep its secretariat within DPI. It decided to evaluate its functioning periodically.

JUNIC agreed on the importance of its continued close relationship with the Non-Governmental Liaison Service, to maintain the current reporting arrangements through the annual programme and coordination meetings, and to discuss in-depth public information and communications aspects of the Liaison Service's work during its annual sessions.

JUNIC agreed to consider holding an in-depth discussion on cooperation in the field of television at its next session.

The Secretary-General's report on the 2000 activities of JUNIC [A/AC.198/2001/9] was submitted to the twenty-third session of the Committee on Information.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/522], adopted resolution 56/64 A without vote [agenda item 90].

Information in the service of humanity

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the comprehensive and important report of the Committee on Information,

Also taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on questions relating to information,

Urges all countries, organizations of the United Nations system as a whole and all others concerned, reaffirming their commitment to the principles of the Charter of the United Nations and to the principles of freedom of the press and freedom of information, as well as to those of the independence, pluralism and diversity of the media, deeply concerned by the disparities existing between developed and developing countries and the consequences of every kind arising from those disparities that affect the capability of the public, private or other media and individuals in developing countries to disseminate information and communicate their views and their cultural and ethical values through endogenous cultural production, as well as to ensure the diversity of sources and their free access to information, and recognizing the call in this context for what in the United Nations and at various international forums has been termed "a new world information and communication order, seen as an evolving and continuous process":

(a) To cooperate and interact with a view to reducing existing disparities in information flows at all levels by increasing assistance for the development of communication infrastructures and capabilities in developing countries, with due regard for their needs and the priorities attached to such areas by those countries, and in order to enable them and the public, private or other media in developing countries to develop their own information and communication policies freely and independently and increase the participation of media and individuals in the communication process, and to ensure a free flow of information at all levels;

(b) To ensure for journalists the free and effective performance of their professional tasks and condemn resolutely all attacks against them;

(c) To provide support for the continuation and strengthening of practical training programmes for broadcasters and journalists from public, private and other media in developing countries;

(d) To enhance regional efforts and cooperation among developing countries, as well as cooperation between developed and developing countries, to strengthen communication capacities and to improve the media infrastructure and communication technology in the developing countries, especially in the areas of training and dissemination of information;

(e) To aim at, in addition to bilateral cooperation, providing all possible support and assistance to the developing countries and their media, public, private or other, with due regard to their interests and needs in the field of information and to action already adopted within the United Nations system, including:

- (i) The development of the human and technical resources that are indispensable for the improvement of information and communication systems in developing countries and support for the continuation and strengthening of practical training programmes, such as those already operating under both public and private auspices throughout the developing world;
- (ii) The creation of conditions that will enable developing countries and their media, public, private or other, to have, by using their national and regional resources, the communication technology suited to their national needs, as well as the necessary programme material, especially for radio and television broadcasting;
- (iii) Assistance in establishing and promoting telecommunication links at the subregional, regional and interregional levels, especially among developing countries;
- (iv) The facilitation, as appropriate, of access by the developing countries to advanced communication technology available on the open market;
- (f) To provide full support for the International Programme for the Development of Communication of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, which should support both public and private media.

On 24 December [meeting 92], the Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/552], adopted resolution 56/64 B without vote [agenda item 90].

United Nations public information policies and activities

The General Assembly,

Reiterating its decision to consolidate the role of the Committee on Information as its main subsidiary body mandated to make recommendations to it relating to the work of the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat,

Concurring with the view of the Secretary-General that public information and communications should be placed at the heart of the strategic management of the United Nations, and that a culture of communications should permeate all levels of the Organization, as a means of fully informing the peoples of the world of the aims and activities of the United Nations, in accordance with the principles and purposes enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations, in order to create broad-based global support for the United Nations,

Stressing that the primary mission of the Department of Public Information is to provide, through its outreach activities, accurate, impartial, comprehensive and timely information to the public on the tasks and responsibilities of the United Nations in order to strengthen international support for the activities of the Organization with the greatest transparency,

Expressing its concern that the gap in the information and communication technologies between the developed and the developing countries has continued to widen and that vast segments of the population in developing countries are not benefiting from the present information and technology revolution and, in this regard, underlining the necessity of rectifying the imbalances of the global information and technology revolution in order to make it more just, equitable and effective,

Recognizing that developments in the information and communication technology revolution open vast new opportunities for economic growth and social development and can play an important role in the eradication of poverty in developing countries and, at the same time, emphasizing that it also poses challenges and risks and could lead to further widening of disparities between and within countries,

Stating that the present developments and rapid changes in the field of information and communication technology have a tremendous impact on the functioning of the United Nations and the Department of Public Information in particular, which may necessitate suitable adjustments in the manner in which the mandate of the Department is implemented,

Noting other initiatives aimed at bridging the digital divide, including those by the World Bank, the International Telecommunication Union, the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, the United Nations Development Programme, the Digital Opportunity Task Force of the Group of Eight Nations and the Group of 77 South Summit,

Recalling its resolutions 50/11 of 2 November 1995, 52/23 of 25 November 1997 and 54/64 of 6 December 1999 on multilingualism, and emphasizing the importance of making appropriate use of the official languages in the activities of the Department of Public Information, seeking to reduce the gap between the use of English and the other five official languages,

Stating that the Secretary-General should continue to enhance the effectiveness of the activities of the Department of Public Information,

Welcoming Armenia and the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya to membership in the Committee on Information,

I

Introduction

1. Reaffirms its resolution 13(I) of 13 February 1946, in which it established the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat, and all other relevant General Assembly resolutions related to the activities of the Department;

2. Calls upon the Secretary-General, in respect of the public information policies and activities of the United Nations, to continue to implement fully the recommendations contained in paragraph 2 of its resolution 48/44 B of 10 December 1993 and other mandates as established by the General Assembly;

3. Emphasizes the importance of the medium-term plan for the period 2002-2005, as approved by the General Assembly in its resolution 55/234 of 23 December 2000, as a guideline that sets out the overall orientation of the public information programme for the Organization's goals through effective communication;

4. Welcomes the United Nations Millennium Declaration, the ministerial declaration adopted by the Economic and Social Council at the high-level segment of its substantive session of 2000 and the Secretary-General's millennium report, which indicate clearly that there is a great amount of hope and concern in the field of information and communications;

5. Calls upon States, in accordance with their laws, to make every effort to prevent the use of the traditional media and new information and communication technologies that undermine legitimate Governments and democracy, fan ethnic strife and xenophobia, incite hatred and violence and contribute to any manifestations of extremism;

6. Acknowledges the important work carried out by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and its collaboration with news agencies and broadcasting organizations in developing countries in disseminating information on priority issues;

II

General activities of the Department of Public Information

7. Reaffirms that the Department of Public Information is the focal point for information policies of the United Nations and the primary news centre for information about the United Nations and its activities and those of the Secretary-General;

8. Welcomes the development of the United Nations News Service by the Department of Public Information, and requests the Secretary-General to continue to exert all efforts to ensure that publications and other information services of the Secretariat, including the United Nations web site and the United Nations News Service, contain comprehensive, objective and equitable information about the issues before the Organization and that they maintain editorial independence, impartiality, accuracy and full consistency with resolutions and decisions of the General Assembly;

9. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications, encourages him to continue the reorientation exercise, while stressing the need to take into account the views of Member States, and requests him to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session;

10. Emphasizes that, through its reorientation, the Department of Public Information should maintain and improve its activities in the areas of special interest to developing countries and, where appropriate, other countries with special needs, including countries in transition, and that such reorientation contributes to bridging the existing gap between the developing and the developed countries in the crucial field of public information and communications;

11. Concurs with the view of the Secretary-General that the development of a strategic vision linking all the components of the Secretariat with emphasis on planning cooperation within the Organization constitutes the central element for continuing reorientation, and encourages the Department of Public Information to maintain, improve and expand its activities in the areas of special interest to developing countries;

12. Encourages the Secretary-General to strengthen the cooperation between the Department of Public Information and other departments of the Secretariat, in particular those dealing with priority issues;

13. Welcomes the initiatives that have been taken by the Department of Public Information to strengthen the public information system of the United Nations, and, in this regard, stresses the importance of a coherent and results-oriented approach being undertaken by the United Nations, the specialized agencies and the programmes and funds of the United Nations system involved in public information activities and the provision of resources for their implementation, and that this be done taking into account feedback from Member States on the relevance and effectiveness of its programme delivery;

14. Requests the Department of Public Information to continue to ensure the greatest possible access for United Nations guided tours and to ensure that displays in public areas are kept as informative, up-to-date, relevant and as technologically innovative as possible;

15. Recognizes the need for the Department of Public Information to increase its outreach activities in all regions, requests the Secretary-General to include, in his next report on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications, an analysis of the present reach and scope of the Department's activities, identifying the widest possible spectrum of audiences and geographical areas which are not covered adequately and which may require special attention, including the appropriate means of communication, and bearing in mind local language requirements;

III

Multilingualism and public information

16. Emphasizes the importance of ensuring the full, equitable treatment of all the official languages of the United Nations in all activities of the Department of Public Information, and stresses the importance of fully implementing its resolution 52/214 of 22 December 1997, in section C of which it requested the Secretary-General to ensure that the texts of all new public documents in all six official languages, and information materials of the United Nations, are made available through the United Nations web site daily and are accessible to Member States without delay;

17. Requests the Secretary-General to submit updated figures on the use and command of all six official languages by the staff of the Department of Public Information to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session;

18. Also requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Department of Public Information has appropriate staffing capacity in all official languages of the United Nations to undertake all its activities;

19. Reminds the Secretary-General of the need to include in future programme budget proposals for the Department of Public Information the importance of using all six official languages in its activities;

20. Takes note of the Internet Publishing Guidelines, and in this regard requests the Department of Public Information and the Working Group on Internet Matters to include in these guidelines specific recommendations towards achieving the goal of making all documentation on the web sites available in all six official languages of the Organization;

IV

Promotional campaigns

21. Recalls its resolutions 53/202 of 17 December 1998 and 54/254 of 15 March 2000, concerning the designation of the fifty-fifth session of the General Assembly as the Millennium Assembly of the United Nations and the convening, as an integral part of the Millennium Assembly, of the Millennium Summit of the United Nations, takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the millennium promotional campaign, and commends the Department of Public Information for the important role that it played in implementing the promotional campaign;

22. Appreciates the Secretary-General's initiatives in promoting 2001 as the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations and, mindful of the importance of drawing international attention to the impact that dialogue among civilizations could have on promoting mutual understanding, tolerance and peaceful coexistence, encourages the Secretary-General to intensify the promotional campaign through the use of as many broadcasters and languages, in addition to the official languages, as possible, to spread coverage, with special emphasis on publicizing the findings of the Group of Eminent Persons for the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations, and requests the Secretary-General to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session;

23. Recalls paragraph 10 of General Assembly resolution 55/47 of 29 November 2000, entitled "International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World, 2001-2010", and, in this context, encourages the Department of Public Information to undertake specific dissemination of information on a culture of peace, keeping in mind the ongoing Decade;

24. Recognizes the need for enhanced publicity through a targeted strategy to be developed by the Department of Public Information on the special sessions and conferences, including on the least developed countries, children, illicit trade in small arms and light weapons, the human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS), racism, the environment, financing for development, sustainable development, and ageing, which will address issues crucial to the international community, particularly the developing countries, as well as on the ongoing Second International Decade for the Eradication of Colonialism, and requests the Secretary-General to take the necessary action in this regard and report to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session in the context of his report on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications;

25. Recalls its resolutions 53/59 B of 3 December 1998 and 54/82 B of 6 December 1999, and urges the Department of Public Information to take the necessary measures, through the provision of relevant and objective information, towards achieving the major objectives set forth in the report of the Secretary-General on the causes of conflict and the promotion of durable peace and sustainable development in Africa, and to publicize the activities of the open-ended working group established for that purpose;

26. Also recalls its resolutions concerning the consequences of the Chernobyl disaster, in particular resolutions 51/138 B of 13 December 1996 and 52/172 of 16 December 1997, and encourages the Department of Public Information, in cooperation with the countries concerned and with the relevant organizations and bodies of the United Nations system, to continue to take appropriate measures to enhance world public awareness of the consequences of that disaster;

27. Further recalls its resolution 55/44 of 27 November 2000, concerning international cooperation and coordination for the human and ecological rehabilitation of the Semipalatinsk region of Kazakhstan, which has been affected by nuclear tests, and encourages the Department of Public Information, in cooperation with relevant organizations and bodies of the United Nations system, to take appropriate measures to enhance world public awareness of the problems and needs of the Semipalatinsk region;

V

Bridging the digital divide

28. Commends the Secretary-General for the establishment of the United Nations Information Technology Service, the Health InterNetwork and the Information and Communications Technology Task Force with a view to bridging the digital divide and as a response to the continuing gulf between developed and developing countries, welcomes the contribution of the Department of Public Information in publicizing the efforts of the Secretary-General in closing the digital divide as a means of spurring economic growth and as a response to the continuing gulf between developed and developing countries, and, in this context, requests the Department further to enhance its role;

VI

United Nations information centres

29. Stresses that the United Nations information centres and information components should continue to play a significant role in disseminating information about the work of the Organization to the peoples of the world, in particular in the areas of economic and social development;

30. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General entitled "Integration of United Nations information centres with field offices of the United Nations Development Programme: implementation of the views of host Governments", welcomes the action taken by the Department of Public Information to implement the views of those host Governments as expressed in their replies to the questionnaire provided by the Secretariat, and requests the Secretary-General to take the necessary steps for the continued implementation of those views and to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session;

31. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session on any possible proposal to continue, if feasible and on a case-by-case basis, the integration policy in a cost-effective manner, while maintaining the operational and functional independence of United Nations information centres, taking into account the views of the host countries to ensure that the information functions and the autonomy of United Nations information centres are not adversely affected, to meet the policy's stated objective of improving the provision of information by the United Nations;

32. Also requests the Secretary-General to include in his report on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications, to be submitted to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session, information on the involvement of the Department of Public Information in the context of the implementation of his recommendations on the establishment of United Nations houses;

33. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the equitable disbursement of resources to United Nations information centres, emphasizes that further efforts are needed to ensure the most equitable disbursement possible of resources to United Nations information centres, and stresses that particular attention should be paid to the concerns of developing countries and, where appropriate, other countries with special needs, including countries in transition;

34. Emphasizes that the United Nations information centres, as the "field voice" of the Department of Public Information, should promote public awareness and mobilize support for the work of the United Nations at the local level, and recognizes the appeal made by the Secretary-General to the host Governments of United Nations information centres to facilitate the work of the centres in their countries by providing rent-free or rent-subsidized office space, while taking into account the economic condition of the host Governments and bearing in mind that such support should not be a substitute for the full allocation of financial requirements for the United Nations information centres in the context of the programme budget of the United Nations;

35. Reaffirms that the United Nations information centres should continue to publicize United Nations activities and accomplishments in the areas of economic and social development, poverty eradication, debt relief, health, education, the elimination of illiteracy, women's rights, children's rights, the plight of children in armed conflict, the sexual exploitation of children, the eradication of drug trafficking, environmental issues, peace and security, and other relevant issues;

36. Also reaffirms the role of the General Assembly in relation to the opening of new United Nations information centres, invites the Secretary-General to make such recommendations as he may consider necessary regarding the establishment and location of such centres, and, in this regard, welcomes the requests by the Governments of Croatia, Gabon, Guinea, Haiti, Jamaica and Kyrgyzstan for information centres or information components;

37. Takes note of the efforts by some United Nations information centres to develop their own web pages in local languages, and, in this respect, encourages the Department of Public Information to provide resources and technical facilities, in particular to United Nations information centres whose web pages are not yet operational, to develop web pages in the respective local languages of their host countries, and encourages host Governments to respond to the needs of United Nations information centres;

VII

Role of the Department of Public Information in United Nations peacekeeping

38. Takes note with appreciation of the efforts of the Secretary-General to strengthen the public information capacity of the Department of Public Information for the establishment and day-to-day functioning of the information components of peacekeeping and other field operations of the United Nations, and requests the Secretariat to continue to ensure the involvement of the Department from the planning stage of such future operations through interdepartmental consultations and coordination with other departments of the Secretariat, in particular with the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, and to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session, including any possible proposals for enhancing the role of the Department of Public Information in this regard;

39. Notes the ongoing discussion on the report of the Secretary-General on resource requirements for implementation of the report of the Panel on United Nations Peace Operations, and, in this regard, stresses that the Department of Public Information should continue its efforts to strengthen its capacity to contribute significantly to the functioning of information components in United Nations peacekeeping operations, and requests the Secretary-General to report to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session in the report requested in paragraph 38 above;

40. Stresses the importance of enhancing the public information capacity of the Department of Public Information in the field of peacekeeping operations and its role in the selection process of spokespersons for United Nations peacekeeping operations or missions, and, in this regard, encourages the Department to second spokespersons who have the necessary skills to fulfil the tasks of the operations or missions, and to consider views expressed, especially by host countries, when appropriate, in this regard;

VIII

Dag Hammarskjöld Library

41. Takes note of the continuing efforts of the Secretary-General to make the Dag Hammarskjöld Library a virtual library with world outreach, making United Nations information and other acquired materials accessible electronically to a growing number of readers and users, and, at the same time, requests the Secretary-General to enrich on a multilingual basis the stock of books and journals in the Library, including publications on peace and security and development-related issues, to ensure that the Library continues to be a broadly accessible resource for information about the United Nations and its activities;

42. Encourages the Dag Hammarskjöld Library to alert its clientele, including Member States through their missions, for example, via electronic mail, of any new publications and collections;

43. Welcomes the training courses conducted by the Dag Hammarskjöld Library for the representatives of Member States and Secretariat staff on Cyberseek, web search, the Intranet, United Nations documentation, UN-I-QUE and the Official Document System of the United Nations, and, in that regard, encourages the Library to further develop such courses;

44. Also welcomes the role of the Department of Public Information in fostering increased collaboration among libraries of the United Nations system, particularly in establishing one central system-wide online catalogue that will allow for the searching of the bibliographic records of all print holdings of all United Nations system libraries and the searching of all electronic holdings and electronic databases maintained by all United Nations system libraries, and requests the Secretary-General to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session in the context of his report on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications;

45. Requests the Department of Public Information to ensure the continued development of the integrated library system in the Dag Hammarskjöld Library, and requests the Secretary-General to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session in the context of his report on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications;

IX

Traditional means of communication: radio, television and publications

46. Welcomes the progress report and the final report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the pilot project on the development of an international radio broadcasting capacity for the United Nations, and also welcomes the extensive network of partnerships established with local, national and regional broadcasters in Member States, and concurs with the Secretary-General that the project has contributed to the overall goal of the Department of Public Information of generating understanding about the United Nations among millions of listeners across the globe and has been one of the more successful examples of the reorientation of the Department;

47. Decides, building upon the success of the pilot project as well as the scope of its programme distribution and established partnerships, to expand the international radio broadcasting capacity of the United Nations in all six official languages;

48. Requests the Secretary-General to convey the necessary justification of the resource requirements, including information on the possibility of extrabudgetary financing and/or the redeployment of resources, concerning the expansion of the international radio broadcasting capacity for the biennium 2002-2003 for consideration by the relevant committees of the General Assembly;

49. Also requests the Secretary-General to submit a report on the implementation of the United Nations international radio broadcasting capacity to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fifth session, including information that can be obtained from the local, national and regional radio partners about the estimated number of listeners reached, in order for the Committee to decide on the future of this capacity;

50. Stresses that radio remains one of the most cost-effective and far-reaching traditional media available to the Department of Public Information and an important instrument in United Nations activities, such as development and peacekeeping, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 48/44 B;

51. Takes note of the efforts under way by the Department of Public Information to disseminate programmes directly to broadcasting stations all over the world in the six official languages as well as in other languages, and, in that regard, stresses the need for impartiality and objectivity concerning information activities of the United Nations;

52. Requests the Department of Public Information, in view of the need for efficiency and for a wider dissemination of information services of the United Nations Radio, to enhance where necessary the use of non-official languages to meet the information needs of its audiences;

53. Encourages the Department of Public Information to continue to include in its radio and television programming specific programmes addressing the needs of developing nations;

54. Expresses its appreciation to the Department of Public Information for the ongoing programme for broadcasters and journalists from developing countries and countries in transition, and calls for its further continuation along the lines of its current implementation, while including a larger number of trainees from those countries;

55. Emphasizes that all publications of the Department of Public Information, in accordance with existing mandates, should fulfil an identifiable need, should not duplicate other publications of the United Nations system and should be produced in a cost-effective manner;

X

United Nations web site

56. Notes, while appreciating current efforts, that there is a need for the Secretary-General to continue to develop proposals for the multilingual development, maintenance and enrichment of the United Nations web site in order to lead ultimately to achieving full parity among the official languages of the United Nations, and requests the Secretary-General to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session;

57. Requests the Secretary-General in the meantime and until a decision has been taken on the proposals to be submitted for the multilingual development, maintenance and enrichment of the United Nations web site, to ensure, to the extent possible, while maintaining an up-to-date and accurate web site, the equitable distribution of financial and human resources within the Department of Public Information allocated to the United Nations web site among all official languages on a continuous basis;

58. Requests the Department of Public Information, as the manager of the Organization's web site, to take the lead in developing a proposal for the establishment of one central Internet portal that will encompass all web sites of the United Nations system, preferably through system-wide cooperation, and that will allow for the search and retrieval of information from all web sites in the United Nations system from one central search facility, and requests the Secretary-General to report thereon to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session in the context of his report on the reorientation of United Nations activities in the field of public information and communications;

59. Stresses the importance of access to United Nations Treaty Collection and United Nations parliamentary documentation for the public;

60. Commends the efforts of the Information Technology Services Division of the Office of Central Support Services in ensuring that the required technological infrastructure is in place to accommodate the imminent linkage of the Official Document System to the United Nations web site;

61. Recognizes the far-reaching impact that the linking of the Official Document System with the United Nations web site will have in furthering the goals of the Organization by making all parliamentary documents in the six official languages publicly available, and stresses that the integration of the Official Document System with the United Nations web site will represent one of the steps towards significantly enhancing the multilingual nature of the United Nations web site and will lead to efficiencies in all Secretariat departments;

62. Takes note with interest of the electronic mail-based news alert service distributed worldwide by the Department of Public Information, and emphasizes that extra care needs to be taken to ensure that news-breaking stories and news alerts are accurate, impartial and free of any bias;

63. Encourages the Secretary-General, through the Department of Public Information, to continue to take full advantage of recent developments in information technology, including the Internet, in order to improve, in a cost-effective manner, the expeditious dissemination of information on the United Nations, in accordance with the priorities established by the General Assembly and taking into account the linguistic diversity of the Organization;

64. Encourages an increase in the number of programmes of United Nations Radio, in all available languages, on the United Nations web site;

XI

Final remarks

65. Recognizes the need for constructive interaction between the management of the Department of Public Information and members of the Committee on Information, and requests the Department to arrange, in consultation with the Chairman, informal meetings with the members of the Committee every three months to discuss the ongoing work of the Department, and in this regard requests the Department, in preparation for these meetings, to invite members of the Committee, no later than two weeks prior to their convening, to propose topics for discussion;

66. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Committee on Information at its twenty-fourth session and to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the activities of the Department of Public Information and on the implementation of the recommendations contained in the present resolution;

67. Requests the Committee on Information to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

68. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Questions relating to information".

Also on 24 December, the Assembly, in resolution 56/253 on questions relating to the proposed 2002-2003 programme budget (Part VII) (see p. 1304), requested the Secretary-General to conduct a comprehensive review of DPI's management and operations and to report to the Assembly's fifty-seventh (2002) session.

Other public information activities

The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, in reviewing Section 26, Public information, in its first report on the proposed 2002-2003 programme budget [A/56/7], recommended that DPI further clarify and define what constituted outputs for public information and for programme implementation in substantive departments and offices throughout the Secretariat, since the difference between them had become blurred, and report its conclusions to the General Assembly's fifty-sixth session.

In response to that request, the Secretary-General submitted in November [A/C.5/56/17] a report reviewing public information activities in the Secretariat outside DPI, particularly those of the Departments of Economic and Social Affairs, of Political Affairs and for Disarmament Affairs, the Offices of Legal Affairs and for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, and the regional commissions.

The review revealed that DPI regularly assisted Secretariat departments and offices in formulating communication strategies and provided departments and other organizational units with expertise and influential communication tools, including through UNICs and the UN web site. Substantive departments and offices turned to DPI for assistance in tailoring their messages and in developing focused information strategies. Any public information materials they produced without DPI's assistance were generally in response to a specific mandate and for a limited audience. DPI might then assist in disseminating those materials to a wider, more general public.

The Secretary-General had spearheaded a drive to promote a culture of communication and a spirit of cooperation at all levels of the Organization, establishing the Communications Group as a mechanism for high-level coordination on communication issues by senior New York-based information officials. Coordination was also achieved through JUNIC, especially in convening system-wide task forces to coordinate communication efforts for specific global conferences and campaigns. Coordination and cooperation had been enhanced as DPI increasingly worked closely with other departments and offices on a daily basis to formulate and disseminate their messages (see p. 555).

The Secretary-General observed that information received from other Secretariat organizational units indicated that their public information activities complemented those of DPI, and the Department's ongoing working relationships and coordination within them helped to minimize duplication and overlap. Those efforts could be more successful if DPI was included from the beginning in preparations for major activities and if its information centres were involved at all stages of joint activities so as to enhance field connectivity and coverage.

DPI provided its expertise to other departments and to the UN system within its limited resources. Public information priorities should therefore be part of joint strategic planning among Secretariat organizational units and discussed prior to the submission of future programme budget proposals.

Information and communications in the context of international security

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/28 [YUN 2000, p. 582], the Secretary-General, in a July report with later addendum [A/56/164 & Add.1], transmitted the views of five Member States, including Sweden on behalf of the States of the European Union that were Members of the United Nations, on the general appreciation of the issues of information security; the definition of basic notions related to information security, including unauthorized interference with or misuse of information and telecommunication systems and information resources; and the content of relevant international concepts aimed at strengthening the security of global information and telecommunication systems.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/533], adopted resolution 56/19 without vote [agenda item 69].

Developments in the field of information and telecommunications in the context of international security

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 53/70 of 4 December 1998, 54/49 of 1 December 1999 and 55/28 of 20 November 2000,

Recalling also its resolutions on the role of science and technology in the context of international security, in which, inter alia, it recognized that scientific and technological developments could have both civilian and military applications and that progress in science and technology for civilian applications needed to be maintained and encouraged,

Noting that considerable progress has been achieved in developing and applying the latest information technologies and means of telecommunication,

Affirming that it sees in this process the broadest positive opportunities for the further development of civilization, the expansion of opportunities for cooperation for the common good of all States, the enhancement of the creative potential of mankind and additional improvements in the circulation of information in the global community,

Recalling, in this connection, the approaches and principles outlined at the Information Society and Development Conference, held at Midrand, South Africa, from 13 to 15 May 1996,

Bearing in mind the results of the Ministerial Conference on Terrorism, held in Paris on 30 July 1996, and the recommendations that it made,

Noting that the dissemination and use of information technologies and means affect the interests of the entire international community and that optimum effectiveness is enhanced by broad international co-operation,

Expressing concern that these technologies and means can potentially be used for purposes that are inconsistent with the objectives of maintaining international stability and security and may adversely affect the security of States in both civil and military fields,

Considering that it is necessary to prevent the use of information resources or technologies for criminal or terrorist purposes,

Noting the contribution of those Member States that have submitted their assessments on issues of information security to the Secretary-General pursuant to paragraphs 1 to 3 of resolutions 53/70, 54/49 and 55/28,

Taking note of the reports of the Secretary-General containing those assessments,

Welcoming the initiative taken by the Secretariat and the United Nations Institute for Disarmament Research in convening an international meeting of experts at Geneva in August 1999 on developments in the field of information and telecommunications in the context of international security, as well as its results,

Considering that the assessments of the Member States contained in the reports of the Secretary-General and the international meeting of experts have contributed to a better understanding of the substance of issues of international information security and related notions,

1. Calls upon Member States to promote further at multilateral levels the consideration of existing and potential threats in the field of information security, as well as possible measures to limit the threats emerging in this field, consistent with the need to preserve the free flow of information;

2. Considers that the purpose of such measures could be served through the examination of relevant international concepts aimed at strengthening the security of global information and telecommunications systems;

3. Invites all Member States to continue to inform the Secretary-General of their views and assessments on the following questions:

(a) General appreciation of the issues of information security;

(b) Definition of basic notions related to information security, including unauthorized interference with or misuse of information and telecommunications systems and information resources;

(c) The content of the concepts mentioned in paragraph 2 of the present resolution;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to consider existing and potential threats in the sphere of information security and possible cooperative measures to address them, and to conduct a study on the concepts referred to in paragraph 2 of the present resolution, with the assistance of a group of governmental experts, to be established in 2004, appointed by him on the basis of equitable geographical distribution and with the help of Member States in a position to render such assistance, and to submit a report on the outcome of the study to the General Assembly at its sixtieth session;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Developments in the field of information and telecommunications in the context of international security".

Role of science and technology in the context of international security and disarmament

On 29 November [meeting 68], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the First Committee [A/56/531], adopted resolution 56/20 by recorded vote (92-46-17) [agenda item 70].

Role of science and technology in the context of international security and disarmament

The General Assembly,

Recognizing that scientific and technological developments can have both civilian and military applications and that progress in science and technology for civilian applications needs to be maintained and encouraged,

Concerned that military applications of scientific and technological developments can contribute significantly to the improvement and upgrading of advanced weapons systems and, in particular, weapons of mass destruction,

Aware of the need to follow closely the scientific and technological developments that may have a negative impact on international security and disarmament, and to channel scientific and technological developments for beneficial purposes,

Cognizant that the international transfers of dual-use as well as high-technology products, services and know-how for peaceful purposes are important for the economic and social development of States,

Also cognizant of the need to regulate such transfers of dual-use goods and technologies and high technology with military applications through multilaterally negotiated, universally applicable, non-discriminatory guidelines,

Expressing concern about the growing proliferation of ad hoc and exclusive export control regimes and arrangements for dual-use goods and technologies, which tend to impede the economic and social development of developing countries,

Recalling that in the Final Document of the Twelfth Conference of Heads of State or Government of Non-Aligned Countries, held at Durban, South Africa, from 29 August to 3 September 1998, it was noted with concern that undue restrictions on exports to developing countries of material, equipment and technology for peaceful purposes persist,

Emphasizing that internationally negotiated guidelines for the transfer of high technology with military applications should take into account the legitimate defence requirements of all States and the requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, while ensuring that access to high-technology products and services and know-how for peaceful purposes is not denied,

1. Affirms that scientific and technological progress should be used for the benefit of all mankind to promote the sustainable economic and social development of all States and to safeguard international security and that international cooperation in the use of science and technology through the transfer and exchange of technological know-how for peaceful purposes should be promoted;

2. Invites Member States to undertake additional efforts to apply science and technology for disarmament-related purposes and to make disarmament-related technologies available to interested States;

3. Urges Member States to undertake multilateral negotiations with the participation of all interested States in order to establish universally acceptable, non-discriminatory guidelines for international transfers of dual-use goods and technologies and high technology with military applications;

4. Encourages United Nations bodies to contribute, within existing mandates, to promoting the application of science and technology for peaceful purposes;

5. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Role of science and technology in the context of international security and disarmament".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/20:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Lesotho, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Swaziland, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Abstaining: Argentina, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Brazil, Georgia, Japan, Kazakhstan, Paraguay, Republic of Korea, Russian Federation, Samoa, South Africa, Tonga, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, Uruguay.

Peaceful uses of outer space

The Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (Committee on Outer Space), at its forty-fourth session (Vienna, 6-15 June) [A/56/20 & Corr.1], discussed ways to maintain outer space for peaceful purposes and the spin-off benefits of space technology. It examined the implementation of the recommendations of the Third (1999)

United Nations Conference on the Exploration and Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (UNISPACE III) [YUN 1999, p. 556] and reviewed the work of its two subcommittees, one concerned with scientific and technical issues and the other with legal questions. The Committee also considered the enlargement of its membership. In December, the General Assembly endorsed the Committee's recommendations for its future work, including those made by its subcommittees.

Implementation of UNISPACE III recommendations

Responding to General Assembly resolution 55/122 [YUN 2000, p. 587], the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee, at its thirty-eighth session (Vienna, 12-23 February) [A/AC.105/761], convened the Working Group of the Whole to consider, among other subjects, the implementation of UNISPACE III recommendations.

The Working Group recommended a mechanism for assessing and implementing those recommendations through the voluntary leadership of individual member States and their appropriate governmental institutions on particular actions. As team leaders, those States would seek the widest possible participation of non-governmental entities and report to the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee, which would act as coordinator. The Working Group also recommended that a survey be conducted to identify Member States' interest and priority for each action constituting the nucleus of a strategy contained in "The Space Millennium: Vienna Declaration on Space and Human Development", adopted by UNISPACE III [YUN 1999, p. 556]. The survey would also allow Member States to indicate their interest in being the leader or member of particular teams. The results of the survey were to be submitted to the forty-fourth session of the Committee on Outer Space (see below).

The Working Group also recommended that expert groups be established to conduct research, analyse and make recommendations on particular actions. In that regard, it established an expert group to propose a plan for a global disaster mitigation management system.

The Working Group stressed the importance of the full implementation of the plan of action of the Office for Outer Space Affairs for implementing UNISPACE III recommendations [YUN 2000, p. 583] with the necessary resources in 2002 and hoped the General Assembly would take that fully into account.

The Committee on Outer Space, at its June session [A/56/20 & Corr.1], endorsed the Working Group's recommendations. It also considered the results of the survey requested by the Working Group (see p. 567), contained in a May note by the Secretariat [A/AC.105/L.234] and later conference room papers. Attached to the note were tables setting out the UNISPACE III recommendations into three groups, and indicating States that had offered to be team leaders and a list of members of each group.

The Committee on Outer Space noted the comprehensive response to the survey and agreed that implementation of UNISPACE III recommendations could proceed in stages. The first stage would involve recommendations in Group 1, considered by Member States as being of highest priority, and those in Group 2, where States had offered to be coordinators of action teams. For each recommendation, there would be an assessment phase and an implementation phase. During the assessment phase, third parties, including intergovernmental organizations within the UN system, with strong interest in participating in the implementation of the recommendation, would be identified. The Committee identified as the recommendations that had been assigned the highest priority the development of a comprehensive, worldwide environmental strategy (recommendation 1), improving the management of the Earth's natural resources (2), implementing an integrated, global system to manage natural disaster mitigation, relief and prevention efforts (7), improving universal access to and compatibility of space-based navigation and positioning systems (10), promoting sustainable development (11), and increasing awareness among decision makers and the public of the importance of space activities (18).

The Committee agreed that India, Nigeria, for the African States, and the United States with Austria would act as interim coordinators for recommendations 2, 11 and 18, respectively, prior to the 2002 session of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee. The Committee also agreed that Canada, China, France, Japan, Portugal and the United Kingdom would act as interim coordinators for the recommendations for which they had offered to be leaders, and that the work of the action teams would begin as proposed by the respective countries. The Committee noted the list of experts nominated by Member States for the expert group on the implementation of an integrated, space-based global natural disaster management system [A/AC.105/L.233 & Add.1-3] and agreed that the expert group be merged into the action team on recommendation 7. The Committee requested the interim coordinators to report on their work and to submit work plans to the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee in 2002 for approval. The Subcommittee would agree at that time on the principal participants in the teams, identify any other recommendations for which urgent actions were required and agree on interim coordinators of teams to be responsible for those recommendations.

The Committee urged all Member States that had not done so to contribute to the Trust Fund for the United Nations Programme on Space Applications, which had been modified to include implementation of UNISPACE III recommendations, in particular to support the projects and activities recommended by the Committee at its 2000 session.

The Chairman of the Committee expressed concern that, while the United Nations had organized global conferences to identify priorities for the twenty-first century to promote human development, none of those conferences had taken the contribution of space science and technology into account. The Committee agreed that its Chairman should bring to the Secretary-General's attention the need to consider that contribution to a greater extent in major UN conferences, taking particular account of the needs of developing countries. That request was conveyed to the Secretary-General by the Committee Chairman in a 19 July letter [A/56/306], in which attention was also drawn to the mechanism set up for implementing UNISPACE III recommendations, including the list of open-ended action teams that were to begin implementing those recommendations in 2001.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/122 [YUN 2000, p. 587], the Secretary-General reported in September [A/56/394 & Corr.1] on action taken by the Committee on Outer Space at its June session to implement the UNISPACE III recommendations and the plan of action of the Office for Outer Space Affairs, and to further enhance inter-agency coordination and cooperation.

Scientific and Technical Subcommittee

The Scientific and Technical Subcommittee of the Committee on Outer Space, at its thirty-eighth session [A/AC.105/761], considered the United Nations Programme on Space Applications following UNISPACE III.

The Subcommittee also dealt with matters related to remote sensing of the Earth by satellite, including applications for developing countries and the monitoring of the Earth's environment; the use of nuclear power sources in outer space; mechanisms for strengthening inter-agency cooperation and increasing the use of space applications and services within and among UN system entities; the implementation of an integrated, space-based global natural disaster management system; space debris; the examination of the physical nature and technical attributes of the geostationary orbit and of its utilization and applications; and government and private activities to promote education in space science and engineering.

UN Programme on Space Applications

The United Nations Programme on Space Applications, as mandated by General Assembly resolution 37/90 [YUN 1982, p. 163], continued to focus on developing indigenous capability at the local level in space science and technology through long-range training fellowships, technical advisory services, regional and international training courses and conferences; acquiring and disseminating space-related information; and promoting cooperation between developed and developing countries.

According to the United Nations Expert on Space Applications, in his report to the Subcommittee [A/AC.105/773], pursuant to Assembly resolution 45/72 [YUN 1990, p. 99], regional workshops continued to be organized on the use of space technology in disaster management, particularly for the benefit of developing countries. The workshops would support the Committee's action team on disaster management. Efforts in developing indigenous capability continued to focus largely on establishing regional centres for space science and technology education in developing countries and a Network of Space Science and Technology Education and Research Institutions for Central, Eastern and South-Eastern Europe.

The Programme held nine training courses, workshops and conferences in 2001, including its long-term fellowships for in-depth training. Various technical advisory services and activities promoting regional cooperation continued to be provided.

In considering the January 2001 report of the Expert on Space Applications [A/AC.105/750], the Subcommittee continued to express its concern over the Programme's limited financial resources and appealed to Member States for voluntary contributions. It also noted the Programme's assistance to developing countries and countries with economies in transition, as proposed in the UNISPACE III recommendations, particularly those contained in the Vienna Declaration on Space and Human Development.

The Assembly, in resolution 56/51 (see p. 847), endorsed the United Nations Programme on Space Applications, as proposed by the Expert.

Cooperation

The Inter-Agency Meeting on Outer Space Activities, at its twenty-first session (Vienna, 22-24 January) [A/AC.105/756], discussed the coordination of plans and programmes in the practical application of space technology and the enhancement of coordination among UN system organizations through the use of information technologies. It also reviewed cooperation within the UN system in remote sensing and related geographic information systems, and the UNISPACE III action plan and implementation of follow-up activities.

The Meeting reaffirmed its commitment to strengthening existing coordination mechanisms both within and outside the UN system and considered a proposal by the Office for Outer Space Affairs on its joint initiative with the United Nations International Strategy for Disaster Reduction on the use of space technologies in disaster management. It agreed that the Office for Outer Space Affairs should make a presentation to the Subcommittee highlighting examples of inter-agency collaboration in space-related areas, and should more actively bring to the attention of other UN intergovernmental bodies the benefits of space applications and related activities being carried out by UN system organizations. The Secretary-General's report on the coordination of outer space activities within the UN system: programme of work for 2001 and 2002 and future years [A/AC.105/757] should be summarized, highlighting inter-agency collaboration, and widely circulated.

The Meeting reaffirmed the importance of linking UN system institutions concerned with space applications and those concerned with development. It stressed the importance of strengthening its interaction with the Commission on Sustainable Development, and encouraged participating organizations involved in outer space activities to promote the use of space technology for sustainable development at the Commission's ninth (2001) session (see p. 747) and at the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development (see p. 749). The Meeting agreed that discussion on UN system cooperation in remote sensing and related geographic information system activities and Agenda 21, adopted by the 1992 United Nations Conference on Environment and Development [YUN 1992, p. 672], should include the promotion of relevant space-related technologies in sustainable development.

The Committee on Outer Space [A/56/20 & Corr.1] noted the report of the Inter-Agency Meeting and the Secretary-General's report on coordination of outer space activities within the UN system.

Other related documents submitted to the Subcommittee were Secretariat notes [A/AC.105/C.1/L.241 & Corr.1 & Add.1] containing the views of UN system organizations on the strengthening of inter-agency cooperation and increasing the use of space applications and services within and among UN system entities.

Scientific and technical issues

In 2001, the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee [A/AC.105/761] continued to emphasize the importance of providing non-discriminatory access to state-of-the-art remote sensing data and to derived information at reasonable cost, and of capacity-building in the adoption and use of remote sensing technology, particularly to meet the needs of developing countries. It also emphasized the importance of remote sensing systems for advancing sustainable development. It agreed that revision of the Principles Relevant to the Use of Nuclear Power Sources in Outer Space [YUN 1992, p. 116] was currently not warranted, and, until a firm scientific and technical consensus had been reached, it would be inappropriate to refer the topic to the Legal Subcommittee.

The Subcommittee noted examples of existing use of space technology for disaster management, the obstacles to further such use, and efforts to improve space-based services for disaster management and to develop the expertise of potential users of space-based information for disaster management.

The Subcommittee examined the costs and benefits of space debris mitigation measures. As requested by the Committee on Outer Space [YUN 2000, p. 586], the Secretariat had prepared a sample index to the United Nations Register of Objects Launched into Outer Space. The Subcommittee noted that a process of controlled de-orbiting for large artificial space objects was being gradually introduced by national space agencies.

The Subcommittee agreed that: international cooperation was needed to minimize the potential impact of space debris on future space missions; Member States should pay more attention to the problem of collisions of space objects, including those with nuclear power sources on board, with space debris and to other aspects of space debris; and Member States and international organizations should make available the results of national research on space debris, including information on minimizing its creation. The Subcommittee also agreed that a work plan should be established to expedite international adoption of voluntary debris mitigation measures.

The Committee on Outer Space [A/56/20 & Corr.1] agreed with the Subcommittee concerning the revision of the 1992 Principles, and that States making use of nuclear power sources should conduct their activities in full accordance with those Principles. Member States should be invited to report to the Secretary-General annually on national and international research on the subject, and further studies should be conducted on the issue of collision between space debris and orbiting space objects with nuclear power sources.

The Committee agreed that, starting in 2002, the Subcommittee should consider space debris according to the multi-year work plan adopted at its thirty-eighth (2001) session. It noted that the recommended practice of re-orbiting satellites before the end of their operational life had not been universally applied and requested the European Space Operations Centre of the European Space Agency to provide updates on the state of application of that practice in 2002.

In response to the Committee's request that Member States report on national and international research concerning the safety of space objects with nuclear power sources, the Secretariat, in November [A/AC.105/770], submitted replies received from six Member States and two international organizations on the subject.

Legal Subcommittee

The Legal Subcommittee, at its fortieth session (Vienna, 2-12 April) [A/AC.105/763 & Corr.1], considered the draft convention of the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law (Unidroit) on international interests in mobile equipment and the preliminary draft protocol thereto on matters specific to space property. The issue was raised of potential overlap between the legal regimes to be established under the Unidroit draft convention and that being prepared by the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law on assignment of receivables. The Subcommittee established an ad hoc consultative mechanism to review those and other related issues. A working meeting of the mechanism was held in Paris (10-11 September) and the results of consultations undertaken through the mechanism would be reported to the Subcommittee in 2002. The Convention was adopted at the Diplomatic Conference to Adopt a Mobile Equipment Convention and an Aircraft Protocol (Cape Town, South Africa, 29 October-16 November) and was opened for signature on 16 November.

The Subcommittee discussed the status and application of the five UN treaties on outer space, including a review of their implementation and obstacles to their universal acceptance. The treaties in question were: the 1966 Treaty on Principles Governing the Activities of States in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space, including the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2222(XXI) [YUN 1966, p. 41]; the 1967 Agreement on the Rescue of Astronauts, the Return of Astronauts and the Return of Objects Launched into Outer Space, adopted in resolution 2345(XXII) [YUN 1967, p. 33]; the 1971 Convention on International Liability for Damage Caused by Space Objects, contained in resolution 2777(XXVI) [YUN 1971, p. 52]; the 1974 Convention on Registration of Objects Launched into Outer Space, contained in resolution 3235(XXIX) [YUN 1974, p. 63]; and the 1979 Agreement Governing the Activities of States on the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies, contained in resolution 34/68 [YUN 1979, p. 111].

The Subcommittee re-established its Working Group on the definition and delimitation of outer space, which agreed that, as few replies had been received to the questionnaire on aerospace objects, Member States should consider submitting or updating their replies in the interest of making progress on the subject. The Secretariat should prepare a summary of the question, indicating points of consensus that had emerged over the years.

The Legal Subcommittee noted the work of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee at its 2001 session on the use of nuclear power sources in outer space under a four-year work plan, the second year of which reviewed national and international processes, proposals and standards, and national working papers relevant to the launch and peaceful use of nuclear power sources in outer space. The Scientific and Technical Subcommittee's Working Group on the issue would submit an information report in 2002.

The Legal Subcommittee also reviewed the concept of the "launching State" through its Working Group on the subject.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/548], adopted resolution 56/51 without vote [agenda item 86].

International cooperation in the peaceful uses of outer space

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 51/122 of 13 December 1996, 54/68 of 6 December 1999 and 55/122 of 8 December 2000,

Deeply convinced of the common interest of mankind in promoting and expanding the exploration and use of outer space, as the province of all mankind, for peaceful purposes and in continuing efforts to extend to all States the benefits derived therefrom, and also of the importance of international cooperation in this field, for which the United Nations should continue to provide a focal point,

Reaffirming the importance of international cooperation in developing the rule of law, including the relevant norms of space law and their important role in international cooperation for the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes, and of the widest possible adherence to international treaties that promote the peaceful uses of outer space in order to meet emerging new challenges,

Seriously concerned about the possibility of an arms race in outer space,

Recognizing that all States, in particular those with major space capabilities, should contribute actively to the goal of preventing an arms race in outer space as an essential condition for the promotion and strengthening of international cooperation in the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes,

Considering that space debris is an issue of concern to all nations,

Noting the progress achieved in the further development of peaceful space exploration and applications as well as in various national and cooperative space projects, which contributes to international cooperation, and the importance of further developing the legal framework to strengthen international cooperation in this field,

Convinced of the importance of the recommendations in the resolution entitled "The Space Millennium: Vienna Declaration on Space and Human Development", adopted by the Third United Nations Conference on the Exploration and Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (UNISPACE III), held at Vienna from 19 to 30 July 1999,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the recommendations of UNISPACE III,

Convinced that the use of space science and technology and their applications, in such areas as telemedicine, tele-education and Earth observation, contribute to achieving the objectives of the global conferences of the United Nations that address various aspects of economic, social and cultural development, inter alia, poverty eradication,

Having considered the report of the Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space on the work of its forty-fourth session,

1. Endorses the report of the Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space on the work of its forty-fourth session;

2. Urges States that have not yet become parties to the international treaties governing the uses of outer space to give consideration to ratifying or acceding to those treaties;

3. Notes that, at its fortieth session, the Legal Subcommittee of the Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space continued its work, as mandated by the General Assembly in its resolution 55/122;

4. Notes with satisfaction the agreement reached by the Legal Subcommittee on the question of the character and utilization of the geostationary orbit and the subsequent endorsement of that agreement by the Committee;

5. Endorses the recommendation of the Committee that the Legal Subcommittee, at its forty-first session, taking into account the concerns of all countries, in particular those of developing countries:

(a) Consider the following as regular agenda items:

- (i) General exchange of views;
- (ii) Status and application of the five United Nations treaties on outer space;
- (iii) Information on the activities of international organizations relating to space law;
- (iv) Matters relating to:
  - a. The definition and delimitation of outer space;
  - b. The character and utilization of the geostationary orbit, including consideration of ways and means to ensure the rational and equitable use of the geostationary orbit without prejudice to the role of the International Telecommunication Union;

(b) Consider the following single issues/items for discussion:

- (i) Review and possible revision of the Principles Relevant to the Use of Nuclear Power Sources in Outer Space;
- (ii) Consideration of the Convention on International Interests in Mobile Equipment, which was opened for signature at Cape Town, South Africa, on 16 November 2001, and the preliminary draft protocol on matters specific to space property;
- (c) Continue its review of the concept of the "launching State", in accordance with the work plan adopted by the Committee;

6. Notes that the Legal Subcommittee, at its forty-first session, will submit its proposals to the Committee for new items to be considered by the Subcommittee at its forty-second session, in 2003;

7. Agrees that, in the context of paragraph 5 (a) (ii) above, the Legal Subcommittee should establish a working group with the terms of reference as agreed upon by the Legal Subcommittee at its fortieth session, to be convened for three years, from 2002 to 2004;

8. Notes that the Committee would invite interested member States to designate experts to identify which aspects of the report on the ethics of space policy of the World Commission on the Ethics of Scientific Knowledge and Technology of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization might need to be studied by the Committee and to draft a report, in consultation with other international organizations and in close liaison with the World Commission, with a view to making a presentation on the matter at the forty-second session of the Legal Subcommittee, under the agenda item entitled "Information on the activities of international organizations relating to space law";

9. Notes also that, in the context of paragraph 5 (a) (iv) above and in accordance with the agreement referred to in paragraph 4 above, the Legal Subcommittee will reconvene its working group on the item only to consider matters relating to the definition and delimitation of outer space;

10. Endorses the agreement of the Legal Subcommittee, in the context of paragraph 5 (b) (ii) above, concerning the establishment of an ad hoc consultative mechanism to review the relevant issues;

11. Notes that, in the context of paragraph 5 (c) above, the Legal Subcommittee will reconvene its working group to consider the item;

12. Agrees that, in accordance with the measures relating to the working methods of the Committee and its subsidiary bodies, which were endorsed by the General Assembly in paragraph 11 of its resolution 52/56 of 10 December 1997, the Committee should reach consensus agreement at its forty-fifth session, in 2002, on the composition of the bureaux of the Committee and its subsidiary bodies for the third term, starting in 2003;

13. Notes that the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee, at its thirty-eighth session, continued its work as mandated by the General Assembly in its resolution 55/122;

14. Notes with satisfaction that the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee at its thirty-eighth session continued to consider, on a priority basis, the agenda item on space debris;

15. Endorses the recommendation of the Committee that the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee, at its thirty-ninth session, taking into account the concerns of all countries, in particular those of developing countries:

(a) Consider the following items:

- (i) General exchange of views and introduction to reports submitted on national activities;
- (ii) United Nations Programme on Space Applications;
- (iii) Implementation of the recommendations of the Third United Nations Conference on the Exploration and Peaceful Uses of Outer Space (UNISPACE III);
- (iv) Matters relating to remote sensing of the Earth by satellite, including applications for developing countries and monitoring of the Earth's environment;

(b) Consider the following items in accordance with the work plans adopted by the Committee;

- (i) Use of nuclear power sources in outer space;
- (ii) Means and mechanisms for strengthening inter-agency cooperation and increasing the use of space applications and services within and among entities of the United Nations system;
- (iii) Implementation of an integrated, space-based global natural disaster management system;
- (iv) Space debris;

(c) Consider the following single issues/items for discussion:

- (i) Examination of the physical nature and technical attributes of the geostationary orbit and its utilization and applications, including, inter alia, in the field of space communications, as well as other questions relating to developments in space communications, taking particular account of the needs and interests of developing countries;
- (ii) International cooperation in limiting obtrusive space advertising that could interfere with astronomical observations;
- (iii) Mobilization of financial resources to develop capacity in space science and technology applications;

16. Notes that the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee at its thirty-ninth session will submit its proposal to the Committee for a draft provisional agenda for the fortieth session of the Subcommittee, in 2003;

17. Endorses the recommendation of the Committee that the Committee on Space Research and the International Astronautical Federation, in liaison with member States, be invited to arrange a symposium on the theme "Remote sensing for water management in arid and semi-arid countries", with as wide a participation as possible, to be held during the first week of the thirty-ninth session of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee;

18. Notes with satisfaction that an industry symposium, with the participation of member States, will be organized during the thirty-ninth session of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee, focusing on the promising area of very high resolution remote sensing and its impact on operational applications and also discussing the new space market situation;

19. Agrees that, in the context of paragraphs 15 (a) (ii) and (iii) and 16 above, the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee at its thirty-ninth session should reconvene the Working Group of the Whole;

20. Also agrees that, in the context of paragraph 15 (b) (i) above, the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee at its thirty-ninth session should reconvene its Working Group on the Use of Nuclear Power Sources in Outer Space;

21. Invites the Inter-Agency Meeting on Outer Space Activities to contribute to the work of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee in the context of paragraph 15 (b) (ii) above by, inter alia, considering the barriers to greater use of space applications and services within the United Nations system and suggesting means and mechanisms to eliminate those barriers;

22. Endorses the United Nations Programme on Space Applications for 2002, as proposed to the Committee by the Expert on Space Applications;

23. Notes with satisfaction that, in accordance with paragraph 30 of General Assembly resolution 50/27 of 6 December 1995, the African regional centres for space science and technology education, in the French language and in the English language, located in Morocco and Nigeria, respectively, and the Centre for Space Science and Technology Education in Asia and the Pacific continued their education programmes in 2001 and that progress has been achieved in furthering the goals of the Network of Space Science and Technology Education and Research Institutions of Central, Eastern and South-Eastern Europe and in establishing regional centres for space science and technology education in the other regions;

24. Notes that Member States concerned in Asia and the Pacific continued to hold further consultations, with the assistance of the Office for Outer Space Affairs, with a view to making the Centre for Space Science and Technology Education in Asia and the Pacific grow into a network of nodes;

25. Recognizes the usefulness and significance of the Space Conferences of the Americas for the Latin American countries, notes with satisfaction that Colombia offered to host a Fourth Space Conference of the Americas in 2003, for which a Preparatory Conference will be convened during the International Air and Space Fair, known as FIDAE, to be held in Santiago in April 2002, and encourages other regions to convene periodically regional conferences with a view to achieving convergence of positions on issues of common concern in the field of the peaceful uses of outer space among States Members of the United Nations;

26. Urges all Governments, organs, organizations and programmes within the United Nations system as well as intergovernmental and non-governmental entities conducting space-related activities to take the necessary action for the effective implementation of the recommendations of UNISPACE III, in particular its resolution entitled "The Space Millennium: Vienna Declaration on Space and Human Development", and requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the recommendations of UNISPACE III;

27. Notes with satisfaction that the Committee at its forty-fourth session established action teams under the voluntary leadership of Member States to implement the recommendations of UNISPACE III, which had been assigned highest priority by Member States and for which Member States had offered to lead activities, and that those action teams would report on the work conducted and submit work plans to the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee at its thirty-ninth session for approval;

28. Notes that, in accordance with paragraph 29 of General Assembly resolution 55/122, the resources necessary to carry out measures and activities contained in the plan of action submitted by the Office for Outer Space Affairs to implement recommendations of UNISPACE III had been included in the proposed programme budget for the biennium 2002-2003 and that the Committee stressed the importance of the full implementation of the plan of action with the necessary resources in 2002;

29. Agrees that, in accordance with paragraph 30 of General Assembly resolution 55/122, the Committee should include in the agendas of its forty-fifth to forty-seventh sessions an item on the implementation of the recommendations of UNISPACE III;

30. Requests the Committee to prepare a report under the agenda item on the implementation of the recommendations of UNISPACE III for submission to the General Assembly, in order for the Assembly to review and appraise, at its fifty-ninth session, in 2004, in accordance with paragraph 16 of General Assembly resolution 54/68, the implementation of the outcome of UNISPACE III and to consider further actions and initiatives, and agrees that in this context, it would be advisable to establish a working group of the Committee which would take into account the work of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee on the matter;

31. Also requests the Committee to submit for consideration by the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session recommendations on the format, scope and organizational aspects of the above-mentioned review by the Assembly;

32. Urges all Member States to contribute to the Trust Fund for the United Nations Programme on Space Applications to support activities to implement the recommendations of UNISPACE III, in particular the priority project proposals as recommended by the Committee at its forty-third session;

33. Recommends that more attention be paid and political support be provided to all matters relating to the protection and the preservation of the outer space

environment, especially those potentially affecting the Earth's environment;

34. Considers that it is essential that Member States pay more attention to the problem of collisions of space objects, including those with nuclear power sources, with space debris, and other aspects of space debris, calls for the continuation of national research on this question, for the development of improved technology for the monitoring of space debris and for the compilation and dissemination of data on space debris, also considers that, to the extent possible, information thereon should be provided to the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee, and agrees that international co-operation is needed to expand appropriate and affordable strategies to minimize the impact of space debris on future space missions;

35. Urges all States, in particular those with major space capabilities, to contribute actively to the goal of preventing an arms race in outer space as an essential condition for the promotion of international co-operation in the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes;

36. Emphasizes the need to increase the benefits of space technology and its applications and to contribute to an orderly growth of space activities favourable to sustained economic growth and sustainable development in all countries, including mitigation of the consequences of disasters, in particular in the developing countries;

37. Agrees that the benefits of space technology and its applications should be prominently brought to the attention of conferences organized within the United Nations system to address global issues relating to social, economic and cultural development and that the use of space technology should be promoted towards achieving the objectives of those conferences and implementing the United Nations Millennium Declaration;

38. Notes that the Chairman of the Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space submitted a letter to the Secretary-General, as requested by the Committee at its forty-fourth session, bringing to his attention the need to consider the contributions of space science and technology to a greater extent in achieving the objectives of major United Nations conferences, taking particular account of the needs of developing countries;

39. Invites all the organs, organizations and programmes of the United Nations system, particularly those that participate in the Inter-Agency Meeting on Outer Space Activities, to identify recommendations of major United Nations conferences that could be implemented with the use of space science and technology;

40. Decides that the practice of sharing seats on a rotating basis between Cuba and Peru as well as Malaysia and the Republic of Korea shall be terminated, that those four countries shall become full members of the Committee, and that Saudi Arabia and Slovakia shall become members of the Committee;

41. Agrees that, after the current enlargement of the membership of the Committee, there would be no need to expand its membership further for the next seven years, except in special circumstances meriting consideration before that period has elapsed;

42. Also agrees that each regional group should hold consultations among its members that are also members of the Committee, for the purpose of urging them to participate in the work of the Committee and its two subcommittees, and that the regional groups would report to the Committee at its forty-fifth session on the results of their consultations;

43. Endorses the decision of the Committee to grant permanent observer status to the European Association for the International Space Year, the National Space Society and the Space Generation Advisory Council;

44. Requests the Committee to continue to consider, as a matter of priority, ways and means of maintaining outer space for peaceful purposes and to report thereon to the Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

45. Also requests the Committee to continue to consider, at its forty-fifth session, its agenda item entitled "Spin-off benefits of space technology: review of current status";

46. Agrees that a new item entitled "Space and society" should be included in the agenda of the Committee at its forty-fifth and forty-sixth sessions;

47. Also agrees that the Committee should consider a report on the activities of the International Satellite System for Search and Rescue as a part of its consideration of the United Nations Programme on Space Applications under the agenda item entitled "Report of the Scientific and Technical Subcommittee", and invites Member States to report on their activities regarding the System;

48. Invites the Committee to expand the scope of international cooperation relating to the social, economic, ethical and human dimension in space science and technology applications;

49. Requests the specialized agencies and other international organizations to continue and, where appropriate, enhance their cooperation with the Committee and to provide it with progress reports on their work relating to the peaceful uses of outer space;

50. Requests the Committee to continue its work, in accordance with the present resolution, to consider, as appropriate, new projects in outer space activities and to submit a report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session, including its views on which subjects should be studied in the future;

51. Also requests the Committee to consider and identify new mechanisms of international cooperation in the peaceful uses of outer space, in accordance with the preamble to the present resolution.

Effects of atomic radiation

At its fiftieth session (Vienna, 23-27 April) [A/56/46], the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation decided on its new programme of work, which would comprise gathering new data on radiation exposures from natural, man-made and occupational sources; extending its evaluation of medical exposures, especially in relation to new diagnostic procedures that could result in high doses; performing a comprehensive assessment of radon in homes and workplaces; and examining the effects of radiation on the environment as part of a study on radioecology. The Committee also planned to address radiation effects at the level of tissues and organs; examine the potential consequences for development of cancer risk from radiation of newly identified cellular responses to radiation; continue to perform epidemiological evaluation of cancer and of diseases other than cancer that might be increased by radiation; and continue its studies on the radiological health effects from the Chernobyl accident [YUN 1986, p. 584], which were expected to be completed and published in 2005. The Committee also completed a comprehensive review of hereditary risks following parental exposure to radiation and concluded that a sounder basis currently existed for estimating that risk.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 10 December [meeting 82], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Fourth Committee [A/56/547], adopted resolution 56/50 without vote [agenda item 85].

Effects of atomic radiation

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 913(X) of 3 December 1955, by which it established the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation, and its subsequent resolutions on the subject, including resolution 55/121 of 8 December 2000, in which, inter alia, it requested the Scientific Committee to continue its work,

Taking note with appreciation of the work of the Scientific Committee and of the release of its extensive report, entitled Hereditary Effects of Radiation: United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation 2001 Report to the General Assembly, with Scientific Annex,*

Reaffirming the desirability of the Scientific Committee continuing its work,

Concerned about the potentially harmful effects on present and future generations resulting from the levels of radiation to which mankind and the environment are exposed,

Noting the views expressed by Member States at its fifty-sixth session with regard to the work of the Scientific Committee,

Conscious of the continuing need to examine and compile information about atomic and ionizing radiation and to analyse its effects on mankind and the environment,

1. Commends the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation for the valuable contribution it has been making in the course of the past forty-six years, since its inception, to wider knowledge and understanding of the levels, effects and risks of ionizing radiation, and for fulfilling its original mandate with scientific authority and independence of judgement;

2. Takes note with appreciation of the work of the Scientific Committee and of the release of its extensive report, which provides the scientific and world community with the Committee's latest evaluations of the hereditary effects of radiation;

3. Reaffirms the decision to maintain the present functions and independent role of the Scientific Committee, including its present reporting arrangements;

4. Requests the Scientific Committee to continue its work, including its important activities to increase knowledge of the levels, effects and risks of ionizing radiation from all sources, and invites the Scientific Committee to submit its programme of work to the General Assembly;

5. Endorses the intentions and plans of the Scientific Committee for its future activities of scientific review and assessment on behalf of the General Assembly;

6. Requests the Scientific Committee to continue at its next session the review of the important problems in the field of ionizing radiation and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

7. Requests the United Nations Environment Programme to continue providing support for the effective conduct of the work of the Scientific Committee and for the dissemination of its findings to the General Assembly, the scientific community and the public;

8. Expresses its appreciation for the assistance rendered to the Scientific Committee by Member States, the specialized agencies, the International Atomic Energy Agency and non-governmental organizations, and invites them to increase their cooperation in this field;

9. Invites the Scientific Committee to continue its consultations with scientists and experts from interested Member States in the process of preparing its future scientific reports;

10. Welcomes, in this context, the readiness of Member States to provide the Scientific Committee with relevant information on the effects of ionizing radiation in affected areas, and invites the Scientific Committee to analyse and give due consideration to such information, particularly in the light of its own findings;

11. Invites Member States, the organizations of the United Nations system and non-governmental organizations concerned to provide further relevant data about doses, effects and risks from various sources of radiation, which would greatly help in the preparation of future reports of the Scientific Committee to the General Assembly.

*Sales No. E.01.IX.2.

International Day of Peace

On 7 September [meeting 111], the General Assembly adopted resolution 55/282 [draft: A/55/L.95 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 33].

International Day of Peace

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 36/67 of 30 November 1981, by which it declared that the third Tuesday of September, the opening day of the regular sessions of the General Assembly, shall be officially proclaimed and observed as International Day of Peace and shall be devoted to commemorating and strengthening the ideals of peace both within and among all nations and peoples,

Recalling also its other relevant resolutions, including resolution 55/14 of 3 November 2000,

Reaffirming the contribution that the observance and celebration of the International Day of Peace makes in strengthening the ideals of peace and alleviating tensions and causes of conflict,

Considering the unique opportunity it offers for a cessation of violence and conflict throughout the world, and the related importance of achieving the broadest possible awareness and observance of the International Day of Peace among the global community,

Desiring to draw attention to the objectives of the International Day of Peace, and therefore to fix a date for its observance each year that is separate from the opening day of the regular sessions of the General Assembly,

1. Decides that, with effect from the fifty-seventh session of the General Assembly, the International Day of Peace shall be observed on 21 September each year, with this date to be brought to the attention of all people for the celebration and observance of peace;

2. Declares that the International Day of Peace shall henceforth be observed as a day of global ceasefire and non-violence, an invitation to all nations and people to honour a cessation of hostilities for the duration of the Day;

3. Invites all Member States, organizations of the United Nations system, regional and non-governmental organizations and individuals to commemorate, in an appropriate manner, the International Day of Peace, including through education and public awareness, and to cooperate with the United Nations in the establishment of the global ceasefire.

Chapter I

Promotion of human rights

United Nations efforts to promote human rights continued in 2001 through the Commission on Human Rights and its subsidiary body, the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) continued its human rights coordination and implementation activities, and the provision of advisory services and technical co-operation.

Human rights instruments and their monitoring bodies promoted civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights, and aimed to eliminate racial discrimination and discrimination against women, to protect children and to end the practice of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

The Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa in Yaoundé, Cameroon, established as a subregional office of OHCHR in cooperation with the Economic Community of Central African States and the UN Department of Political Affairs, became operational in March.

sessional meetings and consultations, which were summarized in a September note of the Secretariat [E/CN.4/IM/2001/2].

Regarding the procedure for dealing with communications concerning violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms, established by Economic and Social Council resolution 1503(XLVIII) [YUN 1970, p. 530] (the 1503 procedure), concern was expressed about the Secretariat practice of sharing details of 1503 communications with the UN Division for the Advancement of Women, to be dealt with by the Commission on the Status of Women. While procedures of the Commission on the Status of Women and the Commission on Human Rights were confidential, their memberships were not identical, and a question had been raised as to whether sharing the information involved a breach of the confidentiality mandated by the 1503 procedure. On 26 July, the Council, pursuant to its resolution 2000/3 [YUN 2000, p. 595], asked the Commission on Human Rights to consider the issue in 2002 and to provide the Council with recommendations, and decided to consider the issue in 2002 (decision 2001/304).

UN machinery

Commission on Human Rights

The Commission on Human Rights held its fifty-seventh session in Geneva from 19 March to 27 April [E/2001/23], during which it adopted 82 resolutions and 19 decisions. The Commission recommended 51 draft decisions for adoption by the Economic and Social Council. On 26 July, the Council took note of the Commission's report (decision 2001/317).

The Commission held an informal one-day meeting on 25 September [E/CN.4/IM/2001/1], pursuant to a 2000 Commission decision [YUN 2000, p. 595], to facilitate exchange of information in advance of the fifty-sixth (2001) session of the General Assembly.

Presentations were made on the human rights items allocated by the Assembly to the Third (Social, Humanitarian and Cultural) Committee.

From May to August 2001, the Bureau of the Commission's 2001 session held a series of post-

Organization of work in 2002

On 27 April [dec. 2001/117], the Commission decided that its fifty-eighth session would be held from 18 March to 26 April 2002. On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the decision (decision 2001/286).

Also on 27 April [dec. 2001/118], the Commission recommended that the Council authorize 35 fully serviced additional meetings of the Commission's 2002 session, and requested the Chairperson of the session to organize its work within the times normally allotted so that the additional meetings would be used only if necessary. By decision 2001/287 of 24 July, the Council authorized the additional meetings and approved the Commission's request to its Chairperson.

Thematic procedures

In accordance with a 2000 Commission decision [YUN 2000, p. 598], the Secretary-General presented, in January [E/CN.4/2001/1/Add.1], a list of all persons currently constituting the thematic and country procedures.

Pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 598], the Secretariat issued a February note [E/CN.4/2001/101] containing references to the conclusions and recommendations of thematic special rapporteurs and working groups.

A meeting of the special rapporteurs/representatives, experts and chairpersons of working groups of the special procedures and advisory services programme of the Commission was held in 2001 (see p. 598).

Commission action. On 25 April [dec. 2001/116], the Commission postponed consideration of a draft resolution on human rights and thematic procedures and the proposed amendments thereto until 2002.

Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights

2001 session

The Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, at its fifty-third session (Geneva, 30 July–17 August) [E/CN.4/2002/2], adopted 24 resolutions and 22 decisions, and recommended nine draft decisions for adoption by the Commission.

The Subcommission approved the composition of its working groups for 2002 [dec. 2001/118], asked the Commission to restore its annual session to four weeks' duration [dec. 2001/117] and adjourned the debate on State cooperation with UN human rights mechanisms [dec. 2001/121]. It submitted a draft text for adoption by the Commission regarding proposals on measures to improve the Subcommission's functioning [dec. 2001/116].

A June note by the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/23] reviewed developments between 1 June 2000 and 1 June 2001 in areas with which the Subcommission had been previously concerned.

Report of Subcommission Chairperson. The Commission considered a February report [E/CN.4/2001/86] of the Subcommission's 2000 Chairperson, Iulia-Antoanella Motoc (Romania), which mostly dealt with the Subcommission's working methods in 2000, including the report of the Working Group on Enhancing the Effectiveness of the Mechanisms of the Commission [YUN 2000, p. 595], and Subcommission reports, studies and new subject areas.

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/60], the Commission recommended that the Subcommission improve its methods of work by focusing on its role as an advisory body, giving attention to the studies recommended by the Commission, respecting the highest standards of impartiality and expertise, facilitating the participation of non-governmental organizations (NGOs), fully considering studies and working papers before sending them to the Commission, focusing on human rights issues under its mandate and avoiding duplication of work carried out by other bodies. The Commission presented guidelines for States when nominating and electing Subcommission members.

The Commission invited the Secretary-General to assist the Subcommission with regard to requests for information from Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs, but to consider the requests only after they had been approved by the Commission.

In view of the Commission's decision that the Subcommission should not adopt country-specific resolutions and, in negotiating and adopting thematic resolutions, should refrain from referring to specific countries, the Secretariat, by a May note [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/5], provided the Subcommission with a list of countries whose human rights situations the Commission was considering under public procedures for dealing with human rights violations.

Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights

Reports of High Commissioner. In her annual report to the Commission [E/CN.4/2001/16], the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, Mary Robinson (Ireland), addressed State responsibility to eliminate racial discrimination, contemporary trends in racism, gender and racism, and youth and racism, which were some of the challenges to be considered at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615). All States needed to ratify the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2106 A (XX) [YUN 1965, p. 440] (see p. 593), and participate regularly in its reporting procedures. Mechanisms such as laws, policies, and national and independent institutions were needed. Attention should be given to education and the promotion of diversity and respect for each other. The report described country missions made by the High Commissioner to China, Colombia, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), Mexico and Venezuela.

In a May report [E/2001/64], the High Commissioner focused on the rights of some vulnerable groups, in the light of the Third United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries (see p. 770), the special session of the General Assembly on HIV/AIDS (see p. 1125) and the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance. She described recent action to advance the rights of indigenous peoples, persons living with HIV/AIDS and persons with disabilities, and addressed the situation in the least developed countries, as a group of particularly vulnerable countries. She also presented an overview of the Commission's 2001 session.

