List of States parties to the Protocols Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 as at 11 July 2008		21

I. Introduction

1. On 4 December 2006, the General Assembly adopted resolution 61/30, entitled “Status of the Protocols Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and relating to the protection of victims of armed conflicts”. In paragraph 11 of the resolution, the Assembly requested the Secretary-General to submit to it at its sixty-third session a report on the status of the Additional Protocols of 1977 and on measures taken to strengthen the existing body of international humanitarian law, inter alia, with respect to its dissemination and full implementation at the national level, based on information received from Member States and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC).

2. Pursuant to that request, the Secretary-General, by notes verbales dated 22 January 2007 and 29 February 2008 and letters dated 2 February 2007 and 14 February 2008 invited, respectively, Member States and ICRC to transmit to him by 1 June 2008 the information requested in paragraph 11 of General Assembly resolution 61/30 for inclusion in the present report.

3. Replies have been received from Austria, Belarus, Belgium, Bulgaria, China, Colombia, Ecuador, Egypt, Estonia, Finland, Hungary, Mexico, Norway, Poland, Qatar, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and Turkmenistan, as well as from ICRC. Extracts of the replies are contained in sections II and III of the present report. The full texts of the replies are available for review on the website of the Sixth Committee of the General Assembly (<http://www.un.org/ga/sixth>, sixty-third session, status of the Protocols Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and relating to the protection of victims of armed conflicts, report of the Secretary-General, full texts of replies).

4. The list of all States that are parties to the Protocols¹ Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 1949,² as at 20 June 2008, is contained in the annex to the present report.

II. Information received from Member States

Austria

[2 June 2008]

1. At the 30th International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent, held in Geneva in November 2007, the Government of Austria made the following pledges, partly in cooperation with the Austrian Red Cross:

(a) Organization of seminars on international humanitarian law for university students, journalists and other opinion leaders; a seminar will take place in September 2008;

(b) Adoption of a national law providing for a ban on cluster munitions and the destruction of existing Austrian stockpiles within three years (entered into force in January 2008);

² Ibid., vol. 75, Nos. 970-973.

(c) Engagement regarding the signing and ratification by States of the Convention on the Prohibition of the Use, Stockpiling, Production and Transfer of Anti-Personnel Mines and on Their Destruction (Ottawa Convention) and to uphold Austria's support for projects against anti-personnel mines as a political priority;

(d) Measures with a view to enhancing the education of students with a migrant background;

(e) Integration of the teaching aid "Exploring humanitarian law" into education in schools;

(f) Organization of a follow-up conference to the European Education Leadership Conference on Exploring Humanitarian Law in Ljubljana in June 2008, in cooperation with Slovenia.

2. The Austrian Red Cross made the following pledges:

(a) Promotion of the voluntary work of young Muslim immigrants in the Austrian Red Cross in order to foster their integration into Austrian society;

(b) Attaining adequate accommodation facilities for refugees.

3. In February 2008, the new Federal Law on the Recognition of the Austrian Red Cross and the Protection of the Emblem of the Red Cross entered into force.

Belarus

[30 May 2008]

1. In 2007, regulations on the issuance and use of international distinctive signs of civil defence and identity cards for civil defence personnel were approved.

2. The Ministry of Defence has drawn up draft instructions on the application of international humanitarian law by the armed forces.

3. Belarus is formalizing its participation in various international instruments in the area of international humanitarian law.

4. Since 1997, ICRC has been providing the texts of international humanitarian law treaties to the armed forces of Belarus.

5. The following activities have been carried out between the Ministry of Defence and ICRC with a view to the study and dissemination of international humanitarian law in the armed forces: meetings and seminars; regional competitions; training in the International Institute of Humanitarian Law, San Remo, Italy, and in the training centre in the Russian Federation; participation in international conferences and round tables of ICRC.

6. Since 1998, an international educational project on international humanitarian law has been conducted.

7. A teachers' manual on international humanitarian law was published in 2006, and the syllabus of the course on international humanitarian law for schools and specialized secondary institutions was approved in 2008.

8. In 2007, an international conference on the theme “International humanitarian law: new challenges, new tests”, was held in Minsk. Problems related to the protection of victims of armed conflicts, of distinctive emblems and of cultural values and the campaign against terrorism were considered.

9. In 2007, the Ministry of Justice held a seminar (round table) with ICRC on customary norms of international humanitarian law.

