Bearing in mind that the terms of reference of the Sub-Commission on Economic Development, whose functions now fall to the Economic, Employment and Development Commission, include " studying the effects of industrialization and changes of a technological order upon the world economic situation ",

Commending the Economic and Social Council for the action it has initiated in paragraph 22 of resolution 290 (XI) on full employment, by which the Secretary-General is requested to appoint a group of experts to prepare, in the light of the current world economic situation and of the requirements of economic development, a report on the national and international measures required to reduce unemployment and under-employment in under-developed countries,

Realizing that the mechanization of production essential for increased productivity would give rise to unemployment or under-employment unless action were taken simultaneously to create additional employment opportunities in the economy as a whole,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to impress upon the group of experts to be appointed by him under paragraph 22 of Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI) the necessity of giving special consideration in the course of their work to the need for the formulation of :

(i) Comprehensive action programmes of economic development which will utilize rationally and to an increasing extent the manpower and natural resources of the under-developed countries, thereby preventing any aggravation of their problems of unemployment and under-employment that would otherwise occur as a result of the mechanization of production in certain branches of industry and agriculture; and

(ii) Measures of social security which will ensure that there will be no interruption in the earnings of workers temporarily unemployed through mechanization or technological progress;

2. Requests the Secretary-General and the specialized agencies concerned, in facilitating the work of the above group of experts, to bear this resolution in mind.

The General Assembly,

Considering the antecedents and contents of resolution 290 (XI) of the Economic and Social Council which studies the national and international measures required to achieve full employment,

Considering that this study may provide, in general, an effective basis for the adoption of such measures in the economically advanced countries, and

Bearing in mind the desirability of extending such studies more particularly to the economically under-developed countries, the advancement of which the United Nations is endeavouring to promote,

(a) Notes resolution 290 (XI) of the Economic and Social Council;

(b) Congratulates the Economic and Social Council on the valuable work it has accomplished in preparing that important resolution; and

(c) Commends to its attention the desirability of continuing such studies and of extending them in particular to the national and international measures required for the solution of the problem of full employment in the economically under-developed countries.

Redraft paragraph 1 of the operative part as follows :

" 1. Recommends the Secretary-General, in co-operation with the specialized agencies concerned, and taking into account the different degrees of development of the requesting countries, to classify and publish, preferably in the form of practical handbooks which may serve to guide the less developed countries :

" (a) The requests for technical assistance relative to the implementation of Economic and Social resolution 290 (XI);

" (b) The measures taken to meet these requests, including the methods advised and the programmes carried out in this regard. "

[Original text : English]
[9 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions takes note that the financial implications of draft resolution C proposed by the Second Committee in document A/1627 are estimated in the relevant report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/441) at $50,000 for the years 1951 and 1952.

2. The Secretary-General has further reported that the estimated expenditure could either be met within the provision proposed for section 28 of the budget estimates—Technical assistance for economic development—or alternatively be charged against the Special Account for Technical Assistance.

3. The Advisory Committee recommends that an estimate of $25,000 for the purposes of the draft resolution should be approved, in respect of 1951, under section 28 of the budget estimates, this sum to be absorbed within the total provision of $479,400 already approved by the Fifth Committee in the first reading of the 1951 estimates.

Financial implications of draft resolution C proposed by the Second Committee : report of the Secretary-General

[8 December 1950]

1. The Second Committee has transmitted to the General Assembly a resolution, contained in A/C.5/421, which proposes the preparation of materials for the guidance of governments in connexion with the organization and collection of employment data.

2. Whilst a number of the publications produced by the United Nations and the specialized agencies will be of assistance to governments, the application of the methods set up in these publications to countries at an early stage of economic development require to be developed.

3. The extra cost of the preparation of the material requested by the resolution is estimated at approximately $50,000, spread over a period of two years. This sum represents salaries of staff, fees of consultants, and the printing and reproduction of the guides. This estimate does not include any provision for field assistance which might be requested by individual countries in the application of the procedures, methods and other suggestions made to give effect to the resolution, nor does it include the work which will need to be undertaken by the Food and Agriculture Organization in the case of agriculture statistics, the International Labour Organization in connexion with employment and wage statistics, or by the International Monetary Fund in connexion with improvements of balance of payments statistics. Close liaison would of course be maintained with the specialized agencies concerned with aspects of this work.

4. The estimated expenditure set out above, namely $50,000, over a period of two years, would be borne from the funds available under section 28—technical assistance for economic development—or from the Special Account which has been set up for technical assistance for economic development. There would therefore be no additional financial implications to the United Nations' budget.

Report of the Second Committee

[6 December 1950]

1. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting held on 26 September 1950, decided to place on the agenda of its fifth session the item "Action to achieve and maintain full employment and economic stability: report of the Economic and Social Council", and to allocate it to the Second Committee for consideration and report.

2. In connexion with this item, the Second Committee had before it the report of the Economic and Social Council to the fifth session of the General Assembly (A/1345) containing a chapter entitled "Full Employment" (chapter III). This chapter gives an account of the activities of the Council in the field of full employment during its tenth and eleventh sessions and describes the action taken by the Council in response to General Assembly resolution 308 (IV) of 25 November 1949 on full employment.

3. The Second Committee considered the item during eight meetings³. The first five meetings were devoted to a general debate in which twenty-nine delegations took part, as well as representatives of the International Labour Organisation and the Food and Agriculture Organization.

4. At the conclusion of the general debate, the Committee had before it the following specific proposals:

(a) Full employment (Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI)) : proposals concerning the Council resolution were contained in part A of a draft resolution submitted by Chile (A/C.2/L.70/Rev.1) and in a draft resolution submitted by Uruguay (A/C.2/L.73).

(b) Current world economic situation : a proposal relating to the examination of the world economic situation by the twelfth session of the Economic and Social Council was contained in part B of a draft resolution submitted by Chile (A/C.2/L.70/Rev.1).

(c) Guides for organization and collection of economic data in under-developed countries : a draft resolution submitted by Cuba (A/C.2/L.71).

(d) Mechanization and unemployment in under-developed countries : a draft resolution submitted by Cuba (A/C.2/L.72).

³ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Fifth Session, Second Committee, 137th to 144th meetings.

FULL EMPLOYMENT

5. The proposal contained in part A of the Chilean draft resolution as revised by its sponsor (A/C.2/L.70/Rev.1) noted with satisfaction Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI) and invited governments to comply with its terms and to co-operate with the Secretary-General in carrying out the tasks entrusted to him by that resolution. The draft resolution submitted by Uruguay (A/C.2/L.73) noted the Council resolution, congratulated the Council on the work accomplished and commended to its attention the desirability of continuing its efforts in the field of full employment, particularly with respect to under-developed countries. The Committee considered these proposals at its 142nd and 143rd meetings. After the representative of Chile had orally revised his proposal to take account of the points made in the Uruguayan draft, the representative of Uruguay withdrew his draft resolution. The Committee then considered simultaneously both part A and another Chilean proposal contained in part B of the Chilean draft resolution (see also paragraphs 8 to 11 below, concerning the Committee's action on part B). Several oral amendments were offered to the revised Chilean draft by the representatives of Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, Peru and the United States of America. As a result, a new revision (A/C.2/L.70/Rev.2) of the Chilean draft resolution was submitted to the Committee and sponsored also by Pakistan, Peru and Uruguay. Before voting on this joint draft resolution, the Committee agreed to treat parts A and B as two separate resolutions.

6. At its 143rd meeting, part A of the joint draft resolution was adopted by 37 votes to 5, with 1 abstention. In adopting the resolution, it was the sense of the Committee that the Secretary-General should, in view of the rapidly changing economic conditions in the world, regard himself as authorized to use his discretion with respect to the time period to be covered by the special questionnaire referred to in paragraphs 11 and 13 (b) of Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI) so as not to ask governments to submit estimates of their balance of international payments for a longer period than they can now reasonably be expected to supply.

7. The Second Committee accordingly recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution A annexed to the present report.

CURRENT WORLD ECONOMIC SITUATION

8. Part B of the draft resolution as revised by Chile (A/C.2/L.70/Rev.1) dealt with the need for discussion by the Economic and Social Council at its twelfth session of current international economic problems in connexion with the Council's examination of the world economic situation, so that the Council might be in a position to make recommendations to governments and to the General Assembly concerning measures designed to make possible the uninterrupted progress of programmes of economic stability and development. This draft resolution also proposed arrangements for obtaining the views of the members of the Council and of the other Members of the United Nations concerning this matter prior to the opening of the twelfth session of the Council.

9. Part B of the Chilean draft resolution was considered by the Committee simultaneously with part A and the Committee's consideration of the proposal is described in paragraph 5 above.

10. The Committee adopted the draft resolution contained in part B of the joint draft resolution submitted by Chile, Pakistan, Peru and Uruguay (A/C.2/L.70/Rev.2) by 37 votes to none, with 6 abstentions.

11. The Second Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution B annexed to the present report.

GUIDES FOR ORGANIZATION AND COLLECTION OF ECONOMIC DATA IN UNDER-DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

12. The draft resolution submitted by Cuba in A/C.2/L.71 was considered by the Committee at its 143rd and 144th meetings. The proposal recommended that the Secretary-General, in co-operation with the specialized agencies concerned, should prepare material which would be of help to under-developed countries in organizing and collecting economic data in connexion with Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI); it further affirmed that any expenses involved could be charged to the Special Account set up under Economic and Social Council resolution 222 A (IX) relating to technical assistance. An amendment to the resolution submitted by Pakistan and Peru (A/C.2/L.74) was subsequently withdrawn by its sponsors after a statement by the representative of the Secretary-General that the request regarding the preparation of such material could be carried out provided financial resources were available.

13. An oral amendment by the representative of the United States to delete the last operative paragraph of the draft resolution covering the method of financing the work requested of the Secretary-General was adopted by 24 votes to 7, with 15 abstentions. After several oral revisions by the sponsor and an oral amendment by Australia, accepted by the sponsor, the draft resolution, as amended, was adopted unanimously by the Committee.

14. In adopting this resolution the Committee expressed the view that, while it wished to ensure that the work described in the resolution would be carried out, it had deleted the last operative paragraph of the original Cuban draft resolution (A/C.2/L.71) because it did not deem it advisable to make any decision concerning the method by which this work was to be financed.

15. The Second Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution C annexed to the present report.

MECHANIZATION AND UNEMPLOYMENT IN UNDER-DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

16. The draft resolution submitted by Cuba (A/C.2/L.72) on mechanization and unemployment in under-developed countries was considered by the Committee at its 144th meeting. After several oral revisions by the sponsor and oral amendments by the representatives of Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States all accepted by the sponsor, the draft resolution, as amended, was adopted unanimously.

17. The Second Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution D annexed to the present report.

DRAFT RESOLUTION A

Full employment

The General Assembly,

Considering that the Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 290 (XI) concerning full employment, has formulated recommendations to governments designed to strengthen the resistance of their national economies and of the international economic structure against the danger of recession,

Considering that the additional studies which the Secretary-General and the various groups of experts are requested to undertake by that resolution are designed to provide a sound basis for the adoption of national and international measures tending to ensure full employment, both in economically advanced and in under-developed countries,

1. Notes with satisfaction the vigorous action taken by the Economic and Social Council in connexion with full employment;

2. Invites Governments to co-operate with the Secretary-General in carrying out the tasks entrusted to him.

DRAFT RESOLUTION B

Current world economic situation

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind that, as a result of the international events of the last few months, new economic factors have appeared which may unbalance and dislocate the general economic stability and the economic progress of many countries,

Recognizing that, under Articles 55 and 56 of the Charter, the United Nations is under an obligation to use all the means at its disposal to ensure the steady growth of the world economy and to prevent the emergence of those factors of economic disequilibrium which impair general economic stability and disturb the economic development of the under-developed countries,

1. Requests the Economic and Social Council, when examining the world economic situation during its twelfth session, to pay special attention to changes currently taking place in the international economic situation, with a view to recommending to governments and to the General Assembly measures designed to make possible the uninterrupted progress of programmes of economic stability and development;

2. Invites all the members of the Economic and Social Council to submit to the twelfth session of the Council their views concerning the way in which the current world situation has affected their economic progress and the prospects of continuing world economic expansion, and, if possible, to communicate these views, through the Secretary-General, to the Council before the opening of its twelfth session;

3. Invites all the other Members of the United Nations similarly to submit their views to the Council, with the object of assisting the Council in its task of recommending measures referred to in paragraph 1 above to the governments and to the General Assembly.

DRAFT RESOLUTION C

Guides for organization and collection of economic data in under-developed countries.

The General Assembly,

Noting that the Economic and Social Council, in resolution 290 (XI) of 15 August 1950, inter alia,

(a) Recommended that governments should furnish the Secretary-General with a wide range of economic and statistical information relating to the implementation of that resolution,

(b) Stated that "Having regard to the fact that, in some predominantly agricultural countries, figures for unemployment and under-employment may not be easily ascertainable and full employment goals may, if related only to industrial labour, lead to misleading conclusions, and that, consequently, it may not be possible for such countries to implement certain provisions of this resolution",

(c) Invited the International Labour Organisation to take all feasible further steps towards the practical implementation of the recommendations of the Sixth International Conference of Labour Statisticians, in order to facilitate international comparability of employment and unemployment data, with special reference to their use in the formulation of full employment standards and annual employment goals, policies and programmes,

Being aware that the Economic and Social Council, in part E of the above-mentioned resolution, recommended that the Secretary-General and the specialized agencies should provide, within their capacities, technical assistance to governments, on their request, for the purpose of assisting under-developed countries in this respect,

Recommends that the Secretary-General and the specialized agencies, taking into account the different institutional circumstances in the under-developed countries, prepare material which may serve to guide governments wishing to make use thereof and which should set forth :

(a) The types of data considered necessary to provide up-to-date information regarding the level of economic activity, employment, unemployment and under-employment;

(b) Procedures and methods suitable for obtaining and presenting such data;

(c) Other suggestions relating to the organization of adequate government machinery necessary for obtaining the said data.

DRAFT RESOLUTION D

Mechanization and unemployment in under-developed countries

The General Assembly,

Having in mind that, at its fourth session, it expressed its belief that " action is needed to overcome unemployment and under-employment such as that arising, particularly in under-developed countries, among large numbers of people engaged in agricultural pursuits; and that, to this end, it is necessary, inter alia, to stimulate the economic development of under-developed countries, " ⁴

Having noted that the group of experts appointed by the Secretary-General under Economic and Social Council resolution 221 E (IX) of 11 August 1949 to report on national and international measures required to achieve and maintain full employment has expressed the view that in the under-developed countries a large part of the population could be diverted from agricultural occupations without any decrease in agricultural output, and that " the only remedy for this form of disguised unemployment is economic development, which constitutes the major economic problem of the world " ,⁵

Bearing in mind that terms of reference of the Sub-Commission on Economic Development, whose functions now fall to the Economic, Employment and Development Commission, include " studying the effects of industrialization and changes of a technological order upon the world economic situation " ,

Commending the Economic and Social Council for the action it has initiated in paragraph 22 of resolution 290 (XI) on full employment, by which the Secretary-General is requested to appoint a group of experts to prepare, in the light of the current world economic situation and of the requirements of economic development, a report on the national and international measures required to reduce unemployment and under-employment in under-developed countries,

Realizing that the mechanization of production essential for increased productivity may in many cases give rise to unemployment unless additional employment opportunities already exist or are simultaneously created in the economy as a whole,

1. Requests the Secretary-General to impress upon the group of experts to be appointed by him under paragraph 22 of Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI) the necessity of giving due consideration in the course of their work to :

(i) Ways and means of preventing any aggravation of the problems of unemployment and under-employment in under-developed countries that may occur as a result of the mechanization of production in certain branches of industry and agriculture;

(ii) Measures of social security designed to ensure that there will be no interruption in the income of workers temporarily unemployed through mechanization or technological progress, taking into account the work of the International Labour Organisation in this field;

2. Requests the Secretary-General and the specialized agencies concerned, in facilitating the work of the above group of experts, to bear in mind the present resolution.

⁵ National and International Measures for Full Employment. United Nations Publications, Sales No. 1949.II.A.3.

Report of the Fifth Committee

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS OF DRAFT RESOLUTION C PROPOSED BY THE SECOND COMMITTEE (A/1627)

[Original text : English]
[11 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and with the request of the President in his letter of 29 November 1950 to the proposed by the Second Committee regarding action to achieve and maintain full employment and economic stability (A/1627).

Chairman of the Fifth Committee (A/C.5/421), the Fifth Committee, at its 278th meeting on 11 December 1950, considered the financial implications of draft resolution C

2. The Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/441) to the effect that the extra cost of the preparation of the material requested under draft resolution C was estimated at approximately $50,000 spread over a period of two years—representing salaries of staff, fees of consultants and the printing and reproduction of the proposed guides. The Secretary-General pointed out that this estimate did not include any provision for field assistance which might be requested by individual countries in the application of the procedures, methods and other suggestions that had been made in connexion with the implementation of the resolution, nor did it include provision for work which will need to be undertaken by various specialized agencies. The Secretary-General proposed that the estimated expenditure should be borne from funds available under section 28 of the budget estimates (technical assistance for economic development) or from the Special Account which has been set up for such assistance. Consequently there would be no additional financial implications to the United Nations budget.

3. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in its thirty-seventh report of 1950 (A/1654) recommended that an estimate of $25,000 for the purposes of the draft resolution should be approved in respect of 1951 under section 28 of the budget estimates, this sum to be absorbed within the total proposed provision of $479,400.

4. The Fifth Committee unanimously approved the Advisory Committee's recommendation, and therefore decided to inform the General Assembly that adoption of the draft resolution of the Second Committee will involve expenditure in 1951 of $25,000 which, however, can be absorbed within the total proposed appropriation for section 28.

DOCUMENT A/1359

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[14 September 1950]

1. The provisional agenda of the fifth session of the General Assembly (A/1293) contains the following item:

“ 28. Economic development of under-developed countries; report of the Economic and Social Council (resolution 306 (IV) of 16 November 1949) ”.

2. The General Assembly in resolution 306 (IV) recommended, inter alia, that the Economic and Social Council should continue to give urgent attention to the problem of economic development of under-developed countries, and include in its annual report a special chapter on the measures being taken to promote economic development.

3. In accordance with the above-mentioned request, the report of the Council to the General¹ Assembly contains a chapter on economic development of under-developed countries (chapter II). This chapter gives an account of the activities of the Council in the field of economic development during its tenth and eleventh sessions and also draws the attention of the General Assembly to a report by the Secretary-General on Measures to promote economic development being taken by the United Nations and Specialized Agencies (E/1729),² prepared by him in response to Council resolution 268 B (X) and containing a brief review of the different classes of such measures and the operations undertaken to the end of May 1950.

4. The particular problem which was given major attention by the Economic and Social Council during its tenth and eleventh sessions was that of financing the economic development of under-developed countries and, on 12 August 1950, the Council adopted resolution 294 (XI).

5. Another major problem with which the Council dealt both during the tenth and eleventh sessions was that of technical assistance for economic development of under-developed countries. Activities in this field are being carried out in accordance with the regular programme of the United Nations which is administered under General Assembly resolution 200 (III) and in accordance with the expanded programme under Council resolution 222 A (IX) (See also General Assembly resolution 304 (IV)).

6. The matter now presented for the consideration of the General Assembly in connexion with technical assistance relates to the activities under General Assembly resolution 200 (III), and action is recommended by means of a draft resolution reading as follows:

“ The General Assembly,

“ Having decided in resolution 305 (IV) that the regular budget of the United Nations should continue to provide for the activities authorized by resolution 200 (III),

“ Notes with approval that the Secretary-General has included in the budget of the United Nations for the year 1951 the same amount as was appropriated by the General Assembly in 1950; and “ Recommends that the requests for technical assistance for economic development received by the Secretary-General in accordance with resolution 200 (III) which cannot be financed with funds provided in the regular budget of the United Nations should be eligible for financing from the special account for technical assistance for economic development established in accordance with General Assembly resolution 304 (IV) and with the actions of the Technical Assistance Conference convened by the Secretary-General in accordance with Economic and Social Council resolution 222 A (IX) ”.

7. The summary records of the discussion on the problem of financing economic development at the tenth and eleventh sessions of the Economic and Social Council are contained in the records of its plenary meetings 367-371 and 381-385³ and in the records of Economic Committee meetings 90-91.⁴ The summary records of the discussion on the problem of technical assistance are contained in the records of plenary meetings 412 and 413 of the Council.⁵

8. The attention of the General Assembly is also drawn to the following documents relating to this item and which are referred to in chapter II of the report of the Economic and Social Council:

Yugoslavia : draft resolution

[17 October 1950]

The General Assembly,

Considering that a more rapid increase of production in under-developed countries and the consequent raising of the level of productive employment and living standards of their populations are an essential contribution towards the general economic development in the world and peaceful and friendly relations among nations,

Considering further that, although the economic development of under-developed countries depends primarily upon the efforts of the peoples of these countries, the necessary acceleration of that development, on the basis of their own plans and programmes, requires not only technical but also financial assistance from abroad, and particularly from the more developed countries,

Recognizing that private capital which is currently flowing into under-developed countries cannot meet the needs of the financing of under-developed countries and that those needs can be met only by an increased flow of international public funds,

Suggests that the Economic and Social Council, paying due regard to geographical representation, establish a special committee of governmental representatives specifically authorized by their governments to consider :

(a) The extension of the international machinery through which international public funds can be made available to under-developed countries for the purpose of accelerating their economic development;

(b) The methods and conditions through which funds would be made available to any new international machinery that might be proposed in the sense of subparagraph (a) above;

(c) The methods and policies of such financing;

Requests that the Economic and Social Council submit its recommendations to the sixth regular session of the General Assembly; and Calls upon all Member Governments and specialized agencies concerned to submit to the Economic and Social Council any proposals bearing upon the above resolution.

[17 October 1950]

The General Assembly

Taking note of the report of the fourth session of the Sub-Commission on Economic Development (E/CN.1/80), the Experts' Report on National and International Measures for Full Employment (E/1584), the report of the fourth session of the Economic and Employment Commission (E/1356, Part. VIII)⁶, and the Report of the Economic and Social Council to the fifth session of the General Assembly (A/1345)⁷.

Taking note further of the studies prepared by the Secretary-General in pursuance of Council resolutions 179 (VIII) and 222 D (IX),

Recognizing :

(a) That more rapid increase of production in under-developed countries is essential for raising the level of productive employment and the living standards of the population and for the growth of the world economy as a whole and for the maintenance of international peace and security;

(b) That the domestic financial resources of the underdeveloped countries, together with the international flow of capital for investment, have not been sufficient to assure the desired rate of economic development;

(c) That such accelerated economic development of under-developed countries requires a more effective and sustained mobilization of domestic savings and an expanded and more stable flow of foreign capital investment;

(d) That economic development requires the execution, not only of self-liquidating projects, but also of basic projects in such fields as transport, power, communications, public health, educational institutions and housing, which, while not always fully self-liquidating, are justified by reason of their indirect effect on national productivity and national income; and

(e) That most of these basic social and economic development projects—particularly public health and educational institutions, by virtue of being non-self-liquidating, are not capable of being serviced through existing sources of foreign finance,

Recommends that the Economic and Social Council, in considering the problem of the financing of economic development, also consider in greater detail the problem of financing non-self-liquidating projects basic to economic development, and work out plans for its implementation.

4. The Sub-Committee unanimously agreed to submit the following draft resolutions for the consideration of the Second Committee :

A

" The General Assembly,

" Bearing in mind the many resolutions adopted by the Assembly and by the Economic and Social Council⁹ concerning the economic development of under-developed countries in which industrialization as well as the development of agriculture must play an essential part ;

" Considering, however, that agrarian conditions which persist in many under-developed countries and territories constitute a barrier to their economic development because such conditions are a major cause of low agricultural productivity and of low standards of living for the populations of those countries and territories; and

" Convinced that immediate steps should be taken to study the extent to which existing agrarian conditions hamper the economic development of under-developed countries as well as to assist governments, at their request, in the utilization of the facilities available in the United Nations and the specialized agencies for the improvement of such conditions;

" Recommends that the Secretary-General, in co-operation with the Food and Agriculture Organization and in consultation with other appropriate specialized agencies, prepare and submit to the thirteenth session of the Economic and Social Council an analysis of the degree to which unsatisfactory forms of agrarian structure and, in particular, systems of land tenure in the under-developed countries and territories, impede economic development and thus depress the standards of living especially of agricultural workers and tenants and of small and medium-sized farmers, and calls upon the Economic and Social Council to give consideration to this analysis and to prepare recommendations to the General Assembly with a view to the improvement of the conditions of agricultural populations, paying special attention to such methods as :

" (a) The institution of appropriate land reform ;

" (b) The appropriate action on the part of the governments concerned to render financial aid to agricultural workers and tenants and to small and medium-sized farmers through cheap agricultural credit facilities, comprehensive technical assistance and the promotion of rural co-operatives ;

" (c) The construction or development, either by direct government action or suitably financed co-operative groups, of

" (i) small factories and workshops for the manufacture, maintenance, repair and servicing of the most essential agricultural machinery and for the storage of spare parts ;

" (ii) locally-based enterprises for the processing of agricultural products ;

" (d) Taxation policies designed to lighten, to the greatest possible extent, the tax burden on tenants and small and medium-sized farmers ;

" (e) The promotion of family-owned and operated farms and of co-operative farms, and of other measures to promote the security of tenure and the welfare of agricultural workers and tenants and of small and medium sized farmers.

" Recommends to the governments of the under-developed countries concerned that they avail themselves of the facilities available to them through the United Nations expanded programme of technical assistance, in order that they may obtain expert advice in the planning of such measures as those listed in the preceding paragraph, for the purpose of improving agrarian conditions."

B

" The General Assembly,

" Considering

" (a) That one of the basic reasons for the low standard of living in certain under-developed countries is the inadequate extent of the areas at present under cultivation,

" (b) That the rapid increase in the populations of these countries threatens to accentuate the present inequality between developed resources and the needs of those populations,

" (c) That in these circumstances it is essential, if equitable distribution of land is to be promoted, and the standard of living be raised, that, among other measures, the area at present under cultivation be increased by the development of arid zones,

" (d) That the Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 324 D (XI), has recommended an intensification of scientific research to promote the economic and social progress of mankind and has recognized the necessity for co-ordinating the efforts of the various competent bodies of the United Nations and the specialized agencies in order to study the problems of the arid zones both in their scientific and in their practical aspects,

" 1. Recommends that the Secretary-General prepare, in collaboration with the competent specialized agencies, a report on the practical measures adopted to study the problems of arid zones and the technical and financial means employed by the specialized agencies for this purpose ;

" 2. Invites the Secretary-General to submit his report on this matter not later than to the fourteenth session of the Economic and Social Council, and

" 3. Calls upon the Economic and Social Council

⁹ For example, General Assembly resolutions 45 (I) and 52 (I), 198 (III), 200 (III), 202 (III), 209 (III), 304 (IV), 305 (IV), 306 (IV), 307 (IV) and 331 (IV), and Economic and Social Council resolutions adopted at the first and second sessions on terms of reference of the Economic and Employment Commission and resolutions 1 (III), 6 (III), 26 (IV), 27 (IV), 29 (IV), 32 (IV), 36 (IV), 37 (IV), 51 (IV), 103 (VI), 106 (VI), 109 (VI), 139 (VII), 140 (VII), 179 (VIII), 180 (VIII), 184 (VIII), 222 (IX), 223 (IX), 225 (IX), 268 (X), 294 (XI), 297 (XI) and 321 (XI).

to examine the report and, with a view to facilitating and encouraging the development of arid land, to consider such measures as :

“ (a) Devoting sufficient technical and financial means to the study of the relevant scientific and practical problems;

Report of the Second Committee

1. The Second Committee herewith submits for the General Assembly's consideration six draft resolutions which were adopted by the Committee without any dissenting votes.

2. The General Assembly, in resolution 306 (IV) of 16 November 1949, recommended, inter alia, that the Economic and Social Council should continue to give urgent attention to the problems of economic development of under-developed countries, and include in its annual report a special chapter on the measures being taken to promote economic development.

3. In accordance with the above-mentioned request, the report of the Economic and Social Council (A/1345),¹¹ presented to the fifth session of the General Assembly, contains a chapter on "Economic development of under-developed countries" (chapter II). This chapter gives an account of the activities of the Council in the field of economic development during its tenth and eleventh sessions, and draws the attention of the General Assembly to a Report by the Secretary-General on the measures to promote economic development being taken by the United Nations and specialized agencies (E/1729), prepared in response to Council resolution 268 B (X) and containing a brief review of the different classes of such measures and the operations undertaken to the end of May 1950. The Council's report refers also to resolution 294 (XI), concerning methods of financing the economic development of under-developed countries, adopted at the eleventh session of the Council. It also contains a draft resolution relating to technical assistance activities under General Assembly resolution 200 (III) which the Council recommended to the General Assembly for adoption.

4. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting held on 26 September 1950, decided to place on the agenda of its fifth session the item "Economic development of under-developed countries : report of the Economic and Social Council", and to allocate it to the Second Committee for consideration and report.

5. The Second Committee considered this item during seventeen meetings.¹² The first eight meetings were devoted to a general debate, in which thirty-eight delegations took part, as well as a representative of the International Labour Organisation.

6. In the general debate, major attention was given to the general principles which should govern the economic development of under-developed countries and which would insure smooth international co-operation; to the existing obstacles to, and the problem of financing, economic development; and to the United Nations programme of technical assistance.

7. The question of financing was treated in the general discussion as a vital factor in the problem of economic development. Various methods of financing and the sources of the funds required, including foreign capital, were discussed. It was generally recognized that much remained to be done, particularly in making specific recommendations for international action for the financing of economic development; in this connexion, the resolution 294 (XI) on this subject adopted at the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council received much comment and its provisions were discussed in detail.

8. As regards the United Nations programmes for technical assistance, the debate produced numerous comments on the implementation of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance. Thus, delegations commented on the scope of that programme and on the adequacy of the available funds in view of known existing needs. Many specific suggestions were made on the manner in which the Technical Assistance Board should operate and much praise was expressed for the work accomplished and, in particular, for the achievement of the Technical Assistance Conference. Several delegations expressed their appreciation for technical assistance already given to their governments.

9. At the conclusion of the general debate on these aspects of the problem of economic development, the Committee had before it the following specific proposals :

(a) Technical assistance activities under General Assembly resolution 200 (III) : a draft resolution recommended by the Economic and Social Council and contained in its resolution 291 (XI) of 15 August 1950.

(b) Technical assistance for Non-Self-Governing Territories : a draft resolution was introduced by the Philippines (A/C.2/L.44), but was withdrawn at the 127th meeting of the Committee as the question was under discussion in the Fourth Committee;

(c) Financing of economic development of under-developed countries : a joint draft resolution submitted by Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria, Yemen and Yugoslavia (A/C.2/L.35 and A/C.2/L.35/Add.1) and a joint draft resolution submitted by Pakistan and the United Kingdom (A/C.2/L.38);

(d) A request for a study of the agrarian structure of the economically under-developed countries and territories and its effects on the conditions of the landless, small and medium-sized farmers, and a request for recommendations by the Economic and Social Council for the improvement of these conditions : a draft resolution submitted by Poland (A/C.2/L.36);

(e) A request for a study of the level and distribution of the national income in the economically under-developed countries and territories : a draft resolution submitted by Poland (A/C.2/L.37);

(f) A request for a report by the Secretary-General on the effect of international commercial policy on the plans for economic development in under-developed countries : a draft resolution submitted by Cuba (A/C.2/L.39).

Technical assistance activities under General Assembly resolution 200 (III)

10. The draft resolution 291 (XI) recommended by the Economic and Social Council was considered by the Committee at its 127th meeting. In part, this draft resolution noted with approval the inclusion by the Secretary-General in the budget of the United Nations for the year 1951 the same amount as was appropriated by the General Assembly in 1950. The Secretary of the Committee explained, following an intervention by the delegation of Egypt, that although the Fifth Committee at the fourth session of the General Assembly had initially approved an appropriation of $539,000 for section 25*b* of the budget relating to technical assistance for economic development, that Committee had later made an over-all reduction consequent upon the devaluation which had taken place in certain countries with a resulting reduction in dollar costs incurred in those countries. The effect of this over-all reduction on section 25 (b) was to reduce the appropriation from $539,000 to $508,420 in view of the reduced dollar costs of travel and subsistence allowances of holders of fellowships in countries where devaluation had occurred. In unanimously approving the draft resolution, it was, however, the view of the Second Committee that the sum to be appropriated for 1951 for this programme should not be less than the sum of $539,000 originally provided in the 1950 budget.

11. The Second Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution A annexed to the present report.

Financing economic development of under-developed countries

12. The Second Committee had before it two draft resolutions on the financing of economic development of under-developed countries. The first proposal (A/C.2/L.35 and A/C.2/L.35/Add.1), submitted jointly by Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria, Yemen and Yugoslavia, suggested that the Economic and Social Council on the basis of the work of an inter-governmental committee to be established by the Council for this purpose, should consider and report to the sixth regular session of the General Assembly on the extension of the international machinery through which international public funds could be made available to accelerate economic development. The second draft resolution (A/C.2/L.38), submitted jointly by Pakistan and the United Kingdom, recommended that the Economic and Social Council should consider in greater detail the problem of financing non-self-liquidating projects which were basic to economic development and work out plans for implementation. The Committee discussed the draft resolutions at its 127th meeting, together with the relevant amendments : the first submitted by Cuba (A/C.2/L.40) to the joint draft resolution proposed by Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria, Yemen and Yugoslavia, suggested that the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development make concurrently a study on the same subject with a view to the adoption of a more active and liberal financing policy; the second, submitted by Greece (A/C.2/L.43) to the joint Pakistan and United Kingdom draft resolution (A/C.2/L.38), substituted a new text for the last paragraph of that draft resolution recommending the Economic and Social Council to continue to consider the problem of financing economic development, and to work out schemes for the expansion and steadier flow of foreign capital with special attention to the financing of non-self-liquidating projects.

13. The Second Committee set up a sub-committee consisting of the representatives of Cuba, Egypt, Greece, Pakistan, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America and Yugoslavia, to draft a resolution based on the two original draft resolutions and the relevant amendments. The Sub-Committee, which met once, unanimously agreed on the text of a resolution.

14. The Second Committee considered the draft resolution proposed by the drafting Sub-Committee (A/C.2/L.46) at its 128th meeting and adopted it unanimously. The Second Committee accordingly recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution B annexed to the present report.

Land reform and development of arid land

15. At its 127th meeting the Committee began its discussion of the draft resolution submitted by Poland (A/C.2/L.36) which proposed that the Economic and Social Council, at its thirteenth session, should receive and consider a report to be prepared by the Secretary-General on the agrarian structure of the economically under-developed countries and territories, and make recommendations with a view to the improvement of the conditions of landless, small and medium-sized farmers. Several amendments were submitted to this draft resolution: by Cuba (A/C.2/L.41), by the United States of America (A/C.2/L.45), by Haiti (A/C.2/L.47/Rev.1), by Yugoslavia (A/C.2/L.48), by Egypt (A/C.2/L.51) and by the United Kingdom (A/C.2/L.52).

16. After discussion at the 127th, 128th and 129th meetings, the Committee decided to establish a drafting sub-committee consisting of the representatives of Cuba, Egypt, Haiti, Poland, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America and Yugoslavia to consider the Polish draft resolution together with the relevant amendments and to submit a new draft for the Committee's consideration. The Sub-Committee, in whose work a representative of the Food and Agriculture Organization also participated, met once and unanimously agreed to submit two draft resolutions to the Second Committee, one concerning land reform and the other based on the Egyptian amendment (A/C.2/L.60) concerning the development of arid land.

17. Land reform. Several oral amendments offered to the Sub-Committee's draft resolution on land reform by Argentina and by Peru and an amendment submitted by Haiti (A/C.2/L.64) were rejected by the Committee. Before voting on the draft resolution the representative of Uruguay asked for a clarification of the nature of the study requested of the Secretary-General, especially with reference to sub-paragraph (a) of the first operative paragraph. On being asked by the Chairman for an explanation, the Secretary of the Committee stated that he could speak only in the light of the discussion which had taken place in the Drafting Sub-Committee before it had unanimously decided to submit the draft resolution for the Committee's consideration. He then pointed out that the first two operative paragraphs dealt with two distinct matters: the first requested the Secretary-General, in co-operation with FAO and in consultation with other appropriate agencies, to prepare an analysis of the degree to which unsatisfactory forms of agrarian structure impede economic development; and the second called upon the Economic and Social Council to prepare recommendations to the General Assembly, after studying the Secretary-General's report and, in making these recommendations, to pay special attention to various methods of improving the conditions of the agricultural populations. The sub-paragraph (a) to which the Uruguayan representative had referred concerned one of those methods, and it was the understanding of the Secretary that the phrase "institution of appropriate land reform" comprised the entire complex of relationships between ownership of land and the actual cultivation of land and that the Council was to consider such reforms of those relationships as would tend to remove any which impede economic development and depress the standard of living of agricultural workers and tenants and of small and medium-sized farmers.

18. The draft resolution on the improvement of the conditions of agricultural populations was adopted by 50 votes to none, with 1 abstention. The Second Committee accordingly recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution C annexed to the present report.

19. Development of arid land. In the course of the discussion of the draft resolution on the development of arid land recommended by the drafting Sub-Committee, the Second Committee rejected and oral amendment by Colombia and accepted an oral amendment by Egypt. The Committee then unanimously adopted the amended draft resolution; it accordingly recommends the adoption by the General Assembly of draft resolution D annexed to the present report.

Volume and distribution of national income in under-developed countries

20. At its 129th to 133rd meetings, the Committee discussed the draft resolution submitted by Poland (A/C.2/L.37) requesting the Secretary-General to submit to the Economic and Social Council a report on the level and distribution of national income in under-developed countries and territories, with particular regard to the part of the income accruing to foreign companies or used for the liquidation of foreign debt. An amendment proposed by Cuba (A/C.2/L.42) specified in greater detail the nature of the proposed study. An amendment submitted by Yugoslavia (A/C.2/L.49) proposed that the references to foreign debt and foreign companies and firms be accompanied by the words "private and other". These two amendments were accepted by Poland and incorporated in a revised draft of its proposal (A/C.2/L.37/Rev.1). To this revised text Chile proposed to add two paragraphs (A/C.2/L.54) recommending that the under-developed countries give special consideration to studies relating to national income and its distribution and also recommending that the studies by the Secretary-General should be co-ordinated with the studies recommended by resolution 294 D (XI) of the Economic and Social Council, in order to avoid duplication of effort. The delegation of Cuba proposed to amend the first paragraph of the preamble to indicate the desirability of knowing the volume of national income and the effect of its distribution on the rate of economic development in under-developed countries in connexion with the mobilization of resources for the acceleration of economic development (A/C.2/L.55). Subsequently, both Chile and Cuba withdrew their respective amendments and submitted a joint draft resolution (A/C.2/L.56) substituting a new text for the revised Polish draft. The Committee agreed to consider this amendment as a new proposal. An oral amendment to the revised Polish draft was made by France to change the word "constitutes" to "may constitute" in the third paragraph of the preamble; this amendment was adopted by the Committee. The revised Polish draft resolution was then voted on paragraph by paragraph. Only the first paragraph of the preamble was adopted. Since the operative part of the proposal was rejected by 24 votes to 16, with 7 abstentions, the Chairman declared the entire proposal rejected.

21. The joint draft resolution proposed by Chile and Cuba (A/C.2/L.56) proposed that the General Assembly should recommend that under-developed countries should devote special attention to national income studies; request the Secretary-General to give favourable consideration to requests for technical assistance for this purpose; and request the Economic and Social Council to study and report on the volume and distribution of national income in those countries, particularly with respect to the various income groups and the ability of the countries to meet their foreign commitments arising from loans and investments. These studies were to take into account the statistical data compiled by the Secretary-General and were to be made in connexion with the studies recommended by Economic and Social Council resolution 294 D (XI).

22. Several amendments were introduced to the joint draft resolution. The Committee accepted an amendment by Poland (A/C.2/L.57) directing the Secretary-General to prepare and submit to the Economic and Social Council a report to enable it to carry out the request of the General Assembly, but rejected another Polish amendment (A/C.2/L.57) which would have required the Council to report in particular on the parts of the national income used for servicing of foreign debts instead of reporting on the ability of the countries to meet their foreign commitments arising from loans and investments. The Committee then accepted an amendment by Peru (A/C.2/L.59) which called upon the Council to study and report on the amounts used by the under-developed countries to meet their foreign commitments instead of their ability to meet them. The Committee also accepted amendments proposed by the United States (A/C.2/L.61) to refer in the preamble to Economic and Social Council resolution 299 E (XI); to request not only the Secretary-General but also the specialized agencies concerned to give favourable consideration to requests of under-developed countries for technical assistance in their national income studies; and to reword the final paragraph of the draft resolution. On the basis of an amendment proposed by Uruguay (A/C.2/L.58), the sponsors of the joint draft resolution agreed to substitute the words "respective proportions" for the word "relations" in the operative part; the Committee, however, rejected a Uruguayan amendment to replace the word "ability" in the operative part by the words "financial ability".

23. The joint draft resolution proposed by Chile and Cuba, as amended, was adopted by the Committee by 38 votes to none, with 8 abstentions. The Committee accordingly recommends the adoption of draft resolution E annexed to the present report.

Economic development and international economic and commercial policy

24. The draft resolution submitted by Cuba (A/C.2/L.39), reaffirming General Assembly resolution 307 (IV) on international commercial policy, and requesting the Secretary-General to submit to the sixth session of the General Assembly a report on the effect of international commercial policy on economic development plans, was considered by the Committee at its 133rd to 135th meetings. Two amendments were submitted, one by the Ukrainian S. S. R. (A/C.2/L.53) and another by Greece (A/C.2/L.62). Cuba having agreed to revise its draft resolution (A/C.2/L.39/Rev.1) to incorporate the substance of the above two amendments, the Ukrainian S. S. R. and Greece withdrew those amendments. Two amendments were then proposed by Canada (A/C.2/L.63) to the revised draft. The first, which proposed to delete the words "at least in some degree" in the first paragraph of the preamble of the revised draft was accepted by the Committee. The delegation of Canada withdrew the second amendment in favour of an oral amendment by Chile to the effect that the United Nations and its specialized agencies must thoroughly and continuously study this problem. The Chilean amendment was accepted by Cuba. The draft resolution submitted by Cuba, as amended, was then unanimously adopted by the Committee.

25. The Second Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of draft resolution F annexed to the present report.

Draft resolution A

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE ACTIVITIES UNDER GENERAL ASSEMBLY RESOLUTION 200 (III)

The General Assembly,

Having decided at its fourth session (resolution 305) (IV) that the regular budget of the United Nations should continue to provide for the activities authorized by General Assembly resolution 200 (III),

1. Notes with approval that the Secretary-General has included in the budget of the United Nations for the year 1951 the same amount as was appropriated by the General Assembly in 1950;

2. Recommends that the requests for technical assistance for economic development received by the Secretary-General in accordance with resolution 200 (III) which cannot be financed with funds provided on the regular budget of the United Nations, should be eligible for financing from the special account for technical assistance for economic development established in accordance with General Assembly resolution 304 (IV) and with the actions of the Technical Assistance Conference convened by the Secretary-General under the terms of Economic and Social Council resolution 222 A (IX).

FINANCING OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT OF UNDER-DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the report of the fourth session of the Sub-Commission on Economic Development (E/CN.4/80), the experts' report entitled National and International Measures for Full Employment (E/1584), the report of the fourth session of the Economic and Employment Commission (E/1356, part VIII),¹³ and the report of the Economic and Social Council to the fifth session of the General Assembly (A/1345),¹⁴

Taking note further of the studies prepared by the Secretary-General in pursuance of Economic and Social Council resolutions 179 (VIII)¹⁵ and 222 D (IX),¹⁶

Recognizing that a more rapid economic development of under-developed countries, in particular an increase of their production, is essential for raising the level of productive employment and the living standards of their populations, for the growth of the world economy as a whole and for the maintenance of international peace and security,

Recognizing further that, although the economic development of under-developed countries depends primarily upon the efforts of the people of those countries, the necessary acceleration of that development, on the basis of their own plans and programmes, requires not only technical but also financial assistance from abroad, and particularly from the more developed countries,

Considering that the domestic financial resources of the under-developed countries, together with the international flow of capital for investment, have not been sufficient to assure the desired rate of economic development, and that the accelerated economic development of under-developed countries requires a more effective and sustained mobilization of domestic savings and an expanded and more stable flow of foreign capital investment,

Being convinced that the volume of private capital which is currently flowing into under-developed countries cannot meet the financial needs of the economic development of the under-developed countries and that those needs cannot be met without an increased flow of international public funds,

Taking account of the fact that some basic development projects are not capable of being adequately serviced through existing sources of foreign finance although they contribute directly or indirectly to the increase of national productivity and national income,

1. Recommends that the Economic and Social Council, in giving further study to the problem of the financing of economic development, consider practical methods, conditions and policies for achieving the adequate expansion and steadier flow of foreign capital, both private and public, and pay special attention to the financing of non-self-liquidating projects which are basic to economic development;

2. Calls upon the governments of all Members States and the specialized agencies concerned to submit to the Economic and Social Council any proposals bearing upon the present resolution;

3. Requests the Council to submit its recommendations to the sixth session of the General Assembly.

Draft resolution C

LAND REFORM

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind the many resolutions adopted by the General Assembly and by the Economic and Social Council¹⁷ concerning the economic development of under-developed countries in which industrialization as well as the development of agriculture must play an essential part,

Considering, however, that agrarian conditions which persist in many under-developed countries and territories constitute a barrier to their economic development because such conditions are a major cause of low agricultural productivity and of low standards of living for the populations of those countries and territories,

Convinced that immediate steps should be taken to study the extent to which existing agrarian conditions hamper the economic development of under-developed countries as well as to assist governments, at their request, in the utilization of the facilities available in the United Nations and the specialized agencies for the improvement of such conditions,

¹⁷ For example, General Assembly resolutions 45 (I) and 52 (I) 198 (III), 200 (III), 202 (III), 209 (III), 304 (IV), 305 (IV), 306 (IV), 307 (IV) and 331 (IV), and Economic and Social Council resolutions adopted at the first and second sessions on terms of reference of the Economic and Employment Commission and resolutions 1 (III), 6 (III), 26 (IV), 27 (IV), 29 (IV), 32 (IV), 36 (IV), 37 (IV), 51 (IV), 103 (VI), 106 (VI), 109 (VI), 139 (VII), 140 (VII), 179 (VIII), 180 (VIII), 184 (VIII), 222 (IX), 223 (IX), 225 (IX), 268 (X), 294 (XI), 297 (XI) and 321 (XI).

1. Recommends that the Secretary-General, in co-operation with the Food and Agriculture Organization and in consultation with other appropriate specialized agencies, prepare and submit to the thirteenth session of the Economic and Social Council an analysis of the degree to which unsatisfactory forms of agrarian structure and, in particular, systems of land tenure, in the under-developed countries and territories, impede economic development and thus depress the standards of living especially of agricultural workers and tenants and of small and medium-sized farmers;

2. Calls upon the Economic and Social Council to consider the analysis referred to above and to prepare recommendations to the General Assembly with a view to the improvement of the conditions of agricultural populations, paying special attention to such measures as the following :

(a) Institution of appropriate land reform;

(b) Appropriate action on the part of the governments concerned to render financial aid to agricultural workers and tenants and to small and medium-sized farmers through cheap agricultural credit facilities, comprehensive technical assistance and the promotion of rural co-operatives;

(c) Construction or development, either by direct government action or suitably financed co-operative groups, of

(i) Small factories and workshops for the manufacture, maintenance, repair and servicing of the most essential agricultural machinery and for the storage of spare parts;

(ii) Locally-based enterprises for the processing of agricultural products;

(d) Taxation policies designed to lighten, to the greatest possible extent, the tax burden on tenants and small and medium-sized farmers;

(e) Promotion of family owned and operated farms and of co-operative farms, as well as of other measures to promote the security of tenure and the welfare of agricultural workers and tenants and of small and medium-sized farmers;

3. Recommends to the governments of the under-developed countries concerned that they avail themselves of the facilities available to them through the United Nations' expanded programme of technical assistance, in order that they may obtain expert advice in the planning of such measures as those listed in the preceding paragraph, for the purpose of improving agrarian conditions.

Draft resolution D

DEVELOPMENT OF ARID LAND

The General Assembly,

Considering that :

(a) One of the basic reasons for the low standard of living in certain under-developed countries is the inadequate extent of the areas at present under cultivation,

(b) The continual increase in the populations of these countries requires the adoption of appropriate and urgent measures for the development of their resources,

(c) It is essential in the above circumstances, if the equitable distribution of land is to be promoted and the standard of living raised, that, among other measures, the areas at present under cultivation be increased by the development of arid zones,

(d) The Economic and Social Council, in resolution 324 D (XI) of 9 August 1950, has recommended an intensification of scientific research to promote the economic and social progress of mankind and has recognized the necessity for co-ordinating the efforts of the various competent bodies of the United Nations and the specialized agencies in order to study the problems of the arid zones both in their scientific and in their practical aspects,

1. Recommends that the Secretary-General prepare, in collaboration with the competent specialized agencies, a report on the practical measures adopted for the study of the problems of arid zones and on the technical and financial means employed by the specialized agencies for this purpose;

2. Invites the Secretary-General to submit his report on this matter not later than to the fourteenth session of the Economic and Social Council;

3. Calls upon the Economic and Social Council to examine the report and, with a view to facilitating and encouraging the development of arid land, to consider such measures as :

(a) Devoting sufficient technical and financial means to the study of the relevant scientific and practical problems;

(b) Promoting and co-ordinating the activities of the United Nations and the specialized agencies to that end;

(c) Furnishing appropriate technical assistance to the governments concerned.

Draft resolution E

VOLUME AND DISTRIBUTION OF NATIONAL INCOME IN UNDER-DEVELOPED COUNTRIES

The General Assembly,

Considering that, in order to mobilize better their resources with a view to accelerating their economic development, it is desirable that the under-developed countries should have knowledge of their national income and its distribution,

Noting Economic and Social Council resolution 299 E (XI) of 12 July 1950 concerning national income and social accounts,

1. Recommends that the under-developed countries should devote special attention to studies directed towards the calculation of their national income and its distribution;

2. Requests the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the specialized agencies concerned to give the most favourable consideration possible to requests for technical assistance made for the above purpose;

3. Requests the Economic and Social Council to study and report on the volume and distribution of national income in the under-developed countries, with special reference to :

(i) The various income groups and the respective proportions between them; and

(ii) The amounts used by the countries to meet their foreign commitments arising from loans and investments, public and private, and the payment of services;

4. Directs the Secretary-General to prepare and submit to the Economic and Social Council a report to enable it to carry out the request made in paragraph 3 above;

5. Requests the Secretary-General, in carrying out studies relating to the present resolution, to avoid any duplication with the study recommended in paragraph 16 of Economic and Social Council resolution 294 D (XI) of 12 August 1950.

Draft resolution F

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND COMMERCIAL POLICY

The General Assembly,

Considering that the economic welfare of most countries depends on their imports and exports, and that these imports and exports are directly affected by prevailing commercial policies,

Considering further that the United Nations and its specialized agencies must thoroughly and continuously study the extent to which prevailing commercial policies influence the plans for economic development of under-developed countries,

Reaffirms General Assembly resolution 307 (IV) of 16 November 1949 concerning economic development and international economic and commercial policy, and requests that the group of experts, to be appointed by the Secretary-General under Economic and Social Council resolution 290 (XI), paragraph 13, after consultation with the Executive Secretary of the Interim Commission for the International Trade Organization, pay due attention to the influence that prevailing commercial policies have on national plans for the economic development of under-developed countries.

Note by the Secretary-General

[24 September 1950]

1. The United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information held in Geneva during March-April 1948, proposed among other things a draft convention on freedom of information. The text of this draft convention is given in the Final Act of the Conference (E/Conf.-6/79, annex A, III).

2. The Economic and Social Council, in its resolution 152 B (VII) of 28 August 1948, transmitted the draft convention to the General Assembly in the form proposed by the conference.

3. The General Assembly considered the draft convention at the second part of its third session and, after articles 1 to 4 had been redrafted in the Third Committee of the Assembly,¹ decided (Assembly resolution 277 A (III) of 13 May 1949) to refer the draft convention to its fourth regular session together with the records of the debates on this subject in the Third Committee² and other organs of the United Nations,³ and also to invite the General Assembly at that session to give high priority to the item and to take into full consideration all the substantive amendments to the draft convention adopted by the Third Committee in order to reconcile divergent views. The Assembly finally decided that the Convention on the International Transmission of News and the Right of Correction should not be opened for signature until the Assembly had taken definite action on the draft convention on freedom of information.

4. At its fourth session⁴ the General Assembly adopted resolution 313 (IV) of 20 October 1949, the operative part of which reads as follows :

“ The General Assembly,

“ 1. Recommends to the Economic and Social Council that it request the Commission on Human Rights to include adequate provisions on freedom of information in the draft international covenant on human rights, taking into account the work done on the draft convention on freedom of information at the United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information and at the third and fourth regular sessions of the General Assembly;

“ 2. Decides to postpone further action on the draft convention on freedom of information to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly and pending receipt of the draft international covenant on human rights or a progress report thereon.”

5. At its tenth session, the Economic and Social Council, by resolution 278 (X) of 13 February 1950, transmitted the General Assembly resolution to the Commission on Human Rights for the action contemplated therein.

6. At its sixth session, the Commission on Human Rights proposed the following text of an article relating to freedom of information for inclusion in the draft first international covenant on human rights :⁵

Article 14

(1) Everyone shall have the right to hold opinions without interference.

(2) Everyone shall have the right to freedom of expression; this right shall include freedom to seek, receive and impart information and ideas of all kinds, regardless of frontiers, either orally, in writing or in print, in the form of art, or through any other media of his choice.

(3) The right to seek, receive and impart information and ideas carries with it special duties and responsibilities and may therefore be subject to certain penalties, liabilities and restrictions, but these shall be such only as are provided by law and are necessary for the protection of national security, public order, safety, health or morals, or of the rights, freedoms or reputations of others.

7. The Commission on Human Rights also adopted at its sixth session, by 9 votes to 2, with 2 abstentions, a resolution recommending to the Economic and Social Council that it recommend to the General Assembly that it should proceed at its fifth session with the elaboration of a special convention on freedom of information.⁶

8. At the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council, the Social Committee of the Council, after considering the above-mentioned resolution of the Commission on Human Rights, decided, by 8 votes to 5, with 1 abstention, to recommend to the Council the adoption of a resolution containing the recommendation made by the Commission.⁷ The draft resolution recommended by Interference with radio signals—Chile : draft resolution

[19 November 1950]

The General Assembly,

Whereas freedom to listen to radio broadcasts regardless of source is embodied in article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which reads : " Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers ",

Whereas article 44 of the International Telecommunications Convention, Atlantic City, 1947, provides that " All stations whatever their purpose, must be established and operated in such a manner as not to result in harmful interference to the radio service or communications of other members or associate members... [and that] Each member or associate member undertakes to require the private operating agencies which it recognizes, and the other operating agencies duly authorized for this purpose, to observe the provisions of the preceding paragraph ", and

Considering that the duly authorized radio operating agencies in some countries are deliberately interfering with the reception by the people of those countries of certain radio signals originating beyond their territories, and bearing in mind the discussion which took place in the Economic and Social Council and in the Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press, on this subject,

Adopts the declaration of the Economic and Social Council contained in its resolution 306 B (XI) to the effect that this type of interference constitutes a violation of the accepted principles of freedom of information;

Condemns measures of this nature as a denial of the right of all persons to be fully informed concerning news, opinions and ideas regardless of frontiers; and

Invites all Member States to refrain from such interference with the right of their peoples to freedom of information.

Draft convention on freedom of information—Financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/C.3/548) : note by the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[4 December 1950]

1. At its 323rd meeting, held on 22 November 1950, the Third Committee recommended that the General Assembly should approve a resolution concerning the preparation and adoption of a draft convention on freedom of information (A/C.3/548).
2. This resolution provides, inter alia, for :
 - (a) The appointment by the General Assembly of a committee consisting of representatives of fifteen countries, to meet at headquarters as soon as possible but not later than 1 March 1951, for the purpose of preparing a draft convention on freedom of information. The Committee is requested to report to the Economic and Social Council at its thirteenth session on the results of its work and particularly with regard to the advisability of convening a conference of plenipotentiaries with a view to the framing and signature of a convention on freedom of information;
 - (b) The convening of such a conference of plenipotentiaries to meet as soon as possible and not later than

- 1 February 1952, if the Economic and Social Council, on the basis of the considerations referred to in the draft resolution, thinks fit.
3. With respect to paragraph 2 (a) above, a meeting of a committee of fifteen governmental representatives at headquarters, assuming the meeting lasted four weeks, would entail a possible expenditure under section 1 of the budget of about $US1,360 for local transportation (rental of four cars at $US17 per day for 20 days) and an expenditure under Section 25 for printing the Committee’s report (50 pages in five languages) of about $US5,000.
4. With respect to paragraph 2 (b) above, if it is assumed that a conference of plenipotentiaries is to be held at headquarters early in 1952, no additional expenditures would arise in 1951 and the 1952 expenditures would be limited to contractual printing.
5. The proposal would therefore entail, for 1951, extra costs amounting to a total of $US6,360.

I. INTRODUCTION

1. At its 232nd plenary meeting, held on 20 October 1949, the General Assembly decided (resolution 313 (IV)) to postpone further action on the draft convention on freedom of information to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly and pending receipt of the draft international covenant on human rights or a progress report thereon from the Commission on Human Rights.

2. At its eleventh session, on the recommendation of the Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press, the Economic and Social Council adopted, on 9 August 1950, resolution 306 B (XI) recommending to the General Assembly that it should call upon the governments of all Member States to refrain from interference with the reception of radio signals.

3. On the same date, the Council also adopted, on the recommendation of the Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press, resolution 306 C (XI) concerning freedom of information and of the Press in times of emergency.

4. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting, held on 26 September 1950, referred to the Third Committee item 30 of the agenda: "Freedom of Information", divided into the following sub-items:

(a) Draft convention on freedom of information: report of the Economic and Social Council;

(b) Interference with radio signals (Economic and Social Council resolution 306 B (XI));

(c) Question of the freedom of information and of the Press in times of emergency (Economic and Social Council resolution 306 C (XI)).

II. GENERAL OUTLINE OF THE WORK OF THE THIRD COMMITTEE

5. The Third Committee devoted eight meetings, namely its 317th to 324th meetings inclusive, to the consideration of item 30. At its 316th meeting, the Committee adopted a Mexican proposal that sub-items (b) and (c) should be considered before sub-item (a). The Committee accordingly began its work by considering the sub-item "Interference with radio signals".

III. INTERFERENCE WITH RADIO SIGNALS

6. The Committee began consideration of the sub-item "Interference with radio signals" at its 317th meeting held on 17 November 1950, and had before it Economic and Social Council resolution 306 B (XI). The representative of Chile submitted a draft resolution (A/C.3/L.112) whereby the General Assembly would adopt as its own the declaration made by the Economic and Social Council in its resolution 306 B (XI) and invite the governments of all Member States to refrain from such interference as was referred to therein.

7. At its 318th meeting held on 17 November, the Committee continued the general debate on this sub-item, and concluded it at the 319th meeting, held on 18 November, when the Committee proceeded to vote. In addition to the Chilean draft resolution (A/C.3/L.112), the Committee had before it oral amendments for the insertion of additional paragraphs in that resolution, sponsored jointly by the representatives of India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Mexico, the Philippines and Saudi Arabia. The representative of Chile accepted the major part of these joint amendments, incorporating their substance in his draft resolution. He formulated three additional paragraphs. One paragraph was to be inserted after the third paragraph of the preamble, and was to read as follows:

"Considering that peace among nations rests on the goodwill of all peoples and governments and that tolerance and understanding are prerequisites for establishing goodwill in the international field".

Two other paragraphs were to be added at the end of the operative part. They were to read as follows:

"Invites all governments to refrain from radio broadcasts that would mean unfair attacks or slanders against other peoples anywhere and in so doing to conform strictly to an ethical conduct in the interest of world peace by reporting facts truly and objectively;

"Invites also Member States to give every possible facility so that their peoples may know objectively the activities of the United Nations in promoting peace and, in particular, to facilitate the reception and transmission of the United Nations official broadcasts".

8. The representative of Saudi Arabia then introduced an amendment to the first additional paragraph of the operative part to insert the words "or which would offend their sensibilities" between the words "anywhere" and "and, in so doing". The representative of Lebanon proposed the insertion of the following paragraph between the two additional paragraphs of the operative part:

"Invites the Governments of all Member States to take the necessary steps within their competence to prevent the diffusion of false or distorted reports likely to injure friendly relations between States".

9. The Committee then proceeded to the vote. After having rejected both the Lebanese and the Saudi Arabian amendments, the Committee voted on the Chilean draft resolution in its final form. The vote was taken by division at the request of the representative of Haiti. In accordance with a request of the representative of Cuba, roll-call votes were taken on the first and second paragraphs of the operative part of the resolution. The first paragraph of the operative part was adopted by 38 votes to 5, with one abstention. The vote was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Burma, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Egypt, France, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Israel, Lebanon, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Turkey, Union of South Africa, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yugoslavia.

Against: Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Abstaining: Pakistan.

The second paragraph of the operative part was adopted by 36 votes to 5, with 3 abstentions. The vote was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Burma, Canada, Chile, China, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Egypt, France, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Lebanon, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Turkey, Union of South Africa, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela.

Against: Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Abstaining: Israel, Pakistan, Yugoslavia.

The draft resolution as a whole was adopted by 39 votes to 5. Details of the voting will be found in the summary record of the 319th meeting of the Committee.

10. An account of the debates on this sub-item will be found in the summary records of the 317th to 320th meetings of the Committee inclusive.

11. The text of the draft resolution, as adopted, is to be found in chapter VI of the present report (draft resolution A).

IV. QUESTION OF THE FREEDOM OF INFORMATION AND OF THE PRESS IN TIMES OF EMERGENCY

12. The Committee considered the sub-item "Question of the freedom of information and of the Press in times of emergency" at its 318th meeting held on 17 November. The Committee had before it the draft resolution recommended by the Economic and Social Council in its resolution 306 C (XI). The representative of Egypt proposed that the preamble of the draft resolution should be redrafted to read as follows:

"Considering that freedom of information and of the Press is one of the fundamental freedoms and should be advanced and safeguarded in all circumstances,

"Considering that limitations have been placed on this freedom in emergencies or on the pretext of emergencies".

This proposal met with no objections from the Committee.

13. The representative of Saudi Arabia proposed the deletion of the words "in all circumstances" in the first paragraph of the preamble. The representatives of the Philippines and Saudi Arabia suggested that the words "have been" in the second paragraph should be replaced by the words "might be".

14. The Committee adopted the amendment of Saudi Arabia by 17 votes to 16, with 11 abstentions, and that proposed by the Philippines and Saudi Arabia by 23 votes to 12, with 11 abstentions.

15. The draft resolution, as amended, was adopted by 38 votes to 5, with 5 abstentions.

16. An account of the debates on this sub-item will be found in the summary records of the 318th and 319th meetings of the Committee.

17. The text of the draft resolution, as adopted, is to be found in chapter VI of the present report (draft resolution B).

V. DRAFT CONVENTION ON FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

18. The general debate on the draft convention on freedom of information began at the 320th meeting of the Committee on 20 November. The Committee had before it a draft resolution, submitted jointly by Chile, Cuba, Egypt, France and the Netherlands (A/C.3/L.110/Rev.1). This draft resolution provided for the appointment by the General Assembly of an ad hoc committee consisting of the representatives of fifteen countries, to prepare at a meeting to be held not later than 1 March 1951, a draft convention on freedom of information. It further proposed that the General Assembly should recommend to the Economic and Social Council that it convene a conference of plenipotentiaries to meet not later than 1 August 1951 with a view to the framing and signature of a convention on freedom of information, based on the draft prepared by the ad hoc committee and on observations solicited from governments.

19. During the general debate, the representatives of Afghanistan, Brazil and Mexico expressed the opinion that the drafting of the convention on freedom of information should be proceeded with at the current session of the General Assembly. No formal proposal to that effect was, however, introduced.

20. The following amendments to the joint draft resolution were submitted:

(a) By the United States of America (A/C.3/L.113)—This amendment was to delete the operative part of the joint draft resolution and to replace it by two paragraphs. According to the second and operative paragraph of this amendment, the General Assembly would decide to postpone further consideration of the draft convention on freedom of information until it had taken definite action on the draft covenant on human rights;

(b) By Lebanon (A/C.3/L.116)—This amendment included the following three proposals:

(i) To insert between the third and fourth paragraphs of the joint draft resolution a new paragraph, requesting the ad hoc committee to report to the Economic and Social Council on the result of its work and to submit recommendations particularly with regard to the advisability of convening a conference of plenipotentiaries as proposed in the joint draft resolution;

(ii) To change the wording of the fourth paragraph of the joint draft resolution;

(iii) To replace the sixth paragraph of the joint draft resolution by a paragraph recommending the Economic and Social Council to consider the report of the ad hoc committee and “ if it thinks fit in the light of the ad hoc committee’s recommendations and the observations of governments ” to convene a conference not later than 1 August 1951.

21. The following sub-amendments were submitted to the Lebanese amendment :

(a) By Mexico (A/C.3/L.117)—This sub-amendment was to delete (i) the last part of the first paragraph of the Lebanese amendment, that is, the proposed request to the ad hoc committee to submit recommendations to the Economic and Social Council with regard to the advisability of convening a conference; and (ii) in the third paragraph of the Lebanese amendment, the words “ if it thinks fit in the light of the ad hoc committee’s recommendations and the observations of governments ”. The representative of Mexico also proposed changes in the wording of the second and third paragraphs of the Lebanese amendment to the effect that the draft resolution should take into account the possibility of several drafts being prepared by the ad hoc committee.

These amendments were accepted by the representative of Lebanon.

(b) By Chile—Two oral sub-amendments to the Lebanese amendment were introduced by the representative of Chile. The first sub-amendment (321st meeting) was to include in the third paragraph of the Lebanese amendment the words “ and, taking into consideration, also, the General Assembly’s wish that one or more conventions to ensure freedom of information in the world should be adopted as soon as possible ” (A/C.3/L.116/Rev.1). The second Chilean sub-amendment (322nd meeting) was to substitute the words “ as soon as possible and not later than 1 February 1952 ” for the words “ not later than 1 August 1951 ” in the same paragraph of the Lebanese amendment.

The representative of Lebanon agreed to incorporate those proposals in his text.

22. At the 322nd meeting, held on 21 November 1950, the joint draft resolution and the amendments thereto were put to the vote. In accordance with a request of the representative of Cuba the principal decisions were taken by roll-call votes.

23. The United States amendment was put to the vote first. The amendment was rejected by 25 votes to 14, with 10 abstentions. The vote was as follows :

In favour : Australia, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Greece, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, Sweden, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America.

(c) Third paragraph—This paragraph was adopted by 30 votes to 1, with 17 abstentions.

(d) The Mexican sub-amendment: point 1—That amendment, calling for the deletion of part of the first paragraph of the Lebanese amendment, was voted upon by roll-call. There were 17 votes in favour, 17 against and 15 abstentions. Eleven delegations were not represented at the time of the vote. The amendment, accordingly, was not adopted. The vote was as follows :

(h) Fifth paragraph—This paragraph was adopted by 38 votes to none, with 10 abstentions.

(i) The Mexican sub-amendment—This sub-amendment, to delete part of the third paragraph of the Lebanese amendment, was rejected by 23 votes to 18, with 6 abstentions.

(j) The Lebanese amendment, point 3—That amendment, to replace the sixth paragraph of the joint draft resolution by another text, was adopted by 31 votes to 8, with 8 abstentions.

25. After the above votes were taken, the Chairman pointed out that, before voting on the draft resolution as a whole, the Committee had to complete the third paragraph, with regard to the membership of the proposed ad hoc committee.

26. At its 323rd meeting, held on 22 November, the Committee took two secret ballots to determine the composition of the Committee referred to in the third paragraph of the draft resolution. As a result of the first ballot the following Member States obtained the required majority: Cuba, Egypt, France, India, Lebanon, Mexico, Netherlands, Philippines, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and United States of America. The following Member States obtained the required majority in the second ballot: Ecuador, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Yugoslavia.

27. The names of the fifteen States having been inserted in the third paragraph, the draft resolution as a whole was adopted by 35 votes to none, with 15 abstentions. The vote was as follows:

In favour: Afghanistan, Bolivia, Burma, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Chile, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, El Salvador, Ethiopia, France, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, India, Indonesia, Iran, Lebanon, Liberia, Mexico, Netherlands, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Turkey, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

Abstaining: Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, Israel, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Thailand, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America, Venezuela.

28. An account of the debates on this sub-item will be found in the relevant summary records of the 316th and 320th to 324th meetings of the Committee.

29. The text of the draft resolution, as adopted, is to be found in chapter VI of the present report (draft resolution C).

VI. RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE THIRD COMMITTEE

30. The Third Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions:

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

Interference with radio signals

The General Assembly,

Whereas freedom to listen to radio broadcasts regardless of source is embodied in article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, which reads: "Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression" and whereas this right "includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers",

Whereas article 44 of the International Telecommunication Convention, Atlantic City, 1947, provides that "All stations, whatever their purpose, must be established and operated in such a manner as not to result in harmful interference to the radio services or communications of other Members or Associate Members... [and that] Each Member or Associate Member undertakes to require the private operating agencies which it recognizes, and the other operating agencies duly authorized for this purpose, to observe the provisions of the preceding paragraph",

Considering that the duly authorized radio operating agencies in some countries are deliberately interfering with the reception by the people of those countries of certain radio signals originating beyond their territories, and bearing in mind the discussion which took place in the Economic and Social Council and in the Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press on this subject,

Considering that peace among nations rests on the goodwill of all peoples and governments and that tolerance and understanding are prerequisites for establishing goodwill in the international field,

1. Adopts the declaration of the Economic and Social Council contained in its resolution 306 B (XI) of 9 August 1950 to the effect that this type of interference constitutes a violation of the accepted principles of freedom of information;

2. Condemns measures of this nature as a denial of the right of all persons to be fully informed concerning news, opinions and ideas regardless of frontiers;

3. Invites the Governments of all Member States to refrain from such interference with the right of their peoples to freedom of information;

4. Invites all governments to refrain from radio broadcasts that would mean unfair attacks or slanders against other peoples anywhere and in so doing to conform strictly to an ethical conduct in the interest of world peace by reporting facts truly and objectively;

5. Invites also Member States to give every possible facility so that their peoples may know objectively the activities of the United Nations in promoting peace and, in particular, to facilitate the reception and transmission of the United Nations official broadcasts.

Question of the freedom of information and of the Press in times of emergency

The General Assembly,

Considering that freedom of information and of the Press is one of the fundamental freedoms and should be advanced and safeguarded.

Considering that limitations might be placed on this freedom in emergencies or on the pretext of emergencies, Recommends to all Member States that, when they are compelled to declare a state of emergency, measures to limit freedom of information and of the Press shall be taken only in the most exceptional circumstances and then only to the extent strictly required by the situation.

Draft convention on freedom of informationThe General Assembly,

Recalling its resolution 313 (IV) of 20 October 1949, the recommendation of the sixth session of the Commission on Human Rights regarding freedom of information and the discussion concerning that recommendation at the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council,

Considering that freedom of information and the purposes of the United Nations are indivisible,

1. Appoints a Committee consisting of the representatives of the following fifteen countries: Cuba, Ecuador, Egypt, France, India, Lebanon, Mexico, Netherlands, Pakistan, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America, Yugoslavia, which shall meet at the headquarters of the United Nations as soon as possible, but not later than 1 March 1951, to prepare a draft convention on freedom of information, taking into consideration the draft approved by the United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information, held at Geneva from 23 March to 21 April 1948; the text voted during the second part of the third session of the General Assembly; article 14 of the provisional text of the draft first international covenant on human rights; and the observations contained in the summary records of the meetings of the Third Committee dealing with the question;

2. Requests the Committee to report to the Economic and Social Council at its thirteenth session on the results of its work and to submit recommendations, in particular, with regard to the advisability of convening a conference of plenipotentiaries with a view to the framing and signature of a convention on freedom of information;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to submit the Committee's report, together with the draft or drafts of the convention prepared by the Committee, to the various governments concerned for their consideration;

4. Invites the governments so consulted to transmit their suggestions and observations to the Secretary-General by 15 June 1951;

5. Recommends the Economic and Social Council to consider the Committee's report at its thirteenth session and if it thinks fit, in the light of the Committee's recommendations and the observations of governments, and also taking into consideration the General Assembly's wish that one or more conventions to ensure freedom of information in the world should be adopted as soon as possible, to convene a conference of plenipotentiaries to meet as soon as possible and not later than 1 February 1952, with a view to the framing and signature of a convention on freedom of information, based on the draft or drafts prepared by the above-mentioned Committee and on the observations of governments.

Draft convention on freedom of information—Financial implications of draft resolution C proposed by the Third Committee (A/1630): thirty-first report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[9 December 1950]

1. The Secretary-General has submitted (A/C.5/427) the following estimate of the financial implications of draft resolution C proposed by the Third Committee (A/1630):

	Expenditure during 1951 US dollars
(a) Committee of fifteen representatives (draft resolution C, paragraph 1):
Local transportation	1,360
Contractual printing (Official records) .	5,000

(b) Conference of plenipotentiaries (draft resolution C, paragraphs 2 and 5) nil

2. The Advisory Committee considers that the session of the Committee of fifteen representatives could be held at the permanent headquarters in Manhattan, with a consequent saving of $US1,360 on the item for local transportation. An appropriation of $US5,000 is accordingly recommended for approval, this sum to be distributed, if necessary, between sections 1 and 25 of the 1951 budget.

DOCUMENT A/1667

Draft convention on freedom of information—Financial implications of draft resolution C proposed by the Third Committee (A/1630) : report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[11 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and with the request of the President in his letter dated 4 December 1950 to the Chairman (A/C.4/430), the Fifth Committee, at its 278th meeting, held on 11 December 1950, considered the financial implications of draft resolution C proposed by the Third Committee (A/1630) concerning the preparation and adoption of a draft convention on freedom of information.

2. The Fifth Committee had before it a note by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/427) and the thirty-first report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1645). In the Secretary-General's opinion, a meeting at headquarters of the proposed committee of fifteen governmental representatives, assuming the meeting would last for four weeks, would involve expenditure under section 1 of the budget of approximately $US360 for local transportation and under section 25 of approximately $US5,000 for the printing of the Committee's report. In the case of the proposed conference of plenipotentiaries to be held at headquarters early in 1952, no additional expenditures would arise during 1951, while the anticipated 1952 expenditures would be limited to contractual printing.

3. The Advisory Committee expressed the view that the session of the committee of fifteen governmental representatives could be held at the permanent headquarters in Manhattan with a consequent saving of the costs of local transportation. Accordingly, it recommended approval of an estimate of $US5,000 to be distributed as necessary between sections 1 and 25 of the 1951 budget.

4. The Fifth Committee, having unanimously approved the recommendation of the Advisory Committee, decided to inform the General Assembly that adoption of draft resolution C proposed by the Third Committee would require additional budgetary provision in 1951 in the amount of $US5,000.

DOCUMENT A/1355

Report of the Secretary-General

[11 September 1950]

1. The General Assembly, by its resolution 316 (IV) of 17 November 1949 (a) authorized the Secretary-General to place on a continuing basis, rather than on a year-to-year basis, the advisory social welfare services originally authorized by its resolution 58 (I) of 14 December 1946; and (b) requested the Economic and Social Council to review the terms of resolution 58 (I) in the light of this authorization and in the light of the discussions and suggestions in the Third Committee at the fourth session of the General Assembly, and to recommend to the next regular session of the Assembly such modifications as it might consider necessary.

2. In the light of resolution 316 (IV), the Social Commission at its fifth session requested the Secretary-General to submit for consideration at its sixth session suggestions for modifications in the terms of resolution 58 (I), based on recommendations resulting from the social research studies made under Economic and Social Council resolution 43 (IV) and on the experience of the Secretariat during three years of operation of the advisory social welfare services programme (E/1568).¹

3. The Secretary-General, in submitting his recommendations (E/CN.5/194 and E/CN.5/195) to the Social Commission (sixth session), took into account the following factors :

(a) Although requests for services during the early stages of implementation of the programme fell mainly within such broad fields as social welfare administration and child welfare, they had since increased and included many other fields of social welfare, such as social defence, migration, housing, training of social workers and social rehabilitation of handicapped persons.

(b) Because requests for co-ordinated assistance had been, and continued to be, received, it had seemed desirable to furnish small exploratory missions to assist governments in studying the possibility of integrating this international programme of long-range assistance into their national programmes of social development.

(c) The need had been clearly demonstrated of providing training in social work by means of teaching scholarships as well as observation fellowships, especially for those countries which have neither sufficient numbers of trained social workers nor facilities for training them.

(d) It was deemed useful to provide for regional demonstration centres and pilot projects in order to show the participating countries what could be accomplished on a planned basis with limited means.

(e) The regional social welfare seminars organized in Latin America, the Middle East and Europe had been so successful that specific authorization should be given for holding such seminars.

(f) The interest in, and requests for, the films produced under this programme evidenced the usefulness of this method of supplying technical information, especially to under-developed countries.

(g) It had become clear, from the number of countries requesting social welfare publications, that the restrictions originally limiting their distribution to Member States whose countries had been devastated by war should be removed.

4. The Social Commission, at its sixth session, examined in detail the material presented by the Secretary-General, and submitted its recommendations

(E/1678)² and E/1702³ including a revised draft of the text of resolution 58 (I), to the Economic and Social Council.

5. The Council, considered, at its eleventh session, the recommendations of the Social Commission for the revision of resolution 58 (I) and undertook a thorough discussion of the proposals. Minor drafting changes were made in the text prepared by the Social Commission, and the financial implications of the revised text (E/1702/Add.1)³ were noted. The Council then adopted resolution 312 (XI) by which it submitted to the General Assembly a revised text of resolution 58 (I). This text provides for the following new features :

- (a) Granting scholarships;
- (b) Planning, organizing and participating in demonstration centres and pilot projects;
- (c) Planning and conducting seminars;
- (d) Furnishing technical films;
- (e) Furnishing technical publications to requesting governments (without limitation to Member States whose countries had been devastated by war).

6. To facilitate consideration of the draft proposal, annex I of the present report sets forth a comparison between the original text of resolution 58 (I) and the proposed revised text, and annex II presents a brief report on the status of operations of the advisory social welfare services programme, covering the period 1 January to the present date.

7. The text of the draft resolution submitted by the Economic and Social Council for the consideration of the General Assembly is shown in the right-hand column of annex I.

Whereas Article 66 of the Charter of United Nations provides :

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connexion with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly,

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly;

Whereas the Economic and Social Council, on 1 October 1946, recommended the transfer to the United Nations of certain urgent and important advisory functions in the Revised text proposed by the Economic and Social Council (resolution 312 (XI) of 14 July 1950)

Whereas, by Articles 55 and 60 of the Charter of the United Nations, the Economic and Social Council, under the authority of the General Assembly, is charged with responsibility for promoting higher standards of living and conditions of social progress and development,

Whereas, by Article 66 of the Charter, the Economic and Social Council may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies

Whereas the General Assembly, after examining the recommendations of the Economic and Social Council and the accompanying report of services rendered for the first three years of operation, approved the recommendations and placed the advisory social welfare services of resolution 58 (I) on a continuing basis and directed that a review field of social welfare carried on by UNRRA, special consideration being given to the needs of children;

Whereas the General Assembly, after examining the report and the recommendations presented by the Secretary-General in document A/132, recognizes the necessity of transferring to the United Nations the urgent and important advisory functions in the field of social welfare carried on by UNRRA;

The General Assembly, therefore,

A. Authorizes the Secretary-General :

1. In consultation with the Economic and Social Council, to make provision, with the co-operation of the specialized agencies where appropriate, for the continuance of the urgent and important advisory functions in the field of social welfare carried on by UNRRA; and, for this purpose,

2. To include in the budget of the United Nations for 1947 the funds necessary for the assumption of the following functions, all of which are necessary for the accomplishment of an effective programme :

(a) For a requisite number of social welfare experts to provide, on the request of governments which show the need for them, such advisory services, and to put into practice, over an appropriate period, new technical methods in any branch of social welfare;

(b) For enabling a requisite number of suitably qualified social welfare officials to observe, and familiarize themselves with, the experience of other countries administering social welfare programmes;

(d) For furnishing to the Member countries which have been devastated during the war, technical publications helpful in the training of social welfare workers.

The furnishing of the experts shall be undertaken by the Secretary-General in agreement with the governments concerned, and the selection of grant holders shall be made by the Secretary-General on the basis of proposals received from governments. The amount of service to be furnished to the various governments shall be decided by the Secretary-General, and shall be reviewed by the Social Commission at its next session. The kind of service mentioned under (a), (b), (c), and (d) to be rendered to each country shall be decided by the government concerned.

be made of the terms of the resolution and appropriate recommendations made with respect to desirable or necessary changes, and

Whereas the General Assembly recognizes that the advisory social welfare services constitute a practical operational programme of direct assistance to governments and that the other activities of the United Nations in the social field should be properly correlated to these services in order to achieve maximum effectiveness, to which end the Social Commission has adjusted its long-range work programme,

The General Assembly, therefore,

A. Authorizes the Secretary-General :

1. Subject to the directions of the Economic and Social Council, to make provision for the under-mentioned functions and services, such provision to be made where appropriate with the co-operation of the specialized agencies and in consultation with non-governmental organizations having consultative status :

(a) For a requisite number of social welfare experts to provide advisory services at the request of governments which show the need for them, and to put into practice, over an appropriate period, new methods in any branch of social welfare;

(b) For enabling suitably qualified social welfare officials to observe, and familiarize themselves with, the experience and practice of other countries in any branch of social welfare;

(c) For enabling suitably qualified persons who cannot receive professional training in branches of social welfare in their own country to receive appropriate training in foreign countries having the necessary facilities;

(d) For planning by appropriate methods projects for experimenting in or demonstrating various phases of social welfare, organizing and participating in these projects, providing the necessary tools and equipment in connexion therewith, and associating to the extent practicable with the projects, the persons referred to in sub-paragraphs (b) and (c) above;

(e) For furnishing technical publications and films; and

(f) For planning and conducting seminars; and

2. To include in the budgetary estimates of the United Nations the sums necessary for carrying out an effective operational programme based on the provision of the above services;

B. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the Social Commission on the measures which he takes in compliance with the terms of the present resolution, and requests the Commission during its first session to formulate recommendations concerning the continued action required to carry on the essential advisory activities of UNRRA in the field of social welfare.

Revised text proposed by the Economic and Social Council (resolution 312 (XI) of 14 July 1950) (continued)

B. Instructs the Secretary-General to undertake the performance of the functions listed in paragraph A.1 above, in agreement with the governments concerned, on the basis of requests received from governments and in accordance with the following policies :

1. The kind of service to be rendered to each country shall be decided by the government concerned;

2. The furnishing of the experts and services shall be undertaken by the Secretary-General; the Secretary-General shall, normally, make application for experts to States which are Members of the United Nations, and the selection of grant holders shall be made by the Secretary-General on the basis of proposals received from governments, which shall indicate their preferences with regard to host countries;

3. The amount of services and the conditions under which they shall be furnished to the various governments shall be decided by the Secretary-General with due regard to the greater needs of the under-developed areas and in conformity with the principle that each requesting government shall be expected to participate financially to the maximum possible extent in the services provided to it; and

C. Requests the Secretary-General to report regularly to the Social Commission on the measures which he takes in compliance with the terms of the present resolution and requests the Commission to formulate recommendations from time to time, concerning the continued action required to carry on the essential advisory activities in the field of social welfare.

It is envisaged that the expert will remain for approximately four months.

Greece

The services of the expert in social welfare administration will be continued in Greece until the end of 1950. The government has been informed that the United Nations will consider his mission completed at that time. The expert in social services to refugees ended her assignment for the United Nations on 30 June 1950.

Italy

A candidate has been proposed to the government in accordance with its request for the services of an expert in social work training to establish an experimental centre for all Italian schools of social work.

Poland

The expert in general welfare administration who served as United Nations adviser in Poland for several years completed his mission at the end of January 1950.

Yugoslavia

The government has requested the services of four experts : two in rehabilitation and two in social statistics. Negotiations are nearing completion for a visit to the country of an expert in social rehabilitation of the physically handicapped to assist in broad general planning. This expert will remain in the country for from six weeks to two months; before his departure, an expert in services to handicapped children will be sent. The two experts in social statistics will visit Yugoslavia later in the year.

B. Middle East

Egypt

An expert in the training of social workers, who went to Cairo late in 1949, remained in the country during the first three months of 1950. A second expert, in public assistance and related services, arrived in Egypt in the middle of February and remained for approximately five months, assisting the government in the preparation of new and comprehensive social security legislation. The government has made unofficial inquiries regarding the possibility of a brief visit from this second expert later in the year.

Iran

Arrangements are being completed for a joint mission to Iran, which is scheduled to arrive in the country in the middle of September. The mission will advise the government on social welfare development, community, family and child welfare, public finance, and customs organization; the two social experts will be furnished under the programme instituted under resolution 58 (I).

Iraq

The expert in training of social workers will arrive in the country on 15 October 1950, to assist the government in planning and establishing courses of social work training. The government has also requested occasional visits during the year by an expert on social policy and administration.

Israel

A comprehensive request has been received from the government for services in 1951, including the services of an expert in methods of probation for adults and services for offenders in prisons and after release. The government has been asked to supply further information and details, in order that this request may be met early in 1951.

Lebanon

Negotiations are under way to comply with the request of the government for a small exploratory mission to assist in making a general survey, and in preparing an outline of the developments in legislation and administration needed for a social welfare programme, adapted to the conditions and requirements of the country. The mission will be composed of three members, two supplied by the United Nations and one Lebanese appointed by the government. It is hoped that the mission will arrive in Lebanon in time to complete its survey and outline before the end of 1950.

Libya

A small joint mission went to Libya in July 1950 to discuss possible technical assistance in the economic and social fields. The report of the mission indicates the need for several social welfare experts.

Turkey

Since a portion of the comprehensive request submitted by the government under the technical assistance programme falls within the terms of resolution 58 (I), the government has been informed of this fact, and requested to send additional information regarding its needs.

C. Far East

Indonesia

A small exploratory mission, composed of representatives of the United Nations and several specialized agencies, visited Indonesia. The Secretariat representative of the Division of Social Activities in the Far East served as the social member of this mission.

India

Through mutual agreement between the government, the United Nations and the expert concerned, the expert on criminology, requested for 1950, will be sent to India in December 1951 to remain for a year. An expert in community planning and housing will visit India in November 1950.

Japan

The expert in child welfare who went to Japan in 1949 has completed her assignment and was due to leave the country on 24 August 1950.

Philippines

The United Nations expert in general welfare administration completed her second assignment in the country in June 1950. The government withdrew its request for an expert on social research and planning.

D. Latin America

Bolivia

A joint economic and social mission, which spent approximately six months in the country during 1950, included four social experts, specializing in: public education (in co-operation with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization), social welfare administration, standards of living, and labour legislation (in co-operation with the International Labour Office)

Brazil

Negotiations are under way for supplying the expert in rural and suburban housing requested by the government; two candidates have been proposed.

Chile

Negotiations are under way for supplying a joint economic and social mission, which will include social experts to provide assistance in the organization of two community development demonstration projects, one urban and one rural.

Ecuador

At the request of the government, the services of the expert in general welfare administration are being continued until early September 1950. The expert to advise the government in its plans for reorganization of its child care institutions (institutions for normal children) will arrive in Ecuador about 1 September 1950, to be followed shortly by an expert on the institutional care of delinquent children.

Guatemala

The services of the expert in training of social workers are being continued until June 1951, at the request of the government. Candidates have been nominated to replace the expert in teaching and supervision of field work, whose leave of absence could not be extended beyond 5 August 1950. Negotiations are under way to meet the request of the government for the services of an expert in social rehabilitation of the physically handicapped, and the names of two candidates for the post have been proposed.

Haiti

Recruitment has been begun for the small social mission requested by the government, and it is hoped that its services will be available to the government before the end of September 1950. The mission will be composed of three experts in the following fields: social welfare development, rural and suburban housing, and family and child welfare.

Peru.

A request has been received from the government for the services of an expert in housing; clarification and further details have been requested regarding this request.

E. Central America

Negotiations are under way with the Food and Agriculture Organization for a co-operative project for the gathering of special data and development of plans for extending credit and welfare services to rural areas through the co-operation of the Governments of Mexico, Guatemala and Venezuela.

II. FELLOWSHIPS

Because of budgetary limitations, it will not be possible to meet the demand for fellowships under resolution 58 (I) during 1950. As of 13 August 1950, 39 countries have requested 316 fellowships. It is hoped that it will be possible to grant 200 fellowships during the present year.

Governments have been notified that applications that cannot be considered for fellowships in 1950 because of financial implications will be given priority for 1951, and already 23 candidates have been accepted for referral to countries of study in respect of 1951 awards.

Arrangements have been made for fellows to undertake their studies in nineteen countries, and negotiations are now under way to arrange facilities in four additional countries. During 1950, it is anticipated that social welfare fellows will observe the experience and practice in countries of Europe, North and Latin America, the Far East and Oceania.

The fellowships requested during 1950 fell within the following broad fields of social welfare: social welfare administration; social security; community, family and child welfare; social defence; services for the handicapped; social aspects of health; housing and town and country planning; rural welfare services; industrial relations; industrial welfare; employment services; policy and problems; standards of living; social aspects of migration; co-operatives; social research, including social statistics.

Under the fellowship programme, the Governments of the Netherlands and the United Kingdom sent twelve fellows from Non-Self-Governing Territories to attend a summer workshop in home economics at San Juan, Puerto Rico. The Netherlands fellows came from Surinam and Curaçao; the United Kingdom fellows from Trinidad (2), Barbados, British Honduras, British Guiana, Dominica, Granada and Jamaica (3).

The Department of Social Affairs also handled the administration of nine UNICEF fellowships for fellows from Malaya (7), Sarawak and Singapore.

III. DEMONSTRATION EQUIPMENT AND MATERIAL

Limited amounts of demonstration equipment and material for use in the demonstration of modern methods and techniques of rehabilitation are being supplied to Austria, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Hungary, the Philippines and Poland. Such equipment usually consists of prototypes or samples of prosthetic devices, and materials for demonstrating occupational therapy. The Government of Egypt submitted a request for a braille printing press, but it is possible that this request cannot be met out of the budget for the current year.

IV. FILMS

Copies are being made of the film Children of Darkness which was produced in Mexico during 1949. Copies of the film in Spanish will be supplied to the Governments of the Latin American countries. Copies of First Steps have been distributed, as well as copies of the three films comprising the India Village Series.

V. SEMINARS

A second social welfare seminar for the Arab States in the Middle East is being organized and will be held in Cairo in November-December 1950 at the invitation of the Egyptian Government. The Governments of Egypt, the Hashemite Kingdom of the Jordan, Lebanon, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen will participate. The seminar will be a continuation of the one held in Beirut in 1949 and will deal with community organization, with special reference to rural welfare services. The Food and Agriculture Organization, the World Health Organization, the International Labour Organisation, and the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization have been invited to participate actively.

The United Nations has offered to furnish six experts for a national conference on the prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency which will be organized by the Italian Government in Rome in November 1950.

The organization of a two-day conference on handicapped children to follow the Indian Conference on Social Work—which will be held in India in December 1950—is under discussion with the Indian Government. The United Nations, UNESCO and other interested specialized agencies would furnish the experts. The possibility of inviting the Governments of Afghanistan, Burma, Ceylon, India, Japan, Malaya, Pakistan, the Philippines and Thailand to send representatives is under consideration.

The question of holding a seminar on problems of immigration for Latin American States, to be held in the late spring of 1951 in Venezuela, is under discussion. The Government of Venezuela has indicated its interest in acting as host government.

Plans are also under discussion with the Government of India for a seminar to be held in India in November-December 1951 for the following countries: Burma, Ceylon, India, Indonesia, Malaya, Pakistan, the Philippines and others. The subject under consideration is youth welfare, including youth organizations and movements. The Government of India has indicated its interest in acting as host government.

Financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/1436) : note by the Secretary-General

1. The Third Committee, at its 275th meeting, on 2 October 1950, adopted a draft resolution (A/1436) in modification of resolution 58 (I), which covers all the existing functions of resolution 58 (I) and provides for the following additional services :

(a) In addition to the fellowship programme, which provides further training to qualified social welfare officials, a scholarship programme is proposed to enable suitably qualified persons, who cannot receive professional training in branches of social welfare in their own country, to obtain appropriate training in foreign countries having the necessary facilities;

(b) In lieu of simply furnishing demonstration equipment and tools to countries for the vocational training of physically handicapped persons as provided under resolution 58 (I), it is proposed that projects should be organized for experimenting in or demonstrating various phases of social welfare, providing the necessary tools and equipment in connexion therewith, and associating to the extent practicable with the projects, the persons referred to in sub-paragraph (a) above;

(c) Resolution 58 (I) provided for the supplying of technical publications on social welfare only to Member States whose countries had been devastated by war. The proposed revision calls for furnishing technical publications and films generally.

2. The following statement of the budgetary implications of this proposal is submitted to the Fifth Committee for its consideration in accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly.

3. The budget provision of $ US 610,500 originally proposed for advisory social welfare services for 1951⁴ covers only the activities called for by the terms of resolution 58 (I) of the General Assembly. Requests from governments for social welfare advisory services have gradually increased during the last three years and it is expected that the full amount of the original estimate would be needed during 1951 to cover the continuing activities. Additional funds will therefore be needed in 1951 to implement the terms of the revised resolution of the Council. After careful consideration of the financial implications of the additional activities envisaged in the revised resolution, the Secretary-General considers that the following additional funds will be needed during 1951, on a minimum basis, for the new activities :

	US dollars
(a) 30 scholarships at $ US 2,000 each ...	60,000
(b) Operation of one demonstration centre, including cost of equipment	50,000
(c) Supply of technical literature on social welfare to various countries	48,000
	158,000

Report of the Third Committee

[13 October 1950]

1. As requested by the General Assembly in its resolution 316 (IV) of 17 November 1949, the Economic and Social Council, at its eleventh session, reviewed the terms of General Assembly resolution 58 (I) on advisory social welfare services. In its resolution 312 (XI) of 14 July 1950, the Council unanimously recommended to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly certain modifications in the original resolution which it considered necessary and which it embodied in a consolidated revised text.

2. A detailed comparison between resolution 58 (I) and the revised draft submitted by the Council was prepared for the General Assembly by the Secretary-General (A/1355).

3. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting, held on 26 September 1950, referred the matter to the Third Committee for consideration and report.

4. The Third Committee devoted three meetings (273rd, 274th, and 275th meetings) to the consideration of the revised text proposed by the Council. Of the thirty representatives who took part in the debate, all expressed confidence in the programme of advisory social welfare services as one of the most effective expressions of international co-operation and declared themselves in favour of the Council's recommendations concerning the scope of these services. Several representatives made observations of a technical character on the application of the proposed resolution, with a view to avoiding duplication and overlapping. Some reserved for consideration in the Fifth Committee their delegations' positions respecting the financial estimate submitted to the Council by the Secretary-General (E/1702/Add.1)⁵. A few, moreover, abstained from voting on the ground that the sums appropriated for 1950 should be adequate for developing a somewhat more expanded programme in 1951.

5. The Committee heard various explanations and statements made by representatives of the Secretary-General. A technical explanation was given of the procedure for consultation with requesting governments, for collaboration with specialized agencies in meeting requests for services, for combining various advisory services through the method of demonstration centres, for reinforcing and supplementing these various services by means of technical publications and films, and for using regional offices as dynamic centres for effectively meeting local needs. A statement was made concerning the organizational arrangements within the Secretariat for integrating the administration of the advisory social welfare services with that of other aspects of technical assistance, while at the same time assuring continued consultation and co-operation with the substantive department in charge of social welfare questions. The Committee noted with approval that the distinctive characteristics of the advisory social welfare programme were to be fully maintained, in that it was a continuing programme with wide terms of reference, financially supported from the regular contributions of all Member States, for the stimulation of social progress for its own sake and not only as an aspect of economic development, and on behalf of people all over the world and not only of these of under-developed areas. The Committee understood that the advisory social welfare services would continue to be directed by the Economic and Social Council, on the recommendation of its Social Commission and subject to the approval of the General Assembly.

6. Two amendments, submitted by the delegation of Israel (A/C.3/L.43) and by the delegation of Lebanon (A/C.3/L.42) respectively, to paragraphs B.2 and B.3 of the proposed text, were adopted with a view to clarifying the part to be played by requesting countries in the selection of experts and in meeting the cost of the services furnished.

7. Lastly, the Committee decided unanimously to approve the following draft resolution, and, on a roll-call vote (47 to none, with 5 abstentions), to recommend it for adoption by the General Assembly in the following terms :

ADVISORY SOCIAL WELFARE SERVICES

The General Assembly,

Having considered the modifications made, in the light of General Assembly resolution 316 (IV), by the Economic and Social Council, in resolution 58 (I) on advisory social welfare services,

Approves the following text of resolution 58 (I) revised by the Economic and Social Council and amended by the Third Committee :

Whereas by Articles 55 and 60 of the Charter of the United Nations the Economic and Social Council, under the authority of the General Assembly, is charged with the responsibility for promoting higher standards of living and conditions of social progress and development,

Whereas by Article 66 of the Charter, the Economic and Social Council may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies,

Whereas the General Assembly, after examining the recommendations of the Economic and Social Council and the accompanying report of services rendered for the first three years of operation, approved the recommendations and placed the advisory social welfare services originally authorized by resolution 58 (I) on a continuing basis, and requested that a review be made of the terms of that resolution and appropriate recommendations made with respect to desirable or necessary changes (resolution 316 (IV)),

Whereas the General Assembly recognizes that the advisory social welfare services constitute a practical operational programme of direct assistance to governments and that the other activities of the United Nations in the social field should be properly correlated with these services in order to achieve maximum effectiveness, to which end the Social Commission has adjusted its long-range work programme,

The General Assembly, therefore,

A. Authorizes the Secretary-General :

1. Subject to the directions of the Economic and Social Council, to make provision for the under-mentioned functions and services, such provision to be made where appropriate with the co-operation of the specialized agencies and in consultation with non-governmental organizations having consultative status :

(a) For a requisite number of social welfare experts to provide advisory services at the request of governments which show the need for them, and to put into practice, over an appropriate period, new methods in any branch of social welfare;

(b) For enabling suitably qualified social welfare officials to observe, and familiarize themselves with, the experience and practice of other countries in any branch of social welfare;

(c) For enabling suitably qualified persons who cannot receive professional training in branches of social welfare in their own country to receive appropriate training in foreign countries having the necessary facilities;

(d) For planning by appropriate methods projects for experimenting in or demonstrating various phases of social welfare, organizing and participating in these projects, providing the necessary tools and equipment in connexion therewith, and associating with the projects to the extent practicable, the persons referred to in paragraphs (b) and (c) above;

“ (e) For furnishing technical publications and films;

“ (f) For planning and conducting seminars;

“ 2. To include in the budgetary estimates of the United Nations the sums necessary for carrying out an effective operational programme based on the provision of the above services;

“ B. Instructs the Secretary-General to undertake the performance of the functions listed in paragraph A.1 above, in agreement with the governments concerned, on the basis of requests received from governments and in accordance with the following policies :

“ 1. The kind of service to be rendered to each country shall be decided by the government concerned;

“ 2. The furnishing of the experts and services shall be undertaken by the Secretary-General, with due regard to suggestions made by the requesting governments; the Secretary-General shall, normally, make application for experts to States which are Members of the United Nations. The selection of grant holders shall be made by the Secretary-General on the basis of proposals received from governments, which shall indicate their preferences with regard to host countries;

“ 3. The amount of services and the conditions under which they shall be furnished to the various governments shall be decided by the Secretary-General with due regard to the greater needs of the under-developed areas and in conformity with the principle that each requesting government shall be expected to assume responsibility, as far as possible, for all or part of the expenses connected with the services furnished to it, either by making a contribution in cash, or in the form of services for the purposes of the programme being carried out;

“ C. Requests the Secretary-General to report regularly to the Social Commission on the measures which he takes in compliance with the terms of the present resolution and requests the Commission to formulate recommendations from time to time, concerning the continued action required to carry on the essential advisory activities in the field of social welfare.”

Financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/1436) : thirteenth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[6 November 1950]

1. In accordance with a decision taken by the Fifth Committee at its 252nd meeting held on 20 October 1950, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report submitted by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/384) on the financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/1436).

2. The draft resolution, which is based upon a text submitted to the General Assembly by the Economic and Social Council (resolution 312 (XI)), constitutes a revision of the terms of General Assembly resolution 58 (I) and provides for the following new features in the programme of advisory social welfare services :

(i) The inclusion of a system of scholarships in the social welfare training programme;

(ii) The establishment of demonstration centres and pilot projects with provision for the participation of fellowship and scholarship holders in such projects;

(iii) The planning and conducting of seminars;

(iv) The furnishing of technical films;

(v) The furnishing of technical publications to requesting governments (resolution 58 (I) limited this provision to Member States whose countries had been devastated by war).

3. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the Secretary-General has submitted (A/C.5/384) the following estimate of the financial implications of the proposed resolution :

	US dollars
(i) 30 scholarships at $ US 2,000 each	60,000
(ii) Operation of one demonstration centre, including cost of equipment	50,000
(iii) Supplies of technical literature	48,000
TOTAL	158,000

The Fifth Committee has already (249th meeting) approved, in its first reading of the 1951 budget estimates, the provision of $ US 610,500 for advisory social welfare services (section 27) ⁶ under the following provisional heads :

	US dollars
(i) Advisers	208,000
(ii) Fellowships	250,500
(iii) Regional seminars	50,000
(iv) Demonstration equipment and literature	52,000
(v) Films	50,000

⁶ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Fifth Session, Supplement No. 5, p. 299.

The total thus proposed for appropriation in respect of the 1951 programme of advisory social welfare services amounts to $ US 768,500. This figure is exclusive of overhead expenses, for which provision is made in sections 9, 20 and 22 of the 1951 budget estimates.

4. The General Assembly, at its fourth session (1949), in approving the report of the Fifth Committee (A/1232)⁷ on the 1950 budget of the United Nations, took note of the view expressed by that Committee (A/1232, paragraph 136) to the effect that a decision regarding the amount to be recommended for appropriation in respect of advisory social welfare services was clearly within its own competence and, further, that the amount so recommended might vary from year to year according to the financial circumstances of the Organization as foreseen by the Committee.

5. The Advisory Committee, in recommending in its second report of 1950 (A/1312⁸, paragraphs 276 to 280) that the 1951 provision for these services should be maintained at the same level as in 1950 ($ US 610,500), concurred in the Secretary-General's proposal that the necessary provision for the three types of direct technical services included in part IX of the budget should be continued "as reflecting United Nations acceptance of a regularly budgeted responsibility for this most important means of implementing the provisions of Chapter IX of the Charter".⁹ At the same time, however, the Committee noted that this provision would represent a larger volume of services since recipient governments were assuming a progressively larger share of the costs of the programme.

6. The Advisory Committee in this connexion suggests that, irrespective of the merits of the broadened programme proposed by the Third Committee, it is desirable to lay down a clear policy to govern the continuance of these services. Such a policy decision might, in the opinion of the Committee, embrace the following points:

(i) Whether increased contributions by recipient governments should augment the total expenditure for the programme or alternatively decrease the net appropriation to be made by the United Nations;

(ii) Whether and, if so, to what extent, funds for this social activity can appropriately be allocated from the special account for technical assistance. The Committee draws attention to the relevant observations of the Economic and Social Council (resolution 222 A (IX) annex I—Selection of projects, paragraph 1):

"... requests may also be approved for technical assistance to governments desiring to undertake the specific social improvements that are necessary to permit effective economic development and to mitigate the social problems—particularly problems of dislocation of family and community life—that may arise as a concomitant of economic change."

It appears to the Committee that, in accordance with this principle, a part of the existing programme under General Assembly resolution 58 (I) and of the proposed additional services might properly be financed out of the special account;

(iii) The extent to which a broadening of the programme is desirable. The Committee suggests that there is need for a specific directive from the General Assembly on this point, in order to obviate a further expansion of the programme which might prove inconsistent with the purposes of resolution 58 (I) and disproportionate to the financial resources of the Organization.

7. As regards the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/1436), the Advisory Committee offers the following observations:

(i) The Secretary-General has referred to the need for "providing training in social work by means of teaching scholarships as well as observation fellowships, especially for those countries which have neither sufficient numbers of trained social workers nor facilities for training them" (A/1355, paragraph 3 (c)). The Committee considers that, in view of this situation, a consolidated appropriation covering both fellowships and scholarships should be made; distribution of funds might then be related to the urgency of needs;

(ii) The draft resolution (A/1436, part B, paragraph 3) provides that "... each requesting government shall be expected to assume responsibility, as far as possible, for all or part of the expenses connected with the services furnished to it, either by making a contribution in cash, or in the form of services for the purposes of the programme being carried out." The Committee believes that, since the general programme appears to comprise certain functions which are essentially the responsibility of governments (for example, the proposed system of scholarships for training in branches of social welfare, to which reference is made above), the fullest possible effect should be given to the above provision, so that the available financial resources of the United Nations may be conserved for other projects of equal or greater urgency;

(iii) Consideration might, in the opinion of the Committee, also be given to the necessity of strictly limiting the duration of advisory missions, with a view to a reduction in the budgetary provision for this item, amounting in the 1951 estimates to $ US 208,000.

8. The Advisory Committee accordingly considers that, should the General Assembly adopt the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee, an endeavour should be made to meet the resulting expenditure for additional activities:

(i) By a redistribution of the existing programme;

(ii) By increased contributions from requesting governments;

(iii) By an appropriation from the special account for technical assistance.

If, however, the General Assembly should decide to increase the funds available for these services within the budget, the Committee suggests that in no case should the additional provision exceed an amount of $ US 80,000. It notes in this connexion that the Economic and Social Council has indicated in its report (A/1345,¹⁰ chapter XI, annex II) that, should the General Assembly limit the general budgetary appropriation for the programme, the totals under the three heads—scholarships, demonstration centres and technical publications—will be appropriately re-allocated.

Financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/1436) : report of the Fifth Committee

[20 November 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure and with the request of the President of the General Assembly in his letter to the Chairman of the Fifth Committee of 13 October 1950 (A/C.5/379), the Fifth Committee, at its 263rd meeting held on 10 November 1950, considered the effect on the budget estimates for 1951 of the draft resolution on advisory social welfare services adopted by the Third Committee (A/1436).

2. The Committee had before it a note by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/384) stating that the additional activities envisaged in the draft resolution of the Third Committee would require increased budgetary provision for 1951 amounting to a minimum of $ US 158,000, allocated as follows :

	US dollars
(a) 30 scholarships at $ US 2,000 each ...	60,000
(b) Operation of one demonstration centre, including cost of equipment	50,000
(c) Supply of technical literature on social welfare to various countries	48,000

The above estimate was based on the expectation that the full amount of $ US 610,500, for which provision had already been made under section 27 of the budget estimates, would be needed during 1951 to cover the continuing activities called for by the terms of resolution 58 (I) of the General Assembly, since requests from governments for advisory social welfare services had gradually increased during the last three years.

3. Having examined the Secretary-General's estimates, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, in its thirteenth report of 1950 (A/1488), suggested the desirability, irrespective of the merits of the broadened programme proposed by the Third Committee, of laying down a clear policy governing the continuance of advisory social welfare services. Such a policy decision should, in the Advisory Committee's opinion, take account of the extent to which contributions from recipient governments should augment the total expenditure for the programme or alternatively decrease the net appropriation to be made by the United Nations; the extent, if any, to which funds for those services might appropriately be allocated from the special account for technical assistance; and the extent to which continued expansion of the programme would be consistent with the purposes of resolution 58 (I) and proportionate to the financial resources of the Organization. As regards the Third Committee's draft resolution, the Advisory Committee suggested that a consolidated appropriation covering both scholarships and fellowships should be made, the distribution of funds then being related to the urgency of the needs. Attention was called to the importance of giving the fullest possible effect to the provision under which "each requesting government shall be expected to assume responsibility, as far as possible, for all or part of the expenses connected with the services furnished to it". The view was also expressed that consideration might be given to the necessity of strictly limiting the duration of advisory missions. In the light of the foregoing observations, the Advisory Committee recommended that an endeavour should be made to meet resulting expenditure for the new activities proposed :

- (i) By a redistribution of the existing programme;
- (ii) By increased contributions from requesting governments;
- (iii) By an appropriation from the special account for technical assistance.

If, however, the General Assembly should decide to increase the funds available for those services, within the United Nations budget, it was suggested by the Advisory Committee that in no case should the additional provision exceed an amount of $ US 80,000.

4. In the course of discussion, the view was expressed by a number of delegations that the objectives which the Third Committee had in mind could not be accomplished by means of a redistribution of the existing programme within the limits of the existing budgetary provision. While there was general recognition of the principle that recipient governments should participate to the fullest extent practicable in the financing of the programme, several delegations considered that that principle should not be applied in a manner which would deprive those under-developed countries most in need of assistance of the opportunity of benefiting from the proposed services, including in particular the provision of scholarships. Similarly, there appeared to be wide agreement in principle with the suggestion of the Advisory Committee that an appropriation from the special account for technical assistance should be considered. It was pointed out by several delegations, however, that the terms of the relevant resolution of the Economic and Social Council would require to be amended before that suggestion could be acted upon. In view of those circumstances, the representative of Brazil, supported by the representatives of Mexico, Syria, Venezuela, Bolivia and Yugoslavia, proposed that the full amount, i.e., $ US 158,000, estimated by the Secretary-General as necessary for the effective implementation of the Third Committee's draft resolution, should be approved.

5. The representative of Canada, supported by representatives of the United Kingdom and the Netherlands, expressed his concurrence with the recommendation of the Advisory Committee that the proposed additional activities should be financed within the existing budgetary appropriation. It was maintained by those delegations that the practical problem facing the General Assembly was to determine the level, in financial terms, at which advisory social welfare services should be carried on, particularly at a time when new and heavy demands were being made on the efforts and resources of the United Nations. It was suggested that the United Nations should aim primarily at assisting governments to initiate and develop their own social welfare services, attention being called, in that connexion, to the fact that, as a result of increasing financial participation on the part of recipient governments, the appropriation originally proposed for 1951 under section 27 of the budget would finance a larger volume of the services than previously. It was specifically suggested by the United Kingdom representative that technical publications should be furnished only as an integral part of the fellowship programme or as equipment for demonstration purposes; that the costs of the proposed scholarship programme should be borne, first, by increased financial participation of the beneficiary countries and, secondly, by the transfer of funds ear-marked for fellowships; that additional appropriations for the purposes of demonstration centres should not be authorized but that, instead, specific projects which might be put forward in the future should be considered on their merits and, if necessary, supplementary appropriations requested; and, finally, that further consideration should be given to the organization of the Secretariat with a view to more effective co-ordination and integration of all technical assistance activities.

6. The representative of France indicated the support of his delegation for the proposed extension of the advisory social welfare programme, subject, however, to certain doubts as to the wisdom of embarking at the current stage on a scheme of scholarships in addition to the existing fellowship programme. He expressed the hope, subject to that reservation, that adequate provision could be made for the additional activities envisaged in the draft resolution of the Third Committee within the figure of $ US 80,000 which the Advisory Committee had recommended for the purpose.

7. The estimates as submitted by the Secretary-General were approved by 24 votes to 14, with 8 abstentions.

8. The Fifth Committee therefore decided to inform the General Assembly that, in its opinion, adoption of the draft resolution of the Third Committee concerning advisory social welfare services would involve additional budgetary provision for 1951 in the amount of $ US 158,000.

Part I

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

1. The General Assembly, on 12 February 1946, proclaimed that the problem of refugees was international in scope and nature (General Assembly resolution 8 (I)). On 15 December 1946, the Constitution of the International Refugee Organization and the Agreement on interim measures to be taken in respect of refugees and displaced persons were approved by the General Assembly (resolution 62 (I)).

2. The International Refugee Organization came into being in the following year and has since carried out its mandate as laid down in its Constitution. Its headquarters are in Geneva.

Economic and Social Council, ninth session

3. At its ninth session, the Economic and Social Council had before it a communication from the General Council of IRO, dated 11 July 1949, calling attention to the fact that IRO contemplated terminating its activities on 30 June 1950, and suggesting that the Council should examine the problem of future international action on behalf of refugees in the light of that knowledge. The Council also had before it a study relating to stateless persons, prepared by the Secretary-General in accordance with resolution 116 D (VI) adopted by the Council at its sixth session.

4. After examination of the problem, the Council adopted resolutions 248 A and B (IX), on 6 and 8 August 1949 respectively. Resolution 248 A (IX), inter alia, requested the Secretary-General to prepare, in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, for the consideration of the fourth session of the General Assembly, a plan for such organization within the framework of the United Nations as might be required to enable the latter to discharge the function of international protection of refugees, and related functions, taking into account various specified alternatives; and it also recommended that the General Assembly should decide the functions and organizational arrangements necessary for such protection after IRO had terminated its activities. Resolution 248 B (IX) established an Ad Hoc Committee to consider various proposals for the solution of the problems relating to the international status of refugees and of stateless persons and the elimination of statelessness.

Fourth session of the General Assembly

5. The General Assembly, at its fourth session, had before it Council resolution 248 (IX) and also a memorandum (A/C.3/528) addressed to the Assembly by the General Council of IRO in pursuance of a resolution adopted by that body on 20 October 1949, giving an appraisal of the problem of refugees and the latest information concerning IRO operations. The General Council stated that it had agreed to propose to the governments of its members an additional period of nine months of IRO operations after 30 June 1950. It also pointed out that, if IRO operations were extended beyond that date, it would " still be necessary for the General Assembly to take decisions of principle forthwith and to make preparations for the establishment of the machinery which should come into force at a date no later than 1 January 1951 ".

6. The General Assembly, after examining these communications, adopted on 3 December 1949, resolution 319 A and B (IV). Resolution 319 A (IV) decided that a High Commissioner's Office for Refugees should be established as of 1 January 1951, the functions of the office being outlined in an annex to the resolution. The Secretary-General was requested to submit to the Economic and Social Council draft provisions to implement the resolution, and to prepare a draft budget for the operation in 1951 of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees. Finally, the resolution requested the Council to prepare, at its eleventh session, " a draft resolution embodying provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees and to submit the draft resolution to the General Assembly at its fifth regular session ". Resolution 319 B (IV) decided " in the absence of definite data, to postpone, until its fifth regular session, the examination of the problems of assistance " raised by the IRO memorandum of 20 October 1949, " should these problems still be in existence at that date ".

Economic and Social Council, eleventh session

7. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 319 A (IV), the Secretary-General submitted to the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session a draft resolution (E/1669) ¹ containing provisions for the implementation of the Assembly resolution, based on the annex thereto.

¹ See Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, Eleventh Session, Annex, agenda item 32.

8. The Council, after considering this text, adopted, on 11 August 1950, resolution 319 A (XI), transmitting, for the consideration of the General Assembly, a draft resolution, under the terms of which the Assembly would call upon governments "to co-operate with the High Commissioner in the performance of his duties concerning refugees falling under the competence of his Office", with special regard to a number of specific measures. Annexed to the draft resolution was a proposed statute of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees covering General principles; Organization; Powers, functions and competence; and General provisions, including the method of election of the High Commissioner and the term of his appointment.

