1. GS1

Special, 2011

Introduction

Founded in 1974, GS1 is based in Brussels, Belgium.

Aims and purposes of the organization

GS1 is a leading global organisation dedicated to the design and implementation of global standards and solutions to improve the efficiency and visibility of supply and demand chains globally and across sectors.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

Under the Food and Agricultural Principles (FABs), the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) and the ITC (the International Trade Centre), GS1 is developing a global infrastructure to recognize the huge numbers of farmers that are the engine for national and international food systems. GS1 is facilitating the barcode subgroup of the World Health Organization (WHO) Vaccines Packaging and Presentation Advisory Group (VPPAG).

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

Since GS1 was granted special consultative status in August 2011, it has participated as an NGO delegation within the United Nations Centre for Trade Facilitation and Electronic Business (UN/CEFACT). In particular, it took part in the UN/CEFACT Agricultural Domain — Livestock Traceability Messaging Working Group. It also took part in the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe (UNECE) Working Party 7 on Agricultural Quality Standards, Specialized Section on Standardization of Meat in 2013.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

A Memorandum of Understanding was established between the Universal Postal Union (UPU) and GS1 in December 2010. The two organisations are exploring collaboration in the areas of locational identifiers, radio frequency identification (RFID) technologies and electronic commerce standards. GS1 is working with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the International Trade Centre (ITC) to improve the humanitarian supply chain by applying GS1 identification and exchange standards. A pilot project was carried out in 2014 which is now being evaluated. GS1 is an active member of the International Telecommunication Union's (ITU) Joint Coordination Activity on Internet of Things (JCA-IoT), since its inception in February 2011.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

No activities were specified.

2. South Asian Forum for Environment

Special, 2011

Introduction

Registered in 2004, South Asian Forum for Environment (SAFE) works to achieve sustainable environment and development objectives for poverty alleviation through empowerment, equity and reciprocity in the Indian ecoregion.

Aims and purposes of the organization

SAFE addresses climate change issues and conducts research for sustainable development by creating alternative livelihood opportunities through Biorights, community preparedness for disaster mitigation and adaptation for resilience to climate change, and enhancing capacity building for innovation and green technology transfer in rural sectors.

Significant changes in the organization

SAFE now actively works in the South-Asia ecoregion. START (SAFE Task Action Research Team) was formed as an advisory unit responsible for policy framework and strategic direction.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

The organization contributed through the following activities:

- Conflict resolution for peace;
- Progress towards a sustainable solution of trans-boundary water issues and regulating the haulage of ‘ecologically sensitive goods’ across borders through an initiative called PENTA-C;
- An initiative called ‘Biorights of Commons’ that recognizes the human rights of marginal communities;
- Gender equity and mainstreaming in all interventions;
- Community governance of natural resources through participatory resource budgeting, equitable access, resource sharing and regeneration.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

SAFE participated in the following meetings:

- United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) — Conference of the Parties (COP) 17 — COP 21;
- COP 11 — Convention on Biological Diversity, Hyderabad, India;
- United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) Asia Ecological Forum 2012 Seoul, Republic of Korea; and
- United Nations University — Maastricht Economic and Social Research Institute on Innovation and Technology (UNU-MERIT): Globelics 2009, Dakar, Senegal.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

SAFE engages with UNEP as a member of the United Nations Environment Assembly. It works with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) Small Grants Programme (SGP). The United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-HABITAT) funded SAFE's youth intervention on urban forests. The organization has 'Observer' status with UNFCCC and received the Lighthouse Activity Award 2014. It is an accredited member of the scientific steering council and works on UNESCO World Heritage Sites.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

SAFE interventions in biodiversity conservation and urban Climate Smart Cities comply with "Aichi Targets" and complement MDGs 1 and 7 along with their targets and technical indicators. SAFE's interventions on gender responsive equality and empowerment of women directly contribute to MDG 3, while international partnership and collaboration for climate adaptive intervention and global networking for knowledge economy conform to MDG 8.

Additional Information

Awards and Accolades received:

- Lighthouse Activity Award 2014, UNFCCC
- World Bank Development Marketplace Award 2014

3. Stichting Feminenza NederlandSpecial, 2011*Introduction

Feminenza Stichting is part of a network of international women's NGOs, consisting of 400 leaders and educators from 18 countries.