Belgium

[Original: French]

[4 June 2008]

1. On 20 February 1987, shortly after the entry into force of the Additional Protocols, the Belgian Government established an Interdepartmental Commission for Humanitarian Law entrusted with identifying and reviewing national measures for the implementation of international humanitarian law, proposing such measures to the competent authorities, and monitoring and coordinating the measures taken.

2. The Commission submits an annual report on its activities to the Ministers represented on the Commission.

3. The Belgian Commission, one of the first implementation commissions, is frequently cited by the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) as an example to be emulated and has served as a model for the establishment of similar bodies in other countries.

4. Shortly after the entry into force of the 1977 Additional Protocols in Belgium, the Defence Department established a panel of advisers on the law of armed conflict (article 82 of Additional Protocol I), consisting of active and reserve officers. In that connection, reference is made to General Order No. J/797 B of 8 February 1996, later replaced by the “Specific procedure” directive of 21 February 2008.

5. The role of the panel is to advise military commanders on the implementation, doctrine and teaching of the law on armed conflict and on the rules of engagement. Training for the advisers is organized by the Chair of Law of the Royal Military Academy.

6. An information brochure has been prepared by the working group on “Protection of cultural property”, to be published and disseminated in 2008. It proposes to revise the signage of protected cultural property in order to avoid confusion with the protective signs of the Hague Convention of 1954.

7. A “Commission for the legal assessment of new weapons and new means and methods of warfare” was established in the Department of Defence. Pursuant to article 36 of Additional Protocol I, the commission’s mission is to examine the legality of any new weapon, means or method of warfare under study, development, acquisition or adoption by the Armed Forces.

8. Recent progress in the area of arms and ammunition consists in the adoption of acts, dated 18 May 2006, which, under conditions specified therein, prohibit the use of submunitions.

9. The military section of the National Inquiry Office has been established by the Ministry of Defence.

10. In 2004, the Ministry of the Interior directed local authorities to draw up an inventory of buildings suitable for collective housing for emergency use in the event of widespread conflict or crisis and which could be made available to the authorities and relief agencies immediately or within a short period of time.

11. Belgian support for ICRC programmes have targeted the protection of victims of conflicts in Central Africa, Colombia, Armenia and Azerbaijan, the dissemination of humanitarian law, and mine-action activities.

12. The secondary schools curriculum contains no courses as such in international humanitarian law.

13. The initiatives taken vary among communities and educational networks.

14. International humanitarian law is offered as a major in some law schools. Here again, because of the role of the community in education, there may be some differences between communities and, as a result, between universities and institutions of higher learning.

15. International humanitarian law is taught as part of general courses in public international law to students but also in other disciplines (such as political science and journalism).

16. The Commission's working group on the dissemination of international humanitarian law in education was initially limited to the educational field, but its mandate was recently expanded to cover dissemination in the broad sense, particularly among the general public.

17. The following activities to disseminate international humanitarian law may be mentioned:

- Training of the francophone staff of the Belgian Red Cross:

Training in international humanitarian law is provided two or three times a year to volunteers and permanent and expatriate members of that national society.

- Training for the general public:

Since 2006, a basic course in international humanitarian law has been organized once a year for members of the public interested in this subject or whose professional activities require knowledge of international humanitarian law.

Bulgaria

[Original: English]
[28 May 2008]

1. A special study programme in international humanitarian law was incorporated into the curriculum at the Academy of Defence, and related topics were included in military manuals. Briefings on international humanitarian law were carried out for instructors for peacekeeping missions. Specialized study courses were conducted and a handbook on international humanitarian law was disseminated.

2. Cooperation between the Bulgarian Red Cross and the Ministry of Education and Science comprises preparation of study programmes on international humanitarian law.

3. A series of courses and workshops on international humanitarian law were held for students. The Ministry of Education and Science is examining the possibility of the integration within the school curriculum of an educational package on the theme "Exploring humanitarian law". The curriculum of international law at some universities already contains a number of items related to international humanitarian law.

Starting in 2008, a new joint curriculum provides for four hours of basic soldier training. Military exercises include specific international humanitarian law issues. Training in international humanitarian law is part of the training at the War College and the Staff Colleges. The Ministry of Defence cooperates closely with the Norwegian Red Cross. The Government of Norway is supporting the legal tools programme of the International Criminal Court. The Government and the Norwegian Red Cross promote the use in schools of the Norwegian version of the Exploring Humanitarian Law educational programme, which was originally developed by ICRC.
4. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs re-established the National Committee on International Humanitarian Law in 2003. Members of the Committee are representatives of the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Defence, and Justice, the Armed Forces, the Norwegian Red Cross and the University of Oslo.