On 26 July, the Economic and Social Council took note of the High Commissioner's May report (decision 2001/317).

In a September report to the General Assembly [A/56/36 & Corr.1], the High Commissioner stated that the right to equality and efforts to combat discrimination were themes that characterized OHCHR's work in 2001. She reviewed how OHCHR addressed human rights and conflict; the rights of indigenous peoples; the human rights approach to HIV/AIDS; human rights, development and poverty reduction; trafficking in human beings; corporate responsibility and human rights; human rights and bioethics; and enhancing the rights of the child. In tackling the issues placed before it, OHCHR focused on legal frameworks and concrete national policies, plans, programmes and institutions. OHCHR assisted in the promotion and protection of human rights, including in Afghanistan, the DRC, Haiti, Indonesia (East Timor), the Russian Federation (Chechnya) and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM). Commenting on the terrorist attacks in the United States (see p. 60), the High Commissioner called for an approach that eliminated discrimination and built a just and tolerant world, encouraged States to cooperate against terrorism and strengthened the collective commitment to justice and the rule of law. In a November addendum to her report [A/56/36/Add.1], the High Commissioner described the activities of the newly created Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa from September 2000 to July 2001 (see p. 612).

On 19 December, the Assembly took note of the High Commissioner's September report (decision 56/429) and the report of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.5] pertaining to it (decision 56/431).

Appointment. On 31 May, the General Assembly extended the High Commissioner's term of office for a one-year period, beginning on 12 September 2001 and ending on 11 September 2002 (decision 55/322), as proposed by the Secretary-General [A/55/110].

Commission action. On 27 April [dec. 2001/119], the Commission renewed its appeal to the Economic and Social Council and the General Assembly to allocate additional resources to OHCHR. The Council endorsed that action on 24 July (decision 2001/288).

Annual Appeal 2001

The overall target of the Annual Appeal 2001 amounted to $53.8 million, slightly higher than in 2000. Total pledges decreased from $41.8 million in 2000 to $34.7 million in 2001. Payments actually received in 2001 amounted to $31.4 million. During the year, OHCHR substantially increased its rate of implementation compared to previous years, with total expenditure from extrabudgetary funds as at 31 December 2001 amounting to $48.8 million. The high implementation rate was possible only because of the balance ($36.8 million) carried over from 2000 to 2001. The carry-over into 2002 amounted to $32.9 million ($26.9 million net).

Composition of staff

Report of High Commissioner. Pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 600], the High Commissioner submitted a report [E/CN.4/2001/100] on the composition of OHCHR staff reflecting grade, nationality and gender as at 1 November 2000. The report described measures taken by OHCHR regarding personnel matters.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/78], by a roll-call vote of 34 to 16, with 2 abstentions, the Commission considered it necessary to change the geographical distribution of staff to a more equitable distribution of posts, particularly by recruiting personnel from developing countries. It invited the High Commissioner to consider establishing a task force to recruit and train qualified personnel from developing countries for OHCHR. The Secretary-General was requested to ensure that attention was paid to recruiting personnel from developing countries to ensure an equitable geographical distribution, giving priority to high-level and Professional posts and the recruitment of women. The Commission asked the High Commissioner to report in 2002. Annexed to the Commission's decision were tables indicating the geographical distribution by region of OHCHR staff.

Strengthening action to promote human rights

Report of Secretary-General. As requested in General Assembly resolution 55/104 [YUN 2000, p. 600], the Secretary-General, in an August report with later addendum [A/56/292 & Add.1], summarized the proposals received from five Member States to strengthen UN action in human rights, through the promotion of international cooperation based on the principles of non-selectivity, impartiality and objectivity.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/153 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Strengthening United Nations action in the field of human rights through the promotion of international cooperation and the importance of non-selectivity, impartiality and objectivity

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind that among the purposes of the United Nations are those of developing friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples and taking other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace, as well as achieving international cooperation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural or humanitarian character and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion,

Desirous of achieving further progress in international cooperation in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Considering that such international cooperation should be based on the principles embodied in international law, especially the Charter of the United Nations, as well as the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and other relevant instruments,

Deeply convinced that United Nations action in this field should be based not only on a profound understanding of the broad range of problems existing in all societies but also on full respect for the political, economic and social realities of each of them, in strict compliance with the purposes and principles of the Charter and for the basic purpose of promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms through international cooperation,

Recalling its previous resolutions in this regard,

Reaffirming the importance of ensuring the universality, objectivity and non-selectivity of the consideration of human rights issues, as affirmed in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993,

Affirming the importance of the objectivity, independence and discretion of the special rapporteurs and representatives on thematic issues and on countries, as well as of the members of the working groups, in carrying out their mandates,

Underlining the obligation that Governments have to promote and protect human rights and to carry out the responsibilities that they have undertaken under international law, especially the Charter, as well as various international instruments in the field of human rights,

1. Reiterates that, by virtue of the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations, all peoples have the right freely to determine, without external interference, their political status and to pursue their economic, social and cultural development, and that every State has the duty to respect that right within the provisions of the Charter, including respect for territorial integrity;

2. Reaffirms that it is a purpose of the United Nations and the task of all Member States, in cooperation with the Organization, to promote and encourage respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms and to remain vigilant with regard to violations of human rights wherever they occur;

3. Calls upon all Member States to base their activities for the promotion and protection of human rights, including the development of further international cooperation in this field, on the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and other relevant international instruments, and to refrain from activities that are inconsistent with that international framework;

4. Considers that international cooperation in this field should make an effective and practical contribution to the urgent task of preventing mass and flagrant violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all and to the strengthening of international peace and security;

5. Reaffirms that the promotion, protection and full realization of all human rights and fundamental freedoms, as a legitimate concern of the world community, should be guided by the principles of non-selectivity, impartiality and objectivity and should not be used for political ends;

6. Requests all human rights bodies within the United Nations system, as well as the special rapporteurs and representatives, independent experts and working groups, to take duly into account the contents of the present resolution in carrying out their mandates;

7. Expresses its conviction that an unbiased and fair approach to human rights issues contributes to the promotion of international cooperation as well as to the effective promotion, protection and realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms;

8. Stresses, in this context, the continuing need for impartial and objective information on the political, economic and social situations and events of all countries;

9. Invites Member States to consider adopting, as appropriate, within the framework of their respective legal systems and in accordance with their obligations under international law, especially the Charter, and international human rights instruments, the measures that they may deem appropriate to achieve further progress in international cooperation in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;

10. Requests the Commission on Human Rights to take duly into account the present resolution and to consider further proposals for the strengthening of United Nations action in the field of human rights through the promotion of international cooperation and the importance of non-selectivity, impartiality and objectivity;

11. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General, and requests the Secretary-General to invite Member States to present practical proposals and ideas that would contribute to the strengthening of United Nations action in the field of human rights, through the promotion of international cooperation based on the principles of non-selectivity, impartiality and objectivity, and to submit a comprehensive report on this question to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

12. Decides to consider this matter at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

By decision 56/464 of 24 December, the Assembly decided that human rights questions would remain for consideration during its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session.

International cooperation and promotion of dialogue

Report of High Commissioner. Pursuant to a 1999 Commission request [YUN 1999, p. 572], the High Commissioner, in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/95], outlined ways of enhancing international human rights cooperation, including through States' fulfilment of their reporting obligations under various human rights instruments, international decades proclaimed by the United Nations, the establishment of the International Criminal Court (see p. 1213) to reinforce UN human rights machinery, and activities to strengthen regional cooperation to promote and protect human rights.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/67], the Commission called on Member States, specialized agencies and intergovernmental organizations to carry out a constructive dialogue and consultations to enhance human rights promotion and protection, and encouraged NGOs to participate. States and relevant UN human rights mechanisms and procedures were invited to pay attention to the importance of mutual cooperation, understanding and dialogue in ensuring the promotion and protection of all human rights.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/149 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Enhancement of international cooperation in the field of human rights

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming its commitment to promoting international cooperation, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, in particular Article 1, paragraph 3, as well as relevant provisions of the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, for enhanc- ing genuine cooperation among Member States in the field of human rights,

Recalling its adoption of the United Nations Millennium Declaration on 8 September 2000 and its resolution 55/109 of 4 December 2000, and taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/67 of 25 April 2001 on the enhancement of international cooperation in the field of human rights,

Recalling also the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held at Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001, and its role in the enhancement of international cooperation in the field of human rights,

Recognizing that the enhancement of international cooperation in the field of human rights is essential for the full achievement of the purposes of the United Nations, including the effective promotion and protection of all human rights,

Reaffirming that dialogue among religions, cultures and civilizations in the field of human rights could contribute greatly to the enhancement of international cooperation in this field, and recalling its decision to proclaim the year 2001 as the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations, as well as its resolution 55/23 of 13 November 2000 and its resolution 56/6 of 9 November 2001 entitled "Global Agenda for Dialogue among Civilizations",

Emphasizing the need for further progress in the promotion and encouragement of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms through, inter alia, international cooperation,

Underlining the fact that mutual understanding, dialogue, cooperation, transparency and confidence-building are important elements in all the activities for the promotion and protection of human rights,

Recalling the adoption of resolution 2000/22 of 18 August 2000, entitled "Promotion of dialogue on human rights issues", by the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights at its fifty-second session,

1. Reaffirms that it is one of the purposes of the United Nations and the responsibility of all Member States to promote, protect and encourage respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms through, inter alia, international cooperation;

2. Also reaffirms that dialogue among cultures and civilizations facilitates the promotion of a culture of tolerance and respect for diversity, and welcomes in this regard the holding of several conferences and meetings at the national, regional and international levels on dialogue among civilizations, as well as the meetings of the General Assembly under the agenda item entitled "United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations", held on 8 and 9 November 2001;

3. Considers that international cooperation in this field, in conformity with the purposes and principles set out in the Charter of the United Nations and international law, should make an effective and practical contribution to the urgent task of preventing violations of human rights and of fundamental freedoms for all;

4. Reaffirms that the promotion, protection and full realization of all human rights and fundamental freedoms should be guided by the principles of universality, non-selectivity, objectivity and transparency, in a manner consistent with the purposes and principles set out in the Charter;

5. Calls upon Member States, specialized agencies and intergovernmental organizations to continue to carry out a constructive dialogue and consultations for the enhancement of understanding and the promotion and protection of all human rights and fundamental freedoms, and encourages non-governmental organizations to contribute actively to this endeavour;

6. Invites States and relevant United Nations human rights mechanisms and procedures to continue to pay attention to the importance of mutual cooperation, understanding and dialogue in ensuring the promotion and protection of all human rights;

7. Decides to continue its consideration of this question at its fifty-seventh session.

On the same date, the Assembly, also on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/152 by recorded vote (100-54-15) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Respect for the purposes and principles contained in the Charter of the United Nations to achieve international cooperation in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms and in solving international problems of a humanitarian character

The General Assembly,

Recalling that, in accordance with Article 56 of the Charter of the United Nations, all Member States have pledged themselves to take joint and separate action in cooperation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55, including universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion,

Recalling also the Preamble to the Charter, in particular the determination to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person and in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small,

Reaffirming that the promotion and protection of all human rights and fundamental freedoms must be considered a priority objective of the United Nations in accordance with its purposes and principles, in particular the purpose of international cooperation, and that, within the framework of these purposes and principles, the promotion and protection of all human rights are a legitimate concern of the international community,

Considering the major changes taking place on the international scene and the aspirations of all peoples to an international order based on the principles enshrined in the Charter, including promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all and respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, peace, democracy, justice, equality, the rule of law, pluralism, development, better standards of living and solidarity,

Recognizing that the international community should devise ways and means to remove current obstacles and meet the challenges to the full realization of all human rights and to prevent the continuation of human rights violations resulting therefrom throughout the world, as well as continue to pay attention to the importance of mutual cooperation, understanding and dialogue in ensuring the promotion and protection of all human rights,

Reaffirming that the enhancement of international cooperation in the field of human rights is essential for the full achievement of the purposes of the United Nations and that human rights and fundamental freedoms are the birthright of all human beings, the promotion and protection of such rights and freedoms being the first responsibility of Governments,

Reaffirming also that all human rights are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated and that the international community must treat human rights globally in a fair and equal manner, on the same footing and with the same emphasis,

Reaffirming further the various articles of the Charter setting out the respective powers and functions of the General Assembly, the Security Council and the Economic and Social Council, as the paramount framework for the achievement of the purposes of the United Nations,

Reaffirming the commitment of all States to fulfil their obligations under other important instruments of international law, in particular those of international human rights and humanitarian law,

Taking into account that, in accordance with Article 103 of the Charter, in the event of a conflict between the obligations of the Members of the United Nations under the Charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the Charter shall prevail,

1. Affirms the solemn commitment of all States to enhance international cooperation in the field of human rights and in the solution to international problems of a humanitarian character in full compliance with the Charter of the United Nations, inter alia, by the strict observance of all the purposes and principles set forth in Articles 1 and 2 thereof;

2. Stresses the vital role of the work of United Nations and regional arrangements, acting consistently with the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter, in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms, as well as in solving international problems of a humanitarian character, and affirms that all States, in these activities, must fully comply with the principles set forth in Article 2 of the Charter, in particular respecting the sovereign equality of all States and refraining from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any State, or acting in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations;

3. Reaffirms that the United Nations shall promote universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion;

4. Calls upon all States to cooperate fully, through constructive dialogue, in order to ensure the promotion and protection of all human rights for all and in promoting peaceful solutions to international problems of a humanitarian character and, in their actions towards that purpose, to comply strictly with the principles and norms of international law, inter alia, by fully respecting international human rights and humanitarian law;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to bring the present resolution to the attention of Member States, organs, bodies and other components of the United Nations system, and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, and to disseminate it on the widest possible basis;

6. Decides to consider this question at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/152:

Right to promote and protect human rights

Human rights defenders

Reports of Special Representative. A January report [E/CN.4/2001/94] of the Secretary-General's Special Representative on human rights defenders, Hina Jilani (Pakistan), summarized urgent appeals and communications sent to and received from Governments in 2000 regarding alleged human rights violations targeting human rights defenders. Seven urgent appeals were sent to four countries and four communications to three countries, of which five were transmitted jointly with other thematic mechanisms. The Special Representative expressed concern that a variety of repressive trends, measures and practices, including State apparatus, oppressive laws and other tools, persisted, threatening the freedom of action of human rights defenders, despite some advances in legal and normative frameworks for the protection of human rights defenders in many parts of the world. Areas requiring her special attention included the activities of armed groups, the rights to freedom of association and movement, repressive measures faced by defenders, and strategies to implement the 1998 Declaration on the Right and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 53/144 [YUN 1998, p. 608]. She would also focus on the compilation of relevant legislation or regulatory frameworks; remedial measures for defenders sentenced after unfair trials, including compensation; measures to enhance the protection of defenders; and states of emergency and the ensuing occurrence of impunity insofar as they affected the activities of human rights defenders.

In a September report [A/56/341], the Special Representative stated that from October 2000 to August 2001 she had transmitted 83 urgent appeals to Governments as well as nine allegation letters. Issues of special concern were impunity in cases of threats and attacks against human rights defenders, legal action against defenders, and intelligence activities and propaganda campaigns against them. As to the implementation of the 1998 Declaration, the Special Representative drew attention to the connection between militarism and the severity of human rights violations, and asserted that numerous laws existed that were incompatible with international standards and had become tools for giving legitimacy to State actions that violated human rights. She regretted the lack of progress in creating an enabling environment for the promotion of human rights and the protection of defenders and, as a major reason, pointed to the level of tension between the State and civil society.

In later reports, the Special Representative described her visits to Kyrgyzstan (30 July–4 August) [E/CN.4/2002/106/Add.1] and Colombia (23–31 October) [E/CN.4/2002/106/Add.2].

The Special Representative observed that Kyrgyzstan, like other countries in transition to democratic rule and a market economy, was undergoing a difficult period of political and economic change. She expressed distress that the freedom of human rights defenders had been curtailed by violations of their rights to life, personal security, liberty, privacy, integrity and reputation, and was concerned about mistrust between the Government and civil society, repression of the right to protest human rights violations, the Government's policy of restraint regarding the right to information, the lack of freedom of expression and of the press, and the lack of confidence in the independence of judicial or other authorities, which discouraged action to seek remedies in cases of human rights violations. On the positive side, the Government had taken initiatives on human rights education and progress had been made in establishing national human rights institutions. The Special Representative urged the Government to review legal restrictions on the freedoms of assembly, association and expression; guarantee the protection of human rights and establish mechanisms for that purpose; initiate a dialogue with civil society to build mutual trust; investigate violations committed against human rights defenders and bring those responsible to justice; respect citizens' rights to hold peaceful demonstrations and assemblies; strengthen governmental institutions and train persons involved in the administration of justice; and ensure observance of the 1998 Declaration.

The Special Representative visited Colombia to study and evaluate the situation of human rights defenders and the security conditions under which they pursued their activities in the context of the conflict in the country. She regretted the Government's lack of commitment to deal seriously with violence against human rights defenders, and observed limited consistency in the State's policy of defending human rights, particularly human rights defenders. The Special Representative noted that the main perpetrators of violations of the rights of human rights defenders were the paramilitary groups, and she also deplored the serious violations of international humanitarian law perpetrated by guerrillas against civilians and human rights defenders. She expressed concern at certain practices used by the police and the army against human rights defenders, in particular the keeping of intelligence files containing false information and telephone tapping at NGO offices. She recommended that the Government, among other measures, adopt a comprehensive policy on human rights and international human rights law, strengthen protection mechanisms for judges, prosecutors, investigators, victims, witnesses and threatened persons, combat paramilitarism and dismantle paramilitary groups, disseminate and ensure full observance of the 1998 Declaration, respond to enforced disappearances and adopt a strategy to prevent attacks against human rights defenders. Further recommendations were made regarding the most targeted and vulnerable groups—trade unionists, indigenous and Afro-Colombian communities, internally displaced persons, women, journalists and media representatives. The Special Representative urged the Government to cooperate fully with OHCHR in Colombia (see p. 710).

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/64], the Commission called on States to promote and give effect to the Declaration and to ensure the protection of human rights defenders. Governments were urged to cooperate with the Special Representative, and UN agencies and organizations were asked to assist her.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third

Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/163 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Declaration on the Right and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 53/144 of 9 December 1998, by which it adopted by consensus the Declaration on the Right and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms,

Reiterating the importance of the Declaration and its promotion and implementation,

Noting with deep concern that, in many countries, persons and organizations engaged in promoting and defending human rights and fundamental freedoms are facing threats, harassment and insecurity as a result of those activities,

Noting also with deep concern the considerable number of communications received by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders that, together with the reports submitted by some of the special procedure mechanisms, indicate the serious nature of the risks faced by human rights defenders,

Noting further with deep concern that, in a number of countries in all regions of the world, impunity for threats, attacks and acts of intimidation against human rights defenders persists and that this has a negative impact on the work and safety of human rights defenders,

Emphasizing the important role that individuals, non-governmental organizations and groups play in the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms, including in combating impunity,

Welcoming the cooperation between the Special Representative and other special procedures of the Commission on Human Rights,

Recalling that the primary responsibility for promoting and protecting human rights rests with the State, and noting with deep concern that the activities of non-State actors pose a major threat to the security of human rights defenders,

Emphasizing the need for strong and effective measures for the protection of human rights defenders,

1. Calls upon all States to promote and give full effect to the Declaration on the Right and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms;

2. Takes note with appreciation of the reports of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on human rights defenders;

3. Emphasizes the importance of combating impunity, and in this regard urges States to take appropriate measures to address the question of impunity for threats, attacks and acts of intimidation against human rights defenders;

4. Urges all Governments to cooperate with and assist the Special Representative in the performance of her tasks and to furnish upon request all information in the fulfilment of her mandate;

5. Requests all concerned United Nations agencies and organizations, within their mandates, to provide all possible assistance and support to the Special Representative in the implementation of her programme of activities;

6. Calls upon all States to take all necessary measures to ensure the protection of human rights defenders;

7. Decides to consider this question at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

Human rights and human responsibilities

Note by Special Rapporteur. A March note [E/CN.4/2001/96] by the Special Rapporteur appointed by the Subcommission to undertake a study on human rights and human responsibilities, Miguel Alfonso Martínez (Cuba), raised a number of operational and practical points, should the Commission and the Economic and Social Council authorize him to undertake the study.

Commission action. Recalling a 2000 Subcommission decision [YUN 2000, p. 605] regarding the appointment of a Subcommission member to undertake a study on human rights and human responsibilities, the Commission, on 25 April [dec. 2001/115], by a roll-call vote of 34 to 14, with 4 abstentions, recommended a decision for adoption by the Economic and Social Council.

The Council, on 24 July, authorized the Subcommission to appoint Mr. Martínez to undertake the study and to submit a preliminary report to the Commission in 2002 and a final report in 2003 (decision 2001/285).

Other aspects

Good governance

Commission action. On 25 April [dec. 2001/72], the Commission asked the High Commissioner to reiterate her invitation to States to provide examples of effective activities in strengthening good governance practices for promoting human rights at the national level, including activities in the context of development cooperation between States, and to extend it to UN and other relevant international bodies, for inclusion in a compilation of practices that could be consulted by interested States. It asked her to inform the Commission of the utility of the material provided in the responses.

Note by Secretariat. A note by the Secretariat [E/CN.4/2002/105 & Corr.1] reported that, as at 15 November, eight States, one specialized agency and two non-governmental entities had provided practical examples of activities that had been effective in strengthening good governance at the national level. Ten replies had been received in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 605].

The High Commissioner informed the Commission that, given the comprehensiveness of the material received so far, OHCHR had determined that a dedicated effort would be necessary to process and condense the responses into a manageable and user-friendly compilation and had requested extrabudgetary resources to do so.

Human rights instruments

General aspects

In 2001, six main UN human rights instruments were in force that required monitoring of their implementation by treaty bodies. The instruments and their treaty bodies were: the 1965 International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination [YUN 1965, p. 440, GA res. 2106 A (XX)] (Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination); the 1966 International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights [YUN 1966, p. 423, GA res. 2200 A (XXI)] (Human Rights Committee); the 1966 International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights [ibid., p. 419, GA res. 2200 A (XXI)] (Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights); the 1979 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women [YUN 1979, p. 895, GA res. 34/180] (Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women); the 1984 Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment [YUN 1984, p. 813, GA res. 39/46] (Committee against Torture); and the 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child [YUN 1989, p. 560, GA res. 44/25] (Committee on the Rights of the Child).

An April note by the Secretariat [HRI/GEN/1/Rev.5 & Add.1] contained a compilation of the general comments or general recommendations adopted by the treaty bodies of the UN human rights instruments in force.

Human rights treaty bodies

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/90 [YUN 2000, p. 606], the Secretary-General transmitted the report of the persons chairing the human rights treaty bodies on their thirteenth session (Geneva, 18-22 June) [A/57/56]. The chairpersons reviewed recent developments relating to the work of the treaty bodies, as well as cooperation of the treaty bodies with specialized agencies, UN departments, funds, programmes and mechanisms, and NGOs. They held an informal meeting with representatives of States, at which they exchanged views on topics relating to the treaty bodies, including some of the difficulties they encountered. On 21 June, a joint meeting was held between the chairpersons and the special rapporteurs and representatives, experts and chairpersons of working groups of the special procedures system of the Commission and of the OHCHR advisory services programme. At the meeting, suggestions were made to improve collaboration among the treaty bodies and special procedures.

In a report of 8 June [HRI/MC/2001/2], the Secretariat updated the chairpersons on the implementation of the recommendations adopted at their twelfth meeting [YUN 2000, p. 606], including the status of the three Plans of Action for the Geneva-based treaty bodies. The Plans of Action, which had been incorporated into a global project included in the consolidated annual appeals of the High Commissioner, would be continued through 2004. The chairpersons decided to hold, in 2002, a meeting among members of all the treaty bodies to develop a common approach to specific common issues, which should address the methods of work of the treaty bodies.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/76], the Commission, by a roll-call vote of 35 to 15, with 2 abstentions, recommended that the General Assembly encourage States parties to UN human rights instruments to establish quota distribution systems by geographical region for the election of treaty body members. The Commission's recommendation was endorsed by the Economic and Social Council on 24 July (decision 2001/275). The Commission also recommended adopting flexible procedures when establishing the quotas and presented criteria for doing so, which were incorporated into the Assembly's resolution on the subject (below).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.1], adopted resolution 56/146 by recorded vote (113-47-5) [agenda item 119 (a)].

Equitable geographical distribution in the membership of the human rights treaty bodies

The General Assembly,

Taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/76 of 25 April 2001 and Economic and Social Council decision 2001/275 of 24 July 2001,

Reaffirming the importance of the goal of universal ratification of the United Nations human rights instruments,

Welcoming the significant increase in the number of ratifications of United Nations human rights instru- ments, which has especially contributed to their universality,

Reiterating the importance of the effective functioning of treaty bodies established pursuant to United Nations human rights instruments for the full and effective implementation of those instruments,

Recalling that, with regard to the election of the members of the human rights treaty bodies, the Commission on Human Rights has recognized the importance of giving consideration in their membership to equitable geographical distribution, gender balance and representation of the principal legal systems, and of bearing in mind that the members shall be elected and shall serve in their personal capacity, and shall be of high moral character, acknowledged impartiality and recognized competence in the field of human rights,

Recalling also that the Commission on Human Rights has encouraged States parties to United Nations human rights treaties, individually and through meetings of States parties, to consider how to give better effect, inter alia, to the principle of equitable geographical distribution in the membership of treaty bodies,

Expressing concern at the clear regional imbalance in the current composition of the membership of the human rights treaty bodies, with the exception of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, which is applying a quota system in the distribution of its seats by regional groups,

Noting in particular that the status quo tends to be particularly detrimental to the election of experts from some regional groups,

Convinced that the goal of equitable geographical distribution in the membership of human rights treaty bodies is perfectly compatible and can be fully realized and achieved in harmony with the need to ensure gender balance and the representation of the principal legal systems in those bodies and the high moral character, acknowledged impartiality and recognized competence in the field of human rights of their members,

1. Encourages States parties to the United Nations human rights instruments to establish quota distribution systems by geographical region for the election of the members of the treaty bodies;

2. Calls upon the States parties to the United Nations human rights instruments to include, as an agenda item at their forthcoming meetings, the establishment of equitable geographical distribution in the membership of the human rights treaty bodies, based on the recommendations of the Commission on Human Rights and the Economic and Social Council and the provisions of the present resolution;

3. Recommends, when establishing the quota for each geographical region in each treaty body, the introduction of flexible procedures that encompass the following criteria:

(a) Each of the five regional groups established by the General Assembly must be assigned a quota of the membership of each treaty body in equivalent proportion to the number of States parties to the instrument that it represents;

(b) There must be provision for periodic revisions that reflect the relative changes in the geographical distribution of States parties;

(c) Automatic periodic revisions should be envisaged in order to avoid amending the text of the instrument when the quotas are revised;

4. Stresses that the process needed to achieve the goal of equitable geographical distribution in the membership of human rights treaty bodies can contribute to raising awareness of the importance of gender balance, the representation of the principal legal systems and the principle that the members of the treaty bodies shall be elected and shall serve in their personal capacity, and shall be of high moral character, acknowledged impartiality and recognized competence in the field of human rights.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/146:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chad, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Georgia, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkmenistan, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Albania, Andorra, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Panama, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, San Marino, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Abstaining: Argentina, Brazil, Gambia, Slovakia, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

Reservations to human rights treaties

Commission action. On 25 April [dec. 2001/113], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 resolution of the Subcommission [YUN 2000, p. 609] appointing Françoise Hampson (United Kingdom) as Special Rapporteur to prepare a comprehensive study on reservations to human rights treaties, and of its own decision in 2000 [ibid.] requesting the Subcommission to clarify how the study would complement the work already under way by the International Law Commission (ILC), asked the Subcommission to reconsider its request in the light of the work of ILC.

Subcommission action. On 16 August [res. 2001/17], the Subcommission entrusted Ms. Hampson with preparing an expanded working paper on reservations to human rights treaties based on her 1999 working paper [YUN 1999, p. 574] and discussions by the Subcommission. The Subcommission stated that the study would not duplicate the work of ILC, which dealt with the legal regime applicable to reservations and interpretative declarations in general, as the proposed study involved the examination of the actual reservations and interpretative declarations made to human rights treaties in the light of the legal regime applicable to reservations and interpretative declarations, as set out in the 1999 working paper. It called for submission of the extended working paper in 2002.

States not parties to 1966 Covenants

On 25 April [dec. 2001/114], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 Subcommission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 609] requesting the High Commissioner to convene a seminar of States not parties to the 1966 International Covenants on Human Rights (below), asked the Subcommission to reconsider its request in the light of the developments in its work.

Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and Optional Protocols

Accessions and ratifications

As at 31 December 2001, the numbers of parties to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the Optional Protocol thereto, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2200 A (XXI) [YUN 1966, p. 423], stood at 147 and 101, respectively. While no new parties ratified the Covenant in 2001, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (FRY) succeeded to it, replacing the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. FRY ratified the Optional Protocol and Azerbaijan and Mali acceded to it.

The Second Optional Protocol, aiming at the abolition of the death penalty, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 44/128 [YUN 1989, p. 484], was ratified by Bosnia and Herzegovina and acceded to by FRY, bringing the total number of States parties to 46 at year's end.

The Secretary-General reported on the status of the Covenant and its Optional Protocols as at 1 July [A/56/178] and 1 November [E/CN.4/2002/101].

Implementation

Monitoring body. The Human Rights Committee, established under article 28 of the Covenant, held three sessions in 2001: its seventy-first from 19 March to 6 April in New York, and its seventy-second from 9 to 27 July [A/56/40, vol. 1] and its seventy-third from 15 October to 2 November [A/57/40, vol. 1], both in Geneva. A working group met before each session to make recommendations regarding communications received under the Optional Protocol and to prepare lists of issues concerning the reports scheduled for the Committee's consideration. On 26 March, the Committee held a commemorative meeting to mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the entry into force of the Covenant.

In 2001, the Committee considered reports from 15 States—Afghanistan, Azerbaijan, Croatia, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Monaco, Netherlands (Netherlands, Netherlands Antilles, Aruba), Switzerland, Syrian Arab Republic, Ukraine, United Kingdom (and Overseas Territories), Uzbekistan, Venezuela—under article 40 of the Covenant. It adopted views on communications from individuals claiming that their rights under the Covenant had been violated, and decided that other such communications were inadmissible. Those views and decisions were annexed to the Committee's reports [A/56/40, vol. II; A/57/40, vol. II].

On 24 July, the Committee adopted General Comment No. 29 on article 4 concerning derogations from the provisions of the Covenant during a state of emergency.

The Government of the Sudan notified other States parties, through the intermediary of the Secretary-General, that a presidential decree adopted in January 2001 pursuant to its Constitution had extended a state of emergency in the Sudan to 31 December 2001. Similarly, Argentina notified other States parties that a state of siege had been declared from 19 to 21 December on all its territory, and from 21 to 31 December in the provinces of Buenos Aires, Entre Rios and San Juan.

The Committee, on 24 October, recommended that the General Assembly endorse the Committee's request to hold an additional week of meetings following its seventy-fifth (July 2002) session in Geneva.

Annexed to the Committee's report [A/56/40 & Add.1] were excerpts from its contribution to the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance [A/CONF.189/PC.2/14] (see p. 615).

Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights

Accessions and ratifications

As at 31 December 2001, the number of States parties to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2200 A (XXI) [YUN 1966, p. 419], rose to 145, with ratification during the year by China, accession by Eritrea and succession by FRY, which replaced the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

On 20 April [res. 2001/30], the Commission called on States to consider signing and ratifying, and the States parties to implement, the Covenant. States parties were called on to withdraw reservations and to ensure that the Covenant was taken into account in their national and international policy-making processes.

The Secretary-General reported on the status of the Covenant and its Optional Protocols as at 1 July [A/56/178] and 1 November [E/CN.4/2002/101].

Draft optional protocol

Report of High Commissioner. The Commission had before it a report of the High Commissioner [E/CN.4/2001/62 & Add.1] presenting the views of five States, three specialized agencies and six NGOs on the draft optional protocol that would allow the consideration of communications in relation to the Covenant. The report contained comments received from one State and three NGOs on options regarding the optional protocol proposed by the High Commissioner in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 610].

A March addendum to the High Commissioner's report [E/CN.4/2001/62/Add.2] contained the conclusions, recommendations and options regarding progress towards the adoption of the protocol, made by the workshop on the justiciability of economic, social and cultural rights (Geneva, 5-6 February). The workshop, which was organized in cooperation with the International Commission of Jurists and supported by Finland, expressed support for the draft being designed to respond to violations of the rights of individuals and groups, rather than to a lesser standard of unsatisfactory application. Decisions of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights under the protocol should include a legal finding, as well as recommendations for remedial action and changes in law, policy and practice. Most participants agreed that the most suitable next step was for the Commission on Human Rights to establish an open-ended working group to work towards the adoption of the optional protocol.

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/30], the Commission decided to appoint an independent expert to examine the question of a draft optional protocol and to report in 2002 with a view to its consideration of possible further action, including the establishment of an open-ended working group. The Secretary-General was asked to report in 2002.

On 4 June, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision regarding the expert's appointment and submission of a report (decision 2001/220).

Pursuant to the Commission's resolution, Hatem Kotrane (Tunisia) was appointed independent expert in June.

Activities of independent expert. The independent expert held a series of meetings (20-24 August) with members and officials of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Human Rights Committee, the Committee on the Rights of the Child and the International Labour Organization. He held a second series of consultations (27 November-7 December) to hear first-hand the views of States on the draft optional protocol. He also attended a round table on the optional protocol (Geneva, 30 November) [E/CN.4/2002/161], hosted by the International Commission of Jurists, which was held for the exchange of views between States, organizations and experts in the area of economic, social and cultural rights.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/6], the Subcommission urged the Commission to give high priority to the consideration of a draft optional protocol and reiterated its suggestion that the Commission establish an open-ended working group for further study.

Implementation

Monitoring body. The Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights held its twenty-fifth (23 April-11 May), twenty-sixth (extraordinary) (13-31 August) and twenty-seventh (12-30 November) sessions, all in Geneva [E/2002/22]. The Committee's extraordinary session was used entirely for the consideration of States parties' reports in order to reduce the backlog. The Committee's five-member working group met in Geneva prior to each session to identify issues to be discussed with reporting States.

On 26 July, the Economic and Social Council took note of the Committee's report on its twenty-second, twenty-third and twenty-fourth sessions, held in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 610] (decision 2001/317).

During its 2001 sessions, the Committee examined reports prepared under articles 16 and 17 of the Covenant submitted by Algeria, Bolivia, China (Hong Kong, Special Administrative Region), Colombia, Croatia, France, Germany, Honduras, Israel, Jamaica, Japan, Nepal, Panama, the Republic of Korea, Senegal, Sweden, the Syrian Arab Republic, Togo, Ukraine and Venezuela.

The Committee adopted, on 4 May, a statement on the eradication of poverty.

On 7 May, the Committee held an international consultation, organized in cooperation with the Haut conseil de la coopération internationale, on economic, social and cultural rights in relation to the development activities of international institutions. Panel discussions were held on international institutions and the Covenant and on possible advances in economic, social and cultural rights. One of the issues raised at the consultation was the desirability of assisting States that might wish to integrate human rights into their poverty reduction strategies. OHCHR agreed to undertake a project to prepare guidelines setting out how States could do so.

By a letter of 11 May [E/2001/77], the Committee Chairperson drew the Council's attention to a letter from the Committee to Israel expressing grave concern over accounts of violations of the economic, social and cultural rights of Palestinians. The Chairperson stated that the Committee was limited in enforcement means required to uphold the Covenant in such a situation; the international measures likely to contribute to the progressive implementation of the Covenant therefore fell within the purview of other UN bodies; and the Committee would be remiss if it did not underscore the need for protection measures for the population of the occupied territories.

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/30], the Commission encouraged the Committee to continue efforts to promote, protect and fully realize the rights enshrined in the Covenant. It also encouraged the High Commissioner to continue to ensure better support for the Committee, to strengthen the research and analytical capacities of her Office in economic, social and cultural rights and to share her expertise through the holding of expert meetings.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.1], adopted resolution 56/144 without vote [agenda item 119 (a)].

International Covenants on Human Rights

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 54/157 of 17 December 1999 and 55/90 of 4 December 2000 and Commission on Human Rights resolution 2000/67 of 26 April 2000,

Mindful that the International Covenants on Human Rights constitute the first all-embracing and legally binding international treaties in the field of human rights and, together with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, form the core of the International Bill of Human Rights,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the status of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights,

Recalling the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and reaffirming that all human rights and fundamental freedoms are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated and that the promotion and protection of one category of rights should never exempt or excuse States from the promotion and protection of the other rights,

Recognizing the important role of the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in examining the progress made by States parties in fulfilling the obligations undertaken in the International Covenants on Human Rights and the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and in providing recommendations to States parties on their implementation,

Considering that the effective functioning of the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights is indispensable for the full and effective implementation of the International Covenants on Human Rights,

Recognizing the importance of regional human rights instruments and monitoring mechanisms in complementing the universal system of promotion and protection of human rights,

1. Reaffirms the importance of the International Covenants on Human Rights as major components of international efforts to promote universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms;

2. Welcomes the initiative of the Secretary-General at the Millennium Assembly of the United Nations to invite heads of State and Government to sign, ratify or accede to the International Covenants on Human Rights, and expresses its appreciation to those States that have done so;

3. Strongly appeals to all States that have not yet done so to become parties to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, as well as to accede to the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and to make the declaration provided for in article 41 of the Covenant;

4. Invites the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to intensify systematic efforts to encourage States to become parties to the International Covenants on Human Rights and, through the programme of advisory services in the field of human rights, to assist such States, at their request, in ratifying or acceding to the Covenants and to the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights with a view to achieving universal adherence;

5. Emphasizes the importance of the strictest compliance by States parties with their obligations under the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and, where applicable, the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights;

6. Stresses the importance of avoiding the erosion of human rights by derogation, and underlines the necessity of strict observance of the agreed conditions and procedures for derogation under article 4 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, bearing in mind the need for States parties to provide the fullest possible information during states of emergency so that the justification for the appropriateness of measures taken in those circumstances can be assessed, and in this regard takes note of General Comment No. 29 adopted by the Human Rights Committee;

7. Encourages States parties to consider limiting the extent of any reservations that they lodge to the International Covenants on Human Rights, to formulate any reservations as precisely and narrowly as possible and to ensure that no reservation is incompatible with the object and purpose of the relevant treaty;

8. Also encourages States parties to review regularly any reservations made in respect of the provisions of the International Covenants on Human Rights and the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights with a view to withdrawing them;

9. Takes note with appreciation of the annual reports of the Human Rights Committee submitted to the General Assembly at its fifty-fifth and fifty-sixth sessions, and takes note of General Comments Nos. 27, 28 and 29 adopted by the Committee;

10. Welcomes the reports of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights on its twentieth and twenty-first sessions and on its twenty-second, twenty-third and twenty-fourth sessions, and takes note of General Comments Nos. 11, 12, 13 and 14 adopted by the Committee;

11. Urges States parties to fulfil in good time such reporting obligations under the International Covenants on Human Rights as may be requested and to make use in their reports of gender-disaggregated data, and stresses the importance of taking fully into account a gender perspective in the implementation of the Covenants at the national level, including in the national reports of States parties and in the work of the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;

12. Calls upon States parties that have not yet submitted core documents to the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to do so, and invites all States parties regularly to review and update their core documents;

13. Urges States parties to take duly into account, in implementing the provisions of the International Covenants on Human Rights, the recommendations and observations made during the consideration of their reports by the Human Rights Committee and by the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, as well as the views adopted by the Human Rights Committee under the first Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights;

14. Invites States parties to give particular attention to the dissemination at the national level of their reports submitted to the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the summary records relating to the examination of those reports by the Committees and the recommendations and observations made by the Committees after the examination of those reports;

15. Urges all States to publish the texts of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights in as many local languages as possible and to distribute them and make them known as widely as possible in their territories;

16. Urges each State party to translate, publish and make widely available in its territory by appropriate means the full text of the concluding observations on its reports to the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;

17. Reiterates that States parties should take into account, in their nomination of members to the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, that the Committees shall be composed of persons of high moral character and recognized competence in the field of human rights, consideration being given to the usefulness of the participation of some persons having legal experience, and that members serve in their personal capacity, and also reiterates that, in the elections of the Committees, consideration shall be given to equitable geographical distribution of membership and to the representation of the different forms of civilization and of the principal legal systems;

18. Invites the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, when considering the reports of States parties, to continue to identify specific needs that might be addressed by United Nations departments, funds and programmes and the specialized agencies, including through the advisory services and technical assistance programme of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights;

19. Stresses the need for improved coordination among relevant United Nations mechanisms and bodies in supporting States parties, upon their request, in implementing the International Covenants on Human Rights and the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and encourages continued efforts in this direction;

20. Takes note of the adoption by the Human Rights Committee of its revised rules of procedure, and welcomes the efforts of the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights regularly to review their working methods in order to increase their efficiency and effectiveness;

21. Welcomes the meeting between the Human Rights Committee and States parties, held on 30 October 2000, to exchange ideas on how to render the working methods of the Committee more efficient, expresses appreciation for the decision of the Committee to organize similar consultations in 2002, and encourages all States parties to continue to contribute to the dialogue with practical and concrete proposals and ideas on ways to improve the effective functioning of the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;

22. Also welcomes the continuing efforts of the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights to strive for uniform standards in the implementation of the provisions of the International Covenants on Human Rights, and appeals to other bodies dealing with similar human rights questions to respect those uniform standards, as expressed in the general comments of the Committees;

23. Stresses the need for further efforts towards developing indicators and benchmarks to measure progress in the national implementation by States parties of the rights protected by the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;

24. Welcomes Economic and Social Council decision 2001/220 of 4 June 2001, in which the Council authorized the appointment by the Commission on Human Rights of an independent expert to examine the question of a draft optional protocol to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, and invites the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights to consider contributing to the work of the independent expert;

25. Encourages the Secretary-General to continue to assist States parties to the International Covenants on Human Rights in the preparation of their reports, including by convening seminars or workshops at the national level for the training of government officials engaged in the preparation of such reports and by exploring other possibilities available under the programme of advisory services in the field of human rights;

26. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights effectively assists the Human Rights Committee and the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in the implementation of their respective mandates by providing, inter alia, adequate Secretariat staff resources and conference and other relevant support services;

27. Decides to endorse the request by the Human Rights Committee to hold an additional week of meetings at Geneva in 2002 in order to reduce further the existing backlog;

28. Welcomes the initiative of the Secretary-General, taking into account the suggestions of the Human Rights Committee, to take determined steps, in particular through the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat, to give more publicity to the work of that Committee and, similarly, to the work of the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights;

29. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session, under the item entitled "Human rights questions", a report on the status of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the Optional Protocols to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, including all reservations and declarations.

Convention against racial discrimination

Accessions and ratifications

As at 31 December 2001, there were 161 parties to the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2106 A (XX) [YUN 1965, p. 440]. During the year, Belize, Benin, Eritrea and Kenya became parties, and FRY succeeded to the Convention, replacing the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

On 18 April [res. 2001/5], the Commission appealed to States that had not done so to consider ratifying or acceding to the Convention and called on States that had done so to implement it. States parties were urged to consider making the declaration provided for in article 14 of the Convention (below) and to adopt measures aimed at eliminating all forms of discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance.

Implementation

Monitoring body. The Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD), established under article 8 of the Convention, held its fifty-eighth and fifty-ninth sessions, both in Geneva, from 6 to 23 March and from 30 July to 17 August, respectively [A/56/18].

The Committee considered reports, comments and information submitted by 23 States parties—Algeria, Argentina, Bangladesh, China, Cyprus, Egypt, Gambia, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Portugal, Sierra Leone, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Ukraine, United States, Viet Nam—on measures they had taken to implement the Convention and summarized its members' views on each country report and the statements made by the States parties concerned.

Under article 14 of the Convention, CERD considered communications from individuals or groups of individuals claiming violation of their rights enumerated in the Convention by a State party recognizing the Committee's competence to receive and consider such communications. Thirty-four States parties had declared such recognition (Algeria, Australia, Belgium, Bulgaria, Chile, Costa Rica, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Ecuador, Finland, France, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Malta, Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Russian Federation, Senegal, Slovakia, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, FYROM, Ukraine, Uruguay, FRY).

In accordance with article 15, the Committee was empowered to consider copies of petitions, reports and other information relating to Trust and Non-Self-Governing Territories. CERD noted, as it had in the past, that it was difficult to fulfil its functions under the article as the documents did not include copies of petitions and contained scant information directly related to the Convention's principles and objectives. The Committee requested the submission of the appropriate information.

In its decisions, CERD considered the situation in Liberia to be extremely grave with respect to implementation of the Convention and urged the country to fulfil its obligations under it; reaffirmed the importance of ending the foreign occupation of Cyprus (see p. 390); and requested the High Commissioner to provide funding for certain meetings.

The Committee finalized its written contribution [A/CONF.189/PC.2/13] to the preparatory process of the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615) and the Third Decade to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination (see p. 614).

As at 31 December, 32 States parties had accepted an amendment to the Convention regarding the financing of CERD [YUN 1992, p. 714]. The amendment was to enter into force when accepted by a two-thirds majority of States parties.

Convention against torture

Accessions and ratifications

As at 31 December 2001, 127 States were parties to the 1984 Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 39/46 [YUN 1984, p. 813]. Lesotho, Nigeria, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines and Sierra Leone became parties to the Convention in 2001, and FRY succeeded to it, replacing the former Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. Forty-five parties had made the required declarations under articles 21 and 22 (under which a party recognized the competence of the Committee against Torture to receive and consider communications from a party claiming that another was not fulfilling its obligations under the Convention, and to receive communications from or on behalf of individuals who claimed to be victims of a violation of the Convention by a State party) and three had made the declaration only under article 21 and one under article 22. Amendments to articles 17 and 18, adopted in 1992 [YUN 1992, p. 735], had been accepted by 23 States parties as at year's end.

On 25 April [res. 2001/62], the Commission urged States to become parties to the Convention and invited all ratifying or acceding States that had not done so to make the declaration provided for in articles 21 and 22 and to consider withdrawing their reservations to article 20. It asked the Secretary-General to continue to report annually on the status of the Convention.

The Secretary-General reported on the status of the Convention as at 11 June [A/56/603] and 13 December [E/CN.4/2002/65].

The Assembly, by resolution 56/143, urged States that had not become parties to do so. States parties were urged to comply with their obligations under the Convention, and those becoming parties and those that were parties but had not done so were invited to make the declarations provided for in articles 21 and 22 and to consider withdrawing reservations to article 20.

Draft optional protocol

Working group activities. The open-ended working group on a draft optional protocol to the Convention intended to establish a system of regular visits to places of detention, at its ninth session (Geneva, 12-23 February) [E/CN.4/2001/67], held a general debate on an alternative text presented by Mexico with the support of the group of Latin American countries and on the role of national and international mechanisms in the framework of the optional protocol, and the relationship between them. It discussed the scope of prevention activities to be conducted by national and international mechanisms. Annexed to the report were the draft alternative text and proposed new and revised articles submitted by Sweden on behalf of the European Union (EU).

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/44], the Commission asked the working group on the draft optional protocol to the Convention to meet prior to the Commission's 2002 session to complete the final and substantive text. The Secretary-General was asked to transmit the working group's report to Governments, specialized agencies, chairpersons of human rights treaty bodies, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs and to invite them to submit their comments to the group. He was also asked to invite them, as well as the Chairperson of the Committee against Torture and the Special Rapporteur on the question of torture, to participate in working group activities.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council authorized the group to meet for two weeks and encouraged the group's Chairperson-Rapporteur to facilitate the completion of a consolidated text (decision 2001/265).

Implementation

Monitoring body. The Committee against Torture, established as a monitoring body under the Convention, held its twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh sessions in Geneva from 30 April to 18 May [A/56/44] and from 12 to 23 November [A/57/44], respectively. Under article 19, it considered reports submitted by Benin, Bolivia, Brazil, Costa Rica, the Czech Republic, Georgia, Greece, Indonesia, Israel, Kazakhstan, Slovakia, Ukraine and Zambia.

The Committee held closed meetings in May and in November, during which, in accordance with article 20, it studied confidential information that contained indications that torture was systematically practised in a State party to the Convention. Under article 22, the Committee considered communications submitted by individuals who claimed that their rights, as enumerated in the Convention, had been violated by a State party and that they had exhausted all available domestic remedies.

The Committee decided to request an opinion from the United Nations Legal Counsel on the question of the applicability of the Convention in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

The Committee's contribution to the preparatory process for the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615) was annexed to its report [A/56/44], as was a joint declaration on the UN International Day in Support of Victims of Torture (26 June) by the Committee, the Board of Trustees of the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture, the Special Rapporteur on the question of torture (see p. 644) and the High Commissioner.

The eighth meeting of States parties (Geneva, 28 November) [CAT/SP/24] elected five Committee members to replace those whose terms were to expire on 31 December 2001.

Convention on elimination of discrimination against women and optional protocol

On 24 December, the General Assembly, in resolution 56/229, expressing disappointment that universal ratification of the 1979 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women was not achieved by 2000, urged States that had not ratified or acceded to it to do so. It urged Governments, UN system agencies and organizations and NGOs to disseminate the Convention and the Optional Protocol.

(For details on the status of the Convention and on the Optional Protocol, see p. 1074.)

Convention on the Rights of the Child

Accessions and ratifications

As at 31 December 2001, there continued to be 191 States parties to the 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 44/25 [YUN 1989, p. 560]. The Optional Protocols to the Convention on involvement of children in armed conflict and on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 54/263 [YUN 2000, p. 615], were signed by 93 and 89 States parties to the Convention, respectively, and ratified or acceded to by 13 and 16 States parties, respectively.

The Secretary-General reported on the status of the Convention as at 20 November [E/CN.4/2002/84].

An amendment to the Convention to expand the membership of the Committee on the Rights of the Child (CRC) from 10 to 18, approved by the Assembly in resolution 50/155 [YUN 1995, p. 706], had been accepted by 113 States parties as at 31 December 2001. The amendment required acceptance by a two-thirds majority to enter into force.

On 25 April [res. 2001/75], the Commission urged States that had not done so to sign and ratify or accede to the Convention and to consider signing and ratifying the Optional Protocols. It called on States parties to implement the Convention and to accept the amendment on expanding CRC membership.

Implementation

Monitoring body. In 2001, CRC held its twenty-sixth (8-26 January) [CRC/C/103], twenty-seventh (21 May-8 June) [CRC/C/108] and twenty-eighth (24 September-12 October) [CRC/C/111] sessions, all in Geneva. Each session was preceded by a meeting of a working group, which facilitated the Committee's work by reviewing State party reports and identifying the main questions that would need to be discussed with the representatives of the reporting States. The meetings also provided an opportunity to consider technical assistance and international cooperation.

Under article 44 of the Convention, CRC considered initial or periodic reports from the following States parties: Bhutan, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Côte d'Ivoire, DRC, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Egypt, Ethiopia, Gambia, Guatemala, Kenya, Latvia, Lesotho, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Mauritania, Monaco, Oman, Palau, Paraguay, Portugal, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, United Republic of Tanzania, Uzbekistan.

On 25 January, the Committee adopted general comment no. 1 (aims of education) on article 29, paragraph 1, of the Convention; the comment dealt with the significance and functions of the article, human rights education, and implementation, monitoring and review of the article.

In September, the Committee devoted its day of general discussion to violence against children within the family and at school.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/75], the Commission welcomed the Committee's recommendation [CRC/C/111] that the Secretary-General conduct a study on violence against children, including the different types of violent treatment of which children were victims, to identify their causes, the extent of such violence and its impact on children, and to make recommendations, including remedies and preventive and rehabilitative measures.

Note by Secretary-General. An October note by the Secretary-General [A/56/488] transmitted a letter of the CRC Chairperson containing the recommendation for an in-depth study on violence against children.

Convention on migrant workers

Accessions and ratifications

As at 31 December 2001, the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 45/158 [YUN 1990, p. 594], had been ratified or acceded to by Azerbaijan, Belize, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Cape Verde, Colombia, Egypt, Ghana, Guinea, Mexico, Morocco, the Philippines, Senegal, Seychelles, Sri Lanka, Uganda and Uruguay, and signed by Bangladesh, Burkina Faso, Chile, the Comoros, Guatemala, Guinea-Bissau, Paraguay, Sao Tome and Principe, Sierra Leone, Tajikistan, Togo and Turkey. The Convention was to enter into force three months following the date of deposit of the twentieth instrument of ratification or accession.

The Secretary-General reported on the status of the Convention as at 1 June [A/56/179] and 6 December [E/CN.4/2002/89].

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/53], the Commission, welcoming the activities of the global campaign for the Convention's entry into force, called on all Member States to sign and ratify or accede to the Convention as a matter of priority. It asked the Secretary-General to assist in promoting the Convention through the World Public Information Campaign for Human Rights, launched by the General Assembly in resolution 43/128 [YUN 1988, p. 539] (see p. 604), and the programme of advisory services in human rights. He was requested to report in 2002 on the Convention's status and on Secretariat efforts to promote it, as well as on the protection of migrant workers' rights.

(For further information on migrant workers, see p. 618.)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.1], adopted resolution 56/145 without vote [agenda item 119 (a)].

International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming once more the permanent validity of the principles and norms set forth in the basic instruments regarding the international protection of human rights, in particular the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and the Convention on the Rights of the Child,

Bearing in mind the principles and norms established within the framework of the International Labour Organization and the importance of the work done in connection with migrant workers and members of their families in other specialized agencies and in various organs of the United Nations,

Reiterating that, despite the existence of an already established body of principles and norms, there is a need to make further efforts to improve the situation and to guarantee respect for the human rights and dignity of all migrant workers and members of their families,

Aware of the situation of migrant workers and members of their families and the marked increase in migratory movements that has occurred, especially in certain parts of the world,

Considering that, in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, all States are urged to guarantee the protection of the human rights of all migrant workers and members of their families,

Underlining the importance of the creation and promotion of conditions to foster greater harmony and tolerance between migrant workers and the rest of the society of the State in which they reside, with the aim of eliminating the growing manifestations of racism and xenophobia perpetrated in segments of many societies by individuals or groups against migrant workers,

Recalling its resolution 45/158 of 18 December 1990, by which it adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families,

Bearing in mind that, in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, States are invited to consider the possibility of signing and ratifying the Convention at the earliest possible time,

1. Expresses its deep concern at the growing manifestations of racism, xenophobia and other forms of discrimination and inhuman or degrading treatment directed against migrant workers in various parts of the world;

2. Welcomes the signature or ratification of or accession to the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families by some Member States;

3. Calls upon all Member States to consider signing and ratifying or acceding to the Convention as a matter of priority, expresses the hope that it will enter into force at an early date, and notes that, pursuant to article 87 of the Convention, only four more ratifications or accessions are needed for it to enter into force;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to provide all the facilities and assistance necessary for the promotion of the Convention through the World Public Information Campaign on Human Rights and the programme of advisory services in the field of human rights;

5. Welcomes the global campaign for the entry into force of the Convention, and invites the organizations and agencies of the United Nations system and inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations to intensify further their efforts with a view to disseminating information on and promoting understanding of the importance of the Convention;

6. Also welcomes the work of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the human rights of migrants in relation to the Convention, and encourages her to continue in this endeavour;

7. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General, and requests him to submit an updated report on the status of the Convention to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

8. Decides to consider the report of the Secretary-General at its fifty-seventh session under the sub-item entitled "Implementation of human rights instruments".

Convention on genocide

As at 31 December 2001, 133 States were parties to the 1948 Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 260 A (III) [YUN 1948-49, p. 959]. In 2001, Paraguay ratified the Convention.

The Secretary-General reported on the status of the Convention as at 1 June [A/56/177]. On 19 December, the Assembly took note of the report (decision 56/429).

On 25 April [res. 2001/66], the Commission, reaffirming the significance of the Convention as an effective international instrument for the punishment of the crime of genocide, invited States that had not ratified or acceded to the Convention to do so and to enact legislation giving effect to its provisions.

Other activities

Follow-up to 1993 World Conference

Report of High Commissioner. The Commission on Human Rights considered a February report of the High Commissioner [E/CN.4/2001/16] on follow-up to the World Conference on Human Rights [YUN 1993, p. 908]. In view of the forthcoming World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615), the report focused on racism and racial discrimination and State responsibility to combat them. Annexed to the report was a description of country missions made by the High Commissioner to China, Colombia, the DRC, Mexico and Venezuela.

Annual meeting. The High Commissioner transmitted the report of the meeting of special rapporteurs/representatives, experts and chairpersons of working groups of the special procedures and advisory services programme of the Commission (Geneva, 18-22 June) [E/CN.4/2002/14], as called for in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, adopted at the 1993 World Conference. The meeting adopted conclusions and recommendations regarding OHCHR resources and staff support; enhancing the effectiveness of the special procedures system; non-cooperation and non-compliance on the part of Governments; OHCHR support services; participation in the work of other UN bodies, including the Security Council; human rights and corporate responsibility; monitoring activities and technical cooperation; the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615); and cooperation with the Bureau of the Commission, NGOs and human rights treaty bodies.

On 19 December, the General Assembly took note of the Third Committee's report [A/56/583/Add.4] on implementation of and follow-up to the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action (decision 56/430).

Advisory services and technical cooperation

In 2001 [E/CN.4/2002/116], the OHCHR technical cooperation programme supported countries in promoting and protecting all human rights, at their request, by incorporating international human rights standards in national laws, policies and practices, and by building sustainable national capacities to implement the standards and ensure respect for human rights. Among the key result areas defined by OHCHR for 1999-2001 were national capacity-building to develop human rights strategies and structures; human rights education; the implementation of economic, social and cultural rights and the right to development; racism; the rights of indigenous people; trafficking of women and children, gender issues and women's human rights; the rights of the child; humanitarian law and human rights; and developing a policy for future human rights field activities and consolidating existing activities. Assistance was provided through expertise, advisory services, training courses, workshops and seminars, fellowships, grants and the provision of information and documentation.

During the year, 41 projects were completed, 37 were under way or approved, and new requests were received from 17 countries. National technical cooperation field presences were operational in Chad, Ecuador, Madagascar, Mexico, Somalia, South Africa, the Sudan, Yemen and Palestine. The subregional office in Pretoria, South Africa, continued to implement and facilitate activities at the regional level, as well as in various Southern African countries. The new Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa became operational (see p. 612). The following OHCHR field presences combined monitoring and technical cooperation mandates: Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burundi, Cambodia, Colombia, Croatia, the DRC and FRY.

The programme cooperated with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) through the joint programme on Human Rights Strengthening (HURIST), supporting the implementation of UNDP's policy on human rights as presented in a policy document. HURIST, which tested guidelines and methodologies and identified best practices and learning opportunities in the development of national capacities to promote and protect human rights and in the application of a human rights approach to development programming, was active in 30 countries in 2001. The Assisting Communities Together (ACT) project, also a joint OHCHR-UNDP project, aimed at financially supporting, through micro-grants, human rights initiatives carried out by individuals/NGOs at the grass-roots level. Under the second phase of the ACT project, launched in November 1999, 97 activities were selected for funding, of which 90 were fully implemented during 2001. OHCHR also cooperated with other UN agencies and programmes, as well as non-UN partners.

Activities were funded mainly by the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Technical Cooperation in the Field of Human Rights and partly by the UN regular budget. At its fifteenth and sixteenth sessions (5-7 June, 13-15 November), the Fund's Board reviewed 35 new project proposals; discussed 10 completed and evaluated projects; discussed thematic issues, methodologies and procedures of the programme; and examined financial and administrative matters. As at 30 November, the Fund's income amounted to $22.1 million; commitments totalled $11.7 million, leaving a balance of $8.2 million in available funds and $2.2 million in reserves.

Cambodia

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/82], the Commission, expressing grave concern about human rights violations in Cambodia, noted some progress made by the Government. It welcomed the Governance Action Plan, the enactment of the Law on the Administration and Management of Communes/Sangkat and the Law on the Election of Commune/Sangkat Councils, and progress towards the adoption by Parliament of a draft law on the establishment of extraordinary chambers to prosecute crimes committed during the period of Democratic Kampuchea (see p. 314).

Regretting the delays encountered in extending the agreement to implement the mandate of OHCHR/Cambodia after 2000, the Commission requested the Government and OHCHR to sign the relevant memorandum of understanding (MOU). The Secretary-General was asked, through his Special Representative for human rights in Cambodia, in collaboration with OHCHR/Cambodia, to assist the Government in ensuring the protection of the Cambodian people's human rights and to ensure adequate resources for the continued functioning of OHCHR/Cambodia; that request was approved by the Economic and Social Council on 24 July (decision 2001/278). The Secretary-General was asked to report in 2002.

Reports of Special Representative. In July [A/56/209], the Secretary-General transmitted a report of his Special Representative for human rights in Cambodia, Peter Leuprecht (Austria), pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/95 [YUN 2000, p. 625], following his visits to the country (16-23 February, 22-28 June). The report focused on land rights, natural resources, demobilization of armed forces, the judiciary, prison conditions, mob killings, commune elections, human trafficking, Vietnamese refugees, the Khmer Rouge tribunal and labour issues.

Land grabbing and illegal evictions had become major problems. The absence of clear land titles and a proper system for title registration was serious cause for concern. Natural resources were in high demand. Forestry concessions and commercial fishing lots were allocated to companies without regard for the traditional use of such lands and waters by villagers or the negative effects on the environment. The Special Representative expressed concern about the slow implementation of existing laws, the prevalence of corruption and impunity, and the lack of independence of the judiciary. Prison conditions continued to raise serious concern, as did corruption in the prison system. The trafficking of women and children for sexual or labour exploitation was another serious issue. Since February, hundreds had fled Viet Nam, reportedly because of fear of persecution. Cambodia agreed that those granted refugee status by the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees could remain in the country temporarily. The Special Representative welcomed Cambodia's demobilization programme and its fight against poverty. He also welcomed the adoption of laws on commune elections and commune administration, but raised concern regarding the composition of the National Election Committee and the political climate leading up to the first elections at the communal level.

The Special Representative recommended the creation of an efficient and transparent land registration system; the sustainable use of natural resources, compliance with environmental laws and measures to preserve forestry and family-scale fishing; implementation of the demobilization programme; reform of the judicial system to ensure its independence; adoption and implementation of a juvenile justice system; and improved conditions of detention. The Special Representative noted that mob killings had increased and appealed to the authorities to prevent such incidents. He called for the guarantee of commune elections that were fair, transparent and free from violence.

On 11 December [A/56/697], Cambodia stated that the Special Representative's report was misleading and that the depiction of Cambodian society was unacceptable.

A subsequent visit to Cambodia by the Special Representative (18-28 November) [E/CN.4/2002/118] focused on Commune Council elections scheduled for 3 February 2002 and on judicial reform. The Special Representative had a favourable impression of preparations for the Commune Council elections, which would result in the replacement of current and long-standing commune chiefs by elected Commune Councils, representing an important step towards democratization and decentralization in Cambodia. However, he noted the killing of seven candidates or prospective candidates and two political activists in 2001 as an instance of pre-election violence and intimidation. In the period from 1 June to 30 November, OHCHR/Cambodia and local human rights organizations received 198 allegations of election-related instances of violence and intimidation. Of those, 93 were determined to be politically related, and most were committed by village and commune officials. The Special Representative welcomed the establishment, on 3 August, of the Central Security Office for the Defence of the Commune/Sangkat Elections to deal with election-related violence. The judicial sector suffered from a lack of resources, interference regarding judgements and their execution, politicization and a lack of lawyers. The need for a juvenile justice system was becoming increasingly acute as the number of children in contact with the justice system and being detained was on the rise. Although the Constitution guaranteed free primary and secondary education to all citizens, many were unable to pay the extra fees that were often requested. Poverty was the cause and the effect of the dire situation of education. Discrimination related to access to education was practised on the grounds of gender, geography, ethnicity, disability and wealth. Among other recommendations, the Special Representative called for the establishment of an independent national election body to administer elections free of influence, interference or intimidation and the investigation of all allegations of violence or intimidation.

OHCHR/Cambodia

In a December report [E/CN.4/2002/117] covering the period July to November 2001, the Secretary-General reported on the activities of OHCHR/Cambodia, noting that the MOU between OHCHR and Cambodia had expired on 28 February 2000. Although the Government had agreed verbally to its extension to March 2002 [YUN 2000, p. 625], the new MOU had not yet been signed.

During the period under review, the office assisted in drafting and implementing legislation to promote and protect human rights. It continued activities to enhance the capacity of governmental institutions through increased application of human rights standards. OHCHR-trained police instructors trained some 2,155 police officials and continued to implement the inter-agency project on law enforcement against sexual exploitation of children. The investigation team of the Ministry of the Interior, which was established under the project, reported 27 arrests for trafficking, sale, debauchery, illegal confinement and rape. A total of 113 victims were rescued, of whom 47 were under 18 years of age. Training sessions were held on labour rights, the legal aspects of trafficking in human beings and sexual exploitation, and for women and children in difficult situations. OHCHR/Cambodia continued to implement a mentor programme that provided practical assistance to the judiciary and other court personnel, as well as to police and prison officials. Training, legal advice and other forms of technical and financial assistance were provided to strengthen the capacity of local NGOs and other civil society organizations to carry out activities to promote and protect human rights.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/169 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Situation of human rights in Cambodia

The General Assembly,

Guided by the purposes and principles embodied in the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenants on Human Rights,

Recalling the Agreement on a Comprehensive Political Settlement of the Cambodia Conflict, signed in Paris on 23 October 1991, including part III thereof, relating to human rights,

Recalling also its resolution 55/95 of 4 December 2000, taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/82 of 25 April 2001, and recalling further previous relevant resolutions,

Recognizing that the tragic history of Cambodia requires special measures to ensure the protection of the human rights of all people in Cambodia and the non-return to the policies and practices of the past, as stipulated in the Agreement signed in Paris on 23 October 1991,

Desiring that the international community continue to respond positively to assisting efforts to investigate the tragic history of Cambodia, including responsibility for past international crimes, such as acts of genocide and crimes against humanity committed during the regime of Democratic Kampuchea from 1975 to 1979,

Bearing in mind the request made in June 1997 by the Cambodian authorities for assistance in responding to past serious violations of Cambodian and international law, the letter dated 15 March 1999 from the Secretary-General to the President of the General Assembly and the President of the Security Council and the report of the Group of Experts appointed by the Secretary-General annexed thereto, and the discussions held between the Government of Cambodia and the United Nations Secretariat on standards and procedures for bringing to justice the Khmer Rouge leaders most responsible for the most serious violations of human rights in the years 1975 to 1979,

Recognizing the legitimate concern of the Government and people of Cambodia in the pursuit of internationally accepted principles of justice and of national reconciliation,

Recognizing also that the accountability of individual perpetrators of grave human rights violations is one of the central elements of any effective remedy for victims of human rights violations and a key factor in ensuring a fair and equitable justice system and, ultimately, reconciliation and stability within a State,

Welcoming the continuing role of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in the promotion and protection of human rights in Cambodia,

I

Support of and cooperation with the United Nations

1. Requests the Secretary-General, through his Special Representative for human rights in Cambodia, in collaboration with the office in Cambodia of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, to assist the Government of Cambodia in ensuring the protection of the human rights of all people in Cambodia and to ensure adequate resources for the continued functioning of the operational presence in Cambodia of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and to enable the Special Representative to continue to fulfil his tasks expeditiously;

2. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General on the role and achievements of the Office of the High Commissioner in assisting the Government and people of Cambodia in the promotion and protection of human rights;

3. Also welcomes the report of the Special Representative, commends the Government of Cambodia on its openness and spirit of cooperation during the visits of the Special Representative, encourages the Government to continue its cooperation at all levels of government, supports the appeals of the Government and the Special Representative to increase international assistance to Cambodia and to continue working towards the reduction of poverty, commends the international community for the interest and support demonstrated at the Consultative Group Meeting on Cambodia, held in Tokyo on 12 and 13 June 2001, and encourages donor countries and other relevant parties to follow up their pledges of assistance and commitments;

4. Requests the Government of Cambodia to continue to cooperate with the Office of the High Commissioner to resolve outstanding issues in accordance with international standards so that both parties, without further delay, can sign the memorandum of understanding for the extension of the mandate of the office in Cambodia of the High Commissioner, notes with regret the delays encountered in the process thus far, and encourages the Government to continue to cooperate with the office;

5. Notes with appreciation the use by the Secretary-General of the United Nations Trust Fund for a Human Rights Education Programme in Cambodia to finance the programme of activities of the office in Cambodia of the High Commissioner, as defined in resolutions of the General Assembly and the Commission on Human Rights, and invites Governments, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, foundations and individuals to consider contributing to the Trust Fund;

II

Administrative, legislative and judicial reform

1. Notes with concern the continued problems related to the rule of law and the functioning of the judiciary resulting from, inter alia, corruption, including interference by the executive with the independence of the judiciary, welcomes the continued commitment of the Government of Cambodia to reforming the judiciary, and urges the Government to continue to take the necessary measures to promote the independence, impartiality and effectiveness of the Supreme Council of the Magistracy and the judicial system as a whole and to increase its budgetary allocation to the judiciary, which is expected to result, inter alia, in a decrease in the number of excessive pre-trial detentions;

2. Urges the Government of Cambodia to continue its efforts towards the early adoption of the laws and codes that are essential components of the basic legal framework, including the draft statute on magistrates, a penal code, a code of criminal procedures, a new civil code and a code of civil procedure, as well as its efforts to reform the administration of justice and to enhance the training of judges and lawyers, appeals to the international community to assist the Government to this end, and welcomes, inter alia, the drafting of the forestry and fishery laws;

3. Welcomes the enactment of the Land Law, notes with concern the problems related to land, inter alia, land grabbing, forced evictions and further displacement, and urges the Government of Cambodia to continue its efforts to implement an effective, efficient and transparent land registration system, as envisaged in the Law, to solve these problems;

4. Also welcomes the efforts of the Government of Cambodia to implement its reform programme, including the adoption of the Governance Action Plan, encourages the timely and effective implementation of the Plan, and appeals to the international community to assist the Government in its efforts towards that end;

5. Expresses serious concern that the situation of impunity still exists in Cambodia, recognizes the commitment and efforts of the Government of Cambodia to respond to this problem, calls upon the Government, as a matter of critical priority, to take further measures to investigate urgently and to prosecute, in accordance with due process of law and international human rights standards, all of those who have perpetrated serious crimes, including violations of human rights, and encourages the international community to provide means, such as technical assistance or expertise, to help the Government to meet its own commitments to bring perpetrators to justice more effectively;

6. Welcomes the efforts of the Government of Cambodia to demobilize its armed forces, including the launching of the first part of the demobilization programme, encourages the Government to implement the contents of the White Paper on National Defence and to continue to carry out effective reform, including the implementation of a full-scale demobilization programme that includes the disarming of demobilized soldiers based on the experience gained from a pilot project, aimed at professional and impartial police and military forces, and invites the international community to continue to assist the Government to this end;

7. Also welcomes the enactment of the Law on the Administration and Management of Communes/Sangkat and the Law on the Election of Commune/Sangkat Councils and the elections scheduled for 3 February 2002, strongly urges the Government of Cambodia, including at local and provincial levels, to conduct free and fair elections without violence to any party and encourages the international community to assist the Government to this end, strongly urges all political parties to participate in the elections in a democratic and peaceful manner, and in this regard welcomes the agreement of the two parties in power to abstain from violence, urges the Government to investigate thoroughly any instances of violence and intimidation that occur, and stresses the importance of independent and transparent national, provincial and commune election committees;

8. Notes with serious concern the prison conditions in Cambodia, notes with interest some important efforts to improve the prison system, recommends the continuation of international assistance to improve the material conditions of detention, and calls upon the Government of Cambodia to take further measures to improve the conditions of detention, to provide proper health care to detainees, including by strengthening the coordinating role of the Prison Health Department with the Ministry of Health, provincial authorities and non-governmental organizations working in this field, and to prevent any form of torture;

III

Human rights violations and violence

1. Expresses grave concern about the continued violations of human rights, including torture, excessive pre-trial detention, violation of labour rights and forced evictions, as well as political violence, police involvement in violence and the apparent lack of protection from mob killings, as detailed in the reports of the Special Representative, notes some progress made by the Government of Cambodia in addressing these issues, and urges the Government to take all necessary measures to prevent such violations;

2. Urges an end to racial violence against and vilification of ethnic minorities, and urges the Government of Cambodia to take all steps to prevent such violence, as well as to meet its obligations as a party to the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, inter alia, by seeking technical assistance;

IV

Khmer Rouge tribunal

1. Reaffirms that the most serious human rights violations in Cambodia in recent history have been committed by the Khmer Rouge, and acknowledges that the final collapse of the Khmer Rouge and the continued efforts of the Government of Cambodia have paved the way for the restoration of peace, stability and national reconciliation in Cambodia and the investigation and prosecution of the leaders of the Khmer Rouge;

2. Welcomes the promulgation of the Law on the Establishment of Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia for the Prosecution of Crimes Committed during the Period of Democratic Kampuchea, noting with appreciation the general provisions and competence of the Law and its provision for a role for the United Nations, appeals to the Government of Cambodia to ensure that the senior leaders of Democratic Kampuchea and those who were most responsible for the crimes and serious violations of Cambodian penal law, international humanitarian law and custom and international conventions recognized by Cambodia are brought to trial in accordance with international standards of justice, fairness and due process of law, encourages the Government to continue to cooperate with the United Nations on this issue, welcomes the efforts of the Secretariat and the international community in assisting the Government to this end, urges the Government and the United Nations to conclude an agreement without delay so that the Extraordinary Chambers can start to function promptly, and appeals to the international community to provide assistance in this regard, including financial and personnel support to the Chambers;

V

Protection of women and children

1. Welcomes the progress made in improving the status of women, and urges the Government of Cambodia to take appropriate measures to eliminate all forms of discrimination against women, to combat violence against women in all its forms and to take all steps to meet its obligations as a party to the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, including by seeking technical assistance;

2. Notes with grave concern the continued and growing phenomenon of trafficking in and sexual exploitation of women and children and the increasing incidence of the human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS), and requests the Government of Cambodia comprehensively to address these problems and their underlying causes;

3. Urges the Government of Cambodia to improve further the health conditions of children and their access to education, to provide and promote free and accessible birth registration and to establish an effective juvenile justice system that is consistent with international human rights standards, and invites the international community to continue to assist the Government to this end;

4. Notes with serious concern the problem of child labour in its worst forms, calls upon the Government of Cambodia to take immediate and effective measures to protect children from economic exploitation and from performing any work that is likely to be hazardous, to interfere with their education or to be harmful to their health, safety or morals, inter alia, by enforcing Cambodian laws on child labour, the existing Labour Law and anti-trafficking law provisions on behalf of children and prosecuting those who violate these laws, invites the International Labour Organization to continue to extend the necessary assistance in this regard, and encourages the Government to consider ratifying the International Labour Organization Convention concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour (Convention No. 182) adopted in 1999;

VI

Enhancement of human rights

1. Recognizes the importance of human rights education and training in Cambodia, commends the efforts of the Government of Cambodia, the Office of the High Commissioner and civil society in this field, encourages further strengthening and wider dissemination of these programmes, and invites the international community to continue to assist these efforts;

2. Commends the vital and valuable role played by non-governmental organizations in Cambodia, inter alia, in the development of civil society, and encourages the Government of Cambodia to ensure the protection of those human rights organizations and their members and to continue to work closely and cooperatively with non-governmental organizations in efforts to strengthen and uphold human rights in Cambodia, in particular in the lead-up to the communal elections;

3. Notes with interest the activities undertaken by the governmental Cambodian Human Rights Committee, the National Assembly Commission on Human Rights and Reception of Complaints and the Senate Commission on Human Rights and Reception of Complaints, stresses the importance of further promoting trust in those institutions and enhancing their activities, and invites the international community to extend its technical assistance to this end;

4. Encourages the Government of Cambodia in its efforts to establish an independent national mechanism for the promotion and protection of human rights which should be based on the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights known as the Paris Principles, working in close cooperation with civil society, and requests the Office of the High Commissioner to continue to provide advice and technical assistance in these efforts;

5. Requests the Government of Cambodia to follow up the recommendations made by the international human rights treaty bodies regarding the reports submitted by the Government, calls upon the Government to meet its reporting obligations under all international human rights instruments to which Cambodia is a party, and requests the office in Cambodia of the High Commissioner to continue to provide assistance in this regard;

VII

Landmines and small arms

1. Expresses grave concern at the devastating consequences and destabilizing effects of anti-personnel landmines on Cambodian society, welcomes the progress made by the Government of Cambodia in the removal of these mines and for victim assistance and mine-awareness programmes, encourages the Government to continue its efforts in this regard, and commends donor countries and other actors of the international community for their contributions and assistance to mine action;

2. Expresses concern at the substantial number of small arms still existing in society, commends the progress made by the Government of Cambodia and the cooperation of the international community in dealing with issues of small arms, and encourages the Government to cooperate in regional and international efforts to reduce the number of illicit small arms, including implementation of the existing programmes;

VIII

Conclusion

1. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the role and achievements of the Office of the High Commissioner in assisting the Government and the people of Cambodia in the promotion and protection of human rights and on the recommendations made by the Special Representative on matters within his mandate;

2. Decides to continue its consideration of the situation of human rights in Cambodia at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

Equatorial Guinea

For information on assistance to Equatorial Guinea and the human rights situation in the country, see p. 703.

