C. Tribute to the memory of His Excellency Mr. Adnan Tarcici
(Yemen)

12. At its resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Board observed a moment of silence in memory of His Excellency Mr. Adnan Tarcici, Ambassador of Yemen to the United Nations Office at Geneva.

D. Adoption of the agenda and organization of the work of the session

(Agenda item 1 (a))

13. At the 804th meeting, on 21 April, the President drew attention to paragraph 87 of the Cartagena Commitment, in which the Conference called upon the Board, at its first session following the eighth session of UNCTAD, to take the necessary follow-up measures to ensure the speedy implementation of the agreed institutional reforms. The Board was informed that, in the light of that directive, the Consultations of the Secretary-General of UNCTAD, held on 8 April 1992, had decided that, with the exception of unavoidable procedural issues, the second part of the thirty-eighth session of the Board should be devoted exclusively to institutional issues; and had accordingly approved a revised provisional agenda for the session (TD/B/1314).

14. Having taken note of the above decisions, the Board adopted the revised provisional agenda in TD/B/1314, with the addition of two procedural sub-items announced by the President. (The agenda as adopted was subsequently circulated in TD/B/1321 and is reproduced in annex I below.)

15. The Board also approved the organization of work for the session in TD/B/1314/Add.1, with the amendments recommended by the Bureau, on the understanding that the tentative timetable could be further adjusted in the light of developments.

E. Establishment of the Working Group of the Whole

16. At its 804th meeting, on 21 April, the Board established an open-ended Working Group of the Whole, to meet informally, for the purpose of establishing the terms of reference of the Standing Committees and ad hoc working groups called for by the Conference. The Board elected Mr. Gunnar Lund (Sweden) as Chairman of the Working Group.

17. The Working Group established two drafting groups as follows:

- Drafting Group A, chaired by Mr. J. Navarrete (Mexico)
- Drafting Group B, chaired by Mr. M. Bailey (Canada).

F. Adoption of the report on credentials

(Agenda item 1 (b))

18. At its resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Board adopted the report of its Bureau on the credentials of representatives attending the session (TD/B/1322).

19. Statements were made on the question of the participation of Yugoslavia by the representatives of the United States of America, Austria, Hungary, Portugal (on behalf of the European Community and its member States) and Yugoslavia.

G. Provisional agenda for the first part of the thirty-ninth regular session of the Board

(Agenda item 1 (c))

20. At the same meeting, the Secretary-General of UNCTAD stated that, after difficult and protracted consultations, a large measure of agreement had been reached on the content of the provisional agenda for the first part of the thirty-ninth session of the Board. He had indicated the extent of agreement reached in an unofficial paper entitled "Elements suggested by the Secretary-General of UNCTAD for a draft provisional agenda for the first part of the thirty-ninth session of the Trade and Development Board", which had been made available to all delegations in UNCTAD/PSM/CAS/401/Rev.2. He pointed out, however, that many delegations had taken the position that the agenda should be seen as a package and that final approval depended on agreement on all its components.

21. With this general caveat in mind, he drew attention to four related features. One was that during the consultations he had suggested that, in accordance with Trade and Development Board resolution 358 (XXXV), an item be included concerning the recent evolution of debt rescheduling. In the absence of agreement for the inclusion of such an item on the provisional agenda for the first part of the thirty-ninth session, the understanding had been reached that the Board would have on the agenda for the first part of its fortieth session an item that would enable it to address in a comprehensive fashion debt issues in a development context, including the recent evolution of debt rescheduling as required in resolution 358 (XXXV).

22. Secondly, it had been recognized that the maintenance of item 10 (a) relating to the report of the Joint Advisory Group on the International Trade Centre UNCTAD/GATT was subject to that Group's meeting in 1992 and in time for the Board to consider its report.

23. Thirdly, although there was agreement that consideration had to be given to the question of extending the duration of the first part of the thirty-ninth session in order to accommodate the extended agenda for that session, no agreement could be reached on the precise duration of that session. It was therefore proposed that this matter be pursued through the informal consultations after the conclusion of the current session of the Board.

24. Finally, he drew attention to the fact that item 9 relating to the report of the Secretary-General on assistance to the Palestinian people in the light of the Cartagena decision remained within brackets. He recalled that his original suggestion had been that the item be entitled "Assistance to the Palestinian people". In the light of the consultations that had followed, he had revised his suggestion so that, in the first place, the item would be reformulated to read "Report of the Secretary-General on assistance to the Palestinian people in the light of the Cartagena decision", and that, in the second place, it would be understood that, while delegations would be at liberty to make such statements as they saw fit, the action to be taken by the Board would be limited to taking note of the report. No agreement could be reached on that revised suggestion. That had been the situation two days previously. He understood that since then positive developments had occurred as a result of further contacts among interested delegations. The representative of Canada, whose good offices had been brought to bear on those contacts, had kept him informed, and he felt that it would be helpful if the representative of Canada was now invited to report to the Board on the outcome of those contacts.

25. The representative of Canada said that, as a result of the informal consultations that had taken place in the past few days on item 9 of the provisional agenda for the first part of the thirty-ninth session, he believed that there was now a consensus to proceed on the basis of the proposal the Secretary-General of UNCTAD had just put to the Board. Consequently, he proposed that the square brackets around item 9 be deleted, as well as the square brackets around the text as a whole.

Action by the Trade and Development Board

26. At its resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Board, having heard the statements by the Secretary-General of UNCTAD and the representative of Canada, approved the draft provisional agenda for the first part of its thirty-ninth session, as reflected in UNCTAD/PSM/CAS/401/Rev.2. (The provisional agenda was subsequently circulated in TD/B/INF.187 and is reproduced in annex II below.)

H. Designation of the President of the thirty-ninth regular session of the Board

(Agenda item 1 (d))

27. At its resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Board noted that Group D had decided to relinquish its turn in the cycle for the rotation of the office of President of the Board. Accordingly, the President for the thirty-ninth session of the Board was to be designated from among the countries members of Group B.

28. In the light of the above, the Board designated H.E. Mr. Gündüz Aktan (Turkey) to serve as President of the Board at its thirty-ninth session.

I. New States members of UNCTAD

(Agenda item 3 (a))

29. At the 804th meeting, on 21 April, the President, on behalf of the Board, congratulated the nine States the General Assembly had admitted to membership in the United Nations on 2 March 1992. Of these, San Marino was already a member of UNCTAD. Under the provisions of Assembly resolution 1995 (XIX), the remaining eight (Armenia, Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Republic of Moldova, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan) had automatically become members of UNCTAD, thus bringing the membership of UNCTAD to 179.

J. Designation of intergovernmental bodies for the purposes of rule 76 of the rules of procedure of the Board

(Agenda item 3 (b))

30. At its resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Board designated the following intergovernmental body for purposes of rule 76 of the rules of procedure: International Customs Tariffs Bureau (ICTB), information on which was contained in document TD/B/R.62.

K. Review of the calendar of meetings

(Agenda item 3 (c))

31. At the resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Chief of the Conference Affairs Service stated that, after informal consultations among the members of the Calendar Group, the following understanding had been reached regarding the nineteenth session of the Special Committee on Preferences:

(a) The Committee would meet in formal session for five days as from 18 May, and thus the nineteenth session of the Committee would be scheduled from 18 to 22 May 1992;

(b) On the following Monday and Tuesday, that is, 25 and 26 May, facilities would be made available, within the framework of the Special Committee on Preferences, as necessary, to complete any bilateral or plurilateral consultations that had been requested;

(c) The above two points would be adequately reflected in a communication to be sent as soon as possible to all participants.

32. In the period ahead, it would be understood that the Calendar Group could be convened as and when necessary to review any outstanding calendar matters and to make recommendations as appropriate to the regular consultations of the Secretary-General of UNCTAD and to the Trade and Development Board meeting in executive session.

33. At the same meeting, the Board took note of the agreement reached with regard to the Special Committee on Preferences.

L. Administrative and financial implications of the actions of the Board

(Agenda item 3 (d))

34. At the resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Secretary of the Trade and Development Board stated that, with regard to the administrative and financial implications of the Cartagena Commitment, and the decision made at the current session of the Board in establishing the new standing committees and ad hoc working groups, in the current estimation of the secretariat the resources provided in the programme budget for the subsidiary bodies of the Board that had been suspended, together with the provisions for working groups in the UNCTAD calendar of meetings, would be adequate to cover the conference-servicing requirements of the new bodies established by the Conference at its eighth session.

