Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice

Thirteenth session

Vienna, 11-20 May 2004

Item 3 of the provisional agenda*

Thematic discussion on the rule of law and development: the contribution of operational activities in crime prevention and criminal justice

Nigeria: draft resolution

The Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice recommends to the Economic and Social Council the adoption of the following draft resolution:

The rule of law and development: strengthening the rule of law and the reform of criminal justice institutions, with emphasis on technical assistance, including in post-conflict reconstruction

The Economic and Social Council,

Bearing in mind that one of the fundamental purposes of the United Nations, as enshrined in the Preamble to the Charter of the United Nations, is to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained,

Recalling that the ministerial-level discussion of the Security Council, held in September 2003, during which the Council invited all Member States to contribute to enhancing the role of the United Nations in establishing justice and the rule of law in post-conflict societies,

Fully aware that the international community is confronted with the problem of conflict and war in certain parts of the world, especially in Africa, Asia and Latin America and the Caribbean,

* E/CN.15/2004/1/Rev.1 and Corr.1.

Concerned about the activities of organized criminal groups engaged in trafficking in human beings, drug trafficking and money-laundering at the national and international levels, and in particular about the destabilizing impact of those activities on peacekeeping and reconstruction efforts,

Recalling the United Nations Millennium Declaration, in which heads of State and Government expressed their resolve to strengthen respect for the rule of law in international as in national affairs, and stated that they would spare no effort to strengthen respect for all internationally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms, including the right to development, and would support the consolidation of democracy in Africa and assist Africans in their struggle for lasting peace, poverty eradication and sustainable development, thereby bringing Africa into the mainstream of the world economy,¹

Bearing in mind that, in the Vienna Declaration on Crime and Justice: Meeting the Challenges of the Twenty-first Century, Member States emphasized that it was the responsibility of each State to establish and maintain a fair, responsible, ethical and efficient criminal justice system and that effective action for crime prevention and criminal justice required the involvement, as partners and actors, of Governments, national, regional, interregional and international institutions, intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations and various segments of civil society,²

Recalling the plans of action for the implementation of the Vienna Declaration on Crime and Justice, in particular the actions against transnational organized crime, corruption, money-laundering, terrorism and high-technology and computer-related crime and the actions on crime prevention, witnesses and victims of crime, prison overcrowding and alternatives to incarceration, juvenile justice, special needs of women in the criminal justice system, standards and norms and restorative justice,³

Recalling also the Basic Principles on the Independence of the Judiciary,⁴

Stressing that the participants in the Symposium on the Role of Law in the Promotion and Protection of Human Rights, held in Vienna on 24 November 2003, called upon States to ensure that the rule of law, the independence of the judicial system and its functioning were to be preserved, to the extent possible, in conflict situations and that judges and their staff were to be protected from unlawful pressure, which might hinder them from exercising their functions,

² General Assembly resolution 55/59, annex, paras. 3 and 13.

³ General Assembly resolution 56/261, annex, sects. I, II and VI-XV.

⁴ Seventh United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, Milan, 26 August-6 September 1985: report prepared by the Secretariat (United Nations publication, Sales No. E.86.IV.1), chap. I, sect. D.2, annex.

Recalling the draft resolution entitled “Drug control and related crime prevention assistance for countries emerging from conflict”,⁵ recommended by the Commission on Narcotic Drugs for adoption to the Economic and Social Council, in which the Council would urge Member States emerging from conflict to give adequate priority to addressing the drug problem and related crime in their post-conflict reconstruction efforts,

Noting with satisfaction the steady progress being made towards restoring peace in a number of conflict zones throughout the world, especially in Africa, Asia and Latin America and the Caribbean,

Noting with appreciation the progress made by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in the implementation of the criminal justice reform programme in Afghanistan, aimed at restoring the rule of law in that post-conflict society,

Recognizing the importance of the rule of law in post-conflict reconstruction and the consolidation of peace,

1. Requests the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to consider specific practical strategies to assist in promoting the rule of law, especially in countries emerging from conflict, paying particular attention to the most affected countries in Africa and taking an integrated approach to criminal justice reform, with particular emphasis on protecting vulnerable groups, subject to the availability of voluntary funds, which might be from general-purpose funds, in accordance with the Commission guidelines for the use of general-purpose funds,⁶ or from earmarked funds;

2. Encourages the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to continue to provide technical assistance and advisory services to Member States upon request in support of criminal justice reform, including in the framework of peacekeeping and post-conflict reconstruction, drawing on the United Nations standards and norms in crime prevention and criminal justice and the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime⁷ and the Protocols thereto⁸ and the United Nations Convention against Corruption;⁹

3. Invites the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime to develop assessment tools for criminal justice reform, including in the framework of peacekeeping and post-conflict reconstruction;

4. Urges Member States providing development assistance to countries emerging from conflict to increase, where relevant, their bilateral assistance in crime prevention and criminal justice to those countries;

⁵ Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 2004, Supplement No. 8 (E/2004/28), chap. I, sect. II, draft resolution I.

⁶ Commission on Narcotic Drugs resolution 44/20, annex.

⁷ General Assembly resolution 55/25, annex I.

⁸ General Assembly resolutions 55/25, annexes II and III, and 55/255, annex.

⁹ General Assembly resolution 58/4, annex.

5. Invites the global and regional intergovernmental financial and development institutions, including the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, to strengthen collaboration with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in the area of the rule of law and to provide adequate funding for projects in the justice sector;

6. Invites the institutes of the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme network to include in their work programmes the question of the rule of law with a view to contributing to better understanding of the links between the rule of law and development and to develop appropriate training materials;

7. Urges the Eleventh United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice, to be held in Bangkok from 18 to 25 April 2005, to pay particular attention to various issues related to the rule of law, including new forms of crime and international judicial cooperation;

8. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare a report on the implementation of the present resolution for submission to the Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice at its fifteenth session.