Haiti

On 1 March, Adama Dieng (Senegal), independent expert on the situation of human rights in Haiti, submitted his resignation.

In a statement of 25 April [E/2001/23] on behalf of the Commission, agreed on by consensus, the Chairperson stated that the Commission recognized that, while there had been some progress in human rights in Haiti, problems persisted with regard to the administration of justice, impunity, prolonged detention and prison conditions. It called on the Government to eliminate human rights violations and investigate politically motivated crimes, and expressed concern over Haiti's restaveks, children who were placed in domestic service, sometimes against their will and in deplorable conditions. The Commission pledged to give serious consideration to the Government's request for assistance to improve human rights, while recognizing that primary responsibility remained with the people of Haiti. The Commission requested a new independent expert to report to the General Assembly in 2001 and to the Commission in 2002. Those requests were approved by the Economic and Social Council on 24 July (decision 2001/290).

Note by Secretariat. A note by the Secretariat [E/CN.4/2002/120] stated that, because a new independent expert had not been appointed, no report was submitted to the Commission in 2001.

(See also p. 248.)

Somalia

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/81], the Commission, condemning widespread violations and abuses of human rights and humanitarian law, urged the transitional national Government, the Transitional National Assembly, and all parties and administrations in Somalia to create an environment that would bring into the reconciliation process those who did not participate in the Somalia National Peace Conference [YUN 2000, p. 215]. They were also urged to respect human rights and international humanitarian standards as set out in international instruments, to support the re-establishment of the rule of law and to protect UN personnel, humanitarian relief workers and others.

The High Commissioner was asked to provide for the translation of the Commission's resolution into the local language for dissemination within Somalia. Following the resignation of the independent expert in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 631], the Commission invited the Secretary-General to appoint a new one. The Commission asked that the future expert report in 2002 and requested the Secretary-General to assist him. On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the extension of the future expert's mandate for an additional year, the Commission's request that he report in 2002 and its request to the High Commissioner (decision 2001/277).

The new independent expert, Ghanim Al-najjar (Kuwait), was appointed by the Secretary-General, effective 3 June 2001.

Report of independent expert. Independent expert Ghanim Alnajjar visited the three main regions of Somalia—Baidoa, Mogadishu and Hargeisa (28 August–7 September) [E/CN.4/2002/119]. Although the expert did not visit Puntland, given the absence of authorities there with whom to meet, he presented information from accounts that had reached him. He also travelled to Nairobi, Kenya, where he met with representatives of the international community.

During the mission, concerns were raised regarding the establishment of human rights commissions, the inclusion of human rights in school curricula, investigation into specific cases of human rights violations, the deteriorating conditions in prisons, the development of the judicial system, the status of women, the development of law enforcement, the separation of juveniles from adults in prison and the ratification of international human rights treaties. The expert also noted the presence of many child soldiers. Given the widespread support for investigation into past atrocities, the expert urged the Security Council to consider establishing a committee of experts to do so. On the positive side, he observed a civil society that was paving the way for a more reconciliatory atmosphere, which might benefit political reconciliation, and noted wide-ranging freedom of expression in certain regions. The expert offered a series of recommendations for future human rights advisory services.

Among the advisory services implemented in 2001 was a project to mainstream human rights in the work of UN agencies in Somalia, particularly the governance and rule-of-law activities of UNDP. In June, UNDP and OHCHR jointly drafted a paper on considerations for investigating alleged past human rights atrocities in Somalia, components of which were included in the Secretary-General's October report to the Security Council (see p. 209).

Public information and human rights education

Public information

Report of Secretary-General. In a January report [E/CN.4/2001/92], the Secretary-General described public information activities in the area of human rights, including the World Public Information Campaign for Human Rights, launched by the General Assembly in resolution 43/128 [YUN 1988, p. 539] and carried out by the High Commissioner and the UN Department of Public Information (DPI).

Following an external review, the OHCHR publications programme was revised, focusing on basic publications such as fact sheets, key documents, training and education materials, issue papers and promotional materials with improved quality and multi-language availability. The programme would be managed in parallel with the OHCHR web site as part of a comprehensive public information strategy. OHCHR organized briefings for students, diplomats, journalists, public officials, academics, professors and NGOs, provided lecturers for DPI briefings and organized exhibits. It carried out the human rights fellowship programme, offered internships to graduate students and conducted training courses, seminars and workshops. The Office prepared information materials, held meetings and organized special events for the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615).

DPI continued to initiate and coordinate activities within the context of the World Public Information Campaign and the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education (1995-2004) (see p. 605). Activities were also carried out under the Third Decade to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination (1993-2003) (see p. 614), the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People (1995-2004) (see p. 689) and the United Nations Decade for the Eradication of Poverty (1997-2006) (see p. 753). DPI covered UN human rights activities, as well as distributed relevant human rights materials, through a multimedia approach, which included the production of printed materials; making material available to the UN web site, radio and television broadcasts, press conferences, press briefings and special events; exhibits; special media outreach activities and activities with educational organizations and NGOs; and services for visitors and public enquiries. The report presented an overview of the activities of the United Nations Information Service at Geneva, as well as those of the United Nations information centres and services and UN offices.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/63], the Commission urged Member States to develop a national plan of action for human rights education and public information, and called on DPI and relevant UN agencies and bodies further to develop mass media strategies to promote human rights. The Secretary-General was requested to take advantage of the collaboration of other international and regional organizations and NGOs in implementing the World Public Information Campaign and in activities relating to the Decade for Human Rights Education and the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance. He was also asked to make available resources from the UN regular budget to allow OHCHR and DPI to implement their respective programmes and to report in 2003.

Report of High Commissioner. By an August note [A/56/271], the Secretary-General transmitted a report of the High Commissioner on the Decade for Human Rights Education (below) and public information activities in human rights. The report supplemented information in his January report (see p. 604). During the reporting period (December 2000–mid-July 2001), the Office had distributed more than 40,000 copies of human rights publications, in addition to the 5,000 copies of each publication that were regularly distributed by the United Nations Office at Geneva. OHCHR increased the electronic dissemination of its publications, and expanded the live Internet audio broadcast of human rights events.

Human rights education

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/61], the Commission, taking note of the report containing the midterm global evaluation [YUN 2000, p. 631] of progress made towards the achievement of the objectives of the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education (1995–2004), proclaimed by the General Assembly in resolution 49/184 [YUN 1994, p. 1039], asked the High Commissioner to bring the report's recommendations and the Commission's current resolution to the attention of the international community, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs. Governments and other Decade actors were asked to consider disseminating the recommendations, which were annexed to the Commission's resolution.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 26 July [meeting 43], the Economic and Social Council adopted resolution 2001/38 [draft: E/2001/L.33, orally revised] without vote [agenda item 14 (g)].

Human rights education

The Economic and Social Council,

Taking into account Commission on Human Rights resolutions 1993/56 of 9 March 1993 and 2001/61 of 25 April 2001 regarding the importance of human rights education as a priority in education policies,

Convinced that human rights education and information contribute to a concept of development consistent with the dignity of women and men of all ages, which takes into account particularly vulnerable segments of society, such as children, youth, older persons, indigenous people, minorities, rural and urban poor, migrant workers, refugees, persons with human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) and disabled persons,

Taking note with appreciation of the midterm global evaluation of the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995–2004, by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, contained in the report of the High Commissioner,

Taking into account the recommendations of the midterm global evaluation of the Decade,

1. Invites all Governments to promote the development of national strategies for human rights education that are comprehensive, participatory and effective and can be embodied in a national plan of action for human rights education as part of a national development plan;

2. Also invites the United Nations agencies, in particular the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and the relevant intergovernmental organizations, to develop a system-wide approach to the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education (1995–2004);

3. Further invites regional and national human rights organizations, agencies and networks (such as those of women, the media and trade unions), to develop human rights education programmes and strategies for the wider distribution of materials on human rights education in all possible languages;

4. Requests non-governmental organizations to develop and implement strategies to encourage and assist Governments, upon request, in integrating human rights education into all levels of education, and to help in the assessment of those strategies.

Report of High Commissioner. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 55/94 [YUN 2000, p. 632], the Secretary-General, by an August note [A/56/271], transmitted a report of the High Commissioner summarizing human rights education and public information activities undertaken by OHCHR between December 2000 and mid-July 2001 and communications received thereon from Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs. The report highlighted the advancements made in implementing some of the components of the Plan of Action for the Decade, including assessing needs and formulating strategies; strengthening international and regional programmes and capacities; coordinated development of materials for human rights education; and global dissemination of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 217 A (III) [YUN 1948–49, p. 535].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/147 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Human rights education

The General Assembly,

Taking into account Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/61 of 25 April 2001 regarding the importance of human rights education as a priority in education policies,

Considering Economic and Social Council resolution 2001/38 of 26 July 2001 on human rights education,

Convinced that human rights education and information contribute to the concept of development consistent with the dignity of women and men of all ages, which takes into account particularly vulnerable segments of society of all ages, such as children, youth, older persons, indigenous people, minorities, rural and urban poor, migrant workers, refugees, persons with the human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) and disabled persons,

Considering the importance of human rights education,

Convinced that human rights education is a key to development,

Taking note with appreciation of the midterm global evaluation of the progress made towards the achievement of the objectives of the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004, contained in the report of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights,

Taking into account the recommendations of the midterm global evaluation of the progress made towards the achievement of the objectives of the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004,

1. Invites all Governments to reaffirm their commitments and obligations to develop national strategies for human rights education which are comprehensive, participatory and effective and which can be embodied in a national plan of action for human rights education as part of their national development plan;

2. Invites the United Nations, intergovernmental organizations, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and other relevant intergovernmental organizations, to adopt a system-wide approach to the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004;

3. Invites relevant regional human rights organizations, agencies and networks to develop human rights education programmes and human rights training programmes and strategies for wider distribution of material on human rights education in all possible languages;

4. Recognizes the role that non-governmental organizations play in developing and implementing strategies to assist Governments to integrate human rights education into all levels of education for children, youth and adults.

On the same date [meeting 88], the Assembly, also on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/167 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education The General Assembly,

Guided by the fundamental and universal principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights,

Reaffirming article 26 of the Declaration, which states that "education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and to the strengthening of respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms", and recalling the provisions of other relevant international human rights instruments that reflect the aims of this article,

Recalling the high importance attached to human rights education by the World Conference on Human Rights, held in Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993,

Recalling also the relevant resolutions adopted by the General Assembly and the Commission on Human Rights concerning the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004,

Believing that human rights education constitutes an important vehicle for the elimination of gender-based discrimination and for ensuring equal opportunities through the promotion and protection of the human rights of women,

Convinced that every woman, man and child, in order to realize their full human potential, must be made aware of all their human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Convinced also that human rights education should involve more than the provision of information and should constitute a comprehensive, lifelong process by which people at all levels of development and in all societies learn respect for the dignity of others and the means and methods of ensuring that respect in all societies,

Recognizing that human rights education is essential to the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms and that carefully designed training, dissemination and information programmes can have a catalytic effect on national, regional and international initiatives to promote and protect human rights and prevent human rights violations,

Convinced that human rights education contributes to a holistic concept of development consistent with the dignity of women and men of all ages, which takes into account particularly vulnerable segments of society, such as children, young persons, older persons, indigenous people, minorities, the rural and urban poor, migrant workers, refugees, persons with the human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) and disabled persons,

Affirming that human rights education is a key to changing attitudes and behaviour based on racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance and to promoting tolerance and respect for diversity in societies, and that such education is a determining factor in the promotion, dissemination and protection of the democratic values of justice and equity, which are essential to prevent and combat the spread of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, as was recognized at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held in Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001,

Welcoming the holding of the International Consultative Conference on School Education in Relation to Freedom of Religion and Belief, Tolerance and Non-discrimination in Madrid from 23 to 25 November 2001,

Welcoming also the efforts to promote human rights education made by educators and non-governmental organizations in all parts of the world, as well as by intergovernmental organizations, including the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the International Labour Organization, the United Nations Children's Fund and the United Nations Development Programme,

Recognizing the invaluable and creative role that non-governmental and community-based organizations play in the promotion and protection of human rights by disseminating public information and engaging in human rights education, especially at the grass-roots level and in remote and rural communities,

Aware of the potential role of the private sector in implementing at all levels of society the Plan of Action for the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004, and the World Public Information Campaign on Human Rights through financial support for governmental and non-governmental activities as well as their own creative initiatives,

Convinced that the effectiveness of existing human rights education and public information activities would be enhanced by better coordination and co-operation at the national, regional and international levels,

Recalling that it is within the responsibility of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to coordinate relevant United Nations education and public information programmes in the field of human rights,

Noting with appreciation the efforts undertaken so far by the Office of the High Commissioner to increase information-sharing in the area of human rights education through the development of a database and resource collection on the human rights education and to disseminate human rights information through its web site and its publications and external relations programmes,

Welcoming the initiative of the Office of the High Commissioner to develop further the project entitled "Assisting Communities Together", launched in 1998, supported by voluntary funds and designed to provide small grants to grass-roots and local organizations carrying out practical human rights activities,

Welcoming also other United Nations public information activities in the field of human rights, including the World Public Information Campaign on Human Rights and the implementation of and follow-up to the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, the project of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization entitled "Towards a culture of peace", and the Dakar Framework for Action adopted at the World Education Forum, which, inter alia, reconfirmed the mandated role of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in coordinating Education for All partners and maintaining their collective momentum within the process of securing quality basic education,

Recognizing the value of information and communications technologies in human rights education to promote dialogue and understanding of human rights, and in that context welcoming, inter alia, the "Cyber-SchoolBus" and the United Nations Children's Fund "Voices of Youth" initiatives,

Recalling the midterm global evaluation of progress made towards the achievement of the objectives of the Decade undertaken by the Office of the High Commissioner, in cooperation with all other principal actors in the Decade, which was presented in the relevant report of the High Commissioner to the General Assembly at its fifty-fifth session,

1. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004, and public information activities in the field of human rights;

2. Urges all Governments to promote the development of comprehensive, participatory and sustainable national strategies for human rights education and to establish and strengthen, as a priority in education policies, knowledge of human rights in both its theoretical dimension and its practical application;

3. Welcomes the steps taken by Governments and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to implement the Plan of Action for the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004, and to develop public information activities in the field of human rights, as indicated in the report of the High Commissioner;

4. Urges all Governments to contribute further to the implementation of the Plan of Action, in particular by:

(a) Encouraging the establishment, in accordance with national conditions, of broadly representative national committees for human rights education responsible for the development of comprehensive, effective and sustainable national plans of action for human rights education and information, taking into consideration the recommendations of the midterm global evaluation of the Decade and the guidelines for national plans of action for human rights education developed by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights;

(b) Encouraging, supporting and involving national and local non-governmental and community-based organizations in the implementation of their national plans of action;

(c) Initiating and developing cultural and educational programmes aimed at countering racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, and supporting and implementing public information campaigns and specific training programmes in the field of human rights, as emphasized at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance;

5. Encourages Governments to consider, within their national plans of action for human rights education:

(a) The establishment of public access human rights resource and training centres capable of engaging in research, including the gender-sensitive training of trainers;

(b) The preparation, collection, translation and dissemination of human rights education and training materials;

(c) The organization of courses, conferences, workshops and public information campaigns and assistance in the implementation of internationally sponsored technical cooperation projects for human rights education and public information;

6. Encourages States, where such national public access human rights resource and training centres exist, to strengthen their capacity to support human rights education and public information programmes at the international, regional, national and local levels;

7. Calls upon Governments, in accordance with national conditions, to accord priority to the dissemination, in the relevant national local and indigenous languages, of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and other human rights instruments, human rights materials and training manuals, including information on human rights mechanisms and complaint procedures and reports of States parties submitted under international human rights treaties, and to provide information and education in those languages on the practical ways in which national and international institutions and procedures may be utilized to ensure the effective implementation of those instruments;

8. Encourages Governments to support further, through voluntary contributions, the education and public information efforts undertaken by the Office of the High Commissioner within the framework of the Plan of Action;

9. Requests the High Commissioner to continue to coordinate and harmonize human rights education and information strategies within the United Nations system, including the implementation of the Plan of Action, in cooperation, inter alia, with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and to ensure maximum effectiveness and efficiency in the collection, use, processing, management and distribution of human rights information and educational materials, including through electronic means;

10. Encourages Governments to contribute to the further development of the web site of the Office of the High Commissioner, in particular with respect to the dissemination of human rights education materials and tools, and to continue and expand the publications and external relations programmes of the Office;

11. Encourages the Office of the High Commissioner to continue to support national capacities for human rights education and information through its technical cooperation programme in the field of human rights, including the organization of training courses and peer education initiatives and the development of targeted training materials for professional audiences, as well as the dissemination of human rights information materials as a component of technical cooperation projects, to develop further its databases and resource collection on human rights education and to continue to monitor developments in human rights education;

12. Urges the Department of Public Information of the Secretariat to continue to utilize United Nations information centres for the timely dissemination, within their designated areas of activity, of basic information, reference and audio-visual materials on human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the reports of States parties submitted under international human rights instruments, and, to that end, to ensure that the information centres are supplied with adequate quantities of those materials;

13. Stresses the need for close collaboration between the Office of the High Commissioner and the Department of Public Information in the implementation of the Plan of Action and the World Public Information Campaign on Human Rights, and the need to harmonize their activities with those of other international organizations, such as the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization with regard to its project entitled "Towards a culture of peace" and the International Committee of the Red Cross, and relevant non-governmental organizations with regard to the dissemination of information on international humanitarian law;

14. Invites the specialized agencies and relevant United Nations programmes and funds to continue to contribute, within their respective spheres of competence, to the implementation of the Plan of Action and the World Public Information Campaign and to cooperate and coordinate with each other and with the Office of the High Commissioner in that regard;

15. Encourages the relevant organs, bodies and agencies of the United Nations system, all human rights bodies of the United Nations system, including the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, to provide training in human rights for all United Nations personnel and officials;

16. Encourages the human rights treaty bodies, when examining reports of States parties, to place emphasis on the obligations of States parties in the area of human rights education and to reflect that emphasis in their concluding observations;

17. Calls upon international, regional and national non-governmental organizations and intergovernmental organizations, in particular those concerned with children and youth, women, labour, development, food, housing, education, health care and the environment, as well as all other social justice groups, human rights advocates, educators, religious organizations, the private sector and the media, to undertake specific activities of formal, non-formal and informal education, including cultural events, alone and in cooperation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in implementing the Plan of Action;

18. Welcomes, in that context, initiatives to include civil society, non-governmental organizations, children and youth in national delegations to world conferences, summits and other meetings, as well as the work of non-governmental organizations and intergovernmental agencies in organizing parallel non-governmental organization and youth satellite meetings, as an important component of human rights education;

19. Encourages Governments, regional organizations and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to explore the potential support and contribution to human rights education of all relevant partners, including the private sector, development, trade and financial institutions and the media, and to seek their cooperation in the development of human rights education strategies;

20. Encourages regional organizations to develop strategies for the wider distribution of materials on human rights education through regional networks and to develop region-specific programmes to maximize the participation of national entities, whether governmental or non-governmental, in programmes on human rights education;

21. Encourages intergovernmental organizations to assist, upon request, collaboration between governmental institutions and non-governmental organizations at the national level;

22. Requests the Office of the High Commissioner to continue the implementation of and to expand the "Assisting Communities Together" project and to consider other appropriate ways and means to support human rights education activities, including those undertaken by non-governmental organizations;

23. Requests the High Commissioner to bring the present resolution to the attention of all members of the international community and of intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned with human rights education and public information, and to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the progress made towards the achievement of the objectives of the Decade under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

Children and a culture of peace

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/47 [YUN 2000, p. 635] on the International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World, 2001-2010, proclaimed by the Assembly in resolution 53/25 [YUN 1998, p. 639], the Secretary-General, in September [A/56/349], reported on progress made by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) to implement the Programme of Action on a Culture of Peace, adopted in Assembly resolution 53/243 B [YUN 1999, p. 594]. The report, based on a report of the UNESCO Director-General, also described co-operation with the UN system.

The report reviewed the engagement of Member States, the UN system and civil society during the International Year for the Culture of Peace in 2000, proclaimed by the Assembly in resolution 52/15 [YUN 1997, p. 622], the engagement of Member States during the Decade and UNESCO's responsibility as lead agency for the Decade. It described the roles played by relevant UN bodies, particularly the United Nations Children's Fund and the University for Peace, by civil society and by the media, including new information and communication technology, to promote a culture of peace and non-violence.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 5 November [meeting 37], the General Assembly adopted resolution 56/5 [draft: A/56/L.5 & Add.1] without vote [agenda item 28].

International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World, 2001-2010

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the Charter of the United Nations, including the purposes and principles contained therein, and especially the dedication to saving succeeding generations from the scourge of war,

Recalling the Constitution of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, which states that, since wars begin in the minds of men, it is in the minds of men that the defences of peace must be constructed,

Recalling also its previous resolutions on a culture of peace, in particular resolution 52/15 of 20 November 1997 proclaiming 2000 as the International Year for the Culture of Peace, resolution 53/25 of 10 November 1998 proclaiming the period 2001-2010 as the International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World, and resolution 55/47 of 29 November 2000,

Reaffirming the Declaration and Programme of Action on a Culture of Peace, recognizing that they serve, inter alia, as the basis for the observance of the Decade, and convinced that effective and successful observance of the Decade throughout the world will promote a culture of peace and non-violence that benefits humanity, in particular future generations,

Recalling the United Nations Millennium Declaration which calls for the active promotion of a culture of peace,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World, including paragraph 28 thereof which indicates that each of the ten years of the Decade will be marked with a different priority theme related to the Programme of Action,

Taking note also of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2000/66 of 26 April 2000, entitled "Towards a culture of peace",

Emphasizing the particular relevance of the special session of the General Assembly on children, to be held in New York during the fifty-sixth session of the General Assembly, the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held in Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001, and the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004, for the International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World, 2001-2010,

Taking into account the "Manifesto 2000" initiative of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization promoting a culture of peace, which has so far received over seventy-four million signatures of endorsement throughout the world,

1. Reiterates that the objective of the International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-Violence for the Children of the World is to further strengthen the global movement for a culture of peace following the observance of the International Year for the Culture of Peace in 2000;

2. Invites Member States to place greater emphasis on and expand their activities promoting a culture of peace and non-violence, in particular during the Decade, at the national, regional and international levels and to ensure that peace and non-violence are fostered at all levels;

3. Commends the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for recognizing the promotion of a culture of peace as the expression of its fundamental mandate, and requests it, as the lead agency for the Decade, to further strengthen the activities it has undertaken for promoting a culture of peace;

4. Also commends the relevant United Nations bodies, in particular the United Nations Children's Fund and the University for Peace, for their activities in further promoting a culture of peace and non-violence, including promotion of peace education and activities related to specific areas identified in the Programme of Action on a Culture of Peace;

5. Requests the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to continue its efforts to disseminate in various languages, inter alia, through its national commissions, the Declaration on a Culture of Peace and the Programme of Action and related materials, in particular throughout the Decade;

6. Calls upon the relevant United Nations bodies, in particular the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and the United Nations Children's Fund, to continue to promote both formal and non-formal education at all levels that foster a culture of peace and non-violence;

7. Encourages civil society, including non-governmental organizations, to continue and strengthen its efforts in furtherance of the objectives of the Decade, inter alia, by adopting its own programme of activities to complement the initiatives of Member States, the organizations of the United Nations system and other global and regional organizations;

8. Also encourages the involvement of the mass media in education for a culture of peace and non-violence, with particular regard to children and young people, including through the planned expansion of the Culture of Peace News Network as a global network of Internet sites in many languages;

9. Welcomes the efforts made by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to continue the communication and networking arrangements established during the International Year for providing an instant update of developments related to the observance of the Decade;

10. Invites Member States as well as civil society, including non-governmental organizations, to provide information to the Secretary-General on the observance of the Decade and the activities undertaken to promote a culture of peace and non-violence;

11. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution;

12. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Culture of peace".

National institutions and regional arrangements

National institutions for human rights promotion and protection

Commission action. Welcoming the role of the International Coordinating Committee of National Institutions, in cooperation with OHCHR, in assessing conformity with the Principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 48/134 [YUN 1993, p. 899], the Commission, on 25 April [res. 2001/80], requested the Secretary-General to continue to provide assistance to Coordinating Committee meetings and, from within existing resources and the UN Voluntary Fund for Technical Cooperation in the Field of Human Rights (see p. 598), assistance for international and regional meetings of national institutions; the Commission's requests were approved by the Economic and Social Council on 24 July (decision 2001/276). The Commission also asked the Secretary-General to report in 2002.

Reports of Secretary-General. In an August report [A/56/255], the Secretary-General described OHCHR activities to establish and strengthen national human rights institutions and related measures taken by Governments, as well as consultations by UN human rights treaty bodies and Commission mechanisms with national human rights institutions. The report covered the period from 9 September 1999 to 1 July 2001.

During the reporting period, at the request of Governments or entities in the process of establishing, or considering establishment of, national human rights institutions, OHCHR provided information, advice or assistance to Azerbaijan, Bangladesh, Burundi, Cambodia, Côte d'Ivoire, East Timor, Fiji, Germany, Ireland, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kyrgyzstan, Malaysia, Mauritius, Mongolia, Nepal, Nigeria, Palestine, the Republic of Korea, the Republic of Moldova, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, Thailand, the United Kingdom and FRY. The High Commissioner's Special Adviser on National Institutions and the National Institutions Team conducted missions to assist Governments and/or institutions in Australia, Cambodia, Canada, Ecuador, France, Georgia, Germany, Indonesia, Ireland, Jordan, Kenya, Kosovo (FRY), Latvia, Malaysia, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Nepal, New Zealand, Nigeria, the Philippines, the Republic of Moldova, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, Sweden, Thailand, Togo, Uganda, Ukraine, the United Kingdom and FRY. The report described the advisory services and technical cooperation activities of OHCHR in Africa; Asia and the Pacific; Europe, Central Asia and North America; and Latin America and the Caribbean.

At the international and regional levels, OHCHR supported the third Regional Conference of African Institutions for the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights (Lomé, Togo, 14-16 March), at which participants discussed independence, pluralism and the effectiveness of national institutions; cooperation between national institutions; OHCHR and NGOs; human rights, development and HIV/AIDS; child exploitation and trafficking; and the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615). In preparation for the World Conference, support provided by OHCHR by way of grants from the Rockefeller and Carnegie Foundations enabled some 17 national institutions to receive funding to undertake educational and promotional activities at the national level. The EU provided funding to allow the participation of up to 36 national institutions in the Conference.

The International Coordinating Committee of National Institutions held its eighth and ninth sessions from 17 to 19 March 2000 and from 18 to 20 April 2001, both in Geneva.

In a later report [E/CN.4/2002/114], the Secretary-General stated that OHCHR supported and participated in the sixth annual meeting of the Asia-Pacific Forum of National Human Rights Institutions (Sri Lanka, September) and in the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe Human Dimension Implementation Meeting (Poland, September). It participated in the meeting of Euro-Mediterranean national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (Greece, November).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/158 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

National institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions and those of the Commission on Human Rights concerning national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights,

Welcoming the rapidly growing interest throughout the world in the creation and strengthening of independent, pluralistic national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights,

Convinced of the important role that such national institutions play and will continue to play in promoting and protecting human rights and fundamental freedoms and in developing and enhancing public awareness of those rights and freedoms,

Recognizing that the United Nations has played an important role and should continue to play a more important role in assisting the development of national institutions,

Recalling the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, which reaffirmed the important and constructive role played by national human rights institutions, in particular in their advisory capacity to the competent authorities and their role in remedying human rights violations, in disseminating information on human rights and in education in human rights,

Recalling also the Beijing Platform for Action, in which Governments were urged to create or strengthen independent national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, including the human rights of women,

Noting the diverse approaches adopted throughout the world for the promotion and protection of human rights at the national level, emphasizing the universality, indivisibility and interdependence of all human rights, and emphasizing and recognizing the value of such approaches in promoting universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Noting with satisfaction the constructive participation of representatives of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights in, and their positive contribution to, the deliberations of the World Conference on Human Rights, the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance and the Commission on Human Rights, as well as international seminars and workshops on human rights organized or sponsored by the United Nations,

Welcoming the strengthening in all regions of regional cooperation among national human rights institutions and between national human rights institutions and other regional human rights forums,

Welcoming also the strengthening of international cooperation among national human rights institutions, including through the International Coordinating Committee of National Institutions,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Reaffirms the importance of the development of effective, independent and pluralistic national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, in keeping with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights contained in the annex to General Assembly resolution 48/134 of 20 December 1993;
3. Recognizes that, in accordance with the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, it is the right of each State to choose the framework for the national institutions that is best suited to its particular needs at the national level in order to promote human rights in accordance with international human rights standards;
4. Encourages Member States to establish or, where they already exist, to strengthen national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights, as outlined in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action;
5. Welcomes the growing number of States establishing or considering the establishment of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights;
6. Encourages national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights established by Member States to continue to play an active role in preventing and combating all violations of human rights as enumerated in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action and relevant international instruments;
7. Notes with satisfaction the efforts of those States that have provided their national institutions with more autonomy and independence, including by giving them an investigative role or enhancing such a role, and encourages other Governments to consider taking similar steps;
8. Reaffirms the role of national institutions, where they exist, as appropriate agencies, inter alia, for the dissemination of human rights materials and other public information activities, including those of the United Nations, in particular in the context of the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004;

9. Urges the Secretary-General to continue to give high priority to requests from Member States for assistance in the establishment and strengthening of national human rights institutions as part of the United Nations Programme of Advisory Services and Technical Assistance in the Field of Human Rights;

10. Commends the high priority given by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to work on national institutions, and, in view of the expanded activities relating to national institutions, encourages the High Commissioner to ensure that appropriate arrangements are made and budgetary resources provided to continue and further extend activities in support of national human rights institutions, and invites Governments to contribute additional, earmarked funds to the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Technical Cooperation in the Field of Human Rights for that purpose;

11. Notes with appreciation the increasingly active and important role of the International Coordinating Committee of National Institutions, as recognized in Commission on Human Rights resolution 1994/54 of 4 March 1994, in close cooperation with the Office of the High Commissioner, in assisting Governments and national institutions, when requested, to follow up on relevant resolutions and recommendations concerning the strengthening of national institutions;

12. Also notes with appreciation the holding of regular meetings of the International Coordinating Committee of National Institutions and the arrangements for the participation of national human rights institutions in the annual sessions of the Commission on Human Rights;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide the necessary assistance for holding meetings of the International Coordinating Committee of National Institutions during the sessions of the Commission on Human Rights, in cooperation with the Office of the High Commissioner;

14. Welcomes the continuation of the practice of national institutions convening regional meetings in some regions, and its initiation in others, and encourages national institutions, in cooperation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, to organize similar events with Governments and non-governmental organizations in their own regions;

15. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to provide, including from the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Technical Cooperation in the Field of Human Rights, the necessary assistance for holding international and regional meetings of national institutions;

16. Recognizes the important and constructive role that non-governmental organizations may play, in cooperation with national institutions, for better promotion and protection of human rights;

17. Encourages all Member States to take appropriate steps to promote the exchange of information and experience concerning the establishment and effective operation of national institutions;

18. Encourages all United Nations entities, funds and agencies to work in close cooperation with national institutions in the promotion and protection of human rights;

19. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session on the implementation of the present resolution.

Regional arrangements

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/79], the Commission welcomed the High Commissioner's appointment of four human rights personalities to serve as regional advisers, who would promote human rights and human rights advocacy through the design of strategies and human rights partnerships and facilitate human rights regional technical cooperation. It asked the Secretary-General to strengthen exchanges between the United Nations and regional human rights intergovernmental organizations and to provide resources to promote regional arrangements. OHCHR was requested to pay attention to the most appropriate ways of assisting countries, at their request, under the technical cooperation programme and to make relevant recommendations. The Secretary-General was invited, in his report requested in General Assembly resolution 55/105 [YUN 2000, p. 638], to provide information about the progress made since the adoption of the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action (see p. 598) on exchanging information and extending collaboration between UN human rights bodies and regional organizations working to promote and protect human rights. He was also asked to report in 2003.

Africa

A November report of the High Commissioner [A/56/36/Add.1] presented the activities of the Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa, established as a subregional office of OHCHR in cooperation with the Economic Community of Central African States and the UN Department of Political Affairs. The Centre, located in Yaoundé, Cameroon, became operational in March. Based on the recommendations contained in a declaration by a subregional workshop on human rights education in Central Africa (Yaoundé, 15-16 March), a programme of priority action for 2001 and 2002 was adopted and approved by the High Commissioner. Under training activities, two workshops were scheduled: one on the development of national human rights action plans and another on respect for human rights by security forces. The Centre published the first issue of its trimestral bulletin on human rights and democracy covering the period from March to June.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 24 December [meeting 92], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third

Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/230 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/105 of 4 December 2000 concerning regional arrangements for the promotion and protection of human rights,

Recalling also its resolutions 55/34 B of 20 November 2000 and 55/233 of 23 December 2000 and section III of its resolution 55/234 of 23 December 2000,

Recalling further the report of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights,

1. Welcomes the creation of the Subregional Centre for Human Rights and Democracy in Central Africa at Yaoundé;

2. Notes with satisfaction the support given to the establishment of the Centre by the host country;

3. Invites the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, under the direction of the Secretary-General, to provide appropriate assistance to the Centre to ensure its efficiency and smooth functioning in accordance with section III of General Assembly resolution 55/234;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution.

Asia and the Pacific

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/77], the Commission endorsed the conclusions of the ninth workshop on regional cooperation for the promotion and protection of human rights in the Asia and Pacific region (below) and asked the Secretary-General to submit in 2002 a report containing the conclusions of the tenth workshop.

Reports of Secretary-General. In March [E/CN.4/2001/98], the Secretary-General presented the conclusions of the ninth workshop on regional cooperation for the promotion and protection of human rights in the Asia and Pacific region (Bangkok, Thailand, 28 February–2 March), organized by OHCHR, which reviewed progress made since the last workshop, held in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 639], in the four areas of the framework for regional technical cooperation (national plans of action for human rights promotion and protection and the strengthening of national capacities; human rights education; national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights; and strategies for the realization of the right to development and economic, social and cultural rights). The workshop also aimed at enhancing partnerships to implement the framework. The conclusions adopted by the workshop were annexed to the report.

A later report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/2002/113] described other meetings held in the region. In April, OHCHR sponsored the Asian Human Rights Education Trainers' Colloquium (Chiangmai, Thailand, 1–6 April). A sub-regional workshop for judges on the justiciability of economic, social and cultural rights in South Asia (New Delhi, India, 17–18 November) was jointly organized by OHCHR, the International Commission of Jurists and the International Bar Association (IBA). OHCHR had collaborated with IBA in the organization of a workshop focusing on human rights in the administration of justice (March). The Office supported and participated in the sixth annual meeting of the Asia-Pacific Forum of National Human Rights Institutions (Sri Lanka, September) and conducted a workshop on the role of national human rights institutions and other mechanisms in promoting and protecting economic, social and cultural rights (Hong Kong, China, July).

Cooperation with UN human rights bodies

A January report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/2001/34] summarized allegations of intimidation and reprisals against private individuals and groups who sought to cooperate with the United Nations and with representatives of its human rights bodies.

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/11], the Commission urged Governments to refrain from acts of intimidation or reprisal against persons who sought to cooperate or had cooperated with representatives of UN human rights bodies, or who had provided testimony or information to them; individuals who availed themselves of UN procedures and those who had provided legal assistance to them for that purpose; those who submitted communications under procedures established by human rights instruments; and relatives of victims of human rights violations. Representatives of UN human rights bodies and treaty bodies monitoring human rights were requested to help prevent the hampering of access to UN human rights procedures, to take steps to prevent intimidation or reprisal, and to include in their reports allegations of intimidation or reprisal, as well as action taken. The Secretary-General was asked to draw the Commission's resolution to the attention of UN human rights and treaty bodies and to report in 2002.

Chapter II

Protection of human rights

In 2001, the protection of human rights—civil and political, as well as economic, social and cultural—continued to be a major focus of UN activities.

The World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (Durban, South Africa, 31 August–8 September) adopted the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action, which pronounced slavery and the slave trade a crime against humanity, condemned racism and related practices, and committed the international community to combating the phenomena.

The International Convention against the Recruitment, Use, Financing and Training of Mercenaries, adopted by the General Assembly in 1989, entered into force on 20 October. As at 31 December, 22 States were party to the Convention.

In November, the Security Council, expressing its determination to give the fullest attention to the protection of children in armed conflict, made a series of recommendations to parties to armed conflict and to Member States, as well as requests to the Secretary-General.

During the year, the Commission on Human Rights appointed a Special Rapporteur on the situation of indigenous peoples' human rights and fundamental freedoms. It appointed an independent expert to examine the existing international criminal and human rights framework to protect persons from involuntary disappearance and decided to establish a working group to develop a legally binding instrument for the protection of all persons from enforced disappearance.

Special rapporteurs, special representatives and independent experts of the Commission and its subsidiary body, the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, examined, among other issues, allegations of torture; extralegal executions; impunity; mercenary activity; affirmative action; the rights of migrants; the independence of the judiciary; freedom of opinion and expression; freedom of religion or belief; human rights and terrorism; internally displaced persons; globalization and its impact on human rights; extreme poverty; illicit practices related to toxic and dangerous products and wastes; bioethics; sexual violence during armed conflict; violence against women; the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography; the situation of children affected by armed conflict; persons with HIV/AIDS; and persons with disabilities.

Working groups considered arbitrary detention, enforced or involuntary disappearances, discrimination against minorities, the right to development, contemporary forms of slavery and the rights of indigenous peoples.

Racism and racial discrimination

Third Decade against racism

The General Assembly, in resolution 48/91 [YUN 1993, p. 853], had proclaimed the Third Decade to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination (1993–2003) and adopted the Decade's Programme of Action; the Third Decade's goals and objectives were the same as those of the first Decade, which the Assembly had adopted in resolution 3057(XXVIII) [YUN 1973, p. 523]. The revised Programme of Action for the Third Decade was adopted by the Assembly in resolution 49/146 [YUN 1994, p. 988]. However, in accordance with a 1998 resolution of the Commission on Human Rights [YUN 1998, p. 645], the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights reorganized the activities of the Third Decade to focus on the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615).

Implementation of Programme of Action

Commission action. On 18 April [E/2001/23 (res. 2001/5)], the Commission on Human Rights, regretting the lack of interest, support and financial resources for the Decade and Programme of Action and that the activities planned for the Decade had not been fully implemented, recommended that the General Assembly ask the Secretary-General to assign high priority to the Programme's activities and earmark adequate resources to finance them; the Economic and Social Council approved the recommendation on 24 July (decision 2001/245). The Commission appealed to Governments, intergovernmental organizations, non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and individuals to contribute to the Trust Fund for the Decade's Programme of Action, and asked the Secretary-General to continue to encourage contributions. It also asked States to encourage the reporting of acts motivated by racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia or ethnic reasons and to give priority to education as the main means of preventing racism and racial discrimination.

Reports of Secretary-General. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 640], the Secretary-General, in a February report [E/CN.4/2001/20], described activities to implement the Programme of Action for the Third Decade, including preparations for the World Conference against racism (see below), the activities of the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance (see p. 617), and action taken by the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD) in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 611].

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 54/154 [YUN 1999, p. 605], the Secretary-General submitted to the Economic and Social Council in May his annual report on implementation of the Programme of Action [E/2001/74]. The report described the activities, taken as at 15 May, by UN bodies and specialized agencies to combat racism and racial discrimination, and presented an overview of the preparatory process for the World Conference against racism. Annexed to the report was a list of contributions made by Governments to the Trust Fund for the Programme of Action for the period 1999 to 2001. On 26 July, the Council took note of the May report (decision 2001/317).

In an October report [A/56/481] submitted pursuant to Assembly resolution 53/153 [YUN 1998, p. 636], the Secretary-General presented proposals to supplement the Programme of Action during the remaining two years of the Third Decade. The proposals, which were based on the Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference (see below), included action towards universal ratification by 2005 of the 1965 International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 2106 A (XX) [YUN 1965, p. 440] (see p. 593), capacity-building programmes for Africans and people of African descent and promotion of the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement [YUN 1998, p. 675]. Other areas for possible action focused on combating discrimination against migrants, a UN year or decade against the trafficking of persons, aspects of globalization that might lead to racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, and an evaluation of the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People (1995-2004) (see p. 689). Activities recommended for the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) included technical cooperation projects, the establishment of an anti-discrimination unit and the creation of a database containing information on practical means to address racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, remedies available through international mechanisms, opportunities for technical cooperation and academic studies, and specialized documentation. The report described the preparatory process for the World Conference, Conference activities and follow-up. It provided information on the situation of migrant workers and their families, as requested in Assembly resolution 55/84 [YUN 2000, p. 643], and, pursuant to Assembly resolution 55/162 [ibid., p. 62], highlighted the contribution of the Conference to the implementation of the United Nations Millennium Declaration [ibid., p. 49].

Subcommission action. On 15 August [E/CN.4/2002/2 (res. 2001/11)], the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, regretting the lack of interest, support and resources for the Decade and Programme of Action, called on Governments, UN bodies and interested NGOs to contribute to the Programme's implementation.

World Conference

As decided by the General Assembly in resolution 52/111 [YUN 1997, p. 629], the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (Durban, South Africa, 31 August–8 September) [A/CONF.189/12 & Corr.1 & Parts II & III] focused on practical measures to eradicate racism and racial discrimination, including measures of prevention, education and protection, and the provision of effective remedies.

On 8 September, the Conference adopted the Durban Declaration and Programme of Action, which committed States to undertake a wide range of measures to combat racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance at the international, national and regional levels. Among other things, the Declaration acknowledged that slavery and the slave trade were a crime against humanity and were among the major sources and manifestations of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance. A large part of the Programme of Action was devoted to prevention, education and protection measures, including the establishment of a follow-up observatory composed of five eminent persons from the various regions to work with the High Commissioner and UN bodies to help in implementing the Declaration and Programme of Action. It contained recommendations regarding Africans and people of African descent, indigenous people, migrants, refugees and other groups, including the Roma, Gypsies, Sinti and Travellers, and proposed that the Assembly develop an international convention to address discriminatory practices affecting persons with disabilities and declare a UN year or decade against trafficking in persons. A number of proposals contained in the Programme of Action were being considered to supplement the Programme of Action for the Third Decade to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination (see p. 615). The Commission on Human Rights was asked to consider, among other things, establishing a working group or other mechanism to study the problems of racial discrimination affecting people of African descent in the African diaspora.

The Conference had before it the report of its Credentials Committee [A/CONF.189/11] and a contribution of the Special Rapporteur on adequate housing as a component of an adequate standard of living [A/CONF.189/9] (see p. 671), as well as contributions submitted by NGOs [A/CONF.189/10 & Add.1-9] and national human rights institutions [A/CONF.189/Misc.1].

On 24 December, the General Assembly decided that the item on the elimination of racism and racial discrimination remained for consideration during its resumed fifty-sixth (2002) session (decision 56/464).

Preparatory process

The Preparatory Committee for the Conference held its second (21 May–1 June) [A/CONF.189/PC.2/30] and third (30 July–10 August) [A/CONF.189/PC.3/11] sessions, both in Geneva, to conclude its consideration of the agenda, organization and outcome of the Conference. The Committee's first session took place in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 641].

Contributions to the preparatory process were received from the Secretariat [A/CONF.189/PC.2/29], CERD [A/CONF.189/PC.2/13] and various UN human rights mechanisms, among them reports of the High Commissioner for Human Rights on Internet use to incite racial hatred, racist propaganda and xenophobia [A/CONF.189/PC.2/12], the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights [A/CONF.189/PC.2/19 & Add.1] and its Working Group on Indigenous Populations [A/CONF.189/PC.3/4], and the Special Rapporteurs on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance [A/CONF.189/PC.2/21 & Corr.1], on religious intolerance [A/CONF.189/PC.2/22], on the human rights of migrants [A/CONF.189/PC.2/23], on the right to freedom of opinion and expression [A/CONF.189/PC.2/24] and on violence against women [A/CONF.189/PC.3/5]. (For details of the reports, see under the specific subject item.)

Regional activities included the Regional Conference for Africa (Dakar, Senegal, 22–24 January) [A/CONF.189/PC.2/8] and the Asian Preparatory Meeting (Tehran, Iran, 19–21 February) [A/CONF.189/PC.2/9], an expert round table on the protection of human rights in migrant flows (Segovia, Spain, 16–17 February) [A/CONF.189/PC.2/Misc.4] and a meeting of indigenous peoples (Sydney, Australia, 20–22 February) [A/CONF.189/PC.2/Misc.5].

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/5], the Commission adopted recommendations relating to the Conference and preparatory process, which it submitted to the Economic and Social Council for approval.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council, on the recommendation of the Commission on Human Rights [E/2001/23], adopted decision 2001/245 without vote [agenda item 14 (g)].

Racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance

At its 40th plenary meeting, on 24 July 2001, the Economic and Social Council, taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/5 of 18 April 2001, approved the Commission's recommendation that the General Assembly request the Secretary-General to assign high priority to the activities of the revised Programme of Action for the Third Decade to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination (1993–2003) and to earmark adequate resources to finance the activities of the Programme.

The Council also approved the Commission's requests to the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights:

(a) To continue to undertake research and consultations on the use of the Internet for the purposes of incitement to racial hatred, racist propaganda and xenophobia, to study ways of promoting international cooperation in this area, and to draw up a programme of human rights education and exchanges over the Internet on experience in the struggle against racism, xenophobia and anti-Semitism;

(b) To provide, insofar as possible, non-governmental organizations with technical assistance for the holding of a forum before and partly during the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance;

(c) To explore ways and means of effectively involving all parliaments to participate actively in the preparation of the World Conference through the relevant international organizations.

The Council further approved the Commission's recommendations that:

(a) The issue of universal ratification of the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, as well as the reservations thereto, and the question of recognition of the competence of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination to receive individual complaints, be considered at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance;

(b) A gender-based approach be systematically adopted throughout the preparations for and in the outcome of the World Conference;

(c) The particular situation of children and young people receive special attention during the preparations for and during the World Conference itself, and especially in its outcome;

(d) The particular situation of indigenous people receive special attention during the preparations for and during the World Conference, and especially in its outcome;

(e) Special attention be accorded during the preparations for and during the World Conference, especially in its outcome, to the particular situation of migrants.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/11], the Subcommission suggested topics for discussion at the Conference and recommended that the Conference define a global and system-wide strategy to combat racism and racial discrimination and adopt effective follow-up procedures and mechanisms.

Contemporary forms of racism

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In February [E/CN.4/2001/21 & Corr.1], the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, Maurice Glèlè-Ahanhanzo (Benin), summarized information he had received regarding racial discrimination in the application of the death penalty and in efforts to combat drug trafficking in the United States, racist activities by far-right, neo-Nazi and skinhead organizations in Norway, violence and atrocities against the Dalits in India, and incidents of anti-Semitism in many parts of the world. The report contained replies to allegations of racism, racial discrimination and xenophobia transmitted to four Governments by the Special Rapporteur, legislative, judicial or other measures taken or envisaged by Governments against racist propaganda, and action by civil society.

The Special Rapporteur observed that significant progress had been made to raise awareness about the negative effects of racism, racial discrimination and xenophobia, but that measures adopted by Governments were not always implemented. He made a series of recommendations for States, including the ratification by those that had not done so of the 1965 International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (see p. 593) and the establishment of national institutions promoting and protecting human rights, with a particular focus on combating racism. In his view, the reform of the UN system had in recent years resulted in a gradual downgrading of efforts to combat racism. Thus, the Special Rapporteur recommended that the Commission establish a major programme or service within OHCHR devoted entirely to combating racism, racial discrimination and related intolerance.

On 15 October [E/CN.4/2002/138], the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya claimed that the Special Rapporteur's references in his report to racist and xenophobic incidents in the country were based on biased media reports.

In an April report [A/CONF.189/PC.2/21 & Corr.1,2] on the main features of extreme-right parties and organizations (ultra-nationalists, neo-Nazis, neo-Fascists, skinheads), the Special Rapporteur concluded that the ideology and violence promoted by them against minorities and immigrants were incompatible with the trend towards global integration and violated the basic principles of equality and non-discrimination enshrined in human rights instruments. He recommended that the Preparatory Committee request Governments concerned to provide the World Conference against racism with a national study on measures adopted to prohibit the activities of extreme-right organizations.

The Special Rapporteur described his visit to Australia (22 April-10 May) [E/CN.4/2002/24/Add.1 & Corr.1], where he evaluated the impact of legislation and government policy in combating racism, racial discrimination and xenophobia on the various components of the population, particularly regarding the situation of the Aboriginal peoples and the Torres Strait Islanders. Information had reached the Special Rapporteur relating to the difficulties in the reconciliation process between indigenous and non-indigenous inhabitants, and discriminatory laws on mandatory sentencing enforced in Western Australia and the Northern Territory, which had led to an excessive percentage of Aboriginals among the prison population. He also examined the policy of multiculturalism underlying Australia's immigration policy and the social cohesion of the country.

The Special Rapporteur concluded that the Government had made substantial efforts to end racism and racial discrimination, and programmes to improve the living conditions of indigenous peoples existed, even if they had not yet succeeded in producing the desired results. The question of reconciliation with the Aboriginal peoples remained outstanding, as their land rights were restricted, no reparation or apology had been made regarding the "stolen generations"—the forcible removal of indigenous children from their families for adoption by white families as a policy of assimilation—cultural clashes occurred and highly precarious living conditions existed outside the wealth of the majority of Australians. The Special Rapporteur recommended, among other things, basing the multiculturalism policy on the recognition of the right to difference and to cultural identity, with broad communication between one culture and another; a humane solution to the question of the stolen generations; and acceleration of compensation to Aboriginals and Torres Strait Islanders whose wages had been withheld since 1897, through the implementation of protection measures.

Report of High Commissioner. An April report of the High Commissioner [A/CONF.189/PC.2/12] described the degree of Internet use worldwide. Racist individuals and groups had availed themselves of technology to establish and strengthen ties among themselves and to make their racist materials available online. She reviewed individual governmental responses to Internet-based racist speech in national court cases and through regulatory efforts, coordinated governmental responses and approaches by industry and other private organizations such as hotlines, codes of conduct and other voluntary restraints, products to block access to sites and rating systems for web sites. The High Commissioner pointed out that some of the measures to combat the phenomenon were legal, while many were of a non-legal nature. She concluded that approaches to combating Internet-based racism were still evolving.

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/5], the Commission invited Governments thus far visited by the Special Rapporteur to consider ways to implement the recommendations contained in his reports and requested him to include in his 2002 report information on measures to implement the recommendations, and to undertake follow-up visits, if necessary. The High Commissioner was urged to provide the countries visited, at their request, with advisory services and technical assistance. She was asked to conduct research and hold consultations on Internet use to incite racial hatred, racist propaganda and xenophobia, to study ways of promoting international cooperation in that area and to draw up a programme of human rights education and exchanges over the Internet on the struggle against racism, xenophobia and anti-Semitism; the Economic and Social Council approved that request on 24 July (decision 2001/245).

Racism and democracy

Report of High Commissioner. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 648], the High Commissioner, in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/60], described the activities undertaken by States, Commission mechanisms and human rights treaty bodies to promote tolerance and fight against racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, as a way to strengthen democracy. In that regard, the report highlighted regional meetings and seminars organized to discuss that item as part of preparations for the World Conference against racism (see p. 616). It also described related activities of the treaty bodies, including the Human Rights Committee, the Committee against Torture and CERD, as well as the work of the Working Group on Indigenous Populations and of the Special Rapporteurs on the right to education, on contemporary forms of racism and on migrants' human rights.

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/43], the Commission, condemning legislation and practices based on racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance as incompatible with democracy, urged States to reinforce their commitment to promote tolerance and to fight racism as a way to strengthen democracy and transparent and accountable governance. It invited the treaty bodies and the Commission's mechanisms, particularly the Special Rapporteur on contemporary forms of racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, to give attention to human rights violations stemming from the rise of racism and xenophobia in political circles and society at large. The High Commissioner was asked to report in 2002.

Migrant workers

Reports of Special Rapporteur. The Special Rapporteur on the human rights of migrants, Gabriela Rodríguez Pizarro (Costa Rica), in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/83] covering 6 January to 15 December 2000, stated that during the period under review she had sent urgent appeals to five Governments regarding alleged violations of migrants' human rights and communications to two Governments requesting information on migrants' working conditions. The Special Rapporteur discussed matters of concern to her, including irregular migration—trafficking in persons and smuggling of migrants—the sale of fraudulent documents, the situation of migrant women (see p. 1058) and unaccompanied minors, undocumented minors without access to health care and education, broken families and acts of racism, xenophobia and racial discrimination.

The Special Rapporteur stated that incidents of racism, xenophobia and discrimination occurred with greater intensity every day, particularly against migrants. She regretted that during the period under review some incidents resulted in the deaths of many migrants inside trucks, in the holds of ships, on board rafts or in detention centres. She welcomed the signing of the 2000 United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and its Protocols to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, and against the Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 55/25 [YUN 2000, p. 1048]. The Special Rapporteur recommended measures to protect migrants' human rights and prevent violations. States were urged to hold information campaigns, train border officials and guarantee health services for migrants. Governments were urged to strengthen and encourage civil society and academic institutions to study migration, activate forums and intersectoral round tables, improve the situation of migrants in detention through human rights training for immigration officials and facilitate the return of migrants to their countries of origin.

An April report [A/CONF.189/PC.2/23] of the Special Rapporteur contained suggestions to improve the channels by which discrimination and violence against migrants could be corrected. She recommended information campaigns, educational forums aimed at avoiding racial discrimination, xenophobia and intolerance towards migrants, ratification by States that had not done so of the 1990 International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 45/158 [YUN 1990, p. 594] (see p. 596), programmes to facilitate migrants' access to basic social services, removing barriers that prevented migrants from equality before the law, ensuring that violations of migrants' human rights were reported and legal proceedings instituted against those responsible, policies to integrate migrant women into all sectors, training for police officers and border guards at ports and airports, and media investigation into the causes of migration.

During her visit to Ecuador (5-16 November) [E/CN.4/2002/94/Add.1], the Special Rapporteur focused on illegal migration and the smuggling of migrants, the situation of families in the places of origin of migration and immigration into Ecuador. She noted that a large-scale flow of Ecuadorians abroad resulted from the lack of opportunities to provide adequately for their families and that extreme poverty, poor knowledge of legal emigration and the lack of proper papers rendered them vulnerable to smugglers and traffickers. The Special Rapporteur recommended campaigns to inform the population of legal means of migration and the risks of illegal routes, assistance to migrants' families, including through psychosocial programmes, and advice on productive investment of migrants' remittances. The Special Rapporteur proposed legislative reforms, guaranteeing migrants without papers basic non-discriminatory health and educational services, the application of protection measures for Ecuadorian migrants abroad who were victims of abuse and advocacy measures by civil society and indigenous, social and peasant organizations.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/92 [YUN 2000, p. 652], the Secretary-General, in an August report [A/56/310], summarized action taken by Governments to protect migrants' rights and the Special Rapporteur's activities.

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/52], the Commission asked the Special Rapporteur to request, receive and exchange information on violations of migrants' human rights from Governments, treaty bodies, specialized agencies, special rapporteurs, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs, and to respond to such information. She was also asked to continue her programme of country visits, to take into account bilateral and regional negotiations aimed at addressing the return and reinsertion of non-documented migrants or those in an irregular situation, and to report in 2002. The Secretary-General was asked to assist her.

Also on 24 April [res. 2001/56], the Commission requested States to adopt measures to prevent the violation of migrants' human rights while in transit, including at ports and airports and at borders and migration checkpoints, and to prosecute those who violated their rights while in transit. States were asked to prosecute labour law violations with regard to migrant workers and to consider acceding to the 1990 Convention.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third (Social, Humanitarian and Cultural) Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/170 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Protection of migrants

The General Assembly,
Recalling its resolution 55/92 of 4 December 2000,
Considering that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights proclaims that all human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights and that everyone is en- titled to all the rights and freedoms set out therein, without distinction of any kind, in particular as to race, colour or national origin,

Reaffirming the provisions concerning migrants adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights, the International Conference on Population and Development, the World Summit for Social Development and the Fourth World Conference on Women,

Taking note of the positive treatment of the issue of migrants at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, and recognizing the economic, social and cultural contributions of migrants to the countries of destination and origin,

Bearing in mind the report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the human rights of migrants,

Taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolutions 2001/52 on the human rights of migrants and 2001/56 on the protection of migrants and their families, of 24 April 2001,

Recalling its resolution 40/144 of 13 December 1985, by which it approved the Declaration on the Human Rights of Individuals Who are not Nationals of the Country in which They Live,

Recognizing the positive contributions that migrants frequently make, including through their eventual integration into their host society,

Bearing in mind the situation of vulnerability in which migrants frequently find themselves, owing, inter alia, to their absence from their States of origin and to the difficulties they encounter because of differences of language, custom and culture, as well as the economic and social difficulties and obstacles to the return to their States of origin of migrants who are non-documented or in an irregular situation,

Bearing in mind also the need for a focused and consistent approach towards migrants as a specific vulnerable group, in particular migrant women and children,

Deeply concerned at the manifestations of violence, racism, xenophobia and other forms of discrimination and inhuman and degrading treatment against migrants, especially women and children, in different parts of the world,

Underlining the importance of the creation of conditions that foster greater harmony between migrant workers and the rest of the society of the States in which they reside, with the aim of eliminating the growing manifestations of racism and xenophobia perpetrated in segments of many societies by individuals or groups against migrants,

Encouraged by the increasing interest of the international community in the effective and full protection of the human rights of all migrants, and underlining the need to make further efforts to ensure respect for the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all migrants,

Noting the efforts made by States to penalize the international trafficking of migrants and to protect the victims of this illegal activity,

Taking note of Advisory Opinion OC-16/99, issued by the Inter-American Court of Human Rights on 1 October 1999, on The Right to Information on Consular Assistance in the Framework of the Guarantees of the Due Process of Law, in the case of foreign nationals detained by the authorities of a receiving State,

1. Welcomes the renewed commitment made in the United Nations Millennium Declaration to take measures to ensure respect for and protection of the human rights of migrants, migrant workers and their families, to eliminate the increasing acts of racism and xenophobia in many societies and to promote greater harmony and tolerance in all societies;

2. Requests all Member States, in conformity with their respective constitutional systems, effectively to promote and protect the human rights of all migrants, in conformity with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the international instruments to which they are party, which may include the International Covenants on Human Rights, the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, the Convention on the Rights of the Child and other applicable international human rights instruments;

3. Strongly condemns all forms of racial discrimination and xenophobia with regard to access to employment, vocational training, housing, schooling, health services and social services, as well as services intended for use by the public, and welcomes the active role played by governmental and non-governmental organizations in combating racism and assisting individual victims of racist acts, including migrant victims;

4. Calls upon all States to review and, where necessary, revise immigration policies with a view to eliminating all discriminatory practices against migrants and to provide specialized training for government policy-making and law enforcement, immigration and other concerned officials, thus underlining the importance of effective action to create conditions that foster greater harmony and tolerance within societies;

5. Reiterates the need for all States parties to protect fully the universally recognized human rights of migrants, especially women and children, regardless of their legal status, and to treat them humanely, in particular with regard to assistance and protection;

6. Reaffirms emphatically the duty of States parties to ensure full respect for and observance of the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations of 1963, in particular with regard to the right of foreign nationals, regardless of their immigration status, to communicate with a consular official of their own State in the case of detention, and the obligation of the State in whose territory the detention occurs to inform the foreign national of that right;

7. Reaffirms the responsibility of Governments to safeguard and protect the rights of migrants against illegal or violent acts, in particular acts of racial discrimination and crimes perpetrated with racist or xenophobic motivation by individuals or groups, and urges them to reinforce measures in this regard;

8. Urges all States to adopt effective measures to put an end to the arbitrary arrest and detention of migrants, including by individuals or groups;

9. Expresses its support for the work of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the human rights of migrants, and requests her to take into account the recommendations contained in the

Durban Declaration and Programme of Action in the performance of her mandate, tasks and duties;

10. Encourages Member States that have not yet done so to enact domestic criminal legislation to combat the international trafficking of migrants, which should take into account, in particular, trafficking that endangers the lives of migrants or includes different forms of servitude or exploitation, such as any form of debt bondage or sexual or labour exploitation, and to strengthen international cooperation to combat such trafficking;

11. Encourages all Governments to remove obstacles that may prevent the safe, unrestricted and expeditious transfer of earnings, assets and pensions of migrants to their country of origin or to any other countries, in conformity with applicable legislation, and to consider, as appropriate, measures to solve other problems that may impede such transfers;

12. Welcomes immigration programmes, adopted by some countries, that allow migrants to integrate fully into the host countries, facilitate family reunification and promote a harmonious and tolerant environment, and encourages States to consider the possibility of adopting these types of programmes;

13. Calls upon all States to protect the human rights of migrant children, in particular unaccompanied migrant children, ensuring that the best interests of the children and the importance of reuniting them with their parents, when possible and appropriate, are the paramount consideration, and encourages the relevant United Nations bodies, within the framework of their respective mandates, to pay special attention to the conditions of migrant children in all States and, where necessary, to put forward recommendations for strengthening their protection;

14. Welcomes the proclamation of 18 December as International Migrants Day and the invitation to Member States and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to observe it through, inter alia, the dissemination of information on the human rights and fundamental freedoms of migrants and on their economic, social and cultural contributions to their host and home countries, the sharing of experience and the design of actions to ensure their protection;

15. Encourages States to participate in regional dialogues on problems of migration, and invites them to design and implement programmes with States of other regions in order to protect the rights of migrants;

16. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the implementation of the present resolution under the sub-item entitled "Human rights questions, including alternative approaches for improving the effective enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms".

Add.11, summarized the views expressed by Governments, UN agencies and NGOs on human rights and cultural diversity.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/156 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Human rights and cultural diversity

The General Assembly,

Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, as well as other pertinent human rights instruments,

Recalling also its resolutions 54/160 of 17 December 1999 and 55/91 of 4 December 2000, and recalling further its resolutions 54/113 of 10 December 1999 and 55/23 of 13 November 2000 on the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations,

Noting that numerous instruments within the United Nations system promote cultural diversity, as well as the conservation and development of culture, in particular the Declaration of the Principles of International Culture Cooperation proclaimed on 4 November 1966 by the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization at its fourteenth session,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General,

Welcoming the adoption of the Global Agenda for Dialogue among Civilizations by its resolution 56/6 of 9 November 2001,

Welcoming also the contribution made through the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held at Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001, to the promotion of respect for cultural diversity,

Welcoming further the Universal Declaration on Cultural Diversity of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, together with its Action Plan, adopted on 2 November 2001 by the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization at its thirty-first session, in which member States invited the United Nations system and other intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned to cooperate with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in the promotion of the principles set forth in the Declaration and its Action Plan with a view to enhancing the synergy of actions in favour of cultural diversity,

Reaffirming that all human rights are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated and that the international community must treat human rights globally in a fair and equal manner, on the same footing and with the same emphasis, and that, while the significance of national and regional particularities and various historical, cultural and religious backgrounds must be borne in mind, it is the duty of States, regardless of their political, economic and cultural systems, to promote and protect all human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Other forms of intolerance

Cultural prejudice

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/91 [YUN 2000, p. 655], the Secretary-General, in a July report with later addendum [A/56/204 &

Recognizing that cultural diversity and the pursuit of cultural development by all peoples and nations are a source of mutual enrichment for the cultural life of humankind,

Taking into account that a culture of peace actively fosters non-violence and respect for human rights and strengthens solidarity among peoples and nations and dialogue between cultures,

Recognizing that all cultures and civilizations share a common set of universal values,

Considering that tolerance of cultural, ethnic, religious and linguistic diversities, as well as dialogue among and within civilizations, is essential for peace, understanding and friendship among individuals and people of different cultures and nations of the world, while manifestations of cultural prejudice, intolerance and xenophobia towards different cultures and religions generate hatred and violence among peoples and nations throughout the world,

Recognizing in each culture a dignity and value that deserves recognition, respect and preservation, and convinced that, in their rich variety and diversity, and in the reciprocal influences that they exert on one another, all cultures form part of the common heritage belonging to all humankind,

Convinced that the promotion of cultural pluralism and tolerance towards and dialogue among various cultures and civilizations would contribute to the efforts of all peoples and nations to enrich their cultures and traditions by engaging in a mutually beneficial exchange of knowledge and intellectual, moral and material achievements,

1. Affirms the importance for all peoples and nations to hold, develop and preserve their cultural heritage and traditions in a national and international atmosphere of peace, tolerance and mutual respect;

2. Welcomes the United Nations Millennium Declaration of 8 September 2000, which considers, inter alia, that tolerance is one of the fundamental values essential to international relations in the twenty-first century and that it should include the active promotion of a culture of peace and dialogue among civilizations, with human beings respecting one another in all their diversity of belief, culture and language, neither fearing nor repressing differences within and between societies but cherishing them as a precious asset of humanity;

3. Recognizes the right of everyone to take part in cultural life and to enjoy the benefits of scientific progress and its applications;

4. Affirms that the international community should strive to respond to the challenges and opportunities posed by globalization in a manner that ensures respect for the cultural diversity of all;

5. Also affirms that intercultural dialogue essentially enriches the common understanding of human rights and that the benefits to be derived from the encouragement and development of international contacts and cooperation in the cultural fields are important;

6. Welcomes the recognition at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance of the necessity of respecting and maximizing the benefits of diversity within and among all nations in working together to build a harmonious and productive future by putting into practice and promoting values and principles such as justice, equality and non-discrimination, democracy, fairness and friendship, tolerance and respect within and between communities and nations, in particular through public information and education programmes to raise awareness and understanding of the benefits of cultural diversity, including programmes where the public authorities work in partnership with international and non-governmental organizations and other sectors of civil society;

7. Recognizes that respect for cultural diversity and the cultural rights of all enhances cultural pluralism, contributing to a wider exchange of knowledge and understanding of cultural background, advancing the application and enjoyment of universally accepted human rights throughout the world and fostering stable friendly relations among peoples and nations worldwide;

8. Emphasizes that the promotion of cultural pluralism and tolerance at the national, regional and international levels is important for enhancing respect for cultural rights and cultural diversity;

9. Also emphasizes the fact that tolerance and respect for diversity facilitate the universal promotion and protection of human rights, including gender equality and the enjoyment of all human rights by all;

10. Urges all actors on the international scene to build an international order based on inclusion, justice, equality and equity, human dignity, mutual understanding and promotion of and respect for cultural diversity and universal human rights, and to reject all doctrines of exclusion based on racism, racial discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance;

11. Urges States to work to ensure that their political and legal systems reflect the multicultural diversity within their societies and, where necessary, to improve democratic institutions so that they are more fully participatory and avoid marginalization and exclusion of, and discrimination against, specific sectors of society;

12. Calls upon States, international organizations and United Nations agencies, and invites civil society, including non-governmental organizations, to recognize and promote respect for cultural diversity for the purpose of advancing the objectives of peace, development and universally accepted human rights;

13. Requests the Secretary-General, in the light of the present resolution, to prepare a report on human rights and cultural diversity, taking into account the views of Member States, relevant United Nations agencies and non-governmental organizations, as well as the considerations in the present resolution regarding the recognition and importance of cultural diversity among all peoples and nations in the world, and to submit it to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

14. Decides to continue consideration of this question at its fifty-seventh session under the sub-item entitled "Human rights questions, including alternative approaches for improving the effective enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms".

