Page 9, lines 14-18

Delete the sentence "He did not think ... part of international law." and substitute the following:

"He thought that offenses against international law were outside the scope of the covenant, because those offenses were covered by other international conventions, for example, the international convention on genocide and the international convention on war crimes now being drafted by the International Law Commission. With respect to the principles of the Nürnberg judgment, they already formed part of general international law and there was nothing the Commission could do to abrogate or add validity to those principles."
