1. China Care and Compassion Society (Special; 2004)

PART I. Introduction

i. Aims and purposes: China Care and Compassion Society (CCCS) shall carry forward the spirit of science and humanity; care for people's physical and mental health; concern for social vulnerable groups; dedicate to creating harmonious communities and families through training, educating, and consulting; promote sustainable and coordinated social development. CCCS upholds the tenets and principles of The Charter of the United Nations and The Universal Declaration of Human Rights, launches activities for education, popularization of human right concept and knowledge to facilitate healthy and stability of the society in China.

Main course of action: (1) Organize public activities about science, culture, sports, hygiene and health care; address the issues of development in families and communities. (2) Establish the website "Care and Concern"; provide consultation, services and relevant legal aid for physical and mental health; help socially vulnerable groups to solve their problems. (3) Carry out research and investigation on issues such as physical and mental health of people, development of harmonious society, make comments and suggestions to the government. (4) Communicate with foreign organizations and individuals, carry out international dialogue and cooperation, and participate in the relevant United Nation activities and international conferences.

PART II - Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

i) Participation in the work of the ECOSOC and its subsidiary bodies and /or major conferences and other United Nations meetings.

Representatives of CCCS participated in the 59th Annual Department of Public Information/ Non-governmental Organization (DPI/NGO) Conference with the topic "Unfinished Business: Effective Partnerships for Human Security and Sustainable Development", held at the United Nations, New York, 6-8 September 2006. They also participated in meetings on "Promoting Respect for Cultural Diversity in Conflict Resolution" and "Science and Technology for Education", and "Forgiveness: Partnering with the Enemy" and "Livelihood Protection through Animal Welfare; Education, Youth and Technology for Sustainable Development" etc.

Submitted a written statement to the 59th DPI/NGO Conference on the topic: "Realize the Millennium Development Goals: Family Harmony and Youth Development".

Participated in the 1st Conference of the UN-NGO-Informal Regional Network (IRENE)/Asia-Pacific held in Beijing, China on 17 March 2006. The representative gave a speech at the meeting.

Participated in the 2nd Conferences of the UN-NGO-Informal Regional Network (IRENE)/Asia-Pacific held in Beijing, China on 22 June 2007 and provided a paper and information on “Migrant Families and Children”.

ii) Initiatives undertaken by the organization in support of internationally agreed development, in particular, the Millennium Development Goals.

1. Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals.

During 2004-2007, CCCS reviewed ECOSOC/UN reports on China’s implementation of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). CCCS considered that the efforts and achievements made by the Chinese government, society and people for implementing MDGs had been appraised in comprehensive, active and objective ways in the reports. At the same time, CCCS paid more attention to the topics in the reports, such as “China has made great achievements in its reform, but also encountered new poverty”, “The widening gap between the rich and the poor in China” and “Narrowing the gap is an imperative task in China”.

During 2004-2007, the CCCS Standing Committee adopted a resolution on its implementation of Millennium Development Goals (MDGs).

2. Activities in support of the Millennium Development Goals

Goal 1 – Eradicate extreme poverty and hunger: Attended the 2nd Conference of the UN-NGO-IRENE/Asia-Pacific held in Beijing, China on 22 June 2007, with the subject “Eradicate Poverty and Hunger –Responsibility and Role of the Civil Society”. CCCS made a speech entitled “Concern for the Life Situation and Psychological Health of Rural Left-behind Children”.

Goal 2 – Achieve universal primary education: CCCS jointly organized an international conference on “Cross-cultural Dialogue on Youth Education” with NGOs (World Family Policy Center of Brigham Young University; Qatar Supreme Council of Family Affairs; TATA Institute of Social Science, India; Chinese Society of Philosophy of Nature, Science and Technology etc.) from 21-25 May 2005 in Beijing, China. The following topics were discussed: (1) Comparison study on approaches for ideological and moral education for oriental and western teenagers; (2) Importance of family education to adolescent growth; (3) Cultivation of teenagers’ scientific value view and cognitive ability, etc.

Representatives of CCCS made a speech entitled “Realizing the New Goal for Family and Adolescent development” at the “China’s NGO Forum – Realize Millennium Development Goals” in Beijing in July 2005.

Goal 5 – Improve maternal health: During 2004-2007, CCCS with its local organizations jointly held lectures on physical and mental health and organized community activities to take care of old-age groups; established the “Care and Concern” website and published brochures to pay attention to poverty reduction, medical aid, mental health, community & family care.