9. The Council also adopted, on 16 August 1950, resolution 319 B (XI), in which it took note of the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Refugees and Stateless Persons and the draft agreements contained therein, and decided on a draft preamble and definition of the term "refugee" to be included as article 1 of the draft convention relating to the status of refugees prepared by the Ad Hoc Committee (two fundamentally opposite views had been expressed during the discussions, one advocating that the definition of the term "refugee" should set out specific categories of refugees, while the other advocated a broad definition covering all legitimate refugees and considerable discussion had ensued).

TRANSMISSION OF DRAFT RESOLUTION

10. The draft resolution and annex submitted to the General Assembly by the Economic and Social Council and attached hereto have been presented, at the suggestion of the Chairman of the Social Committee of the Economic and Social Council on the proposal of the United Kingdom delegation, in such manner as to indicate the parts which were "new additions to the general principles already adopted by the General Assembly".²

11. The correlation between General Assembly resolution 319 A (IV) of 3 December 1949 and the new draft is indicated in the two columns.

12. The operative parts of General Assembly resolution 319 A (IV) of 3 December 1949 which have been omitted from the new text given in the first column are noted in the footnotes 3, 4 and 6. The wording of General Assembly resolution 319 A (IV) which has not been reproduced in any comparable form in the new draft is underlined in the second column.

13. Any paragraph or clause which has been reproduced in substantially the same form is also indicated in the second column and any entirely new clause or phrase is indicated accordingly.

14. From these indications the differences between the two resolutions and the measure of any departure from the general principles already adopted can, with the assistance of footnotes 3, 4 and 6, be appropriately evaluated.

1. The Economic and Social Council, at its ninth session, considered a study prepared by the Secretary-General relating to the question of displaced persons, refugees and stateless persons (E/1112 and E/1112/Add. 1)⁸ and adopted on 18 August 1949 resolution 248 B (IX) in which it decided to appoint an Ad Hoc Committee of representatives of thirteen governments possessing special competence in this field to :

(a) Consider the desirability of preparing a revised and consolidated convention relating to the international status of refugees and stateless persons and, if they considered such a course desirable, draft the text of such a convention;

(b) Consider means of eliminating the problem of statelessness, including the desirability of requesting the International Law Commission to prepare a study and make recommendations on this subject;

(c) Make any other suggestions they deemed suitable for the solution of these problems, taking into consideration the recommendations of the Secretary-General referred to above.

2. The Ad Hoc Committee convened in New York on 16 January 1950 and held thirty-two plenary meetings. The report adopted by the Committee for submission to the Council (E/1618) contained a draft convention relating to the status of refugees (annex I); observations and comments relating thereto (annex II); a draft protocol relating to the status of stateless persons (annex III); and observations thereon (annex IV).

3. The Council, at its eleventh session, taking note of the report of the Ad Hoc Committee including, in particular, the draft agreements contained therein, adopted resolution 319 B (XI) which reads in part as follows :

" Submits to the General Assembly the report of the Ad Hoc Committee, together with the comments of governments thereon and the records of the proceedings of this Council on this subject,⁹

Problems of assistance to refugees : note by the Secretary-General transmitting a communication from the General Council of IRO

[31 October 1950]

The attached communication has been addressed to the General Assembly by the General Council of the International Refugee Organization in amplification of its memorandum of 20 October 1949 to the General Assembly (fourth session) (A/C.3/528) and with reference to General Assembly resolution 319 B (IV) of 3 December 1949 postponing the examination of the problems of assistance raised by that memorandum "in the absence of definite data... until its fifth regular session..., should these problems still be in existence at that date".

The General Council has expressed the hope that the information will help the General Assembly to appraise the situation with regard to the IRO refugee problem as it will exist when the International Refugee Organization terminates its activities.

COMMUNICATION TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED NATIONS¹¹

(Adopted on 13 October 1950)

1. When the General Assembly of the United Nations last year considered the future international action required on behalf of refugees, the General Council of the International Refugee Organization felt it suitable to pass on to the General Assembly the latest information concerning the date on which the IRO believed it possible to bring its operations to an end and the position as it appeared likely to exist at the time of its closure. Such was the purpose of the memorandum dated 20 October 1949.

2. That memorandum dealt with three topics :

(a) The date of termination of IRO operations;

(b) The refugee problem up to the end of IRO operations;

(c) The refugee problem after the termination of IRO operations.

Under the last heading the General Council requested the General Assembly of the United Nations "to consider its responsibilities and if, in the absence of more precise data, a final decision to be implemented forthwith in the matter of financial responsibility for assistance appears difficult at present, nevertheless to contemplate the possibility of such assistance in case this assistance, as is unfortunately probable, might prove indispensable at a later stage".

3. The General Council of the IRO wishes to express its appreciation of the action taken by the General Assembly at its fourth session in deciding to address "an urgent appeal to all States whether or not Members of the United Nations, calling upon them to furnish to the IRO the widest possible assistance particularly in respect of the admission and care of refugees in the most destitute category". As it will be recalled, the General Assembly further decided, "in the absence of definite data to postpone, until its fifth regular session, the examination of the problems of assistance" raised by the memorandum of the General Council, "should these problems still be in existence at that date".

4. Before closing its sixth session, the General Council of the IRO again feels it suitable to provide the General Assembly with complete information regarding the programme the Organization intends to carry out in order to complete the task with which it was entrusted by the United Nations and regarding the problem of material assistance as it now appears.

I. Operations during the supplementary period and date of termination of the Organization

5. As the General Assembly is aware, the eighteen governments members of the International Refugee Organization considered, in March 1950, that it would be possible to bring the operations of the Organization to an end by 31 March 1951. This date was established on the assumption that the rate of repatriation and resettlement would remain sufficiently high to permit re-establishment of some 292,000 refugees, for whom it was believed a solution would remain to be found as of June 1950. For a number of reasons this forecast was found to be too optimistic, and as of 1 July 1950 the task still to be accomplished was found to require a longer period of time than was previously anticipated. Unpredicted developments had slowed down the rate of movements, such as the delay in the adoption of a revised United States Displaced Persons' Act, delays in the progress of its implementation and a series of reception difficulties in Australia.

6. As of 31 August 1950 the position was as follows : during the 38-month period 1 July 1947 through 31 August 1950, the cases of 1,479,644 refugees have received the attention of the Organization. Services to 1,170,706 cases among these were concluded as follows :

Repatriation	70,538
Resettlement	806,257
Closure for other reasons	94,107
Receiving legal protection only	203,804

The inclusion among the closed cases of refugees classified as requiring legal protection only is believed to be justified since the Organization will not have to make further efforts toward their placement or establishment. There remained, therefore, on 31 August 1950, as open cases, 304,938 refugees for whom a solution had still to be found : either repatriation or resettlement or local settlement. It should, however, be borne in mind that a proportion of these refugees are already self-supporting and though desiring, are not necessarily in need of, resettlement.

7. At its sixth session, the General Council studied the situation carefully and expressed its concern that the resources and facilities of the Organization should be used in order to extend assistance to the maximum number of refugees coming within its mandate and that full advantage should be taken of the resettlement opportunities resulting from the amendment of the United States' Displaced Persons Act and from the willingness of other resettlement countries, such as Australia and Canada, to continue to admit refugees to their territories. In order that the Organization might complete its programme in accordance with that policy, and in view of the fact that the developments mentioned in paragraph 5 above had slowed down the pace of resettlement during the previous financial year, thus leaving unexpended considerable funds budgeted for that period, the General Council has now decided to extend the operational programme of the Organization until 30 September 1951, at which time it is believed that the Organization will have completed its operational task and utilized all its resources.

8. It has further decided to extend the resettlement services of the Organization to refugees who, as a result of the dateline of 15 October 1949 mentioned in the General Council memorandum of 20 October 1949 have been deprived so far of resettlement services. Consequently, refugees who have arrived before 1 October 1950 in IRO areas of operation in Europe and the Middle East and for whom resettlement opportunity will be available, will be entitled to be considered for resettlement assistance from the Organization on the understanding that this shall not prejudice the position of refugees registered before 15 October 1949.

9. During the fifteen months period between 1 July 1950 and 1 October 1951 the Organization will concentrate its efforts on the following main programmes :

(a) Resettlement of some 215,000 refugees;

(b) Permanent arrangements for the long-term care of refugees classified as institutional hard-core cases for reasons of health, age or any other reason and for whom it has not yet been possible to make such arrangements. As the General Assembly is aware, a special allocation of $22 million has been made by the General Council for grants to be made to governments and voluntary societies willing to assume responsibility for institutional care of such cases. The General Council is glad to report that, in response to the appeals made and thanks to the generous attitude of governments and the unflinching support of voluntary societies, the problem of the institutional hard-core cases has been already substantially reduced. Many countries have accepted aged, blind, and sick persons, and voluntary societies have offered places in special institutions of their own. There remain, however, some 8,800 refugees (including dependants) who require institutional care and for whom no solution has yet been found.

Should the targets mentioned under (a) and (b) above be reached, the International Refugee Organization will have discharged its responsibilities in the field of resettlement as set forth in the Constitution.

II. The question of material assistance

10. The General Assembly will remember that, by resolution No. 39, adopted on 7 July 1949, the General Council of the IRO had decided to discontinue care and maintenance by 30 June 1950 for all persons other than :

(a) Refugees and displaced persons in process of repatriation or resettlement; and

(b) Refugees or displaced persons who require permanent assistance such as institutional care and for whom other satisfactory arrangements will not yet have been completed.

As a result of this decision, the Organization has entered into agreements with the majority of the member governments concerned with a view to their assuming responsibility for the material care of needy refugees residing on their territories on 1 July 1950. The generous attitude of these governments has made it possible to bring to an end the care and maintenance programme of the Organization in these areas in return for reimbursement of a substantial portion of their contributions for the supplementary period as aid in meeting the costs of such care and maintenance programmes as they have agreed to carry out.

11. In Germany and Austria similar arrangements have been made, and the German and Austrian authorities are assuming full financial and administrative responsibility for the care and maintenance of refugees from 1 July 1950, except for a substantial number of refugees considered to be in the resettlement " pipe-line ", as well as refugees classified as institutional hard-core cases for whom no provision has yet been made. In turning over to the German and Austrian authorities refugees who, up to 1 July 1950 were provided with care and maintenance by the IRO, the Organization has been aware of the fact that the aim was complete integration into the local economy of those refugees who will eventually be left in Germany and Austria because they will not be able to avail themselves of the possibility of being resettled in a new country. In full agreement with the Allied Authorities, and with the active co-operation of the German and Austrian authorities, the Organization will do its best within its limited resources to help those refugees to become integrated into the German and Austrian economies under the best possible conditions of housing and employment. The Organization has entered into agreements with three international voluntary societies, which have agreed to provide, with the help of affiliated German and Austrian agencies, welfare services to residual cases in Germany and Austria.

12. As a result of the transfer which took place on July 1950 in countries of Western Europe and in Germany and Austria, the IRO care and maintenance programme has been discontinued for some 115,000 refugees. Despite the willing co-operation of the authorities concerned, the situation of refugees in Germany and Austria remains uncertain because of economic or political difficulties. This problem will require the active attention of the High Commissioner of the United Nations, both in terms of the legal protection of those refugees and also in terms of their physical condition and well-being.

13. The problem of material assistance is still very acute in other areas where the Organization is still operating. Such areas are China and Samar and, to a lesser degree, Syria, Lebanon, Spain, Portugal, Greece and Turkey. The most difficult problem is presented in China, where some 4,000 of the refugees concentrated in Shanghai are the concern of the Organization. Those refugees are mostly Europeans whose future in China appears very precarious. The Organization has tried to resettle as many of them as possible. Its efforts have met with some success in spite of very great difficulties. Approximately 1,300 Europeans, including a substantial number of IRO refugees, have recently left Shanghai. Although prospects of further resettlement are very remote, the General Council, believing that the suspension of relief efforts would be to condemn large numbers to a lingering death by starvation, has felt it its duty to continue to extend material assistance to these refugees for a further six months from the date of the present session. The General Council must draw the attention of the United Nations to the fact that this decision appears to represent the maximum effort which the IRO will be able to provide to those refugees. Beyond that it appears that any satisfactory solution for the refugees in China would exceed the financial and other resources of the Organization.

14. In Syria, the Lebanon, Turkey, Spain, Portugal and Greece, the Organization has been obliged, as in China and the Philippines, to make an exception to its decision to discontinue its care and maintenance programme. Care and maintenance is still provided in these areas to refugees classified as residual cases and for whom there has been so far no possibility of finding a country of resettlement where they will be accepted. Although the problem is numerically small, it is difficult in that it requires extensive individual case work and because no solution is yet in sight.

III. Conclusion

15. The General Council of the IRO expresses the hope that the foregoing information will help the General Assembly to appraise the situation as it will exist after the closure of the IRO. As long as its operations continue the IRO will do its best to bring to a satisfactory solution the problems with which it is still confronted. In the field of resettlement, it expects to have resettled, before its termination, more than 1 million refugees, thanks to the invaluable support of governments, members or non-members of the Organization, which have responded so generously to the appeals made to them to increase acceptance quotas and to liberalize regulations governing immigration. Efforts on the part of governments are still needed, however, and the General Council of the IRO invites the General Assembly again to urge its Member nations to provide whatever assistance they can to the IRO so as to enable it to achieve successfully its resettlement programme.

16. In the field of material assistance, the Organization will take advantage of the additional period of time ahead to pursue vigorously its efforts to find a solution for the most unfortunate of the refugees among the population still under its care. Those efforts will be specially devoted to the 8,800 institutional hard-core cases, for whom solutions remain to be found. Most of these cases are in Germany and mainly consist of sick people and especially TB cases. Success is dependent upon the measure of assistance provided by governments and voluntary societies, whose unflinching support has so far made it possible to find a solution for some 13,000 aged, blind, and sick refugees. It cannot yet be said with any degree of certainty that the Organization will be able to meet the problem.

17. The Organization will initiate whatever measures may be necessary for solution of the problems in outlying areas. Here again no assurance can be given that the Organization will be able to meet the problem in so far as China is concerned. As stated already, it appears that any permanent solution would appear to exceed the possibilities of the Organization.

18. Finally, the General Council of the IRO wishes to stress again that there is still a continuing influx of refugees to whom the Organization continues to extend its protection while unfortunately being unable to afford them the material assistance of which they are often in dire need. The General Council is confident that as a result of its decision to extend resettlement assistance to those refugees who arrived in an IRO area of operation before 1 October 1950, a substantial number of "new" refugees will find their way to countries of resettlement. This will alleviate the heavy burden which new refugees impose on countries, especially those of Western Europe, which, in line with established tradition, grant them asylum. In this respect it cannot be too firmly stressed that in assuming responsibility for the care, not only of refugees materially assisted by IRO up to July 1950 as stated in paragraph 10 above, but also of an unknown but large number of other refugees who have found refuge and have established themselves on their territories, these countries have shown the measure of their generosity towards the destitute and needy.

2. The estimated additional cost of holding this conference at Geneva, if the conference were to last four weeks and end prior to 15 March 1951, would be about $US 10,400 on the following basis :

- (a) Travel and per diem of headquarters' staff :
- (i) Five substantive officers at $ 1,050 each (this number could be reduced to two

	US dollars
if the High Commissioner were able to supply the balance of the staff required)	5,250

(b) Contractual printing (20 pages, 5 languages)	2,000
TOTAL	10,400

3. In the event of the adoption of the proposal of the Third Committee by the General Assembly, the appropriations for 1951 should be increased by $ 8,400 in section 1 (the General Assembly, commissions and committees) and $ 2,000 in section 25 (Official records).

DOCUMENT A/C.5/443

Provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees : financial implications of the draft resolutions proposed by the Third Committee (A/C.3/556) ; report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[11 December 1950]

1. Resolution 319 A (IV) of the General Assembly, relating to the establishment of a High Commissioner's Office for Refugees, requested the Secretary-General to prepare, in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, a draft budget for the operation in 1951 of the High Commissioner's Office.

2. The Secretary-General included a general provision of $US 300,000 in section 20 a of the budget estimates for 1951.

3. In accordance with the request made by the General Assembly in resolution 319 A (IV), the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session prepared a draft resolution (Council resolution 319 A (XI)) to which was annexed a statute for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office. The revised draft resolution and statute as recommended by the Third Committee for adoption by the General Assembly are contained in document A/C.3/556.

4. The budgetary provision required to carry out in 1951 the activities enumerated in chapters II and III of the statute as revised, would be $US 300,000, as originally estimated. The justification for this estimate, which is limited to administrative expenses, is given below. It will be noted that paragraph 20 of the statute provides that, unless the General Assembly subsequently decides otherwise, no expenditure other than administrative expenditures relating to the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office shall be borne on the budget of the United Nations and all other expenditures relating to the activities of the High Commissioner shall be financed by voluntary contributions.

5. On the basis outlined above the detailed estimates for the costs of the High Commissioner's Office would be as follows :

	US dollars
(a) Established posts	229,000
(b) Consultants, temporary assistance and overtime	5,000
(c) Travel on official business	20,000
(d) Common staff costs	30,000
(e) Common services	10,000
(f) Contractual printing	6,000
TOTAL	300,000

6. Under " established posts " provision is made to cover :

(a) The costs of the High Commissioner's Office at Geneva, consisting of the High Commissioner (principal director); Deputy High Commissioner (principal officer); 2 senior officers (of whom one should be a legal officer); 4 officers; 4 intermediate officers; 1 administrative assistant; 10 clerical and secretarial employees ($153,000).

(b) The High Commissioner's representatives in countries of residence of refugees : it is assumed that representatives, at the level of senior officers or officers, might be appointed in six countries for an average period, in 1951, of six months. The possibility of administrative and clerical assistance is foreseen. In at least two cases, the representative might require a professional assistant, an administrative assistant, and as many as three clerical and secretarial employees. In all other cases, it is assumed that the representative would be assisted by no more than one administrative assistant and two clerical and secretarial employees ($76,000).

7. Under " travel on official business ", allowance is made for European and overseas travel for the High Commissioner and senior members of his Geneva staff, as well as for travel of country representatives.

8. The $10,000 requested under " common services " will supplement the budget of the United Nations Office at Geneva to assure the adequate provision of necessary common services including communications services, office supplies, stationery, etc.

9. Under " contractual printing " provision is made for the printing in two languages of the report of the advisory committee referred to in paragraph 4 of the statute.

10. The establishment of such an advisory committee would be dependent upon a decision of the Economic and Social Council. If established, no costs other than those for printing would be incurred by the United Nations, since the Committee would consist of representatives of governments and since conference facilities could be provided by the existing establishment at headquarters or at Geneva.

11. The sum of $300,000 requested above would be distributed by sections of the 1951 budget as follows :

	US dollars
Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva (Common staff costs and common services) .	40,000
Section 20 a. High Commissioner's Office on Refugees	254,000
Section 25. Official records	6,000

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/442) on the financial implications of the draft resolutions proposed by the Third Committee in documents A/C.3/549 and A/C.3/551.

2. The estimated expenditure for the holding of the proposed conference of plenipotentiaries in Geneva amounts to $US10,400, on the basis of a duration of four weeks. Savings are envisaged by the Secretary-General through the possible assignment of substantive staff members from the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees. Since, however, much of the preparatory work has been completed, further economies might, in the opinion of the Advisory Committee, result from the adjustment of the period from four to three weeks. Consideration might also be given to the possibility of seconding personnel from the International Labour Organisation and the International Refugee Organization.

3. The Advisory Committee notes that provision is included in the estimate for the services of Spanish interpreters, and it suggests that in the event that the conference finds it necessary to use languages other than the working languages, recourse should be had in the first instance to the services available in the organizations situated at Geneva.

4. On this basis, the Advisory Committee recommends a provisional appropriation of $US 8,000 under section 1 ($US 6,000) and section 25 ($US 2,000) of the 1951 budget estimates.

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The question of refugees and stateless persons, as referred to the Third Committee at the fifth regular session of the General Assembly, was divided into the following four sub-items, which are treated separately in the present report :

(a) Provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees : draft resolution proposed by the Economic and Social Council;

(b) Definition of the term "refugee" to be applied by the High Commissioner for Refugees : recommendations of the Economic and Social Council;

(c) Problems of assistance to refugees : memorandum from the General Council of the International Refugee Organization of 20 October 1949;

(d) Draft convention relating to the status of refugees.

The United Nations High Commissioner's Office for Refugees

2. The General Assembly, at its fourth regular session, decided, on 3 December 1949 (resolution 319 A (IV)) to establish, as of 1 January 1951, a High Commissioner's Office for Refugees, and requested the Economic and Social Council to prepare a draft resolution embodying provisions for the functioning of the United Nations High Commissioner's Office, together with such recommendations as it might deem appropriate regarding the definitions of the term "refugee" to be applied by the High Commissioner.

3. The Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session adopted, on 11 August 1950, resolution 319 A (XI), which included a draft statute of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees for transmission to the fifth session of the General Assembly.

Draft convention relating to the status of refugees

4. The Economic and Social Council, having considered at its ninth session a study relating to the question of displaced persons, refugees and stateless persons prepared by the Secretary-General (E/1112 and Add.1),¹⁴ adopted, on 8 August 1949, resolution 248 B (IX) in which it decided to appoint an ad hoc committee whose function, among others, would be to consider the desirability of preparing a revised and consolidated convention relating to the international status of refugees and stateless persons and, if the Committee considered such a course desirable, to draft a text of such a convention.

5. The Ad Hoc Committee met at Lake Success on 16 January 1950 and drew up a draft convention relating to the status of refugees and a draft protocol relating to the status of stateless persons, which were submitted to the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session (E/1618).

6. The Economic and Social Council, at its eleventh session, examined only the preamble of the draft convention and the definition of the term "refugee" contained in its article I, and adopted on 11 August 1950 resolution 319 B (XI) requesting the Secretary-General to reconvene the Ad Hoc Committee so that it might prepare revised drafts of the convention and protocol, in the light of comments of governments and of specialized agencies and the discussions and decisions of the Council at its eleventh session. The Council further requested the Secretary-General to submit the drafts, as revised, to the General Assembly at its fifth session.

7. The Ad Hoc Committee met again on 14 August 1950 in Geneva. Its report was submitted to the fifth session of the General Assembly (E/1850 and E/1850/Annex).

Problems of assistance to refugees

8. At its fourth session the General Assembly decided, by its resolution 319 B (IV) to postpone until its fifth session the examination of the problems of assistance raised by the General Council of the International Refugee Organization in its memorandum of 20 October 1949 (A/C.3/528), should those problems still be in existence at that date.

II. ACTION TAKEN BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY AT ITS FIFTH SESSION

9. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting on 26 September 1950, decided to allocate to the Third Committee sub-items (a) to (d) of item 32 of its agenda, entitled "Refugees and stateless persons".

10. The Committee took up the question at its 324th meeting and devoted seventeen meetings to its consideration. A summary of the debates is contained in the records of the 324th to 338th, 341st and 344th meetings. The Committee had before it the following basic documents: Economic and Social Council resolutions 319 A and B (XI), E/1850 and Annex, A/1385, A/1396, A/C.3/538, A/C.3/540 and A/C.3/547.

11. During the general debate on the question as a whole, a draft resolution was submitted by the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic (A/C.3/L.120). It recommended that those countries in whose territories there were still refugees and displaced persons should complete their repatriation during 1951. The draft resolution was voted on paragraph by paragraph and rejected. Paragraph 1 was rejected by 32 votes to 5, with 6 abstentions, paragraph 2 by 32 votes to 5, with 7 abstentions, and paragraph 3 by 30 votes to 8, with 7 abstentions.

Definition of the term "refugee"

12. The problem of the definition of the term "refugee" to be applied by the High Commissioner for Refugees and that of the definition to be inserted in the draft convention, having been linked in the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council and being, in the view of the Third Committee, largely interdependent, were discussed jointly.

13. Two different points of view were expressed with regard to the definition of the term "refugee": one favouring a broad definition and the other a definition by categories.

14. An informal working group was formed at the 329th meeting of the Third Committee, on which all delegations which had submitted amendments and resolutions were represented. It took into consideration the amendments submitted by the following States: Yugoslavia (A/C.3/L.122); France (A/C.3/L.123 and L.129); Israel (A/C.3/L.124); Venezuela (A/C.3/L.125 and L.126); Egypt, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia (A/C.3 L.128); Belgium, Canada, Turkey and the United Kingdom (A/C.3/L.130). At the 332nd meeting, the working group presented a revised joint compromise text (A/C.3/L.131/Rev.1).

15. The joint text contained two draft definitions, one (section III) for the statute of the High Commissioner's Office and the other (section I) for the draft convention. Part I was adopted in an amended form at the 332nd meeting, by 12 votes to 6, with 21 abstentions (see annex A to draft resolution B in chapter III of the present report). It had previously been decided at the same meeting, by 34 votes to 1, with 11 abstentions, that the text of the definition for the draft convention should be merely recommended to the conference of plenipotentiaries mentioned in paragraph 18 below for consideration.

16. With regard to the definition to be applied by the High Commissioner, the joint text amending chapter III, section C, of the draft statute submitted by the Economic and Social Council was adopted, in a modified form, at the 334th meeting (A/C.3/L.137), by 15 votes to 5, with 17 abstentions.

Provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees

17. A number of amendments were submitted orally and in writing to the remaining paragraphs of the draft statute of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees and were in large part accepted. The agreed text of the draft statute, which includes the definition of the term "refugee" referred to in the previous section of the present report, was rearranged and in part redrafted (A/C.3/L.151) by a Drafting Sub-Committee set up at the 341st meeting for that purpose, and consisting of representatives of Canada, France, Israel, Lebanon, Pakistan, the United Kingdom, the United States of America and Venezuela. The covering draft resolution, together with the amended text of the draft statute prepared by the Drafting Sub-Committee, was adopted by 26 votes to 5 with 12 abstentions (see draft resolution A in chapter III of the present report).

Draft convention relating to the status of refugees

18. When the Committee took up the consideration of the draft convention relating to the status of refugees, the United Kingdom delegation submitted a draft resolution suggesting that a conference of plenipotentiaries should be convened at the earliest possible opportunity to complete the drafting of, and to sign, both the convention relating to the status of refugees and the protocol relating to the status of stateless persons. A number of amendments were submitted and either accepted by the proposer of the resolution or adopted. The Committee at its 337th meeting, by 26 votes to 7, with 12 abstentions, adopted the amended draft resolution (A/C.3/L.68/Rev.1), and there was therefore no further consideration of the draft convention. On the proposal of Belgium and France, a draft resolution was adopted at the 338th meeting, by 18 votes to 9, with 18 abstentions, to hold the conference in Geneva (A/C.3/L.143). The texts, as adopted, are given in chapter III of the present report as draft resolutions B and C.

19. During the discussion, the Australian delegation had submitted a draft resolution referring the draft convention and the draft protocol back to the Economic and Social Council for consideration with a request that it should be re-submitted with recommendations, to the General Assembly at its sixth session (A/C.3/L.136). No action was taken on this draft resolution in view of the adoption of the United Kingdom draft resolution.

Assistance to refugees

20. The Committee finally turned to the remaining section of this item of the agenda, namely, the memoranda received from the General Council of the International Refugee Organization in 1949 and 1950 on the problems of assistance to refugees (A/C.3/528 and A/C.3/540). It heard a statement by the representative of IRO bringing the memoranda up to date.

21. At its 338th meeting, the Committee had before it a draft resolution submitted by France, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the United States of America, to address an urgent appeal to all States, whether or not Members of the United Nations, to assist IRO in its efforts to resettle refugees remaining under its care, and to postpone, until the sixth regular session of the General Assembly, the examination of the problems of assistance raised by the memoranda from IRO (A/C.3/L.141). The draft resolution was adopted by 32 votes to 5, with 6 abstentions (see draft resolution D in chapter III of the present report).

III. RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE THIRD COMMITTEE

22. The Third Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions :

A

STATUTE OF THE OFFICE OF THE UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES

Chapter I. General provisions

1. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, acting under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assume the function of providing international protection, under the auspices of the United Nations, to refugees who fall within the scope of the present Statute and of seeking permanent solutions for the problem of refugees by assisting governments and, subject to the approval of the governments concerned, private organizations to facilitate the voluntary repatriation of such refugees, or their assimilation within new national communities.

In the exercise of his functions, more particularly when difficulties arise, and for instance with regard to any controversy concerning the international status of these persons, the High Commissioner shall request the opinion of an advisory committee on refugees if it is created.

2. The work of the High Commissioner shall be of an entirely non-political character; it shall be humanitarian and social and shall relate, as a rule, to groups and categories of refugees.

3. The High Commissioner shall follow policy directives given him by the General Assembly or the Economic and Social Council.

4. The Economic and Social Council may decide, after hearing the views of the High Commissioner on the subject, to establish an advisory committee on refugees, which shall consist of representatives of States Members and States non-members of the United Nations, to be selected by the Council on the basis of their demonstrated interest in and devotion to the solution of the refugee problem.

5. The General Assembly shall review, not later than at its eighth regular session, the arrangements for the Office of the High Commissioner with a view to determining whether the Office should be continued beyond 31 December 1953.

Chapter II. Functions of the High Commissioner

6. The competence of the High Commissioner shall extend to :

A. (i) Any person who has been considered a refugee under the Arrangements of 12 May 1936 and 30 June 1928 or under the Conventions of 28 October 1933 and 10 February 1938, the Protocol of 14 September 1939 or the Constitution of the International Refugee Organization;

(ii) Any person who, as a result of events occurring before 1 January 1951 and owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return to it;

Decisions as to eligibility taken by the International Refugee Organization during the period of its activities shall not prevent the status of refugee being accorded to persons who fulfil the conditions of the present paragraph.

The competence of the High Commissioner shall cease to apply to any person defined in section A above if :

(a) He has voluntarily reavailed himself of the protection of the country of his nationality; or

(b) Having lost his nationality, he has voluntarily reacquired it; or

(c) He has acquired a new nationality, and enjoys the protection of the country of his new nationality; or

(d) He has voluntarily re-established himself in the country which he left or outside which he remained owing to fear of persecution; or

(e) He can no longer, because the circumstances in connexion with which he has been recognized as a refugee have ceased to exist, claim grounds other than those of personal convenience for continuing to refuse to avail himself of the protection of the country of his nationality. Reasons of a purely economic character may not be invoked; or

(f) Being a person who has no nationality, he can no longer, because the circumstances in connexion with which he has been recognized as a refugee have ceased to exist and he is able to return to the country of his former habitual residence, claim grounds other than those of personal convenience for continuing to refuse to return to that country.

B. Any other person, who is outside the country of his nationality or, if he has no nationality, the country of his former habitual residence, because he has or had well-founded fear of persecution by reason of his race, religion, nationality or political opinion and is unable, or, because of such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of the government of the country of his nationality, or, if he has no nationality, to return to the country of his former habitual residence.

7. Provided that the competence of the High Commissioner as defined in paragraph 6 above shall not extend to a person :

(a) Who is a national of more than one country unless he satisfies the provisions of the preceding paragraph in relation to each of the countries of which he is a national; or

(b) Who is recognized by the competent authorities of the country in which he has taken residence as having the rights and obligations which are attached to the possession of the nationality of that country; or

(c) Who [continues to receive]¹⁵ from other organs or agencies of the United Nations protection or assistance; or

(d) In respect of whom there are serious reasons for considering that he has committed a crime covered by the provisions of treaties of extradition or a crime mentioned in article VI of the London Charter of the International Military Tribunal or by the provisions of article 14, paragraph 2, of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

8. The High Commissioner shall provide for the protection of refugees falling under the competence of his Office by :

(e) Endeavouring to obtain permission for refugees to transfer their assets and especially those necessary for their resettlement;

(f) Obtaining from governments information concerning the number and conditions of refugees in their territories and the laws and regulations concerning them;

(g) Keeping in close touch with the governments and intergovernmental organizations concerned;

(h) Establishing contact in such manner as he may think best with private organizations dealing with refugee questions;

(i) Facilitating the co-ordination of the efforts of private organizations concerned with the welfare of refugees.

9. The High Commissioner shall engage in such additional activities, including repatriation and resettlement, as the General Assembly may determine, within the limits of the resources placed at his disposal.

10. The High Commissioner shall administer any funds, public or private, which he receives for assistance to refugees, and shall distribute them among the private and, as appropriate, public agencies which he deems best qualified to administer such assistance.

The High Commissioner may reject any offers which he does not consider appropriate or which cannot be utilized.

The High Commissioner shall not appeal to governments for funds or make a general appeal, without the prior approval of the General Assembly.

The High Commissioner shall include in his annual report a statement of his activities in this field.

11. The High Commissioner shall be entitled to present his views before the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council and their subsidiary bodies.

¹⁵ In the text of the draft statute submitted by the Drafting Committee, appointed by the Third Committee at its 341st meeting (A/C.3/L.151), the words "is receiving" appear in sub-paragraph (iii) instead of the words used in the present text (amendment adopted by the Committee at its 344th meeting).

The High Commissioner shall report annually to the General Assembly through the Economic and Social Council; his report shall be considered as a separate item on the agenda of the General Assembly.

12. The High Commissioner may invite the co-operation of the various specialized agencies.

Chapter III. Organization and finances

13. The High Commissioner shall be elected by the General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General. The terms of appointment of the High Commissioner shall be proposed by the Secretary-General and approved by the General Assembly. The High Commissioner shall be elected for a term of three years, from 1 January 1951.

14. The High Commissioner shall appoint, for the same term, a Deputy High Commissioner of a nationality other than his own.

15. (a) Within the limits of the budgetary appropriations provided, the staff of the Office of the High Commissioner shall be appointed by the High Commissioner and shall be responsible to him in the exercise of their functions.

(b) Such staff shall be chosen from persons devoted to the purposes of the Office of the High Commissioner.

(c) Their conditions of employment shall be those provided under the staff regulations adopted by the General Assembly and the rules promulgated thereunder by the Secretary-General.

(d) Provision may also be made to permit the employment of personnel without compensation.

16. The High Commissioner shall consult the governments of the countries of residence of refugees as to the need for appointing representatives therein. In any country recognizing such need, there may be appointed a representative approved by the government of that country. Subject to the foregoing, the same representative may serve in more than one country.

17. The High Commissioner and the Secretary-General shall make appropriate arrangements for liaison and consultation on matters of mutual interest.

18. The Secretary-General shall provide the High Commissioner with all necessary facilities within budgetary limitations.

19. The Office of the High Commissioner shall be located in Geneva, Switzerland.

20. The Office of the High Commissioner shall be financed under the budget of the United Nations. Unless the General Assembly subsequently decides otherwise, no expenditure other than administrative expenditures relating to the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office shall be borne on the budget of the United Nations and all other expenditures relating to the activities of the High Commissioner shall be financed by voluntary contributions.

21. The administration of the Office of the High Commissioner shall be subject to the Financial Regulations of the United Nations and to the financial rules promulgated thereunder by the Secretary-General.

22. Transactions relating to the High Commissioner's funds shall be subject to audit by the United Nations Board of Auditors, provided that the Board may accept audited accounts from the agencies to which funds have been allocated. Administrative arrangements for the custody of such funds and their allocation shall be agreed between the High Commissioner and the Secretary-General in accordance with the Financial Regulations of the United Nations and rules promulgated thereunder by the Secretary-General.

B

DRAFT CONVENTION RELATING TO THE STATUS OF REFUGEES

The General Assembly,

Considering that, by its resolution 362 (IV) of 22 October 1949, it approved the recommendation of the Special Committee on Methods and Procedures that the General Assembly might decide to convene a conference of plenipotentiaries to study, negotiate, draft, and possibly sign conventions that had been drawn up by conferences in which all Members of the United Nations have not been invited to take part,

Considering the desirability of enabling the governments of States not members of the United Nations to participate in the final stages of the drafting of the convention relating to the status of refugees, as prepared by the Ad Hoc Committee on Refugees and Stateless Persons and the Economic and Social Council,

1. Decides to convene a conference of plenipotentiaries to complete the drafting of and to sign both the convention relating to the status of refugees and the protocol relating to the status of stateless persons;

2. Recommends to governments participating in the conference to take into consideration the draft convention submitted by the Economic and Social Council and in particular the text of the definition of the term "refugee" as set forth in annex A hereto.

3. Requests the Secretary-General to take the steps necessary for the convening of such a conference at the earliest possible opportunity;

4. Instructs the Secretary-General to invite the governments of all States, both Members and non-members of the United Nations, to attend the said conference of plenipotentiaries;

5. Calls upon the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of his Office, to participate in the work of the conference.

ANNEX A

DRAFT CONVENTION RELATING TO THE STATUS OF REFUGEES

Chapter 1. Article 1

A. For the purposes of this Convention, the term "refugee" shall apply to any person who:

(1) Since 1 August 1914, has been considered a refugee under the arrangements of 12 May 1926 and 30 June 1928 or under the conventions of 28 October 1933 and 10 February 1938, the protocol of 14 September 1939 or the Constitution of the International Refugee Organization;

Decisions as to eligibility taken by the International Refugee Organization during the period of its activities shall not prevent the status of refugee being accorded to persons who fulfil the conditions of paragraph 2 of this article;

(2) As a result of events occurring before 1 January 1951 and owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality, and is unable, or owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience is unwilling, to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return to it;

In the case of a person who has more than one nationality, the above term "the country of his nationality" shall mean any of the countries of which he is a national, and a person shall not be deemed to be lacking the protection of the country of his nationality if, without any valid reason based on well-founded fear, he has not availed himself of the protection of one of the countries of which he is a national.

B. This Convention shall cease to apply to any person falling under the terms of section A if :

(1) He has voluntarily reavailed himself of the protection of the country of his nationality; or

(2) Having lost his nationality, he has voluntarily reacquired it; or

(3) He has acquired a new nationality, and enjoys the protection of the country of his new nationality; or

(4) He has voluntarily re-established himself in the country which he left or outside which he remained owing to fear of persecution; or

(5) He can no longer, because the circumstances in connexion with which he has been recognized as a refugee have ceased to exist, claim grounds other than those of personal convenience for continuing to refuse to avail himself of the protection of the country of his nationality. Reasons of a purely economic character may not be invoked; or

(6) Being a person who has no nationality, he can no longer, because the circumstances in connexion with which he has been recognized as a refugee have ceased to exist, and he is able to return to the country of his former habitual residence, claim grounds other than those of personal convenience for continuing to refuse to return to that country.

C. This Convention shall not apply to persons who are at present receiving from other organs or agencies of the United Nations protection or assistance.

D. The provisions of this Convention shall not apply to any person with respect to whom there are serious reasons for considering that (a) he has committed a crime specified in article VI of the London Charter of the International Military Tribunal; or (b) he falls under the provisions of article 14, paragraph 2, of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

E. The Contracting States may agree to add to the definition of the term "refugee" contained in this article persons in other categories, including such as may be recommended by the General Assembly.

C

DRAFT CONVENTION RELATING TO THE STATUS OF REFUGEES

The General Assembly,

Bearing in mind its resolution...,¹⁸

Taking into account the reasons for which it established the headquarters of the High Commissioner for Refugees at Geneva, Decides that the conference of plenipotentiaries provided for by the above-mentioned resolution for the purpose of completing and adopting the convention relating to the status of refugees shall be held at Geneva.

D

PROBLEMS OF ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES

The General Assembly,

Having taken cognizance of the communication addressed to it by the General Council of the International Refugee Organization on 13 October 1950 in amplification of its memorandum of 20 October 1949 addressed to the fourth session of the General Assembly,

Having noted that the General Council of the International Refugee Organization has decided to continue operations until 30 September 1951,

1. Decides to address an urgent appeal to all States, whether or not Members of the United Nations, calling upon them to assist the International Refugee Organization in its efforts to re-settle refugees remaining under its care and particularly those in need of permanent custodial care;

2. Decides, in the absence of definite data, to postpone until its sixth session the examination of the problem of assistance raised by the above-mentioned communications, in the light of a further communication on the subject which the International Refugee Organization is invited to submit and of the observations which the High Commissioner will make in his report to the sixth session of the General Assembly.

DOCUMENT A/1684

Draft convention relating to the status of refugees : financial implications of draft resolution B proposed by the Third Committee (A/1682) ; report of the Fifth Committee

[12 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the Fifth Committee, at its 278th meeting, held on 11 December 1950, considered the financial implications of draft resolution B proposed by the Third Committee, under which a conference of plenipotentiaries would be convened in Geneva for the purpose of completing and adopting the convention relating to the status of refugees (A/1682).

2. The Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/442), in which he estimated that the additional cost to the United Nations budget of holding the proposed conference at Geneva, on the assumption that it would last four weeks and end prior to 15 March 1951, would be approximately $US 10,400.

3. In its thirty-eighth report of 1950 (A/1655) the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions expressed the view that since much of the preparatory work for the conference had been completed, estimates of the costs involved might be based on a period of three rather than four weeks. It suggested also that consideration should be given to the possibility of seconding personnel from the International Labour Organisation and the International Refugee Organization, and that, should the conference find it necessary to use languages other than the working languages, recourse should be had, in the first instance, to the services which organizations situated at Geneva might be able to make available. Having regard to these considerations, the Advisory Committee recommended a provisional appropriation of $US 6,000 under section 1 of the 1951 budget, and $US 2,000 under section 25.

4. The recommendations of the Advisory Committee, were approved by the Fifth Committee by 35 votes to 4, with 1 abstention. The Fifth Committee, therefore decided to inform the General Assembly that adoption of draft resolution B proposed by the Third Committee would involve additional expenditure in 1951 in the total amount of $US 8,000.

Provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees : financial implications of draft resolution A proposed by the Third Committee (A/1682) ; forty-first report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[13 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/443) on the financial implications of draft resolution A proposed by the Third Committee (A/1682).

2. The estimated expenditure in respect of 1951 for the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees amounts to $US 300,000 on the basis of the provisions of paragraph 2 of General Assembly resolution 319 A (IV) of 3 December 1949.

3. The proposed provision for established posts includes, inter alia, a post of High Commissioner at the salary level of a principal director (A/C.5/443, paragraph 6 (a)). The Advisory Committee makes no comments on the various gradings proposed, except to point out that the grading proposed for the top post represents a departure from the practice followed in respect of other Commissioners of the United Nations, and it doubts whether it is desirable to establish the definitive grades at this stage.

4. The item for contractual printing ($US 6,000) is contingent upon the establishment of an advisory committee on refugees, as provided for in the annex to the proposed resolution (paragraph 4). Further savings may result from deferred recruitment of staff members for the High Commissioner's Office.

5. Subject to the observations made in paragraphs 3 and 4 above, the Advisory Committee concurs in the allocation of the proposed provision to the various sections of the budget enumerated in paragraph 11 of the report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/443), and a total appropriation of $US 300,000 is accordingly recommended.

6. The salaries of the staff members of the High Commissioner's Office are gross, and the offsetting revenue in respect of contributions under the Staff Assessment Plan is estimated at $US 32,000.

I

Curricula vitae

1. Under the terms of the resolution relating to the statute of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees, which has been approved by the Third Committee, "the High Commissioner shall be elected by the General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General" (A/1682, draft resolution A, annex, paragraph 13).

2. A number of distinguished candidates have been suggested to the Secretary-General by certain delegations. Two of these candidates, Dr. G. J. van Heuven Goedhart and Mr. J. Donald Kingsley, appear to have outstanding qualifications and each of them has been widely supported for the post. Since the many consultations which the Secretary-General has undertaken have not succeeded in bringing about general agreement in favour of one or other of these candidates, the Secretary-General has the honour to put forward both names for the consideration of the General Assembly.

3. The curricula vitae of Mr. Goedhart and Mr. Kingsley are attached for reference.

4. The same resolution approved by the Third Committee provides that "the terms of appointment of the High Commissioner shall be proposed by the Secretary-General and approved by the General Assembly", and that "the High Commissioner shall be elected for a term of three years, from 1 January 1951" (A/1682, draft resolution A, annex, paragraph 13).

5. At its 282nd meeting, the Fifth Committee decided to recommend that the rank and salary of the High Commissioner should be that of an Assistant Secretary-General. The Secretary-General has the honour to transmit this recommendation to the General Assembly.

Provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees : financial implications of draft resolution A proposed by the Third Committee (A/1682) ; report of the Fifth Committee

[13 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the Fifth Committee, at its 282nd meeting, held on 13 December 1950, considered the financial implications of draft resolution A proposed by the Third Committee (A/1682) concerning provisions for the functioning of the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees.

2. The Fifth Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/443), in which he expressed the opinion that the budgetary provision required in 1951 to carry out the activities envisaged in the draft resolution would be $US 300,000, as originally estimated. Attention was called to the provision of the statute of the High Commissioner's Office, to the effect that unless the General Assembly subsequently decided otherwise, no expenditure other than administrative expenses should be borne on the budget of the United Nations, and that all other expenses relating to the activities of the High Commissioner should be financed by voluntary contributions. The sum of $US 300,000 would be distributed as follows : section 20, $ 40,000 (Common staff costs and common services); section 20 a, $ 254,000; section 25, $ 6,000.

3. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, in its forty-first report of 1950 (A/1687), expressed its concurrence in the Secretary-General's estimate, and accordingly recommended approval of a total appropriation of $US 300,000. It pointed out, however, that the proposed provision for established posts comprised a post of High Commissioner at the salary level of a principal director. The Advisory Committee, while not committing itself at that stage on the question of grading, noted that the Secretary-General's proposal represented a departure from the practice followed in respect of other Commissioners of the United Nations. It pointed out, in addition, that the item for contractual printing ($US 6,000) was contingent upon the establishment of an advisory committee on refugees, and that further savings might result from deferred recruitment of staff members.

4. Several delegations expressed the view that the status and grading of the High Commissioner should be not less than that of an Assistant Secretary-General. It was stated on the Secretary-General's behalf that, while he considered the level of a principal director adequate, he would not object to a higher grading, if that were the wish of the Fifth Committee. The Secretary-General requested, however, that the views of the Fifth Committee should be made clearly known. Accordingly, it was proposed by the representative of the United Kingdom that the grading of the post should be on a level with that of an Assistant Secretary-General, and that the additional costs involved should be met within the proposed appropriation of $US 300,000. The Committee approved the United Kingdom proposal by 18 votes to none, with 15 abstentions.

5. The representative of Brazil expressed his fear that the provision of the draft resolution of the Third Committee with respect to inclusion of administrative costs within the United Nations budget might be utilized to cover a large variety of costs in various parts of the world, which, in his opinion, should not be charged to the United Nations budget.

6. The representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics stated that the only proper task in regard to the refugee problem was the encouragement and assistance of refugees to return to their native countries in accordance with prior resolutions (8 (I) and 62 (I)) of the General Assembly. The proposal put forward would merely hinder the fulfilment of that purpose, and the U.S.S.R. delegation therefore opposed the estimate of the financial implications involved. He further proposed that no provision should be made in the budget for the High Commissioner's Office for Refugees. That proposal was rejected by 22 votes to 4, with 7 abstentions.

7. The representative of Israel suggested that provision should be made for the participation of non-member States. He pointed out that there were a number of precedents for such participation.

8. The Committee approved, by 24 votes to 4, with 7 abstentions, the recommendations of the Advisory Committee.

9. The Fifth Committee, therefore, decided to inform the General Assembly that adoption of the draft resolution proposed by the Third Committee would require budgetary provision in 1951 in a total amount of $US 300,000.

Letter from the permanent representative of the Netherlands to the Secretary-General of the United Nations

[15 August 1950]

On 29 June 1950 the permanent representative of the Netherlands to the United Nations addressed the following letter to the Secretary-General with relation to the transmission of information under Article 73 e of the Charter :

“ I have the honour to transmit herewith, in accordance with Article 73 e of the Charter, one copy in the English translation of the report by the Netherlands Government on the Netherlands West Indies.¹

“ I am directed by my Government to add that the reports on Surinam¹ and Netherlands New Guinea¹ will be sent to you as soon as possible.

“ I am further directed to inform you that the Netherlands Government, from the current year on, will no longer present a report pursuant to Article 73 e of the Charter, on Indonesia, since the sovereignty over these territories, with the exception of Netherlands New Guinea, was formally and irrevocably transferred to the Republic of the United States of Indonesia on 27 December 1949, as a result of which the stipulations of Chapter XI of the Charter no longer apply to this now self-governing and sovereign State.

“ I have also been instructed to state that in all probability no further reports on the Netherlands West Indies and Surinam will be submitted after 1950, since both these territories will then have acquired an autonomous status and a full measure of self-government, placing them outside the scope of Chapter XI of the Charter.

“ It is, however, the intention of my Government in that case to present to your Excellency a report pursuant to paragraph 2 of resolution 222 (III) of the General Assembly. ”

DRAFT RESOLUTION ON VISITS TO NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

41. The Committee was informed in document A/AC.35/L.14, paragraph 7, and in the report of the Special Committee (A/1303, paragraph 14) of the invitation issued by the Government of Denmark to two officials of the Secretariat to visit Greenland and of the fact that the two officials had visited that territory. Certain members of the Committee were of the opinion that it was desirable that a report on their visit should be made available.

42. The representative of Cuba submitted a draft resolution, the operative part of which, orally amended by him, read as follows (A/C.4/L.113/Rev.1) :

“ 1. Expresses its gratification at the step taken by the Danish Government in inviting a number of senior officials of the Secretariat to visit Greenland in 1950 in the belief that the consequences of such a visit would be beneficial both to the administering Power and the territory under administration as well as to the United Nations since it would result in a better knowledge of the situation and of the progress effected in Greenland;

“ 2. Draws the attention of the other administering Members to the step taken by the Danish Government;

“ 3. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare and publish a report on the visit to Greenland based on the information supplied by the officials who visited that territory. ”

43. The representative of Cuba withdrew his amended draft resolution owing to the limited time available for discussion, but reserved his right to resubmit a draft resolution on the subject at a later session of the General Assembly.

44. The full text of the statement of the representative of Denmark (A/C.4/L.127) concerning the question was circulated to the Committee in accordance with the request of the representative of Cuba.

DRAFT RESOLUTION ON DEVELOPMENT OF SELF-GOVERNMENT IN NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

46. Paragraph 2 of the operative part was adopted by 29 votes to none, with 13 abstentions.

47. The draft resolution as a whole was then approved, at the 190th meeting, by 30 votes to none, with 12 abstentions. The text of the draft resolution, as approved, is annexed to the present report as draft resolution V.

ELECTION OF TWO MEMBERS OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON INFORMATION TRANSMITTED UNDER ARTICLE 73 E OF THE CHARTER

48. At its 191st meeting, the Committee elected Cuba and Pakistan as members of the Special Committee in place of Sweden and Venezuela.

49. The Fourth Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions :

Draft resolution I

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE TO NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

The General Assembly,

Considering that under the expanded programme of technical assistance for economic development of underdeveloped countries (resolution 222 (IX) of the Economic and Social Council), the Non-Self-Governing Territories are eligible to receive technical assistance upon the request of the administering Members concerned,

Noting with appreciation that resolution 321 (XI) of the Economic and Social Council draws the attention of the administering Members to the facilities available under the expanded programme of technical assistance,

1. Invites the administering Members which need technical assistance for the economic, social and educational advancement of their Non-Self-Governing Territories to submit their requests;

2. Recommends that the administering Members include yearly in the statistical information transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter as full a report as possible on all applications made in behalf of their respective Non-Self-Governing Territories and on the manner in which technical assistance received from the United Nations and the specialized agencies has been integrated into long-range development programmes in such territories.

Draft resolution II

WORK OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON INFORMATION TRANSMITTED UNDER ARTICLE 73 E OF THE CHARTER

The General Assembly,

1. Takes note of the report of the Special Committee on Information transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter on the work of its 1950 session;

2. Confirms its recognition of the importance of international collaboration in regard to economic, social and educational conditions in Non-Self-Governing Territories as expressed in resolution 331 (IV) adopted by the General Assembly on 2 December 1949;

3. Approves the special report on education as a brief but considered indication of the importance of educational advancement and the problems still to be faced in the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

4. Invites the Secretary-General to communicate this special report to the Members of the United Nations responsible for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories and to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for their consideration;

5. Notes with interest the special studies carried out by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for the education and training of teachers, and expresses the hope that full account will be taken of such studies in the formulation of policies on this matter in the Non-Self-Governing Territories;

6. Notes the intention of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to place before the Special Committee for its consideration at its 1951 session documents relating to the use of the indigenous or national languages for teaching purposes and the eradication of illiteracy;

7. Approves the arrangements proposed by the Special Committee for its work in 1951;

8. Invites the specialized agencies concerned, with a view to the preparation of studies based on the information transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter and relevant supplemental information in respect of economic conditions and development to be considered by the Special Committee in 1951, to collaborate with the Secretary-General in the study of problems of the prices of tropical export crops and arrangements for their marketing, migrant labour in Africa, the development of co-operative societies in peasant communities and the economic value of preventive medicine.

Draft resolution III

INFORMATION ON HUMAN RIGHTS IN NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

The General Assembly,

Recalling the recommendation contained in resolution 327 (IV) adopted by the General Assembly on 2 December 1949,

Noting the provision contained in article 2 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that no distinction shall be made on the basis of the political, jurisdictional or international status of the country or territory to which a person belongs, whether it be independent, trust, non-self-governing or under any other limitation of sovereignty,

Having regard to the mission which has been given by the General Assembly to the Commission on Human Rights with a view to the drafting of an international covenant on human rights which will also be applicable to Non-Self-Governing Territories,

1. Invites the Members responsible for the administration of Non-Self-Governing Territories to include, in the information to be transmitted to the Secretary-General in 1951 under Article 73 e of the Charter, a summary of the extent to which the Universal Declaration of Human Rights is implemented in the Non-Self-Governing Territories under their administration;

2. Requests the Special Committee on Information transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter to include in its report to the General Assembly at its sixth session such recommendations as it may deem desirable relating to the application in Non-Self-Governing Territories of the principles contained in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Draft resolution IV

COMPARABLE STATISTICAL INFORMATION RELATING TO THE SUBJECTS TREATED UNDER ARTICLE 73 E OF THE CHARTER

The General Assembly,

Having regard to paragraph 6 of resolution 143 (II) adopted by the General Assembly on 3 November 1947 and paragraph 3 of resolution 218 (III) adopted by the General Assembly on 3 November 1948 and relating to the use of comparable statistical information,

Desirous of arriving at correct conclusions from the use of such information,

1. Invites the Secretary-General, in making use of such information, to obtain the consent of the Member State concerned and to take into account all elements necessary for scientific and objective comparison;

2. Invites the Secretary-General to bear in mind that an objective comparison can be made only if the comparable information is representative of the whole region concerned.

*Draft resolution V*DEVELOPMENT OF SELF-GOVERNMENT IN NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES*The General Assembly,*

Considering that resolution 222 (III) adopted by the General Assembly on 3 November 1948, while welcoming any development of self-government in Non-Self-Governing Territories, considers that it is essential that the United Nations be informed of any change in the constitutional position and status of any such territory as a result of which the responsible Government concerned thinks it unnecessary to transmit information in respect of that territory under Article 73 e of the Charter,

Noting the communication dated 29 June 1950 from the Government of the Netherlands in which it is stated that the Netherlands will no longer present a report pursuant to Article 73 e on Indonesia with the exception of West New Guinea.

Noting that the full independence of the Republic of Indonesia has been followed by the admission of that State to membership in the United Nations,

1. Takes note with satisfaction of the communication of the Government of the Netherlands with reference to the cessation of the transmission of information on Indonesia;

2. Requests the Special Committee on Information transmitted under Article 73 e of the Charter to examine such information as may be transmitted in future to the Secretary-General in pursuance of General Assembly resolution 222 (III), and to report thereon to the General Assembly.

The General Assembly,

Having requested, by its resolution 338 (IV) of 6 December 1949, the International Court of Justice to render an advisory opinion on the following questions :

“ What is the international status of the Territory of South West Africa and what are the international obligations of the Union of South Africa arising therefrom, in particular :

“ (a) Does the Union of South Africa continue to have international obligations under the Mandate for South West Africa and, if so, what are those obligations ?

“ (b) Are the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter applicable and, if so, in what manner, to the Territory of South West Africa ?

“ (c) Has the Union of South Africa the competence to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa, or, in the event of a negative reply, where does competence rest to determine and modify the international status of the Territory ? ”

1. Takes note of the advisory opinion of the Court rendered on 11 July 1950² to the effect that :

¹ Document A/C.4/L.124/Add.1, dated 1 December 1950, adds the delegation of Venezuela to the list of sponsors of the draft resolution.

“ That the Union of South Africa continues to have the international obligations stated in Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations and in the Mandate for South West Africa as well as the obligation to transmit petitions from the inhabitants of that Territory, the supervisory functions to be exercised by the United Nations, to which the annual reports and the petitions are to be submitted, and the reference to the Permanent Court of International Justice to be replaced by a reference to the International Court of Justice, in accordance with Article 7 of the Mandate and Article 37 of the Statute of the Court;

“ On Question (b) :

“ That the Union of South Africa acting alone has not the competence to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa, and that the competence to determine and modify the international status of the Territory rests with the Union of South Africa acting with the consent of the United Nations ”;

Financial implications of draft resolution I in the report of the Fourth Committee (A/1643) : report of the Secretary-General

[8 December 1950]

1. At its 196th meeting on 4 December 1950 the Fourth Committee adopted a draft resolution which, inter alia, proposed the establishment of a commission for South West Africa composed of ten experts appointed for their qualifications and expert knowledge and chosen on the basis of equitable geographical distribution. This commission would assist the General Assembly in the consideration of the annual reports, petitions and all other matters relating to the Mandated Territory of South West Africa in accordance with instructions and procedures laid down by the General Assembly in the exercise of its functions of control over the administration of South West Africa, meeting at such time and place as might be determined by the Secretary-General.

2. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly the following estimates are submitted on the assumption that the commission would meet at Lake Success in the first part of the year 1951 for a period of about three weeks :

	US dollars
Travel of members	9,000
Subsistence of members	6,250
Local transportation	1,080
Contractual printing	4,510
TOTAL	20,840

3. Provision is made for travel expenses for ten members chosen on the basis of equitable geographical distribution.

4. Provision is made for ten members of the commission at $25 per day for 21 days, plus an average of 5 days for travel time.

5. It would be necessary to hire three cars at $20 per day for about 18 days. Should the commission meet during the second part of the year, it would not be necessary to provide for local transportation, as they would then meet at the permanent Headquarters in New York City.

6. Provision is made for printing the report of the commission in five languages, estimated at about 48 English text pages.

7. Should the General Assembly approve the draft resolution as recommended by the fourth Committee, it would be necessary to add $16,330 to section 1 of the budget estimates for 1951, “ The General Assembly, Commissions and Committees ”, and $4,510 to section 25, “ Official Records ”.

II. APPLICATION OF THE INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM TO SOUTH WEST AFRICA

14. The delegations of India, Indonesia and the Philippines submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.122) reading as follows :

" The General Assembly,

" Reaffirming its previous resolution 65 (I) of 14 December 1946 and 141 (II) of 1 November 1947 recommending that the Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System,

" Having noted the conclusions of the International Court of Justice :

" (a) That the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter are applicable to the Territory of South West Africa in the sense that they provide a means by which the Territory may be brought under the Trusteeship System,

" (b) That the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter do not impose on the Union of South Africa a legal obligation to place the Territory under the Trusteeship System,

" (c) That the Union of South Africa acting alone has not the competence to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa and that the competence to determine and modify the international status of the Territory rests with the Union of South Africa acting with the consent of the United Nations,

" Having noted further that the Court, in its advisory opinion, did not feel called upon to pronounce on the political or moral duties which the foregoing considerations may involve,

“ 1. Endorses the further conclusions of the Court that the normal way of modifying the international status of the Territory would be to place it under the Trusteeship System by means of a trusteeship agreement in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter;

“ 2. Requests the Ad Hoc Committee on South West Africa to examine the provisions and working of the South West Africa Affairs Amendment Act, 1949, and make a report thereon to the next session of the General Assembly. ”

15. The delegations of Cuba, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico and Uruguay submitted a draft resolution (A/C.4/L.128) reading as follows :

“ The General Assembly,

“ Considering that the General Assembly by its resolutions 65 (I) of 14 December 1946, 141 (II) of 1 November 1947, 227 (III) of 26 November 1948 and 337 (IV) of 6 December 1949 recommended that the Mandated Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System and invited the Government of the Union of South Africa to propose for the consideration of the General Assembly a trusteeship agreement for the aforesaid Territory,

“ Considering that the International Court of Justice, duly consulted by the General Assembly in pursuance of resolution 338 (IV) of 6 December 1949, delivered the opinion that the Territory of South West Africa is under the international mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920,

“ Considering that, in accordance with Articles 75, 77, sub-paragraph 1 a, 79 and 80, paragraph 2, of the Charter of the United Nations, the Trusteeship System has been applied to all former mandated territories with the sole exception of the Territory of South West Africa,

“ Considering that under the terms of the Charter of the United Nations it is clear that the International Trusteeship System takes the place of the former Mandates System instituted by the League of Nations, and further that there is no specific provision indicating the permanent co-existence of the Mandates System with the International Trusteeship System,

“ 1. Reiterates its resolutions 65 (I) of 14 December 1946, 141 (II) of 1 November 1947, 227 (III) of 26 November 1948 and 337 (IV) of 6 December 1949 to the effect that the Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System;

“ 2. Reiterates its earlier invitations to the Government of the Union of South Africa requesting the said Government to submit to the General Assembly not later than 1 June 1950 a draft trusteeship agreement for the Territory of South West Africa;

“ 3. Invites the Trusteeship Council to examine the draft trusteeship agreement when submitted by the Union of South Africa and to present a report thereon to the sixth session of the General Assembly. ”

“ Reiterates that the normal way of modifying the international status of the Territory would be to place it under the Trusteeship System by means of a trusteeship agreement in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter ”.

After that draft resolution had been withdrawn, the delegation of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics introduced the same amendment (A/C.4/L.130) to the draft resolution proposed by Cuba, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico and Uruguay. That amendment proposed the insertion after paragraph 1 of the operative part, of a paragraph reading as follows :

“ 2. Notes that the action of the Union of South Africa in adopting a law on the incorporation of South West Africa in the Union of South Africa constitutes a violation of the Charter of the United Nations; ”

18. Following a suggestion made by the Rapporteur, the sponsors modified the third paragraph of the preamble to read as follows :

“ Considering that, in accordance with Articles 75, 77, sub-paragraph 1 a, 79 and 80, paragraph 2, of the Charter of the United Nations, the Trusteeship System has been applied to all mandated territories which have not achieved independence, with the sole exception of the Territory of South West Africa ”.

Considering that the International Court of Justice, duly consulted by the General Assembly pursuant to resolution 338 (IV) of 6 December 1949, reached the conclusion that the Territory of South West Africa is still a territory under the international Mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920,

Considering that the International Court of Justice is of the opinion that the Union of South Africa acting alone is not competent to modify the international status of the Territory of South West Africa, and that the competence to determine and modify the international status of the Territory rests with the Union of South Africa acting with the consent of the United Nations,

Considering that the International Court of Justice is of the opinion that the Union of South Africa continues to be subject to the international obligations laid down in Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations and in the Mandate for South West Africa,

Considering that the International Court of Justice is of the opinion that the functions of supervision over the administration of the Territory of South West Africa by the Union of South Africa should be exercised by the United Nations, to which the annual reports and the petitions should be submitted,

Considering that the International Court of Justice is of the opinion that the Union of South Africa continues to be subject to the obligation to transmit petitions from the inhabitants of the Territory of South West Africa,

Considering that, in accordance with the opinion of the International Court of Justice, the Union of South Africa is under an obligation to accept the compulsory jurisdiction of the Court as provided by Article 37 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice, by Article 80, paragraph 1, of the Charter of the United Nations and by article 7 of the Mandate for South West Africa,

1. Declares that it is incumbent upon the Government of the Union of South Africa, pending the determination of the future status of South West Africa by agreement between the Union of South Africa and the United Nations, to promote to the utmost in the administration of the Territory the material and moral well-being and social progress of its inhabitants as a sacred trust of civilization, subject to the existing Mandate, and to give effect to the obligations which it assumed under the Mandate;

2. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to submit to the United Nations, before 1 June 1951, a report on the administration of the Territory of South West Africa during the years 1947, 1948, 1949 and 1950 in accordance with the questionnaire adopted by the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations and also, in due course, reports relating to the subsequent years;

3. Requests the Government of the Union of South Africa to transmit to the Secretary-General, with such additional observations as it may deem necessary, all petitions relating to the Territory of South West Africa;

4. Establishes a Commission for South West Africa to assist the General Assembly in the consideration of the annual reports, petitions and all other matters relating to the Mandated Territory of South West Africa in accordance with the following instructions and procedures which the General Assembly laid down in the exercise of its functions of control over the administration of South West Africa :

(a) The Commission for South West Africa shall be composed of ten experts appointed on the basis of their qualifications and expert knowledge by... *

(b) The Commission for South West Africa shall hold the meetings necessary for the accomplishment of its task; it shall meet at such time and place as may be determined by the Secretary-General;

(c) The Commission for South West Africa shall decide upon its own rules of procedure and for that purpose shall, as far as possible, follow the procedure adopted in that matter by the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations for the consideration of reports and petitions;

* After adoption of the resolution, the countries will be chosen by the Fourth Committee on the basis of equitable geographical distribution.

5. Invites the Government of the Union of South Africa to designate a duly authorized representative who should be prepared to offer to the Commission for South West Africa any supplementary explanations or supplementary information as the Commission may request;

6. Recommends that the Commission for South West Africa should submit annual reports to the General Assembly for consideration. Such reports shall contain an analysis of conditions in the Mandated Territory and observations, conclusions and recommendations regarding the fulfilment, by the Mandatory Power, of the obligations set forth in the Mandate. The Commission shall advise the Assembly on all matters relating to South West Africa, and perform such other functions as may be entrusted to it by the General Assembly.

Draft resolution II

The General Assembly,

Considering that the General Assembly by its resolutions 65 (I) of 14 December 1946, 141 (II) of 1 November 1947, 227 (III) of 26 November 1948 and 337 (IV) of 6 December 1949 recommended that the Mandated Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System and invited the Government of the Union of South Africa to propose, for the consideration of the General Assembly, a trusteeship agreement for the aforesaid Territory,

Considering that the International Court of Justice, duly consulted by the General Assembly in pursuance of resolution 338 (IV) of 6 December 1949, delivered the opinion that the Territory of South West Africa is under the international Mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920,

Considering that in accordance with Articles 75, 77 sub-paragraph 1 a, 79 and 80, paragraph 2, of the Charter of the United Nations the Trusteeship System has been applied to all mandated territories which have not achieved independence, with the sole exception of the Territory of South West Africa,

Considering that, under the terms of the Charter of the United Nations, it is clear that the International Trusteeship System takes the place of the former Mandates System instituted by the League of Nations and, further, that there is no specific provision indicating the permanent co-existence of the Mandates System with the International Trusteeship System,

1. Reiterates its resolutions 65 (I) of 14 December 1946, 141 (II) of 1 November 1947, 227 (III) of 26 November 1948 and 337 (IV) of 6 December 1949 to the effect that the Territory of South West Africa be placed under the International Trusteeship System;

2. Reiterates that the normal way of modifying the international status of the Territory would be to place it under the Trusteeship System by means of a trusteeship agreement in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XII of the Charter.

DOCUMENT A/1651Financial implications of draft resolution I in the report of the Fourth Committee (A/1643) : thirty-fourth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text : English]
[9 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/439) on the financial implications of draft resolution I proposed by the Fourth Committee in document A/1643.

2. The commission for South West Africa envisaged under paragraph 4 of the draft resolution is to be composed of ten experts appointed by Member States on the basis of their qualifications and expert knowledge.

3. The members of the commission will thus be serving, not in a personal capacity, but rather as representatives nominated by Governments. Their status will approximate most closely to that of representatives serving on commissions of the Economic and Social Council, in respect of whom travelling expenses, but not subsistence allowances, are payable out of United Nations funds (General Assembly resolution 231 (III), paragraph 4). In these circumstances, the Advisory Committee sees no justification for the proposed payment of subsistence allowances.

4. The Advisory Committee further considers that the session of the commission scheduled for the first part of 1951 might conveniently be held at the permanent Headquarters, instead of at Lake Success, with a consequent saving on the item for local transportation.

5. On the basis of the observations in paragraph 3 and 4 above, the Advisory Committee recommends for approval an appropriation of $14,000, representing a reduction of $6,840 on the figure submitted.

DOCUMENT A/1662Financial implications of draft resolution I in the report of the Fourth Committee (A/1643) : report of the Fifth Committee

[11 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and with the request of the President in his letter of 6 December 1950 to the Chairman (A/C.5/435), the Fifth Committee, at its 278th meeting on 11 December 1950, considered the financial implications of draft resolution I proposed by the Fourth Committee on the question of South West Africa (A/1643).

2. The Fifth Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/439), in which he estimated that, on the assumption that the proposed commission for South West Africa would meet at Lake Success in the first part of 1951 for a period of about three weeks, additional provision would need to be made under section 1 of the budget estimates for 1951 in the amount of $16,330, and under section 25 in the amount of $4,510.

3. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, in its thirty-fourth report of 1950 (A/1651), noted that the members of the proposed commission for South West Africa would be serving, not in a personal capacity, but rather as representatives nominated by Governments, and accordingly, in conformity with General Assembly resolution 231 (III), expressed the opinion that no justification existed for payment of subsistence allowance. The Advisory Committee further considered that the session of the commission might conveniently be held at the permanent Headquarters instead of at Lake Success, with a consequent saving on the item for local transportation. On the basis of these observations, it recommended approval of an appropriation of $14,000, representing a reduction of $6,840 on the estimates submitted by the Secretary-General.

4. The Fifth Committee approved, without objection, the Advisory Committee's recommendations, and therefore decided to inform the General Assembly that adoption of draft resolution I proposed by the Fourth Committee would involve an additional appropriation under sections 1 and 25 of the 1951 budget in the total amount of $14,000.

The General Assembly,

Considering that the International Court of Justice, duly consulted by the General Assembly pursuant to resolution 338 (IV) of 6 December 1949, reached the conclusion that the Territory of South West Africa is a Territory under the international Mandate assumed by the Union of South Africa on 17 December 1920,

1. Accepts the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice with respect to South West Africa;

2. Urges the Government of the Union of South Africa to take the necessary steps to give effect to the opinion of the International Court of Justice, including the transmission of reports on the administration of the Territory of South West Africa and of petitions from the inhabitants of the Territory;

3. Establishes a Committee of five consisting of the representatives of Syria, Thailand, United Kingdom, United States of America and Uruguay, to confer with the Union of South Africa concerning the procedural measures necessary for implementing the advisory opinion of the International Court of Justice;

4. Authorizes the Committee, as an interim measure, pending the completion of its task referred to in paragraph 3, to examine in accordance with the procedure of the former Mandates System, the report on the administration of the Territory of South West Africa, covering the period since the last report, as well as petitions and any other matters relating to the Territory that may be transmitted to the Secretary-General, and to submit a report thereon to the next regular session of the General Assembly.

Report of the Secretary-General

[26 September 1950]

I. INTRODUCTION

1. Pursuant to paragraph 3 of resolution 350 (IV) adopted by the General Assembly on 24 November 1949, the following progress report on the permanent Headquarters is submitted to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly.

2. It will be recalled that the General Assembly decided, on 14 December 1946, at the second part of the first session (resolution 100 (I)), to establish the permanent Headquarters in New York City. Architectural plans were approved at the second regular session by resolution 182 (II) of 20 November 1947, when the Secretary-General was authorized to proceed with construction and with furnishing the Headquarters on receipt of an interest-free loan of $US 65 million which he was to negotiate and conclude with the Government of the United States of America. At the third session of the Assembly in 1948, the Secretary-General reported (A/627)¹ that the loan had been concluded, with $25 million available for immediate use in the preliminary stages of construction, which were then beginning. At the fourth session, the Secretary-General reported (A/1009)² to the Assembly that the entire $65 million had been made available in July 1949 and that the construction programme was well advanced; excavation had been completed ahead of schedule in February 1949, and the contractors had made good progress on the first unit of work, the Secretariat office building, and on the foundations for the complete project.

II. DESCRIPTION OF PROJECT

A. Secretariat building

3. The Secretariat building is now in use by some members of the staff. The first offices to be occupied were opened considerably ahead of schedule, on 21 August 1950, that is to say, about eighteen months after the contract for the construction of the building was signed with the contractors. This is a good construction record and there is widespread interest in the building, both as a permanent workshop for the United Nations Secretariat and as an architectural achievement. It may be considered appropriate, therefore, to include here certain interesting facts about the building and its construction.

4. Excavation for all the buildings in the project was begun in September 1948, and was completed within five months. Digging and blasting down to thirty-one foot (9.45 m)³ below street level, the excavators removed 150,000 cubic yards (114,675.75 cu. m) of earth and 65,000 cubic yards (49,692.83 cu. m) of rock. Concrete piers—carried to rock at an average depth below grade of thirteen feet (3.96 m), but some as much as forty feet (12.19 m)—were then cast to receive the steel frame.

5. Steel erection for the Secretariat building was started in April 1949, and was completed in twenty-three weeks. The three derricks employed placed an average of 580 tons (526,167.47 kgs) of structural steel per week.

6. In about the same length of time, 5,400 windows and glass spandrels, and 2,000 tons (1,814,370.60 kgs) of marble were set to enclose the building on the four sides.

7. Vertical transportation in the Secretariat building is provided by eighteen highspeed elevators, two service elevators, a freight elevator and eight glass-enclosed moving stairs. Six of the passenger elevators will terminate at the 15th floor, six at the 27th floor and six at the 38th floor. The service elevators will serve the basement and all thirty-nine floors, while the freight elevator will service the second and third basement floors, where mechanical facilities will be housed. Elevators and stairways are centrally located in the building in order to provide the maximum amount of perimeter lighting. The building will also have an electric dumbwaiter system in a vertical conveyor system extending from the third basement to the 39th floor. In addition, there will be a pneumatic tube system with a central station in the third basement and tube connexions to stations on the 10th and 15th floors, as well as to the library and the conference area.

8. The many problems that have arisen from both an engineering and a construction standpoint, and the necessity of keeping within the available budget, has necessitated exceptionally close contact and co-operation between the designers, engineers, general contractors, sub-contractors and workmen associated with the project. As a result of such co-operation, every problem that has arisen has been successfully solved and the building will be completed, with the necessary installations, well ahead of schedule.

B. Conference area and meeting halls

9. To the east of the Secretariat building, and joined to it, is a seven-storey building comprising the conference area and meeting halls. This structure will house three of the principal organs, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council and the Trusteeship Council, as well as other conference and committee facilities. Construction on this unit is making good progress; the structural steel has been erected and construction of the building is expected to reach the final stage by July 1951.

10. The conference area, which will be connected with both the General Assembly building and the Secretariat offices, is approximately 400 feet (121.92 m) long and 183 feet (55.78 m) wide, and contains seven storeys, including two basement levels, one concourse floor, three floors above the First Avenue entrance level, and a restaurant and cafeteria space directly over the Council Chambers.

11. The Council Chambers for the three Councils are on the upper level; these rooms are to be 72 feet (21.95 m) wide and 135 feet (41.15 m) long, with 24 feet (7.32 m) ceilings. The Chambers will be completely equipped with facilities for technical services, including simultaneous interpretation booths and Press, radio, television and film booths, with essential work spaces. In addition to office space for secretariat services conveniently placed adjacent to the chambers, there is a main delegates' lounge at the north side of the area, and a smaller lounge primarily for the Security Council to the south of the chambers.

12. Each of the chambers has seating accommodation for approximately 120 members of the Press, and there are 400 public seats. The Security Council Chamber provides for 21 seats for representatives at the table, 84 advisers, 32 observers, and 16 members of the Secretariat. The Trusteeship Council Chamber will accommodate 21 representatives, 84 advisers, 5 petitioners, 14 special advisers, 32 observers, and 16 members of the Secretariat.

13. Facilities in the Economic and Social Council Chamber are planned for 23 representatives, 92 advisers, 14 representatives from specialized agencies, 32 observers, 16 representatives from non-governmental organizations, and 16 members of the Secretariat.

14. On the level directly below the Council Chambers are three large conference rooms of about the same size, 135 feet (41.15 m) long, 72 feet (21.95 m) wide and 18 feet (5.48 m) high. These conference rooms are designed to meet the needs of main committees of the General Assembly. These rooms will have facilities for 70 representatives at the table, with 2 advisers for each; this capacity can be expanded if necessary for as many as 85 representatives and 170 advisers. There will be 88 seats for members of the Press, and 170 seats for the general public, and there will be facilities for all technical and public information services. A fourth conference room somewhat larger than these rooms will be located in the General Assembly building.

15. In addition to these conference rooms, there are six smaller committee rooms, each of which will accommodate about 27 representatives, with 28 seats for advisers or members of the Press or the public.

16. The building is cantilevered over the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Drive and the service road leading to the garage. The exterior of the building will be of Portland stone and glass, trimmed with marble matching the Secretariat building. The connexion with the General Assembly building will be by a metal and glass corridor of three levels and, at the meeting hall end of the corridor, two automatic elevators will service all seven floors of the building. In addition to forming a horizontal corridor, this connexion will also contain a monumental stairway and an escalator, for use chiefly by the public arriving through the General Assembly building and circulating to the public seating in the Council Chambers and conference rooms. Along the west wall of the meeting-hall area on all floors there will be a special corridor giving easy and ready access to the various conference rooms, Council Chambers and small committee rooms.

17. The main delegates' lounge on the delegates' level in the north area is 36 feet (10.97 m) wide, 175 feet (53.34 m) long and 24 feet (7.32 m) high, exclusive of the bay window, which projects 10 feet (3.05 m). This very impressive room will be decorated in a restrained and subdued manner and will have an acoustical ceiling, carpeted floor, comfortable furniture and subdued lighting. The room will contain a lounge area, bar and a writing-room provided with telephone booths and a call system.

18. The principal dining area at the Headquarters is located on the roof level, directly above the Council Chambers, containing a delegates' restaurant seating 300 people, private dining rooms, and a Secretariat cafeteria seating 400 people. Both the restaurant and cafeteria are easily accessible from all parts of the conference area and from all elevators in the Secretariat building by way of the fourth floor.

C. The General Assembly building

19. The last major building in the present construction programme is the General Assembly building, a structure with subtle curves, sloping form and shallow dome which will contrast effectively with the rectangular lines of the Secretariat building and the conference area. This permanent home of the General Assembly is expected to be completed well in advance of the seventh session in 1952, but not in time for the sixth session in 1951. Structural steel is now being erected and progress is good.

20. The building measures 380 feet (115.82 m) long and 160 feet (48.77 m) wide. The north end, which is the principal public entrance, has a facade of 75 1/2 feet (23.01 m) in height supporting the roof, which slopes gradually downward to 53 1/2 feet (16.31 m) at the southern facade. The east and west walls of the building are to be faced with an English Portland stone, "St. Paul's White Bed", with facias, panels and trimmings in marble matching the north and south walls of the Secretariat building. On the north facade translucent marble panels, set into marble piers, are designed to give the main entrance and public lobby a subdued and cathedral-like lighting. The exterior design is accented on the roof by a shallow, tilted dome covering the delegates' area in the Assembly auditorium.

21. There are five levels in the passageway connecting the General Assembly building to the conference area. In the two lower levels of the Assembly building there will be radio studios, committee rooms, maintenance areas, recording rooms, and a master control room which will be the nerve centre of a vast and complicated communications system serving the entire Headquarters. Also in these lower levels will be the fourth large conference room for Assembly Committees. The seating capacity in this room provides for 75 representatives at the table and 225 advisers, 16 representatives of specialized agencies, 16 members of the Secretariat and 2 additional places. The number of representatives can later be increased to 83 and the advisers to 249, if necessary.

22. The principal delegates' entrance will be on the west side of the building, off First Avenue. Circulation for the public and the delegations is planned in such a manner as to provide convenient access to and from all meeting rooms, lobbies and the other buildings without interference with each other. The delegates' lobby, separated from the public area by a partition, will provide coat rooms and information facilities conveniently situated; stairs, escalators and elevators will serve delegations going to the Assembly auditorium.

23. The General Assembly auditorium consists of a circular-shaped area, over 100 feet (30.48 m) in diameter, and capped with the shallow dome, under which restrained and quiet lighting effects can be achieved, with supplementary lighting available for television and photography. The entire building is to be equipped with an air-conditioning system of the latest design, and the auditorium itself will be equipped with all sound devices and with motion-picture projection facilities.

24. The auditorium will provide seating accommodation for 360 representatives, 234 members of the Press, 276 observers and 800 members of the general public. The number of seats for representatives can be increased, if necessary, by at least 40.

25. A generous working area will be available for members of the Press, radio and television, who will have their own office space, lounge, dispatch rooms and other essential requirements. Public information and technical services are to be located off the main floor of the auditorium, with a direct view of delegations and of the speaker's rostrum.

D. Garage

26. A 1,500-car underground garage is an important feature of the Headquarters project. The garage, built in three levels, is constructed partly under the General Assembly building and partly under the landscaped garden area. It extends from the Manhattan office building north to about 60 feet (18.29 m) beyond the north facade of the General Assembly building. In the opposite direction it extends from the west wall of the Secretariat building to the United Nations westerly property line along First Avenue.

27. Numerous entrances and exits have been planned to provide a maximum degree of flexibility in entering and leaving the garage, as well as the speediest possible circulation through it. Two ramps, one exit and one entrance, are in the Secretariat court, and entrance to the garage is also provided from 42nd Street with a service road paralleling the City's Franklin D. Roosevelt

Drive. There is another ramp at 48th Street, in addition to three entrances and exits from the service road at the lowest garage level. Interior ramps connect the three levels of the garage with each other and provide sufficient and easy movement of cars, as well as internal circulation throughout this vast area. The total area provided for parking is about 600,000 square feet (55,739.82 sq. m).

E. Landscaping

28. The landscaping plans for the site have not been finalized but it is intended to provide as much green open space as possible, with planting confined to small areas and appropriate trees placed around the site in an informal manner.

29. The landscaping plans will take into consideration the principal entrance to the site from 47th Street, which will form a kind of plaza resulting from the City's street-widening programme for 47th Street between First and Second Avenues.

30. The placement of the United Nations flags will probably be on First Avenue in front of the delegates' entrance to the General Assembly. The space in front of the Secretariat building, leading to the garages, has a suitable place for a fountain.

F. Delegation building

31. The Headquarters plans, as developed in 1947 and approved by the General Assembly at its second session in November of that year by resolution 182 (II), included, in addition to the buildings for the principal organs of the United Nations, a building on the north portion of the site for the offices of delegations, specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations. Since the requirements for this building were not definite at that time, only preliminary plans were made, and the financial arrangements for the whole project did not include funds for its construction. In 1948 and 1949, some further thought was given to this building, as it appeared that one or more of the specialized agencies might possibly decide to establish headquarters on the Manhattan site. A preliminary investigation was made of the requirements of delegations early in 1949, and the majority of the Members having delegations in New York City expressed an interest in the building. It was thought that reasonable rentals might be paid by delegations, specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations which would provide income to repay any construction loan that might be made. The fact that there would be no land cost seemed to be an important consideration, making a solid financial plan possible.

32. The early plans envisaged a building 73 feet (22.25 m) wide and 399 feet (121.62 m) long, approximately 300 feet (91.44 m) high, containing 20 floors of office space, in addition to two basements and an underground garage on two levels for 500 cars. The 20 floors of office space would have totalled about 450,000 net square feet (41,804.87 sq m).

33. The exterior of the building was to have been similar in design to the Secretariat building, with the east and west facades in marble and the north and south facades in metal and glass.

34. The question of developing the plan for the delegation building was discussed with the Headquarters Advisory Committee in 1949, but no further action was taken, as the Committee did not recommend a continuation of the studies. In fact none of the specialized agencies has shown any interest to date in seeking accommodation on the site, although a number of delegations have expressed a desire for office space there. In view of financial exigencies and other considerations, nothing further has been done during the past year. Nevertheless, the construction of such a building should still be considered for the future, and the development of the site cannot be considered complete without it.

G. Library

35. The Manhattan office building, a seven-storey building acquired from the City of New York at the time of the acquisition of the Headquarters site, will become the United Nations Library, and will be adapted to house from 250,000 to 300,000 books. All floors except the 7th, which will remain the Headquarters of the Military Staff Committee, will be given over to library services. Extensive alterations, including changes in the building structure and the installation of air-conditioning, lighting and plumbing systems are being undertaken. Book stacks will be installed, and incorporated into these will be reinforcement steel struts to strengthen the existing floor slabs in the building in order to accommodate the additional floor loads required for the book stacks. A passageway will be constructed between the Secretariat building and the Library to provide easy access from the Secretariat building and the conference area.

36. A pneumatic tube system will be installed between the Secretariat building and the Library to provide efficient and rapid transportation of books and documents, as well as a new vertical chain conveyor for transporting books between floors of the library building.

III. NEW YORK CITY'S PART IN ESTABLISHING THE UNITED NATIONS PERMANENT HEADQUARTERS

37. While the original Headquarters Committee of the United Nations was considering several possible sites for the permanent headquarters, Mayor William O'Dwyer appointed a committee, of which Robert Moses was chairman, to draw up a plan for the Headquarters to be located at Flushing Meadow Park. The other members of this Committee, appointed in September 1946, were Winthrop W. Aldrich, James A. Burke, John W. Davis, Frederick H. Ecker, James A. Farley, James J. Lyons, Charles G. Meyer, Nelson A. Rockefeller, Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Thomas J. Watson and Grover A. Whalen.

38. A board of design, composed of distinguished engineers and architects, was appointed by this Committee to prepare a plan which called for the use of most of the park area formerly occupied by the World's Fair, and a generously landscaped setting for the United Nations buildings. In submitting this plan to the United Nations, Mayor O'Dwyer offered to donate the site with all of its existing improvements, to add others and to provide contiguous land without cost to the United Nations. He also assured the United Nations of full tax exemption and an international, extra-territorial status.

39. Meanwhile, Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr. made his generous offer of $US 8,500,000 for the purchase of most of the land between First Avenue and the East River from 42nd to 48th Streets. This, however, was contingent upon the co-operation of the City of New York. Certain parcels of land which could not be purchased had to be condemned and paid for by the City, and a number of other conditions met. Specifically, these included the closing of the blocks between 42nd and 47th Streets east of First Avenue, a grant of the exclusive rights for the waterfront and land under water opposite the United Nations site, and the transfer of the City playground north of 42nd Street. In addition, the City agreed to widen and reconstruct First Avenue, including a through-traffic tunnel, to widen and reconstruct 42nd and 47th Streets between First and Second Avenues as dignified approaches from the west, to provide additional zoning restrictions in the neighbourhood, to grant tax exemption, to transfer the City Housing Authority building to the United Nations at the actual cost of construction, and to grant an easement over Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive. Due to increased costs of construction, the total value of the New York City contributions is now estimated at $26,500,000. First estimates were in the neighbourhood of $23 million.

40. At the outset of the undertaking, the City Bureau of Real Estate took over the troublesome problem of tenant relocation, since construction could not begin until the site was cleared. In view of the critical housing shortage that existed at that time, this involved rehabilitation of old, abandoned buildings off the site. Business relocation included the transfer of important railroad and other water-front terminals to City land elsewhere, involving major readjustments in City services and co-ordination with the services of private utility companies.

41. In addition to its own work on the outskirts and on access and approaches to the Headquarters site, the City has done everything possible to co-operate with and to assist the United Nations in carrying on work within the site. As a result, policy questions have been quickly and amicably settled and the work has proceeded smoothly at all times.

IV. FINANCIAL REPORT

A. Budget

42. It will be recalled that when the preliminary plans of the Headquarters project were first submitted to the General Assembly in 1947 (A/311)⁴, cost estimates were $84,831,450. This figure was revised downward to a total of $65 million and a tentative budget was submitted in A/311/Add.1/Rev.1, dated 6 November 1947.

43. The present budget reflects decisions taken since 1947 regarding plans and construction contracts. It differs in form from that submitted in November 1947 only in a rearrangement of main headings. At the time the 1947 preliminary estimates were submitted, the type of construction contract to be awarded was not known. However, after plans were further developed and construction prices studied, it was deemed to be in the best interests of the United Nations to award a single contract covering complete construction of the Secretariat building, including lower-level facilities, and the foundations for all the buildings.

44. The budget for the planning, construction and furnishing of the permanent Headquarters, together with other expenditures necessary to the establishment of the permanent Headquarters, is as follows :

Summary of permanent Headquarters budget

	US dollars
Secretariat building and foundations	25,105,000
This includes all costs of the construction of the Secretariat office building, together with the foundations for all the other structures on the site.
Demolition and excavation	847,500
This includes total cost of demolishing all the structures on the site at the time of its acquisition, i.e. 318,500 US dollars And the excavation contract which provided for the major excavation required in preparation for construction, i.e. 529,000 US dollars
Tenant relocation	659,000
At the time of the acquisition of the site there were 51 families residing in two apartment houses near 48th Street, and the United Nations had the responsibility for assisting these people in finding new quarters. This item includes the rehabilitation of properties at 54th Street and Second Avenue, into which most of the residential tenants from the site moved. A substantial reduction in this amount will be realized when the property is sold and the proceeds of the sale transferred to the United Nations by the City of New York.
Manhattan office building	1,544,000
This item includes the cost of the acquisition and alteration of the Manhattan office building which, in 1947, was being constructed by the New York Housing Authority for its own use. In order to round out the site, the City agreed to transfer this building on a lease-purchase basis.
Landscaping	1,000,000
This includes paving and planting within the site.
	29,155,500

⁴ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Second Session, Supplement No. 8, p. 90.

	US dollars
Carry Over.....	29,155,500
Furniture and fixtures	1,000,000
This estimate contemplates the use of all available equipment at Lake Success and Flushing Meadow which can be adapted to the new buildings.
Relocation of Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive .	2,900,000
This item includes the cost of work done by the City, in co-operation with the United Nations, in relocating the Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive in order to provide more area for the United Nations and in order to provide the best possible access to the site from public streets.
Communications	860,000
This includes the cost of designing, acquiring and installing communications equipment for the simultaneous translation system, sound reinforcement system and special equipment. It also includes the rehabilitation and the adaptation of present equipment to the new Headquarters.
Administrative costs	649,000
This item includes salaries of administrative and clerical personnel, special consultants on legal and insurance matters.
Architectural design and planning	2,246,000
This includes salaries of personnel engaged in design research, drafting and related work, together with costs of architectural supplies.
Engineering and supervision	3,139,500
This includes engineering consultant fees, engineering drafting costs, testing and supervision of construction.
Title search relating to the acquisition of the site	20,000
This item includes special legal fees paid at the time of the acquisition of the site.
Meeting halls and covering for the drive ...	12,000,000
This item includes the cost of the construction contract for the Council Chambers and conference and committee rooms, including the restaurant area and the structure which extends the site over the Franklin D. Roosevelt Drive along the eastern side of the project.
South parking garage and alterations to the Interborough Rapid Transit vent	2,030,000
This includes the construction of about half the three-storey underground parking garage and the alterations necessary to the Interborough Rapid Transit ventilation structure which is located on the site and which remains the property of New York City. The cost of the south parking garage is 1,955,000 US dollars The cost of the alteration of the subway ventilation structure, which could not be moved, is estimated at 75,000 US dollars
General Assembly and north parking garage .	11,000,000
This includes the cost of the construction of the General Assembly auditorium and the northern portion of the three-storey underground parking garage.
TOTAL.....	65,000,000

45. It is estimated that since 1947, when the $65 million maximum project cost was approved, building and construction costs have risen approximately 11.5 per cent. In order to keep costs within the approved budget, it has therefore been necessary to make many readjustments, changes and substitutions. Less expensive finishing materials, for example, have had to be substituted, certain items omitted, the completion of some of the less urgently required facilities deferred, and reductions made in the amounts originally budgeted for furniture, landscaping and telecommunications.

B. Construction receipts and expenditures

(1) Schedule of receipts under the Loan Agreement with the United States Government

46. Under the procedure specified in the Loan Agreement with the United States Government, twelve requests for advances have been issued to date and funds received as follows :

41,141,794.05

Prior to the receipt of funds under the Loan Agreement, advances aggregating $2,961,023.21 were issued from the United Nations Working Capital Fund. This sum has been refunded out of the loan proceeds.

(2) Status of expenditures

47. On 31 July 1950, a total sum of $36,560,968.65 had been expended for permanent Headquarters construction and related purposes. This amount includes $1,244,830.76 for the purchase and alteration of the Manhattan office building. The final instalment of $298,800.00 for the purchase of the Manhattan building will become due to the City of New York on 1 July 1951, according to the terms of a lease-purchase agreement under which the building was acquired by the United Nations.

A brief summary of expenditures to 31 July 1950 follows :

	US dollars

48. The balance of funds available under the Loan Agreement, $23,858,205.95, will be required to complete construction. Repayments of the loan are due in instalments over a period of thirty years, beginning with a payment of $1 million on 1 July 1951.

C. Procedures and controls

49. The principal officers of the Headquarters Planning Office are the Director of Planning, the Deputy Director of Planning, the Co-ordinator of Construction, the Assistant Co-ordinator of Construction, the Executive Officer, the Comptroller and the representative of the Legal Department.

50. Throughout the administration of the planning and construction programme, adequate financial controls and safeguards have been enforced. Separate budgetary and expenditure accounting records are maintained by the Headquarters Planning Office, which is a unit in the Department of Administrative and Financial Services. Generally speaking, the procedures followed by the Bureau of Finance with regard to the obligating and expending of funds have been followed by the Headquarters Planning Office. All contracts are subject to review and approval by the representative of the Legal Department and by the Comptroller of the Headquarters Planning Office. Accounts and records are examined regularly by the Inspection Service of the Secretariat and by the Board of Auditors.

51. In accordance with the provisions of the Loan Agreement with the Government of the United States (U.S. Public Law 903, approved 11 August 1948) under which the sum of $65 million has been made available for the construction of the Headquarters, requisitions for funds are drawn as needed. These requisitions are submitted to the United States Mission to the United Nations and carry the signatures and certification of duly authorized officers of the United Nations. Advances are deposited into two accounts, the United Nations No. 3 and No. 4 accounts in the Chase National Bank of New York City. These accounts were opened exclusively for the Headquarters construction project. The No. 3 account contains funds for engineering, planning, design and administrative purposes; the No. 4 account has been opened in accordance with agreements with the prime contractor, Fuller-Turner-Walsh-Slattey, Inc., and withdrawals from this account are limited to payments to and for the account of this company.

52. All expenditures of the construction loan funds are processed by the Comptroller's office of the Headquarters Planning Office. A pre-audit is made of every proposed disbursement to determine the propriety of the item as a charge in accordance with the terms of contracts, purchase orders or other obligatory documents. In the case of charges relating to the building construction contracts, a further check on the correctness of the item is furnished through inspection and approval by qualified engineers and inspectors attached to the Headquarters Planning Office staff.

53. By special legislation of the City of New York, purchases of materials, supplies and services for the permanent Headquarters are exempt from the city sales and compensating use tax and, under the regulations of the City governing the application of this exemption, the United Nations is required to make payments for materials, supplies and services direct to vendors. This procedure applies to all contracts and sub-contracts and provides a direct means of assurance that the United Nations receives the full benefit of all tax savings to which it is entitled.

54. All major architectural and engineering service contracts are controlled by periodic audits of the various firms by the Headquarters Planning Office.

55. Monthly requisitions for progress payments to the prime contractor are examined independently by inspectors and auditors under the supervision of the Co-ordinator of Construction and the Comptroller. All recommendations and approvals for payments are certified by either the Director of Planning, the Deputy Director of Planning, or the Executive Officer.

56. All cheques drawn on funds deposited in the No. 3 and No. 4 accounts require the signatures of two authorized officers, the Comptroller or his duly authorized representative, and the Director of Planning or his duly authorized representative.

57. The Loan Agreement with the United States Government itself imposes an element of control over the use of the funds by prescribing within its terms :

- (a) The general purposes for which the funds may be used,
- (b) Time limits within which funds obtained under each request must be disbursed.

V. PROCUREMENT CONSIDERATIONS

58. A primary consideration in the planning and construction of the Headquarters project from its beginning early in 1947 has been the urgent need to provide suitable permanent accommodation for the various organs of the United Nations, thus increasing the efficiency of the work of the Organization. Of equal importance has been the necessity for keeping expenditures within the fixed budget of $65 million, set in 1947 at a time when the costs of construction, materials and labour were rising.

59. Quality, price and delivery guarantees have been of first importance in all procurement, and a policy of competition between qualified contractors and suppliers has been consistently followed; competition has as a rule been keen, and the prestige of the United Nations Headquarters has been attractive to contractors and suppliers.

60. At the fourth session of the General Assembly, during the discussion of the Secretary-General's report on the Headquarters (A/1009)⁵, attention was drawn to the subject of world-wide procurement. In accordance with wishes expressed at that time, efforts have been made to develop a more completely international procurement programme both for day-to-day operations and in the establishment of the permanent Headquarters. Letters of inquiry were sent to the governments of all Member States, accompanied by lists of items which those States might be able to supply. Representatives of the Secretary-General have visited many countries to investigate possible sources of supply and to discuss with manufacturers and suppliers both the immediate and the long-range needs of the Organization. As a result of careful consideration, certain materials can be more widely procured, particularly such items as furnishings, furniture, electronics equipment, floor coverings, special glass, marble and special interior finishes. Indeed, considerable purchases have already been made in 1950 and it is thought that about 75 per cent of all interior furnishings will come from outside the United States.

VI. ART AND DECORATION

A. Board of Art Advisers

61. Early in 1950 the Secretary-General decided, after consultation with members of the Headquarters Advisory Committee, that the appointment of a Board of Art Advisers was an appropriate step in the formulation of a programme which would result in significant artistic treatment of the buildings and grounds consistent with the architecture and over-all site plan. The Board was appointed in March, and consists of Mr. Wallace K. Harrison (United States of America), Chairman, Mr. Jacques Carlu (France), Mr. Miguel Covarrubias (Mexico) and Mr. Howard Robertson (United Kingdom).

62. The terms of reference of the Board of Art Advisers are as follows:

(a) To assist the Secretary-General in establishing an appropriate policy for guidance on the type of decor required for the United Nations permanent Headquarters site and buildings, ensuring that all art work in the Headquarters buildings and on the site is in keeping with the architectural design.

(b) To study and evaluate all offers, proposals and donations of works of art from governments, organizations and individuals, and to advise the Secretary-General regarding acceptance or rejection of specific offers.

(c) To propose artists who may be appointed to execute sculpture, murals and other works of art at appropriate locations incorporated in the architectural plans.

B. Gifts

63. Many offers of gifts have been received from governments, organizations of various kinds, commercial concerns and individuals. The Secretary-General has, therefore, requested the Board of Art Advisers to consider the best way of dealing with these offers, and to make recommendations. At its first meeting, the Board decided that it was premature and unnecessary to make specific recommendations on most of the miscellaneous offers already received. However, the Board reached two important conclusions: first, that no gifts should be accepted which could be interpreted as having commercial significance or advertising value to the donor; second, that portraits of national and international figures might be acceptable, subject to the provision that they should form part of a non-permanent exhibition and that they should be considered as works of art, regardless of the personalities involved.

64. Gifts from the governments of Member States for the Headquarters buildings and grounds would be welcomed, and the Secretary-General addressed a letter on this subject in April 1950 to all Members, attaching a list of suggestions for the guidance of those governments interested in making donations which would be representative of the culture of their countries. Many representatives have since made informal inquiries regarding various decorative schemes and plans, as well as the dimensions of rooms and spaces suitable for wall and floor coverings, furnishings and art objects. It would be advantageous if firm offers could be received within the next few months. In this connexion it may be stated, inter alia, that the Governments of Norway, Sweden and Denmark have indicated their intention of supplying some of the interior furnishings, as well as the interior design, for the three Council Chambers. Architects and artists of Norway are working on the Security Council Chamber plans; designers in Sweden are concerned with the Economic and Social Council Chamber decorations, while a Danish architect is preparing a scheme for the Trusteeship Council Chamber. Recently the Chairman and two members of the Board of Art Advisers visited Oslo, Stockholm and Copenhagen for consultations relating to these plans.

65. Another significant offer, which was suggested informally by the Mayor and the Co-ordinator of Construction of the City of New York, was for a decorative fence and memorial gateway for the site, to be presented by the people of the City of New York. The acceptance of such a gift was agreed to in principle by members of the Headquarters Advisory Committee, and a preliminary design was approved by the Board of Art Advisers at their June meeting.

66. Some non-governmental organizations have expressed interest in donating items for the embellishment of the site, including a fountain, trees, and international gardens.

VII. TRANSFER FROM LAKE SUCCESS AND FLUSHING TO MANHATTAN

67. As of 1 October 1950, almost 1,000 members of the Secretariat will have moved to their new offices in the Secretariat building at the permanent Headquarters; they are drawn largely from the Departments of Economic Affairs, Social Affairs, and Administrative and Financial Services, together with the necessary service personnel from the Department of Conference and General Services. It is at present planned to vacate the premises at Lake Success as soon as practicable after the conclusion of the fifth session of the General Assembly, the main objective being to centralize all activities in Manhattan at the earliest possible date.

VIII. HEADQUARTERS ADVISORY COMMITTEE

68. Various phases of the problems connected with the Headquarters project have been discussed many times throughout the year with members of the Headquarters Advisory Committee. While the Committee has held only one formal meeting this year, the advice of members has been requested freely on matters of policy whenever important decisions had to be made. The Secretary-General wishes to express his sincere thanks for the steadfast assistance and constant advice given to him by the Committee and it is his hope that the Committee will be continued in the future.

IX. DRAFT RESOLUTION PROPOSED FOR ADOPTION BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

69. The Secretary-General has the honour to submit for the consideration of the General Assembly at its fifth regular session the following draft resolution :

HEADQUARTERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the permanent Headquarters of the United Nations;

2. Decides that the Headquarters Advisory Committee, established by General Assembly resolution 182 (II) of 20 November 1947, shall be continued with the existing membership;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its sixth regular session on the progress of construction of the Headquarters.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[6 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 264th meeting held on 14 November 1950, considered the progress report on the permanent Headquarters of the United Nations (A/1392/Rev.1) submitted by the Secretary-General, pursuant to paragraph 3 of General Assembly resolution 350 (IV).

2. Prior to discussion of the progress report, the Committee was informed by the Assistant Secretary-General in charge of Administrative and Financial Services, on behalf of the Secretary-General, that it would be difficult to complete the construction and equipment of the Headquarters, including alterations to the present Manhattan office building to make it suitable as a library within the $65 million loan authorization. In addition to the cost of Library alterations, for which a provision of $500,000 under section 19 of the budget had been requested, it had been found necessary, in order to accommodate the Secretariat of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, the Technical Assistance Administration and the liaison staffs of certain specialized agencies, to complete, at a cost of approximately $360,000, three of the five floors in the Secretariat building which it had been intended to leave unfinished. These circumstances, and the fact that costs had risen so sharply since 1947 when the $65 million maximum project cost had been approved, made it impossible to guarantee that total expenditure would not ultimately somewhat exceed this maximum, although it was anticipated that such additional funds as might be needed would be relatively small. While every effort would be made to complete the project within the original provision, the exact total cost of the work which was due to be completed before 1953 could not be forecast at this time, and since part of the funds received under the $65 million loan were still available, the Secretary-General had decided not to proceed with any request for immediate supplementary appropriations, but to suggest that action by the General Assembly at its fifth session should be limited to adoption of the following draft resolution :

" The General Assembly

" 1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the permanent Headquarters of the United Nations;

" 2. Decides that the Headquarters Advisory Committee, established by General Assembly resolution 182 (II) of 20 November 1947, shall be continued with the existing membership;

“ 3. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its sixth regular session on the progress of construction of the Headquarters.”

3. Delegations which, during the Committee's consideration of the 1951 budget estimates, had questioned the propriety of including a provision under section 19 for library construction purposes, expressed their approval of the procedure suggested by the Secretary-General.

4. The representative of Cuba recalled that the Headquarters plans drawn up in 1947 provided for a building at the northern end of the site to house delegation offices, specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations. The Headquarters Advisory Committee had discussed the construction of such a building but, in the absence of instructions from the General Assembly, had made no recommendation. In view of the interest shown by a majority of the delegations in maintaining permanent offices in New York, the Cuban representative proposed that the Secretary-General, in addition to reporting on the progress of construction of the Headquarters, should also be requested to submit to the sixth regular session of the General Assembly “ definite plans and methods of financing the construction of a delegation building”. In order to make it clear that such a request was not intended to prejudice the final decision of the General Assembly or to involve any financial commitment, the representative of Canada proposed, and the Cuban representative agreed, that the words “ definite plans” should be replaced by the words “ tentative plans”. Such a change, moreover, recognized the fact that due to cost increases and unforeseen contingencies, initial plans had frequently to be considerably modified. It was indicated, on behalf of the Secretary-General, that acceptance of the Cuban amendment to the Secretary-General's draft resolution would not involve additional budgetary provision. The amendment was then adopted by 26 votes to none, with 17 abstentions, following which the Secretary-General's draft resolution, as amended, was adopted unanimously.

5. It was the understanding of the Fifth Committee that these votes did not in any way bind the General Assembly or prejudice its ultimate decision. They should not, therefore, be considered as a first step towards the construction of a delegation building, but simply as a formal request to the Secretary-General for information and suggestions, on the basis of which the matter might be more fully considered by the General Assembly at its next regular session.

6. Information supplementing that contained in the Secretary-General's report was given by the Director of Headquarters Planning, in response to questions put to him by a number of delegations, concerning working facilities for delegations in the Secretariat building or conference area; seating arrangements in the General Assembly Hall; restaurant and cafeteria capacity; garage facilities and arrangements; and procurement policy with respect to non-United States purchases. The Committee was further informed that the total construction programme was approximately two-thirds completed. The Secretariat building was in process of completion; all necessary contracts had been placed for the construction of the conference area and the General Assembly building, and approximately three-quarters of the materials required for the latter project had been purchased. Preliminary plans for a delegation building already existed and it would not be difficult to elaborate them to such a point as to enable an estimate of construction costs to be established.

7. Consequent on the above considerations, the Fifth Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

HEADQUARTERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General on the permanent Headquarters of the United Nations (A/1342/Rev.1);

2. Decides that the Headquarters Advisory Committee, established by General Assembly resolution 182 (II) of 20 November 1947, shall be continued with the existing membership;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to report to the General Assembly at its sixth session on the progress of construction of the Headquarters and to submit tentative plans and methods of financing the construction of a delegation building.

Report of the Board of Auditors on the accounts of the United Nations for the financial year ended 31 December 1949 : note by the Secretary-General

[27 September 1950]

1. The Secretary-General has examined the report of the Board of Auditors to the General Assembly on the audit of the accounts of the United Nations for the year ended 31 December 1949 (A/1256),¹ and makes the following comments on the various matters referred to therein :

7. *Overtime pay*²

2. The Board points out that overtime pay amounting to $US254,244 was compensated in cash, although the administrative staff rules contemplate that, whenever practicable, settlement should be by grant of compensatory leave. The greater portion of the stated amount represents overtime pay earned during the General Assembly period when, as a result of the sustained workload, it is not possible to grant compensatory leave within the limited time (i. e. the current or succeeding period) stipulated in the rules. Nevertheless, efforts will continue to be made to restrict settlement in cash to the minimum, and consideration will be given to a change in the rules to provide for extension of the time during which settlement by way of compensatory leave can be made.

8. Exceptional payments to staff members

3. It is the normal practice to record payments which are a concession to the recipient as ex gratia within the provisions of financial regulation 26 when it is clearly established that no legal liability exists.

4. Exceptional payments which were not dealt with in this way would generally be "marginal" cases where it could not be absolutely determined that no legal liability existed. It is probable that cases of this nature will be largely eliminated with the establishment of the more precise rules covering the social security scheme for staff members.

16-20. Expenditure in excess of appropriations

5. The Board draws attention to the fact that obligations incurred under section 27 of the budget (The International Court of Justice—Salaries and expenses of members of the Court) exceed the appropriation by $8,349.29. The report sets forth in detail the circumstances leading to this over-obligation, which is closely related to the matter of payments to members of the Court, dealt with in paragraphs 11 to 15 of the Board's report.

6. According to General Assembly resolution 252 B (III) on the Working Capital Fund, provision is required to be made in the budget estimates to reimburse the Working Capital Fund for advances used to meet unforeseen expenses. No request for a supplemental appropriation with respect to the expenses for experts for the Corfu Channel case, originally met from the Working Capital Fund, was received from the Court. The Secretary-General did not question this, as he assumed that the devaluation of the florin in September 1949 would result in a sufficient balance, after paying the salaries of the members of the Court in the amounts fixed in General Assembly resolutions 19 (I) and 85 (I), to cover the expenses of the Corfu case.

7. When the decision of the President of the Court, to pay members of the Court salaries and allowances in the amounts fixed in the budget for 1949, became known to the Secretary-General, he requested the concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to a transfer of funds, in accordance with the appropriation resolution (resolution 356 (IV)). The Advisory Committee did not concur.

21. Assessments on Members

8. The report observes that while Members' contributions for 1949 were computed in accordance with financial regulation 17, no deduction was made in respect of savings effected in 1948 in liquidating prior obligations; the Board then suggests that further consideration be given to financial regulation 17 in order to provide that estimated lapsings in appropriations at the close of the year should be taken into account in computing contributions, and points out that if this had been permissible the assessments on Members would have been approximately $1,352,000 less. It is, however, to be noted that in making assessments for the year 1950, credit was given to Members on account of estimated saving in liquidating prior years' obligations, and also as a result of supplementary estimates which involved a reduction in the original assessments. As a result, the net amount of surplus as of 31 December 1949 not yet applied against contributions is only $784,164.92.

22. Miscellaneous income

9. The variations between the detailed estimates of income and actual receipts are explained in paragraph 6 of the financial report. The Board's comments in paragraph 22 lead to the suggestion that supplementary estimates need not provide for any adjusted estimate of income. There would appear to be no objection to adopting the method proposed, and accordingly to take into account actual income at as late a date in the year as possible.

25. Provision of services to specialized agencies

10. The problem of establishing scales of charges for services rendered to other agencies which will be acceptable to the agencies and still afford adequate reimbursement to the United Nations has proved difficult to solve, but negotiations are continuing. It is because of the difficulties in arriving at agreements on acceptable scales of charges that services tend to be duplicated by separate agencies in Geneva. This quesdeal of study has already been given to various aspects of the problem, both in the Committees and at the administrative level.

Report of the Fifth Committee

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting held on 26 September 1950, the Fifth Committee considered, at its 237th meeting held on 2 October 1950, the financial report and accounts of the United Nations for the financial year ended 31 December 1949 and the report thereon of the Board of Auditors (A/1256). The Committee also had before it the observations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions as set forth in its second report for 1950 (A/1312, par. 311 to 319) ³ and a note by the Secretary-General (A/1398), both pertaining to the report of the Board of Auditors.

2. The Fifth Committee took note of the fact that, with regard to a number of points raised in the report of the Board of Auditors, corrective action had been taken by the Secretary-General. It noted also the assurance given on his behalf that, in connexion with the provision of services to specialized agencies at the Geneva Office of the United Nations, efforts would be continued, in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and with the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination, to eliminate duplication of services on the basis of the proposals advanced by the Board of Auditors. In response to questions raised by a number of delegations, certain additional information was furnished to the Committee in the course of the discussion by the Chairman of the Board of Auditors, the Chairman of the Advisory Committee and the Assistant Secretary-General in charge of Administrative and Financial Services. It was the sense of the Committee as a whole that appreciation should be recorded of the manner in which the auditors had consistently discharged their important responsibilities under the chairmanship of Mr. Watson Sellar of Canada.

3. In the light of the suggestions and observations made during the discussion, the Fifth Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

UNITED NATIONS FINANCIAL REPORT AND ACCOUNTS FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1949, AND REPORT OF THE BOARD OF AUDITORS

The General Assembly

1. Accepts the financial report and accounts of the United Nations for the financial year ended 31 December 1949, and the certificate of the Board of Auditors;

2. Concurs in the observations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions with respect to the report of the Board of Auditors.

(b) United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, for the financial year ended 31 December 1949

DOCUMENT A/1336

Note by the Secretary-General

[24 August 1950]

1. The General Assembly, on 11 December 1946, adopted resolution 57 (I), paragraph 6 of which provides that the Secretary-General shall submit to the General Assembly an annual audit of the accounts of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

2. The audit of the accounts of the Fund for the year ended 31 December 1949 was carried out by the Board of Auditors of the United Nations. The financial report and statements of the Fund and the report of the Board of Auditors are submitted to the General Assembly herewith as annexes to the present document.

3. These reports were submitted to the Committee on Administrative Budget of the Fund, which reported thereon (E/ICEF/R.60/Add.1) to the Executive Board of the Fund. In respect of the financial report, the Committee on Administrative Budget "drew attention to the low ratio of UNICEF administrative costs, since the beginning of operations, to total relief expenditures. From the inception of UNICEF in December 1946 to 31 December 1949, expenditures for administration amounted to $US4,114,767.72 net, or 4.32 per cent of the funds expended or committed for relief operations ($95,206,880.16). The Committee pointed out that while the ratio had been even lower at the end of 1948, the Administration had advised the Executive Board that, with the expansion of the geographic areas covered by the Fund and the increase in UNICEF supplies to country medical programmes, it could be expected that the cost of procurement, finance, accounting and general administrative supervision would increase over earlier periods".

4. In relation to the report of the Board of Auditors, the Committee made the following comment :

"The report of the Administration on the action taken concerning recommendations made by the Board of Auditors was studied in detail. The Committee noted that the Administration had undertaken to clarify and adjust a number of problems raised by the auditors. The Committee discussed the question of indemnities and ex gratia payments referred to by the auditors in paragraph 17 of their report. The Committee suggested that in those cases in which (United Nations Provisional) Financial Regulation 26 is applicable, a report might be made to the Committee on Administrative Budget and the Executive Board..."

5. As indicated in its report to the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council (E/1737),⁴ the Executive Board of UNICEF approved the recommendations of the Committee on Administrative Budget as contained in the Committee's report, taking note of the financial report and accounts and the report of the Board of Auditors.

6. In accordance with established practice, the report of the Board of Auditors on the accounts of the Fund has also been submitted to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, which will submit to the General Assembly any observations which it has to make on the report.

ANNEX I

FINANCIAL REPORT OF THE THIRD FINANCIAL PERIOD ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1949

I. The accounts of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund for the third financial period, which ended on 31 December 1949, are presented herewith, including, in accordance with the provisions of the financial rules of the Fund, the following statements :

1. Statement of assets and liabilities.
2. Statement of income and expenditure.
3. Statement of obligations incurred : operational services.
4. Statement of obligations incurred : administrative costs.
5. Schedule " A "—contributions from governments.
6. Schedule " B "—UNICEF share in campaigns of United Nations Appeal for Children.
7. Schedule " C "—contributions from United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.
8. Schedule " D "—supplies distributed.

II. The financial report presents the balance sheet of the Fund as at 31 December 1949. It does not reflect programme allocations made by the Executive Board which, as at 31 December 1949, totalled over $141,000,000, i. e., exceeded by about $11 million the contributions of $130,123,928.60 actually received by UNICEF as at that date. The excess of allocations was programmed against additional contributions pledged by governments, but not transferred to UNICEF as at 31 December 1949. The potential financial resources of the Fund, and the allocation of these resources to specific programmes, are treated in reports of the Executive Director to the Programme Committee and to the Executive Board of UNICEF. By April 1950, the total of contributions and pledges to UNICEF since the inception of the Fund amounted to about $148,300,000, of which $138,426,248.79 were actually received. The Executive Board made further programme allocations in March 1950, and the total of allocations amounts now to over $145 million.

III. The statement of assets and liabilities shows funds with banks and the United Nations totalling $33,543,816.36. These funds, as explained in paragraph II above, are fully committed under programme allocations made by the Executive Board. Investments under the control of the United Nations were short-term US Treasury bills and certificates extended from month to month. Income from investments amounted to $411,727.87 per 31 December 1949, as per the statement of income and expenditure. Funds in foreign currency are shown in dollar equivalent according to rates of exchange current per 31 December 1949 as quoted by the International Monetary Fund.