Discrimination against minorities

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/55], the Commission, expressing concern at the frequency and severity of disputes and conflicts regarding minorities, urged States and the international community to promote and protect the rights of persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities, as set out in the 1992 Declaration on the Rights of Persons Belonging to National or Ethnic, Religious and Linguistic Minorities, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 47/135 [YUN 1992, p. 722]. The Secretary-General was asked to provide, at the request of Governments, qualified expertise on minority issues and to report in 2002. The High Commissioner was called on to promote the Declaration's implementation, improve the coordination and cooperation of UN programmes and agencies dealing with minority issues, and invite Governments and relevant intergovernmental organizations and NGOs to submit their views on how best to protect the rights of minorities.

Working Group activities. The five-member Working Group on Minorities, at its seventh session (Geneva, 14-18 May) [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/22], reviewed the promotion of the 1992 Declaration, examined possible solutions to problems involving minorities, including the promotion of mutual understanding between and among minorities and Governments, and recommended further measures to promote and protect minority rights. It also discussed its future role.

The Group considered the final text of the commentary on the Declaration [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.5/2001/2], prepared by its Chairperson, Asbjørn Eide (Norway), which was intended to serve as a guide to the understanding and application of the Declaration. It also had before it the report of the second workshop on multiculturalism in Africa: peaceful and constructive group accommodation in situations involving minorities and indigenous peoples (Kidal, Mali, 8-13 January) [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.5/2001/3]. The workshop was a continuation of discussions at a seminar held in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 656].

The Group adopted recommendations for Governments, regional and subregional organizations, human rights treaty bodies and NGOs. The High Commissioner was asked to request the views of intergovernmental organizations and NGOs on the drafting of a convention on the rights of minorities. The Commission was requested to consider appointing a special representative on minorities and to recommend the establishment of a voluntary trust fund to facilitate participation in the Group of minority representatives and experts from developing countries, and other relevant activities.

At the invitation of the Government, the Working Group visited Mauritius from 7 to 10 September [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.5/2002/2], where it focused on the constructive accommodation of the various ethnic groups on the main island of Mauritius and plans for the autonomy of Rodrigues Island. On the positive side, the Group observed a spirit of tolerance and respect among various ethnic communities, comprehensive legislation to protect all citizens from discrimination, the establishment and activities of the National Commission on Human Rights and a proposal to guarantee autonomous status to Rodrigues Island. Subjects of concern were the lack of statistical data on the participation of various ethnic communities in economic and social life, the low level of educational attainment among the Creole community and the social and economic difficulties faced by the Chagossian/Ilois community while awaiting and campaigning for their return to Chagos Island. The Group proposed the collection of disaggregated data on disadvantaged communities, improvement of primary school facilities in marginalized regions, strengthening the National Commission on Human Rights and minority rights training for adjudication, law enforcement, and public administration personnel. Regarding Rodrigues Island, the Group cautioned the future Government against promoting tourism and other development projects involving the exploitation of natural resources.

Reports of Secretary-General. The Commission considered a report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/2001/81], submitted pursuant to its 2000 request [YUN 2000, p. 656], on measures to advance the situation of minorities taken by the High Commissioner, the Working Group on Minorities and the World Conference against racism. He also described activities to promote the 1992 Declaration.

In response to General Assembly resolution 54/162 [YUN 1999, p. 617], the Secretary-General, in an August report [A/56/258], described efforts made to promote minority rights and to establish more effective and long-term responses to prevent ethnic conflict. The report also provided information regarding cooperation among UN programmes and agencies, the participation of NGOs and minorities in the Working Group, intercultural and multicultural education, and the participation of minorities in decisions affecting them. The Secretary-General concluded that there was increasing awareness that protecting and promoting the rights of minorities could lead to stable societies.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/9], the Subcommission, noting the tenth anniversary of the Declaration's adoption in 2002, recommended the designation of an international year for minorities, the appointment of a special rapporteur on minority issues and the establishment of a voluntary trust fund to facilitate the participation in the Working Group of mi-minority representatives and experts from developing countries. It recommended that the High Commissioner, when inviting Governments to submit views on how best to protect minorities' rights, also request their views on drafting a convention on the rights of minorities. OHCHR was asked to provide the Group with additional expertise and services; the Secretary-General, to invite UN funds and programmes to provide information on their policies regarding the protection of minority rights and the incorporation of the matter in their country programmes; and Mr. Eide, to update his 1993 study on peaceful and constructive approaches to situations involving minorities [YUN 1993, p. 869] and to submit a progress report in 2002 and a final report in 2003.

International seminar. Pursuant to Economic and Social Council decision 2000/269 [YUN 2000, p. 656], OHCHR organized the International Seminar on Cooperation for the Better Protection of the Rights of Minorities (Durban, South Africa, 1, 2 and 5 September) [E/CN.4/2002/92]. The seminar considered the relationship between the prevention of racial discrimination and the protection of minorities; facilitating cooperation between international, regional and national bodies and human rights mechanisms to better protect the rights of minorities; and mainstreaming minority rights in development assistance and cooperation as a means of preventing conflict. Participants made recommendations to strengthen the role of various entities to protect the rights of minority communities and groups, including by UN treaty bodies and special procedures, the Working Group on Minorities, OHCHR, multilateral trade, finance and bilateral development actors, Governments, regional and national human rights mechanisms, and institutions, the media and NGOs.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/162 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Effective promotion of the Declaration on the Rights of Persons Belonging to National or Ethnic, Religious and Linguistic Minorities

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 47/135 of 18 December 1992, as well as its subsequent resolutions on the Declaration on the Rights of Persons Belonging to National or Ethnic, Religious and Linguistic Minorities,

Considering that the promotion and protection of the rights of persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities contribute to political and social stability and peace and enrich the cultural diversity and heritage of society as a whole in the States in which such persons live,

Concerned by the frequency and severity of disputes and conflicts concerning minorities in many countries and their often tragic consequences, and concerned also that persons belonging to minorities are particularly vulnerable to displacement through, inter alia, population transfers, refugee flows and forced relocation,

Recognizing that the effective promotion and protection of the rights of persons belonging to minorities is a fundamental part of the promotion and protection of human rights, and acknowledging that measures in this area can also contribute significantly to conflict prevention,

Emphasizing the importance of human rights education as an effective tool to promote an inclusive society and understanding of and tolerance towards and among persons belonging to minorities,

Acknowledging that the United Nations has an important role to play regarding the protection of minorities by, inter alia, taking due account of and giving effect to the Declaration,

Noting that the Working Group on Minorities of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights held its sixth and seventh sessions from 22 to 26 May 2000 and 14 to 18 May 2001, respectively,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Recognizes that respect for human rights and the promotion of understanding and tolerance by Governments as well as between and among minorities are central to the promotion and protection of the rights of persons belonging to minorities;
3. Reaffirms the obligation of States to ensure that persons belonging to minorities may exercise fully and effectively all human rights and fundamental freedoms without any discrimination and in full equality before the law, in accordance with the Declaration on the Rights of Persons Belonging to National or Ethnic, Religious and Linguistic Minorities, and as emphasized at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held at Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001;

4. Urges States and the international community to promote and protect the rights of persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities, as set out in the Declaration, including through the provision of adequate education and the facilitation of their participation in all aspects of the political, economic, social, religious and cultural life of society and in the economic progress and development of their country, and to apply a gender perspective while doing so;

5. Calls upon States to give special attention to the promotion and protection of the human rights of children, girls as well as boys, belonging to minorities;

6. Urges States to take, as appropriate, all necessary constitutional, legislative, administrative and other measures to promote and give effect to the Declaration, and appeals to States to cooperate bilaterally and multilaterally, in accordance with the Declaration, in order to promote and protect the rights of persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities;

7. Calls upon States to take all appropriate measures to protect the cultural and religious sites of national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities;

8. Calls upon the Secretary-General to make available, at the request of Governments concerned, qualified expertise on minority issues, including the prevention and resolution of disputes, to assist in existing or potential situations involving minorities;

9. Calls upon the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to promote, within her mandate, the implementation of the Declaration and to continue to engage in a dialogue with Governments for that purpose, and in this regard draws attention to the work on the United Nations Guide for Minorities;

10. Requests the High Commissioner to continue her efforts to improve the coordination and co-operation among United Nations programmes and agencies on activities related to the promotion and protection of the rights of persons belonging to minorities and to take the work of relevant regional organizations active in the field of human rights into account in her endeavours;

11. Welcomes the inter-agency consultation of the High Commissioner with United Nations programmes and agencies on minority issues, and calls upon those programmes and agencies to contribute actively to this process;

12. Invites the human rights treaty bodies, when considering reports submitted by States parties, as well as the reports of special representatives, special rapporteurs and working groups of the Commission on Human Rights, to continue to give attention, within their respective mandates, to situations and rights of persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities;

13. Encourages intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to continue to contribute to the promotion and protection of the rights of persons belonging to national or ethnic, religious and linguistic minorities;

14. Calls upon the Working Group on Minorities of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights to implement further its mandate with the involvement of a wide range of participants;

15. Invites the High Commissioner to seek voluntary contributions to facilitate the effective participation, including through training seminars, in the work of the Working Group on Minorities of representatives of non-governmental organizations and persons belonging to minorities, in particular those from developing countries;

16. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session on the implementation of the present resolution, and to continue to include examples of good practices in the field of education and of the effective participation of minorities in decision-making processes;

17. Decides to continue consideration of this question at its fifty-eighth session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

Discrimination based on work and descent

In response to a 2000 Subcommission request [YUN 2000, p. 657], Rajendra Kalidas Wimala Goonesekere (Sri Lanka) submitted, in June [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/16], a working paper on discrimination based on work and descent. He reviewed the situation in several Asian countries influenced by the caste system, which comprised some 250 million individuals. Although he had focused on Asia, the problem also existed in parts of Africa and possibly South America. He hoped that the paper demonstrated that there was a serious problem of human rights violations based on work and descent and believed that complaints of discrimination voiced through UN mechanisms merited further study.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [dec. 2001/110], the Subcommission entrusted Mr. Goonesekere with preparing, without financial implications, an expanded paper in 2002.

Affirmative action

Report of Special Rapporteur. In accordance with a 2000 Subcommission decision [YUN 2000, p. 657], the Special Rapporteur on the concept and practice of affirmative action, Marc Bossuyt (Belgium), presented a June progress report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/15] describing the concept of affirmative action, the target groups that should benefit from such action, the justification for it and the forms it might take. The Special Rapporteur stated that he had received replies from Governments and specialized agencies to a questionnaire on national documentation on affirmative action but would wait to receive more responses so that his next report would be based on the widest possible information. A copy of the questionnaire was annexed to the report.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [dec. 2001/107], the Subcommission asked the Secretary-General to invite Governments, international organizations, human rights treaty bodies, particularly the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD), and NGOs to transmit their comments on the Special Rapporteur's preliminary [YUN 2000, p. 657] and progress (see above) reports and to remind them to submit their responses to the questionnaire before 1 February 2002.

Rights of non-citizens

In accordance with a 2000 Subcommission decision [YUN 2000, p. 657], the Special Rapporteur on the rights of non-citizens, David Weissbrodt (United States), submitted in June a preliminary report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/20] on a comprehensive study of the rights of non-citizens. The report examined non-citizens' rights, as provided in the 1965 International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination (see p. 593) and the jurisprudence of CERD, other international standards relating to non-citizens, regional developments, particularly in Europe, and other related issues, including distinctions among non-citizens, the situation of the Roma, trafficking in women and children, and the right to freedom of movement. The Special Rapporteur observed that continued discrimination against non-citizens indicated a lack of standards adopted and implemented by States. He recommended that States should be encouraged to abide by the 1985 Declaration on the Human Rights of Individuals Who are not Nationals of the Country in which They Live, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 40/144 [YUN 1985, p. 850], and those States that had not done so encouraged to sign and ratify the 1990 International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families (see p. 596). He proposed that treaty bodies prepare general comments and recommendations to establish a consistent, structured approach on the issue. States should incorporate international standards in developing national legislation, policies and practices.

An addendum to the report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/20/Add.1] summarized the various jurisprudence and concluding observations on which the preliminary report was based.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [dec. 2001/108], the Subcommission requested the Secretary-General to transmit a questionnaire of the Special Rapporteur to Governments, inter-governmental organizations, treaty bodies, particularly CERD, and NGOs to solicit information in connection with the study, which would be taken into account by the Special Rapporteur in preparing his 2002 progress report.

Non-discrimination

On 16 August [res. 2001/23], the Subcommission entrusted Fried van Hoof (Netherlands) with preparing for 2002, without financial implications, a working paper on non-discrimination as enshrined in article 2, paragraph 2, of the 1966 International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2200 A (XXI) [YUN 1966, p. 419] (see p. 590), regarding the exercise of the rights enunciated in the Covenant without discrimination as to race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status.

Religious intolerance

Report of Special Rapporteur. In a February report [E/CN.4/2001/63], the Special Rapporteur on religious intolerance, Abdelfattah Amor (Tunisia), summarized 85 communications, including one urgent appeal, sent by him to 52 States, as well as 17 replies received, regarding incidents and governmental action inconsistent with the provisions of the 1981 Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, adopted in General Assembly resolution 36/55 [YUN 1981, p. 881]. The Special Rapporteur discussed three studies he had prepared, which focused on minorities and women. He summarized the work of the preparatory committee for the international consultative conference on school education in relation to freedom of religion or belief (see p. 627) and reported on follow-up to his visits to Turkey [YUN 1999, p. 619] and Bangladesh [YUN 2000, p. 658]. The Special Rapporteur noted a worldwide trend towards increased religious intolerance and discrimination against minorities. State institutions in many parts of the world had adopted discriminatory, intolerant or indifferent policies, legislation or practices, which threatened the very existence of minorities as a specific community. Minorities were also victims of the intolerance of non-State entities, especially religious communities, extremist organizations and the media. Certain media outlets played a particularly damaging role in helping to foment the fear of Islam and Christianity.

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/4], by a roll-call vote of 28 to 15, with 9 abstentions, the Commission, expressing concern at negative stereotyping of religions and that Islam was associated with human rights violations and terrorism, encouraged States to provide adequate protection against human rights violations resulting from defamation of religions and to promote tolerance and respect for religions. The High Commissioner was called on to integrate human rights aspects into topical seminars and special debates on the positive contributions of cultures, as well as religious and cultural diversity; and to hold joint conferences with other international organizations to promote understanding of the universality of human rights and their implementation. She was asked to report in 2002.

On 23 April [res. 2001/42], the Commission condemned all forms of intolerance and discrimination based on religion or belief and urged States to: provide adequate and effective guarantees of freedom of thought, conscience, religion and belief; ensure that no one, because of religion or belief, was deprived of the right to life, liberty or security of person or tortured or arbitrarily detained; combat hatred, intolerance, violence, intimidation and coercion motivated by religious intolerance; recognize the right to worship or assemble in connection with a religion or belief and to establish and maintain places for those purposes; ensure that religious places were respected and protected; ensure that public officials respected different religions and beliefs; and promote tolerance through education and other means. The Commission decided to extend for three years the Special Rapporteur's mandate under the new title of Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief, as decided in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 658]. The Special Rapporteur was asked to submit an interim report to the General Assembly in 2001 (see below) and to report to the Commission in 2002.

The Economic and Social Council, on 24 July, endorsed the Commission's decision to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate and its requests to him to report in 2001 and 2002 (decision 2001/264).

Further reports of Special Rapporteur. At the invitation of the Government, the Special Rapporteur visited Argentina (23-30 April) [E/CN.4/2002/73/Add.1], where he focused on the legal aspects of freedom of religion and belief and on policy. According to NGO statistics, the proportion of Catholics was estimated at 88 per cent of the population; Protestants, 7 per cent; Muslims, 1.5 per cent; Jews, 1 per cent; and others, 2.5 per cent. Following an examination of the legal aspects and policy regarding freedom of religion and belief in Argentina, as well as the situation of religious communities and indigenous peoples, the Special Rapporteur noted that constitutional provisions guaranteed the freedom, legislation enshrined the principles of the 1981 Declaration, policy embodied respect for freedom of religion and belief and all religious communities consulted agreed that the situation was satisfactory. However, the Protestant and Russian Orthodox communities considered themselves subjected to unequal treatment by the State and State institutions, and society as a whole had been traumatized by attacks in 1992 and 1994 against the Embassy of Israel and in 1994 against the Israeli Mutual Association in Argentina. The Special Rapporteur noted some Islamophobia accompanied by Arabophobia fostered by the media. The major problem facing the indigenous peoples was their marginalization from society. He recommended that the authorities ensure that manifestations of Catholicism in State institutions did not lead to discrimination. Investigations into the attacks on the Jewish community should continue, and the media should be targeted with an educational campaign regarding Islamophobia and Arabophobia.

A May report [A/CONF.189/PC.2/22] of the Special Rapporteur discussed the factors that negatively influenced education in relation to racial discrimination and religious intolerance, including historical circumstances, the social and economic conditions of groups and minorities, their demographic distribution in an area, their cultural impoverishment, prejudices of dominant groups, the status of the majority and minority languages, the political will of the Government and of the groups themselves, the shortage of resources and the lack of intercultural dialogue. He presented recommendations for States regarding the supervision of the educational system, non-discriminatory access to education, teacher training, linguistic diversity, the content of textbooks, the development of multicultural and intercultural education, human rights education and improving the intercommunity environment of the educational system. International measures proposed were standard-setting efforts, follow-up and monitoring of States' obligations, information gathering on the implications of racial discrimination and religious intolerance, and involving the media in campaigns to raise awareness of the problem.

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/97 [YUN 2000, p. 659], the Secretary-General, in July [A/56/253], transmitted the Special Rapporteur's interim report, covering 49 communications, including two urgent appeals, sent to 24 States, and containing the summaries of 21 replies. The Special Rapporteur characterized the world situation regarding freedom of religion and belief as distressing. However, an analysis of general and mission reports since 1988 showed that improvements had been made through a decline in anti-religious policies and progress in interreligious dialogue, with a view to conflict prevention, management and reconciliation. Nonetheless, he noted that some States had maintained a policy of subtle hostility to religion and anti-religious secularism. There was also a rise in extremism, as well as persisting discrimination and intolerance against women, based on religion or traditions. The Special Rapporteur recommended that the international community develop and adopt commonly accepted rules and principles of conduct and behaviour towards religious extremism, and also support a plan of action against discrimination and intolerance against women based on religion or tradition.

International Conference. The International Consultative Conference on School Education in relation to Freedom of Religion and Belief, Tolerance and Non-discrimination (Madrid, 23-25 November), organized by the Special Rapporteur and the Government of Spain and held on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of the 1981 Declaration, adopted a final document, which constituted an international strategy on the right to freedom of religion and belief among primary and secondary school students [E/CN.4/2002/73].

Communications. On 29 June [E/CN.4/2002/8], Turkey transmitted its comments on the Special Rapporteur's report on his visit to the country in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 619]. Turkey disputed his conclusions, particularly the allegations pertaining to the interpretation in Turkey of the principles of secularism and nationalism.

On 5 November [A/56/608], the Netherlands transmitted to the Secretary-General the conclusions of an international seminar on freedom of religion or belief in the region of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE): challenges to law and practice (The Hague, 26 June).

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/157 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Elimination of all forms of religious intolerance

The General Assembly,

Recalling that all States have pledged themselves, under the Charter of the United Nations, to promote and encourage universal respect for and observance of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion,

Reaffirming that discrimination against human beings on the grounds of religion or belief constitutes an affront to human dignity and a disavowal of the principles of the Charter,

Recalling article 18 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, article 18 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and paragraph 4 of the United Nations Millennium Declaration,

Reaffirming its resolution 36/55 of 25 November 1981, by which it proclaimed the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, and noting that 2001 marks the twentieth anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration,

Emphasizing that the right to freedom of thought, conscience, religion and belief is far-reaching and profound and that it encompasses freedom of thought on all matters, personal conviction and the commitment to religion or belief, whether manifested individually or in community with others, and in public or in private,

Reaffirming the call of the World Conference on Human Rights, held at Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993, for all Governments to take all appropriate measures in compliance with their international obligations and with due regard to their respective legal systems to counter intolerance and related violence based on religion or belief, including practices of discrimination against women and the desecration of religious sites, recognizing that every individual has the right to freedom of thought, conscience, expression and religion,

Underlining the important role of education in the promotion of tolerance and the elimination of discrimination based on religion or belief,

Calling upon all States to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on freedom of religion or belief to enable him to carry out his mandate fully,

Alarmed that serious instances of intolerance and discrimination on the grounds of religion or belief, including acts of violence, intimidation and coercion motivated by religious intolerance, occur in many parts of the world and threaten the enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Deeply concerned that, as reported by the Special Rapporteur, the rights violated on religious grounds include the right to life, the right to physical integrity and to liberty and security of person, the right to freedom of expression, the right not to be subjected to torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment and the right not to be arbitrarily arrested or detained,

Believing that intensified efforts are therefore required to promote and protect the right to freedom of thought, conscience, religion and belief and to eliminate all forms of hatred, intolerance and discrimination based on religion or belief, as also emphasized at the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held at Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001,

1. Reaffirms that freedom of thought, conscience, religion and belief is a human right derived from the inherent dignity of the human person and guaranteed to all without discrimination;

2. Urges States to ensure that their constitutional and legal systems provide effective guarantees of freedom of thought, conscience, religion and belief, including the provision of effective remedies in cases in which the right to freedom of thought, conscience, religion or belief is violated;

3. Also urges States to ensure, in particular, that no one within their jurisdiction is, because of their religion or belief, deprived of the right to life or the right to liberty and security of person or subjected to torture or arbitrary arrest or detention;

4. Further urges States, in conformity with international standards of human rights, to take all necessary action to combat hatred, intolerance and acts of violence, intimidation and coercion motivated by intolerance based on religion or belief, with particular regard to persons belonging to religious minorities, and to devote particular attention to practices which violate the human rights of women and discriminate against women;

5. Emphasizes that, as underlined by the Human Rights Committee, restrictions on the freedom to manifest religion or belief are permitted only if those limitations that are prescribed by law are necessary to protect public safety, order, health or morals, or the fundamental rights and freedoms of others, and are applied in a manner that does not vitiate the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion;

6. Urges States to ensure that, in the course of their official duties, members of law enforcement bodies and the military, civil servants, educators and other public officials respect different religions and beliefs and do not discriminate against persons professing other religions or beliefs, and that any necessary and appropriate education or training is provided;

7. Calls upon all States to recognize, as provided for in the Declaration on the Elimination of All Forms of Intolerance and of Discrimination Based on Religion or Belief, the right of all persons to worship or assemble in connection with a religion or belief and to establish and maintain places for those purposes;

8. Expresses its grave concern at any attack upon religious places, sites and shrines, and calls upon all States, in accordance with their national legislation and in conformity with international human rights standards, to exert their utmost efforts to ensure that such places, sites and shrines are fully respected and protected and to take additional measures in cases where they are vulnerable to desecration or destruction;

9. Recognizes that legislation alone is not enough to prevent violations of human rights, including the right to freedom of religion or belief, and that the exercise of tolerance and non-discrimination by persons and groups is necessary for the full realization of the aims of the Declaration, and in this regard invites States, religious bodies and civil society to undertake dialogue at all levels to promote greater tolerance, respect and understanding of freedom of religion or belief and to encourage and promote, through the education system and by other means, understanding, tolerance and respect in matters relating to freedom of religion or belief;

10. Takes note with appreciation of the interim report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on freedom of religion or belief, and encourages his continued efforts to examine incidents and governmental actions in all parts of the world that are incompatible with the provisions of the Declaration and to recommend remedial measures, as appropriate;

11. Encourages Governments to give serious consideration to inviting the Special Rapporteur to visit their countries so as to enable him to fulfil his mandate even more effectively;

12. Welcomes the initiatives of Governments and non-governmental organizations to collaborate with the Special Rapporteur, including the convening of the International Consultative Conference on School Education in relation to Freedom of Religion and Belief, Tolerance and Non-discrimination in Madrid from 23 to 25 November 2001, in which Governments, non-governmental organizations and other interested parties were encouraged to participate actively;

13. Encourages Governments, when seeking the assistance of the United Nations Programme of Advisory Services and Technical Assistance in the Field of Human Rights, to consider, where appropriate, including requests for assistance in the field of the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion;

14. Welcomes and encourages the continuing efforts of non-governmental organizations and religious bodies and groups to promote the implementation and dissemination of the Declaration, and further encourages their work in relation to promoting freedom of religion or belief and in highlighting cases of religious intolerance, discrimination and persecution;

15. Requests the Commission on Human Rights to continue its consideration of measures to implement the Declaration;

16. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure that the Special Rapporteur receives the necessary resources to enable him to discharge his mandate;

17. Decides to consider the question of the elimination of all forms of religious intolerance at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Human rights questions", and requests the Special Rapporteur to submit an interim report to the General Assembly on the question.

Civil and political rights

Right to self-determination

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/85 [YUN 2000, p. 661], the Secretary-General, in August [A/56/295], summarized the views of three Member States on the right of peoples to self-determination.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/582], adopted resolution 56/141 without vote [agenda item 118].

Universal realization of the right of peoples to self-determination

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming the importance, for the effective guarantee and observance of human rights, of the universal realization of the right of peoples to self-determination enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations and embodied in the International Covenants on Human Rights, as well as in the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples contained in General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) of 14 December 1960,

Welcoming the progressive exercise of the right to self-determination by peoples under colonial, foreign or alien occupation and their emergence into sovereign statehood and independence,

Deeply concerned at the continuation of acts or threats of foreign military intervention and occupation that are threatening to suppress, or have already suppressed, the right to self-determination of sovereign peoples and nations,

Expressing grave concern that, as a consequence of the persistence of such actions, millions of people have been and are being uprooted from their homes as refugees and displaced persons, and emphasizing the urgent need for concerted international action to alleviate their condition,

Recalling the relevant resolutions regarding the violation of the right of peoples to self-determination and other human rights as a result of foreign military intervention, aggression and occupation adopted by the Commission on Human Rights at its fifty-seventh and previous sessions,

Reaffirming its previous resolutions on the universal realization of the right of peoples to self-determination, including resolution 55/85 of 4 December 2000,

Reaffirming also its resolution 55/2 of 8 September 2000, containing the United Nations Millennium Declaration, which, inter alia, upholds the right to self-determination of peoples under colonial domination and foreign occupation,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the right of peoples to self-determination,

1. Reaffirms that the universal realization of the right of all peoples, including those under colonial, foreign and alien domination, to self-determination is a fundamental condition for the effective guarantee and observance of human rights and for the preservation and promotion of such rights;

2. Declares its firm opposition to acts of foreign military intervention, aggression and occupation, since these have resulted in the suppression of the right of peoples to self-determination and other human rights in certain parts of the world;

3. Calls upon those States responsible to cease immediately their military intervention in and occupation of foreign countries and territories and all acts of repression, discrimination, exploitation and maltreatment, in particular the brutal and inhuman methods reportedly employed for the execution of those acts against the peoples concerned;

4. Deplores the plight of millions of refugees and displaced persons who have been uprooted as a result of the aforementioned acts, and reaffirms their right to return to their homes voluntarily in safety and honour;

5. Requests the Commission on Human Rights to continue to give special attention to the violation of human rights, especially the right to self-determination, resulting from foreign military intervention, aggression or occupation;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to report on this question to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Right of peoples to self-determination".

Rights of Palestinians

On 6 April [res. 2001/2], the Commission, by a roll-call vote of 48 to 2, with 2 abstentions, reaffirmed the permanent and unqualified right of the Palestinian people to self-determination, including the right to establish a sovereign and independent Palestinian State. It requested the Secretary-General to transmit its resolution to Israel and all other Governments, to disseminate it as widely as possible and to make available to the Commission, before its 2002 session, information pertaining to its implementation by the Government of Israel.

The Commission had before it a report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/2001/17], stating that he had received no reply to his request to Israel for information regarding the implementation of its 2000 resolution on the situation in occupied Palestine [YUN 2000, p. 662].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/582], adopted resolution 56/142 by recorded vote (161-3-1) [agenda item 118].

The right of the Palestinian people to self-determination

The General Assembly,

Aware that the development of friendly relations among nations, based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, is among the purposes and principles of the United Nations, as defined in the Charter,

Recalling the International Covenants on Human Rights, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples and the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted at the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993,

Recalling also the Declaration on the Occasion of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the United Nations,

Recalling further the United Nations Millennium Declaration,

Expressing hope for an immediate resumption of negotiations within the Middle East peace process on its agreed basis and for the speedy achievement of a final settlement between the Palestinian and Israeli sides,

Affirming the right of all States in the region to live in peace within secure and internationally recognized borders,

1. Reaffirms the right of the Palestinian people to self-determination, including the right to their independent State;

2. Expresses the hope that the Palestinian people will soon be exercising their right to self-determination, which is not subject to any veto, in the current peace process;

3. Urges all States and the specialized agencies and the organizations of the United Nations system to continue to support and assist the Palestinian people in their quest for self-determination.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/142:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chad, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Gambia, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Vanuatu, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, Marshall Islands, United States.

Abstaining: Micronesia.

Western Sahara

On 6 April [res. 2001/1], the Commission called on Morocco and the Frente Popular para la Liberación de Saguia el-Hamra y de Río de Oro to continue to cooperate with the Secretary-

General, his Personal Envoy and his Special Representative in implementing the various stages of the settlement plan. It urged the two parties to implement the measures relating to the identification of voters and the appeals process and reaffirmed support for further efforts of the Secretary-General, in cooperation with the Organization of African Unity, for a UN-supervised referendum on self-determination of the people of Western Sahara (see p. 213).

Mercenaries

Expert meeting. In accordance with its 2000 decision [YUN 2000, p. 662], the Commission held a meeting of experts on the traditional and new forms of mercenary activities as a means of violating human rights and impeding the exercise of the right of peoples to self-determination (Geneva, 29 January–2 February) [E/CN.4/2001/18]. Participants noted that mercenary activities had become more extensive and diversified, and included modern multi-purpose security corporations that might provide forms of military service carried out by mercenaries. UN treatment of the phenomenon should take into account the criminal responsibility of individuals who sold their military services knowing they would be carrying out criminal acts. In addition, there should be criminal responsibility of those recruiting, training, financing, organizing and deploying mercenaries, when those acts led to breaches of international humanitarian law and human rights. Participants called on the United Nations to recognize the existence of new kinds of mercenaries, which demanded additional action and measures. They recommended a systematic and comprehensive review of the legal definition of mercenary, which should include the elements of motive, purpose, payment, type of action and nationality. They urged States to ratify the 1989 International Convention against the Recruitment, Use, Financing and Training of Mercenaries, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 44/34 [YUN 1989, p. 825], and proposed the establishment of a monitoring body for the Convention. States were urged to prohibit private entities from participating in armed conflicts, creating private armies, engaging in illicit arms trafficking, recruiting mercenaries and being involved in the illegal extraction of natural resources. The group proposed broadening the Special Rapporteur's mandate to include private security and military companies and all other new forms of mercenary activities and more explicit reference to the human rights problems associated with their use.

Commission action. On 6 April [res. 2001/3], the Commission, by a roll-call vote of 35 to 11, with 6

abstentions, welcoming the convening of the expert meeting (see above), requested OHCHR to publicize the adverse effects of mercenary activities and to render advisory services to affected States when requested. States that had not done so were called on to sign or ratify the 1989 Convention. The Commission, in accordance with Assembly resolution 55/86 [YUN 2000, p. 663], decided to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate for a period of three years, and asked him to take into account new forms, manifestations and modalities of mercenary activities and to report in 2002.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate (decision 2001/244).

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 663], the Special Rapporteur on the question of the use of mercenaries, Enrique Bernales Ballesteros (Peru), submitted a January report [E/CN.4/2001/19]. He stated that mercenary activities were continuing, particularly in the context of armed conflicts. Private security and military assistance companies were investing increasingly in information technology, financial investigation services, military communication detection systems and electronic security systems. They continued to employ mercenaries, and, more recently, pilots, aircrews and air bombardment specialists were being hired by air transport companies which, in third countries, were involved in illegal trafficking in arms and munitions, drugs, diamonds and troops. The Special Rapporteur proposed actions for adoption by the Commission, including measures to strengthen national, regional and international mechanisms that could help end armed conflicts and the presence of mercenaries in Africa. The Commission should promote consultations and working meetings, solicit expert opinions to obtain proposals for a better legal definition of mercenarism and to update international instruments, establish international machinery to monitor the diamond trade, promote accession to the 1989 Convention and convene expert meetings to analyse traditional and new forms of mercenary activities and the problems posed by gaps in the existing legal definition. The Commission should be provided with studies on the extent of private offers by military security services, on the recruitment and use of mercenaries by the companies and on the human rights implications resulting therefrom.

In response to General Assembly resolution 55/86 [YUN 2000, p. 663], the Secretary-General, in July [A/56/224], transmitted a report by the Special Rapporteur presenting replies he had received from Member States regarding mercenary activities, and information on private security and military assistance companies, the legal definition of mercenary and the status of the 1989 Convention. The Special Rapporteur, in view of the change in his mandate (see p. 631), requested the Assembly to instruct him, with the support of a second expert meeting, to propose a new definition of mercenary.

1989 International Convention

The 1989 International Convention against the Recruitment, Use, Financing and Training of Mercenaries, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 44/34 [YUN 1989, p. 825], entered into force on 20 October. As at 31 December, 22 States were party to the Convention.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 24 December [meeting 92], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/582], adopted resolution 56/232 by recorded vote (77-20-20) [agenda item 118].

Use of mercenaries as a means of violating human rights and impeding the exercise of the right of peoples to self-determination

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/86 of 4 December 2000, and taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/3 of 6 April 2001,

Recalling also all of its relevant resolutions, in which, inter alia, it condemned any State that permitted or tolerated the recruitment, financing, training, assembly, transit and use of mercenaries with the objective of overthrowing the Governments of States Members of the United Nations, especially those of developing countries, or of fighting against national liberation movements, and recalling further the relevant resolutions and international instruments adopted by the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council and the Organization of African Unity, inter alia, the Convention of the Organization of African Unity on the Elimination of Mercenarism in Africa,

Reaffirming the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations concerning the strict observance of the principles of sovereign equality, political independence, the territorial integrity of States, the self-determination of peoples, the non-use of force or of the threat of use of force in international relations and non-interference in affairs within the domestic jurisdiction of States,

Reaffirming also that, by virtue of the principle of self-determination, all peoples have the right freely to determine their political status and to pursue their economic, social and cultural development, and that every State has the duty to respect this right in accordance with the provisions of the Charter,

Reaffirming further the Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations,

Alarmed and concerned at the danger that the activities of mercenaries constitute to peace and security in developing countries, in particular in Africa and in small States,

Deeply concerned at the loss of life, the substantial damage to property and the negative effects on the policy and economies of affected countries resulting from criminal mercenary activities,

Convinced that, notwithstanding the way in which they are used or the form they take to acquire some semblance of legitimacy, mercenaries or mercenary-related activities are a threat to peace, security and the self-determination of peoples and an obstacle to the enjoyment of human rights by peoples,

1. Welcomes the report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the use of mercenaries as a means of violating human rights and impeding the exercise of the right of peoples to self-determination;

2. Reaffirms that the use of mercenaries and their recruitment, financing and training are causes for grave concern to all States and violate the purposes and principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations;

3. Recognizes that armed conflict, terrorism, arms trafficking and covert operations by third Powers, inter alia, encourage the demand for mercenaries on the global market;

4. Urges all States to take the necessary steps and to exercise the utmost vigilance against the menace posed by the activities of mercenaries and to take legislative measures to ensure that their territories and other territories under their control, as well as their nationals, are not used for the recruitment, assembly, financing, training and transit of mercenaries for the planning of activities designed to impede the right of peoples to self-determination, to destabilize or overthrow the Government of any State or to dismember or impair, totally or in part, the territorial integrity or political unity of sovereign and independent States conducting themselves in compliance with the right of peoples to self-determination;

5. Welcomes the recent entry into force of the International Convention against the Recruitment, Use, Financing and Training of Mercenaries, and calls upon all States that have not yet done so to consider taking the necessary action to sign or ratify it, as a matter of priority;

6. Welcomes also the cooperation extended by those countries that have received visits from the Special Rapporteur;

7. Welcomes further the adoption by some States of national legislation that restricts the recruitment, assembly, financing, training and transit of mercenaries;

8. Calls upon States to investigate the possibility of mercenary involvement whenever and wherever criminal acts of a terrorist nature occur and to bring to trial those found responsible or to consider their extradition, if so requested, in accordance with domestic law and applicable bilateral or international treaties;

9. Welcomes the convening by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights of a meeting of experts on the question of traditional and new forms of mercenary activities as a means of violating human rights and impeding the exercise of the right of peoples to self-determination, and takes note of its report, as a valuable contribution to the process of formulating a clearer legal definition of mercenaries that would make more efficient the prevention and punishment of mercenary activities;

10. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to convene, before the fifty-ninth session of the Commission on Human Rights, a second meeting of experts, pursuant to General Assembly resolution 54/151 of 17 December 1999, to continue studying and updating the international legislation and to make recommendations for a clearer legal definition of mercenaries that would make more efficient the prevention and punishment of mercenary activities;

11. Requests the Special Rapporteur to propose a clearer definition of mercenaries, including clear nationality criteria, based on his findings, the proposals of States and the outcomes of the meetings of experts, and to make suggestions on the procedure to be followed for international adoption of a new definition;

12. Requests the Office of the High Commissioner, as a matter of priority, to publicize the adverse effects of the activities of mercenaries on the right of peoples to self-determination and, when requested and where necessary, to render advisory services to States that are affected by the activities of mercenaries;

13. Requests the Special Rapporteur to continue taking into account in the discharge of his mandate the fact that mercenary activities continue to occur in many parts of the world and are taking on new forms, manifestations and modalities;

14. Urges all States to cooperate fully with the Special Rapporteur in the fulfilment of his mandate;

15. Requests the Secretary-General and the High Commissioner to provide the Special Rapporteur with all the necessary assistance and support for the fulfilment of his mandate, both professional and financial, including through the promotion of cooperation between the Special Rapporteur and other components of the United Nations system that deal with countering mercenary-related activities;

16. Requests the Special Rapporteur to consult States and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations in the implementation of the present resolution and to report, with specific recommendations, to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session his findings on the use of mercenaries to undermine the right of peoples to self-determination;

17. Decides to consider at its fifty-seventh session the question of the use of mercenaries as a means of violating human rights and impeding the exercise of the right of peoples to self-determination under the item entitled "Right of peoples to self-determination".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/232:

In favour: Algeria, Argentina, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Benin, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, China, Colombia, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Djibouti, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Nepal, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, Russian Federation, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Tunisia, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Belgium, Canada, Chile, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Hungary, Iceland, Israel, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Ukraine, United Kingdom, United States.

Abstaining: Andorra, Australia, Austria, Bulgaria, Cyprus, France, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Malta, Monaco, New Zealand, Portugal, Republic of Korea, San Marino, Slovakia, Spain, Yugoslavia.

Administration of justice

Commission action. On 24 April [dec. 2001/106], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 Subcommission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 598], authorized the Subcommission to convene a working group on the administration of justice.

Subcommission action. On 31 July [dec. 2001/102], the Subcommission established a five-member sessional working group on the administration of justice.

At its meetings on 5, 9 and 10 August [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/7], the working group discussed the imposition of the death penalty; summary, arbitrary and extrajudicial executions; privatization of prisons; improvement and efficiency of the judicial instruments for the protection of human rights at the national level and their impact at the international level; administration of justice through military tribunals and other exceptional jurisdictions; the domestic implementation in practice of the obligation to provide domestic remedies; functioning and accountability of UN peace support operations; and discrimination in the criminal justice system. It considered working papers prepared by group members Leïla Zerrougui (Algeria) on discrimination in the criminal justice system, Louis Joinet (France) on the evolution of the administration of justice through military tribunals, and Héctor Fix-Zamudio (Mexico) on the improvement and efficiency of the judicial instruments for the protection of human rights at the national level and their impact at the international level.

On 10 August, the Subcommission requested Mr. Joinet to update, without financial implications, his report and to report in 2002 [dec. 2001/103]; Ms. Zerrougui was asked to pursue her research on the evolution of the administration of justice, also without financial implications, and to submit a final working paper in 2002 [dec. 2001/104].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/161 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Human rights in the administration of justice

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the principles embodied in articles 3, 5, 8, 9 and 10 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the relevant provisions of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the Optional Protocols thereto, in particular article 6 of the Covenant, which states, inter alia, that no one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life and prohibits the imposition of the death penalty for crimes committed by persons below 18 years of age, and article 10, which provides that all persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person,

Bearing in mind also the relevant provisions of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, in particular the right to equal treatment before the tribunals and all other organs administering justice, the Convention on the Rights of the Child, in particular article 37, according to which every child deprived of liberty shall be treated in a manner which takes into account the needs of persons of his or her age, and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, in particular the obligation to treat men and women equally in all stages of procedures in courts and tribunals,

Calling attention to the numerous international standards in the field of the administration of justice,

Emphasizing that the right to access to justice as contained in applicable international human rights instruments forms an important basis for strengthening the rule of law through the administration of justice,

Mindful of the importance of ensuring respect for the rule of law and human rights in the administration of justice, in particular in post-conflict situations, as a crucial contribution to building peace and justice and ending impunity,

Recalling the Guidelines for Action on Children in the Criminal Justice System and the establishment and subsequent meetings of the coordination panel on technical advice and assistance in juvenile justice,

Calling attention to the relevant provisions of the Vienna Declaration on Crime and Justice: Meeting the Challenges of the Twenty-first Century, and of the plans of action for its implementation and follow-up,

Recalling its resolution 54/163 of 17 December 1999, as well as Commission on Human Rights resolution 2000/39 of 20 April 2000 and Economic and Social Council resolution 1999/28 of 28 July 1999,

1. Reaffirms the importance of the full and effective implementation of all United Nations standards on human rights in the administration of justice;

2. Reiterates its call to all Member States to spare no effort in providing for effective legislative and other mechanisms and procedures, as well as adequate resources, to ensure the full implementation of those standards;

3. Invites Governments to provide training, including gender-sensitive training, in human rights in the administration of justice, including juvenile justice, to all judges, lawyers, prosecutors, social workers, immigration and police officers, and other professionals concerned, including personnel deployed in international field presences;

4. Invites States to make use of technical assistance offered by the relevant United Nations programmes in order to strengthen national capacities and infrastructures in the field of the administration of justice;

5. Appeals to Governments to include in their national development plans the administration of justice

as an integral part of the development process and to allocate adequate resources for the provision of legal-aid services with a view to promoting and protecting human rights, and invites the international community to respond favourably to requests for financial and technical assistance for the enhancement and strengthening of the administration of justice;

6. Encourages the regional commissions, the specialized agencies and United Nations institutes in the areas of human rights and crime prevention and criminal justice, and other relevant parts of the United Nations system, as well as intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, including national professional associations concerned with promoting United Nations standards in this field, and other segments of civil society, including the media, to continue to develop their activities in promoting human rights in the administration of justice;

7. Invites the Commission on Human Rights and the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, as well as the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the Centre for International Crime Prevention of the Office for Drug Control and Crime Prevention of the Secretariat, to coordinate closely their activities relating to the administration of justice;

8. Calls upon mechanisms of the Commission on Human Rights and its subsidiary bodies, including special rapporteurs, special representatives and working groups, to continue to give special attention to questions relating to the effective promotion and protection of human rights in the administration of justice, including juvenile justice, and to provide, where appropriate, specific recommendations in this regard, including proposals for advisory services and technical assistance measures;

9. Calls upon the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to reinforce, within her mandate, her activities relating to national capacity-building in the field of the administration of justice, in particular in post-conflict situations;

10. Encourages the Office of the High Commissioner to continue organizing training courses and other relevant activities aimed at enhancing the promotion and protection of human rights in the field of the administration of justice, and commends the Office for its work on the development of a human rights manual for judges, prosecutors and lawyers within the framework of the United Nations Decade for Human Rights Education, 1995-2004;

11. Welcomes the increased attention paid to the issue of juvenile justice by the High Commissioner, in particular through technical assistance activities, and, taking into account that international cooperation to promote juvenile justice reform has become a priority within the United Nations system, encourages further activities, within her mandate, in this regard;

12. Calls upon the coordination panel on technical advice and assistance in juvenile justice further to increase cooperation among the partners involved, to share information and to pool their capacities and interests in order to increase the effectiveness of programme implementation;

13. Underlines the importance of rebuilding and strengthening structures for the administration of justice and respect for the rule of law and human rights in post-conflict situations, and requests the Secretary-General to ensure system-wide coordination and coherence of programmes and activities of the relevant parts of the United Nations system in the field of the administration of justice in post-conflict situations, including assistance provided through United Nations field presences;

14. Stresses the special need for national capacity-building in the field of the administration of justice, in particular through reform of the judiciary, the police and the penal system, as well as juvenile justice reform, in order to establish and maintain stable societies and the rule of law in post-conflict situations, and in this context welcomes the role of the Office of the High Commissioner in supporting the establishment and functioning of transitional justice mechanisms in post-conflict situations;

15. Decides to consider the question of human rights in the administration of justice at its fifty-eighth session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

Compensation for victims

Commission action. On 23 April [dec. 2001/105], the Commission decided to request the High Commissioner to hold a consultative meeting in Geneva for interested Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs, with a view to finalizing the basic principles and guidelines on the right to a remedy and reparation for victims of violations of international human rights and humanitarian law, based on the revised version prepared in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 665], and to transmit the outcome in 2002.

The Economic and Social Council, on 24 July, endorsed the Commission's request (decision 2001/279).

Note by Secretary-General. In response to a 2000 Subcommission request [YUN 2000, p. 734], the Secretary-General, in June [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/8 & Corr.1], presented a working document on mass and flagrant human rights violations which constituted crimes against humanity during the colonial period, wars of conquest and slavery, including proposals to provide reparation to victims and to honour their memory. The Secretary-General examined contemporary definitions of crimes against humanity, stating that the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court [YUN 1998, p. 1209] constituted to date the most comprehensive definition. He referred to work by the General Assembly, the International Law Commission, the Commission on Human Rights and the Subcommission relating to crimes against humanity and reparation for victims of past violations. The Secretary-General suggested that the Subcommission might wish to take note of the latest formulation in the development of the draft basic principles and guidelines regarding such reparation [YUN 2000, p. 665], and then consider whether, and how, the issue of historical violations and reparations could be addressed in a manner that would generate international consensus.

Subcommission action. On 6 August [res. 2001/1], the Subcommission, convinced that recognition and reparation for mass and flagrant human rights violations constituting crimes against humanity during the period of slavery, colonialism and wars of conquest would constitute the beginning of a dialogue between those whom history had put in conflict for the achievement of a world of understanding, tolerance and peace, requested the countries concerned to take initiatives to raise public awareness of the consequences of those events and initiate a process of reflection on procedures to guarantee the implementation of the current resolution.

State of siege or emergency

As requested by the Commission in 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 664], OHCHR submitted in June [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/6 & Corr.1] a list of States in which a state of emergency had been proclaimed before July 1999 and continued thereafter, as well as states of emergencies proclaimed between July 1999 and May 2001.

Humanitarian standards

Report of Secretary-General. The Commission considered a report of the Secretary-General, prepared with the assistance of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) [E/CN.4/2001/91] and submitted in response to its 2000 request [YUN 2000, p. 666], which presented developments on fundamental standards of humanity applicable in all situations and consistent with international law. The report highlighted developments relating to the jurisprudence of the International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) and for Rwanda (ICTR); individual criminal responsibility; crimes under international law, including genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes; and ratification and implementation of international humanitarian law and human rights instruments. It gave an overview of agreements concluded at the field level, including ground rules, codes of conduct and memorandums of understanding, and noted the identification of customary rules of international humanitarian law in a forthcoming ICRC study. The report concluded that recent developments, particularly the jurisprudence of ICTY and ICTR, indicated that progress had been made towards clarifying uncertainties with regard to fundamental standards of humanity. However, important issues remained unresolved and would require further consideration.

Commission action. On 25 April [dec. 2001/112], the Commission requested the Secretary-General, in consultation with ICRC, to submit a further report in 2002.

Civilians in armed conflict

Report of Secretary-General. In response to Security Council resolution 1296(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 667], the Secretary-General, in a March report [S/2001/331], outlined steps for Member States to strengthen their capacity to protect civilian victims of war and initiatives that the Council and other UN organs could take to complement those efforts. He observed that there was an urgent need to update political and legal instruments to protect civilians in armed conflict, which were developed when State actors were dominant. New mechanisms and strategies were required to deal with changed circumstances, such as the global reach of the media and of new information technologies, the growing influence of civil society organizations and NGOs, the interdependence of the global economy and the reach of international commerce. The Secretary-General made recommendations regarding the need to prosecute violations of international criminal law, particularly impunity; ensure standards for negotiating meaningful access to vulnerable populations; engage armed groups in a dialogue aimed at facilitating the provision of humanitarian assistance and protection; identify and separate armed elements in situations of massive population displacement; develop a regional approach to conflict situations to avoid destabilizing entire regions or subregions; enhance informed decision-making by the Council by utilizing the comparative advantages of other relevant actors within and outside the UN system; develop stronger and more coordinated media and information mechanisms in conflict areas; and engage the private sector by building creative partnerships. Annexed to the report was a summary of initiatives taken to implement the Secretary-General's 1999 recommendations [YUN 1999, p. 648].

(For Security Council action regarding the situation of children in armed conflict, see p. 684.)

Arbitrary detention

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/40], the Commission requested the Governments concerned to take account of the views of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention, to remedy the situation of persons arbitrarily deprived of their liberty and to pay attention to the Group's urgent appeals. It encouraged them to implement the recommendations of the Group concerning persons who had been detained, ensure that their legislation conformed with the relevant international standards and instruments applicable to them and not extend states of emergency beyond what was strictly required. The Secretary-General was requested to assist Governments, special rapporteurs and working groups to ensure promotion and observance of guarantees relating to states of emergency embodied in international instruments. The Group was asked to report in 2002.

Working Group activities. The Working Group on Arbitrary Detention held its thirtieth (14-18 May), thirty-first (10-14 September) and thirty-second (26 November-5 December) sessions in 2001 in Geneva [E/CN.4/2002/77]. During the year, the Working Group transmitted 36 communications concerning 167 new cases of alleged arbitrary detention to 24 Governments and Palestine, of which 22 provided information. Of the 167 individual alleged cases, 63 were based on information communicated by local or regional NGOs, 78 on information provided by international NGOs and 26 by private sources. The Group also adopted 31 opinions concerning 94 persons in 22 countries and Palestine. A description of the cases transmitted, the contents of Governments' replies and the text of 29 opinions were presented in a separate report [E/CN.4/2002/77/Add.1]. The Group transmitted 79 urgent appeals concerning 897 individuals to 39 Governments and the Palestinian Authority, of which 46 were issued jointly by the Working Group and thematic or geographical special rapporteurs. In 27 cases, the Governments concerned informed the Group that they had taken steps to remedy a detainee's situation.

The Group requested Governments to reduce, to the extent possible, cases of detention caused by extreme poverty, and recommended the repeal of enactments providing for imprisonment for contractual debt, as prohibited under the 1966 International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 2200 A (XXI) [YUN 1966, p. 423] (see p. 589); measures to ensure that judges took the greatest possible account of the level of income of persons released on bail, in order to give full effect to the principle that release must be the rule and detention the exception; and fines—intended to limit penalties of imprisonment—not disproportionate to the income of the convicted persons concerned. It also recommended that recourse to deprivation of liberty in order to protect victims be reconsidered and supervised by a judicial authority.

Two Working Group members visited Bahrain (19-24 October) [E/CN.4/2002/77/Add.2], where they were granted unrestricted access to all prisons and rehabilitation centres for minors, and spoke freely and without witnesses to prisoners selected at random. The Group members reviewed the development of the rule of law since 1999, which comprised institutional reforms, repeal of emergency legislation and abolition of the State Security Court, reforms of the administration of justice and of the administration of criminal justice, and the organization and operation of the prison administration. The Group recommended that the Government bring into line with international standards the remedies against decisions handed down by courts martial; ensure respect for foreigners' rights; take account of insolvent debtors' good faith in cases of people detained for failure to post bond or pay a fine; bring into line with international standards the legal rules applicable to minors aged 15 to 18; appoint women to responsible positions and allow them to become judicial officers; adopt laws to prevent and punish violence against women; further encourage cooperation between the Government and civil society; and facilitate contact between incarcerated foreigners and the appropriate consular services. The Group considered the visit a success, as the Government subsequently released all prisoners.

Impunity

Report of Secretary-General. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 670], the Secretary-General summarized replies received from Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs regarding steps they had taken to combat impunity for human rights violations and on the appointment of an independent expert to examine the issue [E/CN.4/2001/88 & Corr.1].

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/70], the Commission, by a roll-call vote of 39 to none, with 13 abstentions, stressing the importance of holding accountable perpetrators of violations of international human rights and humanitarian law, urged States to take steps to address the issue. It also urged them to provide a fair and equitable process through which human rights violations could be investigated and made public, and to encourage victims' participation in the process. The Secretary-General was asked to seek the views of Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs on the appointment of an independent expert to examine the issue of impunity, to invite States to provide information on steps they had taken to combat impunity and on remedies available to victims, and to report thereon in 2002.

Subcommission action. On 10 August [dec. 2001/105], the Subcommission, expressing concern at allegations of serious human rights violations on the part of personnel serving in peace support operations, decided to entrust Françoise Hampson (United Kingdom) with preparing, without financial implications, a working paper for submission in 2002 on the scope of the activities and the accountability of armed forces, UN civilian police, international civil servants and experts taking part in peace support operations.

On 16 August [res. 2001/22], the Subcommission urged Governments to implement the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and other UN bodies and to take measures in accordance with international law to end and prevent war crimes and crimes against humanity and to ensure the punishment of persons found guilty, or their extradition to countries where they had committed the crimes, even when no treaty existed to facilitate that task.

Independence of the judicial system

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In February, the Special Rapporteur on the independence of judges and lawyers, Dato' Param Cumaraswamy (Malaysia), submitted a report covering his activities in 2000 [E/CN.4/2001/65].

The Special Rapporteur transmitted 42 communications to 26 Governments and Palestine and five urgent appeals to four States. Replies to communications were received from 21 countries and Palestine, while eight responded to urgent appeals. In order to avoid duplication of work, the Special Rapporteur joined other special rapporteurs and working groups to transmit seven urgent appeals to six countries and two communications to two countries through normal channels. The report summarized the communications, urgent appeals and replies received from Governments. The Special Rapporteur appealed to Governments to respond promptly and positively to his interventions and requests to field missions. He called on Governments, national judiciaries, bar associations and NGOs to submit court judgements and legislation affecting the independence of the judiciary and the legal profession.

The Special Rapporteur visited Guatemala (10-12 May) [E/CN.4/2002/72/Add.2], at the request of the Government and NGOs, to evaluate the implementation of recommendations he had made in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 627]. Following consideration of the legal and political developments since his 1999 visit, the Special Rapporteur noted that many of the recommendations had not been implemented. Progress had been piecemeal and isolated and was mainly seen in the professionalization of the judiciary. Reiterating his 1999 recommendations, relating to impunity, lynchings, threats, harassment and intimidation against the judiciary, training, security of tenure and disciplinary procedures for judges, and women and children, the Special Rapporteur called on the Government to implement them in their entirety.

The Special Rapporteur visited Mexico (13-23 May) [E/CN.4/2002/72/Add.1] to investigate allegations of widespread corruption among judges, lawyers and prosecutors, as well as a high level of impunity. He examined the Constitution in the context of the administration of justice and issues relating to the judiciary, including security of tenure, training, disciplinary measures, judicial corruption, relations between the state and the federal judiciary, and the Federal Electoral Tribunal. The Special Rapporteur reviewed the function of the military courts and of the Public Prosecutor's Office and the Attorney-General, and considered the role of public defenders, the legal profession and human rights defenders. He concluded that progress begun in 1994 towards the establishment of a culture of judicial independence had been slow. Impunity and corruption appeared to have continued unabated. Although each segment in the administration of justice appeared to be undertaking reforms, the reforms were not coordinated. Noting that hardly any judicial officer had been disciplined for judicial corruption, the Special Rapporteur welcomed an initiative to develop a database to ensure that officers dismissed for corruption or human rights violations were not recruited elsewhere in the public administration. He expressed concern over the lack of impartiality of the military courts and the reluctance or unwillingness of witnesses to present evidence against military personnel. Harassment and intimidation of lawyers were a matter of grave concern, as were the problems faced by lawyers in gaining access to clients detained by the police and in prison. No specialized tribunals had been created for minors, and indigenous people lacked access to justice.

The Special Rapporteur made recommendations to amend the Constitution to provide security of tenure for judges, establish judicial councils, allocate resources to the judiciary, and make binding on all authorities the recommendations of national and state human rights commissions. Regarding the judiciary, he proposed an evaluation to determine the number of additional courts needed to meet the need for access to justice, bringing new legislation to the attention of the judiciary, the legal profession and the general public, and producing a uniform code of ethics for magistrates and judges. Other recommendations related to the Judicial Council, military courts, the Public Prosecutor's Office, the legal profession, impunity, harassment of lawyers and human rights defenders, fair trial procedures, indigenous communities and the status of women. The Special Rapporteur proposed a pilot project in two States, aimed at training judges and lawyers on how to apply human rights norms in the daily practice of the administration of justice and at raising awareness about the independence of the judiciary.

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/39], the Commission encouraged Governments that faced difficulties in guaranteeing the independence of judges and lawyers to consult and consider the Special Rapporteur's services by inviting him to visit their country. The High Commissioner was asked to continue to provide technical assistance to train judges and lawyers and to associate the Special Rapporteur in the development of a manual on the human rights training of judges and lawyers. The Special Rapporteur was requested to report in 2002, and the Secretary-General was asked to assist him.

Capital punishment

Report of Secretary-General. By a February note [E/CN.4/2001/89 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General informed the Commission that the revised version of his sixth quinquennial report on capital punishment and implementation of the safeguards guaranteeing the rights of those facing the death penalty, as called for in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 672], would be prepared and submitted by the UN Centre for International Crime Prevention. The report had covered the period 1994-1998.

In March [E/CN.15/2001/10 & Corr.1], the Secretary-General submitted the revised and updated report, covering the period 1994-2000, which contained 18 additional replies to the Secretary-General's questionnaire, bringing the total number of responses to 63. Of the responding countries, almost two thirds (41) were totally abolitionist (34) or abolitionist for all ordinary crimes (7); some 14 per cent (9) were de facto abolitionist and 21 per cent were retentionist (13). However, only 47 per cent of all abolitionist countries replied.

Regarding changes in the status of the death penalty within the reporting period, all but one of 55 countries and territories that had abolished the death penalty completely for all offences at the beginning of 1994 maintained that status at the end of 2000. Of 14 countries that were abolitionist for ordinary offences, 6 had joined the abolitionists for all offences category, leaving 8 in the group of those that did not change their status. Of the 30 countries considered to be de facto abolitionist at the beginning of the reporting period, 5 became abolitionist, while 8 resumed executions, thereby becoming retentionist. From various sources, it was ascertained that at the beginning of 1994 some 94 countries and territories retained the death penalty, of which 12 became abolitionist for all crimes and 2 for ordinary crimes. The report noted that 17 countries that were retentionist had become de facto abolitionist. Although five retentionist States continued to pass death sentences, no executions were believed to have been carried out within the reporting period. However, executions were carried out by 55 retentionist countries that had given no indication that they intended in the near future to abolish the death penalty. Limited information available suggested that from 1994 to 1999, an estimated 26,800 persons were sentenced to death, while some 15,300 were judicially executed.

The report included information on the implementation of the safeguards guaranteeing protection of the rights of those facing the death penalty, adopted by the Economic and Social Council in resolution 1984/50 [YUN 1984, p. 709].

The Secretary-General concluded that the continued movement towards abolition had been impressive, with 25 countries abolishing the death penalty between 1994 and 2000.

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 27 to 18, with 7 abstentions, the Commission, on 25 April [res. 2001/68], called on States parties to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights that had not done so to consider acceding to or ratifying the 1989 Second Optional Protocol thereto on the death penalty, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 44/128 [YUN 1989, p. 484]. States that maintained the death penalty were called on to restrict the number of offences for which that penalty might be imposed, to establish a moratorium on executions, with a view to abolishing the death penalty completely, and to provide the public with information regarding the imposition of the death penalty. States that had received an extradition request on a capital charge were asked to reserve the right to refuse extradition in the absence of assurances from the requesting State that capital punishment would not be carried out. The Secretary-General was asked to submit in 2002 a supplement to his quinquennial report, paying special attention to the imposition of the death penalty against persons under 18 years at the time of the offence.

Communication. On 27 April [E/CN.4/2001/161 & CORR.1], Saudi Arabia, also on behalf of 60 other States, dissociated itself from the Commission's resolution.

Juveniles

Report of Secretary-General. The revised version of the Secretary-General's sixth quinquennial report on capital punishment and implementation of the safeguards guaranteeing protection of the rights of those facing the death penalty [E/CN.15/2001/10 & CORR.1] (see p. 638) stated that since 1994 several countries had brought themselves into line with the safeguard concerning persons under 18 years of age. However, during the period under review, 13 persons within that age group were executed.

Right to democracy

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 44 to none, with 9 abstentions, the Commission, on 23 April [res. 2001/41], called for information sharing and improved coordination in the UN system to facilitate the exchange of lessons learned and best practices in promoting and consolidating democracy. The Commission asked Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs to deepen debates aimed at identifying ways and means to promote and consolidate democracy. OHCHR was requested to build on the initiatives and contributions of Member States, to organize an expert seminar to examine the interdependence between democracy and human rights, and to report on the seminar's conclusions in 2003. The Secretary-General and the High Commissioner were asked to bring the Commission's resolution to the attention of Member States, UN organs, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs and to disseminate it widely.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's request to OHCHR (decision 2001/263).

Working paper. Pursuant to a 2000 Sub-commission request [YUN 2000, p. 674], Manuel Rodríguez-Cuadros (Peru), in July, submitted a working paper [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/32], which considered the measures provided in various international human rights instruments for the promotion and consolidation of democracy. The paper identified threats to democratic stability and good governance such as persistent poverty, corruption, problems of democratic Governments relating to their functioning, representativeness and legitimacy, and the lack or weakness of mechanisms for dialogue that would enable civil society to participate in policy decisions. It concluded that globalization, regardless of its ambivalent effects on peoples' economic and social life, also promoted the values of democracy and human rights. It was essential to adopt a holistic approach that recognized the links between democracy, human rights, the rule of law, good governance and the integrity of public authorities, as well as structural supports for democracy such as the fight against poverty, development, social cohesion, inclusive social policies and the integration of women in the political process and other activities.

Subcommission action. On 16 August [dec. 2001/114], the Subcommission asked Mr. Rodríguez-Cuadros to prepare, without financial implications, an expanded working paper in 2002.

Report of Secretary-General. In a September report [A/56/326], the Secretary-General outlined strategies for meeting the goals and commitments contained in the UN Millennium Declaration [YUN 2000, p. 49]. Regarding human rights, democracy and good governance, the Secretary-General described the current situation and proposed strategies to move forward, such as fostering national human rights institutions; supporting the practical application of a rights-based approach to development; providing electoral assistance to help consolidate new and restored democracies and implementing democratic principles through institutional reform programmes; encouraging the further ratification and implementation of the 1979 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 34/180 [YUN 1979, p. 895] (see p. 1074); protecting the rights of migrants and their families; and ensuring the freedom and independence of the media.

Electoral processes

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 28 to 4, with 21 abstentions, the Commission, on 23 April [res. 2001/36], declaring that full popular participation was feasible only if societies had democratic political and electoral systems that guaranteed all citizens participation in government, urged States to foster a democracy that did so. The Secretary-General and the High Commissioner were asked to bring the Commission's resolution to the attention of Member States, UN organs, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs and to disseminate it widely.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 54/173 [YUN 1999, p. 630], the Secretary-General, in October [A/56/344], presented information on UN electoral assistance activities between 1 October 1999 and 31 July 2001. During the reporting period, 47 requests for electoral assistance were received from 37 Member States (see p. 274 for electoral assistance to East Timor). The Electoral Assistance Division of the UN Department of Political Affairs continued to assist the UN focal point in responding to requests. As the number of requests from

Member States continued to be high, the Division developed assistance modalities to cover a comprehensive range of services that could be provided by the UN system, relating to expert advisory services, needs-assessment missions, observation and monitoring of elections, process assistance, which focused on providing expert advice to introduce new systems or upgrade existing ones, capacity-building, institution-building, and system architecture, involving the analysis and design of electoral systems.

Annexed to the report were summaries of Member States' requests for assistance and action taken thereon.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/159 by recorded vote (162-0-8) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Strengthening the role of the United Nations in enhancing the effectiveness of the principle of periodic and genuine elections and the promotion of democratization

The General Assembly,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject, in particular resolution 54/173 of 17 December 1999,

Reaffirming that United Nations electoral assistance and support for the promotion of democratization are provided only at the specific request of the Member State concerned,

Noting with satisfaction that increasing numbers of Member States are using elections as peaceful means of discerning the will of the people and of confidence-building, thereby contributing to greater national peace and stability,

Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted on 10 December 1948, in particular the principle that the will of the people as expressed through periodic and genuine elections shall be the basis of government authority, as well as the right freely to choose representatives through periodic and genuine elections which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret vote or by equivalent free voting procedures,

Taking note with interest of Commission on Human Rights resolutions 2001/41 of 23 April 2001 and 2001/72 of 25 April 2001,

Recognizing the need for strengthening democratic processes, electoral institutions and national capacity-building, including the capacity to administer fair elections, increase citizen participation and provide civic education, in requesting countries in order to consolidate and regularize the achievements of previous elections and support subsequent elections,

Welcoming the support provided by States to the electoral assistance activities of the United Nations, inter alia, through the provision of electoral experts, including electoral commission staff, and observers, as well as through contributions to the United Nations Trust Fund for Electoral Observation,

Welcoming also the contributions made by international and regional organizations and also by non-governmental organizations to enhancing the effectiveness of the principle of periodic and genuine elections and the promotion of democratization,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on United Nations activities aimed at enhancing the effectiveness of the principle of periodic and genuine elections,

1. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General;
2. Commends the electoral assistance provided upon request to Member States by the United Nations, and requests that such assistance continue on a case-by-case basis in accordance with the evolving needs of requesting countries to develop, improve and refine their electoral institutions and processes, recognizing that the fundamental responsibility of organizing free and fair elections lies with Governments;

3. Requests the Electoral Assistance Division of the Department of Political Affairs of the Secretariat, in its role as coordinator of United Nations electoral assistance, to continue to inform Member States regularly about the requests received and the nature of any assistance provided;

4. Requests that the United Nations continue its efforts to ensure, before undertaking to provide electoral assistance to a requesting State, that there is adequate time to organize and carry out an effective mission for providing such assistance, including the provision of long-term technical cooperation, that conditions exist to allow free and fair elections and that the results of the mission will be reported comprehensively and consistently;

5. Recommends that, throughout the entire electoral process time-span, including before and after elections, as appropriate, based on needs assessment missions, the United Nations continue to provide technical advice and other assistance to requesting States and electoral institutions in order to help to strengthen their democratic processes;

6. Notes with satisfaction the comprehensive coordination between the Electoral Assistance Division and the United Nations Development Programme, and encourages further engagement of the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in this context;

7. Requests the United Nations Development Programme to continue its governance assistance programmes in cooperation with other relevant organizations, in particular those that strengthen democratic institutions and linkages between civil society and Governments;

8. Reiterates the importance of reinforced coordination within and outside the United Nations system in this regard;

9. Notes with appreciation additional efforts being made to enhance cooperation with other international, governmental and non-governmental organizations in order to facilitate more comprehensive and needs-specific responses to requests for electoral assistance, and expresses its appreciation to those Member States, regional organizations and non-governmental organizations that have provided observers or technical experts in support of United Nations electoral assistance efforts;

10. Recalls the establishment by the Secretary-General of the United Nations Trust Fund for Electoral Observation, and calls upon Member States to consider contributing to the Fund;

11. Encourages the Secretary-General, through the Electoral Assistance Division, to continue responding to the evolving nature of requests for assistance and the growing need for specific types of medium-term expert assistance aimed at supporting and strengthening the existing capacity of the requesting Government, in particular by enhancing the capacity of national electoral institutions;

12. Requests the Secretary-General to provide the Electoral Assistance Division with adequate human and financial resources to allow it to carry out its mandate and to continue to ensure that the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights is able to respond, within its mandate and in close coordination with the Division, to the numerous and increasingly complex and comprehensive requests from Member States for advisory services;

13. Also requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session on the implementation of the present resolution, in particular on the status of requests from Member States for electoral assistance, and on his efforts to enhance the support by the Organization for the democratization process in Member States.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/159:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chad, Chile, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Gambia, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Latvia, Lebanon, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Marshall Islands, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Micronesia, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Palau, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Sweden, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Tuvalu, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, United States, Uruguay, Vanuatu, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Brunei Darussalam, China, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Myanmar, Syrian Arab Republic, Viet Nam.