CCCS Members donated (through Red Cross Society of China) money to earthquake-induced tsunami-hit countries in the Indian Ocean region on 4 January of 2005, and letters of condolence or telegrams to the Red Cross Societies Red Crescent Societies of India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Maldives, Sri Lanka and Thailand.

3. Activities in Support of Global Principle

During the International Day for Families, CCCS launched an international conference on “Cross-Cultural Dialogue: Family Harmony and Youth Growth” in Beijing, Shandong, China with NGOs (TATA Institute of Social Sciences, India; School of Family Life, Brigham Young University, United States of America; Chinese Family Magazine; the Network of China Family and Marriage; China Association of Science Instructors for Youth and Children; etc.) from 15–18 May 2007. The topics included: (1) Current family issues under multi-cultural conditions; (2) Family culture and children education; (3) Migrant family and family education; (4) Excellent practice of family participating in social development, etc. The Director of the Outreach Division of DPI/United Nations was present at the forum. The participants visited families in the Beijing community, and learned about Chinese traditional family education and culture with discussion of the modern family issues in Qufu, Shandong.

2. Interreligious and International Federation for World Peace* (Special; 2004)

Part 1: Introduction

Interreligious and International Federation for World Peace (IIFWP) is a global alliance of thousands of individuals and organizations in 120 nations with the vision of humanity as one family under God, living in accordance with universal principles. IIFWP’s core objectives are to promote interreligious dialogue and cooperation, to support good governance by providing a framework that integrates the contributions of religion, governments, media and non-governmental organizations in the pursuit of peace, to sponsor education initiatives in the critical areas of human rights, Human Immunodeficiency Virus/Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome (HIV/AIDS) and conflict resolution, and to build a culture of peace through education, sports, arts and service. While the Organization’s aims and purposes remained the same, the name IIFWP has been changed to the Universal Peace Federation (UPF). This change was approved by the Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations at its regular session, 21-30 January 2008.

*Currently known as Universal Peace Federation.

3. Woods Hole Research Center (Special; 1996)

PART I—Introduction

The Woods Hole Research Center (WHRC), a nongovernmental scientific and policy research organization, is actively engaged in various global environmental issues, particularly those relating to climate change and forests. Center staff members have participated in many United Nations meetings in the period between 2004 and 2007. The WHRC plans to continue these activities, as well as cooperate with United Nations bodies and specialized agencies as opportunities arise.

The WHRC was founded in 1985 with the purpose of defining and defending the global human habitat, its forests, its soils, its water, and its biological and functional integrity. It conducts research, identifies public policies, and supports educational activities that advance the well-being of humans and of the environment. The institution's mission is to understand the causes and consequences of environmental change as a basis for policy solutions for a better world. The WHRC specializes in ecological research on land use in the historically forested regions, including the Amazon Basin, Eurasia, the Congo Basin, the Albertine Rift, and North America. The Center works locally and regionally, assisting communities with resource management, and internationally to promote policies that stabilize climate and protect the integrity of the global environment. The importance of developing country and nongovernmental organization participation is emphasized in these efforts, as is support for the flow of objective data and analyses into United Nations processes. The insights of science and international law are applied to help resolve the political dilemmas of global environmental problems.

PART II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

i) Participation in the work of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies and/or major conferences and other United Nations meetings.

Representatives of the WHRC's staff attended several meetings of United Nations related bodies during the period 2004-2007, in particular those meetings related to climate change issues.

