Organization of the sixty-second regular session of the General Assembly, adoption of the agenda and allocation of items (A/BUR/62/1)

Memorandum by the Secretary-General

1. The Chairman drew attention to the memorandum by the Secretary-General regarding the organization of the sixty-second regular session of the General Assembly, adoption of the agenda and allocation of items (A/BUR/62/1).

II. Organization of the session

2. The Chairman drew the Committee's attention to paragraph 6 of the Secretary-General's memorandum and said that he trusted that he would shortly receive from each of the Vice-Presidents of the General Assembly a letter concerning the designation of a liaison person for the duration of the session.

3. The Committee took note of all the relevant information contained in chapter II of the memorandum. It decided to draw the attention of the General Assembly to all the necessary information, in particular the information contained in paragraph 38 of the memorandum concerning the timely submission of draft proposals for the review of their programme budget implications, and to recommend to the General Assembly that it should take action on all the proposals contained in that chapter. It also decided to recommend to the General Assembly that it should take note of the information contained in paragraph 43 of the memorandum on the views of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions on the use of the phrase "within available resources" and the Advisory Committee's views on the responsibility of the Secretariat to inform the General Assembly regarding the availability of resources to implement a new activity.

III. Adoption of the agenda

4. The Chairman informed the Committee that, in accordance with paragraph 2 (a) of the annex to General Assembly resolution 58/316, the draft agenda was organized under headings corresponding to the priorities of the Organization as contained in the medium-term plan for the period 2002-2005, the priorities for the period 2006-2007 as set out in General Assembly resolution 59/278 and the priorities for the period 2007-2008 as set out in General Assembly resolutions 61/235 and 61/254.

Paragraphs 49 to 51

5. The Committee took note of the information contained in paragraphs 49 to 51 of the memorandum.

Inclusion of items

6. The Chairman said that, since the agenda was now organized under nine headings, the Committee might wish to consider the inclusion of items under each heading as a whole. However, the Committee might wish to take separate decisions on certain items, where it was deemed appropriate, including in some cases the placement of items under appropriate headings.

7. The draft agenda contained nine new items, namely item 116 (f) and items 160 to 167, under heading I: organizational, administrative and other matters.

Paragraph 52

11. Mr. Renié (France) said that, following consultations with the delegation of the Comoros, his delegation proposed that consideration of the question of the inclusion of item 21 should be deferred to a future meeting of the Committee.

28. The Regional Centre on Small Arms and Light Weapons in the Great Lakes Region and the Horn of Africa had been established for the purpose of containing the problem of illicit small arms and light weapons. 33. Mr. Romero-Martínez (Honduras), endorsing the statement made by the representative of Uruguay, said that, as a State member of the Institute, Honduras could testify to its importance in Latin American relations.

34. The Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the inclusion in the agenda under heading I of item 161.

Item 162. Proclamation of the International Year of Human Rights Learning

35. The Chairman said that the inclusion of item 162 had been requested by Benin in document A/62/144.

36. Mr. Ehouzou (Benin) said that, after consultations with a number of countries, it had been decided to withdraw the request for the inclusion of item 162 and to request instead the inclusion of an additional sub-item entitled "Celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights" under item 72. His delegation had circulated an explanatory note to that effect.

37. The Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the inclusion in the agenda of an additional sub-item entitled "Celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights" under heading D (Promotion of human rights), item 72 (Promotion and protection of human rights).

Item 165. Urging the Security Council to process Taiwan's membership application pursuant to rules 59 and 60 of the provisional rules of procedure of the Security Council and Article 4 of the Charter of the United Nations

42. The Chairman said that the inclusion of item 165 had been requested by a number of Member States in document A/62/193 and addenda 1 to 3. Following informal consultations, it was his understanding that there was general agreement among Committee members that statements with respect to the inclusion of the item should be limited to two speakers in favour and two against, and that the duration of each statement should be no more than six minutes. Pursuant to rule 43 of the rules of procedure, non-members of the Committee could participate in the discussion concerning the inclusion of the item but not in the discussion of the procedure to be followed by the Committee.

43. Mr. Beck (Palau), supported by Mr. Romero-Martínez (Honduras), opposed the suggestion to limit the debate, since any such limits were inconsistent with rule 43 of the rules of procedure.

44. Mr. Kariyawasam (Sri Lanka) said that, bearing in mind the need for efficient time management, his delegation supported the suggestion to limit the debate. The total of four speakers could include States not members of the Committee, participating in accordance with rule 43 of the rules of procedure.