Poland

[Original: English]
[29 May 2008]

1. Poland ratified and signed various IHL instruments; the ratification procedure of Additional Protocol III will be initiated shortly.
2. The Geneva Conventions of 1949 and their Additional Protocols constitute a part of the Polish domestic legal order, and they have precedence over domestic laws.
3. The reforms of the penal law system have introduced into the Penal Code a new chapter on crimes against peace and humanity and war crimes.
4. The following bodies have been established with a view to implementing and disseminating international humanitarian law: inter-ministerial Commission on International Humanitarian Law at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Commission for the Dissemination of International Humanitarian Law, affiliated with the Polish Red Cross; and inter-ministerial Programming Council on the protection of cultural goods in the event of special threats, affiliated to the Chief Commander of the State Fire Service.
5. Since 1997, the Ministry of National Defence has disseminated knowledge relating to international humanitarian law within the Polish Armed Forces (including the Additional Protocols) by organizing specific courses for commanders, courses on the protection of cultural goods in the event of armed conflict, and specialist training for units designated to serve with the NATO Response Force.

6. In 2008, the system of vocational training in international humanitarian law for battalion commanders was established at the Academy of National Defence. Company and platoon leaders are to receive similar training. In 2009, the system will include personnel of the Air Force and Navy.

7. Handbooks on international humanitarian law are being made available to the members of the Polish military contingents to be deployed on missions abroad.

8. In 2006, the Ministry of National Defence published a textbook for teaching international humanitarian law in the Armed Forces. Also in 2006, the Minister of National Defence established a legal service within the Ministry. The legal advisers provide commanders with professional legal support in the context of article 82 of Additional Protocol I.

9. In 2005, the Minister of National Defence signed a decision concerning the observance of the principles of protection of cultural property.

10. At present the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Administration is in the course of preparing a draft law on the protection of the civilian population and the civil defence system. It is estimated that Parliament will put this draft law on its agenda at the end of 2008.

[Original: Arabic]
[12 May 2008]

1. Qatar is a party to various international humanitarian law instruments and is currently considering accession to other international humanitarian law instruments.

2. Law No. 11 (the Penal Code) was promulgated in 2004; its articles 105 and 343 criminalize certain acts committed during war.

3. Law No. 9 on the protection of intellectual property, which was promulgated in 2002, specifically concerns emblems that are identical or similar to those of the Red Crescent or Red Cross.

4. The National Disarmament Committee was established in 2004.

5. The Ministry of Justice has submitted to the Cabinet a draft law on the establishment of a national committee for international humanitarian law.

6. Qatari military law has been updated to incorporate provisions that are in harmony with international humanitarian law. The draft Military Code (currently under consideration) includes provisions in respect of acts that fall under the definition of war crimes.

7. Qatari diplomatic and military personnel have participated in international and regional conferences on international humanitarian law, including the seventh meeting of Arab governmental experts on international humanitarian law (2008). Members of the armed forces have participated in the following events: workshop on the law of armed conflict organized by the International Institute of Humanitarian Law (2008); international humanitarian law seminar for military justice officers organized by the Turkish Centre for Peace (2008); course organized by ICRC in Beirut (2007); training course on international humanitarian law (the Geneva Conventions) organized by the League of Arab States (2008); advanced specialized courses that were given in several foreign and Arab States (Italy, Switzerland, Turkey, Egypt and Lebanon).

8. International humanitarian law is taught as part of the mandatory training courses given at the Centre for Legal and Judicial Studies. The National Human Rights Committee regularly organizes training courses and seminars with a view to disseminating international humanitarian law.

9. International humanitarian law is being disseminated through the courses administered by the military academy and the training institutes.

10. The General Assembly of the Organization of Arab Red Crescent and Red Cross Societies and a training seminar on international humanitarian law and the media were held in Doha in 2007.

11. The Qatar Red Crescent Society, in cooperation with the Department of Human Rights of the Ministry of the Interior, held a training workshop on international standards for the rights of prisoners and detainees.

12. A course on international humanitarian law and the mandates and duties of the Blue Helmets in the maintenance of international peace and security was offered to the Armed Forces.

Sweden

[5 June 2008]

1. The Government of Sweden has established a committee which, inter alia, has the task of examining that Sweden's international commitments with regard to international humanitarian law are properly implemented. The committee is also analysing the ICRC study on customary international humanitarian law. The committee will present its conclusions in the fall of 2010.