M. Other business

(Agenda item 4)

1. Membership of the Trade and Development Board

35. At the resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May 1992, the President informed the Board that the Secretary-General of UNCTAD had received a communication, dated 27 April 1992, from the Permanent Mission of Albania, indicating that Albania wished to become a member of the Trade and Development Board.

36. At the same meeting, the Board elected Albania to membership of the Trade and Development Board, thus bringing the membership of that body to 132.

2. International Trade Centre UNCTAD/GATT

37. Statements concerning the vacancy in the Directorship of the International Trade Centre UNCTAD/GATT were made by the representatives of the United Republic of Tanzania, India and Peru (on behalf of the Latin American and Caribbean Group).

N. Adoption of the report of the Board

(Agenda item 5)

38. At its resumed 805th meeting, on 7 May, the Board adopted the draft report on the second part of its thirty-eighth session (TD/B/L.930) and authorized the Rapporteur, Mr. Iñigo Salvador-Crespo (Ecuador), to complete the final report as appropriate.

II. ACTION BY THE TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD AT THE SECOND PART OF ITS THIRTY-EIGHTH SESSION

Decision 398 (XXXVIII). Follow-up to the recommendations adopted by the Conference at its eighth session

The Trade and Development Board,

Acting in accordance with the provisions of "A New Partnership for Development: The Cartagena Commitment", adopted by the United Nations
Conference on Trade and Development at its eighth session,

Decides to adopt the texts annexed to this decision.

805th (resumed) meeting
7 May 1992

Annex

A. The Trade and Development Board in executive session

Pursuant to paragraph 67 of the Cartagena Commitment, the Trade and Development Board adopts the following guidelines for its meetings in executive session (hereafter referred to as "executive sessions of the Board").

1. The executive sessions of the Board will facilitate the strengthening of the policy function of the Board in adapting the organization's work to changing worldwide economic circumstances, reviewing work programmes and priorities, promoting greater efficiency and reacting to reports from its subsidiary bodies in order to give impetus to ongoing work.
2. The executive sessions will be convened at the level of Permanent Representatives at regular intervals, and at any time the President of the Board, in consultation with the Secretary-General of UNCTAD and with the member States, deems it necessary, in half-day or one-day sessions. One of these sessions shall take place immediately before each part of the regular sessions of the Board. The agenda for each executive session of the Board will be agreed upon sufficiently in advance to ensure adequate preparation. Each executive session of the Board should be preceded by an appropriate consultative process.
3. The executive sessions of the Board may provide guidance to the subsidiary bodies of the Board and take action on the outcomes of the meetings of these bodies; take action on procedural and organizational matters; and provide timely preparation of the issues to be considered by the regular sessions of the Board.

B. Terms of reference of the Standing Committees

TERMS OF REFERENCE

Standing Committee on Commodities

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 1995 (XIX) of 30 December 1964, as amended, and to "A New Partnership for Development: the Cartagena Commitment", adopted at the eighth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, a Standing Committee on Commodities is established by the Trade and Development Board with the following terms of reference:

1. To promote sound, compatible and consistent policies, which, inter alia, take into account market trends at the national and international levels in the commodity field.
2. To undertake periodic and global reviews, studies and analyses of the situation of, and prospects for, commodities and to compile statistical reports on commodity production, prices and trade.
3. To undertake analyses and identify approaches on commodity policies, bearing in mind both, as appropriate, Conference resolution 93 (IV) and the particular characteristics and situation of individual commodities, including the particular problems of the least developed countries. This work should help to achieve the following:
 - (a) Improving the functioning of commodity markets by reducing the distortions affecting supply and demand;
 - (b) Optimizing the contribution of the commodities sector to development by, inter alia, working towards greater cost-effectiveness and productivity, thereby enhancing competitiveness;
 - (c) Reviewing and comparing national policies with the aim of enhancing the competitiveness of the commodity sector, taking into account market trends;
 - (d) Achieving a gradual reduction in excessive dependence on the export of primary commodities through horizontal and vertical diversification of production and exports as well as crop substitution, within a macroeconomic framework that takes into consideration a country's economic structure, resource endowments and market opportunities;
 - (e) Progressive removal of trade barriers, that is, trade liberalization, for commodity products;
 - (f) Improving market transparency;
 - (g) Exploring the links between commodity policies, sound management of natural resources and achievement of sustainable development;

(h) Exploring greater use and efficiency of various mechanisms for risk management, having in mind the objective of minimizing the risks arising from commodity market fluctuations, including market-linked price-hedging mechanisms such as commodity futures and options, and related longer-term mechanisms such as commodity swaps, bonds and loans, obstacles to their potential use and modalities for overcoming them;

(i) Analysing problems stemming from commodity-related shortfalls of developing countries and reviewing developments in the field of compensatory financing of export earning shortfalls.

4. To facilitate and coordinate activities of bodies involved in the commodity field.

5. To follow and facilitate, as appropriate, intergovernmental consultations and action among interested countries on the problems of particular commodities or groups of commodities; to analyse the need for, and encourage when considered necessary, the achievement of viable and efficient international agreements or arrangements that take into account market trends, as well as study groups, both autonomous and within UNCTAD.

6. To assist the Board in assessing the question of a world conference on commodities as provided for in the decision entitled "World Commodity Conference" adopted at the eighth session of the Conference.

7. To assist it in its work, the Committee may have, as subsidiary organs, the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Tungsten and the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Iron Ore.

8. To deal with other items within the field of commodities directed to it by the Board.

9. The work of the Committee should follow a progressive sequence in accordance with paragraphs 49 to 60 of the Cartagena Commitment. In line with what is set out in the Cartagena Commitment, particularly paragraphs 18 and 47, the Committee should be inspired by the need to promote international consensus on principles and strategies for policy action at the national and international levels to enhance the development prospects of member States, particularly those of developing countries. It should provide a forum for the exchange of experiences among member States so as to enable them to draw appropriate lessons for the formulation and implementation of policies at the national and international levels and for international economic cooperation.

10. In its work, the Committee should take due account of the diversity of country situations and experiences. It may base its work on country reviews by the secretariat and seek from relevant countries the presentation of studies on their national experiences. It could also, depending on the issue, seek the participation of, and draw on the experience and expertise of, non-governmental actors, particularly enterprises, trade unions, the academic community and non-governmental organizations, as well as representatives of international institutions.

11. The Committee should identify for consideration areas in which technical cooperation should be strengthened.
12. The work of the Committee should be coordinated with that of other Committees and Working Groups.
13. The work of the Committee should complement that of other international bodies while seeking to ensure that no duplication occurs.
14. The Committee may recommend for the consideration of the Board the establishment of expert groups.
15. The Committee shall submit periodic reports to the Trade and Development Board on its work. In accordance with paragraph 68 of the Cartagena Commitment the Board will conduct a review and evaluation of the work programme of the Committee midway between Conferences.
16. The frequency of sessions of the Committee is to be decided by the Board in accordance with the existing procedures concerning the calendar of meetings. The duration of the sessions should be of five days or less.

TERMS OF REFERENCE

Standing Committee on Poverty Alleviation

Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 1995 (XIX) of 30 December 1964, as amended; to "A New Partnership for Development: the Cartagena Commitment", adopted at the eighth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development; and to the consensus achieved at the eighth session of the Conference, whereby: "States members of UNCTAD recognize that peace and prosperity are indivisible and that lasting peace and stability require effective international cooperation for the eradication of poverty",

Acting in the context of national and international efforts to combat poverty until it is eradicated,

A Standing Committee on Poverty Alleviation is established by the Trade and Development Board with the following terms of reference:

1. To contribute to national and international efforts to prevent, alleviate and reduce poverty, particularly where it is more acute, as well as to the formulation of related national and international policies, bearing in mind the diversity of country situations, including the particular problems of the least developed countries and the most vulnerable population groups. The work of the Committee shall be essentially action oriented.

2. In order to achieve the above objectives, the Committee shall:

(a) Review existing information and analyses on the characteristics, causes, location, dimensions and dynamics of poverty, as well as on related indicators;

(b) Exchange and review national experiences in dealing with poverty; identify impediments to poverty alleviation with a view to promoting greater understanding of successful national policies; and identify policy options for the prevention and alleviation of poverty. In this context, the Committee, while taking into account the need for an integrated approach for efficient action towards poverty alleviation, shall focus, inter alia, on the following areas: human resource and community development; social infrastructure development; employment creation and increasing productivity of the poor; distribution of income and social benefits of development in rural and urban areas; social safety nets; and policies to promote the access of the poor to productive assets. In doing so, the Committee should bear in mind the impact of structural reform programmes on poverty alleviation and the need for increased participation of the poor and vulnerable groups in development;

(c) Exchange views on the impact of development assistance and cooperation programmes, including emergency assistance programmes, on the alleviation and reduction of poverty and develop approaches to promote effective programmes;

(d) Consider questions related to the financing and organization of social development programmes in developing countries, particularly in the areas of health, education, housing and sanitation;

(e) Examine the impact of trade expansion on poverty alleviation;

(f) Identify the linkages between the alleviation of poverty and the achievement of sustainable development;

(g) Examine the relationship between migrations and other demographic factors, and poverty alleviation.

