COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS Sixth session

> COMMENTS OF GOVERNMENTS ON THE DRAFT INTERNATIONAL COVENANT ON HUMAN RIGHTS AND MEASURES OF IMPLEMENTATION

The Secretary-General has the honour to circulate the following comments:

5. Israel Statement on measures of implementation and reply to the questionnaire on measures of implementation* received by the Secretary-General on 17 January 1950

I. Statement on Measures of Implementation

The Government of Israel considers that instead of commenting separately on the proposals submitted by the representatives of Australia, France, Guatemala, India, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United States - United Kingdom, it would be more helpful if it presented briefly the basic concepts on the measures of implementation in the light of which the answers to the "Questionnaire on Measures of Implementation" were prepared.

1. The Government of Israel considers that some form of international implementation of human rights is necessary in addition to national implementation. 2. It believes that the responsibility for this implementation should preferably be entrusted to a new Specialized Agency related to the United Nations in accordance with Articles 57 and 63 of the United Nations Charter. This Agency would consist of an Assembly composed of representatives of covenanting states which would elect a body of persons chosen in their independent capacity by the Assembly. This body would be empowered with the conciliation and all the other functions referred to in the questionnaire including the appointment of

/ad hoc E/CN.4/353/Add.4

In a letter dated 19 December 1949 transmitting the statement and the reply, the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Israel stated that he "reserves the right to forward at a later date the comments and proposals of his Government with regard to the Draft International Covenant on Human Rights, including the proposals for new articles on economic and social matters."

ad hoc fact-finding bodies. The Agency would have its own secretariat headed by a Secretary-General.

3. The ad hoc fact-finding bodies should be composed of one member appointed by each of the litigating states and a number of members appointed by the body mentioned in paragraph 2. The fact-finding body should always be composed of an odd number of members.

4. Action may be initiated on the basis of complaints of states or by petitions of non-governmental organizations given the right of petition by the Agency. The Government of Israel does not believe it desirable to create at this 5. time a special Court of Human Rights or to create a special chamber of the International Court of Justice for this purpose. In so far as disputes over human rights are justiciable disputes within the terms of the statute of the International Court of Justice, States may refer them to that Court. 6. The General Assembly should authorize the Agency, as provided by Article 96 (2) of the Charter, to request advisory opinions of the International Court of Justice on legal questions arising within the scope of its activities. 7. The Government believes that the form of the implementation measures should be an instrument modelled on the General Act for the Pacific Settlement of Disputes of 26 September 1928. This instrument would be presented for signature simultaneously with the Covenant on Human Rights. A State would be permitted to adhere to those sections of the instrument which it deems appropriate. Certain minimal provisions would be obligatory as a condition of signing the Covenant.

If this general instrument is not ready for signature simultaneously with the Covenant, the obligatory minimal sections should be transmitted simultaneously for signature.

8. The implementation procedure contemplated above is without prejudice as to the functions and powers of the organs of the United Nations in accordance with the Charter.

II. Reply to the Questionnaire on Measures of Implementation

Part I PRELIMINARY QUESTIONS

Questions

Is it necessary to have in the 1. text of the Convention or in the Protocol attached to it or in a separate document any articles providing for international measures and the setting up of international institutions for the implementation of human rights and freedoms, or should these questions be left within the competence of each State as the particular concern of each country and people (this question is included at the suggestion of the representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics)?

In the event of the inclusion of 2. the economic and social articles in the (this question is included at the suggestion of the representative of

3. In your opinion should the provisions relating to implementation be included

(a) in the Covenant

Australia)?

(b) in a protocol annexed to the Covenant:

(c) in a separate instrument?

Answers

1. In addition to measures of implementation within each of the contracting States some form of international machinery is necessary.

It is impossible to give a definite 2. reply to this question as long as the Covenant, what would be your view on the nature and the scope of the economic and most appropriate means of implementation social rights are not defined. However, care should be taken that there should not be any infringement of the implementation rights of the existing competent specialized agencies.

> It is a matter of indifference where 3. the measures of implementation are to be included. However, it is essential that the Covenant and the implementation measures should come into effect simultaneously.

Questions

4. Have you any other suggestions or observations?

Answers

4. The elaboration of the measures of implementation should be in an instrument modelled on the General Act for Pacific Settlement of Disputes of the 26 September 1928. Covenanting States would be entitled to adhere to such parts of the instrument on implementation as they think fit. In such event it is essential that minimal implementation measures come into effect simultaneously with the Covenant itself.

Questions

Answers

3. Have you any other suggestions or 3. No observations?

C. Questions relating to notifications by signatory States, either at the time of ratification or subsequently, whether it adheres to the whole instrument or to certain parts thereof, and in the latter case enumerating the parts to which adherence is made

 In your opinion should there be provisions relating to such notifications?
 If you are in favour of the inclusion of such provisions, have you any proposals to offer?

3. Have you any other suggestions or observations?

1. Yes, if there is a general instrument as mentioned in answer to question 4 of Part I.

2. The notification should indicate to what parts of the instrument the State adheres and for which of the rights included in the covenant it accepts international machinery. It might be useful to provide that a State may accede to the instrument for implementation of rights not included in the covenant but be protected under a separate convention.

3. Replies under questions 1 and 2 of this section have been made under the assumption that implementation measures would be included into a general instrument as mentioned in answer to question 4, Part I. If, however, only minimal implementation measures are presented simultaneously with the covenant for signature, adherence to them should be a condition of the adherence to the covenant.

Yes

Answers

1. In your opinion should the instrument extend to the non-self-governing and trust territories for the international relations of which a signatory State is responsible?

Questions

2. Have you any other suggestions or observations?

2. However, in the case of trust territories there should be no duplication with the work of the Trusteeship Council.