Also on 19 December [meeting 88], the Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/154 by recorded vote (99-10-59) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Respect for the principles of national sovereignty and non-interference in the internal affairs of States in electoral processes as an important element for the promotion and protection of human rights

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming the purpose of the United Nations to develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace,

Recalling its resolution 1514(XV) of 14 December 1960, containing the Declaration on the Granting of Independence to Colonial Countries and Peoples,

Recalling also its resolution 2625(XXV) of 24 October 1970, by which it approved the Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations,

Reaffirming the right to self-determination, by virtue of which all peoples can freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development,

Recognizing that the principles enshrined in Article 2 of the Charter of the United Nations, in particular respect for national sovereignty and non-interference in the internal affairs of any State, should be respected in the holding of elections,

Recognizing also the richness and diversity of democratic political systems and models of free and fair electoral processes in the world, based on national and regional particularities and various backgrounds,

Stressing the responsibility of States in ensuring ways and means to facilitate full and effective popular participation in their electoral processes,

Recognizing the contribution made by the United Nations of electoral assistance provided to numerous States upon their request,

Reaffirming the solemn commitment of all States to fulfil their obligations to promote universal respect for, and observance and protection of, all human rights and fundamental freedoms for all in accordance with the Charter, other instruments relating to human rights, and international law,

Welcoming the commitment of all Member States, expressed in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, to work collectively for more inclusive political processes allowing genuine participation by all citizens in all countries,

1. Reaffirms that all peoples have the right to self-determination, by virtue of which they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development, and that every State has the duty to respect that right, in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations;

2. Reiterates that periodic, fair and free elections are important elements for the promotion and protection of human rights;

3. Reaffirms the right of peoples to determine methods and to establish institutions regarding electoral processes and that, consequently, States should ensure the necessary mechanisms and means to facilitate full and effective popular participation in those processes;

4. Also reaffirms that free development of the national electoral process in each State should be fully honoured in a manner that fully respects the principles established in the Charter and in the Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations;

5. Further reaffirms that United Nations electoral assistance is provided at the specific request of the Member State concerned;

6. Calls upon all States to refrain from financing political parties or other organizations in any other State in a way that is contrary to the principles of the Charter and that undermines the legitimacy of its electoral processes;

7. Condemns any act of armed aggression or threat or use of force against peoples, their elected Governments or their legitimate leaders;

8. Reaffirms that the will of the people shall be the basis of the authority of government and that this will shall be expressed in periodic and genuine elections, which shall be by universal and equal suffrage and shall be held by secret vote or by equivalent free voting procedures.

Other issues

Extralegal executions

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In January [E/CN.4/2001/9 & Corr.1 & Add.1], the Special Rapporteur on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions, Asma Jahangir (Pakistan), updated activities since the submission of her last report [YUN 2000, p. 676]. Between 16 December 1999 and 10 December 2000, she transmitted communications containing allegations regarding violations of the right to life of more than 700 individuals to 37 Governments and the Palestinian Authority, as well as 117 urgent appeals regarding 339 individuals and specific groups of persons to prevent imminent loss of life. The report summarized the cases transmitted to Governments and the replies received. The Special Rapporteur was disturbed at the increasing number of reports of indiscriminate killings of unarmed civilians by government-controlled agents in situations of armed conflict and internal unrest. She noted with concern that steps taken to combat ongoing human rights abuses were seldom effective in curbing violence and ending extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions, and regretted that some Governments continued to ignore her urgent appeals and failed to respond to her requests for information. She recommended a series of actions for Governments that related to genocide, excessive use of force by law enforcement officials, deaths in custody, death threats, imminent expulsion of persons to countries where their lives were in danger, failure by officials to prevent violations of the right to life, impunity, children, traditional practices affecting the right to life ("honour" killings), sexual orientation and capital punishment.

The Special Rapporteur visited Turkey (19 February–1 March) [E/CN.4/2002/74/Add.1 & Corr.1] to investigate allegations of violations of the right to life, including deaths in custody, deaths due to excessive use of force by police or military forces and killings connected with abductions and "disappearances". At the time of the Special Rapporteur's visit, incidents of extrajudicial killings had dramatically reduced. However, there was apprehension that the situation could deteriorate, as underlying grievances, tensions and attitudes had not been addressed. The Special Rapporteur recommended that the Government establish a high-level commission to investigate allegations of killings by security forces, set up an independent national human rights commission, reform the justice system, investigate custodial deaths and prosecute and punish those responsible, grant amnesty to prisoners arrested for their political beliefs and abolish the death penalty.

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/45], the Commission, strongly condemning all extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions, demanded that Governments end the practice in all its forms. It expressed concern that Governments had not replied to specific allegations and reports of summary or arbitrary executions transmitted by the Special Rapporteur.

The Commission decided to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate for three years and asked her to continue to examine the problem, to report annually, to respond to information addressed to her, to enhance dialogue with Governments and follow up on her recommendations made after country visits, to pay special attention to cases involving children, peaceful demonstrators and minorities, to continue monitoring the implementation of international standards on safeguards and restrictions relating to capital punishment and to apply a gender perspective in her work. The Secretary-General was asked to assist the Special Rapporteur, continue to use his best endeavours in cases where the minimum standard of legal safeguards provided for by the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (see p. 589) appeared not to be respected and ensure that personnel specialized in human rights and humanitarian law issues formed part of UN missions.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate and approved its request to the Secretary-General to assist her (decision 2001/266).

Disappearance of persons

Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/46], the Commission, deeply concerned by the increase in enforced or involuntary disappearances and reports concerning harassment, ill-treatment and intimidation of witnesses of disappearances or relatives of disappeared persons, urged Governments to cooperate with the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances. States were asked to provide the Group with information on measures taken and the obstacles encountered in preventing such disappearances and in giving effect to the 1992 Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 47/133 [YUN 1992, p. 744]. The Commission decided to renew the Group's mandate for a three-year period and asked it to report in 2002. The Commission Chairperson was asked to appoint an independent expert to examine the existing international criminal and human rights framework to protect persons from enforced or involuntary disappearance and to report in 2002. The Secretary-General was asked to assist the Group, to provide resources to update the database on cases of enforced disappearance and to inform the Commission and the Group of steps taken to disseminate and promote the Declaration.

The Commission decided to establish in 2002 an intersessional open-ended working group to develop, in the light of the findings of the independent expert, the draft legally binding instrument for the protection of all persons from enforced disappearance [YUN 1998, p. 662].

On 4 June, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision to renew the Group's mandate, appoint an independent expert and establish the intersessional working group (decision 2001/221).

In June, Manfred Nowak (Austria) was appointed independent expert.

Note by Secretariat. A March note by the Secretariat [E/CN.4/2001/69/Add.1] contained the views of four States and one specialized agency on the draft convention on the protection of all persons from enforced disappearance, pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 679].

Working Group activities. The five-member Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances held three sessions in 2001: its sixty-third in New York (30 April–4 May) and its sixty-fourth and sixty-fifth in Geneva (13–17 August and 14–21 November) [E/CN.4/2002/79]. In addition to its original mandate, which was to act as a channel of communication between families of disappeared persons and the Governments concerned, with a view to ensuring that sufficiently documented individual cases were investigated, the Working Group monitored States' compliance with the 1992 Declaration.

Cases under active consideration by the Group totalled 41,859, while countries with outstanding cases of alleged disappearance numbered 74. During the period under review, up to 21 November, the last day of the sixty-fifth session, the Group transmitted 243 new cases of enforced or involuntary disappearance to 25 countries, 50 of which allegedly occurred in 2001. The Group sent urgent action appeals to 14 countries and the Palestinian Authority in respect of 58 cases and clarified 4,419 cases in nine countries. The Group noted that although the number of disappearances reported had declined, the attitude of most Governments towards investigating and clarifying cases outstanding had not improved. The Group continued to draw the attention of Governments to the relevant provisions of the 1992 Declaration, emphasizing that its full implementation was crucial for the prevention and termination of enforced disappearances. Since impunity was a major reason for the practice, it was important that the perpetrators be brought to justice.

The Group stated that its reports covering 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 634] and 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 679] had been limited to 32 pages, as requested by the General Assembly in resolution 47/202 B [YUN 1992, p. 1083]. However, since those reports did not properly reflect the Group's work, it had decided to return to the earlier format. The report contained a separate opinion by a Group member objecting to the fact that the report was not in conformity with the Assembly's request.

Torture and cruel treatment

Report of Special Rapporteur. In January [E/CN.4/2001/66], the Special Rapporteur on torture, Sir Nigel S. Rodley (United Kingdom), summarized his activities in 2000. He sent 66 letters to 60 countries on behalf of some 650 individuals and 28 groups involving about 2,250 persons. He also transmitted 164 urgent appeals to 56 Governments on behalf of some 470 individuals (40 known to be women and 35 known to be minors), as well as to 11 groups involving about 1,000 persons, feared to have been subjected to torture and other forms of ill-treatment. Replies were received from 37 Governments regarding some 300 cases submitted during the reporting period, whereas 25 did so regarding some 400 cases submitted in previous years. The report contained summaries of general allegations and individual cases, as well as of the urgent appeals and government replies, and presented the Special Rapporteur's observations where applicable. The Special Rapporteur said that available information suggested that incidents of torture and ill-treatment of persons were increasing, although the increase in information might be attributable to heightened attention to the issue. He was encouraged by recognition of the problem of impunity and of measures aimed at countering it. The Special Rapporteur recommended transparency measures that could help prevent torture and ill-treatment and made proposals to end de facto or de jure impunity.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/62], the Commission, condemning all forms of torture as described in the 1984 Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, contained in General Assembly resolution 39/46 [YUN 1984, p. 813] (see p. 594), called on Governments to become parties to the Convention as a matter of priority and to prohibit the practice. The Commission decided to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate for three years and asked him to submit an interim report to the Assembly in 2001 and a full report to the Commission in 2002.

The Economic and Social Council, on 24 July, endorsed the Commission's decision to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate, as well as its request to him to submit reports (decision 2001/272).

Following the Special Rapporteur's resignation in November, the Commission appointed, on 28 November, Theo C. van Boven (Netherlands).

Interim reports. In July [A/56/156], the Secretary-General transmitted an interim report of the Special Rapporteur, pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/89 [YUN 2000, p. 683], covering issues of special concern to the Special Rapporteur, which related to intimidation as a form of torture, enforced or involuntary disappearance, torture and discrimination against sexual minorities, torture and impunity, and prevention and transparency. He recommended abolishing administrative detention, incommunicado detention and secret places of detention, the prevention of prisoner-on-prisoner violence, regular inspection of places of detention, training for police and security personnel, the public condemnation of torture by the highest authorities and instructing health personnel on the 1982 Principles of Medical Ethics relevant to the role of health personnel, particularly physicians, in the protection of detainees and prisoners against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, contained in Assembly resolution 37/194 [YUN 1982, p. 1081].

In a statement to the Third Committee on 8 November [E/CN.4/2002/76], the Special Rapporteur discussed issues of special concern (see p. 644) and updated information on possible missions.

Communication. On 26 April [E/CN.4/2001/164], Brazil transmitted comments on the Special Rapporteur's recommendations made following his visit to the country in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 681].

Voluntary fund for torture victims

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/62], the Commission appealed to Governments, organizations and individuals to contribute annually to the Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture. Stressing the increasing need to assist rehabilitation services for torture victims, it called on the Fund's Board of Trustees to present in 2002 an updated assessment of the need for international funding of those services and of lessons learned from the Fund's activities. The Secretary-General was asked to continue to include the Fund among the programmes receiving donations at the annual UN Pledging Conference for Development Activities, and to ensure adequate staffing and technical facilities for UN bodies and mechanisms dealing with torture. He was also asked to inform the Commission of the Fund's operations.

Reports of Secretary-General. In his annual report on the status of the Fund, submitted in July [A/56/181], the Secretary-General stated that contributions received between 15 May 2000 and 17 May 2001 totalled $7,809,965 from 38 countries. Contributions from two private individuals, staff of the UN Office in Geneva and one NGO totalled $16,386.

The Board of Trustees held its twentieth session in Geneva (18 May–1 June). The total then available for grants to assist victims of torture amounted to some $8 million. Of that sum, some $35,000 was reserved for emergency grants before the Board's next annual session, in addition to a reserve of $140,000 unused since May 2000, to respond to requests from victims of torture and for emergency care in areas where there was no project financed by the Fund and for organizations already financed by the Fund that were in financial difficulties. During the year, new grants were allocated to 187 assistance projects in 70 countries. Annexed to the report was a declaration on the International Day in Support of Victims of Torture, 26 June 2001, issued jointly by the Board, the Committee against Torture, the Special Rapporteur on torture and the High Commissioner.

On 19 December, the Assembly took note of the Secretary-General's report (decision 56/429).

In a later report [A/57/268], the Secretary-General stated that additional contributions received between 18 May and 31 December 2001 amounted to $592,994.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.1], adopted resolution 56/143 without vote [agenda item 119 (a)].

Torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment

The General Assembly,

Recalling article 5 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, article 7 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the Declaration on the Protection of All Persons from Being Subjected to Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment and its resolution 39/46 of 10 December 1984, by which it adopted and opened for signature, ratification and accession the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and all its subsequent relevant resolutions,

Recalling also that freedom from torture is a right that must be protected under all circumstances, including in times of internal or international disturbance or armed conflict,

Recalling further that the World Conference on Human Rights, held at Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993, firmly declared that efforts to eradicate torture should, first and foremost, be concentrated on prevention and called for the early adoption of an optional protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, which is intended to establish a preventive system of regular visits to places of detention,

Urging all Governments to promote the speedy and full implementation of the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, in particular the section relating to freedom from torture, in which it is stated that States should abrogate legislation leading to impunity for those responsible for grave violations of human rights, such as torture, and prosecute such violations, thereby providing a firm basis for the rule of law,

Recalling its resolution 36/151 of 16 December 1981, in which it noted with deep concern that acts of torture took place in various countries, recognized the need to provide assistance to the victims in a purely humanitarian spirit and established the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture,

Recalling also the recommendation contained in the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action that high priority should be given to providing the necessary resources to assist victims of torture and effective remedies for their physical, psychological and social rehabilitation, inter alia, through additional contributions to the Fund,

Noting with satisfaction the existence of a considerable international network of centres for the rehabilitation of victims of torture, which plays an important role in providing assistance to victims of torture, and the collaboration of the Fund with the centres,

Commending the persistent efforts by non-governmental organizations to combat torture and to alleviate the suffering of victims of torture,

Mindful of its proclamation, in its resolution 52/149 of 12 December 1997, of 26 June as the United Nations International Day in Support of Victims of Torture,

1. Condemns all forms of torture, including through intimidation, as described in article 1 of the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment;

2. Stresses that all allegations of torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment should be promptly and impartially examined by the competent national authority, that those who encourage, order, tolerate or perpetrate acts of torture must be held responsible and severely punished, including the officials in charge of the place of detention at which the prohibited act is found to have taken place, and that national legal systems should ensure that the victims of such acts obtain redress, are awarded fair and adequate compensation and receive appropriate social and medical rehabilitation;

3. Recalls the Principles on the Effective Investigation and Documentation of Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and strongly encourages Governments to reflect upon the Principles as a useful tool in efforts to combat torture;

4. Notes with appreciation that one hundred and twenty-six States have become parties to the Convention;

5. Urges all States that have not yet done so to become parties to the Convention as a matter of priority;

6. Invites all States ratifying or acceding to the Convention and those States that are parties to the Convention and have not yet done so to consider joining the States parties that have made the declarations provided for in articles 21 and 22 of the Convention and to consider the possibility of withdrawing their reservations to article 20;

7. Urges all States parties to the Convention to notify the Secretary-General of their acceptance of the amendments to articles 17 and 18 of the Convention as soon as possible;

8. Urges States parties to comply strictly with their obligations under the Convention, including, in view of the high number of reports not submitted, their obligation to submit reports in accordance with article 19 of the Convention, and invites States parties to incorporate a gender perspective and information concerning children and juveniles when submitting reports to the Committee against Torture;

9. Emphasizes the obligation of States parties under article 10 of the Convention to ensure education and training for personnel who may be involved in the custody, interrogation or treatment of any individual subjected to any form of arrest, detention or imprisonment;

10. Stresses, in this context, that States must not punish personnel referred to in paragraph 9 above for not obeying orders to commit or conceal acts amounting to torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment;

11. Calls upon all Governments to take appropriate effective legislative, administrative, judicial or other measures to prevent and prohibit the production, trade, export and use of equipment that is specifically designed to inflict torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment;

12. Welcomes the work of the Committee, and takes note of the report of the Committee, submitted in accordance with article 24 of the Convention;

13. Acknowledges the number of reports and communications awaiting consideration by the Committee, and in this regard decides to authorize the Committee to establish a pre-sessional working group composed of four of its members to meet for a five-day session during the week preceding each session of the Committee, and invites the Committee to continue to enhance its methods of work;

14. Calls upon the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in conformity with her mandate established in General Assembly resolution 48/141 of 20 December 1993, to continue to provide, at the request of Governments, advisory services for the preparation of national reports to the Committee and for the prevention of torture, as well as technical assistance in the development, production and distribution of teaching material for these purposes;

15. Urges States parties to take fully into account the conclusions and recommendations made by the Committee after its consideration of their reports;

16. Welcomes the progress made by the open-ended working group of the Commission on Human Rights on a draft optional protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and urges the working group to complete as soon as possible a final text for submission to the General Assembly, through the Economic and Social Council, for consideration and adoption;

17. Takes note with appreciation of the interim report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the question of torture, describing the overall trends and developments with regard to his mandate, and encourages the Special Rapporteur to continue to include in his recommendations proposals on the prevention and investigation of torture;

18. Invites the Special Rapporteur to continue to examine questions of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment directed against women, and conditions conducive to such torture, and to make appropriate recommendations for the prevention and redress of gender-specific forms of torture, including rape or any other form of sexual violence, and to exchange views with the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on violence against women, its causes and consequences, with the aim of enhancing further their effectiveness and mutual cooperation;

19. Also invites the Special Rapporteur to continue to consider questions relating to the torture of children and conditions conducive to such torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment and to make appropriate recommendations for the prevention of such torture;

20. Calls upon Governments to cooperate with and assist the Special Rapporteur in the performance of his or her task, to provide all necessary information requested by the Special Rapporteur, to respond appropriately and expeditiously to the urgent appeals of the Special Rapporteur and to give serious consideration to requests by the Special Rapporteur to visit their countries, and urges them to enter into a constructive dialogue with the Special Rapporteur in following up his or her recommendations;

21. Reiterates the need for the Special Rapporteur to be able to respond effectively, in particular to urgent appeals, to credible and reliable information that comes before him or her, and invites the Special Rapporteur to continue to seek the views and comments of all concerned, in particular Member States;

22. Requests the Special Rapporteur to continue to consider including in his or her reports information on the follow-up by Governments to his or her recommendations, visits and communications, including progress made and problems encountered;

23. Stresses the need for the continued regular exchange of views among the Committee, the Special Rapporteur and other relevant United Nations mechanisms and bodies, as well as for the pursuance of co-operation with relevant United Nations programmes, notably the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, with a view to enhancing further their effectiveness and cooperation on issues relating to torture, inter alia, by improving their coordination;

24. Expresses its gratitude and appreciation to the Governments, organizations and individuals that have contributed to the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture;

25. Stresses the importance of the work of the Board of Trustees of the Fund, and appeals to all Governments and organizations to contribute annually to the Fund, preferably by 1 March prior to the annual meeting of the Board, if possible with a substantial increase in the level of contributions, so that consideration may be given to the ever-increasing demand for assistance;

26. Requests the Secretary-General to transmit to all Governments the appeals of the General Assembly for contributions to the Fund and to continue to include the Fund on an annual basis among the programmes for which funds are pledged at the United Nations Pledging Conference for Development Activities;

27. Also requests the Secretary-General to assist the Board of Trustees of the Fund in its appeal for contributions and in its efforts to make better known the existence of the Fund and the financial means currently available to it, as well as in its assessment of the global need for international funding of rehabilitation services for victims of torture and, in this effort, to make use of all existing possibilities, including the preparation, production and dissemination of information materials;

28. Further requests the Secretary-General to ensure the provision of adequate staff and facilities for the bodies and mechanisms involved in combating torture and assisting victims of torture, commensurate with the strong support expressed by Member States for combating torture and assisting victims of torture;

29. Invites donor countries and recipient countries to consider including in their bilateral programmes and projects relating to the training of armed forces, security forces, prison and police personnel and health-care personnel matters relating to the protection of human rights and the prevention of torture, while bearing in mind a gender perspective;

30. Calls upon all Governments, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and other United Nations bodies and agencies, as well as relevant intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, to commemorate, on 26 June, the United Nations International Day in Support of Victims of Torture;

31. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the Commission on Human Rights at its fifty-eighth session and to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the status of the Convention and a report on the operations of the Fund;

32. Decides to consider at its fifty-seventh session the reports of the Secretary-General, including the report on the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture, the report of the Committee against Torture and the interim report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the question of torture.

Freedom of opinion and expression

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In February [E/CN.4/2001/64], the Special Rapporteur on the promotion and protection of the right to freedom of opinion and expression, Abid Hussain (India), described his 2000 activities and summarized the texts of communications he had sent to 59 States and the Palestinian Authority and the replies thereto. During the reporting period, he had sent 16 allegations and 101 urgent appeals regarding violations of the right. An additional 89 urgent appeals and one allegation were sent jointly with other mechanisms of the Commission.

The Special Rapporteur stated that, based on the communications received, it was clear that the rights to freedom of opinion, expression and information were violated almost routinely in States with widely different political systems and institutional frameworks for governance. In the light of the large number of allegations received relating to the abuse of libel and defamation laws, he urged Governments to ensure that the fines for offences such as "defamation", "libel", "insults" and publication of "false" or "alarmist" information were not out of proportion to the harm done to victims and were not used to limit the free flow of information and ideas. He encouraged Governments to guarantee access to information by democratizing new information technologies, such as the Internet, and to remove obstacles to women's exercise of the right to freedom of expression. Recalling the Commission's 1999 request to integrate the protection of HIV-related human rights and access to information within his mandate [YUN 1999, p. 687], the Special Rapporteur called on Governments, NGOs and other specialized organizations to provide him with information.

A March report of the Special Rapporteur [A/CONF.189/PC.2/24] highlighted the exercise of the right as a positive contribution to combating racism, discrimination, xenophobia and related intolerance, hate speech as an area of conflict between the right to freedom of expression and the principle of non-discrimination, and the use of new technologies, such as the Internet, to fight racism. Annexed to the report was a joint statement on racism and the media issued by the Special Rapporteur, the OSCE representative on freedom and the media and the Organization of American States Special Rapporteur on freedom of expression.

The Special Rapporteur visited Argentina (25 June–2 July) [E/CN.4/2002/75/Add.1]. Although he observed that the right to freedom of opinion and expression was widely respected, he remained concerned about attacks, harassment and threats against journalists and human rights defenders and the deteriorating economic and social situation, which had an impact on exercising the right. Freedom of the media was sometimes restricted by indirect methods, particularly the unequal allocation of publicity spots or advertising. The Special Rapporteur regretted that minorities continued to be discriminated against in terms of their integration into the media. He recommended that the authorities investigate complaints of attacks, death threats and harassment against the media and that more talk shows and debates on rights issues be broadcast on national channels, with more journalists and academics involved. He encouraged the Government to ensure that future legislation that might affect freedom of opinion and expression and the freedom of the media was transparent and participatory. While noting measures taken by Argentina to reduce prejudices against some religious and ethnic minorities, the Special Rapporteur recommended awareness-raising and education to redress cultural stereotyping. He proposed that the technical cooperation programme initiated by OHCHR in Argentina include a focus on the promotion and protection of the right.

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/47], by a roll-call vote of 44 to none, with 8 abstentions, the Commission expressed concern at the detention, extrajudicial killing, persecution, harassment, threats, violence and discrimination directed at persons who exercised the right to freedom of opinion and expression, as well as the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion, peaceful assembly and association, and participation in public affairs. It appealed to States to ensure respect and support for all persons who exercised those rights, to ensure that they were not discriminated against, to promote and protect the freedom of opinion and expression, and to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur. The Special Rapporteur was asked to: draw the High Commissioner's attention to situations of particularly serious concern to him; pay particular attention, in cooperation with the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, to the situation of women; consider approaches taken to improve access to information, with a view to sharing best practices; provide his views on the advantages and challenges of new information technologies; seek the views of Governments and others concerned; and report in 2002. The Secretary-General was asked to assist him.

Terrorism

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 33 to 14, with 6 abstentions, the Commission, on 23 April [res. 2001/37], condemning all acts, methods and practices of terrorism, urged States, in conformity with international law, to prevent, combat and eliminate terrorism. States were called on to enhance their cooperation with a view to bringing terrorists to justice and to take appropriate measures before granting refugee status to ensure that an asylum-seeker had not participated in terrorist acts. Relevant human rights mechanisms were urged to address the consequences of the acts, methods and practices of terrorist groups. The Secretary-General was asked to collect information, including a compilation of studies and publications, on the implications of terrorism, as well as the effects of the fight against terrorism on the full enjoyment of human rights, and to make that information available to concerned special rapporteurs and working groups. The Commission endorsed the Subcommittee's 2000 request [YUN 2000, p. 688] to the Secretary-General to assist the Special Rapporteur.

Report of Special Rapporteur. In response to a 2000 Subcommittee request [YUN 2000, p. 688], the Special Rapporteur on terrorism and human rights, Kalliopi K. Koufa (Greece), in June [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/31], updated international action taken against terrorism, considered the criteria for the definition of terrorist acts, described contemporary forms of terrorism and reviewed the impact of terrorism on human rights. She concluded that violations of human rights, humanitarian law and the basic principles of the UN Charter were among the major causes of terrorism; study of those causes should be an essential component of any plan to reduce terrorism. Efforts should be made towards improvement of relations between States, which was essential to the global realization of human rights. The Special Rapporteur stated that much more needed to be assessed regarding extradition in the context of terrorism and that she would like to complete her consideration of sub-State or individual terrorism and the accountability of non-State actors. Thus, she recommended that the Subcommission authorize her to submit a further report.

Report of Secretary-General. In July [A/56/190], the Secretary-General, in response to General Assembly resolution 54/164 [YUN 1999, p. 642], summarized the views of eight Member States on the implications of terrorism for the enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Subcommission action. On 16 August [res. 2001/18], the Subcommission asked the Special Rapporteur to continue her work and to visit the UN offices in New York and Vienna in order to expand, update and expedite her work. The Secretary-General was asked to transmit her progress report (see p. 648) to Governments, specialized agencies and concerned intergovernmental organizations and NGOs for comments and information, to collect information, including the compilation of relevant studies and publications, and make it available to the Special Rapporteur, and to assist her in consulting competent services and bodies of the UN system. The Special Rapporteur was asked to submit another progress report in 2002.

Communication. Iraq, on 10 August [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/37], transmitted a statement on terrorism and human rights, claiming that it was being targeted by terrorist groups.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/160 by recorded vote (102-0-69) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Human rights and terrorism

The General Assembly,

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Declara- tion on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Cooperation among States in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations and the International Covenants on Human Rights,

Recalling the Declaration on the Occasion of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the United Nations, as well as the Declaration on Measures to Eliminate International Terrorism,

Recalling also the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, in which the Conference reaffirmed that the acts, methods and practices of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, as well as its linkage in some countries to drug trafficking, are activities aimed at the destruction of human rights, fundamental freedoms and democracy, threatening territorial integrity and the security of States and destabilizing legitimately constituted Governments, and that the international community should take the necessary steps to enhance cooperation to prevent and combat terrorism,

Recalling further the United Nations Millennium Declaration adopted by the General Assembly,

Recalling its resolutions 48/122 of 20 December 1993, 49/185 of 23 December 1994, 50/186 of 22 December 1995, 52/133 of 12 December 1997 and 54/164 of 17 December 1999,

Recalling in particular that, in its resolution 52/133, it requested the Secretary-General to seek the views of Member States on the implications of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations for the full enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms,

Recalling previous resolutions of the Commission on Human Rights, and taking note in particular of Commission resolution 2001/37 of 23 April 2001, as well as the relevant resolutions of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, in particular its resolution 2001/18, adopted unanimously on 16 August 2001,

Bearing in mind all other relevant General Assembly resolutions,

Bearing in mind also relevant Security Council resolutions,

Aware that, at the dawn of the twenty-first century, the world is witness to historic and far-reaching transformations, in the course of which forces of aggressive nationalism and religious and ethnic extremism continue to produce fresh challenges,

Alarmed that acts of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations aimed at the destruction of human rights have continued despite national and international efforts,

Bearing in mind that the right to life is the basic human right, without which a human being can exercise no other right,

Bearing in mind also that terrorism creates an environment that destroys the right of people to live in freedom from fear,

Reiterating that all States have an obligation to promote and protect all human rights and fundamental freedoms and that every individual should strive to secure their universal and effective recognition and observance,

Seriously concerned about the gross violations of human rights perpetrated by terrorist groups,

Profoundly deploring the increasing number of innocent persons, including women, children and the elderly, killed, massacred and maimed by terrorists in indiscriminate and random acts of violence and terror, which cannot be justified under any circumstances,

Expressing its deepest sympathy and condolences to all the victims of terrorism and their families,

Noting with great concern the growing connection between terrorist groups and other criminal organizations engaged in the illegal traffic in arms and drugs at the national and international levels, as well as the consequent commission of serious crimes such as murder, extortion, kidnapping, assault, the taking of hostages and robbery,

Alarmed in particular at the possibility that terrorist groups may exploit new technologies to facilitate acts of terrorism, which may cause massive damage, including huge loss of human life,

Emphasizing the need to intensify the fight against terrorism at the national level, to enhance effective international cooperation in combating terrorism in conformity with international law and to strengthen the role of the United Nations in this respect,

Emphasizing also the importance of Member States taking appropriate steps to deny safe haven to those who plan, finance or commit terrorist acts by ensuring their apprehension and prosecution or extradition,

Reaffirming that all measures to counter terrorism must be in strict conformity with the relevant provisions of international law, including international human rights standards,

Mindful of the need to protect the human rights of and guarantees for the individual in accordance with the relevant human rights principles and instruments, in particular the right to life,

Noting the growing consciousness within the international community of the negative effects of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations on the full enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms and on the establishment of the rule of law and democratic freedoms as enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations and the International Covenants on Human Rights,

1. Expresses its solidarity with the victims of terrorism;

2. Strongly condemns the violations of the right to live free from fear and of the right to life, liberty and security;

3. Reiterates its unequivocal condemnation of the acts, methods and practices of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations as activities aimed at the destruction of human rights, fundamental freedoms and democracy, threatening the territorial integrity and security of States, destabilizing legitimately constituted Governments, undermining pluralistic civil society and having adverse consequences for the economic and social development of States;

4. Reaffirms the decision of the heads of State and Government, as contained in the United Nations Millennium Declaration, to take concerted action against international terrorism and to accede as soon as possible to all the relevant regional and international conventions;

5. Urges the international community to enhance cooperation at the regional and international levels in the fight against terrorism, in accordance with relevant international instruments, including those relating to human rights, with the aim of its eradication;

6. Calls upon States to take all necessary and effective measures, in accordance with relevant provisions of international law, including international human rights standards, to prevent, combat and eliminate terrorism in all its forms and manifestations, wherever and by whomever it is committed, and also calls upon States to strengthen, where appropriate, their legislation to combat terrorism in all its forms and manifestations;

7. Urges all States to deny safe haven to terrorists;

8. Calls upon States to take appropriate measures, in conformity with relevant provisions of national and international law, including international human rights standards, before granting refugee status, for the purpose of ensuring that an asylum-seeker has not planned, facilitated or participated in the commission of terrorist acts, including assassinations, and in this context urges those States that have granted refugee status or asylum to persons involved in or claiming to have committed acts of terrorism to review these situations;

9. Condemns the incitement to ethnic hatred, violence and terrorism;

10. Commends those Governments that have communicated their views on the implications of terrorism in response to the notes verbales by the Secretary-General dated 16 August 1999 and 4 September 2000;

11. Welcomes the report of the Secretary-General, and requests him to continue to seek the views of Member States on the implications of terrorism in all its forms and manifestations for the full enjoyment of all human rights and fundamental freedoms and on the possible establishment of a voluntary fund for the victims of terrorism, as well as on ways and means to rehabilitate the victims of terrorism and to reintegrate them into society, with a view to incorporating his findings in his report to the General Assembly;

12. Decides to consider this question at its fifty-fifth session under the item entitled "Human rights questions".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/160:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chad, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Ethiopia, Gabon, Gambia, Georgia, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Viet Nam, Yemen.

Against: None.

Abstaining: Albania, Andorra, Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Eritrea, Estonia, Fiji, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malawi, Malta, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Palau, Papua New Guinea, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Samoa, San Marino, Sierra Leone, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Tonga, Tuvalu, Uganda, United Kingdom, United States, Vanuatu, Venezuela, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

(For Security Council action regarding terrorism, see p. 61.)

Hostage-taking

On 23 April [res. 2001/38], the Commission, reaffirming that hostage-taking was illegal and unjustifiable under any circumstances, condemned all such acts and demanded the immediate and unconditional release of all hostages. It called on States to prevent, combat and punish hostage-taking and urged thematic rapporteurs and working groups to address the consequences of such acts in their reports.

Freedom of movement

Mass exoduses

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 54/180 [YUN 1999, p. 644], the Secretary-General, in September [A/56/334], reported on human rights and mass exoduses, including efforts made by the United Nations and other institutions to enhance preventive capacities and steps taken towards more effective coordination to improve emergency responses. The Secretary-General stated that, although greater awareness of the link between racism, ethnic conflicts and human rights violations as the causes of mass exoduses had led to a better response by the international community during humanitarian crises and progress had been made towards more effective coordination of UN activities, more needed to be done. The Secretary-General restated the recommendations made in his 1999 report [YUN 1999, p. 643].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/166 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Human rights and mass exoduses

The General Assembly,

Deeply disturbed by the scale and magnitude of exoduses and displacements of people in many regions of the world and by the human suffering of refugees and displaced persons, a high proportion of whom are women and children,

Recalling its previous resolutions on this subject, as well as those of the Commission on Human Rights, and the conclusions of the World Conference on Human Rights, held at Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993, which recognized, inter alia, that gross violations of human rights, persecution, political and ethnic conflicts, famine and economic insecurity, poverty and generalized violence were among the root causes leading to mass exoduses and displacements of people,

Mindful of the three open debates that have taken place within the Security Council on the protection of civilians in armed conflict and the two reports of the Secretary-General on that subject,

Welcoming the fiftieth anniversary of the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, and noting the continuing relevance of the provisions of the Convention to the situation of people in mass exoduses,

Welcoming also the process of the Global Consultations on International Protection launched by the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and in particular the discussions that took place in March 2001 on the protection of refugees in mass influx situations,

Welcoming further the increased attention being given by the United Nations, including the Office of the High Commissioner, to the problem of camp security, including through the development of operational guidelines on the separation of armed elements from refugee populations,

Stressing the importance of adherence to international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law in order to avert mass exoduses and to protect refugees and internally displaced persons, and expressing its deep concern at the lack of respect for those laws and principles, especially during armed conflict, including the denial of safe and unimpeded access to the displaced,

Reaffirming the primary responsibility of States to ensure the protection of refugees and internally displaced persons,

Noting with satisfaction the efforts by the United Nations system to develop a comprehensive approach to addressing the root causes and effects of movements of refugees and other displaced persons and strengthening emergency preparedness and response mechanisms,

Recognizing that the human rights machinery of the United Nations, including the mechanisms of the Commission on Human Rights and the human rights treaty bodies, has important capabilities to address human rights violations that cause movements of refugees and displaced persons or prevent durable solutions to their plight,

Recognizing also the complementarity between the systems for the protection of human rights and for humanitarian action, in particular the mandates of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, as well as the work of the Representative of the Secretary-General on internally displaced persons and the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, and that cooperation between them, in accordance with their respective mandates, as well as coordination between the human rights, political and security components of United Nations operations, make important contributions to the promotion and protection of the human rights of persons forced into mass exodus and displacement,

Acknowledging with appreciation the coordination within, as well as the independent work of, the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement in protecting and assisting refugees and internally displaced persons, in cooperation with relevant United Nations bodies,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;
 2. Strongly deplores ethnic and other forms of intolerance as one of the major causes of forced migratory movements, and urges States to take all necessary steps to ensure respect for human rights, especially the rights of persons belonging to minorities;

3. Reaffirms the need for all Governments, intergovernmental bodies and relevant international organizations to intensify their cooperation and assistance in worldwide efforts to address human rights situations that lead to, as well as the serious problems that result from, mass exoduses of refugees and displaced persons;

4. Urges the Secretary-General to continue to give high priority to the consolidation and strengthening of emergency preparedness and response mechanisms, including early warning activities in the humanitarian area, so that, inter alia, effective action is taken to identify all human rights abuses that contribute to mass exoduses of persons;

5. Encourages States that have not already done so to consider acceding to the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees and to other regional instruments concerning refugees, as applicable, and relevant international instruments of human rights and humanitarian law, and to take appropriate measures to disseminate and implement those instruments domestically to encourage compliance with provisions against arbitrary and forcible displacement and greater respect for the rights of those who flee;

6. Emphasizes the responsibility of all States and international organizations to cooperate with those countries affected by mass exoduses of refugees and displaced persons, in particular developing countries;

7. Calls upon Governments, the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and other relevant parts of the United Nations system, as well as relevant international and non-governmental organizations, to continue to respond to the assistance and protection needs of refugees and other displaced persons worldwide, including to promote durable solutions to their plight;

8. Urges States to uphold the civilian and humanitarian character of refugee camps and settlements, consistent with international law, inter alia, through effective measures to prevent the infiltration of armed elements, to identify and separate any such armed elements from refugee populations, to settle refugees at safe locations, where possible away from the border, and to ensure prompt and unhindered access to them by humanitarian personnel;

9. Encourages the special rapporteurs, special representatives and working groups of the Commission on Human Rights and the United Nations human rights treaty bodies, acting within their mandates, to seek information, where appropriate, on human rights problems that may result in mass exoduses of populations or impede their voluntary return home and, where appropriate, to include such information, together with recommendations thereon, in their reports and to bring such information to the attention of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights for appropriate action in fulfilment of her mandate, in consultation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees;

10. Requests all United Nations bodies, acting within their mandates, the specialized agencies and governmental, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to cooperate fully with all mechanisms of the Commission on Human Rights and, in particular, to provide them with all relevant information in their possession on the human rights situations creating or affecting refugees and displaced persons;

11. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in the exercise of her mandate, as set out in General Assembly resolution 48/141 of 20 December 1993, to coordinate human rights activities throughout the United Nations system and, in cooperation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, to pay particular attention to situations that cause or threaten to cause mass exoduses or displacements and to contribute to efforts to address such situations effectively and promote sustainable returns through promotion and protection measures, including human rights monitoring in respect of those who fled or have returned as part of mass exoduses, emergency preparedness and response mechanisms, early warning and information-sharing, technical advice, expertise and cooperation in countries of origin as well as host countries;

12. Welcomes the efforts of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to contribute to the creation of an environment viable for return in post-conflict societies through initiatives such as the rehabilitation of the justice system, the creation of national institutions capable of defending human rights and broad-based programmes of human rights education and the strengthening of local non-governmental organizations through field presences and programmes of advisory services and technical cooperation;

13. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare and submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session a report on the implementation of the present resolution as it pertains to all aspects of human rights and mass exoduses, with particular emphasis on efforts by the United Nations system to enhance the protection of those who become displaced during mass exoduses and to facilitate their return and reintegration, as well as information on efforts to continue to enhance the capacity of the United Nations to avert new flows of refugees and other displaced persons and to tackle the root causes of such flows;

14. Decides to continue its consideration of this question at its fifty-eighth session.

Internally displaced persons

Reports of Secretary-General's Representative. In January [E/CN.4/2001/5], the Secretary-General's Representative on internally displaced persons, Francis M. Deng (Sudan), updated developments regarding the promotion, dissemination and application of the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement [YUN 1998, p. 675] and efforts to develop an institutional framework for internally displaced persons. He discussed country visits as a way to focus on specific situations of internal displacement and presented areas where further research was required, including addressing the protection and assistance needs of internally displaced persons living in areas not under government control, donor policies, the mental health of displaced populations and developing a more comprehensive protection regime for refugees and internally displaced persons.

In an August report [A/56/168], submitted pursuant to General Assembly resolution 54/167 [YUN 1999, p. 646], the Representative updated developments since his January report. He said that although some progress had been made in developing institutional arrangements for an effective response to the problems of internally displaced persons worldwide, the global crisis remained acute, affecting 20 million to 25 million persons in at least 40 countries. He pointed out that as an understanding of the issues had increased and deepened, so had the challenge of responding.

The Representative visited the Sudan (11-18 September) [E/CN.4/2002/95/Add.1], where he focused on dialogue with the Government and representatives of the international community in Khartoum, with a view to enhancing national response to internal displacement in the Sudan. Some 4 million Sudanese were internally displaced, representing the largest number of displaced persons worldwide, and an estimated 420,000 had sought refuge elsewhere in Africa and Europe. While natural disasters had resulted in significant displacement, the primary cause was the ongoing civil war. The Representative discussed with the Government the need to develop a national policy and strategy on internal displacement, including the establishment of a national focal point and institution. Several agreements were reached with the Government, including the preparation of a study on the displacement crisis and the ongoing programmes with a view to developing cooperative strategies in the light of the Guiding Principles and the convening of a national seminar, which would provide a forum for discussions with UN agencies, NGOs, donors and internally displaced persons on ways to enhance the national response to internal displacement.

The Representative visited Indonesia (24-29 September) [E/CN.4/2002/95/Add.2] to obtain first-hand information on displacement in the country and to initiate dialogue with the authorities responsible for adopting and implementing policies and programmes to assist and protect internally displaced persons. Some 1.3 million people were internally displaced, owing mostly to conflicts between the Government and local separatist groups and those between religious or ethnic groups. About 750,000 of the internally displaced persons were estimated to be under 18 years, and a great majority were women and children. Their condition was generally reported to be poor. The Representative stated that it was critical for national military and police forces to provide protection for all civilians. Protection and assistance called for collaboration among many actors. Thus, it was important to maintain close partnerships with NGOs and expand the role of the international community beyond humanitarian assistance. Referring to the seminar on internal displacement (see below), the Representative advocated recommendations on the creation of a national commission on internally displaced persons and community recovery, the development of guidelines on data collection, compilation and verification regarding internally displaced persons, and the designation of information focal points.

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/54], the Commission, stressing the need to strengthen inter-agency arrangements and the capacities of relevant UN agencies to meet the immense humanitarian challenge of internal displacement, called on States to provide adequate resources for programmes to assist and protect internally displaced persons. It called on the High Commissioner to develop projects, in cooperation with Governments, international organizations and the Representative, to promote the human rights of internally displaced persons, as part of the programme of advisory services and technical cooperation (see p. 598), and to include in her annual report information on their implementation. The Commission decided to extend the Representative's mandate for a further three years and asked him to continue to report to the General Assembly and the Commission. The Secretary-General was asked to assist him.

The Economic and Social Council, on 24 July, endorsed the Commission's decision to extend the Representative's mandate and its request to him to submit reports (decision 2001/269).

Seminar. The Representative transmitted to the Commission the report of the Seminar on Internal Displacement in Indonesia (Jakarta, 26-27 June) [E/CN.4/2002/95/Add.3], organized by the Brookings Institution-City University of New York Project on Internal Displacement, the University of Indonesia, the National Commission on Human Rights of Indonesia, the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR). Participants called for more concerted efforts at the national, provincial and district levels, better emergency needs assessment, and the creation of an effective information system to enable different actors to understand better the needs of internally displaced persons. Other proposals related to safety and protection, coordination, economic empowerment, education, and women and children.

Subcommission action. On 16 August [dec. 2001/122], the Subcommission asked Paulo Sérgio Pinheiro (Brazil) to prepare in 2002, without financial implications, a working paper on the return of refugees' or displaced persons' property.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/164 without vote [agenda item 119 (b)].

Protection of and assistance to internally displaced persons

The General Assembly,

Deeply disturbed by the alarmingly high numbers of internally displaced persons throughout the world who receive inadequate protection and assistance, and conscious of the serious problem that this is creating for the international community,

Conscious of the human rights and the humanitarian dimensions of the problem of internally displaced persons and the responsibilities that this poses for States and the international community to explore methods and means better to address the protection and assistance needs of those persons,

Noting the growing awareness of the international community of the issue of internally displaced persons worldwide and the urgency of addressing the root causes of their displacement and finding durable solutions, including voluntary return in safety and with dignity or local integration,

Emphasizing that national authorities have the primary responsibility to provide protection and assistance to internally displaced persons within their jurisdiction as well as to address the root causes for the displacement problem in cooperation with the international community,

Recalling the relevant norms of international human rights law, international humanitarian law and analogous refugee law, and recognizing that the protection of internally displaced persons has been strengthened by identifying, reaffirming and consolidating specific standards for their protection, in particular through the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement,

Taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/54 of 24 April 2001, and recalling the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993, regarding the need to develop global strategies to address the problem of internal displacement,

Deploing practices of forced displacement and their negative consequences for the enjoyment of fundamental human rights by large groups of populations,

Noting with appreciation the work of the Representative of the Secretary-General on internally displaced persons in developing a normative framework, in particular a compilation and analysis of legal norms and the development of guiding principles, analysing institutional arrangements, undertaking dialogue with Governments and issuing a series of reports on particular country situations together with proposals for remedial measures,

Welcoming the cooperation established between the Representative of the Secretary-General and the United Nations and other international and regional organizations, in particular the participation of the Representative of the Secretary-General in the meetings of the Inter-Agency Standing Committee and its subsidiary bodies, and encouraging further strengthening of this collaboration in order to promote better protection, assistance and development strategies for internally displaced persons,

Recognizing the central role of the Emergency Relief Coordinator for the inter-agency coordination of protection of and assistance to internally displaced persons, and in this regard welcoming the establishment of the Senior Inter-Agency Network on Internal Displacement and the decision to set up within the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the Secretariat a unit for coordinating activities regarding internally displaced persons in order to promote better protection, assistance and development strategies for internally displaced persons, as well as to enhance further accountability by the United Nations system,

Acknowledging with appreciation the independent coordination within, as well as the independent work of, the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and other humanitarian agencies in protecting and assisting internally displaced persons in cooperation with relevant international bodies,

Recalling its resolution 54/167 of 17 December 1999,

1. Welcomes the report of the Representative of the Secretary-General on internally displaced persons;

2. Commends the Representative of the Secretary-General for the activities undertaken so far, for the catalytic role that he continues to play in raising the level of consciousness about the plight of internally displaced persons and for his efforts to promote a comprehensive strategy that focuses on prevention as well as better protection, assistance and development for internally displaced persons;

3. Expresses its appreciation to those Governments and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations that have provided protection and assistance to internally displaced persons and have supported the work of the Representative of the Secretary-General;

4. Encourages the Representative of the Secretary-General, through continuous dialogue with Governments and all intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations concerned, to continue his analysis of the causes of internal displacement, the needs and rights of those displaced, measures of prevention and ways to strengthen protection, assistance and solutions for internally displaced persons, taking into account specific situations, and to include information thereon in his reports to the Commission on Human Rights and the General Assembly;

5. Welcomes the specific attention paid by the Representative of the Secretary-General to the special protection, assistance and development needs of internally displaced women, children and other groups with specific needs and his commitment to pay more systematic and in-depth attention to their needs;

6. Also welcomes the fact that the Representative of the Secretary-General has made use of the Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement in his dialogue with Governments and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations, and requests him to continue his efforts in that regard, including considering strategies for addressing such concerns;

7. Notes with appreciation that an increasing number of States, United Nations agencies and regional and non-governmental organizations are making use of the Guiding Principles, encourages the further dissemination and application of the Guiding Principles, expresses its appreciation for the dissemination and promotion of the Guiding Principles at regional and other seminars on displacement, and encourages the Representative of the Secretary-General to continue to initiate or support such seminars in consultation with regional organizations, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations and other relevant institutions, and to provide support for efforts to promote capacity-building and use of the Guiding Principles;

8. Calls upon all Governments to continue to facilitate the activities of the Representative of the Secretary-General, in particular Governments with situations of internal displacement, encourages them to give serious consideration to inviting the Representative to visit their countries so as to enable him to study and analyse more fully the issues involved, and thanks those Governments that have already done so;

9. Invites Governments to give due consideration, in dialogue with the Representative of the Secretary-General, to the recommendations and suggestions addressed to them, in accordance with his mandate, and to inform him of measures taken thereon;

10. Calls upon Governments to provide protection and assistance, including reintegration and development assistance, to internally displaced persons, and to facilitate the efforts of relevant United Nations agencies and humanitarian organizations in these respects, including by further improving access to internally displaced persons;

11. Notes with appreciation the increased attention paid to the issue of internally displaced persons in the consolidated inter-agency appeals process, and encourages further efforts to improve the integration of the protection and assistance needs of internally displaced persons in consolidated appeals;

12. Emphasizes the central role of the Emergency Relief Coordinator for the inter-agency coordination of protection of and assistance to internally displaced persons, and in this regard urges the Senior Inter-Agency Network on Internal Displacement and all relevant United Nations humanitarian assistance, human rights and development organizations concerned to enhance further their collaboration and coordination, especially through the Inter-Agency Standing Committee, in order to promote and better carry out protection, assistance and development activities for internally displaced persons and to enhance further their accountability, as well as to provide all possible assistance and support to the Representative of the Secretary-General, and invites the Network better to inform Member States of its activities;

13. Welcomes the initiatives undertaken by regional organizations, such as the Organization of African Unity, the Organization of American States, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe, the Council of Europe and the Economic Community of

West African States, to address the protection, assistance and development needs of internally displaced persons, and encourages them and other regional organizations to strengthen their activities and their co-operation with the Representative of the Secretary-General;

14. Notes the establishment of the global internally displaced persons database, as advocated by the Representative of the Secretary-General, and encourages the members of the Inter-Agency Standing Committee and Governments to continue to collaborate on and support this effort, including by providing financial resources;

15. Requests the Secretary-General to provide his Representative, from within existing resources, with all necessary assistance to carry out his mandate effectively, and encourages the Representative to continue to seek the contribution of States, relevant organizations and institutions in order to put the work of the Representative on a more stable basis;

16. Requests the Representative of the Secretary-General to prepare, for consideration by the General Assembly at its fifty-eighth session, a report on the implementation of the present resolution;

17. Decides to continue its consideration of the question of protection of and assistance to internally displaced persons at its fifty-eighth session.

Vulnerable groups

In a September report [A/56/326] on strategies for realizing the goals contained in the UN Millennium Declaration [YUN 2000, p. 49], the Secretary-General identified measures to protect vulnerable groups, particularly women and children, forced into situations of displacement and abuse owing to complex humanitarian emergencies. The measures included prosecuting violations of international criminal law, gaining access to vulnerable populations, separating civilians and armed elements in situations of forced displacement, fostering a culture of protection for refugees and internally displaced persons, and disseminating the Guiding Principles. The report proposed strengthening international co-operation and helping refugees and displaced persons return voluntarily to their homes and reintegrate into their societies. States were encouraged to ratify and implement the 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted by General Assembly resolution 44/25 [YUN 1989, p. 561], and its 2000 Optional Protocols on the involvement of children in armed conflict and on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, adopted by Assembly resolution 54/263 [YUN 2000, p. 615] (see p. 595).

Right to asylum

On 16 August [res. 2001/16], the Subcommission, expressing concern over the fate of persons who had risked their lives fleeing from their homes to escape persecution, starvation or destitution, reaffirmed that their human rights should be protected in accordance with international human rights instruments. It urged the UN High Commissioners for Human Rights and for Refugees to intensify efforts to provide women and girl refugees with adequate protection. The Subcommission recommended that States disputing the refugee status of a particular population cooperate with UNHCR and other interested parties to facilitate verification of the status of those who asserted they were refugees, through an impartial and fair process.

Smuggling and trafficking in persons

A July note [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/26] by the Secretary-General, submitted in accordance with a 2000 Subcommission decision [YUN 2000, p. 690], defined trafficked persons as victims of serious and systematic human rights violations, particularly vulnerable to further abuse, and stated that a growing number of migrants were being trafficked or smuggled across national borders. The report described international and regional initiatives on trafficking and migrant smuggling and outlined priority areas for action, such as preventive strategies and addressing the reality of increasing diversity.

Peace and security

By a roll-call vote of 29 to 16, with 7 abstentions, the Commission, on 25 April [res. 2001/69], affirming that States should promote international peace and security, urged them to refrain from using weapons with indiscriminate effects on human health, the environment and economic and social well-being and from measures which encouraged the resurgence of a new arms race.

Weapons of mass destruction

By a vote of 21 to 2, the Subcommission, on 16 August [dec. 2001/119], decided to authorize Yeung Kam Yeung Sik Yuen (Mauritius) to prepare for 2002, without financial implications, a working paper assessing the utility, scope and structure of a study on the enjoyment of human rights posed by the testing, production, storage, transfer, trafficking or use of weapons of mass destruction or with indiscriminate effect, or of a nature to cause superfluous injury or unnecessary suffering, including the use of weaponry containing depleted uranium. The working paper originally was assigned to former Subcommission member Clemencia Forero Ucross (Colombia) in 1997 [YUN 1997, p. 668].

Small arms

On 16 August [dec. 2001/120], the Subcommission, noting issues raised at the United Nations Conference on the Illicit Trade in Small Arms and Light Weapons in All Its Aspects (see p. 499), decided to entrust Barbara Frey (United States) with the task of preparing, without financial implications, a working paper on small arms and light weapons and their use, for submission in 2002.

Economic, social and cultural rights

Right to development

Reports of Secretary-General. As requested by the Commission on Human Rights in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 691], the Secretary-General presented information received from six Governments and one specialized agency [E/CN.4/2001/24] on follow-up to the 1986 Declaration on the Right to Development, contained in General Assembly resolution 41/128 [YUN 1986, p. 717].

Pursuant to a 1999 Subcommission request [YUN 1999, p. 652], the Secretary-General, in a June report with later addendum [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/11 & Add.1], described steps taken by UN bodies and agencies to promote international cooperation for the realization of the right to development in the context of the United Nations Decade for the Eradication of Poverty (1997-2006) (see p. 753).

In accordance with Assembly resolution 55/108 [YUN 2000, p. 692] the Secretary-General submitted, in July [A/56/256], a report on the right to development based on information received from five Governments. On 19 December, the Assembly took note of the report (decision 56/429).

Report of High Commissioner. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 691], the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights described activities undertaken by her Office to implement the right to development [E/CN.4/2001/25], particularly regarding poverty alleviation, the international financial architecture, corporate responsibility, gender mainstreaming, education, health, food, racial discrimination, indigenous people, good governance, and migrants and trafficked persons. She also provided information related to the implementation of General Assembly and Commission resolutions, and on inter-agency coordination within the UN system to implement Commission resolutions.

Reports of independent expert. In accordance with a 2000 Commission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 691], the independent expert on the right to development, Arjun Sengupta (India), submitted, in January [E/CN.4/2001/WG.18/2], a report aimed at clarifying issues raised by the Commission's Open-ended Working Group on the Right to Development in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 691] and at assisting the Group in finalizing its report and recommendations to the Commission. The expert made recommendations regarding international cooperation, stating that a development compact was only one model of the cooperation; the feasibility of that approach, as well as other alternatives, would have to be examined further. The expert proposed that countries that wished to implement the right through development compacts establish national human rights commissions to monitor the fulfilment of their obligations. Once an approach was developed, it might be useful to establish a forum under the auspices of the Commission to discuss the problems encountered in the process of realizing the right to development and measures to overcome them.

In a later report [E/CN.4/2002/WG.18/2/Add.1], the expert summarized his November mission, aimed at further developing and gathering support for the development compact, to the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) (Paris), the United Kingdom Department for International Development (DFID), the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the World Bank and the United States Department of State (Washington, D.C.), and the Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Regarding the interaction of the development compact in the Poverty Reduction Strategy Papers (PRSPs), the expert noted that the World Bank emphasized a positive connection between the PRSP process and a rights-based approach to development. DFID warned against the development compact being weaker than the PRSP process. The issue of international cooperation as an obligation raised problems for many participants. Thus, the expert believed it would be interesting to make a case study of DFID programmes that used human rights-based approaches. The expert stated that his choice of the Development Assistance Committee of OECD to coordinate a support group composed of the World Health Organization (WHO), the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), OHCHR, UNDP, international financial agencies such as IMF, the World Bank and the regional development banks, and interested donor countries raised many questions; he welcomed input on the issue. Although most of the institutions did not commit themselves to the compact, they respected the expert's proposition to explore it through the appointment of an expert group.

Working group activities. The Open-ended Working Group on the Right to Development held its second session in Geneva from 29 January to 2 February [E/CN.4/2001/26]; it held a resumed session on 26 and 27 February and met on 2 March for the submission of the Chairperson's conclusions.

Participants discussed the independent expert's proposals regarding a development compact and the possibility of using national human rights institutions as monitoring bodies (see above). UN agencies and international organizations presented information on strategies to realize the right and a general discussion took place on national and international action for the realization of the right to development. The Chairperson prepared draft elements for an agreed outcome of the session, which had been accepted by the majority of delegations. However, five States (Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, United States) raised objections to some elements of the text, which were annexed to the report.

The expert was asked to clarify the development compact further and to prepare a preliminary study on the impact of international economic issues on the enjoyment of human rights. The Group recommended the expansion of its 2002 session to 10 days and the extension of the expert's mandate for a further year.

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 48 to 2, with 3 abstentions, the Commission, on 18 April [res. 2001/9], asked the independent expert to clarify further the proposed development compact and to prepare, in consultation with relevant UN agencies and the Bretton Woods institutions, a preliminary study on the impact of international economic and financial issues, for consideration by the Working Group. The Group and the independent expert were asked to consider the outcomes of international conferences, such as the South Summit of the Group of 77 [YUN 2000, p. 782] and the follow-up thereto, in elaborating recommendations for implementing the right to development. OHCHR, UN specialized agencies, funds and programmes, the international financial institutions and other actors were asked to collaborate with the independent expert. The Commission recommended that the Economic and Social Council extend the Group's mandate for a further year and that of the independent expert for another three years.

On 24 July, the Council approved the Commission's recommendations and its requests to the independent expert, the Working Group, OHCHR and the specialized agencies, funds and programmes and financial institutions (decision 2001/247).

On 20 April [res. 2001/30], the Commission called on States to guarantee economic, social and cultural rights without discrimination of any kind; to secure through national development policies, and with international assistance, full realization of those rights, giving particular attention to the most vulnerable and disadvantaged, most often women and children, especially girls, and communities living in extreme poverty; and to promote the effective participation of civil society in decision-making processes related to those rights.

By a roll-call vote of 36 to 16, on 25 April [res. 2001/73], the Commission, recognizing that insufficient attention was paid to international solidarity as a component of efforts of developing countries to realize the right to development, urged the international community to consider ways to promote and consolidate assistance to those countries.

Workshop. OHCHR and Argentina organized a regional workshop (Buenos Aires, 24-27 October) [A/C.3/56/5], aimed at providing a forum where Latin American and Caribbean States could study and discuss strategies to develop policies designed to promote economic, social and cultural rights.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/150 by recorded vote (123-4-44) [agenda item 119 (b)].

The right to development

The General Assembly,

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations, which expresses, in particular, the determination to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom as well as to employ international mechanisms for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Recalling that the Declaration on the Right to Development, adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 41/128 of 4 December 1986, confirmed that the right to development is an inalienable human right and that equality of opportunity for development is a prerogative both of nations and of individuals who make up nations,

Recalling also that the outcome of the World Conference on Human Rights, held in Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993, namely the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, reaffirmed the right to development as a universal and inalienable right and an integral part of all fundamental human rights,

Recalling further the outcomes of the World Summit for Social Development, and the twenty-fourth special session of the General Assembly entitled "World Summit for Social Development and beyond: achieving social development for all in a globalizing world", held in Geneva from 26 June to 1 July 2000, especially as they relate to the realization of the right to development,

Recalling its resolution 55/279 of 12 July 2001, in which it endorsed the Brussels Declaration and the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the Decade 2001-2010 adopted by the Third United Nations Conference on the Least Developed Countries, held in Brussels from 14 to 20 May 2001, and in this regard emphasizing the importance of implementation and follow-up to the Brussels commitments,

Welcoming the report of the Secretary-General, in preparation for the International Conference on Financing for Development to be held in Monterrey, Mexico, from 18 to 22 March 2002, and expressing its hope that the Conference will set a new partnership for financing sustainable development and for the implementation of the goals set out in the United Nations Millennium Declaration and other internationally agreed development targets,

Taking note of the three studies prepared by the independent expert on the right to development and his proposed possible approaches to the operationalization of the right to development,

Taking note also of the report of the Open-ended Working Group on the Right to Development established to monitor and review progress made in the promotion and implementation of the right to development and of the Chairperson's conclusions on the issue, as well as the comments submitted thereon,

Welcoming the commitment made by the heads of State and Government in the United Nations Millennium Declaration to make the right to development a reality for everyone and their resolve to create an environment, at the national and global levels alike, which is conducive to development and to the elimination of poverty, and their commitment to spare no effort to promote good governance and democracy and to strengthen the rule of law as well as respect for all universally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the right to development,

Underlining the fact that meeting the objectives of good governance also depends on good governance at the international level and on transparency in the financial, monetary and trading systems and an open, equitable, rules-based, predictable and non-discriminatory multilateral trading and financial system,

Underlining also the fact that the realization of the right to development requires effective development policies at the national level as well as equitable economic relations and a favourable economic environment at the international level,

Underlining further the important role of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in the promotion and protection of the right to development,

Recalling the need for coordination and cooperation throughout the United Nations system for a more effective promotion and realization of the right to development,

Taking note of the outcome of the South Summit of the Group of Seventy-seven, held in Havana from 10 to 14 April 2000, relating to the realization of the right to development,

1. Welcomes the holding of two sessions of the Open-ended Working Group on the Right to Development from 18 to 22 September 2000 and from 29 January to 2 February 2001, which focused on certain issues, as reflected in the report of the Working Group, and emphasizes the need to continue deliberations on the right to development in all its aspects, inter alia, on the basis of the report of the Working Group and the Chairperson's conclusions, as well as comments submitted thereon;

2. Emphasizes that, on the basis of the text of the Declaration on the Right to Development, several resolutions and declarations adopted by consensus at subsequent international conferences and the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, it should now be possible to reach consensus on the full implementation of the right to development;

3. Expresses its appreciation for the reports of the independent expert on the right to development and his additional work on and clarifications of the "development compact" proposal, which contributed to a better understanding of that proposal, while recognizing that further clarification is still needed;

4. Recognizes that any development compact would be of a voluntary nature for all parties involved and that its content would be defined on a case-by-case basis and be adapted to the priorities and realities of any country willing to conclude such a compact, which would need the adherence and the support of all international actors involved in its implementation;

5. Notes the request by the Commission on Human Rights that the independent expert clarify further the proposed development compact, taking into consideration views expressed during the two sessions of the Working Group and in broad consultation with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and United Nations funds and programmes, as well as the specialized agencies, relevant international and regional organizations, non-governmental organizations and, in particular, those actors and States interested in developing pilot projects in this regard, keeping in mind:

(a) The ongoing bilateral, regional and multilateral development cooperation programmes;

(b) The formulation of an operational model for a development compact;

(c) The views of concerned international organizations and agencies and relevant regional institutions and actors;

(d) The need to ensure the added value of a development compact to and its complementarity with the relevant existing mechanisms;

(e) The need to address and remedy the national and international dimensions of corruption;

(f) The need for country-specific studies from both a national and an international perspective;

6. Reaffirms that States have the primary responsibility for the creation of national and international conditions favourable to the realization of the right to development and that they are committed to cooperating with each other to that end;

7. Also reaffirms that the realization of the right to development is essential to the implementation of the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action, which regards all human rights as universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated, and which also places the human person at the centre of development and recognizes that, while development facilitates the enjoyment of all human rights, the lack of development may not be invoked to justify the abridgement of internationally recognized human rights;

8. Recognizes that, in order to realize the right to development, national action and international cooperation must reinforce each other in a manner that goes beyond the measures for realizing each individual right, and also recognizes that international cooperation for the realization of the right to development should be conducted in the spirit of a partnership, in full respect for all human rights, which are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated;

9. Also recognizes that, for many developing countries, the realization of the rights to, inter alia, food, health and education may be important development entry points to the realization of the right to development and that, in this context, the concept of a development compact proposed by the independent expert intends to give expression to some basic tenets of the interdependence of all human rights and national ownership of development strategies and programmes, as well as the importance of international cooperation;

10. Notes the ongoing discussion on the question of a suitable permanent follow-up mechanism and the different views expressed thereon in the Working Group, and recognizes the need for a discussion on this issue;

11. Stresses the necessity of establishing, at the national level, an enabling legal, political, economic and social environment for the realization of the right to development, and emphasizes the importance of democratic, participatory, transparent and accountable governance, as well as the need for efficient national mechanisms, such as national human rights commissions, to ensure respect for civil, economic, cultural, political and social rights, without any distinction;

12. Also stresses the need to prevent, address and take effective action against corruption, at both the national and international levels, including by establishing a firm legal structure for eradicating corruption, and urges States to take all necessary measures to that end;

13. Recognizes the importance of the role of the State, civil society, free and independent media, national institutions, the private sector and other relevant institutions in the realization of the right to development, and also recognizes the need to continue discussion on this subject;

14. Affirms the role of women in the process of the realization of the right to development, including their role as active participants in and beneficiaries of development, and the need for further actions in this context to ensure the participation of women on equal terms with men in all fields in the realization of the right to development;

15. Also affirms the promotion of gender equality and the empowerment of women as effective means to combat poverty, hunger and disease and to stimulate sustainable development, as well as the importance of equal rights and opportunities for women and men, including property rights for women and their access to bank loans, mortgages and other forms of financial credit, taking into account the best practices of micro-credit in different parts of the world;

16. Underlines the fact that, in the process of the realization of the right to development, special attention should be given to persons belonging to minorities, whether national, ethnic, religious or linguistic, as well as to persons belonging to vulnerable groups, such as elderly people, indigenous people, persons facing discrimination on multiple grounds, Roma, migrants, persons with disabilities and children and persons infected with the human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immunodeficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS), and that such attention should have a gender perspective;

17. Affirms in this context that attention should also be given to the right to development of children, with special attention to the rights of the girl child;

18. Acknowledges the need to continue discussion on the role of civil society in the realization of the right to development and the role of national institutions in this respect;

19. Reaffirms the need for States to cooperate with each other in ensuring development and eliminating obstacles to development, recognizes the importance of the international community in promoting effective international cooperation for the realization of the right to development, and also recognizes that lasting progress towards the implementation of the right to development requires effective development policies at the national level, as well as equitable economic relations and a favourable economic environment at the international level;

20. Reiterates that the gap between developed and developing countries remains unacceptably wide, that developing countries continue to face difficulties in participating in the globalization process, and that many risk being marginalized and effectively excluded from its benefits;

21. Recognizes, while bearing in mind the existing efforts in this respect, that it is necessary to enhance efforts to consider and evaluate the impact on the enjoyment of human rights of international economic and financial issues, such as:

- (a) International trade issues;
- (b) Access to technology;
- (c) Good governance and equity at the international level;
- (d) Debt burden;

22. Notes the request by the Commission on Human Rights that the independent expert prepare, in consultation with all relevant United Nations agencies and the Bretton Woods institutions, a preliminary study on the impact of those issues on the enjoyment of human rights, starting with an analysis of the existing efforts and means of assessing and evaluating that impact, for consideration by the Working Group at its future sessions;

23. Also notes the request by the Commission on Human Rights that the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the specialized agencies, funds and programmes, the international financial institutions and other relevant actors collaborate with the independent expert in the fulfilment of his mandate, and encourages further cooperation;

24. Further notes the request by the Commission on Human Rights that the Working Group and the independent expert consider, as appropriate, the relevant economic and development outcomes of the international conferences, inter alia, the South Summit of the Group of Seventy-seven, and the follow-up thereto, in elaborating their recommendations for the implementation of the right to development;

25. Decides to continue consideration of the issue of the right to development, as a matter of priority, at its fifty-seventh session.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/150:

Democratic and equitable international order

By a roll-call vote of 32 to 16, with 4 abstentions, the Commission, on 25 April [res. 2001/65], affirming that a democratic and equitable international order fostered the full realization of human rights, urged States to continue efforts to promote the international order. The Commission asked human rights treaty bodies, OHCHR and Commission and Subcommission mechanisms to contribute to the implementation of its resolution. The Secretary-General was asked to bring the resolution to the attention of Member States, UN organs and bodies, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs and to disseminate it widely. OHCHR was called on to build upon the promotion of a democratic and equitable order and to take the resolution into account when convening any seminar, workshop or other activity relating to democracy.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/151 by recorded vote (109-53-6) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Promotion of a democratic and equitable international order

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/107 of 4 December 2000, and taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/65 of 25 April 2001,

Reaffirming the commitment of all States to fulfil their obligations to promote universal respect for, and observance and protection of, all human rights and fundamental freedoms for all, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, other instruments relating to human rights and international law,

Affirming that the enhancement of international co-operation for the promotion and protection of all human rights should continue to be carried out in full conformity with the purposes and principles of the Charter and international law as set forth in Articles 1 and 2 of the Charter and, inter alia, with full respect for sovereignty, territorial integrity, political independence, the non-use of force or the threat of force in international relations and non-intervention in matters that are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any State,

Recalling the Preamble to the Charter, in particular the determination to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person and in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small,

Reaffirming that everyone is entitled to a social and international order in which the rights and freedoms set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights can be fully realized,

Reaffirming also the determination expressed in the Preamble to the Charter to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom, to practise tolerance and good-neighbourliness, and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Considering the major changes taking place on the international scene and the aspirations of all peoples for an international order based on the principles enshrined in the Charter, including promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all and respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, peace, democracy, justice, equality, the rule of law, pluralism, development, better standards of living and solidarity,

Considering also that the Universal Declaration of Human Rights proclaims that all human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights and that everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set out therein, without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status,

Reaffirming that democracy, development and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms are interdependent and mutually reinforcing, and that democracy is based on the freely expressed will of the people to determine their own political, economic, social and cultural systems and their full participation in all aspects of their lives,

Emphasizing that democracy is not only a political concept but that it also has economic and social dimensions,

Recognizing that democracy, respect for all human rights, including the right to development, transparent and accountable governance and administration in all sectors of society, and effective participation by civil society are an essential part of the necessary foundations for the realization of social and people-centred sustainable development,

Underlining the fact that it is imperative for the international community to ensure that globalization becomes a positive force for all the world's people, and that only through broad and sustained efforts, based on common humanity in all its diversity, can globalization be made fully inclusive and equitable,

Stressing that efforts to make globalization fully inclusive and equitable must include policies and measures, at the global level, that correspond to the needs of developing countries and countries with economies in transition and are formulated and implemented with their effective participation,

Resolved, at the beginning of a new century and millennium, to take all measures within its power to secure a democratic and equitable international order,

1. Affirms that everyone is entitled to a democratic and equitable international order;

2. Also affirms that a democratic and equitable international order fosters the full realization of all human rights for all;

3. Further affirms that a democratic and equitable international order requires, inter alia, the realization of the following:

(a) The right of all peoples to self-determination, by virtue of which they can freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development;

(b) The right of peoples and nations to permanent sovereignty over their natural wealth and resources;

(c) The right of every human person and all peoples to development;

(d) The right of all peoples to peace;

(e) The promotion of an international economic order based on equal participation in the decision-making process, interdependence, mutual interest, solidarity and cooperation among all States;

(f) Solidarity, as a fundamental value, by virtue of which global challenges must be managed in a way that distributes costs and burdens fairly in accordance with basic principles of equity and social justice and ensures that those who suffer or who benefit the least receive help from those who benefit the most;

(g) The promotion and consolidation of transparent, democratic, just and accountable international institutions in all areas of cooperation, in particular through the implementation of the principles of full and equal participation in their respective decision-making mechanisms;

(h) The principle of equitable regional and gender-balanced representation in the composition of the staff of the United Nations system;

(i) The promotion of a free, just, effective and balanced international information and communications order, based on international cooperation for the establishment of a new equilibrium and greater reciprocity in the international flow of information, in particular, correcting the inequalities in the flow of information to and from developing countries;

(j) Respect for cultural diversity and the cultural rights of all, since this enhances cultural pluralism, contributes to a wider exchange of knowledge and understanding of cultural backgrounds, advances the application and enjoyment of universally accepted human rights across the world and fosters stable, friendly relations among peoples and nations worldwide;

(k) The entitlement of every person and all peoples to a healthy environment;

(l) The promotion of equitable access to benefits from the international distribution of wealth through enhanced international cooperation, in particular in economic, commercial and financial international relations;

(m) The enjoyment by everyone of ownership of the common heritage of mankind;

(n) The shared responsibility of the nations of the world for managing worldwide economic and social development, as well as threats to international peace and security that should be exercised multilaterally;

4. Stresses the importance of preserving the rich and diverse nature of the international community of nations and peoples, as well as respect for national and regional particularities and various historical, cultural and religious backgrounds in the enhancement of international cooperation in the field of human rights;

5. Also stresses that all human rights are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated and that the international community must treat human rights globally in a fair and equal manner, on the same footing and with the same emphasis, and reaffirms that, while the significance of national and regional particularities and various historical, cultural and religious backgrounds must be borne in mind, it is the duty of States, regardless of their political, economic and cultural systems, to promote and protect all human rights and fundamental freedoms;

6. Reaffirms that all States should promote the establishment, maintenance and strengthening of international peace and security and, to that end, should do their utmost to achieve general and complete disarmament under effective international control, as well as to ensure that the resources released by effective disarmament measures are used for comprehensive development, in particular that of the developing countries;

7. Recalls the proclamation by the General Assembly of its determination to work urgently for the establishment of an international economic order based on equity, sovereign equality, interdependence, common interest and cooperation among all States, irrespective of their economic and social systems, which shall correct inequalities and redress existing injustices, make it possible to eliminate the widening gap between the developed and the developing countries and ensure steadily accelerating economic and social development and peace and justice for present and future generations;

8. Reaffirms that the international community should devise ways and means to remove the current obstacles and meet the challenges to the full realization of all human rights and to prevent the continuation of human rights violations resulting therefrom throughout the world;

9. Urges States to continue their efforts, through enhanced international cooperation, towards the promotion of a democratic and equitable international order;

10. Requests the Commission on Human Rights, the human rights treaty bodies, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and the mechanisms of the Commission on Human Rights and the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights to pay due attention, within their respective mandates, to the present resolution and to make contributions towards its implementation;

11. Calls upon the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to build upon the issue of the promotion of a democratic and equitable international order and to take into account the present resolution when convening any seminar, workshop or any other activity in relation to the issue of democracy;

12. Requests the Secretary-General to bring the present resolution to the attention of Member States, United Nations organs, bodies and components, inter-governmental organizations, in particular the Bretton Woods institutions, and non-governmental organizations and to disseminate it on the widest possible basis;

13. Decides to continue consideration of the matter at its fifty-seventh session under the agenda item entitled "Human rights questions".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/151:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chad, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Gambia, Ghana, Grenada, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Albania, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Croatia, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Marshall Islands, Micronesia, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Samoa, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Tuvalu, Ukraine, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Abstaining: Argentina, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Paraguay, Peru, South Africa.