3. In carrying out its functions, the Committee shall draw on the experience and expertise of other intergovernmental bodies, non-governmental organizations, experts from various fields and others for the purpose of discussion and clarification of issues on poverty alleviation.

4. The work of the Committee should follow a progressive sequence in accordance with paragraphs 49 to 60 of the Cartagena Commitment. In line with what is set out in the Cartagena Commitment, particularly paragraphs 18 and 47, the Committee should be inspired by the need to promote international consensus on principles and strategies for policy action at the national and international levels to enhance the development prospects of member States, particularly those of developing countries. It should provide a forum for the exchange of experiences among member States so as to enable them to draw appropriate lessons for the formulation and implementation of policies at the national and international levels and for international economic cooperation.

5. In its work, the Committee should take due account of the diversity of country situations and experiences. It may base its work on country reviews by the secretariat and seek from relevant countries the presentation of studies on their national experiences. It could also, depending on the issue, seek the participation of, and draw on the experience and expertise of, non-governmental actors, particularly enterprises, trade unions, the academic community and non-governmental organizations, as well as representatives of international institutions.

6. The Committee should identify for consideration areas in which technical cooperation should be strengthened.

UNDERSTANDING OF THE TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD
RELATED TO THE TERMS OF REFERENCE OF STANDING COMMITTEES/AD HOC WORKING GROUPS

The Standing Committees and the Ad Hoc Working Groups, in their work, will take into account, as appropriate, the results of the review and follow-up by the Trade and Development Board of progress in the implementation of the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s.

D. Decision submitted by the Chairman of the Working Group of the Whole

The Trade and Development Board,

Considering the importance of making available for socially productive use the funds released by the reduction of military expenditures,

Decides to consider at the earliest opportunity the establishment of an ad hoc working group to explore questions related to the issue of structural adjustment for the transition to disarmament and the implications for economic growth and development of reductions of military expenditures, taking into account the specific and individual situation of countries, in line with paragraphs 24, 98 and 99 of the Cartagena Commitment.

III. STATEMENTS MADE IN CONNECTION WITH DECISION 398 (XXXVIII)
ADOPTED BY THE BOARD

39. The representative of the United Republic of Tanzania stated that his delegation wished to enter a reservation on paragraph 1 of the text on "The Trade and Development Board in executive session" (see sect. II above, decision 398 (XXXVIII), annex), in particular in relation to the phrase "strengthening of the policy function of the Board in adapting the organization's work to changing worldwide economic circumstances". Since it was here a matter of executive sessions, he considered that the Board could not be placed in the position of having to react all the time to changing circumstances, trying to clutch at whatever straws might be in the wind, without any clarity about the objectives to be pursued. UNCTAD and its organs, including the Board, were specifically intended to pursue the twin objectives of trade and development. The omission of that central purpose in the operative part of the text could make the term "strengthening" out of place, since there might even be a weakening of the policy function. His delegation had therefore tried unsuccessfully to have paragraph 1 amended to read as follows:

"1. The executive sessions of the Board will facilitate the strengthening of the policy functions of the Trade and Development Board by organizing its work to meet the needs of trade and development keeping in view changing worldwide circumstances, and accordingly reviewing work programmes and priorities, promoting greater efficiency and reacting to reports from its subsidiary bodies in order to give impetus to ongoing work."

He felt that the text as it now stood exposed the Board indefinitely - perhaps for the next 10 or 20 years - to the need to react all the time to changing worldwide circumstances, without keeping in the forefront the central purpose of meeting the needs of trade and development. That was why the Tanzanian delegation wished to enter a reservation on the paragraph.

40. The representative of Chile observed that the progress made in adopting the terms of reference for the Standing Committees and the Ad Hoc Working Groups represented a step towards achieving the implementation of concrete policies that were in accordance with the spirit and letter of the Cartagena Commitment, especially paragraphs 64 and 71, among others. But the implementation of such policies would not be achieved by preparing documents - however worthy and interesting in terms of new ideas - if they were not put into practice. In the view of his delegation, the next major step was to secure the participation in those Committees and Working Groups of people who held real responsibility and decision-making powers for implementing those policies in their own countries. What might prevent such people from participating in the Committees and Working Groups? The main reason was no doubt the urgency of the work in their own countries, and hence lack of time to travel to meetings in Geneva. That implied an enormous challenge for the members of the Board: namely, how to portray to national senior officials and experts the work of the new Committees as being even more compelling than the immediate urgencies in their home countries. His delegation believed that the main way to do that would be to ask those senior officials themselves in which areas and issues they would wish to hear of the experiences of other countries that had been successful in applying policies that they too were interested in applying. Which people in those other countries would they like to meet and get to know in the UNCTAD meetings for the very reason that they were people who had been successful in carrying out worthwhile structural reforms from which they too could learn something? Which countries had been successful in poverty alleviation, and which specific policies and people had achieved it? Which countries had managed to increase their exports or to attract additional financing? Such issues could be the subject of a fruitful exchange of ideas.

41. His delegation considered that inquiring into the issues that were of priority interest to national policy decision makers was the fundamental task of the UNCTAD secretariat in the next stage of the work relating to the Committees and Working Groups. The people who had a responsible leadership role at the national level in relation to the issues the Conference and the Board had identified should be asked who they would like to hear presenting their experience. Having expressed a wish of that kind, they would be expected to commit themselves to attending the meeting in question, since participants from other countries and regions would be informed of the interest expressed in the presentation of their experience. The process of inquiry he was proposing was aimed at securing the participation of the most senior people in the future work of the UNCTAD Committees and Working Groups.

Part Two

REPORT OF THE TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD ON THE FIRST PART OF ITS THIRTY-NINTH SESSION

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The first part of the thirty-ninth session of the Trade and Development Board was held at the Palais des Nations, Geneva, from 28 September to 14 October 1992.

2. The present report to the General Assembly has been prepared by the Rapporteur under the authority of the President of the Board, in accordance with the guidelines adopted by the Board in the annex to its decision 302 (XXIX) of 21 September 1984. ^{1/} The report records, as appropriate, the action by the Board on the substantive items of its agenda (section II), the Communiqué presented by the President of the Board at the closing plenary meeting (section III), and statements of position (section IV). The procedural, institutional, organizational and administrative matters are dealt with in section V.

3. In connection with the action reported in section II, attention is drawn to paragraph 56 of "A New Partnership for Development: the Cartagena Commitment", which reads as follows:

"The outcomes of deliberative processes in the Trade and Development Board and its subsidiary bodies need not take the form of resolutions. Greater use should be made of agreed conclusions, assessments or summings-up by presiding officers, particularly when the issues are new or difficult ones, requiring further exploration and the building of common perceptions." ^{2/}

4. The full report of the Board on the first part of its thirty-ninth session - to be issued subsequently in document TD/B/39(1)/15 - will reflect in addition all the statements made in the course of the session on the various items of the agenda.

B. Texts*

1. International implications of macroeconomic policies and issues concerning interdependence: the recent evolution of development problems and prospects

(Agenda item 3)

Summing-up by the President

5. The debate was both lively and constructive, and addressed a number of global issues of great significance. It was underpinned by the Trade and Development Report, which delegations commended for its innovative, incisive and succinct analysis. The debate included an intensive informal exchange with special invitees; their expert views, which were broadly in conformity with the main findings of the Trade and Development Report, greatly contributed to the understanding of the problems.

6. It was generally recognized that the world economy is in a difficult phase. Growth has slowed in the developed economies, debt-deflationary pressures have mounted and currencies have come under acute strain. These problems pose difficult choices for monetary and fiscal policies. These must now be designed, on the one hand, to promote recovery in the short term as in Japan and, on the other hand, to remove structural disequilibria over the medium to long term. Coordination of macroeconomic policies by the larger economies was generally viewed as essential to arrive at the stance and mix of policies needed to revive the growth momentum of the world economy. It was generally agreed that such coordination should take fully into account the interests of all countries. It was also agreed that an improved external environment was necessary for sustained non-inflationary growth in developing countries.