IV. Relief operations

Funds expended and committed on relief operations since the inception of UNICEF amount to $95,206,880.16 as per the following computation :

ANNEX II

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF AUDITORS TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON THE AUDIT OF THE 1949 ACCOUNTS OF THE UNITED NATIONS INTERNATIONAL CHILDREN'S EMERGENCY FUND

1. The General Assembly, by resolution 57 (I) of 11 December 1946, established an International Children's Emergency Fund to which would be credited any assets made available by UNRRA and any voluntary contributions by governments, voluntary agencies or individuals. In accordance with the resolution, the Fund is administered by an Executive Director, who is appointed by the Secretary-General, and it is his duty to carry out policies established by the Executive Board named by the resolution. The Executive Board is responsible for the "determination of programmes and allocation of funds", subject to such principles as may be laid down by the Economic and Social Council and its Social Commission. The Secretary-General is required to submit annually to the General Assembly an audit of the accounts of the Fund.

2. Examinations of the 1949 accounts of the Fund were made at New York Headquarters and the Paris Office, to the extent considered necessary, by officers of the Contralor General de Colombia. The following statements were submitted by the Executive Director for audit certification:

(a) Statement of assets and liabilities as at 31 December 1949;

(b) Statement of income and expenditure for the period from inception to 31 December 1949;

(c) Statement of obligations incurred (operational services) for the year ended 31 December 1949;

(d) Statement of obligations incurred (administrative costs) for the year ended 31 December 1949.

Certificates were given by the Board of Auditors subject to the observations in this report.

3. In accordance with the provisions of General Assembly resolution 347 (IV), the Board is drawing to the attention of the Executive Director various matters relating to internal audit and control.

4. The financial statements indicate that, as at 31 December 1949, the resources of the Fund approximated $51,600,000, of which over $33,500,000 was held in cash or short-term securities. The balance was represented mainly by $9,700,000 in deposits with suppliers and inventories of commodities totalling $11,100,000 (less unliquidated obligations of $3 million). The financial statements for 1948 recorded $58,500,000 as the principal of the Fund. Therefore, in a comparison, there is an apparent reduction of $6,900,000 in resources during the year. This was due to the substantially increased volume of distributions by the Fund during the year, exceeding the income recorded for the year.

5. However, in 1948, various holdings in non-convertible currencies were not taken into calculation in computing the principal of the Fund for purposes of financial statements. Instead, they were listed at nominal values of $1, whereas at 31 December 1948 such currencies had a value of about $7,100,000, if calculated at the then ruling rates of exchange applicable to convertible currencies. During 1949, the practice was adopted of recording all currencies held by the Fund at ruling rates. For a true comparison between 1948 and 1949, it is therefore necessary to take into calculation the $7,100,000 above mentioned. Using this formula, the principal of the Fund as at 31 December 1948 was approximately $65,600,000. When this is compared with $51,600,000 at the end of 1949, it will be observed that the real over-all reduction in the year approximated $14 million.

INCOME

6. Stated in round figures, income received during 1949 was $39,900,000, as compared with $59,000,000 in 1948, or a decrease of $19,100,000. Governments contributed approximately $26,300,000, of which about $18,150,000 was received from the Government of the United States of America. It is the practice to record contributions only when the amounts are actually received, and no exception is made in the case of contributions by the United States, notwithstanding its "matching" undertaking to pay $72 for every $28 contributed by other governments. As at 31 December 1949, contributions received from other countries to the amount of $3,700,000 had not been matched by the United States, and the proportionate amount of $9,500,000 due from that country was not entered as an asset, as it might have been, for purposes of the year-end financial statements. A list of contributions by all governments, from the Fund's inception to 31 December 1949, is given as schedule "A" to the statement of income and expenditure.

7. During 1949, the programme Aide suisse à l'Europe succeeded the programme Don suisse. By a joint agreement between the authorities involved and the International Committee of the Red Cross, credits in various forms were made available to the Fund. These were recorded in the 1949 accounts at an estimated value of $407,000, but early in 1950 it was established that the actual value was $523,680. The real amount is, therefore, $116,680 greater than is reflected in the financial statements.

8. The income credit from UNRRA assets was about $8,075,000. To a considerable extent, this credit resulted from the conversion (in the books of account) into dollars of approximately £ 1,600,000 non-convertible sterling and other non-convertible currencies which had actually been transferred from UNRRA in previous years. Among other transfers from UNRRA were outstanding marine claims, the settlement of which was entrusted, by the Secretary-General, to five firms of admiralty attorneys specializing in that branch of the law. The practice is to credit income with net proceeds, as realized. Almost $300,000 has been realized by the Fund to 31 December 1949 from this source. Neither the United Nations nor UNICEF records the estimated realizable value of the remaining claims receivable in financial statements, but the Fund maintains suitable records of the claims.

9. Schedule "B" to the statement of income and expenditure lists the UNICEF share in United Nations Appeal for Children campaigns, giving $4,917,000 as the income for 1949. This includes the conversion into United States dollars of moneys received in previous years but, in the past, recorded at nominal value because of non-convertible stipulations.

10. General Assembly resolution 57 (I) limits expenditures to those programmes and allocations of funds which are established by an Executive Board composed of representatives of Members nations. In other words, no executive discretion is enjoyed with respect to the application of income. During the 1949 audit, a transaction was noted which the Board regards as in conflict with the spirit of the resolution of the General Assembly. In the course of carrying out an approved programme in Finland, a supplementary health programme was added at a cost of $3,521. However, instead of an allocation of funds being sought from the Executive Board, the cost was defrayed by applying money resulting from sales of spoiled fish in Finland. In the financial statements, miscellaneous income is stated at the net amount after deducting $3,531, and consequently miscellaneous income is understated by that amount. The amount involved is not large but, from the viewpoint of principle, the action taken has importance because the practice, if tolerated, can result in the Executive Board being by-passed.

EXPENDITURE

11. In summary form, a comparison of expenditures in 1949 with those of the previous year is :

	1949	1948
	US $
Supplies distributed	42,457,000	28,026,000
Participation in special relief programmes .	1,917,000	1,921,000
Administrative costs	2,283,000	1,445,000
Operational services	93,000	62,000
Difference in exchange	108,000	26,000
	46,858,000	31,480,000

12. Supplies distributed. To the end of 1948 distributions in Middle East areas approximated $355,000; in 1949, the value was about $7,794,000. The following is a listing of countries outside the Middle East which received aid in excess of $1 million in 1949, together with the corresponding value of aid to the end of 1948 :

	1949	1948
	US $
Austria	1,930,000	2,315,000
Bulgaria	2,225,000	1,440,000
China	1,280,000	370,000
Czechoslovakia	2,455,000	1,505,000
Greece	3,725,000	1,850,000
Hungary	1,095,000	915,000
Italy	7,495,000	4,635,000
Poland	4,415,000	7,095,000
Romania	4,405,000	2,625,000
Yugoslavia	3,710,000	3,490,000

13. Resolution 57 (I) of the General Assembly governing the operations of the Fund stipulates that :

"The Fund shall not engage in activity in any country except in consultation with, and with the consent of, the Government concerned."

During the year, the Government of Hungary requested that the Fund's mission be withdrawn, and activities in that country ceased in August. The last warehouse report was for the period to 31 July 1949, when the commodities on hand represented $325,000. For purposes of financial statements, it has been assumed that the commodities were distributed during the financial year. The Government of Romania also requested that the Fund's mission be closed, and effect was given to the request in December. The last report observed in the audit, with respect to commodities in warehouses in that country, was that for the period ended 31 October 1949. At that time, the value was $1,046,000. As in the case of Hungary, it was assumed, for accounting purposes, that the supplies were distributed before 31 December. The agreements with both countries provide that :

"The Government will furnish the Fund with such records, reports and information as to the operations of the approved plan as the Fund may find necessary to the discharge of its responsibilities."

As final warehouse reports were not received from either Hungary or Romania, distribution figures set out in the financial statements are subject to this qualification.

14. Towards the close of the year, changes in mission personnel and in accounting practices were taking place in Yugoslavia. As a result, the last warehouse report on file when the accounts were closed for the year was that for the period ended 30 November, and the financial statements do not reflect the value of commodities distributed in December.

15. Administrative costs. Strictly regarded from the accounting viewpoint, the amount of $2,282,559 shown for administrative costs in the statement of income and expenditure is under-stated by $226,864, and miscellaneous income is understated by an equivalent amount. This resulted when the original salary allotments, which had been approved by the Committee on Administrative Budget on a "net salary basis", were not subsequently revised to give effect to the staff assessment plan introduced as from 1 January 1949, as a result of resolution 239 (III) of the General Assembly adopted during the first part of the third session. Although this procedure varied from that followed by the United Nations, it does not affect the actual administrative costs of the Fund.

16. The agreement with the Government of China provides that :

"The Government will, in agreement with the Fund, make arrangements for and sustain the cost of, expenses incurred in the currency of China, with respect to the housing, subsistence and travel of the officers to be provided by the Fund... and the establishment, maintaining and equipping of the office to be used for the authorized activities of the officers and office above mentioned."

In the audit it was observed that expenses to a net total¹ of $65,520 had been borne by the Fund in 1949 for services which were, by the agreement, to be provided by the Government of China without cost to the Fund.

17. Some exceptional payments to staff members were noted. The Board recognizes that the nature of the Fund's activities may require that consideration be sometimes given to making exceptional payments: nevertheless, when such payments are made to staff members, a risk is taken that the precedents may later be relied upon in less worthy circumstances. It is suggested that when it is decided to make a payment which is, in fact, a concession to the recipient, the payment should be listed as one made by relying on provisional financial regulation 26, which reads :

"The Secretary-General may make such ex gratia payments as he deems to be necessary in the interests of the United Nations, provided that a statement of such payments shall be submitted to the General Assembly with the annual accounts."

18. Operational services. The practice is to draw a budgetary distinction between administrative costs, which totalled $2,283,000, and those for operational services, which amounted to $93,000. A review of items listed under the latter heading indicates that, as a rule, they are similar to charges to administrative costs. The items might be combined.

19. Difference in exchange. Due to the fact that, in 1949, numerous countries devalued their currencies in relation to the United States dollar (the currency in which the accounts of the Fund are stated) the Fund adjusted the value of its non-dollar monetary assets as at 31 December 1949 in this manner :

(a) To the extent that deposits in local currencies were already earmarked to discharge contracts in effect as of September 1949, the conversion into dollars was at the rate of exchange applicable prior to devaluation, and

(b) The remaining free balances were valued by use of the new rates which became effective after devaluation.

The accounting effect was that $107,764 was charged to expenditure as "difference in exchange".

UNVOUCHED EXPENDITURES

20. Resolution 347 (IV) requires that the Board of Auditors draw attention to "expenditures not properly substantiated". It was not possible, during examinations at the Paris office, to scrutinize vouchers relating to expenditures of certain missions. The amounts involved are :

Czechoslovakian mission, $56,109; Middle East Areas mission, $137,892; German missions, $49,419; and unstated small amounts in connexion with the mission in Austria and the Trieste post office. Contrary to the usual procedure, vouchers had been retained by the missions, instead of being forwarded monthly to the Paris office. The Board was informed that the practice has been that vouchers in these missions are examined by an internal auditor of the Fund.

21. With respect to a payment of $970 made by the Paris office, no supporting documentation was produced, but it was noted that the action taken was ratified at a later date, in writing, by the Executive Director. The transaction involved an arrangement for photographic services which was cancelled.

LOSSES OF SUPPLIES

22. Health authorities of each country in which distributions are made have the power to condemn food, if they are of the opinion that it is unfit for human consumption. The records indicate that a considerable quantity of skim milk was declared unfit to be issued to children by the authorities of one country, partly as a result of stocks in storage being damaged by a flash flood and partly because of souring and moulding when containers were left open in various distributing centres. An amount of approximately $30,000 was credited to the programme of the country concerned. The spoiled milk was sold for baking purposes, and the amount allowed as a credit to the country's programme was more than recovered.

23. Health officers of another country declared a quantity of horsemeat, valued at about $17,000, as being unfit for human consumption. Tests by officers of the Fund established that a portion of the food had, during the canning process, come into contact with oil. However, as bacteriological tests showed no spoilage, and as the balance of the shipment was readily consumed in another country, no claim was made against the vendor, but an allowance of half the amount was credited to the programme of the country concerned.

CONTROL OVER EXPENDITURES

24. Obligations were incurred from time to time under a few heads of expenditure beyond the amounts which had been authorized by the Committee on Administrative Budget. The over-obligated balances at the year-end were regularized by further authorizations granted after the close of the year. The view of the Board of Auditors remains the same as expressed in its 1948 report (A/963, annex II, para. 13)⁶.

"Although the year-end statements of obligations incurred do not record any allotment as having been over-spent, the allotment system, as an expenditure control safeguard, could not, and did not, function efficiently because of long delays in fixing and recording budgetary sums."

It was noted that the actual over-all expenditures on administration were approximately 11.5 per cent less than had been authorized to be spent up to the time the authorizations were adjusted to actual expenditures subsequent to the close of the year.

⁶ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourth Session, Fifth Committee, Annex, vol. I, p. 137.

INSURANCE ON COMMODITIES

25. The Board suggests that consideration be given to making budgetary provision for the cost of self-insuring commodities in transit and in warehouses overseas. Using New York Headquarters' transactions, the situation may be illustrated by stating that a total of approximately $485,000 has been paid out in insurance premiums on commodities, while recoveries on claims have approximated $150,000. In the year under review, premiums for marine insurance amounted to $109,000, for war risk insurance about $49,000, and for insurance on commodities warehoused $19,000—a total of about $177,000. In view of the insurance experience to date and the fact that risks are widely distributed, the establishment of a self-insurance scheme might be advantageous, and an amount equivalent to premium costs might be set aside to provide a special fund for that purpose.

STATEMENT OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES

26. Up to 31 December 1948, the accounting practice was to record, as charges to "Goods Shipped Account", the contract amounts due in respect of goods shipped, on the basis of shipping reports. Later, if necessary, the accounts were adjusted when the covering invoices were received. The procedure was changed in 1949, entries being made only after the invoices were received. Such a system has practical advantages, and it is regarded as satisfactory from the audit point of view, provided year-end adjusting entries are carefully prepared on the basis of shipping advices, etc. These entries would record, in summary form, the value of shipments made to the close of the year which had not previously been individually recorded.

27. The Board finds that not all year-end adjusting entries were made which were necessary to permit preparation of a Statement of assets and liabilities as at 31 December 1949 that is technically correct from the accounting point of view. The amount of $51,583,214 shown for the principal of the Fund is not affected; but had adjusting entries been made with respect to all shipments during the year which were noted in the audit as unrecorded,

(a) The amount of $9,695,900 shown for "deposits with suppliers" would have been $1,211,631 less;

(b) The amount of $8,388,276 shown for "inventories of commodities in warehouses overseas" would have been $238,673 more; and

(c) The amount of $2,785,633 shown for "unliquidated obligations—commodity purchases" would have been $972,958 less.

Moreover, the amount of $11,598,837 shown in the footnote to the statement, in respect of outstanding commodity contracts, would have been $2,223,541 less; that is to say $9,375,296.

STATEMENT REQUIRED BY PROVISIONAL FINANCIAL
REGULATION 24

28. Inventories of expendable supplies. In accordance with the provisions of the regulation, statements of inventories of expendable supplies were submitted for examination at Headquarters and at the Paris office. The statements, listing quantities only, were test-checked to inventory cards and found to be in order. Receipts and issues were test-checked and the outcome was satisfactory.

29. Inventories of furniture and equipment. Lists were submitted by Headquarters and the Paris office. Test-checks were made of items and reconciliations made between the lists and inventory records. The manner of recording and the system of internal control were found to be adequate, except that, in the case of equipment in the charge of the European missions, inventory reports provided to the Paris office did not in all cases clearly distinguish between items which are the property of UNICEF and those which have been loaned by the countries in which missions are located, and no suitable inventory control record is maintained at the Paris office in this respect.

30. The audit was facilitated in every way by officers of the Fund, both at the New York Headquarters and at the Paris office. Full opportunity was afforded to examine records, vouchers and papers, for all of which the members of the Board express their appreciation.

Fourth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[30 September 1950]

1. In accordance with its terms of reference, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the report of the Board of Auditors on the accounts of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund for the year ended 31 December 1949 (A/1336).

2. Income received by the Fund during 1949 amounted (in round figures) to $US39,900,000,⁷ against a corresponding figure for 1948 of $59 million. Expenditure in 1949, by comparison with the previous year, was as follows:

	US $
Supplies distributed.....	42,457,000	28,026,000
Participation in special relief programmes	1,917,000	1,921,000
Administrative costs.....	2,283,000	1,445,000
Operational services	93,000	62,000
Difference in exchange	108,000	26,000

3. The Board of Auditors has drawn attention in paragraph 25 of its report to the heavy expenditure incurred by the Fund for the insurance of commodities in transit and in warehouses overseas. Since the inception of the Fund, payments in respect of insurance premiums have amounted to approximately $485,000, against a figure of approximately $150,000 recovered on claims. In view of the fact that the volume of annual shipments is in the neighbourhood of $30 million, and that the risks are widely distributed, the Advisory Committee recommends that the Administration of the Fund give further and careful consideration to the Auditor's suggestion concerning the establishment of a self-insurance scheme. Provision for such a scheme might be made through an appropriation to a special fund of an amount equivalent to the cost of commercial insurance.

4. The Advisory Committee notes that net proceeds of claims receivable under UNRRA's marine insurance policies amounted at the end of 1949 to almost $300,000, a figure which rose by the end of August 1950 to $373,000, representing 19.5 per cent of the book value of the claims submitted. Further claims outstanding under these policies are estimated at a total face value of $5,500,000.

5. As regards the various recommendations made by the Board of Auditors, the Advisory Committee was informed that the Administration of the Fund had already taken appropriate action on all points except the one concerning the introduction of a self-insurance scheme.

6. Apart from the above observations, the Advisory Committee has no special comment to offer on the report and accounts.

DOCUMENT A/1447 and Corr.1

Report of the Fifth Committee

[18 October 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting held on 26 September 1950, the Fifth Committee considered, at its 237th meeting held on 2 October 1950, the financial report and accounts of the International Children's Emergency Fund for the financial year ended 31 December 1949, and the report thereon by the Board of Auditors (A/1336). The Committee also considered the observations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions as set forth in its fourth report of 1950 pertaining to the report of the Board of Auditors (A/1413).

2. In the course of discussion of the Auditors' report, several members supported the recommendation of the Advisory Committee that the Administration of the Fund should give further consideration to the Auditors' proposal concerning the establishment of a self-insurance scheme for commodities in transit and in warehouses overseas. In the opinion of the Advisory Committee, provision for such a scheme might be made through an appropriation to a special fund of an amount equivalent to the cost of commercial insurance. Doubt was expressed by some members of the Fifth Committee that such a scheme would, in fact, be of any real advantage at this stage; accordingly, it was urged that the situation should be carefully reviewed before any change in existing insurance arrangements was decided upon. The Committee was informed, on behalf of the Administration of the Fund, that the recommendation of the Advisory Committee would be brought to the attention of the Executive Board of the Fund.

3. After receiving certain additional information from the Chairman of the Board of Auditors, the Chairman of the Advisory Committee and the Deputy Director of the Fund regarding matters to which the Board of Auditors had called attention, the Fifth Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution:

UNITED NATIONS INTERNATIONAL CHILDREN'S EMERGENCY FUND: FINANCIAL REPORT AND ACCOUNTS FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR ENDED 31 DECEMBER 1949, AND REPORT OF THE BOARD OF AUDITORS

The General Assembly

1. Accepts the financial report and accounts of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund for the financial year ended 31 December 1949, and the certificate of the Board of Auditors;

2. Takes note of the observations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions with respect to the report of the Board of Auditors.

Except for residual liquidation questions, the activities of UNRPR were terminated as at that date.

FINANCIAL REPORT FOR THE PERIOD OF OPERATIONS
1 DECEMBER 1948—30 APRIL 1950

1. The accounts of the United Nations Relief for Palestine Refugees for the period of operations 1 December 1948—30 April 1950 are presented herewith. The accounts comprise the following principal statements, duly certified by the Board of Auditors :

(a) Statement of assets and liabilities as of 30 April 1950,

(b) Statement of income and expenditure for the period from the commencement of operations to 30 April 1950,

Together with supporting schedules.

2. The operations of the Palestine Refugee Fund for the period 1 December 1948—30 June 1949 were the subject of a report to the fourth session of the General Assembly (A/1060, para 155 et seq.).⁸ The accounts of the Fund for that period were also submitted to the General Assembly, together with the report of the Board of Auditors on the interim audit of the accounts (A/1060/Add.1).

Financing the operations

3. For the period from 1 July 1949 to the end of the programme, the financing of UNRPR operations was met from three major sources :

	US dollars
(a) Cash advances from the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations	4,500,000
(b) Loan from the International Refugee Organization of £1,000,000 sterling.	2,800,000
(c) Cash donations by Governments and others	11,311,615

The first of these is covered by General Assembly resolution 302 (IV), paragraph 14 of which authorizes the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to advance funds not exceeding $5 million from the Working Capital Fund. It was necessary to call forward a total of $4,500,000, which amount was outstanding at 30 April 1950, the date on which UNRPR terminated its operations. This amount becomes a liability of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, and will be repayable by that Agency under the terms of paragraph 14 of the resolution, which states that such sums are "to be repaid not later than 31 December 1950 from the voluntary governmental contributions" to the programme requested in paragraph 13.

4. Under the terms of paragraph 15 of the same resolution, an interest-free loan of £1 million sterling ($US2,800,000) was negotiated with IRO. This amount was outstanding as at 30 April 1950 and, according to the agreement dated 18 January 1950 between IRO and the Secretary-General, this sum to be repaid as follows :

" £500,000 on or before 30 June 1950, and £500,000 on or before 31 July 1950, or at such later dates as, at the request of the United Nations, the Director-General of the International Refugee Organization may specify ".

5. Cash donations by Governments and others for the period from 1 July 1949 to 30 April 1950 amounted to the equivalent of $US11,311,615. The major items consisted of $8 million from the United States of America; 442,664,409 French francs ($1,674,487) from France; £100,000 ($403,226) from the United Kingdom; £E90,000 ($334,334) from the Egyptian Government; £Pal.100,000 ($329,290) from the Hashemite Kingdom of the Jordan. Total donations in cash for the entire period of operations amounted to $23,980,118. A complete list of the donors, with the amount of contributions in national currencies and the equivalent in US dollars, will be found in schedule A attached to the financial statements which are annexed to the present report.

6. Various contributions were made by Governments and others in the form of commodities and services. These were valued by the respective donors and entered on the records of the Fund. The total amount for the period from 1 July 1949 to 30 April 1950, in the various national currencies converted into US dollars at the official rate of exchange, was $2,334,068. For the period from the commencement of operations to 30 June 1949, contributions of this nature amounted to $1,762,850, making the total for the entire period $4,096,918. A complete list of the contributors, the kind of commodity donated, and the recorded value in US dollars will be found in schedule B of the financial statements already referred to.

7. In addition to the commodities donated, direct aid and services were rendered by the Near East Governments for the period from 1 July 1949 to 30 April 1950, to a value of $3,526,473. The value of this type of aid for the period from the commencement of operations to 30 June 1949 was $4,865,321, making the total for the entire period $8,391,794. Those Near East Governments which gave this aid are listed in schedule C of the financial statements, together with the recorded value of the aid in US dollars. Explanatory notes are appended to the schedule, giving the manner in which the various amounts were computed.

8. Total contributions in cash, plus contributions in kind and direct aid and services rendered, to the programme for the entire period therefore amounted to $36,468,830.

Expenditures

9. Total expenditures charged on the books of the Fund for the entire period, amounting to $39,115,975, are summarized as follows :

	US dollars
Relief supplies distributed	22,844,620
Operational expenses	6,714,719
Depreciation of equipment	171,579
Insurance on automotive equipment..	25,901
Grants to national charitable organiza- tions	450,608
Expenditures incurred by governments in the Near East	8,391,794
Administratives expenses.....	506,407
Losses in transit and on exchange....	10,347
	39,115,975

10. In order to obtain a more realistic conception of the expenditures and the relative percentages, the following table has been prepared. It indicates that out of a total of $39,115,975, the refugees received food, shelter, blankets, medical and public health services (including transport costs), and aid by the local governments to the extent of 88.83 per cent. It indicates, also, that the operational costs of the operative agencies, including termination costs, absorbed 8.25 per cent and the administrative expenses of UNRPR headquarters and field offices accounted for 1.29 per cent. The operational, administrative, and termination costs together aggregated 9.54 per cent.

Item	Amount US dollars	Percentage
Basic foods	18,673,545	47.74
Medical and public health pro- gramme	2,003,789	5.12
Shelter, blankets	3,404,368	8.70
Transport	2,176,244	5.56
Aid by local Governments.....	8,391,794	21.45
Miscellaneous—Local	102,288	.26
UNRPR. Administra- tion	473,492
Termination	33,117
	506,609	1.29
Carried forward	35,258,637	90.12
Agencies :
Operational costs ...	3,121,570
Termination costs ..	103,234	8.25
Depreciation of equipment.....	171,579	.45
Donations to national charitable or- ganizations.....	450,608	1.15
Losses in transit and on exchange..	10,347	.03
	39,115,975	100.00

These figures do not take into account the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund supplies for the period of approximately $9 million, which were distributed by the UNRPR operating agencies, nor the capital cost of automotive, operating, office and medical equipment, which amounted to $678,725. They do, however, include an amount of $171,579, representing depreciation of that equipment. Included also is an amount of $450,608 as donations to national charitable organizations.

Financial position at time of turnover to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East 11. As noted above, the total expenditures for the seventeen-month period of operations amounted to $39,115,975, against total income from contributions in cash, kind, and direct aid and services and from miscellaneous income of $36,471,894. Expenditures, therefore, exceeded income by $2,644,081. This deficit was financed, under the authority of the General Assembly, by advances from the United Nations Working Capital Fund and by a loan from the International Refugee Organization. Liabilities of UNRPR totalling $7,761,785 were assumed by UNRWAPRNE at the time of the transfer of responsibility for the programme to the latter agency. $7,300,000 of this total related to the advance from the Working Capital Fund ($4,500,000) and the loan from IRO ($2,800,000). Against these liabilities, assets totalling $5,117,704 were also transferred to UNRWAPRNE, of which cash on hand and at banks totalled $3,411,966.

12. In this respect, it is noted that resolution 302 (IV) continued UNRPR until 1 April 1950, or to such other date as might be agreed between the Secretary-General and the Director of UNRWAPRNE for the transfer of UNRPR assets and liabilities to that agency. The resolution contained, in paragraph 6, an estimate of $54,900,000 as the amount required for the programme for the period 1 January 1950 to 30 June 1951; and, in paragraph 13, a request urging Member States to make voluntary contributions to provide the supplies and funds required as set out in paragraph 6 of the resolution. The programme was treated as a whole in that resolution and there was no separate financial provision for UNRPR operations as distinct from UNRWAPRNE operations.

13. As at 31 December 1949, UNRPR income exceeded its expenditures to that date. From 1 January 1950, UNRPR began to operate against the $54,900,000 estimate approved by the General Assembly. The $4,500,000 advance from the Working Capital Fund and the $2,800,000 loan from IRO were called forward during the period 1 January 1950 to 30 April 1950. These funds were necessary to finance expenditures relating to the $54,900,000 approved programme. Therefore, in incurring expenditures during that period and accepting the advances and the loan, UNRPR was, in fact, acting as the agent of its successor.

General financial administration

14. The financing of the UNRPR programme has been carried out through the headquarters finance office of UNRPR in Geneva. As soon as the quarterly budgets had been approved at Lake Success, this office advanced to the three operating agencies and to the two field offices sufficient funds to meet each monthly programme under the approved quarterly budget. These advances accounted for the major portion of the UNRPR disbursements, although certain expenditures were made directly from the Geneva finance office. Advances for local purchases by the field offices were made by the Finance Officer, after taking into consideration the value of contributions received in kind.

15. The Geneva office of UNRPR has made direct disbursements for the major part of automotive and operating equipment for the use of the three operating agencies. It has also purchased tents and blankets, etc., from that part of the United Kingdom contribution which was not converted into Middle East currencies.

16. The administrative expenses of the Geneva office have been paid by the United Nations European Office and reimbursed to it monthly. A comparable arrangement existed with United Nations Headquarters for payment of expenditures authorized for or by the Lake Success Liaison Office of UNRPR.

AUDIT CERTIFICATE

We have audited the accounts maintained by United Nations Relief for Palestine Refugees, with respect to the transactions of the Fund established pursuant to General Assembly Resolution 212 (III) of 19 November 1948, for the period from the commencement of operations (as of 1 December 1948) to 30 April 1950. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required. As the result of the audit, we certify, subject to the observations in our report dated 31 July 1950, that, in our opinion, the above statement of assets and liabilities presents a true and correct view of the state of the Fund's affairs as at 30 April 1950, and the related statement of income and expenditure correctly summarizes the operations for the period, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us and as shown by the books of the Fund.

² At the request of the Government of France, this contribution was valued at the rate of 264 francs to $US1, rather than at the bank rates of exchange ruling on the dates the several portions of the contribution were made available (other contributions were converted into US dollars at the official rates of exchange at the time the donations were received). To 30 April 1950, the French contribution had been utilized—and the expenditures charged at the rate mentioned—except for 208,394 French francs remaining at 30 April 1950. This balance was adjusted to the bank rate on that date (349.70 French francs to $US1) for purposes of transfer to UNRWA—resulting in a recorded loss on exchange of $193.45.

(ii) The Government of Sweden—which made available directly to the Swedish Red Cross and the Save the Children Fund, funds for commodities and equipment totalling $14,239.

These contributions were made to the organizations specifically for their Palestine refugee relief work and were so notified to UNRPR by the Governments.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF AUDITORS

1. General Assembly resolution 212 (III) of 19 November 1948 authorized the Secretary-General to establish a fund from contributions received for the aid of Palestine refugees, and requested him to appoint a director of United Nations Relief for Palestine Refugees. The resolution instructed the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, to establish regulations for the administration and supervision of the Fund.

2. The regulations include the requirements that "the accounts of the Fund shall be audited by the Board of Auditors of the United Nations and a separate report thereon shall be submitted to the General Assembly". In accordance with this requirement, an audit has been made of the accounts maintained by United Nations Relief for Palestine Refugees for the period from the commencement of operations (as of 1 December 1948) to 30 April 1950. As of the latter date, the assets and liabilities of the Fund were transferred to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East, in conformity with the direction contained in resolution 302 (IV) of 8 December 1949.

3. An audit certificate is given, subject to the observations in this report, to the statement of assets and liabilities as of 30 April 1950, submitted by the Acting Director of United Nations Relief for Palestine Refugees. The certificate also embraces the related statement of income and expenditure for the period from the commencement of operations to 30 April 1950.

4. The regulations for the administration and supervision of the Fund include the provision that the Director shall be responsible to the Secretary-General, among other things, for :

"The appointment of an operational agency or agencies to assume complete responsibility for the implementation of a relief programme in the field and for the distribution of supplies donated under United Nations auspices",
And further provide that :

"The agreement or agreements entered into with the said agency or agencies will recognize their complete autonomy and independence in the performance of this task".

Although the operational agencies provided monthly summaries showing the amounts disbursed by them, under prescribed expenditure headings, they were not required to submit vouchers in support of disbursements made by them on behalf of the Fund; and the agreements provided that the accounts maintained by them be audited by accredited auditors appointed by them.

Accordingly, no examination was made by the Board, of vouchers relating to the operational expenses shown in the statement of income and expenditure as having been incurred by the operational agencies.

5. Copies of reports made periodically by the agencies' auditors were furnished to the Chief Finance Officer of the Fund, and were made available to the Board. In the cases of two of the agencies, the reports cover disbursements made during the period from the commencement of operations to 30 April 1950 (and in one of these cases, additional expenditures incurred but not yet paid were also audited). The reports made up to 24 July 1950 by the auditors of the third agency cover disbursement during the period from the commencement of operations to 30 September 1949. With respect to the accounts maintained by one of the operational agencies, the auditors' report for the period from 1 January to 30 April 1950 includes the following comments (repeating similar observations made in their report with respect to the period from 1 July to 31 December 1949):

“Philadelphia and Geneva: Only monthly statements are received from these offices, which are not supported by vouchers”.

“Gaza: As on previous occasions the vouchers examined by us were not altogether satisfactory. In some cases statements of expenses were unsigned and not supported by invoices or receipts, and in others cash payments were completely unsupported”.

“Acre: A considerable number of vouchers in support of petty cash expenditure could not be produced to us, including staff salaries receipts for the month of April 1950”.

6. The regulations for the administration and supervision of the Fund include the requirement that “the accounts of the special fund shall be accompanied by statements showing... full details of all known losses and shortages”. An amount of $10,154 is shown for “losses in transit”, in the statement of income and expenditure. This amount represents losses which occurred in the transportation of supplies which had been shipped as contributions in kind. We were informed that notifications of the shortages had been given to the contributors concerned, for such action as they might deem advisable. The greater part of the supplies was purchased locally, and since payments were made for these on the basis of the quantities actually delivered to the operational agencies, no losses in transit could occur so far as the Fund was concerned. With respect to supplies (mainly tents and blankets) purchased abroad, no losses occurred while such supplies were in transit to the ports of delivery.

7. Information provided is to the effect that when delivery of supplies—whether purchased or contributed—was accepted by the operational agencies on behalf of the Fund, the supplies were at once checked either into the main port warehouses, operated by the agencies or into the charge of trucking contractors for delivery to regional warehouses. Transportation of supplies between the main port warehouses and the regional warehouses, and between the regional warehouses and the distributing centres, was also by trucking contractors. These contractors were held accountable in all cases for supplies placed in their charge, so that no losses could occur so far as the Fund was concerned.

8. No losses of supplies in their charge were reported to officers of the Fund by the operational agencies. Audit reports made by auditors of two of the agencies indicate that their test-examinations of accounting records for warehoused stores showed such records to have been satisfactorily maintained and the stocks properly accounted for to the extent tested. It was learned from an officer of the third agency that, although accounting records were maintained with respect to warehoused stores, these accounts had not been made subject to audit by the agency's auditors.

9. The audit was facilitated by the willing co-operation and assistance of officers and employees of the Fund, for which the members of the Board wish to record their appreciation.

Fifth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[30 September 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the report (A/1354) on the audit of the accounts maintained by the United Nations Relief for Palestine Refugees for the period 1 December 1948 to 30 April 1950, which the Board of Auditors has submitted to the General Assembly in accordance with paragraph 29 of the provisional regulations for the administration and supervision of the Palestine Refugee Fund.

2. The statement of income and expenditure for the period under review shows that total income amounted to $36,471,894, against a total expenditure of $39,115,975, or an excess of expenditure over income of $2,644,081.

3. As from 30 April 1950, the assets and liabilities of the Palestine Refugee Fund were transferred to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East. On that date, advances outstanding from the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations, under the terms of paragraph 14 of General Assembly resolution 302 (IV), amounted to $4,500,000. The Advisory Committee was informed that of this amount, $2 million has since been repaid, and liquidation of the balance of $2,500,000 is expected in the near future.

4. The agreements with the three operational agencies which are responsible for the implementation of UNRPR relief programmes in the field provided that the audit of accounts maintained by the agencies should be performed by accredited auditors of their own appointment.

5. Certain irregularities in the field accounts were brought to the notice of the Board of Auditors. In a few cases, supporting vouchers were not produced or were found to be incomplete. The Committee, however, understands that these cases, relating mainly to petty cash, represented an inconsiderable amount.

6. The Advisory Committee has taken note of the report of the Board of Auditors, which discloses no other points on which the Committee desires to offer comment.

(a) Statement of 1950 budget expenses to 30 June 1950DOCUMENT A/1305*Report of the Secretary-General

[29 July 1950]

1. In its report to the second regular session of the General Assembly concerning the Provisional Financial Regulations (A/495),¹ the Fifth Committee requested that a statement should be submitted annually showing expenses for the current financial year for a period of six to nine months.

2. Pursuant to that request, statements covering the first six months of 1948 and 1949 were submitted in previous years, and a similar statement covering the first six months of 1950 is submitted herewith. An additional column showing the approved 1950 estimates is included in the present statement in order to facilitate a comparison between expenses in the first half of the year and estimates for the full financial year.

3. The 1950 appropriations were voted under 29 sections (resolution 356 (IV) of 10 December 1949), while the 1951 estimates are arranged under 32 sections (Budget estimates for the financial year 1951, A/1267).² In order to provide comparability between the estimates for the two years, the 1950 approved estimates are shown in document A/1267 arranged according to the 1951 pattern. The expenses for the first six months of 1950 in the statement attached are correspondingly arranged.

4. The attached statement reflects expenses as recorded to 30 June 1950, projected in some instances to 30 June where recorded expenses fell short of this date: for example, payroll charges recorded in the accounts only to the end of the thirteenth pay period, 24 June 1950.

5. For evident reasons, expenses during the second half of the year will not correspond with expenses shown for the first half of the year under the various headings. For example, the United Nations Commission for Eritrea has completed its mission in the field and no expenses will be incurred in this connexion in the second half of 1950; expenses for the fifth session of the General Assembly are shown for the first six months period at $95,652 against estimates of $582,655; salary accounts are normally heavier during the last half of the year in reflection of delayed recruitment and within-grade increments. The rate of expenditures for the International Centre for Training in Public Administration, under section 29 of the attached statement, which has been low in the first half of the year, will increase appreciably in coming months, since a number of fellowships and scholarships have been awarded and arrangements for a seminar later in the year are nearing completion.

6. No expenditures have been incurred against the appropriation of $8 million for an international régime for the Jerusalem area.

7. Subject to the observations and reservations above, expenses for the first six months of 1950 as shown in the attached statement stand at $21,054,856 against appropriations voted of $49,641,773. In accordance with past practice, estimates of anticipated total expenses to 31 December 1950 will be provided in connexion with the supplementary estimates for 1950.

8. Miscellaneous income as shown in the books at 30 June 1949 stood at $2,610,881, as compared with estimated miscellaneous income included in the 1950 budget resolution (356 (IV)) of $5,091,740.

DOCUMENT A/1322

Application of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization for a loan from the Working Capital Fund : [report of the Secretary-General

[22 August 1950]

1. In accordance with a decision taken by the Council of the Food and Agriculture Organization at its ninth session held in Rome during May 1950, the Director-General of the FAO has submitted to the Secretary-General an application for a loan of $US 800,000 from the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations, for the purpose of financing in part the costs of the projected transfer of FAO headquarters from Washington, D. C. to Rome. The balance of the amount needed for financing the expenses of the move will be available from FAO's accumulated reserves.

2. The relevant decision of the Council of the Food and Agriculture Organization, as set out in the report of its ninth session,³ was as follows :

" Taking into account the decision of the Conference that the unspent balance of the second and third financial years (now estimated at approximately $420,000) should be used to defray in part the expense connected with the transfer of headquarters to Rome, a balance of approximately $800,000 will have to be provided from other sources.

" The Council considers that the most practical way of obtaining this amount is for the Director-General to apply to the United Nations for a loan from its Working Capital Fund, to be repaid over a period of four years.

" The Council therefore recommends that the Director-General should forthwith apply, through the Secretary-General of the United Nations, to the United Nations General Assembly for authority to be given to the Secretary-General to grant a loan of approximately $800,000 to FAO.

" At the same time, the Director-General should take advantage of the very generous offer of the Italian Government to consider the possibility of making such a loan to FAO and should enter into negotiations with that Government to obtain terms as favourable as possible. In the event of a loan being granted by the United Nations, it would then be unnecessary for FAO to take advantage of this further instance of the generosity of the Italian Government, which has already helped in many ways to facilitate the early transfer of FAO to Rome. If, however, the loan from the United Nations is not available, or if it is granted for a shorter period than four years, the Director-General should then take advantage of the offer of the Italian Government so that the repayment liabilities of the organization, in respect of any sums borrowed, do not exceed $200,000 a year, whether the loan is provided wholly by the United Nations, partly by the United Nations and partly by the Italian Government, or wholly by the Italian Government."

3. The Council's request was formally communicated to the Secretary-General in a letter addressed to him on 31 May 1950 by the Director-General of the Food and Agriculture Organization. The attention of the General Assembly is called to the fact that the conditions relating to loans to specialized agencies have customarily been included in the terms of the resolution concerning advances from the Working Capital Fund and have provided, inter alia, that such loans should normally be repayable within a period of two years. The draft resolution on the Working Capital Fund which the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has proposed for adoption by the General Assembly, A/1312 (chapter I, appendix III⁴) contains a similar provision with respect to 1951. The application submitted on behalf of the Food and Agriculture Organization, however, seeks authorization for repayment of the $800,000 requested in equal annual instalments over a four-year period commencing with 1951. The Council of FAO has recommended that in framing the budget of the organization for 1951 and for each of the three following years, the first charge should be a sum of $200,000 for payment of such instalments.

4. In a subsequent communication to the Secretary-General, the Director-General of FAO states that the final decision regarding the financing of the move of FAO headquarters to Rome will be taken by the FAO Conference which is to convene in Washington on 6 November 1950. The hope is expressed that it will be found possible for the loan application to be considered and disposed of by the General Assembly prior to this date.

5. The Secretary-General therefore submits the application of the Food and Agriculture Organization for a loan of $800,000, including the question of repayment terms and conditions, to the General Assembly for a decision, in connexion with its consideration of the draft resolution on the Working Capital Fund under item 39 of the provisional agenda (A/1293).

Application of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization for a loan from the Working Capital Fund : seventh report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[17 October 1950]

1. In accordance with a decision taken by the Fifth Committee at its 247th meeting on 13 October 1950, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the report of the Secretary-General (A/1322) on the application of the Food and Agriculture Organization for a loan of $800,000 from the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations.

2. The Advisory Committee takes note that the above amount represents the estimated balance of expenditure relating to the transfer to Rome of the headquarters of FAO, and that the Council of the latter organization proposes that repayment of the loan be made over a period of four years, in equal annual instalments of $200,000.

3. The draft resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund for the year 1951 submitted by the Advisory Committee (A/1312, chapter I, appendix III) makes provision for the granting of loans to specialized agencies in the initial stages of their existence and " pending receipt by the agencies concerned of sufficient contributions under their own budgets ". It is further provided that such loans shall normally be repayable within two years.

4. The Advisory Committee, having regard to the exceptional circumstances which underlie the application from FAO, recommends that the General Assembly should approve the granting of a loan of $800,000 to FAO, subject to repayment within a maximum period of four years, and subject also to the following recommendations :

(a) In view of the considerations set forth in paragraph 3 above, specific authorization for the loan should be included in the resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund (1951) to be adopted by the General Assembly;

(b) Any balance of the loan outstanding at the end of a period of two years from the date of the granting of the loan should bear interest, at a rate to be agreed between the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the Director-General of FAO;

(c) The Council of FAO should make every effort to arrange for the repayment of the loan within a shorter term than four years.

5. In making these recommendations, the Committee has taken under consideration the purpose for which the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations was established, as well as the probability that heavy withdrawals beyond those normally required for the financing of budgetary appropriations may have to be made during the early months of 1951.

6. Finally, the Advisory Committee considers that, if approved by the General Assembly, the proposed loan should in no way constitute a precedent for the submission of other applications of a similar nature.

7. A draft paragraph to give effect to the above recommendation is submitted herewith, for inclusion in the draft resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund (1951) :

“ 4. The Secretary-General is authorized to advance from the Working Capital Fund :

“ (b) ...

“ (e) A loan to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations to an amount not exceeding $800,000, to finance the removal of its headquarters to Rome. Interest, at a rate to be determined between the United Nations and the Food and Agriculture Organization, shall be payable on any balance of the loan outstanding at the end of a period of two years from the date on which the loan is made.

Application of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization for a loan from the Working Capital Fund : report of the Fifth Committee

[10 November 1950]

1. In a report dated 22 August 1950 (A/1322), the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly of an application addressed to him by the Director-General of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, in accordance with a decision taken by the Council of the Organization at its ninth session, for a loan of $800,000 from the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations, for the purpose of financing in part the costs of the projected transfer of FAO headquarters from Washington, D. C. to Rome, Italy. In transmitting this request, the Secretary-General called the General Assembly's attention to the fact that the conditions relating to loans to specialized agencies had customarily been included in the terms of the resolution concerning advances from the Working Capital Fund and had provided, inter alia, that such loans should normally be repayable within a period of two years. The resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund for 1950 adopted by the General Assembly at its fourth regular session on 10 December 1949 (resolution 358 (IV)) had contained such a provision, and a similar provision had been recommended for inclusion in the draft Working Capital Fund resolution proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, for adoption by the General Assembly at its fifth session (A/1312, chapter I, appendix III). The application submitted on behalf of the Food and Agriculture Organization, however, sought authorization for repayment of the $800,000 requested in equal annual instalments over a four-year period commencing with 1951. The General Assembly was informed that in framing the budget of the organization for 1951 and for each of the three following years, it had been recommended by the Council of FAO that the first charge should be a sum of $200,000 for payment of such instalments. The Secretary-General had accordingly submitted the loan application of FAO, including the question of repayment terms and conditions, to the General Assembly for decision in connexion with its consideration of the draft resolution on the Working Capital Fund under item 39 of its agenda.

2. Pursuant to the instructions of the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee considered the request of FAO at its 251st meeting on 19 October 1950. In addition to the report of the Secretary-General (A/1322), it had before it the observations thereon of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions as set forth in its seventh report of 1950 (A/1445). The attention of the Fifth Committee was also called, prior to its discussion of this matter, to the further report submitted by the Secretary-General, under item 38 of the agenda, on advances from the Working Capital Fund and unforeseen and extraordinary expenses for 1950 (A/1432).

3. The Advisory Committee, in its report on the FAO loan application, observed that the draft resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund for the year 1951 which it had proposed in its second report for 1950 (A/1312) provided for the granting of loans to specialized agencies in the initial stages of their existence and "pending receipt by the agencies concerned of sufficient contributions under their own budgets", subject to such loans being normally repayable within two years. In view, however, of the exceptional circumstances underlying the application from FAO, it recommended that the General Assembly should approve the granting of a loan of $800,000 subject to repayment within a maximum period of four years and to the following conditions :

(a) Specific authorization for the loan should be included in the resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund (1951) to be adopted by the General Assembly;

(b) Any balance of the loan outstanding at the end of a period of two years from the date of the granting of the loan should bear interest, at a rate to be agreed between the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the Director-General of FAO;

(c) The Council of FAO should make every effort to arrange for the repayment of the loan within a shorter term than four years.

4. The Fifth Committee was advised that, in making these recommendations, the Advisory Committee had taken under consideration the purpose for which the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations was established, as well as the probability that heavy withdrawals beyond those normally required for the financing of budgetary appropriations might have to be made during the early months of 1951. Note was taken also of the Advisory Committee's opinion that, if approved by the General Assembly, the proposed loan should in no way constitute a precedent for the submission for other applications of a similar nature.

5. It was explained to the Committee that in recommending the inclusion in the Working Capital Fund resolution for 1951 of an appropriate paragraph specifically authorizing the loan, the Advisory Committee had understood that no advance from the Working Capital Fund would, in fact, be required by FAO until after 31 December 1950. Subsequently, however, the Secretary-General had been informed that it might be necessary for FAO to enter into expenditure commitments relating to the transfer of its headquarters prior to 1951 and that FAO was desirous, therefore, of being able to utilize loan moneys for that purpose during 1950, should the need arise. In those circumstances and in order that final decisions regarding the financing of and arrangements for the move might be taken by the FAO Conference which is to commence in Washington, D. C. on 6 November 1950, the Secretary-General, with the concurrence of the Chairman of the Advisory Committee, proposed to the Fifth Committee the adoption of a separate draft resolution (A/C.5/L.51), authorizing him to advance from the Working Capital Fund, as a loan to FAO, sums not exceeding $800,000 on terms and conditions recommended by the Advisory Committee.

6. Though certain delegations expressed some doubt as to the procedure followed and maintained that such requests should be considered together with the resolution on the Working Capital Fund, no objection was raised with respect to the substance of the draft resolution submitted by the Secretary-General. This was approved, after a brief discussion, by 34 votes to 1, with 5 abstentions.

7. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

ADVANCES FROM THE WORKING CAPITAL FUND : APPLICATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION FOR A LOAN FROM THE FUND

The General Assembly,

Having considered the request submitted by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization to the Secretary-General for a loan of $800,000 from the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations for the purpose of financing part of the costs of the transfer of the Food and Agriculture Organization from Washington, D.C. to Rome,

Desirous of facilitating the work of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, Authorizes the Secretary-General to advance from the Working Capital Fund, as a loan to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, sums not exceeding $800,000 to finance the removal of its headquarters to Rome. Such a loan shall be repayable within a maximum period of four years, in annual instalments of not less than $200,000. Interest, at a rate to be determined between the Secretary-General of the United Nations and the Director-General of the Food and Agriculture Organization, shall be payable on any balance of the loan outstanding at the end of a period of two years from the date on which the loan is made.

(b) and (c) Advances from the Working Capital Fund and unforeseen and extraordinary expenses for 1950

Report of the Secretary-General

[7 October 1950]

1. The General Assembly at its fourth session authorized the Secretary-General to take the following action under the terms of resolution 357 (IV) and 358 (IV) respectively :

(a) To enter, under certain conditions, into commitments to meet unforeseen and extraordinary expenses during the year 1950;

(b) To advance funds from the Working Capital Fund for the above-mentioned purposes, as well as to finance various revolving funds, to make loans to specialized agencies and to make advances for certain other purposes.

2. Following the procedure adopted last year, the present report is divided into three parts, as follows :

	Paragraphs
I. Unforeseen and extraordinary expenses	3 - 5
II. Revolving funds and recoverable advances	6 - 7
III. Loans to specialized agencies ...	8 - 9

I. UNFORESEEN AND EXTRAORDINARY EXPENSES

3. By the terms of resolution 357 (IV) (Unforeseen and extraordinary expenses) :

“ The Secretary-General, with the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and subject to the financial regulations of the United Nations, is authorized to enter into commitments to meet unforeseen and extraordinary expenses; provided that the concurrence of the Advisory Committee shall not be necessary for :

“ (a) Such commitments not exceeding a total of $2,000,000 if the Secretary-General certifies that they relate to the maintenance of peace and security or to urgent economic rehabilitation;

“ (b) Such commitments as may be necessary to provide for reasonable expenses for the proposed Economic Commission for the Middle East, should the Economic and Social Council decide that this Commission shall be created in 1950;

“ (c) Such commitments as may be necessary to provide for expenses of meetings of the Economic and Social Council should the Council, having reconsidered the question of its place of meeting in the light of the debates in the General Assembly, confirm its decision to hold its eleventh session at Geneva;

“ (d) Such commitments, duly certified by the President of the International Court of Justice, relating to expenses occasioned :

“ (i) By the designation of ad hoc judges (Statute, Article 31), “ (ii) By the appointment of assessors (Statute, Article 30) or of witnesses and experts (Statute, Article 50), “ (iii) By the holding of sessions of the Court away from The Hague (Statute, Article 22), and which do not exceed $24,000, $25,000 and $75,000 respectively, under each of these three headings ”.

4. In September 1950, the Secretary-General obtained the concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for an advance from the Working Capital Fund for the purchase of some of the permanent equipment included in the budget estimates for 1951, the procurement of which is necessitated by the earlier move of the Secretariat into the new Headquarters. The Secretary-General is now entering into commitments which are expected to total $315,000 and will provide for the purchase and delivery by 31 December 1950 of office furniture and equipment amounting to $198,500, reproduction equipment such as offset presses totalling $60,000, library equipment including book-stacks and shelving amounting to $43,800 and photographic and motion picture equipment not exceeding $12,000. The Secretary-General will submit supplementary estimates for 1950 to cover these commitments and the 1951 budget estimates will be correspondingly reduced. An exception will, however, be requested for the programme of library equipment, for which a reduction of $27,300 only will be proposed instead of $34,800, in order to complete the purchase of the total equipment in 1951 instead of in 1952 and to benefit by the reduction in price which would be gained under the procurement contract now in process of completion.

5. Commitments during 1950 were also entered into by the Secretary-General under sub-paragraphs (a) and (c) of the above-mentioned resolution. These commitments, the details of which are noted below, total $442,300. The Secretary-General will submit supplementary estimates for 1950 to cover these commitments, as it is not possible to absorb them within the 1950 regular budget appropriations.

(a) Commitments relating to the maintenance of peace and security or to urgent economic rehabilitation (sub-paragraph (a) of the resolution)

After the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, and acting under the authorization of the Security Council with respect to United Nations forces to repel the aggression in South Korea, the Secretary-General appointed a personal representative together with staff, in addition to the regular members and staff of the United Nations Commission on Korea. An aeroplane had to be purchased and additional offices opened in Tokyo and Pusan. This expansion of the United Nations activities in Korea in the interest of the maintenance of international peace and security necessitated unforeseen expenditure estimated to reach a total of $300,000 by the end of the present year, of which about $50,000 was to be provided for staff to organize and supervise relief for civilian war refugees in Korea. Accordingly, the Secretary-General authorized an advance of $300,000 in August 1950 for the above purpose, as a charge on the Working Capital Fund.

(b) Commitments in respect of the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council at Geneva (sub-paragraph (c) of the resolution)

The Economic and Social Council, at its tenth session, confirmed its decision taken at the ninth session to hold its eleventh session at Geneva. Accordingly, in May 1950 the Secretary-General authorized the advance of sums up to $142,300 from the Working Capital Fund to finance the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council at Geneva.

II. REVOLVING FUNDS AND RECOVERABLE ADVANCES

6. The Secretary-General is authorized under General Assembly resolution 358 (IV) to advance from the Working Capital Fund :

“(a) Such sums as may be necessary to finance budgetary appropriations pending receipt of contributions; sums so advanced shall be reimbursed as soon as receipts from contributions are available for the purpose” [paragraph 4 (a) of the resolution];

“(b) Such sums as, together with net sums outstanding for the same purposes, do not exceed $250,000 to continue the revolving fund to finance miscellaneous self-liquidating purchases and activities. Advances in excess of the total of $250,000 may be made with the prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. The Secretary-General shall submit, with the annual accounts, an explanation of the outstanding balance of the revolving fund at the end of each year” [paragraph 4 (c) of the resolution];

“(c) Such sums as, together with the sums previously advanced and outstanding for the same purpose, do not exceed $500,000 to continue the Staff Housing Fund in order to finance advance rental payment, guarantee deposits and working capital requirements for housing the staff of the Secretariat. Such advances shall be reimbursed to the Working Capital Fund following the recovery of the rental advances, guarantee deposits and working capital advances” [paragraph 4 (e) of the resolution].

7. Advances made during 1950 under each of the above items are dealt with seriatim below :

(a) Advances to finance budgetary appropriations pending receipt of contributions

Advances under this head amounted to $4,492,193 at 31 March, $5,690,667 at 31 May and $7,838,210 at 31 July, and reached $9,354,594 at the end of August 1950. These advances have since been repaid, following the receipt of contributions from Members.

(b) Advances to continue revolving funds to finance miscellaneous self-liquidating purchases and activities

The position of advances made under this head as at 31 August 1950 was as follows :

Purpose	Limit of outstanding amounts authorized by the Secretary-General as at 31 August 1950 (In US dollars)	Actual outstanding amount as at 31 August 1950
(i) Advances to finance on a reimbursable basis travel and related expenses of members of certain commissions of investigation, conciliation, etc., operating in the field	30,000	5,335
(ii) Advances to finance on a reimbursable basis travel of additional representatives to the General Assembly, the Councils and Commissions, and additional local transportation for delegations	100,000	46,047
(iii) Empire State Building operating account	20,000	7,538
(iv) Operating capital for the cafeteria	25,000	25,000
(v) Revolving fund to finance travel of staff loaned to specialized agencies and other bodies (as approved from time to time)	41,000	20,408
(vi) Revolving fund to finance miscellaneous self-liquidating purchases and activities (as approved from time to time).	12,250	1,916
	228,250	106,244

(i) Advances to finance on a reimbursable basis travel and related expenses of members of certain commissions of investigation, conciliation, etc., operating in the field

(ii) Advances to finance on a reimbursable basis travel of additional representatives to the General Assembly, the Councils and Commissions, and additional local transportation for delegations

As a matter of convenience to Members, and in order to ensure priority of transportation, the United Nations has arranged, at the request of the Governments concerned, for travel for Members' "extra" representatives to the General Assembly and for representatives to Councils, to commissions of investigation, conciliation, etc., operating in the field and more generally to all United Nations organs for which transportation fares are borne by governments. In such cases, Members agree to reimburse the United Nations for costs of travel.

(iii) Empire State Building operating account

This fund provides for payment of rental and for miscellaneous alterations made to space occupied by delegations in the Empire State Building. Such payments are reimbursable by delegations, according to the space occupied.

(iv) Operating capital for the cafeteria

This fund is used to finance inventory supplies in the cafeteria, lounges and merchandising counters at Lake Success and Flushing Meadows.

(v) Revolving fund to finance travel of staff loaned to specialized agencies and other bodies (as approved from time to time)

This fund provides for travel expenses of United Nations staff members who are loaned to specialized agencies, etc., for short periods of time on a reimbursable basis.

(vi) Revolving fund to finance miscellaneous self-liquidating purchases and activities (as approved from time to time)

This fund is used to finance miscellaneous self-liquidating purchases, e.g., standard equipment, such as shirts and shoes for resale to guards; books, photographic postcards concerning the United Nations for resale by the United Nations bookshop, etc.

(c) Advances to continue Staff Housing Fund in order to finance advance rental payments, guarantee deposits, etc.

Actual outstanding advances on 31 August 1950 under this head stood at $407,545, accounted for primarily by the $400,000 guarantee deposit made by the United Nations in respect of the Parkway Village apartment project made available for occupancy by the United Nations Secretariat and delegation personnel. The balance of $7,545 represents advance rental payments in connexion with similar apartment units made available in the Great Neck housing project.

III. — LOANS TO SPECIALIZED AGENCIES

8. The General Assembly, by resolution 358 (IV), paragraph 4 (d), authorized the Secretary-General to advance from the Working Capital Fund, subject to certain conditions, "loans to specialized agencies and preparatory commissions of agencies to be established by inter-governmental agreement under the auspices of the United Nations to finance their work, pending receipt by the agencies concerned of sufficient contributions under their own budgets." Loans to specialized agencies authorized at 31 August 1950 stood as follows:

Agency	Amount US dollars
(a) International Trade Organization — Interim Commission	346,490
(b) Preparatory Commission of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Organization.....	15,000

(a) International Trade Organization—Interim Commission

By resolution 244 (III), the General Assembly provided that the expenses of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Employment until the creation of the Interim Commission of the International Trade Organization at Havana, amounting to $779,642, should be borne by the United Nations. This sum did not include loans amounting to $166,490 made in 1948 to the Interim Commission. The resolution provided for additional loans to the Interim Commission not exceeding $30,000 for the period 1 November 1948 to 31 December 1948, and not exceeding $344,843 for the period 1 January to 31 December 1949. The resolution further requested the Secretary-General, in making such loans, to indicate that all loans already made, and those which might be made under the resolution, should be repayable within two years from the date the loans were made. Subsequently, the General Assembly, by resolution 358 (IV), paragraph 4 (d), authorized the Secretary-General to grant an extension of one year to the Interim Commission of the International Trade Organization for the repayment of the 1948 loans. The status of outstanding loans to the Interim Commission, including the loans amounting to $166,490, already made under the Working Capital Fund authorization for 1948, was as follows at 31 August 1950:

Date of authorization	Amount US dollars	Date when repayments are due
April 1948	86,490	July 1951
July 1948	80,000	July 1951
December 1948	30,000	November 1951
March 1949	100,000	December 1951
August 1949	50,000	—
	346,490

Of the total of $346,490 authorized, advances amounting to $264,013 had been made up to 31 August 1950. It is to be noted that the dates of repayments are reckoned with reference to the dates on which funds commenced to be drawn under each separate authorization.

(b) Preparatory Commission of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization

The loan authorized for the Preparatory Commission of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization has been credited to that organization on the books of the United Nations, but not advanced in cash. In view of the small amount of Secretariat work envisaged by the Preparatory Commission, services are provided by the United Nations Secretariat on a reimbursable basis. Charges approved to 31 August 1950 have amounted to $1,352.

9. United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East

The General Assembly, by resolution 358 (IV), paragraph 4 (g), authorized the Secretary-General to advance from the Working Capital Fund, "in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, such sums up to $5,000,000 for assistance to Palestine refugees, in accordance with the provisions of the resolution [302 (IV)] adopted by the General Assembly at its 273rd plenary meeting on 8 December 1949." Accordingly, the Secretary-General, with the concurrence of the Advisory Committee, has made advances to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees at its request, amounting to $4,500,000 up to the end of August 1950. The Agency, during the same period, has made a partial repayment of $2,000,000, leaving an outstanding balance of $2,500,000. It is expected that in accordance with the terms of General Assembly resolution 302 (IV), this balance will be repaid not later than 31 December 1950.

Tax equalization; staff assessment plan : report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[8 November 1950]

1. By General Assembly resolution 239 (III), a staff assessment plan was installed in the United Nations at the beginning of the calendar year 1949 which provided that :

(a) The salaries and wages of the staff would be fixed on a gross basis; and that

(b) An assessment (comparable to a national income tax) would be levied by the United Nations on all such salaries and wages (including certain allowances).

2. Members which had not already done so were requested by the General Assembly to :

"... take the necessary action, legislative or other, to exempt their nationals employed by the United Nations from national income taxation with respect to their salaries and emoluments paid to them by the United Nations, or in any other manner to grant relief from double taxation to such nationals."

A list showing the status of the action of Members in this regard as at 22 September 1950 is attached as annex A. In summary, thirty-eight Members have acceded to the Convention on Privileges and Immunities, but three of these Members have taken reservation as to section 18 (b) regarding exemption from national income taxation. While Canada has taken this reservation, the necessary action has been taken to grant relief from double taxation. Twenty-one Members had not acceded to the Convention as at 22 September 1950. Of this latter group, Argentina had notified the Secretary-General that persons considered to have diplomatic status would be exempted from national income taxation.

3. The General Assembly, in order to provide equity among the staff, has authorized the Secretary-General to reimburse any national taxes paid by them on payments received from the United Nations. This authorization has been granted on a year-to-year basis, pending the necessary action by all of the Members to grant United Nations staff members relief from national taxation.

4. In 1946, 1947 and 1948, the General Assembly made budgetary appropriations to cover such reimbursement for the following years, but in 1949 no request for an appropriation was made for the financial year 1950 in view of the expectation that the national governments concerned would take appropriate action by the end of the year. However, in order to insure the Secretary-General's authority to reimburse income taxes if necessary, the Secretary-General was authorized, by resolution 358 (IV) of the General Assembly, to advance from the "Working Capital Fund

"(f) Such sums, if any, as may be necessary to reimburse staff members for national income taxes paid by them in respect of payments received from the United Nations during 1950, or in respect of prior years for which reimbursement had not previously been made".

The Secretary-General has not yet found it necessary to make advances from the Working Capital Fund to reimburse staff members for national income taxes paid in respect of 1950 income.

5. The United States has not yet acted to exempt staff members of that nationality from national income taxation, or to provide for a system of offsets against national taxes of payments by the staff under the staff assessment scheme. Consequently, the Secretary-General believes it prudent to request an appropriation while the General Assembly is in session, to permit him to reimburse staff members in respect of taxes imposed on them with regard to their 1950 earnings.

6. Supplementary estimates for the financial year 1950 are being prepared and will be submitted separately. The expenditure under this item during the financial year

1949 was $1,169,522. This expenditure arose primarily as a result of national income taxes levied by the United States authorities. It is anticipated that an expenditure in an amount of approximately $1,117,000 will arise for 1950. However, should some relief from United States taxation be granted later in the year, then the supplementary estimates would be affected accordingly.

7. In order to maintain for another year the Secretary-General's authority to equalize the net salaries of staff members performing similar work, it is proposed that the General Assembly extend to 1951 the authorization to reimburse national income taxes paid by the staff with respect to United Nations income. A draft resolution authorizing advances from the Working Capital Fund for this purpose is attached as annex B.

DRAFT PARAGRAPH, TO BE INCLUDED IN THE RESOLUTION ON THE WORKING CAPITAL FUND

The General Assembly

Resolves that the Secretary-General is authorized to advance from the Working Capital Fund :

Such sums, if any, as may be necessary to reimburse staff members for national income taxes paid by them in respect of payments received from the United Nations during 1951, or in respect of prior years for which reimbursement had not previously been made.

DOCUMENT A/C.5/409 and Corr. 1

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[17 November 1950]

1. In order to meet the expenses of the Organization for the financial year 1950, the General Assembly, by resolution 356 (IV) adopted on 10 December 1949, approved appropriations in the amount of $49,641,773.

2. This total included an appropriation of $8 million for the establishment of a permanent international régime for the Jerusalem area and for the protection of the Holy Places. No expenditures have been incurred so far under this section, and funds required, if any, up to the end of 1950 to carry out General Assembly resolution 303 (IV) could be met from the Working Capital Fund as relating to the maintenance of peace and security. It will therefore be proposed later in this document that the appropriation for Jerusalem be cancelled.

3. If the $8 million specifically provided for Jerusalem is excluded, the budget appropriation approved by the General Assembly for 1950 amounts to $41,641,773. Making allowance both for additional requirements not contemplated in the original budget estimates and for savings during the year, it is estimated that the total requirements for 1950 will be $44,520,773.

4. Accordingly, supplementary estimates are submitted herewith for net additional requirements in the amount of $2,879,000. A sizable part of this amount is due to the $1,117,000 provision being requested for reimbursement of national income taxation paid or to be paid by staff members on salaries and allowances received from the United Nations in respect of the year 1950, in accordance with paragraph 4 (f) of resolution 358 (IV) concerning the Working Capital Fund.

5. The remainder of the supplementary estimates ($1,762,000) is due to various inescapable items of expenditure for which provision was not made in the 1950 budget as approved by the General Assembly. The main items are the additional outlay in connexion with Korea and Libya ($770,000), the extra costs of holding the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council in Geneva ($157,800) in accordance with paragraph (c) of resolution 357 (IV) concerning unforeseen and extraordinary expenses, the unbudgeted expenses incurred by the International Court of Justice in the Colombian-Peruvian Asylum Case under the provisions of paragraph (d) of the same resolution 357 (IV)

($14,500), the costs of holding conferences on tin and grain at Geneva ($74,000), the expenses to be incurred in 1950 as a result of advance procurement of equipment $315,000) for which equivalent amounts will be deleted from the 1951 estimates, and the expenses incurred in 1950 in connexion with the move to the permanent Headquarters ($484,700). As a result of the reductions made in the Secretary-General's original estimates for 1950, only a small fraction of these unforeseen and extraordinary expenses can be covered by surpluses in the existing appropriations.

6. The following Table 1 shows, by section, the original appropriations approved by the General Assembly, the transfers subsequently made under the terms of paragraph 4 (iv) of resolution 356 (IV) and the adjusted 1950 appropriations.

7. Table 2 shows, by section, the adjusted 1950 appropriations, the anticipated net deficits or surpluses and the revised appropriations requested.

8. Annexes A and B present explanations for the deficiencies and savings appearing under the various sections of the 1950 budget.

9. Annex C contains a draft appropriation resolution adjusted, by section, to the new amounts.

10. The following comparison may be made between the original and adjusted obligations of Members with regard to the 1950 budget, excluding the specific provision for Jerusalem under which no expenditures were made :

	Appropriation resolution 356 (IV)	Present draft appropriation resolution
	(In US dollars)
Total appropriation	41,641,773	44,520,773
Miscellaneous income	5,091,740	5,091,740
NET	36,550,033	39,429,033

11. As a result of the changes proposed, the provisions relating to an international régime for the Jerusalem area would be cancelled, and a net additional amount of $2,879,000 would be provided for other purposes. In accordance with the financial regulations, these changes would be reflected in the assessment of contributions for 1951.

ANNEX A

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS

Section 1. The General Assembly, commissions and committees

A review of the status of section 1, The General Assembly, commissions and committees, reveals a probable total deficiency in this section at the end of 1950 amounting to $106,000. This deficiency arises as follows :

(a) A deficiency of $67,000 is expected in the account for contractual printing by the end of the year. A considerable quantity of the official records of the first, second and third sessions of the General Assembly have been printed during the course of the year at a cost of $65,000 and a further quantity will be printed by the end of 1950 at a cost of $30,000. These expenses cannot be entirely absorbed within the existing funds because :

(i) With the introduction of fascicule printing for the official records of the current session of the General Assembly, the printing programme has progressed at a much faster pace than for previous sessions. Hence a larger quantity of printing for the current session will be achieved this year.

(ii) The records and supplements of the current session are averaging 30 per cent larger in terms of pagination than corresponding records of previous sessions.

(b) A deficiency amounting to $7,000 is anticipated in the account for local transportation by the end of 1950. The appropriation for this account was made on the following basis :

	U.S. dollars
61 cars at $20 per 12-hour day for 60 days	73,200
6 buses at $50 per day for 24 days	7,200
Overtime rentals, tolls and miscellaneous charges	3,000
	83,400

However, the actual costs in respect to hired cars are considerably higher than was provided for in the above figures, due to the fact that a large proportion of the delegations are using these cars for more than 12 hours each day. While these additional costs for "overtime" are charged eventually to the delegations, when reimbursement is received, it does not return to this account but is credited to the account "Miscellaneous income". Therefore, in estimating the actual requirements for this year for this account, it is necessary to base them on the total probable cost.

(c) A deficiency amounting to $32,000 is expected in chapter 1, article 1, Travel of representatives, by the end of 1950. The expenditures in this account over the past years have steadily increased in respect of each session of the General Assembly. This increase has been due both to an increase in the number of Member Nations claiming reimbursement of travel expenses and an increase in the number of representatives for whom reimbursement was claimed.

As the above deficiencies cannot be absorbed by surpluses in other accounts in the section, a total supplementary provision of $106,000 is requested for this section for 1950.

Section 6. Investigations and inquiries

The appropriation for section 6 of the 1950 budget, as adopted by the General Assembly ($3,410,200), included $317,300 for the United Nations Commission on Korea, and $251,100 for the Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya. As a result of various unforeseen developments in the course of the year, it now appears that additional provisions in the amount of $570,000 and $215,600 will be required respectively for the Commission on Korea and the Commissioner in Libya. Detailed explanations for these deficiencies are given below.

(a) Chapter VI. United Nations Commission on Korea and United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea

Pursuant to the resolution concerning Korea passed by the Security Council at its 479th meeting on 31 July 1950 (S/1657), the Secretary-General appointed a personal representative with staff, including experts in relief work, for liaison with the Unified Command, observation of the progress of United Nations forces in the restoration of peace and security in Korea, and assessment of requirements for relief and rehabilitation.

The additional sixty-one staff members now employed in Korea consequent to the above circumstances increased the cost of temporary assistance by $90,000 and the cost of travel and subsistence by $170,000. Additional travel expenses amounting to $12,000 had to be incurred for transport of the Commission and the original staff from Seoul to Tokyo, from Tokyo to Pusan, and from Pusan to Seoul after the liberation of the Korean capital. Another $28,000 was required for travel and subsistence of seven observers who have been serving in Korea.

Offices had to be opened in Tokyo and Pusan, and additional offices in North Korea are contemplated. The offices in Seoul require major repairs and new equipment. Expenditures which had not been foreseen for rental and improvement of premises, office furniture and equipment are estimated to total $36,000.

A plane had to be purchased at a cost of $40,000 in order to provide necessary transportation for the Commission members and staff between Tokyo and the various towns in Korea. Costs of operating the plane, including miscellaneous contractual support services, are estimated to reach $80,000 by the end of the year. New motor vehicles were purchased to provide adequate local transportation at an additional cost of $26,000.

The urgency of communications between Headquarters and Korea and the expansion in United Nations activities necessitated additional cable and other communications expenses amounting to $15,000. Additional field and miscellaneous equipment required $18,000. An increase of $5,000 is expected for freight, cartage and express. Insurance costs were increased by $10,000.

At its 294th plenary meeting held on 7 October 1950, the General Assembly adopted resolution 376 (V), which established a new United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea to assume the functions of the Commission which had been in Korea, to represent the United Nations in bringing about a unified, independent and democratic government of all Korea, and to exercise such responsibilities in connexion with relief and rehabilitation as might be determined by the General Assembly. The resolution further provided that the new Commission should proceed to Korea and begin to carry out its functions as soon as possible. The Secretary-General was requested to provide adequate staff and facilities including technical advisers as required, and to pay travel expenses and per diem of a representative and alternate from each of the States members of the Commission. Accordingly, it is estimated that an additional sum of $40,000 will be required in 1950 for travel and subsistence of the members of the new Commission.

The additional requirements explained above are summarized in the following table :

	U.S. dollars
Temporary assistance	90,000
Travel and subsistence of staff	170,000
Travel on official business (Commission and staff)	12,000
Travel and subsistence of observers	28,000
Rental and improvement of premises, office furniture and equipment	36,000
Plane (purchase)	40,000
Operation of plane	80,000
Motor vehicles	26,000
Cables and other communication expenses	15,000
Field and miscellaneous equipment	18,000
Freight, cartage and express	5,000
Insurance	10,000
	530,000
Travel and subsistence of members of new Commission ..	40,000
Total additional requirement	570,000
Original appropriation	317,300
Total estimated expenditure	887,300

Supplementary estimates of $570,000 are therefore submitted under chapter VI, section 6 of the 1950 budget. Of this sum $300,000 is required to reimburse the Working Capital Fund, from which under provisions of resolution 357 (IV), paragraph (a), concerning unforeseen and extraordinary expenses relating to maintenance of peace and security, the Secretary-General had authorized in July 1950 an advance of $300,000 to finance the unforeseen expenditure.

(b) Chapter VII. Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya

When the original estimates were prepared in 1949, the requirements of the newly established office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya were not fully known. It was only after the Commissioner assumed his duties in Libya that deficiencies in the original estimates were found.

The scope of travel and the size of staff required by the Commissioner for the discharge of his functions exceeded those originally envisaged when the budget estimates of $251,000 were submitted. It was learned that the three territories of Libya (Tripolitania, Cyrenaica and the Fezzan) had no administrative ties. United Nations offices had therefore to be opened, not only in Tripoli, but also in Benghazi, the capital of Cyrenaica. An office in Sebha, the administrative centre of Fezzan, is also contemplated. Additional expenses were required for rental of premises ($3,000) and for furniture, fixtures and equipment ($2,800).

In the discharge of his responsibility to assist the Libyan people and the Administering Powers in the establishment of Libyan unity and independence, the Commissioner, with the advice of his Council, asked for technical staff to survey the technical requirements in the fields of agriculture, finance, and economics. To achieve the objective of General Assembly resolution 289 A (IV) concerning Libya, it was necessary to provide legal and technical advisers. It was also found necessary to obtain additional interpreters and translators in order that documents could be reproduced in the Arabic language for the Libyan members of the Council for Libya. The additional staff requirements increased the cost of temporary assistance by $70,000 beyond the appropriated amount. Travel and subsistence for this new staff created an additional requirement of $86,500. A sum of $10,000 was required for salaries and travel of consultants.

The Commissioner and members of the Council and the staff had to travel frequently between Tripolitania, Cyrenaica and Fezzan. The distance between the three territories and the lack of adequate transportation facilities necessitated the chartering of a plane at an additional cost which will reach $33,000 by the end of the year. It was also essential to buy motor vehicles at a cost of about $5,900 to provide adequate local transportation for members of the Council and the staff. Extensive tours had to be made in territories lacking adequate accommodations, and thus an additional $4,400 was required for miscellaneous and field equipment. These additional requirements, totalling 215,600, are summarized in the following table :

	US dollars
Rental of premises	3,000
Furniture and fixtures	2,800
Temporary assistance	70,000
Travel and subsistence of staff	86,500
Consultants	10,000
Charter of plane	33,000
Motor vehicles	5,900
Miscellaneous field equipment	4,400
	215,600
Original appropriation	251,000
Total estimated expenditures	466,600

Supplementary estimates of $215,600 are therefore submitted under chapter VII, section 6, of the 1950 budget.

The aggregate supplementary estimates under chapters VI and VII of section 6 are $785,600. This total can be reduced by $15,600 from overall savings expected from other missions. Hence a supplementary appropriation of $770,000 is requested under section 6.

Section 17. Common staff costs

Authority was granted to the Secretary-General by General Assembly resolution 358 (IV), paragraph 4 (f), to advance funds from the Working Capital Fund for reimbursement to staff members for national income taxes paid by them in respect of payments received from the United Nations during 1950 or in respect of prior years for which reimbursement had not previously been made.

No provision was made in the 1950 original estimates for section 27 for reimbursement of national income taxation paid by United States staff members in respect of payments received from the United Nations during 1950. It was hoped that during 1950 the United States Government would have acted to exempt staff members of that nationality from national income taxation or to provide for a system of offsets against national taxes of the payments by the staff under the Staff Assessment Plan. This action, however, has not yet been taken. A separate report on tax equalization has been submitted by the Secretary-General to the Fifth Committee (A/C.5/398). The Secretary-General proposes that funds necessary to cover the obligations for United States tax reimbursement be appropriated under the 1950 budget.

The expected requirements for United States federal income tax reimbursement in respect of 1950 payments to staff members are $1,024,000. The estimate is based on the expenditures for such tax reimbursement in respect of 1949 salaries and emoluments, adjusted for increases during 1950 in the pay of staff members who are United States citizens. The expected requirement for New York State income tax reimbursement in respect of salaries and emoluments paid during 1950 is estimated to be $93,000. An amount of $1,117,000 will therefore be required for this purpose.

Other minor deficiencies may occur in some other accounts in this section, but these deficiencies can be absorbed by surpluses in other accounts in this section, provided that the Secretary-General may transfer funds between accounts in the section. As no savings are expected to result from these adjustments, this request is for the full amount of $1,117,000 required for the reimbursement of national income taxes. It is understood that this amount will not be available for transfer to any other account in the section.

Section 18. Common services

A review of the status of section 18, Common services, reveals a probable deficiency in this section at the end of 1950 of $78,400. This deficiency arises as follows :

(a) A deficiency of $22,400 is expected in chapter II, article I, Rental of premises. The cost of services provided by local authorities in connexion with the Lake Success premises increased by approximately $15,000 for the year. Also, at the expiration of the lease of the former warehouse, adequate accommodations could be found only at a higher rental.

(b) A deficiency of $26,000 is anticipated in chapter I, article III, Postal services, as the actual expenditures for 1950 are expected to amount to approximately $182,000. Postal expenditures for this year have undoubtedly been influenced by the increased overseas activities of the Organization, but the deficiency is due mainly to under-budgeting in this account for 1950. In 1949, the actual expenditure for this account was $179,811.

(c) A deficiency of $30,000 is anticipated in chapter I, article I, Telephone services. This deficiency is the result of the following factors :

(i) Effective 1 May 1950, the New York Public Utilities Commission approved a general 8 per cent rate increase for telephone services. This rate increase will cause an additional expenditure of $9,000 not provided for in the original appropriation.

(ii) Because of the partial occupancy of the Headquarters in 1950 and the consequent separation of staff between Lake Success and Manhattan, the telephone traffic from Lake Success will increase during the last three months in 1950 in order to maintain contact necessary for daily operations. The additional expenditures estimated in this respect will amount to $5,000.

(iii) "Normal" expenses, although $6,000 less than the comparable figure for 1949, will exceed the budget estimate by $16,000.

Section 18a. Transfer to the permanent Headquarters

This is a special section which is proposed to be established to cover expenditures of a non-recurring nature incurred during 1950 through the move of the Secretariat from Lake Success to the permanent Headquarters in Manhattan. During August and September 1950, approximately 1,000 staff members were transferred to the permanent Headquarters, and by 31 December a further 1,500 will be transferred. These actions give rise to the following unforeseen additional maintenance and service costs :

(a) Temporary assistance

Additional temporary assistance staff are required during 1950 by the Department of Conference and General Services to assist in the special task of preparing the Secretariat to move. Such tasks include the sorting and screening of documentation, both at Lake Success and in the warehouse, to determine what should be moved to the new building and what should be discarded, and the packaging and labeling of equipment, stores, documents and library publications in preparation for transfer. The anticipated expenditures in respect of this staff are expected to amount to $40,000. In addition, extra temporary staff are required by the Buildings Management Service for maintenance and security purposes at the permanent Headquarters. Such staff include eighteen junior guards for security and traffic control, fifteen fireguards, nineteen maintenance men for general maintenance services, and two additional telephone operators. The cost of this staff for the period August to December 1950 is estimated at $60,000. Therefore, the supplementary requirements in this connexion will amount to a total of $100,000.

(b) Telephone services (excluding long distance)

Telephone instruments were installed during August and September in the new building at a total cost of $30,500. The rental charges on these instruments and on the tie lines which had to be established between the permanent Headquarters and Lake Success for the period September to December 1950 would require a further $48,000. Therefore, the total additional expenditures in this connexion will amount to $78,500.

(c) Supplies for maintenance of premises

With the partial occupancy of the Secretariat building in September 1950 it has been necessary to procure expendable miscellaneous supplies for maintenance purposes at a cost of $17,500. In addition, it was necessary to purchase a special fluid for the heating and air conditioning plant at a cost of $12,000. The total expenditures under this heading are therefore estimated at $29,500.

(d) Contractual services for maintenance of premises

It is anticipated that the following expenditures will be incurred in respect to contractual services at the permanent Headquarters for the period September to December 1950 :

	US dollars
Custodial cleaning covering both day and night cleaning	55,000
Elevator operation	39,000
Elevator maintenance	6,000
Window cleaning	5,000
Electrical maintenance	4,000
	109,000

In addition, certain other contractual services were necessary to facilitate the initial occupancy. The cost of these services totalled $15,700 and included such items as the installation of additional fire extinguishers, certain changes in electrical insert requirements, the erection of a temporary wood ramp for the south entrance, the erection of temporary partitions, and the removal and replacement of certain partitions to allow for the installation of office machines and equipment. Therefore, the total anticipated expenditures under this heading for 1950 will amount to $124,700.

(e) Utilities

Expenditures in connexion with light, heat, power and water for the period September to December 1950, incurred through the partial occupancy of the new Headquarters, are estimated as follows :

	US dollars
Electricity	51,000
Steam	22,000
Water	3,000
	76,000

The total additional cost for utilities, therefore, is expected to amount to $76,000.

(f) Miscellaneous supplies and services

The additional expenditures anticipated under this account are expected to amount to approximately $16,000. These expenditures arise largely due to the fact that a considerable quantity of shelving presently being used at Lake Success has to be modified in size and shape so that it can be installed in the new Headquarters.

(g) Freight, cartage and express

The cost of moving 1,000 staff members from Lake Success to the new Headquarters was approximately $30,000. As it is now planned to transfer a further 1,500 staff members by 31 December 1950, the total expenditures under this heading are estimated at $60,000.

Therefore, the total supplementary requirements for 1950 requested for this section amount to $484,700.

Section 19. Permanent equipment

A review of the status of accounts in section 19, Permanent equipment, made at 1 October 1950, revealed a probable deficiency in this section at the end of 1950 of $327,000. This net deficiency results from the following actions taken during the course of the year :

(a) The advance move of part of the Secretariat to the new Headquarters in Manhattan made it necessary to procure in 1950 certain furniture and equipment which had been originally included in the budget estimates for 1951. As it was found impossible to cover the cost through budgetary savings, the Secretary-General obtained the concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in advancing from the Working Capital Fund sums up to $315,000 for this procurement. The details of the procurement and the extent to which the original estimates for 1951 have since been reduced are explained in document A/C.5/385.⁸

(b) With the advance move, it also became necessary to procure certain equipment for the efficient operation of the new building, including fire and safety equipment, a tractor with snow-plough attachment, and miscellaneous maintenance equipment.

The total deficiency of $331,000 resulting from the actions mentioned above can be reduced to $327,000, due to small surpluses in a number of other accounts in this section, provided that the Secretary-General may transfer funds between accounts in this section during the remaining months of this year. Hence the additional funds required for this section for 1950 will be $327,000.

Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva

In order that the budget of the United Nations Geneva Office may reflect the expenditures relating to all conferences and meetings held at Geneva for which provision was not included in the original Geneva budget, supplemental funds in the amount of $125,900 are requested in this section. This request is attributable to the following :

(a) Economic and Social Council

By its resolution 357 (IV) relating to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses, the General Assembly authorized the Secretary-General to enter into such commitments as might be necessary to provide for the expenses for holding a session of the Economic and Social Council in Geneva in 1950, should the Council confirm its decision to hold its eleventh session there. The Council having taken such confirmatory action during its tenth session, the Secretary-General authorized advances from the Working Capital Fund to meet the additional costs of holding the Council's session in Geneva. The actual expenditures were :

	US dollars
Temporary assistance	80,500
Travel and subsistence of staff	73,000
Communications services	2,000
Rental of simultaneous interpretation equipment	1,800
Freight, cartage and express	500
	157,800

The item relating to travel and subsistence of staff is properly chargeable to section 3, Economic and Social Council, commissions and committees thereof, and funds are available from savings in this section to cover the charge. Funds totalling $84,800 to cover the remaining articles need to be provided in section 20.

(b) A further sum of $41,100 is requested as a transfer from section 4 ($9,400) and section 5 ($31,700) to cover expenditures for temporary assistance, cables, freight, and rental of simultaneous interpretation equipment relating to meetings of the Trusteeship Council and the Tin Conference, as these expenditures should properly be included under section 20 (United Nations Office at Geneva). Funds in equal amounts are surrendered under sections 4 and 5.

Section 22. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East

Earlier this year, with the concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, funds totalling $85,000 were transferred to this section to provide for :

(a) The additional costs of a Transport Section set up in accordance with the Economic and Social Council's resolution 270 A (X) ($39,000);

(b) The costs of applying a 10 per cent plus salary differential to compensate for living conditions in Bangkok ($33,000); and

(c) Additional common staff costs amounting to $13,000 in connexion with the additional posts set up during the year.

At that time it was expected that the increased expenditures on official travel ($13,000), overtime ($2,000), communications services ($2,750), stationery and office supplies ($2,650), and other miscellaneous supplies and services ($700) resulting from the decision to move forward the dates of the sixth and seventh sessions of the ECAFE (Council resolution 270 C (X)) could be absorbed in the section. It is now clear that the full requirements of the priority programmes on which the Commission is engaged will not permit of savings to the extent hoped for, and that additional funds will be necessary to cover these items. Consequently, supplementary funds in the amount of $13,000 are requested in this section.

Section 23. Economic Commission for Latin America

The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has already concurred in the transfer of $15,000 from this section on the basis of anticipated savings. It is now apparent that a sum of $6,600 must be restored to the section to permit the initiation, during 1950, of the study on immigration in relation to economic development which was assigned high priority by the Commission at its third session (E/CN.12/191)⁹ and subsequently by the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session (resolution 301 (XI)). This study will be carried out in conjunction with the International Labour Organisation and the agencies concerned, and the amount requested is to cover costs of a working party set up by the Commission. Restoration of an amount of $6,600 is accordingly requested in this section.

Section 27. The International Court of Justice

In accordance with Article 36 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice, the Government of Colombia requested the International Court of Justice to deal with the Colombian-Peruvian Asylum Case. The Court began the oral hearings on 16 September 1950. As neither of the Parties to this case had a judge of its nationality upon the Bench, both Parties had proceeded to choose a judge as provided in paragraph 2 of Article 31 of the Statute of the Court.

In accordance with General Assembly resolution 357 (IV), paragraph d (i), the Secretary-General has authorized withdrawals from the Working Capital Fund to cover commitments relating to expenses occasioned by the designation of ad hoc judges. The total expenditure involved is now estimated at $14,500 for this year.

In accordance with paragraph 4 (b) of General Assembly resolution 358 (IV) on the Working Capital Fund, the Secretary-General has now to make provision in the budget estimates for reimbursing the Working Capital Fund. As no surpluses are expected in this section, the Secretary-General now proposes that the full amount of $14,500 be appropriated under the 1950 budget to reimburse the Working Capital Fund.

ANNEX B

SURPLUSES SURRENDERED

Section	US dollars	Section	US dollars

4. The Trusteeship Council, commissions and committees	9,400	As already stated in paragraph 2 of the present report, no expenditures in respect of this section have been made to date, and it is the Secretary-General's intention to finance all necessary expenditures which might occur in connexion with Jerusalem and the Holy Places during the remainder of 1950 through withdrawals from the Working Capital Fund as related to the maintenance of peace and security. Maintenance of the budgeted amount is therefore not required.
This amount may be surrendered as a result of the proposed transfer to section 20, United Nations Office at Geneva, of temporary assistance, cable, freight and rental of simultaneous interpretation equipment charges on account of the Geneva session of the Trusteeship Council. DOCUMENT A/1583

Twenty-fourth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[2 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the supplementary estimates for the year 1950 submitted by the Secretary General in document A/C.5/409.

2. The gross total of the items comprising these supplementary estimates is $3,043,100.

3. The Secretary-General anticipates savings of $164,100 on the original 1950 budget of $41,641,773,¹⁰ and accordingly requests an additional appropriation of $2,879,000.

4. As regards the amount of $8 million appropriated under General Assembly resolution 356 (IV) of 10 December 1949 for the establishment of a permanent international régime for the Jerusalem area, the Advisory Committee concurs in the proposal of the Secretary-General that since no commitments have so far been entered into for this purpose and no call for payment has been made on Member States, the appropriation for 1950 should be cancelled.

5. On the details of the supplementary estimates, the Committee offers the following observations:

(i) Section 6. Investigations and inquiries

The following estimates have been submitted:

	US dollars
(a) Chapter VI, United Nations Commission on Korea and United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea.	570,000
(b) Chapter VII, Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya.....	215,600

	US dollars
Trusteeship Council, sixth session (part of expenses)	9,400
Conference on Tin	31,700

As regards Korea, the Advisory Committee, while not proposing a reduction in the present estimate, considers that there is scope for substantial economy during 1951 in various accounts, and particularly in those relating to the operation of a chartered aircraft, the purchase of motor vehicles and the travelling and subsistence expenses of staff members. For this purpose, it appears desirable to the Committee that a high official of the Secretariat should be assigned during the coming year to make a thorough inspection of the offices of the United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea, the United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan, and possibly other United Nations missions, in order to satisfy himself that the expenditure is under adequate control and that administrative arrangements are not in excess of actual requirements.

In its twelfth report of 1950 (A/1479)¹¹ on the 1951 estimates for the Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya, the Advisory Committee suggested that in view of the rate of expenditure during the first nine months, the revised figure for 1950 ($466,600) might prove to be an over-estimate.

The above supplementary estimates under section 6 amount to a total of $785,600, against which offsetting savings of $15,600 are anticipated on other chapters. The Committee accordingly recommends a supplementary appropriation for section 6 of $770,000.

(ii) Section 17. Common staff costs

Authority was granted to the Secretary-General by paragraph 4 (f) of General Assembly resolution 358 (IV) of 10 December 1949 to advance funds from the Working Capital Fund for the purpose of reimbursing staff members for national income taxes paid by them in respect of payments received from the United Nations during 1950 or in respect of prior years for which reimbursement had not previously been made.

The Secretary-General proposes that the necessary provision for such reimbursement should be included in the 1950 budget, and the Committee accordingly recommends a supplementary appropriation of $1,117,000 for section 17.

(iii) Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva

The Secretary-General has requested a supplementary provision of $125,900 (including $41,100 surrendered under sections 4 and 5), to cover the following expenses :

	US dollars
Economic and Social Council, eleventh session (part of expenses authorized under General Assembly resolution 357 (IV), paragraph (c)).	84,800

During October 1950, the Advisory Committee concurred in the transfer of $34,000 to section 20 in connexion with an ad hoc meeting on grain to be held for an estimated period of five weeks. The actual duration of the meeting was one week, and some savings are likely to accrue on this account.

Subject to the above reservation, the Committee recommends a supplementary appropriation of $125,900 for section 20.

(iv) Section 27. The International Court of Justice

The Secretary-General has submitted a supplementary estimate of $14,500 for the reimbursement of advances made from the Working Capital Fund, under the terms of General Assembly resolution 357 (IV), paragraph d (i), in respect of allowances paid to ad hoc judges.

The Committee, while recommending the above estimate for approval, desires at the same time to point out that savings may result on chapter II (Salaries, wages and expenses of the Registry) of this section through an appropriate adjustment of the salary differential. Pending the completion of a cost-of-living survey at The Hague, a provisional rate of minus 15 per cent has been applied, since 1 January 1950, to the salaries of the Registrar and the permanent staff. In view, however, of the fact that the result of the survey indicates that the cost of living at The Hague is approximately 32 per cent lower than at Headquarters, early action should, in the opinion of the Committee, be taken in this matter.

(v) The Committee also recommends for approval the following supplementary estimates :

Section	US dollars
1. The General Assembly, commissions and committees	106,000
18. Common services	78,400
a. Transfer to permanent Headquarters ...	484,700
19. Permanent equipment	327,000
22. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East	13,000
23. Economic Commission for Latin America..	6,600

6. In its report on the 1950 budget estimates (A/934, paragraphs 143 and 158),¹² the Committee recommended that no transfers should be made between accounts within section 17 or section 19. In accordance with a request by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/409, annex A), the Committee proposes that this restriction should now be removed.

7. Subject to the above observations, the Advisory Committee recommends that the draft appropriation resolution attached as annex B to the present report should be approved.

DOCUMENT A/1677

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[12 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 275th meeting held on 5 December 1950, considered the question of supplementary estimates for the financial year 1950. The Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/409 and Corr.1), together with the twenty-fourth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1583), which had reviewed the estimates as submitted by the Secretary-General.

2. The gross total of the items comprising the supplementary estimates amounted to $3,043,100. The Secretary-General, however, anticipated savings of $164,100 on the original 1950 appropriation of $41,641,773 (exclusive of $8,000,000 for the establishment of a permanent international régime for the Jerusalem area), and, accordingly additional requirements for which a supplementary appropriation was sought were limited to an amount of $2,879,000. As regards the amount of $8,000,000 appropriated under General Assembly resolution 356 (IV) of 10 December 1949 in connexion with Jerusalem, the Advisory Committee concurred in a proposal of the Secretary-General that, since no commitments had so far been entered into for this purpose and no call for payment had been made on Member States, the appropriation for 1950 should be cancelled.

3. Of the total supplementary provision requested, an amount of $1,117,000 was required for reimbursement of national income taxes paid by staff members in respect of income received from the United Nations during 1950 or in respect of prior years for which reimbursement had not previously been made. Provision for such reimbursement was requested by the Secretary-General in accordance with paragraph 4 (f) of resolution 358 (IV) relating to the Working Capital Fund for 1950. The position regarding tax reimbursement was the subject of a separate report made by the Secretary-General to the Fifth Committee (A/C.5/398). The remainder of the supplementary estimates ($1,620,000) was stated by the Secretary-General to be due to various inescapable items of expenditure for which provision had not been made in the 1950 budget as approved by the General Assembly; the main items comprise : additional outlay in connexion with Korea and Libya ($770,000); the extra costs ($157,800) of holding the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council in Geneva (this expenditure having been met by an advance from the Working Capital Fund in accordance with the authorization granted by the General Assembly at its fourth session); the unbudgeted expenses ($14,500) incurred by the International Court of Justice in the Colombian-Peruvian Asylum dispute under the provisions of paragraph (d) of resolution 357 (IV); the costs of holding conferences on tin and grain at Geneva ($74,000); the expenses to be incurred in 1950 as a result of advance procurement of equipment ($315,000) for which equivalent amounts will be deleted from the 1951 budget estimates; and the expenses incurred in 1950 in connexion with the move to the permanent Headquarters ($484,700).

4. The Fifth Committee took note of the fact that the Advisory Committee, while not proposing a reduction in the supplementary appropriation requested for the United Nations Commission on Korea, considered nevertheless that there should be scope for a substantial economy in 1951 on various accounts and, particularly, in relation to the operation of a chartered aircraft, the purchase of motor vehicles, and the travel and subsistence expenses of staff members. The Fifth Committee therefore concurred in the suggestion of the Advisory Committee that for this purpose it would be desirable for a high official of the Secretariat to be assigned during the coming year to make a thorough inspection of the offices of the United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea, the Mission to India-Pakistan, and possibly other United Nations missions in the field in order to satisfy himself that expenditures are under adequate control and that administrative arrangements are not in excess of actual requirements.

5. It was also noted that, in the opinion of the Advisory Committee, the revised figure for 1950 in connexion with the United Nations mission in Libya might prove to be an over-estimate and that in the case of the amount of the supplementary provision recommended for section 20 (United Nations Office at Geneva) the fact that the ad hoc meeting on grain was of considerably shorter duration than anticipated should lead to certain savings on this account. Finally, the Advisory Committee, while recommending approval of a supplementary appropriation for the purpose of reimbursing advances made from the Working Capital Fund in respect of allowances paid to ad hoc judges of the International Court of Justice, pointed out that savings might result in chapter II of section 27 (Salaries and Expenses of the Registry) through an appropriate adjustment of the salary differential. In this connexion, attention was called to the fact that, pending the completion of a cost-of-living survey at The Hague, a provisional rate of minus 15 per cent had been applied since 1 January 1950 to the salaries of the Registrar and the permanent staff of the Court. In view of the fact, however, that the result of the survey indicated that the cost of living at The Hague was approximately 32 per cent lower than at Headquarters, the Advisory Committee was of the opinion that early action should be taken in this matter.

6. In reply to a question raised by the representative of Brazil, it was stated, on behalf of the Secretary-General, that any expenditure which the United Nations might be called upon to incur in future in connexion with the General Assembly resolution concerning the establishment of a permanent international régime for the Jerusalem area could be met from the Working Capital Fund, although it was anticipated that this matter would be reviewed by the General Assembly at its current session and that the financial implications of any new decision taken would in due course be considered by the Fifth Committee.

7. The representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics expressed the objection of his delegation to the provision of funds for reimbursement of national income taxes on the grounds that this expenditure was properly chargeable to only a few and that, since the adoption by the United Nations of a staff assessment plan, ample time had elapsed for the Member States concerned to make appropriate arrangements in the matter. The U.S.S.R. representative stated further that, for reasons which had been given in the First Committee, it would be necessary for his delegation to vote against the supplementary appropriations requested under section 6 in connexion with the United Nations Commission on Korea and the Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya.

8. The Fifth Committee accordingly agreed to take separate votes on these particular items with the following results :

9. The Advisory Committee's recommendation for a supplementary appropriation of $770,000 under section 6 was adopted by 34 votes to 4, with 1 abstention.

10. The Advisory Committee's recommendation for a supplementary appropriation of $117,000 under section 17 (in respect of reimbursement of national income taxes) was adopted by 31 votes to 4, with 4 abstentions.

11. The remaining supplementary appropriations, as recommended by the Advisory Committee, were approved unanimously.

12. The draft resolution as a whole, as proposed by the Advisory Committee (Annex B of A/1583), with the deletion of paragraph 4 thereof, the inclusion of which, it was pointed out by the Chairman of the Advisory Committee, had been rendered unnecessary as the result of the adoption of new Financial Regulations, was then approved by 36 votes to 4.

13. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

Survey of the effectiveness of the programme of public information

[Original text : English]
[27 September 1950]

INTRODUCTION

1. During the discussion of the budget for the Department of Public Information in the Fifth Committee at the second session of the General Assembly (1947), the request was made that the Secretary-General should make a special survey of the results of the programme of public information and report to the third session of the General Assembly.¹ Such a survey was made and presented to the third session of the General Assembly (1948) through document A/C.5/223, dated 18 September 1948.² In addition to the report on the effectiveness of the Department's work and the results reached, this document also contained, as an annex, the recommendations of an Advisory Committee of Public Information Experts. A special report on the activities carried out jointly with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to promote teaching on the United Nations in Member States and territories was also attached.

2. Although no official request for a special survey of this part of the Secretariat's work has subsequently been made during the following sessions of the General Assembly, it has been felt that a similar up-to-date summary of the present work of the Department of Public Information, and the results achieved, would be useful, in addition to the explanations given in the printed budget estimates, which by necessity must be very brief.

3. The Department of Public Information has therefore prepared the following special survey of the United Nations programme of public information, as of 1 June 1950.

4. Furthermore, and in compliance with suggestions made during the first session of the General Assembly in 1946 (resolution 13 (I)) the Department has, with the approval of the Secretary-General, convened a number of regional expert advisory groups on public information which have met during the months of March, April and May, 1950, at the United Nations Information Centres in the various regions of the world. For technical reasons, it did not prove possible to call such committees in all areas which are presently covered by the Centres, but a series of most valuable suggestions and recommendations have been received and are now being studied by the Department.

General remarks

5. During its four years of operations, the Department of Public Information has been constantly guided by resolution 13 (I) adopted at the first session of the General Assembly (1946) at its 31st meeting which said, in part :

"... that the United Nations cannot achieve the purposes for which it has been created unless the peoples of the world are fully informed of its aims and activities".

6. The first task of the Department was to establish services and facilities for the representatives at Headquarters of existing outside information agencies, on whose co-operation the first Expert Advisory Committee (1945-46) had recommended that the Department should primarily rely. A comprehensive machinery for this purpose was created in 1946 and 1947 and has since been consolidated. Detailed information on these services is given below. The fact cannot be denied, however, that independent outside coverage of United Nations activities still remains limited. The reasons for this are many and complex, but the main causes, besides the general political situation, seem to be the distances, expenses and currency problems involved.

7. The second task which the Department was authorized to undertake, namely that of providing supplementary services, particularly to regions outside the Headquarters area, has therefore become considerably more important than was anticipated at the outset. In 1947-48, the emphasis in the United Nations public information programme was shifted to this task of supplying supplementary material to the public through all information media and other recognized channels throughout the entire world in a maximum number of languages. The larger part of the Department's efforts are now geared in this direction, as shown later in this survey.

8. Today it can be said that an international machinery capable of undertaking a world-wide dissemination of public information on the United Nations has been firmly established and is carrying out its mandate according to the policy laid down by the General Assembly.

9. The methods employed in the work may, of course, vary in accordance with the circumstances prevailing in the various areas. But the general pattern adopted was framed to meet the main requirements of most regions, and it has therefore been possible to prepare the Department's activities and go through with its plans in a determined way, particularly over the last two years.

10. Essential roles in the execution of the Department's policy and in the fulfilment of its tasks, especially with regard to their world-wide character, are played by its Radio Division and the Information Centres, of which special mention should be made. In collaboration with the national broadcasting systems of Member States, the Radio Division has developed extensive services in some thirty languages, ranging from brief news summaries to full feature productions, for the use of networks and independent broadcasting stations in these countries, the majority of which are now co-operating actively with the Department in this respect. From the figures given later in this report, it can be derived that the listeners to the United Nations radio programmes must now be counted in hundreds of millions. The demand for these objective reports on United Nations aims and activities has, in fact, grown to an extent which it is difficult to satisfy fully. As to the Information Centres, sixteen such offices or sub-offices are functioning as of this date, with two more to be opened during 1950. Requests for information material of all kinds coming in to the Information Centres have increased to such an extent that priorities have had to be established, in accordance with each region's most urgent needs. The Centres are manned by small staffs and the workload is correspondingly heavy. It may be noted that the demand for services is not less in areas with especially well-developed information media. In fact, the reverse has proved to be the case. On the other hand, there are still regions which are not yet covered by any Centre. It is proposed that this be remedied gradually, as such further consolidation of the network of Information Centres undoubtedly would serve the interests of the Organization.

11. It remains the policy of this Department first of all to render services to what are called the "re-disseminators" of public information. This, it is felt, will in the long run encourage the feeling of responsibility toward the United Nations of the existing outside information media. At the same time, and as a necessary supplement, the Department has endeavoured to provide model types of fully-finished information material, in the media of radio, films, visual aids and publications. These independent, internationally objective and comprehensive productions have proved to be very popular, and have, it is felt, no doubt served to promote a more enlightened discussion of United Nations affairs. The aim of the Department is to stimulate a similar approach by outside information agencies, as far as possible. United Nations productions of this nature have been widely accepted, as exemplified by the special professional recognitions cited in chapter II, and are now brought to the public in practically all Member States through regular public information outlets.

12. Special efforts have continuously been made to enlist direct support and assistance in the dissemination of information by non-governmental organizations and other private groups. Not only the various United Nations Associations, but also a great number of other organizations with very large memberships, have joined in this work. Although the servicing of these groups has put new and heavy burdens on the various divisions, these new outlets have been most welcome, since the steadily growing demand for objective information material on the United Nations could not otherwise be met. The Department is therefore doing its utmost to try to have this system of voluntary helpers constantly expanded. Special mention may be made of the number of voluntary speakers groups and educational centres for the United Nations which have been established in many areas of the world.

13. The administrative and budgetary framework of the Department, as authorized by the first, second, third and fourth sessions of the General Assembly, has made it possible to create the machinery herein described, which is capable of taking care of the most urgent needs within the public information programme. The amount allocated for this purpose has remained approximately the same from year to year. The limitations which have been imposed do, of course, lead to the exclusion of many possibilities and potentialities which could otherwise have been exploited in the interest of the Organization. It is recognized, however, that present financial circumstances do not allow for any substantial expansion. The Department has therefore concentrated on improving the quality of its output so as to achieve a greater impact with the same resources. At the same time, the demands facing the Department have never ceased to grow. While this in itself is a most heartening proof of the steadily increasing interest and faith in the United Nations on the part of the peoples of the world, it also creates practical problems which the Department can only hope to overcome by the greatest ingenuity in the use of funds and staff at its disposal. In this connexion the work of stimulating the distribution of information material through sales may be mentioned. The revenue in 1949 from the sales of publications was $U S 165,000. It is estimated that the revenue from sales in 1950 will reach $200,000, and in 1951, estimates have been set at $230,000. Revenues from the distribution of films, photos and discs are estimated for 1951 at $66,000. Figures for the revenue for the years 1949 and 1950 were modest due to the fact that contractual arrangements were concluded only in late 1949.

14. In the following chapters is presented a summary of the manifold activities presently being carried out by the Department of Public Information.

I. PRESS AND PUBLICATIONS BUREAU

1. The Press and Publications Bureau, which is the central production unit of the Department of Public Information, has concentrated in the past year on improving and expanding the international scope and effectiveness of its activities. It has increased the global usability of its information material on the United Nations by producing more material in the languages of specific regions and selected for specific markets.

2. The extension of the Bureau's work has been achieved without diminishing any existing services, among which those to press correspondents accredited to Headquarters continue to form a major part.

3. Organizationally, the development of the Bureau's work has been made possible, despite a slight reduction in staff compared with the previous year, by greater co-ordination and fuller mobilization of the Bureau's language and geographic resources in its two main units: Central Information and News Services, and Publications and Periodicals Services. A major organizational change has been the establishment of the Regional Services, in which are grouped special language desks for preparing copy in French, Spanish and Arabic, and the Information Centres Desk.

4. At the United Nations Headquarters, the Bureau provides extensive services and facilities to assist correspondents in all information media to report fully, accurately and rapidly on all United Nations activities. With very few exceptions, all meetings of United Nations organs are open to the correspondents; all documentation is immediately available; office space is provided for those working on a full-time basis; direct contact with delegations and Secretariat executives and experts is encouraged and assisted; Press summaries of all meetings are immediately issued by the Bureau; regular and special Press conferences for the Secretary-General, other United Nations officials and delegations are arranged; frequent oral "briefings" are provided; liaison officers are always available to answer queries, supply information, arrange interviews, etc. Advance texts of important statements and speeches are issued whenever possible. Similar services are provided by the Geneva Information Centre concerning the United Nations activities at the European Office of the United Nations at the Palais des Nations.

5. In the early part of 1950 there were accredited to the United Nations Headquarters 400 Press correspondents from forty countries representing 200 newspapers and agencies. In addition there were eighty radio correspondents from thirteen countries representing twenty radio stations and networks, and ninety-four still photographers, six newsreel companies with a combined staff of sixty cameramen and technicians, and three television newsreel companies staffed by fifteen cameramen and technicians. Every major international news agency is among those represented as well as many important national agencies and newspapers but many other national news agencies and important newspapers in countries outside the United States are not. A little over half of the accredited correspondents serve United States agencies and papers. Dollar shortages, excessive cable costs and newsprint shortages are the three factors chiefly responsible for this somewhat disproportionate representation. Nevertheless, more than 10,000 newspapers all over the world are served in one way or another by the agencies represented and as much as 100,000 words of copy a day have been filed by cable and telegraph from Lake Success. Eighty-seven permanent correspondents representing sixteen different countries are accredited in Geneva, as well as three permanent radio correspondents and several photographers. Every major international news agency is represented in Geneva.

6. The provisions of the Headquarters Agreement between the United Nations and the United States relating to access to the United Nations Headquarters of accredited representatives of information media continue to be applied. Provisions for the families of accredited representatives of information media are under discussion with the United States authorities. At the same time, close liaison has been maintained between the Bureau and the United Nations Correspondents Association, and through the Geneva Information Centre with the United Nations Correspondents Association at the Palais des Nations, Geneva.

7. Coverage of all United Nations meetings and other activities is the main function of the Central Information and News Services of the Bureau. This is only part of the service the Bureau renders to correspondents at Headquarters; it enables the Bureau to fulfill its other important function of providing the whole Department with the basic news file for use in other media—radio and visual—or in other printed form and other languages as feature articles, publications and pamphlets.

8. Some 2,500 meetings were held at Headquarters last year. Press releases were prepared on all of these. For the more important meetings running stories are issued while the meetings are still in session. A short summary is added to the running "takes" immediately at the end of the meeting. Individual correspondents and news agencies who are unable to cover more than one or two meetings a day at best, depend on these summaries, as does the News Desk of the United Nations Radio Division. A total of 1,195 meetings was held at the Palais des Nations in Geneva during 1949 and 780 Press releases were issued by the Geneva Centre.

9. In addition to covering Headquarters activities, the Bureau handled more than 1,000 cables from Information Officers assigned to United Nations missions in the field, Information Centres responsible for covering United Nations activities in their areas, and specialized agencies. Members of the Bureau's staff have served with Commissions in the Balkans, Kashmir, Korea, Indonesia, Palestine, Libya and Eritrea. In all cases, they have not only acted as "foreign correspondents" for the Bureau but have been responsible for Press relations on the spot and for disseminating information to the correspondents covering the activities of their particular missions in the field, as well as introducing DPI services to many information channels not previously reached.

10. Background material, "round-ups", summaries of important reports, advance texts of speeches by representatives and feature material are included in the releases issued by the Bureau, the total of which for the twelve months ending in April 1950 was 4,300.

11. The number of Press conferences and oral briefings has been higher than in previous years. Many delegations and specialized agencies have availed themselves of the Bureau's facilities for arranging Press conferences at United Nations Headquarters. Background briefings on both an individual and a collective basis are part of the daily routine.

12. Because so many activities of the United Nations are of interest to specialized information media not normally reached by the general Press agencies, the Bureau has made a beginning in building up lists of trade and technical publications to receive, on a request basis, Press releases and other material on subjects in their field. So far 665 such releases have been sent to economic, industrial, travel, medical and other technical publications. Care is taken not to duplicate any similar mailings by the specialized agencies. In other cases, individual requests have come from publications, asking either for special articles to be supplied or for the raw material on which the journal's own staff could write an article. In the first half of 1950, twenty-two such special requests were met. It is the Bureau's intention to develop this side of its activities as much as possible.

13. All news releases, as well as being issued at Headquarters in mimeographed form, are also transmitted over the Bureau's teletype service to thirty-two subscribers. These include some delegation offices as well as newspaper and news agency offices. The cost to subscribers is limited to the installation and servicing fee charged by the New York Telephone Company.

14. To meet the requirements of correspondents at Headquarters, as well as for the Department's own internal needs, temporary teletype circuits have been set up between Geneva and Lake Success to permit speedy receipt of the Geneva Centre's coverage of sessions of the Trusteeship and Economic and Social Councils.

15. Reference has already been made to the regrouping of the Regional Services unit of the Bureau. This has resulted in a more effective two-way traffic between the Centres and Headquarters, and particularly in supplying the Centres—the main re-disseminators of United Nations information away from Headquarters—with more material in a form suitable for use in the regions served by the Centres. To compensate for the inability of the Centre's small staffs to process for their own media the complete file of Headquarters releases, the Bureau now provides the Centres with a "Daily Report" which is a brief but comprehensive summary of the day's Headquarters news plus short feature material. Except during General Assembly sessions, the Daily Report is at present limited to English; but all the material is combed for news of particular interest to French, Spanish or Arabic-speaking regions, and prepared in these languages by the appropriate desks which comprise the Regional Services. On special occasions like United Nations Day, United Nations Scientific Conference on the Conservation and Utilization of Resources, or special reports, like Major Economic Changes, the language resources of the entire Department are drawn upon for preparing copy and as many as twenty different language versions have been produced. This does not include the languages utilized by the Centres themselves.

16. Apart from saving the time of the Centres, the Daily Report has saved $400 to $500 per month in mailing costs, since a number of Centres find they can rely on the Report to replace the complete production of Press releases. Regionally important releases are, of course, provided in all cases, and some of the larger Centres with reference facilities continue to get a complete file. The Centres are also provided by Regional Services with a running interpretative account of developments at Headquarters as guidance in handling inquiries from Press, radio and non-governmental organizations in their areas. To enable the Centres to reach individual specialists in various topics on which the United Nations is active, documentation guides to United Nations sessions and analysis of the resolutions resulting from such sessions are also prepared for the Centres.

17. Outstanding in the year's developments of the Bureau's activities has been the transmission of a weekly summary of United Nations information by Morse code in English, French and Spanish. This summary is monitored by the regional Centres, by United Nations missions in the field and directly by a number of newspapers in Latin America. Reproduced and distributed at the receiving end, the Morse summary is being published in newspapers in the United States, Scandinavia, France, Brazil, Honduras, Mexico, Guatemala, Ecuador, Chile, the United Kingdom, the Near East, India and North Africa among others.

18. An important vehicle for reaching the medium and smaller newspapers not represented at United Nations Headquarters is the Weekly News Features prepared by the Features Section of the Bureau. This is a five-column "clipsheet" (Reproduction of selected cuttings) printed weekly in three languages: English, French and Spanish. Danish, Norwegian and Swedish versions of the same material are produced by the Copenhagen Information Centre and distributed with matrices and plastic plates furnished from Headquarters. Additional editions of the clipsheet in Arabic, Portuguese and Turkish are being launched in June 1951. Illustrations are furnished to editors in matrices, plastic plates or glossy prints. Circulation of the clipsheet is limited to newspapers that have requested it after being offered it on a trial period. Over 9,000 newspapers and magazines in forty Member countries with a total circulation exceeding 100 million copies, use this service. The English edition goes to 4,103 papers; the Spanish to 1,815; the French to 1,175. The stories are of the feature type aimed to bring out the significance of United Nations and specialized agency accomplishments.

19. Special feature lay-outs in as many as twenty languages are prepared and distributed from time to time. How extensive is the range of such productions is shown by the fact that the last lay-out was reproduced in many hundreds of newspapers in the United Kingdom, Scandinavia, Turkey, India, Pakistan, the Netherlands, Africa, Indonesia, the United States, Canada, Mexico, Brazil, Venezuela, Colombia, Chile and South-east Asia, among others. Following their use by newspapers, additional proofsheets of the picture lay-outs were distributed for exhibition purposes in schools, institutions, information centres, and public places in various parts of the world.

20. The Features Section is also responsible for the production of the United Nations Reporter, an eight-page monthly intended primarily for members of non-governmental organizations and educational institutions. This is printed by an outside firm. The paid circulation for the English edition in the United States and Canada was 45,000 in May 1950. In addition, Scandinavian and Dutch editions have been launched under local sponsorship without cost to the United Nations. A Spanish edition is scheduled to appear later this year, and a French edition is under preparation.