Globalization

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 37 to 15, with 1 abstention, the Commission, on 23 April [res. 2001/32], reaffirmed that efforts to make globalization fully inclusive and equitable must include policies and measures at the global level, and asked international economic governance institutions to promote broad-based decision-making. It underlined the need for treaty bodies, special rapporteurs/representatives, independent experts and working groups to take into consideration in their reports the impact of globalization on human rights. The Commission encouraged the Special Rapporteurs on globalization to take into account its resolution in finalizing their study on globalization and its impact on human rights [YUN 2000, p. 696] for consideration in 2003. The High Commissioner, in cooperation with the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), was asked to submit a comprehensive report for the Commission's consideration, taking into account the provisions of the resolution.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/102 [YUN 2000, p. 696], the Secretary-General submitted a July report with later addendum [A/56/254 & Add.1], presenting the views of seven Governments on globalization and its impact on human rights.

Report of Special Rapporteurs. In an August progress report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/10], the Special Rapporteurs on globalization and its impact on human rights, Joseph Oloka-Onyango (Uganda) and Deepika Udagama (Sri Lanka), updated developments since the submission of their 2000 report [YUN 2000, p. 696]. The report focused on globalization and intellectual property rights, the dispute settlement system of the World Trade Organization (WTO), the poverty eradication strategies of multilateral institutions and international human rights law and its applicability to those institutions. The Special Rapporteurs pointed to the need to strengthen the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS), noting that it would be helpful if no provision prohibited WTO members from taking measures to provide access to medicines at affordable prices and to promote public health and nutrition. The obligations within TRIPS and those in various human rights instruments relating to international cooperation and assistance should be given more attention, together with issues such as intellectual property rights and indigenous knowledge or the right to food. As to multilateral institutions, the Special Rapporteurs stated that it was critical to develop minimum guidelines, or a restatement, to serve as a human rights benchmark of acceptable conduct in pursuing the ends of globalization.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/5], the Subcommission encouraged the Special Rapporteurs to examine further the relationship between international human rights law and international economic law, to focus on guidelines and mechanisms to deal effectively with globalization and its impact on human rights, and to propose measures to ensure that the UN human rights regime was strengthened to address the challenges of globalization. The Special Rapporteur on the right to food was encouraged to explore the implications for the realization of that right of liberalization of the international trade in agricultural products. The Subcommission recommended that government PRSPs refer to applicable human rights obligations. It further recommended that the Commission request the convening of an expert consultation on economic globalization and human rights, involving the Special Rapporteurs, the Subcommission, UN agencies and other relevant organizations and institutions.

Also on 15 August [dec. 2001/106], the Subcommission appointed Fried van Hoof (Netherlands) as commentator on the minimum guidelines, which would comprise part of the Special Rapporteurs' final 2002 report on globalization.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/165 by recorded vote (116-46-9) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Globalization and its impact on the full enjoyment of all human rights

The General Assembly,

Guided by the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and expressing in particular the need to achieve international cooperation in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction,

Recalling the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, as well as the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights on 25 June 1993,

Recalling also the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights,

Recalling further the Declaration on the Right to Development adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 41/128 of 4 December 1986,

Recalling the United Nations Millennium Declaration and the outcome documents of the twenty-third and twenty-fourth special sessions of the General Assembly, held, respectively, in New York from 5 to 10 June 2000 and Geneva from 26 June to 1 July 2000,

Recalling also its resolution 55/102 of 4 December 2000,

Recognizing that all human rights are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated and that the international community must treat human rights globally in a fair and equal manner, on the same footing and with the same emphasis,

Realizing that globalization affects all countries differently and makes them more exposed to external developments, positive as well as negative, including in the field of human rights,

Realizing also that globalization is not merely an economic process but that it also has social, political, envi- ronmental, cultural and legal dimensions which have an impact on the full enjoyment of all human rights,

Recognizing that multilateral mechanisms have a unique role to play in meeting the challenges and opportunities presented by globalization,

Expressing concern at the negative impact of international financial turbulence on social and economic development and on the full enjoyment of all human rights,

Deeply concerned that the widening gap between the developed and the developing countries, and within countries, has contributed, inter alia, to deepening poverty and has adversely affected the full enjoyment of all human rights, in particular in developing countries,

Noting that human beings strive for a world that is respectful of human rights and cultural diversity and that, in this regard, they work to ensure that all activities, including those affected by globalization, are consistent with those aims,

1. Recognizes that, while globalization, by its impact on, inter alia, the role of the State, may affect human rights, the promotion and protection of all human rights is first and foremost the responsibility of the State;

2. Reaffirms that narrowing the gap between rich and poor, both within and between countries, is an explicit goal at the national and international levels, as part of the effort to create an enabling environment for the full enjoyment of all human rights;

3. Also reaffirms the commitment to create an environment at both the national and the global level that is conducive to development and to the elimination of poverty through, inter alia, good governance within each country and at the international level, transparency in the financial, monetary and trading systems and commitment to an open, equitable, rule-based, predictable and non-discriminatory multilateral trading and financial system;

4. Recognizes that, while globalization offers great opportunities, its benefits are very unevenly shared and its costs are unevenly distributed, an aspect of the process that affects the full enjoyment of all human rights, in particular in developing countries;

5. Also recognizes that only through broad and sustained efforts, including policies and measures at the global level to create a shared future based upon our common humanity in all its diversity, can globalization be made fully inclusive and equitable and have a human face, thus contributing to the full enjoyment of all human rights;

6. Affirms that globalization is a complex process of structural transformation, with numerous interdisciplinary aspects, which has an impact on the enjoyment of civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights, including the right to development;

7. Also affirms that the international community should strive to respond to the challenges and opportunities posed by globalization in a manner that ensures respect for the cultural diversity of all;

8. Underlines, therefore, the need to continue to analyse the consequences of globalization for the full enjoyment of all human rights;

9. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General, and requests the Secretary-General to seek further the views of Member States and to submit a comprehensive report on this subject to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session.

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/165:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chad, China, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Gambia, Ghana, Grenada, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Palau, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Tuvalu, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Vanuatu, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Against: Albania, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Canada, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, Marshall Islands, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Republic of Moldova, Romania, San Marino, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Ukraine, United Kingdom, United States, Yugoslavia.

Abstaining: Chile, Colombia, Croatia, Guatemala, Micronesia, Peru, Republic of Korea, Singapore, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

Intellectual property rights

Report of Secretary-General. Pursuant to a 2000 Subcommission request [YUN 2000, p. 697], the Secretary-General, in a June report with later addendum [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/12 & Add.1], transmitted the views of four States, one UN body, two specialized agencies and 10 NGOs on intellectual property rights and human rights.

Report of High Commissioner. As requested by the Subcommission in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 697], the High Commissioner, in a June report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/13] on the human rights impact of the TRIPS Agreement, focused on the right to health. She decided to focus on the TRIPS Agreement and the right to health in order to expand on work done by other international organizations in that area and, as the issue of trade agreements and health had been raised at world conferences, the report could be situated within an identifiable international policy context.

The High Commissioner believed that implementation of the Agreement should be characterized by a series of objectives. In that regard, she encouraged States to monitor the implementation of the Agreement to ensure that its minimum standards achieved a balance between the interests of the general public and those of the authors; develop competition laws to prevent abuses of intellectual property rights that led to violations of the right to health, particularly restrictive licensing practices or setting high prices for essential drugs; and implement in national legislation several provisions of the Agreement that offered flexibility in promoting access to affordable essential drugs. Developing countries were encouraged to establish incentives to promote technology transfer and the supply of affordable drugs to them. The High Commissioner supported a call of WHO that countries, when establishing standards of patentability for pharmaceuticals, should consider the implications for health of those standards. She urged the adaptation of intellectual property systems to take account of the rights of indigenous and local communities. The High Commissioner recommended that the Subcommission request further reports on the impact of the Agreement on other specific human rights and recommend that the Commission convoke an expert seminar to consider the human rights dimensions of the Agreement.

Subcommission action. On 16 August [res. 2001/21], the Subcommission requested the High Commissioner to seek observer status with WTO for the ongoing review of the TRIPS Agreement; examine and, if necessary, investigate whether the patent, as a legal instrument, was compatible with human rights promotion and protection; and analyse the impact of the Agreement on the rights of indigenous peoples. It called on her to convene an expert seminar to consider the human rights dimension of the Agreement and to report thereon to the Commission in 2003. The Special Rapporteurs on the right to food, on education and on adequate housing were encouraged to include in their reports a review of the implication of the Agreement for the realization of the rights falling within their mandates.

Liberalization of trade in services

On 15 August [res. 2001/4], the Subcommission requested the High Commissioner to submit in 2002 a report on the human rights implications of liberalization of trade in services. UN agencies, particularly WHO and UNESCO, were encouraged to analyse the implementation of the General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS) on health and education services. The Subcommission recommended that WTO, in assessing the impact of GATS in its current and future forms, consider the human rights implications of international trade in basic services, such as affordable and accessible health and education services, and the further liberalization thereof. It also recommended that WTO, in the assessment, take into account the report to be prepared by the High Commissioner and any analysis prepared by UN agencies. The High Commissioner and UN agencies that had not already done so were encouraged to request observer status with the WTO Council for Trade in Services.

Structural adjustment policies

Report of independent expert. In a January report [E/CN.4/2001/56], the independent expert on the effects of structural adjustment policies and foreign debt on human rights, Fantu Cheru (United States), analysed the steps taken since 1999 to grant debt relief to qualifying countries. The report was based on the interim PRSPs of nine States, which were annexed to the report. It focused mainly on the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Initiative, designed to reduce debts to sustainable levels for poor countries that pursued economic and social policy reforms.

The expert made recommendations to expedite the process of granting immediate relief to eligible HIPC countries, including unlinking the HIPC debt relief from the PRSP process, as their association removed the autonomy of countries to develop a framework that made a connection between macroeconomic policies and poverty reduction goals. He also proposed including UN entities other than the World Bank and IMF in the process; initiating new talks aimed at resolving the debt burden of poor countries; abolishing the IMF poverty reduction and growth facility; and beginning a dialogue on integrating macroeconomic policy issues with broader social development goals.

Note by Secretariat. A February note by the Secretariat [E/CN.4/2001/57] stated that the session of the working group on structural adjustment programmes and economic, social and cultural rights, scheduled to take place prior to the Commission's 2001 session, was postponed. The group last met in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 698].

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 31 to 15, with 7 abstentions, the Commission, on 20 April [res. 2001/27], called on Governments, international financial institutions and the private sector to consider cancelling or reducing the debt of heavily indebted poor countries. It requested the independent expert to report annually and the Secretary-General to assist him.

The Commission asked the Economic and Social Council to authorize the working group on structural adjustment to meet for two weeks prior to the Commission's 2002 session to continue elaborating policy guidelines on structural adjustment programmes and economic, social and cultural rights and to report in 2002. On 24 July, the Council authorized the Commission's request (decision 2001/260).

Following the expert's resignation in September, the Commission appointed Bernard Andrew Nyamwaya Mudho (Kenya).

Social Forum

Commission action. On 23 April [dec. 2001/103], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 Subcommission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 699], authorized the Subcommission to hold in 2001 a Social Forum, which would focus on economic, social and cultural rights.

Subcommission action. On 16 August [res. 2001/24], the Subcommission, welcoming a preparatory panel meeting on the Social Forum, which recognized the need for a new process within the UN system with broad participation, reflecting the current structure of international society, decided that the Social Forum would meet every year to exchange information on the enjoyment of economic, social and cultural rights and their relationship with the process of globalization, follow up on situations of poverty and destitution and on agreements reached at major world conferences, and propose juridical standards and initiatives, as well as guidelines and recommendations for consideration by the Commission, the Working Group on the Right to Development (see p. 657), the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the specialized agencies and UN bodies. The Subcommission recommended that the Forum address themes relating to civil and political and economic, social and cultural rights; the relationship between poverty, extreme poverty and human rights; income distribution; basic resources; the impact of trade, finance and economic policies on vulnerable groups; multilateral and bilateral international development cooperation; follow-up to world conferences and summits; and social and economic indicators. It decided that the Forum's theme in 2002 would be the relationship between poverty reduction and the realization of the right to food, and asked the High Commissioner to ensure consultation on the theme with those most vulnerable. Subcommission member José Bengoa (Chile) was requested to prepare a preliminary working paper on the methodology and work of the Forum.

The Subcommission invited UN bodies and specialized agencies, functional commissions of the Economic and Social Council, the regional commissions, international financial institutions, the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, special rapporteurs and independent experts, NGOs, scholars, trade unions and associations of workers to participate in and to submit studies to the Forum. The Subcommission asked the Forum to submit a report and recommendations in 2002, the Commission and the Council to endorse the holding of the Forum and authorize facilities to prepare and service the event, and the Commission to establish a voluntary fund to facilitate the participation of grass-roots groups and similar organizations for the disadvantaged.

Transnational corporations

The sessional working group on the working methods and activities of transnational corporations (TNCs), at its third session (Geneva, 31 July, 2 and 8 August) [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/9], discussed draft guidelines relating to the human rights conduct of companies, which would be legally binding. The group considered a working paper on the topic and papers on economic, social and cultural rights and TNCs, and human rights responsibilities and procedures for implementation and compliance by States and corporations.

Subcommission action. On 31 July [dec. 2001/101], the Subcommission decided to establish a five-member sessional working group to examine the working methods and activities of TNCs.

On 15 August [res. 2001/3], the Subcommission extended for a three-year period the mandate of the group and asked it to report on its 2002 session.

Coercive economic measures

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 37 to 8, with 8 abstentions, the Commission, on 20 April [res. 2001/26], called on States to avoid the unilateral imposition of coercive economic measures and the extraterritorial application of domestic laws that ran counter to the principles of free trade and hampered the development of developing countries. It decided to consider the negative impact of the measures in its work regarding the implementation of the right to development. The Commission asked the High Commissioner to give urgent consideration to its resolution. The Secretary-General was asked to bring the resolution to the attention of all States, to seek their views on the implications and negative effects of the measures and to report thereon in 2002.

Reports of Secretary-General. Pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 699], the Secretary-General submitted information received from one State on the implications and negative effects of unilateral coercive measures [E/CN.4/2001/50].

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 55/110 [YUN 2000, p. 700], the Secretary-General, in a July report with later addendum [A/56/207 & Add.1], presented further information received from five States regarding the effects of unilateral coercive measures.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/148 by recorded vote (114-51-2) [agenda item 119 (b)].

Human rights and unilateral coercive measuresThe General Assembly,*

Recalling its resolutions 51/103 of 12 December 1996, 52/120 of 12 December 1997, 53/141 of 9 December 1998, 54/172 of 17 December 1999 and 55/110 of 4 December 2000, as well as Commission on Human Rights resolutions 1998/11 of 9 April 1998 and 2000/11 of 17 April 2000, and taking note of Commission resolution 2001/26 of 20 April 2001,

Reaffirming the pertinent principles and provisions contained in the Charter of Economic Rights and Duties of States proclaimed by the General Assembly in its resolution 3281 (XXIX) of 12 December 1974, in particular article 32 thereof, in which it declared that no State may use or encourage the use of economic, political or any other type of measures to coerce another State in order to obtain from it the subordination of the exercise of its sovereign rights,

Taking note of the report submitted by the Secretary-General pursuant to Commission on Human Rights resolution 1999/21 of 23 April 1999, and the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of resolutions 52/120 and 55/110,

Recognizing the universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated character of all human rights, and in this regard reaffirming the right to development as an integral part of all human rights,

Recalling that the World Conference on Human Rights, held at Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993, called upon States to refrain from any unilateral coercive measure not in accordance with international law and the Charter of the United Nations that creates obstacles to trade relations among States and impedes the full realization of all human rights,

Bearing in mind all the references to this question in the Copenhagen Declaration on Social Development adopted by the World Summit for Social Development on 12 March 1995, the Beijing Declaration and Platform for Action adopted by the Fourth World Conference on Women on 15 September 1995, the Istanbul Declaration on Human Settlements and the Habitat Agenda adopted by the second United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II) on 14 June 1996 and their five-year reviews,

Expressing its concern about the negative impact of unilateral coercive measures in the field of international relations, trade, investment and cooperation,

Deeply concerned that, despite the recommendations adopted on this question by the General Assembly and recent major United Nations conferences and contrary to general international law and the Charter of the United Nations, unilateral coercive measures continue to be promulgated and implemented with all their negative implications for the social-humanitarian activities and economic and social development of developing countries, including their extraterritorial effects, thereby creating additional obstacles to the full enjoyment of all human rights by peoples and individuals under the jurisdiction of other States,

Bearing in mind all the extraterritorial effects of any unilateral legislative, administrative and economic measures, policies and practices of a coercive nature against the development process and the enhancement of human rights in developing countries, which create obstacles to the full realization of all human rights,

Noting the continuing efforts of the Open-ended Working Group on the Right to Development of the Commission on Human Rights, and reaffirming in particular its criteria according to which coercive measures are one of the obstacles to the implementation of the Declaration on the Right to Development,

1. Urges all States to refrain from adopting or implementing any unilateral measures not in accordance with international law and the Charter of the United Nations, in particular those of a coercive nature with all their extraterritorial effects, which create obstacles to trade relations among States, thus impeding the full realization of the rights set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other international human rights instruments, in particular the right of individuals and peoples to development;

2. Invites all States to consider adopting administrative or legislative measures, as appropriate, to counteract the extraterritorial application or effects of unilateral coercive measures;

3. Rejects unilateral coercive measures with all their extraterritorial effects as tools for political or economic pressure against any country, in particular against developing countries, because of their negative effects on the realization of all the human rights of vast sectors of their populations, in particular children, women and the elderly;

4. Calls upon Member States that have initiated such measures to commit themselves to their obligations and responsibilities arising from the international human rights instruments to which they are party by revoking such measures at the earliest possible time;

5. Reaffirms in this context the right of all peoples to self-determination, by virtue of which they freely determine their political status and freely pursue their economic, social and cultural development;

6. Urges the Commission on Human Rights to take fully into account the negative impact of unilateral coercive measures, including the enactment of national laws and their extraterritorial application, in its task concerning the implementation of the right to development;

7. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in discharging her functions relating to the promotion, realization and protection of the right to development and bearing in mind the continuing impact of unilateral coercive measures on the population of developing countries, to give priority to the present resolution in her annual report to the General Assembly;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to bring the present resolution to the attention of all Member States, to continue to collect their views and information on the implications and negative effects of unilateral coercive measures on their populations and to submit an analytical report thereon to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session, highlighting the practical and preventive measures in this respect;

9. Decides to examine this question on a priority basis at its fifty-seventh session under the sub-item entitled "Human rights questions, including alternative approaches for improving the effective enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/148:

In favour: Afghanistan, Algeria, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Cape Verde, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Cuba, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Fiji, Gabon, Gambia, Ghana, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, India, Indonesia, Iran, Jamaica, Jordan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Mali, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nepal, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Qatar, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Samoa, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Uganda, United Arab Emirates, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Vanuatu, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Zambia.

Abstaining: Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan.

Extreme poverty

Report of independent expert. Pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 702], the independent expert on the question of human rights and extreme poverty, Anne-Marie Lizin (Belgium), in a February report [E/CN.4/2001/54 & Corr.1], stated that extreme poverty was worsening in several parts of the world. She noted that migration to escape extreme poverty had expanded. On the positive side, there was a greater commitment on the part of the United Nations, increased awareness of the problem among Governments and NGOs, and changes in the attitudes of international financial institutions, particularly by IMF, which was endeavouring to create conditions for equitable and sustainable growth—the largest contributory factor to poverty reduction. The expert described her interviews with IMF representatives, which brought to light the progress it had made during the past two years, and made recommendations regarding IMF operations. She proposed a four-stage strategy, which aimed to establish knowledge of their rights among the poor themselves, training programmes to fight poverty, a campaign against the condition of poverty and mobilization through a world alliance against poverty. The report contained an analysis of comments on her first report [YUN 2000, p. 701] submitted by Governments, UN bodies and NGOs. Annexed to the report were questionnaires on extreme poverty and human rights sent to Governments, national human rights bodies and NGOs, as well as one used by the expert during her interviews with the poorest people.

Expert seminar. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 702], OHCHR organized an expert seminar, attended by government, UN and NGO representatives (Geneva, 7-9 February) [E/CN.4/2001/54/Add.1 & Corr.1], to consider the need to develop a draft declaration on extreme poverty and, if appropriate, identify its specific points. As the majority of participants were in favour of a new document, they discussed the possible forms of a text. They expressed the opinion that a human rights-based approach to poverty eradication was an integral part of a human rights-based approach to development and that the text would serve as an interpretative instrument for development work in general and poverty eradication more specifically.

Commission action. On 23 April [res. 2001/31], the Commission called on the General Assembly, specialized agencies, UN bodies and intergovernmental organizations to take into account the contradiction between the existence of extreme poverty and exclusion from society and the duty to guarantee the enjoyment of human rights. States, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs were urged to take into account the links between human rights and extreme poverty, as well as efforts to empower people living in poverty to participate in decision-making processes; they were asked to submit their comments on the independent expert's report in time for the Commission's 2002 session. The United Nations was urged to strengthen poverty eradication as a priority throughout the system. Taking note of the expert seminar, the Commission asked the Subcommission to consider the need to develop guiding principles on the implementation of existing human rights norms and standards in the fight against extreme poverty and to report in 2003. States, UN bodies, specialized agencies, funds and programmes, the functional commissions of the Economic and Social Council, regional commissions and international financial institutions were invited to submit their views on the subject.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to a 1999 Subcommission request [YUN 1999, p. 652], the Secretary-General, in a June report with later addendum [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/11 & Add.1], submitted information on the activities taken by UN bodies and the specialized agencies to enhance international cooperation on the right to development in the context of the United Nations Decade for the Eradication of Poverty (1997-2006) (see p. 753).

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/8], the Subcommission requested Paulo Sérgio Pinheiro (Brazil), Yozo Yokota (Japan),

El Hadji Guissé (Senegal) and José Bengoa (Chile) to prepare for consideration in 2002 a joint working paper, without financial implications, on the need to develop guiding principles on the implementation of existing human rights norms and standards in the context of the fight against extreme poverty. They were also asked to consider the situations of poverty in Asia, Africa and Latin America, as well as the policies of the World Bank, IMF, WTO and other international bodies to fight poverty, and to present conclusions and recommendations in order to contribute to work on a draft declaration on extreme poverty and human rights and other international and regional initiatives. The Secretariat was asked to assist in the study, while Governments and regional specialized agencies in Asia, Africa and Latin America were asked to provide information.

Right to food

Report of Special Rapporteur. Pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 704], the Special Rapporteur on the right to food, Jean Ziegler (Switzerland), in a February report [E/CN.4/2001/53], considered the legal definition of the right, relevant international instruments, steps to encourage countries to introduce the right to food in their legislation and the obstacles to the realization of the right, such as developments in world trade, external debt servicing, biotechnology and genetically modified plants, wars, corruption, access to land and credit, and discrimination against women. The Special Rapporteur recommended the provision of local seed and land to families, the extension of daily school meals to all needy children and the introduction of school meal vouchers, and basic food subsidies and food tickets for the most deprived. He asked the Commission to grant him the financial means to convene an international expert seminar to lay the foundation for a handbook on the right to food, confirm his mandate to respond to reliable information on violations of the right to food, entitling him to address urgent appeals to Governments responsible for serious violations, and clarify that the term "food" covered not only solid food but also the nutritional aspects of drinking water.

Expert consultation. As requested by the Commission in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 704], OHCHR organized an expert consultation on the right to food (Bonn, Germany, 12-14 March) [E/CN.4/2001/148], which focused on implementation mechanisms and on the monitoring role of national human rights commissions, ombudsmen and related institutions. The participants, who represented all regions, explored rights-based policy formulation and programming for food and nutrition security, national legal instruments and institutions, and the justiciability of the right to food and related rights. Presentations reviewed the situation and prospects concerning the national implementation of the right to food in 14 countries.

The consultation recommended new and stronger measures at the national level to increase the accountability of States through a multi-pronged strategy for national implementation, as set out in General Comment No. 12, adopted by the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 575]. As to international implementation, it proposed that the Committee reformulate its current guidelines for States reporting on article 11 (the right to adequate food) of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (see p. 590), taking into account General Comment No. 12. Further expert consultations were recommended on international obligations and implementation under the International Covenant, particularly the right to food; ways to integrate the right into poverty-related policies, strategies and programmes; and the role of national institutions in monitoring the implementation and realization of the right.

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 52 to 1, the Commission, on 20 April [res. 2001/25], reaffirming that hunger constituted a violation of human dignity, considered it intolerable that 826 million people did not have enough food to meet their basic nutritional needs. The Special Rapporteur was requested to seek, receive and respond to information on the right to food, including the urgent necessity of eradicating hunger; cooperate with Governments, intergovernmental organizations, particularly FAO, and NGOs; identify emerging issues related to that right worldwide; pay attention to the issue of drinking water; mainstream a gender perspective in his activities; and submit a preliminary report to the General Assembly in 2001 and a final report to the Commission in 2002. He was also asked to contribute to the medium-term review of the 1996 Rome Declaration on World Food Security and the Plan of Action of the World Food Summit [YUN 1996, p. 1129] by submitting his recommendations on the right to food to the High Commissioner. The High Commissioner was asked to assist him. Governments, UN agencies, funds and programmes, treaty bodies and NGOs were invited to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur by submitting suggestions on ways to realize the right to food.

The Commission recommended that the High Commissioner organize a further consultation on the right to food, focusing on the realization of the right as part of strategies and policies for the eradication of poverty.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's requests to the Special Rapporteur and to the High Commissioner to organize an expert consultation (decision 2001/259).

Preliminary report of Special Rapporteur. In July [A/56/210], the Secretary-General transmitted the Special Rapporteur's preliminary report on the right to food. The Special Rapporteur reviewed the legal basis for the right to food and examined the right in situations of armed conflict. He also discussed clean drinking water as a component of healthy nutrition and international trade rules and food security. He proposed steps to implement national legislation and for local food security.

The Special Rapporteur called on the General Assembly to reiterate the urgency of eliminating hunger and malnutrition. He made a series of recommendations relating to food security, the nutritional aspects of water and national legislation, and proposed that States adopt an international code of conduct on the right to food, as voluntary guidelines aimed at achieving food security for all.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/7], the Subcommission appealed to world leaders attending the five-year review of the 1996 World Food Summit [YUN 1996, p. 1129] (see p. 1141) to call on States to develop a national strategy to implement that right; promote the incorporation of the right in poverty reduction strategies; encourage further clarification of States' international responsibilities in implementing the right to food; and mobilize and optimize the allocation and utilization of resources to implement sustainable food security policies.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.2], adopted resolution 56/155 by recorded vote (169-2-2) [agenda item 119 (b)].

The right to food

The General Assembly,

Recalling all Commission on Human Rights resolutions in this regard, in particular resolution 2000/10 of 17 April 2000, and taking note of Commission resolution 2001/25 of 20 April 2001,

Recalling also the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which provides that everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for her/his health and well-being, including food,

Recalling further the provisions of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, in which the fundamental right of every person to be free from hunger is recognized,

Recalling the Universal Declaration on the Eradication of Hunger and Malnutrition,

Bearing in mind the Rome Declaration on World Food Security and the Plan of Action of the World Food Summit,

Reaffirming that all human rights are universal, indivisible, interdependent and interrelated,

Recognizing that the problems of hunger and food insecurity have global dimensions and that they are likely to persist and even to increase dramatically in some regions unless urgent, determined and concerted action is taken, given the anticipated increase in the world's population and the stress on natural resources,

Reaffirming that a peaceful, stable and enabling political, social and economic environment, at both the national and the international level, is the essential foundation which will enable States to give adequate priority to food security and poverty eradication,

Reiterating, as did the Rome Declaration, that food should not be used as an instrument of political or economic pressure, and reaffirming in this regard the importance of international cooperation and solidarity, as well as the necessity of refraining from unilateral measures that are not in accordance with international law and the Charter of the United Nations and that endanger food security,

Convinced that each State must adopt a strategy consistent with its resources and capacities to achieve its individual goals in implementing the recommendations contained in the Rome Declaration and Plan of Action of the World Food Summit and, at the same time, cooperate regionally and internationally in order to organize collective solutions to global issues of food security in a world of increasingly interlinked institutions, societies and economies where coordinated efforts and shared responsibilities are essential,

Stressing the importance of reversing the continuing decline of official development assistance devoted to agriculture, both in real terms and as a share of total official development assistance,

1. Reaffirms that hunger constitutes an outrage and a violation of human dignity and therefore requires the adoption of urgent measures at the national, regional and international levels for its elimination;

2. Also reaffirms the right of everyone to have access to safe and nutritious food, consistent with the right to adequate food and the fundamental right of everyone to be free from hunger so as to be able fully to develop and maintain their physical and mental capacities;

3. Considers it intolerable that 826 million people, most of them women and children, throughout the world and particularly in developing countries, do not have enough food to meet their basic nutritional needs, which infringes upon their fundamental human rights and at the same time can generate additional pressures on the environment in ecologically fragile areas;

4. Encourages all States to take steps with a view to achieving progressively the full realization of the right to food, including steps to promote the conditions for everyone to be free from hunger and, as soon as possible, to enjoy fully the right to food, and to elaborate and adopt national plans to combat hunger;

5. Stresses the need to make efforts to mobilize and optimize the allocation and utilization of technical and financial resources from all sources, including external debt relief for developing countries, and to reinforce national actions to implement sustainable food security policies;

6. Urges States to give adequate priority in their development strategies and expenditures to the realization of the right to food;

7. Takes note of the report of the United Nations Children's Fund on early childhood entitled The State of the World's Children, 2001, and in this context recalls that the nurturing of young children merits the highest priority;

8. Takes note with appreciation of the preliminary report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the right to food, submitted in accordance with Commission resolution 2001/25, and commends the Special Rapporteur for his valuable work in the promotion of the right to food;

9. Supports the realization of the mandate of the Special Rapporteur as established by the Commission on Human Rights in its resolutions 2000/10 and 2001/25;

10. Emphasizes the request of the Commission on Human Rights to the Special Rapporteur to contribute effectively to the medium-term review of the implementation of the Rome Declaration on World Food Security and the Plan of Action of the World Food Summit by submitting to the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights his recommendations on all aspects of the right to food;

11. Encourages the Special Rapporteur to mainstream a gender perspective in the activities relating to his mandate;

12. Requests the Secretary-General and the High Commissioner to provide all the necessary human and financial resources for the effective fulfilment of the mandate of the Special Rapporteur;

13. Welcomes the work already done by the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights in promoting the right to adequate food, in particular its General Comment No. 12 (1999) on the right to adequate food (article 11 of the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights), in which the Committee affirmed, inter alia, that the right to adequate food is indivisibly linked to the inherent dignity of the human person and is indispensable for the fulfilment of other human rights enshrined in the International Bill of Human Rights, and is also inseparable from social justice, requiring the adoption of appropriate economic, environmental and social policies, at both the national and international levels, oriented to the eradication of poverty and the fulfilment of all human rights for all;

14. Also welcomes the convening by the High Commissioner at Bonn, from 12 to 14 March 2001, of the Third Expert Consultation on the Right to Food, with a focus on implementation mechanisms at the country level, hosted by the Government of Germany, and takes note with interest of the report of this meeting;

15. Supports the recommendation that the High Commissioner organize a fourth expert consultation on the right to food, with a focus on the realization of this right as part of strategies and policies for the eradication of poverty, inviting experts from all regions;

16. Requests the Special Rapporteur to submit a comprehensive report to the Commission on Human Rights at its fifty-eighth session and an interim report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session on the implementation of the present resolution;

17. Invites Governments, relevant United Nations agencies, funds and programmes, treaty bodies and non-governmental organizations to cooperate fully with the Special Rapporteur in the fulfilment of his mandate, inter alia, through the submission of comments and suggestions on ways and means of realizing the right to food;

18. Decides to continue the consideration of this matter at its fifty-seventh session under the agenda item entitled "Human rights questions".

RECORDED VOTE ON RESOLUTION 56/155:

In favour: Afghanistan, Albania, Algeria, Andorra, Angola, Antigua and Barbuda, Argentina, Armenia, Austria, Azerbaijan, Bahamas, Bahrain, Bangladesh, Barbados, Belarus, Belgium, Belize, Benin, Bhutan, Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Botswana, Brazil, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Burkina Faso, Burundi, Cambodia, Cameroon, Canada, Cape Verde, Chad, Chile, China, Colombia, Comoros, Congo, Costa Rica, Côte d'Ivoire, Croatia, Cuba, Cyprus, Czech Republic, Democratic People's Republic of Korea, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Denmark, Djibouti, Dominica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Equatorial Guinea, Eritrea, Estonia, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Gabon, Gambia, Georgia, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Grenada, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Kuwait, Lao People's Democratic Republic, Latvia, Lebanon, Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malawi, Malaysia, Maldives, Mali, Malta, Marshall Islands, Mauritania, Mauritius, Mexico, Micronesia, Monaco, Mongolia, Morocco, Mozambique, Myanmar, Namibia, Nauru, Nepal, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Palau, Panama, Papua New Guinea, Paraguay, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Qatar, Republic of Korea, Republic of Moldova, Romania, Russian Federation, Rwanda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Saint Lucia, Samoa, San Marino, Saudi Arabia, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Suriname, Sweden, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, The former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Tuvalu, Uganda, Ukraine, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, United Republic of Tanzania, Uruguay, Vanuatu, Venezuela, Viet Nam, Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia.

Against: Israel, United States.

Abstaining: Australia, New Zealand.

Right to adequate housing

Reports of Special Rapporteur. The Special Rapporteur on adequate housing, Miloon Kothari (India), in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/51], stated that housing and living conditions were deteriorating worldwide. No fewer than 100 million people were homeless, of whom between 30 million and 70 million were children. The situation was exacerbated by the trend of rapid urbanization, particularly in Africa and South-East Asia, as well as by growing poverty in countries with a predominantly rural population. The process of globalization was an impediment to the realization of the right to adequate housing, as were limited access to safe drinking water and sanitation, poverty, and discrimination, particularly against women. He recommended that the Commission permit him to report annually to it, to the General Assembly and to the Commission on the Status of Women; request him to convene an expert seminar, in collaboration with relevant UN agencies, to further study the impact of globalization; mandate him to seek, receive and respond to information on all aspects of the realization of the right to adequate housing, particularly urgent action in cases of serious violations of the right; and permit him to submit periodic thematic reports.

In August [A/CONF.189/9], the Special Rapporteur reported on discrimination and segregation in housing. He noted that more research was needed on the extent to which discrimination in housing and land contributed to discrimination and segregation regarding particular people and communities. The specific short- and long-term impact of residential segregation and of globalization policies needed further study.

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/28], the Commission requested the Special Rapporteur to emphasize practical solutions regarding the implementation of the right to adequate housing as a component of the right to an adequate standard of living, based on information on best practices from Governments, UN agencies and NGOs. He was also asked to facilitate technical assistance in that field, to further review the interrelatedness of adequate housing with other human rights and to report in 2002. The High Commissioner was asked to support cooperation between the Special Rapporteur and other Commission mechanisms and UN bodies relevant to his mandate. The Secretary-General was asked to assist him.

The Commission requested OHCHR and the UN Centre for Human Settlements (UNCHS) (see p. 985) to strengthen cooperation and consider developing a joint housing rights programme, and to support the Special Rapporteur. It called on States to give full effect to housing rights, paying particular attention to individuals, often women and children, living in extreme poverty; to ensure indigenous peoples and other minorities non-discriminatory access to adequate housing; and to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur and submit to him information on various experiences, notably on best practices.

During the year, the United Nations Housing Rights Programme was established as a joint initiative of UNCHS and OHCHR. The first phase of the Programme focused on advocacy and outreach; monitoring and evaluation of the realization of housing rights; research and analysis on housing rights; and capacity-building and technical cooperation.

Women's right to property and adequate housing

On 23 April [res. 2001/34], the Commission encouraged Governments to take measures to increase access to land and housing for women living in poverty. OHCHR, UNHCR and other relevant international organizations were asked to address discrimination against women with respect to land, property and adequate housing. The Secretary-General, as Chairman of the Administrative Committee on Coordination, was invited to encourage UN entities to take further initiatives that promoted women's equal ownership of, access to and control over land and the equal rights to own property and to adequate housing, and to allocate further resources to study the impact of complex emergency situations. The Secretary-General was asked to report in 2002.

Right to education

Report of Secretary-General. In response to a 2000 request of the Commission [YUN 2000, p. 705], the Secretary-General, in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/49], summarized the activities in 2000 of the Special Rapporteur on the right to education and the Commission's action regarding the right.

Reports of Special Rapporteur. The Special Rapporteur on the right to education, Katarina Tomasevski (Croatia), in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/52], summarized her correspondence with Governments regarding violations of the right, identified obstacles to the right and discussed the integration of human rights in international education strategies. During her discussions with the World Bank, the major provider of international funding for education, the Special Rapporteur focused on the issue of charging school fees for primary education. Her prior research had indicated that the majority of countries had constitutional guarantees of free and compulsory education for all children. Thus, she recommended that the Bank review its education lending to identify instances where such fees applied, with a view to immediate measures to abolish them. She drew the Commission's attention to the neglect of higher education in international strategies, which could jeopardize prospects for developing countries, and the need for teachers to be educated at the level of secondary and tertiary education, lest primary education be doomed to unqualified staff. The Special Rapporteur suggested that the Commission not renew her mandate due to difficulties she had faced in carrying it out.

The Special Rapporteur visited the United States (Washington, D.C.; Mississippi; Kansas; New York) (24 September–10 October) [E/CN.4/2002/60/Add.1]. She noted that the United States had a long history of free public education, expected to be all-inclusive. However, opportunities for such education had not been open evenly to the whole population owing to racial and/or economic exclusion over the years. She noted that the priorities in efforts to reform the system had tended to change, along with changes in leadership, targeting at different times inequalities in education, improving the performance of individual schools and students, and finding alternatives to public schools instead of improving them. Concerns about economic decline and political crisis had also altered priorities. Under the current Administration, proposals for reforms that would have increased education funding substantially were undermined by the war on terrorism following the 11 September terrorist attacks. Another means through which educational reforms could be realized—enforcement of constitutional and legal human rights guarantees—did not seem to constitute a priority. Many violations of the right to education were being exposed and opposed, and since court cases were time-consuming and expensive, rapid and free remedies in the form of human rights commissions or ombudsmen could facilitate accountability. The fragmentation of decision-making had created a complex educational bureaucracy, with non-teachers in the public school system outnumbering teachers, and teachers earning the lowest salaries. Accountability for student performance required simplifying and streamlining the system, as well as channelling inputs towards teaching and learning.

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/29], the Commission called on States to guarantee that the right to education was recognized and exercised without discrimination; eliminate obstacles limiting access to education; ensure that primary education was compulsory, accessible, free and available to all; close the gap between the school-leaving age and the minimum employment age; reduce dropout rates; ensure quality education and improved enrolment and retention rates; eliminate gender discrimination; and submit information on best practices to eliminate discrimination in access to education. It decided to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate for three years and asked her to report in 2002. The Secretary-General was requested to assist her.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate and its request to the Secretary-General to assist her (decision 2001/261).

Environmental and scientific concerns

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In January [E/CN.4/2001/55], the Special Rapporteur on the adverse effects of the illicit movement and dumping of toxic and dangerous products and wastes on the enjoyment of human rights, Fatma-Zohra Ouhachi-Vesely (Algeria), described her activities and discussed relevant instruments and standards, the trends in and characteristics of illicit traffic, the role of TNCs and the human rights impact of the problem. She reported that trends indicated an increase in exports of dangerous products and wastes from industrialized countries to developing countries via recycling programmes, which enabled producers to circumvent the ban imposed by the 1989 Basel Convention on the Control of Transboundary Movements of Hazardous Wastes and their Disposal [YUN 1989, p. 420]. The transfer of "dirty" industrial operations from OECD member States to non-member States increased, with the most alarming cases involving the intensive and uncontrolled use of chemicals, toxic agricultural products and persistent organic pollutants. The stockpiling of obsolete chemicals in developing countries was a major cause for concern. Traffickers resorted to fraudulent practices, with corporations making use of front companies; in some cases, transfers were linked to trafficking in weapons, nuclear material or drugs. Cases brought to the Special Rapporteur's attention constituted violations of the right of peoples to self-determination and permanent sovereignty over national resources; the right to development; the rights to life, health, an adequate standard of living and sufficient food, safe and healthy working conditions, housing, information, participation and freedom of association; the right to enjoy the benefits of scientific progress; trade union rights; the right to strike; the right to bargain collectively; and the right to social security. The Special Rapporteur recommended that Governments enact legislation preventing illicit trafficking, TNCs comply with the laws of the importing country and victims be granted access to administrative and judicial proceedings in the exporting States. She called for an international code of conduct for TNCs and the establishment of national commissions of inquiry endowed with judicial or quasi-judicial powers.

A separate report [E/CN.4/2001/55/Add.1] of the Special Rapporteur summarized communications she had received from Governments describing specific incidents.

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 38 to 15, the Commission, on 23 April [res. 2001/35], urged Governments to take measures to prevent illegal trafficking and the transfer of toxic and hazardous products, and polluting industries and technologies to developing countries. The Commission decided to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate for three years. It asked her to study existing problems of and solutions to illicit trafficking, particularly in developing countries, and to include in her 2002 report information on persons killed or injured through the illicit movement and dumping of toxic wastes; impunity; rehabilitation of and assistance to victims; the scope of national legislation in relation to transboundary movement and dumping of such products; and the question of fraudulent waste recycling programmes, the transfer of polluting industries, industrial activities and technologies from developed to developing countries, ambiguities in international instruments and gaps in the effectiveness of international regulatory mechanisms. The Secretary-General was asked to assist her.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate (decision 2001/262).

Follow-up to UNCED

On 25 April [dec. 2001/111], the Commission, noting the World Summit on Sustainable Development in 2002 (see p. 749) for the 10-year review of the implementation of Agenda 21, a programme of action for sustainable development worldwide, which was adopted by the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED) [YUN 1992, p. 672], decided to invite the High Commissioner and the Executive Director of the United Nations Environment Programme to organize a joint seminar to review and assess progress achieved since UNCED in promoting and protecting human rights in relation to environmental questions and in the framework of Agenda 21.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision (decision 2001/284).

Water and sanitation services

Commission action. On 23 April [dec. 2001/104], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 Subcommission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 706], asked the Subcommission to review the terms of reference for a proposed study on the relationship between the enjoyment of economic, social and cultural rights and the promotion of the right to drinking water supply and sanitation, and to review the level of UN support requested for the study.

Subcommission action. On 10 August [res. 2001/2], the Subcommission recommended that the Commission authorize it to appoint El Hadji Guissé (Senegal) as Special Rapporteur to conduct a study on the relationship between the enjoyment of economic, social and cultural rights and the right to drinking water supply and sanitation. He was asked to submit a preliminary report in 2002, a progress report in 2003 and a final report in 2004. The Secretary-General was asked to assist him and to invite Governments, UN bodies, specialized agencies and interested NGOs to provide the Special Rapporteur with information.

Bioethics

On 25 April [res. 2001/71], the Commission invited Governments to consider establishing ethics committees, in conjunction with UNESCO's International Bioethics Committee, to assess the ethical, social and human rights questions raised by biomedical research regarding humans and to inform the Secretary-General of action taken. It asked UNESCO, WHO, OHCHR and other UN bodies and specialized agencies to report to the Secretary-General on activities conducted in their respective areas to ensure that the principles set forth in the 1997 Universal Declaration on the Human Genome and Human Rights [YUN 1997, p. 1530], adopted by UNESCO, were taken into account; based on the information received, the Secretary-General was to draw up proposals for the General Assembly's consideration (see below) on ways to coordinate activities on bioethics in the UN system and to consider establishing a working group of independent experts to report to him on possible follow-up to the 1997 Declaration. The Subcommission was asked to consider the contribution it could make to follow-up to the Declaration and to report in 2003. The Secretary-General was asked to report in 2003 and the High Commissioner to pay due attention to the subject.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's requests to the Secretary-General (decision 2001/273).

Subcommission action. On 15 August [dec. 2001/113], the Subcommission entrusted Antoanella Iulia Motoc (Romania) with preparing, without financial implications, a working paper on the 1997 Declaration for consideration in 2002 and to transmit it to the Commission in 2003.

Reports of the Secretary-General. In response to a 1999 Commission request [YUN 1999, p. 664], the Secretary-General submitted the replies of 11 Member States and one observer in response to his request for their views on establishing ethics committees and on other activities relating to bioethics [E/CN.4/2001/93 & Add.1].

Pursuant to Commission resolution 2001/71 (see above), the Secretary-General, in a November report [A/56/643], summarized information received from six Governments, three specialized agencies and OHCHR regarding the coordination of bioethics activities. The High Commissioner intended to organize a consultation of high-level experts to discuss the implementation of the 1997 Declaration. Referring to the wide range of activities carried out by the specialized agencies, the Secretary-General realized that there was an enormous potential for and need to consolidate coordination and cooperation between OHCHR, various UN human rights bodies and other specialized agencies within the UN system. In that context, it would be necessary to assess whether a working group of independent experts, as suggested by the Commission, or a high-level group of policy makers, as proposed by UNESCO, was the best way to ensure cooperation and coordination of activities and follow-up on the implementation of the 1997 Declaration. The Secretary-General recommended that UNESCO and WHO, in cooperation with OHCHR, be requested to consult further with other UN bodies and specialized agencies. (See also p. 1254.)

Genetic privacy

On 3 May, the Economic and Social Council, acting on a request of Argentina [E/2001/43], included in its provisional agenda for the substantive session, as a supplementary sub-item under social and human rights questions, "Discrimination and genetic privacy" (decision 2001/213).

On 26 July [meeting 43], the Council adopted resolution 2001/39 [draft: E/2001/L.24/Rev.1] without vote [agenda item 14 (h)].

Genetic privacy and non-discrimination

The Economic and Social Council,

Guided by the purposes and principles set forth in the Charter of the United Nations and also by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and the other relevant international human rights instruments,

Referring to the Universal Declaration on the Human Genome and Human Rights, adopted on 11 November 1997 by the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, and to General Assembly resolution 53/152 of 9 December 1998, endorsing the Declaration,

Recalling Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/71 of 25 April 2001 on the question of human rights and bioethics,

Recalling also the decision taken on 7 May 1998 whereby the Executive Board of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization established the International Bioethics Committee, which is carrying out work on confidentiality and genetic data,

Recalling further that the life and health of individuals are inevitably related to developments in life sciences and social areas,

Acknowledging the importance of advances in genetic research, which have led to the identification of strategies for early detection, prevention and treatment of diseases,

Bearing in mind that the genetic revolution has far-reaching implications and consequences for all humankind, and that its evaluation and applications should thus be conducted in an open, ethical and participatory manner,

Recognizing the contribution that relevant actors in civil society can make to the protection of genetic privacy and the fight against discrimination based on genetic characteristics,

Reaffirming that the information obtained from genetic tests, which is personal, should be held confidential, based on the conditions set by law,

Recognizing that genetic data associated with an identifiable person can in some instances be specific to other members of the individual's family or to other persons and that the rights and interests of such persons must also be taken into account in the handling of such data,

Stressing the fact that revealing genetic information belonging to individuals without their consent may cause harm and discrimination against them in such areas as employment, education, social issues and medical insurance,

Recalling that, in order to protect human rights and fundamental freedoms, the limitations to the principles of consent and confidentiality may only be prescribed by law, for compelling reasons within the bounds of public international law and the international law of human rights,

1. Urges States to ensure that no one shall be subjected to discrimination based on genetic characteristics;

2. Also urges States to protect the privacy of those subject to genetic testing and to ensure that genetic testing is done with the prior, free, informed and express consent of the individual or authorization obtained in the manner prescribed by law and in accordance with public international law and the international law of human rights;

3. Invites States to take appropriate specific measures, including through legislation, to prevent the use of genetic information and testing leading to discrimination or exclusion against individuals or members of their families or other persons with whom they may share certain genetic characteristics, in all areas, in particular in social, medical or employment-related areas, whether in the public or private sector;

4. Calls upon States to promote, as appropriate, the development and implementation of standards providing greater protection with regard to the collection, storage, disclosure and use of genetic information taken from genetic tests that might lead to discrimination or invasion of privacy;

5. Urges States to continue to support research in the area of human genetics and biotechnology, subject to accepted scientific and ethical standards and to the potential benefit of all, especially the poor, emphasizing that such research and its applications should fully respect human dignity, freedom and human rights, as well as the prohibition of all forms of discrimination based on genetic characteristics;

6. Requests the Secretary-General to bring the present resolution to the attention of all Governments and relevant international organizations and functional commissions in order to collect the information and comments received pursuant to it, and to submit a report thereon to the Council at its substantive session of 2003.

Slavery and related issues

Working group activities. The five-member Working Group on Contemporary Forms of Slavery, at its twenty-sixth session (Geneva, 11-15 June) [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/30], reviewed developments in contemporary forms of slavery and measures to prevent and repress all its forms, including consideration of corruption and international debt as promoting factors of the phenomenon. It considered as a matter of priority the questions of trafficking in persons, particularly women and children, illegal migration, smuggling and prostitution. Other forms of exploitation examined were bonded labour and debt bondage, child labour, sexual exploitation, especially of children, incest, the status of the slavery conventions (see below) and the activities of the United Nations Voluntary Trust Fund on Contemporary Forms of Slavery (see p. 677). The Group concluded that despite progress made in human rights protection and the preservation of human dignity, various forms of slavery still existed and new insidious forms were emerging. It made a series of recommendations on the issues it considered during the session.

Documents considered by the Group included April notes by the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.2/2001/2, E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.2/2001/3] updating the status of the slavery conventions (1956 Supplementary Convention on the Abolition of Slavery, the Slave Trade and Institutions and Practices Similar to Slavery [YUN 1956, p. 228] and 1949 Convention for the Suppression of the Traffic in Persons and of the Exploitation of the Prostitution of Others, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 317(IV) [YUN 1948-49, p. 613]) and a May report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.2/2001/4], containing information submitted by Governments, UN bodies and NGOs on measures they had taken to prevent and repress all forms of slavery.

Commission action. On 24 April [dec. 2001/109], the Commission, referring to the 1966 Report on Slavery [Sales No. E.67.XIV.2], revised in 1984 [Sales No. E.84.XIV.1], decided to recommend to the Economic and Social Council that the 2000 report of existing treaty and customary law covering slavery-related practices and monitoring [YUN 2000, p. 707] be printed in the UN official languages and widely distributed.

On 24 July, the Council approved the Commission's recommendation (decision 2001/282).

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/14], the Subcommission addressed the traffic in persons and exploitation of the prostitution of others; prevention of trans-border trafficking in children; corruption in the perpetuation of slavery and slavery-like practices; misuse of the Internet for sexual exploitation; migrant workers and domestic migrant workers; eradication of bonded labour and elimination of child labour; and the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography.

The Subcommission asked the Commission to authorize the High Commissioner to organize in 2002, in cooperation with UNHCR, the International Organization for Migration and other intergovernmental organizations concerned, a workshop to consider all aspects of the smuggling and trafficking in persons and the protection of their human rights. It invited the International Labour Organization, together with other UN organs and specialized agencies, to consider holding a seminar or workshop to determine best practices for the eradication of debt bondage. The Secretary-General was requested to invite all States to inform the Working Group of measures adopted to implement the Programme of Action for the Elimination of the Exploitation of Child Labour [YUN 1993, p. 965] and to report thereon to the Subcommission and Commission in 2002. The Subcommission, in the context of the tenth anniversary of the adoption of the Programme of Action for the Prevention of the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography (see below), decided to request an NGO to prepare and submit to the Working Group in 2002 an assessment of the implementation of the Programme of Action. It asked the Working Group to examine, as a matter of priority in 2002, the issue of the exploitation of children, particularly in the context of prostitution and domestic servitude.

1992 Programme of Action

A May report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/4] on the implementation of the 1992 Programme of Action for the Prevention of the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography [YUN 1992, p. 814] described the activities taken by three Governments to do so, as well as action they had taken to implement the Stockholm Declaration on Commercial Exploitation of Children, adopted in 1996 by the World Congress against Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children [YUN 1996, p. 660], and the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, adopted in General Assembly resolution 54/263 [YUN 2000, p. 618].

The Secretary-General, in a November note [E/CN.4/2002/87], drew the Commission's attention to the report.

Sexual exploitation during armed conflict

Report of High Commissioner. A June report of the High Commissioner [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/29] updated information contained in her previous report [YUN 2000, p. 708] regarding steps taken by human rights mechanisms, the Commission, ICTY and ICTR to address the issue of systematic rape, sexual slavery and slavery-like practices during armed conflict. She stated that conventional and extra-conventional human rights mechanisms should continue and strengthen their consideration of gender-based human rights violations. The gender aspect of those crimes should be taken into account in legal and extra-legal responses, including prevention, investigation, prosecution, compensation and rehabilitation.

Commission action. On 24 April [dec. 2001/108], the Commission recommended that the Economic and Social Council request the Secretary-General to publish, in the official languages, the report [YUN 1998, p. 698] and updated report [YUN 2000, p. 707] of the Special Rapporteur on systematic rape, sexual slavery and slavery-like practices during armed conflict, including internal armed conflict, and to transmit them to Governments, competent UN bodies, specialized agencies, regional and intergovernmental organizations, the established international tribunals and the Assembly of the States Parties to the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court [YUN 1998, p. 1209], in order to ensure their wide distribution.

On 24 July, the Council endorsed the Commission's recommendation (decision 2001/281).

Subcommission action. On 16 August [res. 2001/20], the Subcommission called on States to provide effective criminal penalties and compensation for unremedied violations in order to end the cycle of impunity regarding sexual violence committed during armed conflicts and encouraged them to promote human rights education on the subject. The High Commissioner was called on to monitor the implementation of the resolution and to report in 2002.

Fund on slavery

Reports of Secretary-General. In February [E/CN.4/2001/82/Add.1], July [A/56/205] and December [E/CN.4/2002/93], the Secretary-General reported on the status of the United Nations Voluntary Trust Fund on Contemporary Forms of Slavery.

The Fund's Board of Trustees, at its sixth session (Geneva, 22-26 January) [E/CN.4/2002/93], recommended 18 project grants amounting to $174,415 and 13 travel grants amounting to $25,715 to enable NGO representatives to participate in the deliberations of the 2001 session of the Working Group on Contemporary Forms of Slavery (see p. 676). The Board estimated that, in order to fulfil its mandate satisfactorily, the Fund would need $400,000 annually. The Secretary-General reported that contributions available to the Board as at 30 November 2001 stood at $69,545, while pledges amounted to $15,000.

On 19 December, the General Assembly took note of the Secretary-General's July report (decision 56/429).

Subcommission action. On 16 August [res. 2001/19], the Subcommission invited the Fund's Board of Trustees to promote the participation at the annual sessions of the Working Group of individuals and organizations from as large a number of countries as possible. It urged Governments, NGOs and other private or public entities to contribute to the Fund.

Vulnerable groups

Women

Violence against women

Report of Secretary-General. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 50/166 [YUN 1995, p. 1188], the Secretary-General, in January [E/CN.4/2001/126-E/CN.6/2001/6], transmitted to the Commission on Human Rights and the Commission on the Status of Women the report of the United Nations Development Fund for Women on activities of the Fund to eliminate violence against women (see p. 1058).

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In January [E/CN.4/2001/73], the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, its causes and consequences, Radhika Coomaraswamy (Sri Lanka), highlighted violence against women perpetrated and/or condoned by the State during times of armed conflict between 1997 and 2000, within the context of the recommendations contained in her 1998 report [YUN 1998, p. 698].

The Special Rapporteur emphasized risks faced by girl children and the gaps in protection and assistance to internally displaced women. She expressed concern about the growing incidents of rape and other sexual abuse committed by UN peacekeeping forces and staff, and by soldiers and staff associated with military bases. Also of concern were the ongoing violence and discrimination in the rehabilitation and reconstruction processes. Regarding emerging legal standards, positive developments had taken place with the development by the international community of precise legal standards clarifying that rape and gender-based violence constituted war crimes, crimes against humanity and components of the crime of genocide. The Special Rapporteur reviewed the work of ICTY and ICTR, as well as the provisions of the Rome Statute [YUN 1998, p. 1209], which defined rape and other gender-based violence as constituent acts of crimes against humanity and war crimes. She made a series of recommendations, among them the development of effective UN policies to protect and assist women and girls during and after armed conflict, according women a greater role in the peace process and involving women in society's efforts to address the past.

In an addendum to her report [E/CN.4/2001/73/Add.1], the Special Rapporteur summarized the texts of communications she had transmitted to 14 States regarding alleged violence against women, and the replies thereon from 10 States.

In a July report [A/CONF.189/PC.3/5], the Special Rapporteur reviewed gender-based discrimination as it intersected with other forms of discrimination based on race, ethnicity, religion and economic status, thus forcing the majority of the world's women into situations of extreme marginalization. She observed that although advances had been made in addressing gender-related problems, a more structured approach was needed to eliminate the multiple forms of discrimination experienced by women. Urgent action was needed to raise awareness of the problem and to mainstream a more holistic approach to the question of racial and gender discrimination.

The Special Rapporteur visited Sierra Leone (21-29 August) [E/CN.4/2001/83/Add.2] to study the widespread violence against women committed during the 10-year conflict in the country and to identify key measures and initiatives to address the rights of women in the aftermath of the conflict. Based on the testimonies of 733 women and girls, documented by the human rights section of the United Nations Mission in Sierra Leone (UNAMSIL), human rights NGOs and academics, gender-specific abuses included rape, sexual slavery and forced marriages to members of various factions. All victims suffered trauma and almost all required medical treatment. Regarding social support for victims, the Special Rapporteur noted shortcomings in government programmes and described the human rights activities of UNAMSIL and NGOs. The Special Rapporteur observed that failure to investigate, prosecute and punish those responsible for rape and other forms of gender-based violence had contributed to an environment of impunity, which perpetuated the violence. She proposed recommendations regarding the criminal justice system, international instruments, HIV/AIDS, access to basic health care, basic services for internally displaced persons, illiteracy and technical assistance. The international community should ensure that all reports of rape and other forms of gender-based violence were fully investigated and those responsible brought to justice, and should, in addition, increase funding for programmes addressing the needs of the victims, including medical care, trauma counselling, education, vocational training and income-generating schemes. The human rights section of UNAMSIL should recruit a gender specialist to monitor and report on gender-based violence and ensure that UN peacekeepers fulfilled their mandate to protect civilians from physical violence, including women and girls at risk of abduction, rape and other forms of sexual violence.

The Special Rapporteur visited Colombia (1-7 November) [E/CN.4/2002/83/Add.3] to investigate allegations of gender-based violence, including rape and sexual slavery, by all armed groups involved in the country's protracted conflict and to report on the impact of that conflict on the human rights of women. Violence against women, particularly sexual violence by armed groups, was common practice, sometimes committed at the same time as massacres or as a way of terrorizing or threatening women and communities, and was widespread and systematic. The Special Rapporteur presented the testimonies of victims, some of whom were female combatants. She had heard reports that women and young girls who were internally displaced were being trafficked into forced prostitution in tourist centres in Colombia and abroad. Impunity was one of the factors contributing to the continued violation of women's rights and to the general increase in violence, including domestic violence. Rape cases were hardly addressed, and violence against women continued to occur at alarming levels owing to the armed conflict. There was a lack of interest in the issue by all involved in the conflict, the wider community and the media. The Special Rapporteur stated that training was urgently needed in the criminal justice system and the military. Her recommendations to the State included the appointment of a high-ranking legal adviser on sexual and gender-based violence, full implementation of relevant domestic legislation, steps to combat impunity, efforts to combat paramilitary groups, support for human rights organizations and effective enforcement of the principle of equality and non-discrimination. All parties to the conflict were urged to protect women and girls from gender-based violence, support women's participation in the peace process and subscribe to a global accord on human rights and international humanitarian law. The OHCHR Office in Colombia (see p. 710) should incorporate a gender perspective into all areas of its work and should continue to monitor and report on issues of gender-based violence. She emphasized the need for the international community to increase funding for programmes to assist victims.

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/49], the Commission, condemning all acts of gender-based violence against women, violence occurring in the family and violence against women in situations of armed conflict, asked special rapporteurs, UN bodies, specialized agencies and intergovernmental organizations to consider violence against women in their respective mandates and to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur. It called on all parties to armed conflict to respect the civilian and humanitarian character of camps and settlements for refugees and internally displaced persons, and to improve and strengthen the capacity of women affected by situations of armed conflict by involving them in humanitarian activities. States were urged to provide gender-sensitive training to all actors in peace-keeping missions in dealing with victims of violence, particularly women and girls, and to include women in all peace, reconciliation and reconstruction activities. The Commission further urged that States integrate a gender perspective into commissions of inquiry and for achieving truth and reconciliation, and asked the Special Rapporteur to report, as appropriate, on those mechanisms. The Secretary-General was asked to assist the Special Rapporteur and ensure that her reports were brought to the attention of the Commission on the Status of Women and the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women.

(For information on violence against women migrant workers, see also p. 1058.)

Traditional practices affecting the health of women and girls

Commission action. On 24 April [dec. 2001/107], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 Subcommission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 711], decided to approve the Subcommission's decision to extend the mandate of the Special Rapporteur on traditional practices affecting the health of women and the girl child for two years, as well as its request to her to report in 2001 and 2002. On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council endorsed the decision (decision 2001/280).

Report of Special Rapporteur. In response to a 2000 Subcommission request [YUN 2000, p. 711], Special Rapporteur Halima Embarek Warzazi (Morocco), in a July report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/27], reviewed recent initiatives against the practice of female genital mutilation and other traditional practices.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/13], the Subcommission called on Governments to give attention to the implementation of the 1994 Plan of Action for the Elimination of Harmful Traditional Practices [YUN 1994, p. 1123], and requested the Secretary-General to invite them to submit information on the situation regarding harmful practices in their country. Noting that one of the most effective means of developing government awareness of the problems and solutions would be to organize regional seminars, the Subcommission proposed that three seminars be held, in Africa, Asia and Europe. The High Commissioner was asked to raise funds to organize the seminars. The Special Rapporteur was asked to report in 2002.

(See also p. 1062.)

Traffic in women and girls

Report of Secretary-General. As requested by the Commission in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 711], the Secretary-General, in January [E/CN.4/2001/72 & Corr.1], described action taken by the UN system and other international organizations to combat trafficking in women and girls. The Secretary-General stated that the trafficking was widespread and growing, rooted in the social and economic conditions of the victims and facilitated by practices which discriminated against women. He urged Member States to ratify the 2000 Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children [YUN 2000, p. 1063], and called on the international human rights community to address the issue.

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/48], the Commission invited Governments, donor countries, OHCHR, international and regional organizations and NGOs to consider the recommendations of the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, notably on trafficking in women and girls, particularly on the need for greater allocation of resources and better coordination of programmes and activities in tackling the problem. Governments were urged to address the root factors, including external factors encouraging trafficking in women and children, particularly girls, for prostitution and other forms of commercialized sex, forced marriages and forced labour; ensure victims' human rights and fundamental freedoms; criminalize trafficking and condemn and penalize traffickers and intermediaries; and provide rehabilitation programmes to victims, through job training, legal assistance and health care. The Secretary-General was asked to report in 2002.

Mainstreaming women's rights

Reports of Secretary-General. Pursuant to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 712], the Secretary-General, in January [E/CN.4/2001/71], described measures to integrate gender perspectives into the UN human rights system, taken by OHCHR and human rights treaty bodies and mechanisms, including the Commission. The Secretary-General stated that progress had been made in implementing the recommendations of the expert group meeting on the development of guidelines for the integration of gender perspectives into human rights activities and programmes [YUN 1995, p. 767]. He recommended that Governments ratify the 1979 Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, adopted by the General Assembly in resolution 34/180 [YUN 1979, p. 895], and the 1989 Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted by the Assembly in resolution 44/25 [YUN 1989, p. 561]. Action should be taken to change existing or introduce new legislation to protect women's human rights. The obligations of States to prevent and redress violations of women's rights needed further clarification.

In February [E/CN.4/2001/70-E/CN.6/2001/3], the Secretary-General presented the joint work plan of the UN Division for the Advancement of Women and OHCHR for 2001, which emphasized support for the work of treaty bodies and selected special mechanisms and cooperation between national machinery for the advancement of women and national human rights institutions. OHCHR and the Division would facilitate interaction between the Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women (see p. 1074) and other treaty bodies, with a view to enhancing the integration of a gender perspective into their work. In that regard, the Division would provide a gender-specific input and update the 1998 study on integrating a gender perspective into the work of the human rights treaty bodies [YUN 1998, p. 611]. They would cooperate to organize workshops on gender issues; exchange information regarding communications submitted to the Commission on the Status of Women and OHCHR's review of the communications procedures of the Commission on Human Rights (see p. 579); prepare reports to intergovernmental bodies dealing with issues affecting women; and advocate a gender perspective in the preparations and outcome of the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615). In addition, they would attend each other's meetings, as well as those of other relevant UN bodies and agencies, review the integration of gender issues in reports presented to the Commission on Human Rights by thematic mechanisms and facilitate co-operation between the Commission on the Status of Women and the Commission on Human Rights.

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/50], the Commission, emphasizing the need for further UN system activities to strengthen expertise concerning the equal status and human rights of women, requested special procedures and other human rights mechanisms of the Commission and Subcommission, as well as human rights treaty bodies, to take a gender perspective into account in implementing their mandates and to include in their reports information on and qualitative analysis of women's and girls' human rights. The Commission asked the Secretary-General to report in 2002 and decided to integrate a gender perspective into all of its agenda items.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's request to special procedures and other human rights mechanisms and endorsed its decision to integrate a gender perspective into all agenda items (decision 2001/267).

The girl child

On 25 April [res. 2001/75], the Commission called on States to take measures, including legal reforms, to ensure girls' enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms and eliminate discrimination against them, including all forms of violence, harmful traditional practices, the root causes of son preference and forced and early marriages.

(See also p. 1060.)

Women in Afghanistan

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/13], the Commission, condemning the continuing grave human rights violations of women and girls in Afghanistan, particularly in Taliban-controlled areas, urged all Afghan parties to end those violations and to ensure for women and girls: the repeal of discriminatory legislative and other measures; effective participation in civil, cultural, economic, political and social life; respect for their right to work; the right to education without discrimination, the reopening of schools and their admission to all levels of education; respect for their right to security of person; respect for their freedom of movement; and equal access to facilities of physical and mental health. The Secretary-General was requested to ensure a gender perspective in the selection of the staff of the United Nations Special Mission to Afghanistan.

Report of Secretary-General. The Secretary-General, in an August report [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/28], stated that the policy and practices of the Taliban, which exacerbated the discrimination already suffered by Afghan women, continued to be a major concern. The Senior Inter-Agency Network on Internal Displacement, led by the UN Special Coordinator on Internal Displacement, together with representatives of FAO, UNHCR, UNDP, UNICEF, WHO and the NGO community, visited Afghanistan (18-25 April), where they confirmed that the Taliban had pursued a policy of marginalization of women and girls, including by placing a ban on education, prohibiting women from working outside the home and restricting their freedom of movement. The application of those restrictions was inconsistent, which allowed the humanitarian community to devise various entry points to reach some women and girls in need. The mission made recommendations regarding a better response by humanitarian agencies to the needs of the female population, an assessment of the impact of displacement on women and children, and child protection programmes. The Secretary-General called on all Afghan parties to end violations of women's and girls' rights, repeal discriminatory legislation and other measures and ensure women's participation in civil, cultural, economic, political and social life. The international community was urged to support the efforts of the aid community to improve the protection of civilians, particularly women and children, including the allocation of more resources. He encouraged support for the United Nations and its partners to ensure that all UN-assisted programmes were formulated and coordinated to promote and ensure the participation of women, and that women benefited equally with men.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/15], the Subcommission, condemning all forms of discrimination and violation affecting women and girls in territories controlled by Afghan armed groups and official policies discriminating against women, requested the Commission to insist that armed groups abide by international human rights standards in relation to women, which entailed the repeal of all forms of discrimination based on sex. The Secretary-General was asked to make available all information compiled on the situation.