7. At the same time, domestic policies in developing countries were recognized to be a critical determinant of development performance. Structural reforms needed, however, to be supported by adequate columns of financial support on appropriate terms. Further progress was needed on both fronts. It was noted that a number of developing countries had succeeded in accelerating their growth rates in the face of the global economic slowdown, thanks in part to their liberalization policies, which had attracted large inflows of capital, in particular direct foreign investment. Some delegations drew attention to the need for other developing countries to undertake further reforms that would attract greater volumes of investment in this form. On the other hand, it was recognized that unsustainable inflows of liquid funds could be highly problematic, and it was noted that a number of countries had succeeded in encouraging inflows of short-term funds using a variety of techniques.

* For the Board's action on these texts, see the relevant agenda item in section A.

8. It was generally acknowledged that, while substantial progress had been made in resolving the debt problems of developing countries, such problems persisted in numerous countries. Additional efforts were needed on the part of both the debtors and creditors as well as other members of the international financial community. In this connection, a number of countries called for more favourable treatment to be accorded to poorer developing countries in the Paris Club, as well as for more attention to be paid to other developing countries, including those which have avoided debt-servicing difficulties at high cost.

9. It was recognized that the economic situation in the countries of Central and Eastern Europe continued to be extremely difficult, owing in large part to the problems arising from making a transition to a market economy, which is adversely affected by the international environment. However, growth and trade performance differed widely across countries. Some were well advanced in the process of structural change and were registering an increase in the size of the private sector, while others were still beginning the reform process and suffering dramatic falls in output and employment, with all the social hardship and risk for political stability this implied. It was noted that privatization had proved to be a much more difficult and complex task than anticipated. Several delegations underlined the importance of a more dynamic world economy, strengthened multilateral cooperation and external assistance to support the process of transition and domestic policy efforts.

10. Great concern was expressed regarding protectionism, an open and fair multilateral trading system capable of resisting protectionist pressures being essential for growth and development. The Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations was viewed as an opportunity that must not be lost to strengthen the multilateral trading system and to halt protectionism. Many delegations stressed that it was essential to take into account the interests of the developing countries. It was also important to ensure that the emerging trading blocs did not result in trade diversion.

2. Paths to development: performance, problems and reform of public enterprises

(Agenda item 4)

Summary by the Chairman of Sessional Committee I

11. Numerous representatives participated in the debate, which was constructive and consensual. The debate was underpinned by the Trade and Development Report, 1992 3/ for which delegations expressed appreciation, especially because it had treated this controversial subject in a non-dogmatic manner. The debate was enriched by an informal exchange of views with experts, which had greatly contributed to understanding the issues.

12. It was felt that the discussion of the performance, problems and reform of public sector enterprises by the Trade and Development Board had been a timely follow-up to Cartagena. It was recognized that while many public sector enterprises had performed well and made important contributions to development, in many developing countries such enterprises were a source of difficulties. It was agreed that, although attention had focused on privatization as a general rule, both privatization and reform were options to be seriously considered by Governments. It was often necessary to proceed rapidly on both fronts, especially so in Central and East European countries.

13. It was noted that, in many cases, public sector enterprises had been established because of a dearth of indigenous entrepreneurial talent willing to undertake investments. It was pointed out that many countries had felt a need to redefine the role of the state in order to make fuller use of the growing capacity of the private sector, and to contribute to those capacities, though this did not necessarily mean abandoning all forms of government intervention. But in other countries the private sector was as yet still embryonic - something which circumscribed the extent and pace of successful privatization and made reform of the public sector especially urgent. In some countries, it was necessary to phase out old established public enterprises while bringing into existence new ones to carry out new tasks.

14. It was widely agreed that the public and private sectors needed to play complementary and mutually supporting roles and that the appropriate balance would vary significantly from country to country. It was emphasized that the issue should be approached non-ideologically, taking into account the specific circumstances and level of development of the country in question, as well as its long-term potential and perspectives.

15. It was widely held that well-conceived, productive contributions by government enterprises usually had an important part to play in successful development, as there were a variety of ways in which public enterprise could benefit an economy. However, there were also dangers: for instance, manipulation by interest groups, overloading of objectives and inappropriate financing often impaired performance. Hence, it was considered important for the Government to set clear and consistent objectives for public enterprises and to reward and discipline management accordingly. In this connection, reference was made to methods of imposing a "hard budget constraint" that allowed the enterprise to pursue the non-commercial objectives assigned to it in an efficient manner. It was also considered important for enterprises to be financed in ways that facilitated forward planning.

16. It was pointed out that financial results, especially short-term ones, were often a misleading indicator of performance, whether prior to or after reform. Several other indices of efficiency were cited as being more appropriate. It was stressed that, in assessing the performance of individual enterprises, the macroeconomic environment should be taken fully into account. By the same token, reform should be directed primarily at improving enterprise efficiency rather than the cash flow of the Government; the proceeds from asset sales should be used for new capital investments rather than current consumption. Moreover, the financial targets set for enterprises should be defined in a longer-term context so as to avoid short-sighted actions.

17. Numerous speakers stressed that those public enterprises which enjoyed a "natural" monopoly position did not lend themselves to privatization; a competitive environment was considered important for good performance by enterprises in both the public and private sectors. However, abuse of monopoly power under public ownership also had to be avoided, with special care being taken to remove policy-induced limitations on competition where these served simply to generate easy profits.

3. Sustainable development including UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of UNCED's conclusions and recommendations

(Agenda item 5)

Summing-up by the Vice-President (Mauritius) who chaired the informal meetings on this item

18. The informal discussions on agenda item 5 took into consideration the introductory statement made by the Deputy Secretary-General of UNCTAD and the statements made by several delegations on this item in plenary. The discussions benefited from the participation of the Deputy Secretary-General and Officer-in-Charge of the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development, as well as from contributions from staff members of the UNCTAD secretariat.

19. The Deputy Secretary-General of the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development had given an impassioned and illuminating view of the meaning of sustainable development seen from the perspective of development. He had emphasized the asset management perspective of sustainable development and - filling an important gap in the discussions to date - focused on what measures were necessary at the national level to bring about movement towards sustainable development. He had also reminded participants that, as the Cartagena Commitment had rightly emphasized, a global partnership with shared but differentiated responsibility was necessary if national efforts were to bear fruit, as the developing countries needed financial support to make the transition to sustainable development.

20. The UNCTAD staff members had presented the wide range of work already undertaken by the UNCTAD secretariat on specific issues within its mandate related to sustainable development. They had focused on work carried out in the fields of natural resource management; the reconciliation of trade measures with environmental concerns (and vice versa); and the development of market-based instruments for financing environmental protection.

21. Although the participants were pressed for time, a lively debate was engaged in and views were expressed on both the orientation and the content of the future work of the secretariat in the area of sustainable development. Although there was a large degree of consensus on these matters, views differed on the likely effects of the adoption and use of tradeable carbon emission permits at the international level and on the appropriateness of further work on this matter using UNCTAD's regular budgetary resources.

22. Without wishing to summarize the discussions in any further detail, he believed that it would be correct to say that the following views were broadly held:

(a) That sustainable development is such an important issue that UNCTAD's intergovernmental machinery and the secretariat should integrate yet more thoroughly the concept of sustainable development and its environmental dimension into their respective programmes of work; and in particular that concrete work on areas related to sustainable development within UNCTAD's mandate should be pursued without losing momentum, while avoiding duplication with work in other relevant institutions, necessary adjustments always being possible at a later date to take account of future decisions by the General Assembly. Some delegations were, however, of the view that such work should proceed prudently while awaiting the establishment of the Commission on Sustainable Development and any possible allocation of tasks arising therefrom;

(b) That those subsidiary bodies of the Board whose terms of reference contain areas of work related to sustainable development should assign high priority to such work, particularly as regards the sound management of natural resources (Standing Committee on Commodities); the linkages between poverty alleviation and sustainable development (Standing Committee on Poverty Alleviation); and the generation, transfer and diffusion of environmentally sound technologies (Ad Hoc Working Group on Interrelationship between Investment and Technology Transfer);

(c) That work in the Board on sustainable development - initially in a sessional committee, but with the option open to move to a different structure (Standing Committee or Ad Hoc Working Group) if the situation warranted - should initially concentrate on the important area of the reconciliation of environmental and trade policies, including the necessity to ensure that environmental measures do not become an instrument of protection;

(d) That the UNCTAD secretariat should continue or undertake studies on the interlinkages of trade and environment in order to serve the sessional committee, and on the following:

- (i) Methods for the internalization of environmental costs into the prices of all products;
- (ii) Economic and regulatory tools to correct market deficiencies without hampering economic growth and development or jeopardizing competitive positions on international markets;
- (iii) Market-based instruments for financial environmental protection;
- (iv) The implications for developing countries of basic principles designed to foster economic behaviour more in line with the imperatives of sustainable development;
- (v) The linkages between poverty alleviation and sustainable development;
- (vi) Ways and means of promoting sustainable development at the national level, ensuring positive linkages between technological, sectoral and macroeconomic policies.

