Reaffirming also the necessity to take into account sanitation in complementarity with water, in conjunction with the International Decade for Action, “Water for Life”, 2005–2015,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General on the International Year of Sanitation, 2008,⁹

Appreciating the ongoing work in the United Nations system and the work of other intergovernmental organizations on sanitation,

Noting the holding of the fifth World Water Forum in Istanbul, Turkey, from 16 to 22 March 2009, and noting also that the sixth World Water Forum will be held in Marseille, France, in March 2012,

Noting with appreciation the contribution made by the Advisory Board on Water and Sanitation, and noting its recent work on the Hashimoto Action Plan II,

Deeply concerned by the slow and insufficient progress in providing access to basic sanitation services, as evidenced by the 2010 report of the World Health Organization and the United Nations Children’s Fund,¹⁰ in which it was noted that 2.6 billion people continue to lack basic sanitation, and conscious of the impact of the lack of sanitation on people’s health, poverty reduction, economic and social development and the environment, in particular water resources,

Convinced that progress through action at the national and local levels in developing countries can be achieved through the active commitment of all Member States, with the support of the international community,

Noting the efforts of the Sanitation and Water for All partnership, and acknowledging the successes achieved through the community-led total sanitation approach, particularly in the context of hygiene promotion, behavioural change and sanitation progress,

Noting also regional efforts in the field of sanitation, such as the African Ministers’ Council on Water and those within the framework of the New Partnership for Africa’s Development,¹¹

1. Calls upon all Member States to support the global effort to realize “Sustainable sanitation: the five-year drive to 2015” by redoubling efforts to close the sanitation gap through scaled-up ground-level action, supported by strong political will, increased community participation and improved hygiene, in accordance with national development strategies, by promoting the mobilization and provision of adequate financial and technological resources, technical know-how and capacity-building for developing countries and by developing appropriate human resources in order to improve hygiene and to increase the coverage of basic sanitation, especially for the poor;

¹¹ A/57/304, annex.

2. Encourages all States, as well as the United Nations system and all other relevant stakeholders, to take advantage of “Sustainable sanitation: the five-year drive to 2015” as a platform on which to build political will and promote action at all levels, while increasing awareness of the urgent need to reach the goal set out in the Johannesburg Plan of Implementation to halve by 2015 the proportion of people without access to basic sanitation;³

3. Invites all Member States to increase political prioritization, to promote evidence-based decision-making and to support strong national planning processes in order to better target funding for basic sanitation and drinking water to achieve the internationally agreed targets set out in the United Nations Millennium Declaration¹² and the Johannesburg Plan of Implementation, including halving by 2015 the proportion of people who are unable to reach or afford safe drinking water and who do not have access to basic sanitation;

4. Notes the efforts of countries that are participating in all relevant voluntary initiatives related to water and sanitation, including the Sanitation and Water for All partnership, to share their experience with interested Member States;

5. Urges all Member States, the United Nations system and all other relevant stakeholders to encourage behavioural change together with policies for increasing access to sanitation among the poor, complemented by a call to end open defecation as an extremely harmful practice for public health, and encourages Member States to further strengthen investments in sanitation and hygiene education;

6. Encourages all Member States, as well as the United Nations system and international organizations and other stakeholders, to approach the sanitation issue in a much broader context and to encompass all its aspects, including hygiene promotion, provision of basic sanitation services, sewerage, and wastewater treatment and reuse in the context of integrated water management.
