5. At present, invitations have been received from the Governments of Mexico and Austria to locate the central secretariat in their respective countries. These invitations have been accompanied by offers to provide accommodation and other facilities for the central secretariat. The Secretary-General has arranged meetings between members of the United Nations Secretariat and representatives of the Governments of Mexico and Austria to explore the details of these offers in order to arrive at a full understanding of the consequences of acceptance and their financial implications.

6. Until these consultations have been completed, it will not be possible to present any quantitative statement of financial implications either in Mexico or Austria. As soon as quantitative information can be provided regarding the implications of locating the central secretariat in Mexico or Austria, it will be issued as a further addendum.