21. The United Nations Bulletin is issued semi-monthly and is aimed especially at editors, writers, radio commentators, teachers, governmental officials and others in a position to influence public opinion on international affairs. There are three language editions: English, French and Spanish. Arrangements are in progress for the early publication of a Russian edition. Preliminary arrangements have been made for offset printing in Paris of the English edition for distribution to English-speaking countries outside North America, and for the Spanish edition to be printed in Mexico City. These technical changes will result in considerable savings in production and mailing costs.

22. In early 1950 the combined circulation of the English, French and Spanish editions was 24,000, of which almost half was sales circulation. Sales circulation has increased considerably during the past two years.

23. Two annual publications, the official Yearbook of the United Nations and Everyman's United Nations, are issued by the Bureau. The Yearbook is the standard authoritative work on the Organization, running to more than 1,000 pages. It is published in English by contract with a commercial publishing firm. An edition in French was produced in 1948 and another French edition is planned for 1950. Everyman's United Nations is a much shorter, more popular and less expensive yearbook. Both these publications in the English editions are proving to be self-supporting.

24. Other publications of the Bureau include Basic Facts, a simple booklet published in the five official languages and in seven other languages as well. Several other language editions are in preparation. A folder entitled The United Nations - What It Is, What It Does and How It Works has been issued in more than twenty languages. A series in Reader's Digest size and averaging sixteen pages each has been published on the work of the United Nations for human rights, for dependent peoples, for children, for the status of women, etc. New titles are added to the series as required, and most numbers are issued in English, French and Spanish, several in Russian and Chinese, and some in other additional languages.

25. The Research Section of the Bureau, which is responsible for the preparation and writing of the Yearbook, Everyman's United Nations and Basic Facts, also produces a series of information and reference papers, mainly in mimeographed form. Over sixty papers in this series have already been issued. The Research Section also deals with inquiries and checks material for libraries, publishers and educational institutions.

26. The Bureau has helped either in the sponsoring or in the writing of books dealing with the United Nations and published by outside houses or institutions, such as Peace on Earth, a symposium of twelve studies on various organs and activities of the United Nations by outstanding United Nations personalities; What You Will See at the United Nations, a popular illustrated guide, and studies on United Nations questions issued by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the Rockefeller Foundation and the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

27. A member of the Bureau's staff serves as Chairman of a special inter-departmental Working Party for publicizing the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The Bureau's own contribution to this task has included the preparation of authoritative translations of the definitive text of the Declaration in thirty-three languages. More translations are in hand. Two million copies of the Declaration have been distributed, in inexpensive format. Our Rights as Human Beings is the first title in a series of United Nations discussion guides on achievements of the Organization in important fields. A comprehensive survey of international action in the field of human rights, up to the adoption of the Universal Declaration, is in preparation and will be published shortly under the title These Rights and Freedoms.

28. Throughout 1949, the Opinion Survey Section issued a weekly survey of opinion on the United Nations expressed in Press and radio of Member countries. This survey was circulated to delegations and the Secretariat, non-governmental organizations, the Press, educational leaders, speakers, etc. In all some 2,000 copies were thus distributed weekly. However, in accordance with the budgetary decisions of the fourth session of the General Assembly³ when the appropriation for this section of the DPI budget was rejected, the survey was discontinued. The last survey was issued on 27 December 1949.

II. RADIO DIVISION

1. The last two years have seen a considerable development in the activities of the Radio Division of the United Nations. United Nations programmes are now heard throughout the world, and thirty Member States of the United Nations rebroadcast United Nations programmes on a daily basis. Those countries which, for technical reasons, are difficult to reach by direct broadcast, are being increasingly serviced with transcribed programmes, and during the year 1949 United Nations radio has laid particular emphasis on its service to countries with limited national informational resources.

2. Together with its own output, United Nations Radio provides transmission facilities to accredited radio correspondents from national broadcasting systems to cover United Nations activities at Headquarters or wherever meetings are being held all over the world. In 1949 and 1950, United Nations Radio broadcast programmes in twenty-nine languages: the five official languages of the United Nations—English, French, Chinese, Russian and Spanish—and Afghani-Persian, Amharic, Arabic, Burmese, Czech, Danish, Dutch, Greek, Hebrew, Hindi, Icelandic, Indonesian-Malay, Italian, Norwegian, Persian, Polish, Portuguese, Pushtu, Serbo-Croat, Swedish, Tagalog, Thai, Turkish and Urdu. Programmes have also been transmitted to Member States over the facilities of The Voice of America, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the British Broadcasting Corporation, Radiodiffusion française, Société suisse de radiodiffusion and by transmitters at Tangier, and from time to time via radio transmitters in other countries. Response to United Nations broadcasts has been very encouraging. The Radio Division has all along placed the main emphasis on providing programmes for relays by national radio systems rather than on creating a shortwave listening audience. Nevertheless, it receives an average of 1,000 to 1,200 letters per month from listeners from all over the world.

3. Throughout 1949 United Nations activities in the field have been increasingly reported in the United Nations radio programmes with the co-operation of the Information Centres and United Nations field missions. Radio-telephone links have been established with Geneva, London, Paris, Havana, Panama City, Sao Paulo and Montevideo; the Netherlands, Swiss and Italian Broadcasting systems have co-operated with United Nations Radio to transmit shortwave material back to Headquarters.

4. During sessions of the General Assembly the proceedings of important meetings are broadcast every day in the morning and afternoon by shortwave to Europe and the Middle East, as well as locally in the New York area. The meetings are covered by bilingual commentators who introduce the meeting in English and French and give explanatory comments and a résumé at the end of the meeting, thus enabling national radio networks, news agencies, individual newspapers and the public at large to follow directly the full proceedings, wherever they are. During the balance of the year, the broadcasting of meetings is reduced and greater emphasis is placed on the preparation of documentary and feature programmes in the languages of Member States. All meetings of the Security Council are, however, broadcast throughout the year.

5. The output of the Radio Division is handled by four regional sections: the English-speaking region, the European and Middle Eastern service, the Trans-Pacific service, and the Latin-American service. A radio News Desk linked with the Central Editorial Services of the Department assures full broadcasting coverage of all meetings and supplies basic material for programmes in all languages. The work of the Division is co-ordinated by a central production unit under the Director.

European and Middle Eastern service

6. During 1949, the European and Middle Eastern Region has broadcast regularly in fifteen languages: Amharic, Arabic, Czech, Danish, Dutch, French, Greek, Hebrew, Icelandic, Persian, Polish, Pushtu, Russian, Serbo-Croat and Turkish, with daily broadcasts throughout the year in Arabic, Dutch, French, Greek, Hebrew, Icelandic and Pushtu, which have been rebroadcast by domestic networks in the countries concerned, as well as material in Danish and Norwegian. Broadcasts in Czech, Persian, Polish, Russian, Serbo-Croat and Turkish have been transmitted daily to the Member nations concerned, and have been recorded and extensively used as a source of United Nations news. During the fourth session of the General Assembly a special news bulletin in Italian was broadcast daily, since Italy was directly concerned with the discussions on the former Italian colonies. Special features and documentary programmes, talks, interviews and statements by members of national delegations were broadcast direct or sent by transcription to national radio organizations for rebroadcast over domestic networks.

7. The French Section has prepared many feature programmes for the use of Radiodiffusion française, the Institut national belge de radiodiffusion, Radio Luxembourg, Radio-Canada, Station 4 VRW in Haiti, Société suisse de radiodiffusion and other French-language stations throughout the world, which have been rebroadcast regularly in the countries concerned.

8. A special five-minute programme is now broadcast every day by shortwave from Headquarters at Lake Success to Paris and is relayed direct over the Paris-Inter network in France (fourteen stations in the major cities). A five-minute programme is broadcast every day to Radio-Saigon. This is rebroadcast in Indo-China, and is also heard by French-speaking listeners in other areas of the Far East. A seven-minute programme is broadcast daily to Haiti and the Caribbean area in general. This programme is relayed direct every day by Radio Port-au-Prince.

9. The French Section works in close contact with the Geneva Information Centre. The programme for Paris-Inter originates in Geneva when United Nations activities of particular interest to France are taking place there. In addition, a ten-minute news bulletin on the United Nations activities in Geneva is broadcast daily in French and English over shortwave from Geneva, and a weekly programme is broadcast on Radio-Genève. During the fourth session of the General Assembly a daily three-minute programme was broadcast by direct relay over Radio-Canada. During the balance of the year this programme is broadcast once a week.

10. A one-half hour United Nations programme in Russian is broadcast daily throughout the year from Lake Success; it is directed to the Moscow Radio but is monitored as well by the Information Centres in Moscow and Warsaw, and used as the basis for information emanating from the Centres. Excerpts from speeches by representatives of the Soviet Union have been sent by transcription to Moscow together with other material and have been welcomed by the U.S.S.R. Radio Committee.

11. A special news programme in Danish is broadcast via Canadian Broadcasting Corporation transmitters once or twice a week and is rebroadcast in Denmark.

12. The daily bulletin in Dutch is rebroadcast by the Netherlands Radio Unie at a peak listening time in the evening and is rebroadcast the following morning. Response to this broadcast, which has now been established for over two years, continues to increase.

13. Special programmes on Charter Day (26 June), United Nations Day (24 October) and the anniversary of the Declaration of Human Rights (10 December), were prepared in many languages of the European region and rebroadcast over national networks or stations.

14. Facilities for radio correspondents and members of delegations from Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, Iceland, Israel, Norway, the Netherlands, Sweden and Yugoslavia have been provided during sessions of the General Assembly and throughout the year to broadcast dispatches to their national radio organizations. Similar facilities are put at the disposal of radio correspondents in Geneva.

15. The output in the national languages of the Middle East has increased considerably throughout 1949 and 1950. A daily fifteen-minute programme in Arabic is broadcast from Headquarters. In addition, a five-minute summary in Arabic is now transmitted daily and rebroadcast by station Sharq-el-Adna. During the sixth session of the Trusteeship Council in Geneva (January-April 1950), a fifteen-minute programme was prepared in co-operation with the Geneva Information Centre and broadcast direct from Geneva to the Middle East. Daily broadcasts in Amharic, Pushtu, Persian and Turkish are transmitted by shortwave from Headquarters, and throughout 1949-50 the bulletins in Amharic and Pushtu have been relayed by Radio Addis Ababa and Radio Kabul when reception has made this possible.

16. Throughout the year special programmes on various aspects of the United Nations, in Afghani-Persian, Arabic, Persian and Turkish are sent by transcription to radio stations in the Middle East for rebroadcast over domestic stations. These programmes have been extremely well received and widely used. In addition, interviews, talks and statements by representatives have been broadcast by shortwave and sent by transcription direct to the Middle East. Facilities have been placed at the disposal of radio correspondents from the Middle East, and particularly during the Assembly session they have broadcast regularly to their national networks. Close contact is maintained with the Information Centre in Cairo, and with the Eastern Mediterranean regional office of the World Health Organization. Considerable publicity for United Nations broadcasts in newspapers and periodicals in the Middle East has indicated the value attached to these services. The meetings of the Commission on the Status of Women held in Beirut were widely covered by the Lebanese Radio with United Nations assistance.

17. Special feature programmes on United Nations subjects, talks, interviews and statements by representatives in Czech, Danish, Dutch, Hebrew, Icelandic, Norwegian, Polish, Serbo-Croat and Swedish have been sent by transcription to national networks in the countries concerned and have been broadcast by domestic radio systems. During the sessions of the Trusteeship Council, the daily bulletin in Hebrew originated from Geneva. This programme for Israel is rebroadcast daily by The Voice of Israel in Jerusalem.

Latin American service

18. Throughout 1949 the Latin-American service has broadcast two hours daily by shortwave to Latin-American countries. Recently these programmes have been extended to two-and-a-half hours broadcasting time. Two hours are broadcast in Spanish, fifteen minutes in Portuguese for Brazil, seven minutes in English for the Caribbean area and seven minutes in French for Haiti, Martinique and other French-speaking areas in the Caribbean. Radio stations in eighteen Member countries rebroadcast United Nations programmes on a daily basis. Throughout 1949 the Latin-American region has developed a transcription service supplying 230 stations with recorded programmes. Major feature programmes on the work of the United Nations and specialized agencies have been produced throughout the year. In addition, four regular weekly series are broadcast direct and sent by transcription to stations throughout Latin America.

19. A script service is maintained by the Latin-American section. A weekly roundup of news is sent to fifty stations and in addition stations are serviced with feature scripts, especially prepared background material, etc. By relay and rebroadcast the Latin-American service has an average of 700 hours monthly on the air in its region.

20. Close contact is maintained with United Nations Information Centres and national radio systems in countries where United Nations activities are in progress. In co-operation with the Information Centres in Paris and Geneva, dispatches in Spanish have been broadcast by circuit from sessions of the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, the Economic Commission for Europe and the World Health Organization.

Trans-Pacific service

21. During 1949 the Trans-Pacific service has continued its regular daily broadcasts by shortwave in Burmese, Chinese, Hindi, Indo-Malay, Tagalog, Thai and Urdu. The programmes in Tagalog, Thai and Urdu have been rebroadcast on a daily basis in the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan, respectively. In addition to these broadcasts, short bulletins in English, French and Dutch are also broadcast in the Pacific service to the Far East. To reach India and Pakistan, a new service was tried by the use of a circuit to London, with rebroadcast from London to India and Pakistan via the British Broadcasting Corporation.

22. During recent sessions of the General Assembly time was placed at the disposal of the Indian and Pakistani delegations to broadcast dispatches back to their own countries. Throughout 1949 the Trans-Pacific service has laid emphasis on the sending of transcribed programmes to the countries in this region, since short-wave broadcasting presents many technical difficulties. At present, various new alternative ways are being explored to provide a really satisfactory service to Radio Pakistan and All-India Radio.

23. Co-operation with broadcasting authorities in the Philippines has been particularly successful. Not only the Tagalog, but also the English programme is relayed daily in the Philippines. All-India Radio and Radio Pakistan have received many feature programmes, talks, interviews, and statements by representatives in English as well as in Urdu and Hindi, and these have been rebroadcast over domestic networks.

24. Close contact has been maintained with the Information Centre in New Delhi, which has worked successfully with All-India Radio in stimulating programmes on the United Nations. Special programmes in all languages of the Trans-Pacific region have been prepared and sent by transcription on such subjects as United Nations Day, the work of the World Health Organization, the Declaration of Human Rights, genocide, etc.

English-speaking region

25. A major priority of the English region is the creation of feature programmes for adaptation in other languages as well as for production in English. A major series of six programmes, two one hour in length and four one-half hour in length, was prepared by the English region in the autumn of 1949. This series, broadcast during the six weeks leading up to 24 October, United Nations Day, was carried coast-to-coast in the United States and Canada by the National Broadcasting Company and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and transcriptions of the series were widely distributed through the British Broadcasting Corporation, the Australian Broadcasting Commission, the New Zealand Broadcasting Service, the South African Broadcasting Corporation, All-India Radio, Radio Pakistan, and several other English-language stations throughout the world.

26. Two Billion Strong. This half-hour documentary programme was broadcast every week for thirteen weeks over the American Broadcasting Company in the United States and sent by transcription to many English-language stations all over the world. Each programme in this series dealt with one specific aspect of United Nations affairs. This series was repeated in revised form in the latter part of 1949 at the request of the American Broadcasting Company.

27. Memo from Lake Success. This quarter-hour programme is broadcast every week over the CBS network (ninety-six stations) in the United States and the Trans-Canada network in Canada which covers particular aspects of the United Nations and specialized agencies activities. The programme is also prepared in a special recorded version for airmailing to South Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

28. The United Nations Today. This quarter-hour review of United Nations activities is broadcast five days a week over approximately 175 stations in the United States and Canada. It includes highlights of meetings, with the recorded voices of representatives as they speak on the floor of the conference rooms, interviews with United Nations personalities and eminent visitors and reports of meetings transmitted by circuit and shortwave from other parts of the world.

29. UN Story. This quarter-hour programme of a more informal nature is sent every week by transcription to 350 independent stations in the United States and Canada.

30. UN Album. This quarter-hour programme is sent every week by transcription to English-language stations throughout the world. This programme includes interviews and statements from officials of the United Nations and the specialized agencies and experts in political, social and economic fields.

31. In all, 1,500 stations in the United States carry at least fifteen minutes a week of United Nations programmes.

32. Close contact is maintained with the United Nations Information Centre in London. All programmes for the United Kingdom are routed through the Centre for submission to the BBC, and the BBC frequently requests United Nations material through the Centre.

United Nations events, such as the signing of the Dutch-Indonesian Agreement in The Hague, have been covered by telephone circuits from London by the staff of the Centre.

33. Broadcasts of United Nations programmes by both the Australian Broadcasting Commission and independent networks in Australia have been stimulated throughout 1949 by the Information Centre in Sydney. Two Billion Strong and Memo from Lake Success are carried every week over domestic stations in Australia.

34. The Information Centre in Geneva broadcasts daily news bulletins in English and French covering all United Nations activities in Geneva, and by means of Telephone circuits the meetings of the Economic and Social Council, Trusteeship Council, Economic Commission for Europe, World Health Assembly and other United Nations bodies have been fully covered in broadcasts from Headquarters. The Information Centre in Geneva, in co-operation with the specialized agencies which have their headquarters there, such as the World Health Organization, the International Refugee Organization and the International Labour Organisation, has also made recordings of interviews and statements by representatives throughout the year for transmission to United Nations Headquarters as well as to national networks.

35. A special bulletin of background information on the United Nations is sent from Lake Success to 2,500 women broadcasters in North America. Script material is sent out at regular intervals to English-language stations throughout the world.

36. In the first half of 1950 two new major series of programmes have been inaugurated: (1) A series of one-hour documentaries under the title The Pursuit of Peace, on the Mutual Network in the United States, and (2) A series of half-hour documentary and dramatic feature programmes on the National Broadcasting Company network in the United States. Both these series are carried in Canada and the programmes are also sent by transcription to the British Broadcasting Corporation, the Australian Broadcasting Commission, the New Zealand Broadcasting Service, the South African Broadcasting Corporation and other major English-language stations.

37. Facilities have been provided for radio correspondents and members of delegations to broadcast back to their national organizations. The BBC maintains a permanent correspondent at Lake Success throughout the year, and a team of six was sent over during the General Assembly to cover the fourth session.

38. Constant liaison is maintained with television broadcasters and many programmes about the United Nations have been stimulated, including "live" television coverage of the General Assembly, with television kinescopes being supplied to the United States as well as to other countries. With the growing importance of television in a number of Member States, all developments in this field are carefully watched and all pertinent opportunities used to have information on the United Nations disseminated also by this new medium.

United Nations Day

39. On United Nations Day, 24 October 1949, the ceremony of the laying of the cornerstone of the new Headquarters building in New York was covered in all broadcasts of United Nations Radio. On-the-spot descriptions of the scene were broadcast to all parts of the world in thirty languages. United Nations Information Centres throughout the world were responsible for stimulating special broadcasts in Member nations. These included statements by heads of States, ministers and prominent United Nations officials. A special programme translated into many languages was prepared in advance, and sent by transcription to radio organizations of the Member States for rebroadcast on United Nations Day. Over 5,000 radio kits of background material on United Nations Day were sent on request to radio stations in all parts of the world.

First Anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights

40. On 10 December 1949, the first anniversary of the signing of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was celebrated by the holding of a concert in Carnegie Hall in New York, to which the General Assembly was invited. This concert was arranged and produced by the United Nations Radio Division, in co-operation with UNESCO. Eminent artists from many countries took part in the celebration (Sir Laurence Olivier, Yehudi Menuhin, Leonard Bernstein, the Boston Symphony Orchestra and the Collegiate Chorale). Addresses were given by Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Chairman of the Commission of Human Rights, Ambassador Carlos P. Rómulo, President of the fourth session of the General Assembly, and Mr. Trygve Lie, Secretary-General of the United Nations. The programme was broadcast throughout the United States and Canada, televised in the United States, and also broadcast with Spanish commentaries to Latin America. Transcripts were sent to radio stations around the world.

41. In 1949 United Nations Radio was awarded several of the highest radio awards in the United States. The programme provided for the National Broadcasting Company both the Peabody award and a first award from the Ohio State Institute for Education by Radio, for contribution to international understanding; the Columbia Broadcasting System Memo from Lake Success broadcasts received a special award in the public affairs classification; and Eleven Memory Street received the first award for the best one-time broadcast of the year from the Ohio State Institute for Education by Radio.

III. FILMS AND VISUAL INFORMATION DIVISION

Films

1. Prior to 1949 the Films Division produced a series of films totalling fifteen which would serve not only to explain what the United Nations was, what its objectives were, and how it was founded on the necessity of international co-operation, but also to serve as prototypes for producers who might be induced to make similar films. These films are still in distribution, demonstrating their durable value. Most of the prototype films were produced under contract in different countries.

2. At the beginning of 1949 the film production programme entered a new phase with a shift in emphasis to what the United Nations is doing and why. The growth of field activities undertaken by the United Nations and the specialized agencies made it possible to initiate a long-range production plan at the beginning of 1949 which provided for extensive film coverage in the field, with the material flowing into Headquarters for different types of production use. The history-in-the-making nature of the material lends itself to the development of a new type of film production known as the UN Screen Magazine, which is treated in a topical fashion without sacrificing long-term usefulness. Since each issue consists of up to four subjects, it is possible not only to present at one time a broad view of the Organization's activities, but also to include material that interests many different types of audiences. These characteristics of the Screen Magazine have resulted in the possibility of reaching larger audiences. Consequently the film production policy now provides for making as many Screen Magazine subjects as possible during the year, and the reduction of individual documentary films to two per year on subjects whose importance and nature require fuller treatment than is possible in the Screen Magazine.

3. The distribution of United Nations films is arranged by utilizing existing channels, commercial, non-commercial and governmental. These arrangements are negotiated directly from Headquarters or, wherever possible, by the Information Centres on the spot. In spite of the variation in film distribution practice from country to country, and even within countries as between the theatrical and non-theatrical distribution, a simplified system of distribution has been achieved in a number of countries by the Information Centres, with guidance and assistance from Headquarters. In France, for instance, principal figures in the film field established a co-operative society to assume responsibility for distributing United Nations films throughout France, while in the United Kingdom a rota system was developed whereby each major distributor takes a United Nations film in turn.

4. While increased distribution has been achieved, this has been accomplished without commensurate increase in budget requests. This result is being obtained in two ways: first, by negotiating as many distribution contracts as possible with an established distributor who can undertake the entire responsibility in his territory, thereby permitting DPI to concentrate on developing distribution in areas lacking a well-organized and well-financed distribution system; secondly, by encouraging as many distributors as possible to make language versions at their own expense, thus securing a larger number of language versions without additional cost. An example of this latter procedure is found in the Scandinavian countries, where distributors have made a total of ninety versions of United Nations films in the different Scandinavian languages.

5. Headquarters and the Centres in their territories supplement the distribution arrangements by actively publicizing and promoting the exhibition of United Nations films, not only through theatres but also through organizations and educational institutions. The constantly increasing distribution of United Nations films is a measure of the response of audiences to these efforts. During 1949 and the first half of 1950 the following United Nations films were in active distribution:

Battle for Bread;
Maps We Live By;
The People's Charter;
Searchlight on the Nations;
Clearing the Way;
Defense of the Peace;
First Steps; Men of Good Will;
Tomorrow Begins Today;
UN at Work;
Eternal Fight;
Green Gold;
That All May Learn;
The Sea, My Native Land.

This is the United Nations: Screen Magazine No. 1: "General Assembly Acts to Make Jerusalem International Area"; "ICAO: 'Under ICAO, 25 Weatherships Promote Safety at Sea'"; "Nations Fight T.B.—25 Million Children Tested"; "East and West Unite in Voting Aid to Under-developed Countries".

Screen Magazine No. 2: "President Romulo Urges Accord on Atomic Energy"; "Unique Method of Interpretation at UN Meetings"; "UNICEF Helps Feed 6 Million Children, Clothe 2 Million".

Indian Villages series: (1) Mother; (2) Child; (3) Community: (For restricted distribution only to social workers, etc.)

In addition a few films that had not yet been released to the general public during 1949 were shown to large audiences at film festivals in Edinburgh, Cannes, Venice and Markanske Laznc (Czechoslovakia).

6. Reports on distribution are received from the Information Centres and from the distributors themselves. These reports show that during 1949 the films listed above were seen by over 120 million persons. The following figures show the estimated audiences reached through regular film distributors:

Country	Non-Theatrical	Theatrical
Australia	257,000	nil	257,000
Burma	750,000	250,000	1,000,000
Canada	250,000	nil	250,000
Norway, Denmark and Sweden	1,000,000	250,000	1,250,000
India	1,000,000	7,000,000	8,000,000
New Zealand	500,000	2,000,000	2,500,000
Latin America	500,000	1,500,000	2,000,000
United Kingdom	2,000,000	10,000,000	12,000,000
United States	18,000,000	2,000,000	20,000,000
Israel	250,000	750,000	1,000,000
Thailand	250,000	nil	250,000
Union of South Africa	250,000	nil	250,000
Iceland	250,000	nil	250,000
Malaya	50,000	nil	50,000
			49,057,000

An additional estimated 72 million persons saw United Nations films which were distributed by Information Centres for official showings, particularly through loans to non-governmental organizations, as well as by viewings of prints supplied to Member States. This figure covers the following countries: Argentina, Austria, Brazil, China, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Ethiopia, France, Italy, Korea, Liberia, Netherlands, Philippines, Poland, Saudi Arabia, Switzerland, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Virgin Islands, West Africa, West Indies.

Aside from this distribution, the films First Steps, Mother, Child and Community are being widely distributed by the Department of Social Affairs to specialized audiences in the field of social welfare.

8. An increasingly important part of the efforts to disseminate United Nations information through the medium of films is the stimulating of film production by governmental or independent film producers at little or no cost to the Organization. Assistance is given in the form of research material, treatments, scripts, ideas for films and raw stock. The production resulting from these activities supplements the necessarily limited production by the Organization. An important part of this phase of film work is the distribution of footage from the United Nations Film Library to producers, largely on request. In 1949 a total of 45,065 feet was furnished to thirty-nine producers for use in productions for release to world audiences through normal channels of theatrical and non-theatrical distribution.

9. Arrangements are constantly made over the year for newsreel coverage of United Nations meetings and activities at Headquarters as well as events in the field. Such coverage was particularly heavy during the second part of the third session and the fourth session of the General Assembly. Considerable coverage by the newsreel companies was arranged for the celebration of United Nations Day. The Information Centres were instrumental in obtaining such coverage in a number of countries in Europe, Central and Latin America and India. Coverage in the United States of America was arranged directly by Headquarters. Supplementing commercial newsreel activity, the United Nations camera unit shot 48,906 feet of newsreel material which was distributed to the following countries: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Chile, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Ecuador, Egypt, France, Haiti, India, Lebanon, Mexico, Netherlands, Pakistan, Poland, Philippines, Sweden, South Africa, United Kingdom, United States of America, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

A programme of special interviews with representatives has been started and has met with a gratifying response. Twenty-three representatives were interviewed on film during the fourth General Assembly and this material was sent to the following countries: Bolivia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Israel, New Zealand, Panama, Peru, Philippines, South Africa, Sweden, Uruguay.

The Information Centres are also arranging newsreel coverage of United Nations events within their territories.

10. The growth of television has resulted in a steadily increasing number of requests for United Nations newsreel film material for use on television news programmes, requests which the Department has tried to meet to the best of its ability.

Visual information

11. A new policy and programme for production and dissemination of photographs and graphic materials which was initiated in 1948 has resulted in increasing distribution possibilities. In the first years of the Organization, the photographic coverage was of a spot-news nature and photographs were distributed on a routine basis, largely as a service to other departmental media and services and to the world Press. The spot-news nature of this material was a restriction on the use of this medium as a channel for information. While maintaining this type of coverage, emphasis has since been given to the development of various types of visual aids and the use of the photo-story technique, which is particularly adapted to presenting information about the widening field activities of the Organization in pictorial form. Supplementing the limited staff resources of the Visual Information Section, a world panel of still photographers has been organized during the first half of 1950, thereby making it possible to draw on the services of professional free-lance photographers all over the world who, although not members of the Secretariat, accept and carry out assignments for the United Nations. While the panel cannot fully meet all the needs of the United Nations, it is proving a satisfactory method of keeping down costs while providing material which had hitherto been unobtainable, and thereby widening the use of this valuable pictorial medium as a channel of information.

12. The Department has constantly intensified its use of the picture-story technique to inform newspaper and magazine readers, the world over, about the work of the United Nations. It has released an average of twenty-four full-length photographic features annually since 1948, not to mention a variable number of short features, regional and special features, etc. It has maintained a daily photo-service to picture syndicates and other redistributing agencies, as well as to United Nations Information Centres, during sessions of the General Assembly. Picture-stories dealt with a wide range of subjects in 1949, from the mediation of the Kashmir conflict to the training of social workers in rural India, and each of them reached millions of readers, as evidenced by the figures given below. In an effort to rationalize further its operations in this field, the Department has recently instituted a new distribution system for its photographic features, with the threefold objective of (a) intensifying and broadening their use in the world Press; (b) providing an accurate yardstick for appraising results; and (c) narrowing the possibility of waste by releasing photographs with the best possible assurance of publication. Under this system, glossy prints are mailed out to those who have indicated their desire to use the material by completing and returning order forms to Lake Success. The first photo-sheet offered to the Press under this experimental scheme brought in requests from forty-three countries for the actual photographs, and at this writing subsequent mailings have shown proportionally high returns from every corner of the globe. Publications in North, Central and South America which requested photo-feature No.1 represent an aggregate circulation of well over 25 million copies. To this aggregate figure must be added the total circulation of newspapers and magazines which requested the photo feature from United Nations Information Centres and commercial picture syndicates, bringing the over-all readership of one single United Nations photo release to an estimated 40 million. In the task of distributing United Nations photographs to newspapers and magazines, the Information Centres are responsible for ensuring that regional conditions are fully taken into account. Areas where no centres exist at the present time are serviced directly from Headquarters. In addition, the Department has enlisted the active co-operation of commercial picture syndicates, both international and regional, further to strengthen its distribution network. Non-governmental organizations also played a valuable part in opening new and specialized outlets for the United Nations photographs.

13. During the last two years, the DPI Photographic and Visual Information Section has also processed an ever-increasing volume of requests for United Nations photographs from editors, publishers, film-strip producers and other re-disseminators of information. In 1949, the figure reached a high of 33,000 photographs, most of which found their way into print (in newspapers, magazines, specialized publications, encyclopedias, etc.) or to the screen (animated films and film strips).

14. In the same way, spontaneous requests for United Nations visual exhibits have increased steadily since 1948. Budgetary limitations, however, have not allowed the Department to comply with all these requests. Sometimes, therefore, it is not possible to assist the non-governmental groups in their active efforts to redistribute visual information about the United Nations. To compensate partially for this, photographs in wall pictorials suitable for exhibition purposes, and special sets of photographic enlargements that could be shown successively in a number of towns and cities, have been prepared. This service, still limited in scope, has nevertheless proved extremely valuable as a complement to the Department's stimulation efforts in the field of visual information. Many commercial and non-commercial organizations have produced visual displays about the United Nations in 1949, at their own expense, using as their material the model visual aids supplied by the Department.

15. By special authorization of the Secretary-General, a United Nations exhibition was designed and constructed for the International Exposition of Port-au-Prince, Haiti, to acquaint the local population and a large number of visitors from all parts of the world with the activities of the Organization and, most particularly, with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

16. Another function of the Films and Visual Information Division is the stimulation of independent photo-reporting on United Nations activities and events. This responsibility is carried out through constant liaison with accredited press photographers and correspondents stationed at Lake Success. The files of the Photo Library are easily accessible to them, and every means is used of encouraging production of pictorial features by the outside Press.

17. Film strips are acknowledged to be among the most effective teaching aids of our time. During 1949, thirteen United Nations film strips received world-wide distribution. Film strips are not released to individuals for private use, but on request only to government services, non-governmental organizations, schools and study groups, civic and religious bodies, etc. They deal with subjects which, by their very nature, lend themselves to group discussion and lead to a better, more thorough understanding of the United Nations and its problems. Eighty-two countries, including Non-Self-Governing Territories, have requested and received film strips, either directly from Headquarters or from the Information Centres. Such is the demand for United Nations film strips from different parts of the world that steps have been taken by the Department to produce versions in a number of non-official languages, some prepared by the Films and Visual Information Division, others prepared entirely by outside agencies at no cost to the United Nations. The following breakdown shows how film strips were distributed in 1949 :

18. The United Nations Information Centres have increased their activities in the field of visual information during the past two years. They have acted as redistribution agencies for picture-stories and other photographic productions, devising in each case a distribution system that would take into account local needs of the Press, editorial practices, reading habits, etc. In some countries, e. g. the United Kingdom, United Nations photo releases are published as exclusives by leading pictorial magazines on a rota basis. In most other countries, the Centres have adopted the method of simultaneous releases with a large measure of success. The Centres are also responsible within their respective areas for the distribution of photospreads, wall pictorials and other visual aids, for the booking of photographic exhibitions, and for the distribution of United Nations film strips. In addition to these distribution responsibilities, the Centres have co-operated with Headquarters in recruiting members for the World Panel of Still Photographers and, as a rule, they have supervised photo assignments in their respective territories. They have also been very active in stimulating the use of United Nations visual material by independent information organs. As an illustration of this point, the Copenhagen Centre concluded an agreement with a Norwegian agency for the production of United Nations film strips in Norwegian, at no cost to the Organization, and steps have already been taken to conclude similar arrangements in other countries.

IV. SPECIAL SERVICES

1. Much progress has been achieved in the past two years in developing public understanding of the United Nations in various parts of the world through non-governmental organizations and educational channels. Non-governmental organizations provide a unique ready-made system through which their own membership, which runs into the hundreds of millions, and large sections of the general public can be reached. Educational institutions likewise provide a channel through which teachers and students at all levels can learn about the United Nations and spread the knowledge and understanding so gained.

2. Development of enlightened understanding through these two media is essentially a partnership activity. Non-governmental organizations and teachers in schools and colleges, in almost every Member nation, are anxious to play their part to ensure that their own governments make full use of the opportunities for peaceful co-operation which the United Nations affords. They must, therefore, be supplied with information materials in forms suitable for their use—simple expositions of how the United Nations works, and accurate facts about its activities and the problems which face it. Given proper tools, it is difficult to over-estimate the importance of the contribution which personnel in these media can make and are anxious to make to the spread of understanding about the United Nations and the promotion of enlightened support.

Working with non-governmental organizations

3. Realizing their responsibilities, non-governmental organizations in increasing numbers have been taking fundamental policy decisions, followed by concrete steps to put the principles into practice, on the subject of disseminating understanding about the United Nations.

4. Of the more than 350 international and 1,800 national organizations in seventy-eight countries with which the Department is in contact, nearly all include regular explanatory reports on current activities of the United Nations in their bulletins and journals. More important, perhaps, from the point of view of the development of public understanding is the fact that a large proportion have also produced special booklets or courses of study in different languages, designed to help their members and the general public to obtain a balanced picture of how the United Nations works and what it can achieve—even beyond that which has been achieved to date.

5. Many of the larger organizations, in addition to the production of special publications, have regular radio programmes on the United Nations. Others have produced their own visual materials, such as charts, posters, and filmstrips on United Nations subjects.

6. Almost all the organizations with which the Department works participated in the observance of United Nations Day, working together in committees and individually, arranging, special broadcasts, organizing essay contests, and providing film showings and special lectures.

7. Many organizations have devoted a special part of their annual conferences to consideration of some aspect of the work of the United Nations; others have given particular attention to working with students and school children or helping in the training of teachers and adult education leaders.

8. As its contribution to these services, the Department maintains contacts with a large number of the organizations through their resident observers at Headquarters and with the rest by correspondence. Regular conferences of international organizations are held—sometimes at Headquarters, and sometimes at other centres, as convenient—to find new ways of working together. In addition, regional conferences for the same purpose, combining representatives of international organizations and national organizations from groups of Member countries, have been held in Europe, Asia, and Latin America.

9. In a growing number of Member countries, national committees of non-governmental organizations have been formed with the express purpose of facilitating and co-ordinating their work on the national and community levels and developing public understanding of the United Nations, both among their members and throughout the general public.

10. In 1950, as many as sixty international organizations and 141 national organizations maintained observers at Lake Success. All dispatched regular news and feature bulletins for meetings and publications of their organizations. In addition to coverage by these observers, 27,614 of their members were brought to Headquarters during 1949 to see for themselves the United Nations at work. Over 4,000 a month have come during the first half of 1950.

11. By means of an international essay contest for younger members of non-governmental organizations, selected individuals are brought to United Nations Headquarters each year from Member countries for a month's first-hand study of the United Nations. In 1948 and 1949, young contest winners visited the United Nations from Belgium, Chile, Costa Rica, Denmark, France, Greece, India, the Netherlands, Pakistan, Poland, the United Kingdom and Uruguay.

Working through educational agencies

12. Progress in the promotion of teaching about the United Nations through schools and colleges is bound to be slow. Education is a national concern closely associated with tradition. Before action is possible, contacts have to be developed, not only with metropolitan authorities but often also with independent local authorities, boards of examiners, and even individual educational leaders. Nevertheless, if the process is slow, the potentialities of the medium are great.

13. To date, more than forty Member States include teaching about the United Nations in one form or another in their school or college curricula and are served in various ways by the Department. In thirty-seven Member countries so far, the majority of schools have observed United Nations Day and made it either the culmination of, or the starting point for, an appropriate course of studies.

14. As in the case of non-governmental organizations, so with educational institutions: personnel is anxious to co-operate, but needs assistance. To supply such help, the Secretariat has developed the following activities.

15. Volunteer educational centres. The United Nations has encouraged the setting up of what are called "Volunteer Educational Centres for the United Nations" and supplies them with appropriate and inexpensive informational materials and teaching aids. These centres, which to date have been developed mainly in teacher-training institutes, maintain reference collections which are open for consultation by teachers and pupils. Many reproduce material for redistribution and are active in the preparation of outline lessons and courses. Approximately 150 such centres have been established so far in nineteen countries.

16. Contacts with educational leaders and textbook writers. The Secretariat has encouraged visits of educational leaders and textbook writers, supplied them with materials, and helped them plan courses and write articles and textbooks. Following such visits, many new activities in the field of teaching about the United Nations have been initiated, and many existing school texts have been modified and new texts written in different languages.

17. Voluntary correspondent speakers. To meet the need for public lecturers and adult discussion group leaders, the Secretariat has set up and serves with appropriate information materials a network of Voluntary Correspondent Speakers Units (VCSU's). To date, over 250 such units have been established and are being helped by the Department in forty-five countries.

18. Educational seminars and conferences. To stimulate the interest of teachers in world affairs and their presentation in the classroom, the Secretariat has arranged or taken an active part in seminars organized by UNESCO, local educational agencies and non-governmental organizations. During the past year, sixteen seminars have been held in thirteen Member countries and assisted by the supplying of background information and examples of teaching aids. Where possible, members of the Secretariat of the United Nations have personally participated in their activities.

19. Publications. One of the key problems in developing teaching about the United Nations is the provision of materials which can be used by teachers and students. Clearly, however, it would be neither desirable nor possible for the Secretariat to attempt to produce guides for teachers and textbooks for students for all Member nations.

20. The Department has found, however, that it can help in two ways: (a) by the supplying of background information to textbook writers in different countries and (b) by the preparation of "sample" texts which local authorities can reprint and adapt for national use. During the past year, the Secretariat in co-operation with the Publication Service has produced seven such sample texts in various language editions; already, several national adaptations and editions have been produced in Member countries.

21. Other teaching aids. In addition to the activities described, special broadcasts, films, filmstrips, and other visual aids are prepared for the special use of schools.

22. Helping those who come to the United Nations to see for themselves. The Secretariat encourages visits to Headquarters of members of non-governmental organizations, teachers, writers, students or the general public and provides special facilities for them. During the past year, nearly 600,000 persons visited Headquarters.

23. Visitors fall into three categories—those who already have a background understanding and who come to attend meetings, those who come for one special day of study, and those who wish to conduct prolonged studies and may spend weeks and even months at Headquarters. To meet the needs of the first group, there is an Admissions Officer charged with the responsibility for booking and seating the general public at meetings. During the year, this unit handled more than 400,000 reservations for over 1,000 separate plenary, commission and committee meetings.

24. To meet the needs of the second group, a system of "briefings" (short lectures) and film showings has been arranged, as well as attendance at meetings and guided tours. Assisted by a volunteer unit, nearly 700 groups totalling more than 200,000 such visitors were given special briefings, film showings, and guided tours during 1949-50.

25. For the more serious students in the third category, special lecture courses and seminars are arranged. Some are the full responsibility of the United Nations itself; some are arranged in co-operation with major universities in the vicinity. Several of these courses, which include addresses from leading United Nations officials, group discussions, conferences and visits to United Nations meetings, are part of graduate programmes of studies on the United Nations and world affairs. Allied with this activity, the Department helps various universities and colleges to organize summer courses on the United Nations, including, where possible, visits to Headquarters. During the past year, 141 such courses and institutes were held, attended by some 25,000 advanced students, teachers in training and lecturers. In addition, 1,200 individual government officials, Press groups and other public leaders from many countries were received and briefed on the United Nations and attended meetings.

26. By various devices, these facilities are made available as far as possible to teachers and students from all Member nations. Efforts are also made to contact the 25,000 students from various Member countries who come to universities and colleges in the United States for various purposes: special facilities are provided for them so that they may take advantage of the opportunity to come and study the United Nations before their return home. Furthermore, the United Nations has a system of "internship" under which selected persons with special interests in the field of the United Nations are brought to Headquarters, given special courses of training, and learn about the United Nations by working in the Secretariat for periods of three months' duration.

27. The Special Services Division is responsible for all visiting groups that come to the United Nations Headquarters. It allocates the tickets to meetings and arranges briefing programmes and motion picture showings for the general public, as well as more highly specialized or technical programmes for educational groups and non-governmental organizations. It is a matter of policy that every visitor to the United Nations shall be given the opportunity to obtain an over-all view of the activities of the Organization besides attending such meetings as may be in progress.

28. The Department of Public Information is drawing up plans for taking care of the greatly increased number of individuals expected to visit the permanent Headquarters. It regards this task as one of the most fruitful means of increasing interest in the United Nations and knowledge of its activities.

29. Associated with services to visitors is the problem of dealing with the very considerable volume of correspondence from the general public. These letters come from persons who want information direct from the Organization on its activities, problems and achievements. To meet their needs, there has been set up a Public Correspondence Unit, assisted by a specially trained group of volunteers. During the past year, this unit has handled nearly 30,000 letters from some thirty countries.

30. Lecture services. Over 400 public lectures were arranged by the Division during the past year at important public meetings in North America, and many requests which could not be met by Headquarters were turned over to Voluntary Correspondent Speakers Units or to other appropriate speakers' groups. Lectures by members of the staff on home leave were arranged in Member States.

V. EXTERNAL SERVICES

1. At the first part of its first session, the General Assembly endorsed the recommendations of the Technical Advisory Committee for Information (resolution 13 (I), annex), stating, among other things:

"In order to ensure that peoples in all parts of the world receive as full information as possible about the United Nations, the Department of Public Information should consider the establishment of branch offices at the earliest practicable date."

Fifteen Information Centres had been established by the end of 1949; three more will have been established by the end of 1950, and one sub-centre on an exploratory basis. These Centres and the areas which they cover are as follows:

- Belgrade: For Yugoslavia;
- Buenos Aires: For Argentina, Bolivia, Paraguay and Uruguay;
- Copenhagen: For Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden and Finland;
- Cairo: For Egypt, Ethiopia, Iraq, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen;
- Geneva: For Greece, Israel, Turkey, Albania, Austria, Bulgaria, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Romania and Switzerland;
- London: For the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, British dependencies and Eire;
- Mexico City: For Mexico, Costa Rica, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama and El Salvador;
- Monrovia: For Liberia. Negotiations are pending with the appropriate authorities with a view to expanding the services of the Centre to other parts of the region;
- Moscow: For U.S.S.R., Byelorussian S.S.R. and Ukrainian S.S.R.;
- New Delhi: For India, Burma and Ceylon;
- Karachi: For Pakistan (on an exploratory basis);
- Paris: For France, Belgium, Luxembourg, French dependencies;
- Prague: For Czechoslovakia;
- Rio de Janeiro: For Brazil;
- Shanghai: For China, Thailand and the Philippines;
- Sydney: For Australia and New Zealand;
- Teheran: For Afghanistan and Iran;
- Warsaw: For Poland;
- Washington: For the United States of America.

2. The purpose of Information Centres is twofold: to ensure that peoples of the world shall have accessible places to which they can turn for the fullest possible information on United Nations activities, and to keep Headquarters informed of the special needs of the regions and of the regional attitudes of public opinion in order that these may be taken into consideration at Headquarters in the planning of information policy, programmes and services. Over-all policy control and co-ordination of the Department's relations with the Centres is maintained in the office of the Assistant Secretary-General through the Director for External Services. Each Division of the Department is in direct contact with the Centres and is responsible for guiding and assisting the Centres in the application of over-all policy through the particular medium with which the Division is concerned and for seeing that each Centre receives an adequate and proper supply of material for use through that medium.

3. The functions of the Centres, as they have been authorized and developed to date, are as follows :

To disseminate, through all available non-governmental and governmental information media, and in accordance with the needs of the area served, information on the United Nations and the specialized agencies and their activities;

To stimulate and co-operate with local activities with a view to spreading information about the United Nations;

To report to Headquarters, regional attitudes of public opinion towards the United Nations;

On specific instruction, to act as representatives of the Secretariat at conferences held in the region and in various informational and administrative capacities.

4. More specifically, the Centres, as an integral part of the Department of Public Information, maintain all possible contacts with information media in their regions; prepare releases in the languages of their areas for the use of the Press and other information media; disseminate, adapt and translate background and feature articles produced by the DPI and by the specialized agencies; organize, whenever necessary, Press conferences; if necessary, adapt, translate and arrange for the printing of DPI publications in demand in the areas; assist in promoting the sale of United Nations publications and periodicals; stimulate the interest of outside publishers; report on United Nations and specialized agencies activities and conferences in their area; in the field of radio, maintain contact with broadcasting systems in the area, stimulate their interest in and coverage of United Nations activities, supply them with material and report on their activities so far as United Nations coverage is concerned; in the field of visual information, assist in the production and distribution of United Nations films, organize film showings and exhibits, supply photographic and film material on United Nations and specialized agencies activities, distribute posters and other visual information material; service and develop contacts with non-governmental organizations, community groups, etc.; organize lecture services; develop contacts for Headquarters with school and educational agencies for experiments and services in connexion with teaching about the United Nations, stimulate interest in the United Nations among educational groups; maintain reference services.

5. The Centres also promote the universal observance of United Nations Day, the commemoration of the signing of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the United Nations Appeal for Children and other similar special projects. One of the main problems facing the Centres is that of translating and, where necessary, adapting books, documents and other information material from the working languages of the United Nations (English and French and, for the General Assembly, Spanish) into the numerous languages of the areas served. Language as used in this context means not only the spoken or written word, but the psychology and general approach of a national group to a particular subject. Therefore, adaptation is as frequently necessary as is translation. In this adaptation an effort is made whenever possible to relate United Nations material to the particular interests of the individual in the area concerned.

6. The pattern of organization of the Centres was established by the General Assembly in 1947, whereby substantive personnel in each large Information Centre should be limited to six, in average-sized Information Centres to four, and in smaller Centres to two. The Assembly has noted that it seems necessary to determine an order of priority for the activities of the Centres in order that the purposes for which they were established may be achieved within established budgetary and personnel limits; however, it has recognized that no uniformly applicable order of priority can be stated because of the varying requirements and circumstances in the areas served. It has also noted a general recommendation of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions that, as regards Press and radio, the Centres should rely on existing agencies which are equipped with all necessary facilities and should concentrate on certain auxiliary fields of public information, mentioning particularly reference and distributing functions. The Assembly further noted that special attention was being paid to the promotion of information activities among non-governmental organizations and educational institutions.

7. External Services at Headquarters is also responsible for co-ordination and liaison with the specialized agencies in the field of public information and serves as the secretariat of the Consultative Committee on Public Information for the United Nations and the specialized agencies.

VI. SALES AND CIRCULATION

1. During the past year considerable progress was made in expanding the sales of United Nations publications and in planning and executing an enlarged programme of free distribution of informational material.

2. The Sales and Circulation Section, which is a unit in the Executive Office of the Assistant Secretary-General, Department of Public Information, is charged with two main responsibilities : (a) the sales of all United Nations publications throughout the world, the negotiation of contracts with sales agents, the maintenance and collection of the accounts of such agents, the world-wide promotion of United Nations publications through all media and the operation of a bookshop for the convenience of visitors at Headquarters; (b) the planning, programming and co-ordination of the free distribution of informational material produced by the Department of Public Information through the establishment and maintenance of carefully controlled distribution lists, through the supply of such material to the Information Centres, through the establishment of the quantities of free informational materials to be produced and the scheduling and expediting of mailings and shipments.

3. During 1949 a total of 334 titles was placed on sale in English or bilingual editions. This figure does not include versions in other languages (French, Chinese, Russian, Spanish, etc.), nor does it include the eight periodicals which were offered on subscription and which were produced in bilingual or in two or more separate language editions. In 1950 at least two new periodicals are scheduled to make their appearance and the number of non-periodic publications offered for sale will probably equal or exceed the number for 1949. At the end of 1949 a total of forty-nine sales agents in forty-six countries had been appointed. Four new agents had been appointed as of 1 June 1950 and negotiations were in progress with others. Efforts were also under way to stimulate and improve the performance of all the agents and to assist them in their work. Arrangements are also being made whereby certain booksellers in Austria, Germany and Japan, although not designated as official agents for United Nations publications, will stock and sell a selection of United Nations titles.

4. Revenues from the sales of United Nations publications received during 1949 totalled $US 165,000. Approximately $21,511 of this sum was derived from the operation of the bookshop at Lake Success and the sales stand at Flushing. The total of $165,000 was an increase of approximately $17,000 over receipts recorded during 1948. The Advisory Committee has requested a total of $200,000 from the sale of United Nations publications during 1950 (A/934) ⁴.

5. During 1949 and early 1950 the sales promotion programme has been considerably expanded. A complete catalogue in English of all publications placed on sale between 1945 and 1948 was printed and distributed in the spring of 1949, and a supplement covering the publications issued during the past twelve months is now in the press. A complete French catalogue covering the years 1945-1949 is planned for publication during 1950. These catalogues are supplemented by a large number of advertising brochures and leaflets in English, French and Spanish announcing current titles. These leaflets and brochures were used in regular mailings by the Sales and Circulation Section, by other offices of the Department, by the Information Centres, and by the sales agents. The review-copy service by which copies of important studies and reports are sent for review and comment to selected journals and technical periodicals throughout the world, is proving an extremely effective method of acquainting potential customers with new United Nations titles. As of 1 June 1950 approximately 400 periodicals were participating in this review-copy service. Early in 1950 an allotment of $5,000 was provided to inaugurate a campaign of space advertising in selected journals and periodicals throughout the world. Advertisements have already been placed in several countries. It is hoped that in 1951 an enlarged programme of space advertising will be possible. In promoting the sale of publications, the Section works closely with other offices and divisions of the Department and with the Information Centres in making use of all media—Press, radio, educational systems, non-governmental organizations, etc.

6. The demand for free informational material has constantly increased during the past year, both in connexion with United Nations Day observances and in connexion with the more routine activities of the Department, the Information Centres and the voluntary educational offices and speakers groups. To meet these increasing demands and to ensure the most effective use of the materials available, the Sales and Circulation Section has established a procedure whereby notices of proposed publications are circulated in advance to the various sections and offices of the Department to establish their requirements. This permits the printing of quantities of material actually required and avoids both shortages and over-production. The establishment during 1949 of a master file of all mailing lists maintained by the DPI Sections and Divisions and by the Information Centres has made it possible to eliminate duplications and to control distribution on a global scale. The Section maintains close liaison with the Department of Conference and General Services in co-ordinating and expediting the mailing and shipping of DPI material, and further supervises the distribution of stocks of DPI material printed abroad. The extent of distribution of free informational material is illustrated by the figure of more than 1 million pieces which were used in the 1949 United Nations Day activities alone.

7. In addition to its other activities, the Sales and Circulation Section is closely concerned with the work of the Publications Board, the Working Party of the Publications Board, the Working Party on Contracts for the Sale of Publications, Films, etc., the Working Party on Educational Projects and the Working Committee on United Nations Day. Further, the Section is responsible for the negotiation of contracts with outside publishers for the commercial publication of books prepared by the Department. The Yearbook of the United Nations 1947-1948 was published in 1949 under such a contractual arrangement with Columbia University Press.

VII. UNITED NATIONS REGIONAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE OF INFORMATION EXPERTS

1. At the first part of its first session, the General Assembly made recommendations concerning the policies, functions and organization of the Department of Public Information (resolution 13 (I), annex). Among other things, the Assembly recommended the convening, from time to time, of an international committee of public information experts in order to “ discuss and forward to the Secretary-General observations regarding the information policy and programme of the United Nations ”. The General Assembly also suggested the establishment for the same purpose of “ national or regional advisory committees working in touch with the branches of the Department of Public Information ”. Members of these Committees, both at Headquarters and in the regions, “ would be in a position to reflect to the Secretary-General the needs and desires of the general public of the Members in the matter of public information about the aims and activities of the United Nations ”.

2. Previously, a Technical Advisory Committee on Information was set up in London on 30 November 1945, by the Preparatory Commission of the United Nations. A second Advisory Committee, convened by the Secretary-General, met at Lake Success from 25 May to 3 June 1948.

3. Pursuant to the above recommendations and to resolution 13 (I) adopted by the General Assembly at its 31st plenary meeting on 13 February 1946, United Nations Regional Advisory Committees on Public Information were convened at Copenhagen, Mexico City, New Delhi, Paris, Prague, Rio de Janeiro, Sydney, Geneva and London and sat during the period from March to May 1950.

4. All sessions of the 1950 Regional Advisory Committees were held at the respective United Nations Information Centres. The members were public information experts and outstanding individuals, prominent in their respective fields : Press, publications, broadcasting, film and other visual information activities, non-governmental organizations, education, etc.

5. The Regional Committees, composed of users of material issued by the Department of Public Information and its Information Centres, were asked to give their independent, expert opinion on how the Department, within its present budget, could increase the knowledge and understanding of the nature, aims and activities of the United Nations in the regions served by the Centres.

6. Deploring the still prevailing lack of an informed public opinion with regard to United Nations activities and an equally disturbing ignorance about elementary problems with which the world organization is seized, the Committee was unanimous in endorsing the words of the first Technical Advisory Committee on Information approved by the first General Assembly :

“ The United Nations cannot achieve the purpose for which it has been created unless the peoples of the world are fully informed of its aims and activities. ”

7. As a general observation, the Committees recognized that the present political situation and consequent lack of encouraging news reports has caused a spirit of disillusionment to penetrate the minds of the people. At the same time, the experts believed that obstacles and setbacks presented a challenge that must be met. The need for a persistent and efficiently executed information programme has never been greater than it is today. To this end, they point towards the United Nations Information Centres as the vanguard in the Department's continued effort to create an informed public understanding of the aims and functions of the United Nations.

8. In general, the Regional Committees considered that the Centres are carrying out their duties efficiently, especially taking into account present staff limitations. They were impressed, too, by the heavy demands made upon the staff, by the very large volume of work which it is called upon to handle, and by the great variety that in fact exists within the different branches of the work. In view of this situation, several Committees strongly recommend that the Centres be provided with the means which will enable them to perform to a larger extent translation and adaptation work in the languages of the different areas.

9. A fact which emerges in all the Committee reports is that within their present budgetary and manpower limits, the Information Centres are carrying a maximum workload. Any discussion of whether more can be done, therefore, brings up questions of priorities and further assistance which can be rendered by the Department of Public Information at Headquarters.

10. The detailed recommendations of the Committees are now being studied by the Department with a view to putting into effect those which are not already a part of operational policy and which are practical within the budget and staff pattern.

11. It is recognized by the Department that its policy must be dynamic. Within the broad outline established by the General Assembly, a great deal of flexibility is required to meet changing needs and situations within the various regions of the world. The guidance of the Regional Committees has been particularly welcome in this respect, and it is the intention of the Department to take every step within its authority and resources to achieve the goal of a public fully informed about the United Nations.

DOCUMENT A/C.5/370

Section 32. Emoluments of Members and the Registrar of the International Court of Justice

[Original text : English]
[24 September 1950]

I. INTRODUCTORY NOTE

1. After the devaluation of the Netherlands florin in September 1949, the International Court of Justice informed the General Assembly of the United Nations that, in its view, it would be contrary to the terms of Article 32, paragraph 5, of the Statute, to insert in the budget for 1950 for the remuneration of the members of the Court sums in dollars which were less than those inserted in previous budgets (1946-1949).⁵ The Fifth Committee discussed this question on 16 November 1949 (225th meeting) and asked the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Advisory Committee and the representatives of the International Court of Justice, to proceed to an examination of the salaries and indemnities of members of the Court (and of the Registrar), in the light of the general salary and allowance policies of the Organization, as well as the consequences of devaluation on the real income of the judges (and of the Registrar). The Secretary-General was requested to make recommendations during the session in progress, if possible.

2. In a note dated 1 December 1949⁶, the Secretary-General reported that only after a detailed study of the problem would it be possible to find a lasting solution. The full study would include the following stages:

(a) A review of the original basis of establishing the salaries of the Judges and the Registrar;

(b) A detailed analysis of these salaries in the light of the United Nations policy after consideration of the report of the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems, regard being had particularly to salary rates for top-ranking officials and to the principle of salary differentials;

(c) A study of the cost of living at The Hague in relation to New York;

(d) A review of the effects of devaluation after the lapse of a reasonable period of time.

3. The Secretary-General stated that he felt that the Assembly, in accordance with the spirit of Article 32 of the Statute, desired that there should be no diminution of the real value of the Judges' salaries; observing that this could be achieved in a number of ways, he recommended that whatever decision the General Assembly might take during its fifth session (1950) should be retroactive.

4. The Fifth Committee examined the report of the Secretary-General at its 233rd meeting on 2 December 1949 and agreed to maintain the estimates in dollars for the budget of 1950 on the same basis as they had appeared in the previous budgets, on the understanding that if no changes were made in the salaries and allowances of the Judges and Registrar, a saving would be effected.

5. The Secretary-General then proceeded to make a full and detailed study of the problem and presented his proposals to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and to the Court. While the members of the Court have agreed with the conclusions reached by the Secretary-General, the Advisory Committee has taken a different position. It has not therefore been possible to reach full agreement among the three parties requested by the General Assembly to consult together on this question. The observations of the Advisory Committee have been presented to the General Assembly in its second report of 1950 (A/1312, paras. 299-301).⁷

6. The Secretary-General's analysis of the question and his conclusions are as follows.

II. ORIGINAL BASIS OF ESTABLISHING THE SALARIES

7. The guiding principles which were applied in 1946 in determining the salaries of the Judges were as follows:

(a) The Court should be composed of a body of judges "who possess the qualifications required in their respective countries for appointment to the highest judicial offices, or are juriconsultants of recognized competence in international law".⁸

(b) The salaries should be such as to render the office of judge acceptable to the most eminent of the persons qualified to hold that office, and accordingly their salaries should not be less than they received in their own country.⁹

(c) The judges should be accorded salaries such as to guarantee their absolute independence.⁹

(d) The real value of these salaries should not be less than those of the judges of the Permanent Court of International Justice during the period 1936-39.⁹

8. This intention to take into account the real value of the emoluments led to the adoption of "the principle that there should be an increase in the salaries of the judges of the International Court of Justice as compared with the salaries of the judges of the Permanent Court"¹⁰. In determining these figures, reference was made to information supplied by the representative of the Netherlands to the effect that "the purchasing power of the Netherlands florin had decreased by approximately 20 per cent since 1939",¹¹ and it was agreed accordingly that the annual salaries of the members of the Court should be fixed at 54,000 Netherlands florins, an increase of 20 per cent over the salaries of the Judges of the Permanent Court (resolution 19 (I), 6 February 1946).

III. GENERAL POLICY OF THE UNITED NATIONS IN THE MATTER OF SALARIES

9. Thus the salaries of the members of the Permanent Court were the basis for determining in 1946 the salaries of the members of the International Court of Justice. In these circumstances, it is proper to examine, in addition to the present situation, the situation which prevailed in the days of the League of Nations, during the years 1936-39.

Permanent Court and League of Nations

10. Before 1936, the emoluments of the members of the Permanent Court of International Justice included a fixed annual salary and daily duty allowances. From 1936 onwards, the annual remuneration became fixed. This change resulted from two amendments to the Statute, as revised in 1929. The first amendment abolished the system of sessions, and the Statute laid down the principle that "the Court shall remain permanently in session" (Statute, Article 23, paragraph 1). The second amendment added to the obligations of the judges the rule that they "may not exercise any...occupation of a professional nature" (Statute, Article 16, paragraph 1). The Statute now in force reproduces in this regard the text of the Statute as revised in 1929.

11. From 1936 until 1939 the remuneration of the members of the Permanent Court was 45,000 florins, equivalent in Swiss francs, the currency used by the League of Nations for accounting purposes, to Swiss francs 106,762.

12. In 1939, the salaries of the higher officers of the Secretariat of the League of Nations were as follows :

Deputy Secretary-General ..	60,000	Swiss francs plus 25,000 Swiss francs entertainment allowance.
Under Secretaries-General ..	60,000	Swiss francs plus 10,000 Swiss francs entertainment allowance.
Directors, first class	41,000 to 53,000	Swiss francs.

International Court and United Nations Secretariat

13. The General Assembly's resolution of 6 February 1946, in determining the scale for the emoluments of the Judges, adopted the figure of 54,000 florins. Before the devaluation of the florin (September 1949), 54,000 florins corresponded to 20,350 United States dollars. Since the devaluation, the equivalent is 14,120 United States dollars.

14. In 1946, the salaries of the higher officers of the Secretariat of the United Nations were as follows :

Assistant Secretaries-General : Salary $US13,500 plus an allowance of $8,500. Total : $22,000. (The allowance may be varied from $7,000 to $11,500 at the Secretary-General's discretion.)

Top-ranking Directors : Salary $US11,000 plus an allowance of $3,000. Total : $14,000. (The allowance may be varied from $3,000 to $6,000 at the Secretary-General's discretion.)

15. In 1950, the actual emoluments of higher officials of the United Nations are as follows :

Assistant Secretaries-General : Salary $US13,500 plus an allowance of $8,500.

Top-ranking Directors : Salary $US11,000 plus an allowance of $3,000 to $6,000.

16. The Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems proposed new emoluments for higher officers of the Secretariat of the United Nations, as follows :

Assistant Secretaries-General : Salary $US17,500 plus an allowance which may be varied from $4,500 to $7,500, at the Secretary-General's discretion. Total : from $22,000 to $25,000.

Top-ranking Directors : Salary $US15,000, plus such special allowances as are available to staff members generally, including reimbursement for hospitality expenditures up to $1,500.

17. It will be seen from these figures that the policy regarding salaries in the League of Nations was to give to the Judges salaries much higher than those of the Deputy Secretary-General and the Under Secretaries-General, and approximately double that of first-class directors. In the United Nations, before devaluation, the dollar salaries of Judges were approximately equal to total emoluments of Assistant Secretaries-General, and much higher than those of top-ranking Directors.

IV. STUDY OF THE COST OF LIVING IN NEW YORK IN RELATION TO THE HAGUE

18. A comparative study of the cost of living in New York and The Hague has been completed by the competent statistical services of the United Nations, and the result of this study indicates that the cost of living in The Hague is 32 per cent less than in New York at the current rate of exchange.

19. If a solution of the problem of the salaries of the Judges is sought by applying a differential (or a corrective), it is to be borne in mind that under the terms of the Statute the Judges are not obliged to reside the whole year at The Hague, and therefore they have expenses both at The Hague and at their principal place of residence. Examination of the dossiers (written proceedings), which is an important part of judicial activity, can be undertaken by each Judge wherever he wishes, and his presence at The Hague is necessary only when the Court is actually convened.¹²

20. Even those Judges who have taken up residence at The Hague for a few years may still have financial obligations to meet elsewhere, and frequently in countries which have not devalued their currency, such as making provision for dependent members of their families not residing with them. Obviously expenditures made in the home country are not affected by the level of the cost of living at The Hague.

21. Considering all aspects of the situation, it would appear reasonable to assume that, on the average, not more than 50 per cent of the salary would be spent in the Netherlands, and the remainder outside the Netherlands.

¹² Annex A shows the length of sessions of the Court 1946-1949. Annex B shows the places of residence of the members of the Court.

V. COST OF LIVING AND DEVALUATION

22. In considering the question of the salaries of the Judges, it is appropriate to review the trend in the cost of living from 1946, when the salary rates were fixed, up to the time of the devaluation, as well as the trend since devaluation. From the table below it will be seen that the cost-of-living index for the Netherlands increased by 13 per cent prior to devaluation, and by an additional 10 per cent as of April 1950, or a total of 23 per cent. It is interesting to note in comparison, that the cost-of-living index for the New York area has increased by approximately the same amount since 1946.

VI. CONCLUSIONS

23. In order to reach a decision on the question of the salaries of Judges of the International Court of Justice, it would appear to be necessary first to decide in general the relationship of these posts to other high offices in the United Nations, and then to determine the amount of remuneration required for this level of post after taking into account the effect of devaluation and the cost of living in The Hague.

24. It was seen under section III above that a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice was paid a substantially higher salary than the Deputy Secretary-General of the League of Nations. The salary fixed in 1946 for a Judge of the International Court of Justice was 54,000 florins, equivalent to $US20,350. While this was a little below the total emoluments of an Assistant Secretary-General at that time—$US22,000 ($13,500 plus an allowance of $8,500)—it appears from the history of the case that United Nations considered a Judge of the International Court of Justice to be on a level equal to or higher than an Assistant Secretary-General. It is proposed, in the light of these circumstances, that the salary of an Assistant Secretary-General be used as a general guide in fixing the remuneration for a Judge. The total remuneration for an Assistant Secretary-General as proposed by the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems, was $22,000 to $25,000. These figures would then be subject to adjustment to take account of differences in the cost of living.

25. The results of the cost-of-living survey were that costs at The Hague are about 30 per cent lower than in New York. However, as was pointed out in section IV above, one-half of the salary of a judge would, on the average, be spent outside of the Netherlands and hence would not be affected by the local cost of living.

26. If we apply a corrective factor of minus 30 per cent to one-half of a $22,000 salary, the result would be $18,700. The same differential, when applied to a $25,000 salary, would give $21,250. On the basis of these figures, it is recommended that the salary of a judge be fixed at $20,000 per annum, to be effective from 21 September 1949, the date of the devaluation.

27. It is proposed that the salaries of the Judges be stated in terms of United States dollars, in accordance with the general salary policy of the United Nations.

28. The question of the special allowance for the President should also be reconsidered. The allowance was set in 1946 at 15,000 Netherlands florins (General Assembly resolution 19 (I)). Taking into account the increase in the cost of living in The Hague since that time, as noted in section V above, it is proposed that this allowance be increased to 18,240 Netherlands florins, which, when fixed in United States dollars, equals $4,800.

Emoluments of ad hoc judges

29. Ad hoc judges (referred to in Article 31 of the Statute) receive an allowance (fee) of 120 florins for each day on which they exercise their functions, plus a daily subsistence allowance of 60 florins (resolution 19 (I)). At the present rate of exchange, this is equivalent to $US31.58 and $15.79, respectively.

30. It is proposed that the allowance (fee) for ad hoc judges be stated in United States dollars in order to be consistent with the action taken for the regular members of the Court, and that the amount be fixed at $35 per day for each day on which they exercise their functions. It is suggested that the daily subsistence allowance be payable as provided for in the "Travel and Subsistence Regulations of the International Court of Justice" adopted by the General Assembly on 11 December 1946 (resolution 85 (I), annex), (i. e. at the rate of $20 per day); it might be required that a part of the allowance be accepted in florins, depending upon the currency available from contributions.

Salary of the Registrar

31. In respect to the salary of the Registrar, the Statute of the Court (Article 32, paragraph 6) states that it is fixed by the General Assembly on the proposal of the Court. Resolution 85 (I) of 11 December 1946 laid down the principle that the salary of the Registrar should be assimilated to that of a top-ranking Director and calculated its amount accordingly. Having taken note of the salary proposed by the Committee of Experts for a principal (top-ranking) Director, the Court in a letter dated 26 May 1950 has proposed that the same amount be budgeted for its Registrar, in accordance with the principle laid down in resolution 85 (I). It is suggested that it be so decided, the salary being thus henceforward stated in United States dollars, which would also be in accordance with the general salary policy of the United Nations.

¹³ Source: Based on the Monthly Bulletin of Statistics of the United Nations. Note: This index is calculated in terms of prices in florins, and is not affected by the rate of exchange into United States dollars.

32. It is noted that, in its letter of 26 May, the Court confirmed that it had accepted the principle of a differential for its officials, including the Registrar.

33. The following draft resolution embodies the conclusions reached in the foregoing pages :

The General Assembly

Resolves that the emoluments of the judges and the Registrar of the International Court of Justice shall be fixed according to the following scale :

President :

Annual salary, $US20,000;

Special allowance, $US4,800;

Vice-President :

Annual salary, $US20,000;

Allowance equivalent to $30 for every day on which he acts as President up to a maximum of $3,000 per annum;

Members :

Annual salary, $US20,000;

Judges referred to in Article 31 of the Statute :

Allowance of $US35 for each day on which they exercise their functions, plus a daily subsistence allowance as provided for in the "Travel and Subsistence Regulations of the International Court of Justice";

Registrar :

Salary and related emoluments equivalent to those of a principal Director, adjusted in accordance with such differential as may be applied to the staff of the Registry at The Hague.

Organization of a United Nations Technical Assistance Administration

[Original text : English]
[16 October 1950]

1. In response to a request from the Fifth Committee at its 244th meeting, the Secretary-General wishes to present a brief résumé of his action in establishing the Technical Assistance Administration within the Secretariat.

2. The technical assistance programmes of the United Nations are operated and administered under General Assembly resolutions 58 (I), Advisory social welfare functions; 200 (III), Technical assistance for economic development; 246 (III), Training in public administration; Economic and Social Council resolution 222 A (IX) and General Assembly resolution 304 (IV), Expanded programme of technical assistance for economic development of under-developed countries.

3. With the aim of ensuring that his responsibilities relating to the provision of technical assistance are carried out with the fullest degree of co-ordination and administrative efficiency, the Secretary-General on 31 July 1950 established a Technical Assistance Administration within the Secretariat, charged with the operation and administration of the programmes authorized by the resolutions specified above.

4. The Technical Assistance Administration is responsible for providing, in accordance with policies established by the appropriate organs of the United Nations, such services and facilities as the organization of composite missions, the furnishing of expert advisers, the award of fellowships and scholarships and the organization of seminars, training institutes and demonstration centres.

5. The Technical Assistance Administration is administered by a Director-General, who reports directly to the Secretary-General and who is assisted by a Deputy Director-General. The staffs of the Departments of Economic and Social Affairs directly concerned with the operation of the programmes specified above were transferred to the Technical Assistance Administration on 1 August 1950. The two Departments, however, continue to be responsible for conducting research projects and preparing studies required by the technical assistance programme within their respective fields of competence, and it is the Secretary-General's intention that they should be consulted on all questions of policy relating to economic and social development.

6. The Director-General of the Technical Assistance Administration ensures the representation of the United Nations on the Technical Assistance Board, which is presided over by the Assistant Secretary-General for Economic Affairs acting on behalf of the Secretary-General. The positions to be taken by the United Nations on that Board are the subject of prior consultations, as required, with the Departments of Economic and Social Affairs and the Department of Administrative and Financial Services, as well as the Executive Office of the Secretary-General, which is responsible for assisting the Secretary-General in the over-all co-ordination of the work of the Secretariat in relations with Member States and the specialized agencies. To that Office, which serves the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination, the Executive Secretary of the Technical Assistance Board and his staff are attached.

7. The Department of Administrative and Financial Services retains responsibility for the financial administration of the special account established in connexion with the expanded programme of technical assistance for economic development of under-developed countries; for budgetary and financial control of funds authorized by the General Assembly or allocated from the special account to the United Nations, and for personnel administration in accordance with the staff rules of the United Nations.

8. The Secretary-General and the department heads concerned are aware of the fact that the validity of these arrangements must be tested by day-by-day co-operation. Every effort is being made to prevent isolation of research and policy development on the one hand and operations on the other. The Secretary-General believes that the organization of the work as outlined above will be conducive to efficiency and economy, but this can be finally judged only in the light of the quality of service given to Member States requesting technical assistance and of the budget proposals for 1952.

Revised estimates for section 19, Permanent equipment

*[Original text : English]
[17 October 1950]*

	US dollars
1951 original budget estimates (A/1267)	1,173,600
Advisory Committee recommendations (A/1312)	1,100,000
Secretary-General's revised proposal	802,200
1950 appropriation	199,320
1949 expenditures	463,045

1. The advanced move of part of the Secretariat to the new Headquarters in Manhattan made it necessary to procure in 1950 certain furniture and equipment which had been originally included in the 1951 budget estimates.

2. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions had foreseen this eventuality and stated in paragraph 202 of its second report of 1950 to the General Assembly (A/1312) :

“ ... the estimates for permanent equipment... are based on the assumption that no expenditure on permanent equipment for the new Headquarters will be incurred in 1950. To the extent that such expenditure may in fact be so incurred, it should be met from current savings or by supplemental appropriations, in which event the 1951 estimates should be correspondingly reduced ”.

3. As it was found impossible to cover the cost of this advanced procurement through budgetary savings, the Secretary-General sought and obtained the concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in advancing from the Working Capital Fund sums up to $US315,000 for the procurement in the amounts indicated of the following equipment :

Chapter I. Furniture, fixtures and office equipment

An amount of $258,500 is authorized to cover the cost of that portion of the equipment included under this heading in the budget estimates for 1951, (A/1267, page 196) which is now to be delivered before 31 December 1950. Such equipment consists mainly of office chairs, desks and cabinets at an estimated total of $198,500 and reproduction equipment consisting mainly of offset presses at a total of $60,000.

Chapter II. Library books and equipment

An amount not exceeding $43,800 is authorized for the procurement of that portion of the library equipment included in the 1951 estimates, which is now to be delivered before 31 December 1950.

In this instance, it should be noted that the original procurement programme, as stated in the budget estimates for 1951 (A/1267, page 197) was estimated at $103,000, of which $65,000 is included in the 1951 estimates and the balance of $38,000 was left to be procured in 1952. However, a contract has been negotiated with a European firm and, should the procurement of the total quantity of the equipment be made in one order, it is expected that the total cost of $103,000 will be reduced to $75,000. Therefore, with the purchase of part of this equipment totalling $43,800 in 1950, only $31,200 will be required in 1951 to complete the entire programme.

Chapter III. Information services equipment

An amount of $12,000 is approved for the purchase in 1950 of certain of the equipment included under this heading in the 1951 budget estimates (A/1267, page 197). The portion to be procured in 1950 is mainly equipment to enable the Department of Public Information to perform film and visual operations in the new Headquarters instead of in rented premises, as in previous years. It is necessary to install this equipment as of November 1950 in order to avoid an interruption in the programme of work.

4. Because the above procurement has been advanced to 1950, the budget estimates for 1951 for section 19, Permanent equipment, can be reduced by the amounts indicated in the following table :

	Original 1951 estimate	Recommendation of Advisory Com- mittee accepted by the Secretary- General	Advance procure- ment authorized in 1950	Amount now re- quested for 1951
	(In US dollars)
Chapter I. Furniture, fixtures and office equipment
(i) Furniture and fixtures	302,000	271,900	198,500	73,400
(ii) Office equipment	129,100	120,100	60,000	60,100
(iii) Telecommunications equipment	10,000	10,000	—	10,000
TOTAL	441,100	402,000	258,500	143,500
Chapter II. Library books and equipment
(i) Library books and maps	38,000	36,000	—	36,000
(ii) Library equipment	65,000	58,500	43,800	31,200 *
TOTAL	103,000	94,500	43,800	67,200
Chapter III. Information services equipment
Photographic and motion picture equipment	55,000	52,700	12,000	40,700
TOTAL	55,000	52,700	12,000	40,700
Chapter IV. Other permanent equipment
	574,500	550,800	—	550,800
TOTAL, section 19	1,173,600	1,100,000	314,300	802,200 *

* Note: As explained under paragraph 3 of this report, the total funds requested for library equipment for 1950 and 1951 amount to $75,000 and exceed by $16,500 the provision originally recommended by the Advisory Committee. This will allow for the completion of the programme of library equipment in 1951, so that the $32,000 provision to be requested in 1952 can be dispensed with. The Advisory Committee has concurred in the change. As a result the total provisions requested for advanced procurement in 1950 and for 1951 exceed the original amount recommended by the Advisory Committee by the same amount of $16,500.

It will be noted from the above table that the original estimates of $1,173,600 for this section for 1951 can therefore be reduced by $297,800, in addition to the total reduction of $73,600 already proposed by the Advisory Committee in its second report of 1950, leaving a revised total of $802,200 for the section for 1951.

Section 20, United Nations Office at Geneva : application of a salary differential for the staff

[19 October 1950]

1. The recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/1312, paras. 203-235) on the 1951 estimates of the United Nations Office at Geneva (A/1267, pages 203-231) are of two kinds. A number of specific reductions in the estimates are proposed, and it is recommended that the salaries of "international" staff of the United Nations at Geneva should be reduced by application of a salary differential of 5 per cent. The specific reductions in the estimates are not contested by the Secretary-General in view of his anxiety to reach agreement with the Advisory Committee wherever possible, and in recognition of the fact that at this date no one can be certain that the budget estimates for 1951 are accurate to within 1 or 2 per cent. He will, therefore, simply do his best to manage within the reduced appropriation.

2. The Secretary-General cannot, however, agree with the Advisory Committee that the salaries of international officials at Geneva, which at present are equivalent to base-pay scales at Headquarters, should be reduced by a differential of 5 per cent, and he asks the Fifth Committee to note that the Advisory Committee does not supply any specific evidence in support of its recommendation. In paragraph 207 of its report, the Advisory Committee states merely that it "has reached the view that on the basis of costs, salaries and living standards in the Geneva as compared with the New York area, and after due allowance for other relevant considerations, including general living conditions, there is sufficient justification for the application of a salary differential which it recommends should be fixed pending further review at minus 5 per cent". What that justification is, is not further elaborated.

3. The Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems studied the whole question of cost-of-living allowances during 1949 (A/C.5/331)¹⁵, as had been proposed by the Advisory Committee, and recommended, first of all, that the Headquarters cost-of-living adjustment should be incorporated into the base salary scales. The Experts envisaged that these scales would be applied universally for all international staff members wherever stationed, except that they would be adjusted by salary differentials to take account of differences from Headquarters in the cost of living and related factors. In addition, the Committee proposed that the rental allowance, which had been payable only to international staff stationed at Headquarters, should be abolished (after a reasonable period of notice) on the grounds that the rental factor was adequately covered by the proposed salary scales. Thus, under the Committee of Experts' proposals the international staff at offices away from Headquarters would have the same level of total remuneration as the staff at Headquarters except for adjustments made by applying salary differentials.

4. The fact is that in 1947 and 1948 a 5 per cent differential was applied in the United Nations Office at Geneva. It was based on a hurried and rather makeshift inquiry carried out by the Administration, without expert statistical services. The World Health Organization and the International Labour Office did not apply the differential because they took the view that there was no justification for it. They agreed, however, that a more thorough survey should be made. Accordingly, a long and comprehensive review has been made, under the direction of expert statisticians, both of prices and of the way in which international officials at Geneva and New York, respectively, spent their money. The results, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, have failed completely to provide any justification for a minus differential at Geneva. That is also the view of the WHO and the ILO.

5. The Advisory Committee states in paragraph 207 of its report (A/1312) that in recommending a differential the Committee had taken special account of paragraphs 49-58 of the report of the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems (A/C.5/331). Those paragraphs said that the case for a differential at a branch office was greatly reinforced where the office was of a permanent or reasonably permanent nature and a considerable number of the international staff at the office might be expected to serve much or all of their careers therein. In this connexion, it should be borne in mind that few international officials at Geneva have any idea how long they will remain there. Their position is a difficult one in that most of them are not sufficiently impermanent to enjoy the advantage only of those elements in the cost of living which are admittedly lower than in New York, and yet not sufficiently permanent to settle down properly (buying a house, for example, is out of the question). There are approximately 180 international officials attached to the United Nations Office at Geneva, of whom only thirty-five have permanent contracts. Of the 180, about seventy are serving the Economic Commission for Europe, the pending reconsideration of whose terms of reference introduces a further element of uncertainty.

6. The Secretary-General suggests that the Advisory Committee has not perhaps fully understood the intention of the Committee of Experts. The quotation from the Committee's report appears to have been considered out of its context, and examination of the whole of their report gives a somewhat different impression from that conveyed by the observations of the Advisory Committee.

7. In paragraphs 51 and 52 of their report, the Experts were discussing the question whether or not differentials should ever be applied in principle. They discussed the ILO contention that international salaries should not be subject to local conditions; they agreed that at relatively small or temporary offices a system of differentials might not be equitable whatever the cost of living. They concluded, in the sentence which the Advisory Committee quotes, that for large and relatively permanent offices a differential, either plus or minus, would be justified "provided it could be demonstrated that... internationally (as distinct from locally) recruited staff are markedly better or worse off at [that office] than at Headquarters". Moreover, the Committee of Experts state in paragraph 57 of their report that in view of the difficulties in comparing conditions at different places, differentials of less than 10 per cent should not be applied. A differential should only be applied, that is to say, where there is a marked difference in cost of living; it was the view of the Expert Committee that in order to give the salaries of international staff the greatest possible character of universality, a salary differential should not be applied unless it was clearly justified. As an answer to those who might contend that no differential should be applied even if there was a marked difference, the Committee of Experts said that the case for doing so was reinforced where the offices concerned were large and reasonably permanent.

8. The final result of the expert inquiry into comparative living costs between Geneva and New York has failed to disclose any marked difference; indeed, it failed to disclose any difference at all in a minus direction in Geneva. The conclusions reached by this inquiry are summarized in the annexed report of the United Nations Statistical Office. The Secretary-General would also point out that these conclusions are supported by similar inquiries independently carried out by certain Member States and by private business concerns employing staff both in the New York area and in Geneva.

9. It is the view of the Secretary-General that the cost-of-living survey of Geneva has been conducted carefully and objectively according to the best known statistical techniques, and therefore that the results of the survey should be accepted as a basis for fixing salaries for the Geneva international staff. Individual experiences and information on living costs in Geneva and New York might lead to conclusions differing from these statistical results; since, however, these calculations were made for the average international staff member according to his or her actual expenditures, it is believed they are the most, indeed the only, reliable and fair basis upon which to determine basic salary rates.

10. Furthermore, if the United Nations were to apply a minus differential in Geneva, the impact on co-ordination with the specialized agencies would be serious and immediate. It is unlikely that the agencies, without specific directives from their governing bodies, would reduce the salaries of their staffs when such action was not supported by the cost-of-living survey in which they had participated. It should also be noted that unilateral action by the United Nations in such matters was the subject of criticism by the Co-ordination Committee of the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session in Geneva.

11. The Secretary-General suggests that if the Advisory Committee is not satisfied with the existing evidence, the right course would be not to apply a wholly arbitrary differential now, but to wait for the results of yet another inquiry which can be made if necessary. He notes in this connexion that the Advisory Committee apparently has doubts as to whether or not minus 5 per cent does in fact represent an appropriate and justified differential, since its recommendation is in the nature of a provisional one "pending further review". He must also observe, however, that the inquiry already made seems precisely the type which the Advisory Committee, in principle, considered adequate in paragraph 27 of its first report of 1950 (A/1313)¹⁶, and he fails to understand why action contrary to the results of the inquiry should be taken. If, nevertheless, such action is considered desirable by the General Assembly, the Secretary-General would request that he be given the opportunity to consult with the specialized agencies in Geneva in order to reach agreement on joint action.

ANNEX

NOTE ON THE PURCHASING POWER OF EMOLUMENTS OF INTERNATIONAL OFFICERS IN GENEVA AND NEW YORK

Report of the United Nations Statistical Office

Introduction

12. Calculations are made by the Secretariat from time to time to establish a basis on which the emoluments of staff members of the United Nations and the specialized agencies, who are located away from Headquarters, may be equated with the emoluments at Headquarters. A calculation of this kind was made early in 1949 establishing the relation existing between the purchasing power of emoluments in Geneva and emoluments in New York.

Method of calculation

13. The method of calculation followed has been established by an expert committee appointed by the Secretary-General. In the case of the Geneva-New York study, statements were obtained from staff members resident in Geneva in November 1948 showing their actual expenditure by categories. The information provided by these statements was assembled to provide an average distribution of expenditure appropriate to conditions in Geneva. Similar information was collected from United Nations staff members resident in New York at the same date, to obtain a characteristic distribution of expenditure appropriate to conditions in New York.

14. The retail prices in Geneva of approximately 120 commodities were then obtained from official Swiss sources. These prices were compared with the prices of corresponding commodities, furnished by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, for the city of New York. In the case of ten of the commodities considered, it was found necessary to obtain additional price data because the qualities of the commodities priced in the two cities were not comparable. In the case of all the other commodities, the specifications in the two cities were sufficiently similar to permit direct price comparisons. The prices for Geneva were converted to dollars at the rate of exchange $US1.00 = 4.28 Swiss francs. The converted Geneva prices were then expressed in percentages of the corresponding New York prices.

The resulting relatives were weighted according to the importance of each commodity in the expenditure distribution. The sum of the products thus obtained was divided by the sum of the weights to provide a figure which, in an approximate manner, gives the relation between living costs in the two cities as it affects the international officials.

Results of the calculation

15. It was found that the calculation based on the distribution of expenditure in Geneva gave very similar results to that based on the distribution of expenditure in New York. The index numbers, which express the living costs of international officials in Geneva as percentages of the corresponding costs in New York, are given below for each type of expenditure:

Groups	Percentage of expenditure	Indices
Food	34.72	103.7
Clothing	12.37	133.8
Housing	22.37	55.4
Miscellaneous	30.54	126.0
	Total index	103.4

16. It will seem that the total index for all groups of expenditure suggests that the cost of living of officials in Geneva is 3 per cent higher than the cost of living of officials in New York. It is clear that this difference is statistically insignificant since it lies within the margin of error of the calculation. In this connexion attention is drawn to the report of the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems (A/C.5/331). The Committee of Experts recommended that a differential of plus or minus 10 per cent should be the smallest to be applied (para. 57a).

17. It should be noted that the result is appropriate only for officers in continued residence in Geneva for a period during which they may be expected to incur expenditure over the complete range of commodities on which the calculation is based. It would not be appropriate, for example, to the case of officers visiting Geneva for a short period. Such officers could be expected to incur expenditure only in the food and rent groups and the figure that would be appropriate in their case would therefore be in the region of 85.

18. It should be noted that the study was carried out early in 1949, and the question may arise as to whether conditions have changed substantially since that date. The Committee of Experts' view was that decisions based on these calculations should remain in force until movements in the national cost-of-living indices appropriate to the two localities revealed the necessity for a new calculation. Comparison of the official cost-of-living index for Switzerland with the official figures for New York indicate that there has been no significant movement that would necessitate review of this calculation.

Section 20, United Nations Office at Geneva : proposal for the transformation of the Council Chamber in the Palais des Nations

[30 October 1950]

1. The Council Chamber in the Palais des Nations, one of its most beautiful rooms, was designed for the use of the Council of the League of Nations, which consisted of fourteen members. Fifteen seats were placed behind a crescent-shaped table which faced the auditorium; the seats and table were fixed rigidly on a slightly raised platform. The seats in the auditorium are on a rising slope, facing the table, as is the case at Lake Success in its Council Chambers.

2. When, during the summer of 1950, the suggestion was made that the Chamber be transformed to meet the needs of United Nations Councils, M. Jacques Carlu, architect-in-chief to the French Government (who is in charge of the extension of the Palais des Nations to accommodate the World Health Organization) was asked to draw up a plan and an estimate of cost.

3. M. Carlu suggested a plan which would entirely preserve the beauty and dignity of the Chamber. Essentially, the plan would entail :

(a) Removal of a number of seats from the auditorium in order to make space for a horse-shoe table seating twenty-three persons (i. e., eleven seats on each side of the President's chair) with two seats behind each delegate's seat (i. e., a further forty-four seats). Part of the present raised platform would be retained along the Chamber wall behind the table and would carry sixty-four seats for members of the Secretariat and others having a direct interest in the proceedings. Tables for minute writers, etc. would be placed within the horse-shoe, while a total of 162 seats would remain facing the table, in tiers on the floor of the Chamber. The present gallery would not be affected;

(b) Installation of interpretation booths in the corridor which now runs behind the Chamber wall at the back of the room facing the Council table. Glass panels would have to be inserted where necessary in the present marble partition, but that would be the only alteration necessary in the existing walls of the Chamber. The paintings of Sert would be completely untouched.

4. The architect estimates that the cost of making the above changes, including the cost of furniture and carpets, would be approximately $US26,000. The technical staff of the Geneva Office estimates, on the basis of experience with rooms V and VII in which simultaneous interpretation equipment has already been installed, that the cost of the technical equipment for interpretation into five languages, recording and radio commentating booths, and the telephonic installation for the 220 seats which it would be proposed to equip, would be a further $24,000.

5. The Secretary-General considers that the transformation of the Council Chamber according to Mr. Carlu's plan would be very useful and would notably increase the conference accommodation facilities. The Geneva Office has had difficulties when conferences of different organs and bodies took place in Geneva and simultaneous interpretation was required for several conferences at the same time. Sometimes accommodation has had to be refused and meetings held in other places. Should the Council Chamber be transformed, these difficulties could be avoided in the future, while the Councils of the United Nations would be able to meet in Geneva in an atmosphere of greater intimacy and dignity.

6. The plan is available for inspection with the Secretary of the Fifth Committee.

Revised estimates for section 18a, Transfer to the permanent Headquarters

[Original text : English]
[31 October 1950]

	US dollars		US dollars
1951 Original estimates (A/1267)	537,300	Revised estimates	449,500
Advisory Committee's recommendations		1950 Appropriations	—
(A/1312)	200,000	1949 Expenditures	—

1. As requested by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in its second report to the General Assembly 1950 (A/1312, para. 195) a review has been made of the requirements for 1951 under section 18a, Transfer to the permanent Headquarters. The budget estimates for 1951 for this section as originally submitted by the Secretary-General totalled $537,300. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions recommended that this estimate should be provisionally established at $200,000. The reasons for this recommendation were as follows :

(a) The move of a substantial portion of the Secretariat to the new building during August and September 1950, for which certain of the expenditures had been provided for in the 1951 estimates, and

(b) The probability that expenditures on rental and maintenance of the Lake Success premises from 1 January to 30 June 1951 would not be incurred.

In fact, these assumptions need to be revised as follows.

2. It is true that approximately 1,000 staff members were transferred in August and September from Lake Success to the permanent Headquarters. However, the expenditures incurred in this move were, in fact, not included in the original estimates as submitted by the Secretary-General for this section for 1951. Such estimates were based on the assumption that most of the Secretariat would be transferred to the new building late in 1950 and therefore the additional costs, which are referred to above, would be covered either by savings in the 1950 budget or through the submission of supplementary estimates for 1950. It is now known that these expenses cannot be absorbed within the existing 1950 budget, and they will therefore be included in the supplementary estimates to be submitted by the Secretary-General for 1950.

3. The Secretary-General now considers it necessary that provision be made to retain until 30 June 1951 the entire conference area, a part of the administration building and a part of the central building of the Lake Success premises for United Nations use. The reason for this is to ensure sufficient facilities to accommodate and service one session each of the Trusteeship and the Economic and Social Council, meetings of the Security Council, meetings of the Interim Committee of the General Assembly, and if necessary, any special sessions of the General Assembly (if called under the proposed resolution, Uniting for peace (A/C.1/592)). The conference area in the permanent Headquarters will not be ready until at least the end of June 1951 and the Secretary-General feels, therefore, that he cannot give up the facilities at Lake Success until that date. However, it is his intention to retain at Lake Success only the minimum staff required for the servicing of meetings. All other staff presently at Lake Success will be transferred to the permanent Headquarters by early January 1951. Because of the plan to retain the conference area at Lake Success, the provisions originally made in section 18a for 1951 to alter the building at Flushing in order to accommodate the Security Council will no longer be necessary.

4. As a result of the transfer of certain staff in 1950, it was possible in October 1950 to sub-lease approximately 136,000 square feet of space previously occupied by the United Nations. This action will represent a decrease in rental, maintenance and utilities costs for the Lake Success premises for the remainder of 1950 and for the period in 1951 for which this building is held by the United Nations. The decrease in 1950 will be approximately 20 per cent of the original cost for these items for the months of October, November and December. In so far as 1951 is concerned, it is hoped to sub-lease a further area of 150,000 square feet of space presently used by the United Nations, thereby decreasing by approximately 40 per cent the original figures submitted by the Secretary-General for these items in section 18a for 1951.

5. In view of these new factors, the various articles as shown in the budget estimates for 1951 for this section can be adjusted as follows :

(i) Temporary assistance

The original estimate provided $99,200 for additional temporary staff to assist in special tasks resulting from the move to the permanent Headquarters, particularly for maintenance and custodial work at Lake Success, from January until the expiration of the lease in June 1951 and at the Flushing building for the same period. As the Flushing building will not be used, this estimate can now be reduced by $19,200. The revised estimate now submitted for this article is..... $US80,000.

(ii) Telephone services (excluding long-distance)

The original estimate provided $22,800 to cover the costs of telephone services at Lake Success and Flushing from January until June 1951. In view of the intention to retain the conference area at Lake Success during the first half of 1951, the costs relating to Flushing can be eliminated. This will reduce the original estimate by $10,930. However, the original estimate for Lake Success of $12,000, which included $8,000 for the month of January, $1,000 for the months February to July and $2,900 for disconnection charges, will now have to be increased. These charges were originally estimated on the assumption that the Lake Success building would be kept only on a custodial basis during the first six months of 1951. With staff comprising the Press Section of the Department of Public Information, and portions of the Department of Conference and General Services, remaining in this building to service the meetings held in the conference area, an increase of $16,000 is estimated as being necessary. The revised estimate submitted by the Secretary - General is therefore $US28,000.

(iii) Rental of premises

An amount of $166,540 was previously estimated for rental costs including local governmental services and utilities as stipulated in the tenancy agreement for the land and buildings at Lake Success for the period 1 January to 30 June 1951. If negotiations to sub-lease additional space are successful, it will be possible to reduce the original estimate to $103,600. Rental of the warehouse in Astoria was not previously included in the estimate because negotiations were in process at that time to release the United Nations from its obligations under the lease. These negotiations were unsuccessful. Every effort will be made to release the United Nations as soon as possible from its rental obligations. However, it is felt that a $20,700 provision should be made for the rental of these premises for at least the first three months of 1951. The revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General for this article is therefore.

 $US124,300.

(iv) Supplies for maintenance of premises

The original estimate of $11,000 provided for the cleaning and maintenance of buildings and grounds at Lake Success and at Flushing from January to June 1951. Of the total estimate of $11,000, $10,000 was provided for the Lake Success buildings on a custodial basis and $1,000 for the maintenance of the Flushing building. However, now that the conference area at Lake Success is to be retained, the Flushing building will not be used from January to June. Therefore, the $1,000 set aside for this purpose will not be required. But that portion of the Lake Success building to be retained will have to be maintained at a level higher than merely custodial and the $10,000 originally provided for this purpose will have to be increased by $4,000 to $14,000. The revised estimate of the Secretary-General for this article is therefore $US14,000.

(v) Contractual services for maintenance of premises

The original estimate of $19,300 provided for the minimum contractual services for electrical maintenance at Lake Success and at Flushing from January until June 1951. Again, in view of the retention of the Conference Area at Lake Success the amount of $3,300 included in this estimate for the Flushing building can now be eliminated. However, the balance of $16,000 which is required for the Lake Success premises should be increased by an additional $2,000 to provide more than mere custodial services. The Secretary-General's revised total for this article is therefore..... $US18,000.

(vi) Utilities

The original estimate of $97,760 provided for the cost of light, heat, power, water, fuel oil and sewage disposal at Lake Success and at Flushing for the period from January to June 1951. For the Flushing building, $11,360 was provided which, for reasons already stated, can now be eliminated. The balance of $86,000 provided for Lake Success can be reduced by approximately 40 per cent because of the smaller area to be serviced. Accordingly, the original estimate can be reduced by $32,000 to a total amount of..... $US54,000.

(vii) Maintenance of office and other equipment

The estimate provided for repair to articles damaged during the move from Lake Success to the new Headquarters in Manhattan. This estimate remains unchanged at $US6,500.

(viii) Miscellaneous supplies and services

The original estimate of $87,300 provided $40,000 for the transfer of theatre chairs and conference room chairs from Lake Success to the new Headquarters, including the refinishing and re-upholstering of these chairs. This amount will still be required. The estimate also provided $26,100 to allow for the dismantling of telecommunications equipment and wiring so that it can be used at the permanent Headquarters. However, in view of the decision to retain the conference area at Lake Success until at least the end of June 1951, a considerable quantity of this equipment, which was to have been dismantled in 1950 and the expenditure met from 1950 funds, can now not be dismantled until 1951. Therefore, this estimate of $26,100 must be increased to $40,000. (The sum of $4,700, included to cover the costs of taking up, reconditioning and re-laying carpet presently used at Lake Success and to be used at the new Headquarters, is still required.) An item of $16,500, previously included for the installation of additional telecommunications equipment at the Flushing building, can be eliminated. The revised estimate for this account amounts to $US84,700.

(ix) Alterations to premises

The original estimate of $21,500 providing for temporary alterations to the Flushing building can be eliminated.

(x) Local transportation

The original estimate of $5,400 provided for local transportation facilities between the permanent Headquarters in Manhattan and the Flushing building during the period from January to June 1951. In view of the fact that it is not intended to use the Flushing building during this period, this amount is no longer necessary. However, because of the retention of the conference area at Lake Success for the servicing of meetings during the early part of 1951, provision must now be made under this article to cover the cost of local transportation facilities between the permanent Headquarters in Manhattan and the Lake Success premises. An amount of $15,000 is estimated as being required for this purpose. This will provide for the operation of four cars and, if necessary at peak periods, particularly during Council meetings, the hiring of one bus. The revised estimate for this article is therefore..... $US15,000.

(xi) Freight, cartage and express

This account was not included in the original estimates submitted by the Secretary-General. However, the programme of moving the Secretariat to the new building now necessitates this additional item. During August and September 1950, 1,000 staff members were moved to the new building. By 1 January 1951 it is expected that a further 1,500 staff members will move to the new building, and provision for this has been included in the supplementary estimates submitted for 1950. The cost of moving the balance of the staff during 1951 is estimated at $US25,000.

6. Summary

The revised total required for this section for 1951 amounts to $449,500. This reflects a reduction of $87,800 over the original estimate of $537,300 submitted by the Secretary-General for 1951. However, there may be additional expenditures arising in 1951, due to the initial installation, which cannot be foreseen at this time. A summary showing the original and revised estimates of the Secretary-General for this section for 1951 is given below :

Subsistence allowances of members of commissions and other bodies

[2 November 1950]

1. The Secretariat has prepared estimates in response to requests in the Fifth Committee to show the financial implications in 1951 of various proposals before the Committee on subsistence allowances of members of commissions and committees. It could be noted that the Secretary-General's budget estimates for 1951 are based on the recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1312, paras. 322-328). Action on this basis would not entail supplementary estimates. Action to maintain the existing basis of compensation would entail supplementary estimates reducing the requirement by $11,795, while adoption of the United States proposal (A/C.5/L.64) would result in an increase of $49,685 in the amounts budgeted.

Capacity of the Geneva Office to service conferences in 1951

[Original text : English]
[3 November 1950]

1. At the 256th meeting of the Fifth Committee, the representative of Brazil asked for information regarding the capacity of the United Nations Office at Geneva to service conferences in 1951 within the limit of the budget recommended by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions.

2. As will be realized, the work-load of the various United Nations bodies varies widely : two different Commissions may have quite different work-loads, while any one Commission might have a different work-load at each of its sessions. In general terms, however, it can be said that the Geneva Office, without special temporary assistance, can service four meetings daily during nine months of the year with consecutive interpretation, summary records and documentation in English, French or Russian. Experience shows that the " Geneva-based " bodies have provided this work-load and thus have absorbed the regular conference capacity of the Office which, in addition to servicing conferences, is also carrying on continuous work for the substantive Secretariat at Geneva.

3. These Geneva-based bodies are :

Economic Commission for Europe (one session) and its committees and sub-committees, etc.;

Permanent Central Opium Board and Drug Supervisory Body;

International Labour Conference (for which only accommodation services are provided);

World Health Organization Assembly (partly serviced by Geneva Office);

WHO Executive Board (partly serviced by Geneva Office);

WHO Expert Committees (partly serviced by Geneva Office);

International Refugee Organization (?);

Interim Commission for the International Trade Organization/Contracting Parties to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (?);

4. For any conferences of " non-Geneva-based " bodies, temporary assistance is usually required, the exact amount depending on the work-load of the conference. If there were no conferences at Geneva of " non-Geneva-based " bodies, the budget presented could be reduced by some $140,000. If the budget remains unchanged, then Geneva should be able to deal with the 1951 summer session of the Economic and Social Council plus two Commission sessions (say the Commission on Human Rights and the Social Commission) plus one or two smaller meetings. Whatever services are needed for such Commissions or other meetings will have to be found from the funds included in section 20 of the budget for the Trusteeship Council session, which is not now expected to be held at Geneva in 1951. Exact estimates can only be given when exact work-loads are known.

5. As the advisory Committee indicated in paragraph 216 of its report (A/1312), the number of meetings is not in itself a reliable criterion of work-load. The following figures must therefore be used with caution, and are given merely as a very general indication of how the total work-load compares with the theoretical regular conference capacity of four meetings a day over some nine months of the year (say, 800 meetings a year) :

	United Nations	" Geneva-based " bodies Specialized agencies	Total	United Nations	" Non-Geneva-based " bodies Specialized agencies	Total
1949	643	762 ^a	1,405	508	—	508
1950 (9 months) . .	472	702 ^b	1,174	577	23	600

^a Including 388 for the International Labour Organisation.

^b Including 347 for the International Labour Organisation.

The number of meetings expected in the balance of 1950 is about 400, so that the year totals for 1949 and 1950 are 1,913 and 2,200 (approximately). Not all of these meetings were fully serviced, but even so, the cost of the temporary assistance required to deal with the excess work-load arising from visiting conferences was approximately $144,000 in 1949 and is likely to be substantially more than that in 1950, when the programme has been heavier.

Section 5, chapter III. United Nations Commission for Indonesia

[16 November 1950]

1. In its special report to the Security Council on the Round Table Conference (S/1417) ¹⁷ the United Nations Commission for Indonesia states that the resolution covering the decisions of the Conference provides, inter alia, that the Commission or another United Nations agency shall observe in Indonesia the implementation of the agreements reached at the Round Table Conference (paragraph 105). Apart from this general provision, there are also special provisions concerning the functions of the United Nations in the implementation of the agreements reached at the Conference. It is provided that the United Nations Commission for Indonesia, or its successor, will be given opportunity to co-operate with the joint technical commission to be established in connexion with the repatriation of the Royal Netherlands Army from Indonesia (paragraph 84); that plebiscites to ascertain the wishes of the population with regard to the future status of their respective territories in the federal structure will be held only if recommended by a United Nations organ; and that a United Nations organ shall supervise such plebiscites (paragraph 53).

2. During the discussions at the meetings held by the Security Council on 12 and 13 December 1949, the representative of Canada submitted a draft resolution (S/1431) ¹⁸ and the representative of the Ukrainian Soviet

¹⁸ Ibid., Supplement for September-October-November-December.

Socialist Republic submitted another draft resolution (S/1433)¹⁹. Both resolutions were rejected. The President stated that the rejection of the Canadian draft resolution had no effect whatsoever on the previous decisions which had been taken by the Council, and that they therefore remained in full force and effect.

3. The United Nations Commission has continued in 1950 to observe the implementation of the decisions reached at the Hague Round Table Conference. The task of observing the demobilization and repatriation of the Royal Netherlands armed forces and the Royal Netherlands Indies armed forces is not yet completed. In its report dated 28 October 1950 (S/1873) the Commission draws attention to the fact that both the Indonesian and Netherlands authorities have shown a common desire to settle with its assistance the problems associated with demobilization and repatriation of remaining Ex-Knil troops at present in camps at Java. Estimates are therefore submitted for the continuation of the Commission in 1951 at a reduced level of activity.

	US dollars
Temporary assistance	53,200
Travel and subsistence of members	23,800
Travel and subsistence of observers	3,800
Travel and subsistence of staff	47,400
Communication services	4,100
Rental and maintenance of premises	500

Maintenance and operation of transportation equipment	2,400
Freight, cartage and express	3,400
Insurance	1,500
Miscellaneous supplies and contractual services	2,400
Hospitality	200
	147,500

4. Under temporary assistance, provisions are made for four internationally recruited staff members ($23,730) as shown in annex a, six local recruits including two clerk-typists, one mimeograph operator, and three office cleaners ($7,370), and temporary replacements at Headquarters of 50 per cent of professional staff and secretaries ($22,100).

5. Under travel and subsistence of members provisions are made for travel expenses involving one round trip between Djakarta and the capital of the home country of each of the three members of the Commission ($4,000) and subsistence allowance of $20 per day less about 10 per cent for periods of absence ($19,800).

6. A sum of $3,800 is requested to cover cost of travel ($2,800) and subsistence allowance ($1,000) of two observers over a period of about sixty days at the rate of $9.50 per day. There are still thirteen observers attached to the mission. It is expected that most of them will be released from service before the end of the year. Two observers will be retained for about two months in 1951 to liquidate the office of the Military Executive Board.

7. Under travel and subsistence of staff, provision is made for eight round trips between New York and Djakarta at $1,800 per trip for replacements, consultations, and new assignments ($14,400). Subsistence allowance is computed at the rate of $20 for the Principal Secretary, at $9.50 for six staff members, and at $6.50 for three, less 10 per cent for periods of absence from the mission area ($33,000).

8. Provision for other items is made on the basis of 1950 experience adjusted to a lower level in anticipation of reduced activity of the Commission in 1951. Thus the total estimate of $147,500 is $252,500 less than the 1950 appropriation of $400,000.

9. The Secretary-General requests that $147,500 be appropriated for the United Nations Commission for Indonesia under chapter III, section 5 of the 1951 budget. These expenses will be partly compensated by an estimated income of $6,500 from the assessments to be levied on the salaries of internationally recruited and temporary replacement staff.

Revised estimates for section 1, chapter IV, The International Law Commission

[Original text : English]
[17 November 1950]

	US dollars
1951 Original estimates (A/1267)	738,200
Advisory Committee recommendation (A/1312)	700,000
Secretary-General's revised proposal	728,500
1950 Appropriation	765,955
1949 Expenditures	1,274,656

1. The original estimates for the International Law Commission contained in the 1951 budget estimates (A/1267), amounting to $65,000, were based on the assumption that the Commission would hold two sessions in New York. The total duration of both sessions was estimated at fifteen weeks. The Advisory Committee recommended that provision be made for a single session in New York at a saving of $28,000 (A/1312, para. 47), leaving a total of $37,000 for the Commission. At its second session, held in Geneva in June 1950, the Commission decided (A/1316)²⁰ to hold a single session from 15 May 1951 to last not longer than twelve weeks. After consultation with the Secretary-General, who was then trying to keep meetings at Headquarters to a minimum, the International Law Commission further decided that the session would be held in Geneva, Switzerland. The following estimates are prepared on this basis, as the Sixth Committee has concurred in the decisions of the Commission.

	US dollars
Travel and subsistence of members	44,000
Travel and subsistence of staff	20,100
Salaries and travel of consultants and liaison representatives	1,400
	65,500

2. Travel and subsistence of members : $44,000

The Commission is composed of fifteen expert members elected by the General Assembly. The members receive subsistence allowance, and the estimate is calculated on the proposed rate of $20 per day for eighty-nine days ($26,700). Travel expense is based on the actual cost ($8,300). In accordance with the decisions of the General Assembly, an amount of $9,000 has been added to cover honoraria for the Chairman and five rapporteurs.

3. Travel and subsistence of staff : $20,100

Provision is made for travel of twelve staff members

²⁰ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Fifth Session, Supplement No. 12.

(eight substantive and four language service) from New York to Geneva and return, and for their subsistence allowances for eighty-five days, including travel time. (This covers two interpreters for Russian and Spanish, one Spanish translator, and one Spanish secretary. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 262 (III) of 11 December 1948, subsidiary organs of the General Assembly must provide services in the three working languages). The actual expenditure under this account for the 1950 session of the Commission in Geneva was approximately $11,000. The increase in the 1951 estimate is due to the following factors :

(a) The duration of the 1951 session is estimated to be twelve weeks, as compared with eight weeks in 1950.

(b) A smaller proportion of the staff expected to service the Commission will be entitled to home leave in 1951, reducing the savings through combining home leave and attendance at the session.

(c) The work-load during the last intensive session was very heavy on the Secretariat, especially upon the seven substantive members. Fortunately, two legal officers from the Legal Department were on mission in Geneva at that time and were able to assist them on a part-time basis. As it is not foreseen that such assistance will be again available, an additional substantive staff member will be needed.

4. Salaries and travel of consultants and liaison representatives : $1,400

Provision is made under this heading for the cost of travel and subsistence for the Chairman of the International Law Commission, who will attend the General Assembly as representative of the Commission.

5. It is thus proposed that the estimates for section 1 be increased by $28,500, representing the difference between the revised estimates for the International Law Commission and the amount recommended by the Advisory Committee.

6. If this session were to be held at Headquarters instead of at Geneva, the total cost would be approximately $52,500 as compared to $64,100 in Geneva, as the amount $21,100 for travel and subsistence of staff would not be necessary. On the other hand, travel and subsistence of members would have to be increased by $6,700 due to the higher per diem rate of $25 in the New York area, and $400 would be required for local transportation in New York.

Section 5, chapter II. United Nations Mission to India-Pakistan

[22 November 1950]

1. A United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan was established by resolution of the Security Council of 20 January 1948 (S/654)²¹ and 21 April 1948 (S/726)²² to place its good offices and mediation at the disposal of the Governments of India and Pakistan in connexion with the settlement of the question of Jammu and Kashmir. The Secretary-General was requested by the first resolution to furnish the Commission with such staff and facilities as it might consider necessary. Under authority of the above-mentioned resolutions, and at the request of the Commission, the Secretary-General in January 1949 authorized the appointment of about sixty military observers for the supervision of a "cease fire" in Kashmir which had been accepted by the parties (S/1196).²³ An establishment of observation groups has been maintained ever since with varying strength at an average of fifty-five of military observers.

2. At its 470th meeting held on 14 March 1950, the Security Council adopted a resolution (S/1469) appointing a United Nations representative with the following terms of reference :

"(a) To assist in the preparation and to supervise the implementation of the programme of demilitarization referred to above and to interpret the agreement reached by the parties for demilitarization,

"(b) To place himself at the disposal of the Governments of India and Pakistan and to place before those Governments or the Security Council any suggestions which, in his opinion, are likely to contribute to the expeditious and enduring solution of the dispute which has arisen between the two Governments in regard to the State of Jammu and Kashmir,

"(c) To exercise all of the powers and responsibilities devolving upon the United Nations Commission by reason of existing resolutions of the Security Council and by reason of the agreement of the parties embodied in the resolutions of the United Nations Commission of 13 August 1948 and 5 January 1949,

"(d) To arrange at the appropriate state of demilitarization for the assumption by the Plebiscite Administrator of the functions assigned to the latter under agreements made between the parties,

"(e) To report to the Security Council as he may consider necessary, submitting his conclusions and any recommendations which he may desire to make".

By this resolution the Security Council agreed that the United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan should be terminated one month after both parties had informed the United Nations representative of their acceptance of the transfer to him of the powers and responsibilities of the United Nations Commission. Following such acceptance, the Commission was terminated on 30 June 1950.

3. The United Nations representative returned from the sub-continent in September 1950 to report to the Security Council and relinquish his duties. The organization established for the observation of the "cease fire" agreement has been maintained, however, and estimates for its continuation in 1951 are submitted as follows :

	US dollars
Temporary assistance	82,700
Travel and subsistence of observers	338,500
Travel and subsistence of staff	119,000
Communication services	6,500
Rental and maintenance of premises and equipment	4,200
Stationery and office supplies	2,300
Local transportation	51,000
Freight, cartage and express	2,500
Insurance	7,000
Miscellaneous expenses	10,000
Miscellaneous equipment	2,000
Hospitality	500

4. Under temporary assistance provision is made for four internationally-recruited staff members as shown in the annex ($47,830); for local recruits including cleaners and messengers ($4,000) and for temporary replacement at Headquarters of one professional and five general service staff ($30,870).

5. The organization of observation groups consists at present of fifty-five military observers and four ancillary personnel. The average duration of mission assignment is one year. It is anticipated that this number will be maintained in 1951. A sum of $338,500 is therefore requested under travel and subsistence of observers to cover (a) cost of fifty-five round trips at an average of $1,750 ($96,250), (b) subsistence allowance for fifty-nine observers and ancillary personnel at $12.50 per day less 10 per cent for periods of absence ($242,250).

6. Under travel and subsistence of staff, provision is made for one round trip of the Principal Secretary for consultations during the sixth session of the General Assembly ($1,750) and twenty round trips for replacement and new assignments of staff ($35,000). Subsistence allowance is computed at the rate of $20 per day for the Principal Secretary, at $12.50 for four staff members with dependants and at $9.50 per day for nineteen staff members without dependants less 10 per cent for periods of absence ($82,250).

²¹ See Official Records of the Security Council, Third Year, Supplement for November 1948.

²² Ibid., Supplement for April 1948.

²³ Ibid., Fourth Year, Supplement for January 1949.

7. Estimates for all other items are based on 1950 experience. The total of $626,800 is $87,100 less than the 1950 appropriation of $713,900.

8. The Secretary-General requests that $626,800 be appropriated under section 5, chapter II, of the 1951 budget. These expenses will be partly compensated by an estimated income of $16,500 from the assessments to be levied on the salaries of the internationally recruited and temporary replacement staff.

I. Section 3. — The Economic and Social Council, commissions and committees (+ $370,900)

1. As a result of decisions taken by the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session and the Secretary-General's re-appraisal of facilities anticipated to be available in 1951 at the permanent Headquarters, it is necessary to revise the original estimates presented for section 3 of the budget.

2. The various changes described below reflect: (a) the financial consequences of the decisions of the Economic and Social Council, and (b) the additional costs for local transportation involved in holding the sessions of some commissions and committees at Lake Success instead of at the permanent Headquarters. The tables at the end of this section show the net effect of the individual changes on the original estimates for section 3, as well as the revised figures for the section.

Economic and Social Council

3. The Economic and Social Council, at its eleventh session (continued) at Lake Success, decided to accept the invitation of the Government of Chile to hold its twelfth session at Santiago. In a communication dated 8 August 1950, addressed to the Secretary-General, (E/1813), the representative of the Government of Chile has advised as follows:

“ My Government is prepared... to provide the local facilities which would be required for the session. As regards the further expenses involved in holding the session away from headquarters, it is understood that approximately one-third of these expenses may be incurred in Chilean currency, and my Government is willing to reimburse this share ”.