2. The Ministry for Foreign Affairs, together with the National Defence College and the Folke Bernadotte Academy, organized an international expert meeting on international humanitarian law and gender in Stockholm in 2007.

3. Sweden has provided continuous support to the international tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda, the Special Court for Sierra Leone and the International Criminal Court through financial assistance and by entering into bilateral agreements regarding the enforcement of sentences and the relocation of witnesses.

4. Sweden has set up three national bodies to promote, implement and develop international humanitarian law: the Swedish Total Defence Council for International Humanitarian Law (in 1991); the Swedish Delegation for International Humanitarian Law Monitoring of Arms Projects; and the Delegation on Public International Law.

Switzerland

[Original: English]

[30 May 2008]

1. Switzerland is a party to the three Protocols Additional to the Geneva Conventions.
2. A series of meetings of government experts, representatives of military security companies and other specialists took place between 2006 and 2008. At the outcome of the next conference, which will be held in September 2008, it is planned to produce a joint document for all participants.
3. Switzerland actively participates in and makes a financial contribution to the work of a group of international experts assigned with the production of a manual on the conduct of armed warfare and the use of missiles. The group of experts hopes to conclude this process in 2009.
4. Switzerland has organized three informal meetings of high-level experts (2003 to 2006) to analyse current challenges in the area of international humanitarian law, and organized a meeting of experts on access to humanitarian aid in situations of armed conflict.
5. Since 2004, Switzerland has been engaged in a process which led to the drafting of a working document which envisages anti-mine measures in zones that are no longer under State control.
6. Switzerland is taking the necessary measures to integrate the Rome Statute in its national legislation. In 2008, the Federal Council adopted the message to Parliament accompanying the amendments to the criminal code and the military penal code. This consisted of including crimes against humanity in Swiss law and defining war crimes more precisely.
7. Switzerland contributes actively to the dissemination of the ICRC study on customary humanitarian law and, inter alia, organized a second meeting of experts designed for members of the armed forces (Geneva, 2007).
8. Switzerland has also set up a competition on international humanitarian law for officers of intermediate rank (battalion commanders) of the countries of the Council of the Euro-Atlantic Partnership/Partnership for Peace.
9. In 2004, Switzerland established a working group within the Department of Defence, Civil Protection and Sport charged with reflecting on the implementation of a review process, as envisaged in article 36 of Additional Protocol I. This would ensure that new weapons conformed to the requirements of international humanitarian law.
10. A working group met in 2007, and the creation of the group of friends of the International Humanitarian Fact-Finding Commission was proposed to coordinate political support for the Commission and raise awareness of its work.

Turkey

[Original: English]

[23 February 2007]

1. On 7 December 2006, Turkey signed the Additional Protocol to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 and relating to the adoption of an additional distinctive emblem (Protocol III), adopted at the diplomatic conference held in Geneva from 5 to 8 December 2005.

Turkmenistan

[Original: Russian]

[13 March 2007]

1. The Act on the Use and Protection of the Red Crescent and Red Cross Emblems was adopted in 2001. ICRC and the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies, in accordance with universally recognized international norms, shall use the red cross and red crescent emblems in the territory of Turkmenistan as protective and/or distinguishing signs.

2. The national Red Crescent Society of Turkmenistan has been exempted from all taxes and customs duties.

3. The Public Health Care Act adopted in 2005 provides that the national Red Crescent Society of Turkmenistan shall participate in public health-care activities.

4. Turkmenistan is a party to various international humanitarian law instruments.

III. Information received from international organizations

International Committee of the Red Cross

[Original: English]

[3 June 2008]

1. In 2006, the Four Geneva Conventions of 1949 achieved universal acceptance. Two international humanitarian law instruments entered into force in the past two years, namely, Protocol V (to the 1980 Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons) on Explosive Remnants of War and Protocol III additional to the 1949 Geneva Conventions and relating to the adoption of an additional distinctive emblem.

2. The period under review was marked by the adoption of the International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearance, which constitutes the first international instrument to explicitly ban practices leading to enforced disappearance.

3. The period under review was also marked by the formal adoption on 30 May 2008 in Dublin of the Convention on Cluster Munitions, which establishes a new norm of international humanitarian law prohibiting the use, production, stockpiling and transfer of cluster munitions. It will be opened for signature in Oslo in December 2008.