Aims and purposes of the organization

Feminenza aims 'to encourage every woman's future, and work towards a better mutuality between the genders'. Ferminenza's priorities are to support United Nations Security Council resolutions (UNSCR) 1624 and 1325, and Millennium Development Goal (MDG) 3 by developing the contribution of women to fostering a culture of peace; strengthening the role of women in leadership; and combating violence against women and girls through gender education for both genders.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

Stichting Feminenza NL dedicated financial and human resources to the Feminenza training Programme for Forgiveness and Reconciliation Counsellors in Kenya. The pilot was funded by the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) and independently monitored by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA). Some 5000 victims and perpetrators were rehabilitated.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

The organization participated in a workshop of the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW): “Women rehabilitating survivors and offenders as a long term transformative solution to Gender Based Violence”, 5 March 2013, New York.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

Feminenza has worked with UN Women in Kenya to deliver the training programme for Forgiveness and Reconciliation Counsellors.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

During 2011-2014, Stichting Feminenza was instrumental in assisting the international Feminenza network to develop its global Forgiveness and Reconciliation training programme, which supports the objectives of UNSCR 1325 and MDG 3. This programme is active in Europe, Kenya, North America, the Middle East and is still growing. Feminenza is training community and women leaders and empowering them to lead peacebuilding and conflict resolution initiatives. The programme is addressing vulnerable groups in the Netherlands such as women who suffered from domestic violence, refugees from Francophone Africa and vulnerable girls.

4. Stree Aadhar Kendra

Special, 1999

Introduction

Stree Aadhar Kendra (SAK) or Women’s Development Center has operated in India since 1984, implementing development and empowerment programmes for women from distressed communities and also advocating for their rights to progressive laws and programmes.

Aims and purposes of the organization

SAK aims to empower women, especially those living in distressed conditions, through counselling, awareness-raising, mobilisation, networking, research and advocacy. SAK helps women address issues of discrimination and exploitation and ensures that gender justice is achieved in democratic and non-violent ways. SAK builds linkages with like-minded national and international civil society organizations and the United Nations system to make an impact at the local level and beyond.

Significant changes in the organization

SAK has increased its work on violence against women (VAW) through its counselling centers, facilitating legal and judiciary processes and advocating at the state and federal levels for effective implementation of the Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW), the Beijing Platform for Action (BPFA), the Protection of Children From Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (POCSO) Act 2013, Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act 2005 (Amendments 2013) and the Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition & Redressal) Act, 2013.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

During the period 2011-2014, SAK organized a campaign demanding legal action and conviction of offenders of sexual exploitation of women police trainee officials, as well as numerous workshops, meetings and conferences on: gender sensitization with police; gender responsive budgeting with municipal corporations; enhancing women's participation in and strengthening of local governing bodies in urban and rural areas for elected women; tools and techniques of family counselling for NGOs on handling cases of domestic violence with sensitivity; addressing, with policy-makers and administrators, growing incidences of violence against women; the role of elected women representatives in government and administration; enacting legislation to stop honour killings and to oppose publicity of violence and secondary status of women in the media; amendments to laws for "no bail" for offenders of molestation.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

No participation was specified.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

The organization held meetings with the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) Multi Commission on the Status of Women (CSW) CSO Group at Delhi office. It co-facilitated and was actively involved in "My World campaign by United Nations Millennium Campaign" in Maharashtra, India.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

Towards MDG 3, the organization played a significant role in demanding more empowering legislation for women after sexual violence, Delhi Nirbhaya Case, Dec 2012. It partnered with like-minded organizations to petition more than 0.175 million people to demand effective laws. Under MDG 7, it organized a disaster management workshop on preventive measures in case of earthquake and other natural calamities.

5. Stree Mukti Sanghatana

Special, 1999

Introduction

Stree Mukti Sanghatana (Women's Liberation Organisation) has operated in India since 1975. Its efforts are directed at uplifting women, chiefly by creating awareness about women's issues and about equality, peace and development.

Aims and purposes of the organization

Stree Mukti Sanghatana (SMS) works to bring about economic, social, political and cultural changes in the lives of women by removing all forms of discrimination, and to achieve the equality bestowed by the Constitution.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

SMS has conducted various activities and developed programmes to create awareness about gender bias, violence against women and environmental concerns, including:

- formation of a cultural troupe, which for 40 years has been dedicated to promoting gender equality, social justice and environmental awareness through street plays, large scale theatre and song productions and other folk arts of India.
- setting up family counselling centers
- school-based Adolescent Sensitization Program covering annually twenty thousand girls and boys

9. Transform Drug Policy Foundation

Special, 2007

Introduction

Transform Drug Policy Foundation is an international charity and think tank engaged in policy analysis and advocacy to bring about an end to the war on drugs and the establishment of effective and humane systems of drug regulation. Transform operates internationally and has offices in Bristol and London, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and Mexico City, Mexico.

Aims and purposes of the organization

Transform aims to achieve more just and effective drug policies by inspiring countries to explore alternatives to the failed war on drugs, and establish evidence based models for the legal regulation of drugs that can more effectively deliver on the core pillars of the United Nations in terms of health, human rights, security and development.

Significant changes in the organization

In 2012 Transform launched a Mexican based Latin America programme of work in collaboration with the NGO Mexico Unido Contra la Delincuencia (MUCD), establishing an office in Mexico City.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

Transform produces dedicated analysis for member state missions and United Nations agency personnel. Transform uses this analysis to advocate for change, stimulate dialogue between relevant stakeholders, and help achieve the mission to deliver a drug policy that supports rather than undermines the key pillars of the United Nations. Transform is both participating in and organizing a range of forums and events in, or related to the United Nations, focused on the 2016 United Nations General Assembly Special Session on drugs (UNGASS 2016).