4. Trade policies, structural adjustment and economic reform: issues relating to national transparent mechanisms in the context of the fight against protectionism

(Agenda item 6)

Summary by the Chairman of Sessional Committee I*

23. In accordance with paragraph 132 of the Cartagena Commitment, Sessional Committee I discussed the relevant features of transparent mechanisms in the context of the fight against protectionism. Sessional Committee I also held informal discussions to exchange views and ideas with high-ranking officials from organizations concerned with transparency.

24. There was a strong consensus that transparent mechanisms could be one of the important instruments against trade protectionism. It was important to distinguish between, on the one hand, transparency for the purpose of evaluating the benefits and costs of existing protection and, on the other hand, trade-policy initiatives and transparency in the context of the administration of existing trade regulations and trade remedies.

25. It was held that in many cases such mechanisms made significant contributions towards trade liberalization. Success depended on the commitment of Governments to liberalize trade and make positive structural adjustments. It also depended on the trade-policy institutional framework in the country concerned.

26. It was noted that many developing countries and countries in transition had unilaterally embarked on substantial economic reform, including trade liberalization. These measures were not without social and economic cost. Transparency mechanisms could assist the process by providing information for knowledge-based trade policy decision-making and for better public understanding. Furthermore, such information would justify and encourage Governments to be bolder in their reform and liberalization efforts.

27. A favourable international economic environment would ease the reform process and render irreversible the policies aiding the integration of developing countries into the world economy. Transparency agencies in developed countries could play an important role in enhancing this environment, especially through improving market access for products of export interest to developing countries. It was indicated that such agencies had in fact assisted Governments in undertaking structural adjustment in various industries.

28. There was a general consensus that the six features identified in paragraph 64 of the secretariat report (TD/B/39(1)/3) provided a good basis for transparency agencies. However, it had been stressed, these mechanisms should be introduced in a staged manner, in accordance with the institutional set-up of the countries concerned.

* For the comments made in connection with this summary, see section IV.A.

29. Regarding the features, it was emphasized that transparency agencies should be independent both from political pressure and from policy-making. Their scope of activities should include fact-finding, analysis, policy advice and dissemination of information to the public.
30. It was also emphasized that opportunities should be provided for all interested parties to participate in the procedures of the transparency agency.
31. There was general consensus that the transparency studies should cover the economy-wide aspects of existing protectionism and new trade-policy initiatives. The studies should analyse the entire gamut of domestic measures that impinge on trade, including anti-dumping and anti-subsidy actions. It would be desirable if the studies also examined the impact of protection on trading partners, in particular the developing countries. It was considered useful for UNCTAD to follow developments in this regard.
32. Technical assistance should receive the highest priority and include information on the establishment of agencies, assistance in institution-building and training regarding appropriate economic methodology and data-gathering. The Committee invited the donor countries and donor agencies to support these efforts. It was noted with appreciation that some existing agencies were willing to participate and contribute to UNCTAD technical cooperation activities.
33. The Committee expressed its appreciation for the outstanding contribution made by the high-ranking officials who had been invited to participate in the two days of informal discussions on transparency mechanisms. This interaction had proved to be extremely fruitful. The secretariat of UNCTAD had been requested to circulate the statements of these officials to member Governments, as appropriate. Moreover, the secretariat was encouraged to arrange for further such interaction involving high-level experts with regard to other topics in the area of trade on the agenda of the Trade and Development Board.

5. Review of progress in the implementation of the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s

(Agenda item 7)

Summary of discussions, Chairperson's statement, and decision by the Special Sessional Committee

(a) Summary of discussions as approved by the Special Sessional Committee

34. The following paragraphs reflect the discussion in the Sessional Committee on economic and policy reforms in least developed countries, official development assistance, external indebtedness, external trade and follow-up, monitoring and review of the Programme of Action.

35. The representatives of the least developed countries said that, despite the mounting difficulties they were facing, those countries had been implementing comprehensive and far-reaching economic and political reforms and adjustments in accordance with the spirit of the Paris Declaration and

Programme of Action. These reforms were being undertaken with a view to imparting a new dynamism to reactivate the development process of least developed countries.

36. It was emphasized by the development partners of some least developed countries that economic reforms and structural adjustment must be vigorously pursued by the latter, as failure to take timely adjustment measures would only result in making the problems worse. The importance of political freedom and respect for human rights in a framework conducive to broad popular participation in economic, social and political activities was emphasized.

37. Concerning the question of the flow of external resources, the least developed countries stressed that the development partnership required that development partners provide adequate support to the development strategies and policies. They stressed that this had become all the more necessary in view of the increase in the number of least developed countries to 47. This called for appropriate adjustments of the commitments contained in the Programme of Action. In this regard, some donors said that they would have liked to see real attainment of the aid targets agreed upon. They felt that appropriate adjustments, meaning upward adjustments, were warranted. They called for agreement on commitments that covered all the 47 least developed countries. It was stated by some other development partners that they would examine the effects the countries newly added to the list of least developed countries would have on the additional resource requirements of the group as a whole. They reaffirmed their commitment to the Programme of Action and stated that they would do their utmost to implement it in a timely and effective way. One other delegation recalled the reservation of its country made at the Paris Conference regarding the quantitative official development assistance targets.

38. On the issue of external debt of least developed countries, recalled the very heavy debt burden their countries continued to carry. They called upon their development partners to take urgent measures to reduce their debt stock and debt-servicing burden. Some development partners stated that no single group of countries was more urgently in need of substantial debt relief than the least developed countries and that the case for the Trinidad Terms, as originally proposed, was as strong as ever. Another group of development partners accepted the view that the Paris Club Agreement of December 1991 was not sufficient for many least developed countries and therefore urged the Paris Club to continue its discussion on debt relief for the poorest countries.

39. The least developed countries said that the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations should result in substantially improved market access for their exports and stated that they should not be circumscribed by onerous obligations arising from such areas as trade-related aspects of intellectual property rights, trade-related investment measures and services. A group of development partners reaffirmed their commitment to supporting efforts of least developed countries at export diversification. It was stated by another group of development partners that the generalized system of preferences arrangements should be improved and strengthened in favour of least developed countries, and industrial countries must do their utmost to undertake the fullest possible removal of tariff and non-tariff barriers to exports from least developed countries.

40. Some delegations expressed the view that the least developed country annual reports, which served as the basis for the global review, should continue in-depth analyses of issues relating to review of the implementation of the Programme of Action, including disaggregation at the regional and subregional level. Many delegations called upon the secretariat to strengthen its policy advice and technical assistance to least developed countries in all relevant areas. It was also pointed out that UNCTAD should be actively involved in the substantive preparations for, and participate in, the country review meetings and provide necessary support to the regional follow-up process.

(b) Chairperson's statement as approved by the Special Sessional Committee on least developed countries

41. The Special Sessional Committee of the first part of the thirty-ninth session of the Trade and Development Board conducted the second annual review of progress in the implementation of the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s. All countries reaffirmed their commitments to all aspects contained in the Programme of Action and in the Cartagena Commitment.

42. The least developed countries reiterated that they would continue to enhance the implementation of national policies and measures in line with the Programme of Action, including the formulation and implementation of macroeconomic policies conducive to long-term sustained growth and the alleviation of poverty, mobilizing domestic resources and ensuring broad-based participation in development.

43. The development partners reaffirmed that a significant and substantial increase in the aggregate level and improvement in the quality of external support should be made available to the least developed countries.

(c) Decision by the Special Sessional Committee

44. The Committee decided that the following special issues should be reviewed in depth by the Board at the second part of its thirty-ninth session in the spring of 1993:

(a) Domestic and external resource mobilization, including debt situation and management;

(b) Improving trading opportunities.

45. In accordance with the Cartagena Commitment, the donor countries reaffirmed their determination to implement the commitments they have undertaken in the Programme of Action with regard to official development assistance to the 41 countries included in the list at the time of the Paris Conference and to continue their efforts to meet the resource requirements of all least developed countries. The Committee reviewed the question of appropriate adjustments of the official development assistance commitments in respect of targets and levels of such assistance as requested by the Conference. The donors expressed their intention to examine the effects the countries newly added to the list of least developed countries have on the additional resource requirements of the least developed country group as a whole. In the light of the above, the Committee decided to consider this question at the second part of the thirty-ninth session of the Board.