45. Mr. Mavroyiannis (Cyprus), supported by Mr. Shcherbak (Russian Federation), said that, notwithstanding the right of sovereign Member States to discuss issues of concern within the framework of the United Nations, the Committee had spent a considerable amount of time over the years debating the Taiwan question, and the views of Member States were already well known. There was therefore no need for further lengthy discussion. Limiting the debate did not constitute a denial of the right of States to request the inclusion of items in the agenda of the General Assembly; it was simply a more efficient way of working. His delegation therefore supported the suggestion to limit the debate.

46. Mr. Jallow (Gambia), endorsing the statement made by the representative of Palau, said that Committee members who were concerned about the Taiwan question wished to hear the views of non-members. The outcome of the informal consultations did not constitute a formal decision. The matter should be taken more seriously; although it had been debated before, Member States should have the opportunity to discuss new issues pertaining to the need for Taiwan to become a Member of the United Nations.

47. Mr. Al-Humaimidi (Iraq) and Mr. Ehouzou (Benin) expressed support for the suggestion to limit the debate, in the interests of efficient time management.

48. Mr. Wolfe (Jamaica), Mr. Soboron (Mauritius), Mr. Ali (Malaysia), Mr. Badji (Senegal), Mr. Álvarez (Uruguay), Ms. Bethel (Bahamas), Mr. İlkin (Turkey), Mr. Renié (France), Ms. Lintonen (Finland), Mr. Outlule (Botswana), Mr. Ileka (Democratic Republic of the Congo) and Mr. Hannesson (Iceland) expressed support for the suggestion to limit debate on the item.

49. Mr. Mohamad (Sudan) said that Taiwan was an integral part of China and that it was the responsibility of the United Nations to safeguard and not to undermine the territorial integrity of its Member States. He expressed support for limiting debate on the item.

50. Mr. Abdelaziz (Egypt) agreed that limiting debate on the item was the best procedure, optimizing the use of the Assembly's time and resources.

51. The Committee decided by 24 votes to 3 that statements should be limited to two speakers in favour of and two speakers against the inclusion of item 165, and that the duration of each statement should be no more than six minutes.

52. The Chairman said that the representative of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines had asked to participate in the discussion of the item in accordance with rule 43 of the rules of procedure.

53. At the invitation of the Chairman, Ms. Ferrari (Saint Vincent and the Grenadines) took a place at the Committee table.

54. Ms. Ferrari (Saint Vincent and the Grenadines) expressed concern about the dangerous consequences that could arise if committees flouted or ignored the established rules of procedure. Within the General Committee, the so-called "established tradition" of limiting debate on the item under consideration in fact dated back only to 2005.

55. Her Government enjoyed a long-standing, close and mutually beneficial relationship with the democratically elected Government of Taiwan and strongly supported the inclusion of item 165, and the related draft resolution, in the agenda of the General Assembly at its sixty-second session.

56. An application for Taiwan's membership of the United Nations, signed by the democratically elected President of Taiwan, had been submitted to the Secretary-General of the United Nations on 19 July 2007. While Taiwan satisfied the requirements to apply for membership pursuant to Article 4 of the Charter of the United Nations, the Secretary-General, apparently on the advice of the Department of Legal Affairs, had nevertheless returned the application as "unreceivable". The Under-Secretary-General for Legal Affairs had stated that, in accordance with General Assembly resolution 2758 (XXVI), the United Nations considered Taiwan, for all intents and purposes, to be an integral part of the People's Republic of China. Such a response by the United Nations Secretariat was a troubling direct attack on the Charter of the United Nations. Since Member States alone had the absolute authority to make pronouncements on membership applications, the Secretary-General should reconsider his ill-advised response.

57. It was mainly small Member States that dared to speak out on behalf of Taiwan but those States were sovereign countries with all the rights afforded them by virtue of their membership of the United Nations. As such, they would not stand idly by and allow their voices to go unheard or their opinions to be ignored. Contrary to the claims made every year by Member States in the General Committee, General Assembly resolution 2758 (XXVI) had not in fact established the so-called “one China” principle, nor had it made Taiwan, for all intents and purposes, an integral part of the People’s Republic of China.

58. For too long, the Members of the United Nations had been content to ignore the plight of the 23 million Taiwanese denied their basic rights because of the intransigence of one permanent member of the Security Council. The well-known culture of inaction at the United Nations had given way to a new culture of expediency. Accordingly, instead of doing what was right, most Member States did only what was least likely to provoke a severe reaction from a powerful Member State.

59. The Chairman said that the representative of the Solomon Islands had asked to participate in the discussion of the item in accordance with rule 43 of the rules of procedure.