4. The 30th International Conference of the Red Cross and Red Crescent, held in Geneva in November 2007, brought together all States parties to the Geneva Conventions and all components of the Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement. The Conference adopted by consensus a resolution on the reaffirmation and implementation of international humanitarian law, which reasserts the relevance of such law, stresses the fundamental guarantees provided for all persons in the power of a party to an armed conflict and reaffirms the basic principles of international humanitarian law.
5. The ICRC report to the 2007 Conference provides an overview of new and emerging legal issues, such as international humanitarian law and terrorism, procedural principles and safeguards that should govern internment or administrative detention, and the conduct of hostilities, among others.
6. ICRC pursued a research project, intended to clarify the concept of “direct participation in hostilities”, which will be brought to a conclusion by late 2008 with the publication of an interpretative guidance.
7. ICRC actively participated in international negotiations within the framework of both the 1980 Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons and the Oslo process, the latter being marked by the adoption of the Convention on Cluster Munitions on 30 May 2008.
8. In 2007, ICRC continued disseminating its institutional position on the procedural principles and safeguards applicable to internment of administrative detention in armed conflict and other situations of violence. The ICRC regional delegation for the United States of America and Canada, together with Case Western Reserve University (Cleveland, Ohio, United States of America), organized a seminar aimed at soliciting the views of experts on the relevant legal and practical issues.
9. ICRC is taking part in an initiative by the Government of Switzerland to emphasize and discuss the existing international framework of law concerning the activities of private military and security companies and the responsibilities of States in that respect. A series of intergovernmental meetings has been held since 2006.
10. In 2007, ICRC initiated a project on the law of occupation to study questions arising in connection with recent situations involving occupation and other forms of administrating foreign territory, which includes both consultations with key actors and meetings of experts.
11. In 2007 and 2008, the Arabic, Chinese, French and Spanish translations of volume I of the study on customary international humanitarian law were launched. ICRC teamed up with the British Red Cross Society in 2007 on a project to update the practice contained in volume II of the study.
12. In 2007, ICRC finalized a document on increasing respect for international humanitarian law in non-international armed conflicts that was presented at the 30th International Conference.
13. In 2006, ICRC launched a consultation of experts intended to further analyse the role of sanctions in ensuring greater respect for international humanitarian law. The conclusions drawn from this process, including guidelines and principles, will be published by the end of 2008.

14. ICRC continued to promote knowledge of and compliance with international humanitarian law in training programmes for those who carry weapons as well as for civilian schools and universities. Its educational module, “Exploring Humanitarian Law”, is being developed within the secondary school curriculum.

15. ICRC legal experts attended numerous conferences, seminars and courses and provided various interested bodies with expertise on topics related to international humanitarian law.

16. ICRC is working to provide national authorities with technical assistance for the adoption of the legislative, regulatory and administrative measures needed to ensure observance of international humanitarian law at the national level and its full implementation in domestic law.

17. ICRC also continued to make better known the mandate of the International Fact-Finding Commission and to foster cooperation between States parties to Additional Protocol I and that Commission.

18. ICRC has pursued its support for the setting up of national inter-ministerial committees on international humanitarian law and the fulfilment of their mandate to advise and assist national authorities concerned in promoting international humanitarian law in domestic law and practice. In March 2007, ICRC hosted in Geneva the second universal meeting of National Committees on International Humanitarian Law. As of 30 June 2007, national committees entrusted with the national implementation of international humanitarian law were working in 84 countries.

19. ICRC organized or contributed to a wide range of international and regional conferences, seminars and workshops, all with a view to familiarizing the authorities of various States with international humanitarian law and the measures needed to incorporate this international body of law into domestic law and practice.

20. ICRC hosted two regional meetings in Kuwait and Tunisia on landmines and explosive remnants of war.

21. ICRC also actively participated in the conferences and expert group meetings held in the framework of the 1980 Convention on Certain Conventional Weapons and contributed to the meetings of States Parties to various international humanitarian law treaties and related instruments.

22. ICRC continued its cooperation with various international and regional organizations, including non-governmental organizations, international, regional and mixed judicial institutions.

23. New guidelines were distributed for the adoption of national legislation to prevent people from becoming unaccounted for as a result of armed conflict and to protect missing persons and their families. The ICRC model law on the emblems and its model Geneva Conventions Act for common law States were updated. A commentary on Protocol III, a Guide to the Legal Review of New Weapons, Means and Methods of Warfare, and a “practical guide” for applying international humanitarian law criteria in arms transfer decisions were published. Work is currently under way to prepare a new handbook on national implementation of international humanitarian law for national authorities. The ICRC database on national legislation and case law was updated.