46. Donors are urged to consider providing, pursuant to General Assembly resolution 46/156, extrabudgetary resources to facilitate participation of least developed country delegations at the future reviews of the Programme of Action in the Trade and Development Board.

6. UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s

(Agenda item 8)

Summing-up by the Chairperson of Sessional Committee II and action by the Committee

47. At the Sessional Committee's 3rd formal meeting, on 8 October 1992, the Chairperson said that there had been a good, frank general debate on the issues facing Africa and possible responses by UNCTAD within its mandate. UNCTAD secretariat document TD/B/39(1)/5 had provided the background for the Committee's work. The debate had taken into account the relevant sections of the Cartagena Commitment, which called upon UNCTAD to respond fully to the United Nations New Agenda and to the African situation in general. The New Agenda had been adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 46/151, which requested Governments, organs, organizations of the United Nations system, and intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations to take appropriate measures in order to implement the commitments contained in the New Agenda.

Action by the Committee

48. The Committee decided that:

(a) The Secretary-General of UNCTAD should be requested to undertake Africa-specific studies, analyses and reports on the issue areas set forth in the list below, for consideration by the Trade and Development Board at its subsequent sessions;

(b) The Secretary-General should be requested to present progress reports on UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the New Agenda to the spring sessions of the Trade and Development Board;

(c) The secretariat should give priority to Africa in the deployment of available technical cooperation resources and ensure that UNCTAD's technical cooperation activities within the context of the New Agenda respond to the needs of African countries;

(d) Extrabudgetary resources should be sought from countries willing to contribute in order to augment available resources to intensify UNCTAD's contribution to the New Agenda, including support for the proposed studies and related technical assistance programmes in Africa;

(e) The work of UNCTAD's intergovernmental bodies should take into account the New Agenda and Africa-specific problems in general;

(f) The Trade and Development Board should evaluate UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the New Agenda every two years, taking into account the follow-up and monitoring mechanisms and timetable set up by the General Assembly.

815th plenary meeting
9 October 1992

III. COMMUNIQUE BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD*

52. The Trade and Development Board held the first part of its thirty-ninth session at Geneva from 28 September to 14 October 1992, under the presidency of Ambassador Gündüz Aktan (Turkey). The session was the first one to put into effect the new orientations and working methods that emerged from the eighth session of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, held at Cartagena de Indias, Colombia, in February 1992.

53. The session considered the following substantive matters:

(a) International implications of macroeconomic policies and issues concerning interdependence: the recent evolution of development problems and prospects;

(b) Paths to development: performance, problems and reform of public enterprises;

(c) Sustainable development, including UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the conclusions and recommendations of the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development;

(d) Trade policies, structural adjustment and economic reform: issues relating to national transparent mechanisms in the context of the fight against protectionism;

(e) Review of progress in the implementation of the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s;

(f) UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s.

54. The Board decided to establish an ad hoc working group to explore the issue of structural adjustment for the transition to disarmament.

55. The Board also adopted agreed conclusions on the priorities for UNCTAD's work.

56. In an innovative step in line with a decision of UNCTAD at its eighth session, three informal consultations were held with independent high-level experts on interdependence, public enterprises and trade transparency.

Interdependence

57. The debate addressed important global issues. It was underpinned by the Trade and Development Report, 1992, which was commended by many delegations, and it encompassed a useful informal exchange with special invitees.

* Presented to the Board at its 816th (closing) meeting, on 14 October 1992. For the statement made by the representative of the Commission of the European Communities in connection with this communiqué, see section IV.B.

58. The world economy is in a difficult phase, even though a number of developing countries have succeeded in accelerating their growth rates in the face of the global economic slowdown. It was broadly recognized that monetary and fiscal policies must now be designed to promote recovery in the short term and to remove structural disequilibria over the medium to long term. Coordination of macroeconomic policies by the larger economies was generally viewed as essential to a revival of the growth momentum. Such coordination should in turn take fully into account the interests of developing countries.

59. Further progress was needed on structural reform as part of domestic policies in developing countries and on adequate external financial support on appropriate terms. It was noted that, in a number of developing countries, liberalization policies had benefited from large inflows of capital, in particular direct foreign investment, although unsustainable inflows of liquid funds could be highly problematic.

60. Regarding debt, it was generally acknowledged that while substantial progress had been made in resolving the debt problems of developing countries, additional efforts were needed on the part of both the debtors and the international financial community. A number of countries called for more favourable treatment to be accorded to poorer developing countries by the Paris Club, as well as for more attention to be paid to other developing countries.

61. It was recognized that the economic situation in countries in transition to a market economy continued to be extremely difficult and that privatization had proved to be much more complex than anticipated. Several delegations underlined the importance of a more dynamic world economy, strengthened multilateral cooperation and external assistance to support domestic policy efforts in these countries. Other delegations expressed their concern that this should not undermine investment and financial flows to developing countries.

62. The Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations was viewed as a unique opportunity to strengthen the multilateral trading system and to halt protectionism. Many delegations stressed that it was essential to take into account the interests of the developing countries, including least developed countries, as well as net food-importing countries, and to ensure that the emerging trading blocs did not result in trade diversion.

Reform of public enterprises

63. The debate, underpinned by the Trade and Development Report, 1992, was constructive and was enriched by informal discussions with high-level experts.

64. It was recognized that many public sector enterprises were in difficulty, and that both privatization and reform needed to be considered, especially in the countries in transition to a market economy. Many countries were redefining the role of the State in order to make fuller use of the growing capacity for private entrepreneurship. Where the private sector was embryonic, public sector reform was especially urgent. However, many delegations considered privatization the most appropriate response to a reform of public enterprises.

65. It was widely agreed that the appropriate balance between the public and private sectors would vary significantly from country to country and that the issue should be approached non-ideologically. Some delegations stressed that socio-economic dimensions of the reform of public enterprises must also be taken into consideration. In addition, manipulation by interest groups, overloading of objectives and inappropriate financing often impaired public enterprise performance. Governments should therefore set clear and consistent objectives, and reward and discipline management with a view to responding to market signals.

66. It was pointed out that financial results, especially short-term ones, were often a misleading indicator of performance, and that the macroeconomic environment should be taken fully into account. Reform should be directed primarily at improving enterprise efficiency, and proceeds from asset sales should be used for new capital investments. The financial targets set for enterprises should be defined in a longer-term context.

67. Numerous speakers stressed the dangers of privatizing "natural" monopolies and the need to avoid abuse of monopoly power under public ownership. Those policy-induced limitations which served simply to generate easy profits should be removed.

Sustainable development

68. A lively debate was held on both the orientation and the content of the future work of the secretariat in the area of sustainable development. The Deputy Secretary-General and Officer-in-Charge of the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development addressed the Board in informal session on policies to promote national sustainable development.

69. It was recognized that UNCTAD's work on sustainable development at the level of the Board, in a sessional committee, should initially concentrate on the important area of the reconciliation of environmental and trade policies, including the necessity to ensure that environmental measures did not become instruments of protectionism.

70. Work related to sustainable development and its environmental dimensions should be given high priority and integrated yet more thoroughly into the tasks of UNCTAD's secretariat and its subsidiary bodies. There should be a particular emphasis on the work on sustainable development in the Standing Committees on Commodities and on Poverty Alleviation and in the Ad Hoc Working Group on the Interrelationship between Investment and Technology Transfer. It was understood that all such work would need to take appropriate account of the establishment of the Commission on Sustainable Development and any subsequent possible allocation of tasks with a view to avoiding overlapping.

71. Although there was a large degree of consensus on the orientations and content of the future work of the secretariat, views differed on the likely effects of the adoption and use of tradeable carbon emission permits at the international level and on the appropriateness of further work on this matter using UNCTAD's regular budgetary resources.

72. The secretariat should continue or undertake studies on:

(a) The interlinkages of trade and environment and methods for the internalization of environmental costs into the prices of all products;

(b) Economic and regulatory tools to correct market deficiencies without hampering economic growth and development or jeopardizing competitive positions on international markets;

(c) Market-based instruments for financing environmental protection;

(d) The implications for developing countries of basic principles designed to foster economic behaviour more in line with the imperatives of sustainable development;

(e) The linkages between poverty alleviation and sustainable development;

(f) Ways and means of promoting sustainable development at the national level, ensuring positive linkages between technological, sectoral and macroeconomic policies.