United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC): (i) UNFCCC COP 10 and Sessions of the Subsidiary Bodies (SBI-21/SBSTA-21) 6-17 December 2004, Buenos Aires, Argentina. Dr. Kilaparti Ramakrishna participated in two side events at the Tenth Conference of the Parties. He co-moderated a panel on the topic "Sensible Directions on HFCs: Global Innovation in Technology and Policy Solutions"; Dr. Ramakrishna also served as a panelist at the Youth and Experts Roundtable discussion ; (ii) UNFCCC COP 11/CMP 1 and Sessions of the Subsidiary Bodies (SBI-23/SBSTA-23) 28 November – 9 December 2005, Montreal, Canada, Members of the Center staff, including Drs. Kilaparti Ramakrishna, Daniel Nepstad, and Paulo Moutinho, participated in two side events at the Eleventh Conference of the Parties. The first was sponsored by the WHRC's sister organization, the Amazon Institute for Environmental Research (IPAM), and focused on tropical deforestation and climate change mitigation. The second side event was presented jointly with several international NGOs and research entities, and focused on land use, land use change, and forestry. In addition to the organization of and participation in side events, members of the WHRC staff were also instrumental in the release of the publication “Tropical Deforestation and Climate Change” at COP 11; (iii) UNFCCC Workshop on Reducing Emissions from Deforestation in Developing Countries 30 August – 1 September 2006, Rome, Italy, the Eleventh Conference of the Parties requested that the UNFCCC Secretariat organize a workshop on reducing emissions from deforestation in developing countries. Dr. Richard Houghton of the Woods Hole Research Center was invited by the Secretariat to participate as a technical expert in this workshop, entitled “Reducing emissions from deforestation in developing countries”; (iv) UNFCCC COP 12/CMP 2 and Sessions of the Subsidiary Bodies (SBI-25/SBSTA-25) 6-17 November 2006, Nairobi, Kenya, the WHRC played an active role in the proceedings of the 12th Conference of the Parties in Nairobi, Kenya. The staff led sessions on compensating avoided deforestation and other “win-win” options that incorporate both climate policy and development strategy. WHRC staff presented one poster and released two documents: “Linking Climate Policy with Development Strategy”, and “Measuring and Monitoring the Reduction of Greenhouse Gas Emissions from Tropical Deforestation”, which was coauthored by scientists from the WHRC, Amazon Institute for Environmental Research (IPAM), and the Federal University of Minas Gerais, Brazil; (v) UNFCCC COP 13/CMP 3 and Sessions of the Subsidiary Bodies (SBI-27/SBSTA-27) 3-15 December 2007, Bali, Indonesia, the WRC participated in the UNFCCC’s 13th Conference of the Parties in several capacities. Drs. John Holdren and Daniel Nepstad and others from the Center led one side event, and staff members participated with cosponsors in seven additional side events. Eight new technical reports (five produced exclusively by WHRC authors) were disseminated and fifteen presentations were given in conjunction with these side events. The Center’s two main foci at Bali were its ongoing work on integrating climate policy with development strategy, and furthering the development of the Reduced Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation (REDD) initiative.

Sustainable Development: Nitrogen Policy Workshop co-hosted by the United Nations Environment Programme and the Woods Hole Research Center, 8-10 March 2006, Paris, France, WHRC in cooperation with the United Nations Environment Programme, hosted a workshop on international nitrogen policy that was coordinated by Dr. Kilaparti Ramakrishna and attended by Drs. Ramakrishna and Eric Davidson. Subsequent to the workshop, Dr. Davidson became a co-chair of the editorial committee for a joint UNEP-WHRC publication entitled “Reactive Nitrogen in the Environment: Too Much or Too Little of a Good Thing”, which was released in 2007. This document synthesizes the scientific understanding of how nitrogen cycling affects ecosystems, human health, and the economy; as well as reviews the effectiveness of the policy instruments that are currently in place in various parts of the world. The WHRC’s ongoing work on Linking Climate Policy to Development Strategy in Brazil, China, and India has been spearheaded by Dr. John Holdren since 2005. In collaboration with governments, non-governmental organizations, and academic institutions in the United States of America and abroad, staff members at the WHRC endeavor to find “win-win” options for clean, sustainable development in these three developing nations. Strategies under investigation currently include compensation for avoided deforestation, clean coal technologies, clean transportation technologies, and development and dissemination of improved residential cookstoves.

ii) Initiatives undertaken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals: Goal 7, Ensure environmental sustainability.

The Center continued to work in almost all areas where relatively large tracts of natural forest remain, including boreal North America, the Amazon Basin, and Central and Eastern Africa. Recent activities have focused on enabling the sustainable use of forested regions by local populations in developing countries. Additionally, the Center explored options to integrate local forest use with regional and national development goals, as well as strategies to incorporate standing forests into a future carbon accounting mechanism.