4. The cost of holding the twelfth session of the Council at Santiago is estimated at $337,800. This estimate excludes such local facilities and services as rental of office space, conference rooms, conference equipment other than that taken from Headquarters, local temporary assistance, maintenance staff, local transportation, telephone installation, local charges for telecommunications services, etc., the cost of which is to be borne by the host Government as part of the local costs for holding the session.

5. Most of the office equipment, mimeograph equipment, etc., together with necessary stationery and office supplies, will be sent from Lake Success, and this factor is taken into account in the estimates. However, it is assumed that in the event that any supplies and equipment would need to be purchased locally, the costs involved would also be borne by the host Government.

6. The details of the estimate of $337,800 mentioned above are as follows :

	US dollars
(i) Travel and subsistence of Headquarters staff (of which $88,500 is for subsistence at Santiago)	293,500
(ii) Communications services	8,000
(iii) Rental and maintenance of simultaneous interpretation equipment	10,000
(iv) Freight, cartage and express	12,500
(v) Temporary assistance (six engineers from Headquarters area for simultaneous interpretation)	4,300
(vi) Miscellaneous supplies and contractual services	9,500
TOTAL	337,800

7. The estimate for item (i) covers travel and subsistence of (a) fifty members of the substantive staff from the Departments of Economic Affairs, Social Affairs, Public Information, Administrative and Financial Services, and the Legal Department, and from the Technical Assistance Administration; (b) 150 technical staff covering documents control, telecommunications, reproduction and distribution, financial records, languages, interpretation, and other conference personnel. This staff is in addition to that which would be made available from the secretariat of the Economic Commission for Latin America.

8. Since the Council decided in resolution 336 (XI) to hold its thirteenth session at Geneva, the full amounts provided in the 1951 budget estimates for a Geneva session will be utilized. To finance the proposed Santiago session, therefore, the entire estimated amount, namely $337,800, will be required in addition to the existing budgeted amounts in sections 3 and 20. This total, however, is affected by the offer of the Government of Chile to bear part of the cost of the session in Chilean currency.

9. Since the subsistence allowance of Headquarters staff at Santiago, which is estimated at $88,500, will be paid in local currency, and arrangements can be made to finance in part such items as communications services, freight, cartage and express, miscellaneous supplies, and contractual services in local currency, it is expected that the net expenditure of the United Nations under chapter I will not exceed a sum of $225,000, which represents two-thirds of the total estimate.

10. Following the practice adopted in the past, the Secretary-General proposes to provide in the budget the total cost of holding the twelfth session of the Economic and Social Council in Santiago on a gross basis, and to treat the contribution of the Government of Chile as miscellaneous income. Arrangements would be entered into between the host Government and the United Nations under which expenses in connexion with the provision of the local facilities and services not included in the estimate would be met directly by the host Government, thus obviating the necessity for United Nations budgetary provision in respect of such expenses.

Social Commission

Commission on Human Rights

11. Under the calendar approved by the Council, the Social Commission and the Commission on Human Rights will convene at Geneva instead of at Headquarters, as assumed in the original estimates. Additional budgetary provision is needed to cover the travel expenses of the staff which will be deputed from Headquarters to Geneva for servicing the Commissions. The Secretary-General will endeavour to absorb miscellaneous expenses, such as those for cables, local transportation, freight, etc. in connexion with the sessions of these two Commissions in Geneva, in the total provisions made for these items in section 20 of the budget. Details of the additional budget provision required for the two Commissions are given below :

Social Commission : $US12,000;
 Commission on Human Rights : $US9,000.

12. The estimates cover travel and subsistence of staff :

(a) For the Social Commission, ten Social Affairs staff with appropriate adjustment for home leave travel and reduced subsistence while actually travelling ($7,500).

(b) For the Commission on Human Rights, six Social Affairs staff, with appropriate adjustment for Home leave travel and reduced subsistence while actually travelling ($4,500).

(c) Technical staff, six interpreters and two translators to service both Commissions, which are timed to run consecutively, with appropriate adjustment for home leave travel and reduced subsistence while actually travelling. The total cost of this latter item, $9,000 in all, is shared equally between chapters II and III of section 3.

Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities

Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press

13. In adopting the calendar of conferences for 1951 (resolution 336 (XI)), the Council originally decided to postpone the meetings of the Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press and of the Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities until 1952. The draft resolution (A/1440) recommended by the Third Committee of the General Assembly, under which the Council would be invited to reconsider its decision and to permit the two Sub-Commissions to hold their usual sessions in 1951, is now awaiting decision by the General Assembly. The Fifth Committee, at its 262nd meeting held on 9 November 1950, recommended the retention pro memoria of the estimates for the sessions of these two Sub-Commissions in the budget for 1951. Accordingly, the original budget provision for the two Sub-Commissions, amounting to $30,900, is maintained. This amount will permit the sessions to be held either at Headquarters or at Geneva, assuming that they immediately precede or follow that of the Commission on Human Rights.

Economic and Employment Commission
Sub-Commission on Employment and Economic Stability
Sub-Commission on Economic Development

14. The Council by its resolution 295 (XI) changed the name of the Economic and Employment Commission to the Economic, Employment and Development Commission, increasing the membership from fifteen to eighteen and abolished the Sub-Commission on Employment and Economic Stability and the Sub-Commission on Economic Development. The Council, in the same resolution, authorized the Economic, Employment and Development Commission to meet twice a year and if exceptional circumstances required, to hold an extraordinary session at the call of its Chairman. The changes have the following financial effect :

	US dollars,
Elimination of the original budget provisions in respect of the Sub-Commission on Economic Development ($7,520, chapter X) and the Sub-Commission on Employment and Economic Stability ($7,520, chapter XI), abolished by the Council	15,040
Additional estimated cost in respect of travel and subsistence resulting from the provision of two sessions and the increase in membership of the Economic Employment and Development Commission, formerly designated as the Economic and Employment Commission (original budget provision $9,000)	12,600
Net savings	2,440

15. The Secretary-General proposes that he be authorized to finance an extraordinary session of the Commission during 1951 from the Working Capital Fund and that provision therefor be made in the draft resolution relating to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses.

Statistical Commission

16. In resolution 299 (XI) on the report of the fifth session of the Statistical Commission, the Council increased the membership of the Statistical Commission from twelve to fifteen. This decision necessitates an increase in the original estimates in chapter XII for the meeting of the Statistical Commission from a total of $7,200 to $9,000 to cover the travel expenses of three additional members of the Commission.

Ad Hoc Committee on Slavery

17. By its resolution 307 (XI) the Council decided that the meetings of the Ad Hoc Committee on Slavery planned for November 1950 should take place during the first half of 1951. There will be savings on the 1950 appropriations consequent upon this decision, but since no provision was made in the original 1951 estimates for the purpose, provision is requested in a new chapter XVIII of section 3 of an amount of $6,800 representing the travel and subsistence of five members of the Committee. Provision would need to be made for the printing of the Committee's final report estimated at $3,500, to be added to the estimate for section 25.

Commodity conference

18. Resolution 296 (XI) of the Council authorizes the Secretary-General to convene, on the advice of the Interim Co-ordinating Committee of International Commodity Arrangements acting on the request of an appropriate inter-governmental study group, inter-governmental conferences to discuss measures designed to meet special difficulties which may exist or may be expected to arise concerning a particular primary commodity. On the basis of consultations which have taken place with ICCICA the Secretary-General anticipates that such a commodity conference relating to sugar may be held in the spring of 1951. If the situation concerning facilities at the permanent Headquarters building in the spring months permitted, the conference would be held at Headquarters without additional costs, except for such printing as might be required. If the governments concerned should wish to hold the conference at Geneva, provision would be required for an amount of approximately $40,000. The Secretary-General proposes that he be authorized to finance such a conference, if convened at Geneva, from the Working Capital Fund and that provision therefor be made in the draft resolution relating to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses.

Local transportation requirements for meeting in the New York area

19. The original estimates for section 3 were prepared on the assumption that all meetings of the Commissions and Sub-Commissions of the Council would be held at the permanent Headquarters. However, in view of the programme of construction of the permanent Headquarters building, it is now anticipated that during the first six months of 1951, meetings in New York will be held either at Lake Success or at Flushing. In the circumstances additional funds, as shown in the following table, will be needed to cover the cost of local transportation for members of such Commissions or Committees whose meetings will be held at Lake Success or Flushing.

Body	Number of members	Duration approved by the Council		Number of cars at $17 per day	Total US dollars

Summary of revised estimates

20. The actions detailed above result in a net increase in the original estimates for section 3 of $370,900, against which there will be an increase in miscellaneous income, in respect of the sessions of the Economic and Social Council at Santiago, of about $112,800. The total revised estimate for the section is $599,100 compared with the original estimate of $228,200.

II. Section 3b. Regional economic commissions
(+ $12,400)

23. At its eleventh session, the Economic and Social Council, while considering the annual report of the Economic Commission for Latin America, in resolution 301 (XI) approved, inter alia, the recommendation of the Commission :

(a) To amend rule 42 of the Commission's rules of procedure to add Portuguese to the official languages of the Commissions;

(b) To hold the next session of the Commission in Mexico City.

24. The total additional cost of adding Portuguese to the official languages of the Commission is estimated at $7,200. This amount covers the salary and travel cost of engaging four Portuguese interpreters for a period of three weeks during the Commission's session ($5,700) and the cost of printing the Commission's report ($1,500). The printing provision would be included in section 25.

25. The additional costs to the United Nations of holding the 1951 session of the Commission in Mexico City total $6,700, as follows :

	US dollars
(a) Travel and subsistence of Commission staff (nine substantive officers, one documents officer, one administrative officer, one secretary)	11,800
(b) Travel and per diem of Headquarters staff (twelve interpreters, eight précis-writers, three translators, two engineers, one information officer, one conference officer, one secretary)	13,450
(c) Rental of telecommunications equipment ..	1,550
(d) Freight, cartage and express	1,200
(e) Communications	500
(f) Miscellaneous	500
	29,000
Less: Original estimates	22,300
Additional cost	6,700

26. These revised estimates are based on the understanding that the Government of Mexico will provide all local facilities, namely, local transportation, conference rooms and office space, local secretarial, clerical and messengerial help, local telephones and local charges (if any) for radio coverage. It is difficult to estimate the cost of these services on the basis of information at present available.

27. The net additional cost of implementing in 1951 the above decisions of the Council is estimated at $12,400 for section 3b, and $1,500 for section 25.

III. Section 4. The Trusteeship Council, commissions and committees (—$31,400)

28. The estimates for the 1951 sessions of the Trusteeship Council, as contained in the original budget estimates (A/1267) and as adjusted by the Advisory Committee (A/1312) were based on two sessions of the Council, the eighth session in Geneva and the ninth session at Headquarters. Subsequently, on 21 July 1950, the Trusteeship Council decided to hold its eighth session at Headquarters, and the Secretary-General since then has completed the administrative arrangements to provide for the usual conference facilities at Lake Success for this session.

29. On 22 November 1950 at its third special session, the Trusteeship Council further decided to hold its ninth session in June-July 1951, also at Headquarters. Consequently the provisions made in section 4 of the 1951 budget estimates for a session of the Council in Geneva can now be deleted. These provisions, as adjusted by the Advisory Committee, amount to $35,000 and cover expenses in connexion with travel and subsistence of staff.

30. However, as it is now contemplated that the winter session and part of the summer session of the Council will be held at Lake Success, provision must be made in section 4 for local transportation for these sessions in the amount of $3,600 to cover the cost of hiring three cars for sixty days at $20 per car, per day.

31. Therefore, the Secretary-General proposes to decrease the budget estimates for section 4, as recommended by the Advisory Committee, by $31,400 ($35,000 in travel of staff minus $3,600 in local transportation).

32. It is to be noted that the revised estimates now recommended for section 4 ($53,600) include a tentative provision of $50,000 for the 1951 visiting mission. As the Council has not finalized the arrangements for the visiting mission in 1951, the Secretary-General proposes that these estimates be maintained.

IV. Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva

33. The 1951 estimates for section 20, United Nations Office at Geneva, included provisions amounting to $61,300, to cover the additional costs for servicing a session of the Trusteeship Council. This amount included, inter alia, the additional requirements at Geneva for temporary assistance, communications services, mimeograph supplies and freight.

34. Consequent upon the decision of the Trusteeship Council at its special session on 22 November to hold its ninth session in New York, the provision included in the Geneva budget is no longer required for this purpose.

35. Against this, however, it is now known that the following United Nations bodies will hold their meetings in Geneva in 1951 : Social Commission; Human Rights Commission; International Law Commission; Committee on International Criminal Jurisdiction.

36. The 1951 meeting of the Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press and that of the Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities may also be held in Geneva in the early part of 1951.

37. At the time the 1951 estimates were prepared, these meetings were not scheduled in Geneva and no provision was included in section 20 to cover the additional costs involved.

38. The Geneva conference workload during 1951 was made known to the Fifth Committee in document A/C.5/397. It is therefore proposed to retain the amounts provided for the Trusteeship Council in order to enable the Geneva Office to provide the services required for the meetings listed above.

1. The Fifth Committee has already received, in document A/C.5/423, supplementary estimates to cover the additional costs of implementing several resolutions adopted by the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council affecting sections 3 and 3b of the 1951 budget. These supplementary estimates, in the total amount of $384,140, covered the costs of holding the twelfth session of the Council at Santiago ($337,800), the 1951 sessions of the Social Commission and the Commission on Human Rights at Geneva ($21,000) and the 1951 session of the Economic Commission for Latin America in Mexico City ($13,900), and other smaller items.

2. This report sets out in detail the estimated additional costs of implementing the resolutions not already covered in document A/C.5/423. It is issued following examination of the items in the light of the present budgetary position for 1951.

Section 10. Department of Economic Affairs (+ $221,200)

3. In resolution 290 (XI) (Report of the Economic and Employment Commission the Council took decisions intended to ensure regular systematic consideration of employment problems by the Council (part A); encourage the adoption of effective international full employment policies (part B); encourage effective international full employment policies (part C); facilitate the Council's further consideration of the problems of unemployment, particularly in the less developed countries (part D); and facilitate the implementation of this resolution (part E). The provisions of the resolution have been favourably recommended to the General Assembly by the Second Committee.

(a) Part A. Beginning in 1951, the Council will place on its agenda once each year, for consideration in the light of economic trends, the problem of achieving and maintaining full employment with progressively improving levels of production, trade and consumption, and maintenance of, or progress toward the achievement of equilibrium in balances of payments. The particular fields of study which must be undertaken to ensure the regular systematic consideration of employment problems by the Council are set out in subsequent sections, with financial implications as shown below.

(b) Part B. With the object of encouraging the adoption of effective domestic full employment policies, it is recommended that each government publish annually a statement of its economic objectives covering specified items; publish as soon and as precisely as is practicable the standard by which it defines the meaning of full employment; formulate, announce and periodically review the policies, programmes and techniques it intends to pursue; and keep continuously under review the adequacy of its organizational and technical arrangements, including statistical services, required for the implementation of the above recommendations.

The Secretary-General is requested to amend the questionnaires being issued under Council resolution 221 E (IX) so as to cover information concerning economic trends, full employment standards, domestic economic objectives or forecasts, and domestic policies or programmes, and to send to governments the first issue of the amended form as soon as possible. He is also requested to assemble and analyse the reports submitted by governments in response to the questionnaire, so as to facilitate review by the Economic, Employment and Development Commission and, in particular, to analyse the statistical basis of the full employment standards published by governments.

The collection, analysis and publication of information received from governments under resolution 221 E (IX) is handled as a project of the Economic Stability Section of the Division of Economic Stability and Employment (A/1267, p. 85).

To undertake the new responsibilities called for by the Council, it is necessary to strengthen the existing staff by two professional posts (one officer and one junior officer) and one secretary. The additional annual cost beginning in 1951 (allowing a 4 per cent deduction for delayed recruitment) is estimated at $15,375.

(c) Part C, I. In conjunction with the objective of encouraging effective international full employment policies and the consequent recommendations made to governments, the Council, in paragraph 12 of the resolution, requests the Secretary-General to amend the questionnaires being issued under Council resolution 221 E (IX) so as to cover estimates by governments of their balance-of-payments positions and information on their related economic policies for the ensuing year and, when appropriate, for a longer period; to assemble and analyse the reports submitted by governments so as to facilitate the task of the Economic, Employment and Development Commission, and to continue to make special studies concerning the international aspects of the full employment problem.

To undertake these particular responsibilities, it is necessary to strengthen the staff of the Division of Economic Stability and Development by two professional posts (one officer and one junior officer), and one secretary. The additional annual cost beginning in 1951 (allowing a 4 per cent deduction for delayed recruitment) is estimated at $15,375.

In paragraph 13 of the resolution, the Council further requests the Secretary-General (i) to prepare, with the advice of suitable experts, and to issue as soon as conveniently possible, a special questionnaire to obtain from governments (within a recommended period of six months) quantitative estimates of the main elements of the balance of international payments which each government hopes to attain by 1954, together with a classification of its estimated trade by major commodities or groups of commodities; (ii) to appoint a group of three independent experts and to furnish them with such assistance as may be necessary to enable them to submit, to the Economic, Employment and Development Commission, on their own responsibility, a report analysing and commenting on the replies to the questionnaires received from governments; and (iii) to undertake, and if practicable to annex to the reports of the experts, an analysis of the changes in demand for, and supply of, the principal commodities in international trade which might be expected to occur in the light of the data supplied by governments, and other relevant material. To carry out these tasks, additional funds for experts and staff will be needed, starting in 1951, to be utilized on a temporary basis for a period of two years.

Requirements for 1951 are estimated at $122,000 as follows :

	US dollars
(i) Fees, travel and subsistence allowance costs for one meeting of three independent experts for a total of 120 working days	27,000
Carried forward	27,000

	US dollars
Brought forward	27,000

(ii) Salaries of one senior officer, three officers, two intermediate officers, seven junior officers (including five statistical) and five secretaries ($99,000 minus 4 per cent reduction for delayed recruitment)	95,000
---	--------

TOTAL THEREAFTER	122,000

(d) Part C (II). Under this section of the resolution, the Secretary-General is requested to appoint a group of three to five experts to make technical studies, and, after seeking the views of the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, to prepare a report to be issued on their own responsibility formulating and analysing alternative practical ways of dealing with the problem of reducing the international impact of the recessions that may arise. The costs in fees, travel and subsistence allowance for convening a meeting of five experts for a total of thirty-four days is estimated at $15,000.

(e) Part D. In connexion with the object of facilitating the Council's further consideration of the problem of unemployment, particularly in the less-developed countries, the Secretary-General is requested, under this section, to appoint a small group of experts to prepare, in the light of the current world economic situation and of the requirements of economic development, a report, to be issued on their own responsibility, on unemployment and under-employment in under-developed countries, and on the national and international measures required to reduce such unemployment and under-employment. The cost of this meeting of experts, on the basis of eight experts working for a period of eighty days, and covering fees, travel and subsistence allowances is estimated at $43,200.

(f) Part E. In this section of the resolution, the Council recommends that the Secretary-General and the appropriate specialized agencies provide, within their capacities, technical assistance to governments upon their request, for the purpose of facilitating the implementation of the resolution. Such technical assistance would be rendered either by the Secretary-General or by the appropriate specialized agencies, and would be financed out of the funds specifically provided by appropriation or by voluntary contributions for technical assistance purposes.

4. In part F of resolution 299 (XI) (report of the Statistical Commission) the Council has requested the Secretary-General to "take the initiative in arranging for adequate programmes of development in the various branches of social statistics by (a) surveying the needs of the United Nations and other international agencies in the field of social statistics; (b) exploring the extent to which these needs are being met by the United Nations and the specialized agencies and drawing attention to the areas where more complete and comparable data are required in their respective fields; and (c) investigating the availability and comparability of data at present not being collected by the United Nations or the specialized agencies and compiling those most urgently needed, together with appraisals of their adequacy".

5. The Secretary-General, in his original budget estimates for 1951 (A/1267, p. 93), proposed no increase in the number of posts for the Statistical Office. The Statistical Commission, at its fifth session, gave careful attention to the priorities of its work programme and these, as set out in the Commission's report (E/1696),²⁴ indicate the volume of current and future work falling to the Statistical Office. The existing strength of the Statistical Office does not permit any expansion of the work of the Office or any increase in the rate at which priority projects have been carried forward. In view of the decision of the Council as noted above, on the question of the provision of more social statistics, it will be necessary to increase the present staff of the Statistical Office by two professional posts, namely, one intermediate officer and one junior officer, at an additional annual cost of $10,250.

6. In order to implement the above resolutions, the Secretary-General requests that the estimates for section 10, as approved by the Fifth Committee in its first reading of the 1951 budget, be increased by a total sum of $221,200. In addition, provisions would need to be made for common staff costs for the additional staff requirements in the amount of $28,000 and for printing in two languages the reports of the three groups of experts referred to in sub-paragraphs 3 (d) and 3 (e) above, in the amount of $9,000. These sums are to be added to the estimates for section 17 and section 26 of the 1951 budget respectively.

7. This supplemental estimate does not take into account the proposal of the Second Committee (A/C.5/424) that the Secretary-General and the specialized agencies prepare materials for the use of interested governments on the organization and collection of economic data. A financial estimate covering this matter is to be presented to the Fifth Committee in accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly.

Section II. Department of Social Affairs (+ $74,100)

8. The Economic and Social Council, on the basis of the report of the fifth session of the Population Commission (E/1711),²⁵ adopted resolution 308 (XI), which in its parts A and C has the following financial implications :

(a) In taking note of the Commission's report, part A of the resolution appears, in addition to the matters specifically referred to in the resolution of the Council, a further item of work to which the Commission accorded high priority; namely, a study of recent recovery of the birth-rate in certain countries. This will necessitate the hiring of one intermediate officer on a temporary basis for 1951 at a cost of $6,000.

(b) Part C requests that the Secretary-General, in consultation with the executive heads of appropriate agencies, press forward with the migration studies recommended by the Commission and also prepare a study of adequate methods of international financing of European migration. Staff will be made available for these purposes from the existing establishment, partly by the postponement of staff work on certain projects of lesser priority which are not yet fully under way, such as additional studies of Trust Territories, and several less important tasks in the migration field.

(c) Part D, in connexion with "the relationship of population growth to problems of economic development, especially in areas of dense population in relation to existing resources", recommends that "the studies of the inter-relationship of demographic, economic and social factors be carried forward by the Secretary-General as recommended by the Population Commission, and that the essential additional costs be met by the Secretary-General by

"(a) Releasing funds by postponing work on projects given lower priority by the Commission" and

"(b) Exploring with the Government of India the possibility of developing a technical assistance project financed from the Special Account to meet part of the additional costs of the proposed expansion of the field investigation noted above".

The proposed expansion of the scope of the field study would involve costs for salaries of field investigators and for machine tabulation totalling $54,000 in 1951, and appreciably smaller amounts in 1952 and 1953.

The Secretary-General has taken into consideration the Council's recommendation to postpone work given lower priority by the Commission in order to meet essential costs for the new work in 1951, and has concluded that these extra costs cannot be absorbed in the 1951 budget appropriation requested. He will explore with the Government of India the possibility of developing a technical assistance project financed from the Special Account to meet the additional costs of the proposed expansion of the field investigation noted above. Accordingly, no budgetary action is requested.

9. On the basis of the report of the sixth session of the Social Commission (E/1678),²⁶ the Economic and Social Council has adopted resolution 309 (XI), which has the following financial implications :

(a) The resolution, in part E, requests the Secretary-General, inter alia, " (i) to plan jointly with the specialized agencies and in consultation with the interested non-governmental organizations a well co-ordinated international programme for rehabilitation of physically handicapped persons; ... (ii) To expand the present facilities for dissemination of information on rehabilitation and the preparation of training materials; (iii) To assist, as appropriate, in providing for the exchange of knowledge and materials for the manufacture of all types of prosthetic devices as well as information on hearing aids; " and " (iv) To include an amount in the budget estimates of the United Nations for 1951 for employing staff to initiate this programme ".

The Secretary-General has considered carefully the financial implications of the above-mentioned decisions

²⁴ See Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, Fifth Year, Eleventh Session, Supplement No. 4.

²⁵ Ibid., Fifth Year, Eleventh Session, Supplement No. 7.

²⁶ Ibid., Fifth Year, Eleventh Session, Supplement No. 3.

in so far as the 1951 estimates are concerned. In order to develop a co-ordinated plan for effective study and action to rehabilitate the handicapped, additional funds will be needed as detailed below :

	US dollars
(i) Salaries of one officer, one intermediate officer, one junior officer and one secretary..	21,550
(ii) Consultants (100 consultant days plus travel costs)	5,750
(iii) Travel of Secretariat members to international meetings called for the drafting of programmes	2,500
	29,800

In addition, the proposed publications programme will entail an estimated expenditure of $3,000 for contractual printing to be added to the estimate for section 26 of the budget.

(b) In part G of the resolution, the Council approved the general lines of the long-term integrated programme of work in the field of social welfare, including methods of execution proposed by the Social Commission at its sixth session, and requested the Secretary-General, within the limits of such appropriation as might be provided by the General Assembly for the purpose, to make the administrative arrangements appropriate to carry out the proposed unified programme, having full regard to the competence of the specialized agencies. The financial implications of the long-term programme are detailed below :

(i) Family, youth and child welfare : The proposals of the Social Commission under this head call for increased attention to the problems of the welfare of children and young persons in rural and under-developed areas; expansion of the existing annual report on child welfare to cover community and family material and publication of this report bi-annually; preparation in 1951 and 1952 of a survey of such community services as counselling, legal aid, recreational facilities, etc. The Secretary-General is making arrangements whereby priority could be given to these tasks within the existing establishment. It would be necessary, in addition, to make provision for two new professional posts to assist in the liaison and closer collaboration in this field with the United Nations International Children's Fund, the specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations concerned (one intermediate officer and one junior officer), and one secretarial post, for which supplementary funds are requested for 1951 in the amount of $13,300.

(ii) Conditions of living. On the question of methods of family living studies in under-developed territories, the Social Commission recommends that the Secretary-General confer with the International Labour Organisation and with the Statistical Commission as to the possibility of establishing a joint committee of technical experts which would cover fields of interest to the Social and Statistical Commissions and the International Labour Organisation. Participation in the proposed joint meeting would involve additional travel costs in 1951 of $2,000 (for two staff members), assuming a meeting of two to three weeks' duration at Geneva. The desirability of such participation has been noted by the Statistical Commission (E/1696). The additional cost involved for 1951 is estimated at $2,000.

(iii) Social defence. The Social Commission recommends that the Secretary-General undertake the preparation of studies on (a) the detention of adults prior to sentence; (b) the indeterminate sentence and other measures designed for adapting the duration of treatment in correctional or penal institutions to the needs of the individual offender and to the protection of society; (c) parole and after care; and (d) the selection and training of personnel for penal and correctional institutions. It is believed that these and other related studies requested by the Commission can be carried out most suitably by consultants. Additional funds will be required for the purpose in 1951 in the amount of $10,000.

In addition, it will be necessary to establish a post of officer to carry responsibility for preparation and editing of the International Social Review recommended by the Social Commission. The estimated additional cost in 1951 is $8,750. Funds for printing the bulletin are already available in section 26. The total additional expenses for 1951 under this item are thus estimated at $18,750.

(iv) Housing, town and country planning. The work programme recommended by the Social Commission for 1951-52 under this head calls for housing studies, some of which are to be done co-operatively with the Economic Commission for Europe, and requires the additional funds as requested under section 20 below.

(v) Social Reference Centre. The expansion of the present legislative series on child welfare to cover community and family welfare and eventually other branches of the work as recommended by the Commission requires the addition of one junior officer. The additional cost for 1951 is estimated at $4,250.

10. Resolution 310 (X). Long-range activities for children, and Resolution 333 (XI), inter-governmental organizations.

It is now expected that neither of these resolutions will entail financial implications for the United Nations budget in 1951.

11. In order to implement the above resolutions, the Secretary-General requests that the estimates for section 11, as approved by the Fifth Committee in its first reading of the 1951 budget, be increased by a total sum of $74,100. In addition, provisions would need to be made for common staff costs for the additional staff requirements in the amount of $10,000, and for printing the proposed publication programme in the field of rehabilitation of physically handicapped persons referred to under paragraph 9 (a) above, in the amount of $3,000. These sums are to be added to the estimates for sections 17 and 26 of the 1951 budget, respectively.

Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva ($49,200)

12. In resolution 300 (XI), the Economic and Social Council took note of the regular annual report of the Economic Commission for Europe (E/1674) ²⁷ and recommended that the necessary funds be allocated for the purpose of implementing the decisions of the fifth session of the Commission. The financial implications of these decisions are as follows :

(a) Housing programme. An expansion of work in the housing field was proposed both by the Economic Commission for Europe at its fifth session and by the Social Commission at its sixth session. An estimate of additional expenditures to provide for two professional posts (one intermediate and one junior officer) and one secretarial post was noted by the Council when it approved the reports of the two Commissions. The studies to be undertaken would deal with the financing of housing and housing costs in relation to family income. These studies would be jointly planned and executed by the secretariat of the Economic Commission for Europe and the Department of Social Affairs, the additional staff required being located at Geneva. On the above basis, the cost of these studies in 1951 would amount to $13,650.

(b) Price formation study. The proposal of the Commission concerning studies on international price formation and capital markets is contained in document E/1674, part IV, resolutions 2 and 3. While additional work in the field of finance will be undertaken within the existing establishment, work particularly in the field of international price formation will require the services of a senior economic specialist (senior officer or consultant), a research assistant (intermediate officer), and one secretary, as well as provision ($1,000) for official travel in Europe. The estimated cost in 1951 is $21,850.

(c) Joint work with the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East. The joint economic studies and co-operative action being undertaken among the three regional Commissions, of which the Council took note in the course of its discussions on the reports of the Commissions, entails additional expenses for the Economic Commission for Europe which were not fully anticipated at the time the Council was in session.

Following a review of the work programme of Economic Commission for Europe, subsequent to the reduction of $29,900 in its 1951 estimates recommended by the Advisory Committee (A/1312, para. 228), it is now requested that additional funds for this purpose be provided to cover the salaries of one officer and one secretary ($11,700) and additional travel ($2,000), totalling $13,700.

Section 27. Advisory social welfare functions
(+$158,000)

13. Resolution 312 (XI) of the Economic and Social Council constituted a draft text revising the terms of General Assembly resolution 58 (I). As amended and proposed by the Third Committee for adoption by the General Assembly, the text (A/1436) provides for certain new features in the programme of advisory social welfare services, involving the following additional costs in 1951 :

	US dollars
(a) Thirty scholarships at $2,000 each	60,000
(b) Operation of one demonstration centre, including cost of equipment	50,000
(c) Supplies of technical literature	48,000
TOTAL	158,000

14. This amount, recommended to the General Assembly by the Fifth Committee in its report (A/1537), is requested as a supplement to the original budget estimate for section 27.

Revised estimates for section 5a, United Nations Field Service

[Original text : English]
[4 December 1950]

	US dollars
1951 Original budget estimates (A/1267)	300,000
Recommended by the Advisory Committee (A/1312)	300,000
Revised estimates	488,000
1950 Appropriation	337,000
1949 Expenditure	—

1. Section A of General Assembly resolution 297 (IV) reads as follows :

“ The General Assembly,

“ Having considered the report of the Special Committee established by General Assembly resolution 270 (III) of 29 April 1949,

“ Being of the opinion that the United Nations Field Service, as proposed by the Secretary-General in document A/AC.29/1 and modified by the report of the Special Committee, will contribute to the more efficient operation of United Nations missions, “ Considering that the Secretary-General has authority to establish the United Nations Field Service, subject to budgetary limitations and the normal administrative controls of the General Assembly,

“ Takes note of the intention of the Secretary-General to establish this proposed unit as modified by the observations contained in the report of the Special Committee.”

2. Under section 5a of the 1951 budget estimates (A/1267, page 58), an interim estimate of $300,000 was suggested for the United Nations Field Service. It was added, however, that detailed estimates would be submitted at the time detailed estimates for the political missions under section 5 were submitted.

3. Taking into consideration the requirements of the missions as known at present, the Secretary-General proposes that the strength of the Field Service staff be set at 300 in 1951.

4. Of this total, 158 posts are already provided for in the 1951 budget estimates (A/1267), either as established posts or as temporary assistance, for normal guard duties at Headquarters and at the Geneva Office (thirty posts under section 20 and 128 posts under sections 16 and 18a). In addition, provision has already been made under section 16 for seventeen posts for the Headquarters unit in charge of the administration and direction of the United Nations Field Service. Therefore, under section 5a of the 1951 budget, it will be necessary to provide only for the remaining 125 posts.

5. The disposition of the 125 persons required for Field Service assignments is shown below :

United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans	14
United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea	28
United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine	34
United Nations Mission for India and Pakistan	12
United Nations Advisory Council for the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian Administration	5
Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya	7
Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Eritrea .	5
In training (on recruitment and advanced courses) ..	20
	125

6. On the above basis, in lieu of the interim estimate of $300,000 shown under section 5a in the 1951 budget estimates, the following amount will be required :

	US dollars
Salaries and wages	316,000
Temporary assistance	13,000
Travel and subsistence of staff	53,000
Maintenance and operation of transportation equipment	1,000
Miscellaneous supplies and contractual services .	28,500
Miscellaneous equipment	2,000
Common staff costs	74,500
	488,000

7. Under salaries and wages, provision is made for 125 posts at the following rates :

	US dollars
45 at $2,000 gross per annum	90,000
40 at $2,350 gross per annum	94,000
25 at $2,820 gross per annum	70,500
10 at $3,530 gross per annum	35,300
	289,800
Carried forward	289,800

	US dollars
Brought forward	289,800
5 at $4,500 gross per annum	22,500
	312,300
Provision for increments	3,700

8. Under temporary assistance, provision is made for instructors to supervise training in the field of telecommunications ($6,000), shorthand and typing ($4,000) and maintenance of vehicles ($3,000). These instructors would train forty-five new recruits and give advance courses to thirty Field Service personnel. The provision of $53,000 requested under travel and subsistence of staff will cover :

(a) Round trips to and from New York and subsistence costs in connexion with advanced training courses for personnel who have been on duty at various missions. This training course, lasting ninety days, will cover technical matters in telecommunications, transportation and administrative fields. The course will be given in rotation to thirty persons at the average of ten at a time. Provision is therefore requested for bringing to Headquarters thirty persons for training at average for return trip of $1,000 ($30,000). Subsistence allowance for ninety days at $5 per day would amount to $13,500.

(b) The costs of travel to factories and technical schools in the United States in connexion with training of forty-five new recruits and thirty Field Service personnel in advanced training ($9,500).

9. A sum of $1,000 is requested under operation and maintenance of transportation equipment to cover costs of operating two jeeps in connexion with the training programme. Provision for miscellaneous supplies and contractual services will meet the cost of uniforms. Under miscellaneous equipment, provision of $2,000 is made for field gear and other equipment.

10. The amount of $74,500 requested for common staff costs provides for :

(a) Contribution to the Joint Staff Pension Fund ($20,000);

(b) Travel and removal expenses of forty-five new recruits at an average of $650 each ($29,250);

(c) Installation per diem at Headquarters for forty-five persons at $5 per day for ninety days ($20,250);

(d) Children's allowances ($5,000).

11. The Secretary-General consequently requests that $488,000 be appropriated under section 5a of the 1951 budget estimates. These expenses will be partly compensated by an estimated income of $46,800 from the assessments to be levied on the salaries of the staff.

The General Assembly,

Having regard to the repeated requests made by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for guidance from the General Assembly concerning the limits of the activities undertaken by the Department of Public Information of the United Nations and by the information centres, and concerning in particular the proportion of expenditure for public infor-

Decides to consolidate and stabilize the regular programme of economic and social activities of the United Nations;

Requests the Economic and Social Council, in considering the programme of activities for each of the years 1952 and 1953, to take the appropriations approved in the regular budget of the United Nations for 1951 as indicating the level of expenditure to be incurred upon the regular programme of the United Nations in economic and social fields;

Compensation to members of commissions, committees or similar bodies in case of injury or death. Report of the Fifth Committee

[14 November 1950]

1. In connexion with its consideration of the budget estimates for 1951, the Fifth Committee, at its 263rd meeting on 9 November 1950, considered recommendations relating to compensation of members of commissions, committees or similar bodies in case of injury or death which the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions had submitted in part 3 (General Administrative Questions) of its second report of 1950 (A/1312). The recommendations of the Advisory Committee were based on proposals submitted to it by the Secretary-General, which, in turn, had been formulated in the light of a system of reparation for death or injury affecting staff members and auxiliary personnel (military observers, radio operators, etc.) offered by the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems (A/C.5/331, paragraphs 129-147).

2. The chairman of the Fifth Committee, in inviting discussion of the Advisory Committee's proposals, called attention to the recommendation that, should the proposals be adopted by the General Assembly, the necessary expenditure for cases as they arose should be charged to the regular annual budget of the United Nations.

3. For convenience of reference, the main provisions of the compensation plan recommended by the Advisory Committee for members of commissions, committees or similar bodies, which were approved unanimously without discussion, are reproduced in the annex to the present report.

4. Accordingly, the Fifth Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution :

COMPENSATION TO MEMBERS OF COMMISSIONS, COMMITTEES OR SIMILAR BODIES IN CASE OF INJURY OR DEATH

The General Assembly,

Taking into account the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions on the problem of compensation to members of commissions, committees or similar bodies in case of injury or death attributable to service with the United Nations (A/1312, paragraphs 342-343),

1. Approves the following basic points of the compensation plan proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions :

(a) That compensation be paid solely to those members of commissions, committees or similar bodies whose service to the Organization is recognized to the extent that they receive subsistence allowance from the Organization;

(b) That compensation be payable only in the event of service-connected injury or death, eligibility under this paragraph to be determined in accordance with the definition set out by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions in paragraph 342 (1) of document A/1312;

(c) That the maximum compensation to be paid to a claimant will be $25,000, to be awarded in case of death or total disability;

2. Instructs the Secretary-General to follow, in the settlement of claims, the recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions contained in document A/1312.

Subsistence allowances for members of commissions, committees and other subsidiary bodies. Report of the Fifth Committee

[20 November 1950]

1. In its report on the budget estimates for 1950 presented to the General Assembly at its 276th meeting on 10 December (A/1232, ²⁸ para. 65), the Fifth Committee requested the Secretary-General, in consultation with the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, to undertake a comprehensive review of the adequacy of the rate of subsistence allowances paid to members of commissions, committees or other subsidiary bodies of the General Assembly and other organs of the United Nations. It was requested that a report on this matter, which should take account of such factors as revaluation of currencies and changes in the cost of living, should be submitted to the fifth session of the General Assembly.

2. On the basis of facts presented by the Secretary-General concerning costs of subsistence, both in the New York area and in areas away from Headquarters where United Nations commissions or committees are in session, the Advisory Committee reviewed present subsistence rates and submitted to the General Assembly, in its second report of 1950 (A/1312, para. 322-328), its recommendations relative thereto. The Fifth Committee, pursuant to instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, considered these recommendations at its 258th and 259th meetings held on 31 October and 4 November 1950.

3. In addition to the Advisory Committee's recommendations and an accompanying draft resolution (A/C.5/L.62), the Fifth Committee had before it a communication dated 30 October 1950 from the President of the General Assembly (A/C.5/394) requesting consideration, in accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure, of a draft resolution adopted by the Sixth Committee, under which members of the International Law Commission would receive a special allowance, the amount to be determined by the General Assembly. As regards the amount of such allowance, the Fifth Committee was informed that the Sixth Committee had approved a vœu to the effect that "it expresses the desire that the special allowance provided for in the draft resolution adopted by it on 28 October 1950 should be $35 per day".

4. In submitting its recommendations, the Advisory Committee drew attention to the fact that the categories of organs or subsidiary organs the members of which should be eligible for subsistence allowances from the United Nations budget had been determined by the General Assembly in resolution 231 (III) of 8 October 1948. Accordingly the Committee had judged that it was not the intent of the Fifth Committee, in requesting a comprehensive examination of subsistence rates, that this question of eligibility should also be the subject of further review. Similarly, it expressed the opinion that reconsideration of the question of the purpose of these allowances would be inappropriate. The accepted principle that they represent subsistence and not a fee for service was therefore re-affirmed. It was further suggested that the General Assembly might wish to reconsider the question of including, within the common system recommended, all expert bodies the members of which are presently eligible for allowances on a differing basis.

5. After examination of relevant data, the Advisory Committee reached the conclusion that the $20 per diem rate currently in effect at Headquarters should be increased to $25 per diem as of 1 January 1951 and that the $20 rate should be continued in respect of meetings away from Headquarters. In reviewing the rates paid to members of commissions and committees of inquiry and conciliation, the Advisory Committee found that while actual hotel and food costs are not so high as in New York, new cost factors arise from the fact that members of these bodies are absent from their homes for a year at a time and frequently serve in areas where special clothing is required. In view of these factors, and in the interest of administrative simplicity, it recommended a flat subsistence rate at the local currency equivalent of $20 per diem for all commissions of inquiry or conciliation meeting away from Headquarters.

6. At the 258th meeting of the Fifth Committee, the representative of the United States of America presented an amendment (A/C.5/L.64) to the draft resolution based on the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, providing for an increase in subsistence allowance for expert bodies to $35 per diem at Headquarters and $30 per diem elsewhere. He agreed, however, with the Advisory Committee's recommendation that the allowance for members of commissions of inquiry and conciliation who are representatives of their Governments, should be maintained at the local currency equivalent of $20 per diem. In explaining his proposal, the United States representative stated that the request of the Sixth Committee for a per diem of $35 for members of the International Law Commission raised a serious doubt, in the mind of his delegation, as to the adequacy of the rates proposed by the Advisory Committee in the case of experts who were not in receipt of income from other sources and who had to maintain themselves at Headquarters or in Geneva for considerable periods of time. On the assumption, therefore, that the $20 per diem had been insufficient in the past and having regard, moreover, to such considerations as the increase in living costs, the fact that hotel expenses, etc., varied considerably, the difficulties occasioned by exchange restrictions, the rates of subsistence allowance paid by the governments of many Member States, the impossibility of avoiding a certain amount of hospitality expenditure and the natural desire of those absent for prolonged periods to have their wives accompany them, his delegation had concluded that a per diem of $35 for New York was not unreasonable. It had also reached the conclusion that a possible alternative solution whereby members of expert bodies would receive a smaller amount for subsistence plus a daily allowance or fee, presented very serious drawbacks and, moreover, would undermine the important principle that experts, in giving their services freely to the United Nations, do so as a matter of honour and of obligation. The United States delegation, furthermore, attached very great importance to the principle that, in the matter of subsistence allowances, all expert bodies should be treated equally. No exceptions to the general policy decided upon should therefore be authorized.

7. At its 259th meeting, the Fifth Committee had before it, in addition to the above-mentioned draft resolutions, a paper furnished by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/396) listing those bodies the members of which are eligible for subsistence allowance, together with the locations of their meetings and the budgetary implications of the present scale of payments ($554,360), the Advisory Committee's recommendations ($566,155), and the United States proposals ($615,840). The Fifth Committee was informed that, since the Secretary-General's budget estimates for 1951 had been based on the Advisory Committee's recommendations, adoption of the United States proposal would involve an increase of $49,685 in the amounts budgeted.

8. During the discussion of the United States proposal, the view was widely supported that regardless of the rate of subsistence decided on, no special treatment should be accorded to any particular commission or committee. While the principle that any amount paid in the form of daily allowance should be for subsistence purposes only and should not include a special fee for services was likewise endorsed, some delegations were of the opinion that the question of subsistence allowance, on the one hand, and the bases for payment of a fee for services, on the other, should be considered separately.

9. With respect to subsistence allowance, the rate of $35 per day (for Headquarters) proposed in the United States amendment, though supported by some delegations, was strongly opposed by others on the ground that an increase of 75 per cent could not be justified in the absence of specific statistical and other relevant data and of a thorough and objective analysis of the situation comparable to that which the Advisory Committee had undertaken and in the light of which it had made its recommendations. Any such decision, moreover, would be bound to have serious repercussions in a number of directions—not least in connexion with the subsistence allowances payable to members of the Secretariat—as the representative of the Secretary-General had properly pointed out. It was suggested also that favourable action on the United States amendment would be difficult to reconcile with the position consistently taken by the Fifth Committee on other issues, and the Committee was therefore urged to accept the recommendations of the Advisory Committee.

10. On being put to the vote, the amended draft resolution as presented by the United States (A/C.5/L.64) was rejected by 23 votes to 14 with 3 abstentions. The recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/C.5/L.62) were then approved by 31 votes to none with 10 abstentions.

11. The Fifth Committee was next invited to consider whether, in the light of the above decision, any exceptions to the general rule should be authorized. On the understanding that the proposal made by the Sixth Committee in this connexion referred to the question of daily subsistence allowance for the International Law Commission, the Fifth Committee decided, by 19 votes to 15 with 7 abstentions, that it was unable to recommend the establishment of a special rate of $35 per day for members of that body.

12. It was also brought to the Committee's attention that a special allowance of $10 per diem, in addition to the normal subsistence allowance of $20, had been approved by the General Assembly in 1949 for members of the Administrative Tribunal. It was the understanding of the Fifth Committee, however, that any such previous decisions in respect of special daily allowances would be superseded by the following draft resolution which it recommends to the General Assembly for adoption :

SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCES FOR MEMBERS OF COMMISSIONS, COMMITTEES AND OTHER SUBSIDIARY BODIES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY AND OTHER ORGANS OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly

1. Reaffirms the principles and conditions for payment of transportation expenses and subsistence allowances as laid down in resolution 231 (III) of 8 October 1948;

2. Agrees that subsistence allowances for members of commissions and committees eligible under resolution 231 (III) meeting at Headquarters should be raised from $20 to $25 per diem as of 1 January 1951, as recommended by the Advisory Committee (A/1312, para. 325);

3. Agrees that members of commissions and committees meeting away from Headquarters should continue to receive subsistence allowances of $20 per diem;

4. Concurs with the recommendation of the Advisory Committee (A/1312, para. 326) that subsistence allowances for members of commissions of inquiry or conciliation meeting away from Headquarters should be paid at the local currency equivalent of $20 per diem.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[14 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee considered the budget estimates of the United Nations for the financial year 1951, as submitted by the Secretary-General and reviewed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. At its 282nd meeting on 13 December 1950, the Committee decided to recommend approval of estimates in the total amount of $US47,798,600, representing an increase of $6,156,827 over the sum appropriated for 1950 (exclusive of $8 million for the establishment of an international régime for Jerusalem). At the same meeting, the Committee approved an estimate of miscellaneous income in the amount of $6,521,000 to be applied as an off-set against estimated 1951 expenditure for the purpose of assessment of contributions from Member States to the sixth annual budget. Estimated net expenditure for 1951 will thus amount to $41,277,600, or $4,756,117 more than the corresponding figure for 1950.

2. This amount will be subject to adjustments in accordance with the terms of financial regulation V, paragraph 2, estimated as follows :

	US dollars
(a) Supplementary appropriation for the financial year 1950	2,879,000
(b) Adjustment consequent upon over-estimating the miscellaneous income for the financial year 1949	57,497
	2,936,497
Less :
(c) Contribution resulting from the assessment of a new Member State (Indonesia)	73,100
(d) Appropriation surrendered or to be surrendered under financial regulation IV, paragraphs 3 and 4 :
(i) Savings on prior year's appropriations as indicated in the financial report for 1949	841,662
(ii) Savings during 1950 in liquidating prior year's obligations	470,000
	1,384,762
	TOTAL 1,551,735

As a result of these adjustments assessment of contributions from Member States for the financial year 1951 will amount, if appropriations are approved as recommended, to $42,829,335, as compared with $34,170,000 for 1950, or an increase of $8,659,335.

3. The Committee had before it the original budget estimates and information annexes presented by the Secretary-General (A/1267), the second report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1312) and revisions of certain estimates in the light of more complete data subsequently available or of probable 1951 requirements, including in particular those relating to meetings of the International Law Commission (A/1554, A/C.5/405), sessions of the Economic and Social Council, its commissions and committees and of the Trusteeship Council (A/1629, A/C.5/423), the United Nations Field Service (A/1649, A/C.5/428), common staff costs, transfer to permanent Headquarters (A/1499, A/C.5/395), and permanent equipment (A/C.5/385). A number of special reports and information papers on specific items affecting the 1951 budget were also submitted by the Secretary-General at the Committee's request. In the course of its meetings, additional papers were received both from the Advisory Committee and from the Secretary-General on the basis of which the Fifth Committee submitted to the General Assembly, in accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure, the following reports on the budgetary implications of policy recommendations made by other Committees :

The Committee also considered at its last meeting financial implications of proposed resolutions relating to the question of an international régime for Jerusalem and of a United Nations tribunal in Libya.

4. In addition to the above questions, the Committee was required to consider, with a view to the submission of necessary budgetary or other appropriate recommendations, such matters as the financial implications of decisions taken by the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session (A/1637, A/C.5/424, Corr.1 and 2); salaries and allowances of the members and registrar of the International Court of Justice (A/C.5/370); personnel standards for the United Nations Secretariat (A/C.5/376, 377); tax reimbursement (A/C.5/398), and the consolidation and stabilization of the regular programme of economic and social activities of the United Nations. The Committee also considered and has reported separately to the General Assembly on rates of subsistence allowances for members of commissions, committees or similar bodies; on a scheme of compensation for such members in the case of injury or death incurred in the service of the United Nations, and on recommendations arising out of the report of the Committee of Experts regarding the salary, allowance and leave system of the United Nations (A/C.5/331). Reference should also be made to the estimates for the United Nations Mission for India-Pakistan (A/1590, A/C.5/417) and the United Nations Commission for Indonesia (A/1553, A/C.5/404). In the absence of definite policy decisions to the contrary on the part of the Security Council, by which these Commissions were established, the Committee deemed it necessary to make specific provision for the continuation of their activities, based, in the main, on expenditure actually incurred during 1950.

5. Throughout its deliberations, the Committee had the assistance of the Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, who, in accordance with established practice, was invited to sit with the Committee and to participate in its deliberations.

6. The general debate on the budget estimates was preceded by statements made by the Secretary-General and the Chairman of the Advisory Committee. The Secretary-General informed the Committee, at its 238th meeting, that he would not contest any of the Advisory Committee's proposed reductions except where salaries and allowances of the staff were concerned. He called attention to the fact that the increase in the estimates for 1951 compared with the budget approved for 1950 was largely explained by certain unavoidable items of expenditure including, in particular, those incident to the completion of the new Headquarters, which would account, in all, for more than $3 million of the estimated 1951 total. The Chairman of the Advisory Committee, in introducing his Committee's report, pointed out that the major reduction recommended simply reflected the fact that due to the earlier move of part of the Secretariat to Manhattan, it would be necessary to incur in 1950 expenditures which had originally been budgeted for 1951. This adjustment, together with the reduction recommended in the provision for established posts (depending on the General Assembly's decision regarding the new salary scheme) would account for more than one-quarter of the total of $1,600,000 by which the Advisory Committee had proposed that the Secretary-General's estimates should be reduced. The Fifth Committee and the Secretary-General were assured that should any difficulties arise as a result of its recommendations being accepted, the Advisory Committee would be ready to review the situation with understanding and with a full sense of its responsibilities.

7. These initial statements were followed during the Committee's 238th, 239th and 240th meetings by a general discussion encompassing administrative, financial and personnel policies and problems, in the course of which budgetary proposals for 1951 were exhaustively reviewed in the light of past performance and anticipated needs. Appreciative reference was made to the manner in which the Advisory Committee, in examining and reporting on these proposals, had discharged its responsibilities and to the fact that the Secretary-General had been able to concur in most of the reductions recommended. On the other hand, the trend of the discussions indicated the concern with which the majority of those participating reviewed the increasing cost of international administration as reflected in the budgets of the United Nations and its affiliated agencies over recent years. This concern, it was suggested, could best be allayed and excessive inflation of costs arrested, by the establishment of standards of administrative efficiency and economy comparable to those enforced in the most highly developed national administrations. If costs continued to increase, there would be a grave danger that essential activities might be severely limited by lagging contributions. Throughout the discussions, therefore, the need was constantly emphasized for ensuring that available resources are used to the best possible advantage and not dissipated among activities of limited importance and remote value.

8. Having in mind these considerations, a number of delegations urged that the regular budget of the Organization should be established in future at a figure not exceeding $35,000,000. Accordingly, the desirability was stressed of seeking economies, additional to those proposed by the Advisory Committee, particularly in connexion with staff costs. It was contended that since the initial period of organization was now past, annually recurring increases in numbers of staff were no longer justified, nor was there sufficient need for the employment, on the scale requested, of temporary experts and consultants, or adequate justification for continued large expenditures on such items as temporary assistance and overtime. With the expected decrease in the number of meetings to be held in 1951, moreover, expenditures on conference services should also offer scope for substantial savings.

9. Other delegations, however, while equally desirous of ensuring a maximum degree of administrative economy, believed that this should be consistent with the provision of means adequate at all times for the efficient discharge of the Organization's essential functions.

Stabilization of the budget within an arbitrarily determined ceiling was not, therefore, considered to be a practicable or necessarily desirable objective. It was the feeling of many delegations, moreover, that commendable progress had, in fact, been made towards stabilization of normal Secretariat expenditures and that, in terms of the budget as a whole, the estimate for 1951 reflected the greater capacity of the Secretariat to cope with important new activities without correspondingly large increases in establishment. Concern was expressed, nevertheless, at the continuing requests for staff increases in certain fields of activity—more especially those relating to economic and social affairs. In this connexion the comments of the Advisory Committee on the tendency to attempt too much too quickly, and the necessity, sooner or later, of stabilizing work programmes at some reasonable level, was strongly endorsed. Accordingly, the desirability of establishing a system of relative priorities as a curb on undue proliferation of activities and consequent dispersal of efforts and resources was the subject of frequent comment. As a first step, it was suggested that the Secretary-General should develop and expand the system of project estimates with a view to providing more complete and detailed information as to the actual costs of particular programmes and activities. The point was also made, however, that such curbs could be imposed effectively only with the full co-operation of Member States themselves through their willingness to pursue consistent and co-ordinated policies, not only in all United Nations organs, but equally in other international bodies.

10. At its 281st meeting the Fifth Committee considered a proposal submitted by the Australian representative, aimed at securing consolidation and stabilization of the regular economic and social programmes of the United Nations (A/C.5/L.96). The proposal would, inter alia, ask the Economic and Social Council, in considering its programme of activities for 1952 and 1953, to take the appropriations approved in the regular budget for 1951 as indicating the level of expenditure to be incurred upon the regular programme of the United Nations in economic and social fields.

11. The representative of Australia explained that he was prompted by two reasons to introduce his resolution. Firstly he thought it would be very good if governments were to know for some years in advance what their commitments in relation to the regular activities of the United Nations were likely to be. Secondly his delegation believed that worthwhile programmes of the United Nations were likely to be jeopardized if too much was attempted.

12. He stated that the Australian resolution was the culmination of a series of resolutions leading in the same direction, and referred specifically to General Assembly resolution 310 (IV) on proliferation and the thereon following work of the Co-ordination Committee of the Economic and Social Council. Steps so far taken, however, were incomplete. As long as there was no limit on expenditure it was difficult to see how priorities could be effectively established. Moreover, the Food and Agriculture Organization had already established a budget ceiling and last year the General Assembly itself had urged specialized agencies "to intensify their efforts to stabilize their regular budgets by elimination or deferment of less urgent projects".

13. Several delegations supported the principle behind the Australian draft resolution and while limited support for the resolution itself was expressed, the majority of those taking part in the debate expressed their inability to support it for practical and procedural reasons. In this connexion it was stated that the resolution might more usefully have been considered by the Joint Second and Third and Fifth Committees. Others offered objections to particular parts of the draft resolution.

14. It was also suggested to the Australian representative that his draft resolution might be referred to the Economic and Social Council for the guidance of its Co-ordination Committee.

15. While noting with gratification the support given to the principle contained in his draft resolution, the Australian representative finally agreed to withdraw his proposal, but he reserved his delegation's right to re-introduce the idea behind his resolution at the appropriate place and time.

16. There was general agreement that the new political and economic problems to be dealt with by the United Nations called for ever greater efforts to meet new personnel requirements by more effective utilization of the present staff, and that this in turn demanded intensive effort on the part of the Administration and Member States to improve personnel standards through the development of more selective and efficient recruitment and promotion procedures and of in-service training programmes.

17. The Committee noted with satisfaction the progress made during the past year in streamlining the organic structure of the Secretariat and, in particular, the results achieved in this respect in the field of conference and general services. At the same time, the Advisory Committee's comments on the need for carefully reviewing certain existing arrangements were generally endorsed. Special reference was made in this connexion to the desirability of defining more precisely the lines of authority and responsibility with respect to technical assistance and to the advantages which might accrue from a consolidation of the residual functions of the Departments of Economic and Social Affairs. While agreeing that the establishment of a separate Technical Assistance Administration raised a number of administrative and organizational problems that had not been satisfactorily resolved, certain delegations felt that such a consolidation would not necessarily promote either efficiency or economy and that a policy of seeking improvements and better integration within the present administrative framework was to be preferred.

18. Doubt was also expressed regarding the propriety of transferring the Buildings Management Service to the Department of Administrative and Financial Services, on the grounds that it was contrary to sound financial practice to place both spending and control functions under the same administrative authority. The Committee was informed, however, on the Secretary-General's behalf, that this transfer was intended as a temporary arrangement in view of the stage that had been reached in the construction of the permanent Headquarters, and of the advantage to be gained from having the services concerned directly responsible, for the time being, to a single authority. Special attention was also called to the comment of the Advisory Committee on the administrative dangers and organizational difficulties inherent in the establishment of units and offices relatively independent of the Secretariat and of various special funds independent of the budget of the Organization. It was generally agreed that from this point of view also a clearer definition of lines of administrative and financial responsibility, up to the Secretary-General and to the General Assembly itself, was urgently required.

19. Several delegations strongly supported the recommendations of the Secretary-General and of the Advisory Committee that the number of meetings of councils, commissions and committees should be kept to a minimum during 1951 and expressed, at the same time, grave concern at the tendency to hold more and more meetings away from Headquarters. The hope was expressed that the Economic and Social Council in particular would undertake a thorough review of its list of commissions and committees with a view to reducing the international conference schedule and workload by the consolidation and elimination of commissions and committees wherever possible. While agreeing that unnecessary meetings should be avoided, it was the view of some delegations that meetings should, as a matter of principle, sometimes be held in places other than at United Nations Headquarters, and that, in particular, full advantage should be taken of the facilities available in Geneva.

20. The majority of representatives participating in the debate emphasized the increasingly heavy burden which membership in international bodies imposed on the limited resources of their Governments and with the continuing difficulties which most governments were experiencing in meeting their dollar commitments. The importance was therefore reiterated of arranging, as far as practicable, for contributions to the United Nations budget to be payable, and for as large a proportion as possible of the Organization's expenditures to be incurred, in soft-currency areas.

21. Several delegations called attention to the fact that in a number of instances, estimated 1951 expenditures were necessarily of a purely conjectural nature—notably in the case of those relating to maintenance services in the new Headquarters and certain political missions. For that reason it was important, if patterns of excessive administrative expenditure were to be avoided, that the situation in such cases should be the subject of close and continuous review by the Secretary-General and by the Advisory Committee.

22. The Committee began a more detailed first reading of the budget estimates at its 243rd meeting, after deciding to follow its customary procedure of using the reports and recommendations of the Advisory Committee as a basis for its decisions. During the following meetings the Advisory Committee's recommendations, together with proposals for reductions or increases in the amounts to be appropriated, were discussed and voted upon.

23. In the course of a second reading of the estimates at the Committee's 281st and 282nd meeting, the amounts for each section of the budget were confirmed, after taking into account the financial implications of proposals dealt with by other Committees of the General Assembly and the budgetary effects of decisions taken by the Fifth Committee itself on its other agenda items.

24. In the following review of the estimates, section by section, the amount shown as having been approved on first reading was confirmed during the second reading, unless otherwise stated.

Section 1. The General Assembly, commissions and committees

25. At its 252nd meeting the Committee considered the estimate recommended for section 1 by the Advisory Committee, amounting to $US700,000.

26. At its 279th meeting, the Committee decided to include provisionally a further $1,800,000 under this section, in case the General Assembly should decide to hold its next regular session in Europe. In this connexion, it was pointed out on behalf of the Secretary-General that this amount would be offset by a reduction of $50,000 in section 25 (official records) due to the printing in soft-currency areas of a large amount of records. A separate report on this aspect (A/1714) had previously been submitted under rule 152.

27. It was made clear, however, that this procedure was being followed purely for the purpose of administrative convenience and that it did not in any way prejudice this General Assembly's decision in the matter. Should it decide to hold its next session at Headquarters, the estimates under this section would automatically be reduced by $1,800,000.

28. The estimate for section 1 was further increased by the inclusion under this heading of the following items :

	US dollars
Geneva session of the International Law Commission	19,750
Conference on Status of Refugees	6,000
Ad Hoc Committee on South-West Africa	10,000
Committee on International Criminal Jurisdiction	3,000
Committee on the Draft Convention on Freedom of Information	(nil)
Ad Hoc Commission on the Question of Prisoners of War	30,000
	68,750

29. At its 282nd meeting the Committee, after rejecting a U.S.S.R. proposal to delete provision for the Ad Hoc Commission on the Question of Prisoners of War and for the estimated expenses of the Collective Measures Committee, approved by 25 votes to 3 with 5 abstentions, an appropriation for section 1, in the amount of $2,568,750.

Section 2. Sessions of the Security Council, commissions and committees

30. The Committee noted at its 252nd meeting that no provision was requested for section 2, and approved this section without discussion.

Section 3. The Economic and Social Council, commissions and committees

31. At its 276th and 277th meetings, the Committee considered the budgetary provision to be made for meetings of the Economic and Social Council, its commissions and committees. The Committee's discussion was based on revised estimates (A/C.5/423) which the Secretary-General had submitted following the decision taken by the Economic and Social Council to hold its twelfth session in Santiago, Chile, and to make certain other changes in the conference schedule of various commissions and sub-commissions. The Secretary-General's revised estimates were reviewed by the Advisory Committee in its twenty-eighth report of 1950 (A/1629).

32. In consequence of a statement by the representative of Chile to the effect that his delegation had reached an agreement with the air line concerned to provide reduced fares for Secretariat personnel assigned to the Santiago meeting, the estimates for this section were reduced by $32,000 on account of travel of staff. In the course of the Fifth Committee's discussion, attention was focused mainly on the decision of the Council to hold its next session in Santiago. It was the view of a number of delegations that the additional net expenditure involved of approximately $170,000 was not justified in present circumstances, particularly since facilities would now be available at Headquarters and the considerations on which the Council's decision had originally been based were no longer applicable. It was maintained, furthermore, that it would be undesirable to have three consecutive sessions of the Council held away from Headquarters. Reference was also made to the indirect costs not reflected in the budget estimates, including in particular the administrative disorganization occasioned by the absence for prolonged periods of so many substantive staff. On the other hand, it was the feeling of many delegations that the advantages to be derived from meeting in Latin America were such as to outweigh the administrative and financial consequences involved. Reference was made in particular to the fact that the Council had not hitherto met in the region in which its members would have the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the problems and conditions of some of the under-developed countries—problems which at present constituted one of the Council's major preoccupations. Tributes were paid to the motives which had inspired the Chilean Government to extend the invitation and appreciative references were made to its generous offer to undertake not only to bear local costs but also to reimburse one-third of the additional expenditures incurred by the United Nations.

33. After the discussion, a United Kingdom proposal to the effect that the provision of funds for the purpose of holding the twelfth session of the Economic and Social Council at Santiago be not approved and that the estimate for section 3, chapter I, as submitted by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, be reduced accordingly to $287,800, upon being voted on by roll-call, was rejected by 32 votes to 15, with 5 abstentions.

34. A vote was taken by roll-call on an Australian proposal to the effect that the provision of funds for the purpose of holding the thirteenth session of the Economic and Social Council at Geneva be not approved and that the estimates for sections 3 and 20, as submitted by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, be reduced accordingly by a total net amount of $160,000. The amendment was rejected by 35 votes to 9, with 8 abstentions.

35. The Advisory Committee's recommendation for an appropriation of $502,000 (after reduction of $32,000 in respect of air transport) was adopted by 37 votes to 12, with 2 abstentions, on the understanding that approximately $85,000, or one-third of the additional gross cost to the United Nations of holding the twelfth session of the Council at Santiago, would be reimbursed by the Government of Chile.

Section 3a. Permanent Central Opium Board and Narcotic Drugs Supervisory Body

36. The Committee adopted in second reading at its 281st meeting the estimate of $22,900 recommended by the Advisory Committee in respect of section 3a.

Section 3b. Regional economic commissions

37. At its 277th meeting, the Committee considered the recommendation of the Advisory Committee to appropriate $69,700 for section 3b.

38. The representative of Australia, having drawn attention to the proposal to introduce Portuguese as one of the official languages of the Economic Commission for Latin America, pointed out that such a precedent might have far-reaching administrative and financial consequences and therefore proposed that the additional amount of $7,200 for sections 3b and 25 ($5,700 under section 3b and $1,500 under section 25) requested for this purpose, be not appropriated.

39. The Australian proposal was adopted by 16 votes to 14, with 7 abstentions, and an appropriation of $64,000 for section 3b was then approved.

Section 4. Trusteeship Council, commissions and committees

40. The Committee adopted unanimously at its 277th meeting the Advisory Committee's recommendation to appropriate $53,600 for section 4.

Section 5. Investigations and inquiries

41. The following estimates for section 5 were approved by the Committee at its 261st, 270th, 271st, 274th and 278th meetings :

	US dollars
United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans	520,000
United Nations Mission to India and Pakistan .	600,000
United Nations Commission for Indonesia	147,500
Repatriation of Greek children	50,000
United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine	693,000
United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea	790,700
Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya	575,000
United Nations Advisory Council for the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian Administration	175,000
United Nations Commission for Eritrea	250,000
	3,801,200

42. With the exception of the United Nations Missions for India and Pakistan and for Indonesia, separate reports have already been submitted on all the above bodies under rule 152.

43. In regard to the United Nations Mission for India and Pakistan, it was explained during the 275th meeting of the Fifth Committee that since the Security Council had taken no action to modify its resolution relating to the cease-fire agreement, the Secretary-General had considered it necessary to ask for an appropriation of $626,800. The Secretary-General did not however, contest reductions totalling $26,800 proposed by the Advisory Committee.

44. During the discussion it was pointed out that since the estimate was based on a decision taken by the Security Council in 1948, the matter should have been referred back to the Council for an indication as to whether it adhered to the policy it had previously laid down.

45. In reply it was stated that the Security Council had been greatly preoccupied with other matters, which might account for the fact that it had not recently reconsidered the question. While the Mission had in fact ceased to exist, the cease-fire agreements were still in existence and consequently the Secretary-General felt that the United Nations observer should be maintained, and hence his request for funds.

46. The Committee by 32 votes to none, with 5 abstentions, approved an appropriation of $600,000.

47. The Secretary-General's estimates for the United Nations Commission for Indonesia were considered by the Fifth Committee at its 271st meeting. As in the case of the Mission to India and Pakistan, the request for funds was based on the assumption that the 1948 decision of the Security Council, confirmed on 28 January 1949,²⁹ and not since revoked, remained in force.

²⁹ See Official Records of the Security Council, Fourth Year, Supplement No. 9.

The Commission was still in existence and the Secretary-General had to provide funds.

48. While the representative of the U.S.S.R. argued that the Council had not asked the General Assembly to appropriate funds, the Committee by a vote of 32 votes to 5 with 4 abstentions approved the Secretary-General's estimates of $147,500, in which the Advisory Committee had also concurred.

49. At its 282nd meeting the Committee approved by 33 votes to 4 a total appropriation for section 5 of $3,801,200, after having rejected U.S.S.R. proposals for deleting the proposed provisions for United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans, the United Nations Conciliation Commission for Palestine, the United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea and the Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya.

Section 5a. United Nations Field Service

50. The Committee adopted, at its 278th meeting, by 35 votes to 3, with 2 abstentions, the Advisory Committee's recommendation for an appropriation of $450,000 for section 5a of the budget.

51. The representative of the U.S.S.R. recalled that his delegation had opposed the establishment of the Field Service in the Ad Hoc Political Committee during the fourth session of the General Assembly, on the grounds that there was no provision in the Charter for such a service.

52. In reply to a question it was stated on behalf of the Secretary-General that when the budget estimates for the missions were worked out account had been taken of the Field Service, and that this account would otherwise have to be included in the budgets of the missions. Savings in this way effected on the budgets of missions practically cover the cost of the Field Service.

53. At its 282nd meeting, the Committee, after rejecting a U.S.S.R. proposal to delete provision for this service, approved by 33 votes to 4 an appropriation of $450,000.

Section 6. Executive Office of the Secretary-General

54. During discussion of the estimates for the Executive Office of the Secretary-General, at the 244th meeting of the Committee, the representative of Australia referred to paragraph 75 of the Advisory Committee's report (A/1312), and observed that provision was made under a number of other sections of the budget for liaison functions with the specialized agencies. His delegation would, therefore, welcome any final views that might subsequently be expressed by the Advisory Committee on the working of the Specialized Agencies Section in the Executive Office.

55. The Committee accepted by 7 votes to 4, with 24 abstentions, a proposal by the representative of the U.S.S.R. to reduce the provision for temporary assistance under this section by $10,000. The estimate as recommended by the Advisory Committee, subject to this reduction, was then approved at the figure of $474,200.

56. In second reading, however, the Committee decided to restore the amount of $10,000 for temporary assistance, due consideration having been given to the decisions reached during the fifth session.

57. At its 282nd meeting the Committee approved by 34 votes to none with 4 abstentions, an appropriation for this section of $484,200, after rejecting a U.S.S.R. proposal to delete provision for the Interim Committee.

Section 6a. Library

58. At its 244th meeting, the Committee approved the estimates for the Library as recommended by the Advisory Committee in the amount of $450,000, by 42 votes to 1.

59. Note was taken of the recommendations made by the Advisory Committee in paragraph 82 of its report (A/1312) and the hope was expressed by several delegations that they could be given effect to during the coming year. It was suggested that consideration be given to the possibility of arranging for bibliographic services and catalogue cards to be obtained on an exchange rather than on a contractual basis as at present. The hope was also expressed that more information would be made available in future as to the value of materials received from Member States and the number of publications sent by the Library to governments and other institutions. Many Member states, it was pointed out, were not yet participating in this exchange.

60. The hope was further expressed that the existing backlog would be eliminated in the next year and that no funds would be asked for in 1952 to deal with arrears.

61. The Committee decided to record its appreciation of the generous gift to the United Nations of the entire collection of the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Library, comprising over 16,000 volumes on international affairs, including a unique collection of League of Nations publications.

Section 7. Department of Security Council Affairs

62. At its 244th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the recommendation of the Advisory Committee that the Secretary-General's estimates be approved, as submitted, in the amount of $758,700.

Section 8. Military Staff Committee secretariat

63. At its 264th meeting, the Committee, by 40 votes to none, with 1 abstention, accepted the Advisory Committee's recommendation that the estimates for this section be approved at the figure of $129,600. It also concurred in a proposal of the representative of the Union of South Africa, that next year a report should be submitted on the extent to which the services of the Military Staff Committee secretariat had been made available to other departments.

Section 9. Technical Assistance Administration

64. In the course of its 249th meeting, the Committee considered the estimates proposed by the Secretary-General and supported by the Advisory Committee for the newly established Technical Assistance Administration. These were discussed in conjunction with sections 27, 28 and 29 of the budget, under which provision is made for the related technical programmes.

65. Several delegations, in commenting on the division of responsibility for technical assistance services between the new administration, on the one hand, and the Departments of Economic and Social Affairs on the other, expressed serious misgivings at the separation of operational or programme responsibilities from those involving the organization and direction of the necessary research and study services. In this connexion it was suggested that the Economic and Social Departments might well be merged. It was generally recognized, however, that the value of the measures taken could only be judged in the light of experience. Accordingly, it was suggested that the Secretary-General should submit to the sixth session of the General Assembly, precise recommendations regarding the administrative structure deemed most appropriate in terms of the practical needs of the programme as these might develop.

66. The view was expressed by one delegation that not more than $300,000 should be charged to the United Nations budget for administration of the technical assistance programme, and that any additional administrative costs which might become necessary by virtue of the expanded programme, should be charged against the special account.

67. It was the opinion of the U.S.S.R. representative, however, that the establishment of a Technical Assistance Administration was not sufficiently justified and that the preferable course would have been to maintain that service in the Department of Economic Affairs as hitherto. There seemed to be no reason why that Department and the regional economic commissions, with the large staffs and considerable funds at their disposal, should not be able to cope with the various tasks to be assumed by the new Administration more efficiently than the latter can be expected to cope with them, considering its much more limited resources. Without, however, wishing to prejudge this question, but on the grounds that some of the work of the Technical Assistance Administration could be carried out by officials presently engaged in less urgent tasks, the U.S.S.R. representative proposed that the sum to be appropriated under section 9 be reduced by $150,000. The Committee, by a vote of 35 to 5, with 1 abstention, rejected the U.S.S.R. proposal.

68. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee for an appropriation of $300,000 was then approved by 36 votes to none, with 5 abstentions.

Section 10. Department of Economic Affairs

69. The Committee considered the estimates for the Department of Economic Affairs, in first reading, at its 249th meeting.

70. In view of the observations of the Advisory Committee in paragraphs 101-108 of its report (A/1312) and of the establishment of the Technical Assistance Administration, a majority of those taking part in the discussion were of the opinion that prior to the submission of the next budget, a thorough study should be undertaken by the Secretary-General and reviewed by the Advisory Committee, of the structure, organization and staffing of the Department, including the guiding principles it had adopted and its inter-relations with the Technical Assistance Administration and the Department of Social Affairs. Emphasis was laid particularly on the need for ensuring effective utilization of existing staff, for avoiding overstaffing in some of the higher administrative echelons, and for eliminating situations which, in a number of instances, appeared to involve a degree of overlapping responsibility and duplication of effort.

71. On the grounds that the provision requested under section 10 did not take sufficient account of savings which should be possible as a result of the establishment of the Technical Assistance Administration and the increased activity of the secretariats of the regional economic commissions, the representative of the U.S.S.R. moved that the estimates recommended by the Advisory Committee be reduced by a further $60,000. The proposal, however, was rejected by 32 votes to 5.

72. Proposals submitted by the representative of Australia for certain immediate staffing economies in the Division of Economic Stability and Development and the Division of Statistics were withdrawn following explanations by the Chairman of the Advisory Committee and the Assistant Secretary-General for Economic Affairs. It was the feeling of most delegations that action by the General Assembly beyond that specifically recommended by the Advisory Committee would be imprudent pending the thorough study which had been proposed.

73. The estimates as recommended by the Advisory Committee in the amount of $2,085,000 were therefore approved on first reading, by 32 votes to none with 5 abstentions.

74. Supplementary estimates to cover the additional costs of implementing resolutions of the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council were considered by the Committee at its 279th and 280th meetings. The proposal of the Secretary-General was for an increase of $221,200 to finance the hiring of temporary staff and consultants in implementation of resolution 290 (XI) on full employment, and to provide staff in connexion with resolution 299 (XI) concerning the improvement of social statistics (A/C.5/424, Corr.1, Corr.2). The Advisory Committee had recommended that the supplementary provision be limited to $43,500 in respect of the travel and subsistence expenses, at $25 per day, of the three groups of experts, this sum to cover also the requirement of $9,000 for contractual printing (A/1637).

75. After thorough consideration of these proposals and of alternative proposals suggested by the representatives of the United Kingdom, of France, and of the United States, the Committee, by 27 votes to 11, with 3 abstentions, approved the proposal of the United Kingdom that the supplementary provisions recommended by the Advisory Committee in connexion with resolutions 290 (XI) and 299 (XI) of the Economic and Social Council should be increased by $156,000 to a total amount of $200,000 with respect to section 10 and by $9,000 with respect to section 26 (contractual printing).

76. In the course of discussion on rates to be paid to the full employment expert groups, doubt was expressed as to the wisdom of utilizing experts in place of Secretariat members for the tasks proposed. Other representatives defended the action of the Economic and Social Council in this case, and stated that the payment of fees to these experts, as proposed by the Secretary-General, was desirable in order to facilitate recruitment of persons of high professional standing and competence. However, there were several representatives who agreed with the Advisory Committee that the experts, who would be appointed by the Secretary-General but were not made responsible to him, should be assimilated to groups of experts within the meaning of General Assembly resolution 231 (III).

77. At its 281st meeting on 13 December 1950, the Committee unanimously adopted a total appropriation for section 10 in the amount of $2,285,000.

Section 11. Department of Social Affairs

78. The estimates for the Department of Social Affairs were examined by the Fifth Committee, in first reading, at its 250th meeting.

79. A number of delegations viewed with concern the increase requested in this Department's estimates and expressed themselves as sharing without reservation the criticisms offered by the Advisory Committee in paragraphs 112-118 of its report (A/1312). Particular attention was called to the latter's observation that excessive fragmentation had occurred in the Department's internal structure. This in turn, it was suggested, resulted in continual requests for additional posts whenever the Secretariat was given new work to do despite the fact that completion of older projects should make possible the re-assignment of staff thus freed. While assured that actual duplication of effort did not in fact exist, several delegates expressed their support of the Advisory Committee's contention that the United Nations should concentrate its attention on matters which clearly did not fall within the purview of the specialized agencies. There was general recognition also that the multiplicity of tasks that might usefully be undertaken in the social field was such that, unless the status of current programmes were continuously reviewed on the basis of a firmly established system of priorities, the Organization would be confronted every year with requests for funds in excess of the resources at its disposal.

80. It was pointed out that responsibility for the state of affairs that had arisen rested in large measure not with the Secretariat but with the delegations of Member States who, though expressing themselves in favour of General Assembly resolution 310 (IV) on proliferation of United Nations and specialized agencies activities, had in the Economic and Social Council and its Commissions themselves actively supported and encouraged such proliferation. The Secretary-General was urged to resist the Council and its Commissions and bring to their attention in no uncertain manner the financial and other consequences of decisions which they were contemplating. An appeal was also made to delegations to co-ordinate their action on different committees in working out the programmes of the United Nations.

81. A proposal was offered by the U.S.S.R. for specific reductions of the estimates as submitted by the Secretary-General totalling $112,000. At the suggestion of the Australian representative, the U.S.S.R. agreed to amend its proposal to provide for a global reduction of $56,000 in the appropriation which the Advisory Committee had recommended, to be applied at the Secretary-General's discretion. While some delegations indicated their support of the U.S.S.R. proposal as modified, others maintained that the Committee should take the same position as in the case of the Department of Economic Affairs and not go beyond the reductions proposed by the Advisory Committee, on the understanding that the Secretary-General would exhaustively review the structure and activities of the Department in the light of the criticisms and comments expressed.

82. On being put to the vote, the U.S.S.R. proposal, as amended, was rejected by 25 votes to 14 with 7 abstentions. A further proposal submitted by Pakistan, to refer to a sub-committee for examination and report a recommendation that the estimates for the Department of Social Affairs be reduced by a lesser amount than $56,000, was also rejected by 26 votes to 13 with 5 abstentions. The Advisory Committee's recommendation that an appropriation for section 11 of $1,550,000 be approved, was then accepted (on first reading) by 36 votes to none with 7 abstentions.

83. Supplementary estimates to cover the cost of implementing resolutions of the eleventh session of the Economic and Social Council were considered by the Committee at its 279th and 280th meetings. The Secretary-General's proposal was for the addition in section 11 of a sum of $74,100 to finance the establishment of new posts, the hiring of consultants, and an expenditure for official travel under Council resolution 309 (XI) relating to the report of the sixth session of the Social Commission, as well as temporary assistance in connexion with the provisions of paragraph A of Council resolution 308 (XI) on the report of the Population Commission (A/C.5/424, Corr.1, Corr.2). The Advisory Committee, in a belief that a far larger proportion of the workload arising out of the decisions taken by the Council at its eleventh session could be absorbed within the provisions already approved for the section, had recommended that the supplementary provisions be limited to $20,000 and applied solely to the implementation of part E of Council resolution 309 (XI), relating to social rehabilitation of the physically handicapped, requirements for contractual printing ($3,000) to be met from this amount also.

84. In the course of discussion, the representative of the United States proposed that the appropriation recommended by the Advisory Committee should be increased by $9,800 to the full amount requested for rehabilitation of the physically handicapped and that the necessary printing funds should be separately provided. The Australian representative, after presenting the views of his Government as to possible ways in which organizational changes and assignments of priorities of work could effect economies within the Department of Social Affairs, made the proposal that the programmes approved by the Economic and Social Council should be carried out by the Secretary-General within the appropriation of $1,550,000 already recommended.

85. Following statements by the Assistant Secretary-General in charge of Social Affairs and the Chairman of the Advisory Committee, a proposal was made by the representative of Ecuador that the supplementary provision recommended by the Advisory Committee should be increased by $38,550 to a total of $58,550, exclusive of the supplementary provision of $3,000 for contractual printing. This proposal would allow the full amount of $29,800 requested for a programme in the field of rehabilitation of the physically handicapped, a sum of $8,000 for family, youth and child welfare, $2,000 for conditions of living, and $18,750 for an expansion in the social defence programme.

86. The Ecuadoran recommendation was accepted by 19 votes to 16 with 7 abstentions.

87. At its 281st meeting on 13 December 1950 the Fifth Committee, in the course of its second reading of the budget, unanimously adopted a total appropriation for section 11 in the amount of $1,608,550.

Section 12. Department of Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories

88. Estimates for the Department of Trusteeship and Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories were considered by the Fifth Committee at its 245th meeting.

89. In the course of the discussion the representative of Czechoslovakia proposed specific reductions totaling $22,400 in the provision requested for temporary assistance, consultants and established posts.

90. The representative of Egypt pointed out that the Advisory Committee had recommended approval of only three of the six additional posts requested by the Secretary-General. Elimination of three posts would, in the opinion of his delegation, impair the proper functioning of the Department and, in particular, of its Division on Information from Non-Self-Governing Territories, and he therefore proposed that the necessary budgetary provision be authorized for the six posts originally asked for.

91. The Czechoslovak proposal was rejected by 37 votes to 5 with 1 abstention, and the Egyptian proposal by 27 votes to 9, with 6 abstentions. The Committee then approved by 42 votes to none with 3 abstentions the estimate of $865,000 as recommended by the Advisory Committee.

Section 13. Department of Public Information

92. Estimates for the Department of Public Information were considered by the Committee at its 245th, 246th and 247th meetings. In addition to the Secretary-General's budget estimates (A/1267) and the report of the Advisory Committee (A/1312), the Committee also had before it, for information purposes, the report submitted annually by the Secretary-General on the effectiveness of the Department's programme (A/C.5/369).

93. While the estimates for this Department were reviewed in some detail and numerous observations offered on particular aspects of its activities, discussion was directed, for the most part, to general policy considerations and more especially to the question of the relative proportion of the Organization's available resources which should be devoted to public information purposes. Several delegations, noting with concern that more than 12 per cent of the total budget continued to be allocated to information activities, expressed strong support of the observations made in paragraphs 132 and 133 of the Advisory Committee's report. It appeared to these delegations that while the Advisory Committee was clearly of the opinion that expenditure on public information was excessive, it was precluded from making far-reaching recommendations in the absence of more specific guidance from the General Assembly. It was submitted, in this connexion, that the recommendations endorsed by the General Assembly in 1946 were in the nature of general directives looking toward the achievement of long-range objectives and that, while much that was worthwhile had undoubtedly been accomplished, rather more restraint might have been shown in the implementation of those objectives. The majority of those taking part in the debate did not, however, favour further large-scale reductions in the Department's budget at present, although it was generally agreed that the time had come for a serious and thorough review of public information activities, including the general directives given by the General Assembly, and the manner in which these had been carried out.

94. Suggestions made by several delegations as to the manner and the means by which such a review might be undertaken, were later withdrawn in favour of a proposal submitted by the representative of Australia which, in the following form, was unanimously adopted at the Committee's 247th meeting :

" The General Assembly,

" Having regard to the repeated requests made by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for guidance from the General Assembly concerning the limits of the activities undertaken by the Department of Public Information of the United Nations and by the information centres and concerning the proportion of expenditure for public information to the total budget of the United Nations,

" Requests the Advisory Committee, together with the Secretary-General, to review the public information activities of the United Nations in the light of the discussions held during the fifth regular session of the General Assembly, with a view to bringing about substantial economies in the cost of such activities, and to submit its recommendations to the General Assembly at its sixth regular session. "

95. In the course of discussion at the Committee's 245th and 246th meetings, a number of delegations emphasized the importance which they attached to the work of the Department of Public Information, and urged that no attempt should be made to economize at the expense of technical information services, particularly in the case of those concerned with dissemination of information in non-official languages. It was pointed out also that the needs of the various Member States varied considerably in so far as the information services of the United Nations were concerned, and that while the larger and well-developed countries might have little need of such services, this did not apply to many smaller and less developed States, who lacked their own independent facilities. The suggestion was made, therefore, that consideration should be given to the possibility of diverting funds now spent on supplying materials to the former in order to meet more fully the requirements of the latter.

96. In its consideration of the specific budgetary provision requested for 1951, the Committee had before it a proposal by the representative of the U.S.S.R. for a reduction of $138,000 in the estimates as submitted by the Secretary-General, this reduction to be applied as follows :

	US dollars
Established posts :
Sales and Circulation Section	7,000
Press and Publications Bureau	8,000
Radio Division	42,000
Films and Visual Information Division	39,000
Special Services Division	26,000
	122,000
Consultants	4,000
Temporary assistance	12,000

It was stated by the U.S.S.R. representative that these reductions were intended to be additional to those proposed by the Advisory Committee.

97. The Committee, at its 246th meeting, voted item by item on the U.S.S.R. proposal. The specific reductions proposed were not accepted except in the case of that relating to established posts in the Films and Visual Information Division, which was approved by 18 votes to 16 with 17 abstentions.

98. The Committee thereupon approved, by 32 votes to 13 with 6 abstentions, an estimate for section 13 in the amount of $2,687,000, representing a combined reduction in the estimate originally submitted by the Secretary-General of $39,000, as proposed by the U.S.S.R., and $78,000 as recommended by the Advisory Committee.

Section 14. Department of Legal Affairs

99. At its 246th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the recommendation of the Advisory Committee that the estimates for the Department of Legal Affairs should be approved at the figure of $430,000.

100. The Committee was assured by the Secretary-General's representative that careful consideration would be given to the views expressed by the Advisory Committee in paragraphs 106 and 116 of its report (A/1312) to the effect that work of a legal nature, which at present was being performed in various departments, particularly the Departments of Economic and Social Affairs, might be carried out with greater efficiency and economy by the Legal Department.

Section 15. Department of Conference and General Services

101. During consideration of the estimates for the Department of Conference and General Services at the Committee's 247th meeting, a number of delegations expressed their gratification that the Secretary-General had found it possible to request a smaller appropriation for 1951 than was approved by the General Assembly for 1950.

102. In connexion with services to be provided at the new Headquarters, support was expressed for the Advisory Committee's suggestion that the proposed arrangements should be reviewed in the light of actual operational experience. It was also urged that care be taken to ensure that arrangements were as simple and as rational as possible, and delegations were asked to co-operate by refraining from making excessive demands on such services.

103. The representative of the U.S.S.R. considered there was insufficient justification for the increased provision requested for temporary assistance and for overtime and night differential, and accordingly proposed that the estimate for these items be reduced by $40,000 and $5,000 respectively. The proposed reductions were rejected by a vote, in each case, of 35 to 5 with 2 abstentions.

104. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee that the estimates for section 15 should be approved at a figure of $7,096,000 was then approved unanimously.

105. At its 258th meeting the Committee approved an estimated expenditure of $83,000 for the United Nations Postal Administration, thereby increasing the figure for section 15 to $7,179,000.

Section 16. Department of Administrative and Financial Services

106. At its 248th meeting, the Fifth Committee considered the estimates for the Department of Administrative and Financial Services on the basis of the budget document presented by the Secretary-General (A/1267), the recommendations of the Advisory Committee

(A/1312), and a proposal for additional reductions submitted by the U.S.S.R. (A/C.5/380).

107. It was pointed out that the increase in the estimates shown for this Department was due, mainly, to the fact that the Buildings Management Service had been transferred from the Department of Conference and General Services, a decision with respect to which certain delegations expressed serious misgivings. In order that the establishment of the new Headquarters should not give rise to patterns of expenditure which might prove difficult to readjust at a later date, it was suggested that the Advisory Committee should keep a close check on expenditures incurred during transfer operations in the early part of 1951.

108. Several delegations emphasized the importance which they attached to the functions and responsibilities of the Inspection Service, particularly in connexion with field missions, and urged that no action should be taken to weaken or impair the effectiveness of that Service. It was also requested that in its next report, the Advisory Committee should comment specifically on the functioning of the Inspection Service, and indicate whether any changes in its organization or operations were called for.

109. Attention was called to the amount spent on staff welfare activities, for which provision was proposed in 1951 amounting to approximately $70,000. It was the feeling of a number of delegations that certain of the activities for which the Administration assumed responsibility might well be left to voluntary efforts. It was agreed, however, that the appropriation requested should be maintained for 1951, subject to the matter being fully reported on at the next session. Several delegations indicated that they would expect the 1952 estimates for staff welfare and recreational activities to show a significant decrease, and it was suggested that next year the Secretary-General should submit to the Fifth Committee a carefully considered report on staff welfare activities.

110. The representative of the U.S.S.R. expressed the opinion that a greater degree of stabilization of administrative expenditures should have been achieved after five years of existence. Accordingly, he proposed that the estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee should be reduced by $99,950, of which $40,000 would apply to established posts, $20,000 to temporary assistance, and the balance distributed over other departmental expenditures. The Committee having agreed to vote on the U.S.S.R. proposal item by item, reached the following decisions :

Chapter I

(i) Established posts

The proposed reduction of $40,000 was rejected by 34 votes to 5 with 1 abstention.

(iii) Temporary assistance

The proposed reduction of $20,000 was rejected by 34 votes to 5 with 4 abstentions.

Chapter II(i) Travel on official business

The proposed reduction of $2,000 was rejected by 25 votes to 6 with 12 abstentions.

(iii) Miscellaneous supplies and contractual services

The proposed reduction of $3,000 was rejected by 29 votes to 5 with 8 abstentions.

Chapter IV(i) International Civil Service Advisory Board

The proposed reduction of $9,950 was rejected by 31 votes to 5 with 7 abstentions.

Chapter V(i) Salaries and wages

The proposed reduction of $10,000 was rejected by 30 votes to 5 with 9 abstentions.

111. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee that an appropriation be approved for section 16 in the amount of $2,920,000 was then approved by 39 votes to none with 5 abstentions.

Section 17. Common staff costs

112. At its 281st meeting, the Committee adopted in the course of the second reading of the budget estimates, appropriations amounting to $4,366,700 for section 17.

113. This figure includes the amount originally recommended by the Advisory Committee ($4,164,100) and, in addition, the following items approved by the Fifth Committee during the current session :

Restoration of the rental allowance : $US 117,600;

Provision for common staff costs for internationally recruited personnel required for special committees and commissions (Section 5. No provision for this item was made in the original estimates) : $US 85,000.

Section 18. Common services

114. At its 251st meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the Advisory Committee's recommendation that, subject to the reservations expressed in paragraphs 183 and 184 of its report (A/1312), an amount of $2,810,000 should be appropriated for section 18.

Section 18a. Transfer to the permanent Headquarters

115. At its 264th meeting, the Committee considered the provision to be made for section 18a, comprising non-recurrent expenditure arising out of the transfer of the Secretariat from Lake Success to Manhattan. It had before it, for this purpose, a revision of the estimates which had originally been presented by the Secretary-General in his budget document (A/C.5/395), and a report thereon by the Advisory Committee (A/1499).

116. The Secretary-General had originally requested $537,000 under this section. The Advisory Committee, however, had recommended that the estimate be provisionally established at $200,000. Following a review of the situation as of 31 October 1950, the Secretary-General submitted revised estimates totalling $449,500. In submitting this revision, the Secretary-General explained that it was now considered necessary to retain until 30 June 1951 a part of the Lake Success premises to ensure sufficient facilities to accommodate and service sessions of the Trusteeship Council and the Economic and Social Council, meetings of the Security Council and of the Interim Committee, and, if necessary, any special sessions of the General Assembly, should these be called under the resolution entitled "Uniting for Peace".

117. As a result of the earlier move of a substantial number of the staff to Manhattan, the Secretary-General anticipated a reduction of approximately $63,000 in rental costs at Lake Success. The Advisory Committee noted that a larger reduction might, in fact, be achieved, depending on the outcome of negotiations for the leasing of additional space. In view of this and of the possibility that the Secretary-General's revised estimate was still subject to further adjustments, as noted in paragraph 6 of his report, the Advisory Committee recommended that, subject to further review, the estimate for section 18a should be approved at a provisional figure of $400,000.

118. The Fifth Committee unanimously approved this recommendation.

Section 19. Permanent equipment

119. The 1951 budgetary requirements for permanent equipment were considered by the Committee at its 251st meeting on the basis of revised estimates presented by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/385), following the decision to move part of the Secretariat to the new Headquarters, and the resulting necessity to procure in 1950 certain furniture and equipment, provision for which had originally been included in the 1951 budget estimates. The Fifth Committee was informed that the Advisory Committee had concurred in the advance from the Working Capital Fund of sums up to $315,000 for the above purpose; accordingly the amount of $315,000 would be included in the supplementary estimates submitted to the General Assembly for 1950, and a corresponding reduction in the appropriation requested for 1951 under section 19 of the budget estimates.

120. On the basis of this arrangement and certain other adjustments relating to the procurement of library equipment, the Secretary-General requested an appropriation of $802,200 as compared to $1,100,000 recommended by the Advisory Committee on the basis of his original estimates.

121. Discussion was directed for the most part to the request of the Secretary-General for $500,000 to cover the cost of converting the Manhattan office building into a library. The view was expressed by a number of delegations that from the outset, it had been intended that all costs connected with the remodelling of this building should be met from the $65 million loan, and that if it were found impossible to complete the Headquarters project within the approved limit, a full report on the position should be submitted and reviewed by the Advisory Committee before additional funds were requested on the Organization's ordinary budget. It was the feeling of many delegations that in any event, the item in question did not properly belong under section 19, and it was therefore agreed that consideration of the item should be postponed until complete information regarding the permanent Headquarters was placed before the Committee.

122. In accordance with the Advisory Committee's recommendation, the Fifth Committee thereupon decided by 40 votes to none with 1 abstention, to approve a revised estimate for section 19 of $302,000.

123. During discussion of the Secretary-General's report on the Headquarters of the United Nations, at the Committee's 264th meeting, it was announced on behalf of the Secretary-General that he believed he had been justified in requesting the $500,000 provision in the 1951 budget estimates, but realized the matter was open to argument. In view of unforeseen expenses that had arisen, it might be difficult to complete the construction and equipment of the Headquarters without slightly exceeding the $65 million authorization, although every effort would be made to do so, but since part of the loan funds were still available, no immediate supplementary appropriations would be requested.

Section 20. United Nations Office in Geneva

124. The estimates for the United Nations Office in Geneva were considered at the Committee's 256th meeting. Discussion was directed for the most part to the question of whether or not a minus 5 per cent differential as recommended by the Advisory Committee should be applied to the salaries of the internationally recruited staff of the Geneva office. It was decided that this question should be referred for examination and report to the Sub-Committee on Salaries, Allowances and Leave.

125. The representative of Israel expressed the view that consideration should be given to a more rational planning of information services, with reference particularly to the needs of the Geneva Information Centre, which was expected to cover the whole of Europe.

126. The representative of the U.S.S.R. proposed to eliminate the appropriation of $12,800 for the Frankfurt Office of the Economic Commission for Europe. This proposal was rejected by 27 votes to 5 with 2 abstentions.

127. Thereafter the Committee approved unanimously the Advisory Committee's recommendation concerning section 20, with the exception of the reduction of $73,400 in respect of the salary differential.

128. At its 270th meeting the Committee considered a Chilean proposal for expansion and improvement of the Council Chamber of the Palais des Nations in Geneva, and approved unanimously an appropriation of $50,000 to complete this work.

129. Following the approval by the Committee of the recommendation of the Sub-Committee to apply a 5 per cent salary differential to the salaries of internationally-recruited staff based in Geneva, the full amount of $4,226,000 recommended by the Advisory Committee for section 20 was approved and an additional amount of $18,400 was restored to account for the decision to apply the salary differential to only 75 per cent of salaries.

130. At its 279th and 280th meetings, the Committee considered supplementary estimates relating to chapter IV of section 20 for the purpose of implementing decisions of the fifth session of the Economic Commission for Europe of which the Economic and Social Council had taken note in its resolution 300 (XI). The Secretary-General proposed the addition of $49,200 to permit an expansion of work in the housing field, studies on international price formation and capital markets, and certain joint work with the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (A/C.5/424, Corr.1, Corr.2). The recommendation of the Advisory Committee was that only $27,900, relating to housing and price formation, should be approved (A/1637).

131. After consideration of these alternative proposals, the recommendation of the Secretary-General was approved by 21 votes to 17 with 4 abstentions.

132. At its 282nd meeting on 13 December 1950, the Committee adopted by 28 votes to none, with 8 abstentions, an appropriation for section 20 in the amount of $4,383,600, after rejecting a U.S.S.R. proposal to delete a provision of $40,000 representing common staff costs and common services with respect to the proposed Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees.

Section 20a. Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees

133. At its 282nd meeting, the Committee considered the budgetary provision that would be required for the Office of the High Commissioner for Refugees. The Committee decided by 26 votes to 4 with 5 abstentions, after rejecting a U.S.S.R. proposal to the effect that no funds should be appropriated for the proposed office, that provision should be made in section 20a in the amount of $254,000, should the resolution proposed by the Third Committee (A/1682) be adopted by the General Assembly.

Section 21. Information Centres

134. Estimates for the Information Centres were considered by the Committee at its 246th and 247th meetings.

135. A proposal was submitted by the U.S.S.R. delegation (A/C.5/378) for a reduction in the estimates as recommended by the Advisory Committee ($840,000) of $69,300 ($54,300 on established posts for various Centres; $3,000 for temporary assistance and consultants; $4,000 for casual labour, and $8,000 for other expenses). The U.S.S.R. representative stated that his delegation, in making its proposal, had been guided by previous decisions of the Fifth Committee regarding the staffing pattern of information centres, and that the reductions proposed should not impair the ability of the centres to carry out their normal duties. It was the feeling of the majority of delegations, however, that budget cuts in this section, beyond those recommended by the Advisory Committee and accepted by the Secretary-General, should not be imposed pending completion of the comprehensive review of United Nations information activities to be undertaken by the Advisory Committee together with the Secretary-General.

136. The Committee accordingly took the following decisions on the U.S.S.R. proposal :

Chapter I

(i) Established posts

The proposed reduction of $6,010 in respect of the Buenos Aires Information Centre was rejected by 30 votes to 5 with 10 abstentions.

The proposed reduction of $12,440 in respect of the London Information Centre and Travel Unit was rejected by 28 votes to 5 with 13 abstentions.

The proposed reduction of $2,230 in respect of the Mexico Information Centre was rejected by 30 votes to 5 with 10 abstentions.

The proposed reduction of $1,530 in respect of the Moscow Information Centre was rejected by 28 votes to 5 with 11 abstentions.

The proposed reduction of $19,510 in respect of the Paris Information Centre was rejected by 28 votes to 5 with 12 abstentions.

The proposed reduction of $12,580 in respect of the Washington Information Centre was rejected by 27 votes to 5 with 12 abstentions.

(ii) Temporary assistance

The proposed reduction of $3,000 was rejected by 27 votes to 5 with 13 abstentions.

(iii) Casual labour

The proposed reduction of $4,000 was rejected by 27 votes to 5 with 14 abstentions.

Chapter III

The proposed total reduction of $8,000 was rejected by 26 votes to 5 with 14 abstentions.

137. An estimate of $840,000 for section 21, as recommended by the Advisory Committee, was then approved by 40 votes to 1 with 4 abstentions.

Sections 22 and 23. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East; Economic Commission for Latin America

138. At its 256th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the recommendations of the Advisory Committee that, subject to the observations contained in paragraphs 245-248 of its report (A/1312), appropriations should be voted for sections 22 and 23 in the amounts of $825,000 and $503,800 respectively.

Section 24. Hospitality

139. The recommendations of the Advisory Committee for an appropriation under section 24 of $20,000 was adopted unanimously at the Committee's 281st meeting.

Sections 25 and 26. Official records and publications

140. Proposed budgetary provision for contractual printing covering official records (section 25) and publications (section 26) was considered at the Committee's 252nd meeting.

141. The Secretary-General was urged by several delegations to make every effort to see that as much printing as possible was carried out in soft-currency countries. The Chairman of the Publications Board assured the Committee that such a policy was being very actively pursued. He pointed out that whereas 17 per cent of the printing budget had been spent outside the United States in 1949, approximately 28 per cent would be so spent in 1950. Moreover, in terms of the number of pages printed, whereas 26 per cent had been printed outside the United States in 1949, about 42 per cent would be so printed by the end of 1950. For 1951, steps were being taken to provide satisfactory printing arrangements in a considerable number of soft-currency countries not hitherto affected. An assurance was also given that the Publications Board would bear in mind the observations and suggestions made in the Advisory Committee's report.

142. The recommendations of the Advisory Committee for appropriations of $870,000 under section 25 and $900,000 under section 26 were approved unanimously, and in addition the following items were added to those sections in pursuance of decisions of the Committee regarding other sections of the budget estimates :

At its 282nd meeting, the Committee adopted by 28 votes to 4 with 3 abstentions, the appropriations for sections 25 and 26 in the amounts for $883,000 and $962,000 respectively, after rejecting a proposal by the U.S.S.R. representative for deleting the provisions relating to the United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans, the United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea, the Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya, the Advisory Committee on Refugees and the Ad Hoc Commission on the Question of Prisoners of War.

Section 27. Advisory social welfare services

144. At its 249th meeting, the Committee unanimously approved the recommendation of the Advisory Committee for an appropriation of $610,500 with respect to advisory social welfare services under part IX of the budget (technical programme).

145. It was suggested that consideration be given to the desirability of consolidating in one section the administrative expenses for these services which at present are distributed among sections 9, 20 and 22 of the estimates.

146. At its 263rd meeting, the Committee, in considering the financial implications of the draft resolution of the Third Committee providing for an extension of the Advisory Social Welfare Programme (A/1598), agreed that adoption of the resolution would involve additional budgetary provision of $158,000 (A/1537).

147. During the second reading of the estimates at the 281st meeting of the Committee, a total appropriation for section 27 of $768,500 was adopted.

Section 28. Technical assistance for economic development

148. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee for an appropriation of $479,400 with respect to technical assistance for economic development was approved unanimously at the Committee's 249th meeting.

Section 29. International Centre for Training in Public Administration

149. The estimates for section 29 were also the subject of discussion at the Committee's 249th meeting.

150. Disappointment was expressed by several delegations at the progress made in developing the public administration programme and the results achieved. It was felt that this was due, in part, to the fact that it was not always possible for governments to bear part of the expenses involved, and also to the fact that they were not always kept sufficiently informed when seminars were organized.

151. The hope was expressed, however, that the situation in these respects would be remedied in the future; meanwhile the programme should be given time to develop.

152. The representative of the U.S.S.R., in view of the fact that Member States had not, in the past, shown any great interest in the fellowship and scholarship programme, proposed that the appropriations recommended by the Advisory Committee for these purposes should be reduced by $22,500. He further proposed that no provision should be made for a grant ($10,000) to the International Institute of Public Administration. The former proposal was rejected by 35 votes to 5 with 1 abstention, and the latter by 32 votes to 6 with 3 abstentions.

153. The Advisory Committee's recommendation for an appropriation under section 29 of $145,000 was then approved by 36 votes to none with 5 abstentions.

Section 30. Transfer of the assets of the League of Nations to the United Nations

154. At its 252nd meeting, the Committee unanimously approved an appropriation of $649,500 representing the amount of the first instalment due under paragraph 1 sub-paragraph (a) of General Assembly resolution 250 (III).

Section 31. Amortization of the Headquarters construction loan

155. An appropriation of $1 million, representing the first instalment, due on 1 July 1951, under the terms of the Loan Agreement with the United States Government, was also approved unanimously at the Committee's 252nd meeting.

Section 32. The International Court of Justice

156. By 40 votes to none with 2 abstentions, the Committee, at its 244th meeting, approved the Advisory Committee's recommendation that a provisional appropriation of $595,800 should be made for section 32.

157. At its 269th, 270th and 271st meetings, the Committee considered the question of the emoluments of the Members and Registrar of the International Court of Justice. The Secretary-General had recommended (A/C.5/370) that the salaries of the Members should be fixed at $US20,000 per year, as from 21 September 1949, while the Advisory Committee recommended that the salaries should be raised from 54,000 to 65,000 Netherlands florins and remain stated in florins. Some representatives concurred with the Advisory Committee, whose proposal they pointed out, would create no financial hardship for the Members of the Court, since the Netherlands Government offered them every facility for conversion into other currencies. Furthermore, this procedure would be more in keeping with the traditions of the Court. It should also be borne in mind that there was no guarantee that the United States dollar would not also be devalued at some future date.

158. Other delegations thought, however, that since all the Judges did not live at The Hague it would be wrong to fix their salaries in florins. While some of those supporting the Secretary-General's figure of $20,000 did not wish to do so on the grounds of comparison between Members of the Court and senior United Nations officials, they felt that the status of the Judges justified such a salary. However, they accepted the conclusions of the Secretary-General regarding the incidence of devaluation on the real income of the Judges and therefore favoured the figure of $20,000 a year as from 21 September 1949.

159. The draft resolution submitted by the Secretary-General was adopted by 27 votes to 9 with 2 absences.

160. The estimates for section 32 were therefore confirmed at the figure previously approved, namely $595,800.

Section 33. Global reduction in the provision for established posts

161. A global reduction of $100,000 in the provision for established posts was approved by the Committee at the second reading of the budget estimates (281st meeting), in accordance with the decision reached during its consideration of the recommendations of the Sub-Committee on Salaries, Allowances and Leave.

162. In consequence of the foregoing decisions, the Fifth Committee recommends to the General Assembly adoption of the following resolutions :

Resolves that, for the financial year 1951,

The Secretary-General, with prior concurrence of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and subject to the Financial Regulations of the United Nations, is authorized to enter into commitments to meet unforeseen and extraordinary expenses; provided that the concurrence of the Advisory Committee shall not be necessary for :

(a) Such commitments not exceeding a total of $US2,000,000 if the Secretary-General certifies that they relate to the maintenance of peace and security or to urgent economic rehabilitation;

(b) Such commitments as may be necessary to provide for reasonable expenses for the proposed Economic Commission for the Middle East, should the Economic and Social Council decide that this Commission shall be created in 1951;

DOCUMENT A/1378

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[19 September 1950]

1. The General Assembly, at its third session in 1948, agreed with a proposal of the Fifth Committee (A/798)³⁰ comprehensive review of the salaries and allowances of the United Nations should be undertaken by the Secretary-General. On 31 October 1949, at its fourth session, the Secretary-General transmitted to the General Assembly for its information the report of a Committee of Experts on salary, allowance and leave systems (A/C.5/331)³¹ which he had appointed to assist in this review, in accordance with the terms of the Fifth Committee's recommendation. On 15 November 1949, the Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly a report (A/C.5/331/Add.1)³² expressing his views on the proposals made to him by the Committee of Experts, including those on which he was empowered to act within his authority as chief administrative officer of the Organization. At the same time he also presented, for the consideration of the Fifth Committee, draft resolutions covering those recommendations which require specific action by the General Assembly itself for their implementation.

2. Before the General Assembly took such action, it was decided that the reports of the Secretary-General and of the Committee of Experts should be referred to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, with the request that the Advisory Committee should submit to the fifth session of the Assembly its conclusions and recommendations regarding the questions raised in those reports, including texts of draft resolutions and amendments to the Staff Regulations. In the report of the Fifth Committee on the 1950 budget of the United Nations (A/1232)³³ the view was also reaffirmed that, although action on the report on salary, allowance and leave systems had been postponed until its next regular session, the Secretary-General should continue, under the authority vested in him by the Charter, to effect those improvements in the United Nations system of personnel administration which were consistent with the Staff Regulations and within the limits of existing budgetary appropriations.

3. Pursuant to the above decisions, the Secretary-General has modified certain administrative policies and procedures for the purpose of giving effect to those recommendations of the Committee of Experts which fall within his present authority and on which the Advisory Committee has commented favourably. Such modifications have related specifically to :

(a) Simplification of the system of installation allowances and grants;

(b) Abolition of the additional ten days' leave previously provided for under home leave rules;

(c) Reduction of the ceiling for accumulated annual leave from 100 to 60 days;

(d) Modification of provisions regarding standards of travel and per diem rates for travel on official business (other than home leave) to provide for equality of treatment for all staff members, grades 14 through 19;

(e) Granting of the children's allowance to women staff members on the same basis as to men;

(f) Implementation, on a provisional basis, of the Committee of Experts' proposals relating to social security.

4. Action on the remaining and more important features of the proposals submitted to the Secretary-General by the Committee of Experts has, of necessity, been deferred pending certain decisions which the General Assembly itself must take in the light of the recommendations and observations presented to it both by the Secretary-General and by the Advisory Committee. The views of the Advisory Committee are set forth in its first report of 1950 (A/1313)³³. The Secretary-General has examined this report carefully and, in the light thereof, has reviewed his earlier recommendations made at the fourth session of the General Assembly. A comparative summary of these views is presented in annex A to the present document.

5. The Secretary-General has also discussed these matters again with administrative representatives of the specialized agencies, and a most encouraging degree of agreement has been achieved, which is set forth in the report of the Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions, attached as annex B to the present document. Time has not permitted consideration of this report by the administrative Committee on Co-ordination, and the members thereof have accordingly agreed that the report should be submitted direct to the General Assembly.

6. In the following paragraphs the Secretary-General seeks to set out, for the consideration of the General Assembly, the six major points of substance and of principle on which he requests its decision in order to give effect to the proposals of the Committee of Experts, the acceptance of which, he is firmly convinced, would achieve significant administrative advantages and in particular would provide a sound basis for :

(a) The development of an international career service of the highest calibre;

(b) Greater flexibility in the assignment of staff across unit, departmental and agency lines;

(c) Marked simplification in staff administration and

(d) Substantial financial economy.

The Secretary-General earnestly requests the General Assembly to give him clear guidance on these six major points, believing that its decision on these matters will make it practicable for him to work out appropriate solutions for the less significant problems at the administrative level. It is only in this way as the report appearing as annex B makes very evident, that a desirable degree of uniformity between the United Nations and the specialized agencies can in fact be achieved and, further, that the degree of flexibility essential in matters of staff administration can be retained. The Secretary-General's views on the points of detail treated by the Committee of Experts and the Advisory Committee are, nevertheless, presented in annex A for the information of the General Assembly.

7. The first major point relates to the organisation and classification of the staff. The Advisory Committee has expressed general agreement with the scheme proposed by the Committee of Experts (its sole significant reservation being to indicate a preference for an additional level in the category of substantive or professional posts), and accordingly, with even greater confidence than in 1949, the Secretary-General recommends that the General Assembly sanction his implementation of the classification proposals by approving regulation 2.1 of the proposed permanent Staff Regulations which he is submitting for the consideration of the Assembly in document A/1360, which reads as follows :

" Appropriate provision shall be made by the Secretary-General for the classification of posts and staff according to the nature of the duties and responsibilities required. "

The Advisory Committee's preference for an additional level in the professional category was considered in the recent discussion with representatives of the specialized agencies. There appears to be general agreement among the larger agencies on the desirability of an additional level in the salary ranges from $3,600 to $11,000 (professional officers). In the interests of a common classification and salary structure for the major part of the international civil service, therefore, the Secretary-General would be willing to accept this proposal for five rather than four levels in the professional service. Details will have to be worked out at an administrative level with the specialized agencies when the wish of the General Assembly in this respect is known.

8. The second point relates to the salary level for internationally recruited staff, the range of which has hitherto been limited by the decision, dating from 1946 (resolution 13 (I), section VI, paragraphs 15 and 16) to fix the salaries of top-ranking directors at $11,000 net and of Assistant Secretaries-General at $13,500. The Advisory Committee, while making no recommendation on the salaries for Assistant Secretaries-General, has proposed salaries for top-ranking directors which not only represent a reduction from the figures proposed by the Committee of Experts, but in addition would reduce the emoluments now being received by these officers. The Advisory Committee also recommends a reduction in the figures proposed for directors. These recommendations are as follows (salary rates are shown on a net basis) :

Proposals of the Committee of Experts	Proposals of the Advisory Committee
Principal Directors : Salary $15,000, plus ordinary allowances, plus reimbursement of actual hospitality expenses up to $1,500	Salary $12,000-$12,500, plus ordinary allowances, plus representation allowance to a maximum of $3,000, " for exceptional cases "
Directors: $12,500-$14,000	$11,000-$12,200.

The Secretary-General cannot concur with the recommendation to reduce the salaries and relative status of this small but extremely important group of his most senior staff. When, in 1946, the General Assembly established the compensation for top-ranking directors at $11,000, with a representation allowance of between $3,000 and $6,000 at the discretion of the Secretary-General, the total emoluments of such staff ranged, therefore, from $14,000 to $17,000. Since that time, the cost of living, which is still going up, has risen more than 26 per cent. The responsibilities of the corps of top-ranking directors have constantly increased. The burden of work that they carry, their daily contacts with delegations and outside organizations have grown from year to year, and there has inevitably been a corresponding increase in both their official and personal obligations. The Secretary-General is convinced that it is contrary both to experience and to reason to suppose that it would be possible to recruit and retain staff of the high calibre necessary at this level unless the emoluments offered are adequate; this was also the opinion of the Committee of Experts. He is equally concerned by the fact that the proposal of the Advisory Committee would adversely affect that second group of directors, who have hitherto been on a salary basis of $10,000 to $11,000, plus a $2,500 allowance. It would be against all the contentions of the Committee of Experts if a group of such senior staff were to be financially penalized.

It should also be noted that the placing of a ceiling of $12,500 on the classified service will mean that, in time, a large part of the Organization's highest staff, including principal officers, directors and principal directors, will be crowded into an exceedingly narrow range between $12,000 and $12,500. The " bunching together " of salaries at the upper limits was one of the problems to which the Committee of Experts called particular attention in its report.

The Secretary-General is aware of the considerations which moved the Advisory Committee, and he is prepared to agree that the levels of compensation established by the General Assembly in 1946 should not be increased. On the other hand, he sees no justification for a decrease. The minimum standard would be to leave undisturbed the levels of Assistant Secretaries-General and Principal Directors, as they were established in 1946, with some adjustments as between salaries and allowances in order to preserve proper intervals between the grades.

The Secretary-General therefore recommends the following scale of net salaries and allowances :

Assistant Secretaries-General

Salary $16,000, together with an allowance varying from $4,500 to $9,000, at the Secretary-General's discretion.

Principal Directors

Salary $13,000 to $13,500, together with an allowance varying from $1,000 to $3,500, at the Secretary-General's discretion.

Directors

Salary $12,500 to $13,500, with entitlement to regular allowances of other staff members (such as rental, education and children's allowances).

A minor point in connexion with salaries for international staff, on which a separate paper will be presented to the General Assembly, is the recommendation of the Advisory Committee in its report on the budget estimate for 1951 (A/1312)³⁴ that a minus 5 per cent differential should be established for staff serving in Geneva, a proposal with which the Secretary-General cannot agree.