National transparent mechanisms

73. The Board carried out in-depth discussions on issues relating to national transparent mechanisms in the context of the fight against protectionism.

74. It recognized that transparent mechanisms could be an important instrument against trade protectionism. It was also indicated that in many cases such mechanisms did make significant contributions towards trade liberalization. Some countries felt that effective use of those mechanisms could help in generating a favourable international economic environment that could ease the reform process of developing countries by reducing non-tariff barriers in developed countries.

75. The Board identified the following basic features for transparent mechanisms:

(a) Transparent agencies should be independent from political pressures;

(b) The transparency process should be open to all affected parties and should give them an opportunity to provide inputs and to express their views;

(c) The agency's work programme should be limited to investigative fact-finding, economic analysis and policy advice; the agency should not be involved in trade policy-making;

(d) The studies undertaken should evaluate the economy-wide effects of protection. The Board pointed to the need for such studies to include an analysis of the entire gamut of domestic measures that impinged on trade, including anti-dumping and anti-subsidy actions, as well as, if possible, the impact of protection on trading partners, in particular the developing countries;

(e) The studies should be done by competent professionals using modern methods of economic analysis;

(f) In addition to policy advice work before the Government's decisions, review studies should also be conducted after the decisions have been taken.

76. The Board also felt that the manner in which those features would be implemented might depend on the institutional framework in each country. It was of the view that UNCTAD should follow developments with regard to the issues of transparency in the conduct of trade policies.

77. The Board also paid close attention to technical cooperation, which in its view should receive the highest priority and include information on the establishment of agencies, assistance in institution-building and training regarding appropriate economic methodology and data-gathering. In this connection, the Board invited the donor countries and donor agencies to support these efforts.

Least developed countries

78. The Board's Special Sessional Committee conducted the second annual review of progress in implementing the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s. All countries reaffirmed their commitment to all aspects of the Programme and to the Cartagena Commitment. The least developed countries reaffirmed that they would continue to enhance the implementation of national policy measures in line with the Programme. Their development partners reaffirmed that a significant and substantial increase in the aggregate level and improvement in the quality of external support should be made available to least developed countries.

79. In a separate decision, the Special Sessional Committee decided that the following two special issues would be the subject of in-depth review by the Board at its spring 1993 session:

(a) Domestic and external resource mobilization, including debt situation and management;

(b) Improving trading opportunities.

80. In accordance with the Cartagena Commitment, the donor countries reaffirmed their determination to implement the commitments they had undertaken in the Programme of Action with regard to official development assistance to the 41 countries, and to continue their efforts to meet the resource requirements of all least developed countries.

81. The Committee also decided to consider at the Board's spring session the question of the effects the countries newly added to the list of least developed countries would have on the additional resource requirements of the least developed country group as a whole.

82. Finally, the Committee urged donors to consider providing extrabudgetary resources to facilitate participation of least developed country delegations in the future reviews of the Programme of Action undertaken by the Trade and Development Board.

Agenda for Africa

83. The Board also discussed UNCTAD's possible contribution within its mandate to the United Nations New Agenda for the Development of Africa in the 1990s. The Board decided to request the Secretary-General to undertake Africa-specific studies, analyses and reports on a selected list of issue areas for consideration at its subsequent sessions.

84. It further decided that progress reports on UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the New Agenda should be presented to the Board at its spring session. The secretariat was asked to give priority to technical cooperation activities in Africa. Extrabudgetary resources were to be sought from potential donors to support UNCTAD's intensified contribution to the implementation of the New Agenda.

85. The Board also decided to evaluate UNCTAD's contribution to the implementation of the New Agenda every two years, taking into account the follow-up and monitoring mechanisms established by the General Assembly.

Transition to disarmament

86. The Board decided to establish an ad hoc working group to explore the issue of structural adjustment for the transition to disarmament and requested the Secretary-General to prepare a report on the activities of other United Nations organizations in this area and to indicate where UNCTAD could best play a role, as well as to prepare an estimate of the resource implications, draft terms of reference for the working group and a timetable of work.

Orientations and priorities

87. The Board recalled that the Conference, at its eighth session, had decided that the following four areas should serve as orientations for developing both fresh approaches to long-standing issues and insights for pursuing relevant new lines of work: a new international partnership for development; global interdependence; paths to development; and sustainable development.

88. It decided that the particular needs of Africa should be fully taken into account in the formulation of work programmes of the intergovernmental bodies of UNCTAD. It also decided that the following subprogrammes should be designated high-priority: international competition and trade policies, commodities, development finance and debt, investment and technology, poverty alleviation, global interdependence, enlarged economic spaces, privatization, environment and sustainable development, structural adjustment, trade efficiency, services development and least developed countries.

Methods of work

89. In view of the fruitful interaction that took place during the current session with experts and high-level officials, the Board encouraged the UNCTAD secretariat to continue making arrangements to associate experts with the deliberations of the Board. Delegations made a number of suggestions on how to improve this process.

IV. STATEMENTS OF POSITION

A. Comments following action by Sessional Committee I on agenda item 6

90. The representative of the Commission of the European Communities proposed changing formulations such as "consensus" in the Chairman's summary to read "the view was widely held ..." or "many participants felt that ...", etc., which he felt would more faithfully render the extent of agreement.

91. In reply to the comments of the representative of the Commission of the European Communities, the Chairman reiterated his earlier remarks that the summary reflected his impressions of the Committee's discussions on this item.

92. The representative of Mexico commended the summary, coming as it did at the end of discussions on the subject, as being particularly useful. Since it reflected the Chairman's conclusions, he believed that it was virtually inevitable that there would be slight nuances, particularly in the light of the large number of delegations expressing their views.

93. The representative of Colombia stated that, as a faithful reflection of the informal discussions, the Chairman's summary would be a good way to bring conclusions to the attention of the Board. He also noted that the advantages offered by such a summary would be appreciated in national capitals.

94. The representative of the United States of America stated that the experts had made an outstanding contribution to the informal discussions. The presentations had been an extraordinary demonstration of the high quality of debates in UNCTAD, free of unnecessary political agendas. Despite their erudite technical level, the ideas and concepts were of great value in terms of economic growth and broadening of approaches to this subject.

B. Statement made in connection with the communiqué of the President of the Board*

95. The representative of the Commission of the European Communities congratulated the President on the communiqué he had presented to the Board. He felt that the President had made a considerable effort and that the communiqué reflected the high standard of the discussions engaged in by the Board throughout its current session. Nevertheless, he wished to remark on one particular point in relation to the section of the communiqué that dealt with national transparency mechanisms. He noted that the language used to describe the six basic features the Board had identified for transparent mechanisms (cf. para. 75) was from the secretariat report on trade policies (TD/B/39(1)/3, para. 64). Those features had been discussed in Sessional Committee I and, in his summing-up, the Chairman of Sessional Committee I had stated that "there was a general consensus that the six features identified in paragraph 64 of the secretariat report (TD/B/39(1)/3) provided a good basis for transparency agencies" (cf. section II.B.4, para. 28). Citing the comments on the Chairman's summing-up made by the representative of the Commission of the European Communities in Sessional Committee I (see para. 90), he pointed out that it was not entirely correct to say that there was consensus on the six features. The Chairman of Sessional Committee I had not been ready to take up the Commission's proposal and to amend his summary: that was acceptable provided that his summing-up was published along with the Commission's remarks. Accordingly, while he understood that the communiqué was made on the President's own responsibility, he requested that his own statement be duly recorded in the report.

* For the communiqué, see section III.

V. PROCEDURAL, INSTITUTIONAL, ORGANIZATIONAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS

A. Opening of the session

96. In the absence of the President of the Board at its thirty-eighth session, Mr. Thomas Ogada (Kenya), the first part of the thirty-ninth session of the Trade and Development Board was opened by Mr. Jamtono Rahardjo (Indonesia), Vice-President.

C. Adoption of the agenda and organization of the work of the session

(Agenda item 1 (b))

99. At its 807th meeting, on 28 September, the Board's attention was drawn to two additions to the provisional agenda: a sub-item entitled "Report of the Working Party on the Medium-term Plan and the Programme Budget on its twenty-first session (31 August-8 September 1992)" had been added under item 11 (Other matters requiring action by the Board arising from or related to reports and activities of its subsidiary and other bodies); and, by decision of the first (pre-sessional) executive session of the Board, a new agenda item entitled "Board decision 398 (XXXVIII): Establishment of an ad hoc working group to explore the issue of structural adjustment for the transition to disarmament" had been included as item 13. Consequently, the items 13 and 14 of the provisional agenda had been renumbered 14 and 15, respectively.