Children

On 25 April, the Commission, in its resolution on the rights of the child [res. 2001/75], called on States to ensure the registration of all children immediately after birth, and to respect the right of the child to preserve his or her identity, and to ensure that a child would not be separated from his or her parents against their will, except when determined by competent authorities that such separation was in the best interests of the child. Among other things, States were called on to develop sustainable health systems and social services; support children and their families affected by HIV/AIDS and ensure prevention of HIV infections; promote children's right to education; prevent violence against children; ensure that children were not deprived of their liberty, except as a last resort; and protect refugee and internally displaced children. The Commission requested that, within their mandates, relevant human rights mechanisms and entities of the UN system include a child rights perspective. The Commission's request was approved by the Economic and Social Council on 24 July (decision 2001/274). The Secretary-General was asked to assist the Committee on the Rights of the Child (see p. 596) and to report in 2002.

Other aspects of the Commission's resolution—child labour, the prevention and eradication of the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, and protection of children affected by armed conflict—are covered below.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/579], adopted resolution 56/138 without vote [agenda item 115].

The rights of the child

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming all of its resolutions on the rights of the child, in particular resolutions 55/78 and 55/79 of 4 December 2000, and taking note with appreciation of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/75 of 25 April 2001,

Considering the postponement of the special session of the General Assembly on children due to exceptional circumstances,

Welcoming the progress made so far in the preparation of the special session of the General Assembly on children, including its outcome document, and reaffirming that the Assembly, at its special session, while reviewing the achievements in the implementation and results of the World Declaration on the Survival, Protection and Development of Children and Plan of Action for Implementing the World Declaration on the Survival, Protection and Development of Children in the 1990s adopted by the World Summit for Children, held in New York on 29 and 30 September 1990, will make a renewed commitment and consider future action for children in the forthcoming decade,

1. Takes note with appreciation of the report of the Secretary-General entitled "We the children: end-decade review of the follow-up to the World Summit for Children" and the reports of the Secretary-General on the status of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and on children and armed conflict, as well as the report of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict;

2. Welcomes the fact that, as at 18 October 2001, ten States had become parties to the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, thereby allowing it to enter into force on 18 January 2002, and that, as at 12 November 2001, ten States had become parties to the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict, thereby allowing it to enter into force on 12 February 2002;

3. Welcomes also the adoption of the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, supplementing the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime, as well as the large number of ratifications of International Labour Organization Convention No. 138, concerning the Minimum Age for Admission to Employment and Convention No. 182, concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour;

4. Welcomes the convening of the Second World Congress against Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children at Yokohama, Japan, from 17 to 20 December 2001, and the regional consultative meetings for its preparation, and invites Member States and observers to ensure their participation in the Congress at a high political level;

5. Decides:

(a) To request the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session a report on the rights of the child, containing information on the status of the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Optional Protocols thereto;

(b) To request the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict to submit to the General Assembly and the Commission on Human Rights reports containing relevant information on the situation of children affected by armed conflict, bearing in mind the existing mandates and reports of relevant bodies;

(c) To request the Secretary-General to conduct an in-depth study on the question of violence against children, taking into account the outcome of the special session of the General Assembly on children, and to put forward recommendations for consideration by Member States for appropriate action, including effective remedies and preventive and rehabilitative measures;

(d) To revert to its comprehensive consideration of this question at its fifty-seventh session under the item entitled "Promotion and protection of the rights of children".

Sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography

Report of Special Rapporteur. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 722], the Special Rapporteur on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, Ofelia Calcetas-Santos (Philippines), in January [E/CN.4/2001/78], described international, regional and country-specific developments and focused on the responsibility of the private sector to prevent child abuse. In the light of information received from international chambers of commerce and NGOs, the Special Rapporteur examined the use of child labour and its implications for sexual abuse; press reports of sexual offences that blamed the victim or were over-sensationalized; Internet service providers and the dissemination of child pornography; images of children as sexual objects in advertisements; and the link between tourism, transport and child sexual abuse. She noted that certain elements of the private sector had recognized that their activities could affect children and had started to respond accordingly. She observed an overlap between companies that promoted child development and those providing care and protection.

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/75], the Commission called on States to ensure the implementation of international instruments to prevent and combat the trafficking and the sale of children, increase cooperation to prevent and dismantle networks trafficking in children, criminalize and penalize all forms of sexual exploitation and abuse of children, child pornography and child prostitution, child sex tourism and the use of the Internet for those purposes, and combat markets that encouraged the criminal practices. It decided to renew the Special Rapporteur's mandate for a further three years and asked her to report in 2002.

The Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision on 24 July (decision 2001/274).

Following the Special Rapporteur's resignation, the Commission appointed Juan Miguel Petit (Uruguay) in June.

Child labour

On 25 April [res. 2001/75], the Commission called on States to eliminate child labour that was hazardous, interfered with a child's education or was harmful to the child's health, and to promote education as a key strategy. States that had not done so were called on to consider ratifying ILO Convention No. 182, concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour, adopted in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 1388].

Children and armed conflict

Report of Special Representative. In response to General Assembly resolution 55/79 [YUN 2000, p. 714], the Secretary-General's Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, Olara A. Otunnu (Côte d'Ivoire), in a January report [E/CN.4/2001/76], covered progress achieved at the end of his three-year mandate. He drew attention to the plight of particularly vulnerable groups of war-affected children, including girls, internally displaced children, children affected by HIV/AIDS and abducted children. In addressing the issue of impunity, the Representative noted that much of the debate about the Special Court for Sierra Leone (see p. 179) focused on the accountability for those who were between 15 and 18 years of age at the time they allegedly committed serious crimes. As they were forcibly recruited as combatants, the Representative considered them victims. However, some young people joined without restraint. The Representative had worked to ensure that the Court would prosecute those who abducted, recruited and used children as combatants. Children's concerns were being integrated into UN peace operations, peace agreements and post-conflict peace-building. International standards in that regard were strengthened by the 2000 Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict, adopted in General Assembly resolution 54/263 [YUN 2000, p. 616], and the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court [YUN 1998, p. 1209], which defined as a war crime the conscription of children into the armed forces or groups, or their use in hostilities. Yet, much remained to be done. In the period ahead, his Office would emphasize activities to consolidate and deepen progress already made.

Commission action. On 25 April [res 2001/75], the Commission called on States to end child soldiering and together with parties to armed conflict to respect international humanitarian law. States, UN bodies and agencies and regional organizations were asked to integrate the rights of the child into all activities in conflict and post-conflict situations and to support national and international mine action efforts.

Report of Secretary-General. Pursuant to Security Council resolution 1314(2000) [YUN 2000, p. 723], the Secretary-General, in a September report [A/56/342-S/2001/852], informed the Council and the General Assembly of progress made in implementing his earlier recommendations and relevant Council resolutions. The Secretary-

General stated that existing standards, including Council resolutions, had helped define the parameters of acceptable conduct for parties in armed conflict regarding children and other civilians. He stipulated measures intended to protect children during and after armed conflict. States were urged to sign and ratify the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict, and to review their national legislation with a view to defining the crimes within the jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court as national crimes and to ensure that national courts had jurisdiction over them and prosecuted violations of children's rights. Other recommendations related to compliance with child protection obligations by parties to armed conflicts and monitoring compliance; child protection training for UN peacekeeping personnel; support for the international research network on children and armed conflict, proposed by the Representative and launched in July, in collaboration with UNICEF, research institutions and NGOs; the exploitation of natural resources in zones of conflict; the prevention of child abduction; the demobilization and reintegration of child soldiers; the impact of HIV/AIDS on children in conflict situations; truth- and justice-seeking processes; the rehabilitation of children affected by armed conflict; and technical support to regional organizations to protect children.

Interim report of Special Representative. In response to General Assembly resolution 54/149 [YUN 1999, p. 676], the Special Representative, in an October report [A/56/453], described his activities covering October 2000 to September 2001, including country visits made by him or by representatives of his Office.

The Office of the Special Representative participated in a mission to Uganda, the Sudan and Kenya (17 March-6 April), led by OHCHR (see p. 686).

The Special Representative visited the Democratic Republic of the Congo (24 May-3 June), where 50 per cent of the estimated population of 50 million were under 16 years, to determine first-hand the conditions of children affected by the ongoing conflict in the country. He observed that hundreds of thousands of children had suffered or died of malnutrition and preventable diseases, more than half of school-age children were not in school and the use of child labour had increased. There was massive recruitment of child soldiers. Girls were forced by soldiers to serve as concubines and exposed to sexual abuse and HIV/AIDS. The Special Representative, in an action plan, recommended placing child protection on the agendas for dialogue and peace, expanding the presence and humanitarian activities of the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (see p. 126), providing adequate and sustained resources for protection and curbing child soldiering. He proposed efforts to improve the monitoring of commitments made by parties; foster a subregional approach to child protection; improve data collection and research; ensure attention to the special needs of girls; build local capacity for child protection and advocacy; reinforce traditional values; and end the plunder of natural resources.

The Special Representative described follow-up developments to his 2000 visit to Northern Ireland [YUN 2000, p. 725] and 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 710] and 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 675] visits to Sierra Leone, as well as other activities taken to protect war-affected children.

Children from Colombia, Kosovo and Sierra Leone shared their experiences of war at a symposium (New York, 5 June), organized by the Office of the Special Representative, in collaboration with the Holy See. The Office, in collaboration with the Italian National Childhood and Adolescence Documentation and Analysis Centre and the Social Science Research Council, convened a workshop (Florence, July) to discuss the ways that a stronger knowledge base could help alleviate the plight of war-affected children. In August, the Special Representative participated in the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615) and highlighted the linkage between racism and the victimization of children during armed conflicts.

The report also described efforts made by the Special Representative and his Office to contribute to the work of UN bodies and agencies, regional organizations and NGOs.

SECURITY COUNCIL ACTION

On 20 November [meeting 4423], the Security Council unanimously adopted resolution 1379 (2001). The draft [S/2001/1093] was prepared during consultations among Council members.

The Security Council,

Recalling its resolution 1314(2000) of 11 August 2000,

Further recalling its resolutions 1261(1999) of 28 August 1999, 1265(1999) of 17 September 1999, 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000, 1306(2000) of 5 July 2000, 1308(2000) of 17 July 2000 and 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 and the statements of its President of 29 June 1998 (S/PRST/1998/18), 12 February 1999 (S/PRST/1999/6), 8 July 1999 (S/PRST/1999/21), 30 November 1999 (S/PRST/1999/34), 20 July 2000 (S/PRST/2000/25) and of 31 August 2001 (S/PRST/2001/21),

Recognizing the harmful and widespread impact of armed conflict on children and the long-term consequences this has for durable peace, security and development,

Bearing in mind the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and recalling the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security and, in this connection, its commitment to address the impact of armed conflict on children,

Underlining the need for all parties concerned to comply with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations and with international law, in particular those regarding children,

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General of 7 September 2001 on the implementation of resolution 1314(2000) on children and armed conflict,

1. Expresses its determination, accordingly, to give the fullest attention to the question of the protection of children in armed conflict when considering the matters of which it is seized;

2. Expresses its readiness explicitly to include provisions for the protection of children, when considering the mandates of peacekeeping operations, and reaffirms, in this regard, its readiness to continue to include, where appropriate, child protection advisers in peacekeeping operations;

3. Supports the ongoing work of the Secretary-General, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, the United Nations Children's Fund, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, other agencies of the United Nations system and other international organizations dealing with children affected by armed conflict;

4. Expresses its intention, where appropriate, to call upon the parties to a conflict to make special arrangements to meet the protection and assistance requirements of women, children and other vulnerable groups, including through the promotion of "days of immunization" and other opportunities for the safe and unhindered delivery of basic necessary services;

5. Underlines the importance of the full, safe and unhindered access of humanitarian personnel and goods and the delivery of humanitarian assistance to all children affected by armed conflict;

6. Expresses its intention to consider taking appropriate steps, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, to address the linkages between armed conflict and terrorism, the illicit trade in precious minerals, the illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, and other criminal activities, which can prolong armed conflict or intensify its impact on civilian populations, including children;

7. Undertakes to consider, as appropriate when imposing measures under Article 41 of the Charter of the United Nations, the economic and social impact of sanctions on children, with a view to providing appropriate humanitarian exemptions that take account of their specific needs and their vulnerability and to minimize such impact;

8. Calls upon all parties to armed conflict to:

(a) Respect fully the relevant provisions of applicable international law relating to the rights and protection of children in armed conflict, in particular the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and the obligations applicable to them under the Additional Protocols thereto of 1977, the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child of 1989, the Optional Protocol thereto of 25 May 2000, and the amended Protocol II to the Convention on Prohibition or Restriction on the Use of Certain Conventional Weapons Which May Be Deemed to Be Excessively Injurious or to Have Indiscriminate Effects, the International Labour Organization Convention No. 182 on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour and the Ottawa Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on Their Destruction, and notes the inclusion as a war crime in the Rome Statute of the conscription or enlistment of children under the age of fifteen years into the national armed forces or using them to participate actively in hostilities;

(b) Provide protection and assistance to refugees and internally displaced persons, the majority of whom are women and children, in accordance with applicable international norms and standards;

(c) Take special measures to promote and protect the rights and meet the special needs of girls affected by armed conflict, and to put an end to all forms of violence and exploitation, including sexual violence, particularly rape;

(d) Abide by the concrete commitments they have made to the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict, as well as relevant United Nations bodies, to ensure the protection of children in situations of armed conflict;

(e) Provide protection of children in peace agreements, including, where appropriate, provisions relating to the disarmament, demobilization, reintegration and rehabilitation of child soldiers and the reunification of families, and to consider, when possible, the views of children in those processes;

9. Urges Member States to:

(a) Put an end to impunity, prosecute those responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity, war crimes, and other egregious crimes perpetrated against children and exclude, where feasible, these crimes from amnesty provisions and relevant legislation, and ensure that post-conflict truth-and-reconciliation processes address serious abuses involving children;

(b) Consider appropriate legal, political, diplomatic, financial and material measures, in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations, in order to ensure that parties to armed conflict respect international norms for the protection of children;

(c) Consider, where appropriate, measures that may be taken to discourage corporate actors, within their jurisdiction, from maintaining commercial relations with parties to armed conflicts that are on the Security Council's agenda, when those parties are violating applicable international law on the protection of children in armed conflict;

(d) Consider measures against corporate actors, individuals and entities under their jurisdiction that engage in illicit trade in natural resources and small arms, in violation of relevant Security Council resolutions and the Charter of the United Nations;

(e) Consider ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on involvement of children in armed conflict and the International Labour Organization Convention No. 182 on the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour;

(f) Consider further steps for the protection of children, especially in the context of the International Decade for a Culture of Peace and Non-violence for the Children of the World (2001-2010);

10. Requests the Secretary-General to:

(a) Take the protection of children into account in peacekeeping plans submitted to the Security Council, inter alia, by including, on a case-by-case basis, child protection staff in peacekeeping and, as appropriate, peace-building operations and strengthening expertise and capacity in the area of human rights, where necessary;

(b) Ensure that all peacekeeping personnel receive and follow appropriate guidance on HIV/AIDS and training in international human rights, humanitarian and refugee law relevant to children;

(c) Continue and intensify, on a case-by-case basis, monitoring and reporting activities by peacekeeping and peace-building support operations on the situation of children in armed conflict;

11. Requests the agencies, funds and programmes of the United Nations to:

(a) Coordinate their support and assistance to parties to armed conflict in fulfilling their obligations and commitments to children;

(b) Take account of ways of reducing child recruitment that is contrary to accepted international standards when formulating development assistance programmes;

(c) Devote particular attention and adequate resources to the rehabilitation of children affected by armed conflict, particularly their counselling, education and appropriate vocational opportunities, as a preventive measure and as a means of reintegrating them into society;

(d) Ensure that the special needs and particular vulnerabilities of girls affected by armed conflict, including those heading households, orphaned, sexually exploited and used as combatants, are duly taken into account in the design of development assistance programmes, and that adequate resources are allocated to such programmes;

(e) Integrate HIV/AIDS awareness, prevention, care and support into emergency, humanitarian and post-conflict programmes;

(f) Support the development of local capacity to address post-conflict child rehabilitation and reintegration concerns;

(g) Promote a culture of peace, including through support for peace education programmes and other non-violent approaches to conflict prevention and resolution, in peace-building activities;

12. Encourages the international financial institutions and regional financial and development institutions to:

(a) Devote part of their assistance to rehabilitation and reintegration programmes conducted jointly by agencies, funds, programmes and State parties to conflicts that have taken effective measures to comply with their obligations to protect children in situations of armed conflict, including the demobilization and reintegration of child soldiers, in particular those who have been used in armed conflicts contrary to international law;

(b) Contribute resources for quick-impact projects in conflict zones where peacekeeping operations are deployed or are in the process of deployment;

(c) Support the efforts of the regional organizations engaged in activities for the benefit of children affected by armed conflict, by providing them with financial and technical assistance, as appropriate;

13. Urges regional and subregional organizations and arrangements to:

(a) Consider establishing, within their secretariats, child protection mechanisms for the development and implementation of policies, activities and advocacy for the benefit of children affected by armed conflict, and consider the views of children in the design and implementation of such policies and programmes where possible;

(b) Consider including child protection staff in their peacekeeping and field operations and provide training to members of such operations on the rights and protection of children;

(c) Take steps leading to the elimination of cross-border activities deleterious to children in times of armed conflict, such as the cross-border recruitment and abduction of children, the sale of or traffic in children, attacks on camps and settlements of refugees and internally displaced persons, the illicit trade in precious minerals, the illicit trafficking in small arms and light weapons, and other criminal activities;

(d) Develop and expand regional initiatives to prevent the use of child soldiers in violation of international law and to take appropriate measures to ensure the compliance by parties to armed conflict with obligations to protect children in armed conflict situations;

14. Requests the Secretary-General to continue to include in his written reports to the Council on conflict situations his observations concerning the protection of children and recommendations in this regard;

15. Requests the Secretary-General to submit a report to the Council by 31 October 2002 on the implementation of the present resolution and of resolutions 1261(1999) and 1314(2000);

16. Requests the Secretary-General to attach to his report a list of parties to armed conflict that recruit or use children in violation of the international obligations applicable to them, in situations that are on the Security Council's agenda or that may be brought to the attention of the Security Council by the Secretary-General, in accordance with Article 99 of the Charter of the United Nations, which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security;

17. Decides to remain actively seized of this matter.

Abduction of children in northern Uganda

Commission action. On 25 April [res. 2001/74], the Commission, condemning the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA), an armed opposition group in the Sudan, for the continued abduction, torture, killing, rape, enslavement and forcible recruitment of children in northern Uganda, demanded an end to the abductions and called for the children's release and safe return. It urged Member States, international organizations, humanitarian bodies and all other concerned parties to exert pressure on LRA to release all children abducted from northern Uganda. The United Nations Voluntary Fund for Victims of Torture was asked to continue to assist the victims and their families.

Report of High Commissioner. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 725], the High Commissioner reported on a mission to northern Uganda, the Sudan and Kenya (17 March–6 April) [E/CN.4/2002/86], composed of three OHCHR staff members, a UNICEF staff member and a representative of the Office of the Special Representative for Children and Armed Conflict, to assess the situation of children abducted from northern Uganda by LRA. It was estimated that over 10,000 children had been abducted since 1986, most of whom were taken to LRA camps in southern Sudan, where they were severely maltreated and initially used for slave labour to carry heavy loads looted by their captors. The children were forced to take part in beatings and killings of those children who collapsed under the burden of the workload or who had attempted to escape. As for young girls, most were raped and given to LRA soldiers and commanders as wives. An estimated 200 girls lived in the camps with their children who were born there. The death rate of children in the camps was reportedly high, as those who were not killed by other LRA members or during conflict died from starvation or dehydration. An estimated 6,000 of those abducted over the years remained unaccounted for, many of whom were presumed dead. In addition to the conclusion of a number of bilateral agreements between the Sudan and Uganda, various efforts were under way to improve the situation and to meet the victims' needs—in the Sudan, by the Humanitarian Aid Commission and transit centres outside Khartoum, and in Uganda, through the Amnesty Act and Amnesty Commission, and through local authorities, NGOs and community organizations. The mission recommended the implementation of international agreements relevant to the conflict, further support for amnesty and reconciliation, security measures for the local population and assistance to abducted children and the affected population.

Indigenous people

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/59], the Commission recommended that the Economic and Social Council authorize the Subcommission's Working Group on Indigenous Populations to meet for five working days prior to the Subcommission's 2001 session. It welcomed the Group's proposal to highlight specific themes of the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People (1995-2004) (see p. 689), proclaimed by the General Assembly in resolution 48/163 [YUN 1993, p. 865], in its future sessions, noting that in 2001 the Group would focus on the theme of indigenous peoples and their right to development, including their right to participate in development affecting them. The Group was invited to continue its consideration of ways in which the expertise of indigenous people could contribute to its work. The Secretary-General was asked to assist the Group and to transmit its reports to Governments, organizations of indigenous people, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs for comments and suggestions.

On 24 July, the Council authorized the Working Group to meet for five days prior to the Subcommission's 2001 session and approved the Commission's request to the Secretary-General (decision 2001/271).

On 24 April [dec. 2001/110], the Commission, taking note of a 2000 Subcommission request [YUN 2000, p. 726], recommended that the Economic and Social Council authorize the Group's former Chairperson-Rapporteur, Erica-Irene Daes (Greece), to continue to participate in preparatory meetings for the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance and in the Conference itself (see p. 615), and to authorize the Chairperson-Rapporteur of the Group's 2000 session, Miguel Alfonso Martínez (Cuba), to participate in the World Conference.

On 24 July, the Council authorized the Commission's recommendation (decision 2001/283).

On 24 April [res. 2001/57], the Commission decided to appoint, for a three-year period, a Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous people. It requested the Secretary-General and the High Commissioner to assist the Special Rapporteur, and asked the Special Rapporteur to report in 2002. The Council endorsed the Commission's decision and approved its requests (see below).

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 4 June, the Economic and Social Council, on the recommendation of the Commission on Human Rights [E/2001/L.7], adopted decision 2001/222 without vote [agenda item 14 (g)].

Human rights and indigenous issues

At its 9th plenary meeting, on 4 June 2001, the Economic and Social Council, having taken note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/57 of 24 April 2001, endorsed the decision of the Commission:

(a) To appoint, for a three-year period, a special rapporteur on the situation of human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous people, with the following functions:

- (i) To gather, request, receive and exchange information and communications from all relevant sources, including Governments, indigenous people themselves and their communities and organizations, on violations of their human rights and fundamental freedoms;
  - (ii) To formulate recommendations and proposals on appropriate measures and activities to prevent and remedy violations of the human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous people;
  - (iii) To work in close relation with other special rapporteurs, special representatives, working groups and independent experts of the Commission on Human Rights and of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, taking into account the request of the Commission contained in its resolution 1993/30 of 5 March 1993;
- (b) To invite the Special Rapporteur:
- (i) To take into account a gender perspective while carrying out her/his mandate, paying special attention to discrimination against indigenous women;
  - (ii) To pay special attention to violations of the human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous children;
  - (iii) To take into account, in carrying out his/her task, all the recommendations of the Working Group on Indigenous Populations of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues relevant to his/her mandate;
  - (iv) To consider, in performing her/his work, the recommendations of the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance on matters concerning his/her mandate;
- (c) To request the Chairperson of the Commission of Human Rights, following formal consultations with the Bureau and the regional groups through the regional coordinators, to appoint as Special Rapporteur an individual of recognized international standing and experience;
- (d) To request the Special Rapporteur to submit annual reports on her/his activities to the Commission on Human Rights, starting at its fifty-eighth session;
- (e) To request the Secretary-General and the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to provide all the necessary human, technical and financial assistance to the Special Rapporteur for the fulfilment of her/his mandate.

On 22 June, the Commission appointed Rodolfo Stavenhagen (Mexico) as the Special Rapporteur.

Working Group activities. The Working Group on Indigenous Populations held its nineteenth session (Geneva, 23-27 July) [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/17] to review developments pertaining to the promotion and protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous populations, and to give attention to the evolution of standards concerning their rights. In annotations to the provisional agenda [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/1/Add.1], the Secretary-General presented background information on land issues, education and health; the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People (1995-2004) (see p. 689); the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615); and standard-setting activities, including a review of indigenous peoples' relationship with natural resource, energy and mining companies. Information was received from indigenous organizations regarding extreme poverty and the right to development [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/6], the Decade [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/7] and the World Conference [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/8].

Regarding the session's principal theme—indigenous peoples and their right to development, including their right to participate in development affecting them—the Group considered a note by the Secretariat [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/2], highlighting some of the possible themes related to indigenous peoples and their right to development. The Group encouraged OHCHR to organize regional seminars and workshops to afford indigenous peoples from all areas the opportunity to participate in activities regarding the Decade. The Group recommended that OHCHR organize a preparatory workshop on the implementation of the recommendations relating to indigenous peoples contained in Agenda 21, adopted in 1992 by UNCED [YUN 1992, p. 672]. Noting OHCHR's efforts to include indigenous components in country programmes, the Group welcomed the organization by the Office of a training workshop on human rights for indigenous peoples (Oaxaca, Mexico, 13-17 August) and expressed appreciation to the organizers of the second NGO workshop on indigenous children and youth (Geneva, 19-20 July). Regarding standard-setting activities during its 2002 session, the Group urged Mr. Alfonso Martínez to submit a working paper on indigenous peoples' relationship with natural resource, energy and mining companies, asked Antoanella-Iulia Motoc (Romania) to prepare working papers on possible future standard-setting that might be undertaken and on the consequences of biotechnology on indigenous peoples, invited UNDP and the World Bank to present their new policy guidelines on indigenous peoples, and asked Ms. Daes to present a working paper on indigenous peoples' permanent sovereignty over natural resources. In other action related to the Group's session in 2002, El Hadji Guissé (Senegal) was asked to prepare a working paper on indigenous peoples' right to development and globalization. The Group decided that in 2002 it would continue as its principal theme "Indigenous peoples and their right to development, including their right to participate in development affecting them". Considering that the year 2002 would mark its twentieth anniversary, the Group decided to highlight the theme "The Working Group on Indigenous Populations: achievements at the United Nations system and a vision for the future". In that context, it invited Ms. Daes to prepare a working paper on the achievements of indigenous peoples at the United Nations. OHCHR was invited to consider how it could organize special events to observe the Group's anniversary.

Workshop. In accordance with a 2000 Sub-commission resolution [YUN 2000, p. 728], OHCHR, in collaboration with UNCTAD, ILO, WTO and other organizations, organized a workshop on indigenous peoples, private sector natural resource, energy and mining companies and human rights, including existing international legal frameworks (Geneva, 5-7 December) [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2002/3]. The workshop focused on consulting with indigenous communities prior, during and following the development of private sector projects; benefit-sharing by indigenous communities in private sector activities; and solving disputes.

The workshop acknowledged that the recognition of indigenous peoples' rights to their lands and resources was a precondition for equitable relationships between them, States and the private sector. It underscored the importance of economic and sustainable development for indigenous peoples' survival and future. The workshop recommended that States, UN system organizations, indigenous peoples and the private sector continue to review issues relating to private sector natural resource development, best practices and indigenous peoples' land rights, and develop a framework for consultation, benefit-sharing and dispute resolution in private sector projects affecting indigenous peoples. It also recommended, among other measures, a study on existing and emerging human rights standards and industry guidelines relevant to indigenous peoples and private sector resource development on their lands. It was proposed that OHCHR: organize a second workshop to develop a draft framework for dialogue and implementation on consultation, benefit-sharing and dispute resolution in private sector projects affecting indigenous peoples; request from industry and indigenous peoples existing agreements of consultative processes and benefit-sharing between them, facilitate the development of model best practices and consider making available model arrangements on the OHCHR web site; and organize, at the request of industry, human rights training on indigenous peoples for interested industry employees. Other recommendations were made to private sector resource companies and the World Bank.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/10], the Subcommission asked the Secretary-General to submit the Working Group's report on its 2001 session to the High Commissioner, indigenous organizations, Governments, intergovernmental organizations and NGOs concerned, as well as to thematic rapporteurs, special representatives, independent experts and working groups, and asked that it be made available to the Commission in 2002. It recommended that the Group, upon request, assist the open-ended intersessional working group to elaborate further the draft UN declaration on the rights of indigenous people (see p. 691) and adopt for its 2002 session the principal theme "Indigenous peoples and their right to development, including their right to participate in development affecting them". The Subcommission asked the Commission to invite Governments, intergovernmental and indigenous organizations and NGOs to provide information, particularly on the theme, request the Economic and Social Council to authorize the Working Group to meet for five working days prior to the Subcommission's 2002 session, and invite UNDP and the World Bank to present their new policy guidelines on indigenous peoples at that session. The Secretary-General was asked to prepare an annotated agenda for the Group's 2002 session. The Subcommission invited Ms. Motoc to prepare working papers on possible future standard-setting activities and on the consequences of biotechnology on indigenous peoples, and asked Ms. Daes to prepare a working paper on indigenous peoples' permanent sovereignty over natural resources. The High Commissioner was requested, in consultation with interested Governments, to continue to organize meetings on indigenous issues, to encourage studies on the rights to food and adequate nutrition of indigenous peoples and to organize a workshop for indigenous peoples in the context of the International Year of Ecotourism in 2002. Regarding the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615), the Subcommission made recommendations regarding the plenary, the dedication of a chapter to indigenous peoples in the declaration and programme of action, and the participation of indigenous peoples.

Also on 15 August [dec. 2001/111], the Subcommission recommended that OHCHR organize a preparatory workshop on implementation of the recommendations relating to indigenous peoples contained in Agenda 21.

On the same date [dec. 2001/112], the Subcommission requested the Commission to recommend that the Economic and Social Council invite the Working Group's Chairperson-Rapporteur, Ms. Daes, to attend the first meeting of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues in 2002, and to present to it the Group's report on its 2001 session.

Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations

A May note by the Secretariat [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/4] contained the recommendations adopted by the Board of Trustees of the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations at its fourteenth session (Geneva, 28-30 March and 2 April). The Board recommended travel grants for 79 representatives of indigenous communities and organizations to allow them to attend the Working Group on Indigenous Populations, for a total of about $321,700; travel grants to allow 23 representatives to attend the working group on the draft UN declaration on the rights of indigenous peoples, totalling some $110,200; and sufficient funds, amounting to about $38,000, to allow indigenous representatives to attend, as observers, a possible meeting of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Peoples in 2002 (see p. 692). The recommendations were approved by the High Commissioner on behalf of the Secretary-General on 7 April. Annexed to the report was a list of beneficiaries.

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/10], the Subcommission appealed to Governments, organizations and individuals in a position to do so to contribute to the Fund.

International Decade of the World's Indigenous People

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/59], the Commission invited the Working Group to continue its review of activities undertaken during the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People (1995-2004). The High Commissioner, in her capacity as coordinator of the Decade, was asked to update her annual report on activities within the UN system under the Decade's programme of activities, to ensure that OHCHR's indigenous peoples unit was adequately staffed and resourced, and to give due regard to developing human rights training for indigenous people. The Commission recommended that the situation of indigenous people be taken into account in forthcoming relevant UN conferences. It suggested that the Subcommission's proposal to hold an international conference to evaluate the Decade [YUN 2000, p. 728] be considered in the context of the Economic and Social Council's review of existing mechanisms, procedures and programmes regarding indigenous issues; the conference would take place once the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues had been established and had held its first annual session.

UN financial and development institutions, operational programmes and specialized agencies were asked to give increased priority and resources to improve the conditions of indigenous people; launch special projects to strengthen their community-level initiatives and facilitate information exchange and expertise among indigenous people and other relevant experts; and designate focal points or other mechanisms to coordinate with the High Commissioner activities relating to the Decade.

Report of Secretary-General. In July [A/56/206], the Secretary-General summarized implementation of the programme of activities for the Decade undertaken by OHCHR from autumn 2000 to June 2001. OHCHR helped organize the second workshop on multiculturalism in Africa (Kidal, Mali, 8-13 January) (see p. 623) and, as lead agency for the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues (see p. 692), held meetings with indigenous peoples, Governments and UN agencies. Technical cooperation projects benefiting indigenous people were under way in Bolivia, Ecuador and Guatemala. Other activities described in the report were updated by the High Commissioner (see below).

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/12], the Subcommission, welcoming the observance in 2001 of the International Day of the World's Indigenous People (26 July), recommended that it be held on the fourth day of the Working Group's session in 2002 to ensure as large a participation of indigenous peoples as possible. It recommended that the Decade's coordinator consider holding a fund-raising meeting to encourage financial contributions to the Voluntary Fund for the Decade (see p. 691) and the UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations (see p. 689), and that qualified staff, including indigenous persons, be appointed to assist OHCHR in the indigenous programme and that she report thereon to the Subcommission and the Working Group in 2002. Governments, intergovernmental organizations, NGOs, individuals and indigenous organizations were urged to contribute to the Voluntary Fund for the Decade. The Subcommission recommended that the High Commissioner organize meetings and activities within the framework of the Decade to raise public awareness about indigenous issues; organize not later than 2002, in collaboration with relevant organizations, a workshop on indigenous peoples, private sector natural resource, energy and mining companies and human rights to contribute to ongoing work in that field; take action to promote the establishment, within the UN Office of Legal Affairs, of a database on national legislation on matters of relevance to indigenous peoples, and a compilation of treaties and agreements between States and indigenous peoples, as well as establish, in coordination with the UN Department of Public Information, a global public awareness programme on indigenous issues; organize a seminar on legal instruments between States and indigenous peoples to discuss possible follow-up to a 1999 study [YUN 1999, p. 686]; and authorize the convening of a conference on indigenous peoples' issues, with the theme "Rio+10", referring to the 10-year review of the implementation of Agenda 21 (see p. 749). The Subcommission invited the Commission to recommend that the Economic and Social Council authorize the convening of an international conference on indigenous issues during the last year of the Decade (2004), with a view to evaluating the Decade and considering policies and programmes that would contribute to action by States to promote better relations between the indigenous and non-indigenous segments of their population.

Report of High Commissioner. A report of the High Commissioner [E/CN.4/2002/96] reviewed UN activities under the programme for the Decade. OHCHR implemented the Indigenous Fellowship Programme (25 June-23 November) for five fellows from Australia, Botswana, Ecuador, Namibia and Thailand and, in cooperation with the University of Deusto (Bilbao, Spain), provided training for five indigenous candidates from Chile, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras and Peru. OHCHR organized indigenous parallel events relating to the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (see p. 615), including an indigenous media dialogue focusing on the media's role in combating discrimination against indigenous peoples, a forum on indigenous women and a round table on current issues and new developments. Regarding other activities, the High Commissioner highlighted OHCHR efforts to prepare for the first (2002) session of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues and to mainstream indigenous issues into its technical cooperation programme. She described the activities of the Voluntary Fund for the Decade (see below) and the Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations (see p. 689).

Voluntary Fund for International Decade

A May note by the Secretariat contained the report of the Advisory Group of the United Nations Voluntary Fund for the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People on its sixth session (Geneva, 2-5 April), including its recommendations for grants from the Fund that had been approved by the coordinator of the Decade [E/CN.4/Sub.2/AC.4/2001/5]. Contributions available to the Group as at 23 March totalled some $577,000. The Group recommended 30 project grants, which were approved for a total of some $252,000. Other activities proposed included the workshop on indigenous peoples, the private sector, natural resource, energy and mining companies and human rights (see p. 688) for $47,000; a round table on indigenous peoples, racism and the media for $50,400; a human rights training seminar in Mexico for $40,000; and human rights training for indigenous communities in a single country for $12,000. It approved a new guideline concerning emergency assistance for projects in the intersessional period, under which, in exceptional cases, organizations could request up to $5,000 for programmes that had already been subsidized by the Fund but had encountered financial difficulties. Based on requests received and activities financed, the Advisory Group recommended that a total of $1 million be requested for the Fund in OHCHR's annual appeal for 2002.

Draft declaration

Commission action. On 24 April [res. 2001/58], the Commission, taking note of the report of the working group to elaborate a draft UN declaration on the rights of indigenous peoples on its session in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 729], recommended that the group meet for 10 working days prior to the Commission's 2002 session and asked the group to submit a progress report.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council authorized the group to meet (decision 2001/270).

Subcommission action. On 15 August [res. 2001/12], the Subcommission recommended the adoption of the draft declaration as early as possible and not later than the end of the Decade, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 50/157 [YUN 1995, p. 772].

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/580], adopted resolution 56/140 without vote [agenda item 116].

International Decade of the World's Indigenous People

The General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 55/80 of 4 December 2000 and previous resolutions on the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People,

Recalling also its resolution 40/131 of 13 December 1985, by which it established the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations,

Recalling further that the goal of the Decade is to strengthen international cooperation for the solution of problems faced by indigenous people in such areas as human rights, the environment, development, education and health, and that the theme of the Decade is "Indigenous people: partnership in action",

Welcoming, in this respect, the contribution made through the World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance, held at Durban, South Africa, from 31 August to 8 September 2001, to the realization of the goals of the Decade,

Welcoming also the appointment of a special rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights and fundamental freedoms of indigenous people, with the mandate spelled out in Commission resolution 2001/57 of 24 April 2001,

Recognizing the importance of consultation and cooperation with indigenous people in planning and implementing the programme of activities for the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People, the need for adequate financial support from the international community, including support from within the United Nations system, and the need for adequate coordination and communication channels,

Urging all parties to continue to intensify their efforts to achieve the goals of the Decade,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the implementation of the programme of activities for the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People;

2. Affirms its conviction of the value and diversity of the cultures and forms of social organization of indigenous people and its conviction that the development of indigenous people within their countries will contribute to the socio-economic, cultural and environmental advancement of all the countries of the world;

3. Emphasizes the importance of strengthening the human and institutional capacity of indigenous people to develop their own solutions to their problems;

4. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, as coordinator for the Decade:

(a) To continue to promote the objectives of the Decade, taking into account, in the fulfilment of her functions, the special concerns of indigenous people;

(b) To give due regard to the dissemination, from within existing resources and voluntary contributions, of information on the situation, cultures, languages, rights and aspirations of indigenous people and, in that context, to consider the possibility of organizing projects, special events, exhibitions and other activities addressed to the public, in particular to young people;

(c) To submit, through the Secretary-General, an annual report to the General Assembly on the implementation of the programme of activities for the Decade;

5. Reaffirms the adoption of a declaration on the rights of indigenous people as a major objective of the Decade, and underlines the importance of effective participation by indigenous representatives in the open-ended intersessional working group of the Commission on Human Rights charged with developing a draft declaration on the rights of indigenous people, established pursuant to Commission resolution 1995/32 of 3 March 1995;

6. Welcomes Economic and Social Council decision 2001/316 of 26 July 2001 concerning the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues;

7. Encourages Governments to support the Decade by:

(a) Preparing relevant programmes, plans and reports in relation to the Decade, in consultation with indigenous people;

(b) Seeking means, in consultation with indigenous people, of giving indigenous people greater responsibility for their own affairs and an effective voice in decisions on matters that affect them;

(c) Establishing national committees or other mechanisms involving indigenous people to ensure that the objectives and activities of the Decade are planned and implemented on the basis of full partnership with indigenous people;

(d) Contributing to the United Nations Trust Fund for the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People;

(e) Contributing, together with other donors, to the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations in order to assist indigenous representatives in participating in the Working Group on Indigenous Populations of the Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and the open-ended intersessional working group of the Commission on Human Rights charged with elaborating a draft declaration on the rights of indigenous people;

(f) Considering contributing, as appropriate, to the Fund for the Development of Indigenous Peoples in Latin America and the Caribbean, in support of the goals of the Decade;

(g) Identifying resources for activities designed to implement the goals of the Decade, in cooperation with indigenous people and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations;

8. Invites United Nations financial and development institutions, operational programmes and the specialized agencies and secretariats, as well as other regional and international organizations, in accordance with the existing procedures of their governing bodies:

(a) To give increased priority and resources to improving the conditions of indigenous people, with particular emphasis on the needs of those people in developing countries, including through the preparation of specific programmes of action for the implementation of the goals of the Decade, within their areas of competence;

(b) To launch special projects, through appropriate channels and in cooperation with indigenous people, to strengthen their community-level initiatives and to facilitate the exchange of information and expertise among indigenous people and other relevant experts;

(c) To designate focal points for the coordination of activities related to the Decade with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights; and commends those institutions, programmes, agencies and regional and international organizations that have already done so;

9. Decides that the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations should also be used to assist representatives of indigenous communities and organizations in attending, as observers, the sessions of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues;

10. Appeals to all Governments and organizations to consider contributing to the United Nations Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Populations, if possible with a substantial increase in the level of contributions;

11. Recommends that the Secretary-General ensure coordinated follow-up to the recommendations concerning indigenous people of relevant United Nations conferences, namely, the World Conference on Human Rights, held at Vienna from 14 to 25 June 1993, the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, held at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, from 3 to 14 June 1992, the International Conference on Population and Development, held at Cairo from 5 to 13 September 1994, the Fourth World Conference on Women, held at Beijing from 4 to 15 September 1995, the World Summit for Social Development, held at Copenhagen from 6 to 12 March 1995, the second United Nations Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II), held at Istanbul, Turkey, from 3 to 14 June 1996, and the World Food Summit, held at Rome from 13 to 17 November 1996, and other relevant international conferences;

12. Requests the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to submit, through the Secretary-General, a report on the implementation of the programme of activities for the Decade to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

13. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its fifty-seventh session the item entitled "Programme of activities of the International Decade of the World's Indigenous People".

Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues

Report of High Commissioner. In May [E/2001/64], the High Commissioner, noting that OHCHR had been designated the lead agency for implementing Economic and Social Council resolution 2000/22 [YUN 2000, p. 731], which established the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues, stated that the Office, in February, invited indigenous organizations to hold consultations and to nominate, by 1 October, indigenous candidates for the Forum. OHCHR also undertook consultations with UN departments, organizations and agencies on how the UN system could work together for the success of the Forum. In that context, 10 UN organizations provided information about their activities, appointed focal points for the Forum and expressed willingness to cooperate. Information provided by the UN organizations lacked global statistical data relating to indigenous peoples; thus, the High Commissioner proposed that they prepare a consolidated paper identifying options and approaches for the Forum's interaction with pertinent UN organizations and agencies. She had considered establishing a secretariat to service the Forum, which could draw from the experience, knowledge and support of key UN partners.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL ACTION

On 2 July, the Economic and Social Council, acting on a May request of Mexico [E/2001/60], decided to include in the provisional agenda of its 2001 substantive session the supplementary sub-item entitled "Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues", under the item on social and human rights questions (decision 2001/224).

On 26 July, the Council adopted decision 2001/316 [draft: E/2001/L.27] without vote [agenda item 14 (i)].

Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues

At its 43rd plenary meeting, on 26 July 2001, the Economic and Social Council, recalling its resolution 2000/22 of 28 July 2000, in which it established the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues, decided:

(a) To convene the first annual session of the Forum at United Nations Headquarters from 6 to 17 May 2002, without prejudice to any future venue of the Forum;

(b) That the election of the eight government expert members of the Forum would reflect the distribution of seats among the regional groups, as follows, with due regard for the distribution of indigenous people among the countries of each of the regional groups:

- (i) One seat for African States;
- (ii) One seat for Asian States;
- (iii) One seat for Eastern European States;
- (iv) One seat for Latin American and Caribbean States;
- (v) One seat for Western European and other States;
- (vi) Three seats to rotate among the five regional groups in accordance with the following pattern:

Election 1	Election 2	Election 3	Election 4	Election 5
Latin America and Caribbean	Africa	Western Europe and other	Eastern Europe	Asia
Western Europe and other	Eastern Europe	Asia	Latin America and Caribbean	Africa
Asia	Latin America and Caribbean	Africa	Western Europe and other	Eastern Europe

This election method is without prejudice to the evaluation of the functioning of the Forum five years after its establishment, as foreseen in Council resolution 2000/22;

(c) To hold the first elections and appointments to the Forum at an appropriate time to be announced by the President of the Council but not later than 15 December 2001;

(d) To urge the General Assembly at its fifty-sixth session to take action on the proposed programme budget for 2002-2003 in order to secure, within existing resources, an adequately funded and well-functioning Forum that reflects its broad mandate, and in this context recalls paragraph 6 of Council resolution 2000/22;

(e) To request the Secretary-General to seek information from Governments, non-governmental organizations, indigenous people's organizations, the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues and all existing mechanisms, procedures and programmes within the United Nations concerning indigenous issues, including the Working Group on Indigenous Populations, as a basis for holding the review mandated in paragraph 8 of Council resolution 2000/22 as soon as possible and not later than the substantive session of 2003 of the Council.

Indigenous land rights

Working paper of Special Rapporteur. In June [E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/21], the Special Rapporteur on indigenous peoples and their relationship to land, Erica Irene A. Daes (Greece), in her final working paper, stated that one of the most widespread contemporary problems was the failure of States to recognize the existence of, and to accord legal status and legal rights to protect, indigenous land use, occupancy and ownership. In countries with laws concerning indigenous peoples, the most significant problems arose because of discriminatory laws and legal doctrines stipulating that indigenous land title could be terminated without due process or compensation and the doctrine that treaties with indigenous peoples could be violated or abrogated without any remedy; the failure of States to demarcate indigenous lands and to implement existing laws to protect indigenous lands and resources; improper, unfair and fraudulent claims processes; and the relocation of indigenous peoples and expropriation of their lands for national development. Additional problems included the allotment of indigenous lands to individuals; settlement programmes on indigenous lands; the practice of requiring that indigenous lands be held in trust by the State; programmes that used indigenous lands as collateral for loans; adverse management of sacred and cultural sites by States; the failure of States to protect the environmental integrity of indigenous lands and resources; and the failure to accord indigenous peoples the right to manage and control the development of their lands and resources.

The Special Rapporteur identified principles that might be helpful in evaluating and guiding State and international measures, and recommended that States enact legislation to recognize, demarcate and protect indigenous lands, territories and resources. Governments should formally renounce discriminatory legal doctrines and policies, and adopt corrective legislation or policies and constitutional reforms. In addition, they should provide measures to implement, amend and enforce land settlements and agreements, and for dispute resolution. In consultation with indigenous peoples, States should create a permanent capital fund to compensate indigenous peoples whose lands and resources were taken. Indigenous peoples should participate in decision-making regarding land, resources and development at the international, regional, national and local levels. The Permanent Forum should consider creating: a fact-finding body to visit sites and report on particular indigenous land and resource issues; a complaint mechanism or procedure for human rights violations pertaining to indigenous land and resources; and a procedure whereby countries could be called upon to report periodically regarding progress in protecting indigenous land and resource rights. It should also consider providing the Special Rapporteur with "peace-seeking" powers to investigate, recommend solutions, conciliate, mediate and assist in preventing or ending violence regarding indigenous land rights. The United Nations, its specialized agencies and other intergovernmental organizations should ensure that indigenous peoples' cultural diversity, traditional values and way of life were protected in the implementation of Agenda 21 [YUN 1992, p. 672].

Subcommission action. On 15 August [dec. 2001/109], the Subcommission decided to submit to the Commission in 2002 the Special Rapporteur's working paper and asked it to invite her to present the paper during the Commission's discussion of indigenous issues. The Secretary-General was asked to assist the Special Rapporteur to enable her to attend the Commission's meetings. It requested that the paper be translated into the UN official languages, published and disseminated widely. The Commission was requested to consider establishing in 2002 a pre-session working group, in which the Special Rapporteur should be invited to participate, particularly to discuss the fundamental guiding principles and recommendations proposed in the working paper.

Persons with disabilities

Report of High Commissioner. In May [E/2001/64], the High Commissioner stated that no fewer than 600 million persons, constituting about 10 per cent of the world's total population, suffered from some type of disability, some 80 per cent of whom lived in developing countries.

In the majority of countries, at least 1 of every 10 persons had a physical, mental or sensory impairment, and at least 25 per cent of the entire population of those countries were adversely affected. Persons with functional limitations or disabilities were particularly vulnerable to exclusion, marginalization and abuse. OHCHR had reinforced its support for the work of the Special Rapporteur on disability of the Commission for Social Development and had decided to further encourage UN human rights mechanisms to pay greater attention to the rights of persons with disabilities. OHCHR held a consultation on 17 April with Governments, intergovernmental organizations, NGOs, specialized agencies, UN bodies and national institutions, which reaffirmed the human rights dimension of issues related to disability and strengthened the link between OHCHR, the Special Rapporteur of the Commission for Social Development and the Commission on Human Rights.

Report of Secretary-General. In response to a 2000 Commission request [YUN 2000, p. 733], the Secretary-General, in August [A/56/263], reported on progress made regarding efforts to ensure the full recognition and enjoyment of the human rights of persons with disabilities. In that regard, the report described activities of UN human rights treaty bodies, the Commission and OHCHR (see above).

On 19 December, the General Assembly took note of the Secretary-General's report (decision 56/429).

(See also p. 1010.)

People with HIV/AIDS

Report of Secretary-General. In accordance with its 1999 request [YUN 1999, p. 687], the Commission considered a report of the Secretary-General [E/CN.4/2001/80], summarizing comments received from Governments, UN organs, programmes and specialized agencies, as well as from intergovernmental organizations and NGOs, regarding steps they had taken to promote and implement the Guidelines on HIV/AIDS and human rights, recommended by the experts participating in the Second International Consultation on HIV/AIDS and Human Rights [YUN 1996, p. 617]. The report provided information on policies and activities of the United Nations and regional organizations, relating to the promotion and protection of HIV/AIDS-related human rights.

Commission action. By a roll-call vote of 52 to none, with 1 abstention, the Commission, on 23 April [res. 2001/33], called on States to promote the availability in sufficient quantities of pharmaceuticals and medical technologies for treating HIV/AIDS, and to ensure that they were medically appropriate and accessible to all without discrimination. It called on the international community, particularly developed countries, to continue assistance to developing countries in their fight against HIV/AIDS. The Commission asked the Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, when considering the human rights dimension of combating pandemics such as HIV/AIDS, to give attention to the issue of medication, and invited States to include appropriate information thereon in their reports to the Committee. The Secretary-General was asked to solicit comments from Governments, UN organs, programmes and specialized agencies, international organizations and NGOs on steps they had taken to promote and implement the resolution and to report in 2002.

On 24 April [res. 2001/51], the Commission asked States to establish coordinated, participatory, gender-sensitive, transparent and accountable national policies and programmes to respond to HIV/AIDS, and translate those policies to district-level and local action; develop and support services, including legal aid, to educate people infected and affected by HIV/AIDS about their rights and to assist them in realizing those rights; combat discrimination, prejudice and stigma, and ensure full enjoyment of all human rights by people infected and affected by HIV/AIDS; ensure that codes of professional conduct, responsibility and practice respected human rights and dignity, including access to care for people with and affected by HIV/AIDS; and develop and support mechanisms to monitor and enforce HIV/AIDS-related human rights. The Commission asked its special representatives, special rapporteurs and working groups, including the special rapporteurs on the right to education, on the promotion and protection of freedom of opinion and expression, on violence against women and on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography, to integrate the protection of HIV-related human rights within their respective mandates. The Secretary-General was asked to invite UN bodies and Member States to integrate HIV-related human rights into their policies, programmes and activities, and to involve NGOs and community-based organizations in all phases of development and implementation, in order to help ensure a system-wide approach, stressing the coordinating and catalytic role of the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (see p. 1136). He was also asked to solicit comments from Governments, UN organs, programmes and specialized agencies, international organizations and NGOs on steps taken to promote and implement the Guidelines on HIV/AIDS and human rights, and to report in 2003.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's request to its special representatives, special rapporteurs and working groups (decision 2001/268).

Chapter III

Human rights violations

Alleged violations of human rights and international humanitarian law in a number of countries were examined in 2001 by the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the Commission on Human Rights and its Subcommission on the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, as well as by special rapporteurs, special representatives of the Secretary-General and independent experts appointed to examine the allegations.

General aspects

Under a procedure established by Economic and Social Council resolution 1503(XLVIII) [YUN 1970, p. 530] to deal with communications alleging denial or violation of human rights, the Working Group on Situations of the Commission on Human Rights, established by Council resolution 1990/41 [YUN 1990, p. 648], in closed session on 28 and 30 March, considered the human rights situations in Maldives, the Republic of the Congo, Togo and Uganda. The Commission discontinued consideration of the situations in Maldives, the Republic of the Congo and Uganda.

(For information regarding the right to restitution, compensation and rehabilitation for victims of grave violations of human rights and fundamental freedoms, see p. 635.)

Africa

Burundi

Commission action. On 20 April [E/2001/23 (res. 2001/21)], the Commission on Human Rights, expressing deep concern at the continuing violations of human rights and international humanitarian law in Burundi, urged all parties to the conflict to end the violence, especially against civilians. It noted government efforts to ensure the full respect for established legal safeguards for human rights and international human rights standards and the establishment of a government commission on human rights, and welcomed the dismantling of regroupment camps, the political compact between the Government and the National Assembly and the dialogue among Burundians taking place under the Arusha peace process (see p. 145). The Commission asked the Government to take further measures to end impunity, to continue to carry out judicial reforms and to establish a security environment conducive to the work of aid organizations. The United Nations and the donor community were asked to augment the flow of humanitarian assistance.

The Commission decided to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate for an additional year and asked her to submit an interim report to the General Assembly in 2001 and a report to the Commission in 2002, giving her work a gender-specific dimension. The Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision and its requests to the Special Rapporteur on 24 July (decision 2001/256).

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In March, Special Rapporteur Marie-Thérèse A. Keita-Bocoum (Côte d'Ivoire) reported on the human rights situation in Burundi during the period from 1 August 2000 to 31 January 2001 [YUN 2000, p. 735], based on her third mission to the country (18-26 January). As she was finishing her report, she learned that violent clashes begun by rebels belonging to the Forces nationales pour la libération (FNL) in February in a primarily Hutu area in northern Bujumbura had caused the displacement of some 20,000 persons. Attacks by Forces pour la défense de la démocratie (FDD) rebels near Rutovu had also caused mass exoduses.

In an interim report covering the period from 1 February to 31 August, which the Secretary-General transmitted to the General Assembly in October [A/56/479], the Special Rapporteur described the political and economic and social situation in Burundi and developments in the peace process (see p. 145), based on her fourth mission to Burundi (5-14 July). She observed that the human rights situation had not improved a great deal since January. The main violations related to the right to life—mostly massacres of civilians carried out by State agents and armed groups—to physical integrity and to personal freedom and security. Violations of the right to freedom of movement and to the freedom to choose one's residence also continued, particularly in the southern and south-eastern provinces, where a portion of the population was seeking refuge in the United Republic of Tanzania. The freedoms of opinion and of expression were restricted. In the majority of secondary detention centres, overcrowding, ill-treatment and illegal arrest and detention were increasingly common. Respect for the rights of women and of the most vulnerable groups, including children, was considered of secondary importance; the same was true of economic, social and cultural rights. The justice system had made little progress due to the political climate, which was influenced by developments in the peace process, and also because of a desperate lack of resources in the courts; in some areas, there had been a marked slowdown, if not a regression. The Governmental Commission on Human Rights, which officially began functioning on 25 April, did not meet the basic requirements demanded of national human rights institutes and appeared to have operational and/or resource difficulties. It was, however, encouraging to note a greater awareness of the need to respect and promote human rights. Seminars, training sessions and days of reflection had been organized with the support of the Burundi office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, other UN agencies, the Ministry of Human Rights and human rights associations.

The Special Rapporteur asked parties to the conflict to do all they could to achieve peace through negotiations and urged them to respect the right to life. She recommended implementation of the ban on recruitment into the army of those under the age of 18 and its application to the police force. The Government was invited to adopt more determined action against torture and unlawful detention, especially in military camps, and to devise and promote land management strategies to prevent land disputes. The international community was called on to persuade the belligerents to abandon their attempts to resolve matters through force of arms and to sit down at the negotiating table. The Special Rapporteur supported the convening of a conference in the Great Lakes region.

The General Assembly took note of the report on 19 December (decision 56/429).

In a later report covering the period from 1 September to 15 December [E/CN.4/2002/49], based on her fifth mission to Burundi (28 November–14 December), the Special Rapporteur updated the political, economic and social situation, particularly developments in the peace process since the inauguration of the Transitional Government on 1 November (see p. 151). The human rights situation was still marked by continued fighting between government forces and armed groups in various provinces, Bujumbura-rural, Bururi, Rutana, Makamba, Ruyigi and Muramvya provinces being the most affected. The rights to life, security and physical integrity were those most frequently violated. The rights to personal freedom and physical integrity were constantly violated, with numerous reports of illegal arrests and detention in the cachots (communal detention centres) of the police and gendarmerie or the military, where torture was practised. The right to freedom of movement and choice of residence was utopic in provinces such as Bujumbura-rural and Bubanza. The security situation had deteriorated as a result of an increase in murders and other crime.

The adoption of a new constitution and the establishment of transitional institutions, such as the National Assembly and the Senate, constituted steps forward in the peace process. However, many Burundians were disappointed by the period following the establishment of the new Government; they considered that the language of the authorities did not reflect reality. The Special Rapporteur observed that some believed the legitimacy of the new Government could be compromised by the fact that its membership was not the outcome of a democratic process. Regarding human rights promotion and strengthening the rule of law, in addition to monitoring, training and seminars, a framework was established for coordination among human rights associations and non-governmental organizations (NGOs). In addition to previous recommendations, the Special Rapporteur urged the mediators to continue efforts to achieve a negotiated solution to the conflict; appealed to the armed groups and the Government to end all violence against civilians; recommended that the Government cease recruiting militias and abandon the programme instituted by the new Government to train civilians to defend themselves against rebel attacks; and called on the Government and the international community to ensure the implementation of the Arusha Agreement on Peace and Reconciliation in Burundi [YUN 2000, p. 146] and to prepare the way for the return of refugees.

Democratic Republic of the Congo

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/19], the Commission, welcoming a number of positive developments regarding the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), including commitments made in Lusaka, Zambia, in February and at the meeting between members of the Political Committee for the Implementation of the Lusaka

Ceasefire Agreement and the Security Council on 21 and 22 February (see p. 119), called on the Government to promote and protect human rights, reform and restore the judicial system, end impunity, create conditions for democratization, ensure respect for freedom of opinion and expression, remove remaining restrictions on the activities of NGOs, facilitate and strengthen cooperation with the UN human rights field office in the DRC, cooperate with the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR) (see p. 1207) and ensure the security and freedom of movement of personnel of the United Nations Organization Mission in the DRC (MONUC) (see p. 125) and other associated personnel. Parties to the conflict were urged to implement the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement [YUN 1999, p. 87], protect human rights and respect international law, ensure the safety and freedom of movement of UN and associated personnel, end the recruitment and use of child soldiers, cease military activity, create conditions for the return of refugees and displaced persons and cooperate with the National Commission of Inquiry on alleged massacres of a large number of refugees and also with the Secretary-General and the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, with a view to the submission of a further report by the National Commission of Inquiry to the Secretary-General on progress made in investigating the massacres. It expressed concern at the adverse impact of the conflict on the human rights situation; the situation of human rights, particularly in the east of the country, and the continuing violations of human rights and international law; conflicts between the Hema and the Lendu ethnic groups in Orientale province; the excessive accumulation and spread of small arms and light weapons and their illicit distribution; violations of the freedoms of expression, opinion, association and assembly; the harassment and persecution of human rights defenders and their organizations; the intimidation of church representatives in the east; the severe insecurity, which impaired the ability of humanitarian organizations to access affected populations; and reports of illegal exploitation of natural resources and other forms of wealth in the country.

The Commission decided to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate for an additional year and asked him to submit an interim report to the General Assembly in 2001, to report to the Commission in 2002 and to maintain a gender perspective in seeking and analysing information. It requested the Special Rapporteurs on the human rights situation in the DRC and on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions and a member of the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances to carry out, as soon as security considerations permitted, in cooperation with the National Commission of Inquiry to investigate alleged human rights violations and breaches of international humanitarian law in the DRC between 1996 and 1997, a joint mission to investigate all massacres carried out in the DRC, with a view to bringing to justice those responsible and to report to the Assembly in 2001 and to the Commission in 2002. The Commission asked the Secretary-General to assist the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in the DRC and the joint mission, the High Commissioner to provide technical expertise to the joint mission, and the international community to support the DRC human rights field office.

The Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decisions and its requests to the Special Rapporteurs and Working Group member on 24 July (decision 2001/254).

Following the resignation of the Special Rapporteur, Roberto Garretón (Chile), the Commission appointed Iulia-Antoanella Motoc (Romania) in November.

Joint mission. In July [A/56/220], the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly that the Special Rapporteur on the human rights situation in the DRC would visit the DRC from 19 July to 2 August. He would pay particular attention to security conditions in order to assess the feasibility of the joint mission and the extent to which the Government and the rebel groups would support its work. The details would be reflected in an interim report to the Assembly (see p. 699).

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In a March addendum [E/CN.4/2001/40/Add.1] to a previous report [YUN 2000, p. 737], Special Rapporteur Roberto Garretón described developments in the DRC, based on his mission to the country (11-21 March). His visit was prompted by the seriousness of the internal armed conflict between the Bahema and the Balendu in Ituri, which had led to the premeditated murder of six International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) humanitarian workers. The Special Rapporteur described the various armed conflicts in the DRC (see p. 117) and noted that the situation of child soldiers had deteriorated.

The Special Rapporteur stated that following the assassination, in January, of President Laurent-Désiré Kabila, his son, Joseph was made temporary head of State (see p. 117). In February, President Kabila established an international commission to investigate the assassination, which was given widespread powers—to arrest and detain, to search premises and public and private documents—in exercise of which it committed serious human rights violations.

By an August note [A/56/327], the Secretary-General transmitted to the General Assembly a report of the Special Rapporteur following his visit to the DRC (20 July–1 August). The Special Rapporteur stated that, according to the reports of the NGO International Rescue Committee, 2 million people had died as a result of the war, of whom 200,000 were killed in violent acts. Beyond those figures, the population was enduring tremendous hardships. In areas controlled by the Rassemblement congolais pour la démocratie (RCD) and Rwanda and by the Front de libération du Congo (FLC) and Uganda, the most serious violations were reprisals against civilians, and the systematic, illegal looting of the natural wealth and resources belonging to the Congolese people; there was no freedom of expression and a one-party system was in effect: RCD in the east and FLC in the north-east. A negative aspect of Uganda's involvement was its strong support for the Bahema in the conflict with the Balendu, which had destabilized the region and paved the way for killings and abuses. No improvement was seen in the situation of women and children, and children continued to be recruited by the various national armies and foreign guerrilla movements involved in the war. On the positive side, political prisoners had been released, prison conditions improved, a law on political parties was adopted and interpreted rationally, and organizations that had been shut down resumed operations. The Special Rapporteur noted that the new President had announced measures, some of which had been implemented, including a moratorium on the death penalty, greater freedom of action for political parties, a National Human Rights Conference (June), and authorization for the resumption of a prominent NGO that his father had closed down. In addition, he had pledged to comply with the agreements concluded by his father in Lusaka [YUN 1999, p. 87], especially on supporting MONUC and the Facilitator of the Inter-Congolese Dialogue. However, the most serious human rights situation, the continuing abuses by the Military Court, had not been addressed, nor had the arbitrary actions of the international commission to investigate the assassination of the President. While daily newspapers operated, journalists had been detained and two private radio and television channels remained confiscated.

In addition to previous recommendations, the Special Rapporteur urged all parties to commit themselves to the Inter-Congolese Dialogue, cooperate with MONUC, begin to demobilize, disarm and reintegrate child soldiers and respect international humanitarian law. He recommended that the Government and other public authorities restore the rule of law, draft laws to give effect to agreements reached at the National Human Rights Conference and give precedence to international human rights norms over domestic law. Countries that had violated the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the DRC were asked to comply with Security Council resolutions on withdrawal from the country and the demilitarization of Kisangi and refrain from exploiting Congolese natural wealth and resources and return the goods exploited illegally. RCD and FLC were urged to end their terror against civilians, end relations with the armies that had violated the DRC's sovereignty and suspend action that presupposed the country's partition. The Special Rapporteur proposed that the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) open new offices in the country's main cities.

(For political details, see p. 116.)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third (Social, Humanitarian and Cultural) Committee [A/56/583/Add.3], adopted resolution 56/173 by recorded vote (90-3-69) [agenda item 119 (c)].

Situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming that all Member States are required to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms as stated in the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and other applicable human rights instruments,

Aware that the Democratic Republic of the Congo is a party to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the Convention on the Rights of the Child, the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 for the protection of victims of war and the first Additional Protocol thereto, of 1977, as well as the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject, the most recent of which is resolution 55/117 of 4 December 2000, and those of the Commission on Human Rights, as well as Security Council resolutions 1304 (2000) of 16 June 2000, 1332(2000) of 14 December 2000, 1341(2001) of 22 February 2001, 1355(2001) of 15 June 2001 and 1376(2001) of 9 November 2001,

Recalling also the Ceasefire Agreement signed at Lusaka, as well as the Kampala disengagement plan and the Harare sub-plans for disengagement and redeployment, and welcoming the decision of the Security Council to authorize the start-up of phase III of the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Concerned at all violations of human rights and international humanitarian law in the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo by parties to the conflict, including acts of and incitement to ethnic hatred and violence, as noted in the reports of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo,

Noting that the promotion and the protection of human rights for all are essential for achieving stability and security in the region and will contribute to the creation of the environment necessary for cooperation among States in the region,

Reiterating its support for the continuation of the Inter-Congolese Dialogue, which, requiring the cooperation and full participation of all the Congolese parties, is an essential process for the future of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and the entire region,

Acknowledging the need to expand the presence and full participation of women in the peace process,

Recalling its decision to request the Special Rapporteurs of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions and a member of the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances to carry out a joint mission of investigation in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, while regretting that the security situation in the country is still preventing such a mission,

Encouraging the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to give effect to its earlier commitment, including to the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, to restore and reform its judicial system, in accordance with the relevant international conventions, and to put an end to the trying of civilians by the Military Court,

1. Welcomes:

(a) The meeting between the Political Committee for the Implementation of the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement and the Security Council on 9 November 2001, and urges all parties to take the necessary measures to implement phase III of the deployment of the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(b) The reports of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(c) The visits made by the Special Rapporteur to the Democratic Republic of the Congo from 11 to 21 March 2001 and from 20 July to 1 August 2001 for the purpose of evaluating the existing situation in the country;

(d) The holding in Gaborone from 20 to 24 August 2001 of the preparatory meeting for the Inter-Congolese Dialogue and the signature by all the parties concerned of a declaration of commitment providing for the release of all prisoners of conscience, the free movement of goods and persons and the protection of the civilian populations;

(e) The effective release by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo of several human rights defenders;

(f) The adoption by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo of Law No. 001 of 17 May 2001, on political parties, and the promise of openness and tolerance which it offers, inviting the Government to continue on that path and to enforce the law fully for the benefit of all political tendencies in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(g) The action undertaken by the human rights field office in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, while encouraging the Government to collaborate and further strengthen its cooperation with the office;

(h) The statements by the President of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to the effect that child soldiers would in future no longer be recruited and, in that context, the ratification by the Democratic Republic of the Congo of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the involvement of children in armed conflict, and the commitment made by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to cooperate with United Nations organs and non-governmental organizations in order to ensure the demobilization and reintegration of child soldiers, as well as the measures taken by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to that end, while urging other parties to the conflict to do the same;

(i) The release and repatriation carried out under the auspices of the International Committee of the Red Cross in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in conformity with international humanitarian law, of persons at risk because of their ethnic origin, and of prisoners of war;

(j) The continuing presence and wider deployment of the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo in support of the implementation of the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement;

(k) The commitments made by the President of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to improve the human rights situation, particularly those given when he attended the fifty-seventh session of the Commission on Human Rights, while encouraging him to give concrete effect to those commitments;

(l) The organization of the National Human Rights Conference, held in June 2001, while expressing the hope that its results will lead to an improvement of the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(m) The consent of the President of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to the Special Rapporteur's plan to undertake, within the framework of his mandate and in the coming months, an initial joint mission to investigate the massacres in the province of South Kivu and other atrocities referred to by the Special Rapporteur in his latest and previous reports, with a view to bringing to justice those responsible and reporting thereon to the General Assembly and the Commission on Human Rights, and the agreement given by the rebel groups to that mission of investigation;

2. Expresses its concern at:

(a) The resumption of fighting in the eastern part of the country and the adverse impact of the conflict on the situation of human rights and its severe consequences for the security and well-being of the civilian population throughout the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, including the increase in the number of refugees and internally displaced persons, particularly in the eastern part of the country;

(b) The missed opportunity for the implementation of the Inter-Congolese Dialogue at the meeting which was held for that purpose in Addis Ababa on 15 October 2001, while welcoming the scheduled resumption of the process in South Africa;

(c) The situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, particularly in the zones held by the rebel groups and under foreign occupation, and the persistent violations of human rights and international humanitarian law, including the atrocities against the civilian populations, usually committed with complete impunity, while emphasizing in this regard that the occupying forces should be held accountable for the violations of human rights in the territories under their control. It condemns in particular:

- (i) All the massacres and atrocities still being committed throughout the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in particular in the zones held by the armed rebels and under foreign occupation, including Bugobe, Nyatende, Kamisimbi, Lurhala, Nyangesi, Biambwe, Nbingi, Bunyatenge, Kaghumo, Banyuke, and Kirima, Kalemie, Pweto, Rutshuru, Kibumba, Kimia Kimia, Dungu Mulunga and Kasese Bolanga;
- (ii) The occurrence of cases of summary and arbitrary execution, disappearance, torture, arbitrary arrest and detention without trial of, among others, journalists, opposition politicians, human rights defenders and people who have cooperated with the United Nations mechanisms;
- (iii) The numerous instances of rape and sexual violence against women and children, including as a means of warfare;
- (iv) The continuing recruitment and use of child soldiers by armed forces and groups, including the enlistment and kidnapping of children throughout the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in particular in North and South Kivu and in the eastern province;
- (v) The sentencing to death of civilians tried before the Military Court, in violation of the obligations assumed by the Democratic Republic of the Congo under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, as well as the prolonged and arbitrary detentions ordered by the Court;
- (vi) The death sentences and summary executions by the Congolese Rally for Democracy-Goma;
- (vii) The indiscriminate attacks against civilian populations, including against hospitals in the zones held by rebel forces and the zones held by foreign forces;

(d) The conflicts between the Hema and Lendu ethnic groups in the eastern province, where thousands of Congolese have already been killed and where Uganda, which controls the zone de facto, is responsible for ensuring respect for human rights;

(e) The excessive accumulation and spread of small arms and the distribution, circulation and illicit trafficking of arms in the region and their negative impact on human rights;

(f) The breaches of freedom of expression, opinion, association and assembly throughout the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in particular in the eastern part of the country;

(g) The harassment and persecution of human rights defenders and other members of civil society;

(h) The acts of intimidation and persecution against representatives of the Churches, as well as the killings of those persons in the eastern part of the country;

(i) The severe insecurity, which seriously hampers the ability of humanitarian organizations to secure access to affected populations, particularly in the zones held by armed rebels and under the control of foreign forces, and condemns the killing of six humanitarian workers of the International Committee of the Red Cross on 26 April 2001 in Ituri Province, for which those responsible must be brought to justice;

(j) The illegal exploitation of the natural resources of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, demands that such exploitation cease, and emphasizes that the natural resources of the country should not be used to finance the conflict there;

3. Urges all parties to the conflict in the Democratic Republic of the Congo:

(a) To permit the restoration without delay of the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in accordance with the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement and the relevant resolutions of the Security Council;

(b) To implement fully the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement;

(c) To cease all military and logistic support as well as all strategic collaboration with the armed groups, particularly those operating in the eastern part of the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(d) To do everything possible to create the prerequisites for further meetings with a view to advancing the Inter-Congolese Dialogue, with emphasis on ensuring the full participation of women in this process;

(e) To protect human rights and respect international humanitarian law, in particular, as applicable to them, the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 for the protection of victims of war and the Additional Protocols thereto, of 1977, the Hague Convention respecting the Laws and Customs of War on Land of 18 October 1907, the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide and other relevant provisions of international humanitarian, human rights and refugee law, and in particular to respect the rights of women and children and to ensure the safety of all civilians, including refugees and internally displaced persons, regardless of their origin;

(f) To ensure the safety and freedom of movement of United Nations and associated personnel and to ensure full, safe and unhindered access of humanitarian personnel to all affected populations throughout the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(g) To cease all military activity in the Democratic Republic of the Congo which breaches the ceasefire provided for in the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement and the Kampala disengagement plan, including the Harare sub-plans, and the relevant resolutions of the Security Council, and urges all foreign forces to withdraw without delay from the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(h) To put an immediate end to the recruitment and use of child soldiers, which are in contravention of the international human rights standards, and to extend unreserved cooperation to the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, the United Nations Children's Fund, the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict and humanitarian organizations in order to ensure the rapid demobilization of child soldiers, their return home and their rehabilitation;

(i) To define and implement all measures necessary to create conditions conducive to the voluntary return, in safety and with dignity, of all refugees and displaced persons and to ensure their fair and lawful treatment;

(j) To authorize access, in complete freedom and security, to the zones which they control in order to permit investigations into violations of human rights and international human rights law;

(k) To cooperate fully with the National Commission responsible for investigating allegations concerning the massacre of a large number of refugees and displaced persons in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, as well as with the Secretary-General and the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, in considering the allegations in question, with a view to submitting to the Secretary-General, through the National Commission, a further progress report on the investigations concerning this matter;

4. Calls upon the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to take specific measures in order:

(a) To comply fully with its obligations under international human rights law and to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms, to fulfil its responsibility to protect the human rights of the population in its territory, as well as to take a leading part in efforts to prevent conditions that might lead to further flows of internally displaced persons and refugees within the Democratic Republic of the Congo and at its borders;

(b) To fulfil its commitment to reform and restore the judicial system and, in particular, its declared intention progressively to abolish the death penalty, as well as to reform military justice, in conformity with the provisions of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, while encouraging the continuation of the moratorium on executions in force;

(c) To put an end to impunity and to fulfil its responsibility to ensure that those responsible for human rights violations and grave breaches of international humanitarian law are brought to justice;

(d) To create, in accordance with its undertakings as stipulated in the Lusaka Ceasefire Agreement, and particularly the articles concerning the Inter-Congolese Dialogue, conditions that would allow for a democratization process that is genuine and all-inclusive and that fully responds to the aspirations of all people in the country, and to complete the administrative procedures required to permit activities by political parties and prepare for the holding of democratic, free and transparent elections;

(e) To ensure full respect for freedom of opinion and expression, including freedom of the press in relation to all types of mass media, as well as freedom of association and assembly;

(f) To remove the restrictions that still affect the work of non-governmental organizations and to promote human rights awareness, particularly by strengthening cooperation with civil society, including all human rights organizations;

(g) To continue to facilitate and strengthen further its cooperation with the human rights field office in the Democratic Republic of the Congo;

(h) To cooperate fully with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Genocide and Other Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of Rwanda and Rwandan Citizens Responsible for Genocide and Other Such Violations Committed in the Territory of Neighbouring States between 1 January and 31 December 1994 in ensuring that all those responsible for the crime of genocide, crimes against humanity and other violations of article 3 common to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 and Additional Protocol II thereto, are brought to justice in accordance with international principles of due process;

(i) To continue to facilitate the creation of the necessary prerequisites for the deployment, in conditions of security, of the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and to guarantee the safety and freedom of movement of its personnel and associated personnel;

5. Decides:

(a) To continue to examine the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and to request the Special Rapporteur to report to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session, incorporating a gender perspective;

(b) To request the Special Rapporteurs on the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo and on extrajudicial, summary or arbitrary executions and a member of the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances to undertake, if appropriate in cooperation with the National Commission responsible for investigating violations of human rights and breaches of international humanitarian law in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (ex-Zaire) between 1996 and 1997, a joint mission to investigate all the massacres perpetrated in the territory of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, particularly the massacres committed in the province of South Kivu and other atrocities referred to by the Special Rapporteur in his latest and previous reports on the situation of human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, with a view to bringing to justice those responsible, and to report on this matter to the Commission on Human Rights at its fifty-eighth session and to the General Assembly at its fifty-seventh session;

(c) To request the Secretary-General to give the Special Rapporteurs and the joint mission all necessary assistance to enable them fully to discharge their mandate;

(d) To request the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to provide the technical skills needed by the joint mission in order to discharge its mandate;

(e) To request the international community to extend support to the human rights field office in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, in particular to enable it:

(i) To expand its participation in technical cooperation programmes, advisory services and activities to increase awareness of human rights, in particular by supporting the efforts made by the Government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo to strengthen the judicial system;

- (ii) To increase its support to non-governmental organizations defending human rights in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, continue and develop cooperation with them and facilitate the activities of the joint mission, particularly through financial support.

