Information circular*

To: Members of the staff
From: The Under-Secretary-General for Management
Subject: Practice of the Secretary-General in disciplinary matters and cases of criminal behaviour, 1 July 2008-30 June 2009

1. The purpose of the present circular¹ is to continue to inform staff members of the practice of the Secretary-General in exercising his authority in disciplinary matters under article X of the United Nations Staff Regulations, and to implement paragraph 17 of resolution 59/287, in which the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to ensure that all staff of the Organization are informed of the most common examples of misconduct and/or criminal behaviour and their disciplinary consequences, including any legal action, with due regard to the protection of the privacy of the staff member(s) concerned. This circular covers the period from 1 July 2008 to 30 June 2009.

2. Effective 1 July 2009 a new system of administration of justice in the United Nations came into force. In particular, the Joint Disciplinary Committee was abolished on 30 June 2009. A summary of the new system as it affects disciplinary matters will be set out in next year's report. In addition, revised Staff Regulations and provisional Staff Rules were promulgated effective 1 July 2009 in documents ST/SGB/2009/6 (Staff Regulations) and ST/SGB/2009/7 (Staff Rules). The references in section I below are to the Staff Regulations and Rules that were in effect before 1 July 2009 and to the internal justice system and disciplinary machinery that was applicable during the reporting period.

* The present circular is in effect until further notice.

¹ Previous circulars covering the period from January 2000 to June 2008 were issued as ST/IC/2002/25, ST/IC/2004/28, ST/IC/2005/51, ST/IC/2006/48, ST/IC/2007/47 and ST/IC/2008/41.

I. Overview of administrative machinery in disciplinary matters

A. Rules governing the conduct of staff members²

3. Article 101, paragraph 3, of the Charter of the United Nations states that the “paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity” (emphasis added).

4. Article I of the Staff Regulations and chapter I of the Staff Rules, both entitled “Duties, obligations and privileges”, set out the basic values expected of international civil servants because of their status, as well as particular manifestations of such basic values. Particular reference is made to staff regulation 1.2 and staff rule 101.2 for specific instances of expected or prohibited conduct.

B. Misconduct

5. Article X of the former Staff Regulations, entitled “Disciplinary measures”, provided in regulation 10.2 that “the Secretary-General may impose disciplinary measures on staff members whose conduct is unsatisfactory”. Staff rule 110.1, on misconduct, provided that “failure by a staff member to comply with his or her obligations under the Charter of the United Nations, the Staff Regulations and Staff Rules or other relevant administrative issuances, or to observe the standards of conduct expected of an international civil servant, may amount to unsatisfactory conduct ... leading to the institution of disciplinary proceedings and the imposition of disciplinary measures for misconduct”. Similarly, staff rule 101.2 (a) provided that “disciplinary procedures ... may be instituted against a staff member who fails to comply with his or her obligations and the standards of conduct set out in the Charter of the United Nations, the Staff Regulations and Rules, the Financial Regulations and Rules, and all administrative issuances”. Within those parameters, the Secretary-General has broad discretion in determining what constitutes misconduct and in imposing disciplinary measures. Administrative instruction ST/AI/371, on revised disciplinary measures and procedures,³ provides further examples of conduct for which disciplinary measures may be imposed.

C. Due process

6. Where the head of office or responsible officer believes, on the basis of an investigation, that disciplinary procedures may be warranted, he or she will refer the matter to the Assistant Secretary-General for Human Resources Management for a decision on whether to pursue the matter as a disciplinary case.⁴ During the period covered by the report, preliminary investigations were undertaken by the head of office or his or her designees, or by the Office of Internal Oversight Services, at its own initiative or at the request of the head of office.

² For a full overview of relevant provisions, see Secretary-General’s bulletin ST/SGB/2002/13, entitled “Status, basic rights and duties of United Nations staff members”, issued at the request of the General Assembly. Provisions relating to the status, rights and obligations of staff members, and to disciplinary matters, can also be found in the electronic Human Resources Handbook under “Status, basic rights and duties” and “Disciplinary”.

³ Also relevant is Secretary-General’s bulletin ST/SGB/2008/5 (Prohibition of discrimination, harassment, including sexual harassment, and abuse of authority).

7. If the Assistant Secretary-General for Human Resources Management decided to pursue the matter as a disciplinary case, the first step was to notify the staff member in writing of the allegations as well as of his or her right to seek the assistance of counsel. The staff member was given a reasonable opportunity to respond to the allegations. In the light of the comments provided by the staff member, it was decided whether to close the case, to refer it to a Joint Disciplinary Committee for advice or to summarily dismiss the staff member.