9. At the other end of the scale is the question of the salaries of staff recruited locally for the lower grades. Here, the Secretary-General proposes that the General Assembly should confirm the general principles recommended by the Committee of Experts and agreed to by both the Advisory Committee and the Secretary-General. This could be accomplished by the General Assembly's approving proposed permanent staff regulation 3.2 (A/1360), which reads as follows :

" The salaries of other staff members shall be determined by the Secretary-General at levels below that adopted for the post of Principal Director; salaries and wages for stenographic, clerical and manual work, and for work of a comparable nature, shall be fixed in accordance with the best prevailing conditions of employment in the locality of the United Nations office concerned. "

10. The third point is the question of arrangements to govern the transition from the old to the new salary scheme. This involves consideration of :

(a) The extent to which the salary ceilings, of the grades in which staff members are currently serving are to be retained;

(b) The date on which the present staff will be moved on to the new salary scale.

As regards the first question, the Committee of Experts recommended that the introduction of the new plan should not mean a reduction in salary for present staff; it also indicated its belief that the plan could be put into effect in such a way that few staff members would find a substantial reduction in their previous salary ceilings and that, in the small number of such cases which would arise, the Secretary-General should consider the possibility of making special arrangements on the basis of the facts in each case. In studying the steps necessary to implement the scheme the Secretary-General, while concurring in the principle that in no case should a staff member's current salary plus cost-of-living allowance be reduced, became firmly convinced that the only sound policy on the question of ceilings would be to safeguard the rights of the present staff members, subject to satisfactory performance of duty, to rise to a salary equivalent to the ceiling of their previous grade. Accordingly, he proposed that any reduction in salary or in incremental expectation which a staff member may suffer as a result of reclassification of his post should be compensated by payment of a personal pensionable allowance. The Advisory Committee, in paragraphs 27 to 33 of its report on the budget estimates (A/1312), does not consider the Secretary-General's proposal to be fully justifiable and suggests instead an arrangement under which such personal allowances for staff members whose salaries are already above the ceilings of their new grade levels, or who are proceeding to maximums in their present grades higher than the maximums of the appropriate new salary levels, would cease upon expiration of present contracts or after one year from the date on which new salary scales may enter into force, whichever is the shorter (after one year in the case of those having temporary indefinite contracts). Acceptance of the Advisory Committee's proposal would have no appreciable effect on the budget estimates submitted for 1951, but would result in savings in 1952 and subsequent years. The Secretary-General is convinced, however, that a most serious blow to the morale of the staff would be unavoidable if any course other than the one he has recommended were to be adopted. Indeed, he has considered it necessary to notify the staff that he would recommend a transition based on this assumption. He is persuaded that the alternative proposals of the Advisory Committee envisage the achievement of a purely financial economy at a totally incommensurate risk. Moreover, the whole review of posts and the assignment of staff to appropriate categories in the new scheme would have been possible only on the assumption that regrading of individual posts and their incumbents at a correspondingly lower level would entail no loss in the rights and expectations inherent in the terms of the individual staff member's appointment.

As regards the date on which the present staff should be placed on the new salary rates, the Secretary-General, in studying the scheme proposed by the Committee of Experts, reached the decision that it would be advantageous to move staff members to the appropriate new salary rates on a single date, and he therefore presented his 1951 budget proposals on the assumption that staff members would be assimilated to the new system at an equivalent salary, or at the next higher step, on 1 January 1951. The staff have been informed of this proposal and the Secretary-General recommends that the General Assembly approve the budget estimates on this basis rather than accept the Advisory Committee's suggestion in paragraphs 34 to 38 of their report on the budget estimates (A/1312), which would stagger the transition to the new salary rates throughout the year, with a saving of $100,000 in the over-all estimates for established posts. The Secretary-General therefore recommends the approval of the appropriate sections of the budget as they stand, in the confident belief that the best interests of the United Nations will thereby be served.

11. The fourth major point is the frequency of home leave. The Secretary-General, as he pointed out in 1949, believes that reasonable provision for home leave of staff recruited from countries other than that of their duty station, far from being a luxury, is an investment which yields rich dividends. This belief is progressively confirmed by increasing experience. He strongly urges, therefore, that home leave should be granted once every two years, rather than once every three years as proposed by the Advisory Committee, and points out that a substantial saving under this heading will in any event be achieved, in the long run, by the abolition of the additional ten days of home leave, and by the elimination of such leave for staff members serving in their own country. Approval of this principle would make no difference to the 1951 budget, but the Secretary-General believes the matter is of such importance that he seeks the guidance of the General Assembly on it.

12. The fifth point is the question of how the factor of expatriation should be recognized in the compensation of staff recruited from countries other than that of their duty station. The Secretary-General has already stated that he is prepared to accept the principle of repatriation grants instead of the present expatriation allowance, and accordingly his budget estimates have been prepared on this basis. He recommends that the General Assembly approve this new basis by adopting the proposed permanent staff regulation 9.4 (A/1360) which reads as follows :

“ The Secretary-General shall establish a scheme for the payment of repatriation grants in accordance with the maximum rates and conditions specified in annex II of these regulations. ”

Since these benefits are to be drawn at the end of service, the conditions and rates are clearly of considerable importance and need to be put on a stable and permanent basis as part of the conditions of a staff member's appointment. The Secretary-General accordingly believes it would be desirable for the General Assembly to fix the maximum rates in an annex to the permanent Staff Regulations. The scale of rates recommended by the Committee of Experts, and a greatly reduced scale as proposed by the Advisory Committee, are set forth in annex A to the present document. In this connexion, the Secretary-General desires to emphasize the view that monies repaid by the Pension Fund when a staff member leaves the Secretariat, and any termination indemnity to which he may be entitled, are completely irrelevant to the repatriation grant. In his opinion, staff members should not be obliged to dissipate Pension Fund payments in the expense incurred in settling down anew in their own countries; neither should these payments be used as an argument for reducing the amount of the repatriation grant to staff members whose circumstances warrant such a payment. In short, the Secretary-General takes the view that if the permanent expatriation allowance, which he has supported before the General Assembly on previous occasions and which the staff overwhelmingly favour, is to be replaced by a repatriation grant, the rates for the latter must be adequate to avoid an inequity to staff uprooted from their home countries. He consequently favours the scale of rates recommended by the Committee of Experts.

13. The sixth point relates to the rental allowance, on which the Secretary-General accepted the Committee of Experts' recommendation that payments of allowances and subsidies should be discontinued not later than 1 January 1952 and that, where United Nations leases expired before that date, staff members receiving the rental subsidy should be granted rental allowance for the balance of the period. The Advisory Committee has agreed that the rental allowance and subsidies should be discontinued not later than 1 January 1952, but has recommended, in addition, that they be gradually reduced during 1951. In line with this recommendation, the Advisory Committee has proposed (A/1312, paragraphs 174-178) that the amount requested by the Secretary-General in his 1951 budget estimates should be reduced from $417,000 to $300,000. The Secretary-General is not able to agree with the gradual reduction of rental allowance and subsidies during 1951, as recommended by the Advisory Committee. The loss of the expatriation allowance, the move to the new Headquarters building in Manhattan, the 26 per cent increase in living costs since 1946, and the possibility of salary cuts by the introduction of the proposed local salary scheme would add up to a considerable reduction in take-home pay for some staff members in the lower categories. He believes that the allowance and subsidies should be continued in full during 1951, in order that the staff members may make personal arrangements to take into account the discontinuance of the expatriation allowance and the rental allowance or subsidy in 1952.

14. Two other points remain, though they do not involve decisions of comparable importance at this stage :

(a) The first relates to children's allowances and education grants, concerning which the Secretary-General in 1949 proposed amendments to the provisional Staff Regulations designed to bring Secretariat practice into conformity with the recommendations of the Committee of Experts (A/C.5/331/Add.1, paragraph 34). After discussion with the specialized agencies, the Secretary-General is convinced that the nature and character of the Regulations would be better preserved by avoiding any mention of detailed conditions and by substituting, therefore, a general provision (proposed permanent staff regulation 3.4) which reads as follows :

" The Secretary-General shall establish a scheme for the payment of children's allowances, education grants and such other allowances as he may deem necessary in the interests of the Organization. "

Under this regulation, the Secretary-General would set forth detailed conditions in the Staff Rules, retaining the amounts presently provided for the children's allowance and the education grant, but accepting the minor changes proposed by the Committee of Experts (see annex A, item VI). The General Assembly would, of course, have the opportunity of reviewing the administration of these allowances at any of its regular sessions in connexion with its consideration of the budget estimates.

(b) The second is a point of major significance in the administration of the Secretariat, namely, the proposal for a social security system and the compensation arrangements to be approved in the event of accident or illness attributable to service. The Advisory Committee has recognized that the Committee of Experts' proposals are a rationalization of present arrangements. The Secretary-General has already put the plan into operation on a provisional basis, but agrees that a complete review should be made, and a further report presented to the General Assembly at its sixth session, in the light of an additional year's experience. It is on this understanding that the Secretary-General recommends that the General Assembly approve permanent staff regulation 6.2, which reads as follows :

" The Secretary-General shall establish a scheme of social security for the staff, including provisions for health protection, sick leave and maternity leave, and reasonable compensation in the event of illness, accident or death arising out of or in the course of performing official duties on behalf of the United Nations. "

15. The Secretary-General wishes to make it clear that it is his firm conviction that to put into effect the proposals of the Committee of Experts as now modified will substantially augment the working efficiency of the Secretariat, and enable it to meet with increasing success the growing demands which the complexities of the world situation inevitably place upon it.

16. To summarize, therefore, the Secretary-General recommends that the General Assembly should recognize the importance and urgency of the reforms concerned by taking the following specific steps :

(a) Approving the proposed permanent Staff Regulations as presented in document A/1360;

(b) Approving the Secretary-General's budgetary proposals so far as salary levels, salary differentials, transition arrangements, repatriation grants and rental allowances and subsidies are concerned, i. e. agree with the 1951 budgetary appropriations recommended by the Advisory Committee in document A/1312, except for the proposed global reduction of $117,600 in the provision for rental allowance (section 17 of the budget estimates), the $73,400 reduction for application of a minus 5 per cent salary differential in Geneva (section 20 of the budget estimates) and the global reduction of $100,000 on the provision for established posts (section 33 of the draft appropriation resolution submitted by the Advisory Committee);

(c) Expressing its definite view on the frequency with which home leave should be granted.

V. APPLICATION OF THE CLASSIFICATION AND SALARY RECOMMENDATIONS (paragraphs 83-91)

Recommendations relating to (i) the establishment of posts according to the proposed new system; and (ii) a review of the qualifications of staff members in terms of such posts.

Accepts, in outlining the principles and procedures to the staff, the Secretary-General elaborated his plans for transition to the new scheme, which included the assumptions to be used as a basis of the 1951 budget estimates, viz. that :

- (1) In no case would the staff members' current salary plus cost of living be reduced—if he were placed in a grade in which the ceiling is lower than his salary, the difference would be paid as a personal allowance;
- (2) In every case where the maximum rate of a staff member's new salary is lower than the top step of his existing grade, he would be entitled to receive annual increments until he has reached the ceiling of his present grade. Again, the difference between the rates in his old grade and the ceiling of his new grade would be payable as a personal allowance.
- (3) Staff members should be assimilated to the new system at an equivalent salary or at the next higher step on 1 January 1951. Their next increments would fall due at the beginning of the pay-period in which their old-scale increments would have fallen due, or in January 1952, whichever is later.

In general agreement with principles of transition laid down by the Experts, but stresses need for reduction of posts, particularly in the higher grades. The Committee does not concur with the Secretary-General's proposals for implementation of the principles, but recommends that :

- (1) Personal allowances for persons above the ceiling of their new grade levels should be paid only until the expiration of present contracts, or after one year, whichever is the shorter (for one year in the case of temporary indefinite contracts);
- (2) Personal allowances should also be paid to staff members proceeding to an old ceiling which is above the maximum for their new grade, with the same limitations.
- (3) Staff members should not automatically be moved to the new scale as of January 1951. Only those who have earned the next higher step rates would be transferred as of that date. For other staff members, service credits earned under the old salary system would be calculated up to 1 January 1951; service credits after 1 January 1951 would be calculated on the basis of the new system.

XIV. SOCIAL SECURITY PROVISIONS

(paragraphs 129-147)

(paragraph 23)

(See detailed recommendation as set forth in paragraphs 129-147.)

Accepts, subject to the following observations: "The more important provisions of the proposed social security scheme relate to compensation in the event of accident or illness attributable to service, both for regular members of the Secretariat and auxiliary personnel. The Secretary-General proposes to use the plan advanced by the Committee as a guide for the payment of compensation should need arise during the forthcoming year. The question is so important, however, that the Secretary-General wishes to give the matter further study in consultation with representatives of the specialized agencies, and he would hope to report further on this subject to the fifth session of the General Assembly.

Agrees that recommendations of the Experts represent rationalization of present position. Unable to endorse in detail pending further study of financial implications and comparative benefit schedules.

Agrees with Advisory Committee's recommendation for further study; meanwhile proposes to use proposals of Experts as a guide as cases arise.

ANNEX B

REPORT OF THE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE ON ADMINISTRATIVE QUESTIONS

1. The Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions held its tenth session at UNESCO House from 4 to 6 September 1950. This session was called to enable executive heads of the specialized agencies to express their views on the proposals contained in the report of the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems and in the first report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee, so that these views may be submitted to the General Assembly before it takes final decisions upon these reports.

2. Representatives of the United Nations, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Monetary Fund, the International Civil Aviation Organization, the International Labour Organisation, the International Refugee Organization, the Universal Postal Union and the World Health Organization attended the discussions; the Food and Agriculture Organization submitted its views in writing and sent an observer to the meeting; no representative of the International Meteorological Organization, the Preparatory Committee of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization, the Interim Commission for the International Trade Organization or the International Telecommunications Union attended.

3. The representatives of the Fund and the Bank expressed themselves in agreement with the general principles of the Experts report, but in view of the highly specialized nature of their respective functions, wished to append to the present report a separate statement. This is included as an appendix.

4. The Committee, recognizing the sound administrative basis of the Experts' conclusions, affirmed its general agreement with the fundamental principles expressed in the salary report, subject to the retention of that flexibility in the application of the proposals as a whole, recognized by the Committee of Experts in paragraph 16 of its report and endorsed by the Advisory Committee in paragraph 14 of its statement. The Committee felt, however, that it was not called upon to express its views on all the details of the Experts' plan, but could concentrate only upon those main points which were the essential features of the proposals and that, further, in noting this expression of view at the secretariat level, it should be borne in mind that the competent governing bodies of a number of agencies have not yet expressed an opinion on the Experts' plan. The Committee also thought it wise to direct its discussions on the varying points to the principles of policy involved and not to discuss the matter of implementation unless this was so bound to the policy itself that it was not possible to discuss the one and not the other.

5. On the question of organization of staff, the Committee considered that the report of the Experts constituted substantial progress in the right direction. There was general agreement on the principle of categories to differentiate between varying groups of staff. While raising no objection to the inclusion where required of a Special Service category, the Committee recognized that most agencies would find little or no use for this particular group in the foreseeable future. The Committee considered it important to give some prominence to the matter, noted by the Advisory Committee in paragraph 31 of its report, that suitably qualified staff members, assigned in the first instance to the General Service category, should be provided with full opportunity for advancement into the Professional category whenever suitable vacancies existed. It was decided not to discuss the Director and Principal Officer category, which, on the existing proposals, was far more applicable to the United Nations than to any specialized agency. The differing structure of the agencies would need different solutions, and the agencies would reserve their right to establish a Director Group which would best serve their individual needs.

6. In the matter of classification of staff, the Committee agreed with the Committee of Experts that there should be a substantial decrease in the number of grades in the classification schedule at present used in the United Nations and in some specialized agencies. The Committee considered the proposal of the Advisory Committee to include an additional level in the Professional category and reached the conclusion that it should be possible to modify existing classification systems within a range of five levels for this category. The Committee, however, was unanimous in the view that this proposal should involve reconsideration of the salary ranges within this category. The particular point in the scale at which the additional level should be placed would need careful study. Although technical discussion of the salary scale itself was not regarded by the Committee as within its competence, there was general acceptance of the salary range $3,600—$11,000 for the Professional category. The Committee was in agreement with the original proposals of the Experts that salary differentials should be calculated in multiples of 10 per cent in order to avoid too frequent changes in salary payments, and because of the practical impossibility of refining any cost-of-living calculations promptly and accurately. The Committee was further of the opinion that the reasons for applying any differential to only 75 per cent of the salary were sound.

7. The Committee expressed its agreement with the principles laid down by the Committee of Experts with regard to the General Service category.

8. The Committee recognized that the application of the classification and salary recommendations was a difficult task and that each agency must determine its own transitional regulations in the light of existing conditions, and base them upon its financial resources and its established policies. The views of the Advisory Committee in paragraph 10 of its report and those of the Experts in chapter IV of their report were noted, and were considered an important contribution to the solution of the problems involved. The Committee considered it essential that all agencies should reach agreement on the principles to be observed in applying the classification and salary recommendations to existing staff, regard being had to contractual variations and other special circumstances.

9. On the question of allowances the views of the Consultative Committee may be summarized as follows :

(a) There was general agreement with the proposals of the Experts on the children's allowance, together with the recommendation that the maximum age limit for this allowance (as well as for the education grant) in respect of children in full-time attendance at a university, should be twenty-two years.

(b) The recommendations of the Experts regarding travel allowances were accepted, leaving discretion with the executive head of the organization concerned to authorize first-class travel for senior and intermediate officials while on official duty.

(c) There was agreement on the method proposed for the payment of installation allowances, and the Committee considered that the rate of the allowance should be determined by agreement between agencies in the same geographic area.

(d) With regard to the question of education grants, the Committee was in general agreement that existing practices should be continued.

(e) Since a number of agencies do not pay expatriation allowances, no agreement was possible on the substitution of a repatriation grant for the expatriation allowance. The question of introducing a new allowance for some agencies was recognized as a factor which, as increasing the financial burden on an organization, might be critically reviewed by its governing body. With this point in mind, the general feeling of the Committee was inclined towards the recommendations of the Advisory Committee.

10. (a) On the question of tenure and termination indemnities, the Committee reached no decision on the advisability of retaining a quinquennial review of indeterminate appointments. It was recognized, however, that the continuation of such reviews had many advantages and that the only agency which has a continuity of experience in this connexion, namely the International Labour Organisation, was in favour of retaining the review.

(b) The Committee agreed that indemnity payments for temporary indefinite appointments terminated during the first year of service should be eliminated.

(c) The Committee agreed that no indemnity should be paid upon expiration of the first fixed-term appointment. There was mixed opinion regarding payment of indemnities for subsequent fixed-term appointments, although it was recognized that it would be unreasonable to keep a staff member on a series of fixed-term appointments and not pay any indemnity on the expiration of the final contract. The Committee felt that the proper way of dealing with the problem was to eliminate it substantially, by providing a security of tenure to those staff members who had been employed for a reasonable period, and to keep to an essential minimum the number of renewals of appointments on a fixed-term basis. There were obviously valid reasons for retaining fixed-term appointments for special tasks.

(d) The Committee generally agreed to the proposed scale for indemnity payments on termination of indeterminate appointments, but considered that there should be inter-agency discussion upon this point to ensure substantial similarity.

11. The Committee agreed on the total annual provision of thirty days' leave. It was considered that an adjustment should be made where the normal working week was other than five days. A maximum accumulation of sixty days' leave was accepted on the same basis. The World Health Organization, however, considered that this latter question was directly connected with the frequency of home leave and that the 100-day limit should be maintained if the home leave waiting period were to be fixed at a longer interval than two years.

12. On the question of home leave, the Committee agreed with the proposal to discontinue the granting of ten additional days. The Committee was unable to agree whether the waiting period between home leave should be two or three years, but did agree with the Advisory Committee that a staff member whose home country was the country of his duty station, or who continued to reside in his home country while performing his official duties, should not be eligible under home leave provisions.

13. On the question of social security provisions, while there was general agreement with the proposals of the Experts, the Committee felt that it could not add to the principles which had been thoroughly discussed at its ninth session, and that it would await the further study requested of the International Labour Organisation on a final scheme, together with an actuarial evaluation of it, before reaching definite conclusions upon these matters.

APPENDIX

STATEMENT OF THE INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR RECONSTRUCTION AND DEVELOPMENT AND THE INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

14. The representatives of the Bank and the Fund desire the following statement to be included in the report of the Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions :

15. The Bank and the Fund have noted with great interest the report of the Committee of Experts, as well as the subsequent comments of the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee on that report. They feel that the Experts have pointed out the way to progress. The Bank and the Fund are in general agreement with the principles which have been expounded, but understand that the detailed recommendations have been made with the special problems of the United Nations in view. They, therefore, do not feel called upon to comment on these specific recommendations other than to note that, in several important respects, these recommendations would bring the United Nations into closer accord with the present practices of a number of other international agencies.

16. Although the Bank and the Fund are in agreement with the general principles expressed in the Experts' report, they do not wish this agreement to be constructed as concurrence in the detailed recommendations made. While common personnel standards and practices among the international agencies are a desirable goal in the abstract, the differences in the functions and locations of the various specialized agencies and the marked differences in the types of staff which they require, in practice detract from the desirability of the goal of common standards. In theory there are two main reasons for common standards and practice : first, to facilitate the transfer of staff between agencies and, second, to foster a high morale among members of the international service by assuring equality of treatment in each of the several agencies.

17. The Bank and the Fund feel that the facilitation of transfer can be over-emphasized. Specialized agencies, because of their specialization, require substantive staff who are not likely to be able to make the best use of their talents in one of the other international agencies. In the four years of their operating experience, the Bank and the Fund have each had fewer than half a dozen inter-agency transfers among the substantive staff. This has not been because of the difficulty of transfer. Indeed, where such transfers have been accomplished the administrative difficulties have been minor, in spite of differing personnel standards. It has been because of the fundamental lack of movement between agencies whose requirements are highly specialized.

18. For the morale of staff it is important that their status and compensation should compare not unfavourably with the customary status and pay of comparable officials in the locality in which they serve, and be adequate to attract and hold necessary staff. It is, therefore, at least as important that the smaller and more centralized international agencies should adopt salary standards which are comparable with local government and business practice as that a common standard should be established for agencies located in different countries under widely varying living conditions. A common salary plan strictly adhered to might in practice result in greater inequality than already exists. Furthermore, it is likely to be extravagant, since a common standard will always approach the most expensive standard.

19. In general, therefore, the Bank and the Fund believe that it is desirable that the international agencies be in substantial agreement on the principles of personnel standards, but that the detailed application of these principles must rest with the agencies individually.

Personnel standards : statement of Mr. Price, Assistant Secretary-General in charge of the Department of Administrative and Financial Services, on behalf of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[10 October 1950]

1. On behalf of the Secretary-General I am pleased to make a statement on personnel standards as requested by the representative of the United States.³⁵ Mr. Aghnides has been kind enough to review this statement, and while I understand he wishes to add a few words, I am very pleased to be able to say that he agrees in every major respect. The Secretary-General is in complete agreement that adoption of the new salary and allowance system and permanent staff regulations must be accompanied by a resolute programme of improving the quality and working efficiency of the Secretariat.

2. As indicated in the United States representative's statement, a number of studies of these matters have been made and the Secretary-General has had the advice of the Preparatory Commission, the Advisory Group of Experts, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems, and most recently, the International Civil Service Advisory Board. The Secretary-General has from time to time indicated his appreciation and acceptance of many of the recommendations made by these expert bodies and has kept them in mind in his day-to-day administration of the Secretariat. His belief in the general soundness of the recommendations of the Committee of Experts is, of course, clearly indicated in document A/1378, and his acceptance of various Advisory Committee recommendations on personnel questions has also been made known to the Fifth Committee in the past.

3. The recent report entitled " Report on Recruitment Methods and Standards for the United Nations and the Specialized Agencies " ³⁶ made by the International Civil Service Advisory Board presents a long-range programme which, in the Secretary-General's view, can be extremely important. As members of the Committee will recall, this Board was established by the Secretary-General in consultation with the heads of the specialized agencies as a direct result of a resolution of the General Assembly. Its distinguished Chairman, Mr. Aghnides, who serves also as Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and his eight colleagues of undoubted eminence, have advanced a programme which not only the Secretary-General but the heads of the specialized agencies as well have found to be inspiring in fixing high goals towards which progress can and must be made. The target of this Board becomes clear in the following words taken from paragraphs 61 and 62 of their report :

" The duties and responsibilities which have been assigned to the United Nations and the specialized agencies call for the services of men and women whose character and ability are above question. This means that the governing bodies and the executive heads of the various international organizations must set their sights high when it comes to recruiting for the international civil services... Outstanding men and women are needed if international organizations are to make a vital contribution to solving the complex and tremendously important problems which now confront the world. "

4. The United States representative has asked specifically what decisions the Secretary-General believes the Fifth Committee should take to assist in raising personnel standards in the Secretariat. In his view, it would be extremely helpful if this Committee would take the following concrete steps :

(1) Recommend General Assembly approval of the major features of the new Salary, Allowance and Leave System as proposed by the Secretary-General.

(2) Recommend General Assembly approval of the proposed permanent staff regulations as set forth in document A/1360. These proposed regulations have resulted from several months of intensive discussions with representatives of the specialized agencies and of the staff, and in the Secretary-General's view it is extremely important to remove the uncertainty which now exists by virtue of provisional staff regulations, and also to give General Assembly backing to the marked progress which has been made in administrative co-ordination between the United Nations and the specialized agencies in so far as important matters of personnel administration are concerned.

(3) Recommend that all Member Governments support the suggestions of the International Civil Service Advisory Board in the following respects :

(a) Strengthen in practice as well as in theory the independent authority and responsibility of the Secretary-General, in the selection and, when necessary, the termination of his staff. The Secretary-General is aware that those staff members who do not measure up to the highest attainable standards must be replaced. It is also true that selection of new staff should, at this stage of the organization's life, be based on more thorough search and careful appraisal than was possible in earlier times.

(b) Recognize the fact that careful recruitment throughout the world requires a reasonable period of time, and fix work programmes and schedules in so far as possible in a way to allow recruitment to be orderly and thorough rather than hasty and on an emergency basis.

³⁵ Ibid., Fifth Session, Fifth Committee, 238th meeting, para. 61.

³⁶ Coord/Civil Service/2/Rev.1, United Nations Publications, 1950,X.4.

(c) In suggesting candidates for the Secretary-General's consideration, supply a number of names for each position.

(d) Provide easy arrangements for preserving the re-employment rights, seniority rights, pension and security rights, etc., for national civil service officials who are seconded to the United Nations or one of the specialized agencies. In this connexion, while I know it is difficult in certain cases, I should add the hope that governments will release for service in the Secretariat key national officials whom the Secretary-General selects from time to time; one measure of our success in selection of civil servants is the degree to which they would be missed, because of their competence, by their governments.

(e) Give support in the governing bodies of all of the international organizations to proposals of the agency heads looking toward more uniform standards and regulations in the field of personnel administration, and thus further the development of a unified international civil service of high quality serving the family of international organizations.

5. While the United States representative referred specifically to decisions which the Fifth Committee might take, I feel certain he will welcome the Secretary-General's assurance, which I am pleased to offer, that other important recommendations of the International Civil Service Advisory Board will also be carried out. Of perhaps greatest significance are the Board's proposals that open competitive examinations be expanded, that more comprehensive inquiry be made into the personal character and previous experience of potential staff members, that in recruitment more emphasis be given to broad educational and intellectual qualifications, that in-service training efforts be intensified, and that co-operative recruitment and transfer programmes be worked out with the specialized agencies.

6. The Secretary-General, following action of the General Assembly along the lines which I have indicated, will face his administrative tasks with renewed confidence. With many uncertainties removed, he will resolutely strive toward that high goal fixed by the Charter.

DOCUMENT A/C.5/377

Personnel standards : statement of Mr. Agnides, Chairman of the International Civil Service Advisory Board, Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text : English]
[10 October 1950]

1. As Mr. Price has indicated, I am, in all major respects, in full agreement with the statement the Secretary-General has made on the question of raising personnel standards in the Secretariat. I should like merely to add a few words, primarily for purposes of emphasis and to indicate one or two minor points on which I, as Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, take a slightly different view.

2. First, may I thank the Secretary-General for his kind reference to myself and the colleagues with whom I have the pleasure of serving on the International Civil Service Advisory Board. My colleagues bring to the work of this Board such a wealth of experience and such outstanding judgment and competence in the broad field of personnel administration that I have found it a most enlightening and pleasant experience to serve with them. I have the greatest confidence in putting their conclusions on personnel questions before the Secretary-General and the executive heads of the specialized agencies. This confidence is confirmed by the reception which the Board's recent report on "Recruitment Methods and Standards" has met in the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination, and I am very glad to hear the Secretary-General's statement that he is already putting into operation some of the recommendations which the Board has made.

3. I think the Secretary-General's suggestions as to the decisions which this Fifth Committee may take are most constructive. I certainly concur in his recommendation that the major features of the new Salary, Allowance and Leave System should be adopted by the General Assembly at this session. This central point is not weakened by the existence of minor differences between the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and the Secretary-General on certain phases of this new scheme—differences which are well known to members of this Committee. On these points of difference I can only reiterate my belief in the soundness of the Advisory Committee's recommendations.

4. Similarly, I also concur with his proposal that permanent staff regulations should be adopted at this session of the General Assembly. I cannot go further on this point since the Secretary-General's proposed staff regulations are now being studied by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, and it is only after this study that I will be in a position to comment on the text of these regulations. I have no hesitation, however, in expressing my personal gratification at the extent to which the Secretary-General's proposed staff regulations have been worked out in co-ordination with representatives of the specialized agencies. It is well known that the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, as well as the General Assembly itself, has repeatedly urged the kind of co-ordination on administrative matters which the inter-agency agreement on staff regulations represents.

5. I should like to add one major point to those which the Secretary-General has touched upon. I think the establishing of priorities among the various tasks assigned to the Secretariat by the various organs of the United Nations is of the utmost significance in the achievement of maximum efficiency and economy in the conduct of the Secretariat affairs. Too many projects carried on simultaneously will inevitably mean a deterioration in the quality of the work. Energy and talent devoted to studies and activities which, though desirable in the theoretical sense, have no real urgency or immediate necessity, will inevitably detract from the concentration of the Secretariat's strength on projects of immediate urgency and practicality, and in the long run will only result in a lowering of the prestige and morale of the staff, as well as in decreasing public confidence in the effectiveness of the United Nations organization as a whole. I urge this Committee and the General Assembly, therefore, to strengthen the hand of the Secretary-General in the fixing of priorities and time schedules. Only in the centralization of authority and responsibility in the Secretary-General can this problem be solved satisfactorily, subject always to any specific instructions from the General Assembly whose authority, of course, is overriding.

6. May I now merely underline two or three other points covered by Mr. Price's statement. I should like to state again what has been recognized by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems and the International Civil Service Advisory Board—that the Secretariat must be enabled to attract and retain staff of the highest competence. To do this will require the replacement of some of the present staff and strenuous effort to obtain new staff of first quality. Accordingly, I welcome the Secretary-General's statement on these points, and emphasize that any liberalization in the salary system must have as an indispensable corollary the raising of personnel standards and efficiency,

7. It is evident that from a budgetary point of view, the improvement of quality in the staff should only result in the accomplishment of the same workload with somewhat fewer staff or of enlarged tasks without increases in the manning table. Thus any additional expenses which are necessary to establish an adequate salary, allowance and leave system will, in the long run, result in savings to the organization.

8. The International Civil Service Advisory Board's recommendation that Member States support the independence of the Secretary-General in selecting staff, in practice as well as in theory, is of the utmost importance. In suggesting candidates for the staff, with an improved geographical distribution in mind, the paramount consideration of competence, integrity and efficiency, as outlined in the Charter, must never be lost sight of. I would urge the governments to respond to the request of the Secretary-General that they include in their panels of candidates individuals of outstanding competence from their own services.

9. As a corollary to the Secretary-General's independence in staff administration, it must become an established principle that it is not open to the members of the Secretariat to attempt to bring political or outside influence to support their personal claims in matters affecting the service, or their position in the service. Perhaps the Secretary-General will wish to introduce into the permanent staff regulations appropriate provisions supporting this principle, even to providing for disciplinary action in serious cases, the more so as there is ample machinery in the United Nations complex to which the staff member may have recourse—e. g., the paritative committees on discipline and appeals, the Staff Committee, and the Administrative Tribunal.

10. The observations of the International Civil Service Advisory Board on the question of specialization of the staff seem to me worthy of a brief comment. Recruitment on the basis of narrow job specifications is susceptible of resulting in a Secretariat which is bound to be over-staffed and, what is worse, to have a relatively low average standard. In recruiting the staff, care must be taken to maintain a proper balance between the specialized personnel and those possessed of a wider background and versatility. A group of versatile staff would constitute the backbone of the Secretariat. This would contribute to the building up of a relatively reduced and compact Secretariat. It is indeed unlikely that at a given time all departments would be equally hard pressed, and a versatile staff makes it possible for the Secretary-General to detail staff from one department to another which may be in great need of reinforcement. Furthermore, this decreases the need to engage temporary staff. Besides resulting in economies, this method creates a closer integration of the moral and intellectual forces of the Secretariat and gives it greater flexibility and a sense of purpose and unity.

11. I am pleased to note that the Secretary-General intends to improve the facilities for in-service training of present and new Secretariat staff members.

12. With the programmes outlined this morning I have every confidence that the year 1951 can be made a memorable one in the administration of the Secretariat.

Report of Sub-Committee 7

[Original text: English]
[14 November 1950]

INTRODUCTION

1. At the 243rd meeting of the Fifth Committee held on 10 October 1950, it was suggested by the Chairman that the various recommendations or proposals relating to the salary, allowance and leave system of the United Nations, on which the Committee was required to reach a decision, should be referred, in the first instance, to a sub-committee for examination and report. The hope was expressed that in this manner many major points of difference might be more easily reconciled with a view to developing a common proposal likely to command the largest possible measure of agreement and support. In suggesting this procedure, the Chairman made it clear that the sub-committee was not expected to undertake a detailed review of the recommendations and observations of the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems, as transmitted to the General Assembly at its fourth session (A/C.5/331)—which task had already been undertaken, at the Fifth Committee's request, by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1313)—but to address itself, for the most part, to the following major points of substance and of principle on which the Secretary-General had been unable to agree with the Advisory Committee's conclusions:

- (a) Salary levels for internationally and locally recruited staff;
- (b) The substitution for the present system of expatriation allowances of a system of repatriation grants;
- (c) The maintenance of present rental allowances through 1951;
- (d) The frequency of home leave;
- (e) The application to present staff of any new salary and classification plan agreed upon, with reference particularly to:
 - (i) Retention of existing salaries and salary ceilings;
 - (ii) Date for moving present staff on to the new salary scales;
- (f) Salary differentials.

2. On the proposal of the representative of Canada, the Fifth Committee decided to appoint, for the above purpose, a sub-committee of eleven members nominated by the Chairman, who was requested to preside over its proceedings. The Chairman accordingly nominated the following Member States to serve on the Sub-Committee: Australia, Brazil, China, France, Netherlands, Pakistan, Syria, United Kingdom, United States of America, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Venezuela. Throughout its discussions the Sub-Committee had the assistance and advice of the Chairman of the Advisory Committee.

3. The Sub-Committee held thirteen meetings during the period 11 October to 11 November 1950, in the course of which it carried out a review of the specific questions on which it was requested to report, and examined, at the same time, a number of other issues deemed relevant thereto. During its deliberations the Sub-Committee had occasion to call for a considerable amount of data additional to that already available in the reports of the Committee of Experts, the Advisory Committee and the Secretary-General (A/1378), in order that it might arrive at a judgment on the relative merits of various alternative proposals. Prior to its consideration of the question of salary differentials, the Sub-Committee received a representative of the World Health Organization, who explained on the Director-General's behalf the views of that Organization on the recommendation of the Advisory Committee that a minus 5 per cent differential should be applied to salaries of international staff serving in Geneva. The Sub-Committee also decided to afford an opportunity to the United Nations Staff Association to present any additional statement orally or in writing which it might wish to make in amplification of the views already brought to the notice of members of the Fifth Committee. In accordance with this decision, a hearing was granted to the Chairman and two Vice-Chairmen of the Staff Committee, prior to final consideration of the Sub-Committee's report.

I. SUMMARY OF RECOMMENDATIONS

The following is a summary of the Sub-Committee's recommendations. As will be evident from the attached account of its deliberations, these recommendations have not in all cases been arrived at unanimously.

Salaries for internationally recruited staff

(a) The salary scale for staff in the professional category should have a floor of $3,600³⁷ (representing the entry rate at the junior professional level) and a ceiling of $12,500 (representing the maximum rate at the Principal Director level);

(b) Total remuneration for Assistant Secretaries-General (i. e. salary plus representation allowance) should remain as at present, subject, however, to an increase from $13,500 to $15,000 in salary with a corresponding reduction (to $7,000 and $10,000, respectively) in the minimum and maximum rates of representation allowance;

(c) The remuneration for Principal Directors should comprise:

³⁷ All figures stated on net of tax or assessment basis.

- (i) A base salary of $12,000 rising to $12,500;
- (ii) A representation allowance varying from $1,000 to $3,500 at the discretion of the Secretary-General; and
- (iii) Allowances ordinarily available to eligible staff, e. g., children's allowance, education grants, repatriation grants.

(d) Remuneration for Directors (level J) should be determined in accordance with the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, i. e., a base salary of $11,000 rising by four incremental steps to a maximum of $12,200.

(e) An additional salary level should be introduced in the professional category, increasing the number of levels in this category from four to five.

(f) Increments should be on a yearly basis, subject to satisfactory performance, until a within-grade step rate of $10,800 is reached, after which they should be granted at two-yearly intervals.

Salaries for locally recruited staff

(g) The salary scales for locally recruited staff should be fixed in accordance with the principles recommended by the Committee of Experts and endorsed by the Advisory Committee and by the Secretary-General, i. e., on the basis of best prevailing local rates, subject to possibility of payment of a non-residents' allowance to General Service staff recruited from outside the local area.

(h) A language allowance should be paid to staff in levels B through D (or equivalent levels at offices away from Headquarters) who pass an appropriate test, and demonstrate continued proficiency in the use of two or more official languages; such allowance should be the equivalent of an additional step increment, which would continue beyond the maximum of their salary level.

Organization and classification of staff

(i) The organization and classification of staff should follow the recommendations of the Committee of Experts as endorsed by the Advisory Committee and by the Secretary-General.

Transition arrangements

(j) Transition arrangements to be applied in the case of staff members who suffer a loss in salary or in salary ceilings on assimilation to the new salary and classification plan should be based on the amended proposals of the Advisory Committee (see paragraph 17 of the following report).

(k) Such arrangements should have reference to salaries only and should not take account of remuneration presently received by way of representation allowance.

(l) Consideration should be given to the adequacy of the budgetary provision recommended by the Advisory Committee for hospitality.

Salary differentials

(m) Initial differentials should be not less than 5 per cent with minimum adjustments in multiples of 5 per cent.

(n) Differentials should be applied only to that portion of salary (75 per cent) affected by living costs in the area of assignment.

(o) A minus 5 per cent differential should be applied to salaries of international staff at Geneva, subject to the position in this respect being kept under review by the Advisory Committee during 1951.

Staff allowances

(p) A scheme for repatriation grants, on the basis and scale proposed by the Advisory Committee, should be instituted in place of the present system of expatriation allowances.

(q) Rental allowances and subsidies should be maintained at the full rate until the end of 1951.

Home leave

(r) The qualifying period for home leave should be extended from two to three years.

II. REVIEW OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE'S DELIBERATIONS

The issues considered by the Sub-Committee and the conclusions reached are briefly reviewed hereunder.

Salary levels for internationally recruited staff

1. The Sub-Committee first directed its attention to the problem of determining an appropriate basis of remuneration for the post of Principal (Top-ranking) Director, having in mind that since such posts will represent the highest level of the classified service, decisions reached in this connexion will be reflected throughout the entire salary scale. It was evident that a large measure of agreement existed on the following guiding principles:

(a) That a salary scale for the post of Principal Director should be determined on the basis of a reappraisal of what is a reasonable and adequate remuneration for the duties and responsibilities of the post;

(b) That the scale should offer the possibility of limited advancement in the form of one or more increments based on satisfactory service;

(c) That the maximum pensionable remuneration should not exceed $12,500;

(d) That Principal Directors should be eligible for ordinary staff allowances on the same basis and conditions as other staff members.

2. On the question of the precise scale of remuneration to be recommended and the manner in which it should be expressed, a number of differing proposals were debated. These differences emerged from a discussion of the following general questions:

(a) Whether representation allowances should be eliminated in favour of a consolidated base salary in accordance with the recommendation of the Committee of Experts (subject to budgetary provision for reimbursement, on a voucher basis, for authorized hospitality expenses), or whether a base salary should be fixed plus a separate allowance, as at present, for representation purposes, in accordance with the recommendation of the Advisory Committee.

(b) Given a separate representation allowance, the appropriate minimum and maximum limits of that allowance.

(c) Whether that portion of a Principal Director's remuneration intended for "representation" purposes should be paid automatically or by way of reimbursement, on a voucher basis, of expenses actually incurred.

3. The proposal for a consolidated salary found only limited support. In support of a consolidated salary the following arguments were advanced :

(a) It is difficult, if not impossible, satisfactorily to define "representational" expenditure. Such expenditure, in any event, is not necessarily limited to Principal Directors, but may be incurred by many senior officials, according to the nature of their duties and responsibilities. Any division, therefore, of the total remuneration deemed appropriate between "salary" on the one hand, and a fixed "representation allowance" on the other, is necessarily an arbitrary one.

(b) A somewhat higher salary level for Principal Directors which would include a "representation" element, while no more costly than the alternative proposal of salary plus allowance, would reduce difficulties due to a "bunching together" of salary levels at the senior level and above, by making possible a more adequate distinction between posts where the levels of responsibility are fundamentally different.

(c) It would also provide more adequate scope for appropriate adjustments in the salaries of key officials in levels immediately below that of Principal Director, having regard to the fact that officers in receipt of salaries above $7,000 (net) have not received the cost-of-living adjustment granted to other staff members. Those favouring this principle agreed, moreover, that a limit should be fixed to the amount of salary which would be pensionable and that a certain portion of the salary should be specifically designated as intended to cover representational expenses.

4. It was the view of the majority, on the other hand, that for Principal Directors, the basis of remuneration recommended by the Advisory Committee (i. e. salary plus ordinary staff representation allowance) was preferable for the following reasons :

(a) A base salary of $12,000—$12,500 more accurately reflected a comparative evaluation of the actual duties and responsibilities of the post.

(b) It would be undesirable in principle and in practice to set some arbitrary limit for pension purposes unrelated to the salary scale itself; similarly, if the level of remuneration agreed upon is intended to make provision for "representational" expenditure, this fact should be explicitly recognized in the form of a separate non-pensionable allowance granted specifically for this purpose.

(c) With an increase in the salary ceiling for the post of Principal Director from $11,000 to $12,500, the "bunching together" of salaries at the top of the scale would not constitute a serious defect and could, in any event, be sufficiently overcome by a slight adjustment in the next lower levels.

(d) It cannot be assumed that the provisional salary scale drawn up in 1946 was necessarily one best adapted to the permanent needs of the Organization as judged in the light of subsequent experience. Reference to the cost-of-living increase since that date is not, therefore, in itself, a relevant consideration in reappraising the adequacy of top-level salaries. Nevertheless, under the Advisory Committee's proposals, some measure of improvement is provided for in the case of levels immediately below that of Principal Director.

5. As regards the minimum limit of the representation allowance, there was a general agreement to accept the modified proposal of the Advisory Committee, by recommending a fixed amount (instead of zero) as a basic minimum — the majority favouring the sum of $1,000. In the case of the maximum limit, opinion was more evenly divided—a figure of $3,500 (instead of $3,000) receiving the larger measure of support. It was also the consensus of opinion that the Secretary-General should have full discretion in fixing the amount of representation allowance, in individual cases, within these limits.

6. On the question of whether representation allowances should be paid on the basis of a fixed annual amount or in the form of voucher reimbursements, a majority favoured the former procedure.

7. The Sub-Committee's conclusions with respect to the level of remuneration for the post of Principal Director may be stated as follows :

(a) That the net base salary be fixed at $12,000, rising after two years' service to a maximum of $12,500;

(b) That principal directors be paid a representation allowance varying from a minimum of $1,000 to a maximum of $3,500 in the Secretary-General's discretion.

(c) That Principal Directors receive, in addition, allowances ordinarily available to eligible staff (repatriation grant, children's allowance, education grant).

The effect of these recommendations on the emoluments of Principal Directors is shown in the comparative table appearing in annex 1.

8. In the light of its conclusions concerning Principal Directors, the Sub-Committee next considered the extent to which any readjustment was necessary in the present emoluments of Assistant Secretaries-General. It noted in this connexion the proposal of the Secretary-General for a readjustment of salary and representation allowances within the existing maximum ceilings. The Secretary-General's proposal, however, related to his similar recommendation for Principal Directors, and in neither instance did the Sub-Committee feel able to recommend that base salaries should be increased to the full extent requested. It was agreed, nevertheless, that in the interests of a balanced salary structure and with a view to affording Assistant Secretaries-General some measure of improvement within pensionable remuneration, the present differential of $2,500 between their salary and the maximum salary for a Principal Director should be maintained. Accordingly, the Sub-Committee decided to recommend that the salary of an Assistant Secretary-General should be increased from $13,500 to $15,000 net, with an equivalent reduction (to $7,000 and $10,000 respectively) in the minimum and maximum rates of representation allowance as presently authorized by the General Assembly.

9. On the question of salary levels for posts below that of Principal Director, the Sub-Committee, again in the light of its conclusion concerning Principal Directors, concurred generally in the recommendations of the Advisory Committee and in particular in the following proposed modifications of the scheme submitted by the Committee of Experts, on the basis of which the Secretary-General had prepared his budget estimates for 1951 :

(a) That base salaries for level J (the Director level) should be fixed at $11,000, rising by four steps to a maximum of 12,200;

(b) That increments should be awarded, subject to satisfactory performance, at two-yearly intervals (instead of yearly) after a within-grade salary of $10,800 is reached;

(c) That an additional salary level should be introduced in the salary ranges for the professional category, thus increasing the total number of levels up to and including that of senior officer from four to five.

It was the sense of the Sub-Committee that with the ceilings agreed upon, details of the salary scale for these five levels should be left to the determination of the Secretary-General in consultation, at the administrative level, with the specialized agencies in line with the objective of achieving a common classification and salary structure for the major part of the international civil service. It was the view of several members of the Sub-Committee that the salary scale for international staff, when finally determined, should be embodied in the permanent staff regulations.

Salary levels for locally-recruited staff

10. The Sub-Committee noted that the Advisory Committee, the Committee of Experts and the Secretary General were in full agreement as to the principles which should govern the determination of salaries for posts classified in the proposed general service category—namely, that they should be fixed and paid in local currency according to the best prevailing rates for comparable work performed in the duty station area, supplemented in the case of “semi-local” staff (i. e., staff whom it is necessary for language or other reasons to recruit from outside the local area) by a permanent non-residence allowance of a flat amount which would be pensionable. In connexion with the non-residence allowance the Sub-Committee concurred in the proposals made by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/SC.7/L.2)³⁸ for the implementation of this recommendation. It also concurred in the observations of the Advisory Committee that it might be impracticable in certain areas to pay the so-called “semi-local” staff who are, in fact, internationally recruited, on the basis of prevailing rates for comparable work in the duty station area plus a non-residence allowance, and that sufficient flexibility must therefore be retained to allow the Secretary-General to fix rates at points between those appropriate for locally-recruited staff, on the one hand, and the international staff, on the other.

11. In the course of its review of problems relating to General Service personnel, the Sub-Committee also examined the proposal of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/SC.7/L.2) to pay a language allowance to staff in salary levels B, C and D at Headquarters (salary ranges $2,200 to $4,200) or their equivalent in the local salary structure of other established offices, who passed an appropriate test and demonstrated continuing proficiency in the use of two or more official languages, such allowance to be the equivalent of an additional step increase extending where necessary beyond the maximum of the staff member's salary level. The bonus would thus amount to $100 per annum for eligible headquarters staff in the junior and intermediate levels and $150 per annum for those in the senior level of the general service category. The Sub-Committee believed that some compensation additional to that paid to monolingual staff was justified, and accordingly recommend that this proposal be approved.

Application of new salary and classification plan to present staff

12. The Sub-Committee examined at considerable length the problem of the transitional arrangements which should govern the assimilation of present staff to the proposed new salary and classification plan. The main question considered was that of the extent to which existing salaries, inclusive of cost-of-living adjustment, and existing salary ceilings (i. e., incremental expectations) should be preserved. As a basis for its consideration of this problem the Sub-Committee had before it the recommendations of the Advisory Committee (A/1312, paragraphs 27-33) and various alternative proposals and modifications thereto, recommended by the Secretary-General or presented in the course of its deliberations by several of its members.

13. These eventually narrowed down to two basic proposals, one or the other of which appeared to command a substantial measure of support. Both proposals provided for the entry into force of the new salary system on 1 January 1951 and for the payment of pensionable personal allowances to those present staff members whose existing salaries or salary ceilings (i. e. incremental expectation) might be adversely affected as a result of reclassification in terms of the new salary plan. They differed, however, as to the basis and method by which such allowances should be determined and the period during which they should be paid.

(a) Plan A provided for an extension of the maximum rates for the new salary levels by not more than three additional steps, for those staff members who, upon assimilation, would suffer a reduction in present salary, including cost-of-living adjustment, or salary ceiling. Such staff members would thus be permitted to go through the ceiling of their new salary level to the extent of one, two or three incremental steps, in the level to which they are assimilated, the purpose being either to allow them to maintain their existing base pay or to proceed all or part of the way towards their old salary ceiling (including, in both cases, the cost-of-living adjustment previously received, always provided, however, that salary plus personal allowance would not exceed the maximum rate to which they were entitled prior to assimilation). The one, two or three additional steps as the case may be would represent a pensionable personal allowance which would be paid as long as a staff-member remained in the service of the United Nations at the salary level to which he was assimilated on 1 January 1951. Examples of the manner in which this proposal would apply are given in annex 2.

(b) Plan B provided firstly that the difference between a staff member's present salary (plus cost-of-living adjustment) and the rate he would receive under the new system would be paid as a pensionable personal allowance; secondly, that staff members who are proceeding to a maximum in their present grades higher than the maximum of the appropriate new salary levels would continue to receive increments on the basis of the proposed new scales until they have reached a point equal to the maximum of their present scales—that part of the salary which exceeds the maximum of the new salary level being similarly considered as a pensionable personal allowance. Such allowances, however, would be subject to the following provisos :

(i) They would cease upon expiration of the staff member's contract or after two years from the date on which the new scales enter into force, whichever period is the longer;

(ii) In the case of staff members having temporary indefinite contracts, they would cease after two years;

(iii) In the case of staff members having indeterminate contracts, they would continue on a strictly contractual basis. Should their contract carry the proviso that its terms are subject to modification, such allowances would cease after a two-year transition period.

14. On behalf of plan A, it was argued that, while placing a limit to the size of personal allowances, it would nevertheless fully protect the actual salaries of present staff members in all but a small number of special cases, and in addition would provide for the great majority of those who suffer a reduction in present ceilings, an assured expectation of future increments. By basing payment of allowances on incumbency of post the inequities and anomalies to which the Secretary-

General had called attention (A/C.5/SC.7/L.3)³⁹ would be reduced. At the same time normal turnover resulting from resignations, terminations, promotions, etc., plus the recruitment of new staff at lower minima, would bring about a steadily decreasing budgetary cost after a comparatively short period. It would have the advantage also of making it unnecessary for the Organization to continue two distinct salary systems for a long time.

15. On behalf of plan B (and of others closely related thereto), it was argued that by placing a time limit on the period of transition, the full assimilation of the majority of present staff would be more rapidly achieved. Nevertheless, all staff members adversely affected, regardless of their contractual status, would be afforded an adequate transition period within which to make any necessary adjustments. The proposal had the particular merit, moreover, of fully honouring existing contractual obligations. At the same time the cost, though perhaps relatively heavier during the first two years than under plan A, would thereafter virtually disappear, so that from a longer-term point of view the total budgetary burden was likely to be less.

16. One delegation, while prepared to accept plan B in principle, was of the opinion that at the end of the proposed two-year transition period, the Secretary-General should report on outstanding problems of implementation and the situation should then be fully reviewed in the light of the circumstances prevailing at that time. Another delegation desired an amendment to the provision in plan B relating to staff members with indeterminate contracts, the effect of which would be to make personal allowances for such staff members terminable at the time of the first five-yearly review. Discussion of these alternative transitional arrangements revealed that no clear majority could be obtained in the Sub-Committee for a solution on these bases.

17. The Sub-Committee was informed at this stage that the Advisory Committee had formally decided to amend the terms of its recommendations as set forth in paragraphs 29 to 32 of its second report of 1950 (A/1312) by deleting the words "one year" in subparagraphs (a) and (b) of paragraph 32 and substituting therefor the words "two years". The Advisory Committee proposal as amended would, therefore, be as follows :

(a) That, subject to efficiency, staff members whose present salary is above the ceiling of the new salary level to which their posts may be assigned, together with those who may be already at the maximum of their present grade and who are assimilated to the proposed new scales at a level carrying a lower maximum, should receive the difference as a pensionable allowance provided, however, that payment of such allowances shall cease on expiration of their present contract or after a period of two years from the date on which the new salary scales may enter into force, whichever period is the shorter (after a period of two years in the case of staff members having temporary indefinite appointments).

(b) That subject to the same limitations, staff members who are proceeding to a maximum on their present grade higher than the maximum of the appropriate new salary level, should continue to receive increments on the basis of the proposed new scales until they have reached a point equal to the maximum of their present grade, that part of the salary which exceeds the maximum of the new salary level being considered as a pensionable personal allowance.

A majority of the Sub-Committee indicated their concurrence with the above proposal.

18. Discussion was then commenced on the question whether, and if so in what manner and to what extent, transitional arrangements intended to preserve actual current salaries should apply (a) to Top-ranking Directors and (b) to the Directors currently in receipt of representation allowances. The majority of Sub-Committee members indicated that it had been their assumption that the various proposals discussed had reference to the rank and file of staff only (and more especially to those in the lower grades) and were not intended to cover top-level staff. Several members maintained, nevertheless, that in so far as a principle was agreed upon, it should be applied equally to the Secretariat as a whole. Other members considered, however, that any transitional arrangements agreed upon should have reference to salaries alone and that for the purposes of such arrangements representation allowance, which was granted for an entirely different purpose, could not be regarded as part of a staff member's basic remuneration. It was also maintained that since salaries had been increased for Directors and above and that, in addition, they were to receive ordinary staff allowances, no special transitional provisions were called for in their case. After consideration of several specific proposals, the Sub-Committee concurred in this conclusion. At the same time, however, it observed that directors who had previously received but would not now receive a representation allowance would, in future, have recourse to the Central Hospitality Fund for authorized hospitality expenses. The Sub-Committee, therefore, suggests that the Fifth Committee should consider in this connexion the proposed budgetary provision in section 24 of the estimates.

Date and procedure for moving existing staff on to the new salary scale

19. The Sub-Committee also studied the recommendations of the Advisory Committee and of the Secretary-General on the highly technical subject of the date and procedure for moving present staff members on to the appropriate steps in the new scale. It noted that the Secretary-General had reached the conclusion that it would be advantageous to move all members of the staff to the appropriate rates under the new salary system on the same date, and that his 1951 budget proposals had been presented on the assumption that this date would be 1 January 1951. Under the Secretary-General's plan all staff members would be transferred to the new salary scale on 1 January 1951 at a rate identical to their existing salaries, plus cost-of-living adjustment, or if no identical salary exists in the new salary scheme, the staff member would be transferred to the next higher step-rate. Thus the effective date of the first within-grade salary increment under the new salary plan would normally be one year after the date of the transition, i.e. 1 January 1952. However, in the case of staff members who, under the present salary plan, would have received an increment at a date during 1951, e.g., 1 July 1951, the Secretary-General proposed, as a transitional arrangement, to grant an increment on this same date. This increment would be to the step-rate on the new scale which covers the rate which the staff member would have anticipated if no change had been made in the salary system. The Sub-Committee also noted that in the Secretary-General's opinion the advantages of moving the staff to the new scales on a single date, rather than staggering the transition throughout the year, are that it would simplify the administrative work involved in making the transition, and that it could be explained more easily to the staff than the plan suggested by the Advisory Committee.

20. The Advisory Committee, however, in its second report of 1950 (A/1312, paras. 34 to 38) recommended that staff members should not automatically be moved to the new scale as of 1 January 1951. Instead, they proposed that only those who had earned the next higher step-rates should be transferred as of that date. For other staff members service credits earned under the old salary system would be calculated up to 1 January 1951, while service credits accruing after 1 January 1951 would be calculated on the basis of the new system. The new increment dates for staff members would thus be staggered throughout the year. The Advisory Committee had estimated that adoption of its proposals would make possible an over-all saving in the cost of established posts of $100,000, and they had accordingly recommended that provision for a reduction in the estimates in this amount should be made in section 33 of the budget.

21. During the discussions, one member of the Sub-Committee suggested that the objectives of the Advisory Committee might be met without the complication of the calculation for each staff member in terms of increment dates. He suggested that all staff members should be placed at salary rates on 1 January 1951 which would take into account the credit earned toward their next increments under the old system. From 1 January 1951 forward, increments would accrue under the new system on each 1 January for all staff members. This system would permit savings on the estimates comparable to those in the plan of the Advisory Committee. However, the Sub-Committee noted that the plan would produce odd step-rates which would be carried indefinitely.

22. The Sub-Committee therefore decided to recommend that the principle advocated by the Advisory Committee—that is, that the increment should come due only when the staff member had earned it—should be adopted, but that the Secretary-General should select the precise method, within budgetary limitations which would accomplish the objective with the least administrative complications.

Salary differentials

23. The Sub-Committee had before it two types of questions relating to salary differentials in offices away from Headquarters: namely, (a) general policy relating to application of differentials, and (b) the specific application of a differential to the salaries of international staff located at Geneva.

24. In respect of the general policy, there was no disagreement between the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee concerning the necessity for applying differentials or the factors on which such differentials should be based. Both agreed with the proposals of the Committee of Experts on the basic question. However, the Secretary-General had accepted the recommendation of the Experts that initial differentials should not be set if differences in cost of living, standards of living, and other relevant factors were shown to be less than 10 per cent that adjustments should be made in multiples of 10 per cent, due to the margin of error in place-to-place cost comparisons. The Advisory Committee, on the other hand, believed that both initial differentials and adjustments might be reasonably made in multiples of 5 per cent. The Sub-Committee decided to recommend adoption of the Advisory Committee's views on this point.

25. On the question of the proportion of salary to which differentials should be applied, the Advisory Committee proposed that any differential should apply to 100 per cent of salary in view of the administrative difficulties inherent in the plan of the Committee of Experts. The Secretary-General, however, indicated that he did not foresee any serious difficulties and that, in his opinion, it would be more equitable to apply differentials to not more than 75 per cent of salary as recommended by the Experts, since approximately 25 per cent of salary would normally be expended in the Headquarters area or in the home country, e.g. pension contributions, insurance commitments, and savings which were not affected by the costs in the duty station area. In the light of these factors, the Sub-Committee agreed to recommend the application of differentials to 75 per cent of salary.

26. In connexion with the application of a specific differential on salaries of international staff at Geneva, the Sub-Committee took note of the fact that the Advisory Committee had recommended a minus differential of 5 per cent, based on the factors set out by the Committee of Experts, but that the Secretary-General contended that statistical surveys of the relative cost of living in New York and Geneva and of actual expenditures of staff members indicated that salaries of international staff for comparable work should be on the same basis. The Sub-Committee heard a representative of the Director-General of the World Health Organization, who supported the views of the Secretary-General, and also the Director of the United Nations Statistical Office on the present trends in cost of living in New York and Geneva. The Sub-Committee also took note of discussions in the Fifth Committee at its 256th meeting in connexion with the budget estimates for the Geneva Office. In further explanation of some of the views expressed there, four members of the Sub-Committee pointed out that their Governments had established substantial differentials in the salaries of their foreign service personnel working in New York and in Geneva. In some cases, such officials were paid 25 per cent less in Geneva than in New York. Furthermore, the Fifth Committee had already recognized a 25 per cent differential in the subsistence allowances to be paid to members of commissions by its recommendation of $25 per diem in New York and $20 in Geneva. Some doubts were expressed concerning the validity in 1950 of the statistical results of the survey which had been conducted in late 1948 and early 1949. Not only had the trends changed, but insufficient regard seemed to have been paid to differences in the standard and mode of living in the two areas.

27. On the basis of the evidence at hand, the Sub-Committee agreed to recommend adoption of a minus differential of 5 per cent to the appropriate proportion of salaries of international staff at Geneva. It was noted that, because of incorporation of the New York cost-of-living allowance into the base scales of pay, there would be no actual reduction of take-home pay for international officials below the $7,000 level in Geneva, if this proposal were adopted. The Sub-Committee is fully aware of the importance of this recommendation both to the United Nations officials and to the specialized agencies. It recommends, therefore, that the question should be kept under review by the Advisory Committee during 1951.

Expatriation allowances and repatriation grants

28. In examining the proposal to replace the present system of expatriation allowances by a plan under which a repatriation grant in the form of a lump sum would be paid to staff members on their being repatriated to their home countries, the Sub-Committee noted that both the Advisory Committee and the Secretary-General agreed that a terminal repatriation grant was preferable to the existing allowance, but differed as to the scale on which such grants should be paid. The Secretary-General had concurred in the scale proposed in this connexion by the Committee of Experts, whereas the Advisory Committee felt that, when considered in conjunction with other termination benefits, the scale proposed appeared unduly liberal. Accordingly, it had recommended that the scale should be revised to provide approximately half the amounts proposed by the Committee of Experts. The Sub-Committee concurred unanimously in the principle of a repatriation grant and agreed also with the views of the Advisory Committee (as set forth in para. 70 of its report (A/1312) as to the scale on which it should be paid. The only point concerning which some difference of opinion emerged related to the question of whether provision should be made for a transition period, during which present staff members would have the option of contining to receive expatriation allowances or of accruing service credit toward a repatriation grant. It was the view of several members of the Sub-Committee that such an option should be given for a period of at least one year as from 1 January 1951. It was noted in this connexion that, should the General Assembly so decide, additional budgetary provision to the extent of $640,000 would be required, on the assumption that the bulk of those presently in receipt of expatriation allowances would elect to continue on this basis for a further year. The Sub-Committee agreed that expatriation allowances should cease on 31 December 1950 and that eligible staff members should begin to accrue credit toward a repatriation grant first payable in 1953. During this two-year transition period the arrangements proposed by the Committee of Experts and accepted by the Advisory Committee and the Secretary-General should apply.

Rental allowances

29. The issue confronting the Sub-Committee in connexion with rental allowances was one of procedure rather than of substance. The Advisory Committee, in its budget report (A/1312), had recommended that rental subsidies and allowances should be gradually reduced during 1951 and eliminated not later than 1 January 1952. In accordance with this recommendation, it had proposed a reduction of $117,000 in the 1951 budget estimates. The Secretary-General, however, while accepting the recommendation that this allowance should be eliminated as from 1 January 1952, had urged, for the reasons set forth in paragraph 13 of his report (A/1378), that these allowances and subsidies should be continued in full during 1951. The Sub-Committee agreed that, taking into account the dislocation due to the move to Manhattan, the proposed discontinuance of expatriation allowances, and possible salary adjustments for some staff members, it would be reasonable to provide for a full twelve-month period in which those affected, particularly among the lower-paid members of the Secretariat, might make necessary personal arrangements. Accordingly, it recommends that the budgetary provision requested for 1951 by the Secretary-General for the purposes of these allowances be maintained.

Home leave

30. In connexion with the problem of home leave, the only point of substance with which the Sub-Committee had to concern itself was that of the frequency with which such leave should be granted. It was confronted in this respect with the views, on the one hand, of the Advisory Committee, to the effect that both on administrative and budgetary grounds the present rules were too favourable and that consideration should be given to the introduction of a longer qualifying period of service for the home leave privilege, and on the other hand, with the opinion of the Secretary-General that the present two-year qualifying period should be maintained. It was the sense of a majority of the Sub-Committee that in accordance with the Advisory Committee's recommendation, the present two-year qualifying period should be extended to three years. In the course of discussion, a compromise proposal that an interval of at least thirty months should elapse between home leaves was put forward but later withdrawn, on the understanding that home leave would be granted during the course of each third year of service.

EXAMPLES SHOWING THE EFFECT OF PLAN A REGARDING TRANSITIONAL RULES

Example 1

Present status—grade 5, step 3; $3,060 (range $2,810—$3,650).

New level—B; $2,200—$3,000.

Plan A—$3,100 (1 step above new ceiling)—to be applied on 1 June 1951 when credit has been earned for additional $40 under Advisory Committee proposal; $3,200 on 1 June 1952, and $3,300 on 1 June 1953.

Example 2

Present status—grade 5, step 5: $3,340 (range $2,810—$3,650).

New level—B: $2,200 to $3,000.

Plan A—$3,300 (3 steps above new ceiling—a loss of $40 in actual earnings). Not eligible for any further increments during his incumbency of this post.

Example 3

Present status—grade 11, step 4: $5,580 (range $4,830 to $6,450).

New level—E: $3,600—$5,400.

Plan A—$5,600 (1 step above new ceiling)—to be applied 1 January 1951; $5,800 on 1 January 1952, and $6,000 on 1 January 1953. He thus covers his present earnings but falls $450 short of his old maximum if he remains in this post.

Example 4

Present status—grade 6, step 5: $3,650 (range $3,060—$3,990).

New level—C: $2,600—$3,500.

Plan A—$3,700 (2 steps to be applied when credit is earned for additional $50 under Advisory Committee proposal—1 July 1951; the third additional step ($3,800) would be due 1 July 1952. This staff member would also retain his existing salary including cost-of-living adjustment, but would ultimately fall $190 below his present maximum.

Note by the Chairman

[Original text: English]
[15 November 1950]

1. In accordance with the request of Sub-Committee 1 of the Fifth Committee the Chairman, in consultation with the Secretary-General, has studied the question of the action which would be required by the Fifth Committee and the General Assembly to put into effect the recommendations of the Sub-Committee as contained in its report (A/C.5/400).

2. It was agreed in the Sub-Committee that the action required to put into effect its recommendations should be presented under two headings:

(a) Draft resolutions of the General Assembly, including necessary revisions of the provisional Staff Regulations;

(b) Action which remains to be taken in connexion with the approval of the budget estimates for the financial year 1951.

3. The action required in these two respects is indicated in appendices A and B of this paper.

APPENDIX A

DRAFT RESOLUTION OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report and recommendations of the Secretary-General on the salary, allowance and leave system of the United Nations, together with the reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions dealing with this subject,

1. Agrees with the desirability of simplifying the organization and classification of the staff in accordance with the principles set forth by the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems as endorsed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and by the Secretary-General.

2. Resolves that provisional staff regulation 16 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 to read as follows:

“Salaries of staff members shall be fixed by the Secretary-General in accordance with the provisions outlined in the attached Annex I of these Regulations.”

3. Resolves that the Secretary-General shall be guided by the following principles in applying the salary provisions specified in Annex I to the Provisional Staff Regulations to staff members who on 31 December 1950 were serving under indeterminate appointment, temporary indefinite appointment or regular fixed-term appointment, and who continue in service after 1 January 1951:

(i) Subject to efficiency, staff members whose salary on 31 December 1950 is above the ceiling of the new salary level to which their posts are assigned shall receive the difference as a pensionable personal allowance provided, however that payment of such allowances shall cease on the expiration date provided in their present contract, or after a period of two years from 1 January 1951, whichever period is the shorter (after a period of two years in the case of staff members having indeterminate or temporary indefinite appointments).

(ii) Subject to the same limitations, staff members who were proceeding to a maximum in their former grade higher than the maximum of the appropriate new salary level shall continue to receive increments on the basis of the new scales until they have reached a point equal to the maximum of their former grade, that part of the salary which exceeds the maximum of the new salary level being considered as a pensionable personal allowance.

(iii) These arrangements shall have reference only to salaries (including cost-of-living adjustment) and shall not take account of remuneration received as of 31 December 1950 in the form of any other allowances.

4. Resolves that, subject to transition arrangements under which all eligible staff members as of 31 December 1950 would be allowed the next home leave to which they would have been entitled under the provisions in effect on that date, provisional staff regulation 18 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by the addition of the following sentences :

“ Eligible staff members shall be granted home leave once in every three years. A staff member whose home country is the country of his official duty station or who continues to reside in his home country while performing his official duties shall not be eligible for home leave ”.

5. Resolves that provisional staff regulation 30 and provisional staff regulation 33 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by substituting “ twenty-one years ” for “ twenty-two years ” wherever the latter words occur, and further by substituting the words “ thirteen years of age ” for the words “ eleven years of age ” in paragraph (c) of provisional staff regulation 33.⁴⁰

⁴⁰ This amendment was not considered by the Sub-Committee; it would, however, implement the provisional decision reached by the Fifth Committee at its 241st meeting.

6. Resolves that the provisional staff regulations be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by the addition of a new regulation 35, as follows :

“ The Secretary-General shall establish a scheme for the payment of repatriation grants in accordance with the maximum rates and conditions specified in annex 2 of these regulations. ”

ANNEX I

SALARY SCALES AND RELATED PROVISIONS

1. An Assistant Secretary-General shall receive a salary of $US23,000⁴¹, (subject to the staff assessment plan) together with an allowance varying from $US7,000 to $US10,000 at the Secretary-General's discretion. The allowances for Assistant Secretaries-General are deemed to include all representation (including hospitality) and special allowances, such as housing, education and children's allowances, but not such reimbursable allowances as travel, subsistence and removal costs upon appointment, transfer or termination of appointment with the Organization, official travel and home leave travel.

2. A Principal Director shall receive a salary of $US17,000 rising after two years of satisfactory service to $US18,000 (subject to the staff assessment plan and salary differentials wherever applied), and if otherwise eligible shall receive the allowances which are available to staff members generally. In addition, he shall receive a representation allowance varying from $US1,000 to $US3,500, at the Secretary-General's discretion.

3. Except as provided in paragraph 5 of this Annex, the salary scales for staff members in the Director and Principal Officer and Professional categories, subject to the staff assessment plan and salary differentials wherever applied, shall be as follows :

⁴¹ This gross rate is equivalent to $15,000 net.

4. Incremental salary increases within the levels set forth in paragraph 3 shall be awarded annually on the basis of satisfactory service, provided that the period of satisfactory service required for increments above the salary of $US14,670⁴² shall be two years.

5. The Secretary-General shall determine the salary rates to be paid to personnel specifically engaged for conferences and other short-term service, to consultants to field service personnel, and to technical assistance experts and social welfare advisers.

6. The Secretary-General shall fix the salary scales for staff in the General Service category and the salary or wage rates for manual workers normally on the basis of the best prevailing conditions of employment in the locality of the United Nations office concerned, provided that the Secretary-General may, where he deems it appropriate, establish rules and salary limits for payment of a non-resident's allowance to General Service staff recruited from outside the local area.

7. The Secretary-General shall establish rules under which an extra payment may be paid to General Service staff who pass an appropriate test and demonstrate continued proficiency in the use of two or more official languages, such payment to be the equivalent of an additional step increment which would continue beyond the maximum of the salary level of the staff member concerned.

8. The Secretary-General may adjust the basic salary rates provided in paragraph 3 for duty stations away from Headquarters, by the application of salary differentials which take into account relative costs of living, standards of living and related factors; provided that initial differentials shall be not less than 5 per cent with minimum adjustments in multiples of 5 per cent, and provided further that these differentials shall be applied to only 75 per cent of base salaries.

ANNEX II

REPATRIATION GRANT

In principle, the repatriation grant shall be payable to staff members whom the Organization is obligated to repatriate, except those terminated by summary dismissal. Detailed conditions and definitions relating to eligibility shall be determined by the Secretary-General. The amount of the grant shall vary with the length of service with the United Nations (exclusive of periods when an expatriation allowance was received). The maximum rates payable shall be as follows:

Years of continuous service away from home country	Staff member with neither a wife, dependent husband nor dependent child at time of separation (Weeks of salary)	Staff member with a wife, dependent husband or child at time of separation (Weeks of salary)
After 2 years ...	4	8
After 3 years ...	5	10
After 4 years ...	6	12
After 5 years ...	7	14
After 6 years ...	8	16

After 9 years ...	11	22
After 10 years ...	12	24
After 11 years ...	13	26
After 12 years ...	14	28

The maximum grant payable under this plan shall be $US2,500 net for a staff member without dependants and $US5,000 net for a staff member with dependants.

⁴² This is a gross rate; the net equivalent is $US10,800.

APPENDIX B

ACTION TO BE TAKEN IN CONNEXION WITH APPROVAL OF THE BUDGET ESTIMATES FOR THE FINANCIAL YEAR 1951

1. In order to implement the Sub-Committee recommendations regarding salary differentials for internationally recruited staff serving in Geneva, it would be necessary for the General Assembly to reduce the Secretary-General's estimate for section 20 by the sum of $55,000 instead of the reduction of $73,100 proposed by the Advisory Committee in paragraph 207 of its second report of 1950 (A/1312).

2. It would be in accord with the Sub-Committee's recommendation regarding the procedure for moving present staff members to the appropriate salary step provided under the new salary scheme, for the General Assembly to accept the global reduction of $100,000 in the over-all estimates for established posts recommended in paragraph 38 of the Advisory Committee's second report of 1950 (A/1312).

3. The Sub-Committee recommends that the Fifth Committee consider the adequacy of the budgetary provision recommended by the Advisory Committee for hospitality. The Advisory Committee proposed that the appropriation of $40,000 for hospitality expenses provided in section 24 of the budget estimates be reduced to $20,000 (see paragraph 254 of the Advisory Committee's second report of 1950 (A/1312)). The Sub-Committee considered that in view of its recommendation that Directors other than Principal Directors should not receive a representation allowance, review of the amount to be available for authorized hospitality expenses would be desirable.

4. The Sub-Committee's recommendation that the rental allowance be maintained throughout 1951 would require maintenance of the full amount requested for this purpose by the Secretary-General in the budget estimates for 1951 (section 17, Common staff costs) rather than accepting the reduction of $117,600 proposed in this item by the Advisory Committee in paragraphs 178 and 181 of its second report for 1950 (A/1312).

DOCUMENT A/C.5/408

Amendments to the draft resolution and budget recommendations contained in document A/C.5/403 proposed by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[17 November 1950]

The Secretary-General recommends the following amendments to the proposals contained in document A/C.5/403 :

1. Paragraph 3 of appendix A to be amended as follows :

In sub-paragraph (i) the following words to be deleted :

“ Provided, however, that payment of such allowances shall cease on the expiration date provided in their present contract, or after a period of two years from 1 January 1951, whichever period is the shorter (after a period of two years in the case of staff members having indeterminate or temporary indefinite appointments). ”

In sub-paragraph (ii) the words “ the same limitations ” to be deleted, and the word “ efficiency ” substituted therefor.

Paragraph 3 of appendix A as amended would then read as follows :

“ 3. Resolves that the Secretary-General shall be guided by the following principles in applying the salary provisions specified in Annex I to the Provisional Staff Regulations to staff members who on 31 December 1950 were serving under indeterminate appointment, temporary indefinite appointment or regular fixed-term appointment, and who continue in service after 1 January 1951 :

(i) Subject to efficiency, staff members whose salaries on 31 December 1950 are above the ceilings of the new salary levels to which their posts are assigned shall receive the difference as a pensionable personal allowance.

(ii) Subject to efficiency, staff members who were proceeding to a maximum in their former grades higher than the maximum of the appropriate new salary levels shall continue to receive increments on the basis of the new scales until they have reached a point equal to the maximum of their former grades, that part of the salary which exceeds the maximum of the new salary level being considered as a pensionable personal allowance.

“(iii) These arrangements shall have reference only to salaries (including cost-of-living adjustment) and shall not take account of remuneration received as of 31 December 1950 in the form of any other allowances. ”

2. Paragraph 4 of appendix A to be amended as follows :

In provisional staff regulation 18 the words “ home leave once in every three years ” to be changed to “ home leave once in every two years ”.

Paragraph 4 of Appendix A as amended would then read as follows :

“ 4. Resolves that, subject to transition arrangements under which all eligible staff members as of 31 December 1950 will be allowed the next home leave to which they were entitled under the provisions in effect on that date, Provisional Staff Regulation 18 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by the addition of the following sentences :

‘ Eligible staff members shall be granted home leave once in every two years. A staff member whose home country is the country of his official duty station or who continues to reside in his home country while performing his official duties shall not be eligible for home leave. ’

3. Annex II (Repatriation grant) to be amended by substituting for the maximum rates recommended by the Advisory Committee those recommended by the Committee of Experts.

Annex II as amended would then read as follows :

ANNEX II

REPATRIATION GRANT

“ In principle, the repatriation grant shall be payable to staff members whom the Organization is obligated to repatriate, except those terminated by summary dismissal. Detailed conditions and definitions relating to eligibility shall be determined by the Secretary-General. The amount of the grant shall vary with the length of service with the United Nations (exclusive of periods when an expatriation allowance was received). The maximum rates payable shall be as follows :

After 9 years ...	4 1/2	9

After 12 years ...	6	12

“ The maximum grant payable under this plan shall be $US5,000 net for a staff member without dependants and $US10,000 net for a staff member with dependants. ”

4. Paragraph 1 of appendix B to be amended to read as follows :

“ 1. In order to implement the Secretary-General's recommendations regarding salary differentials for internationally recruited staff serving in Geneva it would be necessary for the General Assembly to reject the reduction of $73,100 proposed by the Advisory Committee in paragraph 207 of its second report of 1950 (A/1312). ”

DOCUMENT A/C.5/410

Syria : Proposal for transition to the new salary system

[Original text : English]
[18 November 1950]

1. At the request of a number of delegations, the representative of Syria has prepared an elaboration of his proposal for transition for existing staff of the Secretariat to the new salary system.

2. One of the most difficult problems on the agenda of the Sub-Committee on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems was the question of arrangements for the transition for existing staff from their old salary levels to the new levels, which are lower in a significant number of cases. On the one hand, the Secretary-General had stated his intention to the staff to recommend a retention not only of their base salary but also of their salary ceilings under the old plan. On the other hand, the Advisory Committee had recommended to the Fifth Committee a cut-off date of one year, and even a shorter time for those whose contracts expired during 1951. The Sub-Committee was informed that his plan would mean an actual reduction in base pay for over 400 staff members at the end of 1951, and a loss in expectation of normal increments for nearly 1,700 staff members.

3. During discussions in the Sub-Committee numerous plans were presented for solving this problem. Some of those plans divided the staff on the basis of the types of contracts which staff members hold. The Secretary-General pointed out the difficulties in this plan in this early stage of the organization when the contract policy has not been entirely settled; many inequities would result for the 66 per cent of the staff without permanent contracts and morale would be seriously affected. Another group of proposals differed from the Advisory Committee plan in the time given for transition, ranging from a two-year to a five-year transition period for all staff members. Still a third type of proposal suggested the maintenance of all salaries for a definite period, plus a cash indemnification for breach of contract at the end of that period.

4. To facilitate a solution to this problem, the Syrian delegation proposed one other method, and that method received the greatest number of votes for any single proposal up to the last day of consideration. However, due to procedural difficulties, the Sub-Committee found itself without a majority plan and later compromised on an amended proposal by the Advisory Committee, which has been explained in its report (A/C.5/400). It was clear in the Sub-Committee that while this plan was considered a good second best, it did not meet the preoccupations of most of the delegations represented in the Sub-Committee. The Secretary-General gives a high priority to this problem as indicated at the 265th meeting of the Fifth Committee, and it is obvious from the communications we have received that the staff is very much concerned with this problem.

5. The Syrian proposal is to allow the extension of the maximum rates for the new salary levels by three steps for those staff members who would suffer a reduction in actual earnings or in expectations at the end of a definite transition period decided upon by the General Assembly. The plan would allow the 1,700 staff members in this situation to go through the ceilings of their new salary levels far enough to cover their existing base pay (including cost-of-living allowance) or their expectation of proceeding toward their old maximum by giving them a personal allowance in the form of one, two or three steps so long as they remained in their old post.

6. The plan may be easily illustrated by taking the case of a secretary who is now at grade 6, step V, receiving $3,650. Her present range under the present system is $3,060 to $3,990. Grade 6 secretaries have normally been assigned to a new salary level which ranges from $2,600 to $3,500. Under the Syrian plan, this secretary would be placed at $3,700 during 1951 when she has earned her new step. This is two steps above her new ceiling. She would be allowed one further step in 1952, or $3,800 in the direction of her old ceiling. This would become her new ceiling since it is three steps above the maximum of her new grade.

7. To take the example of a professional officer, an assistant economist at grade 11, step IV, who is now receiving $5,580, is normally placed in a salary level where his new ceiling will be $5,400. Early in 1951 he would be placed at $5,600 (one step above his new salary ceiling). Under the Syrian proposal, he would proceed to $5,800 in 1952, and $6,000 in 1953. He would then have three salary steps in the form of a personal allowance in the direction of his old ceiling, which is $6,450. Further examples are given as annex 2 to document A/C.5/400.

8. The cost of this proposed system will be about the same as that proposed by the Sub-Committee in 1951 and 1952. After that time, because staff members will be allowed to proceed to their old ceilings, the cost of this plan will be approximately $270,000 a year for several years, or about 25 per cent less expensive than the Secretary-General's plan, which will allow all staff members to proceed fully to their old ceilings. The plan is, of course, somewhat more expensive than the plans which, after a two-year transition, would have regard only to those persons with permanent contracts, but the inequities of such a plan have been pointed out by the Secretary-General. It is difficult to estimate precisely the over-all costs of any of these plans, since the cost depends on the rate of turnover, the rate of promotion, and many other factors. In any case, the cost of transition will rapidly be offset by the savings to be effected in recruitment of staff at lower entrance levels. It is important that the plan adopted by the General Assembly should not increase the normal rate of turnover, since the training of new staff is far more expensive than the amounts to be spent in fair transitional arrangements for the present staff.

9. The main points in justification of this proposal are as follows :

(a) It treats the staff fairly since it preserves the basic take-home pay of all staff members and allows all staff members to go a reasonable distance toward their old salary ceilings, which represented their expectations when they joined the Organization;

(b) At the same time, the plan limits the liability of the Organization, since it will allow no one to go more than three steps beyond his new grade level;

(c) This plan is applicable not only to all offices of the United Nations but to the specialized agencies as well. Even in areas where local salaries must be cut back substantially, in the long run it will provide an equitable transition for present staff without large increases in the budgets of the agencies;

(d) The plan provides the additional steps as a personal allowance only for those staff members who are above the new ceilings now or whose old ceilings are beyond their new maximum and who remain in their present posts. It does not have the effect of extending the new salary ranges for all staff members;

(e) The plan also has the virtue of making it unnecessary for the Organization to continue indefinitely two systems of salaries. The personal allowance for those staff members over the new ceilings would be at the step rates envisaged in the new system and would therefore avoid a number of odd step rates left over from the old plan.

10. For the convenience of the Fifth Committee, if it should, consider this proposal favourably, the Syrian delegation, in consultation with the Secretary-General, has prepared the necessary amendments to the draft resolution contained in document A/C.5/403. The proposed amendment is attached as an appendix.

APPENDIX

SYRIA : PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO DRAFT RESOLUTION CONTAINED IN DOCUMENT A/C.5/403

Paragraph 3 of appendix A to be amended to read as follows :

3. Resolves that the Secretary-General shall be guided by the following principles in applying the salary provisions specified in annex I to the Provisional Staff Regulations to staff members who on 31 December 1950 were serving under indeterminate appointment, temporary indefinite appointment or regular fixed-term appointment, and who continue in service after 1 January 1951 :

(i) Subject to efficiency, staff members whose salary on 31 December 1950 is above the ceiling of the new salary level to which their posts are assigned shall receive the difference as a pensionable personal allowance provided, however, that such allowance shall not exceed the equivalent of three additional steps, beyond the maximum of his new salary level.

(ii) Subject to efficiency, staff members who were proceeding to a maximum in their former grade higher than the maximum of the appropriate new salary level shall continue to receive increments on the basis of the new scales until they have reached a point equal to the maximum of their former grade, or a point equivalent to three steps beyond the maximum of their new salary level whichever is the lower, that part of the salary which exceeds the maximum being considered as a pensionable personal allowance.

(iii) These arrangements shall have reference only to salaries (including cost-of-living adjustment) and shall not take account of remuneration received as of 31 December 1950 in the form of any other allowances.

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[17 November 1950]

In accordance with the Fifth Committee's request, the following is the text of the memorandum sent individually to members of the staff in connexion with their re-classification under the proposed new salary system :

To :

From : Byron Price.

1. As you know ⁴⁸, the Secretary-General has decided to use the proposals of the Committee of Experts as the basis for the 1951 Budget Estimates which he will shortly submit to the General Assembly for approval.

2. This decision has involved a complete review of the organization and structure of each Department of the Secretariat. One of the principal concerns of the Classifications Review Committee has been to ensure uniformity of standards and equitable treatment throughout the staff.

3. Now that the preliminary review is complete, I am anxious that you should understand that (a) it is the Secretary-General's intention that no member of the staff should suffer a loss in pay or in the ceiling to which he is entitled under the terms of his present appointment; (b) that every staff member will be given an opportunity to make representations direct to the Administration if he believes that the decision in his case is unjust; and (c) that the new scheme will not limit and will in many respects enhance the opportunities open by way of promotion.

4. I am therefore writing to you, as Chairman of the Salary Review Committee, to explain the procedure that is being adopted. Departments have made recommendations regarding their entire staff and these recommendations have been reviewed tentatively by the Salary Review Committee.

5. In the light of this review of your present post and grade it has been proposed under the new scheme to place you in the following category and salary level.

Category:

Salary level:

Attached to this memorandum you will find tables ⁴⁴ showing (a) the present net salary rates including cost of living adjustment and (b) the net salary range of the levels in the new scheme and the steps within each level. Your step and salary under the proposed scheme will be determined at the time of conversion as follows:

If your current salary plus cost-of-living adjustment is below the first step of the level you will start at the first step.

If your current salary plus cost of living falls within the salary range of the level you will start either at the step which exactly corresponds to that amount or if there is none at the step immediately above.

If your current salary plus cost of living is higher than the top step of the new level you will retain your present salary and cost-of-living adjustment.

⁴⁴ Tables are not reproduced here.

6. It is important that you understand the situation clearly. If you do not, please consult your supervisor or the Bureau of Personnel. In particular, I want you to realize that your ceiling will in no way limit the possibility of your promotion to a post of a higher level for which you can qualify.

7. The Secretary-General is anxious that the new scheme should be put into effect with every possible consideration of equity, and any staff member who believes that he has been wrongly assigned to a particular category or level is therefore invited to submit in writing before a final decision is reached the reasons that in his opinion justify a review of his case.

8. If you wish to take advantage of this opportunity, you should state clearly and exactly in terms of the work you are regularly performing and, so far as they are relevant, in terms of the qualifications you are required to use on the job, why the decision is in your view unjust. You should also give such evidence as you possess that similar work is better paid or more highly graded either in the Secretariat or elsewhere.

9. If you wish to make any such submission please do so within one week, addressing it direct to your Assistant Secretary-General, who will forward it with his comments to the Secretary-General. It will then be carefully scrutinized by the Salary Review Committee, on which your Department will be represented, and any cases which cannot be settled between the Department and the Salary Review Committee, will be decided by the Secretary-General. You will be told the final result as soon as possible.

10. For my part I firmly believe that the new system is wholly in the interests of the staff, and I confidently hope that you will regard the decision taken in your individual case in the light not only of the advantage it may bring you, but also of the advantage that the new scheme will bring to the Secretariat as a whole.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English]
[14 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee at its 241st to 243rd meetings held on 4, 5 and 10 October, and its 265th, to 267th and 269th meetings held on 17, 20 and 24 November 1950, considered the reports of the Secretary-General (A/1378), the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1312 and A/1313 and Corr. 1), and the report of its Sub-Committee (A/C.5/400 together with amendments proposed by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/408) and by the delegations of Syria (A/C.5/410), Brazil (A/C.5/411, A/C.5/412) and Chile (A/C.5/411), relating to the salary, allowance and leave system of the United Nations.

2. After a general debate on the plan proposed initially in 1949 by the Committee of Experts appointed by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/331) and the recommendations on that plan submitted by the Advisory Committee, the Fifth Committee decided to take the reports of the Advisory Committee as a basis for discussion, and to pay special attention to those points on which the views of the Advisory Committee and of the Secretary-General differed. It was decided to deal immediately with two of the less complicated points of difference, namely, the children's allowance and the education grant.

3. At its 241st meeting the Committee decided by 31 votes to 13 with 4 abstentions, to accept the Secretary-General's recommendation that the children's allowance should be payable in respect of dependent children under the age of 18. However, the Committee rejected by 32 votes to 11 with 6 abstentions, his further proposal that the allowance should be payable to children in full-time attendance at a school or university or totally disabled until the age of 22. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee that the age-limit in such cases should be 21 was adopted by 42 votes to none with 3 abstentions.

4. The first point at issue on the education grant was the removal of the age-limit for payment of such a grant in respect of children attending special national or international schools. The Secretary-General's recommendation that the age-limit should be removed altogether was rejected by 33 votes to 5 with 5 abstentions. The Advisory Committee proposed to raise the age-limit for children attending special national schools to 13, but to maintain the existing age-limit of 11 for children attending international schools; however, a Danish amendment to raise the age-limits to 13 in both cases was carried by 11 votes to 9 with 26 abstentions. The Advisory Committee's proposal, thus amended, was then adopted by 40 votes to none with 6 abstentions.

5. In regard to the country to which a child is to be sent to school or university in order to qualify for the payment of the education grant, the Secretary-General urged increased flexibility to allow staff members to select schools in countries in the same geographical area and having similar educational and cultural systems. This proposal was rejected by 32 votes to 1 with 9 abstentions. To ensure consistency with its decision on the children's allowance, the Committee also concurred unanimously in the Advisory Committee's recommendation that the over-all age-limit for payment of education grants should be kept at 21.

6. After some further discussion of the expatriation allowance and the financial implications of the whole plan, the Chairman proposed, at the 243rd meeting, the establishment of a sub-committee to study the various recommendations and proposals before the Committee, including those already submitted by delegations, with a view to reconciling the divergent points of view and submitting a comprehensive plan. Although some of the representatives believed that no time would be gained by the establishment of a subsidiary body at that stage, the Chairman's proposal was adopted by 32 votes to 8 with 1 abstention. The representative of Canada thereupon proposed that the Sub-Committee should consist of eleven representatives nominated by the Chairman of the Fifth Committee, who would preside over its meetings. The Chairman of the Advisory Committee should also be at the disposal of the Sub-Committee. After unanimous acceptance of this proposal, the Committee concurred with the suggestion of the Chairman that the Sub-Committee should consist of the representatives of the following States: Australia, Brazil, China, France, Netherlands, Pakistan, Syria, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom, United States of America and Venezuela.

7. After thirteen meetings, the Sub-Committee reported to the Fifth Committee (A/C.5/400) that it had reached conclusions, although not always unanimously, on the six remaining points on which the Advisory Committee and the Secretary-General had been unable to agree fully, namely:

(a) Salary levels for internationally and locally recruited staff;

(b) The substitution for the present system of expatriation allowances of a system of repatriation grants;

(c) The maintenance of present rental allowances through 1951;

(d) The frequency of home leave;

(e) The application to present staff of any new salary and classification plan agreed upon, with reference particularly to:

(i) Retention of existing salaries and salary ceilings,
(ii) Date for moving present staff on to the new salary scales;

(f) Salary differentials.

8. The Fifth Committee started its deliberations on the Sub-Committee's report at its 265th meeting. The Assistant Secretary-General for Administrative and Financial Services summarized the history of the salary and allowance question in the United Nations, and outlined the Secretary-General's reservations on the conclusions of the Sub-Committee. The Secretary-General would continue to press for the protection of the full basic salary and salary ceilings of the present staff; for home leave every two years; for a repatriation grant at the rate proposed by the Committee of Experts (roughly twice that recommended by the Advisory Committee); and against the imposition of a minus salary differential on salaries of internationally recruited staff at Geneva.

9. Several representatives supported the Sub-Committee's report, emphasizing various aspects of the problem before the Committee. Reference was made to the importance of maintaining staff morale by assuring justice in the transition arrangements and "an assured career which would offer wide and regular opportunities for advancement on the basis of merit" (A/C.5/331, para. 17 (a)). It was urged by some that the transitional period should be as short as possible on the grounds that the Secretary-General would find it difficult to maintain two salary systems indefinitely. Some representatives attached importance to the acquired rights of the staff, in particular to their existing basic salaries and salary ceilings. On the other hand it was maintained that the General Assembly had a legal right to change staff regulations at any time, although it had a moral obligation to treat the staff in a just and equitable manner. Certain delegations, while in general supporting the Sub-Committee's plan indicated that they would have preferred different transitional arrangements.

10. Other representatives, however, objected to certain features of the plan recommended by the Sub-Committee, in particular to the proposal to reduce the frequency of home leave and the reduction of salaries of internationally recruited staff, especially junior staff. Some speakers agreed with all the Secretary-General's reservations.

11. In the course of the general debate the representative of Poland proposed that the opinion of the Staff should be sought by the Fifth Committee before final decisions were taken. The Chairman subsequently explained that the Committee of Experts, the Advisory Committee and the Sub-Committee had heard staff representatives during their discussions, and that the point of view of the Staff Association was set forth in detail in the documents before the Committee. The interests of the staff had also been energetically defended by the representative of the Secretary-General. This point of view was defended by several delegations, some of whom also expressed opposition in principle to the hearing of a member of the staff by the Fifth Committee, explaining that it was the function of the Secretary-General to consider the wishes of the staff and then to make recommendations to the General Assembly. Some delegations on the other hand supported the Polish proposal while others stated that they agreed in principle to inviting a representative of the staff, but believed in this instance that all information had been placed before the Committee. The proposal was rejected by a vote of 23 to 9 with 10 abstentions.

12. During the discussion, several amendments to the Sub-Committee's recommendations were introduced :

(a) Brazil offered an amendment on home leave specifying that eligible staff members should qualify for home leave twenty-four months after the date of their return from the last previous visit to their countries (A/C.5/412);

(b) Brazil offered a second amendment allowing staff members the option of adhering to the scheme of repatriation grants, or of continuing to receive an expatriation allowance at the present rates (A/C.5/412);

(c) Uruguay proposed orally that the change from annual to biennial increments in salary should be made between the Principal Officer and Director categories rather than at the $10,800 break-point recommended by the Advisory Committee;

(d) Brazil and Chile jointly proposed that the Secretary-General be authorized at his discretion to grant to Directors in special cases a representation allowance up to an amount of $US1,500 (A/C.5/411); and

(e) Syria proposed the extension of the new salary ceilings by an amount up to three steps for those staff members whose new classifications would result in a reduction of base salary or salary ceiling.

13. At the close of the general discussion of the Sub-Committee's report, the Chairman proposed that the Committee should take its decisions on the questions of home leave, repatriation grant and salary differentials before voting on the organization and classification of staff and the transitional arrangements. The basic document for purposes of voting was the Chairman's note (A/C.5/403) recording the recommendations of the Sub-Committee

14. On the first question (paragraph 4 of appendix A) the Secretary-General requested that staff members continue to be granted home leave once every two years instead of three as recommended by the Sub-Committee, and as indicated in the previous paragraph the Brazilian delegation proposed that staff members should qualify for home leave twenty-four months after the date of their return from their previous home leave. The Secretary-General's amendment (document A/C.5/408) to paragraph 4, Appendix A, of document A/C.5/403 was rejected by 24 votes to 18 with 3 abstentions. The Brazilian representative then withdrew his amendment on the grounds that its intent was similar to that of the Secretary-General's proposal. The Sub-Committee's recommendation was then adopted by 28 votes to 13, with 5 abstentions.

15. Revisions of provisional staff regulations 30 and 33 embodying the earlier decisions of the Fifth Committee in respect of children's allowances and education grants were approved without further discussion.

16. The Secretary-General's amendment (A/C.5/408) to annex II of document A/C.5/403, proposing to substitute the higher scale of repatriation grants recommended by the Committee of Experts for the scale recommended by the Advisory Committee and the Sub-Committee, was rejected by 32 votes to 7, with 3 abstentions. The Sub-Committee's proposal was then adopted by 43 votes to none with 1 abstention. The Brazilian amendment (A/C.5/412) to paragraph 6 of the draft resolution contained in appendix A, proposing an option for eligible staff members between expatriation allowances and the repatriation grant, was rejected by 24 votes to 16 with 7 abstentions.

17. The Sub-Committee's recommendation that rental allowances should be continued in full during 1951 was unanimously adopted. This decision did not require a resolution, but only appropriate action in connexion with the budget estimates for 1951.

18. The Committee unanimously approved paragraph 1 of appendix A of document A/C.5/403 concerning the organization and classification of the staff.

19. In considering the salary scales appearing as annex I to paragraph 2, the Committee adopted a suggestion, of the Chinese delegation as modified by the United Kingdom delegation, to add to the heading, the following phrase :

" Subject to assessment under the staff assessment plan at the rates laid down in General Assembly resolution 239 (III) and to such changes as may be directed from time to time by the General Assembly".

20. The Brazilian-Chilean amendment (A/C.5/411) authorizing the Secretary-General at his discretion to grant to Directors in special cases a representation allowance up to an amount of $US1,500 was adopted by 21 votes to 9 with 12 abstentions. It was understood that this amendment (inserted as a new paragraph in annex I) would obviate the necessity for the Directors to draw on the hospitality fund for representation expenses.

21. The Uruguayan amendment concerning frequency of increments at the top salary levels was then adopted by 13 votes to 11 with 20 abstentions.

22. Annex I to provisional staff regulation 16, as amended, was adopted by 41 votes to none with 1 abstention. Paragraph 2 of the draft resolution was then adopted by the same vote.

23. While the principles on which salary differentials are to be applied for duty stations away from Headquarters are embodied in Annex I to provisional staff regulation 16, the question of the specific application of a minus 5 per cent differential in Geneva required a separate decision. The Committee, by 32 votes to 4 with 5 abstentions, adopted the Sub-Committee's recommendation that such a differential should be applied to 75 per cent of the salaries of international staff at Geneva, subject to review by the Advisory Committee during 1951. This decision did not require a special desolution, but necessitated a consequential adjustment in section 20 of the Secretary-General's budget estimates for 1951.

24. On the question of transitional arrangements, the Committee had before it the Sub-Committee's recommendations (A/C.5/403, appendix A, para. 3) and two amendments: that of the Secretary-General proposing the full protection of basic salary and salary ceilings of present staff; and that of Syria, proposing the extension of the new salary ranges by an amount up to three steps for those staff members whose new classifications would result in a reduction of base salary or salary ceiling.

25. The Secretary-General's proposed amendment (A/C.5/408) to paragraph 3 of the draft resolution (A/C.5/403, appendix A) was rejected by 22 votes to 19 with 4 abstentions. The Syrian proposal (A/C.5/410) was thereupon adopted by 35 votes to none with 10 abstentions.

26. The Sub-Committee's proposals concerning the date and procedure for making the salary scales applicable to the staff (A/C.5/400, para. 19-22) were unanimously approved.

27. In response to questions concerning the financial implications of the new salary, allowance and leave system, the representative of the Secretary-General informed the Committee that the application of the new system to permanent posts would entail an increase in expenditure of $US553,000. That figure included the annual increments to which staff members were entitled. Similarly, incorporation of the cost-of-living allowance in the salary would entail an additional expenditure of $195,000 due to the increase in the United Nations contribution to the Joint Staff Pension Fund. Finally, the total amount for repatriation grants to be paid during the financial year 1951 was estimated at $35,000. The total additional expenditure was therefore $783,000. On the other hand, it was believed that certain administrative measures such as the recruitment of new officials at lower rates of pay than hitherto, would make it possible to save $244,000 in the financial year 1951, if turnover rates remained stable. In addition abolition of the expatriation allowance would give a saving of $626,000. Finally, receipts from the tax equalization plan would increase in 1951 by about $200,000, which would bring the total savings achieved to $1,070,000. The net saving on the 1951 budget estimates would therefore amount to $287,000.

28. The Committee was subsequently informed by the Sub-Committee's report that additional savings of $100,000 were possible as a result of its recommendations concerning date and method of transition. Substantial savings would also occur beginning in 1953 as a result of the decisions on home leave (approximately $370,000 annually) and the limits of the repatriation grant.

29. The representative of the U.S.S.R. announced that he would abstain from voting on the draft resolution as a whole, since his delegation believed that the granting of home leave every three years would work toward the detriment of the international character of the staff, and that his delegation would press for a review of this question.

30. The draft resolution, as amended, was approved by 37 votes to none with 7 abstentions.

31. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution:

SALARY, ALLOWANCE AND LEAVE SYSTEM OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly,

Having considered the report and recommendations of the Secretary-General on the salary, allowance and leave system of the United Nations, together with the reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions dealing with this subject,

1. Agrees upon the desirability of simplifying the organization and classification of the staff in accordance with the principles set forth by the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems as endorsed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions and by the Secretary-General;

2. Resolves that provisional staff regulation 16 be amended, with effect from 1 January 1951, to read as follows:

“Salaries of staff members shall be fixed by the Secretary-General in accordance with the provisions outlined in the attached annex I to the present regulations”;

3. Resolves that the Secretary-General shall be guided by the following principles in applying the salary provisions specified in annex I to the Provisional Staff Regulations to staff members who, on 31 December 1950, were serving under indeterminate appointment, temporary indefinite appointment or regular fixed-term appointment, and who continue in service after 1 January 1951 :

(i) Subject to efficiency, staff members whose salaries, on 31 December 1950 are above the ceilings of the new salary levels to which their posts are assigned shall receive the difference as a pensionable personal allowance; provided, however, that such allowance shall not exceed the equivalent of three additional steps beyond the maximum of their new salary levels;

(ii) Subject to efficiency, staff members who were proceeding to a maximum in their former grades higher than the maximum of the appropriate new salary levels shall continue to receive increments on the basis of the new scales until they have reached a point equal to the maximum of their former grades, or a point equivalent to three steps beyond the maximum of their new salary levels, whichever is the lower, that part of the salary which exceeds the maximum being considered as a pensionable personal allowance;

(iii) These arrangements shall have reference only to salaries (including cost-of-living adjustment) and shall not take account of remuneration received as of 31 December 1950 in the form of any other allowances;

4. Resolves that, subject to transition arrangements under which all eligible staff members as of 31 December 1950 will be allowed the next home leave to which they were entitled under the provisions in effect on that date, provisional staff regulation 18 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by the addition of the following sentences :

“ Eligible staff members shall be granted home leave once in every three years. A staff member whose home country is the country of his official duty station or who continues to reside in his home country while performing his official duties shall not be eligible for home leave ”;

5. Resolves that provisional staff regulation 30 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 to read as follows :

“ Full-time members of the staff, with the exception of those specifically excluded by resolution of the General Assembly, shall be entitled to a children's allowance of $US200 per annum in respect of each child under the age of 18 years, or, if the child is in full-time attendance at a school or a university (or similar educational institution) or is totally disabled, under the age of 21 years; provided that, if both parents are members of the staff of the United Nations, only one allowance will be paid in respect of each of their children; and provided further that, where the Secretary-General deems it advisable, no allowance or an allowance of an amount other than $US200 may be paid under special circumstances, as for example, short-term assignments or assignments at duty stations where United Nations salary scales are fixed at levels varying from the Headquarters scale ”; and further that provisional staff regulation 33 be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by substituting the words “ 13 years of age ” for the words “ 11 years of age ” in paragraph (c);

6. Resolves that the provisional staff regulations be amended with effect from 1 January 1951 by the addition of a new regulation 35, as follows :

“ The Secretary-General shall establish a scheme for the payment of repatriation grants in accordance with the maximum rates and conditions specified in annex II to the present regulations. ”

ANNEX I

SALARY SCALES AND RELATED PROVISIONS

1. An Assistant Secretary-General shall receive a salary of $US23,000 (subject to the staff assessment plan at the rates laid down in General Assembly resolution 239 (III) and to such changes as may be directed from time to time by the General Assembly), together with an allowance varying from $US7,000 to $US10,000 at the Secretary-General's discretion.

The allowances for Assistant Secretaries-General are deemed to include all representation (including hospitality) and special allowances, such as housing, education and children's allowances, but not such reimbursable allowances as travel, subsistence and removal costs upon appointment, transfer or separation from the Organization, official travel and home leave travel.

2. A Principal Director shall receive a salary of $US17,000 rising after two years of satisfactory service to $US18,000 (subject to the staff assessment plan at the rates laid down in General Assembly resolution 239 (III) and to such changes as may be directed from time to time by the General Assembly, and to salary differentials wherever applied) and if otherwise eligible shall receive the allowances which are available to staff members generally. In addition, he shall receive a representation allowance varying from $US1,000 to $US3,500 at the Secretary-General's discretion.

3. A Director shall receive a salary of $US15,000 rising in two-yearly increments of $US800 each to $US17,400 (subject to the staff assessment plan at the rates laid down in General Assembly resolution 239 (III) and to such changes as may be directed from time to time by the General Assembly, and to salary differentials wherever applied) and if otherwise eligible shall receive the allowances which are available to staff members generally. In addition, the Secretary-General is authorized at his discretion to grant in special cases a representation allowance up to an amount of $US1,500.

4. Except as provided in paragraph 6 of the present annex, the salary scales for staff members in the Principal Officer and Director category and in the Professional category shall be as follows (subject to the staff assessment plan at the rates laid down in General Assembly resolution 239 (III) and to such changes as may be directed from time to time by the General Assembly, and to salary differentials wherever applied) :

7. The Secretary-General shall fix the salary scales for staff members in the General Service category and the salary or wage rates for manual workers, normally on the basis of the best prevailing conditions of employment in the locality of the United Nations office concerned, provided that the Secretary-General may, where he deems it appropriate, establish rules and salary limits for payment of a non-resident's allowance to General Service staff members recruited from outside the local area

8. The Secretary-General shall establish rules under which an extra payment may be paid to General Service staff members who pass an appropriate test and demonstrate continued proficiency in the use of two or more official languages, such payment to be the equivalent of an additional step increment which would continue beyond the maximum of the salary level of the staff member concerned.

9. The Secretary-General may adjust the basic salary rates provided in paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 4 for duty stations away from Headquarters, by the application of salary differentials which take into account relative costs of living standards of living and related factors; provided that initial differentials shall be not less than 5 per cent with minimum adjustments in multiples of 5 per cent, and provided further that these differentials shall be applied to only 75 per cent of base salaries.

ANNEX II

(c) Reports of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary QuestionsDOCUMENT A/1499*Sixteenth report of 1950, on revised estimates for section 18a, Transfer to the permanent Headquarters

[Original text : English]
[11 November 1950]

1. In its second report of 1950 (A/1312, paragraph 195), the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions indicated that it would further review, in the course of the fifth session of the General Assembly, the 1951 budget estimates for section 18a, Transfer to the permanent Headquarters.

2. The Advisory Committee has now considered the revised estimates for this section of the budget presented in document A/C.5/395. The adjusted total amounts to $US449,500, as compared with the figure of $537,300 originally submitted in the budget estimates for 1951 (A/1267).

3. The Secretary-General states in his report (A/C.5/395, para. 3) that the reason for the retention until 30 June 1951 of a part of the Lake Success premises is “to ensure sufficient facilities to accommodate and service one session each of the Trusteeship Council and the Economic and Social Council, meetings of the Security Council, meetings of the Interim Committee of the General Assembly, and if necessary, any special sessions of the General Assembly (if called under the General Assembly draft resolution entitled ‘Uniting for peace’ (A/C.1/592)”. It appears, however, to the Advisory Committee that a major reason for the decision taken is the necessity for providing facilities for such special sessions of the General Assembly, as well as for the 1951 sessions of the Collective Measures Committee and for possible sessions of the Peace Observation Commission.

4. The Advisory Committee recognizes that, since it has proved necessary to retain a part of the Lake Success premises, sufficient space will, as a corollary to that decision, be available in the retained part of those premises for sessions of the Councils and the Interim Committee to be held during the first half of 1951.

5. The revised estimate for rental costs at Lake Success (A/C.5/395, para. 5 (iii)) amounts to $103,600, a reduction of approximately $63,000. The Advisory Committee was informed, however, that, dependent upon the outcome of current negotiations for the sub-leasing of additional space at Lake Success, a larger reduction may be achieved, possibly of the order of $80,000.

6. Furthermore, the Advisory Committee notes in paragraph 6 of the Secretary-General’s report (A/C.5/395) that the revised estimate is still subject to possible further adjustments. In view of this and of the consideration set forth in paragraph 5 above, the Committee recommends that, subject to further review, the estimate should be approved at the provisional figure of $400,000.

[Original text : English]
[25 November 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/393) on the financial implications of the proposed alterations to the Council Chamber in the Palais des Nations at Geneva.

2. The Advisory Committee takes note that the plan submitted by the consulting architect, which, he states, will in no way impair the architectural properties or the beauty of the Chamber, would add materially to the conference facilities in Geneva.

3. The Advisory Committee presumes that consideration will be given to the possibility of meeting to the greatest possible extent the requirements of bodies other than the Councils of the United Nations, and that the provision of seating arrangements will be flexible enough for such requirements.

4. The cost of the proposed alterations, together with the necessary furniture, equipment and installations, is estimated at $US50,000. Subject to what is said in paragraph 3 above, the Advisory Committee recommends an appropriation of this amount.

Twenty-first report of 1950, on section 5, chapter III, United Nations Commission for Indonesia

[Original text: English]
[25 November 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/404) submitting estimates for the continuance during 1951 of the United Nations Commission for Indonesia.

2. The Secretary-General has stated (A/C.5/404, para. 3) that the task of observing the demobilization and repatriation of the Royal Netherlands armed forces and the Royal Netherlands Indies armed forces has not yet been completed; and further, that both the Indonesian and Netherlands authorities have expressed a desire to achieve, with the assistance of the United Nations Commission, a settlement of problems relating to the demobilization and repatriation of the remaining former Knil troops now in camps in Java.

3. The Advisory Committee is aware of the fact that the Security Council has taken no new decision regarding the continuation of the existing Commission during the year 1951, and it assumes that the proposed budgetary provision is based on previous decisions of the Council, and in particular on the resolution adopted at its 406th meeting on 28 January 1949⁴⁵.

4. The estimated expenditure for 1951 ($147,500) shows a decrease, by comparison with the 1950 appropriation, of $252,500, in view of the reduced activities of the Commission.

5. The Advisory Committee recommends that, subject to what is said in paragraph 3 above, the estimate for section 5, chapter III, should be approved as submitted, at the figure of $147,500.

6. The salaries of the internationally-recruited staff members of the Commission and of the temporary replacement staff at Headquarters are gross, and the offsetting revenue in respect of contributions under the Staff Assessment Plan is estimated at $6,500.

DOCUMENT A/1554

Twenty-second report of 1950, on revised estimates for section 1, chapter IV, The International Law Commission

[Original text: English]
[25 November 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/405) submitting revised estimates for the International Law Commission under section 1, chapter IV, of the 1951 budget estimates.

2. Under Article 12 of its Statute, the International Law Commission decided at its second session (June-July 1950), with the Secretary-General's concurrence, that the third session should be held at Geneva and should last not longer than twelve weeks.

3. Attention is drawn to the fact that the above decision, taken at a time when it appeared improbable that conference facilities would be available at Headquarters during the first half of 1951, has the following budgetary effect:

	Headquarters session (In US dollars)	Geneva session
Travel and subsistence of members	50,700	44,000
Travel and subsistence of staff	—	20,100
Salaries and travel of consultants and liaison representatives	1,400	1,400
Local transportation	400	—
	52,500	65,500
Additional cost of Geneva session	13,000

4. The Advisory Committee further notes that the anticipated duration of the 1951 session exceeds the actual duration of the 1950 session by more than four weeks. It trusts therefore that, with appropriate assistance from the Secretariat, the Commission may find it possible to complete its agenda within a shorter period, with a consequent saving on the budgetary provision for subsistence allowance.

5. Provision is made for the travelling and subsistence expenses of fifteen members of the Commission, although a full attendance cannot be anticipated. Furthermore, provision for many of the technical services already exists in the estimates for the Geneva Office. As regards the proposed assignment of highly-placed substantive staff members for so long a period of absence from Headquarters, the Advisory Committee suggests that, in view of the extensive preparatory work undertaken between sessions by the Chairman and the Rapporteurs of the Commission, as well as by the appropriate Division of the Secretariat, the number might be reduced from eight to five.

6. On the basis of the above observations, the Advisory Committee recommends an appropriation of $48,000 for the 1951 session of the Commission, on a reduction of $17,500 in the estimate submitted.

DOCUMENT A/1590

Twenty-sixth report of 1950, on section 5, chapter II, United Nations Mission to India-Pakistan

[Original text: English]
[2 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/417) submitting estimates in respect of the United Nations Mission to India-Pakistan during 1951.

2. The cease-fire agreement (S/1100) ⁴⁶ accepted by the Governments of India and Pakistan in December 1948 provides in part I that "in its discretion and as the Commission (for India and Pakistan) may find practicable, the Commission will appoint military observers who, under the authority of the Commission and with the co-operation of both Commands, will supervise the observance of the cease-fire order". On 5 January 1949, the Commission requested the Secretary-General to provide for the designation of an adequate number of military observers for this purpose (S/1196, para. 17) ⁴⁷. At its 470th meeting on 14 March 1950, the Security Council adopted a resolution (S/1469) providing, inter alia, that the Governments of India and Pakistan should be requested "to take all necessary precautions to ensure that their agreements regarding the cease-fire shall continue to be faithfully observed". In view of the fact that the Security Council has taken no action to modify the above resolution and that the problem is still before the Council, the Secretary-General considers it necessary to propose continuing provision during 1951 for the organization established for the observance of the cease-fire agreements, which remain in force.

3. On this basis, the estimated expenditure in 1951 for the United Nations Mission to India-Pakistan ($626,800) is $87,100 less than the 1950 appropriation of 7$13,900 for the United Nations Commission for India and Pakistan.

4. Travelling and subsistence expenses for fifty-nine military observers and auxiliary personnel ($338,500) constitute the largest single item in the estimates, and the Advisory Committee considers the average of $1,750 (the rate applied for round trips from Headquarters) to be unnecessarily high for the fifty-five round trips of the observers. A reduction of 10 per cent on the item for travel expenses is recommended.

5. As regards the subsistence allowances for staff members, the Advisory Committee notes that the proposed rate of $12.50 for staff with dependants and $9.50 for staff without dependants exceeds the rates proposed or approved for six other missions in the field. The position is shown in the following comparative table:

Mission	Staff with dependants US dollars	Staff without dependants
Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Eritrea	8	5
United Nations Commission for Indonesia	9.50	6.50
Advisory Council for the Trust Territory of Somaliland under Italian Administration	10	7
United Nations Special Committee on the Balkans	9.50	6.50
United Nations Commission for the Unification and Rehabilitation of Korea	11.50	8.50
Office of the United Nations Commissioner in Libya	9.50 ^a	6.50 ^a
United Nations Mission to India-Pakistan	12.50	9.50

^a The substitution, after the completion of one year's service, of a post allowance of $150 and $100 per month is proposed for staff members with and without dependants respectively.

The Committee recommends that the rate proposed for the India-Pakistan Mission, which appears unduly liberal, should be scaled down, after the completion of ⁴⁶ Ibid., Third Year, Supplement for November 1948, p. 32.

⁴⁷ Ibid., Fourth Year, Supplement for January 1949.

six months' service, by 20 per cent, with a consequent reduction of approximately $7,500.