4. World Association of the Major Metropolises
(Special; 2004)

PART I: Introduction

Metropolis is the World Association of Major Metropolises and also the metropolitan section of the United Cities & Local Government organization (UCLG), which arose from the merger between the International Union of Local Authorities (IULA) and the United Towns Organization (UTO). Its mission is to promote international cooperation and exchanges among members, i.e., local and metropolitan governments. Metropolis is the spokesperson on cities' interests in international forums. The metropolises are shaping the 21st century. While individually different, they share modern-day concerns on issues such as urban planning and development, the economy, health, environmental matters, transport, infrastructure and communications. Created in 1985, the Metropolis Association is represented by more than 106 member cities from across the world and operates as an international forum for exploring issues and concerns common to all big cities. The main goal of the association is to better control the development process of metropolitan areas in order to enhance the wellbeing of their citizens. To do this, Metropolis represents regions and metropolitan areas at the worldwide level and is recognized as a major player by large international organizations such as the United Nations, the World Health Organization (WHO), the World Bank and others.

5. World Council of Independent Christian Churches Special; 1996)

Part I. Introduction

i. Aim, purposes and main course of action of the organization

The World Council of Independent Christian Churches (WCICC) is an organization created to provide support to independent Christian churches, pastor, ministers, schools and individuals in underdeveloped nations and around the world. The WCICC believes that we help fill a need for denominational support amongst independent churches. The WCICC helps to provide that with a wide variety of programs that promote fellowship, inter-communion, mutual ecclesiastical collaboration, training and support for independent congregations and clergy. The WCICC believes that it is very important for every individual to maintain the rights afforded to them under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, with a special focus on Article 18 "Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion; this right includes freedom to change his religion or belief, and freedom, either alone or in community with others and in public or private, to manifest his religion or belief in teaching, practice, worship and observance." It is one of the WCICC's goals to disseminate information regarding religious tyranny and oppression of all forms around the world, in order to end suppression of the right to freedom of religion and any violations to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

ii. Any Change that may have had a significant impact on the organization

The WCICC suffered a major setback on 1 January 2001 when a fire destroyed the office. In the years 2004-2007, the WCICC made strides in rebuilding the organization and participation in United Nations activity increased over the four year period and will continue to do so.

Part II. Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

i. Participation in the work of the Economic and Social Council and its subsidiary bodies and/or major conferences and other United Nations meetings.

In addition to attending the Commission on the Status of Women’s 51st Session, the WCICC organized a parallel event to the conference entitled “Religious Freedom and Discrimination in the Village”. This panel was organized to discuss religious freedom and discrimination in the villages of India as it relates to women and the girl child. Representatives from the WCICC also participated in the “Informal Interactive Hearing with Civil Society, including Non-Governmental Organizations and the Private Sector of the High-level Dialogue of the General Assembly on Interreligious and Intercultural Understanding and Cooperation for Peace” on 4 October 2007 at the United Nations headquarter in New York.

ii) Cooperation with United Nations bodies and/or specialized agencies in the field and/or at Headquarters

The WCICC has worked in collaboration with several United Nations bodies in order to further our main goals. The WCICC has worked with the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) to provide assistance in digging wells in underdeveloped nations. The WCICC has also participated with observer status in meetings with the United Nations Development Programme discussing sustainable development in Sub-Saharan Africa. The WCICC coordinated well digging activities in Malawi with UNICEF (United Nations Children’s Fund).

iii) Activities in line with the Millennium Development Goals

Goal 1 - Eradicate extreme poverty and hunger. Target 3: Reduce by half the proportion of people who suffer from hunger. ACTIONS: Since its inception in 1992, the WCICC, through our National Directors, has developed numerous food distribution programs. With the cooperation of local churches and pastors as distribution points, we have managed to maintain and grow these programs in the following nations since: Bangladesh - 12 November 2006; Benin - 23 June 2007; Botswana - 10 July 2007; Cote D'Ivoire - 9 July 2007; Ghana - 5 February 2007; Haiti - 21 September 2006; Kenya - 15 August 2006; Nepal - 24 May 2007; Romania - 10 July 2007; Sri Lanka - 8 July 2007 and Zambia - 7 October 2005.

Goal 2 - Achieve universal primary education: ACTIONS: The WCICC has developed an education program through Mt. Sinai International Seminary making education available to pastors with no tuition payments.

Goal 3 - Promote gender equality and empower women: ACTIONS: The WCICC is working with the International Foundation for Minority Empowerment to promote education and advancement of women.

Goal 4 - Reduce child mortality: ACTIONS: The WCICC is working in conjunction with Save a Girl Child to prevent female infanticide and foeticide in India by providing education, media support and women's groups.

Goal 8 - Develop a global partnership for development: ACTIONS: The WCICC is working with Indian villages to sell Fair Trade crafts to promote development.