60. At the invitation of the Chairman, Mr. Beck (Solomon Islands) took a place at the Committee table.

61. Mr. Beck (Solomon Islands) said that his country supported the inclusion of item 165 in the agenda of the General Assembly at its sixty-second session and stressed that the failure to observe the established rules of procedure with respect to that item threatened to undermine the credibility both of the United Nations and of its Charter. The General Assembly must therefore be allowed to debate the issue of Taiwan’s membership of the United Nations and even to call into question the legality of General Assembly resolution 2758 (XXVI). That resolution, moreover, was based on the 1943 Cairo Declaration, which contravened the doctrine of self-determination and was no longer relevant to modern geopolitical realities.

62. The General Committee needed to examine the item under consideration objectively. Taiwan was a sovereign State which abided by the rules of international law, existed within a defined territory and maintained diplomatic relations with other States. If any countries wished to challenge those assertions, the correct course of action would be to allow a debate in the General Assembly.

63. China had not exerted any direct political control over Taiwan for over half a century, as demonstrated by its need to adopt an “anti-secession law” in March 2005, legitimizing non-peaceful means to resolve cross-Straits disputes, and by its deployment of 800 ballistic missiles aimed at Taiwan. In that regard, since the United Nations had a collective moral responsibility to resolve such disputes peacefully, a general debate within the United Nations might help to remove fears of an arms race or of potential conflict.

64. Furthermore, as part of the efforts needed to make the Organization more efficient and effective, it was important to examine why the issue of Taiwan’s membership of the United Nations had still not been discussed by the General Assembly, particularly when similar complex problems elsewhere in the world had been addressed.

65. Mr. Wang Guangya (China) said that his delegation firmly opposed the inclusion of item 165 in the agenda of the General Assembly at its sixty-second session. His Government had stated its position on the issue in a letter to the Secretary-General dated 16 August 2007.

66. There was only one China, and Taiwan was an inseparable part of China’s territory, as was widely recognized by the international community. The issue of China’s representation in the United Nations had been resolved once and for all by the adoption of resolution 2758 (XXVI) in 1971. That resolution stated unequivocally that the representatives of the Government of the People’s Republic of China were the only lawful representatives of China to the United Nations and that Taiwan was an inseparable part of China’s territory.

67. The United Nations was an intergovernmental organization open to sovereign States. As a region of China, Taiwan was not eligible to participate, in whatever name, in the United Nations. No sovereign State in the world would allow one of its regions to participate in the United Nations. At successive sessions of the General Assembly since 1993, the General Committee had always flatly refused to include the so-called issue of “Taiwan’s participation in the United Nations” in the agenda of the General Assembly.

68. Nobody cared more about the prospects and interests of the 23 million Taiwan compatriots than the Chinese Government and people. Consistent with the principle of peaceful reunification and “one country, two systems”, the Chinese Government had made every effort and had worked with utmost sincerity to improve the well-being of compatriots on both sides of the Taiwan Straits with a view to peaceful unification. It had taken a series of major measures to improve cross-Straits relations and had worked vigorously to safeguard the legitimate rights and interests of Taiwan compatriots abroad, including through exchanges. Recent efforts in that regard had been welcomed by Taiwan compatriots and widely approved by the international community.

69. His Government had sincerely hoped that the two sides of the Taiwan Straits could respect each other, cooperate for their mutual benefit, enhance economic and trade exchanges and expand cooperation in all fields. However, the Chen Shui-bien authorities had deliberately provoked cross-Straits confrontation and had intensified efforts to push for “de jure Taiwan independence” through so-called “constitutional reengineering”. The “Taiwan independence” forces and their separatist activities remained the greatest obstacle to cross-Straits relations and constituted the greatest threat to peace and stability across the Taiwan Straits and in the Asia-Pacific region. It was in the fundamental and long-term interests of compatriots on both sides of the Taiwan Straits to reject the “Taiwan independence” forces and their separatist activities and to maintain peace and stability across the Taiwan Straits.

70. Respect for State sovereignty and territorial integrity and non-interference in the internal affairs of countries were fundamental principles of the Charter of the United Nations. The question of Taiwan was a purely internal matter for China and should be settled jointly by the Chinese people on both sides of the Taiwan Straits. No foreign force had the right to interfere. His delegation strongly urged the countries that supported inclusion of the item to do nothing further to encourage secessionist activities. It appreciated the just position adopted by the vast majority of Member States.

71. Mr. Abdelaziz (Egypt) said that his delegation firmly opposed the inclusion of item 165 in the agenda of the General Assembly at its sixty-second session. General Assembly resolution 2758 (XXVI) had resolved the issue of China’s representation in the United Nations once and for all, politically, legally and in terms of procedure. Accordingly, the People’s Republic of China was the sole legitimate representative of China in the United Nations.

