Letter dated 26 May 2015 from the Permanent Representative of Azerbaijan to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

Upon instructions from my Government, I have the honour to transmit herewith a summary of the reaction of the international community to the unlawful so-called “parliamentary elections” organized by the Republic of Armenia on 3 May 2015 in the occupied territories of the Republic of Azerbaijan (see annex).

I should be grateful if you would have the present letter and its annex circulated as a document of the General Assembly, under agenda items 33 and 38, and of the Security Council.

Annex to the letter dated 26 May 2015 from the Permanent Representative of Azerbaijan to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

Reaction of the international community to the unlawful so-called “parliamentary elections” organized by Armenia on 3 May 2015 in the occupied territories of Azerbaijan

On 3 May 2015, the Republic of Armenia conducted the so-called “elections” to the “parliament” of the puppet separatist regime that it had established in the occupied territories of the Republic of Azerbaijan.

The international community has overwhelmingly united with the Republic of Azerbaijan in rejecting this mock “election” exercise and not recognizing as legitimate the situation created through the use of force against the territorial integrity of Azerbaijan, accompanied by the notorious practice of ethnic cleansing and other flagrant violations of the peremptory norms of international law, as reflected in the statements by the European Union, the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), the Organization of Islamic Cooperation, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, by the Russian Federation, France and the United States of America, both individually and in their capacity as Co-Chairs of the OSCE Minsk Group, and by many other countries.

Below are excerpts from statements made by international organizations and individual States.^a

In his statement made on 22 April 2015, the Secretary-General of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC), Iyad Ameen Madani, condemned the “elections” in the occupied Nagorno-Karabakh region of the Republic of Azerbaijan and stated that the “elections” are illegal and in contravention of the resolutions of the United Nations Security Council, the Organization of Islamic Cooperation and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe. The OIC Secretary-General called upon the international community to condemn the “elections” as illegitimate and reiterated “the constant principled position of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation supporting the efforts made by the Republic of Azerbaijan towards a peaceful solution to the territorial conflict in the frame of the relevant international resolutions and on the basis of respect for the principles of territorial integrity of States and inviolability of internationally recognized borders”.^b

The Co-Chairs of the OSCE Minsk Group, Igor Popov of the Russian Federation, James Warlick of the United States of America, and Pierre Andrieu of France, in their statement dated 30 April 2015, noted, inter alia, that “none of [their] three countries, nor any other country, recognizes Nagorno-Karabakh as an independent and sovereign state”. The Co-Chairs stated that they “do not accept the results of these ‘elections’ as affecting the legal status of Nagorno-Karabakh”, and stressed that “they in no way prejudice the final status of Nagorno-Karabakh or the outcome of the ongoing negotiations to bring a lasting and peaceful settlement to the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict”.^c

The Spokesperson of the European External Action Service of the European Union, Catherine Ray, stated on 1 May 2015 that “in view of ... ‘parliamentary elections’ in Nagorno-Karabakh on 3 May, ... the European Union does not recognize the constitutional and legal framework within which they are being held” and that “these procedures cannot prejudice the determination of the future status of Nagorno-Karabakh or impact on the negotiation process”.^d

The Chairperson-in-Office of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), Ivica Dacic, stated on 4 May 2015 that “talks are under way, aimed at reaching a long-term, peaceful solution to the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict, and ‘parliamentary elections’ held in the area do not impact either the talks or their outcome in any way”. He further reiterated that “OSCE does not recognize the independence of Nagorno-Karabakh or the results of the ‘parliamentary elections’”.^e

The Deputy Assistant Secretary-General for Political Affairs and Security Policy of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and the NATO Secretary-General’s Special Representative for the Caucasus and Central Asia, James Appathurai, stated on 4 May 2014 that, “with regard to the ‘parliamentary elections’ ... in Nagorno-Karabakh, NATO does not accept the results of these ‘elections’ as affecting the legal status of Nagorno-Karabakh, nor do they prejudice the outcome of the ongoing negotiations to bring a lasting and peaceful settlement to the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict”.^f

The Federal Department of Foreign Affairs of Switzerland stated on 17 March 2015 that “in accordance with the principles of international law and in full respect of the territorial integrity and sovereignty of the Republic of Azerbaijan, it considers the so-called election ... null and void”.^g

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Latvia stated on 17 March 2015 that “[it] has never recognized the so-called election in Nagorno-Karabakh and will not recognize the upcoming ‘parliamentary elections’ in May” and expressed its conviction that “the conflict over Nagorno-Karabakh should be resolved only by using peaceful means, based on the basic principles of international law and the sovereignty and territorial integrity of countries”.^h

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Russian Federation stated on 5 March 2015 that Russia “does not recognize Nagorno-Karabakh as an independent state” and “does not believe that the process of peaceful settlement of the conflict could depend on holding ‘parliamentary elections’ there”. According to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Russian Federation, “it is important now for the parties to concentrate on resolving outstanding issues which impede the beginning of work on the peace agreement itself”, and “Russia, for its part, will assist the parties in reaching a sustainable peace settlement in close collaboration with co-chair partners”.ⁱ

As the French Co-Chair of the OSCE Minsk Group, Pierre Andrieu, noted on 29 April 2015, “nobody recognizes this so-called ‘Nagorno-Karabakh Republic’”, “and for us, these elections, certainly, will be illegitimate”.^j

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Turkey stated on 30 April 2015 that the “so-called ‘parliamentary elections’ ... in Nagorno-Karabakh, which has been under occupation of Armenia for more than 20 years, ... constitute a clear breach of the principles of international law, United Nations Security Council resolutions and the principles of OSCE” and “is an attempt to hamper the efforts to bring a lasting solution to the Nagorno Karabakh conflict through peaceful means”. Turkey condemned that action as a new violation of the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Azerbaijan, stated its non-recognition of the results of the illegitimate elections and reiterated its support for the efforts to find a just and lasting solution to the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict.^k

The United States Department of State stated on 1 May 2015 that “the United States does not recognize Nagorno-Karabakh as an independent sovereign state and, accordingly, ... will not accept the results of the elections on 3 May as affecting the legal status of Nagorno-Karabakh”.^l

In its statement of 1 May 2015 regarding the so-called “parliamentary elections” in Nagorno-Karabakh, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Cooperation of Spain reiterated that “these elections are not valid or legitimate”, noting in particular that “this territory seceded by force, against international law, and has not been recognized by Azerbaijan”. The Government of Spain called upon the parties “to move forward with negotiations, in order to stop upholding the current status quo and achieve a long-lasting political solution to the conflict in Nagorno-Karabakh, in application of the basic principles of the United Nations Charter and the Helsinki Final Act, which will allow for a strengthening of peace and security in the region”.^m

In its statement of 4 May 2015, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Czech Republic underlined that “the Czech Republic does not recognize the constitutional and legal framework within which these elections were being held” and that “such unilateral acts do not contribute to the strengthening of mutual confidence and