Equatorial Guinea

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/22], the Commission encouraged the Government of Equatorial Guinea to comply with its previous recommendations and those of the Special Representative [YUN 2000, p. 741], and to discuss and agree on the implementation of a national human rights action plan, together with a comprehensive technical assistance programme, with OHCHR. It called on the Government to ensure the independence of the National Commission on Human Rights and to continue to authorize the public registration and freedom of activity of human rights NGOs.

The Commission decided to renew the Special Representative's mandate for an additional year and asked him to assist OHCHR and the Government to establish a human rights technical assistance programme, to verify on behalf of the Commission that the assistance provided supported Equatorial Guinea's national human rights action plan and to report in 2002. The Secretary-General was asked to assist him.

The Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision and its requests to the Special Representative and the Secretary-General on 24 July (decision 2001/257).

Report of Special Representative. Special Representative Gustavo Gallón (Colombia), entrusted with the dual mandate to monitor the human rights situation and the technical assistance provided to Equatorial Guinea, submitted a report based on his visit to the country (4-18 November) [E/CN.4/2002/40]. During his visit, he met with the Inter-Ministerial Commission on Human Rights, a body established by the Government in 2001 to deal specifically with human rights and high-level government representatives, representatives of political groups, members of civil society and detained persons.

The Special Representative characterized the human rights situation in Equatorial Guinea as being absent of any genuine rule of law under a single-party regime, functioning with the support of a military whose powers were not different from those of the police and which even exercised jurisdiction over civilians. He described violations of the right to physical freedom and integrity of the person, the right to due process, the right to vote and be elected, the rights to freedom of movement and of association, the rights to equality and self-determination, freedom of the press, the rights to health and to work, children's and women's rights and the right to education, and noted the lack of independence of the judiciary. During his visit, the authorities justified many human rights restrictions and violations by the need to deal with terrorism, as other countries had done since the terrorist acts of 11 September in the United States (see p. 60).

The Special Representative noted that Equatorial Guinea had implemented some of the Commission's recommendations that did not require technical assistance, such as improving sanitary conditions and the physical premises in some detention centres, making arrangements for the publication of legislation and not prosecuting persons possessing foreign newspapers. The Government informed him that it had decided to accede by March 2002 to the 1965 International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination and the 1984 Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, adopted by the General Assembly in resolutions 2106 A (XX) [YUN 1965, p. 440] and 39/46 [YUN 1984, p. 813], respectively. It also expressed its willingness to strengthen mechanisms to enforce the prohibition on arbitrary detentions and prevent women or their family members from being deprived of their liberty for not returning a dowry in the event of divorce, and to submit to Congress a bill to ensure that civilians were not tried by military courts.

Several technical assistance projects had been agreed with Equatorial Guinea and some of them were being implemented by France and Spain and by private companies from Spain and the United States, while others were planned by the United Nations Development Programme and the European Commission.

In November, the Special Representative recommended to OHCHR that a team of experts on the Convention against torture, on judicial investigation techniques that did not involve torture and on military systems of criminal justice should be sent on a mission to support and help the Government. He hoped that the mission would take place in 2002. The Special Representative recommended measures to solve the problem of women's imprisonment, criminal investigations conducted by military courts, trials held in Congress, child prostitution and xenophobia against immigrants from neighbouring countries. He reiterated his appeal that account should be taken of the invitation by the Equatorial Guinean opposition in exile to hold a political dialogue aimed at finding ways of guaranteeing democracy and human rights.

Rwanda

By a 20 April resolution [res. 2001/23], adopted by a roll-call vote of 28 to 16, with 9 abstentions, the Commission, taking note of the Special Representative's report [YUN 2000, p. 742] and an agreement signed by the High Commissioner for Human Rights and the National Commission for Human Rights of Rwanda, called on OHCHR to respond to the Government's requests for human rights technical assistance and advisory services. It decided to end the Special Representative's mandate and its consideration of the situation of human rights in Rwanda.

Sierra Leone

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/20], the Commission, expressing grave concern at the abuses of human rights and humanitarian law committed in Sierra Leone, called on the Government to investigate reports of such abuses and to end impunity; it requested the Secretary-General and the High Commissioner for Human Rights to respond favourably to requests for assistance with the investigations.

The Commission requested: the High Commissioner and the international community to assist the Government to establish and maintain an effective functioning of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (see p. 180); the international community to participate in strengthening courts and the judicial system, and support the Secretary-General's appeal for resources to establish and maintain an independent Special Court; the High Commissioner and the international community to render technical assistance to personnel of the Court; the Secretary-General, the High Commissioner and the international community to assist the human rights section of the United Nations Mission in Sierra Leone (UNAMSIL); and the High Commissioner to report to the General Assembly in 2001 and to the Commission in 2002.

The Economic and Social Council, on 24 July, endorsed the Commission's requests to the High Commissioner, the Secretary-General and the international community (decision 2001/255).

Report of High Commissioner. In response to the Commission's April request, the High Commissioner submitted an August report [A/56/281] to the General Assembly. She stated that the beginning of 2001 had witnessed a significant momentum in the implementation of the peace process in Sierra Leone (see p. 163). From the beginning of the year until 25 July, about 11,291 combatants, including 1,559 children, were registered by UNAMSIL in a disarmament, demobilization and reintegration programme. Although the Revolutionary United Front (RUF) and the government-allied militia, the Civilian Defence Force (CDF), had agreed to release all child combatants and abductees, concern remained that few women and girls had been released. The High Commissioner, describing gender-specific abuses committed against women, noted that programmes were insufficient to address women's needs (see p. 678 for details of the visit to Sierra Leone by the Special Rapporteur on violence against women). In June, UNAMSIL received information of wanton attacks against civilians, allegedly by CDF, in Kono and Koinadugu Districts, as well as allegations of summary executions by RUF in Koidu town.

With improvements in the security situation, the human rights section of UNAMSIL began to establish satellite offices in provincial locations and its human rights training programme had introduced courses for ex-combatants. UNAMSIL also assisted in the restoration of local courts that applied customary law, provided training in international human rights standards regarding the judicial guarantees of a fair trial and due process of law, and facilitated a conference on the rule of law. OHCHR, in consultation with UNAMSIL, revised and updated its project of support to the establishment of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Preparations for the establishment of the Commission were given impetus by a seminar on the Commission's operational and managerial aspects (Freetown, 29 May–1 June). OHCHR was liaising with the United Nations Office of Legal Affairs with regard to establishing an independent special court to try persons who committed or authorized serious violations of international humanitarian law (see p. 179).

The General Assembly took note of the High Commissioner's report on 19 December (decision 56/429).

Sudan

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/18], by a vote of 28 to none, with 25 abstentions, the Commission welcomed a number of positive initiatives regarding the human rights situation in the Sudan, among them the Government's commitment to respect and promote human rights and the rule of law, efforts to implement the right to education, shelter given by the Sudan to refugees and initiatives towards national reconciliation. However, it expressed concern at the impact of the ongoing armed conflict and the continuing serious violations of human rights, fundamental freedoms and international humanitarian law by all parties to the conflict and in areas under government control. The parties were urged to respect and protect human rights, fundamental freedoms and humanitarian law; establish a monitored ceasefire; stop the use of weapons against civilians; grant safe and unhindered access to civilians by international agencies and humanitarian organizations; engage in peace negotiations under the auspices of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development; and cease the recruitment of children under the age of 18 as soldiers and fulfil its commitments concerning the protection of children affected by war. The Commission called on the Government to comply with its obligations under international human rights instruments to which it was a party; ratify the 1984 Convention against torture [YUN 1984, p. 813]; lift the state of emergency; ensure respect for freedom of religion; implement existing legislation that safeguarded human rights and democracy; raise the age of criminal responsibility for children; implement the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners [YUN 1955, p. 209]; end and prevent acts of torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment; prevent or stop abductions of women and children in southern Sudan; address the problem of internally displaced persons; ensure respect for freedom of expression, opinion, thought, conscience and religion, as well as freedom of association and assembly; and not recruit children under the age of 18 as soldiers.

The Commission decided to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate for an additional year and asked him to submit an interim report to the General Assembly in 2001 and to report to the Commission in 2002, applying a gender perspective.

The Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision and its request to the Special Rapporteur on 24 July (decision 2001/253).

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In response to the Commission's April request, Special Rapporteur Gerhart Baum (Germany), in a September report to the General Assembly [A/56/336], described the human rights situation in the Sudan, based on his visit to the country (9–14 March). At the end of his mission, he visited Nairobi, Kenya (14–17 March), where he collected information on the human rights situation in areas under the control of the Sudan People's Liberation Movement Army (SPLM/A).

The Special Rapporteur observed that the human rights situation in the Sudan had worsened, as manifested in the renewal of a state of emergency until year's end by the National Assembly, the provisions of the Security Act as endorsed by the Parliament and the tightening of press censorship, and the reduced room for political activities by opposition parties. Deploing the recurrence of human rights violations and lack of official action to investigate the abuses, the Special Rapporteur stressed the need to bring the security police under the rule of law and to fight impunity in a determined manner. He also urged SPLM/A to stop abusing human rights and to allow and develop genuine democratic structures. Stressing the appalling conditions of civilians, who continued to be at the receiving end of violations committed in the framework of the war, the Special Rapporteur said he was particularly struck by the plight of internally displaced persons. The Special Rapporteur recommended that everything be done to improve the social and economic situation of the population; according to reliable sources, oil revenue was insufficiently used to that end and oil exploitation had led to a worsening of the conflict. While positive steps had been taken regarding abductions, there continued to be a need for a massive advocacy campaign.

During a further visit (2–14 October) [E/CN.4/2002/46], the Special Rapporteur continued to receive information to the effect that the overall situation in the Sudan had not improved. No institutional or legal reform had occurred, particularly relating to the extension of the powers of the security organs and the absence of judicial control over them. Censorship had increased since December 2000, and cases of suppression of political freedoms occurred, targeting journalists as well as human rights activists. Regarding the plight of internally displaced persons, the Special Rapporteur welcomed the September visit of the Secretary-General's Special Representative on internally displaced persons (see p. 653), as well as the Government's commitment to address the problem and follow up the visit, including through holding a conference on the subject in the near future. Islam reportedly had a predominant place in school curricula to the point that teaching Christianity was allegedly forbidden, except outside the school. In that connection, the Government had made a commitment to establish an Advisory Council for Christians and to appoint Christians to senior positions within the Ministry for Religious Affairs. The Special Rapporteur noted irregularities in the Constitutional Court regarding political detainees, and remained concerned at the lack of transparency in the use of oil revenues. He condemned SPLM/A practices such as the use of civilian installations for military purposes and the setting up of military installations in close proximity to civilian ones, and encouraged SPLM to develop genuinely democratic structures, demilitarized and independent from the SPLM hierarchy. Regretting that military developments continued to impact adversely the human rights situation of civilians, the Special Rapporteur appealed to the Government to halt the bombing of civilian targets, particularly when civilians gathered to collect food. He appealed to donors to continue to invest in peace in the Sudan and to view the phases of peace, reconstruction and development in a more integrated manner.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.3], adopted resolution 56/175 by recorded vote (79-37-48) [agenda item 119 (c)].

Situation of human rights in the Sudan

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming that all Member States have an obligation to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms as stated in the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and other applicable human rights instruments and the duty to fulfil the obligations that they have undertaken under the various international instruments in this field,

Mindful that the Sudan is a party to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention on the Rights of the Child, the African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights and the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 for the protection of victims of war,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the situation of human rights in the Sudan, and taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/18 of 20 April 2001,

Deeply concerned at the impact of the continuing conflict in the Sudan between the Government of the Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement on the situation of human rights and at the disregard by all parties to the conflict of relevant rules of international humanitarian law, while welcoming the repeated declarations by the Government of the Sudan of a comprehensive ceasefire,

Deeply concerned also at the lack of progress in the peace process, the repeated offensives of the Sudanese army and the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement, the general upsurge in fighting and the continued aerial bombings by the Government of the Sudan,

Aware of the urgent need for the Government of the Sudan to implement effective additional measures in the field of human rights and humanitarian relief in order to protect the civilian population from the effects of armed conflict,

Expressing its firm belief that progress towards a peaceful settlement of the conflict in southern Sudan within the context of the peace initiative of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development will contribute greatly to the creation of a better environment for the respect of human rights in the Sudan,

Taking note of the initiative by Egypt and the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya aiming at a negotiated and lasting peace in the country, and encouraging close coordination with the Intergovernmental Authority on Development,

Condemning the murder of four Sudanese relief workers in April 1999 while in the custody of the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement,

1. Welcomes:

(a) The appointment of a new Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in the Sudan and his interim report;

(b) The good cooperation extended by the Government of the Sudan to the former Special Rapporteur and to the new Special Rapporteur during his visits to the Sudan in March and October 2001 and the cooperation extended to other United Nations mandate-holders in the field of human rights, as well as the stated willingness of the Government of the Sudan to continue to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur;

(c) The expressed commitment of the Government of the Sudan to respect and promote human rights and the rule of law and its expressed commitment to a process of democratization with a view to establishing a representative and accountable Government, reflecting the aspirations of the people of the Sudan;

(d) The activities of the Committee for the Eradication of Abduction of Women and Children as a constructive response on the part of the Government of the Sudan, the cooperation extended to the Committee by the local communities and the support of the international community and non-governmental organizations;

(e) The stipulation of basic human rights and freedoms in the Constitution of the Sudan and the establishment of the Constitutional Court, which has been in operation since April 1999;

(f) The repeated statements by the Government of the Sudan in favour of a comprehensive, lasting and effectively monitored ceasefire in southern Sudan;

(g) The proposal to create a broad-based national council to evaluate foreign peace initiatives to end the conflict and make relevant recommendations;

(h) Recent additional efforts by the Government of the Sudan to improve freedom of association and assembly, in particular the adoption of the Associations and Political Parties Act of 2000 and the announcement relating to the creation of a high commission to review the law on public order;

(i) The recent visit, upon the invitation of the Government of the Sudan, of the Representative of the Secretary-General on internally displaced persons, as well as the commitment of the Government to continue its efforts to address the problem of internally displaced persons and to follow up effectively the visit of the Representative, including by holding a conference on the subject of internal displacement in the near future;

(j) The people-to-people peace process at the grass-roots level, including the Nuer conference, held at Kisumu, Kenya, from 16 to 22 June 2001, which led to the Kisumu Declaration for Nuer Unity and Peace, and which, like other conferences held at the local level, should contribute to a comprehensive peace settlement in the context of the existing peace initiatives;

(k) Recent measures to drop lawsuits against some political detainees as well as the liberation of some political detainees, while expressing its deep concern at the fact that at least some of the detainees were re-arrested shortly thereafter on the basis of the National Security Forces Act, thereby perpetuating their detention;

(l) The steps taken by the Government of the Sudan towards the ratification of the International Labour Organization Convention concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour (Convention No. 182);

(m) The reconvening of the National Assembly in April 2001;

(n) The improved role of the National Press Council in monitoring complaints about the press;

(o) The technical cooperation agreement signed by the Government of the Sudan and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights on 29 March 2000 and the posting of an expert from the Office to the Sudan with the task of advising the Government on the development of national capacity to promote and protect human rights;

(p) The demobilization and repatriation of more than 3,500 child soldiers in close cooperation between the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement and the United Nations Children's Fund;

(q) The recent signature by the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement of an agreement to prohibit the use, production, stockpiling and transfer of anti-personnel mines throughout the territories under its control, and at the same time encourages the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement to implement the agreement swiftly;

(r) The efforts to implement the right to education;

2. Expresses its deep concern at:

(a) The impact of the ongoing armed conflict on the situation of human rights and its adverse effects on the civilian population, in particular women and children, and at the continuing serious violations of human rights, fundamental freedoms and international humanitarian law by all parties to the conflict, in particular:

- (i) The occurrence of cases of extrajudicial summary or arbitrary execution resulting from armed conflicts between members of the armed forces and their allies and armed insurgent groups within the country, including the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement;
- (ii) The retention of the state of emergency until the end of 2001;
- (iii) The occurrence, within the framework of the conflict in southern Sudan, of the use of children as soldiers and combatants, forced conscription, forced displacement, arbitrary detention, torture and ill-treatment of civilians as well as the still unresolved cases of enforced or involuntary disappearances;
- (iv) The plight of internally displaced persons in the Sudan, whose numbers are among the highest in the world, in particular with regard to women and children, and the harassment of these groups;
- (v) The forced displacement of populations, in particular in areas surrounding the oilfields, and notes the invitation extended by the Government of the Sudan to the Special Rapporteur to visit the oil-producing areas;
- (vi) The continued abduction of women and children by Murahaleen groups and other government militias and their subjection to forced labour or similar conditions;
- (vii) The lack of efforts to restrain the establishment by certain groups directly sponsored by the Government, including the Murahaleen, of militias that commit serious human rights abuses such as killings, torture, rape, abduction and the destruction of shelter and livelihood;
- (viii) The negative role of undisciplined southern militias, armed by the Sudanese army and the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement, which are responsible for killings, torture, rape, the burning of villages, the destruction of crops and the stealing of cattle;
- (ix) The continuation of indiscriminate aerial bombardment of civilian targets by the Government of the Sudan, in particular the bombing of schools, hospitals, churches, food distribution areas and market places, which seriously and repeatedly affects the civilian population and civilian installations;
- (x) The use by both the Sudanese army and the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement of civilian premises for military purposes;
- (xi) The use of weapons, including landmines, and indiscriminate artillery shelling against the civilian population;
- (xii) The conditions, in contravention of humanitarian principles, imposed by both the Government of the Sudan and the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement on humanitarian organizations working in the Sudan, especially the denial of access to them, which have seriously affected their safety and led to the withdrawal of many such organizations, with grave consequences for the already dangerous situation of thousands of people living in areas under their control;

- (xiii) The difficulties encountered by United Nations and humanitarian staff in carrying out their mandate because of abductions and harassment by both parties to the conflict, indiscriminate aerial bombings and the reopening of hostilities;
  - (xiv) The attacks on and use of force against United Nations as well as humanitarian personnel by the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement;
  - (xv) The measures taken by the leadership of the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement to prevent tribal elders, women and youths from participating in civil society gatherings such as the Nuer conference;
- (b) Continuing violations of human rights in areas under the control of the Government of the Sudan, in particular:
- (i) Restrictions on freedom of religion, as well as restrictions on freedom of expression, in particular the significant censorship of the press;
  - (ii) The restriction of political freedom, in spite of the replacement, in March 2000, of the Political Associations Act of 1998 by the Associations and Political Parties Act and the increased activity by some opposition parties;
  - (iii) The arbitrary arrest and detention without trial of political opponents, human rights defenders and journalists, in particular, as well as acts of intimidation and harassment against the population by the security organs;
  - (iv) The new amendment to the National Security Forces Act, approved by Parliament and endorsed by the President, which allows the security forces to arrest and detain individuals for a period of up to six months and three days without proper judicial review and to renew the detention as a preventive measure, practically without limits;
  - (v) Detention in precarious conditions, the use of torture and violations of human rights by security organs, intelligence agencies and the police, while encouraging the judiciary to exercise more control over such agencies;
  - (vi) The use of the cruelest forms of corporal punishment in contravention of human rights norms and standards;
  - (vii) The use of the death penalty in disregard of the provisions of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and United Nations safeguards;

3. Urges all parties to the continuing conflict in the Sudan:

(a) To respect and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms, to respect fully international humanitarian law, in particular the need to ensure the protection of civilians and civilian premises, thereby facilitating the voluntary return, repatriation and reintegration of refugees and internally displaced persons to their homes, and to ensure that those responsible for violations of human rights and international humanitarian law are brought to justice;

(b) To work immediately to put in place a global, lasting and effectively monitored ceasefire as a necessary first step to a negotiated settlement to the conflict, and to commit themselves to a permanent ceasefire;

(c) To take immediate steps to implement the 1994 Declaration of Principles, in particular to take all necessary steps towards the negotiation of a ceasefire agreement as agreed upon in point 6 of the Declaration of Principles;

(d) To resume the peace talks immediately and to continue to cooperate fully with the peace efforts of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development;

(e) To stop immediately the use of weapons, including landmines and indiscriminate artillery shelling, against the civilian population, which runs counter to principles of international humanitarian law;

(f) To stop the use of tribal militias that commit serious human rights abuses;

(g) In particular the Government of the Sudan, to cease immediately and unconditionally all indiscriminate aerial bombardment of the civilian population and civilian installations, including schools, hospitals, churches, food distribution areas and market places, which runs counter to fundamental principles of human rights and humanitarian law;

(h) In particular the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement, to stop using civilian premises for military purposes, misappropriating humanitarian assistance and diverting relief supplies, including food, from their civilian recipients;

(i) To grant full, safe and unhindered access to all international agencies and humanitarian organizations in order to facilitate by all possible means the delivery of humanitarian assistance, in conformity with international humanitarian law, to all civilians in need of protection and assistance, in particular in the Nuba Mountains, the Western Upper Nile, Blue Nile State, Bahr-el-Ghazal and other areas in need throughout the country, to continue to cooperate with the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs of the Secretariat and Operation Lifeline Sudan to deliver such assistance, to take measures against those who are responsible for abductions of United Nations and humanitarian staff, urges in particular the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement to lift as soon as possible the conditions it has imposed on the work of international agencies and humanitarian organizations, and also urges in particular the Government of the Sudan to end the use of the denial of humanitarian assistance flights for political purposes;

(j) Not to use or recruit children under the age of 18 as soldiers, encourages the continuation of the process of demobilization of child soldiers currently being undertaken by the United Nations Children's Fund, with the cooperation of the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement, and urges both parties to the conflict not to use or recruit children under the age of 18 as soldiers and to refrain from the practice of forced conscription;

(k) To fulfil their commitments concerning the protection of children affected by the conflict, such as to cease the use of anti-personnel landmines and attacks on sites where there is usually a significant presence of children as well as the abduction and exploitation of children and the recruitment of children as soldiers, to advance the demobilization and reintegration of child soldiers and to ensure access to displaced and unaccompanied minors and reunite them with their families;

(l) To allow an independent investigation of the case of the four Sudanese nationals who were abducted on 18 February 1999 while travelling with a team from the International Committee of the Red Cross on a humanitarian mission and subsequently killed while in custody of the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement, and urges the Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement to return the bodies to their families;

4. Calls upon the Government of the Sudan:

(a) To comply fully with its obligations under international human rights instruments to which the Sudan is a party and to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms, as well as to respect its obligations under international humanitarian law;

(b) To ratify the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment;

(c) To sign and ratify the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women;

(d) To ratify the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-personnel Mines and on Their Destruction;

(e) To undertake efforts towards promoting an environment that is more conducive to democratization and to improvements in the field of human rights;

(f) To continue to strengthen its efforts to ensure the rule of law by bringing legislation more into line with the Constitution and into conformity with the applicable international human rights instruments to which the Sudan is a party, and to ensure that all individuals in its territory enjoy fully the rights recognized in those instruments;

(g) To liberalize the legal provisions on public order and to continue assimilation into a regular criminal justice system;

(h) To ensure full respect for freedom of religion and, in this respect, to consult fully with religious leaders and other parties concerned when considering any new legislation on religious activities, to remove obstacles to obtaining permission to construct religious buildings, to respect the sanctity of religious buildings and to resolve church property issues;

(i) To implement fully existing legislation, including the appeals procedures, that safeguards human rights and democracy, in particular the Associations and Political Parties Act;

(j) To raise the age of criminal responsibility for children in order to take into account the observations of the Committee on the Rights of the Child;

(k) To implement the Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners and to continue to give special consideration to imprisoned women and juveniles;

(l) To take all effective measures to end and to prevent all acts of torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment, to take into account extenuating circumstances to the maximum extent possible, to ensure that all accused persons are held in ordinary custody and receive prompt, just and fair trials under internationally recognized standards, to investigate all reported human rights violations, including acts of torture, brought to its attention and to bring to justice those responsible for such violations;

(m) To ensure that capital punishment will not be imposed for crimes other than the most serious and will not be pronounced in disregard of the obligations assumed under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the provisions of United Nations safeguards;

(n) To take concrete measures to prevent and stop the abductions of women and children taking place within the framework of the conflict in southern Sudan, to bring to trial any persons suspected of supporting or participating in such activities, to support more strongly and more effectively the Committee for the Eradication of Abduction of Women and Children and to facilitate the safe return of affected children to their families as a matter of priority, in particular through the Committee for the Eradication of Abduction of Women and Children, with which all concerned have the responsibility and the duty to cooperate;

(o) To make concerted efforts to restrain the activities of the Murahaleen and to end the grave human rights abuses against civilians associated with their activities, to refrain from integrating them in the Sudanese army's military action and to stop financing and equipping them;

(p) To ensure full respect for the freedom of expression, opinion, thought, conscience and religion, as well as the freedom of association and assembly, throughout the territory of the Sudan;

(q) To continue to implement fully its commitment to the democratization process and the rule of law and to create, in this context, conditions that would allow for a democratization process that is genuine and that wholly reflects the aspirations of the people of the country and ensures their full participation;

(r) To make further efforts to implement the commitment made to the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Children and Armed Conflict not to recruit children under the age of 18 as soldiers;

(s) To make further efforts to address effectively the problem of internally displaced persons, including ensuring their access to effective protection and assistance;

(t) To consider the establishment of an independent national institution on human rights;

5. Encourages:

(a) The Government of the Sudan to continue its cooperation with the United Nations in the field of human rights through the Special Rapporteur and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights and its expert in Khartoum entrusted with the task of advising the Government on the development of national capacity to promote and protect human rights, and to consider how to strengthen the role of the Office;

(b) The Sudan People's Liberation Army/Movement to allow the people-to-people peace process to develop freely and unhindered, and to consider it an important contribution to the peace process;

6. Calls upon the international community to expand its support for activities aimed at improving respect for human rights and humanitarian law, in particular those of the Committee for the Eradication of Abduction of Women and Children, and to consider how to expand the Office of the High Commissioner to include a monitoring role;

7. Decides to continue its consideration of the situation of human rights in the Sudan at its fifty-seventh session, under the item entitled "Human rights questions", in the light of further elements provided by the Commission on Human Rights.

Togo

In 2001, the Secretary-General and the High Commissioner for Human Rights received communications regarding an Amnesty International report alleging that hundreds of extrajudicial executions and other human rights violations had taken place in Togo in 1998 [YUN 1999, p. 702], and the findings in 2000 [YUN 2000, p. 748] of the International Commission of Inquiry for Togo, which concluded that the allegations should be given due consideration.

On 22 January [E/CN.4/2001/134/Add.1-E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/3/Add.1], Togo, in a letter to the High Commissioner, stated that the report of the International Commission of Inquiry was partial and exceeded its mandate and that some Commission members were known to have links to Amnesty International. The allegations were without foundation and the report was a political fabrication to discredit the Government and people of Togo. Togo alleged that the Secretary-General of Amnesty International had received bribes in 1999 from the leader of an opposition faction.

On 6 February [E/CN.4/2001/134/Add.2-E/CN.4/Sub.2/2001/3/Add.2], Amnesty International submitted to the High Commissioner its comments on the Commission's report and asserted that Togo's allegations of bribery were a fabrication.

On 22 February [A/55/804], Togo stated that at no time did the International Commission of Inquiry support the allegations against it. It noted that in order to conceal Amnesty International's errors, the Commission, at the initiative of its Chairman, who, Togo said, had links to Amnesty International, attempted to confuse the issue by exceeding its mandate and taking up libellous allegations against the Togo Government.

Americas

Colombia

Commission action. The Commission Chairperson, in a 27 April statement [E/2001/23], urged the Government of Colombia to actively cooperate with the OHCHR Office in Bogotá, and encouraged the opening of field offices. Deploring serious and frequent violations of human rights and international law, particularly the massive and systematic abuses perpetrated by paramilitary and guerrilla groups, the Commission called on the parties to the conflict to reach a comprehensive human rights and humanitarian agreement. It noted the January announcement of a six-point government plan to tackle paramilitary groups. While noting improvements in the human rights performance of the armed forces, the Commission expressed concern at continued reports of human rights violations attributed to the armed and security forces. The Commission remained deeply concerned about the deterioration of the situation of internally displaced persons, poor prison conditions and reports of abuses of detainees' human rights. It noted with concern that the climate of violence in the country had led to systematic violations of the rights of the child. It asked the High Commissioner to report in 2002.

Report of High Commissioner. A report of the High Commissioner, based on information collected by OHCHR/Bogotá, described the human rights situation in Colombia in 2001 [E/CN.4/2002/17].

During the year, the Office received 1,414 complaints, of which 1,052 were accepted. It sent 194 communications to the authorities and made 164 field visits to various parts of the country that were of special concern. OHCHR published one compilation of international human rights, international humanitarian law and international criminal law and another on national and international doctrine and jurisprudence. It also released a collection of recommendations made to Colombia by international human rights bodies between 1980 and 2000.

The Office continued to provide a broad spectrum of technical assistance and advisory services to the Government. The agreement between the Office and the Government was extended to April 2003.

Progress was seen in constitutional and legislative reform during 2001, with decisions by the Constitutional Court to interpret human rights legislation so as to guarantee its conformity with international instruments, and cooperation with OHCHR/Bogotá by the offices of the Ombudsman, the Procurator-General and the Attorney-General. However, OHCHR/Bogotá continued to observe a marked deterioration in the human rights situation, including grave, massive and systematic violations of the rights to life, integrity, liberty, security of person and due process. Many of the violations, principally committed by different paramilitary and military groups, were part of a widespread attack on civilians. Although only a small percentage of violations were directly attributed to the security forces, the State bore responsibility for actions committed by other people because of its failure to protect, prevent and enforce humanitarian norms. The increased weakness of the State and its institutions seriously endangered the future of the rule of law. The High Commissioner expressed concern about impunity, enforced displacement and prison conditions. With regard to the administration of justice, difficulties persisted in terms of access to justice; the safety of officials, victims and witnesses in criminal trials; judicial delays; adequate defence; and the intervention of oversight bodies. The situation of human rights defenders continued to be critical, and trade union members were the victims of killings, threats and attempted murder. The rights of the child had declined significantly, women continued to be victims of discrimination and the indigenous Afro-Colombian communities experienced an increase in violations of their fundamental rights, in particular as the victims of killings, threats, enforced disappearance, displacement and failure to respect specific rights. Other groups continued to suffer extreme vulnerability, which affected their rights, including the right to life, among them, journalists and social communicators, university professors and students, members of political organizations, former rebels, people with HIV/AIDS and sexual minorities. The State had made noteworthy efforts to assist groups at risk through protection programmes. However, the programmes continued to be affected by financial, administrative and structural shortcomings.

The High Commissioner stated that the terrorist events of 11 September (see p. 60) had two significant outcomes for Colombia: the adoption of Security Council resolution 1373(2001) against terrorism (see p. 61) and the inclusion of the paramilitary groups in the list of terrorist organizations issued by the United States. Those developments resulted in the questioning of armed action by illegal groups and the formulation of government strategies in the framework of the National Security Act, which contained provisions that contravened international standards and democratic principles.

The High Commissioner recommended that the Government increase its cooperation with OHCHR; guarantee the rule of law; strengthen its human rights and international humanitarian law programmes, policies and mechanisms; guarantee effective justice and the right to defence; institute a democratic and rights-based policy on crime; combat paramilitarism; protect human rights defenders; guarantee workers' human rights and the exercise of trade union rights; guarantee the rights of ethnic groups; prevent displacement; protect the rights of vulnerable groups; focus its economic and social policies on the most disadvantaged groups; implement a comprehensive gender policy; eliminate widespread violence against children; guarantee human rights education; and ratify international human rights instruments. The Government, the armed factions and Colombian society were encouraged to continue efforts to reach a negotiated solution to the armed conflict. Parties to the conflict were called on to abide strictly and unconditionally by the principles and standards of international humanitarian law.

Communication. Colombia, responding to the High Commissioner's report [E/CN.4/2002/172], stated, among other things, that it did not deny or conceal the serious human rights situation, but equally did not accept institutional responsibility, since such accusations in the report ignored the harmful humanitarian and social effects of a guerrilla war that had been continuing for more than 40 years, added to the problems of paramilitarism and drug trafficking. Other comments concerned the cases of human rights defenders and social leaders, indigenous groups, economic, social and cultural rights, prison conditions and population displacement.

(For details of the visits to Colombia by the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on the situation of human rights defenders, see p. 586; and by the Special Rapporteur on violence against women, see p. 678.)

Cuba

On 18 April [res. 2001/16], by a roll-call vote of 22 to 20, with 10 abstentions, the Commission called on the Government of Cuba to ensure respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms and called on the authorities to continue to take measures to enhance freedom of religion. While noting the conditional release of three members of the Internal Dissidence Working Group, the Commission stressed its concern about the continued repression of political opposition members and about the detention of dissidents. It called on the Government to release those imprisoned for peacefully expressing their political, religious and social views and for exercising their rights to full and equal participation in public affairs. Cuba was called on to consider acceding to human rights instruments to which it was not a party, to initiate a dialogue with the political opposition, to open contact with other countries, to cooperate with other mechanisms of the Commission and to invite the Commission's thematic mechanisms to visit the country. It recommended that the Government take advantage of OHCHR's technical cooperation programmes.

Afghanistan

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/13], the Commission condemned the mass killings and systematic human rights violations in Afghanistan against civilians and persons deprived of their liberty for reasons related to the armed conflict. It also condemned interference with the delivery of humanitarian relief supplies and restrictions introduced by the Taliban on UN and NGO operations. Noting with deep concern the widespread human rights violations in Afghanistan, the Commission condemned them and the abuses of humanitarian law. It also condemned the continuing grave violations of the human rights of women and girls; the frequent practice of arbitrary arrest and detention and of summary trials, which had resulted in summary executions; violations by the Taliban in Kandahar of UN immunity; and the delay in the trial of the alleged murderers of UN officials killed in Afghanistan in 1998 [YUN 1998, p. 295]. It urged all Afghan parties to respect the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all; cease hostilities; reaffirm publicly their commitment to international human rights and principles; protect civilians; prohibit child conscription or enlistment; provide effective remedies to victims of grave violations of human rights and humanitarian rules and bring perpetrators to trial; fulfil their obligations regarding the safety of all personnel of diplomatic missions, the United Nations and other international organizations and NGOs; and treat suspects and convicted and detained persons in accordance with international instruments and refrain from arbitrary detention. The Taliban was urged to avoid discrimination based on ethnicity against people who wished to leave the country and seek asylum abroad. All Afghan parties, particularly the Taliban, were urged to cease human rights violations against women. The United Front and the Taliban were called on to fulfil their commitment to cooperate with investigations of reports of mass killings related to the armed conflict and of rape and cruel treatment. The Taliban was called on to abide by its commitments to protect Afghanistan's cultural heritage.

The Commission asked the High Commissioner to provide advice and human rights training to all Afghan parties, as well as to intergovernmental organizations and NGOs active in the field. It decided to extend the Special Rapporteur's mandate for one year and asked him to report to the General Assembly in 2001 and to the Commission in 2002, applying a gender perspective in the latter report. The Secretary-General was asked to assist him and to consider his recommendations in developing UN activities in Afghanistan.

On 24 July, the Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's requests to the Secretary-General and the High Commissioner and endorsed the extension of the Special Rapporteur's mandate and the Commission's request to him (decision 2001/249).

Reports of Special Rapporteur. In a March addendum [E/CN.4/2001/43/Add.1] to his previous report [YUN 2000, p. 751], Special Rapporteur Kamal Hossain (Bangladesh) presented information received regarding summary executions and massacres in Bamian and Takhar provinces in January and February. Reports supported by reliable eyewitnesses in Yakawlang indicated that, in the taking (by the United Front forces, Hezb-e Wahdat and Harakat Islami, in December 2000) and retaking (by the Taliban in January 2001) of Yakawlang district in Bamian, breaches of humanitarian law were committed by both parties as they violated the neutrality of medical facilities in the district and disregarded the rights of civilians to be treated as non-combatants. It was estimated that over 100 civilians were summarily executed by the Taliban; a number of mass graves had been identified. The Special Rapporteur noted that, in the preceding few months, the flow of new refugees into Pakistan and Iran had increased significantly and the humanitarian crisis had deepened.

In response to the Commission's April request, the Special Rapporteur submitted a September report to the General Assembly [A/56/409]. He said that he had visited Pakistan in March on an emergency basis, following reports of gross violations of human rights and breaches of international humanitarian law in Afghanistan, including summary executions of civilians, allegedly committed in the course of resumed conflict, particularly in Hazarajat. While the follow-up investigation into the summary executions committed in Yakawlang in January (see p. 712) was being carried out, reports were received of further summary executions and abuses between 5 May and 3 June when the area was reoccupied by Taliban forces. Preliminary reports indicated that 60 persons were taken to central Bamian to be executed, some 50 were rounded up and taken from Shah-e Dan and some 42 were taken from Shibatoo to Khouzghanatoo and from Band-e Amir, Sar-e Qol and Dahani Khanak. In addition, in Nayak, the Taliban engaged in large-scale destruction, burning down much of the town. Other villages were also raided and burnt.

The flow of new refugees (some 150,000 to Pakistan and 200,000 to Iran) had encountered resistance in both countries, given the fact that each of them had existing refugee populations of around 2 million, many of whom had been there for over two decades. On 2 August, Pakistan and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) concluded a screening agreement to allow thousands of Afghans to be given temporary protection by Pakistan.

In pursuit of the Taliban's declared policy of Islamization, the curriculum for the new school year reflected an increase in Islamic-related subjects. In July, the Taliban banned the use of the Internet and the importation of 30 items, including musical instruments, chessboards, playing cards, tapes, nail polish and neckties. Also of concern was the Taliban order to destroy all non-Islamic statues, including the two historic statues and shrines of Buddha in Bamian province (see p. 1019).

In a November addendum to his report [A/56/409/Add.1], the Special Rapporteur stated that, on an emergency basis, he visited Pakistan and Iran from 22 to 30 October to assess the impact of the military operations launched on 7 October (see p. 259) in the wake of the terrorist attacks of 11 September (see p. 60). The intensity of the aerial bombardment and the targeting of cities led to large-scale evacuation from urban areas and to the loss of civilian life. The humanitarian crisis had been deepening before those operations but it was feared that the situation could develop into a catastrophe. The Special Rapporteur recommended a durable political settlement to restore a unified Afghanistan, pursued through an inclusive and participatory process that would enable all segments of the Afghan people to establish a broad-based, multi-ethnic and representative government. He proposed measures to meet the human rights imperatives, including a review by the international coalition of the conduct of its military operations so as to comply with international humanitarian law, the redeployment of UN staff inside Afghanistan, on a voluntary basis, so that they could be seen to be standing by the Afghan people, internal security arrangements aimed at preventing massacres and protecting lives and property, urgent measures under the UN umbrella, including internal security arrangements to protect civilians inside the country and refugees from threats posed to their right to life, and providing access to the media, including the establishment of a UN-sponsored radio station to allow the Afghan people to be heard.

In a later report [E/CN.4/2002/43], the Special Rapporteur noted that the Taliban forces had concentrated mainly in Kunduz province in northern Afghanistan, having failed in their attempt to withdraw to southern Afghanistan. On 13 November, the United Front entered Kabul without a battle, since the Taliban had already abandoned the city. The Special Rapporteur appealed for compliance with international humanitarian law, particularly with regard to the treatment of prisoners. He called for an investigation into an eruption of violence, which was sparked on 25 November at the Qala-Jangi detention site during the questioning of some prisoners by two United States Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) agents. A series of violent events involving the shooting of prisoners and the killing of one CIA agent escalated into widespread violence. Reports spoke of a prisoner uprising and military operations involving massive use of force by coalition forces.

(For political details, see p. 255.)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.3], adopted resolution 56/176 without vote [agenda item 119 (c)].

Question of human rights in Afghanistan

The General Assembly,

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and accepted humanitarian rules, as set out in the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949 and the Additional Protocols thereto, of 1977,

Reaffirming that all Member States have an obligation to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms and to fulfil the obligations they have freely undertaken under the various international instruments,

Recalling that Afghanistan is a party to the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, the Convention on the Rights of the Child, the Geneva Convention relative to the Protection of Civilian Persons in Time of War and the conventions of the International Labour Organization on equal remuneration (Convention No. 100) and on the abolition of forced labour (Convention No. 105), and recalling that it has signed the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women,

Recalling also all its relevant resolutions, as well as the resolutions and presidential statements of the Security Council, the decisions of the Economic and Social Council, the resolutions and decisions of the Commission on Human Rights and the resolutions of the Commission on the Status of Women,

Recalling further Security Council resolutions 1333 (2000) of 19 December 2000 and 1378(2001) of 14 November 2001 on the situation in Afghanistan,

Recalling Security Council resolutions 1296(2000) of 19 April 2000 on the protection of civilians, 1379(2001) of 20 November 2001 on children and armed conflict and 1325(2000) of 31 October 2000 and the statement by the President of the Council of 31 October 2001, on women, peace and security,

Expressing grave concern about the appalling proportions of the humanitarian crisis affecting the country,

Warmly welcoming the appointment by the Secretary-General of a Special Representative for Afghanistan, and endorsing the approach outlined by the Special Representative at the meeting of the Security Council on 13 November 2001,

Affirming the essential role of the United Nations in supporting the efforts of the Afghan people to establish a new transitional administration leading to the formation of a Government, both of which:

(a) Should be broad-based, multi-ethnic and fully representative of all the Afghan people and committed to peace with the neighbours of Afghanistan,

(b) Should respect the human rights of all Afghan people, regardless of gender, ethnicity or religion,

(c) Should respect Afghanistan's international obligations, including by cooperating fully in international efforts to combat terrorism and illicit drug trafficking within and from Afghanistan,

(d) Should facilitate the urgent delivery of humanitarian assistance and the orderly return of refugees and internally displaced persons, when the situation permits,

Recognizing that the accountability of perpetrators, including their accomplices, of grave human rights violations is one of the central elements of any effective remedy for victims of human rights violations and a key factor in ensuring a fair and equitable justice system and, ultimately, reconciliation and stability within a State,

Stressing the importance of ensuring the full and effective participation of women in all decision-making processes regarding the future of Afghanistan,

1. Welcomes the interim report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in Afghanistan and the report of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on violence against women, its causes and consequences on her mission to Afghanistan and the conclusions and recommendations contained therein;

2. Strongly condemns:

(a) The cases of summary execution committed by the Taliban at Yakawlang in January, May and June 2001;

(b) The widespread violations and abuses of human rights and international humanitarian law in Afghanistan, mainly by the Taliban, including the right to life, liberty and security of person, freedom from torture and from other forms of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment, freedom of opinion, expression, religion, association and movement, and the recruitment and use of children in hostilities, contrary to international standards;

(c) The civilian massacres involving reprisal killings and summary executions following, in recent years, the taking and retaking of particular areas by warring parties;

(d) The frequent Taliban practice of arbitrary arrest and detention and of summary trials, which have resulted in summary executions throughout the country;

(e) The gross violations of the human rights of women and girls, including all forms of discrimination against them, notably in areas under the control of the Taliban where findings of further gross violations of the human rights of women and girls include abductions and kidnappings, as well as accounts of many instances of forced marriage and of trafficking;

3. Strongly condemns also the killing of foreign correspondents which occurred in Afghanistan in November 2001, reiterates its firm condemnation of the killing of Iranian diplomats and the correspondents of the Islamic Republic News Agency by the Taliban, as well as the attacks on and the killing of United Nations personnel in territories of Afghanistan at that moment under Taliban control, and calls upon all Afghan parties to cooperate in urgent investigations of those heinous crimes with a view to bringing to justice those responsible;

4. Condemns the Taliban authorities for allowing the continued use of Afghan territory for terrorist activities;

5. Notes with deep concern the existence of millions of Afghan refugees and their increased flow, while recognizing the huge burden shouldered by neighbouring countries, especially the Islamic Republic of Iran and Pakistan, and appreciating the efforts undertaken in these host countries to ease the plight of Afghan refugees;

6. Underlines the importance of the fulfilment of obligations under international law, including human rights law, with regard to asylum-seekers;

7. Expresses its concern at the large number of internally displaced persons in Afghanistan and their situation, and encourages efforts to meet their protection and assistance needs in Afghanistan;

8. Supports the early development of a comprehensive strategy aimed at ensuring respect for human rights and humanitarian law, which would, inter alia, provide for a smooth transition from humanitarian assistance to rehabilitation and long-term sustainable development as well as for a durable solution for refugees and internally displaced persons, including their voluntary return in safety and with dignity, and calls upon the international community to provide additional assistance in this regard;

9. Urges all parties to work and cooperate fully with the Special Representative of the Secretary-General for Afghanistan and the United Nations Special Mission to Afghanistan;

10. Stresses the need for national reconciliation and for the establishment of the rule of law, good governance and democracy in Afghanistan and, concurrently, the need for extensive rehabilitation and reconstruction;

11. Strongly condemns all acts of violence and intimidation against humanitarian personnel, and urges all Afghan parties to ensure the safety, security and free movement of all United Nations and associated personnel, as well as of the personnel of humanitarian organizations, to ensure their safe and unimpeded access to all affected populations and to guarantee the access of all Afghans to aid and to education and health facilities without discrimination on any grounds, including gender, ethnicity or religion;

12. Calls upon all Afghan parties:

(a) To respect fully all human rights and fundamental freedoms without discrimination on any grounds, including gender, ethnicity or religion, in accordance with international law;

(b) To refrain from summary and arbitrary executions and from acts of reprisal and to adhere strictly to their obligations under human rights instruments and international humanitarian law;

(c) To reaffirm publicly their commitment to respect fully humanitarian law and international human rights standards and to take all measures to protect the civilian population;

(d) To refrain from the recruitment or use of children in hostilities contrary to international standards and to take all necessary measures for the demobilization and social reintegration of war-affected children;

(e) To facilitate the provision of efficient and effective remedies to the victims of grave violations and abuses of human rights and of international humanitarian law and to bring the perpetrators to justice in accordance with international standards;

(f) To fulfil their obligations and commitments regarding the safety and security of all personnel and premises of diplomatic missions, the United Nations and other international organizations and non-governmental organizations, as well as all humanitarian supplies in Afghanistan, and to cooperate, fully and without discrimination on any grounds, including gender, nationality or religion, with the personnel of United Nations and associated bodies, as well as with those of other humanitarian organizations, agencies and non-governmental organizations;

(g) To treat all suspects and convicted or detained persons in accordance with relevant international law and to refrain from arbitrary detention in violation of international law;

13. Also calls upon all Afghan parties to respect fully the equal human rights and fundamental freedoms of women and girls in accordance with international human rights law and, in particular, consistent with the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, to bring to an end, without delay, all violations of the human rights of women and girls and to take urgent measures to ensure:

(a) The repeal of any legislative and other measures in place that discriminate against women and girls and those that impede the realization of all their human rights;

(b) The full, equal and effective participation of women in civil, cultural, economic, political and social life throughout the country at all levels;

(c) Respect for the right of women to work and their reintegration into employment, including in the United Nations system and human rights organizations;

(d) The equal right of women and girls to education without discrimination, the reopening of schools and the admission of women and girls to all levels of education;

(e) Respect for the equal right of women and girls to security of person, and ensure that those responsible for physical attacks on women are brought to justice;

(f) Respect for the freedom of movement of women and girls;

(g) Respect for the effective and equal access of women and girls to the facilities necessary to protect their right to the highest attainable standard of physical and mental health;

14. Notes with appreciation the activities carried out by the United Nations system, international and non-governmental organizations and the International Committee of the Red Cross throughout the territory of Afghanistan;

15. Recalls its invitation extended to the Secretary-General and the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to proceed without delay to investigate fully reports of summary executions and of rape and cruel treatment in Afghanistan, expresses deep regret for the lack of cooperation by Afghan parties which prevented effective investigations, and calls upon all parties to fulfil their stated commitment to cooperate with United Nations investigations;

16. Invites the relevant bodies of the United Nations to offer, as appropriate, advisory services and technical assistance in the area of human rights;

17. Appeals to Member States, organizations and programmes of the United Nations system, specialized agencies and other international organizations:

(a) To ensure that all United Nations operations integrate a gender perspective, including in the selection of personnel for their management, and that women will benefit equally with men from such programmes;

(b) To implement the recommendations of the inter-agency gender mission to Afghanistan under the leadership of the Special Adviser to the Secretary-General on Gender Issues and Advancement of Women and to provide specific programmes for all Afghan women and girls to address their special needs and promote their human rights;

(c) To support the elements of civil society active in the field of human rights, in particular women's rights;

18. Calls upon the Afghan parties to cooperate fully with the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in Afghanistan and all other special rapporteurs who request invitations to visit Afghanistan, and to facilitate their access to all sectors of society and to all parts of the country;

19. Requests the Secretary-General:

(a) To give all necessary assistance to the Special Rapporteur;

(b) To ensure, in consultation with the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the integration of a human rights capacity in the context of United Nations activities in Afghanistan;

20. Invites the Special Rapporteur to provide updates, as appropriate, of his reports on the situation of human rights in Afghanistan to the General Assembly and the Commission on Human Rights;

21. Decides to keep the situation of human rights in Afghanistan under consideration at its fifty-seventh session, in the light of additional elements provided by the Commission on Human Rights and the Economic and Social Council.

Cambodia

For information on the human rights situation in Cambodia, see p. 598.

China

On 18 April [E/2001/23], China made a motion that no action be taken on a draft text introduced in the Commission by the United States, which, among other things, called on China to ensure the observance of all human rights; improve the administration of justice and the rule of law; accelerate reform efforts; release political prisoners; permit the peaceful exercise of the rights of freedom of religion or belief and of peaceful assembly; preserve and protect the cultural, ethnic, linguistic and religious identity of Tibetans and others; develop productive bilateral dialogues; and cooperate with the Commission's thematic special rapporteurs and working groups. China's motion was carried by a roll-call vote of 23 to 17, with 12 abstentions.

East Timor

Commission action. In a statement by its Chairperson, the Commission, on 20 April [E/2001/23], emphasizing the importance of the ongoing reconciliation process and human rights promotion and protection, aimed at ensuring future social and political stability in East Timor, welcomed the forthcoming establishment of a reception, truth and reconciliation commission. The Commission called on the Government of Indonesia to establish without delay an ad hoc human rights court in order to bring to justice those responsible for human rights violations and abuses of humanitarian law in East Timor in 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 707]. Concerned at the large numbers of East Timorese refugees still in camps in West Timor, the Commission encouraged Indonesia to resolve that problem and urged it to ensure full and secure humanitarian access to refugee camps. Efforts should be made to complete the refugee repatriation programme in accordance with international standards, including the need for an impartial and transparent process of registration of refugees in order to enable them to register to vote in the East Timor general elections to be held on 30 August (see p. 278). The Commission asked the High Commissioner to report to the General Assembly in 2001 and to the Commission in 2002.

The Economic and Social Council approved the Commission's request to the High Commissioner on 24 July (decision 2001/289).

Reports of High Commissioner. In response to the Commission's April request, the Secretary-General, by a September note [A/56/337], transmitted the High Commissioner's report to the General Assembly. The High Commissioner described OHCHR activities and, based on information provided by the United Nations Transitional Administration in East Timor (UNTAET), summarized the human rights situation in East Timor.

In April, an agreement on a technical cooperation project to strengthen national infrastructure for the promotion and protection of human rights in East Timor was signed by the High Commissioner and the Secretary-General's Special Representative for East Timor. An OHCHR expert provided training in May on monitoring, investigation and protection to East Timorese district human rights officer interns recruited by the UNTAET Human Rights Unit. In June, OHCHR, the Human Rights Unit, the East Timorese Police Service and the Civilian Police organized two training courses on human rights in law enforcement.

Regarding the human rights situation in East Timor, there was a dire shortage of qualified judicial and legal personnel, the future of minorities was uncertain as there were no regulations governing their status, progress in investigating and prosecuting suspects for the crimes committed in East Timor in 1999 had been slow, and gender bias in court proceedings resulted in the unfair administration of justice for women victims of violence. The High Commissioner reported that the President of Indonesia, on 23 April, had signed a decree establishing an ad hoc tribunal to hear cases of human rights violations committed in East Timor. However, the decree provided only for prosecution of alleged violations that took place after the popular consultation on 30 August 1999 and not of cases that occurred prior to the vote. Indonesia agreed to review the court's jurisdiction, but had not done so, and the ad hoc tribunal had not been established. On 20 June, the East Timorese National Council unanimously adopted a regulation establishing the Commission for Reception, Truth and Reconciliation in East Timor, with a two-year mandate to inquire into and establish the truth about human rights violations committed in East Timor between April 1974 and October 1999; to support the reintegration of those who had committed minor criminal offences or harmful acts in the past, through a community-based reconciliation process; and to submit a report to the Government on its findings and to recommend how to prevent future recurrences of human rights violations. While perpetrators of serious crimes would be dealt with by the courts, those implicated in lesser crimes would be dealt with by the Commission. The High Commissioner recommended developing strong mechanisms to protect human rights, mechanisms for monitoring, investigating and preventing abuses within the police, and independent human rights monitoring. Calling for justice for grave violations of human rights and international law, she recommended that UNTAET, the East Timorese Transitional Administration (ETTA) and OHCHR draw up plans to ensure the unhampered continuation of the tasks of the ETTA Serious Crimes Unit (SCU) during the winding-down phase of UNTAET and following the end of the mission; the UNTAET mandate would expire on 31 January 2002. The High Commissioner encouraged the creation of an independent national human rights institution.

On 19 December, the General Assembly took note of the Secretary-General's note transmitting the High Commissioner's report (decision 56/429).

In a later report [E/CN.4/2002/39], the High Commissioner reported that a technical cooperation project between OHCHR and the Government of Indonesia, scheduled to begin midyear, was put on hold pending the revision of a presidential decree establishing the ad hoc human rights court to try cases arising from violence that took place in 1999 in East Timor, which was seen as having limited jurisdiction (see above). The project of technical cooperation between OHCHR and UNTAET to strengthen national infrastructure to promote and protect human rights in East Timor continued with human rights training programmes for judges, prosecutors, public defenders and legal aid lawyers. Assistance was provided to ensure that draft legislation was in accordance with international human rights standards and to establish and develop the Commission for Reception, Truth and Reconciliation.

The East Timorese Prosecutor General had issued 33 indictments for serious crimes committed in 1999, but almost half of the 83 persons indicted, whether members of the Indonesian military or East Timorese militia, were on Indonesian territory. Neither SCU prosecutors nor Special Panel judges had the authority to compel those outside East Timorese territory to submit to its jurisdiction. In December, the Special Panel for Serious Crimes of the East Timorese Court convicted 10 defendants for committing crimes against humanity in East Timor.

The UNTAET Regulation on the Establishment of a Commission for Reception, Truth and Reconciliation in East Timor was promulgated by the Transitional Administrator on 13 July. In August, the UNTAET Human Rights Unit, in cooperation with the Commission's Steering Committee, set up an Interim Office of the Commission in Dili to disseminate information about the Commission; mobilize donor funding; and engage in outreach activities. The shortage of qualified judicial and legal personnel persisted and the status of religious and ethnic minorities continued to cause concern. The East Timorese judiciary was unable to address civil issues as it was struggling to deal with criminal law matters; that had serious implications for women's human rights.

According to UNHCR, as at 31 December, 192,592 refugees had returned from West Timor to East Timor since October 1999. An estimated 60,000 refugees remained in West Timor; many of them remained fearful to return because of misinformation that fighting continued in East Timor and it was not safe. The Government of Indonesia ceased providing food aid and distributing money on 31 December, leaving the refugees to be looked after by a few local and international West Timorese NGOs.

UNTAET was receiving increasing reports about persons suffering from acute psychiatric stress who, in the absence of institutional support, were being arbitrarily detained by their neighbours or relatives. Alleged human rights abuses by extralegal security groups in East Timor continued to be reported. The High Commissioner proposed a series of recommendations relating to the status of investigations and prosecutions of serious crimes committed in 1999; legal and judicial capacity-building; the reception, truth and reconciliation process; and the protection of ethnic and religious minorities and other vulnerable groups.

Iran

Commission action. On 20 April [res. 2001/17], the Commission, by a roll-call vote of 21 to 17, with 15 abstentions, while welcoming a series of positive human rights developments in Iran relating to women's education, democracy and health, children's education and health, juvenile justice, follow-up to judicial cases with a political background, the Baha'is and the conviction of government agents involved in the deaths of intellectuals and political activists, called on the country to continue efforts to consolidate respect for human rights and the rule of law and to abide by its obligations under international human rights instruments. The Commission deplored the continuing executions, particularly public and especially cruel executions, and urged the Government to ensure that capital punishment would not be imposed for other than the most serious crimes. The Government was called on to end the use of torture, expedite judicial reform, give effect to its invitation to the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances to visit the country and to consider extending invitations to other relevant thematic mechanisms to visit Iran.

The Commission decided to extend the Special Representative's mandate for a further year and asked him to submit an interim report to the General Assembly in 2001 and to report to the Commission in 2002, keeping in mind a gender perspective; the Economic and Social Council endorsed the Commission's decision on 24 July (decision 2001/252).

Reports of Special Representative. In response to the Commission's April request, Special Representative Maurice Copithorne (Canada) submitted to the General Assembly a report covering the first six months of 2001 [A/56/278]. He believed that progress was being made in the incorporation of human rights values into Iranian society. However, in some respects, the Government seemed to be lagging behind the people, who had made clear their desire for change. The overall picture, he stated, was a mixed one.

The number of executions continued to be high, with some 60 taking place during the period under review, some of which were especially barbaric and unusual. The Special Representative continued to receive reports of torture in the legal system, particularly in pre-trial detention, violations of freedom of the press, violations of women's rights, overcrowding in prisons and the existence of detention centres outside the control of the National Prisons Organization. Religious and ethnic minorities continued to face varying degrees of official and societal discrimination. A stalemate between the branches of the Government over important policy and legislative decisions had led to a significant degree of paralysis in implementing human rights improvements. With regard to the legal process, the Special Representative received from the Government a list of legal reforms that were being implemented, the most pressing of which was the re-establishment of the procuracy, which could reduce the discretion that judges had in the courtroom, including in most cases being judge and prosecutor and, in some cases, jury and defence counsel as well. Annexed to the report were information on the situation of the Baha'is, a list of supporters of the religious/nationalist movement believed to be held in detention as at 15 July and correspondence between the Special Representative and the Government between December 2000 and June 2001.

In a later report [E/CN.4/2002/42], the Special Representative stated that change in the legal system remained excruciatingly slow. The long-awaited bill on the reform of the judiciary had reached the Majilis (consultative parliament). According to press reports, the bill stipulated that exceptional tribunals like the revolutionary courts would be able to deal only with cases explicitly referred to them by law. Prison conditions continued to be a subject of concern. Towards mid-September, the use of public floggings in Tehran appeared to die down somewhat but incidences in the provinces continued at least until the end of October. Some judges continued to violate detainees' human rights, particularly in the pre-trial stage. With regard to torture in the prison system, a step forward, in late November, was a petition identifying a number of acts of torture carried out during the interrogation of prisoners, signed by a substantial majority of Majilis members and calling for the creation of a council of representatives of the judiciary, the legislature and the executive to supervise the treatment of prisoners. Tensions between the elected and unelected branches of government increased. Violations of the right to freedom of expression continued and, with regard to other sources of information, it was reported that 1,000 satellite dishes were seized in October. There continued to be positive developments in the area of juvenile justice, but child harassment within the family was on the rise and children worked illegally in workshops and factories. The Special Representative expressed concern at the Government's modest efforts to address the high rate of unemployment. Noting the establishment of the National Committee for the Promotion of the Rights of Religious Minorities, he stated that the Committee needed to address many issues, such as that of diyyah (the Shariah compensation for death and personal injury) and the refusal to accept the devolution of property by inheritance to non-Muslims, where there were Muslim beneficiaries. Annexed to the report were information on the concept of diyyah and on the situation of the Baha'is, complaints concerning the status of the Azeris (the Azerbaijan Turkic-speaking community, which was possibly the largest ethnic minority in Iran) and of the Kurds, a list of students arrested in July 1999 [YUN 1999, p. 713] and correspondence between the Special Representative and the Government.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ACTION

On 19 December [meeting 88], the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Third Committee [A/56/583/Add.3], adopted resolution 56/171 by recorded vote (72-49-46) [agenda item 119 (c)].

Situation of human rights in the Islamic Republic of Iran

The General Assembly,

Guided by the Charter of the United Nations, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenants on Human Rights and other international human rights instruments,

Reaffirming that all Member States have an obligation to promote and protect human rights and fundamental freedoms and to fulfil the obligations they have undertaken under the various international instruments in this field,

Mindful that the Islamic Republic of Iran is a party to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination and the Convention on the Rights of the Child,

Recalling its previous resolutions on the subject, the most recent of which is resolution 55/114 of 4 December 2000, and taking note of Commission on Human Rights resolution 2001/17 of 20 April 2001,

1. Welcomes:

(a) The interim report of the Special Representative of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in the Islamic Republic of Iran;

(b) The broad participation of the electorate in the presidential elections held in June 2001, which expressed the true commitment of the Iranian people to the democratic process in the Islamic Republic of Iran;

(c) The reports that religion will no longer be requested in the registration of births, marriages, divorces or deaths;

(d) The positive developments regarding the situation of Iranian children in the fields of education, health and juvenile justice, as reported by the United Nations Children's Fund and the Special Representative;

(e) The process of legal reform under way in the Islamic Republic of Iran, and encourages the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to continue this process;

(f) The re-establishment of the Majlis Human Rights Commission, and expresses the hope that it will complement the work carried out by the Islamic Human Rights Commission to enhance the human rights situation in the Islamic Republic of Iran;

(g) The public and serious debate, which is taking place within society and in the media, on the validity and utility of the imposition of public flogging and other harsh punishments;

(h) The efforts of the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran in accepting and caring for large numbers of Afghan refugees;

2. Notes:

(a) The commitment made by the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to strengthen respect for human rights in the country and to promote the rule of law;

(b) The assessment of the Special Representative that some improvements have taken place, inter alia, in such areas as women's education;

(c) The establishment of the National Committee for the Promotion of the Rights of Religious Minorities, and encourages the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to expedite its launching;

3. Expresses its concern at:

(a) The continuing violations of human rights in the Islamic Republic of Iran;

(b) The fact that, since 1996, no invitation has been extended by the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to the Special Representative to visit the country;

(c) The continued deterioration of the situation with regard to freedom of opinion and expression, especially attacks against the freedom of the press, the imprisonment of journalists and members of Parliament, the harsh sentences imposed on those who participated in the Berlin conference or its preparation, and the harsh reactions to student demonstrations, including the imprisonment and mistreatment of those who participated;

(d) The growing number of executions in the absence of respect for internationally recognized safeguards, and in particular deplores public and especially cruel executions, such as stoning;

(e) The still unsatisfactory compliance with international standards in the administration of justice, the absence of due process of law and the use of national security laws to deny the rights of the individual;

(f) The use of torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment, in particular the practice of amputation and the growing number of cases of public flogging;

(g) The systemic discrimination against women and girls in law and in practice, and at the recent rejection of legislation to raise the age of marriage for women;

(h) The continuing discrimination against persons belonging to minorities, in particular against Baha'is, Christians, Jews and Sunnis;

(i) The ongoing lack of clarity concerning all the circumstances surrounding the suspicious deaths and killings of intellectuals and political activists in late 1998 and early 1999;

4. Calls upon the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran:

(a) To abide by its obligations freely undertaken under the International Covenants on Human Rights and other international instruments on human rights and to continue its efforts to consolidate respect for human rights and the rule of law;

(b) To take further measures to promote full and equal enjoyment by women and girls of their human rights and to undertake major educational programmes to promote women's rights;

(c) To implement the recommendations made by the Committee on the Rights of the Child as a matter of priority, as well as to consider ratifying the International Labour Organization Convention concerning the Prohibition and Immediate Action for the Elimination of the Worst Forms of Child Labour (Convention No. 182);

(d) To eliminate all forms of discrimination based on religious grounds or against persons belonging to minorities and to address this matter in an open manner, with the full participation of the minorities themselves, as well as to implement fully the conclusions and recommendations of the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights on the question of religious intolerance relating to the Baha'is and other minority groups until they are completely emancipated;

(e) To ensure full respect for freedom of expression;

(f) To end the imposition of the death penalty for crimes committed by persons under the age of 18, and to ensure that capital punishment will not be imposed for crimes other than the most serious and will not be pronounced in disregard of the obligations it has assumed under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the provisions of United Nations safeguards, and to provide the Special Representative with relevant statistics on this matter;

(g) To take all necessary measures to end the use of torture and other forms of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment and punishment, in particular the practices of amputation and public flogging, and to pursue vigorously penitentiary reform;

(h) To implement judicial reform speedily and completely, to guarantee the dignity of the individual and to ensure the full application of due process of law and fair and transparent procedures by an independent and impartial judiciary, and in this context to ensure respect for the rights of the defence and the equity of verdicts in all instances, including for members of religious minority groups;

(i) To enact as soon as possible legislation to ensure that people are not punished for exercising their political freedoms;

(j) To invite the Special Representative to visit the country and cooperate fully with him, in particular so that he can, through direct contacts with all sectors of society, observe the evolution of the human rights situation in the country and assess future needs, including in the area of technical cooperation in the field of human rights;

(k) To give effect, in the near future, to its invitation to the Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances to visit the Islamic Republic of Iran, as well as to consider extending invitations to other relevant thematic mechanisms to visit the country;

5. Decides to continue the examination of the situation of human rights in the Islamic Republic of Iran, paying particular attention to further developments, including the situation of the Baha'is and other minority groups, at its fifty-seventh session, under the agenda item entitled "Human rights questions", in the light of additional elements provided by the Commission on Human Rights.

Iraq

Commission action. On 18 April [res. 2001/14], by a roll-call vote of 30 to 3, with 19 abstentions, the Commission, noting that there had been no improvement in the human rights situation in Iraq, strongly condemned the systematic, widespread and extremely grave violations of human rights and international humanitarian law by the Government; its suppression of freedom of thought, expression, information, association, assembly and movement; the repression of the opposition; widespread use of the death penalty; summary and arbitrary executions; and the widespread, systematic practice of torture. It called on the Government to abide by its obligations under international human rights treaties and international humanitarian law; end summary and arbitrary executions and ensure that capital punishment would not be imposed other than for the most serious crimes; bring its military and security forces in conformity with standards of international law; cooperate with UN human rights mechanisms; establish the independence of the judiciary and abrogate laws granting impunity; abrogate decrees that prescribed cruel and inhuman punishment or treatment; abrogate laws and procedures that penalized free expression; ensure free exercise of political opposition; cease repressive practices aimed at ethnic and religious groups; cooperate to resolve the fate of missing persons; cooperate with aid agencies and NGOs to provide humanitarian assistance; ensure equitable distribution of humanitarian supplies purchased with the proceeds of Iraqi oil; and cooperate in identifying minefields in the country.