100. Having noted the above amendments, the Board adopted the provisional agenda for the first part of its thirty-ninth session in document TD/B/39(1)/1. The agenda as adopted was subsequently circulated in document TD/B/39(1)/9. (The agenda as adopted is reproduced in annex I.)

101. At the same meeting, the Board endorsed the proposals for the organization of work of the session contained in document TD/B/39(1)/Add.1.

D. Establishment of sessional bodies

102. At its 807th meeting, on 28 September, the Board established two sessional committees of the whole, allocating agenda items to them for consideration and report as follows:

103. The Board further agreed that, during the second week of the session, Sessional Committee II would convert itself into a Special Sessional Committee to consider and report on item 7 (Review of progress in the implementation of the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the 1990s). It was understood that Sessional Committee II and the Special Sessional Committee would have the same office-bearers.

110. At its 5th meeting, on 13 October, the Special Sessional Committee adopted its draft report (TD/B/39(1)/SC.II/L.2 and Add.1 and 2) and authorized the Rapporteur to complete the report as appropriate.

Action by the Board

111. At its 816th meeting, on 14 October, the Board took note of the reports of Sessional Committees I and II and of the Special Sessional Committee and decided to incorporate them into the report of the Board on the first part of its thirty-ninth session, as appropriate.

At the 809th meeting, on 29 September, the President drew attention to the fact that the item entitled "Membership of the Trade and Development Board" had been referred to the pre-sessional executive session, when action had been taken on two applications (Armenia and Equatorial Guinea). In the interim, a further application had been received, from Georgia.

124. At the same meeting, the Board admitted Georgia to membership of the Trade and Development Board, bringing its membership to 135.

J. Membership of the Working Party on the Medium-term Plan and the Programme Budget for 1993

(Agenda item 12 (c))

125. The Board dealt with this sub-item at its first executive session, on 21 September. (See TD/B/EX(1)/4, para. 66.)

K. Designation of intergovernmental bodies for the purposes of rule 76 of the rules of procedure of the Board

(Agenda item 12 (d))

126. At its 809th meeting, on 29 September, the Board took note that there were no applications for status from intergovernmental organizations before the Board at the first part of its thirty-ninth session.

L. Designation and classification of non-governmental organizations for the purposes of rule 77 of the rules of procedure of the Board

(Agenda item 12 (e))

127. At its 809th meeting, on 29 September, the Board decided to designate and classify the following six non-governmental organizations for the purposes of rule 77 of the rules of procedure, as follows:

General category:

Association of African Trading Enterprises (ASATRADE)
(TD/B/30(1)/R.1/Add.5);

Special category:

Association of Export Credit Insurance Organizations (known as the Dakar Union) (TD/B/39(1)/R.1/Add.1) - to attend meetings of the Standing Committee on Developing Services Sectors;

World Association of Industrial and Technological Research Organizations (WAITRO) (TD/B/39(1)/R.1/Add.2) - to attend meetings of the Ad Hoc Working Group on Investment and Technology Transfer;

Baltic Exchange Limited (TD/B/39(1)/R.1/Add.3) - to attend meetings of the Standing Committee on Developing Services Sectors;

Rural Advancement Foundation International (RAFI)
(TD/B/39(1)/R.1/Add.4) - to attend meetings of the Standing Committee on Commodities;

Latin American Association of Navigational Law and Law of the Sea (ALDENAVE) (TD/B/39(1)/R.1/Add.6) - to attend meetings of the Standing Committee on Developing Services Sectors.

128. In addition to the subsidiary bodies to which they had been designated, all of these non-governmental organizations were entitled to attend meetings of the Trade and Development Board.

129. Also under this item, the Board noted that the International Association of State Trading Organizations of Developing Countries (ASTRO), which had been granted general category status by the Board at the second part of its thirty-third session, had changed its name to the International Association of Trading Organizations for a Developing World. The acronym "ASTRO" remained unchanged.

130. Referring to the question of the proposed reclassification of non-governmental organizations that were already in status with UNCTAD in the special category, the President drew attention to the note by the UNCTAD secretariat (TD/B/39(1)/CRP.5 and Corr.1) and recalled that such non-governmental organizations had originally been classified on the basis of the special interest in one or two of the former main committees.

131. In view of this, the Board agreed that a number of non-governmental organizations should be reclassified in order to bring their classification into line with the new Standing Committees and Ad Hoc Working Groups on an interim basis, pending the results of consultations the Secretary-General of UNCTAD would have with the organizations concerned to ascertain their wishes regarding their future association with UNCTAD.

M. Review of the calendar of meetings

(Agenda item 12 (f))

132. For its consideration of this item, the Trade and Development Board had before it a note by the secretariat containing a draft calendar for the period up to 14 May 1993 and a draft indicative calendar for the remainder of 1993 (TD/B/39(1)/L.2).

133. At its 816th meeting, on 14 October, the Trade and Development Board formalized the inclusion of the meeting of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Iron Ore and the meeting of the Intergovernmental Group of Experts on Tungsten in the calendar of meetings. It also requested the Standing Committee on Commodities to review the status of these two bodies and to decide on their activities from 1993 onwards.

134. At the same meeting, the Trade and Development Board approved the draft calendar of meetings for the period up to 14 May 1993 and the draft indicative calendar of meetings for the remainder of 1993, with two amendments (for the calendar and indicative calendar of meetings as adopted, see TD/B/39/INF.2).

N. Administrative and financial implications of the actions of the Board

(Agenda item 12 (g))

135. At its 816th meeting, on 14 October, the Board noted that the administrative and financial implications of the decision taken at the current session of the Board in establishing the new ad hoc working group to explore the issue of structural adjustment for the transition to disarmament would involve deployment of staff resources of UNCTAD and conference facilities. However, those costs would be absorbed in the resources already provided in the programme budget for the Board's subsidiary bodies and relevant provisions.

O. Other business

(Agenda item 14)

1. Membership of the new Standing Committees and Ad Hoc Working Groups

136. At its 816th meeting, on 14 October, the Board confirmed the membership of the four Standing Committees and the core membership of the five Ad Hoc Working Groups as reflected in document TD/B/39(1)/CRP.4/Rev.1, and noted that, since the publication of that document, the Secretary-General of UNCTAD had received further replies from Governments, which would be circulated in an addendum to the document.

137. At the same meeting, the Board mandated the Bureau and the Secretary-General of UNCTAD to consider and take a decision on any further applications received prior to the second part of its thirty-ninth session.

2. Arrangements for the Bureaux of the Standing Committees and Ad Hoc Working Groups

138. Also at the 816th meeting, the Secretary-General of UNCTAD recalled that, at the first (pre-sessional) executive session of the Board, it had been agreed that the rules of procedure of the main committees of the Trade and Development Board should be applied to the new Standing Committees, albeit in as flexible a manner as possible. It had also been agreed that the officers of those Committees should be elected in accordance with the applicable rules of procedure, taking into account the principles of equitable geographical distribution and rotation. With regard to the Ad Hoc Working Groups, the agreement was that the rules of procedure of the Board would be applied, again in as flexible a manner as possible, and that the Bureaux of those groups would have the same composition as those of the main committees of the Board.

139. At his most recent consultations with representatives of States members of the Bureau of the Board and interested delegations, questions had been raised about modalities for the election of chairpersons and other members of the bureaux of the new bodies and their terms of office. The outcome of those discussions was that participants had reaffirmed that the principle of equitable geographical distribution should be applied to the election of the members of the Bureau of each of the new bodies. So far as the Standing Committees were concerned, the Chairpersons and members of the Bureau of each Committee would be chosen on the basis of equitable geographical distribution at the beginning of each new session. In the case of the Ad Hoc Working Groups, the Chairperson and members of the Bureau, once elected on the basis of equitable geographical distribution at the beginning of their initial sessions, would remain in office for the duration of the life of the Group. Finally delegations, with the assistance of the secretariat, would hold prior consultations in order to reach agreement beforehand on the membership of the Bureau of each of the new bodies.

140. At the same meeting, the Board endorsed the recommendations of the Secretary-General of UNCTAD in the above statement.

P. Adoption of the report of the Board

(Agenda item 15)

141. At its 816th meeting, on 14 October, the Board adopted its draft report (TD/B/39(1)/L.3 and Add.1-9) and authorized the Rapporteur to complete the final version as appropriate. It further authorized the Rapporteur, under the authority of the President, to prepare the Board's report to the General Assembly.
