- CADEF played an active role in the discussions held between the Ministry of the Interior and local communities on electoral law reform. The President of CADEF argued strongly for the introduction of a one-third quota of women candidates for electoral lists and for all public and private sector posts. The draft amendment to the electoral law was rejected by Parliament in August/September 2006. All the country's women's groups expressed their indignation at a system that is supposed to be democratic but which in fact is profoundly male chauvinist;
- CADEF has joined with French and Malian NGOs to fight for the adoption of a law to punish those who engage in the sexual mutilation of young girls and women;

Fifteen women have been elected to the National Assembly, five to Government posts, 113 as town councillors; three as mayors; three as ambassadors; and five as diplomatic counsellors;

By improving the knowledge of workers in the social and health sectors about human rights and gender, CADEF was able to bring the skills of paramedical and social workers into line with international human rights standards. This activity involved 200 workers in the regions of Kayes, Ségou and Markala. Overall, these actions affected more than 4,000 women and 8,000 children between 0 and 8 years of age (in the form of prenatal, perinatal and postnatal care, vaccination against childhood diseases, and the fight against genital mutilation, HIV/AIDS and malaria).

In 2001, the University of Capetown organized a high-level week-long conference on human rights, Islam and tradition. The President of CADEF was invited to speak on women's rights in relation to the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women. She urged all attending Governments to withdraw their reservations to the Convention, which remains a source of great hope for women around the world, regardless of their religion.

- The President of CADEF also participated in discussions on the Global Network of Religions working for children's rights which were attended by senior governmental and non-governmental officials from the Buddhist, Muslim and Christian religions.
- As a member of the New York-based NGO Committee of UNICEF, the CADEF President also took part in a meeting of the Committee, which presented a comparative study on the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women and the Convention on the Rights of the Child, in collaboration with the Netherlands NGO coalition at the United Nations World Summit on Children.

- A CADEF delegate was invited to participate in the Girls International Forum in New York.
- Whether engaged with UNICEF, UNFPA or CIDA, representatives of CADEF consistently emphasized their holistic vision of women's and children's rights in the context of international, African and Malian legal instruments. They also contributed to the enhancement or amendment of the development programmes of UNICEF and UNFPA within the framework of the two United Nations Conventions.

In conclusion, CADEF is in need of technical, educational and financial support in order to achieve its objectives, which are in line with the Beijing Platform for Action, the Programme of Action of the Cairo International Conference on Population and Development, the Programme of Action of the Vienna World Conference on Human Rights and Mali's own programmes for sustainable development. CADEF would therefore be extremely grateful if the Chief of the NGO Section of the Department of Economic and Social Affairs would help it to establish links with international NGOs that might provide institutional support.

5. Rainforest Foundation UK

(Consultative status since 2002)

Part I Introduction

i. Aims and purposes of the organization and its main course of action

The mission statement of the United Kingdom Rainforest Foundation (RF UK) is to support indigenous peoples and traditional populations of the world's rainforests in their efforts to protect their environment and fulfil their rights. The Foundation is equally concerned with human rights and the environment and works in partnership with local organisations and indigenous rainforest communities. We presently support initiatives in Africa and South America.

The RF UK was established in 1989 following an appeal from the Kayapo people, eastern Amazonia, to assist them in resisting threats to their traditional rainforest lands. The RF UK is an autonomous body with ‘sister’ organisations in the United States of America, Norway, Austria and Japan.

Part II

(i) Participation in the work of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies and/or major conferences and other United Nations meetings

Since 2003 the Rainforest Foundation has been lobbying the British Government to recognise the collective rights of indigenous peoples and to sign on to the United Nations Draft Declaration on Indigenous Peoples during.

Signature of joint statement ‘Can a legally binding agreement for forests make a difference? Sent to the United Nations Forum on Forests in September 2004.

The United Nations Forum on Forests 16th to 27th May 2005, Geneva (Switzerland). The Rainforest Foundation attended the Forum on Forests, and lobbied for increased action to recognise indigenous and forest communities’ rights in order to achieve the Millennium Development Goals.

(ii) Cooperation with United Nations bodies and/or specialized agencies in the field and/or at Headquarters

The Rainforest Foundation has been cooperating closely with the United Nations High Commission for Human Rights to support the government and civil society organisations in the Republic of the Congo to develop a new law to protect the rights of indigenous peoples. This has involved collaborating closely over the organisation of workshops held in Brazzaville in May and July 2006. Exchanging comments on draft texts and suggesting amendments so that the law meets international standards. The United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples passed on 29th June 2006 was a key text supporting this process. The Rainforest Foundation is also supporting a longer term process in which local organisations have developed a deeper understanding of international indigenous rights and done research with communities to assess the extent to which they are respected in the Republic of the Congo.

The Rainforest Foundation through its partner organisation the “Observatoire Congolais des Droits de l’Homme” has been in discussions with UNICEF about local efforts to protect indigenous people in the Republic of the Congo.

(iii) Initiatives undertaken by the organization in support of internationally agreed development goals, in particular, the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs)

Our programme of work links directly to the Millennium Development Goal #7, to ensure environmental sustainability. Specifically we work to target one to: Integrate the principles of sustainable development into country policies and programmes; reverse loss of environmental resources. Our work also relates to MDG #1 to eradicate extreme poverty and hunger.

Since 2002 the Rainforest Foundation has been developing its work in the Congo Basin region where many national and regional policies threaten hopes for real sustainable development, the livelihoods of millions of forest dependant peoples and the integrity of the tropical forest ecosystems (the second largest in the world after the Amazon).

The following actions have been undertaken:

- Lobbying the governments of the Democratic Republic of the Congo and Cameroon and international agencies such as the World Bank to ensure that forest reform respects the rights of indigenous and local communities.
- Supporting 4 civil society organisations in Democratic Republic of the Congo to investigate illegal logging by timber companies, and to lobby for illegal logging concessions to be cancelled.
- Supporting civil society organisations in Cameroon to help 11 communities to manage their own forests, by providing legal advice through Cameroonian lawyers based in communities. We also support communities will organisational and financial resources to develop effective plans to manage the forests.
- Supporting communities to claim the forest taxes which are rightfully theirs under Cameroonian law.
- Supporting 22 indigenous communities in Eastern DRC to secure their livelihoods through livestock husbandry, income generation and more sustainable agricultural production.

The Rainforest Foundation supported the Congolese Observatory for Human Rights and the Association for Indigenous People of Congo (APAC) to celebrate the International Day of the World's Indigenous Peoples in the Republic of the Congo. They have presentations from indigenous peoples on issues around their rights, and launched a analysis report on the situation of indigenous peoples in Republic of the Congo.

The Rainforest Foundation has been limited in its participation in the work of the Economic and Social Council because available human and financial resources have been targeted at developing programmes in Central Africa working with NGOs and governments to secure indigenous rights and the survival of the second largest rainforest in the world.