72. As an integral part of China, Taiwan was not entitled to membership of the United Nations. Since the Organization was entrusted with the responsibility of protecting the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Member States, the question of Taiwan remained a purely internal affair of China to be resolved by the Chinese people themselves. Successive sessions of the General Assembly since 1993 had consistently refused to include the issue of “Taiwan’s participation in the United Nations” in the agenda of the General Assembly.

73. The recommendations of the General Committee should reflect the will of the vast majority of its members and the General Assembly was a democratic body which had every right to decide on its own rules of procedure. His delegation thus supported not only a General Committee recommendation not to include item 165 in the agenda of the General Assembly but also adoption of the General Committee’s report without opening the matter for any further discussion in the General Assembly.

74. The Committee decided not to recommend to the General Assembly the inclusion in the agenda of item 165.

75. Ms. Ferrari (Saint Vincent and the Grenadines) and Mr. Beck (Solomon Islands) withdrew.

76. Mr. Jallow (Gambia) said that he wished to make a general statement. Without flouting already agreed procedures, the sponsors of the request for inclusion had every right to raise the matter in the plenary Assembly discussion of the General Committee’s report. The Secretary-General had taken a unilateral decision on Taiwan’s application for membership in the Organization, in flagrant violation of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and the Charter of the United Nations. In today’s interdependent world, that was tantamount to political discrimination and “political apartheid”.

77. He noted that 77 per cent of the respondents to a poll taken in Taiwan had been in favour of applying for membership.

78. Mr. Wang Guangya (China), speaking on a point of order, said that the General Committee had already concluded its consideration of the matter and further discussion of it should not be permitted.

79. The Chairman asked the representative of the Gambia to respect the decision taken by the General Committee, which had concluded its deliberations and its voting on the issue.

80. Mr. Jallow (Gambia) said that he had merely been making a general statement with regard to the procedures adopted by the Committee on inclusion of the supplementary item. Over the years, all had witnessed how a very powerful member of the Security Council had used its influence to dominate the discussion about the country called Taiwan.

81. The Chairman said that the matter had been discussed in informal consultations and that, at the current meeting, the agreed number of statements had been delivered — two to represent each side — and a vote had been taken. The delegation of the Gambia would be entitled to raise the issue again in the plenary Assembly.

82. Mr. Jallow (Gambia) insisted that his delegation had every right to make a general statement; however, he would accede to the Chairman's request. He wished to point out that the issue of including an item on Taiwan would continue to arise, as it had for the past 14 years. The failure to properly address the matter in the General Committee would have to be compensated for in the plenary Assembly.

Item 166: Observer status for the Eurasian Development Bank in the General Assembly

83. The Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the inclusion in the agenda under heading I of item 166.

Item 167: Cooperation between the United Nations and the Eurasian Economic Community

84. The Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the inclusion in the agenda under heading I of item 167.

Heading I

85. The Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the inclusion in the agenda of the items listed under heading I, taking into account the decisions taken regarding item 116 (f) and items 160 to 167.

IV. Allocation of items

Paragraphs 53 to 55

86. The Chairman drew attention to the information contained in paragraphs 53 to 55 of the memorandum by the Secretary-General (A/BUR/62/1), which stated that the allocation of items was based on the pattern adopted by the General Assembly for those items in previous years.

87. The Committee decided to take note of the information contained in paragraphs 53 to 55.

Paragraph 56

88. The Chairman said that, in paragraph 56 of his memorandum, the Secretary-General had listed items of the draft agenda which had not been considered previously by the General Assembly. If the members of the Committee agreed, he would first request the Committee to decide on the recommendation it should make regarding the allocation of those items, recommended for inclusion in the agenda for the sixty-second session.

89. It was so decided.

Paragraph 58

90. The Chairman recalled that, in accordance with paragraph 2 of resolution 54/195, any request by an organization for the granting of observer status in the General Assembly would be considered in plenary meeting after the consideration of the issue by the Sixth Committee. The Committee would therefore proceed accordingly with the consideration of the allocation of items 160, 161, 163 and 166 concerning observer status.

91. Mr. Wang Guangya (China) asked why the Chairman had not mentioned item 165.

92. The Chairman said that it had already been dealt with separately.

93. The Chairman said that, owing to the nature of the item, the Secretary-General had requested that it should be allocated to the Fifth Committee.