6. The total amount actually expended or appropriated for the Commission for India and Pakistan during the years 1948 to 1950 is as follows :

Year	US dollars
1948 (actual expenses)	231,300
1949 (actual expenses)	679,500
1950 (appropriation)	713,900
TOTAL	1,624,700

7. The effect of the recommendations contained in paragraphs 4 and 5 above is to reduce the estimates by about $17,000. Further savings of smaller dimensions should accrue on the items for temporary assistance, local transport and miscellaneous expenses. Accordingly, the Advisory Committee recommends for approval an appropriation of $600,000 under section 5, chapter II, of the 1951 budget, representing a reduction of $26,800 in the figure submitted.

8. The salaries of the internationally-recruited staff members of the Mission and of the temporary replacement staff at Headquarters are gross, and the off-setting revenue in respect of contributions under the Staff Assessment Plan is estimated at $16,500.

Twenty-eighth report of 1950, on financial implications of resolutions adopted (a) by the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session, and (b) by the Trusteeship Council at its seventh regular session and third special session

[Original text: English]
[5 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the supplementary estimates for the financial year 1951 submitted by the Secretary-General in document A/C.5/423.

2. The estimates are set out below :

	Original estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee	Supplementary estimate (A/C.5/423) (In US dollars)	Revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General	Revised estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee
Section 3. The Economic and Social Council, commissions and committees	228,200	370,900	599,100	533,900
Section 3b. Regional economic commissions	57,300	12,400	69,700	69,700
Section 4. The Trusteeship Council, commissions and committees	85,000	(— 31,400)	53,600	53,600
Section 25. Official records	870,000 ^a	5,000 ^b	875,000	875,000
Net total of supplementary estimates		356,900

^a Estimate approved by the Fifth Committee.

^b Report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Slavery $3,500; report of the Economic Commission for Latin America (Portuguese edition) $1,500.

3. Section 20 of the 1951 budget estimates, as approved in first reading by the Fifth Committee, includes a sum of $61,300 for one Geneva session of the Trusteeship Council during 1951. In view, however, of the decision to hold both the 1951 sessions of the Council at Headquarters, the Secretary-General has proposed, and the Advisory Committee agrees, that this provision should instead be made available to the following bodies, which are now expected to hold sessions in Geneva during the coming year: Social Commission; Commission on Human Rights; International Law Commission; Committee on International Criminal Jurisdiction; Sub-Commission on Freedom of Information and of the Press ⁴⁷; Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities ⁴⁸.

⁴⁸ The holding of 1951 sessions of these two bodies is contingent upon decisions still to be taken by the Economic and Social Council.

Sessions of the Economic and Social Council

4. As regards the decision of the Economic and Social Council that both its sessions in 1951 should be held away from Headquarters, the Advisory Committee considers it necessary to submit the following considerations :

(a) Budgetary consequences

The additional cost of holding the two sessions away from Headquarters is as follows :

	US dollars
Twelfth session (Santiago)	337,800
Thirteenth session (Geneva)
Section 3	75,000
Section 20	99,200
	512,000
Less miscellaneous income (contribution of the Government of Chile towards the expenses of the twelfth session)	112,000
Net additional cost	400,000

(b) Administrative consequences

Under the Secretary-General's proposals, approximately fifty substantive staff members would be assigned to each of the two sessions and would consequently be absent from their departments at Headquarters for a total period of twelve to thirteen weeks in a single calendar year. The General Assembly has on previous occasions recommended that sessions of the various organs of the United Nations should as a general rule be held at Headquarters, while the Secretary-General has indicated that "The Secretariat cannot be held responsible for economy and fullest administrative efficiency if the General Assembly appropriates moneys for rotating meeting places in the face of its own recommendations" (A/903).⁴⁹

The Committee also draws attention to the serious consequences, both budgetary and administrative, which the holding of sessions of the Council away from Headquarters equally entails for the specialized agencies and non-governmental organizations which assign representatives to such sessions.

5. It may further be noted that the decision to retain the conference area at Lake Success until 30 June 1951 was prompted in part by the necessity for ensuring sufficient facilities to accommodate and service one session of the Council (A/C.5/395, paragraph 3).

6. In the event, however, that the General Assembly approves the recommendation of the Economic and Social Council, the Advisory Committee would in any case suggest a reduction in the number of staff members to be assigned from Headquarters. As regards the twelfth session of the Council at Santiago, the number of substantive staff members should, in the opinion of the Committee, be limited to thirty, since the session is not expected to exceed four weeks in duration and less urgent items can, if necessary, be deferred until the thirteenth session in July 1951.

A reduction of fifteen in the number of Headquarters technical staff (150) proposed to be assigned to Santiago is similarly recommended. As regards the Geneva session of the Council, the Committee considers that the provision of $75,000 in the original budget estimates for travel and subsistence of some fifty substantive and twenty-five technical staff members should be reduced by $10,000. The effect of the above recommendations is to reduce the proposed provision under section 3, chapter I, for the 1951 sessions of the Economic and Social Council by approximately $60,000 to a figure of $352,800.

7. Economic, Employment and Development Commission

The Advisory Committee was informed that it is now proposed to schedule only one session of the Economic and Employment Commission during 1951, and that a second session of the Commission, if requested by the Economic and Social Council after consultation with the Secretary-General, would be financed from the Working Capital Fund. Accordingly, the Committee recommends that the proposed additional provision should be reduced from $12,600 to $8,000, with a corresponding reduction in the estimate for local transportation from $1,700 to $1,100.

8. On the basis of the above observations, and subject to the decision of principle on the venue for the 1951 sessions of the Economic and Social Council, the Advisory Committee recommends that the supplementary estimates should be approved in the following amounts :

	US dollars
Section 3	315,700
Section 3b	12,400
Section 4	(minus 31,400)
Section 25	5,000

9. The revised figures thus recommended for appropriation are as follows :

	US dollars
Section 3
The Economic and Social Council, commissions and committees	533,900
Section 3b
Regional economic commissions	69,700
Section 4
The Trusteeship Council, commissions and committees	53,600

DOCUMENT A/1637 and Corr.1

Twenty-ninth report of 1950, on financial implications of resolutions adopted by the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session

[Original text : English]
[8 December 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the supplementary estimates for the financial year 1951 submitted by the Secretary-General in documents A/C.5/424 and Corrs.1 and 2.

2. The estimates are set out below :

	Estimate approved by the Fifth Committee	Supplementary estimate (A/C.5/424)	Revised estimate submitted by the Secretary-General (In US dollars)	Revised estimate recommended by the Advisory Committee
Section 10. Department of Economic Affairs	2,085,000	221,200	2,306,200	2,128,500
Section 11. Department of Social Affairs	1,550,000	74,100	1,624,100	1,570,000 ^a
Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva	4,276,000	49,200	4,325,200	4,303,900
Section 27. Advisory social welfare functions	610,500	158,000	768,500	768,50

^a This figure includes estimated expenditure of $3,000 for contractual printing (section 26). See paragraph 5 below.

3. Section 10—Department of Economic Affairs Section 11—Department of Social Affairs

The Secretary-General has requested supplementary provision for sections 10 and 11 of the 1951 budget estimates for the purpose of implementing the following resolutions adopted by the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session (July-August 1950) :

	Supplementary estimate (US dollars)
Resolution 290 (XI). Full employment	210,950
Resolution 299 (XI). Report of the Statistical Commission (fifth session) Part F	10,250	221,200
Resolution 308 (XI). Report of the Population Commission (fifth session) Part A	6,000
Resolution 309 (XI). Report of the Social Commission (sixth session) Part E	29,800
Part G	38,300	74,100
Consequential increases :
(i) Section 17. Common staff costs	38,000
(ii) Section 26. Publications	12,000	50,000
Total of supplementary provision (direct and indirect) proposed for the Departments of Economic Affairs and Social Affairs		345,300

4. In view of the total already approved for the two Departments concerned, which includes provision for 490 established posts in 1951, the Advisory Committee does not find it possible, in present circumstances, to recommend an appropriation of the amount proposed by the Secretary-General. On this point, the Committee offers the following observations :

(i) The budget estimates in respect of the two Departments are prepared in the early months of each year and are intended to cover a period of twelve months from the following January. While the main session of the Economic and Social Council is held about one month after the budget estimates have been considered by the Advisory Committee, it is nevertheless possible, at the time of the Committee's consideration of the estimates, for the competent officials of the Secretariat not only to make a rough forecast of additional requirements likely to result from agenda items submitted to the Council, but also to determine with reasonable accuracy the dates of completion of existing projects. The Committee believes therefore that a far larger proportion of the workload arising out of decisions taken by the Council at its eleventh session can be absorbed within the provision already approved for sections 10 and 11. It is strengthened in its view by the statement made in the Fifth Committee (250th meeting) by the representative of the Secretary-General to the effect that, inter alia, new tasks under the above-mentioned resolution 309 (XI) justified the staffing requested in the original budget estimates for section 11.

(ii) For the implementation of certain parts of resolution 290 (XI) on full employment, it is proposed to appoint three groups of experts at a total estimated cost of $85,200 covering fees, travel and subsistence expenses. The Advisory Committee sees no reason why the proposed groups of experts should receive fees in addition to subsistence allowance. The Committee considers that the payment of fees in addition to travel and subsistence expenses to members of Committees and Commissions runs counter to the principle accepted by the Secretary-General in General Assembly resolution 231 (III) of 8 October 1948, and it takes the same view as regards groups of experts. It also considers that the number of experts and the duration of the meetings should be the subject of further consideration.

The Committee, while recognizing that a special need may arise in special cases, is of the opinion that the very substantial funds approved by the General Assembly for the Department of Economic Affairs can be justified only if the officials of that Department are recruited on the basis of ability to perform the various tasks laid upon the Department without repeated requests for the assistance and the extra expense of outside experts and consultants. In the contrary case, there would appear to be grounds for a corresponding reduction in the establishment of the Secretariat.

5. On the basis of the above considerations, the Advisory Committee recommends that the supplementary provision for section 10 should be limited to $43,500 in respect of the travel and subsistence expenses (at $25 per day) of the three groups of experts, this amount to be inclusive of requirements for contractual printing ($9,000) and to be allotted at the discretion of the Secretary-General. It is further recommended that, for the reasons set forth in paragraph 4 above, the provision for section 11 should be reduced from $74,100 to $20,000 and applied solely to the implementation of part E of Council resolution 309 (XI) relating to the social rehabilitation of the physically handicapped. Requirements for contractual printing should be met out of the proposed appropriation of $20,000.

A corresponding reduction would fail to be made under section 17 (Common staff costs), in view of the fact that only a part of the additional staff proposed for the two Departments is recommended for approval.

6. Section 20. United Nations Office at Geneva

For the implementation of Council resolution 300 (XI), Annual report of the Economic Commission for Europe, additional provision is requested to an amount of $49,200. As appears from the report of the Economic and Social Council (A/1345)⁵⁰, annex II, the statement of financial implications submitted to the Council—$27,888—comprised : $13,688 to carry out studies arising from the report of the fourth session of the Housing Sub-Committee; $14,200 for studies in the field of international price formation (E/1674, part IV)⁵¹.

The Advisory Committee sees no reason for the provision of a sum greater than the one indicated to the Council. Accordingly, a supplementary estimate of $27,900 is recommended for approval under section 20.

7. Section 27. Advisory social welfare functions

The Advisory Committee takes note that the supplementary provision of $158,000 has already been recommended for appropriation by the Fifth Committee.

Thirty-second report of 1950, on revised estimates for section 5a, United Nations Field Service

[Original text : English]
[9 December 1950]

1 The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C 5/428) submitting revised estimates for 1951 in respect of the United Nations Field Service.

2 The proposed provision of $488,000 relates to 125 posts required for the training and assignment of Field Service personnel to the various United Nations missions in the field. Expenditure for 1951 for a further 158 posts (guard duties) is budgeted under sections 16, 18a and 20, while section 16 also contains provision for seventeen posts in the Headquarters unit administering the service. The Advisory Committee considers that the functions and duties of the Field Service should be more clearly defined, and that the qualifications for recruitment to the Service should be extended.

3 The programme of advanced training calls for a considerable expenditure under the items for travel and subsistence of staff and temporary assistance, a sum of $43,500 being proposed for travel and subsistence expenses of Field Service personnel detailed to Headquarters for such training. Additional provision is requested for travel within the United States to factories and technical schools, and for instructors to supervise the courses.

4 The Advisory Committee considers that in future the whole of the Service should be brought under a single section of the budget, so that the total expenditures may be readily ascertained.

5 The Advisory Committee recommends an appropriation of $450,000 for section 5a of the 1951 budget, a part of the reduction of $38,000 to be applied to the items relating to the programme of advanced training, and the balance to be effected through delays in recruitment.

6 The salaries of the Field Service personnel are gross, and the offsetting revenue in respect of contributions under the Staff Assessment Plan is estimated at $46,800.

Assessment for the Republic of Indonesia

[Original text : English]
[4 December 1950]

1. The Fifth Committee, at its 273rd meeting held on 30 November 1950, decided to refer the question of the assessment for the Republic of Indonesia to the Committee on Contributions for urgent consideration and report. Accordingly, the Committee on Contributions was convened and met on 1 December 1950.

2. After a thorough study of all the relevant economic and statistical data for Indonesia available to the Committee on Contributions, and in consideration of its relative position compared to that of the other Member States, the Committee agreed to recommend that the assessment for the Republic of Indonesia for the year 1951 should be 0.60 per cent.

3. In accordance with a decision of the Fifth Committee, the above assessment will be in addition to the 1951 scale of assessments of 100 per cent as submitted by the Committee on Contributions in its report to the General Assembly (A/1330)¹ and approved by the Fifth Committee at its 274th meeting. In view of the tentative nature of the available data, the Committee on Contributions decided that the assessment recommended for Indonesia should be carefully reconsidered before being incorporated into the 1952 scale of assessments, in the light of any further information that may then be available.

ASSESSMENT FOR THE REPUBLIC OF INDONESIA FOR THE FIRST YEAR OF MEMBERSHIP

4. For the year 1950, the Committee on Contributions recommends that Indonesia, which was admitted to membership in the United Nations on 28 September 1950, shall contribute the minimum of 33-1/3 per cent of its percentage assessment for 1951, in accordance with the provisions of General Assembly resolution 69 (I) of 14 December 1946.

5. The Committee on Contributions therefore submits the following additional paragraphs for inclusion in the draft resolution approved by the Fifth Committee at its 274th meeting for adoption by the General Assembly :

The General Assembly resolves :

6. That, for the year 1951, the assessment for the Republic of Indonesia shall be 0.60 per cent, which shall be in addition to the scale of assessments amounting to 100 per cent set out in paragraph 1 above;

7. That, in view of the fact that the Republic of Indonesia became a Member of the United Nations on 28 September 1950, it shall contribute for the year of admission to membership an amount equal to one-third of the percentage assessment for 1951, calculated on the basis of the budget for 1950.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[12 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 271st to 274th meetings inclusive held on 29 and 30 November 1950, considered the scale of assessments for the apportionment of the expenses of the United Nations for the financial year 1951. The Committee had before it the report of the Committee on Contributions (A/1330 and Corr.1).

2. In the course of the discussions, several representatives stressed the necessity of the Committee's having at its disposal adequate and accurate statistical data. Such information, it was stated, was required to establish a scale which fully reflected the facts of the world economic situation. It was realized that lack of data in certain cases was due to the fact that countries did not possess statistical services capable of providing the comprehensive information required, but Member States were urged, as far as possible, to provide the United Nations with adequate and reliable data for their countries. When the Committee had not sufficient official information, it should turn to the most readily available sources of reliable information.

3. Considerable comment was made on the working rule of the Committee on Contributions that generally no change, either upwards or downwards, of more than 10 per cent in any one year should be proposed in the percentage contribution of any country. This rule had been adopted by the Committee because it felt that it should not recommend drastic changes but should move with caution, gradually eliminating maladjustments in the scale. The view was expressed in the Fifth Committee that if this rule was followed, some States would for many years pay a contribution very much lower than would be equitable according to their capacity to pay. The retention of the rule would make it impossible for the Committee on Contributions to establish a scale of assessments reflecting the rapid repair in many countries of war damage and destruction. The Committee on Contributions should therefore not continue to be guided by a rule which tended to perpetuate the inequalities of the existing scale, but should abandon it at least as long as the scale had not become more permanent. On the other hand, the view was also expressed that it should be left to the discretion of the Committee to apply the rule, bearing in mind that a somewhat greater flexibility might be necessary during the next few years.

4. In connexion with the ceiling principle, the representative of the United States of America said that in 1948 the General Assembly had recognized "that in normal times no one Member State should contribute more than one-third of the ordinary expenses of the United Nations for any one year" (resolution 238 A (III) of 18 November 1948). In 1949, a token reduction of 0.10 per cent had been made in the contribution of the United States of America. A further reduction of 0.87 per cent was now recommended. That reduction could not be regarded as substantial, and he believed that a more significant reduction in the United States contribution was justified by the improved conditions in countries which had been given special consideration for war damage. The representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics pointed out that the United States of America had suffered no war damage. On the contrary, its national income and industrial production had increased. Nor had the United States any difficulty in obtaining the necessary currency, since contributions were paid in dollars. There was therefore nothing to justify a reduction of the United States contribution. The view was also expressed that attempts to achieve the ideal envisaged in General Assembly resolution 238 A (III) should not proceed faster than the economic recovery of the world.

5. Owing to the continuing dollar shortage in many countries the proposal that the Secretary-General should again, for the year 1951, be authorized to accept part of the contributions for that year in currencies other than United States dollars was strongly supported. It was stressed that every possible effort should be made to make the arrangement for payment of contributions in currencies other than United States dollars as comprehensive as possible.

6. Several members of the Committee expressed the hope that in future it would be possible to consider the report of the Committee on Contributions at an earlier stage in the General Assembly session.

7. The representative of Cuba objected to his country's percentage contribution being raised by 0.02 as this was not justified by the economic conditions of Cuba. Its exports were closely tied to fluctuations in the world market and had been steadily declining since 1947. He suggested that the Committee on Contributions should consult the governments of Member States when it recommended any changes in their percentage contribution. He would, therefore, have to vote against the report of the Committee on Contributions.

8. The representative of Sweden stated that it had been recognized from the outset that the assessment for Sweden was too high. Successive reductions had been made, but his country's contribution would have to be reduced even more before it could be considered equitable. He hoped that the Committee on Contributions, when studying the assessments of new Members, would reconsider Sweden's percentage contribution and would fix it at a fair and reasonable level.

9. The representative of Canada pointed out that, although the scale of assessments recommended by the Committee was an improvement on the scale in force, he felt that the improvement was not sufficient to remove all its shortcomings. The scale appeared not to take into account the rapid and far-reaching improvement which had taken place in certain countries. Consequently, the contribution of Canada was relatively higher than it should have been. He also stressed the importance of the application of the per capita contribution principle. The Canadian delegation was, however, reluctantly prepared to accept the recommendations of the Committee on Contributions for the year 1951 on the understanding that the 10 per cent rule would not be applied next year. If the scale proposed in 1951 were not more equitable, the Canadian delegation would review its position entirely.

10. The representative of the U.S.S.R. pointed out that the economy of the Soviet Union had suffered serious dislocation as a result of the Second World War. War damage had been considerable and, in spite of the remarkable effort to reconstruct the economy and the results obtained he had, due to the heavy losses suffered, to oppose any increase in his country's rate of contribution. Furthermore, the difficulty of securing foreign currency had steadily increased. He therefore recommended that no change should be made in the existing scale for 1951.

11. Certain other delegations, however, maintained that in view of official statements concerning the economic expansion of the U.S.S.R., it would appear that that country was not bearing its equitable share of the cost of the United Nations, owing to the application of the rule established by the Committee on Contributions and to the absence of sufficient statistics.

12. The representatives of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Czechoslovakia and Poland also opposed the proposed increases in their contributions, due to the heavy war damage suffered and the lack of foreign currency. They supported the U.S.S.R. proposal to maintain the present scale for the year 1951.

13. The representative of Greece expressed the view that, although the proposed increase of 0.01 per cent was not very large, the economic conditions of his country, which had been at war until the autumn of 1949, did not justify an increase. Other war-stricken countries had had five years in which to recover, whereas Greece had had only one year. Furthermore, Greece had experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining foreign currency. He therefore proposed that the percentage contribution of his country should be maintained at the existing rate. On the basis of a subsequent proposal referred to in paragraph 20, he withdrew his motion on the further understanding that his statement and any additional information made available by his government would be considered by the Committee on Contributions.

14. The representative of Israel stated that his government had submitted information to the Committee on Contributions which showed that Israel's contribution should be reduced. If it were decided to revise the Committee's scale of assessments, his delegation would ask for a reduction. If not, it would be prepared to accept the percentage contribution recommended for the year 1951, but it proposed to raise the question again at the next session of the General Assembly.

15. The representative of Guatemala felt that sufficient grounds had not been given for the increase proposed in the percentage contribution of his country and that the data used were somewhat inaccurate. The economic situation in Guatemala had not improved since 1948. He requested that the 1950 scale of assessments should be used also for 1951.

16. The representative of India thought that the economic situation of his country did not warrant an increase in its percentage contribution. Referring to the economic effect of partition and the difficult position of India in regard to foreign exchange and other factors, as well as the improvement effected in the economic conditions of other countries which had suffered temporary dislocation on account of the Second World War, he suggested that the Committee on Contributions should in 1951 reconsider its recommendations in the light of up-to-date statistics. Pending this revision, he proposed that the present scale of assessments should continue in force for 1951.

17. The representative of Venezuela reluctantly accepted the proposed increase in his country's rate of contribution of 0.03, which, he pointed out, was more than 10 per cent, provided the recommendations of the Committee were accepted as a whole. If, however, the scale were changed as a result of the incorporation of the Indonesian assessment, he would ask the Committee on Contributions to consider the possibility of reducing the increase in his country's rate of contribution from 0.03 to 0.02 per cent. In conclusion, he intimated that the action of his delegation in the matter was prompted by a spirit of goodwill and conciliation and a desire to facilitate the work of the Fifth Committee.

18. The representative of Australia proposed that the question of the contribution to be paid by Indonesia should be referred to the Committee on Contributions for immediate consideration. No attempt should be made to integrate the Indonesian assessment into the scale for 1951, since this would necessitate adjusting the scale as a whole. The contribution to be paid by Indonesia for 1951 should be taken into account as income, so that all Member States would benefit proportionately from the proceeds.

19. The representative of France suggested that the contribution of Indonesia should be placed in reserve.

The Committee on Contributions should be invited to suggest how the contribution could most equitably be divided among Member States, and the decision reached on the basis thereof should be retroactive for 1951.

20. The representative of the Union of South Africa suggested a combinaison of the Australian and French proposals. If it were agreed to accept the scale recommended by the Committee on Contributions, the Committee might be asked to re-examine at its 1951 session the case of Member States, such as Greece, whose contributions had been increased before incorporating the assessment of Indonesia into the scale.

21. The U.S.S.R. proposal that the scale of assessments for 1951 should remain the same as in 1950 was rejected by 24 votes to 5, with 15 abstentions.

22. A Pakistani proposal that the report of the Committee on Contributions should be referred back to it for revision of the scale of assessments in the light of the statements made by various delegations during the discussions on the subject, and that meanwhile the rate of contribution for 1951 should remain as for 1950, was rejected by 25 votes to 15, with 4 abstentions.

23. The draft resolution embodying the recommendations of the Committee on Contributions was voted on paragraph by paragraph.

Paragraph 1 (scale of assessments) was adopted by 34 votes to 8, with 3 abstentions.

Paragraph 2 (providing that the scale should be reviewed again in 1951) was adopted by 39 votes to 5, with 1 abstention.

Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 (providing for the contributions to be paid by Switzerland and Liechtenstein to the expenses of the International Court of Justice, and authorizing the Secretary-General to collect part of the 1951 contributions in currencies other than United States dollars) were adopted unanimously.

The draft resolution as a whole was adopted by 37 votes to 7, with 1 abstention.

24. It was agreed to refer the assessment of Indonesia to the Committee on Contributions for urgent consideration and report. The report of the Committee on Contributions on this subject (A/1602) was considered by the Fifth Committee at its 276th meeting on 6 December 1950.

25. The representative of Indonesia accepted, on behalf of his Government, the recommendations of the Committee on Contributions, which were considered equitable in view of the economic conditions of his country. He also expressed agreement with the draft resolution presented by the Secretary-General, in accordance with which Indonesia would be called upon to pay a sum in respect of the Working Capital Fund for 1951 amounting to 0.60 per cent of the total amount of the Fund.

26. The recommendations of the Committee on Contributions and the Secretary-General were approved, and it was decided to incorporate these recommendations in the draft resolution to be presented to the General Assembly (see paragraph 23).

27. In consequence, the Fifth Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the following resolution :

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[22 August 1950]

1. Resolution 80 (I), adopted by the General Assembly on 11 December 1946, reads as follows :

" The General Assembly resolves

" That the following provisional financial regulations be adopted and that the Secretary-General be instructed to submit draft financial regulations to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions for consideration and final adoption by the General Assembly at its regular annual session in 1947 ".

2. In accordance with the provisions of resolution 80 (I), draft financial regulations were submitted to the regular annual session of the General Assembly in 1947. In adopting these regulations, however, the General Assembly decided to continue to consider them as provisional, the first paragraph of resolution 163 (II) reading :

" The General Assembly resolves

" 1. That the following Provisional Financial Regulations be adopted in place of those adopted by the General Assembly at the second part of its first session under resolution 80 (I) ".

3. No change has subsequently been made in the regulations adopted at the second session of the General Assembly. During the period since 1947, however, the financial regulations have been the subject of considerable study, with a view to recommending a permanent set of regulations as foreseen by resolution 80 (I).

4. The question of a common set of financial regulations for the United Nations and the specialized agencies has also been under active consideration during this period. The General Assembly, by resolutions 210 (III) and 311 (IV), adopted on reports of the Joint Second and Third and Fifth Committees, meeting jointly, has given various assignments to the Secretary-General and the heads of the specialized agencies with the object of securing uniformity in financial practices. Many of these assignments, including, for example, studies of funding arrangements and of the form of the budget, have dealt with basic features of financial administration, in respect of which each organization has been compelled to follow the particular provisions of its own financial regulations.

5. As these provisions varied considerably, it became increasingly clear that real progress toward uniformity in financial practices could only be secured as a result of greater uniformity in the financial regulations themselves. With this purpose in view, the Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions, at its eighth session, agreed, after extensive discussion, on a common set of financial regulations, and reported the agreement to the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination. The latter Committee, on 3 May 1950, took note of the agreement and of the fact that the Secretary-General and the head of each specialized agency would present the set of regulations to the appropriate bodies in their respective organizations.

6. The proposed financial regulations as agreed by the Consultative Committee and the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination, with necessary nomenclature adaptations for the United Nations, are set out as Annex A and are proposed by the Secretary-General for adoption as the Financial Regulations of the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of General Assembly resolution 80 (I).

7. Annex B sets out the proposed regulations in comparison with the present provisional regulations, with certain comments. The Secretary-General wishes to draw particular attention to proposed regulations 4.3 and 4.4, dealing with the availability of appropriations and reading as follows :

“ 4.3 Appropriations shall remain available for twelve months following the end of the financial year to which they relate to the extent that they are required to meet the outstanding legal obligations as at 31 December of that year. The balance of the appropriations will be surrendered.

“ 4.4 At the end of the twelve-month period provided in regulation 4.3 above, the then remaining balance of any appropriations retained will be surrendered. Any unliquidated prior year obligations shall at that time be cancelled or, where the obligation remains a valid charge, transferred as an obligation against current appropriations ”.

The General Assembly will recall the recommendation of the Board of Auditors that a final cut-off date for availability of appropriations should be established. The “ legal obligations ” referred to in regulation 4.3 will, however, need to be defined, and that definition may, in due course, result in the inclusion of some items in the accounts of a particular financial year which would not have been so included under the present United Nations provision whereby only those obligations for goods supplied or services rendered by the end of the financial year are valid for the retention of appropriations relating to that year. It has been suggested that the opinion of the Auditors might be sought on the definition of such obligations.

8. It should also be noted that the Consultative Committee agreed that the regulations relating to surrender of savings on appropriations should provide that such savings should be credited to Members' contributions. This agreement was, however, subject to the following reservation as set out in the report of the Consultative Committee :¹

“ Budgetary savings

“ The Committee agreed that although it might be a desirable aim to credit all savings in appropriations as reductions in Members' contributions, such practice was sound only when “ (i) Contributions by Member States were paid promptly and in full, and “ (ii) The Working Capital Fund was established in an adequate amount.

“ The Committee agreed that where those two factors did not obtain, it would be unwise for an organization experiencing financial difficulties to distribute purely paper surpluses while an effective deficit resulting from arrears in contributions existed.

“ It was further agreed that the text of this regulation would contain the principle of the distribution of savings on appropriations as a reduction in contributions, but that it would be made clear that this particular provision would be temporarily suspended [by the Conference or Assembly] to meet the requirements of each agency. The alternative methods would be :

“ (a) To credit to Members the savings of appropriations to the extent that those savings are represented by actual cash surpluses;

“ (b) To transfer the savings in appropriations represented by cash and/or arrears receivable to a suspense account for special disposition upon instruction by the Conference or Assembly ”.

9. As stated above, the regulations set out in Annex A are proposed for adoption as the Financial Regulations of the United Nations. These regulations have been submitted to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions which will consider them at its autumn session, and report thereon to the General Assembly. In the meantime, the proposed regulations are transmitted herewith for consideration by the Member States.

The Secretary-General may make short-term investments of monies which are not needed for immediate requirement and shall inform the Advisory Committee periodically of the investments which he has made. Notwithstanding these provisions, the Secretary-General may make long-term investments on account of the Joint Staff Pension Scheme on the advice of the Investments Committee, established under the Provisional Regulations for the United Nations Joint Pension Staff Scheme, and in respect of the Library Endowment and other special funds.	No change in substance. Regulation 9.3 is new and is required to give direction for the crediting of interest income.
9.2 The Secretary-General may make long-term investments of monies standing to the credit of Trust, Reserve or Special Funds as may be provided by the appropriate authority in respect of each such Fund.

Proposed paragraph (d) (ii), covering present paragraph (f) (ii), has been entered to cover Trust and Special Funds. It is considered that present paragraph (b) is covered by the general provisions of proposed regulation 11.1, as is the first portion of present paragraph (c). The latter portion of paragraph (c) is covered in proposed regulation 10.4.

The Secretary-General shall make allotments in writing from the appropriations as voted by the General Assembly and under such further sub-headings as may appear appropriate and necessary, before obligations are incurred thereunder.	No change in substance. It was considered that the major importance of the regulation was to provide that no obligations could be incurred without allotments, ensuring central control. " Or other appropriate authorizations " has been included to cover authorizations of an unforeseen, extraordinary nature.
10.3 The Secretary-General may make such ex gratia payments as he deems to be necessary in the interests of the Organization, provided that a statement of such payments shall be submitted to the General Assembly with the annual accounts.	26. PRESENT REGULATIONS

COMMENTS

Article XIV—Delegation of authority

14.1 The Secretary-General may delegate to other officers of the Organization such of his powers as he considers necessary for the effective implementation of these regulations.

New regulation.

Article XV—General provisions

15.1 These regulations shall be effective as of the date of their approval by the General Assembly, and may be amended only by the General Assembly.

Proposed regulation 15.1 covers the last sentence of present regulation 1; otherwise, these are new regulations carried over from those of certain agencies.

15.2 In case of doubt as to the interpretation and application of any of the foregoing regulations, the Secretary-General is authorized to rule thereon.

Article XVI—Special provisions

16.1 The estimates of the International Court of Justice, and of the Permanent Central Opium Board and Narcotic Drugs Supervisory Body, shall be prepared by the Court and the Board respectively, in consultation with the Secretary-General. These estimates shall be submitted to the General Assembly by the Secretary-General, together with such observations as he may deem desirable.

5. ... The estimates of the International Court of Justice shall be prepared by the Court, in consultation with the Secretary-General, and shall be submitted to the General Assembly by the Secretary-General, together with such observations as he may deem desirable.

These provisions are proposed to be set out under "Special provisions" in order to maintain the uniformity among agencies of the regulations in the foregoing articles. The special provisions relating to the Court have in practice been extended to the Permanent Central Opium Board, and that practice has been provided for.

1. These regulations are established in accordance with the provisions of rule 37 of the provisional rules of procedure and shall be cited as the Provisional Financial Regulations. They shall become effective as from the date of their approval by the General Assembly.

As noted above, the last sentence of this regulation is covered in proposed regulation 15.1. The first sentence was not considered to be regulatory.

3. These regulations shall apply to the financial administration of the specialized agencies to the extent provided in Agreements entered into between the specialized agencies and the United Nations.

The Agreements are complete and none contemplates the use of the United Nations regulations. Further, the set now proposed is proposed as a common set, so this regulation is redundant.

10. All appropriations shall require a two-thirds majority of the General Assembly in accordance with the provisions of Article 18, paragraph 2, of the Charter of the United Nations.

It was considered that this is a matter for rules of procedure, not for financial regulations.

25. No contract, agreement or undertaking of any nature, involving a charge against the United Nations exceeding $US100 shall be entered into, or have any force or effect, unless :

It appears that the provisions of this regulation could more logically be covered in the Secretary-General's rules. In particular, it has been accepted that personnel obligations be controlled through the manning

COMMENTS

- (a) Credits are reserved in the accounts to discharge any obligation which may come in course of payment in the financial year under such contract, agreement or undertaking;
- (b) The charge is a proper one against the United Nations; and
- (c) Proof has been provided that the service is for the benefit of the United Nations and the cost thereof is fair and reasonable.
- The Board of Auditors shall draw the attention of the General Assembly to any case where, in the opinion of the Board, any charge has been improperly made or was in any way irregular.
30. There shall be established one cash control record in which shall be recorded all cash receipts accruing to the benefit of the Organization. The cash control record shall be divided into such subsidiary receipts classifications as may be deemed necessary.
31. Cash shall be deposited in one or more bank accounts as required; branch accounts, or special funds which involve a separation of cash assets, shall be established as charges to the cash control record under appropriate regulations as to objects, purposes and limitations of such accounts and funds.
37. ... Income from investments of the Staff Provident Fund shall be credited to the Pension Fund.
- tables with a result that paragraph (a) is not technically operative for a major portion of the budget in any case.
- These regulations are deleted, as in practice they have not been operative from a technical point of view. The Auditors have not criticized present practices in this respect.
- The Provident Fund being almost liquidated, it was considered that this present provision can be covered under proposed regulation 9.3.

DOCUMENT A/1412

Third report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[30 September 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has examined the text, submitted in document A/1331, annex A, of the regulations which the Secretary-General proposes for adoption by the General Assembly as the Financial Regulations of the United Nations.

2. The Advisory Committee takes note of the fact that the draft regulations have been agreed to by the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination and that they have been, or will be, submitted by the administrative heads of the specialized agencies through the appropriate channels, for adoption as the financial regulations of their respective organizations. In view of this fact, and of the importance which the Advisory Committee attaches to the adoption of uniform regulations as a means to secure co-ordinated administration among the United Nations and the specialized agencies, every effort has been made to focus attention on the most important points, whether of substance or of form.

The amendments set forth below are, for the most part, those likely, in the opinion of the Committee, to ensure a sounder financial administration. In a few cases drafting amendments are proposed which, while not indispensable, may obviate ambiguity of meaning.

3. The financial regulations which it is now proposed to replace were designated by the General Assembly as "Provisional Financial Regulations" (resolution 163 (II)). In the report submitted by the Secretary-General

(A/1331) the term "Permanent Financial Regulations" is used, which the Advisory Committee interprets as signifying a transition from experimental to established procedures. Since, however, it seems probable that in the process of unifying administrative and financial procedures in the United Nations and the specialized agencies, other matters not covered by the present proposals may call for regulation, the Committee suggests that the title might appropriately be limited to "Financial Regulations of the United Nations".

AMENDMENTS AND OBSERVATIONS

Amendments proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to the draft Financial Regulations of the United Nations (A/1331, Annex A)

Observations

Article I

APPLICABILITY

1.1 No change.

Article II

THE FINANCIAL YEAR

2.1 No change.

Article III

THE BUDGET

3.1 No change.

3.2 No change.

3.3 No change.

3.3 Evidence was tendered to the Committee to the effect that the information required under the provisional regulations continue to be supplied without restriction of its scope. On that understanding the Committee agrees to the proposed text.

3.4 No change.

3.5 No change.

3.6 No change.

3.7 No change.

3.8 Supplementary estimates may be submitted by the Secretary-General whenever necessary.²

3.9 The Secretary-General shall prepare supplementary estimates in a form consistent with the annual estimates and shall submit such estimates to the General Assembly [and to the Advisory Committee]. The Advisory Committee shall review such estimates and report thereon [to the General Assembly].

3.9 Reference to a body subsidiary to the General Assembly which is required, under its terms of reference, to examine, and report on, the estimates to the General Assembly, is considered superfluous.

Article IV

APPROPRIATIONS

4.1 No change.

² Proposed additions are in italics, proposed deletions are bracketed.

Amendments proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to the draft Financial Regulations of the United Nations (A/1331, Annex A)

Observations

4.2 No change.

4.3 Appropriations shall remain available for twelve months following the end of the financial year to which they relate to the extent that they are required to discharge obligations in respect of goods supplied and services rendered in the financial year and to liquidate any other outstanding legal obligation of the year. The balance of the appropriations shall be surrendered.

4.4 No change.

4.5 No transfer between appropriation sections may be made without authorization by the General Assembly.

4.3 The Committee considers that, in so far as the United Nations is concerned, a definition of the term "legal obligations" is not necessary. Experience has shown that they fall into the following categories: services rendered and goods supplied up to 31 December; commitments to an unspecified amount arising out of General Assembly resolutions, for example, reimbursement of travel expenses of representatives to sessions of the General Assembly, and reimbursement of national income taxation levied upon staff members.

4.5 The regulation proposed by the Secretary-General should, in the opinion of the Committee, be replaced by a regulation to apply when no special direction, for example, in the appropriation resolution, is given by the General Assembly. However, the Assembly annually grants an exemption in that resolution, the exemption being subject to the concurrence of the Advisory Committee.

Article V

PROVISION OF FUNDS

5.1 No change.

5.2 No change.

(a) Supplementary appropriations for which contributions have not previously been assessed on the Member States;

(b) No change.

(c) Contributions resulting from the assessment of new Member States...

(d) No change.

5.2 (a) Amendment proposed for the sake of uniformity.

(c) Amendment proposed for the sake of uniformity.

(d) Although not proposing an amendment to this regulation, the Committee notes the view expressed by the Consultative Committee that savings on appropriations should be credited to the contributions of Member States only on condition that (i) contributions are paid promptly and in full, and (ii) the Working Capital Fund is established in an adequate amount (A/1331, paragraph 8).

5.3 After the General Assembly has adopted the budget and determined the amount of the Working Capital Fund, the Secretary-General shall:

(a) No change.

(b) Inform Member States of their commitments in respect of annual contributions and advances to the Working Capital Fund;

(c) No change.

5.3 Amendment proposed for the sake of uniformity with regulation 3.7.

(b) Amendment proposed for the sake of uniformity.

5.4 Contributions and advances shall be considered as due and payable in full within 30 days of the receipt of the communication of the Secretary-General referred to in regulation 5.3 above, or as of the first day of the financial year to which they relate, whichever is the later. As of 1 January of the following finan-

5.4 (a) The reference is to the financial year of the United Nations;

(b) The Committee considers that the proposed additional sentence serves to clarify the provisions of Article 19 of the Charter of the United Nations.

Amendments proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to the draft Financial Regulations of the United Nations (A/1331, Annex A)

Observations

cial year, the unpaid balance of such contributions and advances shall be considered to be one year in arrears.

- 5.5 Annual contributions and advances to the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations shall be assessed and paid in United States dollars.
- 5.5 In view of the fact that the currency of assessment and payment has been left to the individual decision of each organization concerned, the Committee proposes the insertion of the words " of the United Nations ". It further considers that since a uniform regulation cannot in any case be achieved, the drafting changes proposed by the Secretary-General offer little advantage.
- 5.6 No change.
- 5.7 No change.
- 5.8 New members shall be required to make a contribution for the year in which they become Members and provide their proportion of the total advances to the Working Capital Fund at rates to be determined by the General Assembly.
- 5.8 The drafting change proposed by the Committee is intended to remove any possible ambiguity, since the words " an advance to the Working Capital Fund " might be construed as meaning a partial payment on account.
- 5.9 States which are not Members of the United Nations but which become parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice or [other] treaty bodies financed from United Nations appropriations shall contribute to the estimated expenses of such bodies at rates to be determined by the General Assembly. Such contributions shall be taken into account as miscellaneous income.
- 5.9 The deletion of the word " other " is proposed since the regulation is intended to cover cases such as the one contemplated in resolution 353 (IV) of the General Assembly (Permanent Central Opium Board).

Article VI

FUNDS

- 6.1 No change.
- 6.2, 6.3 There shall be established a Working Capital Fund in an amount and for purposes to be determined from time to time by the General Assembly. The source of monies of the Working Capital Fund shall be advances from Member States, and these advances, made in accordance with the scale of assessments as determined by the General Assembly, shall be carried to the credit of the Member States which have made such advances.
- 6.2, 6.3 The Committee is of the opinion that the two regulations may usefully be combined, in order to do away with unnecessary overlapping.
- 6.4 No change.
- 6.5 Except when such advances are recoverable from some other source, advances made from the Working Capital Fund for unforeseen and extraordinary expenses or other authorized purposes shall be reimbursed through the submission of supplementary estimates.
- 6.5 A drafting change is proposed : the transposition of the two parts of the regulation. The Committee further suggests that it may be desirable to clarify the words " from some other source ", for example, through the repayment of loans to specialized agencies or advances from the revolving funds.
- 6.6 No change.
- 6.7 Trust Funds, Reserve and Special Accounts may be established by the Secretary-General and shall be reported to the Advisory Committee.
- 6.7 The Committee considers it desirable to make a distinction between Trust Funds which the Secretary-General cannot establish out of budget funds without a specific authorization of the General Assembly, and accounts which can be so established.

Amendments proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to the draft Financial Regulations of the United Nations (A/1331, Annex A)

Observations

11.4 This amendment is proposed in order to indicate the desirability of submitting the annual accounts at the earliest possible date.

Article XII

EXTERNAL AUDIT

(New text for the whole of the article)

12.1 Subject to any special direction of the General Assembly, each audit which the Board of Auditors established under resolution 74 (I) is required to make shall be conducted in accordance with the principles set out in the appendix to the present regulations.

12.1 The Committee proposes this text (12.1 to 12.5) in place of the draft regulations submitted by the Secretary-General, which reproduce a part only of the provisions and principles set forth in General Assembly resolutions 74 (I) and 347 (IV). In the opinion of the Committee, two alternatives are possible: either to incorporate in the financial regulations all relevant parts of the above resolutions or to set out in an annex the principles governing audit procedures which the General Assembly has already adopted (resolution 347 (IV)). The Committee favours the second alternative. The amended draft regulations submitted herewith are limited to those deemed necessary to supplement resolutions 347 (IV) and 74 (I).

12.2 At the commencement of each financial year the Board of Auditors and the Advisory Committee shall be notified as to the sum provided to defray the cost of audit of each Trust Fund, Reserve and Special Account to be performed by the Board during the year. Thereupon, the Board shall consult the Advisory Committee relative to the scope of the several audits to be made by the Board.

12.2, - 12.4 The Committee believes that the provision proposed in regulation 12.2 is desirable as a guidance to the Board of Auditors and as a limitation upon undue expenditure. In adopting the original resolution (74 (I)) on the system of audit, the General Assembly had in view the examination of the budgetary accounts or the United Nations. Since that time, however, various Special Accounts have been created, and audit reports to be submitted to the General Assembly at its fifth session cover budgetary expenditures of approximately $40,000,000 as against non-budgetary expenditures of approximately $100,000,000. Draft regulations 12.2, 12.3 and 12.4 provide other safeguards which the Committee considers desirable:

12.3 The Board of Auditors may allocate, subject to the concurrence of the Advisory Committee, the audit work among the members of the Board, provided that two members shall jointly certify the annual accounts submitted by the Secretary-General in accordance with the provisions of regulation 11.4.

(a) The delegation of responsibility for the audits of Special Accounts is made subject to the concurrence of the Advisory Committee;

12.4 Whenever any financial statement is certified by only one member of the Board of Auditors, there shall be associated therewith a certificate of another member of the Board to the effect that the audit programme had been approved by the Board and that all special instructions given by the Board to the member were carried out.

(b) At least two members of the Board must participate in the principal audit—that of the budgetary accounts of the United Nations; and

(c) The Board must collectively agree to the programmes of audit, and certify that the audit has been performed in the manner directed by the Board.

12.5 Whenever it is necessary to make a local or special examination, the Board of Auditors may, subject to the budgetary provision for the audit concerned, arrange for the services of any national auditor-general (or equivalent title) who is eligible to be appointed to the membership of the Board or of commercial public auditors of known repute.

12.5 The Committee considers it desirable to broaden the scope of the relevant regulation in order to permit the Board of Auditors to engage national auditors-general who are not members of the Board. As regards the engagement of commercial auditors, it may in certain cases be necessary to use the services of local firms of auditors who, while of established reputation, are unknown in an international sense.

Amendments proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to the draft Financial Regulations of the United Nations (A/1331, Annex A)

Observations

Article XIII

RESOLUTIONS INVOLVING EXPENDITURES

13.1 No change.

13.1 While not proposing an amendment, the Committee is of opinion that in the preparation of the relevant reports, fuller consideration should be given to the long-term implications of proposals. Experience has shown that proposed projects, although involving little expenditure at the outset, often call for a considerable outlay in subsequent years.

13.2 No change.

Article XIV

DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY

14.1 [Delete].

14.1 The Committee proposes the deletion of this regulation, as being redundant. The Charter of the United Nations has designated the Secretary-General as the chief administrative officer of the Organization, and the delegation of authority is therefore a function implicit in his office. The text might more appropriately form part of the financial rules promulgated by the Secretary-General.

Article XV

GENERAL PROVISIONS

15.1 No change.

15.2 [Delete].

15.2 As in the case of proposed regulation 14.1, the Committee considers it more appropriate to incorporate such a provision in the financial rules.

Article XVI

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

16.1 The estimates of the International Court of Justice [and of the Permanent Central Opium Board and Narcotic Drugs Supervisory Body] shall be prepared by the Court [and the Board respectively] in consultation with the Secretary-General. These estimates shall be submitted to the General Assembly by the Secretary-General, together with such observations as he may deem desirable.

16.1 The Committee sees no sufficient reason for a change in the provisional regulation.

- 4.3 Appropriations shall remain available for twelve months following the end of the financial year to which they relate to the extent that they are required to discharge obligations in respect of goods supplied and services rendered in the financial year and to liquidate any other outstanding legal obligation of the year. Article V

PROVISION OF FUNDS

5.1 The appropriations, subject to the adjustments effected in accordance with the provisions of regula-

5.2 In the assessment of the contributions of Member States, adjustments shall be made to the amount of the appropriations approved by the General Assembly for the following financial year in respect of :

(a) Supplementary appropriations for which contributions have not previously been assessed on the Member States;

5.5 Annual contributions and advances to the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations shall be assessed and paid in United States dollars.

5.6 Payments made by a Member State shall be credited first to the Working Capital Fund and then to the contributions due in the order in which the Member was assessed.

5.7 The Secretary-General shall submit to the regular session of the General Assembly a report on the collection of contributions and advances to the Working Capital Fund.

5.8 New Members shall be required to make a contribution for the year in which they become Members and provide their proportion of the total advances

5.9 States which are not Members of the United Nations but which become parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice or treaty bodies financed from United Nations appropriations shall contribute to the estimated expenses of such bodies at rates to be determined by the General Assembly. Such contributions shall be taken into account as miscellaneous income.

Article VI

6.1 There shall be established a General Fund for the purpose of accounting for the expenditures of the Organization. The contributions paid by Member States under regulation 5.1, miscellaneous income, and any advances made from the Working Capital Fund to finance general expenditures shall be credited to the General Fund.

6.2 There shall be established a Working Capital Fund in an amount and for purposes to be determined from time to time by the General Assembly. The source of monies of the Working Capital Fund shall be advances from Member States, and these advances, made in accordance with the scale of assessments as determined by the General Assembly, shall be carried to the credit of the Member States which have made such advances.

6.3 Advances made from the Working Capital Fund to finance budgetary appropriations during a financial year shall be reimbursed to the Fund as soon as and to the extent that income is available for that purpose.

6.4 Except when such advances are recoverable from some other source, advances made from the Working Capital Fund for unforeseen and extraordinary expenses or other authorized purposes shall be reimbursed through the submission of supplementary estimates.

6.5 Income derived from investments of the Working Capital Fund shall be credited to miscellaneous income.

6.6 Trust Funds, Reserve and Special Accounts may be established by the Secretary-General and shall be reported to the Advisory Committee.

6.7 The purpose and limits of each Trust Fund, Reserve and Special Account shall be clearly defined by the appropriate authority. Unless otherwise provided by the General Assembly, such Funds and Accounts shall be administered in accordance with the present Regulations.

Article VII

OTHER INCOME

(a) Contributions to the budget;

(b) Direct refunds of expenditures made during the financial year; and

(c) Advances or deposits to Funds, shall be classed as miscellaneous income, for credit to the General Fund.

7.2 Voluntary contributions, whether or not in cash, may be accepted by the Secretary-General provided that the purposes for which the contributions are made are consistent with the policies, aims and activities of the Organization and provided that the acceptance of such contributions which directly or indirectly involve additional financial liability for the Organization shall require the consent of the appropriate authority.

7.3 Monies accepted for purposes specified by the donor shall be treated as Trust Funds or Special Accounts under regulations 6.6 and 6.7.

9.2 The Secretary-General may make long-term investments of monies standing to the credit of Trust Funds, Reserve and Special Accounts as may be provided by the appropriate authority in respect of each such Fund or Account.

9.3 Income derived from investments shall be credited as provided in the rules relating to each Fund or Account.

Article X

(a) Establish detailed financial rules and procedures in order to ensure effective financial administration and the exercise of economy;

(b) Cause all payments to be made on the basis of supporting vouchers and other documents which ensure that the services or goods have been received, and that payments have not previously been made;

(c) Designate the officers who may receive monies, incur obligations and make payments on behalf of the Organization;

(d) Maintain an internal financial control which shall provide for an effective current examination and/or review of financial transactions in order to ensure :

(i) The regularity of the receipt, custody and disposal of all funds and other financial resources of the Organization;

(ii) The conformity of obligations and expenditures with the appropriations or other financial provision voted by the General Assembly, or with the purposes and rules relating to Trust Funds and Special Accounts;

(iii) The economic use of the resources of the Organization.

10.2 No obligations shall be incurred until allotments or other appropriate authorizations have been made in writing under the authority of the Secretary-General.

10.3 The Secretary-General may make such ex gratia payments as he deems to be necessary in the interests of the Organization, provided that a statement of such payments shall be submitted to the General Assembly with the annual accounts.

10.4 The Secretary-General may, after full investigation, authorize the writing off of losses of cash, stores and other assets, provided that a statement of all such amounts written off shall be submitted to the Auditors with the annual accounts.

10.5 Tenders for equipment, supplies and other requirements shall be invited by advertisement, except where the Secretary-General deems that, in the interests of the Organization, a departure from the rule is desirable.

Article XI

THE ACCOUNTS

11.1 The Secretary-General shall maintain such accounting records as are necessary and shall submit annual accounts showing for the financial year to which they relate :

(a) The income and expenditures of all Funds;

(b) The status of appropriations, including :

(i) The original budget appropriations;

(ii) The appropriations as modified by any transfers;

(iii) Credits, if any, other than the appropriations voted by the General Assembly;

(c) The assets and liabilities of the Organization.

He shall also give such other information as may be appropriate to indicate the current financial position of the Organization.

11.2 The annual accounts of the Organization shall be presented in United States dollars. Accounting records may, however, be kept in such currency or currencies as the Secretary-General may deem necessary.

11.3 Appropriate separate accounts shall be maintained for all Trust Funds, Reserve and Special Accounts.

11.4 The annual accounts shall be submitted by the Secretary-General to the Board of Auditors not later than 31 March following the end of the financial year.

Article XII

EXTERNAL AUDIT

12.1 Subject to any special direction of the General Assembly, each audit which the Board of Auditors established under resolution 74 (I) is required to make shall be conducted in accordance with the principles set out in the appendix to the present regulations.

12.2 At the commencement of each financial year the Board of Auditors and the Advisory Committee shall be notified as to the sum provided to defray the cost of audit of each Trust Fund, Reserve and Special Account to be performed by the Board during the year. Thereupon, the Board shall consult the Advisory Committee relative to the scope of the several audits to be made by the Board.

12.3 The Board of Auditors may allocate, subject to the concurrence of the Advisory Committee, the audit work among the members of the Board, provided that two members shall jointly certify the annual accounts submitted by the Secretary-General in accordance with the provisions of regulation 11.4.

12.4 Whenever any financial statement is certified by only one member of the Board of Auditors, there shall be associated therewith a certificate of another member of the Board to the effect that the audit programme had been approved by the Board and that all special instructions given by the Board to the member were carried out.

12.5 Whenever it is necessary to make a local or special examination, the Board of Auditors may, subject to the budgetary provision for the audit concerned, arrange for the services of any national Auditor-General (or equivalent title) who is eligible to be appointed to the membership of the Board or of commercial public auditors of known repute.

Article XIII

13.1 No Council, Commission or other competent body shall take a decision involving expenditure unless it has before it a report from the Secretary-General on the administrative and financial implications of the proposal.

13.2 Where, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, the proposed expenditure cannot be made from the existing appropriations, it shall not be incurred until the General Assembly has made the necessary appropriations, unless the Secretary-General certifies that provision can be made under the conditions of the resolution of the General Assembly relating to unforeseen and extraordinary expenses.

Article XIV

GENERAL PROVISIONS

14.1 These regulations shall be effective as of the date of their approval by the General Assembly, and may be amended only by the General Assembly.

Article XV

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

15.1 The estimates of the International Court of Justice shall be prepared by the Court, in consultation with the Secretary-General. These estimates shall be submitted to the General Assembly by the Secretary-General, together with such observations as he may deem desirable.

APPENDIX

PRINCIPLES TO GOVERN THE AUDIT PROCEDURES OF THE UNITED NATIONS

1. The Board of Auditors shall perform an audit of the accounts of the United Nations, including all Trust and Special Accounts, as it may deem necessary in order to certify :

(a) That the financial statements are in accord with the books and records of the Organization;

(b) That the financial transactions reflected in the statements have been in accordance with the rules and regulations, the budgetary provisions, and other applicable directives;

(c) That the securities and monies on deposit and on hand have been verified by certificate received direct from the Organization's depositaries or by actual count.

2. Subject to the provisions of the Financial Regulations the Board of Auditors shall be the sole judge as to the acceptance in whole or in part of certifications by the Secretariat and may proceed to such detailed examination and verification as it chooses of all financial records, including those relating to supplies and equipment.

3. The Board of Auditors may affirm by test the reliability of the internal audit and may make such reports with respect thereto as the Board may deem necessary, to the General Assembly or to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, or to the Secretary-General.

4. The several members of the Board and staff working under its direction shall subscribe to such oath as may be approved by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions. Thereupon the members of the Board and its staff shall have free access at all convenient times to all books of account and records which are, in the opinion of the Board, necessary for the performance of the audit. Information classified as confidential in the records of the Secretariat and which is required by the Board for the purposes of the audit shall be made available on application to the Assistant Secretary-General for Administrative and Financial Services. In the event that the Board is of the opinion that a duty rests on it to draw to the attention of the General Assembly any matter respecting which all or part of the documentation is classified as confidential, direct quotation should be avoided.

5. The Board of Auditors, in addition to certifying the accounts, may make such observations as it may deem necessary with respect to the efficiency of the financial procedures, the accounting system, the internal financial controls and, in general, the financial consequences of administrative practices.

6. In no case, however, shall the Board of Auditors include criticism in its audit report without first affording the Secretariat an opportunity of explanation to the Board on the matter under observation. Audit objections to any items arising during the examination of the accounts shall be immediately communicated to the Assistant Secretary-General for Administrative and Financial Services.

7. The Board of Auditors shall prepare a report on the accounts certified in which it should mention :

(a) The extent and character of its examination or any important changes therein;

(b) Matters affecting the completeness or accuracy of the accounts, such as :

(i) Information necessary to the correct interpretation of the account,

(ii) Any amounts which ought to have been received but which have not been brought to account,

(iii) Expenditures not properly substantiated;

(c) Other matters which should be brought to the notice of the General Assembly, such as :

(i) Cases of fraud or presumptive fraud,

(ii) Wasteful or improper expenditure of United Nations money or other assets (notwithstanding that the accounting for the transactions may be correct),

(iii) Expenditure likely to commit the United Nations to further outlay on a large scale,

(iv) Any defect in the general system or detailed regulations governing the control of receipts and expenditure, or of supplies and equipment,

(v) Expenditure not in accordance with the intention of the General Assembly, after making allowance for duly authorized transfers within the budget,

(vi) Expenditure in excess of appropriations as amended by duly authorized transfers within the budget,

(vii) Expenditure not in conformity with the authority which governs it;

(d) The accuracy or otherwise of the supplies and equipment records as determined by stock-taking and examination of the records;

In addition, the reports may contain reference to :

(e) Transactions accounted for in a previous year concerning which further information has been obtained, or transactions in a later year concerning which it seems desirable that the General Assembly should have early knowledge.

8. The Board of Auditors, or such of their officers as they may designate, shall certify the financial statements in the following terms :

“ The financial statements of the United Nations for the financial year ended 31 December ... have been examined in accordance with our directions. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and we certify, as a result of the audit, that, in our opinion, the financial statements are correct ”, adding, should it be necessary :

“ subject to the observations in our report ”.

9. The Board of Auditors shall have no power to disallow items in the accounts, but shall draw to the attention of the Secretary-General for appropriate action any transaction concerning which it entertains doubt as to legality or propriety.

10. A representative of the Board of Auditors shall be present when the Board's report is being considered by the General Assembly.

DOCUMENT A/1496

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[10 November 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 257th meeting on 30 October 1950, considered the question of permanent financial regulations for the United Nations on the basis of a draft text submitted by the Secretary-General (A/1331) and amendments thereto proposed by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1412).

2. Resolution 80 (I) of 11 December 1946 instructed the Secretary-General to submit draft financial regulations to the Advisory Committee for consideration and final adoption by the General Assembly at its regular annual session in 1947. In approving the regulations submitted to it at its second session the General Assembly decided, however, to continue to consider them as provisional pending further study and experience. The Fifth Committee was informed that this further study had been conducted during the period since 1947 in close consultation with the specialized agencies, as a result of which the Consultative Committee on Administrative Questions had agreed at its eighth session, after extensive discussions, on a common set of financial regulations and reported this agreement to the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination. The latter Committee, on 3 May 1950, took note of the agreement and of the fact that the Secretary-General and the head of each specialized agency would present the regulations as drafted to the appropriate bodies of their respective organizations. The Secretary-General had accordingly presented them for consideration by the General Assembly at its fifth session as the permanent financial regulations of the United Nations foreseen by resolution 80 (I).

3. The Advisory Committee, in its report, stressed the importance it attached to the adoption of uniform regulations as a means of securing co-ordinated administration between the United Nations and the specialized agencies. In reviewing the text submitted by the Secretary-General, it had therefore sought to focus attention on the most important points, whether of substance or of form, and to limit its suggested amendments for the most part to those which, in the opinion of the Committee, would ensure a sounder financial administration. The Fifth Committee was subsequently informed that, in these circumstances, the Advisory Committee had refrained from recommending many amendments which they felt would be justified and that those proposed, other than certain minor drafting changes intended to adapt the regulations to United Nations terminology, represented the minimum, subject to which the text as submitted by the Secretary-General could be fully supported.

4. At the outset of the discussion in the Fifth Committee, the representative of the Secretary-General stated that since the proposed regulations had been developed in consultation with the specialized agencies, the amendments recommended by the Advisory Committee had been circulated to the agencies for their comments. Replies received indicated that the secretariats of the agencies had no objections to the changes proposed, subject to the following reservations :

(i) One agency stated its desire to maintain the proposed regulations 14.1 (power of the Secretary-General to delegate authority) and 15.2 (power of the Secretary-General to interpret the regulations), the deletion of which had been recommended by the Advisory Committee.

(ii) One agency stated its desire to retain the proposed regulations 4.3 (definition of availability of appropriations following the close of the financial year) and 4.5 (authority for transfers within the appropriations as voted), to which the Advisory Committee had recommended certain modifications.

(iii) Several agencies pointed out that a number of the alterations recommended by the Advisory Committee, particularly the new text of article XII (external audit), were specifically intended to meet special United Nations requirements. In presenting the regulations to their respective legislative bodies, it would therefore be necessary for similarly appropriate modifications to be introduced.

While the Secretary-General considered it his duty to draw attention to the objections raised by some specialized agencies, he was of the opinion that, so far as the financial administration of the United Nations was concerned, the proposals of the Advisory Committee were fully acceptable.

5. Having heard these observations, several delegations supported the text as recommended by the Advisory Committee and expressed the hope that Governments which were represented both in the United Nations and in the specialized agencies, would ensure that their delegations acted consistently with a view to securing the adoption of the same model regulations, subject only to such modifications as the constitutional provisions or organizational structure of individual agencies might require.

6. The Fifth Committee then discussed, article by article, the text of the proposed regulations as amended by the Advisory Committee (A/C.5/L.50), in the course of which the following drafting changes were accepted :

(i) In regulation 3.3, the words " by, or " were inserted before the phrase " on behalf of the General Assembly, "

(ii) In regulation 6.2, the words " for the apportionment of the expenses of the United Nations " were added after the phrase " scale of assessments as determined by the General Assembly ".

7. It was agreed that in approving the text of regulation 3.3 dealing with the form and content of the budget estimates, particular note should be taken of the Advisory Committee's comment thereon to the effect that in accepting the new text it was understood that the information specifically called for under the provisional regulation would continue to be supplied without restriction as to its scope.

8. In connexion with article IV (appropriations), the question was raised as to whether the provisions of paragraph 1 were fully consistent with resolution 311 C (IV) requesting specialized agencies to limit their expenditure to the amount of contributions likely to be received. It was the consensus of opinion, however, that so far as the United Nations was concerned, no special action appeared necessary at this juncture. It was also pointed out that the authorization given to the Secretary-General to incur obligations up to the amounts appropriated did not in any way bind him to spend the full amounts so voted, but merely the sums necessary for the proper working of the Organization. Nevertheless, it was agreed that the possibility of future action being necessary in the event of the United Nations finding itself in financial difficulties as a result of non-payment of contributions merited further study. On the suggestion of the representative of Australia, the Advisory Committee was accordingly invited to consider the measures that might be taken should such a situation develop.

9. In commenting on the provisions of regulation 5.5 to the effect that " Annual contributions and advances to the Working Capital Fund of the United Nations shall be assessed and paid in United States dollars ", several delegations concurred in a proposal of the representative of Brazil for inclusion in the financial regulations of a provision authorizing the Secretary-General to receive contributions in currencies other than United States dollars, and establishing criteria on the basis of which the amounts of such other currencies required by the United Nations in a particular fiscal year, and the allocation of such amounts among Members, might be determined. A number of other delegations, however, while commending the principle underlying the Brazilian proposal, expressed the view that it would be unwise to incorporate any such provision in the financial regulations themselves and urged instead that the practice followed since 1948 be continued, under which this question is dealt with in conjunction with the report of the Committee on Contributions. The Chairman of the Committee on Contributions pointed out, in this connexion, that paragraph 37 of the Committee's report to the fifth session of the General Assembly (A/1330)³ stated that "in view of the continuing dollar shortage in many countries the General Assembly may wish again to empower the Secretary-General to accept part of the 1951 contributions in currencies other than United States dollars". The Committee was also reminded that, at its second session, the General Assembly had been faced with the same problem and had decided against incorporating a special provision in the text of the Provisional Financial Regulations and to adopt instead an accompanying resolution (163 (II)) empowering the Secretary-General to accept, at his discretion, and after consultation with the Chairman of the Committee on Contributions, a portion of the contributions of Member States for the following financial year in currencies other than United States dollars. On the understanding that similar action would be taken so long as the present dollar stringency continued, it was finally agreed that the text of the regulation as recommended by the Advisory Committee might be approved.

10. As regards the provision in sub-paragraph (d) of regulation 5.2, which requires that in the assessment of contributions of Member States adjustments shall be made to the amount of the appropriations approved by the General Assembly for the following financial year in respect of any balance of the appropriations surrendered under regulations 4.3 and 4.4, it was agreed, on the proposal of the representative of Australia, that the Advisory Committee might study the possibility of applying unspent balances of appropriations to contributions in arrears.

³ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Fifth Session, Supplement No. 13.

11. In approving regulation 13.1, under which no Council, commission or other competent body shall take a decision involving expenditure unless it has before it a report from the Secretary-General on the administrative and financial implications of the proposal, the Committee took particular note of the comment thereon of the Advisory Committee in its report (A/1412). While not proposing an amendment to the proposed text of this regulation, the Advisory Committee expressed the view that in the preparation of the relevant reports fuller consideration should be given to the long-term implications of proposals, since experience had shown that many projects, although involving little expenditure at the outset, often call for a considerable outlay in subsequent years.

12. Subject to these observations and suggestions, the Fifth Committee unanimously approved the financial regulations of the United Nations as set out in the annex to the present report. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution :

FINANCIAL REGULATIONS OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the agreement reached in the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination to recommend a common set of financial regulations for the United Nations and the specialized agencies,

Approving the amendments recommended by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

1. Declares that the Financial Regulations set out in the annex⁴ to the present resolution are adopted in place of those adopted by the General Assembly at its second session under resolution 163 (II);

2. Expresses the hope that Member States will support the adoption by the specialized agencies of the Financial Regulations approved herein for the United Nations, with only such alterations as are required to meet the constitutional provisions and organizational structure of the respective agencies.

⁴ For the text of the Financial Regulations, see Official Records of the General Assembly, Fifth Session, Supplement No. 20, annex to resolution 456 (V).

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[13 September 1950]

1. In a report to the second session of the General Assembly on the subject of provisional staff regulations (A/435), the Secretary-General stated his belief that there was not sufficient experience to warrant the proposal that those regulations should be made permanent at that time, and consequently recommended that the staff regulations should remain provisional until a later session of the General Assembly.

2. After more than four years of experience in administering the United Nations Secretariat and in the problems of inter-agency co-ordination, the Secretary-General is of the opinion that the time has now come for the formulation of permanent staff regulations. It is his strong belief, held also by the Committee of Experts on Salary, Allowance and Leave Systems (A/C.5/331),¹ that much would be gained from putting on a permanent basis the fundamental conditions of service and the basic regulations in which the rights, duties and obligations of the Secretariat staff are defined.

3. The drive towards a unified international civil service through inter-agency co-ordination on personnel matters has been persistent since the creation of the United Nations and since the specialized agencies were brought into relationship with the United Nations. In the majority of agreements entered into between the United Nations and the specialized agencies² the article on personnel arrangements pledges both parties to develop common personnel standards, methods and arrangements designed to avoid serious discrepancies in terms and conditions of employment, to avoid competition in recruitment of personnel, and to facilitate the interchange of personnel in order to obtain the maximum benefits from their services.

4. The desirability of administrative co-ordination has been re-emphasized at each session of the General Assembly. The detailed techniques to improve such co-ordination have been repeatedly considered by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions.

5. During the last two years, the question of common personnel standards, including such matters as salary, allowance and leave systems, and the basic assumptions underlying the staff regulations of the United Nations and the specialized agencies, has been given special attention by the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination and has been the subject of continuing study.

6. Further, in its report on recruitment methods and standards for the United Nations and the specialized agencies³ the International Civil Service Advisory Board, while endorsing the high desirability of inter-agency transfers and promotions, pointed out that the lack of uniform provisions in the staff regulations of the agencies had interfered greatly with the mobility of staff. The report said in part:

« ... the Board noted that so long as the staff regulations and conditions of employment vary so materially between participating organizations, regular transfers as a normal part of an international civil service career cannot be accomplished. Up to the present time, so-called transfers, because of the differences in classification and grading, salary rates, types of appointment, provident and pension fund, have been more often in the nature of terminations and new appointments than transfers in the real sense. »

7. Having regard to the above developments, the Secretary-General is under an obligation to secure as much uniformity as possible, with the object of further progress towards the development of a unified international civil service. With this obligation in mind, a series of discussions have been held with administrative representatives of the specialized agencies concerned for the purpose of drafting a common set of permanent staff regulations. The result is the attached proposed Permanent Staff Regulations (annex A), the basic principles of which have been agreed upon by the United Nations and the specialized agencies as a common pattern. Regulation 4.4 appears in a revised form which has not yet been discussed with administrative representatives of the specialized agencies.

8. Each member of the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination has been requested to bring the principles contained in the proposed Permanent Staff Regulations before the appropriate authorities of his agency, though the Committee in its eighth report to the Economic and Social Council (E/1865 para.21) recognized that.

“ ... while the agencies should do the utmost to implement these principles, the diversity of structure may make it difficult, if not impossible, for certain of the agencies to agree on an identical form or wording of basic regulations. It is also recognized that agreement on these principles does not affect the constitutional position relating to the competence to approve and amend staff regulations within each agency, nor the freedom of each agency to complement these principles on any point on which more detailed provision would appear desirable. ”

9. In presenting these regulations, the Secretary-General is in fullest agreement with the recommendation in the first report of the Advisory Group of Experts on Administrative, Personnel and Budgetary Questions that “ the Staff Regulations to be approved by the General Assembly should embody broad principles only appropriate for legislation, and that the application of these principles should be embodied in staff rules to be promulgated by the Secretary-General ”.⁴

10. The Secretary-General has consulted closely, during the preparation of these regulations, with the Staff Committee of the United Nations and has benefited from its comments. The Staff Committee endorses the majority of the regulations as they now stand, and in particular shares with the Secretary-General the desire to see that they should, as far as practicable, be kept free of administrative encumbrances.

11. Understandably there were points of difference. The Staff Committee was of the opinion that the approval of the General Assembly should be explicitly required for the manner in which posts are classified and for the social security scheme, and that the General Assembly should establish the salary system. The Committee maintained that adequate provision had not been made for staff participation in the discussion and in the application of policies and procedures relating to staff questions; it wished the word “ contract ” to be used in the regulations; regretted that regulation 4.4 accorded no preferential treatment to staff members; desired the reinsertion in the regulations of the specific terms of notice and indemnity payment upon termination, and of a regulation on training; and, in accordance with the previously expressed views of staff representatives, asked that the expatriation allowance should be retained in place of the proposed repatriation grant. The Staff Committee also recommended that, except for Assistant Secretaries-General, all “ staff members shall be granted permanent contracts after a probationary period not to exceed two years ”, with fixed-term appointments preceding such action.

12. The Secretary-General, after giving sympathetic scrutiny to these and other more detailed points on which the Staff Committee had made representations, reached the conclusion that these several recommendations were not appropriate to the common pattern of staff regulations, and that they did not take sufficient account of the realities and developing needs of the international civil service.

13. Finally, the Staff Committee asked that it should be permitted to present its views directly to the General Assembly. The Secretary-General believed that such a course would be administratively unsound and would establish an unfortunate precedent, but that the final decision must of course lie with the General Assembly.

14. The Secretary-General recommends that the General Assembly approve the following draft resolution and the accompanying Permanent Staff Regulations for the United Nations Secretariat proposed in annex A. For convenient reference, a comparative paper (annex B) has been prepared showing the proposed Permanent Staff Regulations in relation to the Provisional Staff Regulations.

DRAFT RESOLUTION

The General Assembly,

Having regard to the fact that the United Nations has now acquired sufficient experience to warrant the adoption of permanent staff regulations,

Adopts as permanent the Staff Regulations embodying the fundamental conditions of service and the basic rights, duties and obligations of the United Nations Secretariat staff as contained in annex A. These regulations shall be effective on 1 January 1951 and shall supersede the Provisional Staff Regulations and all other regulations affecting the staff, including those deriving from resolutions of the General Assembly, in force before the above date and which are contrary to these Staff Regulations.

This allowance shall be payable only when there is a valid reason for the child not to attend school in the home country; for instance, in the case of children under eleven years of age or when the health of the child is such that return to the home country is not feasible.

Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible".

4.3 Regulation 4.3 incorporates the substance of provisional regulations 10 and 11.

Article 8 of the Charter reads: "The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs". The wording of

Regulation 10

Men and women are equally eligible for all posts in the Secretariat.

Regulation 11

So far as practicable, appointments to posts in the Secretariat shall be made on a competitive basis.

4.4 Vacancies shall be filled on a competitive basis. Without prejudice to the inflow of fresh talent at all levels, the experience of persons already in the service of the United Nations shall be taken into account in promotions. This consideration shall also be applied, on a reciprocal basis, to the specialized agencies brought into relationship with the United Nations.

Regulation 14

With due regard to the maintenance of the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible and without prejudice to the inflow of fresh talent at the various levels, vacancies shall be filled by promotion of persons already in the service of the United Nations in preference to appointments from outside. This consideration shall also be applied, on a reciprocal basis, to the specialized agencies brought into relationship with the Organization.

regulation 4.3, as prepared in consultation with administrative representatives of the specialized agencies, has been broadened to guard against distinction based on race or creed as well.

4.4 The Secretary-General believes that the provision he has proposed will preserve a proper balance with respect to personnel selection and advancement. It establishes clearly a preference for members already on the staff in all normal cases where a number of suitably qualified candidates are available. At the same time, it gives only proper recognition to the fundamental principle of competition. That principle not only has long been recognized by experienced national administrations but it is stated clearly in the Charter itself. In Article 101, the Charter states: "The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence and integrity". The Secretary-General believes it would be a great mistake for the General Assembly to reverse that position by implication. To reduce the matter to more practical terms, he hopes that in all cases, for example, where Member Governments offer the services of highly outstanding officials, no barrier or no implied barrier to their engagement will be imposed by the General Assembly in the form of a restrictive staff regulation.

4.5 Appointments of Assistant Secretaries-General and Principal Directors shall be for a period not to exceed five years, subject to renewal. Other staff members shall be granted either permanent or temporary appointments, under such terms and conditions consistent with these regulations as the Secretary-General may prescribe.

Regulation 12

Persons appointed to permanent posts in the Secretariat shall serve such probationary period as may be prescribed by the Secretary-General.

4.5 The General Assembly, by resolution of 13 February 1946, prescribed five-year terms for the Assistant Secretaries-General and Principal Directors. The latter portion of the proposed permanent regulation 4.5 incorporates the substance of provisional regulations 12 and 12A, except for the specific mention of a probationary period.

Regulation 12A

The appointment of any member of the staff for a probationary period or on a short-term contract, which shall include any temporary contract, may be subject to such conditions as the Secretary-General may deem desirable.

In discussion with administrative representatives of the specialized agencies, it has been agreed that in-service training is an inescapable responsibility of the administration, and that specific mention of it, as in provisional regulation 13, is not necessary.

Regulation 13

The Secretary-General shall provide facilities to train members of the staff in subjects relating directly or indirectly to their duties. This 6.2 The Secretary-General shall establish a scheme of social security for the staff, including provisions for health protection, sick leave and maternity leave, and reasonable compensation in the event of illness, accident or death arising out of or in the course of performing official duties on behalf of the United Nations.

Regulation 27

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[14 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 282nd meeting held on 13 December 1950, considered the question of permanent staff regulations for the United Nations. As a basis for such consideration, the Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/1360) to which was annexed a set of draft permanent regulations recommended by the Secretary-General for adoption in place of the provisional regulations currently in force.

2. In view of the fact that pressure of more urgent business had made it impossible for the Committee to give this important matter the careful and thorough consideration it merited and in order that the new salary, allowance and leave arrangements decided upon might first be implemented, it was agreed that adoption of permanent regulations should be deferred until the sixth regular session. Its was also agreed that the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions should be requested to examine the proposals of the Secretary-General and to report thereon to the General Assembly.

3. The Fifth Committee therefore decided to recommend to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

PERMANENT STAFF REGULATIONS OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the administrative problems arising out of the changes proposed in the United Nations salary, allowance and leave system for 1951,

1. Resolves that consideration of the question of permanent staff regulations be deferred until the sixth session of the General Assembly;
2. Requests the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions to examine the proposals presented by the Secretary-General on this matter (A/1360) and to report thereon to the General Assembly at its sixth session.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English]
[12 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee at its 276th meeting held on 6 December 1950, considered a note by the Secretary-General (A/1319) concerning the vacancies which will occur in the membership of the Committee on Contributions at the expiration of the term of office of three of its members on 31 December 1950. The Fifth Committee was also informed by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/422) that

Mr. Frank Pace Jr., who was appointed a member of the Committee on Contributions for a three-year term commencing 1 January 1950 under the terms of General Assembly resolution 345 (IV), had tendered his resignation effective on 1 January 1951.

2. The Chairman had previously invited members of the Fifth Committee to suggest names of persons who might be recommended to the General Assembly for appointment to membership of the Committee on Contributions in accordance with the provisions of rules 157 and 158 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly. At the time when the matter was considered by the Fifth Committee, the names of six candidates had been proposed. Prior to a vote being taken, however, the names of two of these candidates were withdrawn.

3. In view of the fact that there were thus four candidates for appointment to four vacancies, the Committee agreed that a vote by secret ballot might be dispensed with, on the understanding, however, that this would not create a precedent. The representative of the United States of America having indicated that Mr. Elmer Boyd Staats, who had been proposed by his delegation, would prefer to be appointed for a two-year period (the unexpired portion of the term of appointment of Mr. Frank Pace Jr.), the Fifth Committee decided, by acclamation, to recommend to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

APPOINTMENTS TO FILL VACANCIES IN THE MEMBERSHIP OF THE COMMITTEE ON CONTRIBUTIONS

The General Assembly,

1. Appoints the following persons as members of the Committee on Contributions :

Sir Sydney Caine;
Dr. Adolfo Nass;
Mr. Elmer Boyd Staats;
Miss Maria Z. N. Witteveen.

2. Declares Sir Sydney Caine, Dr. Adolfo Nass and Miss Maria Z. N. Witteveen to be appointed for a three-year term, and Mr. Elmer Boyd Staats for a two-year term, to commence on 1 January 1951.

To fill the resulting vacancy, the General Assembly will therefore be required at its fifth regular session in 1950 to appoint as a member of the Board the Auditor-General (or officer holding equivalent title) of a Member State. The auditor thus appointed will serve for a period of three years commencing 1 July 1951.

4. At the fourth regular session, the Fifth Committee submitted to the General Assembly a draft resolution including the name of the Member State whose Auditor-General (or officer holding equivalent title) was recommended by the Fifth Committee for appointment. Annual report of the United Nations Staff Pension Committee acting as the Joint Staff Pension Board

[Original text : English]
[24 August 1950]

I. OPERATIONS OF THE FUND

During the year 1949, the operations of the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund have continued to expand. The number of United Nations staff members participating actively on 31 December 1949 was 3,544, an increase of 1,562 members during the year. It will be recalled that a new provision, approved by the General Assembly in 1948 (resolution 248 (III)), brought staff members into the Fund on completing one year's service. This provision accounts largely for the increased membership in 1949.

2. The financial statements attached to the present report show the position of the Fund as at 31 December 1949. The general information contained in the body of the report relates to the position at the same date. All information relates to the United Nations only, as none of the specialized agencies had executed agreements to enter the Fund prior to that date.

A. Membership

3. The movement in the membership of the Fund since its inception on 27 January 1947 up to 31 December 1949 was as follows :

Staff members entering the Fund	3,980
Staff members withdrawing	439
	3,541

Acting membership at 31 December 1949 3,541

B. Medical standards

4. During the current year, the United Nations Staff Pension Committee, in consultation with the Chief Medical Officer of the United Nations, has adopted revised medical standards for immediate coverage by the insurance provisions of the scheme. These new standards are closely related to the United Nations standards for employment, and the Committee has agreed that, in normal circumstances, the medical report prepared by the Health Service of the United Nations for employment purposes shall form the basis of the recommendations made to it for insurance purposes.

5. Since the inception of the Fund, 3,838 medical examinations have been performed in 36 countries, the resulting rate of deferments with respect to benefits under article 5 and 7 of the Fund regulations being approximately 5 per cent of the number examined.

C. Payment of benefits

6. Withdrawal benefits. From the inception of the Fund, withdrawal benefits have been paid to 407 participants under the provisions of article 10 of the regulations. During the first five years of membership the withdrawal benefit paid is the equivalent of a member's own contributions to the Fund plus interest. The total amount of such benefits paid was $US 251,053.65.

7. Retirement benefits. Up to 31 December 1949 thirteen staff members had qualified for retirement benefit under article 4 of the regulations. Six of these benefits were of an annual value less than $120 and were commuted for lump-sum payments. The seven retirement benefits being currently paid have a total annual value of $1,596.08.

8. Widows' benefits. Widows of two deceased participants were in receipt of benefits, the total annual value of which is $2,120.73.

9. Children's benefits. Benefits were being paid in respect of three children of beneficiaries, the total annual value of which is $900.

10. Disability benefits. During the year 1949, disability benefits were paid to two participants in the Fund. The annual value of these benefits currently payable is $2,859.00.

11. Benefits payable to designated beneficiaries. On the death, while in active employment, of a participant who leaves no beneficiary entitled to a substantive benefit under the regulations, a benefit equal to the participant's own contributions to the Fund, with interest, becomes payable to any person whom the beneficiary has designated to receive this benefit. Five such benefits have been paid.

D. Validation of non-pensionable service

12. Up to 31 December 1949, payments amounting to a total of $23,576.93 have been received from 127 participants, after qualifying to enter the Fund, for the purpose of making pensionable their periods of service prior to entering the Fund in harmony with article 3 of the regulations.

E. Voluntary purchase of additional retirement benefit

13. Applications have been received from three participants in the Fund to make deposits, in accordance with article 18, for the purpose of purchasing retirement benefit in addition to the normal pension to which they would become entitled under the regulations. Many other participants have requested information.

II. FINANCIAL POSITION AT 31 DECEMBER 1949

Statements submitted

14. There are attached to this report annexes A and B containing :

Annex A

(1) A statement of cash income and disbursements from the inception of the Fund, showing an accumulated fund of $US 7,920,212.87;

(2) A statement of the assets comprising that Fund.

Annex B

A detailed statement of the investments included in the statement of assets, amounting at cost to $7,818,853.61.

15. These statements do no more than to record in summary form the income and expenditure of the Fund on a strictly cash basis, and to show how the accumulated excess of income over expenditure was invested at 31 December 1949. No balance sheet showing the true liability of the Fund can be prepared until an actuarial valuation of the Fund has been made. The first actuarial valuation of the Fund as at 31 December 1949 is at present being carried out and an actuarial balance sheet based thereon, together with the report of the actuary, will be presented to the General Assembly at its sixth session.

16. Investments. The investments of the Fund have been made in accordance with the policy laid down by the Investments Committee appointed as provided in article 25. The rate of yield of the present investments is slightly in excess of 2 1/2 per cent per annum, which was the rate of interest assumed for the actuarial basis of the Fund.

17. The members of the Investments Committee are as follows: Mr. Ivar Rooth, Mr. Jacques Rueff, and Mr. L. R. Rounds.

III. ORGANIZATION

A. United Nations Staff Pension Committee

18. The United Nations Staff Pension Committee, in accordance with transitional provision D of the regulations, has so far performed the functions attributed to the Joint Staff Pension Board, pending the setting up of that Board following upon the admission of member organizations into the Fund.

19. The term of the elected members of the Staff Pension Committee expired on 31 December 1949. The General Assembly on 24 November 1949 (resolution 348 (IV)), elected new representatives and the United Nations participants in the Fund subsequently also elected three new representatives. The membership of the new Committee is as follows :

Elected by the General Assembly :

Members :

Mr. R. T. Cristóbal
Mr. E. de Holte Castello
Mr. N. I. Klimov

Alternates :

Miss Carol C. Laise
Dr. A. Nase
Mr. P. Ordonneau

Appointed by the Secretary-General :

Members :

Mr. Hans C. Andersen
Mrs. Alva Myrdal
Mr. Georges Palthey

Alternates :

Mr. W. P. Barrett
Mr. Laurence Michelmore
Mr. Hanna Saba

Elected by the participants :

Members :

Mr. Marc Schreiber
Mr. Raphael Trachtenberg
Mr. David Vaughan

Alternates :

Mr. François Eyriey
Mr. Charles Hogan
Mr. Georges Rabinovich

20. At a joint meeting of the new and the old Committees appreciation was recorded of the work performed by the members retiring at that time, special reference being made to the devoted services of Mr. Roland Lebeau, who had been Chairman of the Committee since it began its work in January 1947.

21. Mr. R. T. Cristóbal and Mr. Marc Schreiber were unanimously elected Chairman and Vice-Chairman, respectively, for the ensuing year.

B. Agreements with specialized agencies

22. On 8 May 1950, an agreement was signed in Geneva by the Secretary-General of the United Nations and by the Director-General of the World Health Organization, providing for the entrance of the latter organization into the Joint Staff Pension Fund with effect from 1 May 1949. An agreement with the Food and Agriculture Organization has been completed and is awaiting formal execution, by which that organization will enter the Fund with effect from 1 April 1950.

23. Following on decisions by their governing bodies to enter the Joint Staff Pension Fund, negotiations are well advanced with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the International Civil Aviation Organization and the International Labour Organisation.

24. It is hoped that these agreements will be completed in time to enable all five of the associated member organizations, which have so far decided to enter the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund, to be represented together with the United Nations at the first session of the Joint Staff Pension Board convening in September 1950. If these hopes are realized, the number of participants in the United Nations Joint Staff Pension Fund will be in excess of 6,000.

C. Joint Staff Pension Board

25. In view of the admission of WHO and the entry of FAO as member organizations in the Fund, the Joint Staff Pension Board must now be constituted in accordance with article 12 and provision D of the regulations. The first session of the Board has been convened for 18 September 1950, when it will assume the administration of the Joint Fund and will have on its agenda matters relating to medical, financial and general procedures affecting the future administration of the Fund as a joint fund.

D. Actuarial valuations

26. The United Nations Staff Pension Committee decided that an actuarial valuation of the Fund should be carried out as at 31 December 1949 prior to the entry of the specialized agencies into the Fund, and appointed Mr. George Buck of New York and Dr. Hans Wyss of Zurich to collaborate in that valuation and to prepare a report. As soon as that report has been received it will be distributed by the Board as directed in article 31 of the regulations.

Report of the Fifth Committee

*[Original text : English]
[18 October 1950]*

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting held on 26 September 1950, the Fifth Committee considered, at its 237th meeting held on 2 October 1950, the annual report submitted by the United Nations Staff Pension Committee, acting as the Joint Staff Pension Board, on the operation of the Pension Fund (A/1335). This report was submitted pursuant to article 35 of the regulations for the Joint Staff Pension Fund adopted by the General Assembly on 7 December 1948 (resolution 248 (III)).

2. After receiving additional information from the Chairman of the United Nations Staff Pension Committee with respect to revision of the Fund's medical requirements, and from the Assistant Secretary-General for Administrative and Financial Services with respect to the Fund's investments, the Fifth Committee decided to recommend to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

UNITED NATIONS JOINT STAFF PENSION FUND : ANNUAL REPORT OF THE UNITED NATIONS STAFF PENSION COMMITTEE

The General Assembly

Takes note of the annual report of the United Nations Staff Pension Committee for the year ended 31 December 1949.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[6 October 1950]

1. The Economic and Social Council, on 2 March 1949, adopted resolution 201 (VIII) the last paragraph of which reads as follows :

“ Recommends to the Secretary-General that, in consultation with the Permanent Central Opium Board, he prepare plans for assessing signatories of the 1925 Convention who are not Members of the United Nations for their fair share of the expenses of the Permanent Central Board, and submit such plans to the fourth session of the General Assembly. ”

2. In compliance with the terms of the resolution, the Secretary-General prepared plans for the assessment of signatories of the 1925 Convention which are not Members of the United Nations, and submitted such plans to the General Assembly at its fourth session (A/976).¹

3. After further consideration, however, the Secretary-General later submitted to the Fifth Committee another document (A/C.5/340)² suggesting that, as the expenses of the Permanent Central Opium Board were only a part of the expenses involved in the international administration in the field of narcotic drugs, the question might profitably be deferred to the fifth session of the General Assembly to permit a more extensive study of the problem.

4. The General Assembly, on 24 November 1949, adopted resolution 353 (IV), requesting the Secretary-General to undertake a thorough study of the general question, regard being had to the total expenses incurred in connexion with the international administration of narcotic drugs and of such other functions or powers responsibility for which is shared by non-members of the United Nations under existing treaties. The Secretary-General was also requested to submit the results of his study, together with appropriate recommendations, for the consideration of the General Assembly at its next regular session.

5. In accordance with the provisions of the resolution, the Secretary-General undertook a study of the expenses borne in the regular budget of the United Nations in connexion with or resulting from international treaties the parties to which include States not Members of the United Nations.

6. Exclusive of the costs in relation to the international administration in the field of narcotic drugs, and the costs of the International Court of Justice which are already assessed in part against non-members of the United Nations, the Secretary-General was not able to select any expenses resulting from international treaties in respect of which he considered that he could recommend an assessment on non-member States. In all cases, the attribution of costs between those relating to responsibilities under the Charter and the scope of operations under United Nations programmes and those costs relating solely to operations under such international treaties could not be made, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, in a manner sufficiently clear to defend any particular amount as assessable on non-member States. Further, even by using certain arbitrary breakdowns, the amounts are so small at this time that the income would not warrant the administrative expense that would be involved in such an operation.

7. On the other hand, as the Secretary-General indicated in his second report to the fourth session of the General Assembly (A/C.5/340) it does appear that certain costs in connexion with the international administration in the field of narcotic drugs, in addition to the direct meeting and secretariat costs of the Permanent Central Opium Board, might be reasonably added to the figure on which assessments on non-member States could be based. A statement showing the functions and obligations of the organs of the United Nations under the international instruments on narcotic drugs is attached as an annex to the present report. Taking into account the contents of this annex, the Secretary-General recommends that the items listed below might be considered in determining the figure against which would be calculated the assessments of non-members of the United Nations signatories to conventions relating to the international control of narcotic drugs.

A. Meetings of the Permanent Central Opium Board and the Narcotic Drugs Supervisory Body

8. The Secretary-General considers that a fair share of the direct costs of the meetings (including contractual printing) might be considered as assessable on non-member States.

B. Secretariat of the Permanent Central Opium Board and the Narcotic Drugs Supervisory Body

9. In his first report to the fourth session (A/976), the Secretary-General included only the salaries of the above secretariat and the direct office costs related thereto. It is now suggested that the common staff costs for this secretariat might also be included, as well as a proportionate share of the common service costs at Geneva.

C. Division of Narcotic Drugs of the Department of Social Affairs

10. The Secretary-General recommends that the salaries and common staff costs of the officials of the Division of Narcotic Drugs who are fully and exclusively employed on work relating to provisions of the international agreements might be included in the assessment figure, as well as a proportion of the common service costs relative to those officials. Any departmental contractual printing directly resulting from the provisions of the agreements would also be included.

D. Commission on Narcotic Drugs of the Economic and Social Council

11. It is considered that the direct meeting costs of the Commission on Narcotic Drugs could be included in the assessment figure. Although the Secretary-General realizes that the Commission does not deal solely with items relating to the international agreements on narcotic drugs, it is pointed out that only the direct costs would be included, and not the indirect costs of servicing the meetings.

E. Economic and Social Council

12. The Secretary-General would find it difficult for the time being to attribute any of the particular costs of the meetings of the Economic and Social Council to the international agreements as against the United Nations' own responsibilities.

13. It is further noted that the international instruments on narcotic drugs place upon the World Health Organization certain obligations resulting in expenses for that organization. Although final agreement has not been reached with WHO on this matter, it would appear that the most simple administrative approach would be for the United Nations to include in its calculations the expenses of WHO directly relating to the above obligations and then turn over to WHO its share of the collections.

14. Based on the 1951 budget estimates, an application of the principles set out in the two paragraphs above would give an assessment base figure of about $US 200,000 against which non-member States could be assessed their fair share. However, in keeping with the practice of the League of Nations in this respect, the Secretary-General proposes that any assessment might be carried out on an actual expense basis; in other words, in 1951 the Secretary-General would assess the non-member States for their fair share of the 1950 expenses.

15. There still remains the question of the scale according to which the non-member States should be assessed. In this connexion the Secretary-General, in his first report to the fourth session, suggested that the General Assembly might consider two methods of assessment:

(a) To follow the method used in assessing the contribution of non-member States to the expenses of the International Court of Justice, whereby the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Committee on Contributions, establishes the percentage contribution to be paid, this assessment being based on the same principles as are used for the assessment of Member States in apportioning the expenses of the United Nations;

(b) To divide the signatories to the various international agreements on narcotic drugs which are not Members of the United Nations into broad groups according to relative capacity to pay, as might be determined on a general basis with the statistical information on hand, and assess a flat sum for each group each year, depending on the estimated expenses concerned.

Although the Secretary-General in the same report suggested a development of method (b), he recommended the application of that method only as an interim measure until such time as the Committee on Contributions could consider the assessments. The Secretary-General now suggests that method (b) might be eliminated as a possibility, and that the question of the scale or rate of assessment on the non-member States might be referred to the Committee on Contributions for consideration at its next regular session, on the understanding that the recommendations of the Committee would be applied to the 1950 expenses. As the non-member States have no vote on the matter, and as the method adopted for contributions by non-members to the International Court of Justice provides for consultation with those non-members on the rate of assessments, use of this method would avoid any question of action having been taken without due representation of the parties affected.

16. When seeking payment of contributions from non-member States, the Secretary-General would be guided by the resolutions of the General Assembly regulating the relationship with these States.

17. The Secretary-General proposes the following draft resolution for adoption by the General Assembly :

EXPENSES RESULTING FROM OBLIGATIONS PLACED ON THE UNITED NATIONS BY INSTRUMENTS RELATING TO THE CONTROL OF NARCOTIC DRUGS : ASSESSMENTS OF NON-MEMBER STATES SIGNATORIES OF THOSE INSTRUMENTS

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General to the fifth session of the General Assembly on the question of assessment of signatories of international instruments relating to the control of narcotic drugs, which are non-members of the United Nations, for their fair share of expenses resulting from obligations placed on the United Nations by those instruments,

Approves the principle proposed by the Secretary-General for determining the expenses to be considered as assessable on such non-members;

Requests the Committee on Contributions to determine the rates at which such non-members should be assessed by the same method as that followed in determining the assessment of non-members which are parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice for their share of the expenses of the Court;

Directs the Secretary-General to seek payment of such amounts as are determined by the method established above in respect of the 1950 expenses and those of future years.

Ninth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[26 October 1950]

1. In accordance with a decision taken by the Fifth Committee at its 247th meeting on 13 October 1950, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the report submitted by the Secretary-General (A/1418) on the assessment of non-members of the United Nations, signatories of the Convention of 19 February 1925 relating to narcotic drugs, for their share of the expenses of the Permanent Central Opium Board.

2. In requesting the Secretary-General to study, and make recommendations on, the above question (resolution 353 (IV) of 24 November 1949), the General Assembly directed that he should have regard not only to the total expenses incurred in connexion with the international administration of narcotic drugs, but also to other functions or powers for which non-members of the United Nations share responsibility under existing treaties.

3. The Advisory Committee takes note that, apart from the expenditure for the international administration of narcotic drugs, the Secretary-General does not recommend any further assessments on non-members of the United Nations in respect of expenses arising out of international treaties.

4. In paragraph 7 of his report, the Secretary-General has enumerated the items (A, B, C and D) which, under his recommendation, would comprise the aggregate figure of assessable expenditure in respect of the international administration of narcotic drugs. The Advisory Committee concurs in this recommendation, as well as in the provisional recommendation in paragraph 8, which relates to similar expenses incurred by the World Health Organization.

5. As regards the scale of assessment to be applied to non-members of the United Nations, the Committee considers that method (a) proposed by the Secretary-General in paragraph 10 of his report is an equitable one. Under this method, the scale of assessment to be recommended by the Committee on Contributions would be applied retroactively in respect of the 1950 expenses.

6. The Advisory Committee therefore recommends for adoption the draft resolution submitted by the Secretary-General (A/1418, para. 12).

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English]
[10 November 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 258th meeting held on 31 October 1950, considered the question of assessment of non-members of the United Nations which are signatories of the Convention of 19 February 1925 relating to narcotic drugs. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 353 (IV), the Secretary-General had submitted for the consideration of the General Assembly a report (A/1418) embodying the results of a comprehensive study of this question, regard being had to the total expenses incurred in connexion with the international administration of narcotic drugs and of such other functions or powers, the responsibility for which is shared by non-members of the United Nations under existing treaties. In addition to the report of the Secretary-General, the Fifth Committee had before it the observations thereon of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1461).

2. The Fifth Committee was informed that, exclusive of the costs relating to international administration in the field of narcotic drugs and the costs of the International Court of Justice which are already assessed in part against non-members of the United Nations, the Secretary-General was not able to select any expenses resulting from international treaties in respect of which he considered that he could recommend an assessment on non-member States. In the case, however, of international administration in the field of narcotic drugs, the view was expressed by the Secretary-General that, in addition to direct meeting and secretariat costs of the Permanent Central Opium Board, certain other costs enumerated in his report might reasonably be deemed to comprise assessable expenditure towards which non-member States might be asked to contribute. The Advisory Committee indicated its concurrence in the recommendation made by the Secretary-General with respect to such expenditure, as well as in his provisional recommendation that the United Nations should include in its calculations similar expenses incurred by the World Health Organization, on the understanding that, should these proposals be approved, the United Nations would turn over to the World Health Organization its share of such collections.

3. As regards the scale of assessment to be applied to non-members of the United Nations, the Advisory Committee expressed the opinion that the first of the alternative methods proposed by the Secretary-General would be an equitable one, namely, that the General Assembly, on the recommendation of the Committee on Contributions, should establish the percentage contribution to be paid, this assessment being based on the same principles as those which are being used for the assessment of Member States in apportioning the expenses of the United Nations (i.e., the method presently used in assessing contributions of non-member States to the expenses of the International Court of Justice). An assurance was given by the Secretary-General in his report that, when seeking payment of contributions from non-member States, he would be guided by the resolutions of the General Assembly regulating the relationships with those States.

4. The Fifth Committee approved without discussion or objection the recommendation by the Advisory Committee that the draft resolution as submitted by the Secretary-General for the purpose of giving effect to his proposals should be adopted.

5. Accordingly, the Fifth Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

EXPENSES RESULTING FROM OBLIGATIONS PLACED ON THE UNITED NATIONS BY INSTRUMENTS RELATING TO THE CONTROL OF NARCOTIC DRUGS : ASSESSMENT OF NON-MEMBER STATES SIGNATORIES OF THOSE INSTRUMENTS

The General Assembly,

Taking note of the report of the Secretary-General to the fifth session of the General Assembly on the question of assessment of signatories of international instruments relating to the control of narcotic drugs, which are non-members of the United Nations, for their fair share of expenses resulting from obligations placed on the United Nations by those instruments,

1. Approves the principle proposed by the Secretary-General for determining the expenses to be considered as assessable on such non-members;

2. Requests the Committee on Contributions to determine the rates at which such non-members should be assessed by the same method as that followed in determining the assessment of non-members which are parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice for their share of the expenses of the Court;

3. Directs the Secretary-General to seek payment of such amounts as are determined by the method established above in respect of the 1950 expenses and those of future years.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[26 September 1950]

1. The General Assembly, by resolution 342 (IV) adopted on 20 October 1949 :

(i) Took note of the report of the Secretary-General on the organization of a United Nations postal administration (A/988) ¹ and of the report of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1002) ²;

(ii) Requested the Secretary-General, in accordance with the provisions of resolution 232 (III) of 8 October 1948, to continue the preparation of necessary arrangements for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration;

(iii) Requested the Secretary-General to submit a new report on the matter to the General Assembly not later than the beginning of the fifth regular session.

2. In accordance with paragraph (ii) above, the Secretary-General has prepared, in consultation with the Government of the United States of America, a draft agreement for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration. A copy of the draft agreement is attached hereto as Annex 1.

3. The proposed agreement is similar in its terms to an existing agreement between the Swiss Government and the Principality of Liechtenstein. Provision is made for the Post Office Department of the United States of America to perform all of the usual postal services on behalf of the United Nations postal administration, using United Nations postage stamps, subject to terms of reimbursement for such services as stipulated in the agreement. The United Nations would operate a separate agency for the sale of United Nations postage stamps for philatelic purposes, retaining all revenue derived from such philatelic sales for its own use.

4. In the course of negotiations with the Government of the United States of America, the Secretary-General considered two alternate plans involving,

(a) Assumption by the United Nations of full responsibility for operating a United Nations postal administration to provide either the normal postal service or a limited postal service, based upon estimates contained in document A/988, or

¹ See Official Records of the General Assembly, Fourth Session, Fifth Committee, Annex, vol. I, p. 140.

² Ibid., p. 144.

(b) An agreement similar to the Swiss-Liechtenstein contract.

Because of numerous administrative difficulties foreseeable in plan (a) and confirmed in subsequent negotiations with the Government of the United States of America, plan (b) is submitted as the more practical and workable arrangement for operating a United Nations postal administration in conformity with paragraph (ii) of resolution 232 (III).

5. A United Nations postal administration operated in accordance with the terms of the proposed agreement would, in the conduct of its postal services, observe the provisions of the Universal Postal Union convention and regulations in the same manner as any branch post office operated by the Government of the United States of America. Its relationship with the Universal Postal Union from the postal point of view would be in accordance with the resolution adopted by the Executive and Liaison Commission of the Universal Postal Union meeting in Locarno in October 1948 (A/988).

6. In the course of discussions with representatives of the United States of America, it was specifically recognized that implementation of several provisions contained in the proposed agreement would require considerable administrative and detailed operational adjustment. Many of the problems can best be resolved on the basis of actual experience. For example, without some basis derived from results it is difficult to arrive at an exact formula for division of revenue as between postage stamps sold for philatelic purposes and for use on mail matter (section 3 of the draft agreement). Under this provision stamps sold specifically for philatelic purposes might possibly be diverted for use on mail matter and, conversely, stamps sold specifically for mailing purposes might be diverted to philatelic purposes. These two possibilities bear on the operational problem of ascertaining the intent of the purchasers as between the United Nations Post Office Station and the philatelic agency. Because of operational problems of this nature, section 8, sub-section (ii) of the draft agreement provides that one or both of the parties concerned may request a revision of some parts of the agreement after one year of experience in actual operation.

7. Estimated costs of the United Nations postal administration pursuant to the proposed agreement would be incurred mainly for the salaries of a small staff to direct the philatelic agency, initial designing and printing of postage stamps and conducting normal business relations with the Post Office Department of the United States of America. The Secretariat would, however, continue its present internal postal services concerned with the internal collection and distribution of mail and the packaging and preparation of mail to be posted at the United Nations post office (as operated by the Post Office Department of the United States of America). A detailed estimate of operating costs for the first year is given below. Excluding staff costs given in (a), expenditures may well be reduced in subsequent years of operation.

	US dollars
(a) Staff costs (salaries) for the philatelic agency. This estimate is based on gross salaries at appropriate grades and steps and includes provision for pertinent allowances	40,000
(b) Travel and miscellaneous expenditures incident to completion of preparatory arrangements in collaboration with the Post Office Department of the United States of America and to the establishment of administrative relationship with the Universal Postal Union	3,000
(c) Cost of printing postage stamps for official mail, private mail posted by delegations, Secretariat and visiting public in the Headquarters Building, including also $5,000 for the expenses of an international competition for United Nations stamp designs, if required	15,000
(d) Cost of printing stamps for philatelic sales, and other incidental expenses relative to the operation of a philatelic sales agency, not including staff costs, after denominations and designs have been decided upon. It should be noted that some of these costs will be non-recurring, depending upon the popularity of the first issues with philatelists. If, however, there is justification for changes in stamp designs, such charges would require new engravings and added printing costs	25,000

8. It is estimated that the United Nations Postal Administration may expect revenue from sales of stamps by the philatelic agency amounting to approximately $ 300,000 in the first year, leaving a net revenue of $217,000. These estimates, however, are necessarily somewhat speculative.

9. The question of adopting suitable postage stamp designs for various denominations of United Nations stamps will doubtless be of concern to all Members, and perhaps non-members, of the United Nations. The rather wide field of possible designs appropriate to the United Nations is likely, in the opinion of the Secretary-General, to invite a corresponding variety of opinions as to the propriety or significance of designs which may be adopted unless an approved procedure is established prior to issuance. The Secretary-General therefore requests that he be authorized, on adoption of the proposed United States-United Nations Postal Agreement, to constitute or designate a representative body empowered by the General Assembly to give final approval to designs for United Nations postage stamps.

10. By virtue of the plan of operation envisaged in the proposed draft agreement whereby the Post Office Department of the United States of America will perform all normal postal services on behalf of the United Nations postal administration, it has not been necessary to expend any of the sum of $ US 10,000 provided in the 1950 budget for consultant services.

11. It is estimated that a period of six months will be required to put into operation a United Nations postal administration after the approval and execution of the United States-United Nations Postal Agreement.

12. The following draft resolution is submitted for the consideration of the General Assembly, should it decide to proceed with the organization of a United Nations Postal Administration on the basis of the foregoing arrangements.

ORGANIZATION OF A UNITED NATIONS POSTAL ADMINISTRATION

The General Assembly,

Referring to resolutions 232 (III) of 8 October 1948 and 342 (IV) of 20 October 1949, adopted at its third and fourth regular sessions respectively, and in particular to paragraphs 2 and 3 of resolution 342 (IV), and

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the organization of a United Nations Postal Administration and the observations thereon submitted by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,³

1. Takes note of the draft agreement between the United States of America and the United Nations for the establishment of a United Nations Postal Administration in conformity with the Headquarters Agreement;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to proceed with the conclusion of the aforesaid agreement and with the necessary arrangements for the establishment of a United Nations Postal Administration at the earliest possible date consistent with sound administrative arrangements;

3. Authorizes the Secretary-General to appoint a committee which shall be empowered to give final approval to designs for United Nations postage stamps;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly, not later than the beginning of its seventh regular session, a comprehensive report on the establishment and operations of the United Nations Postal Administration.

³ The observations of the Advisory Committee were issued later as document A/1453.

Eighth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text: English]
[19 October 1950]

1. In accordance with a decision taken by the Fifth Committee at its 247th meeting on 13 October 1950, the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the report submitted by the Secretary-General on the organization of a United Nations postal administration (A/1394/Rev.1).

2. The Committee takes note that, under the terms of General Assembly resolution 342 (IV), paragraph 2, the Secretary-General has proposed the establishment of a United Nations postal administration on the basis set forth in the draft agreement annexed to his report mentioned above.

3. The draft agreement provides, inter alia :

(a) That the United States Post Office Department will provide, on behalf of the United Nations postal administration, "all the services offered by any United States Post Office having comparable operations", subject to the terms of compensation stipulated in the draft agreement (sections 1 (ii) and 3 (i));

(b) That the United Nations Post Office will use only United Nations postage stamps (section 1 (ii));

(c) That the United Nations may operate a separate philatelic agency for the sale of United Nations postage stamps for philatelic purposes, and that all revenue from such sales will be retained by the Organization (section 3 (ii));

(d) That the United Nations will furnish the necessary postage stamps free of charge to the United Nations Post Office, together with postmarking stamps (section 3 (i) and 4);

(e) That the United Nations will provide at its own expense the necessary premises, custodial services and utilities (section 5);

(f) That the United States Post Office Department will provide at its own expense all staff, equipment and other services and facilities necessary for the operation of the United Nations Post Office (section 6).

4. The estimate submitted by the Secretary-General for the operation of the United Nations postal administration shows that expenditure will amount in the first full year to $ US 83,000 and to a somewhat lower figure in subsequent years. Offsetting revenue from the sale of stamps for philatelic purposes is tentatively estimated at $ US 300,000 in the first year.

5. The Advisory Committee believes that the proposed plan is well conceived and that, apart from other considerations, the United Nations will derive advantage in terms of publicity from the issue of special postage stamps. Accordingly, the Committee recommends for adoption the draft resolution submitted by the Secretary-General (A/1394/Rev.1, para. 12).

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[14 November 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 258th meeting held on 31 October 1950, considered the question of the organization of a United Nations postal administration.

2. The Committee had before it the report (A/1394/Rev.1) requested of the Secretary-General by General Assembly resolution 342 (IV), which instructed him to continue with the preparation of the necessary arrangements for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration in accordance with the terms of resolution 232 (III), and to submit a new report on the matter to the General Assembly not later than the beginning of the fifth regular session. In his report the Secretary-General informed the General Assembly that, pursuant to its instructions, he had prepared, in consultation with the Government of the United States of America, a draft agreement (see annex) for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration which provided, inter alia :

(a) That the United States Post Office Department would provide, on behalf of the United Nations postal administration, "all the services offered by any United States Post Office having comparable operations", subject to the terms of compensation stipulated in the draft agreement (sections 1 (ii) and 3 (i));

(b) That the United Nations Post Office would use only United Nations postage stamps (section 1 (ii));

(c) That the United Nations might operate a separate philatelic agency for the sale by mail of United Nations postage stamps for philatelic purposes, and that all revenue from such sales would be retained by the Organization (section 3 (ii));

(d) That the United Nations would furnish the necessary postage stamps free of charge to the United Nations Post Office, together with postmarking stamps (sections 3 (i) and 4);

(e) That the United Nations would provide at its own expense the necessary premises, custodial services and utilities (section 5);

(f) That the United States Post Office Department would provide at its own expense all staff, equipment and other services and facilities necessary for the operation of the United Nations Post Office (section 6).

It was explained that, in view of the numerous administrative difficulties foreseeable under the plan which had originally been considered (i. e., for the United Nations to assume full responsibility for operating its own postal administration) a more practical and workable arrangement, which would nevertheless be in conformity with paragraph (2) of General Assembly resolution 232 (III), had been negotiated.

3. The estimates submitted by the Secretary-General for the operation of a United Nations postal administration on the proposed basis indicated that expenditure would amount in the first full year to $83,000 and to a somewhat lower figure in subsequent years. Offsetting revenue from the sale of stamps for philatelic purposes was tentatively estimated at $300,000 for the first year. Postal expenses would, of course, still require to be provided for under section 18 of the budget estimates, to the amount of approximately $180,000.

4. In addition to the report of the Secretary-General, the Fifth Committee also had before it the eighth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1453), which expressed the view that the proposed plan was well conceived in that (a) it offered substantial advantages in terms of publicity for the United Nations; (b) was administratively simple since actual postal services would be entrusted to those most competent to carry them out, i. e. the officials of the United States Post Office Department; and (c) some revenue would accrue to the Organization. Accordingly, the Advisory Committee recommended for adoption the draft resolution submitted by the Secretary-General.

5. In the course of discussion in the Fifth Committee it was stated by the Chairman of the Advisory Committee and by the representative of the Secretary-General that the plan applied for the time being solely to the United Nations Headquarters, although it was hoped that in due course similar arrangements might be extended to other United Nations offices and to the specialized agencies.

6. Several delegations urged that extreme care be exercised in connexion with the operations of the philatelic agency to avoid placing the United Nations in a situation which would be incompatible with its dignity and prestige. Attention was also called to the danger of flooding the market with United Nations stamps, with a consequent depreciation of their face value and loss of revenue to the Organization. The Committee was assured on behalf of the Secretary-General that the position in this respect would be carefully watched.

7. A number of delegations, while generally approving the terms of the draft agreement, expressed regret that, under article 3 (ii), the activities of the separate agency to be maintained by the United Nations for the sale of stamps for philatelic purposes would be limited to fulfilling orders received by mail. In the opinion of these delegations, the revenue which should accrue to the United Nations would be substantially decreased if the Organization were to be precluded from participating in direct sales of United Nations stamps to the public. Other delegations, however, while sympathizing with this point of view, stressed that it was specifically recognized in the agreement itself that implementation of several of its provisions would require considerable administrative and operational adjustment. Without some experience, for example, it was difficult to arrive at an exact formula for the division of revenue as between postage stamps sold for philatelic purposes and those sold for use on mail matter. Those stamps sold specifically for philatelic purposes (by the United Nations philatelic agency) might possibly be diverted for use on mail matter and, conversely, those sold specifically for mailing purposes (by the United Nations Post Office Station) might be diverted to philatelic use. Because of operational problems of this nature, article 8, paragraph (ii) of the draft agreement provided that one or both the parties concerned might request a review of some parts of the agreement after one year's experience of actual operation.

8. Subject to these comments, the Fifth Committee unanimously approved the provisions of a draft resolution taking note of the draft agreement between the United States of America and the United Nations for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration, requesting the Secretary-General to proceed with the conclusion of this agreement and with the necessary arrangements for establishing such an administration, authorizing him to appoint a committee to give final approval to designs for United Nations postage stamps, and requesting him to submit a comprehensive report on the actions taken not later than the beginning of the seventh regular session of the General Assembly.

9. The Fifth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolution :

ORGANIZATION OF A UNITED NATIONS POSTAL ADMINISTRATION

The General Assembly,

Referring to resolutions 232 (III) of 8 October 1948 and 342 (IV) of 20 October 1949, adopted at its third and fourth regular sessions respectively, and in particular to paragraphs 2 and 3 of resolution 342 (IV),

Having considered the report of the Secretary-General on the organization of a United Nations postal administration and the observations thereon submitted by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions,

1. Takes note of the annexed draft agreement⁴ between the United States of America and the United Nations for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration in conformity with the Headquarters Agreement;
2. Requests the Secretary-General to proceed with the conclusion of the aforesaid agreement and with the necessary arrangements for the establishment of a United Nations postal administration at the earliest possible date consistent with sound administrative arrangements;
3. Authorizes the Secretary-General to appoint a committee which shall be empowered to give final approval to designs for United Nations postage stamps;
4. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly, not later than the beginning of its seventh regular session, a comprehensive report on the establishment and operations of the United Nations postal administration.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[25 October 1950]

1. The General Assembly at its first session unanimately approved a recommendation from the Technical Advisory Committee on Information which said, in part :

“ The Department (of Public Information) should actively assist and encourage the use of radio broadcasting for the dissemination of information about the United Nations. To this end it should, in the first instance, work in close co-operation with radio broadcasting organizations of the Members. The United Nations should also have its own radio broadcasting station or stations with the necessary wave-lengths for communication both with Members and with branch offices, and for the origination of United Nations programmes. The station might also be used as a centre for national broadcasting systems which desire to co-operate in the international field. The scope of the radio broadcasting activities of the United Nations should be determined after consultation with national radio broadcasting organizations. ” (Resolution 13 (I), annex 1.)

2. A comprehensive plan designed to give effect to the above recommendations was prepared during 1947 by a Committee of radio experts and presented to the General Assembly at its second regular session (A/335)¹. Consideration of the question of a United Nations telecommunications system was deferred, however, until the third regular session when the General Assembly, on 18 November 1948, adopted resolution 240 (III), in which it :

(a) Approved in principle the establishment of a United Nations telecommunications system;

(b) Reaffirmed the United Nations position as an operating agency in the field of international telecommunications and called upon all Member Governments to support at all international telecommunications conferences the requirements of the United Nations for frequencies and services envisaged in the report of the Advisory Committee on United Nations Telecommunications (A/335);

(c) Authorized the Secretary-General to present to the General Assembly at its regular session of 1950 such recommendations as he deemed necessary to implement a United Nations telecommunications system.