8. While the Secretary-General has broad discretionary authority in deciding upon an appropriate measure in each case, no staff member could be subjected to disciplinary measures until the matter had been referred to a Joint Disciplinary Committee for advice as to what measures, if any, were appropriate. Such referral to a Joint Disciplinary Committee could be waived when the staff member concerned and the Secretary-General agreed on a disciplinary measure and the proceedings would have therefore served no valid purpose. When the seriousness of the case warranted summary dismissal, prior referral to a Joint Disciplinary Committee was not required; however, staff members who had been summarily dismissed could, at their initiative, seek a review of their case by a Joint Disciplinary Committee. All staff members subjected to disciplinary measures ultimately had recourse to the United Nations Administrative Tribunal.⁵

D. Disciplinary measures

9. Former staff rule 110.3 provided that disciplinary measures can take one or more of the following forms (i.e., more than one measure can be imposed in each case):

- (a) Written censure by the Secretary-General;
- (b) Loss of one or more steps in grade;
- (c) Deferment, for a specified period, of eligibility for within-grade increment;
- (d) Suspension without pay;
- (e) Fine;
- (f) Demotion;
- (g) Separation from service, with or without notice or compensation in lieu thereof;
- (h) Summary dismissal.

⁴ The director of mission support in a mission refers the case to the Department of Field Support at Headquarters, which refers the matter to the Office of Human Resources Management if it concurs with the mission.

⁵ Numerous judgements of the United Nations Administrative Tribunal relate to disciplinary measures and show the practice of the Secretary-General for those cases brought before the Tribunal. Digests of those cases can be found in the online "Case and Jurisprudence Digest" (see <http://webfarmext.un.org/hrmtribunal>).

10. In determining the appropriate measure, each case was decided on its own merits, taking into account the particulars of the case, including aggravating and extenuating circumstances.

E. Other measures

11. Reprimands, written or oral, by a supervisory official are not considered disciplinary measures. Like warnings or letters of caution, they are administrative/managerial measures. However, they are also important measures for upholding standards of proper conduct and promoting accountability. Where inappropriate behaviour affects performance, the issue is addressed in the context of performance management. This may include training, counselling, withholding of salary increments, non-renewal of contract or termination of appointment.

II. Summary of cases for which the Secretary-General imposed a disciplinary measure during the period from 1 July 2008 to 30 June 2009

12. For each case that led to the imposition of one or more disciplinary measures, a summary is provided below indicating the nature of the misconduct and the disciplinary measure(s) imposed by the Secretary-General. The function or other particulars of the staff member are provided only when they played a role as aggravating circumstances in determining the measures to be taken. Conduct issues that were dealt with by means other than disciplinary measures are not listed.

13. Not every case brought to the attention of the Secretary-General results in disciplinary or other measures being taken. When a review by the Office of Human Resources Management reveals that there is not sufficient evidence to pursue a matter as a disciplinary case or when a staff member provides a satisfactory explanation in response to allegations, the case is closed and the staff member is considered cleared of the allegations. Cases may also be closed when a staff member retires or is otherwise separated from the Organization before disciplinary proceedings are concluded, as the Secretary-General does not have the authority to impose disciplinary measures on former staff members. In such cases, a record is made and placed in the official status file.

It should be noted that, owing to the time required to process disciplinary matters under established procedures, including the need in some cases to obtain further information after the initial investigation, the requirement to give staff members an opportunity to provide comments on charges of misconduct and referral of a case to a Joint Disciplinary Committee for advice, the figures reflect cases completed during the reporting period that had been referred to the Office of Human Resources Management prior to and during the reporting period.

IV. Criminal behaviour

59. In its resolution 59/287, the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to take action expeditiously in cases of “proven ... criminal behaviour” and inform Member States on the actions taken. The Office of Legal Affairs has advised that criminal behaviour of staff members can be established only by competent authorities of Member States, in accordance with their criminal procedures. During the reporting period, four cases were reported where United Nations staff members had been subject to criminal proceedings by the competent national authorities of Member States:⁷

(a) A staff member was arrested and charged by local authorities for using illegal drugs. The staff member was convicted and sentenced by a local court to serve seven days of administrative arrest. The staff member served his sentence and was subsequently released by local authorities;⁸

(b) A staff member was arrested and charged by local authorities for using illegal drugs. The staff member was convicted and sentenced by a local court to serve 20 days of administrative arrest. The staff member served his sentence and was subsequently released by local authorities;

(c) A staff member was arrested and charged by local authorities for using illegal drugs. The staff member was convicted and sentenced by a local court. The staff member served his sentence and was subsequently released by local authorities;

(d) A staff member was convicted by the local authorities of possession of child pornography and smuggling prohibited images depicting explicit child pornography. The staff member pled guilty to both counts and was sentenced to 72 days in jail.⁹

⁷ The information may not represent the totality of criminal cases resulting in a conviction during the reporting period.

⁸ With respect to this case and the cases set out in sub-paragraphs 59 (b) and (c) below, please refer to paragraph 56.

⁹ The matter remains under review by the Administration.