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

14. United States Committee for UNIFEM

Special, 1999

Introduction

Chartered in 1983, the United States Committee for UNIFEM, now called the U.S. National Committee for UN Women (USNC-UN Women), is one of 18 National Committees worldwide that support the mission of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) to generate public awareness for programmes aimed at women's empowerment and gender equality in over 100 countries around the globe.

Aims and purposes of the organization

USNC-UN Women is dedicated to achieving a world where women and girls live free from violence, poverty and inequality. The organization alerts its members about issues of critical concern for the advancement of women and informs elected officials about such issues to engage their support for UN Women programmes.

Significant changes in the organization

In 2011, after UNIFEM joined with other organizations to form the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and Empowerment of Women (UN Women), the US National Committee for UNIFEM amended its Articles of Incorporation to reflect the new name, the U.S. National Committee for UN Women (USNC-UN Women).

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

In 2013 and 2014, USNC-UN Women and the Metro NY Chapter of USNC-UN Women hosted parallel events during the commission on the Status of Women (CSW). In 2013, the panel of prominent male leaders addressed the issue of "Where are the Men?" in advocating for global women's issues. In 2014, the panel addressed the topic of "Where are the Women and Girls: Empowering Women and Girls in STEM." Other major activities are the annual chapter walks to support UN Women and the United Nations Trust Fund to End Violence Against Women.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

From 2011 through 2014, USNC-UN Women representatives and guests attended the sessions of the CSW. Prior to the CSW meetings, USNC-UN Women signed on to the official statements of the NGO Committee on UN Women. USNC-UN Women co-hosted parallel interactive workshop events each year with NGO Committee on UN Women colleagues. UNIFEM-USNC is a strong advocate of the Secretary-General's "Say NO –UNiTE" campaign to end violence against women, and has built partnerships with the United Nations Foundation.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

USNC-UN Women provides UN Women annually with a minimum of $50,000 in addition to self-funding organizational operations and sending written and emailed publications to USNC-UN Women constituencies. USNC-UN Women representatives are regular attendees at the weekly informational sessions held by the Department of Public Information and relevant information on various aspects of the work of the UN is forwarded to USNC-UN Women members. USNC-UN Women is working with UN Women on their Beijing+20 campaign, specifically to connect UN Women and civil society organizations to accelerate the implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action in its 20th year. On 14 April 2014, USNC-UN Women and the United Nations Foundation co-hosted the initial meeting between UN Women and Washington, DC, United States of America, based civil society organizations.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

USNC-UN Women's work supports, particularly, but not exclusively, MDG 3. Detailed fact sheets concerning the MDGs have been presented at various special events over the years by local chapters and then sent to all on USNC-UN Women's mailing list.

15. Women Watch Afrika

Special, 2011

Introduction

Women Watch Afrika (WWA) is a non-profit, non-governmental, social justice women's organization focused on the alleviation of gender discrimination and the development of women and girls. It was first established in November 1994 in Dakar, Senegal, and was formed in Atlanta, Georgia, United States of America, in 1997 in response to unmet need of women of African descent. WWA serves underserved low-income refugee families from 22 African countries.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The primary goal of WWA is to eliminate all forms of discrimination and health disparities against women, and promote the social and economic development of women and girls. WWA examines the continuing barriers to the application of local and international laws for the protection of the rights of women. WWA is committed to educating women on their human rights including reproductive rights, health rights, educational rights, housing rights, and working towards access and affordable health services.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

WWA contributes to the work of the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) and its subsidiary bodies by linking African women's concerns in the United States with that of women in their native countries, along with global concerns aimed at the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women. WWA collaborates with other NGOs to work to advance the global agenda on women's rights, gender equality and the empowerment of women, and ensure that women's voices are heard in international policy arenas.

WWA participated with other groups at the meeting organized by the United States Human Rights Network and the Urban Justice Center to develop the United States Shadow Report; which was submitted to the Human Rights Council, documenting the human rights situation in preparation of the Universal Periodic Review (UPR) of the United States.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

No participation was specified.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

A member of WWA participated in the Anti-Discrimination Section at the United Nations, Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, Geneva, Switzerland, in spring 2013. Fellowship Program, People of African Descent. WWA also participates at the United Nations Human Rights Civil Society Section, including the latest on, “How to Follow Up on United Nations Human Rights Recommendations”.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

WWA wrote a position paper “Women and Global Poverty” to call attention on the need to eradicate global poverty. WWA led the “Education Justice for girls and the #BringbackourGirls campaign”, the international campaign to release the 300 girls abducted by Boko Haram in Northern Nigeria, in line with MDG 3. WWA leads a annual training of 20 Refugee Preventive Health Advocates from twelve countries who serve as community health workers. They in turn replicate trainings to six women each month thereby reaching more women, in line with MDG 5.