3. Resolution 240 (III), for the purposes of implementation, raises two problems: (a) that of the physical requirements of the United Nations for radio broadcasting and "point-to-point" facilities; and (b) that of obtaining allocation of United Nations wave-lengths, etc., so that United Nations services can operate independently of national frequency assignments. In considering his recommendations concerning United Nations requirements for telecommunications facilities, as well as the present report on the progress of negotiations concerning frequency assignments, the Secretary-General has felt that a primary consideration to be borne in mind is that these two problems are closely inter-related; that is to say, continuance of present United Nations radio services, or of services in any way comparable thereto in scope and coverage, cannot be fully assured unless the Organization is able to make use of its own frequencies. It can only do this, and at the same time safeguard its claim to those frequencies, to the extent that it is able to find ways and means of acquiring certain minimal broadcasting facilities of its own. In consequence, in formulating his recommendations pursuant to resolution 240 (III), the Secretary-General has assumed that Member Governments are desirous of placing the United Nations radio services on a firm and continuing basis if an efficient plan can be developed without prohibitive financial implications.

A. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR A UNITED NATIONS TELECOMMUNICATIONS PLAN

4. In addition to making provision for radio broadcasting facilities, a comprehensive telecommunications plan should take account of the need for "point-to-point" facilities for written record and telephone traffic between United Nations Headquarters, overseas offices and missions in the field. The Secretary-General has been studying this latter problem in connexion with the requirements of the Field Service and with the traffic requirements between Headquarters and overseas offices and missions. Although such a communications system was originally contemplated, it is not proposed that any attempt should be made at this time to proceed with its development since, for the time being, existing commercial facilities appear to be sufficient and the present volume of traffic would not warrant the additional expenditure involved. The following proposals, therefore, are concerned with the question of broadcasting facilities only.

5. In the opinion of the Secretary-General, the developments of the last few years have demonstrated beyond reasonable doubt the necessity for the United Nations to have at its disposal at least minimal broadcasting facilities under United Nations control and capable of reaching all Member States. It may be noted that almost twenty years ago at a time when international broadcasting was in its infancy, the League of Nations had the foresight and the wisdom to secure its own facilities. Today, when international broadcasting has become a major instrument of international communication, its value to an international organization responsible for world peace will hardly be questioned.

6. The original plan proposed in 1947 called for a comprehensive world-wide communications network to be constructed by the United Nations at an estimated cost of $ US 9 million. In terms of present procurement costs, the figure to implement such a plan today would be in the neighbourhood of $ US 16 million. Obviously, expenditure on such a scale could not be seriously considered at this time. Moreover, the short-wave spectrum is now so crowded that there would be no practical possibility of obtaining the necessary number of frequencies to operate the facilities envisaged in these original recommendations.

7. The modified plan now presented proposes the construction by the United Nations of minimal facilities only, to be used for services of special priority and services to areas which cannot be effectively or appropriately served by the use of available national facilities. In all other respects, the United Nations would continue to depend for a substantial part of its requirements on facilities leased or loaned from Member States. In this connexion, it should be stated that it is impossible to reach all parts of the world with transmitters located in the proximity of the United Nations Headquarters. Some relay point is therefore necessary and, for technical reasons, North Africa would be the most desirable location for relay purposes.

8. The procurement is proposed, therefore, of one 200-kilowatt transmitter in the New York area, which can be operated separately as two 100-kilowatt transmitters or in combination as one 200-kilowatt transmitter. This transmitter would be equipped with antennas beamed on Europe, Africa and Latin America. The relay installation in North Africa would consist of two 50-kilowatt transmitters with antennas directed to South Africa, Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

9. In order to minimize construction and operating costs, it is proposed that these facilities should be operated under a maintenance and service contract by an outside contractor. This would eliminate the costly purchase of land and construction of new buildings to house the transmitter facilities.

10. It is estimated that 50 per cent of the present United Nations broadcast schedule could be accommodated on these facilities. The operating costs under a maintenance and service contract would be comparable to the costs involved for an equal amount of time on the nationally operated facilities which have been used in accordance with the General Assembly's budgetary authorizations in the past. These installations could also be used as an emergency communications system to link United Nations Headquarters with missions in the field.

11. It should be noted that the proposed plan conforms to all the telecommunications provisions in article II, section 4, of the agreement between the United Nations and the United States of America [General Assembly resolution 169 (II)] regarding the Headquarters of the United Nations. Before the equipment was placed in service, all necessary co-ordinating action would be taken with the appropriate regulatory bodies of Member States concerning frequencies, operating procedures and engineering practices. It is felt that the facilities proposed would, in terms of efficiency, be comparable to the best in the world today.

12. The total estimated capital cost for this plan is estimated at $ US 1,983,000. It is proposed that the Secretary-General should be empowered to explore the possibilities for and to accept voluntary contributions and/or donations for the implementation of the plan.

13. It is estimated that annual operational costs will amount in 1953 to $61,000 and in later years to $96,000. This latter amount will be practically offset by reductions in the cost of leased transmitting facilities which would amount, on the basis of the 1951 budget as approved at first reading by the Fifth Committee, to approximately $95,290.

B. ALLOCATION OF WAVE-LENGTHS TO THE UNITED NATIONS

14. In March 1947, an agreement was reached between the United Nations and the Swiss Federal Government concerning the transfer to the United Nations of the rights and the use of certain frequencies (wave-lengths) formerly used by the League of Nations for its radio services and registered by the Swiss Federal Government at the Bureau of the International Telecommunications Union. This draft agreement was ratified by the Swiss Federal Government. The Bureau of the International Telecommunications Union was duly informed, in April 1947, of this agreement and was requested to reserve these former League of Nations wave-lengths for use by the United Nations. The final consummation of the agreement between the Swiss Government and the United Nations was held by the International Telecommunications Union to be dependent on the approval by the United Nations General Assembly of a United Nations telecommunications plan. This approval was given in principle by resolution 240 (III) adopted at the third session of the Assembly.

15. During the International Telecommunications Union Conference held in Atlantic City, New Jersey, in 1947, it was decided by the Conference to recognize the United Nations Secretariat as a special member of the Union, with all the rights and obligations of a full member of the Union, but without the right to vote. As a direct consequence of this decision, the United Nations has been able to participate in all subsequent meetings of the International Telecommunications Union concerned with international broadcast frequencies. Through participation in the technical committees of the ITU, the United Nations has been able to modify its original requirements in the light of existing conditions and on the basis of minimum requirements. The schedule of modified United Nations requirements has been duly registered with the Bureau of the International Telecommunications Union. All readjustments of the original United Nations requirements reached as a result of the ITU Conferences in Mexico City and Rapallo, Italy, have been acceptable to the United Nations.

16. The agreement between the Swiss Federal Government and the United Nations envisaged the transfer of six international high-frequency wave-lengths with exclusive rights and six others with subsidiary or joint priority. An assignment of joint priority means that the United Nations will share the wave-length with the Swiss Government and other member nations of the International Telecommunications Union. The modified requirements of the United Nations, however, do not envisage the necessity of using all these frequencies.

17. The United Nations has, for nearly four years, been entirely dependent on the generosity of one or two Member States for most of the facilities necessary to carry United Nations broadcasts. The provision of these frequencies to the United Nations has even been made at the expense of the national requirements of the countries concerned. While it is expected that the United Nations will be able to continue to lease some transmitting facilities from Member States, it has become evident that the Organization cannot continue to depend on one or two Member States to provide from their own national allotments all the frequencies required for United Nations services. If, therefore, the United Nations broadcasting services are to be maintained at their present state, the Organization is obliged to make use of its own frequencies. Furthermore, it will be recognized that the longer the Organization delays exercising its frequency claims, the more difficult it will become to assert these claims in practice.

18. A detailed technical study is now under way to determine what portion of United Nations broadcast schedules can be continued on national frequencies and what portion can be continued only by making use of frequencies registered in the name of the United Nations. It is the intention to make use of United Nations frequencies, where necessary, as of 1 May 1951.

19. If the proposals outlined in this report commend themselves to Members of the General Assembly, the Secretary-General will submit for their consideration the following draft resolution :

UNITED NATIONS TELECOMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM

The General Assembly,

1. Instructs the Secretary-General to proceed with the implementation of the proposals outlined in document A/1454 for a modified United Nations telecommunications system, provided that the capital expenditure involved does not constitute a net addition to the budget of the United Nations;

2. Authorizes the Secretary-General to accept for this purpose such voluntary contributions and/or donations as would be appropriate and necessary to carry out these proposals in whole or in part;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to report on this matter to the sixth regular session of the General Assembly.

DOCUMENT A/1492

Fifteenth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions on financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Secretary-General (A/1454)

[Original text: English]
[8 November 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered the financial implications of the draft resolution proposed by the Secretary-General (A/1454) on the subject of a United Nations telecommunications system.

2. By resolution 240 (III) of 18 November 1948, the General Assembly, while approving in principle the establishment of a United Nations telecommunications system, authorized the Secretary-General to present to the General Assembly at its fifth session the recommendations which he deemed necessary to implement such a system.

3. The total capital cost of the proposed plan is estimated at $1,983,000 (A/1454, para. 12), and the Secretary-General would be authorized under paragraph 2 of the draft resolution to accept "such voluntary contributions and/or donations as would be appropriate and necessary to carry out these proposals in whole or in part".

4. The Advisory Committee takes note that the proposed facilities would, it is estimated, accommodate 50 per cent of the present broadcasting schedule of the United Nations. On the basis of that schedule, no net addition to the budget in respect of the operating costs of the system ($96,000) is anticipated, since the Organization will dispense with certain transmitting facilities which at present entail rental charges of over $95,000.

5. The conditions governing the acceptance of donations or contributions must clearly be consonant with the dignity of the Organization and afford the necessary safeguards for the independent operation and security of the telecommunications system. Consequently, the Advisory Committee considers it desirable that, should the General Assembly approve the proposed plan, an interpretation of paragraph 2 of the draft resolution should be given for the guidance of the Secretary-General.

6. The observations which the Advisory Committee has offered in the preceding paragraphs are subject to the definitive decision of policy to be taken by the General Assembly. With this reservation, the Committee has reached the conclusion that the proposed plan would offer an appreciable advantage to the Organization.

DOCUMENT A/C.5/401

Note by the Secretary-General

[Original text: English]
[14 November 1950]

1. At the 263rd meeting of the Fifth Committee on 9 November 1950, further clarification was sought of the course of action intended by the Secretary-General in connexion with the implementation, if authorized, of the plan for a United Nations telecommunications system as outlined in document A/1454, dated 25 October 1950.

2. The Secretary-General wishes to reaffirm the statement made on his behalf to the Fifth Committee during the initial discussion of this plan, and previously to the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, to the effect that the integrity and dignity of the United Nations would be fully protected in every respect in connexion with the acceptance of any donations for this purpose.

3. The Secretary-General, furthermore, wishes to recall that the General Assembly, at its third session, authorized him to present to the General Assembly at its regular session in 1950 "such recommendations as he deemed necessary to implement a United Nations telecommunications system" [resolution 240 (III)]. While the experience gained has fully proved the urgent need for the establishment of such a system in order to protect the interests of the United Nations in the field of radio broadcasting, the financial implications were such that the Secretary-General hesitated to present proposals which would involve capital expenditure for the Organization amounting to several million dollars. Steps were therefore taken to explore the possibility of implementing a modified telecommunications plan through outside donations without incurring any capital expenditure for the Organization and within the present authorization for operational expenditure. While no formal negotiations have taken place, these informal explorations have indicated that possibilities exist of obtaining sufficient donations on the sole condition that they be used for the furtherance of United Nations interests in the field of broadcasting. The proposal for implementation called for in General Assembly resolution 240 (III) was thereafter worked out on the principles described above and as outlined in document A/1454.

4. In response to specific questions raised with regard to policies involved in the operation of the proposed telecommunications system and the principles underlying the acceptance of donations for its establishment, the Secretary-General wishes to state, without reservation, that it is not his intention to permit the United Nations telecommunications system at any time or in any way to be used for commercial purposes or for any other ends not in accordance with the specific interests of the Organization. It is therefore clear that no donation would be acceptable if any condition other than the furtherance of United Nations interests were attached.

5. To safeguard further the Organization's position and to dispel such doubts as might exist concerning future operational policies, the Secretary-General proposes the following amendment to replace paragraph 2 of the original draft resolution presented in document A/1454, paragraph 19 :

" Authorizes the Secretary-General to accept for this purpose such voluntary contributions and/or donations as would be appropriate and necessary to carry out these proposals in whole or in part, it being understood that any and all facilities or funds made available to the United Nations as a result of such voluntary gifts or contributions would become the exclusive property and be under the sole control of the United Nations. "

6. In addition to the explanation contained in document A/1454 regarding United Nations frequencies, the Secretary-General has pleasure in reporting that in all proposals presented to and considered by the International Telecommunications Union, United Nations frequency requirements necessary for the implementation of a United Nations telecommunications system have been fully recognized. The International Telecommunications Union has also accepted the United Nations as an operating broadcasting agency and a non-voting member of the ITU.

DOCUMENT A/1635

Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text : English]
[7 December 1950]

1. In accordance with instructions given by the General Assembly at its 285th plenary meeting, the Fifth Committee, at its 263rd and 274th meetings on 9 and 30 November 1950, considered recommendations submitted by the Secretary-General pursuant to the third paragraph of General Assembly resolution 240 (III) of 18 November 1948, for the implementation of a United Nations telecommunications system.

2. In addition to the proposals of the Secretary-General (A/1454) the Fifth Committee had before it the observations thereon of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions, as contained in its fifteenth report of 1950 (A/1492).

3. In resolution 240 (III), the General Assembly approved, in principle, the establishment of a United Nations telecommunications system, reaffirmed the United Nations as an operating agency in the field of international telecommunications, and authorized the Secretary-General to present to the fifth regular session such recommendations as he deemed necessary for the purpose of giving effect to the Assembly's decision. It was pointed out by the Secretary-General in his report that, in addition to making provision for radio broadcasting facilities, a comprehensive telecommunications plan should take account of the needs of " point-to-point " facilities for written record and telephone traffic between the United Nations Headquarters, overseas offices and missions in the field. The Secretary-General recommended, however, that the development of such facilities should not be proceeded with for the time being, since existing commercial arrangements appeared to be adequate, and the present volume of traffic would not warrant the additional expenditure involved. Accordingly, his proposals envisaged the construction by the United Nations of minimal broadcasting facilities only, to be used for services of special priority and services to areas which could not be effectively or appropriately served by the use of available national facilities. The procurement was proposed, therefore, of one 200-kilowatt transmitter in the New York area equipped with antennas beamed on Europe, Africa and Latin America, with a relay installation in North Africa consisting of two 50-kilowatt transmitters with antennas directed to South Africa, Europe, the Middle East and Asia. In order to minimize construction and operating costs, the Secretary-General proposed that these facilities should be operated under a maintenance and service contract by an outside contractor, in which event it was estimated that operating costs would be comparable to the costs involved for an equal amount of time on the nationally operated facilities presently in use. The new facilities to be acquired and operated by the United Nations would, it was estimated, accommodate 50 per cent of the present broadcasting schedule. On this basis it was anticipated that no net addition to the budget in respect of operating costs would be incurred, since the Organization would dispense with certain transmitting facilities which currently entail rental charges of over $95,000. The total estimated capital cost of the modified plan recommended by the Secretary-General was estimated at $1,983,000. The Secretary-General proposed that he should be authorized to accept for this purpose such voluntary contributions or donations as would be appropriate and necessary to carry out his suggestions in whole or in part. The General Assembly was further informed that in all proposals presented to and considered by the International Telecommunications Union, United Nations frequency requirements necessary for the implementation of the United Nations telecommunications system had been fully recognized, in addition to which, the International Telecommunications Union had accepted the United Nations as an operating broadcasting agency and a non-voting member of the Union.

4. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions expressed the view that the proposed plan would offer an appreciable advantage to the United Nations, subject, however, to the conditions governing the acceptance of donations or contributions being clearly consonant with the dignity of the Organization, and affording the necessary safeguards for the independent operation and security of the telecommunications system. Consequently, the Advisory Committee considered it desirable that the Secretary-General should be given clear guidance in this connexion should the General Assembly decide to approve the plan as recommended.

5. During the initial discussion of the Secretary-General's proposals at the 263rd meeting of the Fifth Committee, certain delegations, before taking a decision, asked the Secretary-General for additional information as to what negotiations, if any, were taking place, the nature of the voluntary contributions envisaged, and whether sponsored radio was in any way involved. In response to these requests, the Secretary-General submitted a further note (A/C.5/401), in which the Fifth Committee was assured that the integrity and dignity of the United Nations would be fully protected in every respect in connexion with the acceptance of any donations that might be offered for the purpose of implementing the proposed telecommunications plan. The Fifth Committee was advised that, while no formal negotiations had taken place, informal explorations had indicated that possibilities existed of obtaining sufficient donations on the sole condition that they be used for the furtherance of United Nations interests in the field of broadcasting. The Secretary-General wished, however, to state, without reservation, that it was not his intention to permit the United Nations telecommunications system at any time or in any way to be used for commercial purposes, or for any other ends not in accordance with the specific interests of the Organization. No donation, therefore, would be acceptable if any condition other than the furtherance of such interests were attached.

6. At the 274th meeting of the Fifth Committee these assurances were reaffirmed, including the assurance that approval of the Secretary-General's recommendations would not involve the United Nations in any additional or supplementary expenditure for either capital or operational purposes. It was further stated, on behalf of the Secretary-General, that the criteria of furthering exclusively the interests of the United Nations would preclude acceptance of any donation or contribution which carried with it any political, economic or moral obligation. With this understanding, the Fifth Committee unanimously approved a draft resolution instructing the Secretary-General to proceed with the implementation of the proposals as recommended.

7. The Fifth Committee, therefore, recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following resolution :

UNITED NATIONS TELECOMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM

The General Assembly,

1. Instructs the Secretary-General to proceed with the implementation of the proposals outlined in document A/1454 for a modified United Nations telecommunications system, provided that the capital expenditure involved does not constitute a net addition to the budget of the United Nations;

2. Authorizes the Secretary-General to accept for this purpose such voluntary contributions and/or donations as would be appropriate and necessary to carry out these proposals in whole or in part, it being understood that any and all facilities or funds made available to the United Nations as a result of such voluntary gifts or contributions would become the exclusive property and be under the sole control of the United Nations;

3. Requests the Secretary-General to report on this matter to the sixth session of the General Assembly.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[22 August 1950]

1. Pursuant to resolution 369 (IV), adopted by the General Assembly on 3 December 1949, a United Nations Conference on the Declaration of Death of Missing Persons was convened and met at Lake Success, New York, from 15 March to 6 April 1950.

2. As a result of the deliberations of the Conference and of a Drafting Committee appointed by it, the Conference established and opened for accession by States the Convention on the Declaration of Death of Missing Persons (A/CONF.1/9).

3. Article 8, paragraph 1, of this Convention provides that :

“1. There shall be established within the framework of the United Nations an international bureau for declarations of death. The Secretary-General of the United Nations shall determine its seat, composition, organization and method of operation.”

The functions and procedures of this Bureau are set forth in articles 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 of the Convention.

Article 15 of the Convention states that :

“ The establishment of the International Bureau provided for in article 8 shall require the approval of the General Assembly of the United Nations. ”

4. Although the Convention has not yet come into force¹ the Secretary-General suggests that it would be advisable for the General Assembly, at its current session, to determine whether to approve the establishment of the International Bureau for Declarations of Death. Approval by the General Assembly, together with the necessary budget authorization, would enable the Secretary-General to establish the Bureau as soon as the Convention comes into force. A decision in regard to the Bureau would also be of assistance to interested States in determining whether to accede to the Convention.

5. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the Secretary-General will submit to the Fifth Committee (Administrative and Budgetary) Committee an estimate of expenditures that might be anticipated should the establishment of the Bureau be approved by the General Assembly and should the Convention enter into force. Meanwhile, it should be noted that the time of the establishment of such a Bureau would be governed by the date when the Convention came into force. The work which would devolve upon the International Bureau for Declarations of Death arises from the terms of articles 8, 9 and 10 of the Convention which require the Bureau to establish a central registry; to receive authenticated copies of declarations of death of missing persons; to communicate with tribunals in respect of situations specified in articles 9 and 10; and to publish periodically lists of applications, final decisions and certificates. Hence, the main expenditures would be in connexion with the maintenance of a very small staff (registrar and appropriate assistants) and adequate provision for stationery, postage and printing. The amount of correspondence, registry work, and contractual printing involved would depend upon the number of accessions to the Convention. It is difficult to estimate at this time the financial provision which would have to be made for a full year of operation, but it is expected that a sum of about $50,000 would suffice.

Financial implications of the establishment of an international bureau for declarations of death : report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[25 October 1950]

In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the following estimates of expenditures in connexion with the establishment of an international bureau for declarations of death (A/1329) is submitted below, on the assumption that the location of the Bureau will be at the United Nations office at Geneva and that the Convention on the Declaration of Death of Missing Persons will come into force in 1951.

	US dollars
Established posts	31,000
Communications services	10,000
Travel on official business	2,000
Contractual printing	7,000
TOTAL	50,000

1. Established posts—$31,000

As defined by the terms of articles 8, 9 and 10 of the Convention on the Declaration of Death of Missing Persons (A/CONF.1/9) the work of the International Bureau would be to establish a central registry, to receive authenticated copies of declarations of death of missing persons, to communicate with tribunals in respect of situations specified in Articles 9 and 10, and to publish periodically lists of applications, final decisions and certificates. On this basis, it would be necessary to have a Registrar, one assistant-Registrar and three secretarial and clerical staff members. The salaries in 1951, plus related common staff costs, would amount to $31,000.

2. Communications services—$10,000

The Registry will have to be in constant touch with competent tribunals in various countries by mail and by cable or long distance telephone service.

3. Travel on official business—$2,000

It will be necessary for the Registrar to travel on official business to other countries in Europe or to report at Headquarters.

4. Contractual printing—$7,000

The periodic publications will have to be printed and communicated to various parties and to the tribunals concerned. Provision is made for the equivalent of 270 pages of English text in any two languages.

The above estimates relate to one full year of operation of the International Bureau for Declarations of Death.

Financial implications of the establishment of an international bureau for declarations of death : fourteenth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text : English]
[6 November 1950]

1. The Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions has considered a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/390) on the financial implications of the establishment of an international bureau for declarations of death in accordance with the terms of article 8, paragraph 1, of the Convention on the Declaration of Death of Missing Persons (A/CONF.1/9).

2. Article 14, paragraph 1, of the Convention provides that it shall come into force thirty days after accession to it by two States. The Advisory Committee was informed that no accessions have yet been received.

3. The estimate submitted by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/390) in accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, is based on the assumption that the Convention will come into force during 1951. The total of $50,000 covering a period of twelve months comprises :

	US dollars
Established posts (including related common staff costs)	31,000
Communications services	10,000
Travel on official business	2,000
Contractual printing	7,000

4. The Advisory Committee considers that, in view of the nature of the communications to be addressed to tribunals, the bulk of the expenditure related to communications services go towards letter postage. A reduction of at least $5,000 is therefore recommended.

5. The Advisory Committee recommends that, since certain of the functions of the International Bureau might be performed by existing staff members—and more particularly the functions of the Deputy Registrar—no personnel should be recruited until a need is clearly established. It considers that the estimate for established posts should be reduced by $5,000 to a total of $26,000. Furthermore, the date for the establishment of the Bureau cannot be foreseen, and it is therefore recommended that provision should be made under the resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund for the withdrawal from the Fund of a sum not exceeding $40,000, should it be required during 1951.

6. The Convention is open for accession not only on behalf of Members of the United Nations, but also on behalf of non-member States which are parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice and other non-member States to which an invitation is addressed, upon their request, by the Economic and Social Council (article 13). The Advisory Committee therefore recommends that the expenses of the International Bureau should be assessed upon such non-member States following the principle adopted in connexion with the expenses of the International Court of Justice, the amount of the assessment being fixed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Committee on Contributions.

Report of the Fifth Committee

[13 November 1950]*

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure and with the request of the President of the General Assembly in his letter of 25 October 1950 to the Chairman of the Fifth Committee (A/C.5/391), the Fifth Committee, at its 263rd meeting held on 9 November 1950, considered the financial implications of the proposed establishment of an international bureau for declarations of death, as provided for in article 8 of the Convention on the Declaration of Death of Missing Persons.

2. The Committee had before it a report by the Secretary-General (A/C.5/390) in which it was informed that, on the assumption that the proposed Bureau would be located at the United Nations Office at Geneva, and that the Convention would come into force in 1951, the establishment of the Bureau would involve an estimated expenditure for one full year of operation of $50,000, comprising $31,000 for established posts, $10,000 for communications services, $2,000 for travel on official business and $7,000 for contractual printing.

3. In its fourteenth report of 1950 (A/1489) the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions expressed the opinion that the estimates, as submitted by the Secretary-General, should be reduced by $10,000 ($5,000 from the amount appropriated for established posts, and $5,000 from communications services) in view of the probability that the bulk of anticipated expenditure under the latter heading would be for letter postage, and that it considered certain of the functions of the Bureau might be performed by existing staff members, more particularly the functions of the Deputy Registrar. The Advisory Committee also recommended that no personnel should be recruited until a need was clearly established. On behalf of the Secretary-General, the Committee was assured that this recommendation would be strictly adhered to. Moreover, since the date of the establishment of the Bureau could not at present be foreseen, the Advisory Committee suggested that, in the event of funds being required during 1951, provision should be made under the resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund for the withdrawal, for this purpose, of a sum not exceeding $40,000. Noting that the Convention is open for accession not only to Members of the United Nations, but also to non-member States, which are parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice and other non-member States to which an invitation is addressed, upon their request, by the Economic and Social Council, the Advisory Committee further recommended that the expenses of the International Bureau should be assessed on such non-member States in accordance with the principle adopted in connexion with the expenses of the International Court of Justice, the amount of the assessment being fixed by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Committee on Contributions.

4. Following a clarification of certain points relating to the provisions of the Convention and the intentions of the Secretary-General with regard to the establishment and administration of the proposed Bureau, the recommendations of the Advisory Committee, with which the Secretary-General concurred, were approved by 32 votes to none, with 10 abstentions.

5. The Fifth Committee therefore decided to inform the General Assembly :

(a) That the establishment of an international bureau for declarations of death, in accordance with the terms of article 8 of the Convention on Declaration of Death of Missing Persons, would involve an estimated expenditure, on the basis of a full year's operation, of $40,000;

(b) That, in the event of funds being required during 1951, for this purpose, provision should be made under the resolution relating to the Working Capital Fund for the withdrawal from the Fund of a sum not exceeding $40,000;

(c) That the expenses of the International Bureau should be assessed upon such non-member States as may become parties to the Convention, in accordance with the principle adopted in this respect in connexion with the expenses of the International Court of Justice.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[11 September 1950]

A. INTRODUCTION

1. In paragraph 34 of its report to the fourth session of the General Assembly the Special Committee on Methods and Procedures¹ drew the attention of the Assembly to the question of the majority needed in plenary meetings for the adoption of amendments relating to proposals on questions which, by virtue of Article 18 of the Charter, are to be decided upon by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting. The question was also raised of the majority required in cases where the General Assembly, before voting on proposals requiring a two-thirds majority as a whole, proceeds to separate votes on parts of these proposals.

2. The Special Committee noted that "existing rules of procedure do not indicate whether amendments to proposals requiring a two-thirds majority for adoption also have to satisfy the same requirement. Nor do they state whether or not, when proposals are voted in parts, each part requires a two-thirds majority for adoption". In view of "the difficulties which arose in the past in this connexion and the particular importance of this question, which relates to the application and the interpretation of Article 18, paragraphs 2 and 3, of the Charter", the Special Committee recommended that this problem should be examined by the General Assembly with particular care and a final decision reached only on the basis of a thorough legal analysis. The report of the Special Committee also mentioned a suggestion of the representative of Belgium that a request to the International Court of Justice for an advisory opinion might be envisaged.

3. The question was examined at the 156th and 157th meetings of the Sixth Committee.² By 28 votes to 7, with 14 abstentions, the Sixth Committee recommended to the General Assembly the adoption of a new rule of procedure [rule 76 (a)], originally proposed by the representative of Belgium, worded as follows :³

² See Official Records of the fourth session of the General Assembly, Sixth Committee, p. 85-93.

³ A/C.6/L.22 : incorporated in the summary record of the 156th meeting, paragraph 65. Ibid., Sixth Committee, p. 86. See also report of the Sixth Committee, A/1026. Ibid., Plenary meetings, Annexes.

“ Decisions of the General Assembly on amendments bearing on proposals relating to important questions, and on parts of such proposals put to the vote separately, shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the Members present and voting.”

In view of this decision, a proposal by the representative of France to request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion was not put to the vote.

4. The report of the Sixth Committee on matters arising out of the report of the Special Committee on Methods and Procedures was examined by the General Assembly at its 235th and 236th plenary meetings. The representative of Australia introduced an amendment ⁴ (a) to delete new rule 76 (a); and (b) to add a paragraph to the draft resolution proposed by the Sixth Committee requesting the Secretary-General “ to make the ‘ thorough legal analysis ’ suggested by the Special Committee on Methods and Procedures of the questions raised in paragraph 34 of its report, taking into account the proposal submitted to the Sixth Committee by the Belgian delegation and the discussions in the Sixth Committee and in plenary meetings and to submit a report to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly ”. The two parts of the Australian amendment were adopted by 27 votes to 23, with 3 abstentions, and by 37 votes to 6, with 9 abstentions, respectively. ⁵

B. PRECEDENTS

5. The question of the majority required for the adoption by the General Assembly of amendments to proposals relating to important questions and for the adoption of parts of such proposals was not discussed at the San Francisco Conference. Nor was it examined by the Preparatory Commission of the United Nations, its Executive Committee or the various Committees of the General Assembly which were responsible for the drafting of Assembly rules of procedure. The Assembly rules on voting in plenary meetings reproduce textually the three paragraphs of Article 18 of the Charter.

6. The question was raised, however, at some of the plenary meetings of the Assembly when the issue arose in connexion with the examination of specific draft resolutions. A careful examination of the Official Records of the General Assembly shows that these precedents are not numerous, as presidential rulings and Assembly decisions were made only in the infrequent cases when contested amendments or parts of proposals were likely to obtain a simple majority, while it was doubtful whether they would receive a majority of two-thirds.

7. At its 52nd plenary meeting, held during the second part of the first session, the General Assembly examined the question whether a draft resolution on the treatment of Indians in the Union of South Africa, submitted by the Joint First and Sixth Committee (A/205), and an amendment to this resolution requesting the International Court of Justice for an advisory opinion, proposed by the delegation of the Union of South Africa (A/205/Add.1), required a two-thirds majority for adoption. Various representatives presented their views as to the correct application of paragraphs 2 and 3 of Article 18 of the Charter. The President asked the Assembly to decide by a vote whether it considered the question under consideration as an important matter requiring a decision by a two-thirds majority. The Assembly expressed itself in the affirmative by 29 votes to 24, with one abstention. The President had stated prior to this vote that, if the Assembly decided that the question was an important one in the sense of Article 18, paragraph 2, of the Charter, then all questions relating to it would require a two-thirds majority. At the request of the representative of France, the President also declared that he thought that the manner in which the question had been put could not create any precedent. The President then ruled that the amendment proposed by the delegation of the Union of South Africa required a two-thirds majority for adoption, but he implied that while this text would be put to the vote first, it was doubtful whether, although called an amendment, it could be considered as such as its object was to replace entirely the draft resolution submitted by the Committee. ⁶

8. At the 64th plenary meeting held during the second part of the first session, the Assembly examined a draft resolution on regional conferences of representatives of non-self-governing territories which was presented by the Fourth Committee. The President's ruling that the draft resolution required a two-thirds majority for adoption was upheld by the Assembly. Several amendments were submitted and before voting took place, the President stated that “ amendments do not require a two-thirds majority; they are adopted if they obtain a simple majority ”. A Cuban amendment which obtained 23 votes to 14, with 17 abstentions, was considered as adopted. The amended resolution was adopted by 31 votes to 1, with 21 abstentions.

9. At the 118th plenary meeting, held during its second session, the General Assembly voted paragraph by paragraph on a draft resolution presented by the First Committee on the relations of Members of the United Nations with Spain. ⁷ The second paragraph of the proposed resolution stated that : “ The General Assembly reaffirms its resolution adopted on 12 December 1946 concerning the relations of Members of the United Nations with Spain ”. The President ruled that a two-thirds majority was required for the adoption of this paragraph and it was declared rejected, with 29 votes in favour, 16 against, and 8 abstentions. ⁸

10. During the same session, at the 123rd plenary meeting, in the course of the voting on an amendment to a draft resolution presented by the Sixth Committee on the question of genocide⁹, the President stated that he had been advised by the Secretariat that in the absence of any demand to the contrary, decisions of the General Assembly were taken by the usual simple majority unless that were contested. In this case, a vote of 29 in favour, 15 against, with 8 abstentions, was considered sufficient to carry the amendment. This declaration was contested from the floor by the representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The President stated that he was ready to consult the Assembly whether it wished to vote on the amendment by a two-thirds majority, but the representative of the Soviet Union did not insist.¹⁰

11. At the 135th plenary meeting, held during the second special session of the General Assembly, in the course of the consideration of a draft resolution on the temporary administration of Jerusalem,¹¹ various amendments were considered as adopted although they had obtained only a simple majority. The resolution as a whole was not adopted, having failed to obtain a majority of two-thirds. (The vote was 20 in favour, 15 against, with 19 abstentions).¹²

12. At the 160th plenary meeting, held during the first part of the third session, the General Assembly examined various draft resolutions proposed by the Fourth Committee¹³ on matters arising out of the report of the Trusteeship Council. The President declared that a two-thirds majority would be required for decisions. At the request of the representative of the United States of America, resolution II, on administrative unions affecting Trust Territories, was voted paragraph by paragraph; one paragraph in the preamble and four paragraphs in the operative part of the resolution were declared rejected, having failed to obtain a two-thirds majority.¹⁴

13. At the 218th plenary meeting, held during the second part of the third session, various amendments were proposed to a draft resolution presented by the First Committee on the question of the disposal of the former Italian colonies.¹⁵ The draft resolution itself was voted upon in parts. Although the Official Records contain several indications that certain amendments were "adopted, having obtained the required two-thirds majority", they also include an explanation by the President, in connexion with the voting on an Iranian amendment, that: "it was the absolute practice of the Assembly that, if an amendment to a text did not involve any decision, a two-thirds majority was not required for its adoption".¹⁶ It was considered that each paragraph of the draft resolution on the disposal of the former Italian colonies required a two-thirds majority for adoption; and sub-paragraph (c) of paragraph 1, relating to the placing of Tripolitania under Italian Trusteeship, and paragraph 2 relating to the placing of the former Italian Somaliland under Italian Trusteeship, were rejected, having obtained only 33 votes in favour, 17 against, with 8 abstentions, and 35 votes in favour, 19 against, with 4 abstentions, respectively.¹⁷

14. At the 240th plenary meeting, held during the fourth session, the General Assembly considered several draft resolutions presented by the Fourth Committee on matters arising out of the report of the Trusteeship Council. In draft resolution I on the political advancement of Trust Territories,¹⁸ the second and fourth paragraphs were not adopted, having failed to obtain a two-thirds majority.¹⁹

15. Similarly, at the 269th plenary meeting, after the first of the draft resolutions presented by the Fourth Committee on the question of South West Africa, which reiterated previous Assembly resolutions on this subject,²⁰ had been declared by the President to require a two-thirds majority for adoption, and after confirmation of this ruling by the Assembly, a vote was taken in parts. In the second paragraph of the operative part of the draft resolution, the words "and expresses its regret that the Union of South Africa has decided not to take them into account" were deleted from the resolution, the vote being 27 votes in favour, 14 against, with 11 abstentions.²¹

16. Thus it results from this study of precedents in the General Assembly, that a two-thirds majority was always required in the past when parts of proposals relating to important questions were voted upon before these proposals were put to the vote as a whole. The practice of adopting amendments to important proposals by a simple majority also seems to be established, although in this respect some of the precedents are less conclusive.

17. The views expressed by representatives during the discussion of this problem at the fourth session, in the Sixth Committee and in the plenary meetings, can be summarized as follows:

(a) Some representatives, forming the majority of the Sixth Committee, considered that amendments to important proposals and parts of such proposals required a two-thirds majority for adoption.

(b) Other representatives were of the opinion that a simple majority was sufficient.

(c) Still other representatives were of the opinion that the "importance" of specific amendments or parts of proposals should be determined in each case by the General Assembly in the light of the provisions of Article 18 of the Charter, and that the two-thirds rule or the simple majority rule should be applied in accordance with this determination.

Arguments based on the text of Article 18 of the Charter, as well as arguments of a procedural nature, were invoked in support of these divergent points of view.

C. ARTICLE 18 OF THE CHARTER

18. Article 18 of the Charter reads as follows :

Article 18

“ 1. Each Member of the General Assembly shall have one vote.

“ 2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the Members present and voting. These questions shall include : recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council, the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of members of the Trusteeship Council in accordance with paragraph 1 c of Article 86, the admission of new Members to the United Nations, the suspension of the rights and privileges of membership, the expulsion of Members, questions relating to the operation of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions.

“ 3. Decisions on other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.”

19. The main legal argument advanced in the Sixth Committee and in plenary meetings in favour of the view that a majority of two-thirds is required for the adoption of amendments to proposals relating to important questions, or for the adoption of parts of such proposals, is that the term “ decisions ” in Article 18, paragraph 2, relates to votes on amendments and parts, as well as to the final vote on the proposal. Once it has been determined that the voting on proposals on a given question is to be governed by Article 18, paragraph 2, any decision, whether on a proposal, part of a proposal or an amendment, should be considered as a decision on an important question and, consequently, as requiring a two-thirds majority. The decisive factor, then, is whether a question belongs to the categories enumerated in Article 18, paragraph 2,²² or has been added to the list of these categories by application of Article 18, paragraph 3.

20. The main legal argument in favour of the point of view that a simple majority is sufficient is that the term “ decisions ” in Article 18, paragraph 2, of the Charter is to be construed as applying only to final decisions of the General Assembly on questions requiring a two-thirds majority under the Charter, and that the preliminary votes of a purely procedural nature, the purpose of which is to determine the form in which a draft resolution is to be submitted for final approval by the Assembly, cannot be considered as important decisions. It was also argued that decisions by simple majority are the rule in the Assembly, and that Article 18, paragraph 2, providing for a two-thirds majority vote, establishes an exception and should, therefore, be subject to a restrictive interpretation. Such a restrictive interpretation would lead to the conclusion that a two-thirds majority requirement would only apply to final decisions on important questions. As mentioned earlier, certain representatives were of the opinion that a majority of two-thirds should be required only for amendments to, or parts of, proposals which are themselves considered by the General Assembly as important.

21. The records of the San Francisco Conference are of little assistance in ascertaining the validity of these opinions. No specific support, however, is to be found in these records for the view that the simple majority is the rule in the General Assembly and the two-thirds majority the exception. The prevailing opinion of the authors of the Charter appears to have been that certain decisions of the General Assembly, because they bear on certain types of questions, are of such gravity that they need a particularly wide support from Members, while other decisions require only a simple majority of votes.

22. As to the text of the Charter itself, it may be of some interest to note the manner in which the expression “ decisions ” is used in the various articles regarding voting in the Assembly and in the Councils. With respect to the General Assembly, the term “ decisions ”, as used in Article 18, refers to all types of action which the General Assembly takes by a vote while performing its functions under the Charter, whether it makes “ recommendations ” under Articles 10, 11, 13, 14 and others, or takes “ decisions ” to admit a State to membership in the United Nations under Article 4 or to expel a Member from the Organization under Article 6, or acts on reports from the Councils, or gives its “ approval ” to the budget of the Organization under Article 17 and so forth.

23. Similarly, the term “ decisions of the Security Council ” in Article 27 of the Charter refers to all types of action which the Security Council may take, whether it does so under Chapter V on the procedure and organization of the work of the Council, or under Chapter VI in relation to the pacific settlement of disputes, or whether it makes “ recommendations ” or “ decisions ” under Chapter VII. The same remarks apply to “ decisions of the Economic and Social Council ”, referred to in Article 67, and to “ decisions of the Trusteeship Council ”, referred to in Article 89 of the Charter.

24. These observations show that the term “ decisions ” in the Charter Articles relating to voting is used in a broad sense to cover all types of action by United Nations organs. The text of the Charter, however, furnishes no specific answer to the question whether these “ decisions ” are only the final decisions of these organs on matters submitted to them, or whether this term also applies to procedural decisions of these organs made prior to the adoption of final resolutions.

25. The conclusion which can be drawn from the examination of the Charter and the absence of all discussion of the problem at the San Francisco Conference is that the matter is essentially a procedural one, and that the applicable provision is Article 21 of the Charter, which entitles the General Assembly to adopt such rules of procedure as it may consider appropriate for the efficient conduct of its business. Were this conclusion accepted, the Assembly would be free to decide on the required majority for amendments to and parts of important proposals with the sole limitation that the rules so adopted should not produce results inconsistent with the principles and purposes of Article 18 of the Charter.

26. It may be added to these observations on Article 18 of the Charter in its relation to Article 21, that the General Assembly is fully entitled to interpret these provisions. Should it be considered that the question of voting on amendments and parts of proposals relating to important questions is not included among the questions covered by Article 18, paragraph 2, the Assembly would still be entitled, by application of Article 18, paragraph 3, to add, by a simple majority, this question to the categories which require a two-thirds majority.

D. PROCEDURE OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

27. During the debate in the Sixth Committee and in plenary meetings of the General Assembly, the proponents of a two-thirds majority rule drew attention to certain inconsistencies in the procedure as at present applied, the opportunities it provides for procedural manoeuvring and the risks it creates of arriving at final texts of resolutions which are not acceptable to a two-thirds majority of the Members. The proponents of a simple majority rule, and those representatives who expressed themselves in favour of a simple majority for "non-important" amendments to important proposals and for "non-important" parts of such proposals, stressed that this would be a more flexible procedure in plenary meetings and would have the advantage of widening the scope of agreement among delegations. They insisted on the harmful effects which would result in this respect from making the adoption of amendments more difficult.

28. By virtue of rule 89 of its rules of procedure, the Assembly may, upon the request of a representative, vote separately on parts of a proposal or of an amendment. The parts of the proposal or of an amendment which have been approved are then put to the vote as a whole.

29. Requests for a separate vote on parts of an important proposal were made in the past mainly by delegations which (a) were willing to accept a proposal as a whole, but desired to indicate by a negative vote or by an abstention their opposition to or their reservation on certain specific parts of the proposal; or (b) wished to eliminate from a draft resolution some of the parts which they considered as not acceptable, in order that they might be in a position to vote for the remainder of the proposal. The possibility of eliminating parts of proposals relating to important questions by the method of separate voting would disappear if a simple majority were declared sufficient for their adoption. It is doubtful whether the Assembly would wish to abandon this procedure, which has proved useful in the past. Moreover, this change in the existing practice would not have the effect of facilitating the passage of draft resolutions, as the retention in the final draft of parts of proposals to which there are strong objections would oblige the delegations concerned to vote against the draft resolution as a whole when it is presented to the vote of the Assembly.

30. Rule 90 of the Assembly rules of procedure states that a motion is considered an amendment to a proposal if it merely adds to, deletes from, or revises part of a proposal. When amendments are moved to a proposal they are voted upon first. If one or more amendments are adopted, the amended proposal is then voted upon.

31. An amendment to delete part of a proposal has the same purpose as a motion to vote on that part separately, indicated above. Recent practice in the General Assembly with respect to proposals requiring a two-thirds majority for adoption shows, however, that use is more frequently made of the procedure of "voting in parts", as one third plus one of the members present and voting are sufficient according to this procedure to eliminate parts of a proposal, while a majority is necessary to carry an amendment to delete.

32. The purpose of an amendment to add to or revise part of a proposal is to alter the form or, as is more frequently the case in the plenary meeting of the Assembly, the substance, of a proposal. It was pointed out in the General Assembly that a simple majority rule for the adoption of such amendments enables a majority of the representatives to add a new part to the final text of a draft resolution or to revise part of a draft resolution, while, when a proposal relating to an important question is voted in parts, a two-thirds majority is necessary to retain each of its component parts.

33. Moreover, when amendments to "add to" a proposal or "to revise" a proposal obtain a simple majority, but not a two-thirds majority, and are considered as carried, it is the proposal as amended which is put to the final vote of the Assembly. It may happen that, in some cases, a majority of two-thirds may be found for the amended proposal, although the history of the debates in the General Assembly does not furnish many examples in this respect. There is, however, a greater risk that, if the amendment is adopted by a simple majority only, the proposal as amended will also fail to receive a two-thirds majority, in which case the Assembly will find itself with no resolution on the question under consideration unless new draft resolutions are moved from the floor or the matter is referred back to a Committee.

34. It is assumed that the General Assembly will wish to be guided by the following considerations in reaching a decision on the problem :

(a) The necessity of adopting an orderly procedure permitting the arrival, by successive stages, at the final text of a draft resolution on which the Assembly may vote without any risk of ambiguity.

It would appear that the most effective method in this respect would be a procedure by which all decisions pertaining to proposals on important questions would be subject to a two-thirds majority requirement.

(b) The importance of enabling members of the General Assembly forming a two-thirds majority on a certain question to express, without being hindered by procedural obstacles, their views and their will as to the action to be taken by the Assembly.

It would seem important in this connexion to prevent the alteration of a draft resolution by a simple majority of the members in a manner which, when the final vote is taken, would make its acceptance by a majority of two-thirds more difficult.

(c) The need to protect the rights of the members forming the minority on the question considered by the General Assembly.

The best interests of the minority would seem to lie in a fixed and clear rule which does not make the adoption of amendments on parts of proposals on a particular issue dependent on the will of the majority.

35. The conclusions of the Secretary-General are, therefore, that (a) the majority requirement for amendments to proposals relating to important questions should be the same as for parts of such proposals; and (b) that a two-thirds majority should be required for both amendments to and parts of proposals relating to important questions.

Should the Assembly share these views, the adoption of a new rule of procedure, 85 (a), worded as follows might be envisaged :

“ New rule 85 (a) ”

“ Decisions of the General Assembly on amendments to proposals relating to important questions and on parts of such proposals shall be taken by a two-thirds majority of the Members present and voting. ”

Report of the Sixth Committee

[Original text : French]
[7 October 1950]

1. The question with which this report is concerned was placed on the agenda of the fifth session of the General Assembly on 26 September 1950 and was referred to the Sixth Committee for consideration on the same date.

2. The question of the majority needed in plenary meetings for the adoption of amendments relating to proposals on questions which, by virtue of Article 18 of the Charter, are to be decided upon by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting, and the question of the majority required for the adoption of parts of such proposals when put to the vote separately, were brought to the attention of the General Assembly by the Special Committee on Methods and Procedures. This Committee had been set up during the second part of the third session to consider the methods and procedures which would enable the General Assembly and its Committees to discharge their functions more effectively and expeditiously. ²³

²³ Resolution 271 (III) of 29 April 1949.

3. The Special Committee on Methods and Procedures noted in paragraph 34 of its report to the fourth session of the General Assembly (A/937) that "existing rules of procedure do not indicate whether amendments to proposals requiring a two-thirds majority for adoption also have to satisfy the same requirement. Nor do they state whether or not, when proposals are voted in parts, each part requires a two-thirds majority for adoption". In view of "the difficulties which arose in the past in this connexion and the particular importance of this question which relates to the application and the interpretation of Article 18, paragraphs 2 and 3 of the Charter", the Special Committee recommended that this problem should be examined by the General Assembly with particular care and a final decision reached only on the basis of a thorough legal analysis.

4. In paragraph 7 of resolution 362 (IV) adopted by the General Assembly on 22 October 1949, the Secretary-General was requested "to make the 'thorough legal analysis' suggested by the Special Committee, of the questions raised in paragraph 34 of the Special Committee's report, taking into account the proposal submitted to the Sixth Committee by the Belgian delegation and the discussions in the Sixth Committee and in the plenary meeting, and to submit a report to the fifth regular session of the General Assembly".

5. In pursuance of this resolution, the Secretary-General submitted a detailed report to members of the General Assembly on 11 September 1950 (A/1356). The Secretary-General's study begins with a historical sketch of the subject and summarizes the views expressed by various delegations during the fourth session. It includes an analysis of precedents, from which the conclusion arises that a two-thirds majority was always required in the past when parts of proposals relating to important questions were voted upon before these proposals were put to the vote as a whole. The practice of adopting amendments to important proposals by a simple majority also seems to be established, although in this respect some of the precedents are less conclusive.

6. The analysis of Article 18 and other Articles of the Charter shows, in particular, that the term "decisions" in the Articles relating to voting is used in a broad sense to describe all types of action by organs of the United Nations. The Secretary-General concludes from the examination of the Charter and the absence of any discussion of the problem at the San Francisco Conference that the question of the majority required for the adoption of amendments to important questions or of parts of such important proposals is essentially one of General Assembly procedure and that, by virtue of Article 21 of the Charter, the Assembly is free to decide that question, with the sole limitation that the rules so adopted should not produce results inconsistent with the principles and purposes of Article 18.

7. As regards procedure, the Secretary-General's report analyses the existing rules for voting on amendments and parts of proposals and concludes, taking into account the necessity of adopting an orderly procedure in plenary meetings and the respective interests of the majority and minority of delegations with regard to a given question: (a) that the majority requirement for amendments to proposals relating to important questions should be the same as for parts of such proposals; and (b) that a two-thirds majority should be required for both amendments to and parts of proposals relating to important questions. The Secretary-General therefore suggested the adoption of a new rule of procedure 85 (a) worded as follows:

"New rule 85 (a)

"Decisions of the General Assembly on amendments to proposals relating to important questions and on parts of such proposals shall be taken by a two-thirds majority of the Members present and voting".

8. The Sixth Committee considered the Secretary-General's report at its 213th and 214th meetings. The representatives of Thailand, France, Belgium, India, the Dominican Republic, Australia, the United Kingdom, Brazil, Cuba, the United States of America, Burma, Syria and the Philippines, in that order, expressed their agreement with the conclusions of the Secretary-General.

9. The representative of Yugoslavia stated that his delegation maintained the position it had adopted during the preceding session of the General Assembly. Its reservations were based on the consideration that only final decisions of the General Assembly on important questions should require a qualified majority. The representative of Yugoslavia thought it advisable to retain that flexibility in the procedure of the plenary Assembly which would offer the greatest opportunities for conciliating the various views.

10. A draft resolution was introduced by the representative of Belgium during the discussion. This draft restated the text of the new rule 85 (a) proposed by the Secretary-General, with a slight formal amendment to render the wording more precise. The draft also provided that the new rule of procedure should enter into force as from the adoption of the resolution by the General Assembly.

11. The representative of Argentina suggested that the new rule should follow rule 84, rather than rule 85. The Philippine representative, who shared this view, submitted an amendment to that effect, which the Committee adopted by 27 votes to none, with 14 abstentions. The Belgian draft resolution, thus amended, was then adopted by 45 votes to none, with 3 abstentions.

12. The Sixth Committee therefore recommends to the General Assembly adoption of the following draft resolution:

QUESTION OF THE MAJORITY REQUIRED FOR THE ADOPTION BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF AMENDMENTS TO AND PARTS OF PROPOSALS RELATING TO IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

The General Assembly,

Considering its resolution 362 (IV) of 22 October 1949 on the methods and procedures of the General Assembly;
Having examined the report drawn up by the Secretary-General in pursuance of paragraph 7 of the above-mentioned resolution;

Resolves to insert in its rules of procedure a new rule 84 (a) worded as follows :

“ New rule 84 (a)

“ Decisions of the General Assembly on amendments to proposals relating to important questions, and on parts of such proposals put to the vote separately, shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the Members present and voting. ”

Resolves that this new rule of procedure shall enter into force as from the adoption of this resolution by the General Assembly.

Report of the Secretary-General

*[Original text : English]
[5 September 1950]*

1. The General Assembly, on 1 December 1949, adopted resolution 365 (IV) concerning reparation for injuries incurred in the service of the United Nations. By the terms of that resolution, the Secretary-General was authorized, on the basis of proposals made by him in his report of 23 August 1949 (A/955), to present an international claim against the Government of a State, Member or non-member of the United Nations, alleged to be responsible, with a view to obtaining the reparation due in respect of the damage caused to the United Nations and in respect of the damage caused to the victim or to persons entitled through him and, if necessary, to submit to arbitration such claims as cannot be settled by negotiation. The resolution further authorized the Secretary-General "to take the steps and to negotiate in each particular case the agreements necessary to reconcile action by the United Nations with such rights as may be possessed by the State of which the victim is a national".

2. In accordance with paragraph 3 of resolution 365 (IV), the Secretary-General submits herewith a report on the status of claims for injuries incurred in the service of the United Nations, and proceedings in connexion with them.

PROCEDURE ADOPTED BY THE SECRETARY-GENERAL

3. In accordance with the proposals previously submitted by the Secretary-General to the General Assembly (A/955, paragraph 21), the Secretary-General decided to adopt the following procedure: determine which of the cases appear likely to involve the responsibility of a State; consult with the Government of the State of which the victim was a national in order to determine whether that Government has any objection to the presentation of a claim or desires to join in submission; present, in each such case, an appropriate request to the State involved for the initiation of negotiations to determine the facts, and the amount of reparations, if any, involved.

4. With respect to the damages, the Secretary-General was guided by the following principles (A/955, paragraph 23): the reparations requested should be reasonably adequate to compensate the Organization and the victim or the persons entitled through him; the State involved should be given appropriate assurances that it would not be subjected to multiple claims by the United Nations, the victim and the State of the victim's nationality for the same damages; the Secretary-General would not advance any claim for exemplary damages.

INJURIES AND DEATH OF UNITED NATIONS AGENTS IN PALESTINE

5. On the basis of information available to the United Nations, the following cases of injuries or death of United Nations agents in Palestine were first considered by the Secretary-General,¹ and a preliminary determination was made to the effect that these cases might involve the responsibility of States :

The death of Thomas C. Wasson, American Consul-General in Jerusalem, and a member of the United Nations Truce Commission, who was shot by a sniper on 23 May 1948 in Jerusalem.

The death of Commandant Rene de Labarriere and the wounding of Commandant Etienne de Canchy, United Nations observers from France, who were victims of an explosion on 6 July 1948 in the Nazareth region².

The death of Ole Helge Bakke, a member of the United Nations Secretariat, who was shot by a soldier of the Arab Legion near Jerusalem on 13 July 1948.³

The death of Lt. Colonel Joseph Queru and Captain Pierre Jeannel, United Nations observers from France, who were killed at the Gaza airfield on 28 August 1948 by troops under Egyptian command.⁴

The death of Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations Mediator in Palestine, and Colonel Andre Serot, United Nations observer from France, who were killed by irregular forces in territory under Israel control in Jerusalem on 17 September 1948.

COMMUNICATIONS TO THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE COUNTRIES OF WHICH THE VICTIMS WERE NATIONALS

6. In December 1949, the Secretary-General addressed a letter to each of the governments of the countries of

² By a letter of 28 September 1948, the Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Provisional Government of Israel informed the Secretary-General that the cause of the tragic event was the entry of the United Nations observers into a mined area without prior notice, and that this was contrary to the established practice of informing the Israel authorities in advance and awaiting an escort before crossing into Israel-occupied territory.

³ In a letter of July 1948 from Brigadier Commander Lash of the Arab Legion to Colonel Brunsson, the Mediator's personal representative, it was stated : " After studying the proceedings of the Court of Inquiry into the incident, I have come to the conclusion that Bakke has been shot by an Arab Legion soldier who was excited by enemy machine gun fire. The Commanding Officer of the Company concerned has been relieved of his command and is under arrest awaiting trial by court-martial. The entire company of which the guilty soldier is a member has been withdrawn from the City of Jerusalem. I have to express my profound regret that troops under my command should have been involved in such an incident."

⁴ In a letter dated 13 September 1948 from the President of the Council of Ministers of Egypt to the Mediator, it was stated that the incident was due to a combination of unfortunate circumstances outside the control of the Egyptian authorities. It was added, however, that the Egyptian military command would not fail to take all appropriate measures to prevent any recurrence of such a mistake in the future. In a subsequent letter dated 4 December 1948 from the Egyptian Minister for Foreign Affairs to the Acting Mediator, the position of the Egyptian Government was confirmed, and it was stated that it was difficult for that Government to assume responsibility for this unfortunate incident. While expressing the Egyptian Government's profound regret for the incident, the Minister for Foreign Affairs added that the Egyptian military command had already taken all the necessary measures to avoid the recurrence of a similar error in the future.

which the victims were nationals, namely, France, Norway, Sweden and the United States of America, in which those governments were advised that the Secretary-General contemplated bringing international claims against the responsible States for the damage caused to the United Nations in connexion with the death of or injury to its agents. The Secretary-General stated that he was also prepared to claim reparation for the damage caused to the victims or to persons entitled through them, and asked the governments whether they had any objection to the presentation by the United Nations of a claim in this respect, and if not, whether they desired to join in the submission of the claim.

CLAIM FOR THE DEATH OF COUNT BERNA DOTTE

7. After receiving appropriate assurances from the Swedish Government regarding the presentation by the United Nations of a claim with respect to the death of Count Folke Bernadotte, the Secretary-General, on 21 April 1950, addressed a letter to the Minister for Foreign Affairs of Israel requesting a formal apology to the United Nations for the murder of the Mediator in territory under the control of the Israel Government, the continuation and intensification of the government's efforts to apprehend and bring to justice the perpetrators of the crime, and the payment to the United Nations of the sum of $54,628 as reparation for the monetary damage borne by the United Nations. It was stated in the letter that, in view of the decision of the widow of the late Mediator not to present a claim for pecuniary redress with regard to the damage suffered by her on account of the death of Count Bernadotte, the monetary reparation demanded was limited to the pecuniary damage suffered by the United Nations in connexion with the murder of the Mediator. The claim by the United Nations was based upon three elements of responsibility : failure to exercise due diligence and to take all reasonable measures for the prevention of the assassination; liability of the government for actions committed by irregular forces in territory under the control of the Israel authorities; and failure to take all the measures required by international law and by the Security Council resolution of 19 October 1948 to bring the culprits to justice.

8. The Israel Government replied to the Secretary-General by a letter dated 14 June 1950 (S/1506). With respect to the Secretary-General's contention that the government had failed to exercise due diligence in the protection of the Mediator, the Israel Government stated : " It is clear that the government would have done wiser had it been more precise in acquainting itself with the real desires and attitude of Count Bernadotte and not allowed the matter to rest on inferences, however strong, which led to the belief that an armed escort was not desired in view of his special position as United Nations Mediator." As regards the complaint that the government had failed to take all the measures which would have been required to apprehend the culprits, the Israel Government admitted that a number of gaps and omissions had been established in the policy inquiry following the assassination. It was stated in the letter that the Israel Government had decided, without admitting the validity of all the legal contentions put forward on behalf of the United Nations, to take the action requested in the Secretary-General's letter. Accordingly, a remittance of $54,628 was enclosed as reparation for the damage borne by the United Nations. Furthermore, the government expressed to the United Nations " its most sincere regret that this dastardly assassination took place on Israeli territory, and that despite all its efforts the criminals have gone undetected ", and added that " these facts are deeply deplored ". With regard to the continuation and intensification of the government's efforts to apprehend the culprits, the Israel Government stated that " the government is forced to the conclusion that nothing fresh is likely to emerge from a re-examination of the crime, carried out on the basis of the existing material, both that on the police file and that assembled by the army. This does not, however, imply that the government regards the case as closed, but that the course of further investigation will depend on the nature and value of any fresh evidence that may come to light ".

9. On 22 June 1950, the Secretary-General replied to the Government of Israel. After expressing his regret that the efforts so far made by that government had not resulted in the apprehension and trial of the perpetrators of the crime, the Secretary-General stated that the payment of indemnity, the expression of regret and the report on the steps taken to date, which were included in the Israel Government's letter, constituted substantial compliance with the claim submitted in the Secretary-General's letter of 21 April 1950.

ACTION TAKEN WITH RESPECT TO THE INJURIES OR DEATH OF FRENCH MILITARY OBSERVERS IN PALESTINE

10. With respect to the death of Commandant de Labarriere, Lt. Colonel Queru, Captain Jeannel and Colonel Serot, and the injuries to Captain de Canchy, United Nations military observers from France, the French Government has advised the Secretary-General that it has no objection to the presentation of claims by the United Nations for damage caused to the victims or persons entitled through them. After receiving this assurance, the Secretary-General, on 31 July 1950, addressed a letter to the French Government in which it was stated that the United Nations would include in its claims a demand for reparation for damage to the victims if a request to this effect were made by the claimants through the French Government. Furthermore, the Secretary-General indicated that, with respect to the amount of the indemnity to be demanded for the death of the military observers, he intended to apply the generally accepted principle of international law to the effect that the indemnity should be equivalent to the financial contribution which the dependants would have probably received from the deceased during a normal life expectancy. In accordance with this principle, the Secretary-General indicated the elements of information to be submitted by the claimants, on the basis of which the Secretary-General would determine the amount of reparation to be demanded for damage to the victims or persons entitled through them. It was further stated that the United Nations had already paid the sum of $25,000 as compensation with respect to each of the death cases, and would therefore withhold that amount from any recoveries obtained from the responsible governments as compensation for damage to the victim's dependants. Finally, the Secretary-General, in order to avoid the possibility of multiple claims against the responsible governments, requested assurance from the French Government that it had no intention of presenting claims with respect to the injuries or death of the French military observers in Palestine.

11. On receipt of a request from the claimants and of appropriate assurance from the French Government, the Secretary-General will initiate negotiations with the governments held responsible in connexion with the incidents involving the French military observers in Palestine. If, on the other hand, any or all of the victims' dependants decide not to request the United Nations to present claims on their behalf, the Secretary-General intends to limit the claims to the damage caused to the United Nations in connexion with the injuries and death of these United Nations agents.

DEATH OF OLE HELGE BAKKE

12. An exchange of letters took place between the Secretary-General and the Norwegian Government in connexion with the death of Mr. Bakke, a national of Norway. Appropriate assurances have been received that the Norwegian Government has no objection to the presentation by the United Nations of a claim in respect of damage caused to the victim's dependants, and that the government does not intend to present a separate claim for the death of Mr. Bakke.

13. The Secretary-General, on 27 July 1950, addressed a letter to Mr. Bakke's widow inquiring whether she wished to request the United Nations to include in its claim a demand for reparation for the pecuniary damage suffered by her as Mr. Bakke's principal dependant. Mrs. Bakke replied that she did not wish to press charges against the Jordan Government in connexion with her husband's death. Having been informed by the Norwegian Government that Mr. Bakke's mother was partially dependent upon her son, the Secretary-General asked the Norwegian Government to ascertain whether Mr. Bakke's mother wished to bring a claim through the United Nations. Since Mr. Bakke has a daughter by his first wife, a Swedish national, and he had contributed to the child's support, the Secretary-General also requested the Swedish Government to ascertain whether a claim should be brought by the United Nations on behalf of Mr. Bakke's daughter. Further action on this claim will be taken by the Secretary-General upon receipt of replies from the Governments of Norway and Sweden.

DEATH OF THOMAS C. WASSON

14. The Government of the United States of America, on 23 February 1950, advised the Secretary-General that it was not possible, in the light of the information available to that Government, to fix responsibility for the death of Mr. Wasson. On the basis of the reports submitted to the Secretary-General by the Government of the United States and the information available to the United Nations, the Secretary-General has decided that, unless new evidence is obtained, there are not sufficient elements to enable him to bring an international claim against a Government. Accordingly, the Secretary-General does not at the present time intend to take any further action with respect to the death of Mr. Wasson.

[Original text : English]
[4 October 1950]

1. By resolution 365 (IV) of 1 December 1949 the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to submit an annual report to subsequent sessions of the General Assembly on the status of claims for injuries incurred in the service of the United Nations, and proceedings in connexion with them.

2. Pursuant to this resolution, the Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly a report (A/1347) concerning the procedure adopted by the Secretary-General and the steps taken with respect to cases of injuries or deaths of United Nations agents in Palestine.

3. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting of 26 September 1950, referred this item to the Sixth Committee for consideration.

4. The Sixth Committee discussed this report at its 214th meeting held on 27 September 1950. On the motion of the representative of Uruguay, the Committee decided by 48 votes to none, with 3 abstentions, to recommend to the General Assembly that it take note of the report of the Secretary-General.

5. Accordingly, the Sixth Committee submits for the approval of the General Assembly the following draft resolution :

REPARATION FOR INJURIES INCURRED IN THE SERVICE OF THE UNITED NATIONS

The General Assembly,

Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General, pursuant to resolution 365 (IV) of 1 December 1949, on the status of claims for injuries incurred in the service of the United Nations and the proceedings in connexion with them.

Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[24 August 1950]

1. The General Assembly, by resolution 268 (III) of 28 April 1949, adopted certain amendments to the General Act of 26 September 1928 for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes, with a view to restoring to the General Act its original efficacy.

2. Article 43, paragraph 1, of the Revised General Act provides as follows :

“ The present General Act shall be open to accession by the Members of the United Nations, by the non-member States which shall have become parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice or to which the General Assembly of the United Nations shall have communicated a copy for this purpose ”.

3. To this end, article 46 instructs the Secretary-General to transmit a certified true copy of the Revised General Act to each of the non-member States designated by the General Assembly.

4. The Secretary-General submitted to the General Assembly at its fourth session a report (A/941) drawing attention to the fact that it rested with the General Assembly to give the Secretary-General such instructions as it might deem fit in this matter.

5. After discussion in its Sixth Committee, the General Assembly adopted, on 3 December 1949, resolution 372 (IV) by which it noted that no State Member of the United Nations had as yet adhered to the Revised General Act, and therefore decided to defer to a later date the consideration of the question relating to non-member States.

6. As required by article 43, paragraph 3, of the Revised General Act, the Secretary-General has included in his Annual Report on the Work of the Organization¹ the following information regarding the current status of accessions to the Revised General Act :

ACCESSIONS

A	B	C
All the provisions of the Act (chapters I, II, III and IV)	Provisions relating to conciliation and judicial settlement (chapters I and II) together with the general provisions dealing with these procedures (chapter IV)	Provisions relating to conciliation (chapter I) and the general provisions concerning that procedure (chapter IV)
Belgium... 23 December 1949	Sweden... 22 June 1950 With the reservation provided in article 39, paragraph 2 (a) with the effect of excluding from the procedure described in the present Act disputes arising out of facts prior to the accession	None

7. Pursuant to paragraph 1 of its article 44, the Revised General Act comes into force on the ninetieth day following the receipt by the Secretary-General of the second instrument of accession, that of Sweden. The Act thus comes into force on 20 September 1950.

8. In the light of the entry into force of the Revised General Act, the Secretary-General submits the present report on the assumption that the General Assembly may now wish to designate the non-member States to which a certified copy of the Revised General Act should be communicated.

9. In this connexion, attention is invited to General Assembly resolution 368 (IV) of 3 December 1949, concerning invitations to non-member States to become parties to the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide. The relevant passage of that resolution recorded the decision of the General Assembly as follows :

“ Considering that it is desirable to send invitations to those non-member States which..... have expressed a desire to advance international co-operation,

“ 1. Decides to request the Secretary-General to dispatch the invitations above-mentioned to each non-member State which is or hereafter becomes an active member of one or more of the specialized agencies of the United Nations... ”.

Report of the Sixth Committee

[Original text : French]
[6 December 1950]

1. The Secretary-General, in his report to the General Assembly (A/1337) indicated that, in the light of the entry into force of the Revised General Act for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes on 20 September 1950, the General Assembly might perhaps wish to designate the non-member States to which a certified copy of the Revised General Act should be communicated for the purpose of accession to it.

2. At its 285th meeting on 26 September 1950, the General Assembly decided to refer the question for study to the Sixth Committee, which considered it at its 250th meeting on 4 December 1950.

3. At that meeting, the Belgian representative submitted a draft resolution (A/C.6/L.164) requesting the Secretary-General to transmit a certified true copy of the Revised General Act to each non-member State which is or hereafter becomes an active member of one or more of the specialized agencies of the United Nations.

4. The representative of the Union of South Africa proposed that the question should be deferred until the next regular session of the General Assembly, pointing out that as only two States had acceded to the Revised

General Act, the question was not urgent, that it would be certain to give rise to long and difficult discussions and that various delegations wished to study it again.

5. The Committee adopted the South African proposal by 14 votes to 10, with 9 abstentions.

6. The Sixth Committee accordingly proposes that the General Assembly adopt the following draft resolution :

DESIGNATION OF NON-MEMBER STATES TO WHICH A CERTIFIED COPY OF THE REVISED GENERAL ACT FOR THE PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES SHALL BE COMMUNICATED BY THE SECRETARY-GENERAL FOR THE PURPOSE OF ACCESSION TO THIS ACT

The General Assembly

Decides to defer until its sixth session consideration of the question of the designation of non-member States to which a certified copy of the Revised General Act for the Pacific Settlement of International Disputes shall be communicated for the purpose of accession to this Act.

The General Assembly,

Recalling that in its resolution 260 B (III), it considered " that, in the course of development of the international community, there will be an increasing need of an international judicial organ for the trial of certain crimes under international law ", and that, in the same resolution, it invited the International Law Commission " to study the desirability and possibility of establishing an international judicial organ for the trial of persons charged with genocide or other crimes, jurisdiction over which will be conferred upon that organ by international conventions ",

Having given preliminary consideration to part IV of the report of the second session of the International Law Commission,

Recalling that pursuant to its resolutions 95 (I) 177 (II) and 489 (V), the International Law Commission is to prepare a code of offences against the peace and security of mankind,

Bearing in mind also no useful purpose will be served by setting up an international penal tribunal unless it can function effectively,

Considering that it is preferable to make a final decision concerning the desirability and possibility of establishing an international penal court in the light of the text of the laws which such court would have to apply, Decides to postpone further consideration of part IV of the report of the second session of the International Law Commission until after the Commission has submitted its codification of offences against the peace and security of mankind.

Financial implications of draft resolution F on agenda item 52, proposed by the Sixth Committee : Report of the Secretary-General

[Original text : English]
[8 December 1950]

1. At its 244th session on 27 November 1950, the Sixth Committee adopted a draft resolution that a committee composed of representatives of 17 Member States should meet at Geneva on 1 August 1951 for the purpose of preparing one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals relating to the establishment and the statute of an international penal tribunal. It also requests the Secretary-General, inter alia, to make all necessary arrangements for the convening of the committee and for its meetings.

2. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly, the following estimates are made on the assumption that the committee would meet in Geneva for a maximum period of five weeks shortly after the adjournment of the meetings of the International Law Commission, so that the staff serving the International Law Commission could be used for the meetings of this committee.

	US dollars
Travel and subsistence of staff	4,080
Printing	4,510
TOTAL	8,590

3. Under travel and subsistence of staff, provision is made for 40 days per diem at the reduced rate, as the staff would have been there for the International Law Commission meetings. No travel expenses would be necessary.

4. Under contractual printing, provision is made for printing the report of the committee in five languages, estimated at about 48 English text pages.

5. Should the General Assembly approve the draft resolution, as recommended by the Sixth Committee, it would be necessary to add $4,080 to section 1 of the budget estimates for 1951, The General Assembly, Commissions and Committees, and $4,510 to section 25, Official Records.

Report of the Sixth Committee

[Original text : English]
[8 December 1950]

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting on 26 September 1950, decided to refer to the Sixth Committee, for consideration, the report (A/1316)¹ of the International Law Commission on its second session, held in Geneva from 5 June to 29 July 1950.

2. The Sixth Committee began its consideration of the report at its 225th meeting on 20 October 1950. It decided, after discussion, to take up the first four of the six parts of the report in numerical order. At its 245th meeting on 28 November 1950, it further decided not to proceed with a debate on parts V and VI, as these parts were intended merely to give information regarding the progress of the work of the International Law Commission on subjects on which final reports would be submitted to the General Assembly at a future session.

II. CONSIDERATION OF PART I OF THE REPORT OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION : GENERAL (INTRODUCTION AND MISCELLANEOUS DECISIONS)

3. The Sixth Committee discussed part I of the report at its 226th to 229th meetings inclusive, from 23 to 28 October 1950. Three principal questions were dealt with during these debates, namely, the desirability of inviting the Commission to review its statute with the object of recommending revisions thereof to the General Assembly, the emoluments of the members of the Commission and the extension of their term of office.

4. The question of a review of the statute was raised in connexion with doubts expressed by a number of delegations as to whether the existing working conditions of the International Law Commission were such as to enable it to achieve rapid and positive results. It was pointed out that the Commission had been overloaded with special tasks entrusted to it by the General Assembly and lately also by the Economic and Social Council, and that the Commission had consequently made little progress in its essential work, the codification of international law. Many delegations considered that if this situation were not improved the prestige and utility of the Commission might suffer. They were therefore of the opinion that the Commission should examine its statute with a view to ascertaining whether it could not be revised in order to improve the conditions under which the Commission was carrying on its work. The United Kingdom, accordingly, introduced a draft resolution (A/C.6/L.130) requesting the Commission to review its statute with the object of making recommendations to the sixth session of the General Assembly concerning such revisions of the statute as might appear desirable in the light of experience for the promotion of the Commission's work. Some delegations considered the terms used in the United Kingdom draft resolution too broad and suggested that the scope of the proposed review of the statute should be more precisely defined. Thus, France laid before the Committee an amendment (A/C.6/L.133) specifying that the purpose of the review would be to submit recommendations to the General Assembly concerning the organization of the Commission and especially concerning the methods most likely to ensure the continuity of its work. The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics proposed to limit further the scope of the review of the statute and submitted an amendment (A/C.6/L.135) to the effect that the Commission would be requested to review the terms of article 17 of its statute with the object of rendering it impossible for any task to be assigned to the Commission without a special decision of the General Assembly in each specific case.

5. Before the United Kingdom draft resolution (A/C.6/L.130) and the two amendments thereto were put to the vote, the French amendment (A/C.6/L.133) was withdrawn. The USSR amendment (A/C.6/L.135) was rejected by 26 votes to 6, with 10 abstentions. The United Kingdom draft resolution was thereafter adopted by 36 votes to 7, with 2 abstentions. This draft resolution is contained in part VI of the present report.

6. In paragraph 21 of its report (A/1316), the International Law Commission had suggested that the General Assembly, in order to make service in the Commission less onerous financially for its members, might wish to reconsider the terms of article 13 of the Commission's statute according to which the members of the Commission shall be paid travel expenses and a per diem allowance at the same rate as the allowance paid to members of commissions of experts of the Economic and Social Council.

7. The great majority of the delegations were of the opinion that the present emoluments paid to the members of the Commission were inadequate, and favoured a revision of article 13 in order to allow the General Assembly to exercise wider discretion in determining the allowance to be accorded to them. Cuba, Egypt, France, Iran, the United Kingdom and the United States introduced a joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.128) whereby the General Assembly, considering paragraph 21 of the report of the International Law Commission, the inadequacy of the emoluments paid to the members of the Commission, the importance of the Commission's work, the eminence of its members and the method of their election, would decide to modify article 13 as follows :

“ Members of the Commission shall be paid travel expenses, and shall also receive a special allowance, the amount of which shall be determined by the General Assembly. ”

Panama presented an amendment (A/C.6/L.134) which, after having been slightly modified following a suggestion by the French representative, proposed to add to the preamble of the joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.128) a further consideration, namely, that the nature and scope of the work of the Commission were such as to require its members to devote considerable time in attendance at the necessarily long sessions of the Commission. This amendment, as modified, was accepted by the sponsors of the joint draft resolution.

8. The proposal to revise article 13 of the statute was opposed by certain delegations on the ground that the members of the International Law Commission should not, with respect to subsistence allowance, be treated differently from equally eminent experts working for the United Nations in other fields. It was also pointed out by these representatives that the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions had recommended that the subsistence allowance for members of subsidiary bodies of the General Assembly should be raised from twenty to twenty-five dollars when they were meeting in New York.

9. Other delegations, while concurring with the majority view that article 13 should be revised, also thought it inadvisable to pay to the members of the International Law Commission a higher subsistence allowance than to other experts. According to this trend of opinion, it would be preferable to accord to the members of the Commission a honorarium or a special yearly allowance as a remuneration for the considerable amount of work required of them not only during, but also between, the sessions of the Commission. Amendments to that effect were introduced by the delegation of the Philippines (A/C.6/L.129) and of Norway (A/C.6/L.136).

10. When put to the vote, the Norwegian amendment was rejected by 16 votes to 13, with 16 abstentions, and the Philippines amendment was defeated by 13 votes to 1, with 31 abstentions. At the request of the Union of South Africa, the Panamanian addition to the preamble of the joint draft resolution was thereafter put to the vote separately and was adopted by 31 votes to 2, with 10 abstentions. Finally, the joint draft resolution as modified and as a whole, was adopted by 37 votes to 1, with 6 abstentions. The draft resolution, as adopted, is included in part VI of the present report.

11. The Sixth Committee also considered a joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.131) presented by Cuba and Egypt, whereby the General Assembly would fix at thirty-five dollars per day the amount of the special allowance to be paid to the members of the Commission according to the proposed new wording of article 13. Opinion was divided as to whether the Sixth Committee was competent to entertain such a proposal. Some delegations held that there was nothing in the rules of procedure of the General Assembly to prevent the Sixth Committee from adopting the draft resolution. Other delegations argued the contrary view that, as the draft resolution dealt with a purely financial question, it was outside the competence of the Sixth Committee and was a matter to be decided by the Fifth Committee. After consultation among delegations, a compromise solution was reached. The joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.131) was replaced by a proposal introduced by Iran that the Sixth Committee should adopt the following vœu :

“ The Sixth Committee expresses the desire that the special allowance provided for in the draft resolution adopted by it on 28 October 1950 should be thirty-five dollars per day. ”

12. At the request of Egypt, a roll-call vote was taken on the vœu. It was adopted by 31 votes to 8, with 5 abstentions, as follows :

In favour : Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Burma, Chile, China, Colombia, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, France, Guatemala, Iran, Iraq, Mexico, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Peru, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Thailand, Turkey, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, United States of America, Uruguay, Venezuela, Yemen, Yugoslavia.

Against : Australia, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, Czechoslovakia, New Zealand, Poland, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, Union of South Africa, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Abstaining : Canada, Indonesia, Netherlands, Philippines, Sweden.

After the voting, the representatives of Afghanistan, Greece and India, who were absent during the roll-call vote, asked to be counted as voting in favour of the vœu.

13. In view of rule 152 of the rules of procedure, the Chairman of the Sixth Committee, in a letter dated 30 October 1950 (A/C.6/L.138), communicated to the President of the General Assembly the draft resolution adopted by the Committee regarding article 13 of the statute of the International Law Commission, together with the vœu expressed by the Committee concerning the amount of the special allowance to be paid to the members of the Commission.

14. A majority of the delegations were in favour of extending the term of office of the present members of the Commission from three years to five. In support of this view, it was pointed out that the Commission would not be able to finish some of its most important tasks during the current period of office and that the work in progress on these tasks should not be interrupted by a change in membership. In particular, it would be highly detrimental to the efficiency of the Commission if new rapporteurs had to take over subjects on which a considerable volume of work had already been done. Against this view it was argued by some delegations that, even if the term of office of the present members were prolonged to five years, the same problem might arise at the end of the extended period. Attention was also drawn to the fact that, according to article 10 of the statute of the Commission, the members were eligible for re-election and that there was no reason to doubt that the General Assembly would re-elect those members whose work it felt had been most useful.

15. Cuba, Chile, Egypt, Iran and Turkey introduced a joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.132) which, in its operative part, set forth a decision to amend article 10 of the statute of the Commission in order to extend the term of office of the members from three years to five; this extension to be applicable to the term of the members of the Commission elected in 1948. Belgium submitted an amendment (A/C.6/L.137) by which the scope of the operative part of the joint draft resolution would be limited to an extension of the term of the present members of the Commission, and the preamble of the draft resolution would be accordingly reworded. This amendment was accepted by the sponsors of the joint draft resolution after the Belgian representative had consented to delete from his text a phrase stating that the extension was made “ by way of exception ”.

16. When put to the vote, the joint draft resolution, as amended, was adopted by 37 votes to 8, with 2 abstentions. This draft resolution, as adopted, is included in part VI, below.

III. CONSIDERATION OF PART II OF THE REPORT OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION : WAYS AND MEANS FOR MAKING THE EVIDENCE OF CUSTOMARY INTERNATIONAL LAW MORE READILY AVAILABLE .

17. The Sixth Committee considered part II of the report of the International Law Commission at its 230th and 231st meetings on 30 October and 2 November 1950.

18. It appeared clearly from the debate that the delegations were of the view that finding ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available was essentially a practical task which could be accomplished without a previous agreement on a precise definition of customary international law. Decisions by the Sixth Committee on the practical recommendations put forward by the International Law Commission in part II of its report should, therefore, not be taken to imply approval of statements of a theoretical or general character made by the Commission in this connexion. Some of these statements drew critical comments from several delegations. In particular, criticisms were levelled against the statement in paragraph 30 of the Commission's report that article 24 of the statute of the Commission seemed to depart from the classification of sources of international law followed in article 38 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice, by including judicial decisions on questions of international law among the evidences of customary international law. A number of delegations declared that, in so far as this statement implied that article 38 of the Statute of the Court did not accept judicial decisions on questions of international law as evidence of customary international law, they dissented from such an interpretation of article 38.

19. The practical recommendations submitted by the International Law Commission in paragraphs 90-94 of its report were carefully considered by the Sixth Committee. It was noted that part of this vast programme of work was already being carried out by the Secretariat and that other parts of the programme entailed financial and administrative implications which needed further study. With respect to the recommendation in paragraph 92 that the Registry of the International Court of Justice should publish occasional digests of the Court's Reports, it was pointed out that such digests were already published in the Court's Yearbook. The suggestion in paragraph 94 that the General Assembly should give consideration to the desirability of an international convention concerning the general exchange of official publications relating to international law and international relations was supported by several delegations, but the majority view was that the question was not yet ripe for a decision.

20. The delegations of Israel, the United Kingdom and the United States of America introduced a joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.139) which, after having been amended by its sponsors in accordance with suggestions made by other delegations during the debate, was adopted by 41 votes to none, with 2 abstentions. As approved, the draft resolution takes note of part II of the Commission's report, expresses appreciation of the work of the Commission on the subject and invites the Secretary-General, in preparing his future programme of work in this field, to consider and report to the General Assembly upon the recommendations contained in paragraphs 90, 91 and 93 of the Commission's report in the light of the discussion held and the suggestions made thereon in the Sixth Committee. An amendment submitted by India to the effect that the Secretary-General should be requested to "take account of the possibility of co-ordination with similar activities undertaken by him" was withdrawn on the understanding that the suggestion would be recorded in the present report. The draft resolution, as adopted, is contained in part VI, below.

IV. CONSIDERATION OF PART III OF THE REPORT OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION: FORMULATION OF THE NÜRNBERG PRINCIPLES

21. Part III of the report of the International Law Commission was considered by the Sixth Committee at its 231st to 239th meetings inclusive, from 2 to 14 November 1950. Some delegations held the view that the formulation of the Nürnberg principles submitted by the International Law Commission in part III of its report should not be discussed in substance by the Committee at the present session. In support of this opinion, it was argued that the Commission had failed to consult the Governments of Member States in the course of its work on the subject, as was required by articles 16 and 21 of its statute and that, in consequence of this omission, the Sixth Committee did not have at its disposal the necessary data for a thorough examination of the formulation submitted. On the other hand, the majority of the delegations were in favour of discussing the formulation in substance. A number of these delegations took the position that, in directing it to formulate the Nürnberg principles, the General Assembly had assigned to the International Law Commission a special task which did not come under the procedural rules contained in articles 16 and 21 and that, consequently, the Commission had not violated its statute by reporting directly to the General Assembly without consulting the Governments. Other delegations adhering to the majority view based their opinion on the practical consideration that a substantive debate was most likely to promote a solution of the problems facing the Committee in connexion with the Nürnberg principles and their formulation. The Sixth Committee accordingly entered upon a discussion in substance of part III of the Commission's report and the formulation of the Nürnberg principles included therein. In the course of these debates, careful attention was given to the terms of reference of the Commission contained in General Assembly resolution 177 (II), as well as to the interpretation placed upon them by the Commission. The Sixth Committee further examined in detail the principles formulated in the report. Finally, the Committee discussed the question of the action which should be recommended to the General Assembly regarding the formulation submitted by the Commission.

22. With respect to its terms of reference under sub-paragraph (a) of General Assembly resolution 177 (II), namely, to "formulate the principles of international law recognized in the charter of the Nürnberg Tribunal and in the judgment of the Tribunal", the International Law Commission stated in paragraph 96 of its report that it had considered whether or not it should ascertain to what extent the principles contained in the charter and judgment constituted principles of international law. The Commission had reached the conclusion that, since the Nürnberg principles had been affirmed by the General Assembly in its resolution 95 (I), the task entrusted to the Commission by sub-paragraph (a) of resolution 177 (II) was not to express any appreciation of these principles as principles of international law but merely to formulate them. In general, this interpretation of the Commission's terms of reference met with approval within the Sixth Committee.

23. Divergent opinions were expressed regarding the application by the Commission of its terms of reference in other respects. A number of delegations felt that the Commission had adhered too closely to the wording of the charter of the Nürnberg Tribunal and, by this method, had been led to formulate rules rather than principles. It had also failed to pay sufficient attention to the fact that, as the Nürnberg charter had been prepared with a view to prosecuting the major war criminals only, the details of its provisions could not always be applied to ordinary war criminals. Instead of copying to a large extent the specific rules of the charter, the Commission should therefore have formulated merely the general concepts of fundamental importance embodied in the charter and judgment. In the view of some delegations, the Commission should also have gone further and have set forth the general principles of international law on which the charter and judgment had been based. According to this opinion, the Commission had not pursued its task exhaustively; it had only classified the juridical provisions and rulings of the charter and judgment while it ought to have stated the underlying principles with a view to promoting the future development of international penal law. Several representatives, on the other hand, spoke in defence of the Commission on these points, and maintained that the Commission had correctly interpreted its mandate. The task of the Commission was, in their view, not to formulate a few principles in very general terms or to set forth the underlying principles of international law, but to abstract both from the charter and from the proceedings of the Nürnberg Tribunal, a basic set of rules and principles which could form a species of small code on the subject to serve as a point of departure for further efforts in this field.

24. In this connexion, consideration was also given to the relation between the formulation of the Nürnberg principles and the task entrusted to the Commission in sub-paragraph (b) of General Assembly resolution 177 (II), namely, to prepare a draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind, indicating clearly the place to be accorded therein to these principles. It appeared from the debates that the majority of the representatives agreed with the view expressed by the International Law Commission that it was not bound to insert the Nürnberg principles in their entirety in the draft code and that it was not precluded from suggesting modification or development of the principles for the purpose of their incorporation in the draft code.

25. Numerous representatives also commented on the text of the seven principles formulated by the Commission. A great variety of views were expressed, and opinion was generally too divided to permit conclusions as to the sense of the Committee on the controversial issues. Some of the questions discussed are reviewed below.

26. Principles I and II gave rise to an exchange of opinions regarding the position of the individual in international law. Some members affirmed that the individual as well as the State could now be held directly responsible under international law. Others considered this opinion exaggerated and contended that there was no need to abandon the classic concept that international law is essentially concerned with relations between States. They agreed that individuals who committed crimes under international law should be subject to trial and punishment, but asserted that this aim could be achieved by imposing upon States the obligation to punish the authors of such crimes or to allow them to be punished by other States or by a legally constituted international tribunal. In this connexion, several delegations also took exception to the statement made by the Commission to the effect that principles I and II implied the supremacy of international law over national law. It was argued by these delegations that the supremacy of international law was a theoretical concept which was far from being universally accepted. It was also affirmed by some delegations that this concept was contrary to the constitutions of their countries. On the other hand, a number of delegations agreed with the view of the Commission on this point.

27. Opinion was also divided on the question whether the International Law Commission had been justified in departing from the provisions of articles 7 and 8 of the Nürnberg charter when formulating principle III on the responsibility of heads of States and responsible government officials, and principle IV on the effect of superior orders. While a number of delegations were in favour of these changes as bringing the two principles in closer conformity with general principles of criminal law, others thought that the Commission should have retained the provisions of the Nürnberg charter in this respect. Doubts were, in particular, expressed as to principle IV that superior orders are not a defence provided a moral choice was possible to the offender. It was contended that the term "moral choice", taken from the judgment, was ambiguous and should not have been included, at least not without clarification by definition or exemplification.

28. The right of a defendant to a fair trial on the facts and law, as provided in principle V, was, in substance, favoured by most delegations. Some representatives, however, regretted that the words "on the facts and law" had been included in the text of the principle, as this specification seemed to exclude questions of procedure from the principle of a fair trial. Against this opinion it was affirmed by other representatives that the word "law" referred not only to substantive law but also to procedural law.

29. Among the questions raised in relation to principle VI defining categories of international crimes, particular attention was given to the definition of crimes against humanity. Some delegations criticized the Commission for having retained the provision in article 6 (c) of the Nürnberg charter that crimes against humanity could be committed only in connexion with crimes against peace, or war crimes. They asserted that this limitation did not apply to the concept of crimes against humanity as such, but only to the competence of the Nürnberg Tribunal to take cognizance of these crimes. In their opinion, crimes against humanity constituted a separate and independent category of international crimes distinguished from similar crimes under national law by the characteristic that they were, in general, committed by governments, or with the complicity or tolerance of governments, and, therefore, could be punished only on the international level. The concept of crimes against humanity had, furthermore, been incorporated in the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, which would soon come into force. It would, therefore, in the view of these delegations, be contrary to international law to lay down as a principle that crimes against humanity could be committed only in connexion with crimes against peace, or war crimes. On the other hand, other delegations maintained that no crimes against humanity existed under international law outside of those defined by the Nürnberg charter. They therefore considered that the definition of crimes against humanity given in principle VI was correct in substance. Some of these delegations, however, regretted that the Commission had not laid down, in the principle itself, that crimes against humanity could be committed both before and after a war. It was not sufficient, in their view, to state this fact only in the commentary to principle VI, as the Commission had done.

30. Certain delegations felt that principle VII was too broadly drafted, as it applied ordinary rules of complicity not only to war crimes and crimes against humanity, but also to crimes against peace. They argued that the Nürnberg Tribunal had taken great care to limit the scope of crimes against peace and had convicted only persons in very high positions of this crime. In contradiction to the stand thus taken by the Tribunal, principle VII made every person who, according to the general rules of complicity, was an accomplice to a crime against peace, guilty of an international crime. On the other hand, several delegations expressed their agreement with principle VII as formulated, since in their view the courts would in each instance have wide discretion as to the application of the principle.

31. With respect to the question as to what action should be taken by the General Assembly on part III of the report of the International Law Commission various procedures were suggested in the course of the deliberations. The Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic presented a proposal (A/C.6/L.140) according to which the draft formulation of the Nürnberg principles submitted by the International Law Commission would be referred back to the Commission for presentation to the Member States for their comments. France submitted a draft resolution (A/C.6/L.141/Rev.1) requesting the International Law Commission to continue its study of the Nürnberg principles and calling attention to the need of giving, within the framework of this study, a permanent validity to the principles, especially with regard to crimes against humanity as crimes independent of crimes against peace, and war crimes. This latter draft resolution was subsequently replaced by a joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.146), presented by Argentina, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, Egypt, France, the Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Sweden and Syria under which the International Law Commission would be invited to reconsider its formulation of the Nürnberg principles in the light of the observations made thereon by delegations during the present session of the General Assembly. The United Kingdom, on the other hand, proposed a draft resolution (A/C.6/L.142) whereby the General Assembly would take note of the formulation of the Nürnberg principles contained in part III of the Commission's report. An amendment to the United Kingdom draft was presented by Cuba (A/C.6/L.144) drawing attention to the close relation between the formulation of the Nürnberg principles and the task of preparing a draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind. This amendment was accepted by the representative of the United Kingdom. Similar amendments to the United Kingdom draft resolution were submitted by Iran (A/C.6/L.143) and Uruguay (A/C.6/L.148), and Venezuela introduced an amendment (A/C.6/L.147) suggesting a drafting change in its preamble.

32. After deliberation among the sponsors and other interested delegations, all the draft resolutions and amendments referred to in the foregoing paragraph, with the exception of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic draft resolution (A/C.6/L.140), were superseded by a new joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.149) submitted by Argentina, Cuba, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, Egypt, France, Iran, the Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Sweden, Syria, the United Kingdom, the United States and Venezuela. The first three paragraphs of this joint draft resolution were of a formal and historical character. The fourth paragraph recalled that the International Law Commission had formulated certain principles recognized, according to the Commission, in the charter and judgment of the Nürnberg Tribunal, and that many delegations had made observations during the present session on this formulation. As some delegations had maintained, in the course of the debates, that to take note of the Commission's formulation would, in view of the history of the question, virtually imply approval of the principles as formulated by the Commission, this paragraph was worded to make it clear beyond doubt that no such approval was intended. After a drafting change, suggested by Belgium, had been accepted by the sponsors, the fifth paragraph stated that it was appropriate to give the governments of Member States full opportunity to furnish their observations on the formulation. Without implying that the Commission had violated its statute in omitting to consult the governments in connexion with its work on the Nürnberg principles, the paragraph was meant to give satisfaction to those delegations which had advocated such consultation. The sixth and seventh paragraphs constituted the operative part of the draft resolution, inviting the Governments of Member States to furnish their observations on the formulation submitted by the Commission and requesting the Commission, in preparing the draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind, to take account of the observations made on this draft formulation by delegations during the present session as well as of any observation which might be made by governments.

33. An amendment (A/C.6/L.150) to the seventh paragraph of the joint draft resolution was proposed by Poland, to the effect that the International Law Commission would be invited to take the observations made in the Sixth Committee and by governments into consideration in the final formulation of the principles of the Nürnberg charter and judgment.

34. In the voting, the draft resolution of the Byelorussian SSR (A/C.6/L.140) was rejected by 21 votes to 5, with 15 abstentions. The first, second and third paragraphs of the joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.149) were adopted unanimously. The fourth paragraph was adopted by 36 votes to 2, with 2 abstentions. The fifth paragraph, as modified, and the sixth paragraph were put to the vote together and adopted by 36 votes to none, with 6 abstentions. The Committee then proceeded to vote on the Polish amendment (A/C.6/L.150) to the seventh paragraph and rejected this amendment by 21 votes to 7, with 11 abstentions. The seventh paragraph was thereafter adopted by 32 votes to 5, with 3 abstentions. Finally, the joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.149), as modified, was adopted as a whole by 32 votes to 1, with 8 abstentions. This draft resolution contained in part VI of the present report.

V. CONSIDERATION OF PART IV OF THE REPORT OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION : THE QUESTION OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JURISDICTION

35. The Sixth Committee discussed part IV of the report of the International Law Commission on the question of international criminal jurisdiction at its 240th to 246th meetings inclusive, from 16 to 29 November 1950. The problems dealt with in the course of the debates were related both to the substantive question of the desirability and possibility of establishing an international penal court and to the procedural question as to what action should be recommended to the General Assembly in this matter at the present session.

36. With respect to the substantive question, some representatives were of the opinion that, as the punishment of crimes committed in the territory of a State was a matter within the jurisdiction of that State, the establishment of an international criminal court would be contrary to the sovereign rights of States. Other delegations held that the creation of such a court was not a practical project. They felt that a court, without an international police force to bring the accused before it and to execute its sentences, would be unable to function effectively. Furthermore, as in their opinion the question of desirability was dependent on that of practical possibility, they also doubted whether it was desirable to set up the court in existing circumstances. The contrary position favouring the setting up of an international penal court was based on the view that the creation of an international criminal jurisdiction vested with power to try and punish persons who disturbed international public order was desirable as an effective contribution to the peace and security of the world. It was pointed out that public opinion had been in favour of an international criminal jurisdiction since the end of the First World War. It was denied that the establishment of such a court would constitute an infringement of national sovereignty, as the court could be created by an international convention adhered to voluntarily by the States. By using this procedure there would, furthermore, be no need for an amendment of the Charter of the United Nations. The establishment of such a court would also be in complete conformity with the principle of international co-operation laid down in the Charter.

37. The majority of the delegations, however, felt that the question of the establishment of an international penal court could not be settled in abstracto, preferring therefore not to take a position on the question whether an international criminal court was possible or desirable until they had before them a draft statute of the said court and, if possible, a draft code of the law which the court would apply. Accordingly, the Committee gave careful consideration to the procedural question before it. Several representatives held the view that further consideration of part IV of the report of the International Law Commission should be postponed until after the Commission had submitted its draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind. Others, on the other hand, were of the opinion that at this stage it would be preferable to set up an inter-governmental committee which could prepare a draft statute of an international criminal court, taking into account also the political aspects of the matter. It was also emphasized that the setting up of such a committee would be without prejudice to the question of the desirability or possibility of establishing such a tribunal.

38. Canada submitted a draft resolution (A/C.6/L.155) which was replaced by a draft resolution presented jointly by Canada and the Union of South Africa (A/C.6/L.157), and subsequently revised by its sponsors (A/C.6/L.157/Rev.1). This last proposed postponement of consideration of part IV of the report of the International Law Commission until after the Commission had submitted its codification of offences against the peace and security of mankind.

39. Cuba, on the other hand, placed before the Committee a draft resolution (A/C.6/L.126) which suggested that the International Law Commission should be instructed to prepare a draft statute governing the establishment and functions of an international penal tribunal for the trial of persons charged with genocide or other crimes over which jurisdiction may be conferred upon that organ by international conventions. In the course of the deliberations, the Cuban delegation withdrew this draft resolution in favour of a draft resolution presented jointly by Cuba, France and Iran (A/C.6/L.151). In its operative part, the joint draft resolution proposed that a committee composed of representatives of fifteen Member States should meet in Geneva on 1 August 1951 for the purpose of preparing a preliminary draft convention relating to the establishment and the statute of an international penal court, for submission to the next regular session of the General Assembly. It also suggested that the governments of Member States should be invited to address to the Secretary-General their comments on the organization and functioning of such a court, and to instruct the Secretary-General to transmit such comments to the inter-governmental committee.

40. Amendments to this joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.151) were submitted by Israel (A/C.6/L.152), the United Kingdom (A/C.6/L.153) and the United States of America (A/C.6/L.158). In the light of these amendments, Cuba, France and Iran submitted a revised draft resolution (A/C.6/L.151/Rev.1), which incorporated, in substance, all the amendments, except one of those suggested by the United Kingdom. This latter amendment was however re-drafted by its sponsor, submitted as an amendment (A/C.6/L.159) to the revised draft resolution and, in this new form was accepted by the sponsors of that draft resolution. The joint draft resolution, as amended, recalled, in its first paragraph, resolution 260 B (III) inviting the International Law Commission to study the desirability and possibility of establishing an international penal court, and in its second paragraph took account of the conclusion reached by the Commission that the creation of such a court was desirable and possible. In the third paragraph it referred to article VI of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, and in the fourth paragraph it included the United Kingdom amendment that a final decision regarding the setting up of an international penal court could not be taken except on the basis of concrete proposals. Consequently, in the operative part, it recommended the establishment of a committee composed of representatives of seventeen Member States which should meet in Geneva on 1 August 1951 for the purpose of preparing one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals relating to the establishment and the statute of an international criminal court. It further requested the Secretary-General to prepare and submit to this inter-governmental committee one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals regarding such a court, to make all necessary arrangements for the convening of the committee and for its meetings, to communicate to the governments of Member States the report of the Committee so that their observations could be submitted not later than 1 June 1952, and to place this question on the agenda of the seventh session of the General Assembly.

41. Prior to the voting, the representatives of Canada and the Union of South Africa moved that their joint draft resolution (A/C.6/L.157/Rev.1) should be voted upon first. They felt that it dealt with a previous question, i.e., whether measures for establishing an international penal tribunal should be undertaken immediately or be postponed until the International Law Commission had prepared a draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind. Moreover, they wished to reserve the right to make further amendments to the joint draft resolution submitted by Cuba, France and Iran if their draft resolution should not be adopted. This motion was not adopted, 18 votes being cast in favour and 18 against, with 11 abstentions.

42. At this point, the representative of Canada submitted an amendment to replace the second paragraph of draft resolution A/C.6/L.151/Rev.1 by the second paragraph of draft resolution A/C.6/L.157/Rev.1 which merely stated that the General Assembly had given "preliminary consideration to part IV of the report of the second session of the International Law Commission". This amendment was adopted by 20 votes to 16, with 12 abstentions. The draft resolution of Cuba, France and Iran, as amended, was voted upon in parts and finally adopted by 35 votes to 6, with 8 abstentions. In adopting this draft resolution, it was clearly the sense of the Committee that the establishment of the inter-governmental committee, for the purpose of preparing one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals relating to the establishment and the statute of an international criminal court, would in no way commit the Governments as to the ultimate desirability and possibility of establishing such a court.

43. The Committee then considered the question of the composition of the inter-governmental committee. The Rapporteur introduced a proposal (A/C.6/L.160 and Corrs. 1 to 3) to the effect that the inter-governmental committee should be composed of representatives of the following Member States: Brazil, China, Cuba, Egypt, France, Iran, Israel, the Netherlands, Pakistan, Peru, Poland, Sweden, Syria, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom, the United States of America and Uruguay. He then suggested that the membership of the Committee should be increased to nineteen and that Australia and India should be added to the list. However, as the representatives of Poland and the USSR stated that their countries were unable to accept membership on the Committee, Australia and India were included on the list without changing the number of members. The representative of Sweden thereupon requested that Denmark should be substituted for his country. The Rapporteur's proposal, as thus modified, was adopted by 36 votes to none, with 6 abstentions. The final text of the draft resolution is contained in part VI of the present report.

VI. DRAFT RESOLUTIONS RECOMMENDED BY THE SIXTH COMMITTEE

44. In consequence of the decisions taken, the Sixth Committee recommends to the General Assembly the adoption of the following draft resolutions:

REPORT OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION ON THE WORK OF ITS SECOND SESSION.

Resolution A

REVIEW BY THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION OF ITS STATUTE WITH THE OBJECT OF RECOMMENDING REVISIONS THEREOF TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly,

Considering that it is of the greatest importance that the work of the International Law Commission should be carried on in the conditions most likely to enable the Commission to achieve rapid and positive results,

Having regard to certain doubts which have been expressed whether such conditions exist at the present time,

Requests the International Law Commission to review its statute with the object of making recommendations to the sixth session of the General Assembly concerning revisions of the statute which may appear desirable, in the light of experience, for the promotion of the Commission's work.

*Resolution B*AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE 13 OF THE STATUTE OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION*The General Assembly,*

Having regard to paragraph 21 of the report of the International Law Commission on the work of its second session (A/1316),

Noting the inadequacy of the emoluments paid to the members of the International Law Commission,

Bearing in mind the importance of the Commission's work, the eminence of its members and the method of their election,

Considering that the nature and scope of the work of the Commission are such as to require its members to devote considerable time in attendance at the necessarily long sessions of the Commission,

Decides to amend as follows article 13 of the statute of the International Law Commission :

" Members of the Commission shall be paid travel expenses, and shall also receive a special allowance, the amount of which shall be determined by the General Assembly. "

*Resolution C*EXTENSION OF THE TERM OF OFFICE OF THE PRESENT MEMBERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL LAW COMMISSION*The General Assembly,*

Having noted that the present three-year term of office of members of the International Law Commission is not sufficient to enable the Commission to achieve the tasks on which it is engaged before the current period of office expires,

Considering that, in order to enable positive results to be achieved, the term of office of the present members should be extended,

Resolves that, subject to any modifications which the General Assembly may make in the statute of the International Law Commission, and without prejudice to such modifications, the term of office of the present members of the Commission shall be extended by two years, making a total period of five years from their election in 1948.

*Resolution D*WAYS AND MEANS FOR MAKING THE EVIDENCE OF CUSTOMARY INTERNATIONAL LAW MORE READILY AVAILABLE*The General Assembly,*

Noting part II (Ways and means for making the evidence of customary international law more readily available) of the report of the International Law Commission on the work of its second session (A/1316),

Appreciating the work of the International Law Commission on this subject, Invites the Secretary-General, in preparing his future programme of work in this field, to consider and report to the General Assembly upon the recommendations contained in paragraphs 90, 91 and 93 of part II of the report of the International Law Commission in the light of the discussion held and the suggestions made thereon in the Sixth Committee.

Resolution E

FORMULATION OF THE NÜRNBERG PRINCIPLES

The General Assembly,

Having considered part III (Formulation of the Nürnberg principles) of the report of the International Law Commission on the work of its second session (A/1316),

Recollecting that the General Assembly, by its resolution 95 (I) of 11 December 1946, unanimously affirmed the principles of international law recognized by the charter of the Nürnberg Tribunal and the judgment of the Tribunal,

Considering that, by its resolution 177 (II) of 21 November 1947, the General Assembly directed the International Law Commission to formulate those principles, and also to prepare a draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind,

Considering that the International Law Commission has formulated certain principles recognized, according to the Commission, in the charter and judgment of the Nürnberg Tribunal, and that many delegations have made observations during the fifth session of the General Assembly on this formulation,

Considering that it is appropriate to give the governments of Member States full opportunity to furnish their observations on this formulation,

1. Invites the governments of Member States to furnish their observations accordingly;

2. Requests the International Law Commission, in preparing the draft code of offences against the peace and security of mankind, to take account of the observations made on this formulation by delegations during the fifth session of the General Assembly and of any observations which may be made by governments.

Resolution F

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL JURISDICTION

The General Assembly,

Recalling that in its resolution 260 B (III) of 9 December 1948, it considered ' that, in the course of development of the international community, there will be an increasing need of an international judicial organ for the trial of certain crimes under international law ', and that, in the same resolution, it invited the International Law Commission ' to study the desirability and possibility of establishing an international judicial organ for the trial of persons charged with genocide or other crimes over which jurisdiction will be conferred upon that organ by international conventions’;

Having given preliminary consideration to part IV of the report of the International Law Commission on the work of its second session,

Bearing in mind article VI of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide,

Bearing in mind, further, that a final decision regarding the setting up of such an international penal tribunal cannot be taken except on the basis of concrete proposals,

1. Decides that a committee composed of the representatives of the following seventeen Member States, namely, Australia, Brazil, China, Cuba, Denmark, Egypt, France, India, Iran, Israel, the Netherlands, Pakistan, Peru, Syria, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and

Northern Ireland, the United States of America and Uruguay, shall meet in Geneva on 1 August 1951 for the purpose of preparing one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals relating to the establishment and the statute of an international criminal court;

2. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare and submit to the committee referred to above one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals regarding such a court;

Financial implications of draft resolution B on agenda item 52, proposed by the Sixth Committee (A/1639) : Report of the Fifth Committee

[Original text: English]
[9 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the General Assembly rules of procedure and with the request of the President of the General Assembly in his letter of 30 October 1950 to the Chairman (A/C.5/394), the Fifth Committee, at its 258th and 259th meetings held on 31 October and 4 November 1950, considered the administrative and budgetary implications of draft resolution B and of the vœu adopted by the Sixth Committee concerning a special allowance for members of the International Law Commission (A/1639).

2. The Fifth Committee noted that under the terms of the draft resolution, article 13 of the statute of the Commission would be modified to provide that “Members of the Commission shall be paid travel expenses, and shall also receive a special allowance, the amount of which shall be determined by the General Assembly”; and that, in addition, the Sixth Committee had approved a vœu, to the effect that the special allowance provided for in the draft resolution should be thirty-five dollars per day. Discussion of the Sixth Committee’s proposals was taken up by the Fifth Committee concurrently with its consideration of recommendations submitted by the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions pursuant to the request of the General Assembly for a comprehensive review of the rate of subsistence allowances paid to members of commissions, committees and other subsidiary bodies of the General Assembly and other organs of the United Nations. The conclusions reached by the Fifth Committee as a result of its review of subsistence rates generally have been embodied in a separate report to the General Assembly (A/1538).

3. In the course of the debate, the view was expressed by a number of delegations that the question of a fee for services furnished by members of expert bodies was a separate question from that of daily subsistence allowance. Attention was also called to the fact that the Fifth Committee had recommended and the General Assembly had approved in 1949 budgetary provision for the payment of a $1,500 honorarium to each of five rapporteurs and the Chairman of the International Law Commission for work performed between sessions of the Commission in preparation for those sessions. It was pointed out that some of the arguments which were used in 1949 to justify the payment of honoraria were now being advanced to secure the special daily allowance for members of the International Law Commission. If, therefore, it was the intention to increase the per diem payable to those members, the Advisory Committee might be asked to examine the proposal together with the existing system providing for the payment of honoraria.

4. The representative of Brazil, however, pointed out that no definition of the meaning of "special allowance" existed in the draft resolution of the Sixth Committee. Since the Advisory Committee had already recommended a re-affirmation of the principle that daily allowances were intended to cover subsistence and not a fee for services, and since it had further suggested that, should its recommendations for an adjustment of daily subsistence rates be approved, the General Assembly might wish to reconsider the position for allowances at present paid on a differing basis, it seemed clear that the Advisory Committee would not be able to recommend an exception in the case of the International Law Commission and no useful purpose would therefore be served by such reference to the Advisory Committee.

5. In the opinion of other delegations, however, the proposal of the Sixth Committee to modify article 13 of the statute of the International Law Commission appeared to have reference not to any fee for services but rather to the payment, in view of the nature and scope of the Commission's work, the eminence of its members, and the method of their election, of a special daily allowance during sessions of the Commission. It was the view of a majority of the representatives of the Fifth Committee that in the matter of subsistence allowance it would be difficult in practice and, in any event, undesirable in principle, to discriminate between expert bodies with respect to the amount of subsistence per diem. The representative of Sweden, without making a proposal, expressed the opinion that the members of the International Law Commission, even if they ought not to be granted a higher daily subsistence allowance, should have a special fee for the services they are carrying out.

6. The Fifth Committee, having decided (A/1538) to recommend the adoption of the general subsistence rates proposed by the Advisory Committee (twenty-five dollars per day at Headquarters, twenty dollars per day elsewhere), was then invited to consider whether an exception should be made in the case of the International Law Commission. The proposal that a special subsistence allowance of thirty-five dollars per day should be fixed for members of that body was rejected by 19 votes to 15, with 7 abstentions.

7. The Fifth Committee therefore advises the General Assembly

(a) That adoption of the draft resolution of the Sixth Committee, under which provision would be made in the Statute of the International Law Commission for the payment of a special allowance to members of that Commission, would involve (on the assumption that such an allowance would be at the rate of thirty-five dollars per day) expenditure in 1951 amounting to $20,025; and

(b) That the Fifth Committee, on administrative grounds, is unable to recommend special treatment for the International Law Commission with respect to daily subsistence allowances.

Financial implications of draft resolution F on agenda item 52, proposed by the Sixth Committee (A/1639) : thirty-ninth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions

[Original text : English]
[9 December 1950]

1. The Secretary-General has submitted (A/C.5/438) the following estimate of the financial implications of draft resolution F proposed by the Sixth Committee (A/1639), which provides in the fifth paragraph for a meeting at Geneva of a committee of seventeen representatives for the purpose of preparing one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals relating to the establishment and the statute of an international criminal court, viz.

	US dollars
Subsistence of staff	4,080
Contractual printing (section 25)	4,510
TOTAL	8,590

No travel expenses will be incurred, since staff members detailed from Headquarters will service successive sessions of the International Law Commission and the proposed committee, and the necessary provision for travel has already been included under section 1, chapter IV, of the budget estimates.

2. Having regard to the fact that the committee of seventeen representatives will deal with a limited agenda, the Advisory Committee considers that a reduction should be possible in the number of staff members proposed to be assigned to the session. Accordingly, it recommends for approval the following appropriation :

	US dollars
Subsistence of staff under section 1	3,000
Contractual printing (section 25 — Official Records)	4,000
TOTAL	7,000

This represents a reduction of $1,590 on the estimate submitted.

Financial implications of draft resolution F on agenda item 52, proposed by the Sixth Committee (A/1639) :
report of the Fifth Committee[Original text: English]
[11 December 1950]

1. In accordance with rule 152 of the rules of procedure of the General Assembly and with the request of the President in his letter dated 5 December 1950 to the Chairman (A/C.5/431), the Fifth Committee, at its 278th meeting held on 11 December 1950, considered the financial implications of draft resolution F proposed by the Sixth Committee (A/1639) which provides in paragraph 1 of the operative part for a meeting at Geneva of a committee composed of representatives of seventeen Member States for the purpose of preparing one or more preliminary draft conventions and proposals relating to the establishment and the statute of an international criminal court.

2. The Committee had before it a report of the Secretary-General (A/C.5/438) and the thirty-ninth report of 1950 of the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions (A/1656). It was estimated by the Secretary-General that the proposed meeting would involve an additional expenditure of $4,080 under section 1 of the budget estimates for 1951 (for travel and subsistence of staff) and an additional $4,510 under section 25 (for printing). It was the view of the Advisory Committee, that, since the committee of seventeen representatives would be dealing with a limited agenda, a reduction should be possible in the number of staff members proposed to be assigned to the session. It accordingly recommended that the Secretary-General's estimates under section 1 and section 25 of the budget estimates should be reduced to $3,000 and $4,000 respectively.

3. The recommendation of the Advisory Committee was approved by the Fifth Committee by 29 votes to 4, with two abstentions.

4. The Fifth Committee therefore decided to inform the General Assembly that adoption of draft resolution F proposed by the Sixth Committee would require supplementary budgetary provision for 1951 in the total amount of $7,000.

Report of the Sixth Committee

[Original text: English]
[6 December 1950]

1. By resolution 367 (IV) of 3 December 1949, the General Assembly requested the Secretary-General to prepare, after consulting the Economic and Social Council, draft rules for the calling of non-governmental conferences, with a view to their study by the General Assembly.

2. Accordingly, the Secretary-General consulted the Economic and Social Council at its eleventh session, submitting to the Council for this purpose a memorandum on the question (E/1723). The Council, in resolution 335 (XI) of 20 July 1950, advised the Secretary-General that it had approved the draft rules for the calling of non-governmental conferences set forth in the resolution, and recommended that the Secretary-General should submit these draft rules to the General Assembly.

3. The General Assembly, at its 285th plenary meeting on 26 September 1950, referred this item to the Sixth Committee for consideration.

4. The Sixth Committee discussed the item at its 250th meeting held on 4 December 1950.

5. In addition to a report of the Secretary-General (A/1333), the Committee had before it amendments to the draft rules submitted by the representatives of Australia (A/C.6/L.161) and the Union of South Africa (A/C.6/L.166).

6. After discussion in the Committee, the representative of Australia withdrew his amendment (A/C.6/L.161) and with the representative of France, submitted a joint amendment (A/C.6/L.167) which, at the suggestion of the representative of Iran, was subsequently modified to read as follows :

“ Replace rule 2, paragraph 2, by the following :

“ ‘ The Council may decide to entrust the Secretary-General with any of the tasks mentioned in subparagraphs (b), (d) and (e) of paragraph 1. It may also authorize him to make such modifications as circumstances may require in carrying out any decision of the Council made pursuant to subparagraphs (b), (d) and (e). ’ ”

The representative of the Union of South Africa withdrew his amendment (A/C.6/L.166) in favour of an amendment submitted by the representative of Argentina (A/C.6/L.168) which was modified to read as follows :

“ Add the following at the end of rule 2, paragraph 1 :

“ ‘ In applying rule 2, paragraph 1 (c), the Economic and Social Council shall, when it decides to invite non-governmental organizations, have regard to the terms of Article 71 of the Charter. National organizations without consultative status may be invited only after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned. ’ ”

7. The Committee voted as follows on the English text of the draft rules proposed by the Secretary-General (A/1333) and the amendments thereto :

	In favour	Against	Abstentions

(3) Draft rule 3	28	4	4