Item 45. Report of the Economic and Social Council

103. The Committee took note of paragraph 60 and decided to recommend that the General Assembly, when considering item 45 in its entirety in plenary meeting, should take note of the clarification that, in implementing resolution 58/316, the relevant parts of chapter I of the report of the Economic and Social Council would be considered by the Main Committees concerned, under agenda items already allocated to them, for final action by the Assembly.

the Fifth Committee and to the Sixth Committee in the light of resolution 61/261.

Item 67. Report of the Human Rights Council

115. The Chairman said that, during the sixty-first session, the report of the Human Rights Council had been considered directly in plenary meeting and also allocated to the Third Committee on the understanding that the Third Committee would consider and act on all recommendations of the Human Rights Council to the Assembly, including those that dealt with the development of international law in the field of human rights, and that the Assembly in plenary meeting would consider the annual report of the Human Rights Council on its activities for the year.

116. Ms. Willson (United States of America) said that the Council was now beginning its regular work and her delegation felt strongly that the report of any subsidiary body in the field of human rights should first be considered in the Third Committee by those with the requisite human rights expertise and then be transmitted to the plenary meeting.

117. Noting that the report of the Human Rights Council was included in the documentation before the Third Committee (A/C.3/62/L.1/Add.1), she said that there was solid precedent for that practice: for roughly 60 years, the Third Committee had been considering the report of the Economic and Social Council, including the report of the former Commission on Human Rights. For the three quarters of the Member States which were not members of the Human Rights Council, the deliberations of the Third Committee provided the only opportunity to review the work of the Council. Although the Commission had been replaced by the Council, the overall situation had not changed, and the Third Committee remained the most appropriate forum for consideration of the Council's very technical and detailed 84-page report.

118. Her delegation hoped that the other members of the General Committee would consider allocating the report to the Third Committee instead of directly to the plenary Assembly.

119. Mr. Abdelaziz (Egypt), supported by Mr. Soboron (Mauritius), Mr. Ileka (Democratic Republic of the Congo) and Mr. Khalid Ali (Sudan) supported the African position that the report of the Human Rights Council should be reviewed in its entirety by the Third Committee, which was the expert body of the General Assembly on all human rights issues. He hoped that the procedure regarding the report would be finalized at the current session.

120. It was standard practice for the reports of all subsidiary bodies to be submitted to the relevant Main Committee, which then submitted its recommendations directly to the plenary Assembly after deliberation. Established by General Assembly resolution 60/251, the Human Rights Council was clearly a subsidiary body of the General Assembly. The forum for lengthy deliberations on the report of that technical subsidiary body should thus be the Third Committee, not the plenary Assembly.

121. Even the Economic and Social Council, a principal organ, had always included the report of the former Commission on Human Rights in the report it submitted to the Third Committee.

122. In order for the Third Committee to consider the recommendations contained in the report, it must look at the basis on which those recommendations were made and thus at the whole report. In view of the limited membership of the Human Rights Council, consideration of its report in the Third Committee would provide an opportunity for all Member States to participate in that exercise.

123. Ms. Lintonen (Finland), supported by Mr. Hannesson (Iceland), Mr. Mavroyiannis (Cyprus) and Ms. Pierce (United Kingdom), proposed deferring a decision on allocation of the item in order to allow for further discussion and to take into account the various views on the matter.

124. Mr. Zheglov (Russian Federation) supported the statements made by the representatives of the United States and Egypt in favour of consideration of the report in the Third Committee. It would not be wise to depart from the practice followed by the Economic and Social Council by setting a precedent for submitting the Human Rights Council's report directly to the plenary Assembly. Nor should the unique potential for the Third Committee and its experts to consider the report be ignored at a vital period for the Council, when its organization and procedures had been established and the launching of the universal periodic review mechanism was imminent.

125. Mr. Outlule (Botswana) said that his delegation supported the allocation of item 67 to the Third Committee, on the basis of the convincing arguments made.

126. Mr. Alvarez (Uruguay) said that his delegation would have favoured allocating the item directly to the plenary Assembly; however, given the various views that had been put forward, perhaps a decision should be postponed to allow time for consultations, in which his delegation would be an active participant.

127. Mr. Renié (France) said that more in-depth consideration and consultations would be necessary. His delegation agreed that a decision should be deferred.

128. Mr. Jallow (Gambia) supported the African position set out by the representative of Egypt but hoped that the matter would be dealt with expeditiously.

129. Mr. Badji (Senegal), too, supported the African position outlined by the representative of Egypt, which was logical and would give effect to many of the proposals made at the sixty-first session.

130. The Chairman said that, having heard the statements just made and taking into account that further consultation was required, he would suggest that the General Committee should defer its consideration of the allocation of item 67.
